E-Compendium of CESTAT Case Laws

Pro - Revenue
Chairman's Message

It gives me immense pleasure to launch E-compendium of CESTAT case laws. These case laws pertain to Customs, Excise and Service Tax, the ratios of which are still relevant in the GST regime. Being a compilation of pro-revenue cases, I am sure this compendium would be highly useful and handy for the Departmental officers in the process of investigation and adjudication of cases.

The initiative undertaken by the office of the Chief Commissioner (AR) is commendable. I wish them all the best in future.

(M. Ajit Kumar)

New Delhi, 9th April, 2021
Case laws are an important part of our jurisprudence. The orders of Hon’ble CESTAT, unless stayed by higher Courts, are binding precedent on jurisdictional Departmental Authorities. Therefore, there is a need for all Departmental officers to stay abreast with the latest CESTAT orders in their respective areas of work. Important case laws in favour of Revenue should be regularly used to strengthen our show cause notices, the orders-in-original and orders-in-appeal, as well in our appeals before appellate fora.

The Chief Commissioner (AR) Sh. Satish Kumar Agrawal and his team have prepared an e-compilation of important case laws by CESTAT of the last 3 years which are in favour of Revenue. These case laws pertain to Service Tax, Customs and Central Excise. Being downloadable in a mobile, tablet or computer, it will be a handy tool for all officers of CBIC. The search facility for keywords can be used to search case laws relevant to a particular issue.

The selection of case laws has been made by keeping in mind that ratio contained in these case laws may also be relevant even in the present tax regime of GST. The major issues covered under these case laws are taxability, classification, valuation, standard of evidences, limitation, eligibility of exemption notifications, etc.

I commend the ARs working in the Chief Commissioner (AR) Office for the efforts made and wish them all the best in future.

New Delhi, 13th April 2021

Editor In Chief: Preface

This is the fourth year since the introduction of GST in July, 2017. Despite a sizeable liquidation of appeals under the Sabka Vishwas (Legacy Dispute Resolution) (SVLDR) Scheme, we still find more than 40,000 appeals of Central Excise and Service Tax pending at CESTAT and inflow of such appeals at the Hon'ble Tribunal has not much dwindled. In addition, there are around 18,000 appeals of Customs also pending. Hence, it is safe to say that Hon'ble CESTAT will have considerable work load for some more years, before the entire Central Excise and Service Tax pendency is wiped out and only Customs appeals remain with it.

Since the laws of Central Excise, Service Tax and GST are pari materia to a large extent, the ratio of the orders of Hon'ble CESTAT will hold relevance in the GST era as well. The professional compilations of case laws available in the market do miss out on case laws in favour of Revenue. So, an effort is being made to compile the recent orders of Hon'ble CESTAT (of last 3 years) favourable to Revenue for the benefit of the Departmental Officers. This compendium has been titled as “E-Compendium of Recent CESTAT Case Laws”. It can be easily downloaded and stored in mobile phones or desktops. The E-Compendium is in the form of a pdf file with the facility of searching for case laws containing particular keywords / phrases like classification, valuation, penalty etc. The judgements have been selected in terms of their importance and the relevance in the GST era as well.

I hope that the present E-Compendium will prove to be a useful tool for all the Departmental Officers.

I acknowledge the work done by the team of ARs in bringing out this compendium.

BRIEF NOTES OF THE CASES
1. M/S JPG CONSTRUCTION PVT LTD Vs. COMMISSIONER OF GOODS AND SERVICE TAX, DELHI EAST

   Service Tax Appeal No.ST/50807/2019-[DB]-Delhi
   Final Order No. 51040/2021

   ST: The issue arises for consideration is as to whether the appellant had submitted the application for refund of Service Tax within the stipulated time since the application filed for refund has been rejected on the sole ground that it was not submitted within the time with the Department. This Application was filed beyond the period prescribed in sub-section (3) of section 102 of Finance Act.

   Held: In absence of any provision for condoning the delay in filing the application, Commissioner (A), committed no illegality in upholding the order passed by Assistant Commissioner rejecting the application filed by appellant for refund of Service Tax on the ground that it was not filed within the time stipulated.

2. M/S MGF EVENT MANAGEMENT Vs. COMMISSIONER OF CENTRAL EXCISE

   Final Order No. 50154/2020

   ST: Appellant is operating parking areas in five Malls by way of providing parking to the patrons/visitors of shopping malls and collecting parking fees for which they have appointed an outside agency (Third Party Agency) for managing the parking area which is collecting "Parking Fees" on behalf of the appellants and remitting the proceeds to the appellant.

   Held: If the consideration is in terms of some benefit to the service provider which can be measured or converted into money it will constitute a valid consideration. Order-in-Original is upheld as far as legality of levy of Service Tax on the activity under 'management, maintenance or repair service' is concerned. However, the appellant will be entitled to avail CENVAT credit of Service Tax paid by the service providers and cum-tax benefit.

3. M/S C. P. SYSTEMS PVT. LIMITED. Vs. COMMISSIONER OF SERVICE TAX

   ST:

   Held:

   CCAR NEW DELHI
ST: Issue regarding filing of Cross Objection.

Held: Cross Objection have to be filed within 45 days of the receipt of the notice of the Appeal as provided for under Section 86(4) of the Finance Act, 1942. However, sub-section (5) of Section 86 provides that the Appellate Tribunal may admit an appeal or permit the filing of a memorandum of cross-objection after the expiry of the period referred to in sub-section (3) or sub-section (4), if it is satisfied that there was sufficient cause for not presenting it within that period. Bad financial condition of Company or the fact that main Appeal is still pending for final decision has no consequence on condoning delay for filing such application.

4. M/S MODI APOLLO INTERNATIONAL LIMITED Vs. COMMISSIONER (ADJUDICATION), DELHI
   Service Tax Appeal No. 00214/2012
   Final Order No. 50023/2020

ST: Time limit for filing Restoration of Appeal application.

Held: Period of three months for filing the Appeal should be considered as the limitation for filing a Restoration Application. The explanation for the delay has to be accounted and supported with evidence.

5. M/S PRASAR BHARTI (BROADCASTING CORPORATION OF INDIA) DOORDARSHAN Vs. COMMISSIONER OF CUSTOMS, CENTRAL EXCISE, NEW DELHI
   Service Tax Appeal No. 55702/2014
   Final Order No.50762/2019

ST: Overlapping periods covered in both show cause notices.

Held: Though the first show cause notice dated 17 October 2008 that was issued to the appellant is for a part of the Financial Year 2007-08, namely from April 2007 to September 2007 which period is included in the second show cause notice dated 18 May 2009, but what needs to be pointed out is that the first show cause notice is based on the total income shown by the appellant in the ST-3 return for the said period. The show cause notice alleges that even on the taxable value shown in the ST-3 return, the appellant short paid Service Tax. It does not challenge the correctness of the taxable value shown in the ST-3 return. The second show cause notice, on the other hand, challenges the taxable value indicated by the appellant in the ST-3 return for the FY 2003-04 to 2007-08. It is stated that lesser taxable value has been shown. Therefore, no overlapping of issues in the two show cause notices.

6. M/S INNOVATIVE CLAD SOLUTIONS PVT LTD Vs. COMMISSIONER OF CENTRAL EXCISE AND SERVICE TAX, INDORE
   Service Tax Appeal No.ST/51361-64 & 51355/2016-[DB]-Delhi
   Final Order No. 50374-50378/2019

ST: Refunds were rejected by the lower authorities for being filed beyond the time limit of one year from the end of month in which actual payment of Service Tax was made by the SEZ unit to the registered service provider.
Held: Notification No. 40/2012-ST dated 29.06.2012 exempts the services on which Service Tax is eligible under Section 66b. The said exemption is amended to have been provided by way of refund of Service Tax paid specified services received by the SEZ unit or the developer of SEZ and use for the authorized operations however subject to the conditions as mentioned therein including that the claim especially be filed within the year from the end of the month in which actual payment of Service Tax was made by such SEZ unit or developer of SEZ to the registered service. The refund claim was filed beyond the time limit as prescribed above. Admittedly there was no former application seeking condonation of the said delay except the oral submission of appellant before adjudicating authority. Law has been settled that the exemption Notification has to be construed strictly and there has to be strict interpretation of the same by reading the same literally. Once the said eligible criteria has not been made or any condition pre-requisite for the said benefit has not been made that the benefit of exemption Notification cannot be made available to the assessee.

7. M/S JOHRI CABLE NETWORK Vs. THE COMMISSIONER (AUDIT), CENTRAL GOODS AND SERVICE TAX, JODHPUR

ST: Appeal has been preferred against the OIA vide which the appeal of the appellant against the OIO has been dismissed on the ground of limitation

Held: The absence of any effort to enquire about the orders in furtherance of the recovery proceedings as mentioned in the Newspaper, except a letter, is not sufficient for condoning delay of almost 6 years.

8. M/S ARIHANT TILES & MARBLES PVT. LTD. Vs. COMMISSIONER (APPEALS), JODHPUR

ST: Delayed payment of interest amount. Assessee pleading interest, compensatory in nature and delay of 10 years in getting interest refunded, entitles assessee to be compensated for the same.

Held: As per Section 11BB of Central Excise Act, 1944, interest is allowed on delayed refunds but provision is silent about any interest on delayed payment of interest as claimed herein. Inordinate delay for grant of justified claim may entitle person to get compensation against that delay. However, Tribunal not empowered to award compensation as not being provided by statute.

9. M/S BRIJESH CABLE NETWORK Vs. THE COMMISSIONER (AUDIT), CENTRAL GOODS & SERVICE TAX, JODHPUR

ST: Case of the appellant, where the appeal was filed before the Commissioner (Appeals) beyond limitation period.

Held: No concrete efforts taken by the appellant to file the appeal despite it being published in the newspaper. Limitation being a statutory mandate, Commissioner (Appeals) cannot condone the delay. The appeal is hereby dismissed.

10. M/S DIAMOND CONSTRUCTION Vs. COMMR. OF CUS., C. EX. & S.T., JABALPUR

ST Appeal Nos. ST/51592 with 51593/2016
ST: Condonation of delay - Appeal filed beyond period of two months and extended period of one month from date of communication of order dismissed by Commissioner (Appeals).

Held: Appellate Authority can entertain appeal by condoning delay only up to 30 days beyond normal period for preferring appeal, which is 60 days. Commissioner (Appeals) therefore, justified in dismissing appeal on the ground of limitation.

11. M/S HDFC BANK LTD Vs. COMMISSIONER OF CENTRAL EXCISE, THANE-II

   Final Order No. A/85818/2020

   ST: The holders of credit cards provided by the appellant, as issuing bank, procure goods and services from merchant establishments and the expenditure so incurred becomes due for payment by the holder to the appellant at the end of the agreed-upon cycle as indicated in the billing statement. The debt to the merchant establishment is transferred, at pre-determined discount, to an acquiring bank, viz., VISA or Master card, which is credited by the issuing bank with the invoiced amount and the said discount is split between them. In cross-border procurements, the inter-bank transaction is agreed to be effected at rates of exchange of the currencies involved that prevail on the date of the transaction and to which the issuing bank adds 'mark-up' while billing the holder of the credit card. It is this additional amount [mark-up] retained by the appellant that is bone of contention between the tax authorities and the assessee.

   Back

   Held: The 'mark-up' charged by the appellant is neither received nor billed in convertible foreign currency and such being the determinant, along with location, for the rendering of service outside the tax jurisdiction, the claim of the appellant to be exempt from tax fails.

12. M/S SAHARA INDIA TV NETWORK Vs. COMMISSIONER OF SERVICE TAX, MUMBAI-II

   Final Order No. A/85326-85327/2020

   ST: It was observed that the appellant had incurred expenditure in foreign currency towards the services received from M/S Asia Satellite Telecommunication Company Ltd. (AsiaSat) for providing C-Band Transponder on Asisset-3S Satellite. The aforesaid activity of providing the C-Band Transponder, appeared to be provision of an infrastructural support to the business of assessee. Since AsiaSat was not having any establishment in India, assessee was required to discharge Service Tax liability as recipient of the services as per Section 66A of FA, 1994 r/w Rule 3(iii) of Taxation of Services Rules, 2006.

   Held: The services rendered by M/S AsiaSat to assessee are nothing but "infrastructure support services" for supporting the business of broadcasting services undertaken by assessee.

13. M/S NATIONAL SECURITIES DEPOSITORY LTD. Vs. COMMISSIONER OF SERVICE TAX-V, MUMBAI

   Final Order No. A/85598/2020

   ST: The issue for consideration is, whether the services provided by assessee to their Depository participants are in nature of "provision and transfer of information and data processing" services taxable under category of Banking and Other Financial Services as defined by Section 65(12) of FA, 1994.

   Held: The services provided by them to Depository Participants are covered by definition of Banking and Financial services and are liable to Service Tax under that category.
14. M/S GO AIRLINES (INDIA) LTD Vs. COMMISSIONER OF SERVICE TAX – I

Final Order No. A/85801/2020

ST: Whether the impugned activity conforms to section 65(105)(zh) of Finance Act, 1994 and or to section 65(105)(zzzze) of Finance Act, 1994 and whether extended period can be invoked.

Held: Though the information and database may be accessed at either end only by the appellant and intending passengers or agents, the taxability is in relation to such performance that can be undertaken only with the software and hosting provided by the overseas entity. The appellant, by entering into the impugned contract, has a customer-supplier relationship with M/s Radixx Solutions International Inc. This, undoubtedly, is in conformity with the taxable service. Also the liability to pay tax during extended period cannot be extinguished by adopting the plea of revenue neutrality.

15. M/S BANK OF AMERICA, NATIONAL ASSOCIATION Vs. PRINCIPAL COMMISSIONER, MUMBAI EAST

Final Order No. A/85801/2020

ST: Scheduled Commercial Banks are required to deposit certain amount as premium for insuring the depositors account to the Deposit Insurance Credit Guarantee Corporation (DICGC). On the premium paid by them to the DICGC, they pay Service Tax, and claim the same as CENVAT Credit treating these services as input services for providing the output services. The issue before the bench was the admissibility of CENVAT credit on the insurance premium paid to DICGC and Service Tax paid on the commission paid to the brokers for underwriting the government securities etc. and for making investments in securities to maintain mandatory SLR as per the Banking Regulation Act, 1949.

Held: The bench observed that the provisions of Finance Act, 1994 and the CENVAT Credit Rules, 2004 should be considered in the light of the said principles of interpretation as laid down by Apex Court. By extending the benefit by referring to insurance of the bank, and the banking business, may not be the justified approach as per this decision. The matter needs to be referred to President for constituting a larger bench to clarify the issues in this regard.

16. CC, GST, MUMBAI WEST Vs. M/S JUHU BEACH RESORT LTD

Final Order No. A/86832/2019

ST: Appellant applied for interest on refund of pre-deposit.

Held: Pre-deposit having been made in 2008, assessee’s entitlement for interest on the refund of pre-deposit would be from the date after expiry of 3 months from the date of communication of order in their favour. Accordingly, the impugned order granting interest from date of payment of pre-deposit was set aside.

17. M/S TAFE REACH LTD. Vs. CENTRAL GST, SALEM

Service Tax Appeal No.40793/2019(DB)-Chennai
ST: Appellant providing both taxable as well as exempted services.

Held: The Rules of CCR, 2004 for trading activity relating to consumables used for providing the service, cover situations where assesses provide both exempted and taxable services. Wherever someone undertakes activities that cannot be called a service or which is not “manufacture”, that activity goes out of the purview of both Central Excise Act, 1944 as well as Finance Act, 1994. In such cases, an assessee would be ineligible for claiming input-Service Tax credit on an output which is neither a service nor excisable goods. There is no provision to cover situations where an assessee is providing a taxable service and is undertaking another activity which is neither a service nor manufacture. In such a situation, the only correct legal position appears to be that it is for the assesses to segregate the quantum of input service attributable to trading activity and exclude the same from the records maintained for availing credit.

18. M/S TALKING TECHNOLOGY (P) LTD. Vs. COMMISSIONER OF SERVICE TAX, CHENNAI

Service Tax Appeal No.41151/2013(DB)-Chennai

ST: Case of the appellant providing manpower supply services, classification disputed by the appellant.

Held: From the excerpts of the contract, it can be safely concluded that the nature of the contract is for supply of manpower. The consideration is paid on the basis of man-hours. It can also be seen that the work is executed as per the guidance of M/S. WTI. Thus, for carrying out the development, maintenance, etc., of software, the persons so deployed by the appellant to M/S. WTI are under the control of M/S. WTI and they work under the guidance and supervision of M/S. WTI. Hence the tendered service was held as Manpower recruitment and supply service.

19. M/S EMARS MINING CONSTRUCTION PVT LTD Vs. COMMISSIONER OF SERVICE TAX, KOLKATA

Service Tax Appeal No.194/2012(DB)-Kolkata
Final Order No. 75057/2020

ST: The appellant is engaged in providing services relating to raising, extracting and transportation of iron ore. The appellant entered into the supplementary agreement from 2007-08 whereby the consideration receivable by the appellant was split into mining charges(40%) and transportation charges (60%). Demand on the ground that the such activities are clearly falling under ‘Mining Services’ and it cannot be artificially split into ‘Mining Services’ and ‘GTA Services’.

Held: The activity undertaken by the appellants is composite activity. For the sake of interpretation and applicability of Service Tax, the contract cannot be vivisected. The terms of the contract being categorical, the division of the amount payable in a ratio appears to be only for the convenience of the parties involved and therefore it cannot be concluded that the services rendered by the appellants are under two different heads. Such an artificial bifurcation is not acceptable.

20. M/S TATA STEEL LTD Vs. COMMISSIONER OF CENTRAL EXCISE AND SERVICE TAX, JAMSHEDPUR

Service Tax Appeal No.372/2011(DB)-Kolkata
Final Order No. 76176/2019
ST: self service

Held: Failure by assessee to prove that it was case of ‘Self Service’. Revenue clearly establishing that it was service for which payment made to service provider by service recipient. Services rendered by the appellant was for consideration, in case of orders for executing service, the appellant had sub-contracted after making payment for which, the appellant had also taken credit for the Service Tax amount charged.

21. M/S N.C. PAUL & COMPANY Vs. COMMISSIONER OF CENTRAL EXCISE, BOLPUR

   Final Order No.76934/KOL/2019

   ST: Contracts for transportation of Coal from Coal Handling Plant (CHP) Stock Yard to Railway Siding up to 06-07 K.M. and loading the Coal into Railway Wagon with incidental loading/unloading are essentially for transportation of Coal.

   Held: Two kinds of contracts undertaken i.e. contract for hiring of pay loader for loading of Coal into tippers for transportation within the mines and hiring of pay loader for loading of Coal at the Railway Siding for outward transportation but no separate quantification of demand in respect of each of them. Activities of hiring of pay loaders for loading of Coal at pit head within the mines for internal transportation cannot be classified under the category of Cargo Handling Service.

22. M/S COAL MINES PROVIDENT FUND ORGANISATION Vs. COMMISSIONER OF CENTRAL EXCISE & SERVICE TAX, RANCHI

   Final Order No.75300/2020

   ST: The appellant manages funds like Coal Mines Provident Fund Scheme, Coal Mines Family Pension Scheme etc. The issue is whether the appellant has provided the service of asset management under the category of “Banking and Other Financial Services”.

   Held: They are not performing any sovereign functions of the State. They are managing some funds and performing some functions for the workers of Coal Companies and are getting paid for such services. The appellant’s functions are akin to the activities of other commercial organizations owned by the Government, such as, PSUs. While the nature of their activity is commercial, being owned by the Government, their business is so conducted to take into account some social objectives and goals. This, by itself, will not make their activities a sovereign function or get them exempted from the tax.

23. M/S S.D. BUSINESS ENTERPRISES PVT. LTD. Vs. CST, KOLKATA

   Final Order No.76602/2019

   ST: Non-payment of Service Tax on the expenditure incurred towards warehousing, transportation, etc. sought to be claimed as reimbursement from the principal.

   Held: The amount of expenditure claimed as deduction by the appellant is not permissible and hence the appellant is liable to pay the demanded Service Tax.

24. M/S EASTERN RETREADS (P) LTD. Vs. COMMISSIONER, GST, COCHIN

   Service Tax Appeal No. ST/41/2008-DB
   Final Order No. 21005/2019

   ST: Non-payment of Service Tax on retreading of tyres.

   Held: Retreading of tyres falls under the category of “Maintenance, Management and Repair Service” and is liable to Service Tax.

25. KERALA COOPERATIVE DEPOSIT GUARANTEE FUND BOARD Vs. COMMISSIONER OF CENTRAL TAX AND CENTRAL EXCISE, THIRUVANTHAPURAM
ST: The assessee is a board constituted for administration of cooperative deposit fund, by the State Govt of Kerala. The contribution to the fund is the sum of money payable to the fund by the credit societies at the rate specified & the purpose of the scheme is to provide guarantee for the deposits made in the credit societies and to create confidence among depositors and attract more.

Held: There is no doubt that the assessee's activities are similar to those of Deposit Insurance and Credit Guarantee Corporation of India (DICGC). Hence, if DICGC is liable to pay Service Tax, so is the assessee.

26. M/S MANGALORE INTERNET CITY PVT. LTD Vs. COMMISSIONER OF CENTRAL EXCISE AND CENTRAL TAX, MANGALORE

Final Order No. 21216/2019

ST: The appellant filed refund claim stating to have paid an amount of Service Tax with interest and penalty, following audit objections. However, the assessee later realized that there was no need to pay interest or penalty u/r 15 of CCR or u/s 78 of Finance Act, as they had sufficient balance of credit during the material period of alleged wrong availment of credit.

Held: It is seen that the payment of 15% penalty was voluntary and based on this voluntary payment, SCN was waived and there was no protest raised by the assessee while making the payment. Further, as per the Board clarification dated 18/08/2015, payment of penalty without issuance of SCN was in accordance with law.

27. M/S CHALET HOTELS PVT. LTD Vs. COMMISSIONER OF CENTRAL TAX, BENGALURU EAST

Service Tax Appeal No. ST/20340/2019-SM
Final Order No. 20467/2019

ST: Service Tax on advance collected, where contract was cancelled.

Held: Appellant received the advance from the buyers along with Service Tax and paid the same to the Government as Service Tax and subsequently, the contract was cancelled between the appellant and his buyers and the appellant filed the refund claim filed beyond the period of one year as required under Section 11B and therefore the entire claim was hit by limitation of time. The contention that no service was provided and hence the provision of Section 11B of Central Excise Act is not applicable is devoid of merit.

28. M/S FUTURE FOUNDATIONS PVT. LTD Vs. COMMISSIONER OF CENTRAL TAX AND CENTRAL EXCISE, THIRUVANTHAPURAM

Final Order No. 20065/2020

ST: Appellant paid Service Tax by mistake but came to know subsequently when the Board issued the Circular. The refund claim rejected as being hit by limitation. The appellant submitting that since tax paid is collected by department against authority of law envisaged in Article 262 of the Constitution, the same is refundable.
Held: Period of limitation as provided under Section 11B of the Central Excise Act is applicable in the case of refund and the statutory time limit cannot be extended by any authority.

29. M/S TPI ADVISORY SERVICES INDIA PVT. LTD Vs. COMMISSIONER OF CENTRAL TAX, BANGALORE NORTH

Final Order No. 20067/2020

ST: GST Regime came into being w.e.f. 01.07.2017 and subsequently between September and November, the appellant raised Credit Notes and another four invoices and paid GST on the same. After paying GST, appellants are seeking refund of the Service Tax of Rs.17,84,952/- which was paid during the period April to June 2017 on the ground that they have paid Service Tax and GST on the same four transactions.

Held: Bench found that the appellant issued the GST invoices subsequently in the month of September and November 2017 simply at the instances of their clients. When the Service Tax was paid for the services rendered during the relevant period, the same was liable to be paid. The Service Tax paid by the appellant is in order and correct and there are no provisions u/s 11B of the CEA, 1944 for the refund of duty/tax that was liable to be paid legitimately.

30. M/S BROADBRIDGE FINANCIAL SOLUTIONS INDIA (P) LTD Vs. COMMISSIONER OF CENTRAL GST, SECUNDERABAD

Final Order No: A/30624-30625/2019

ST: The eligibility of input credit on health insurance service and services related to activities of scaffolding.

Held: The activities such as scaffolding for replacement of facade glass of out gate area, fixing of toughen glass etc. are Works Contract Services and therefore, clearly excluded in the definition of ‘input services’ under Rule 2(l) as above. Health insurance services are clearly excluded from the Rule 2(l) of CCR 2004. Accordingly, the appellant is not entitled to the benefit of CENVAT credit on the invoices issued by M/S IFFCO-TOKIO towards health insurance.

31. M/S GIMPEX PVT. LTD Vs. COMMISSIONER OF CENTRAL GST, TIRUPATI

Final Order No.A/30618/2019

ST: Refund claim filed under Notification No. 41/2012-ST, after one year from the date of let export order in respect of exported goods.

Held: Notification No. 41/2012-ST clearly states that relevant date to be considered for one year for filing refund claim is the date of ‘let export order’. As the entire benefit of refund accrues to the appellant only from the notification but for which no refund is admissible in this case, LEO is the relevant date to be considered and not the relevant date provided under Section 11B of the Central Excise Act. Notification, being an exception to the general rule, must be strictly construed. In the instant case as refund is filed beyond one year from the date of LEO, rejection of refund claims upheld.

32. M/S A. H. TOURS & TRAVELS ORGANIZERS Vs. C GST, HYDERABAD-I

Service Tax Appeal No. 810/2009
Final Order No.30900/2020

ST: Assessee claims that the cab or motor car is not rented out but let out on hire.
Held: When rent-a-cab scheme operator gives the car on rent, de facto possession is, of course, there but, it is not acceptable to uphold that wherever de jure control and possession of the vehicle stands transferred in law from the owner to the person on renting/hiring the service that the Service Tax is leviable and this is, of course, not different than services rendered on a contractual basis, providing transport service for fixed amount of periodical return or fare. Therefore, demand is upheld.

33. M/S BHARAT HEAVY ELECTRICALS LTD Vs. CENTRAL GST, SECUNDERABAD

Final Order No: A/31159/2019

ST: Assessee filed application for cash refund of CENVAT Credit which remained unutilized. The said credit could not be utilized since this transitory cess amount could not be carried forward under GST Law.

Held: Cash refund of unutilized of CENVAT credit is not permissible as there is no legal provision under which the same can be sanctioned.

34. M/S MIND Q. SYSTEMS PVT. LTD Vs. COMMISSIONER OF CUS., C. EX. & S.T., HYDERABAD-I

Final Order Nos. A/30661-30662/2019

ST: Appellant claimed deduction from gross amount pertaining to sale of books, registration fee and examination fee under Commercial Training or Coaching Services.

Held: Sale of books is not a separate enterprise by the assessee and not priced separately. The cost of the books, registration fee and the examination fee is also not billed separately. Hence, deductions not admissible.

35. M/S HYDERABAD RACE CLUB Vs. COMMISSIONER OF CUS. & C. EX., HYDERABAD

Service Tax Appeal Nos. 3376/2012; 20266/2014; and 30352/2016
Final Order Nos: A/30734-30736/2019

ST: Appellant is providing space to bookmaker in the race club to run business of booking bets and charging book-makers stall fee. They also collected ‘commission’ which is the percentage of the betting amounts collected by the bookies for providing Inter-venue Betting Services.

Held: Any service which is in relation to business or commerce and helps in enhancement of business amounts to Business Support Service. Providing a space in the club to a bookmaker is a facility given to run the business. The said service is, therefore, in relation to the business of bookie and thus definitely amounts to Infrastructural Support being provided to the booker by the assessee and is covered under Explanations to Section 65(104c) of Finance Act, 1994 defining BSS.

36. M/S USHODAYA ENTERPRISES PVT. LTD Vs. COMMISSIONER OF CENTRAL TAX, HYDERABAD

ST: Hire/lease of transponders attached to satellites under Business Support Services.

Held: Agreement is between one party of the contract in India and another beyond the territory of India. As such the transaction is not eligible to be classified/to be known as sale. Resultantly the question of hire/leasing of goods from a person who is not in the territory of India cannot be classified/known as deemed sale. Service of providing transponders on hire basis by IGSML to UEPL classifiable under Business Support Services inviting tax liability.

37. M/S NAVAYUGA ENGINEERING COMPANY LTD Vs. COMMISSIONER OF CUSTOMS, CENTRAL EXCISE & SERVICE TAX, VISAKHAPATNAM-I

Final Order Nos. 30902/2020

ST: Appellant who is an Engineering and Construction firm, constructed a bridge on BOT basis and was allowed to collect toll fee by the Government to recover the investment made. Appellant transferred the right to collect toll to its subsidiary for a consideration. The transferee collected toll fee in the name of the appellant.

Held: The toll payer was under the impression that they were dealing with the appellant. As the entire amount has been paid upfront, the toll fee is retained by the franchisee. Adopting a convenient method of financial arrangement, would not take the service outside the ambit of Franchisee service.

38. M/S FLYTECH MEDIA PVT. LTD Vs. COMMISSIONER OF CENTRAL TAX, HYDERABAD-II

Interim Order No. IO/ST/3/2020

ST: Orders Passed by Commissioners after 19-8-2009 when Section 84 of Finance Act, 1994 was amended to provide appellate remedy against order of adjudicating authority subordinate to Commissioner, instead of revision earlier, and omitting “or Section 84” from Section 86(1) ibid enlisting appealable orders. Whether Tribunal has a right to entertain appeals against Orders-in-Revision after 19-8-2009 in the absence of any explicit provisions by way of saving clause in Section 86 ibid?

Held: In view of conflicting decisions given by Tribunals of Bangalore and Mumbai, matter is referred to Larger Bench for a decision on the maintainability of appeals filed under Section 86 of Finance Act, 1994 after 19-8-2019 by both the Revenue and the assessee against Orders-in-Revision passed by the Commissioners.

39. CENTRAL GST AND CUSTOMS, HYDERABAD-IV Vs. M/S NATIONAL REMOTE SENSING AGENCY

ST: The nature of the services rendered by the appellant are photo processing of aerial films, general photography, photography by low level flying aircrafts specially suited for the purpose etc.

Held: Tribunal held that all these services squarely fall under the definition of ‘Photography service’ as per Chapter V of the Finance Act, 1994. NRSA not being a commercial concern, cannot be charged prior to 01-07-2012 as the term ‘commercial concern’ has been substituted by the term ‘any person’ only from 01-07-2012.

40. M/S VIVIMED LABS LTD Vs. COMMISSIONER OF CENTRAL EXCISE, CUSTOMS & SERVICE TAX, HYDERABAD – III

Final Order No. A/30908/2020

ST: The appellant availed services for placing Foreign Currency Convertible Bonds (FCCB) in the International Capital Market to raise capital.
41. M/S COMEXX Vs. COMMISSIONER OF CENTRAL EXCISE AND SERVICE TAX, AHMEDABAD

Service Tax Appeal No. 592/2011(DB)-Ahmedabad

ST: The assessee is engaged in booking orders for its foreign principals and receive commission for the services in convertible foreign currency. They are seeking refund of the amount of Service Tax paid by them as they were not liable to pay any Service Tax. There were decisions holding that provisions of Section 11B are not applicable to any amount which was paid by mistake or which was not payable.

Held: The refund claim filed by assessee would be governed by the provisions of limitation prescribed under Section 11B of CEA, 1944. Since the refund was filed after expiry of limitation, the same cannot be entertained.

Back

42. M/S KETAN CONSTRUCTION LTD Vs. COMMISSIONER OF CENTRAL EXCISE AND SERVICE TAX, RAJKOT

Service Tax Appeal No. 278/2010(DB)-Ahmedabad

ST: The issue at hand is whether the services rendered by the assessee in respect of collection of toll fee in respect of National Highway Authority of India will attract Service Tax under the heading of Business Auxiliary Service.

Held: The appellant therein issued bills in the form of toll fee tickets to the users and also collected toll fee on behalf of its client from the users of the toll road and also arranged for security of such amount. The appellant therein also submitted information about different types of vehicles passing through the road and also about exempted vehicles. Hence the appellant therein was held to have provided services incidental and ancillary to its client. Therefore the tax liability under Business Auxiliary Service is upheld.

43. M/S CHHATARIYA DEHYDRATES EXPORTS Vs.COMMISSIONER OF CENTRAL EXCISE AND SERVICE TAX

Service Tax Appeal No. ST/626-628/2011(DB)-AHD

ST: The assessee is exporter of Dehydrated onion and paying commission to sales agents abroad. Demand has been made in respect of Service Tax on said sales commission on reverse charge basis.

Held: Commission to sales agent located abroad and the demand is raised in terms of Section 66A. Entitlement for full exemption under Notification NO. 14/2004-ST dated 10.09.2004 as service was in respect of agriculture products and also under Notification No. 13/2003-ST dated 20.06.2003, as amended by Notification No. 8/2004-ST dated 09.07.2004 which grants exemption in respect of commission paid for sale of agricultural produce. Dehydrate onion is not covered by the said definition and Dehydrate onion cannot be called as agricultural produce. Dehydrate onion cannot be called as agricultural produce in terms of Notification No. 13/2003/ST. Notification NO. 14/2004-ST dated 10.09.2004 is also not applicable as the service provided are not covered by any clause of the said notification.

44. M/S SHREE GURUKRUPA CONSTRUCTION COMPANY Vs. COMMISSIONER OF CENTRAL EXCISE AND SERVICE TAX, RAJKOT
ST: The assessee had obtained work orders from Gujarat State Police Housing Corporation Limited (GSPHCL) and had constructed residential quarters for the staff of Gujarat Police.

Held: There is no dispute on the taxability as has been held by Larger Bench that the subcontractor is independently liable to pay Service Tax even though Service Tax liability has been discharged by the main contractor. Therefore, the demand on merit is clearly sustainable.

45. M/S IILM BUSINESS SCHOOL Vs. COMMISSIONER OF CENTRAL EXCISE AND SERVICE TAX, RAJKOT

Final Order No. A/12227/2019

ST: The appellants are engaged in imparting courses such as MBA, PGP Program (industry integrated). SCN was issued to the appellants demanding Service Tax on this activity under the head of 'Commercial Coaching and Training'.

Held: The appellant is not recognized by law to grant any degree and therefore, the service provided by the appellant qualifies as 'Commercial Coaching and Training'.

46. M/S MASTI TOURS & TRAVELS Vs. COMMISSIONER OF C.E. & S.T., SURAT-I

Final Order No. A/11382/2019-WZB/AHD

ST: Credit of tax deducted by International Air Transport Association (IATA) agent. Assessee providing services to IATA agent and receiving commission on which IATA agent had paid Service Tax.

Held: The credit has been taken by the assessee on certain invoice raised by the IATA agent. Assessee were providing services to IATA agent and receiving commission on which IATA agent had paid Service Tax. The Credit is inadmissible because if the assessee was providing service to IATA then it was responsibility of the appellant to pay Service Tax and not by IATA agents. Moreover if the appellant were providing services on the commission basis to IATA agents, then IATA agents could have availed the credit in these circumstances.

47. M/S S SOOD AND COMPANY Vs. COMMISSIONER OF CENTRAL EXCISE AND SERVICE TAX, LUDHIANA

Final Order No. 61104-61105/2019

ST: Amount collected representing Service Tax, has to be deposited irrespective of correct classification of service.

Held: During the impugned period, the appellant had collected certain amount as Service Tax for the services in question from their clients but not deposited. The same is required to be deposited under Section 73(D) of the Finance Act, 1994. Appellant directed to deposit whole of the amount collected as Service Tax from their clients along with interest within 30 days of the receipt of this order.

48. GURUPREET SINGH MATAHRU Vs. COMMISSIONER OF CENTRAL EXCISE, CHANDIGARH-I

Final Order No. A/60350/2020

ST: The assessee is engaged as a distributor for products manufactured by M/S Amway India Enterprises and did not discharge the Service Tax liability on the consideration paid to them by M/S Amway.
Held: RCM (Right Concept Marketing) Business Marketing Plan is a clear Multi-level Marketing Services Scheme. The consideration/commission received by the appellants is the result of the marketing/promotion of Amway Products by the appellants and constitutes a service (business Auxiliary Service), provided in respect of Amway products to M/s Amway. The commission/consideration is provided according to the terms and conditions, for marketing/promotion efforts by the appellant. The receipt of commission by the appellants clearly made them providers of “Business Auxiliary Service” as defined under Section 65(19) of the Act.

49. M/S INDO GLOBAL ESTATES Vs. COMMISSIONER OF C.E. & S TAX CHANDIGARH I

Service Tax Appeal No.ST/1397/2010-[DB]-Chandigarh
Final Order No. A/60335/2020

ST: Case of refund filed by the appellant.

Held: Hon’ble Supreme Court (Constitutional Bench – 9 Member Bench) in Mafatlal Industries Ltd. observed that the Central Excise Act, 1944 and the Rules made thereunder including Section 11B to constitute “law” within the meaning of Article 265 and the said provisions are exclusive in their nature, no claim for refund is maintainable except and in accordance therewith.

50. COMMISSIONER OF SERVICE TAX, NEW DELHI Vs. M/S MELANGE DEVELOPERS PVT. LTD

Service Tax Appeal No. 50399/2014
Final Order No. 50255-50256/2019

ST: Applicability of Service Tax on sub-contractor.

Held: CESTAT Larger Bench held that it is not in dispute that the activity undertaken by the sub-contractor falls under the category of WCS. From the provisions of the Finance Act, 1994 viz. Section 66 & 68, it is clear that every person (which would include a sub-contractor) providing taxable service to any person (which will include a main contractor) shall pay Service Tax at the rate specified in Section 66 in the manner specified and the manner has been provided for in the CCR. Thus, in the scheme of Service Tax, the concept of CENVAT credit enables, every service provider in a supply chain to take input credit of the tax paid by him, which can be utilized for the purpose of discharge of taxes on his output service.

51. M/S AKBAR TRAVELS OF INDIA PRIVATE LIMITED Vs. PRINCIPAL COMMISSIONER OF CENTRAL GOODS & SERVICE TAX, JAIPUR – I

COD Application No. ST/COD/50393/2019
Service Tax Appeal No. 50932/2019-DB-New Delhi
Final Order No. 50945/2019

ST: Condonation of delay application by the appellant.

Held: Application of 1390 days delay dismissed by Hon’ble CESTAT. The Appellate Court is not a Court of remedy for lethargy and laidback attitude of the party. Further, Hon’ble Tribunal observed that it has become very common in filing appeals along with an application seeking condensation of delay by stating trivial reasons. If Courts are liberal in granting such relief, it will lead to multiplicity of proceedings and waste of valuable judicial time. If the party has not shown any diligence in pursuing the matter, no reason to entertain the appeal.

52. M/S HANUMANT CONSTRUCTION PVT LTD Vs. COMMISSIONER OF CENTRAL EXCISE AND SERVICE TAX, RAIPUR

Service Tax Appeal No.56566/2013(DB)
Final Order No. 52288/2018
ST: Service Tax on site formation service in a mining area.

Held: The activity of removal of over burden is liable for Service Tax under site formation service. Even though such activity is carried out in the mining area, the contract does not cover any other activity related to mining. Hence, it is to be considered as a service contract simpliciter for the activity of removal of over burden.

53. M/S INDIRA GANDHI RASHTRIYA URAN AKADEMI Vs. COMMISSIONER OF CENTRAL EXCISE AND SERVICE TAX, LUCKNOW

Service Tax Appeal No. ST/70741/2016-CU [DB]—Allahabad
Final Order No. 70173/2019

ST: The Hon’ble High Court on 21.01.2014, decided an issue in favour of the party for the period 2004-05 to 2009-10. Based on this High Court’s Order dated 21.01.2014, party filed refund claim on 22.04.2014, for the Service Tax paid in 2012 on the same issue.

Held: CESTAT held that relevant date under Section 11B is the date of payment of duty and therefore, the refund application is barred by limitation.

54. M/S MESSRS XSIS ALERT Vs. C. S. T. & S. T. AHMEDABAD

Appeal No. ST/505/2010-DB-AHMEDABAD
Final Order No. A/10469/2019,

ST: Service Tax not paid on sou-moto assumption.

Held: The appellant had not suo-moto disclosed their intention of not paying the Service Tax on their belief that the activity is not taxable. It is only when the department started inquiry by writings letter, the appellant responded that the service is not taxable; therefore, it amounts to suppression of facts.

55. M/S SAVITRI LEASING AND FINANCE LTD Vs. COMMISSIONER OF CENTRAL EXCISE AND GST

Appeal No. ST/52834/2018[SM]-DELHI

ST: Time limit for issuing show cause notice in a case of VCES.

Held: The argument of the appellant that the Show Cause Notice is barred by limitation held to be not sustainable, because the time limit for issuing notice under section 111(2) of VCES will be applicable only, if the assessee is entitled to file the VCES. Once, it is apparent on record that rejection of VCES of appellant is correct due to a wrong declaration and non compliance of statutory provision, there is no need to look into the issue of limitation.

56. M/S SUBWAY SYSTEMS INDIA PRIVATE LTD Vs. CST, DELHI – II

Service Tax Appeal No. 50099 and 50101 of 2016—ND
Final Order No. 50411-50412/2019

ST: Whether bifurcating the amount of weekly gross sales into the payment of royalty (8% thereof) and the payment towards Franchise Advertisement Fund (4.5% thereof) takes the later value out of the ambit, what is called as gross value.

Held: The franchise service is not confined merely to the representational right to sale or manufacture goods or to provide the service, but it extends to any process identified with franchisor with respect to the trade mark, service mark, trade name etc. The amount, in question, is the part of the weekly gross sales being given by the service recipient to the service provider mutually consenting for the same to be used for the process identified by the assesses to advertise the subway brand/trade name. Hence, it is not simplicitor on advertising service, but is very much the part of the franchise service. The Appellants were discharging their tax liability qua the royalty amount received from the franchise which was equal to 8% of the total gross sales, but, no liability was being discharged for an amount received equal to 4.5% of the weekly gross sales towards the contribution referred to as Subway Franchise Advertisement Fund Trust (SFAFT)

57. M/S WILD EXPEDITION TOURS & TRAVELS Vs. CCE, BHOPAL Service Tax Appeal No. 50218/2014-ND

ST: Service Tax on rent-a-cab service.

Held: Providing cars on monthly basis falls under the category of Rent-a-Cab Service. The Assessee cannot escape tax liability on the grounds that the hiring is different from renting as the intention of the Government is to tax provider of service which involves both hiring and renting of a cab for a longer duration. Hon’ble Tribunal’s Judgement of R. S. Travels has been reversed by Hon’ble Gujarat High Court in Vijay Travels case.

58. M/S CAPL HOTELS AND SPA PVT. LTD Vs. COMMISSIONER OF CENTRAL EXCISE AND SERVICE TAX, GURGAON

Defect Miscellaneous No. 95/2019

ST: Based on the audit of the assessee, the Show Cause Notice was issued by Commissioner of Service Tax, New Delhi, but after restructuring the Assessee fell under the jurisdiction of Commissioner of Service Tax, Gurgaon, who adjudicated the Show Cause Notice. The assessee argued that based on the location of the Commissionerate, who conducted audit of the assessee and who issued the SCN, the location of Appellate Tribunal should be decided.

Held: Hon’ble CESTAT distinguished the Hon’ble Supreme court Judgment of M/S Ambica Industries and decided that the regular appeal will lie at CESTAT, Chandigarh.

59. M/S PVR LTD Vs COMMISSIONER OF SERVICE TAX, DELHI

Service Tax Appeal No. 241/2012
Final Order No. 52843/2017

ST: Pouring fee is taxable under BAS.

Held: Regarding consideration received as “pouring fees” from Pepsi, for display and sale of various Pepsi products by multiplex cinema halls, it was held that pouring fees is not an additional discount and is taxable under BAS. If pouring fee is to be considered as non-compete fee, first of all there should have been indication in the agreement to that effect and second such non-compete arrangement should be enforceable by law. Payment of an amount to dissuade the appellant from displaying competitor’s products by itself cannot be equated to a non-compete agreement. Pouring fees cannot be considered as a discount for sale transaction or as a payment for non-compete. Plea regarding non-taxability of the said consideration was rejected. The Appellants, who was registered with the department did not disclose the receipt of consideration as pouring fees in any of their returns.
60. M/S POONAM ROOFING PRODUCTS PVT. LTD. VS. COMMISSIONER OF CENTRAL EXCISE, PUNE-III

Final Order No. A/85255-85256/2018

ST: Permitting the use of ‘trademark’ which remains under the control of owner/transferor is a service under IPR.

Held: The factual matrix in the case is that no exclusive rights to use trade name ‘Swastik’ has been given to the transferee. The transferor is free to give this trademark to others even in the same territory. The transferee is not free to permit use of trademark by anybody else, i.e. they cannot sub-license. The transfer is only for certain currency of time. In effect, permitting the use of ‘trademark’ which remains under the control of owner/transferor, is a service under IPR.

61. M/S INDIAN INSTITUTE OF PLANNING AND MANAGEMENT VS. COMMISSIONER OF SERVICE TAX, DELHI

Service Tax Appeal No. 523/2012
Final Order No. 51033/2018

ST: Courses awarding certificates not recognized by law do not deserve exemption from taxability under Commercial Training or Coaching Service.

Held: Commercial Training or Coaching Service occurs when any institute or establishment is imparting skill, knowledge or lessons on any subject or field, irrespective of whether such imparting of skill knowledge or lessons is in respect of particular discipline or a broad spectrum of disciplines / academic areas, however, such activities provided by any entity, institution or establishment which is excluded by a specific and legislated exclusionary clause would alone be outside the fold of the taxable activity.

62. M/S SATYA PRAKASH BUILDERS PVT. LTD. VS. COMMISSIONER OF CENTRAL EXCISE, JAIPUR-I

Service Tax Appeal No. 50438/2014
Final Order No. 52777/2017

ST: Valuation in cases of no direct consideration to be under Rule 3(b) of Valuation Rules, 2006, where the basis of valuation is ‘Cost of Provision of Service’.

Held: Appellant, a builder, collected fund from purchasers of residential units to be transferred to the Welfare Association, as and when formed, for maintenance and management of the said residential complex. Valuation of the taxable service to be done under Rule 3(b) of Valuation Rules, 2006 read with Section 67 of the Finance Act, 1994. When tax liability of the Appellant is upheld, the method of arriving at the tax value has to be made in terms of Rule 3(b), which prescribes the equivalent money value equal to cost of provision of such taxable service.

63. M/S ICICI BANK LTD VS. COMMISSIONER OF SERVICE TAX-IV, MUMBAI

Service Tax Appeal No. 86237/2015
Final Order No. A/85281-85290/2019

ST: The activity of accepting deposits of the customers by the banks is neither a taxable service nor an output service under CENVAT Scheme. Accordingly, any Service Tax paid in relation to the premium for insuring such deposit cannot be considered as cenvatable.

Held: Premium paid on deposit insurance to DICGE (Deposit Insurance and Credit Guarantee Corporation) is not an ‘Input Service’. Appellants are not eligible to avail CENVAT credit of the amount of service tax paid to DICGC for insuring the deposit of the customers involving the period post 01.04.2012.

64. M/S SHREE RANIE GUMS AND CHEMICALS PVT LTD VS. COMMISSIONER OF CENTRAL EXCISE, JAIPUR-II

Final Order No. 53507-53517/2017

ST: The demand for normal period is sustainable even when the demand for Larger/Extended period is not sustainable.

Held: On the issue whether the demand for normal period would be saved or not, the Hon’ble Tribunal held that the right of the Revenue to recover Service Tax not paid or short-paid is a substantive right in terms of Section 73(1). The said provision is invoked by Central Excise Officer to demand Service Tax, not paid or short paid. The period of limitation being procedural has to be examined in this context. When the demand for longer period was held to be not sustainable, then the whole demand will not fall and demand for normal period will be saved.

Central Excise

1. M/S ROTOCAST INDUSTRIES LTD VS. CCE, RAIPUR
   Excise Appeal No. E/1918/2010(DB)
   Final Order No. 50985/2019

   CE: The appellant argued that when there is no additional consideration flowing from the customer to the assessee, the cost of any drawing provided by the customer is beyond the scope of Section 4 of Central Excise Act, 1944.

   Held: Tribunal held that there was no reason to differ from the earlier decision in Final Order No. A/56665 of 2017-Ex (DB) dated 21.09.2017 in the case of Magadh Precision Equipment Ltd. VS. Commissioner of Central Excise, Indore. It is statutory mandate that any other expertise as that of drawings, technical knowhow etc., if it is utilized in the manufacture of a product the value thereof, irrespective of whether it was, or not in terms of money has to be part of the transaction value.
2. M/S BHARAT HEAVY ELECTRICALS LTD VS. CCE, KANPUR
Final Order No. 71802-71804/2019
CE: In these cases, the assesses issued provisional invoices in large number of contracts, the price variation clause was available.

Held: The final price was arrived subsequently and the assessees paid the differential duty on finalisation of assessment by way of issuance of supplementary invoices. In all such cases interest becomes payable from the date when the duty was required to be paid till the date it was paid.

3. M/S PANASONIC AVC NETWORKS INDIA CO. LTD VS. COMMISSIONER OF CENTRAL EXCISE, NOIDA-I
Excise Appeal No.70167/2016
Final Order No. 70073 / 2020
CE: Assessee is engaged in manufacture of sub-assemblies of colour T.V. and audio systems falling under Chapter 85 of the First Schedule to the Central Excise Tariff Act, 1975. The dispute relates to the correct classification of the colour Television (C.T.V.) sub assembly manufactured by the appellants and cleared by them. Revenue held a belief that the goods cleared by appellant were nothing but complete TV sets.

Held: Various parts of television sets cleared in SKD conditions have to be treated as clearance of complete television sets falling under CTH 85 29 00.

4. M/S ADHUNIK MEGHALAYA STEEL PVT LTD VS. CCE, SHILLONG
Excise Appeal No. E/206/2009DB)
Final Order No. 75346/2020
CE: Goods procured and cleared by the manufacturer as such and claimed refund of the amount paid under Notification No. 32/99-CE.

Held: The exemption contained therein, though made operational through a refund mechanism, shall be applicable to the goods manufactured by the units and not to goods procured and later cleared by the manufacturer as it is.

5. M/S H S BUILDERS & OTHERS VS. CCE & ST, BHUBANESHWAR
Excise Appeal No. E/494/2009(DB)
Final Order No. 75371-75373/2020
CE: Steel tanks were fabricated by the assessee and shifted to the premises of Oil Companies. The end pieces of the steel tanks and valves etc., are being attached at site. Assessee claimed that before the steel tanks reached the buyers' premises, they are incomplete and cannot be called as steel tank at all. The issues were whether the tanks fabricated by the assessee are goods and whether they are liable to Central Excise Duty.

Held: The impugned goods are liable to excise duty. Tribunal's decision in the case of V.D. Engineering VS. CCE, Jabalpur [2019(366) ELT 123 (Tri. Del.,)] was followed.

6. M/S MAHASHAKTI CEMENTS VS. CCE & ST, GUWAHATI
Excise Appeal No. E/507/2010(DB)
CE: Assessee is availing benefit under Notification No. 33/1999-CE dt. 08.07.1999 for area specific rate of valuation. The assessee made application to the jurisdictional Central Excise Commissioner for determination of special rate beyond the stipulated time period.

Held: This issue has been settled by the Hon’ble Supreme Court. On the question of condonable limit for delay in the case of Singh Enterprises VS CCE, Jamshedpur [2008 (221) ELT 163 (SC)] which is against the assessee. The delay cannot be condoned beyond statutory time limit. Further, it is now well settled that the exemption notification must be strictly construed according to intention of legislature.

7. M/S TEXMACO LTD VS. CCE, KOLKATA - III

CE: Assessee availed CENVAT credit on the amount of additional duty of Customs (CVD) and special additional duty of Customs (SAD) paid on the imported inputs. Some of such inputs were transferred to their Sister Unit after reversing the CENVAT Credit. They reversed only the CVD and not the credit of SAD availed by them.

Held: Assessee treated the transferred goods as duty paid and also reversed some portion of the CENVAT Credit so availed. The amount of CENVAT Credit so reversed was taken as credit by the sister unit. Under the circumstances, Tribunal found no force in the argument of the Assessee that the goods which were treated by them as duty paid for the purpose of reversing CENVANT Credit of CVD must be treated as duty free for the purpose of reversing SAD. Once the Assessee has reckoned the goods as a duty paid, they must reverse the entire amount of CENVAT Credit availed on them.

8. M/S DIAMOND BEVERAGES PVT. LTD VS. CCE, KOLKATA - VI

CE: The assesseewere sanctioned refund as well as interest on the refund as applicable under Section 11BB of the Central Excise Act, 1944. Now they claim interest on belated payment of interest.

Held: There is no provision for payment of interest on such interest if the interest itself was paid belatedly. The question of law which arises is when there is no explicit provision for payment of interest on interest, whether it can be paid. This question of law was decided by Three Member Bench of the Apex Court in the case of Commissioner of Income Tax, Gujarat VS. Gujarat Fluoro Chemicals: 2013 (296) ELT 433 (SC).

9. M/S LUKWAH TEA ESTATE VS. CCE, DIBRUGARH

CE: The assessee has submitted their application after nine years from the date of completion of expansion seeking exemption under Notification No. 33/99-CE dated 08.07.1999 and not stated any reasons for the inordinate delay.

Held: Tribunal found that the exemption Notification in question was conditional. It required the manufacturer to submit a statement of duty paid etc. on a monthly basis to the Assistant/Deputy Commissioner, who is required to verify the same and refund the amount. Tribunal followed the judgement of the constitutional bench of the Hon’ble Apex Court in the case of Dilip Kumar (supra) wherein it was categorically held that benefit of an exemption Notification must be construed strictly and any benefit of doubt must go in favour of the Revenue.
10. M/S HALDIA PETROCHEMICALS LTD VS. CCE & ST, HALDIA

CE: As per scheme of West Bengal VAT Department, Appellants were entitled to applicable rate of VAT on their clearances and collect the same as VAT from the customers but they did not pay to the State government. Revenue is of the opinion that the additional amount which has been collected by the appellant from their customers as representing VAT but which was not been deposited as VAT forms an additional consideration for sale and therefore, Excise Duty had to be paid on the same.

Held: The question was whether the amount of VAT collected from buyers and not paid to the Govt. in inculdible in assessable value. The issue was finally decided by the Hon’ble Apex Court in the case of M/s Bharat Roll Industry (CA No. 4621/2008) wherein it was held that Central Duty had to be paid on such amount which are retained by the assessee.

11. M/S SOVA SOLAR LTD VS. CCE & ST, DURGAPUR

CE: The issue in dispute is whether the appellant is entitled to duty-free inputs (both imported and indigenous) under the exemption Notifications 52/2003-CUS dated 01.03.2003 and 22/2003-CE.

Held: It is undisputed that the appellant is a 100% EOU, they imported inputs availing the benefit of exemption notification available only to 100% EOUs. These exemption notifications are available to the EOUs even if the final products are cleared to DTA. However, where the final products are cleared to DTA and such final products are not excisable, no benefit of exemption on the inputs is available to the appellant. The demands on this ground must sustain. Tribunal also found that the appellant was not entitled to the benefit of exemption Notification No. 24/2005-CUS or notification no. 132/206-CUS in respect of inputs procured by them and not consumed for non-adherence to the procedure set out in the Customs (Import of goods at concessional rate of duty for manufacture of excisable goods) Rules, 1996. Further, the appellant was found not entitled to the benefit of exemption Notification No. 06/2006-CE as parts which the have produced either by importing or from other indigenous suppliers, were not consumed within the factory of production.

12. M/S BRAHMAPUTRA CRACKER & POLYMER LIMITED VS. CCE, DIBRUGARH

CE: The assessee wanted to include registration of one of their plants where no excisable commodity was manufactured with another plant situated at a distance of 48 km but connected with pipelines for the purpose of availing CENVAT credit on capital goods installed at the former.

Held: The Tribunal held that processing unit where no excisable goods were produced are not entitled for registration under Central Excise. Since registration was not permitted, there is no question on the eligibility of CENVAT credit on Capital goods. The judgement of Dilip Kumar & Company (SC) relied upon.

13. M/S DECCAN CEMENTS LTD VS. COMMISSIONER OF CENTRAL TAX, RANGAREDDY
CE: CENVAT credit on Clean Energy Cess.(CEC)

Held: CENVAT credit of Clean Energy Cess not admissible as (i) Rule 3 of Cenvat Credit Rules, 2004 does not specify said Cess as duty of which credit has been specifically allowed to be taken; (ii) Finance Act, 2010, has not made Section 37 of Central Excise Act, 1944 and Rules made there under applicable on CEC; (iii) spirit of levying CEC was to discourage use of polluting forms of energy and encourage using cleaner energies based on Polluter Pays principle and accordingly allowing credit of this Cess would defeat very purpose of levy.

14. M/S VIJAYANAGAR BIOTECH LTD VS. COMMISSIONER OF CENTRAL TAX VISAKHAPATNAM GST COMMISSIONERATE

CE: CENVAT credit on taxable and exempted products.

Held: In the instant case, starch is the dutiable final product and gluten, maize germ are final products which are exempted. Even if the manufacturing process is an integrated one, if separate machinery is used for processing the exempted products after it has been separated from the main product or raw material and such machinery is used only for processing exempted products, CENVAT Credit cannot be availed in view of the explicit provisions of Rule 6(4) of CCR 2004.

15. M/S WIPRO ENTERPRISES LTD, HINDUPUR VS. COMMISSIONER OF CENTRAL TAX, TIRUPATI

CE: Assessee has availed CENVAT credit twice on the same invoice and also had short paid CENVAT credit on capital goods removed after being put to use. Assessee reversed the aforesaid amounts on being brought to their notice.

Held: The intention of the assessee is self-evident and the violation of Act and Rules are undisputed. Hence, penalty imposed under Rule 15(2) of CCR, 2004 read with section 11AC is proper.

Back

16. M/S ADANI POWER LTD VS. COMM'R. OF CENTRAL TAX, RANGAREDDY

CE: SEZ unit received goods from DTA, on which appropriate excise duty was paid by the DTA unit and collected from SEZ unit. No bill of export is filed for goods procured on strength of commercial invoice. SEZ unit applied for refund.

Held: Goods from DTA supplied to SEZ are to be treated at par with exports. In the instant case, no ARE-1 or Bill of export is filed since, the SEZ Rules, provides a mechanism for clearance of goods only under bond and there is no mechanism under SEZ Rules for claiming rebate/refund on goods procured from the DTA, refund rejected. Also, as there is no challenge to the assessment of goods either by SEZ or DTA, refund application not maintainable.
17. M/S FINECHEM HYDERABAD VS. COMMISSIONER OF CCE & ST, HYDERABAD-I

Final Order Nos. A/30967/2019

CE: The co-noticee claims that penalty under Rule 26(2) can be imposed only on a natural person and not on a partnership firm as it is not a natural person. Also, registered dealer is covered only under Rule 25 of CCR, 2002 and excluded from Rule 26 of CCR, 2006.

Held: Rule 26(2) does not require the element of mens rea. The appellant has issued excise duty invoice without delivery of goods and is, therefore, liable for penalty under Sub Rule 2 of Rule 26 of Central Excise Rules, 2002.

18. M/S RANI PLASTIC PIPE INDUSTRIES, KURNOOL VS. COMMISSIONER OF CENTRAL EXCISE, CUSTOMS AND SERVICE TAX, TIRUPATI

Excise Appeal No. 877/2011
Final Order No. 30886/2020

No refund can be sanctioned under Section 11B, if the assessee is unable to utilize CENVAT credit on account of closure of the manufacturing activities.

19. M/S BIOMAX LIFE SCIENCES LTD VS. COMMISSIONER OF CUSTOMS, CENTRAL EXCISE & SERVICE TAX, HYDERABAD-IV

CE: Dispute about classification under Chapter 13 or under Chapter 20.

Held: No ground to call the powders manufactured by the appellant as juices as powder is solid and the juice is liquid. There is nothing in the description of Chapter Heading 2009 to suggest that it also includes powders. Therefore, the aloe vera powder and amla powder manufactured by the appellant cannot be classified under Chapter Heading 2009. As far as the aloe vera juice and amla juice are concerned, both chapter heading 1302 and Chapter Heading 2009 equally merit consideration and therefore Chapter Heading 2009 being the last in the numerical order prevails in terms of General Rules of Interpretation Rule 3(c). With regard to Aloe vera powder and amla powder it is held that they are not juices, thereby are not classifiable under Tariff Heading 2009. Being extracts of vegetables, they are classifiable under 1302.

20. M/S VISHNU CHEMICALS LTD, AND OTHERS VS. COMMISSIONER OF CENTRAL EXCISE, CUSTOMS & SERVICE TAX, HYDERABAD – I

Final Order No. A/30707-30709/2019

CE: Demand based on statements, private records etc.

Held: It is held that the demand was raised based on the Panchanama, undisputed statements and the private records seized from the premises of the appellant as well as statements of the alleged buyers of the clandestinely removed products and is therefore sustainable. By their very nature, unrecorded production and clearance of goods can only be found based on evidence gathered during investigation such as stock taking, private records, private notebooks, statements of persons concerned, their examination and cross-examination which will lead to conclusion whether there was a clandestine removal of goods and if so, to what extent. Private note books seized from the factory under Panchanama during the course of investigation and their analysis, as supported by the statements of various persons in the factory, form a fairly sound basis for demanding duty on such clearance.

21. M/S NCL INDUSTRIES LTD VS. COMMISSIONER OF CENTRAL TAX, GUNTUR

Excise Appeal No. E/30419/2018
Final Order No. A/30910/2020

CE: Issue to be decided is whether goods (cement) sold by the appellant to their customers on FOR destination basis can claim CENVAT credit on the outward transportation of goods from their premises to the buyer's premises or otherwise.

Held: Hon'ble Apex Court in Ispat Industries [2015 (324) ELT 670 (SC)] laid down that where the goods are sold on FOR destination basis i.e., where the ownership of the goods gets transferred only at the buyer's premises, no CENVAT credit is admissible transportation charges.

22. M/S HARIKA RESINS PVT LTD AND SAMA RAJASEKHAR VS. CCE & ST, GUNTUR

Interim Order No. 30117-30118/2020

CE: Case of clandestine removal of goods by mis-declaration.

Held: The assessee was clearing resins clandestinely in the guise of Orthoxylene. The statements of the persons recorded at the time of investigation is based or co-relatable with documentary evidence. Such documentary evidence having not been denied, the denial of clandestinely removed goods in cross-examination is of no avail to the appellant and such evidence is reliable. The case of Revenue is not proved on the principle of preponderance of probability but on documentary evidence brought on record in the course of investigation and duly supported by oral evidence of several persons and also supported by some of the key persons involved in the transaction, the allegation of Revenue is established and accordingly the appeals are dismissed.

23. M/S LITTLE STAR FOODS PVT. LTD. VS. COMMR. OF CENTRAL TAX, HYDERABAD

Final Order Nos. A/30714-30719/2019

CE: The assessee manufactures ‘Cadbury perk with glucose energy’ on job work basis and supplies to principle manufacturer and claims benefit of exemption Notification No. 3/2006 describing the product as ‘wafer biscuits’.

Held: The product in question is ‘coated wafer’ and not ‘wafer biscuits’. Hence, benefit of exemption is not available as the notification covers only ‘wafer biscuits’. Commissioner v. Dilip Kumar & Company- 2018 (361) E.L.T. 577 (S.C.) relied upon.

24. M/S KAIRA CAN COMPANY LTD VS. CCE & ST, AHMEDABAD - III

Final Order No. A/ 12297-12326 /2019

CE: Metal Containers, supplied free of cost by the buyers not included in assessable value of the final product. The contention of Revenue is that since the packing material i.e. corrugated boxes were supplied free of cost by the buyers, the cost of the same needs to be included in the assessable value as in the form of supply of corrugated box, there is also an additional consideration flowing directly or indirectly from the buyers resulting in under valuation of Excisable goods and short levy of duty.

Held: Tribunal found that as far as inclusion of cost of packing material supplied Free of Cost for the purpose of packing of final product by the appellant, there was no ambiguity in the law as the same is includable in the Transaction Value of the Metal container manufactured and supplied by the appellant.
25. M/S GUJARAT STATE FERTILIZERS AND CHEMICALS LIMITED VS. CCE & ST, VADODARA

Final Order N. A/10703/2020

CE: The assessee procuring Sulphur availing benefit of Notification No. 12/2012-CE dated 17 March 2012. Some quantity of Sulphur is also used in the manufacture of Phosphoric Acid and Phospho Gypsum (by-product). Phosphoric Acid is mainly used captively for manufacture of fertilizers i.e. Ammonium Phosphate Sulphate (APS). Some part of the Phosphoric Acid is sold by them in the open market on payment of duty. They admitted his liability of duty on Sulphur used in such Phosphoric Acid.

Held: Tribunal found that liability for Central Excise Duty would arise only in respect of Sulphur used in the manufacture of Phosphoric Acid which was cleared on payment of duty.

26. SHRI A K CHATURVEDI VS. C.C.E. - AHMEDABAD - II

Final Order No. A/ 10578-10583 /2020

CE: The goods contain fly ash less than 25%. Based upon statements of quality assurance, production, maintenance and finance employees and seized records, it was proposed that M/S GCL were not eligible for exemption under concessional rate of duty as the fly ash content in manufactured product was less than 25% and the Appellant Unit had shown incorrect consumption.

Held: Tribunal found that the fly ash content in some quantity of Asbestos Sheet was admittedly less than 25%, and duty of Rs.2,80,000/- was liable to be upheld.

27. SHRI NAresh AGRAWAL VS. CCE & S.T.-VADODARA-II

Excise Appeal No. 614/2012-DB

CE: Appellant is a registered dealer who facilitates manufacturers to avail CENVAT credit without actually supplying goods.

Held: Penalty under Rule 26 (2) is imposable on the person who has issued the invoices without supply of goods.

28. M/S BHARAT RESINS LTD VS. C.C.E. & S.T., SURAT-I

Excise Appeal No. 11846/2018-SM
Final Order No. A/11369/2019

CE: Availment of CENVAT Credit beyond stipulated time limit.

The assessee availed CENVAT credit beyond stipulated time limit of six months. Subsequent amendment in Notification extending this time limit to one year is only prospective.

29. M/S F TECH ENGINEERING CO. VS. C.C.E. & S.T., RAJKOT

Excise Appeal No. 12676/2018-SM
Final Order No. A/11510-11511/2019

CE: Clandestine clearance of finished goods and wrongly availment of exemption under Notification No. 12/2012 dated 17.03.2012

Held: No infirmity in the impugned order.

30. M/S HI SCAN PVT LTD VS. C.C.E, AHMEDABAD - II

Excise Appeal No. 113/2009
Final Order No. A/ 11071 /2019
CE: The principals who had supplied the goods for manufacture on job work basis to the appellant were neither registered nor they had filed any declaration/ undertaking under Notification 214/86-CE. Materials supplied by principal was not included in the aggregate value of the job worker while computing the aggregate value of clearance of Rs. 300 Lakhs/ 400 Lakhs in a financial year. Revenue entertained the view that only registered persons who are paying Central Excise Duty can supply the goods under Notification No. 214/86.

Held: The liability to pay duty in respect of goods produced on job work basis lies with the appellant being manufacturer of goods. Therefore, benefit of Notification No. 24/86 rightly denied to a job worker.

31. M/S J & J PLAST VS. C.C.E. - AHMEDABAD - II

Excise Appeal No. 491 of 2009
Final Order No. A/ 11707-11714 /2019

CE: The case of the department is that the principal manufacturer is using the job worker manufactured goods in the manufacture of exempted goods, therefore, the job worker being a manufacturer are required to pay excise duty.

Held: In case of job worker where the procedure under Notification No. 214/86- CE is not followed and the principal manufacturer is not discharging the excise duty on their final product, job worker is required to pay excise duty.

32. M/S JOLLY ELECTRICAL INDUSTRIES VS. CCE & ST, VADODARA - II

Final Order No. A/11889-11890 /2019

CE: The goods cleared by the assessee was manufactured by their other two units. Demand of duty was raised after clubbing of all the clearances. The units are found liable to be clubbable on the basis of strong evidences such as insufficient production facility, electricity consumption and various other aspects.

Held: Demand was rightly made.

33. M/S MEENAKSHI FOOD PRODUCTS PVT. LTD VS. C.C.E. & S.T.-AHMEDABAD-III

Final Order No. A/ 11143-11146 /2019

CE: The assessee had manufactured the notified goods in contravention of their declaration, therefore as per the provisions of Rule 9 of the PMPM Rules, 2008 the rate of duty applicable to goods of Highest Retail sale i.e. Retail sale price of Rs. 3 shall be applicable in respect of all packing machines operated by the Appellant.

Held: The Unit had filed declaration on 01.04.2011 in terms of Rule 6 of the Pan Masala Pcking Machine (PMPM) Rules, 2008 wherein they declared the details of packing machines to be used for packing of Gutkha along with specific MRP of the pouches. However, the unit was found to be engaged in packing pouches of higher MRP in contravention of declaration filed by them under Rule 6 of PMPM Rules, 2008. Clearly the Appellant unit contravened the provisions of Rule 6 (6), 7 and 9 of the PMPM Rules, 2008 and since the notified goods were manufactured in contravention of their declaration, therefore as per the provisions of Rule 9 of the PMPM Rules, 2008 the rate of duty applicable to goods of Highest RSP, Rs. 3 in this case will be applicable in respect of all packing machines operated by the Appellant and they are liable to pay duty as per said RSP on all machines. Therefore, the impugned order in as much as it relates to demand of duty and penalty against the appellant company is concerned is upheld.

34. M/S MEGHMANI ORGANICS LTD VS. C.C.E. -AHMEDABAD - II

CE: The assessee imported some chemicals and re-packed it as fertiliser which is duty free.

Held: Test report finds them as Co-ordination compound which is leviable to duty. Revenue’s contention upheld.

35. M/S MID INDIA POWER AND STEEL LIMITED VS. CCE & ST, RAJKOT

CE: Adjudicating authority rejected the refund application of the appellant on the ground that the order-in-Original rejecting the refund was not appealed before Commissioner (Appeals).

Held: Rejection of Refund claim not challenged, hence attained finality.

36. M/S MILI DETERGENT INDUSTRIES VS. CCE, AHMEDABAD-II

CE: Loose Papers recovered from the factory premises of the assessee. Consignee accepted that these papers pertain to clearance of impugned goods which was corroborated by authorised signatory of another stakeholder.

Held: Demand of duty confirmed by the lower authority was upheld by the Tribunal despite the facts that author of these loose papers was not investigated.

37. M/S RISHI CAST PVT. LTD VS. CCE & ST, RAJKOT

CE: The assessee manufacturing ‘Manhole Cover’ which were classified by them under heading 7324 and were assessed to duty under Section 4A of the Central Excise Act, 1944.

Held: This change of classification by the assessee was not the result of any bonafide doubt but it was a conscious decision on their part to change the classification. Extended period was rightly invoked.

38. M/S SHALU SYNTHETICS VS. CCE, DAMAN

CE: Interest on refund.

Held: Interest on refund of CENVAT credit on surrender of registration denied on the ground that refund has been granted following the ratio of Hon’ble High Court decision in case of Slovak India Trading Company Pvt. Ltd. honouring judicial discipline. The refund was therefore not sanctioned under any express provision of law. In these circumstances when the refund is not under any provisions of Central Excise Act, 1944 the provisions of the act relating to interest do not apply to the facts of the case.

39. M/S SILVASSA SPAN YARN INDS VS. CCE & ST, TAPI
CE: The assessee claimed that credit on inputs was reversed and department was intimated which was countered by Revenue.

Held: The assessee could not establish one to one correlation as regard the use of inputs in the manufacture of dutiable and exempted goods therefore, as per the findings of the lower authorities it is established that the appellant availed the CENVAT credit in respect of inputs used in the manufacture of goods cleared under Notification No. 30/04-CE, therefore the appellant has no case on merit as they have violated the condition of Notification.

40. M/S STANDARD PESTICIDES PVT. LTD VS. CCE & ST, VAJODARA

CE: Tribunal has no jurisdiction on cases of Rebate of Duty.

Held: No dispute that appellant have claimed rebate of duty paid on the goods exported through merchant exporters. Therefore, even though the Commissioner has given findings as regards unjust-enrichment, the nature of rebate is not altered. Since the duty is refunded as rebate claim and not as a normal refund. Appeal before CESTAT non-maintainable on the ground of jurisdiction.

41. M/S VIJAY FIRE VEHICLES AND PUMPS LTDVS. CCE & ST, SURAT - I

CE: Appellant’s refund claim was rejected on grounds of limitation.

Held: The refund claim relates to the period June to August, 2015 and the same was filed on 22nd September, 2017 which clearly beyond the scope of limitation prescribed under section 11B of the Central Excise Act, 1944. In these circumstances, no error in the order of Commissioner.

CE: The assessee very consciously made a modus operandi to evade the excise duty, by issuing excise invoices for bulk and even though the re-packing from bulk to retail pack was being carried out within the factory. They have purposely suppressed the clearances of retail pack, thereby evaded the Central Excise Duty.

Held: The assessee intentionally devised a method whereby first they have cleared bulk snuff of tobacco captively and issued invoices and paid the duty thereon, thereafter the same goods were re-packed for retail pack in their own factory and issued commercial invoices on higher value, thereby they suppressed the value of the finished goods cleared from the factory.

43. M/S AMRIT POLYPLAST PVT. LTD. AND ORS. VS. CCE & ST, JAMMU

CE: Tribunal had dismissed the appeals and cannot review its own order.

Held: The ROA applications are devoid of merit as Tribunal has no vested power under the Law to review its own order.

44. M/S SOM FLAVOUR MASALA PT. LTD. VS. CCE & ST ROHTAK

CE: Refund of deposit made during investigation has to be strictly governed as per provisions of Sec.11B and Sec. 11BB.
Held: Commissioner (Appeals) order directing payment of interest from the date of deposit of the said amount is devoid of merit and accordingly set aside.

45. M/S PANACEA BIOTEC LTD VS. CCE & ST, LUDHIANA

Final Order No. 60794/2019.

CE: The assessee had given on lease their premises to another entity namely M/S Panheber/Panera Biotec Pvt. Ltd. allegedly manufacturing vaccines which attracted Nil rate of duty. Revenue entertained the view that such vaccines were in fact manufactured by the assessee themselves and they circumvented Rule 6 (3) by not maintaining separate accounts for CENVAT credit purposes.

Held: No goods can be manufactured without utilization of electricity/power. From the entire record of the appeal and submissions made by the appellant, we do not find any iota of evidence to indicate that M/S Panheber/Panera Biotec Pvt. Ltd. had independently utilized power for manufacture of vaccine. Therefore, it is clear that M/S Panera Biotec Ltd. only existed on paper and actually goods are manufactured by the appellant in the name of Panera Biotec Ltd. Department has rightly raised the issue of mis-utilization of the CENVAT credit.

46. (I) M/S MODERN DAIRIES LTD VS. CCE & ST, PANCHKULA-APPEAL NO. E/61085/2019

Ex/SM Final Order No. 60413/2020

(II) M/S SALUJ.A MOTORS VS. CCE CHANDIGARH- APPEAL NUMBER- E/60175/2020-ST/SM

Final order No. 60414/2020

CE: Interest on refund of pre-deposit made under Section 35F.

Held: Interest to be granted only after three months of the communication of the order of the Tribunal.

47. M/S ACCUSYNTH SPECIALITY CHEMICALS PVT. LTD VS. COMMISSIONER OF C.G.ST. - PALGHAR

Final Order NO. A/85149/2020

CE: The issue is whether the time period under Section 11B is applicable for refund under Rule 5 ibid.

Held: Issue is no more res integra in view of the Tribunal decision in Technocraft Industries (I) Ltd. Order No. A/85514/2019. It is held that the limitation period provided u/s 11B of CEA, 1944 is applicable for refund claim of accumulated CENVAT credit in terms of rule 5 of CCR, 2004.

48. M/S MALI PIPE INDUSTRIES AND ORS. VS. CCE, PUNE - III

Excise Appeal No. 415/2010
Final Order No. A/86566/2019

CE: Denial of SSI exemption by clubbing of units.

Held: Two units of the assessee were shown to be separate on paper only but factually, the entire operation and business of both the units was controlled and managed by one person that is Shri. Kumar Shankar Mali. The clearances of both the units are to be clubbed. Relying on the judgements in the cases of Libra Engineering Works-[2016 (339) E.L.T. 610 [Tri.-Ahmd.]] and Himgiri Plastics [2018 (360) E.L.T. A137 (S.C.)], where the facts were similar, the OIA was set aside.

49. M/S SHR DNYANESHWAR SSK LTD VS. CCE & ST, NASIK
CE: CENVAT Credit not available on deposit made under Section 35F.

Held: Credit availed on pre-deposit was denied.

50. M/S ISMT LTD, APPELLANT VS. CCE & ST, NASIK

Excise Appeal No. 88080 of 2018
Final Order No. A/86467/2019

CE: The party could not file Proof of export (POE) within stipulated period, paid duty on goods exported. Subsequently filed refund of such duty on receipt of POE. Refund rejected.

Held: The Hon’ble Supreme Court in the cases of Doaba Co-operative Sugar Mills, Anam Electrical Manufacturing Co. and Miles India Ltd. has ruled that in making claims for refund before the departmental authorities, an assessee is bound within the four corners of the statute and the period of limitation prescribed there under must be adhered to and that the authorities functioning under the statute cannot place different interpretations and are bound to follow the provisions of the statute alone.

51. M/S SHIVNATHRAI HARNARAIN (INDIA) LTD VS. CCE, KOLHAPUR

Final Order No. A/85040/2020

CE: Appellant was not able to produce the “proof of export” of Sugar, within the period as prescribed. Thus, demands were confirmed along with interest and penalty was also imposed. The Procedure prescribed under Notification No. 42/2001 CE (NT), 26.06.2001 was applicable.

Held: The appellant failed to fulfil the conditions of the notification and deliberately tried to adopt their own method for proving their exports. Tribunal held that it is a settled position in law that any person claiming the benefit of an exemption notification is required to fulfill the conditions specified in the notification and that it is also a settled position that when law requires something to be done in particular manner then that has to be one in that manner only.

52. M/S SHRI VITTHALSAI SSK LTD VS. CCE & ST, NAGPUR

Final Order No. A/86724-86725/2019

CE: The assessee filed refund claim for unutilized CENVAT credit which was allowed by the Asst Commissioner relying on the decision in the case Union of India VS. Slovak India Trading Co. (P) Ltd. Thereafter, such refund granted was disallowed by the Commissioner (Appeals) relying on the decision in Phoenix Industries Pvt. Ltd. VS. CCEX, Raigad.

Held: In view of the findings of the High Court of Mumbai wherein it was held that the order of the Apex Court in Slovak India Trading Co. (P) Ltd. cannot be read as a declaration of law since SLP was dismissed, leaving the question of law open and the same has been answered by holding that refund is impermissible under Section 11B and Section 11B(2) where CENVAT credit could not be utilized due to closure of manufacturing activities.

53. M/S TECHNOCRAFT INDUSTRIES (I) LTD VS. CCE, THANE - I

Excise Appeal No. E/921/2011
Final Order No. A/85514/2019

CE: The appellant had filed a cash refund claim of accumulated CENVAT Credit under Rule 5 of CENVAT Credit Rules, 2004. The refund claim was rejected being barred by limitation prescribed under Section 11B of Central Excise Act, 1944.

Held: The limitation period provided u/s 11B of CEA, 1944 is applicable for refund claim of accumulated CENVAT credit in terms of Rule 5 of CCR, 2004.

54. M/S PARENTAL CREATIONS PVT. LTD. AND ORS. VS. CCE, THANE - I
Excise Appeal No. 1166/2010
Final Order No. A/85107-85113/2020
CE: Fraudulent/bogus exports shown to avail inadmissible export benefits such as rebate etc.

Held: There are sufficient evidences to show the transactions shown to be fictitious payments made by the Appellant to the supplier of the raw material have been found to be bogus. Transport documents as well as documents showing payment of toll/octroi during transit not shown. Admission by one of stakeholders of non-receipt of the inputs/ goods on which CENVAT Credit has been availed is there. Thus, without receipt of any goods, only exportation was shown to avail the fraudulent credit.

55. M/S SHRI GANAPATHY PACKAGING VS. CCE, TIRUNELVELI
Excise Appeal No. 40658/2013(DB)-Chennai
Final order no. 41321-41354
CE: Revenue entertained the view that the assessee were not eligible for availing the benefit of Notification No. 4/2006-CE dated 01.03.2006 as the match splints purchased was manufactured using aid of power even though the assessee did not use any power for packing and painting the match boxes with red phosphorus.

Held: Even if power was not used in the factory of manufacturer but used outside, the benefit of Notification is not available as Notification forbids use of power.

56. M/S SERVO PACKAGING LTD. VS. COMMISSIONER OF CGST & CENTRAL EXCISE, INDORE
Excise Appeal No. 41700/2019
Final Order No. 40098 / 2020
CE: Refund of CENVAT credit availed due to introduction of GST on Customs Duty Paid on inputs due to non-fulfilment of export obligation.

Held: Admittedly, the inputs imported have gone into the manufacture of goods meant for export, but the export did not take place. At best, the appellant could have availed the CENVAT Credit, but that would not ipso facto give them any right to claim refund of such credit in cash with the onset of G.S.T. because CENVAT is an option available to an assessee to be exercised and the same cannot be enforced by the CESTAT at this stage.

57. M/S PRESTIGE FOOD VS. THE COMMISSIONER CGST & CENTRAL EXCISE, INDORE
Excise Appeal No. 51326/2018 [SM]
Final Order No.51316/2019
CE: No interest on delayed payment.

Held: There is no illegal detainment of the impugned amount by the department as is apparent from the arguments put forth by the Department Representative that the amount in question was deposited only after Hon'ble Supreme Court had confirmed the deposit of 1/4th amount of duty as was proposed to be recovered vide show cause notice of the year 1994. There is no apparent delay that too intentional or malafide or even negligent on part of the department as is alleged by the Appellant. The Appellant is held not entitled for the interest as prayed.
58. M/S ARIHANT TILES & MARBLES PVT. LTD VS.COMMISSIONER (APPEALS), JODHPUR

Excise Appeal No. 50125/2019 [SM]

Final Order No.50125/2019

CE: Interest on interest not payable.

Held: Argument of the appellants that they are entitled for interest on interest being compensatory in nature is not sustainable. Technically interest on interest cannot be called as compensation Suo moto, nor has been so prayed by the appellant himself.

59. M/S CONTINENTAL ENGINES LIMITED VS. COMMISSIONER OF CENTRAL GOODS AND SERVICE TAX, CUSTOMS AND CENTRAL EXCISE, ALWAR

Excise Appeal No. 53834/2018(SM)

Final Order No.51560–51561/2019

CE: Interest payable on differential duty resulted due to escalation clause.

Held: Interest is payable on the differential excise duty with retrospective effect that became payable on the basis of escalation clause, under Section 11AB of the Central Excise Act, 1944.

60. M/S GURUHARKISHAN INDUSTRIES AND OTHERS VS. RESPONDENT: CCE, DELHI-II

Excise Appeal No. 51175/2017

CE: Electronic evidences in the form of print outs are admissible as Evidence. A single line Retraction does make oral statement null & void.

Held: Initially admitting and subsequently retracting. Retraction is to be ignored in the light of circumstances of the case and existence of corroborative evidences. Dataretrieval/print outs from electronic media taken before independent Panchas admissible as appellants refused to witness the same despite repeated summons.

61. COMMISSIONER OF C. EX. & S.T.-LTU, DELHI VS M/S GAS AUTHORITY OF INDIA LTD.

Excise Appeal No. 55666/2014

Final Order No.53338/2018

CE: Non consideration of Relevant Evidences by Adjudicating Authority in deciding the recurring issue of classification is grossly illegal.

Held: Then respondents were clearing Natural Gasoline Liquid (NGL) by classifying it as Naptha which attracts lower rate of duty and also the benefit of exemption Notification No. 18/2009/CE dated 07.07.2009 as amended. The entire demand was dropped by the adjudicating authority considering chemical characteristics of the product and universally accepted parameters of Naptha. While classifying the product the adjudicating authority further relied on the definition and description of Naptha as per various technical literatures as also on the report received from Indian Institute of Petroleum. The Hon'be Tribunal found that the Chemical Examiner's Report which was never contested by the respondents was totally ignored by the adjudicating authority. The Hon'ble Tribunal further held that the Supplementary chapter note specifically defined natural gasoline liquid (NGL) as a low boiling liquid petroleum product extracted from natural gas and the chemical examiner report specifically mentioned the product as low boiling liquid petroleum product extracted from natural gas. Once it was so, there was no reason to hold the product as Naptha.

62. M/S KAIRA CAN COMPANY VS. COMMISSIONER OF CENYTRAL EXCISE AND SERVICE TAX, VADODARA-I

Excise Appeal No. 1003/2010

Final Order No.A/11550/2018

CE: The value of packaging material supplied free of cost by the customer is includable in the Assessable value.

Held: Inclusion of the value of packing material supplied free of cost by the customer in the assessable value of the goods manufactured by the appellant was contested on the ground that Valuation Rule cannot over ride the act in terms of Section 4 and only transaction value which is paid or payable against the sale of the goods shall be assessable value. It was held that the authority of Rule 6 was flowing from Section 4(1)(b) only. In terms of Section 4 read with Rule 6 of Valuation Rules, 2000, the packing material supplied free of cost by the customer was includible in the transaction value (Assessable Value) and the same would be chargeable to excise duty.

63. M/S RATNAMAI METALS & TUBES LTD. VS COMMISSIONER OF C. EX. & S.T., AHMEDABAD-III

Final Order No.A/11311/2018

CE: No interest is payable on any amount which has not been adjudged as Tax/Duty.

Held: Amount paid during investigation is to adjudged as duty as there is no provision in Central Excise to make a deposit and the refund of such duty amount, if any, is clearly governed by the Section 11B of CEA, 1944 and in terms of this Section. Interest is payable from the date after completion of 3 months from the date of filing the refund application.
1. SHRI BADRI NARAYAN SHARMA VS. COMMISSIONER OF CUSTOMS

Customs Appeal No. 50493/2017 [SM]
Final Order No. 50008/2020

Cus: The disposal of gold was held in accordance with the statutory provisions in the year 2001. The order for return of seized gold was ordered 14 years after the said disposal.

Held: What can be returned while complying with the directions of return of seized gold is the sale proceeds of the said gold received at the time of disposal thereof. Also it is apparent that present appellant was held owner of the seized & confiscated gold vide order of the Tribunal, dated 13-5-2005. Time taken till the order of Tribunal, dated 24-7-2015 directing the return of the impugned gold is on account of mistaken identity of Shri Badri Narayan, the appellant himself. The order of confiscation was otherwise served on Shyam Lal Pal as well as Shri Badri Narayan who was held owner of the impugned gold vide order of the year 2005. The said Badri Narayan impersonated the actual Badri Narayan whose appeal was decided in his favour in the year 2015, does not reflect any mistake or even delay on part of Department.

2. M/S. KOTHARI FOODS & FRAGRANCE PVT. LTD. VS. COMMISSIONER OF CUSTOMS (EXPORT)

Final Order No. 51295/2019

Cus: The present appeal is a remanded matter by High Court on a limited issue of limitation, whereas on merit the Departmental plea was allowed. Bar of limitation had been raised on the ground that no ingredients of Section 28 of Customs Act, 1962 have been invoked.

Held: Show cause notice has been issued after a expiry of two years period but the show cause notice itself has alleged suppression of facts on part of the exporter. The same has even been confirmed by the original adjudicating authority by observing that the nondisclosure of the technical characteristics is a consciously done act of the exporter and hence extended period invokable.

3. M/S. FRIENDLY VIDEO VISION, SHRI RAKESH KUMAR BHAGAT VS. C.C. (IMPORT & GENERAL), NEW DELHI

Customs Appeal No.C/137-138/2009-CU [SM]
Final Order No. 50324-50325/2019

Cus: Case where appellant had voluntarily deposited and later retracted his statements.

Held: Voluntary deposit of duty without any mention of coercion or pressure in making statement, is sufficient reliable evidence to hold demand. Retraction letter, that too, by advocate after 45 days of statement has no value. Statement made before Customs authorities is binding in departmental proceedings.

4. M/S. MCT DELUXE HONOUR INDUSTRIES PVT. LTD. VS. C.C., NEW DELHI, ICD

Final Order No. 50267/2019

Cus: Case of mis-declaration of goods in export consignment of handicraft furniture and wood/ metals items. Red sanders packages absolutely confiscated being prohibited items, and remaining goods also liable for confiscation as the appellant sought export of red sander in the guise of these goods. But these goods are not contravened goods, therefore, allowed to be redeemed on payment of redemption fine.

Held: Penalty under Section 114 (iii) of the Customs Act, 1962 for attempting to export prohibited goods affirmed, but reduced under Section 114 (i) as was imposed on higher side.
5. SHRI ROHIT BHASIN VS. C.C., NEW DELHI
Customs Appeal No.C/52231/2018-CU [SM]
Final Order No. 50278/2019
Cus: Specific Intelligence was received by the DRI about some importers being engaged in mis-declaration of LED TVS as TV panels. Various Searches were conducted including the premises of appellant whereby 60 pieces of complete LED TVS were recovered. No valid documents were recovered or produced by the appellant establishing the legal procurement of the said 60 pieces of LED TVS.
Held: The order is upheld in view of confiscation of goods being the result of improper import and non production of mandatory BIS Certificate.

6. M/S JAI SHIV TRADING CO. VS. COMMISSIONER OF CUSTOMS
Customs Appeal No. C/53151/2016-CU[DB]
Final Order No. 55379/2017.
Cus: Redetermination of value has been carried out in terms of Rule 7 of the Customs Valuation Rules which provides for determination of value on the basis of the price of identical or similar imported goods in India. Proprietor of the appellant, Shri Jayshiv, was shown the market enquiry report. He has voluntarily accepted the increased valuation of the imported goods.
Held: It is settled position of law that once the importer has admitted the re-determination of value on record and has accepted the method of valuation, he cannot subsequently challenge the re-determined value.

7. CC (IMPORT), ICD, TKD, NEW DELHI VS. M/S SODAGAR KNITWEAR
Customs Appeal No. 50546/2018
Final Order No. 51708/2018.
Cus: Redetermination of value has been carried out in terms of Rule 7 of the Customs Valuation Rules which provides for determination of value on the basis of the price of identical or similar imported goods in India.
Held: It is settled position of law that the facts which are admitted need not be proved. [CCE, Madras vs. Systems & Components Pvt. Ltd.-2004 (165) ELT 136 (SC)]. Once the importer has admitted the re-determination of value on record and has accepted the method of such valuation, he cannot subsequently challenge the re-determined value.

8. M/S LAXMI ENTERPRISES VS. CC (PREV.) NEW DELHI
Customs Appeal No.C/51536/2017
Final Order No.50544/2018
Cus: The print outs from the laptop has been admitted by Shri Sumit Chawla, son of the proprietor in clear terms. It is admitted by him that these invoices recovered, reflect the valuation at which the transaction was concluded with the supplier and the prices indicated in the invoices/commercial invoices could be taken for assessment of all past imports.
Held: There is no infirmity on the part of the adjudicating authority in re-determining the value of the past imported goods on the basis of such invoices. Under the facts and circumstances of the present case, there is no need for the Revenue to collect evidence in the form of contemporaneous imports.
10 M/S BIRD RETAIL PVT. LTD. VS. COMMISSIONER OF CUSTOMS (IMPORT) INLAND CONTAINER DEPOT, TUGHLAKABAD, NEW DELHI

Final Order No. 50362/2020

Cus: “Segway” imported in CKD condition were components when put together would work as complete Segway product classifiable under CTH 8711 90 91. Appellants consciously misrepresented their product as CKD parts of electrically operated two wheelers of captive use classifying the same under Tariff Item 8714 99 90 of Customs Tariff Act, 1975 to evade Customs duty by availing concessional rate of the duty under Notification No. 12/2012-Cus.

Held: Liable for confiscation under Section 111(m) of Customs Act, 1962. Imposition of penalty on them under Sections 114A and 114AA of Customs Act, 1962 justified.

11 M/S KEIHIN AUTOMOTIVE SYSTEMS INDIA PRIVATE LTD. VS. PRINCIPAL COMMISSIONER OF CUSTOMS ICD TUGHLAKABAD (IMPORTS), NEW DELHI

Customs Appeal No. 51059/2019 [DB]
Final Order No. 51548/2019

Cus: Mis-classification of imported goods.

Held: Since bill of entry filed under self-assessment regime, importer need to be doubly sure that their claim is legally correct. Department committed no error while holding act to be intentional misrepresentation, when Section Note 2 to Section 16 ibid specifically provides methodology of classification of pumps and parts of engines. Classifying product under wrong entry continuously for as many as more than 50 bills of entry cannot be act of ignorance.

12 COMMISSIONER OF CUSTOMS ICD PATPARGANJ VS. M/S HANUMAN PRASAD & SONS AND ORS.

Customs Appeal No. 51601/2019 and 35 others
Final Order No 51584-51619/2020

Cus: Case of under valuation and department increased the value by loading.

Held: Having once accepted the loaded value of the goods and paid duty accordingly thereon without any protest or objection, they are legally not correct from taking somersault and to deny the correctness of the same. The enhanced value once accepted in writing under Section 17(5) of the Customs Act, 1962 shall be deemed to be the transaction value. All the 36 orders passed by the Commissioner (Appeals) that have been impugned, therefore, deserve to be set aside and are, accordingly, set aside and the 36 Appeals filed by the Commissioner of Customs are allowed.

13 SHRI RAJESH MAIKHURI, DIRECTOR OF M/S R.U. IMPORTS-EXPORTS PVT. LTD. DELHI VS. COMMISSIONER OF CUSTOMS (EXPORTS) ICD, TUGHLAKABAD, NEW DELHI

Final Order No. 51490/2019

Cus: Food supplements imported without declaring MRP/RSP and name and address of importer on packages in violation of Rules 6 and 10 of Legal Metrology (Packaged Commodity) Rules, 2011. Goods also found to be undervalued, unsafe and misbranded in violation of Sections 3(1)(zz), 3(1)(zf) and 25 of Food Safety and Standard Act, 2006 read with C.B.E. & C. Circular No. 3/2011-Cus., dated 06.01.2011.

Held: Importing firm is neither registered with FSSAI nor obtained NOC from it. Liable to penalty under Section 112(a) of Customs Act, 1962. Director of CHA firm is also liable to penalty under aforesaid Section.
14. M/S. INDUS CHEMITEX LTD. VS. CC, NEW DELHI

   Misc. Order No. 50009/2019

   Cus: As the Department has already made the compliance of this Tribunal's Order regarding the release of these goods and by giving necessary direction to the custodian of the goods. It is the duty of the appellant to take the release consignment from the custodian of the goods on payment of appropriate charges due to them.

   Held: The demurrages charges cannot be compensated by the Department and the Appellants had to pay the said charges to get the goods released.

15. THE COMMISSIONER OF CUSTOMS [EXPORTS], NEW DELHI VS. R.U. IMPORTS-EXPORTS PVT. LTD.

   Final Order No 51492/2019

   Cus: The appellant has been given a license as per the provisions of the Customs Broker Regulations, 2013 which mandate them to ensure compliance of provisions of the Customs Act, 1962.

   Held: Since they have failed in their duty and such act have rendered the subject consignment liable for confiscation as per provisions of Section 111(d) of the Customs Act, 1962, a penalty under Section 112(a) of Customs Act, 1962 is required to be imposed.

16. M/S. SKYTRAIN SERVICES VS. COMMISSIONER OF CUSTOMS (AIRPORT & GENERAL), NEW DELHI

   Customs Appeal No. 50777/2019
   Final Order No. 1252/2019

   Cus: Case of revocation of CHA license.

   Held: G-Card holder of the appellant being physically and actually involved in entire series of acts, Customs Broker failed in observing due diligence about verifying the antecedents regarding KYC of the importer thereby resulting in violation of Regulations 11(e)/14(e) of Customs Brokers Licensing Regulations, 2013.

17. M/S SILICONE CONCEPTS INTERNATIONAL PVT. LTD. VS. PRINCIPAL COMMISSIONEROF CUSTOMS ICD, TKD (IMPORT) NEW DELHI

   Customs Appeal No. 50796/2019
   Final Order No. 50963/2019

   Cus: Right of cross-examination, statement of Directors of a company, evidencing value.

   Held: No cross-examination of Directors is neither violative of principle of natural justice.

18. M/S BURBERRY INTERNATIONAL VS. COMMISSIONER OF CUSTOMS, NEW DELHI

   Custom Appeal No. 52214/2019

   Cus: Case of under valuation.

   Held: The appellant failed to bring any cogent evidence regarding value on record, even before the Tribunal, inspite of being regular importer importing under their own brand name. Thus, apparently the appellant has not come with clean hands before this Tribunal. Accordingly, agreeing with the findings of the Commissioner (Appeals), we uphold the impugned order in appeal and dismiss the appeal in toto.
19. M/S CMR NIKKEI INDIA PVT. LTD. AND ORS. & CENTURY METAL RECYCLING LTD. FARIDABAD VS. COMMISSIONER OF CUSTOMS, NCRB, JAIPUR
Final Order Nos: 51393-51398/2019

Cus: New law point brought out by the appellant at the stage of Tribunal.

Held: The order passed by the Hon’ble Supreme Court in case of Sanjivani Non-Ferrous Trading Ltd. in Civil Appeal No. 18300-18305 of 2017 was not available before the Commissioner (Appeals). In the circumstances, accordingly, we do not find any infirmity in the impugned order and sustain the same.

20. M/S SHUBHLAXMI TEXTILE AND ORS. VS. C.C., NEW DELHI (ICD TKD)(IMPORT)
Final Order Nos. 50293- 50294/2019

Cus: Consignment of fabrics imported by main appellant mis-classified. The test report stated that the order was not cotton plain dyed fabrics but of polyester texturized/viscose texturized yarn fabric. They were classifiable under different head. The Department obtained the Report from the 1st Secretary officer (COIN) from Hong Kong from their counterpart from China regarding the export price of the past consignments.

Held: As far as demand pertaining to live consignment is concerned, the same has been accepted, we without going into further details uphold the same but without any penalty as there is no deliberate mis-declaration as part of the appellant. Reliance is placed on decision of System and Components Pvt. Ltd. 2004(165) ELT 136(SC).

21. M/S B.L. GOYA, RAIPUR VS. COMMISSIONER (APPEALS) CUSTOMS
Customs Appeal No. 52274/2019

Cus: Case of mis-declaration for benefit under Notification No. 96/2008-Cus, dt. 13.08.2008.

Held: The import documents and the chemical examination report of the consignments establish that consignments were other Natural Gum. Notification No. 96/2008 Cus, dt. 13.08.2008 only exempts Gum Arabic, classifiable under CTH 13012000 from the levy of the customs duty.

22. COMMISSIONER OF CUSTOMS (IMPORT)ICD DELHI VS. M/S A R FABRICS
Customs Appeal No.51076/2019
Final Order No.51856/2019

Cus: The Department was in appeal against the order of Commissioner (Appeals) who allowed the plea of the assessee that even if they had accepted the enhanced value at the time of import, they had all the right to appeal.

Held: Case remanded to Commissioner (Appeals) for re-appreciation of the facts in accordance with Law and pass denovo order in light of direction of Tribunal.

23. M/S SUPER ECO AUTOMOTIVE COMPANY GWALIOR VS. COMMISSIONER OF CUSTOMS (EXPORT) ICD N DELHI, CUSTOMS
COD Application No.51149/2019

Cus: Condonation of delay application filed by the appellant.

Held: The subject order being challenged was acknowledged to have been received by the assessee within 10 days of it being passed. Regardless of the fact that the assessee’s employee left the company, the assessee still had sufficient time to avoid the delay. Hence there is lack of due diligence on part of the assessee. Besides, the reason of demise of family member that too will not be of any avail to the assessee, since such incident occurred after the limitation period for filing appeal had already lapsed. Hence the delay in filing appeal cannot be condoned.
24. SHRI JEEVAN JAIN, PROPRIETOR OF M/S OM UDYOG, VS. COMMISSIONER OF CUSTOMS (APPEALS)

Customs Appeal No. C/53292/2018 & C/53282/2018
Final Order No. 51840/2019

Cus: Case of mis-declaration.

Held: The order of Commissioner (Appeals) rejecting the appeal of the appellant is primarily based on the findings of CRCL reports. Thus, the appellant has not adduced any evidences to contradict the findings of CRCL and therefore on merit, we find no reason to interfere with the findings of Commissioner (Appeals).

25. COMMISSIONER OF CUSTOMS (IMPORT) INLAND CONTAINER DEPOT, TUGHLAKABAD, NEWDELHI. VS. M/S R.M. IMPEX

Customs Appeal No. 52189/2018.
Final Order No. 50609/2019

Cus: Refund application filed by the respondent beyond statute limit.

Held: The amending Notification No. 93/2008 is arising out of the statute, i.e. Section 25(2A) of the Customs Act, 1962 hence, the findings of the Commissioner (Appeals) that the amendment introducing one year from the date of payment of additional duty as a time to claim the refund thereof to be without statutory amendment, is not sustainable rather is opined to be legally erroneous. We are of the opinion that the refund claim of additional duty due to the exemption flowing out of Notification No. 102/2007 has to be filed within one year in view of the subsequent Notification No. 93/2008-Cus which still holds good and also in view of Section 27 of the Customs Act, 1962.

26. SHRI AMANULLAH VS. COMMISSIONER OF CUSTOMS (GENERAL), NEW CUSTOMS HOUSE, DELHI

COD Application No. 50741/2019

Cus: Condonation of delay application filed by the appellant.

Held: In the given circumstances and the confirmation of the proposal of confiscation and the imposition of penalty upon the appellant, we are not inclined to accept the reason quoted to be a sufficient cause. More so, for the reason that the order under challenge has given the importer an opportunity for paying redemption fine. The applicant is miserably silent about seeking the said option. Seen from any angle, the reason mentioned by the applicant is held not to be the sufficient cause to explain the 110 days delay. Accordingly, the Condonation of Delay is declined.

27. M/S VINAYAK CARGO VS. COMMISSIONER OF CUSTOMS (PREVENTIVE) JAIPUR

Customs Appeal No. 52044/2018
Final Order No. 50121/2020

Cus: Can an order pronounced and dictated in open court be reversed?

Held: The Hon’ble Apex court in Vinod Kumar Singh vs. Banaras Hindu University and others reported in 1988 SCC (1) 80 has led reliance upon the decision of Surender Singh and has reaffirmed the findings of the Final Order No. 50372/2019, dt.05.03.2019 which has already been pronounced. The point of consideration as was subsequently raised accordingly stands disposed of against the appellant. What is pronounced in Open Court is pronounced for world at Large. Hon’ble Tribunal upheld its order pronounced and dictated in open court.
28. M/S. LLOYD INSULATION (I) LTD. VS. COMMISSIONER OF CUSTOMS, NEW DELHI

Cus: The appellant in this case has not deposited pre-deposit as per the requirement of Section 129E of the Customs Act, 1962.

Held: We, therefore, have no hesitation in holding that the requirements set out in Section 129E of the Customs Act, 1962 as amended on 6 August 2014 have to be satisfied in regard to Appeals filed on or after 6 August, 2014.

29. M/S ALOK INDUSTRIES LIMITED VS. DESIGNATED AUTHORITY, DIRECTORATE GENERAL OF ANTI-DUMPING & ALLIED DUTIES

Cus: A condonation of delay application.

Held: Application for COD as well as Appeal dismissed.

30. M/S INDO RAMA SYNTHETICS (INDIA) LIMITED VS. DESIGNATED AUTHORITY, DIRECTORATE GENERAL OF ANTI-DUMPING & ALLIED DUTIES

Cus: The appellant filed a condonation of delay application. The appeal was filed with a delay of 211 days.

Held: The contention of the learned Counsel for the Appellant cannot be accepted for the reason cited that Bombay Dyeing & Mfg. Co. had filed Anti Dumping A.No. 53725/18 Writ Petition in the Bombay High Court in April, 2018. The delay in filing appeal because of filing Writ petition is not satisfactory. The application deserves to be rejected and is, accordingly, rejected. The appeal also stands dismissed.

31. M/S MITA INDIA (P) LTD. VS. COMMISSIONER OF CUSTOMS, NEW DELHI

Cus: The impugned appeal was filed after a delay of 205 days. However, the delay was condoned by the Misc. Order No. 50790/2018, dated 26.10.2018. Matter has come up for final hearing several number of times.

Held: Absence of promptness in the given circumstances coupled with absence of appellant today before this Tribunal is sufficient for us to hold that the appellant is not interested in pursuing the appeal. We therefore order for the appeal to be dismissed for want of prosecution. We draw our support from the decision of Apex Court in Ram Siromani Tripathi &Ors VS. State of U.P. &Ors in Civil Appeal No.9142-9144 of 2010 with Civil Appeal No. 6156 of 2012 dated 07 February, 2019. Accordingly, the appeal is hereby dismissed.

32. M/S NITRO CHEMICAL INDUSTRY LTD. VS. DGAD, NEW DELHI – 110 001

Cus: The levy of definitive ADD on the import of Non-Plasticized Industrial Grade Nitrocellulose excluding Nitrocellulose Damped in Ethanol and Water wet originating in or exported from Brazil, Indonesia and Thailand has led to the listing of these two appeals by the two exporters from Thailand.
Held: Nitrocellulose, which is the PUC, has been imported to India from the aforesaid three countries below normal value; the Domestic Industry has suffered material injury. Thus, what has to be seen is, whether the satisfaction of the Designated Authority regarding confidentiality was proper and whether the Domestic Industry was justified in not providing summarization under Rule 7 of the 1995 Rules. The Designated Authority, in the present case, on being satisfied about the claims of confidentiality made by the Domestic Industry, did not call upon the Domestic Industry to make any further disclosure. The finding of the Designated Authority in regard to confidentiality, therefore, does not suffer from any infirmity so as to call for any interference in this appeal. Thus, for all the reasons stated above, there is no merit in the appeals. They are, accordingly, dismissed.

33. M/S PAP FAST MOVERS I. LTD. VS. THE COMMISSIONER OF CUSTOMS (PREV) JODHPUR

Final Order No.51151/2019

Cus: This is a case of smuggling of red sanders along with the consignment clearance where the Appellant was custom broker. Penalty under Section 114(A) of Customs Act, 1962 was imposed upon the appellant by the adjudicating authority.

Held: We are of the opinion that pendency of appeal cannot be allowed to be a ground for the appellant to avoid the illegality already noticed against him. Simultaneous absence of the Appellant for the day is sufficient for us to hold that he is not interested in pursuing the matter and is rather gaining time and the benefit of avoiding penalty already imposed upon him by keeping the appeal pending.

34. M/S R. N. METAL (INDIA) PVT. LIMITED R. N. SHARMA, MANAGING DIRECTOR VS. CCE & GST, JAIPUR

Final Order 51709-10/2018

Cus: Importer classifying “Grinding Media Balls” as ‘Alloy Steel Melting Scrap’ under CTH 72042990 of Customs Tariff Act, 1975 based on Pre-inspection Certificate issued at foreign port of export by an agency approved by DGFT. Goods classifiable under CTH 73259100 ibid when opined by independent experts, Chartered Engineer and National Test House that same were new and unused, though not satisfied IS Standards.

Held: Reports of Indian experts on examination of imported goods at Indian port to be given more credence over Pre-inspection Certificate issued at load port of exporting country.

35. M/S HLPL GLOBAL LOGISTICS PVT. LTD VS. CC, NEW DELHI

Final Order No. 53243-53244/2018

Cus: Deliberate overvaluation of imported rough diamond by importer. CHA penalized for non-verification of KYC norms under Regulation 13(o) of CBLL, 2004.

Held: Functioning of client from declared address not properly verified by CHA. Serious lapse on part of CHA in verifying KYC before taking up Customs clearance of consignment.

36. M/S MULTI WINGS CLEARING AND FORWARDING PVT. LTD. VS. CC (GENERAL), NEW DELHI

Final Order No. 50542/2019

Cus: Misuse of Custom Broker licence for imports by Shri Surender Kumar claiming to be assessee’s employee and submission of KYC documents belatedly before Licence Issuing Authority.

Held: Necessary KYC documents were actually not present with the assessee at time of visit by investigating agency. Charge of replacement of goods substantiated as investigation proved that high value goods suspected to be concealed/misdeclared removed clandestinely from import consignments.
37. M/S BALAJI ACTION BUILDWELL VS. COMMISSIONER OF CUSTOMS, NEW DELHI

Clearance of imported chemical ‘Melamine’ against DFIAs licenced covering “Syntan”. Assessee claiming item “Syntan” refers to synthetic tanning agent and covered goods imported since said goods capable of being used as synthetic tanning agent.

Held: HS codes clearly showing two chemicals to be entirely different and said fact also endorsed by Central Leather Research Institute. Benefit to be extended only to Syntan.

38. M/S MAULI WORLD VIDE LOGISTICS VS. CC, NEW DELHI

The Appellant was involved in the clearance of goods imported from China for M/S Sanco Industries Pvt. Ltd. through M/S Sky Park India, a logistic service provider. It was found that there was mis-declaration of the goods. Though it was declared “Calcium Carbonate” in the bill of entry, it was found to be “Fire Crackers and Telescopic Channels” in all the four containers. Finally, the authorities have revoked the appellant’s CHA license along with forfeiture of the security amount.

Held: By considering the totality of the facts, for the reasons mentioned in our earlier order, we find no reasons to interfere with the impugned order. The present appeal is nothing but misuse of the judicial process.

39. M/S OLYMPIC EXPORTS VS. CC, NEW DELHI

Appellant pleading that restrictions on import of MV under Chapter 87 of Customs Tariff Act, 1975 not applicable as said goods are to be assembled in India and hence not covered under definition of new motor vehicle Policy.

Held: The contention of the appellant is not acceptable because what has been imported is complete motor vehicle in CKD condition. CKD import is only for ease of import and transportation. Said item having electricity capacity of more than 250 watt clearly covered under Motor Vehicle Rules, 1989 requiring registration with MV authorities.

40. M/S PIONEER EMBROIDERY LIMITED VS. CC, NEW DELHI, CUSTOMS

The appellant was allowed to import various goods under EPCG licence dated 30.4.2002 under Custom Notification No. 49/2000-Cus. dated 27.4.2000 at the concessional rate of 5% of Custom duty subject to the condition of the Notification.

Held: The reason cited doesn’t appear to be sufficiently justifiable. There is an apparent delay in filing the appeal before Commissioner (Appeals) of two years. As per Section 128 of Customs Act, there is prescribed time limit of two months to file an appeal and the Commissioner (Appeals) has been vested with discretion to condone the delay for another a month only. Singh Enterprises VS. CCE, Jamshedpur-2008 (221) ELT 163 is impressed upon.

41. SADANAND CHAUDHARY VS. CC (G), NEW DELHI

Misdeclaration of imported goods and failure to verify importer’s KYC documents and to give correct advice to him for BIS certification of such goods.

Held: Since bill of entry filed based on documents provided by another freight forwarder and without verifying importer’s KYC, violation of Regulations 11(a), 11(b) and 11(d) of Customs Brokers Licencing Regulations, 2013 established particularly when imported goods misdeclared and found to be branded Measuring Tape requiring BIS certification. Imposition of penalty and forfeiture of security deposit upheld.
42. M/S LEON CARGO SERVICES PVT. LTD. VS. COMMISSIONER OF CUSTOMS, NEW DELHI

Final Order No. 51292/2019

Cus: Case of diversion of warehoused goods from public bonded warehouse into domestic markets without payment of customs duty. The Director of the company forged himself as owner of the fictitious companies and creating forged/fabricated documents endorsing the re-export of warehouse goods. Director is not cooperating with the Revenue as per the requirement of Regulation 20(5) of CBLR, 2013.

Held: The intention of the custom broker to not enable the department to adhere to the impugned time limit shall not vitiate the action taken against the defending custom broker.

43. M/S SMART TECHNOLOGIES THROUGH ARVIND JAWA (PROP.) VS. COMMISSIONER OF CUSTOMS (ACC), NEW DELHI

Customs Appeal No. 50858/2019 [DB]
Final Order No. 51145/2019

Cus: Case of mis-declaration and undervaluation of imported goods when examined 100% by SIIB.

Held: The adjudicating authority has rightly upheld the undervaluation and demand of differential duty has been upheld.

44. M/S CONTAINER CORPORATION OF INDIA (CCI) LTD. VS. COMMISSIONER OF CUSTOMS, JAIPUR-I

Final Order No. 50739/2018

Cus: Tribunal vide Final Order No. 50679/2017 dated 08.02.2017 remanded the matter back to the original authority for denovo adjudication holding that the action of Commissioner in proceeding and confirming the cost recovery charges without due consideration of various guidelines issued by the Ministry and more specifically regarding the entitlement of the appellant for exemption, which has already been granted by the Ministry vide their letter dated 23.05.2006, is not legally sustainable.

Held: We observe that the point of dispute revolves around the liability of appellant to pay cost recovery charges for the period w.e.f. 01.04.2009 to 31.12.2012. Initially, this Tribunal opined lack of documents to ever been placed before the competent authority for deciding the liability of the appellant for cost recovery charges due to which the matter was remanded back. Vide the impugned order, the Tribunal held that no new fact have emerged despite fresh adjudication. It is still for the Department/Board either to waive or recover the cost recovery charges, it being the discretion of the Department.

45. CC, NEW DELHI (ICD TKD) (IMPORT) VS. M/S J G IMPEX PVT. LTD.

The claim is with respect to special additional duty of Customs (SAD) leviable under sub-section 5 of Section 3 of Custom Tariff Act, 1975.

Held: We are of the opinion that the refund claim of additional duty due to the exemption flowing out of Notification No. 102/2007-Cus, dt. 14.09.2007 has to be filed within one year in view of the subsequent Notification No. 93/2008-Cus which still holds good and also in view of Section 27 of the Customs Act, 1962.
50. M/S EXIM CARGO SERVICES VS. CC, NEW DELHI

Customs Appeal No. C/50754/2018
Final Order No. 51744/2018

Cus: The detailed investigation undertaken by the SIIB into the affairs of the appellant leading to misdeclaration and undervaluation of customs duty has established beyond doubt the contravention of various requirements under the CBLR, 2013. The customs broker is expected to function as an extended arm of the Customs Department and is required to act in such a manner that the provisions of Customs Act, 1962 and enacted rules and regulations are implemented efficiently.

Held: For the acts of omission and commission which stand established against the appellant, we are of the view that the appellant is liable for penal consequences under the CBLR, 2013.

51. M/S KOTSONS PVT.LTD. VS. C.C., NEW DELHI

Customs Appeal No. C/52063/2018 [DB]
Final Order No. 52956/2018

Cus: Application praying for Condonation of Delay citing that the export-import manager of the appellant was sick, therefore, the Appeal could not have been filed within time.

Held: The decision of Hon’ble Supreme Court in the case of Singh Enterprises VS. C.C.E., Jamshedpur 2008 (221) E.L.T. 163 (S.C.) impressed upon which reads as - "The language used makes the position clear that the legislature intended the appellate authority to entertain the Appeal by condoning delay only upto 30 days after the expiry of 60 days which is the normal period for preferring Appeal.

52. M/S EXIM CARGO SERVICES VS. CC, NEW DELHI

Customs ROM Application No. C/ROM/50603/2018

Cus: Rectification of mistake apparent on record in the Final Order No. C/A/51744/2018 – CU [DB], dt. 08.05.2018 passed in Appeal.

Held: Though Customs Act has a specific provision of 129(B)(2) of Customs Act, 1962 empowering the Tribunal to rectify the mistake apparent on record but for exercising the said powers it is mandatory for the Tribunal to keep into consideration that the term “rectify any mistake” in the said provision can be used in two distinct senses: (a) the procedural rectification/ review and (b) rectification/ review of merits. The power of the Court or Tribunal is inherent or implied in the former case for setting aside a palpably erroneous Order passed under any mis-apprehension. However, unless and until there is an express power of rectification/ review and that the error sought to be corrected is apparent on the face of record that the rectification/review on merits of an Order is not permissible.

53. M/S. NATIONAL GLASS EMPORIUM, CHENNAI VS. DESIGNATED AUTHORITY, DIRECTORATE GENERAL OF ANTI DUMPING AND ALLIED DUTIES

Final Order No. 51403/2019

Cus: The present application has been filed by the appellant for condoning the delay in filing their appeal.

Held: The Anti Dumping Bench had specially assembled to hear the Delay Condonation Application and even though, the matter called out, no one has appeared to press the Delay Condonation Application. The Tribunal did not find the reason sufficient to condone the delay and the appeals were dismissed.
54. M/S VAIBHAV GLOBAL LIMITED VS. COMMISSIONER, CGST, CENTRAL EXCISE, JAIPUR

Final Order No. 50446 /2019

Cus: The appellant are engaged in the manufacture of stone studded gold jewellery and silver jewellery and are availing the benefit of Notification No. 53/1997-Customs, dt. 03.06.1997 and Notification No. 52/ 2003-Cus, dt.31.03.2003 as amended on re-import/import of goods. The department denying the availability of exemption provided under the said notification has alleged the appellant to have evaded payment of customs duty.

Held: The Court after the order of denovo adjudication had affirmed the amount as liable along with reduced redemption fine and proportionate penalties.

55. M/S NEO CORP. INTERNATIONAL LTD. M/S PRISM FLEXIBLE SOLUTIONS PVT. LTD. VS. COMMISSIONER OF CUSTOMS, INDORE.

Cus: These are condonation of delay applications filed for condoning the delay of 227 days in appeal No. 53528 of 2018 and 195 days in appeal No. 53571 of 2018.

Held: The Honble bench finds that the application for condonation of delay is very vague and no concrete reason has been given for not filing the appeal within the prescribed time limit. The only explanation which has been given by the appellant is that the clerk of the Advocate who was handling the matter has left the job and, therefore, appeal could not be filed in time. We find that no details of as to who was the clerk who was actually handling the job of filing the appeal, when did he left the job of the Advocate and whether the Advocate did not have any other person to handle the urgent appeal matters.

56. M/S ADEPT LOGISTICS VS. COMMISSIONER OF CUSTOMS, NEW DELHI

Final Order No. 51161/2019

Cus: This is a case of forgery of import documents to avoid mandatory requirement of BIS certificate.

Held: Tribunal held that SCN shall be deemed to have been issued by the Commissioner of Customs if after signing the same he has put it in the process of dispatch in such a way that it was out of his control on such date which falls within the stipulated period of limitation, such SCN cannot be held to be barred by limitation. Tribunal also held that event of issuance ought to precede event of service of notice, and hence, service of notice cannot be covered under word “shall issue”. Revocation of License upheld by Hon’ble Tribunal.

57. M/S ASHWINI KUMAR ALIAS AMANULLAH VS. COMMISSIONER OF CUSTOMS ACC (EXPORT), DELHI

Cus: Case of unauthorized import of gold by concealing them under courier mode or under false identity proofs. Goods confiscated under Section 111 (f), 111(l) and 111(m), but Section 111(d) not invoked. Imposition of Penalty under Section 114A preferred to Section 112 by Adjudicating Authority and redemption of gold allowed. Penalty under Section 114AA also imposed.

Held: Tribunal held that gold was prohibited for import and hence liable for confiscation under Section 111(d) in the instant case; that in view of the decision of the Hon’ble High Court of Delhi in the case, not calculating the amount of duty payable in this case cannot vitiate the penalty under section 114A imposed by the Commissioner in the impugned order and, therefore, the penalty imposed under Section 114A was correct and called for no interference; that Import of gold is not absolutely prohibited but is restricted and hence there was no infirmity in allowing redemption of gold; and finally that Penalty under Section 114AA was rightly imposed.
58. COMMISSIONER OF CUSTOMS (PREVENTIVE), LUCKNOW VS. M/S BUSHRAH EXPORT HOUSE

Final Order Nos. 51626/2020

Cus: Based on market enquiry of goods akin to the export goods and reasonable belief that goods were grossly overvalued with intention of claiming undue drawback, Rebate of State Levy (RoSL) and Merchandise Export from India Scheme (MEIS) and therefore liable for confiscation under Section 113, export consignment was seized under Section 110(1). Exporter instead of participating and co-operating in investigation rushed to prefer Appeal before Commissioner (Appeals) against the Seizure Memo. Seizure set aside by Commissioner (Appeals) observing that comparison of export value with local market value was arbitrary and unreasonable, and contrary to provisions of Section 14 and Customs Valuation Rules, 2007 the reason to belief for confiscation of goods was not formable. Revenue in Appeal before Tribunal against Commissioner’s (Appeals) Order.

Held: Tribunal held that all that was required to be considered for exercising power under section 110(1) of the Customs Act, 1962 was whether there was a reason to believe that the goods are liable to confiscation. Further, observing that the Commissioner (Appeals) completely failed to appreciate the provisions of section 110(1) of the Customs Act, 1962 and proceeded to examine the matter as if he was examining an order of confiscation under section 113(i) of the Customs Act, 1962 and not an order of seizure of goods under section 110(1) of the Customs Act, 1962 where the proper officer should only have reason to believe that the goods are liable to confiscation, the departmental Appeal was allowed by setting aside Commissioner’s (Appeals) Order.

59. SHRI SANJEEV SINGH YADAV AND OTHERS VS. CC, DELHI

Final Order Nos. 51607/2019

Cus: Case of unauthorized import of Fireworks (Crackers), telescopic Channels and other trading goods by concealing/mis-declaring as Calcium Carbonate. Goods ordered and originally imported by a trading firm was sold on high sea sale basis to an actual user firm to give impression that Calcium carbonate was being imported by an actual user.

Held: Duty demanded and Penalty/Redemption Fine imposed were upheld by Hon’ble Tribunal.

60. M/S MERCEDES BENZ INDIA PRIVATE LIMITED & OTHERS VS. CC, DELHI

Final Order No.50031-50060/2020

Cus: Case of alleged use of false and fabricated Telegraphic Release Advice (TRA) by the importers to clear the goods imported by them against various scrips namely DEPB, FPS, VKGUY and DFIA obtained on the basis of faked/forged/fabricated export documents.

Held: The State cannot be deprived of its share of duty if the same is claimed by fraudulent act of exporters. Where DEPB was fraudulently procured by the predecessorof appellant, the duty demand from the appellant cannot be withdrawn, as the importers who utilized these licenses had placed forged document before seller and they cannot be allowed to retain the benefit that were obtained illegally.
61. SHRI CHINTA HARAN OJHA CHA & OTHERS VS. CC, DELHI

   Final Order No. 50571/2020

   Cus: Case of alleged mis-declaration of description and value of imported goods namely Point of Sale Devices (POS) and Mobile Point of Sale Devices (MPOS). The value of software was not declared despite so agreed and such consideration paid to the foreign supplier.

   Held: Unscrupulous Importer/CHA's/Consultants/unauthorized persons not only changed the description of goods to get the Bills of Entry facilitated by RMS to circumvent FTP Provisions, but also produced fake/forged/fabricated invoices of lower value of goods to Customs to evade duty. Duty demanded and Penalty/Redemption fine imposed upheld by Hon’ble Tribunal.

62. M/S INGRAM MICRO INDIA PVT LTD. VS. CC, DELHI

   Final Order No. C/A/51067/2019

   Cus: Case of alleged clearance of imported goods namely Fitbit wireless devices against fake/invalid ETA certificates.

   Held: Tribunal held that once it is established that ETA (Equipment Type Approval) were fake and not issued by Ministry of Telecommunications, all other arguments that country of origin not required on ETA, etc., meaningless. Further, Tribunal followed the law laid down by the Apex Court that mens rea is not necessary for contravention of a Civil Act. It was also observed by Tribunal that compliance of statutory requirements with regard to valid importation of goods is primary responsibility of importer.

63. M/S N. R. INTERNATIONAL VS. CC, DELHI

   Final Order Nos. 51159/2019

   Cus: Case of alleged mis-declaration of quantity and value of imported goods. Partner of importing firm admitted such mis-declaration and paid voluntarily the differential duty. Appellant sought adjournment on numerous occasions.

   Held: Duty demanded and Penalty/Redemption fine imposed upheld by Hon’ble Tribunal.

64. M/S RUBAL LOGISTICS PVT. LTD. VS. COMMISSIONER OF CUSTOMS, NEW DELHI

   Final Order No. 50797/2019

   Cus: Case of imposition of penalty on Custom Broker for violation of provisions of CBLR, 2013. CB in his statement acknowledged the negligence on his part to properly ensure the compliance of his obligations.

   Held: Tribunal held that CB definitely committed violation of Regulations by observing that these regulations caused a mandatory duty upon CB, who is an important link between the Customs Authorities and the importer/exporter, and any dereliction/lack of due diligence since has caused the Exchequer loss in terms of evasion of Customs Duty.

65. COMMISSIONER OF CUSTOMS, DELHI VS. M/S SARASWATI IMPEX

   Final Order Nos. 51853/2019

   Cus: Case of alleged mis-declaration of description, value and quantity of imported goods namely fabrics. Case of suppression of willful mis-statement/suppression of fact established during adjudication proceedings. Though duty demand was confirmed under Section 28(4), mandatory penalty under Section 114A was not imposed on the importer. Revenue challenged the Adjudication Order.

   Held: Tribunal allowed departmental appeal and imposed penalty equal to duty demanded.
66. M/S SRIAANSHU LOGISTICS VS. COMMISSIONER OF CUSTOMS, NEW DELHI
Final Order No. C/A/53398/2018

Cus: Customs broker allowed unauthorized persons to use its license for large scale import clearances of mis-declared goods. They filed BEs in respect of two consignments without having ever met IEC Holder/proprietor/ Director/owner of these importing firms. Scrutiny of facts disclosed clear case of sub-letting of License.

Held: Authorization not obtained by appellant in respect of companies who are clients of persons to whom license sub-let. KYC received on e-mail and no connection exists between appellant and both the importing firms for ascertaining the correctness of any information. Revocation of License upheld by Hon’ble Tribunal.

67. PR. COMMISSIONER OF CUSTOMS, ACC (IMP.), DELHI VS M/S VIVO MOBILE INDIA PVT. LTD.
Misc. Order Nos. 50178-50179/2020

Cus: Revenue preferred appeal against Commissioner’s (Appeals) Order to the effect that Refund was not hit by the bar of Unjust Enrichment. Commissioner (Appeals) did not have opportunity to examine issue of necessity of re-assessment before claiming refund as Revenue did not press it in wake of Hon’ble Delhi High Court’s direction in Micromax Informatics Ltd [2016 (335) ELT 446 (Del.)] to the effect that re-assessment is not mandatorily required for claiming refund.

Held: Tribunal observed that the Department could neither have filed an appeal before the Commissioner (Appeals) against a part of the order passed by the Deputy Commissioner nor it could have filed cross-objections in the appeal filed by the M/S Vivo Mobile before the Commissioner (Appeals) against that part of the order sanctioning the refund amount since the right to file cross-objection has not been conferred under Section 128 of the Customs Act, 1962 which deals with appeal to the Commissioner (Appeals). Revenue’s Application for raising additional ground was allowed.

68. M/S JAI SHIV TRADING CO. VS. CC, DELHI
Anti-Dumping Appeal No. 50426/2018
Final Order No. 50425/2019

Cus: Case of import of functional calculators imported in the guise of calculator parts/calculators in SKD condition with intent of Anti Dumping Duty (ADD) evasion.

Held: Tribunal held that appellant imported calculators in SKD condition with a view to evade anti-dumping duty. It cannot, therefore, be permitted to re-export the calculators in SKD condition when the Department detained the goods and after examination concluded that after assembly fully functioned calculators came into existence and dismissed the appeal.

69. M/S NEVINNOMYSSKYAZOT VS. DESIGNATED AUTHORITY DIRECTORATE, GENERAL OF ANTI-DUMPING AND ALLIED DUTIES, AND OTHERS
Anti-Dumping Appeal No. 51217/2020
Final Order No. 51042/2021

Cus: COD Application filed praying condonation of delay mainly on grounds that there was denial of principle of natural justice and that they had a good case on merit.

Held: Tribunal observed that the appellant was not able to satisfy the Tribunal that the appellant was prevented by sufficient cause from filing the appeal in time.

70. M/S CHINTAN ALUMINIUM PVT. LTD. VS. CC, KANDLA
Customs Appeal No. 382/2009
Final Order No/11131/2019

Cus: Declared value of Aluminium foil scraps found to be 70% less than the value of the contemporaneous imports.

Held: Valuation declared by the appellants correctly rejected by lower authorities.
71. M/S VARSHA PLASTICS VS. CC, KANDLA

Final Order No A/11459/2019

Cus: Appellants produced CA certificate issued in 2004 & 2010. The unjust enrichment has to be examined only at the time of release of the refund.

Held: In absence of books of accounts for the current period, only based on CA certificate which is again based on books of accounts, the burden cannot be discharged.

72. M/S AJANTA LIMITED VS. CC, KANDLA

Customs Appeal Nos. 368-370/2010
Final Order No. A/11783-785/2019

Cus: The appellant has classified Rotors, Stators, Down Case, Top Case and Down Rod of motor required for electric fan under CTH 85030090 as electric motor.

Held: Correct classification done by the department under CTH 84149030 as parts of electric fan. Customs Tariff heading include within its purview the incomplete/unfinished items also when presented unassembled/disassembled if the said items have essential characteristics of finished goods.

73. M/S NAYARA ENERGY LIMITED VS. CC, KANDLA

Customs Appeal No. 474/2011
Final Order No. A/11702/2019

Cus: Petromax HD catalyst imported by the appellant claiming benefit of Notification No. 21/2002-Cus. Product in question gets consumed in the manufacture of final product and it is not used for running, repair and maintenance of refinery.

Held: Exemption as per Entry No. 45 of List 17 of Sr No. 228 of Notification No. 21/2002-Cus available only if the product is used for setting up of petroleum refinery or the goods should be used for running, repair and maintenance of plant. Exemption denied.

74. M/S ASIA MOTOR WORKS VS. CC, KANDLA.

Customs Appeal No. 12 & 72/2010
Final Order No. A/11945-946/2019

Cus: Non-inclusion of freight amount to the assessable value.

Held: Not including amount which was paid to Freight Forwarders to the assessable value of imported goods. Rule 9(2) of Customs Valuation Rules. Proviso thereof can be invoked only where the cost is not “ascertainable”. In the present case, the cost was very much ascertainable and the was ascertained in respect of 10 out of 15 bills of entry at the time of import. Intention to evade becomes obvious as appellants avoided inclusion of freight element actually paid by them to the freight forwarder.

75. M/S AL AMIN EXPORTS VS. CCE & ST, SURAT-I

Customs Appeal No. 295/2011
Final Order No. A/12093-12109/2019

Cus: Case of diversion of duty free imported material.

Held: Confirmatory statements given by different individuals. No physical evidence of transportation of finished goods by importer. This shows that M/S Laurel instead of using of duty free raw material in the manufacture of finished goods to be exported, sold the raw material in open market. Case based on documentary evidences and not only statements, hence, cross examination cannot be made the sole criteria for setting aside the demands.
76. MULCHAND ZAVERI VS. CC, AHMEDABAD

Customs Appeal No. 10749-10750/2017
Final Order No. A/12330-12331/2019

Cus: Case of Import of gold mixed with mud, cement, etc to artificially claim something that could be camouflaged as Natural Gold Ore Concentrate.

Held: Notification No.12/2012-CE exempts “Ores”. Goods which are produced by subjecting pure gold, sand and other materials to various processes to appear like ore cannot by any stretch of imagination be called “Ore”. Benefit of exemption denied. Duty confirmed. Confiscation upheld.

77. M/S FLEXI TUFF INTERNATIONAL LTD VS. CC, KANDLA

Final Order No.A/10245/2020

Cus: The Appellants contended that Notification 43/2002-Cus dated 19.04.2002 exempted levy of additional duty of Customs (HSD) also.

Held: Notification No. 43/2002-Cus exempted material imported into India against Advance license from Basic Customs duty. No exemption from Additional Duty of Customs (High Speed Diesel Oil) leviable under Section 116 of the Finance Act, 1999.

78. M/S SHREYANSH MARBLE TILES PVT. LTD VS. CC, JAMNAGAR

Customs Appeal No. 11953/2019
Final Order No.A/10522/2020

Cus: Whether Commissioner of Customs can exercise powers granted to him under Section 110(2) of the CA 1962 without issuance of SCN and without granting PH to the appellant – noticee ?

Held: Extension of time limit for issuance of show cause notice under Section 110(2) of the Customs Act, 1962. Amendment in 2006 Section 110(2) has been softened. No SCN necessary for extending time limit for further six months.

79. SHRI BATRA JAY VS. CC, AHMEDABAD

Customs Appeal No. 13152/2018
Final Order No.A/11112/2020

Cus: Illegal import of gold bar by passenger without declaration, attempt to cross through green channel but caught by Customs Officer, Gold concealed in socks.

Held: Absolute Confiscation of Gold Bars illegally imported upheld. Intention of passenger was clear to evade duty by concealing the gold in socks and attempt of appellant to cross through green channel.

80. M/S. MIRACLE FOOD PROCESSORS INTERNATIONAL LTD. VS. COMMISSIONER OF CUSTOMS, COCHIN

Customs Appeal No.585/2008,
Final Order No.21184/2019

Cus: Case of Import of Fruit Dehydration Plant (Spray Evaporation Machine–SPV 10) from Germany under EPCG Scheme to avail concessional rate of duty.

Held: The appellants have failed to fulfill the export obligation and accordingly, Department has issued a showcase notice to recover the applicable duty on the imported goods. Department was within its rights to impose the conditions of the Bond for violation of the provisions therein. The impugned show-case notice is about the recovery of duty foregone in terms of the conditions of the Notification. The appellants having not appealed against the assessment of the Bill of Entry and having not requested for provisional assessment, cannot demand the same while replying to the show-case notice. Such a request, is beyond the scope of the provisions of Customs Act, 1962. Once a machine is imported in terms of the EPCG license wherein certain export obligation has been fixed by the DGFT authorities and particularly, in the case when the EPCG Committee has rejected the appeal made by the appellant, Customs cannot revalue the goods and reduce the export obligation accordingly.
81. RAVI KUMAR RM PARTNER M/S. AISHWARYA INVESTMENTS VS. CC, BANGALORE.

Customs Appeal No.21393/2018,
Final Order No.21028/2019

Cus: Case of smuggling of gold biscuits of foreign markings along with unaccounted cash during seizure under Section 132 of the Income Tax Act, 1961.

Held: The purchase invoices from the local jewellers were not produced during the investigation. Therefore, the Department could not verify the authenticity of those invoices. There is no infirmity in the impugned order which is upheld, appeal dismissed, decided against appellant.

Customs Appeal No. 25625/25676/25677 of 2013

Cus: Classification of Micropore, Transpore and Tegaderm for availing the exemption contained in Notification No. 21/2002-Cus, dt. 01/03/2002 as amended from time to time. The contention of the appellants is that their products are rightfully eligible for the exemption contained in the notification under the description “Skin Barriers Micropore Surgical Tapes”, whereas Department contends that there exists a product which suits the description “Skin Barriers Micropore Surgical Tapes” and the notification should not be read as per convenience.

Held: The department has established that a product named and known as “Skin Barriers Micropore Surgical Tapes” exists. There is no ambiguity in the notification and there is no need to interpret the notification by supplying what is assumed to be missing in the notification. The impugned order is correct as far as it holds that the items imported by the appellants are not eligible for the exemption contained in the Notification No.21/2002-Cus, dt. 01.03.2002.

83. M/S ARBEE BIOMARINE EXTRACTS PVT. LTD. VS. COMMISSIONER OF CUSTOMS

Final Order No. 20352/2020

Cus: Classification of ‘Squalene’ under CTH 15042090 or CTH 29012990. The chemical reports issued by CIFT and Customs Laboratory indicated the impugned product to be of marine origin. It is also confirmed by CIFT that the sample analysis was done using Perkin Elmer Gas Chromatograph FID equipped with a column specific for the analysis of fatty acids and hydrocarbons in oils. Therefore, it was confirmed that the sample was of marine origin and rich in Squalene.

Held: We find that there is no reference to the percentage of unsaponifiable matter with respect to the classification under CTH 1504. Even going by the principles of “ejusdem generis” or “Noscitur a sociis”, the impugned goods being of animal origin are rightly classifiable under Chapter 1504. The test reports give a fair idea of the nature and characteristics of the product. In the instant case, CIFT and Customs Laboratories have reported that the impugned product is fish oil. Therefore, we find that it cannot be classified under Chapter 2901 as saturated or unsaturated acyclic hydrocarbons along with ethylene, propene, butene, acetylene, heptene etc.
84. M/S PARISONS AGROTECH PVT LTD & M/S PARISONS FOODS PVT LTD, CALICUT VS. CC, COCHIN

Final Order No. 20969-20972/2019

Cus: DGFT vide Notification No 39 (RE-2007) /2004-2009 dated 16-10-2007 imposed a condition to the effect that import of palm oil and its fractions, whether or not refined, but not chemically modified, would not be permitted at the port of Cochin.

Held: The Revenue has successfully demonstrated that unlike penalty under Sections 112(b), 114A and 114AA of Customs Act, 1962, mens rea is not essential criteria for imposing penalty under Section 112(a) of the Customs Act. Appeals filed by Revenue are maintainable and suitable redemption fine in lieu of confiscation is imposable on the appellants.

85. M/S LIBERTY OIL MILLS LIMITED VS. CC, COCHIN

Customs Appeal No. 362 & 392 of 2009,

Cus: Restriction on import of Palm oil through Kochi Port.

Held: The importer has not made out any case to show the compelling circumstances under which they could not either cancel the Contract or alter the Port of discharge. The importer was required to comply with the Notification No. 39(RE-2007)/2004-09, dt. 16.10.2007, inasmuch as they could not produce an irrevocable commercial letter of credit as required by the Notification. Therefore, the impugned goods are liable for confiscation in terms of Section 111 (d) of Customs Act, 1962. The Learned Commissioner erred in holding that no redemption fine could be levied as the goods were not physically available. The goods were provisionally released in terms of a bond submitted by the importers. Redemption fine upheld, but the quantum is reduced.

86. SHAMSHEENA MOHAMMED SHIHAVUDHEEN VS. CC, MANGALORE

Final Order No. 21055/2019

Cus: Case is regarding the maintainability of appeal under Section 129(A) of Customs Act, 1962. Gold smuggled in baggage of passenger by way of concealment. The Department had alleged that the appellant has indulged in smuggling and has confiscated the unfinished gold from the possession of the appellant under 111(d), 111(i), 111(f) and 111(m) of the Act and also imposed penalty on the appellant under Section 112(a) of the Act for her omission and acts rendering the goods liable for confiscation under Section 111 of the Act.

Held: Penalty under Section 112(a) of the Act upheld.

87. RAJNISH KANSAL & RINKU KANSAL VS. CC LUDHIANA

Final Order No. 60530-60531/2019

Cus: Case of mis-declaration of Export goods. Export of Murate of Potash (MOP) in guise of Nuts and bolts. MOP restricted/prohibited for export. Usage of fake/forged/fabricated documents. Imposition of Penalty under Section 114 and 114AA challenged before Tribunal.

Held: Tribunal upheld the penalties, quantum of penalty in respect of one appellant reduced.
88. M/S SUN INTERNATIONAL VS. CCE DELHI-IV
Customs Appeal No. C/ 57170/2013
Final Order No. 60141/2020

Cus: Case of unauthorized import of branded, unbranded and counterfeit goods. Mis-declaration of description and quantity was resorted to by Appellants. Branded goods restricted for import. Adjudicating authority ordered absolute confiscation of goods. Appellant challenged the Impugned order before Tribunal for release of goods other than Restricted branded goods.

Held: Tribunal upheld the Impugned Order and dismissed appeal.

89. M/S TOUCHWOOD INDUSTRIES VS. CCE DELHI-IV
Customs Appeal No. C/3145/2012
Final Order No. 60214/2020

Cus: Case of determination of Classification of goods declared as educational charts. Alternative plea of the Appellant to classify goods as printed book with benefit of Exemption Notification No. 21/2002-Cus, dt. 01.03.2002 was also turned down.

Held: Revenue classified the goods under CTH 49119990 based on CTH and HSN Explanatory notes. Tribunal upheld Impugned Order and dismissed the appeal.

90. M/S BERYL INFOSOL PVT. LTD. VS. CCE, DELHI
Customs Appeal Nos. C/120-122/2012
Final Order No. 60128-60129/2020

Cus: Case of Import of Capital Goods without payment of Customs duty to set up computer software under STP Scheme. Capital goods installed and removed clandestinely. Appellants failed to discharge export obligation. Adjudicating Authority confirmed duty demand for duty foregone and imposed penalty.

Held: Appeal preferred before Tribunal was summarily dismissed.

91. M/S ZYMONUTRIENTS PVT. LTD. VS. CC, CHENNAI
Customs Appeal No. 119/2012
Final Order No. 41574-41580/2019

Cus: Appellants classified used dried yeast as animal feed. The issue was whether it falls under chapter 21 or 23 of Customs Tariff.

Held: Chapter 23 includes products of any kind used in animal feed. CTH21022000 specifically mentions yeast active or inactive. Therefore, when yeast has a specific mention under heading 2102, that cannot be classified under any other heading under chapter 23 in view of the chapter note mentioned above. Under rule 3 (a) of Interpretative Rules, that the heading which provides most specific description shall be preferred to heading providing a more general description.

92. M/S COMPUAGE INFOCOM LTD. VS. PR.CC, CHENNAI
Customs Appeal No. 41027/2019

Cus: Classification of CCTV under CTH 8525 8010 as television cameras or under CTH 8525 8090 (others).

Held: From the HSN Notes read with the Customs Tariff Heading 8525, we find that there is no entry specifically for CCTV cameras and it is nowhere even hinted that CCTV cameras, which according to the appellant are neither digital cameras nor video camera recorders, would fall under the category of television cameras itself and hence, this argument of the assessee cannot be accepted. For these reasons, they cannot be classified under television camera, but rightly under “Others” for the period in dispute, since we cannot add or substitute our views/opinions, to negate Revenue’s classification, just to go with appellant’s claim which is based only on arguments.
93. M/S HONDA SIEL POWER PRODUCTS LTD. VS. CC, CHENNAI

Customs Appeal Nos. 42343-42345/2014 & 40688/2015

Cus: Case of refund of SAD availing the benefit of Notification No. 102/2007-Cus, dt. 14.09.2007.

Held: The question of strict versus liberal interpretations of the exemption notifications has now finally been settled by the judgment of the Constitutional Bench of the Hon'ble Apex Court on 30th July 2018 in the case of Dilip Kumar & Company [2018 (361) ELT 577 (SC)], any exemption notification must be strictly interpreted and any benefit of doubt must go in favour of the Revenue and against the assessee. Appeals dismissed.

94. GAURAV AGARWAL VS. CC, TIRUCHIRAPALLI

Customs Appeal No. 41798/2016
Final Order No. 41733/2019

Cus: Case of smuggling involving silver, foreign origin of seized silver established from packaging.

Held: The boxes contained the exact quantity of silver granules mentioned on them. How is it possible for the appellant to purchase 6 carton boxes exactly mentioning 10 kgs of silver granules from road side shop in Sowcarpet. Further, the boxes also show the date of manufacture, purity as also lots nos. The details given by department in another case(silver granules imported by Sh. Shiv Sahni) establishes that the manufacturer mentioned on the carton boxes is a manufacturer/supplier of silver granules. These facts would sufficiently prove that the case set up by the appellant that the carton boxes were purchased from roadside to be false and unacceptable.

95. VAS NOORULLAH & CO. VS. CC (AIR), CHENNAI

Customs Appeal No. 40133/2013
Final Order No. 41246/2019

Cus: Case of mis-declaration

Held: As is evident from the second test report of CLRI dt. 27.12.2010 reproduced above, the first test report, it was tested on the specifications for "Nubuck Leather of cows or buffaloes" while the description of the goods by the appellant was "Sheep Nubuck leather". The second sample was ordered to be tested which was tested and it was again confirmed that it is not Nubuck Leather at all as the process of snuffing essential for making nubuck leather has not been undertaken. From the above, it is clear that there was misdeclaration of the goods in the shipping bill by the appellant.

96. LIEUTENANT COLONEL GANESAN S. (RETD.) VS. CC, CHENNAI

Customs Appeal No. 42206/2017
Final Order No. 40083/2020

Cus: Case of gold smuggling.

Held: The appellant’s explanation regarding the call records coupled with the extracts of statements of persons apprehended on the early hours of the eventful day lead us to understand that considering the gravity and nature of the offence/activity alleged, the explanation offered in the form of reply is not at all sufficient to conclude as to the innocence of this appellant, as pleaded. Appeal Dismissed.
97. M/S SEA SWAN SHIPPING AND LOGISTICS VS. CC, CHENNAI

Customs Appeal No 41776/2019
Final Order No. 40545 / 2020

Cus: Delay of 764 days in filing of appeal. Therefore, this appeal for condonation of delay.

Held: The appellant has failed to promptly avail the appeal remedy. Though law of limitation is not meant to destroy the right of parties, it cannot favour those who are sleeping. In the present case, the appellant has deliberately opted not to file appeal initially. Thereafter, this appeal is filed only on the advice given that the penalty can be set aside as per the decision of the Hon’ble High Court of Delhi. As discussed earlier, there is no evidence to show that the livelihood of appellant is affected or his intention to expand business is interrupted. Appeal Dismissed.

98. SURESH RAJARAM VS. CC, CHENNAI

Customs Appeal No. 41815/2019
Final Order No. 40781 / 2020

Cus: Case of gold smuggling.

Held: There is no dispute that the appellant tried to smuggle the gold, i.e., he tried to bring the above gold bars from Singapore into India without payment of applicable duties and without even declaring the same when he was duty bound to do so. The purchase of the same and the final destination/usage may not be of any significance when such an act of smuggling is carried out, since what is important is primarily the declaration, followed by the payment of applicable duties/taxes.

99. RAVI SADANAND VS. CC, TUTICORIN

Final Order No. 40028-40029 / 2020

Cus: Case of smuggling involving Red Sanders.

Held: Burden of proof has been discharged by the adjudicating authority. Revenue has linked each and every chain in the whole loop of the master plan to smuggle the contraband by identifying the involvement and role of each and every person whereas nothing is brought on record by the appellants to dislodge even as mall link in the above chain. No reasons to interferewith the meticulous findings of the Original Authority. ImpugnedOrder-in-Appeal is upheld. Appeals Dismissed.

100. M/S T.R.L. KROSASI REFRACTORIES LTD. VS. CC & SERVICE TAX, VISAKHAPATNAM

Final Order No. A/31111/2019

Cus: Case of refund following re-classification of goods.

Held: Refund cannot be sanctioned in any case including in case of self-assessment unless the assessment is itself challenged. ITC Limited v. Commissioner-2019 (368) E.L.T. 216 (S.C.) Followed.
101. M/S COROMANDEL INTERNATIONAL LTD. SECUNDERABAD VS. COMMISSIONER OF CUSTOMS CENTRAL EXCISE AND SERVICE TAX GUNTUR

Customs Appeal Nos.30280/30281/30284/30286 of 2019
Final Order No. A/30797-30800/2019

Cus: Reduction in import value post clearance of the goods. Exporter at the time of clearance paid duty on the entire value. Subsequently, the overseas supplier gave discount on account of the goods being cleared well in time. Hence the importer filed refund application.

Held: No refund can be sanctioned without challenging the assessment order, whether such assessment is done prior to the amendment to Section 17 of the Customs Act, where the assessment had to be done by the officers or post such amendment where the assessment is done under the self-assessment scheme. ITC Limited v. Commissioner - 2019 (368) E.L.T. 216 (S.C.)-Followed.

102. COMMISSIONER OF CUSTOMS, CENTRAL EXCISE & SERVICE TAX, HYDERABAD-II VS. M/S S.V. TECHNOLOGIES PVT LTD.

Customs Appeal No. 662/2007
Final Order No.A/30606/2019

Cus: Validity of Demand u/s 28 of the Customs Act, 1962 without challenging bill of entry.

Held: Cases pertaining to issue of demand under Section 28 after clearance of the case under Section 47 are covered by the judgment of the Hon’ble Apex Court in the case of Jain Shudh Vanaspati Ltd., which clearly held that a demand can be raised under Section 28 even after clearance of the case under Section 47. Accordingly, the case decided in favour of revenue.

103. COMMR. OF CUSTOMS (PORT), KOLKATA VS. M/S CHIRAG CORPORATION

Final Order No.75299/2020

Cus: The party imported Powers Tillers and claimed benefit of exemption Notification No.12/2012-Cus which is available to Rotary Tiller/Weeder.

Held: The benefit of exemption notification is not available to the power tillers imported by the appellant of subject goods to the customs exemption notification.

104. SHRI BIKASH SAHA, PROPRIETOR M/S. BISHAL EXPORT VS. PRINCIPAL COMMISSIONER OF CUSTOMS (PREVENTIVE), KOLKATA

Final Order No.76874-76875/2019

Cus: Goods imported in excess of what was declared in the BoE and other documents. Goods imported from Bangladesh as per the South Asia Free Trade Agreement (SAFTA). Only the excess quantity of goods which have been imported by them without declaring in any of the documents not covered by SAFTA certificate and in violation of Customs Act, 1962.

Held: Excess goods and not the entire consignment liable to confiscation under Sections 111(e) and 111(l) ibid. Amount of redemption fine as well as the penalties imposed by the impugned order upon the appellants need to be proportionately reduced.
105. M/S INDIAN FARMERS FERTILIZER CO-OPERATIVE LIMITED VS. COMMISSIONER OF CUSTOMS (PREVENTIVE), BHUBANESWAR

Final Order No. 76702-76705/2019

Cus: Appellant filed refund claim with respect to fertilizers which have been imported on which they have paid excess Customs duty taking the wrong value for the purpose of calculation. Refund claim was filed after finalization of provisional assessment and the final assessment order was not challenged.

Held: The appellant was not entitled to the refund without having first challenged the assessment order itself and therefore the impugned order denying such refund is correct. The decision of the larger Bench of the Hon’ble Supreme Court in the case of ITC Ltd. v. Commissioner of Central Excise, Kolkata-IV followed.

106. SHRI BIKASHSAHA, PROP. OF M/S MOLY EXPORTS VS. CC (PREVENTIVE), KOLKATA

Customs Appeal No.248/2009
Final Order No.76159/2019

Cus: The appellant mis-declared goods at the time of importation. Goods were seized and confiscation & imposition of penalties proposed in the notice.

Held: Mens rea is not an essential ingredient either for the purposes of confiscation under Section 111 or for levy of penalty under 112(a)of the Customs Act, 1962. Confiscation upheld.

107. M/S ADVANI PLEASURE CRUISE COMPANY PVT LTD VS. COMMISSIONER OF CUSTOMS (I) NHAVA SHEVA

Final Order No. 86982/2019

Cus: The assessee has imported second hand/used Casino Ship M V Majesty vide BoE. From the examination report, it is quite evident that casino games have been fitted on all the three decks of the vessel, and the layout of the decks including those of chairs and stools on the deck was to facilitate the playing of those casino games.

Held: Once the vessel is fitted with casino games across the entire three decks with no regular seating plan, the same cannot be called a passenger ship. It is also not the case of assessee that there is a fare charged by them for the voyages that can be undertaken on vessel imported. The HSN explanatory notes along with the relevant tariff have been analyzed by bench of Tribunal in case of Waterways Shipyard Pvt Ltd, and the classification determined by application of Rules of Interpretation under heading 8903.

Following the decision of Tribunal in case of Waterways Shipyard Pvt Ltd, the Tribunal held the classification of imported vessel under heading 8903 as determined by the impugned order.

108. COMMISSIONER OF CUSTOMS (IMPORT) NHAVA SHEVA VS. M/S STAR INDUSTRIES

Customs Appeal No. 86231/2013
Final Order No. A/86334/2019

Cus: Whether the process of roasting of ores into concentrate should be considered as manufacture activity under Chapter Note 4 of Chapter 26 of Central Excise Tariff Act, 1975.

Held: The issue is no more res integra in view of judgment of Supreme Court in case of respondent itself. The Apex Court have held that in view of Chapter Note 4 appended to Chapter 26 of Tariff Act, the process of roasting of ores into concentrate shall be considered as manufacture and thus, the benefit of duty exemption provided under Notification No. 4/2006-C.E. should not be available.
109. M/S GMR INFRASTRUCTURE LTD VS. COMMISSIONER OF CUSTOMS (EXP.) MUMBAI

Final Order No. 86983/2019

Cus: The appellant filed BoE for clearance of goods described as Electronic Sensor Paver Vogel Model 1800-2 with AB 600-2-TV for laying bituminous pavement upto 9 meters along with multiplex big SKJ and its accessories. The appellant classified the item under CTH 84306100 and claimed exemption under Notification No. 621/2002-Cus, dt. 01.03.2002 as amended.

Held: The issue at hand stands resolved by the Apex Court through its decision in Gammon India Ltd, wherein it was held to be well settled principle that a provision providing for an exemption has to be construed strictly. It was also held that in the context of the principle that in a taxing statute, there is no room for any ambiguity. Moreover, the Apex Court in Dilip Kumar & Co reiterated the principle of strict construction of notification and also that in case of ambiguity, ambiguity has to be construed in favour of the Revenue.

110. M/S HINDUSTAN PETROLEUM CORPORATION LTD VS. COMMISSIONER OF CENTRAL EXCISE, PUNE-I

Final Order No. A/85651/2020

Cus: The issue involved for determination is, whether the assessee is entitled to refund of Customs duty paid during September, 2004 to April, 2005. Two amended notifications of the basic Notification No. 21/02-Cus were in force during the period namely, Notification No. 82/04-Cus and Notification 11/05- Cus. In both amending Exemption Notification, concessional rate of duty + Nil rate of duty as the case may be prescribed to be applicable only to Liquefied Petroleum Gases falling under Chapter 2811.1900.

Held: Applying the principles of strict interpretation, the exemption notification cannot be made applicable to the clearances of commercial butane (Liquefied Petroleum Gas) during the said period. Tribunal also agrees with the contention of Revenue that in absence of successfully challenging the assessment order, correcting the classification of commercial butane to that of Liquefied Petroleum Gases by filing necessary appeal before higher forum, the methodology followed by filing the refund claim is contrary to the principles of law laid down by Supreme Court in Priya Blue Industries case, which has been recently upheld in ITC case.

111. M/S HONDA SIEL CARS INDIA LTD VS. COMMISSIONER OF CUSTOMS (EXPORT PROMOTION) MUMBAI-I

Final Order No. A/86917/2019-WZB

Cus: The appellant imported cars and cleared the same on payment of duty by debiting the duty under DEPB scheme. Upon import, the appellant paid 4% SAD through TR-6 challan. Later, on sale of imported cars, it filed for refund of such 4% SAD as per Notification No. 102/07-Cus. The refund claim was rejected by the adjudicating authority on grounds of limitation.

Held: Considering the decision of the Bombay High Court in CMS Info Systems Pvt Ltd VS. UoI it is clear that the period of limitation even if specifically not mentioned under the Notification No. 102/07-Cus before its amendment, all refund of Customs duty being governed under Section 27 of the Customs Act, 1962 the limit of one year from the date of payment of 4% SAD would be applicable. In the present case, as the refund was filed after one year from the payment of 4% SAD, the same is barred by limitation.
112. Ms PRERNA SINGH, CEO M/S SEVILLE PRODUCTS LTD VS. COMMISSIONER OF CUSTOMS [IMPORT-II] MUMBAI.

Cus: Imposition of penalty on CEO, based abroad.

Held: Imposition of Penalty under Section 112(a) on M/S Seville Product and its CEO, Ms. Prerna Singh, both based in Dubai. CESTAT held that if violation of provision of statute is committed within the said country, then the consequence in conformity to the legal provision of the country would ensue, no matter the violator is a resident of the country or an alien. It is, therefore, necessary to determine if the "act or its omission" committed in violation of law and accordingly to punish the violator and not to determine if such violation has been committed by a legal person based in the Country or not. Appellant Prerna Singh had also confessed during regarding of her statement as CEO of her company that appellant Seville Products Ltd. used to raise two invoices for same import having low value and high value recorded in those invoices which were despatched through a computer of third party named Prakesh Menon for presentation of the invoices having lower value before the Customs for payment of customs duty and clearance and that the commercial invoice against which payment was received was not shown to the Customs. Meaning of word abetment is 'to help someone in wrong doing'. In the instant case, such wrong doing had its effect in the Mumbai Customs jurisdiction and appellants had aided the importer in such wrong doing, therefore, penalty u/s 112 was rightly involved.

113. M/S SAKAR INDUSTRIES PVT LTD VS. COMMISSIONER OF CUSTOMS NHAVA SHEVA-I

Cus: The appellant imported Molybdenum Ore Concentrate declaring the same as Molybdenum Ore and claimed exemption from Counterveiling Duty (CVD) as per Notification No. 04/2006-CE. Upon investigation by the DRI, it was found that the item imported was not Molybdenum Ore but was Molybdenum Ore Concentrate.

Held: Since the goods were mis-declared, the appellant is not eligible for benefits under Notification No. 04/2006-CE. It is a fact that the goods imported are molybdenum Concentrate and appellants have declared the same as Molybdenum Ore on the Bill of Entries and the documents relating to import clearance. For the acts of omission and commission leading to misdeclaration of the goods, for which they become liable for confiscation.

114. M/S UNITED TRADERS VS. COMMISSIONER OF CUSTOMS NHAVA SHEVA-V

Cus: Case of undervaluation of goods based on examination.

Held: The importer as well as the CHA were both unable to produce the BIS certificate in respect of such goods. Moreover, rather than producing the certificate, the appellants attempted to manipulate the certificate and produced some other documents so as to cover up the imports. Such irregularities in the import were acknowledged by the proprietor of the appellant. Once it is established that goods imported were contrary to provisions of the Customs Act, 1962 they become liable for confiscation under Section 111 of the Customs Act, 1962. The person importing such goods attracts penalty under Section 112 of the Customs Act, 1962.
115. M/S VIJAYSHREE ALLOYS PUNE PVT LTD VS. COMMISSIONER OF CUSTOMS (IMPORT), NHAVA SHEVA

Final Order No. A/85689/2020

Cus: The appellant had filed the BoE for clearance of "Aluminium Scrap Tread" by mis-declaring the goods inasmuch as, out of the total quantity of goods imported by assessee, goods weighing 13.5 MT were found to be old and used pipes, classifiable under CTH 7608 with 10% BCD.

Held: Since, the correct information was not furnished in import documents, the transaction value was appropriately rejected. Thus, assessee is exposed to the consequences provided under statute for payment of differential duty, fine and penalty.

116. M/S. A V AGRO PRODUCTS LTD. VS. COMMISSIONER OF CUSTOMS, NEW DELHI

Customs Appeal No. 361-63/2010
Final Order No. 50155-50157/2020

Cus: Case where the noticee acknowledged guilt by approaching Settlement Commission and the co-noticee’s (Appellant) guilt to be decided separately or together.

Held: Co-noticee cannot avoid adjudication. Merits of case against co-noticees to be examined separately and only if co-noticees found to commit same offence as that committed by main noticee, settlement mechanism provides for settlement of entire case as a whole. Where act of notices separately and distinctly liable for penal consequences, co-noticee not to automatically get penalty set aside on ground that case of main noticee settled. Settlement Commissioner granted liberty to Revenue to take appropriate action against remaining noticeesi.e. appellants herein. Benefit of KVS Scheme not to be suomotu extended to appellants.

117. COMMISSIONER OF CUSTOMS NEW DELHI (ICD, TKD) Vs M/S DAXEN AGRITECH INDIA PVT LTD

Customs Appeal No. 52498/2014
Final Order No. 50102/2018

Cus: Recognition / Classification of any product by Drug Control Act/Authority cannot be the basis for classification under Customs.

Held: The classification under Customs Tariff should be guided by the statutory entries and the explanatory notes including HSN notes. The parameters as laid down in other legal acts /authorities can have persuasive value only. Drug licence by itself cannot be basis for classification.

118. M/S WARNER BROS. (F.E.) INC. VS. COMMISSIONER OF CUSTOMS (I), MUMBAI

Customs Appeal No. 705,729 & 743/2004
Final Order No. A/85694-85696/2017

Cus: If any part of the ‘Sale Proceeds’ of the subsequent use of the imported good goes to the Seller (abroad) than that part needs to be added in the Assessable value under Customs Act, 1962.

Held: It is seen that any amount of royalty or license fee paid during a transaction of sale, as a condition of such sale, would be includible in the transaction value. In the instant case there is no sale involved. The cine prints are imported for nominal consideration, however as a condition of such import, the appellants are required to pay a percentage of the gross revenue earned by them by use of such cine prints. If the same is considered as the license fee then the same needs to form part of the assessable value, as the same is paid as a condition of import.
119. COMMISSIONER OF CUSTOMS NEW DELHI (ICD TKD) (IMPORT) VS. BHARAT FOILS LTD

Customs Appeal No. 52429/2018
Final Order No. 53152/2018

Cus: Limitation period for claiming refund, granted vide any notification also needs to be governed by the limitation prescribed by the statute.

Held: Refund claim of additional duty due to exemption provided by the Notification No. 102/2007 has to be governed by the limitation period as per subsequent Notification No.93/2008-Customs read with Section 27 of Customs Act, 1962.

120. M/S SAURASHTRA CEMENT LIMITED VS. C.C. JAMNAGAR (PREV).

Final Order No.A/11253-11254/2018

Cus: “For use” Vs. “To use” both have different connotation, if used in End use Exemption Notification.

Held: The Hon'ble Supreme Court interpreting the terms of the Notification No. 13/1997 held that the terms mentioned in the Notification No. 13/1997-Cus is ‘for use’ which was clarified that ‘for use’ means intended for use, therefore, even if certain quantity was not put to use, the exemption cannot be denied. However in the present case, the notification prescribes various condition unlike in the Notification No. 13/1997-Cus. As per the conditions, the importer is duty bound to execute a bond binding himself to use the imported materials in his factory and not only that, he has to submit a certificate of the jurisdictional Excise Officer regarding enduse of the goods. Since the appellant could not use quantity of 997.340 MTs, the Jurisdictional Officer also did not issue enduse Certificate. All these conditions are mandatory in case of Notification No. 40/2006-Cus. In failure to comply with this substantive condition, the appellants is not eligible for exemption Notification. This ruling has been given by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Mangalore Chemicals & Fertilizers Lyd. Vs .Duputy Commissioner 1991 (55) ELT ELT 437 (SC).

121. M/S LAXMI ENTERPRISES VS. COMMISSIONER OF CUSTOMS PREV. NEW DELHI

Customs Appeal No. 51536/2017
Final Order No. 50544/2018

Cus: Valuation details/documents recovered from Laptop/Computer are admissible as evidence.

Held: In the main ground of the appeal. It has been argued that transaction value was required to be accepted in the absence of evidence produced by Revenue of contemporaneous import of identical/similar goods. The appellant argued that the documents printed-out from the electronic media are not admissible for non-compliance of specified conditions specified in the Section 138C of the Customs Act, 1962. The appellant raised objection to the admissibility of the documents recovered from the laptop. They have cited the provisions of Section 138C of the Customs Act, 1962. The Tribunal found such objections without basis in as much as the truth of the documents printed-out from the laptop has been admitted by Shri Sumit Chawla son of the proprietor in clear terms.

122. M/S UNISON CEARING PVT. LTD. VS. THE PRINCIPAL COMMISSIONER OF CUSTOMS (GENERAL) MUMBAI

Final Order No. A/61280-61288 & 61312/2016
Cus: The time limits contained in CHALR/CBLR (CHA/Customs Broker Regulations Act) cannot be construed to be Mandatory but are directory in nature.

Held: The time limitation for suspension of CHA License contained in regulation 20 of CBLR cannot be construed to be mandatory and is only directory in nature. It cannot be laid down as an ‘Absolute Proposition of Law’ that delay in taking immediate action of suspension of initiation of inquiry within a period of 90 days would vitiate the action of Commissioner of Customs.
1. This appeal seeks the quashing of the order dated January 18, 2019 passed by the Commissioner (Appeals), Central Tax and GST Delhi the Commissioner (Appeals), by which the appeal has been dismissed and the order dated August 31, 2018 passed by the Assistant Commissioner rejecting the refund claim of Rs. 64,68,025/- filed by the appellant under the provisions of section 102 of the Finance Act, 1994 the Finance Act, has been upheld.

2. The services provided by the appellant to governmental authority or local authority for construction, erection, commissioning, installation etc. were exempted from the levy of service tax by Notification dated June 20, 2012. This exemption was however, withdrawn by Notification dated March 01, 2015 that was made effective from April 01, 2015. The appellant claims that upon withdrawal of this exemption, it paid service tax during the period commencing April 01, 2015 upto February 29, 2016 on the services provided by the appellant to government authorities or local authorities.

3. The Finance Act, 2016, which was presented in the Parliament on February 29, 2016, inserted sections 101, 102 and 103 to the Finance Act. Section 102 contains special provision for exemption in certain cases relating to construction of Government buildings. Sub-section (1) of section 102 provides that notwithstanding anything contained in section 66B, no service tax shall be levied or collected during the period commencing April 01, 2015 and ending with February 29, 2016 (both days inclusive), in respect of taxable services provided to the Government, a local authority or a Governmental authority, by way of construction, erection, commissioning, installation etc., under a contract entered into before March 01, 2015. Sub-section (2) of section 102 provides that refund shall be made of all such service tax which has been collected but which would not have been so collected had sub-section (1) been in force at all material times. Sub-section (3) provides that notwithstanding anything contained in the Chapter (i.e. Chapter VA), an application for the claim of refund of service tax shall be made within a period of six months from the date on which the Finance Bill 2016 receives the assent of the President. Section 102 of the Finance Act is reproduced below:

"102. Special provision for exemption in certain cases relating to construction of Government buildings.

(1) Notwithstanding anything contained in section 66B, no service tax shall be levied or collected during the period commencing from the 1st day of April, 2015 and ending with the 29th day of February, 2016 (both days inclusive), in respect of taxable services provided to the Government, a local authority or a Governmental authority, by way of construction, erection, commissioning, installation, completion, fitting out, repair, maintenance, renovation or alteration of--

(a) a civil structure or any other original works meant predominantly for use other than for commerce, industry or any other business or profession;
(b) a structure meant predominantly for use as–

(i) an educational establishment;

(ii) a clinical establishment; or

(iii) an art or cultural establishment;

(c) a residential complex predominantly meant for self-use or for the use of their employees or other persons specified in Explanation 1 to clause (44) of section 65B of the said Act, under a contract entered into before the 1st day of March, 2015 and on which appropriate stamp duty, where applicable, had been paid before that date.

(2) Refund shall be made of all such service tax which has been collected but which would not have been so collected had sub-section (1) been in force at all material times.

(3) Notwithstanding anything contained in this Chapter, an application for the claim of refund of service tax shall be made within a period of six months from the date on which the Finance Bill, 2016 receives the assent of the President.”

4. The Finance Bill 2016 received the assent of the President on May 14, 2016.

5. The appellant claims that it submitted an application online through Automation of Central Excise and Service Tax ACES portal on October 13, 2016 and also filed a hard copy of the refund claim on December 20, 2016 in the office of the Assistant Commissioner of Service Tax- Division-I the Assistant Commissioner.

6. The Assistant Commissioner wrote a letter dated January 17, 2017 to the appellant in connection with the refund claim filed by the appellant on December 20, 2016 mentioning therein that while processing the refund claim it was noticed that some documents were not filed by the appellant. The appellant was, therefore, asked to submit the documents. This letter of the Assistant Commissioner was followed by reminders dated April 28, 2017 and November 29, 2017.

7. Thereafter, the appellant sent a letter dated December 16, 2017 to the Superintendent (Refund) pointing out that the appellant had paid service tax as per the bills, but service tax components were not received from NBCC(India)Limited, which was the main contractor, as the project was exempted from service tax. The Superintendent (Refund), however, sent a letter dated January 31, 2018 to the appellant in connection with the aforesaid letter dated December 16, 2017 requiring the appellant to furnish information for processing the refund claim. The appellant claims that it submitted the documents on March 16, 2018 through a letter dated March 15, 2018.

8. Thereafter, a show cause notice dated June 28, 2016 was served upon the appellant mentioning therein that the application filed by the appellant for refund of service tax on December 20, 2016 appeared to be time barred since the application for refund could have been filed upto November 30, 2016 in view of the provisions contained in sub-section (3) of section 102 of the Finance Act.

9. The appellant filed a reply to the show cause notice.

10. The Assistant Commissioner framed two issues for consideration, namely:

(i) Whether the refund filed by the appellant was barred by time; and

(ii) Whether the copy of online refund request dated October 13, 2016 filed with the documents on December 20, 2016 can be considered to be within the prescribed time limit or barred by time.

11. After examining the provisions of the Finance Act, the Assistant Commissioner rejected the refund application. The observations are as follows:

"9.2 Further, to examine whether the online refund request filed on 13.10.2016 through ACES be considered for filing within time limit, it is submitted that although copy of online refund request filed on 13.10.2016 was submitted to this office but alongwith the documents filed on 20.12.2016, which is beyond the time limit as discussed above. Further, to examine the authenticity of online refund request, the ACES portal was accessed and any such request was not found to be pending. It is also observed that the helpline facility of the ACES portal was also accessed through cbecmitra.helpdesk@icegate.gov.in but status of such request was not confirmed by the helpline. Hence, it appears that the online refund request filed on 13.10.2016 could not be validated.

10. I find that in view of the provisions of Section 102(3) of the Finance Act, 1994 governing the refund claim and the circumstances prevailing, there are no grounds left to consider the refund request of the assessee that appears to be time barred in all respect.

11. On the basis of foregoing discussions and in the light of provisions stated above, I am of the considered opinion that in the instant case, amount of service tax for Rs. 64,88,025/- is liable to be rejected.”

12. This order dated October 31, 2018 passed by the Assistant Commissioner was assailed by the appellant before the Commissioner (Appeals). The contentions advanced on behalf of the appellant were, however, not accepted and the appeal was dismissed holding that application submitted by the appellant was beyond the time stipulated in sub-section (3) of section 102 of the Finance Act. The relevant portion of the order passed by the Commissioner (Appeals) is reproduced below:

"8. I observe that the assent to the Finance Bill 2016 had been given by the Hon'ble President on 14.05.2016. The time limit prescribed for refund of service tax specified that the claim should be made within a period of six month from 14.05.2016. Hence appellants were required to file the refund claim on or before 13.11.2016. Further, it is only by way of Section 102(2) that the refund of tax paid during 01.04.2015 and 29.02.2016 was provided for. However, this is subject to time limit for filing claim prescribed in Section 102(3). Provisions of Section 102 being special dispensation, levy of service tax was normal and proper except for the stipulations under Section 102. The provisions of the Act being substantive, delay in filing claim cannot be treated as procedural infirmity.

9. The appellants claimed to have filed the online refund claim on 13.10.2016, but, filed the hard copies along with necessary documents on 20.12.2016. This means that the refund claim had been filed beyond the limit of six months, which was prescribed in the provisions of the Act. I note that the provisions of Section 102 are very specific and there is no scope for deviation from the same. Appellants have claimed refund under the provisions of Section 102 only and if the claim is filed as per Section 102(2), it is inevitable that Section 102(3) becomes applicable. Therefore, the provision for time limit under Section 102(3) cannot be ignored and there being no provision for condonation of delay, the same cannot be applied.

9. Appellants contended that date of ‘online application should be taken as date of refund application. However, the Adjudicating Authority could not verify the authenticity of online refund request either through pendency list or through ACES helpline. The enquiry could not validate the claim of appellants to have filed online request. From the copy of online claim printout submitted by the appellants, it is seen that appellants entered “offline” against the item "mode of submission of supporting documents." That being the case, appellants have not explained more than two months delay in submitting documents i.e. if they themselves stated in an online application on 13.10.2016 that supporting documents would be submitted offline, why did they submitted such documents on 20.12.2016 only when they were aware that the last date for filing claim was 13.11.2016. Such behavior raises doubt over fact of filing online application which could not be ascertained by the AA. To get the refund, one has to submit hard copies of such application along with the documents. In absence of such copies processing of refund application, could not in any way have been done by the authorities. It is clear that appellants had not filed the hard copy of application along with requisite documents on time. They were actually submitted on 20.12.2016. However, no cogent reason has been provided by the appellants as to why such submission of hard copies was delayed. In terms of Apex Courts judgment in the case of N. Balakrishnan vs. M. Krishnamurthy reported in 2008 (228) E.L.T. 162 (S.C.), the length of delay in filing of appeal is not relevant and what is relevant is acceptability of the explanation of delay, that in this case there is no explanation of which justify the late submissions of such documents. Thus, there is no ground to interfere with the observations & findings of the adjudicating authority.

13. Shri Ved Prakash Batra, learned Consultant appearing on behalf of the appellant made the following submissions:

(i) The Commissioner (Appeals) erred in not accepting the e-filing date of the refund claim as the date of filing the refund claim, as the Department itself had allowed online filing of refund claims and had also prescribed the procedure to do so. In this connection reference has been made to the Trade Notice dated September 17, 2009 that prescribes the procedure to avail the facility of ACES as also the Circular dated March 23, 2010 that provides for the procedure for electronic filing of the returns;

(ii) The Commissioner (Appeals) erred in holding that the refund claim was “time barred” on the ground that the appellant had not provided cogent reasons for delayed filing of the hard copy of the refund application accompanied by the relevant documents; and

(iii) In any view of the matter, the claim for refund would be governed by the provisions of section 11B of the Central Excise Act 1944 the Excise Act, wherein the time period prescribed for filing an application for refund is within one year. Thus, the time period for filing refund claim cannot be restricted to six months from the date on which the Finance Bill, 2016 received the assent of the President under the provisions of sub-section (3) of section 102 of the Finance Act.

14. Shri Arun Thaplial, learned Authorized Representative of the Department, however, submitted that the order passed by the Commissioner (Appeals) does not suffer from any illegality. It is his submission that the appellant could not substantiate that the application for refund was actually submitted online on October 13, 2016 and, therefore, since the hard copy of the refund application was filed on December 20, 2016, it was clearly barred by time in view of the limitation of six months contemplated under sub-section (3) of section 102 of the Finance Act. It is also his submission that the provisions of section 11B of the Excise Act would not have any application to the present case.

15. The submissions advanced by the learned Consultant for the appellant and the learned Authorized Representative of the Department have been considered.

16. The issue that arises for consideration in this appeal is as to whether the appellant had submitted the application for refund of service tax within the stipulated time since the application filed for refund has been rejected for the sole reason that it was not submitted within the time prescribed.

17. As noticed above, section 102 of the Finance Act deals with special provision for exemption in certain cases relating to construction of Government buildings. Sub-section (1) provides that notwithstanding anything contained in section 66B, no service tax shall be levied or collected during the period commencing from April 01, 2015 and ending with February 29, 2016 in respect of taxable services provided to the Government, a local authority or a Governmental authority, by way of construction, erection, commissioning, installation, completion, fitting out, repair, maintenance, renovation or alteration under a contract entered into before March 01, 2015. Sub-section (2) provides that refund shall be made of all such service tax which has been collected but which would not have been so collected had sub-section (1) been in force at all material times. Sub-section (3), which is relevant for the purpose of determining the issue involved in this appeal, provides that notwithstanding anything contained in this Chapter (i.e. Chapter VA), an application for claim of refund of service tax shall be made within a period of six months from the date on which the Finance Bill, 2016 received the assent of the President. Parties do not dispute that the President gave the assent on May 14, 2016.

18. The appellant claims that it submitted the refund application online on October 13, 2016. It is, therefore, necessary to examine the procedure for filing an application online. According to appellant, the procedure is provided in the Trade Notice dated September 17, 2009 as also the Circular dated March 23, 2010 issued by the Central Board of Excise and Customs.

19. The Trade Notice provides that to transact business on ACES, a user has to first register with the ACES through a process called “Registration with ACES”. A detailed procedure for taking registration has also been provided for new assessee, existing assessee, non-assessee and large taxpayer unit. The Trade Notice further provides that an assessee can electronically file a statutory refund by either filing it online or by downloading the offline return utilities which can be filled in offline and uploaded to the system through internet. Steps for preparing and filing returns have also been provided. The relevant portion is reproduced below:

Returns

The assesses can electronically file statutory returns of Service Tax by choosing one of the two facilities being offered by the department at present: (a) they can file it online, or (b) download the off-line return utilities which can be filled-in off-line and uploaded to the system through the internet.

Steps for preparing and filing returns

(i) Assessee downloads the Offline return preparation utility available at http://www.aces.gov.in (under Download)

(ii) Prepares the return offline using this utility. The return preparation utility contains preliminary validations which are thrown up by the utility from time to time.

(iii) Assessee logs in using the User ID and password.

(iv) Selects RET from the main menu and further chooses required activity such as e-filing/amending/Revise return as the case may be and uploads the return.

(v) Returns uploaded through this procedure are validated by the ACES before acceptance into the system which may take up to one business day. Assessee can track the status of the return by selecting the appropriate option in the RET sub menu. The status will appear as “uploaded” meaning under process by ACES, “Filed” meaning successfully returns can be resubmitted after corrections.

(vi) Returns can also be prepared and filed on line by selecting the ‘File Return’ option under RET module after logging into the ACES.

(vii) All validations are thrown up during the preparation of the return in this mode and the status of the return filed using the online mode is instantaneously shown by ACES.

(viii) The Service Tax returns can be modified once as per rules up to 90 days from the dated of filling the initial return.

Service Desk

In case of any difficulty in accessing or using the ACES Application, assesses can seek help of the ACES Service Desk by sending e-mail to aces.servicedesk@icegate.gov.in or calling up national toll free number 1800 425 4251 on any working day from Monday to Friday between 9 AM to 7PM.

20. The Circular dated March 23, 2010 issued by the Central Board of Excise and Customs also deals with procedure of electronic filing of Central Excise and Service Tax returns and for electronic payment of excise duty and service tax. This has been divided into 10 modules, including electronic filing of refund claims and their processing. It also provides for registration by a new assessee, existing assessee or non assessee and a Large Tap Payer. It also provides that an assessee can electronically file statutory returns by either filing it online or downloading the off-line return utilities which can be filled in off-line and uploaded to the system through the internet. Steps for preparing and filing returns have also been also provided. They are reproduced below:

a. Steps for preparing and filling returns

(i) Returns can be prepared and filed on line by selecting the ‘File Return’ option under RET module after logging into the ACES.

(ii) All validations are thrown up during the preparation of the return in this mode and the status of the return filed using the online mode is instantaneously shown by ACES.

(iii) Returns can also be prepared and filed off-line. Assessee downloads the offline return preparation utility available at http://www.aces.gov.in (Under Download)

(iv) Prepares the return offline using this utility. The return preparation utility contains preliminary validations which are thrown up by the utility from time to time.

(v) Assessee logs in using the User ID and password.
(vi) Selects RET from the main menu and uploads the return. Instructions for using the offline utilities are given in detail in the Help section, under 'Download' link and assessee are advised to follow them.

(vii) Returns uploaded through this procedure are validated by the ACES before acceptance into the system which may take up to one business day. Assessee can track the status of the return by selecting the appropriate option in the RET sub menu. The status will appear as "uploaded" meaning under process by ACES, "Filed" meaning successfully accepted by the system or "Rejected" meaning the ACES has rejected the return due to validation error. The rejected returns can be resubmitted after corrections.

(viii) Once the Central Excise returns are filed online in ACES or uploaded to the system using the off-line utility, the same can not be modified or cancelled by the assessee. The Service Tax returns, however, can be modified once as per rules up to 90 days from the date of filing the initial return.

(ix) Self-assessed CE returns, after scrutiny by the competent officer, may result into modification. Both the 'Original' and the 'Reviewed' return can be viewed by the assessee online.

21. The Circular also deals with validation of the entries made while filling return and they are as follows:

d. Validation of the entries made while filling return

1. At the time of making entry in the electronic format of the relevant return, the software does some preliminary validation for ensuring correctness of data, either concurrently or at the time of saving/submitting the return. This validation process is automated. The user is prompted by the application software to correct the particulars entered wherever required. In respect of certain entries, although the application alerts the assessee about any entry found erroneous or inconsistent, as per the automated validation process, the assessee is still allowed to proceed further to complete data entry of the return and finally submit it electronically. But in some cases the assessee are not allowed to proceed further unless the error indicated is corrected.

2. A return filed electronically is subject to automatic verification process by the application and defective returns are marked to the departmental officer for review and correction. While reviewing the return the officer may seek some clarification from the assessee, call for some information, records or documents which should be furnished by the assessee. In case of review and correction of returns by the departmental officers, assessee will receive a message from the application and they can log in to the application to view the reviewed returns online.

3. Returns, captured off-line using the Downloadable utility and uploaded later on, are further subjected to certain validation checks. Processing of uploaded returns, using the off-line versions, is done at the end of one business day and the status can be viewed by the assessee under the 'VIEW STATUS' link under RET module. Status is described as 'UPLOAD', 'FILED' or 'REJECTED' and they denote as follows:

- UPLOAD denotes that return is uploaded and under processing (assessee are advised to view the status after the end of a business day).
- FILED denotes that uploaded return is accepted by system.
- REJECTED denotes that return is rejected due to errors. (The assessee are required to correct the return and upload it again.)

4. There is no provision in ACES application to allow assessee to make corrections to the returns filed by them. Once the return is accepted by the system as successfully 'filed', no modification can be made by the assessee. However, if the return is rejected, the assessee can correct the errors and upload it again. The assessee are, therefore, advised to take utmost care while fill-in in the returns. They may, however, bring it to the notice of the departmental officers.

22. The contentions advanced on behalf of the parties can now be examined.

23. According to the Department, the refund application should have been filed on or before November 13, 2006 but since it was actually filed on December 20, 2016, it was barred by time.

24. The submission of the learned Consultant for the appellant is that the application was first filed online on October 13, 2016 and so it was within time and in any view of matter, in view of the provisions of section 83 of the Finance Act, section 11B of the Excise Act would be applicable and the application for refund could be filed within one year from the relevant date. In support of this contention reliance has been placed upon a decision of a learned Member of the Tribunal in M/s RoopAutomotives Ltd. vs. The Commissioner of G.S.T. & Central Excise, Chennai Outer Commissionerate 2019 (7) TMI 907- CESTAT CHENNAI.

25. The submission advanced by the learned Consultant for the appellant regarding the applicability of section 11B of the Excise Act needs to be first addressed because if it is accepted it may not be necessary to examine whether the appellant had actually submitted the application on-line on October 13, 2016 since the hard copy of the refund application, in that case, was filed within one year.

26. As noticed above, initially by Notification dated June 20, 2012 the services provided by the appellant to Governmental authority or local authority for construction, erection, commissioning etc., were declared as exempted service. This exemption was subsequently withdrawn by Notification dated March 01, 2015 that was made effective from April 01, 2015. The appellant claims that after the withdrawal of the exemption, the appellant started paying service tax. However, in view of the provisions of section 102 of the Finance Act that was inserted by Finance Act 2016, no service tax was to be levied or collected during the period April 01, 2015 to February 29, 2016 on the aforesaid services and under sub-section (2) refund was to be made of all such service tax which was collected but which would not have been so collected had sub-section (1) been in force at all relevant times. Sub-section (3) provides that an application for the claim of refund of service tax shall be made within a period of six months from the date on which the Finance Bill receives the assent of the President. This is a special provision for exemption from service tax in certain cases and, it provides that the refund claim for service tax has to be filed within a specified time. When a specific provision has been made in section 102 of the Finance Act for claiming refund of service tax paid during the period commencing April 1, 2015 upto February 29, 2016 in respect of the specified services and it also prescribes that the application for the claim of refund of service tax shall be made within six months from the date the Finance Bill 2016 receives the assent of the President, the said time period prescribed for making the refund application has to be strictly adhered to and resort cannot be taken to the other provisions, including section 11B of the Excise Act.

27. The contention of the learned Consultant for the appellant, however, is that in view of the provisions of section 83 of the Finance Act that makes applicable section 11B of the Excise Act to service tax, the limitation for filing the application for refund of service tax would be as provided in section 11B of the Excise Act and not that provided under sub-section (3) of section 102 of the Finance Act.

28. Section 83 of the Finance Act, on which reliance has been placed by learned Consultant for the appellant, deals with application of certain provisions of the Excise Act to service tax. It is reproduced below:

"83. Application of certain provisions of Act 1 of 1944

The provisions of the following sections of the Central Excise Act, 1994, as in force from time to time, shall apply, so far as may be, in relation to service tax as they apply in relation to a duty of excise:-

* 11B **** "

29. Though section 11B of the Excise Act has been mentioned in section 83 of the Finance Act, but what needs to be noticed is that the provisions of the Excise Act would apply, so far as may be, in relation to service tax as they would apply in relation to a duty of excise. Thus, if there is a specific provision in the Finance Act itself for claiming refund of service tax, the provisions of section 11B of the Excise Act dealing with refund would not apply. There cannot possibly be two time limits prescribed for making an application for refund of service tax. When the time limit prescribed in sub-section (3) of section 102 of the Finance Act or sub-section (3) of section 104 of the Finance Act is applicable, the time limit prescribed in section 11B of the Excise Act would not be applicable.

30. Learned Consultant for the appellant has, however, placed reliance on the decision of a learned Member of the Tribunal in Roop Automotive. After referring to the provisions of section 104 of the Finance Act, the learned Member held that the time prescribed in section 11B of the Excise Act, which is one year, would be applicable to even applications made for refund of service tax under section 104 of the Finance Act. The observations are as follows.

5.1 The main crux of the arguments of the assessee through its Ld. Advocate is that Section 104 is under Chapter VA of the Finance Act, 1994, whereas Section 83 falls under Chapter V of the Finance Act, 1994, and therefore, the right of the service recipient to claim refund is governed by Section 83 read with Section 11B of the Central Excise Act, 1994 and not by Section 104(3) ibid. Further, it is his case that Section 104(3) does not override Section 11B since both Section 83 and Section 104(3) fall under different Chapters and it is Section 83 that makes provisions of Section 11B applicable to Service Tax matters as well.

5.2 In view of the above, it is the case of the assessee that the refund application is required to be filed under Section 11B read with Section 83 ibid. and consequently, the time-limit available is one year and not six months as held by the lower authorities.

8.2 The above Section starts with a non obstante clause operating as an exclusion clause to exclude the charging Section 66 or Section 66B. Further, Sub-Section (3) of Section 104 also starts with a non obstante clause, to exclude anything contained 'in this Chapter' i.e. Chapter VA per se. A possible takeaway from section 104, read as a whole, is vide sub-Section (1) the applicability of charging Section is excluded and that refund of service Tax paid, if any, has to be claimed per application within a period of six months from the date on which the Finance Bill, 2017 received the assent of the President. Clearly, Section 104 does not prescribe any format for refund claim and perhaps the only recourse therefore is to file such an application under Section 11B via Section 83 of the Finance Act. It is important to note here that the exclusion is limited to chapter VA and not chapter V and hence, the operation of section 104 (3) starting with a non obstante clause does not exclude the operation of any other provisions other than the ones coming under the same Chapter (VA).

8.3 At the cost of repetition, the Section reads that “Notwithstanding anything contained in this Chapter, an application... shall be made within a period of six months....” and Section 104 does not prescribe the Form of application for refund and for this, the only recourse is to Section 11B qua Section 83. The Revenue may take a stand that Section 104 (3) does not mention about the filing of any annexeures, documentary evidences, etc., along with an application for refund, but no statute contemplates filing of an empty application seeking refund, without any documents/evidences, at least to the effect that the amount claimed as refund was in fact remitted to the Government account. A cursory look at the CBIC website (http://www.cbic.gov.in/resources/htdocs-cbec/refund-rebate/refundrebate-docs.pdf;jsessionid=E715A9021149926B0FC4240BB1DC5D13) contains inter alia types of refund/rebate applications and the list of documents to be filed along with the applications. For an application for refund is contemplated only under Section 11B and a number of documents are mentioned to be filed along with the prescribed format. Hence, there may not be any difficulty in mentioning that an application referred to is a complete application since filing of an ‘empty’ application is not an empty formality; it has to go with all enclosures and documentary evidences in support for enabling the appropriate officer to understand the issue from such a complete application and thereafter, it is for that officer to call for additional documents/evidences, if need be.

9.1 Therefore, a harmonious reading of the provisions points to one and only conclusion that though section 104 is a special provision, it is practically dependent on section 11B and Section 83 connects both the above provisions and thus, all procedures as in Section 11B would apply. There may be applications within six months, as contemplated in Section 104 (3), but that cannot take away the applicability of section 11B.

10. In view of the above discussions and on the peculiar nature of facts involved, the time-limit prescribed under Section 104(3) is only directory, but however, the time as well as the procedure prescribed under section 11B applies in full. The Adjudicating Authority is therefore required to grant refund if the refund application is within the time-limit prescribed under Section 11B and not otherwise.

31. Though the learned Consultant for the appellant is correct in his submission that what was stated by the learned Member in connection with section 104 of the Finance Act would also apply to section 102 of the Finance Act, but it is not possible to accept the views expressed by the learned Member in the aforesaid decision that the time limit prescribed for making the refund application under sub-section (2) of section 102 of the Finance Act would be that as prescribed under section 11B of the Excise Act and not that as provided in sub-section (3) of section 102 of the Finance Act.

32. It would be seen from the aforesaid decision in Roop Automotive that much emphasis has been placed on the fact that since section 83 of the Finance Act is contained in Chapter V, whereas section 104 is contained in Chapter VA of the Finance Act, section 11B of the Excise Act would be applicable since sub-section (3) of section 104 begins with “notwithstanding anything contained in Chapter VA.” Emphasis has also been placed on the fact that section 104 does not prescribe any format for refund of claim, and, therefore, the only course open is to file an application under section 11B of the Excise Act.

33. It is not possible to accept the views expressed by the learned Member in the aforesaid decision. Stipulation in section 83 of the Finance Act that the certain sections of the Excise Act shall apply so far as may be, in relation to service tax as they apply in relation to duties of excise have not been examined. Though section 102 or section 104 of the Finance Act do not prescribe any format but a procedure for filing an application for refund of service tax has been prescribed in the Trade Notice and the Circular. It is also not the case of the appellant that the appellant was not aware of the procedure since it is the appellant that had placed the Trade Notice and the Circular.

34. Such being the position, it is not possible to hold that the limitation for making an application for refund of service tax would be that as provided in section 11B of the Excise Act. The Application for refund of service tax has to be made within the period stipulated in sub-section (3) of section 102 of the Finance Act.

35. It now needs to be examined as to whether the appellant had submitted the application for refund of service tax online on October 13, 2016. The appellant has placed reliance upon the Trade Notice dated September 17, 2009 regarding automating all major processes in Central Excise and Service Tax through ACES. In order to transact the business of ACES, a user has to first register through a process called “Registration with ACES.” Detailed steps for taking registration have also been provided. The system generates a registration number and it is only thereafter that an assessee can transact business through ACES. The appellant has enclosed a copy of the application, which the appellant contends was submitted online. Registration Number has, however, not been indicated by the appellant. The appellant, therefore, could not have transacted any business through ACES. This procedure for registration has also been prescribed in the Circular dated March 23, 2010, which has also been relied upon by the appellant.

36. It also transpires that from a perusal of the Trade Notice that an assessee can electronically file a statutory return by either filing it online or downloading off-line return utilities which can be filled-in off-line and uploaded to the system through internet. The returns uploaded through this procedure are validated by the ACES before acceptance into the system and an assessee can track the status of the return by selecting the appropriate option in the sub-menu which would show the status as “uploaded” which means under process by ACES, or “filed” which means successfully uploaded. The appellant has not stated that the online application was successfully uploaded. It also provides that in case of any difficulty in accessing ACES application, an assessee can seek the help of the Service Desk.

37. The Circular also provides that an assessee can electronically files statutory returns of Central Excise and Service Tax by either filing it online or downloading the online return utilities which can be filed off-line and uploaded to the system through the internet. The Circular provides that the returns uploaded are validated by ACES before acceptance into the system.

38. The Assistant Commissioner and the Commissioner (Appeals) have considered whether the online refund request said to have been filed by the appellant through ACES could be considered for determining whether the application was filed within time. A finding has been recorded that the ACES portal was accessed but the request was not found to be pending and even the helpline facility of ACES portal that was accessed did not confirm the status of such a request. The Commissioner (Appeals) has also noticed that the online print out that was submitted by the appellant also showed “off-line” against the item “off-line”.

39. It is, therefore, clear that though an attempt was made by the appellant to submit the application online but the process that was required to be undertaken for making an application online was not complied with as even the regulation was not done. The application cannot be treated to have been filed on time. If there was any difficulty in submission the application, the appellant could have sought the help of the help desk but the appellant has not stated that he made an attempt to seek help.

40. The appellant, therefore, cannot contend that the online application was actually made on October 13, 2016 as there is nothing on the record to substantiate that such an application was actually filed.

41. The appellant filed a hard copy of the application only on December 20, 2016 in the office of the Assistant Commissioner and the records do indicate that correspondence did take place between the Department and the appellant in connection with this application. This Application was filed beyond the period prescribed in sub-section (3) of section 102 of the Finance Act. In the absence of any provision for condoning the delay in filing the application, the Commissioner (Appeals), committed no illegality in upholding the order passed by the Assistant Commissioner rejecting the application filed by the appellant for refund of service tax on the ground that it was not filed within the time stipulated.

42. Thus, for all the reasons stated above, there is no merit in this Appeal. It is, accordingly, dismissed.

The present appeal has been filed against the impugned Order-in-Original whereby the learned Commissioner has confirmed service tax demand of Rs. 2,47,31,755/- besides demanding interest and imposing penalties under different Sections 25, Section 78 of the Finance Act, 1994 respectively, arising out from three show cause notices, the details of which are given below:

2. Brief facts of matter are that the appellant is operating parking areas in five Malls by way of providing parking to the patrons/visitors of shopping malls and collecting parking fees for which they have appointed an outside agency (herein after referred to as the Third Party Agency) for managing the parking area who is collecting “Parking Fees” on behalf of the appellants and remitting the proceeds to the appellant. The third-party agency raises the invoice for operating cost and its management fee and charges Service tax on these amounts and pays the remainder amount of gross collection on monthly basis after deducting its direct operating cost and management fee. The entire revenue generated by way of selling parking tickets belongs to the appellant. Parking income is recorded as revenue by the appellant in its books of accounts. The appellants claims that the income earned from parking fees belongs to appellants entirely and nothing is remitted to the mall owners from the collections made or otherwise. It is the claim of the appellant that it has no written contract with the Mall owners and is not paying any amount by way of rent or space allocation or by whatever name it may be called to the Mall owners for operating the parking area. The appellant asserts that the only interest of Mall owners is that there should be a hassle free parking and that the space available for parking should be utilized to the maximum possible extent so that there is adequate parking space for the vehicles, otherwise it will affect the popularity of the Mall and may cause traffic chaos in nearby areas of the Mall which may affect the business of the shops located in the Mall and ultimately the Mall owners. No service tax was paid by the appellant on the income generated from the parking. fees. An audit of the appellant was conducted by the service tax department and on the basis of the audit, the above three show cause notices were issued to the appellants alleging that the activity of the appellant amounted to ‘management, maintenance or repairs’ which was leviable to service tax as per the provisions of Finance Act, 1994. The allegations made in the show cause notice were confirmed vide the impugned Order-in-Original against which appellant is in appeal before the Tribunal.

3. In the appeal memorandum and submissions made during the course of hearing by Shri A.K. Batra, Chartered Accountant and Ms. Vibha Narang, Advocate, it has been submitted that the impugned activity of providing parking facility in the Malls was not taxable as Mall owners did not receive any payment or consideration and were not recording any transaction in their financial records. They are only concerned with the hassle free parking and are not charging any amount for providing the parking space to appellant. There is, therefore, no provision of services by the appellant to the mall owners and no service provider & recipient relationship existed between them. Appellant is a partnership firm and is operating the parking area of the malls as an independent business; there has been no arrangement or agreement to provide “Management, Maintenance or Repair Services”; they are working on principal to principal basis; there was no intention for provision of services in the nature of management, maintenance or repair services and the only essence was to provide a hassle free parking; no consideration flows from Mall owners to the appellant; the amount received from various vehicle owners as a consideration for parking cannot be taken for taxing the appellant for the alleged services rendered to Mall owners and no consideration is paid or received from the mall owners; the income earned from parking fees belongs to assessee entirely and nothing is remitted to the mall owners from the collections made or otherwise; there is no privity of contract between the person who is paying the parking charges and the Mall owners; there should be a direct link between provision of services and consideration received; consideration of Service may be provided by the third party who is interested in the service to be provided to the participant i.e. consideration should either flow from beneficiary or from a third person on behalf of the beneficiary; they were conducting own business as they are operating the parking area by employing own resources and labour and they are bearing all the related expenses on their own account and booking the same as business expenses; they are not managing the parking facilities for the mall owners but rendering parking services to the visitors or customers of the mall. The “Management, Maintenance or Repair Services” has been rendered to self by the appellant in order to run the business of parking. The learned Counsel for the appellant further argued that Revenue cannot guide any person as to how it should conduct its business. That it was mall owner’s discretion that they did not want to charge any consideration against providing parking space to the appellant. They relied upon the case law in Hero Cycles (P) Ltd. versus CIT (Central), Ludhiana and SA Builders Ltd. versus CIT (Appeals), Chandigarh &Anr., The learned Counsel further claimed that operation activity is different from management and that the appellant is operating the parking area and not managing the same for the mall owners. They are also in arrangement with the mall owners for operating, managing and letting out of kiosks, space etc. for the purpose of advertisements in the respective five malls i.e. :- (a) The Metropolitan, Gurgaon (b) The Plaza Gurgaon (c) MGF Megacity, Gurgaon (d) The Metropolitan, Saket, New Delhi and (e) The Metropolitan, Jaipur. Appellant have been paying monthly charges to owner of Metropolitan Mall, Gurgaon and The Plaza Mall, Gurgaon only and no charges have been paid to the developers of the three malls towards temporary space utilized. They are paying service tax under taxable category “Sale of Space” and “Renting of immovable property” which was duly accepted by the department hence, no allegation is made with regard to the above activity with respect to Malls from whom no monthly charges have been taken. Similarly, upon the parking charges, no Service Tax is being discharged as no amount is paid to the Mall owners and hence department adopted a biased approach and challenged the same commercial arrangement for creating demand on parking income under “Management, Maintenance or Repair Services”. It is further added that dual approach of the department upon same commercial transaction is unjustified. They have further claimed that instances exist where the service provider not only provides the services on free of cost basis but also gives money or incentives to the service recipient to avail its services like in Computerized Reservation System (CRS) software provided by Galileo India, Amadeus India and Calleo Distribution to encourage their business. In fact they pay incentives to Air Cargo Agent or Travel Agents for using the software. Similarly, in the present case, the Mall owners also find it more commercial viable to give space to the appellant for managing the parking on its own, account instead of bearing the cost and expenses of the managing the parking space themselves. They claimed that renting of immovable property service more appropriately classify the transaction but as no consideration is charged under this category, they cannot be made liable for service tax.

4. The learned Departmental Representative, however, vehemently argued supporting the Order-in-Original and maintained that the services of the appellant was duly covered under the category of ‘management, maintenance or repairs’ and attracted levy of service tax in terms of the provisions of Section 65(105)(zzg) of the Finance Act, 1994. He has supported the impugned order and has submitted that it was highly improbable that there was no agreement between the appellant and the mall owners as no mall owner would allow unhindered activities at the will of the lessee/occupants of the premises without any preconditions and without any financial consideration. He further supported the finding that the appellant is engaged in providing the service of ‘management, maintenance or repairs’ of malls and in consideration thereof the appellant was given right of space, including parking area for collecting income earned from the parking fees. He further argued that it is admitted that parking space in the malls belong to the mall owners and it cannot be accepted that the applicant has been given permission to use such valuable space without any consideration. It is also an admitted fact that the applicant is incurring huge liabilities in managing and maintaining the parking space including the costs paid to the third party agency through which the appellant was managing the parking facilities. As the third party agency was paying service tax on the invoices issued to the appellant, the appellant in turn was also liable to pay service tax for the same service which it was providing to the mall owners for which the consideration was in terms of receipts of the parking fees collected from the visitors.

5. We have carefully gone through the rival arguments and have perused the record of the appeal.

6. To begin with, we cannot accept the appellant’s plea that huge parking space area was given to the appellant without any agreement with respect to financial consideration or without an agreement with respect to contingent liabilities with respect to theft, injuries, fire or other liabilities. It is difficult to believe that such an enormous responsibility was given without any agreement. Even otherwise, the activity of the appellant is covered within the definition of ‘management, maintenance or repairs’. It is not necessary that the service recipient, which are the mall owners in this case should receive any pecuniary consideration from the service. Even a service without any direct pecuniary benefit to the service recipient is also a service. Even if we take that the interest of the mall owners is that the appellant should provide a hassle free parking, it is a service to the mall owners by the appellant. Again, the plea of the appellant that no monetary consideration is being paid by the mall owners is without substance. The appellant has been allowed to use space and collected parking fee. This is a valid consideration in terms of the service tax provisions as it is not necessary that the consideration should always be directly in the form of money. If the consideration is in terms of some benefit to the service provider which can be measured or converted into money it will constitute a valid consideration. Reference can be made to the relevant provisions of Section 67 of the Finance Act, 1994 regarding valuation of the taxable service. It is as follow:

SECTION 67. Valuation of taxable services for charging service tax.

(1) Subject to the provisions of this Chapter, where service tax is chargeable on any taxable service with reference to its value, then such value shall,

(i) in a case where the provision of service is for a consideration in money, be the gross amount charged by the service provider for such service provided or to be provided by him;

(ii) in a case where the provision of service is for a consideration not wholly or partly consisting of money, be such amount in money as, with the addition of service tax charged, is equivalent to the consideration;

(iii) in a case where the provision of service is for a consideration which is not ascertainable, be the amount as may be determined in the prescribed manner.

(2) Where the gross amount charged by a service provider, for the service provided or to be provided is inclusive of service tax payable, the value of such taxable service shall be such amount as, with the addition of tax payable, is equal to the gross amount charged.

(3) The gross amount charged for the taxable service shall include any amount received towards the taxable service before, during or after provision of such service.

(4) Subject to the provisions of sub-sections (1), (2) and (3), the value shall be determined in such manner as may be prescribed.

Explanation. - For the purposes of this section,

(a)"consideration" includes - (i) any amount that is payable for the taxable services provided or to be provided;

(ii) any reimbursable expenditure or cost incurred by the service provider and charged, in the course of providing or agreeing to provide a taxable service, except in such circumstances, and subject to such conditions, as may be prescribed;

(iii) any amount retained by the lottery distributor or selling agent from gross sale amount of lottery ticket in addition to the fee or commission, if any, or, as the case may be, the discount received, that is to say, the difference in the face value of lottery ticket and the price at which the distributor or selling agent gets such ticket.

7. Section 67(1)(i) clearly stipulates that where the consideration is not wholly or partly consisting of money, it would be such amount in money as, with the addition of service tax charged, is equivalent to the consideration. Further, in Section 67(1)(j) consideration has been taken as the gross amount charged by the service provider. Thus, there is no doubt that the right to collect parking fees given by the mall owners is nothing but a consideration provided to the appellant by the mall owners and the measure of such consideration is the gross income generated through the parking fees.

8. We further find that the learned Counsel for the appellant has sought to repudiate the liability on the impugned activity by contending that they are merely operating the parking area which is different from the service of ‘management maintenance and repairs’. We are not inclined to accept this distinction because as far as the business activity is concerned qua the appellant, it is operation of the parking area but when this activity is examined qua the mall owners they are providing the service of ‘management, maintenance or repairs’ to the mall owners.

9. We also find that the case laws cited by the appellant are not relevant in the light of these findings. However, we accept the additional plea of the learned Counsel of the appellant that such gross income will include service tax also and the taxable income has to be computed after abating the amount of service tax from the gross income in terms of Section 67(2) of the Finance Act. Therefore, the income shown in the balance sheet as parking fees will be considered as cum-tax value for determination of service tax. We also accept the argument of the learned Counsel of the appellant that they will be eligible to avail the Cenvat credit of the service tax paid on input services, which have been provided to the appellant by third party agency or any other service providers in providing the said service of ‘management, maintenance and repairs’ of the parking area.

10. However, we cannot accept the plea of the appellant that no extended period was invokable as there was no wilful suppression of facts on their part as they were submitting regular service tax returns to the department. We find that there was a clear mis-declaration and wilful suppression in as much as the appellant has suppressed the income of parking fees in the relevant returns with an ulterior motive to evade the service tax. They have wilfully designed their mode of operation to evade the service tax. As such we find that the extended period is invokable in the case.

11. In view of entire above discussion we uphold the order-in-original so far as legality of levy of service tax on the activity under ‘management, maintenance or repair service’ is concerned. However, the appellant will be entitled to avail Cenvat credit of service tax paid by the service providers and cum duty benefit. The penalties under Section 78 of Finance Act, 1994 need to reworked accordingly.

12. In view of the above findings we remand the case to the Adjudicating Authority to re-determine the taxable demand, interest and penalties in the light of above findings. The appeal is, accordingly, allowed to the extent indicated above.

APPEARANCE:

Shri Ajay Kumar, Advocate for the Applicant
Shri R. K. Manjhi, Authorised Representative of the Department

CORAM:

HON’BLE MR. JUSTICE DILIP GUPTA, PRESIDENT HON’BLE MR. BIJAY KUMAR, MEMBER (TECHNICAL)

DATE OF HEARING/DECISION: 23.07.2019
MISCELLANEOUS ORDER NOs. 50567-50568/2019
M/s C. P. Systems Pvt. Limited1 has filed a cross appeal with an application for condoning the delay in filing the appeal. The delay condonation Application has come up for hearing.

2. The appeal was filed by the Department on 31 January, 2014 to assail that part of the order dated 27 September, 2013 passed by the Commissioner of Service Tax, New Delhi by which relief in part was granted to the Applicant. The records indicate that a communication dated 19 March, 2014 was sent by the Registry of the Tribunal to the Applicant by speed post bearing No. ED 310025420 IN forwarding a copy of the appeal that had been filed by the Department.

3. Subsequently, a communication dated 08 February, 2017 was also sent to the Applicant by the Registry of the Tribunal by speed post mentioning therein that the appeal would be listed for final hearing before the Tribunal on 27 February, 2017. This letter dated 8 February, 2017 was admittedly received by the Applicant on 14 February, 2017.

4. When the matter was taken up by the Tribunal on 27 February, 2017, Shri Prakash Sinha, a learned Counsel appeared for the Applicant and the Bench directed the Registry to provide a copy

1. The Applicant of appeal to the counsel while adjourning the matter on 5 April, 2017. The order sheet indicates that when the matter was taken up on 5 April, 2017, one Shri Ramanand appeared for the Applicant and sought adjournment. Thereafter, on 12 May, 2017 Shri A. S. Hasija, learned Counsel appeared for the Applicant and sought adjournment. The order sheet further indicates that on various dates different Counsel appeared for the Applicant. On 22 August, 2017 Ms. Shrey Ganju, learned Counsel appeared and on 27 September, 2017 Shri Nilotpal Shyam, learned Counsel had appeared on behalf of the Applicant. The order sheet pertaining to the year 2017 indicates that the hearing of the Appeal was adjourned on as many as eight occasions on requests made by the learned Counsel for the Applicant. On 25 January, 2018 Shri Ajay Kumar, learned Counsel appearing on behalf of the Applicant made a request that the matter may be adjourned to enable him to file a vakalatnama. On his request the matter was again adjourned on 19 February, 2018 to 15 March, 2018. On 15 May, 2018, no Counsel appeared and the Bench, by way of last chance, adjourned the matter to 20 June, 2018. On 20 June, 2018, the matter was again adjourned as last chance after imposing a cost of Rs.5,000/- on the Applicant. On 05 July, 2018, the matter was adjourned to 26 July, 2018.

5. The Cross Appeal was filed by the Applicant on 20 July, 2018 with an application for condoning the delay in filing the Cross Appeal.

6. It needs to be pointed out that Cross Objection have to be filed within 45 days of the receipt of the notice of the Appeal as provided for under Section 86(4) of the Finance Act, 1994. However, sub section (5) of Section 86 provides that the Appellate Tribunal may admit an appeal or permit the filing of a memorandum of cross- objection after the expiry of the period referred to in sub-section (3) or sub-section (4), if it is satisfied that there was sufficient cause for not presenting it within that period.

7. The Application that was filed by the Applicant for condoning the delay of 468 days in filing the cross-objection against the order dated 27 September, 2013 passed by the Commissioner contains twelve paragraphs and they reproduced below:-

1. That Applicant has filed the accompanying application challenging the Order in Original No. 135-136/GB/2013 dated 27.09.2013 passed by the Commissioner of Service Tax, audit-II, Delhi. Contents of the same are not being repeated herein for the sake of brevity. Appellant seeks to refer and rely upon the same for the purpose of this application.

2. That Applicant Company was in a bad financial health from 2013 onward which compelled it to shed many employees. Since 2013, the company’s accountant also shifted to some other company/office leaving behind the records pertaining to the case in mess. Many of the records and documents could not be found by the Applicant Company which was required for filing of appeal/objection.

3. Order impugned dated 27.09.2013 has adjusted illegally the excess tax paid of Rs. About 3 Crore, thus causing extreme financial hardship to the Company.

4. That Appellant company received notice of this Hon’ble Court issued in ST Appeal No. 50787 of 2014 on 14.02.2017, and approached his counsel for filing of response thereof. However, due to financial crunch, the Applicant was not able to pursue the matter effectively.

6. During March 2017, since the matter could not be pursued effectively, the Applicant Company engaged another Lawyer for contesting the case. That owning to financial crunch resulting mainly from the fund illegally stuck by virtue of the impugned order, Applicant Company could not service its credit facility obtained from the HDFC and as a consequence, its account was declared NPA on 01.05.2017. On 22.02.2018, the credit facility stood withdrawn by the Bank. Presently, the Applicant Company is negotiating a One Time Settlement (OTS) with the Bank and the matter stand so awaiting liquidity inflow.

7. In the meanwhile, since the Lawyers engaged during March 2017 did not pursue the matter effectively, the brief was transferred to the present counsel during the month of February, 2018.

8. That office of the present counsel informed the applicant company that apart from filing of reply, it would be advisable to file a cross-appeal/ Cross-Objection. Accordingly, all the records were requisitioned from the Applicant Company.

9. As stated earlier, office and record of Applicant Company was completely disorganised due to bad financial health and staff crunch, procurement of records pertaining to the years 2004-05 to 2011-12 turned out to be a time taking and cumbersome task. However, with painstaking efforts the applicant could procure some original documents of the case file with the help of which the present Cross-Objection is drafted and is being filed.

10. That in the entire process, a delay of 468 days has ensued in preferring the present Cross-Objection, which is neither intentional nor deliberate.

11. That Department’s appeal is presently pending and it would be in the interest of justice that this application for condonation of delay in filing cross-objection be allowed and Applicant’s cross-objection be taken on record and be heard on merits.

12. That this is a case of unjust enrichment by collection of tax by illegal, arbitrary and unjustifiable order. The order in original reveals manifest error causing unjust enrichment. This is contrary to the mandate of Constitution".
8. It is this application that has come up for consideration.

9. Learned counsel for the Applicant placed the facts stated in the Application and strenuously urged that the delay in filing the Application should be condoned. Learned Counsel stated that the speed post sent by the Registry of the Tribunal on 19 March, 2014 was not received by the Applicant and the delay has been adequately explained after receipt of the speed post that was sent by the Registry of the Tribunal on 8 February, 2017 on 27 February, 2017. Learned Counsel for the Applicant also submitted that the appeal filed by the Department is pending consideration before this Tribunal and so a liberal approach should be adopted for condoning the delay in filing the cross-objection so that the cross-objections are heard on merit. In support of this contention, learned Counsel submitted reliance on the decision of the Jharkhand High Court in Volts Ltd., vs. Deputy Commr., C. Ex. Jamshedpur and the decision of the Supreme Court in V. N. Bharat vs. Delhi Development Authority and another.

10. Shri R. K. Manjhi, learned Authorised Representative of the Department, however, strongly refuted the contentions advanced by the learned Counsel for the Applicant. Learned Representative submitted that the period of limitation in filing the Cross objection should be calculated from the date of receipt of the speed post sent by the Registry of the Tribunal on 19 March, 2014, which delay has not been explained at all and in any case the delay from the receipt of the subsequent communication of the Tribunal on 27 February, 2017 has not been explained sufficiently. Learned Representative, therefore, submitted that the Application should be rejected.

11. The submission advanced by the learned Counsel for the Applicant and the learned representative of the Department have been considered.

12. The facts stated in the Application clearly indicate that notice of the appeal with a copy of the appeal that was filed by the Department on 31 January, 2014 was sent to the Applicant by the Registry of the Tribunal by speed post on 19 March, 2014. There is no specific denial regarding receipt of this notice in any of the paragraphs of the application. All that has been stated in paragraph 4 of the application is that the notice issued in Service Tax Appeal No. 50787 of 2014 was received by the Applicant on 14 February, 2017 and it approached its Counsel for filing a response. It also needs to be stated that pursuant to the order dated 16 July, 2019 passed by the Tribunal, the office has put up a note that the communication dated 19 March, 2014 was sent to the appellant by speed post on 27 March, 2014 bearing No. ED 310025420 IN. In such a situation, in the absence of any specific denial by the Applicant about receipt of the aforesaid speed post on 27 March, 2014, the cross-objections should have been filed within 45 days from the date of receipt of the communication, which can safely be assumed to be within two or three weeks thereafter. There is absolutely no explanation for any delay from April, 2014 to 27 February, 2017, which is the date on which the applicant claims to have received the second notice dated 8 February, 2017. It needs to be noted that the address mentioned in both the notices is same.

13. The case of the Applicant is based mainly on the communication dated 08 February, 2017 that was sent to the Applicant by the Registry of the Tribunal by speed post informing that the appeal filed by the Department would come up for hearing before the Tribunal on 27 February, 2017. According to the Applicant, the said speed post was received by it on 14 February, 2017 and it is this date from which the delay of 468 days in filing the cross-objection has to be calculated after excluding the limitation period of 45 days.

14. Paragraph 2 of the Application mentions about the bad financial health of the Applicant from 2013 and also the fact that the Accountant of the Applicant also joined another company, leaving behind the records in a mess. Paragraph 3 of the application mentions about the order dated 27 September, 2013...
Paragraph 4 mentions that the notice dated 8 February, 2017 sent by the Registry of this Tribunal regarding the hearing of the Appeal on 27 February, 2017 which notice was received on 14 February, 2017. It further mentions that thereafter, the Applicant approached a Counsel for filing a response. However, due to financial crunch the Applicant was not able to pursue the matter effectively. Paragraph 5 states that during March, 2017, the matter could not be pursued effectively so the Applicant engaged another lawyer for contesting the case. Paragraph 6 states that owing to financial crunch, the Applicant company was declared a Non Performing Asset on 1 May, 2017 and thereafter, the Applicant negotiated with a Bank for a one-time settlement. Paragraph 7 mentions that since the lawyers engaged by the Applicant during March, 2017 did not pursue the matter effectively, the brief was transferred to a new Counsel in February, 2018. Paragraph 8 states that office of the present counsel informed the Applicant that apart from filing a reply, it was advisable to file cross-objection and so all the records were requisitioned from the Applicant. Paragraph 9 states that since the records of the company were disorganized due to bad financial crunch and lack of adequate staff, it took time to trace them out and after they were traced out, the cross-objection was drafted for being filing. Paragraph 10 of the Application states the delay was neither intentional nor deliberate. Paragraph 11 mentions that the Appeal filed by the Department was pending and so it would be in the interest of justice that the delay is condoned and the Cross-objections are heard on merits.

15. The delay sought to be explained by the Applicant is with regard to the second notice dated 08 February, 2017 that was sent by the Tribunal by speed post informing that the appeal filed by the Department would be listed before the Tribunal on 27 February, 2017. This notice dated 8 February, 2017 was received by the Applicant on 14 February, 2017. The period of 45 days prescribed for filing the Cross-objection expired on 31 March, 2017. The cross-objection contemplated under Section 86(4) of the Act were required to be filed within 45 days. The order sheet reveals that the matter was regularly listed before the Tribunal on as many as nine occasions in 2017 and except for the order dated 22 August, 2017 which mentions that the matter was being adjourned to 27 September, 2017 (without indicating as to on whose behalf adjournment was granted), all the orders specifically mention that the matter was being adjourned on requests made on behalf of the Applicant by its Counsel. The Applicant was represented by many Counsel, as can be seen from the order sheet. The names of the Counsel are also mentioned. The delay condonation application mentions that the Counsel engaged by the Applicant in 2017 did not pursue the matter effectively. The Applicant had obtained service tax registration under “construction service” and had undertaken many construction activity. It was also represented by many Counsel. It is, therefore, not possible to accept the contention of the learned Counsel for the applicant that as the Counsel did not pursue the matter effectively, cross-objection were not filed and it was only when a new Counsel was engaged in 2018, and advice was given to file cross-objections, that cross-objections were filed on 20 July, 2018 with a delay of 468 days. This inordinate delay of 468 days has not been explained to the satisfaction of the Tribunal. It is no doubt true that each day’s delay has not to be explained, but at the same time an Applicant is required to satisfy the Tribunal that there was sufficient cause for not presenting the cross-objection within the stipulated period of 45 days. In the present case, we are more than satisfied that the Applicant has miserably failed to satisfy that there was sufficient cause in not filing the cross-objections within the stipulated period.

16. The decision of the Supreme Court in V. N. Bharat that has been relied upon by the learned Counsel for the Applicant to submit that it was for the Department, when there was a denial about the receipt of the letter, to substantiate by documentary evidence that the speed post sent had actually been served. This decision will not come to the aid of the Applicant, as in the present case, there is no averment in the delay condonation application that the notice dated 19 March, 2014 that was sent by speed post was not served on the Applicant. In any view of the matter even the delay from the receipt of the second notice on 27 February, 2017 has not been sufficiently explained.

17. Voltas, on which reliance has also been placed by learned Counsel for the Applicant, was a case where the party had filed two appeals with delay condonation application. The Department had also filed an appeal in which cross-objection was filed by the party. It is for this reason that the High Court observed that since the matter was engaging the attention of the Tribunal in the cross-objection filed by the party, it would be appropriate to condone the delay in filing the appeal. This decision, therefore, does not support the Applicant.

18. Even otherwise, the delay in filing the cross-objection is inordinate and under Section 86(5) of the Act, the Appellate Tribunal can permit the filing of the cross-objection even after the expiry of 45 days, if it is satisfied that there was sufficient cause for not presenting them within that period. It has been found as a fact that the Applicant has been unable to satisfy the Tribunal that it was prevented by sufficient cause from preferring the Appeal within the stipulated period.

19. There is no explanation for the delay from April, 2014 and the delay from 27 February, 2017 has also not been satisfactorily explained.

20. Thus, for all the reasons stated above, it is not possible to condone the delay in filing the cross-objection. The delay condonation Application is, accordingly, rejected. As the Application for condonation of delay has been rejected, the cross-objection also stand rejected.

21. The Appeal may be listed for final hearing on 12 September, 2019. (Dictated and pronounced in open Court).

(Justice Dilip Gupta)
President
The Appellant had filed this Appeal before the Tribunal on 11 November, 2011 to assail the order dated 11 August, 2011 passed by the Commissioner (Adjudication). The records indicate that the hearing of the Appeal was adjourned on various dates because of requests made by learned Counsel appearing for the Appellant. The records also indicate that when the Appeal came up for hearing on 19 April, 2018, no one appeared on behalf of the Appellant even in the revised list nor any Application seeking adjournment was filed. The Bench, therefore, observed that the Appellant was no longer interested in pursuing the matter and, therefore, dismissed the Appeal in default.

2. The Appellant filed an Application dated 04 June, 2018 for recall of the order dated 19 April, 2018. This Application came up for hearing before the Tribunal on 22 June, 2018. On that date also, no one appeared to press the Application. It was, therefore, rejected.

3. The Appellant thereafter filed another Application on 23 December, 2019 with a prayer to recall the order dated 22 June, 2018 and restore the Appeal. It is this Application dated 23 December, 2019 that has come up for hearing today.

4. The Application contains six paragraphs and they are reproduced below:

“1. This is an application for restoration of appeal, against Final Order No 51581/2018 dated 19.04.2018, whereby the Hon’ble Tribunal dismissed the appeal of the Applicant for default. The aforesaid appeal was filed by the Applicant against common Order-in-Original No. 3-SAKM/CST(Adj.)/2011 dated 11.08.2011, which confirmed total service tax demand amounting to Rs. 4,58,41,474/- along with interest and penalty, in relation to disputed "commercial training or coaching service" and "intellectual property service" alleged to have been provided by the Applicant. However, while dismissing the appeal, the Hon’ble Tribunal was pleased to allow restoration of the appeal, on an application being filed and subject to reasonable cause being shown by the Application for non-appearance. The copy of Final Order dated 19.04.2018 is enclosed herewith As Annex - 1.

2. The events leading to the dismissal of the appeal was due to the fact that the Applicant has changed its Counsel, aday before the scheduled date of hearing. Since the new Counsel was not properly represented on account of non-furnishing of NOC from the previous Counsel, the appeal was dismissed in default.

3. Subsequently, the Applicant filed application for restoration of appeal dated 04.06.2018, assigning the aforesaid reasons. Copy of application for restoration of appeal is enclosed herewith as Annex – 2.

4. In the wake of introduction of Sabka Vishwas (Legacy Dispute Resolution) Scheme, 2019, (“SVLDR Scheme”), the Applicant inquired from the Counsel about the status of the restoration application, in light of exploring the possibility of availing amnesty under the SVLDR Scheme. The Counsel for the Applicant was under the impression that since it did not receive any communication regarding the date of hearing with respect to the restoration application from CESTAT Registry, the said application was still pending till date. Thereafter, upon learning that CESTAT Registry had discontinued the practice of issuing physical communication of hearing notices and that all relevant details were available on CESTAT website, it checked the said website for the status of the application. Subsequently, to its surprise, on 19.12.2019, the Counsel learnt that the application for restoration of appeal was dismissed for non-appearance vide Misc. Order No. 50372/2018 dated 22.06.2018. A copy of Misc. Order dated 22.06.2018 is enclosed herewith as Annex-3.

5. By way of the present application, the Applicant seeks restoration of the appeal, which was dismissed due to ignorance of the Counsel and on account of no fault on the part of the Applicant. The Applicant has all along been serious in pursuing the appeal, however, has been prevented for reasons aforesaid.

6. In view of the above reasons, the Applicant humbly prays before the Hon’ble Bench to recall its Misc. Order dated 22.06.2018 and restore its appeal.”

5. It would also be useful to reproduce the paragraphs of the earlier recall Application that was filed on 04 June, 2018 and the same are as follows:

“1. That the aforesaid Appeal was lastly listed on 19th April 2018 before the Hon’ble Court. On that date this Hon’ble Court for the reasons specified in the court proceedings dismissed the Appeal in default. Copy of the Hon’ble Court’s order dated 19th April 2018 (received by us through Counsel at his office on 5th May 2018) is annexed hereto and marked as Annexure A-1.

2. Through this application, the applicant herein seeks restoration of the Appeal. The facts relevant for this Hon’ble Forum to consider restoration are mentioned in the following paragraphs.

3. That the Appellant in this matter decided to change counsel to represent it before this Hon’ble Forum a day before the scheduled date of hearing i.e. 19th April 2018 and issued telephonic instructions to the present counsel to appear in Court and seek an adjournment for necessary preparation.

4. An associate of the present counsel Mr. Shivnath Mahanta, Advocate appeared before this Hon’ble Court accordingly on the 19th April 2018; and apprised this fact to the Hon’ble Court, which however instructed such counsel to produce letter of authority or written instructions from the Appellant Client, which at that point of time Mr. Mahanta didn't have with him. In such circumstances the Counsel contacted with the Appellant Client over phone and request to organize email instructions at the least. Immediately the Clint appellant acted upon such request and sent an email at about 1.53pm on the same day. Relevant portion of the said email reads as follows:

"The matter under reference is listed for hearing today before Hon'ble CESTAT. We are the appellant Company in the said matter; till date we have been availing professional services of Mr. Ravinder Narain & Co. Advocates to represent us before the Hon'ble Court.

We have decided to shift these files to your office for you to handle; and are in the process of collating necessary documents. Soon we will be executing Vakalatnama in your favour.

Please place these facts on Court record and plead for some time for us to organize."

Copy of the Appellant Representative’s such email is annexed hereto and marked as Annexure A-2.

5. Immediate on receipt of the aforesaid email (Annexure A-2) the present counsel took print of the same and reached court around 2.30pm; however, by that time Hon’ble Members on the Bench concluded all the matters in the cause list and had risen for the day.

6. In the aforesaid circumstances the present counsel made a request to the personal staff of the Hon’ble President and met him in his Chamber around 3.45pm. Hon’ble President was kind enough to hear the counsel and advise him to follow the order passed by then in the matter.

7. Thereafter, the present Counsel had to go to Odisha/ his hometown Nabarangpur for more than 15 days to attend to certain unavoidable family needs. This application is being moved immediate after his return."

6. Shri Vishal Kumar, learned Counsel appearing for the Applicant, has placed the Application dated 23 December, 2019 and made the following submissions:

(i) One day before the Appeal was to come up for final hearing on 19 May, 2018, the Appellant had changed the Counsel and since the second Counsel, who had been engaged, did not have proper instructions as he did not have the Vakalatnama or No Objection Certificate from the earlier Counsel, he did not appear. Learned Counsel, however, submitted that the second Counsel was seeking instructions from the Appellant, but in the meantime, the Appeal came up for hearing and it was dismissed;

(ii) By the time the second Counsel could receive the instructions, the order had already been passed;

(iii) The Application for Restoration could not be immediately filed after 19 May, 2018 as the second Counsel had to leave for his home town for more than 15 days. The Application was thereafter immediately filed when he returned;

(iv) The second Counsel could not appear before the Tribunal on 22 June, 2018 when the said Application was to be heard as neither the Applicant nor the second Counsel had any knowledge about the said date. It has been submitted that the second Counsel for the Applicant was under an impression that since he did not receive any communication regarding the date of hearing of the first Restoration Application from the Registry of the Tribunal, the Application was still pending;

(v) In fact, it is only when the Sabka Vishwas (Legacy Dispute Resolution) Scheme, 2019 was introduced, that the Applicant inquired from the second Counsel about the status of the Restoration Application so that the possibility of availing the scheme could be explored. The second Counsel checked the CESTAT website for the status of the Application. He was surprised to learn that the first Application for restoration of the Appeal was dismissed for non-appearance on 22 June, 2018. It has been submitted that only when the Applicant contacted the Counsel for finding out the fate of the Application that the Counsel learnt that the Registry of the Tribunal had discontinued the practice of issuing communication of hearing notices since all the relevant details were available on the website of the Tribunal; and

(vi) The second Restoration Application was, accordingly filed immediately on 23 December, 2019. In such circumstances, there is no fault of the Appellant which had otherwise been pursuing the Appeal and had nothing to gain by getting the Appeal dismissed in default.

7. Learned Authorised Representative of the Department has opposed the said Application and submitted that:

(i) Neither was there good reason for the learned Counsel for the Applicant not appear on 19 April, 2018 nor was there any good reason not to appear on 22 June, 2018;

(ii) The Registry of the Tribunal had sent a communication dated 06 June, 2018 by Registered Post with acknowledgement due to the Appellant to inform that the Restoration Application filed by the Appellant would be taken up for final hearing on 22 June, 2018. A copy of this letter was also endorsed to the learned Counsel for the Appellant and the Department;

(iii) After the Restoration Application was dismissed for non-appearance of the learned Counsel on 22 June, 2018, Registry of the Tribunal had sent a communication dated 03 July, 2018 to the Appellant as also its learned Counsel and Department by registered post with acknowledgement due which letter was also received by the Department. It is, therefore, his submission that the contention of the Applicant that the Registry of the Tribunal did not inform the Applicant about the hearing of the Application on 22 June, 2018 is incorrect.

(iv) In any view of the matter, not only the subsequent Application filed for recall of the order dated 22 June, 2018 is not maintainable in view of the decision of Parwati Automotives Pvt. Ltd. vs Commissioner of Central Excise, Kanpur1 but it has also been filed with a delay of more than 500 days without filing any Application for Condonation of Delay since the limitation for filing a Restoration Application is three months as has been observed by the High Courts that a Restoration Application has to be filed within the limitation provided for filing an Appeal. In support of his contention, learned Authorised Representative has placed reliance upon a judgment of the Bombay High Court in Kirtikumar J. Shah vs Union of India2 as also a decision of the Division Bench of the Tribunal in Kirtikumar J. Shah vs Commissioner of Central Excise, Nagpur3.

(v) The contention of the Applicant that it had changed the Counsel one day prior to the hearing of the Appeal on 19 April, 2018 is not correct in view of the contents of the email sent by the Applicant to its Counsel on 19 April, 2018 at 1.43 pm;

(vi) The Applicant may not have appeared on 19 April, 2028 when the Appeal was listed for final hearing for the reason that the Tribunal had already on 20 March, 2018 decided a controversy raised by IGPL; and

(vii) It is not that the Applicant cannot avail of the benefit of the Scheme even if the Appeal was dismissed on 19 April, 2018. The Applicant can still avail of the benefit but he would have to pay 10% more amount.

8. The contentions advanced by the learned Counsel for the Applicant as also the learned Authorised Representative of the Department have been considered.
9. As noticed above, the Appeal was filed on 11 November, 2011 to assail the order dated 11 August, 2011 passed by the Commissioner (Adjudication) confirming the demand of service tax. The order sheet indicates that from February, 2017, the Appeal was being regularly adjourned because of requests made by the learned Counsel for the Appellant seeking adjournment. When the matter came up before the Tribunal on 19 April, 2018, no one appeared on behalf of the Appellant to press the Appeal nor any adjournment application was available on the record. The appeal was, accordingly, dismissed for default.

10. The Appellant thereafter filed an Application for recall of the order dated 19 April, 2018 on 04 June, 2018. The case set out by the Applicant in this Restoration Application is that, on 18 April, 2018 the Appellant had changed the earlier Counsel and had instructed the second Counsel to appear in the Court and seek adjournment for preparation. An associate of the second Counsel did appear before the Court on 19 April, 2018, but the Court instructed the Counsel to produce a letter of authority or written instructions from the Appellant and it is in such circumstances that the Counsel left the Court and contacted the Appellant over phone. An email was then sent by the Appellant to the Counsel at 1.53 pm on the same day. However, by that time the order had already been passed. It has also been stated in the Application that the second Counsel had to go to his home town for more than 15 days for some work and as soon as he returned, the Application for recalling the order dated 19 April, 2018 was prepared and verified on 28 May, 2018 and subsequently filed before the Tribunal on 04 June, 2018. The Vakalatnama of the second Counsel is also dated 28 May, 2018.

11. The facts, which have been stated in the Application regarding the appearance of the associate of the Counsel on 19 April, 2018 and the instructions of the Court to obtain a Vakalatnama or a communication from the client, are not contained in the order dated 19 April, 2018. The Order mentions that even after the list had been revised, no one had appeared for the Appellant nor there was any adjournment application available on record in spite of notice having been served. It would also be appropriate to examine the email sent by the Appellant to its Counsel which has been reproduced in paragraph 4 of the first Application. We have read this email more than once, but are unable to gather anything from this that may indicate that the second Counsel had been engaged on 18 April, 2018. In fact, it clearly transpires from the email that “till date” i.e 19 April, 2018, the first Counsel was representing them. It further states that the Appellant has decided to shift these files to the office of the second Counsel for him to handle and they were in the process of collating necessary documents and that soon the Appellant will execute a Vakalatnama in favour of the second Counsel. Thus, the facts mentioned in the Application are not borne out from the order passed by the Tribunal on 19 April, 2018 nor they are borne out from the email sent by the Appellant to the second Counsel. It is, therefore, not possible to accept the contention of the Applicant that a new Counsel had been engaged on 18 April, 2018.

12. Thus, the explanation offered by the Appellant for non-appearance of the learned Counsel on 19 April, 2018 cannot be accepted.

13. What is also important to notice is that even after having acquired knowledge on 19 April, 2018 that the Appeal had been dismissed in default, the Application for Restoration was filed only on 04 June, 2018.

14. It also needs to be noted that the notice was sent to the Appellant by Registered Post with acknowledgement due on 06 June, 2018 informing the Appellant that the Restoration Application would be listed for final hearing on 22 June, 2018 before the Tribunal. A copy of this notice was also sent to the learned Counsel for the Appellant and the Authorized Representative of the Department. The Restoration Application does not specifically mention about this notice dated 06 June, 2018. In fact, it states that the Counsel for the Applicant was under an impression that since it did not receive any communication regarding the date of hearing of the Restoration Application from CESTAT Registry, the said Application was still pending till date. In fact, the Application further mentions that “CESTAT Registry had discontinued the practice of issuing physical communication of hearing notices and that all relevant details were available on CESTAT Website.” Learned Counsel, therefore, checked the website for the status of the Application and then found that the Restoration Application had been rejected on 22 June, 2018 as no one had appeared to press it.

15. The aforesaid facts are also incorrect. As stated above, the Registry of the Tribunal had sent a notice dated 06 June, 2018 to the Appellant by registered post with acknowledgement due that Restoration Application would be listed before the Tribunal on 22 June, 2018. There is no averment in the Application that this letter sent by registered post with acknowledgement due was not received by the Appellant. On the other hand, it has been stated that the practice of sending notices had been discontinued by the Tribunal since the details were available on the Website. If that be so, then there is no reason as to why learned Counsel did not visit the website of the Tribunal to find out the details. The factual position is that, sending of notices was discontinued after October, 2018 and not before that and that is why the Registry of the Tribunal had sent a communication dated 06 June, 2018 to the Appellant to inform that the Restoration Application would be listed before the Tribunal on 22 June, 2018. In such circumstances, the explanation offered by the Appellant for non-appearance of the Counsel on 22 June, 2018 cannot also be accepted.

16. What further needs to be noticed is that the second Restoration Application was filed on 23 December, 2019 for recall of the order dated 22 June, 2018. This Application is not accompanied by any Application seeking Condonation of Delay in filing the Restoration Application. Though no time limit has been specifically prescribed for filing a Restoration Application, but the Mumbai High Court in Kirtikumar J. Shah observed that the period of three months for filing the Appeal should be considered as the limitation for filing a Restoration Application. Though it is correct that the Appellant has not filed any Application seeking condonation of delay, but the explanation for the delay has been offered in the Application and, therefore, it will not be proper to reject the Application for this reason. However, the facts stated in the Application explaining the delay would have to be examined to find out whether the explanation offered for the delay of 500 days is satisfactory or not.

17. The records indicate that the order dated 22 June, 2018 was sent to the Appellant by registered post with acknowledgement due on 03 July, 2018. A copy of the letter was sent to the Authorized Representative of the Department who has also stated that he received the copy of the order/letter. There is no averment in the Application that this letter sent to the Appellant by registered post was not received by the Appellant. This apart, and as has also been stated in the Application, orders/final orders were uploaded on the website of the Tribunal. This fact has been admitted by the learned Counsel for the Appellant. Such being the position, there is no reason as to why no attempt was made either by the Appellant or the learned Counsel for the Appellant to visit the website of the Tribunal to find out the order passed on the second restoration application. There is no satisfactory explanation that has been offered to explain this enormous delay of 500 days to the satisfaction of the Tribunal.

18. It will also be appropriate to examine the contention of learned Authorized Representative of the Department that the second Restoration Application is not maintainable in view of the decision of this Tribunal in Parwati Automotives Pvt. Ltd. It is seen that in the said case the first Restoration Application was disposed of by a speaking order and the second Application was filed on a different ground. It is for this reason that the Tribunal observed that the proper remedy was to have filed an Application for Rectification of the Mistake in case there was any error apparent on the record. In the present case, the first Restoration Application was dismissed in default and, therefore, the observations made by the Tribunal in Parwati Automotives Pvt. Ltd. would not help the Department. The second Restoration Application has been filed for recall of the order dated 22 June, 2018 and, therefore, would be maintainable as it is not for recall of the order dated 19 April, 2018.
19. The facts stated above leave no manner of doubt that the Appellant had adopted a very callous approach and had not pursued the Appeal or the Restoration Application with any sense of responsibility.

20. The application, therefore, deserves to be rejected and is, accordingly, rejected.

Date of Hearing/ Decision: 20.05.2019
FINAL ORDER No.: 50762/2019

JUSTICE DILIP GUPTA

1. This appeal has been filed to assail the order dated 6 August 2014 that confirms the demand of service tax amounting to Rs. 3,55,03,646/- with interest and penalty under section 76 and 77 of the Finance Act 1994¹. The said order was passed by Commissioner (Adjudication).

1. The Act.
2. The records indicate that show cause notice dated 17 October 2008 was issued to the appellant mentioning therein:

"On scrutiny of ST-3 return for the period April 2007 to September 2007, it has been noticed that the total taxable value in this return is mentioned as Rs.2,51,19,50,469/-.

The service tax liability (@ of 12.24% for the month of April 2007 and @ of 12.36% payable for May 2007 to September 2007) on this value comes to Rs.30,99,77,593/-.

But the total service tax paid by the assessee is only Rs.27,73,65,985 (through cash Rs.26,54,50,182/- + through CENVAT Rs.1,19,15,803/- = Rs.27,73,65,985/-).

Therefore, the assessee has short paid service tax amounting to Rs.3,26,11,608/-.

In this regard the assessee was asked vide letter C. No.DL-1/ST/R- X/ST-3/RETURN/08 dated 05.09.2008 by fax and by post. The assessee was asked to deposit the short payment amounting to Rs.3,26,11,608/- for the period April 2007 to September 2007 with interest till the date of payment within a week’s time on receipt of this letter.

In response to the above referred letter, the assessee vide letter no. DCS-41/45/2007-08/2563 dated 29.09.2008, (received on 01.10.2008) has submitted the revised service tax return for the period April 2007 to September 2007. On scrutiny of the revised ST-3 return for the period April 2007 to September 2007, it has been found that the value of taxable service is Rs. 2,51,19,50,469/- and the service tax liability on this value works out to Rs. 30,99,77,593/- but the assessee has paid total service tax Rs.27,44,73,947/- (through Cash Rs.26,54,50,182/- + through CENVAT Rs.90,23,765/-). Hence, the assessee has short paid / not paid service tax amounting to Rs.3,55,03,646/. Therefore, it appears that the service tax amounting to Rs.3,55,03,646/- short paid / not paid by the assessee is recoverable from them under Section 73 of the Finance Act, 1994. It also appears that the interest as applicable on this amount till the date of payment is recoverable from them under section 75 of the said Finance Act. The assessee is also liable for panel action under section 76 and 77 of the said Finance Act.

Now, therefore, the assessee M/s Prasar Bharti Broadcasting Corporation of India, Doordarshan Commercial Service, Doordarshan Bhawan, Copernicus Marg, Mandi House, New Delhi-110001 is hereby called upon to show cause to the Commissioner of Service Tax, 17-B, IAEA House, I P Estate, New Delhi within 30 days of the receipt of this notice as to why:

i. The value of taxable services rendered by the assessee on which tax is required to be paid should not be assessed as Rs. 30,99,77,593/- in terms of the provisions of Section 72 of the Finance Act, 1994 as amended.

ii. Short Payment of Service Tax amounting to Rs. 3,55,03,646/- inclusive of Educ cess should not be demanded and recovered from them under proviso of Section 73(i) of the Finance Act, 1994.

iii. Interest on the due amount should not be charged and recovered under section 75 of the Finance Act, 1994.

iv. Penalty under Section 76 and 77 of the act ibid should not be imposed for various omissions and commissions in violation of the Finance Act, 1994 and Service Tax Rules, 1994.

v. Penalty under section 77 and 77 of the act ibid should not be imposed for various omissions and commissions in violation of the Finance Act, 1994 and Service Tax Rules, 1994 as mentioned above.”

3. Thereafter another show cause notice dated 18 May 2009 was issued to the appellant for the period from the Financial Year 2003-04 to 2007-08. It was inter alia stated: “Whereas, PBCL have declared a collective taxable value of Rs.34,45,22,63,554/- in the Service Tax Return (ST-3) for the relevant Financial Years 2003-04 to 2007-08 and discharged their tax liability. The said ST-3 are relied upon and enclosed herewith and marked as RUD-III. However, PBCL received a total of gross receipts of Rs. 42,77,10,86,995/- being the taxable value under Section 67 read with Rules, thereunder and on which service tax liability has to be discharged. Therefore, PBCL Ltd. short paid service tax on the taxable value of Rs.8,31,88,23,441/- at the applicable rates, amounting to Rs.87,10,47,545/- (Rupees Eight Seven Crores Ten Lakhs, Forty Seven Thousand Five Hundred and Forty Five only). For the sake of brevity, the reconciliation of Income shown in receipts and payment account of Balance Sheets for the Financial years 2003-04 to 2007-08 (RUD-II), the entries and service tax payment as per ST-3 Returns (RUD-III), head wise for services discussed at para 4 to 4.3, is tabulated below:
Whereas the above reconciliation receipt of incomes being taxable value as per Section 67 of the Act and Rules collectively amounting to Rs.42,77,10,86,995/- for rendering taxable service under Section 65(15), Section 65(90a) and having paid service tax on Rs.33,45,22,63,554/-, PBCL was liable to pay service tax amounting to Rs.87,10,47,545/- on balance taxable value of Rs.8,31,88,23,441/- on which service tax was evaded and short-paid, along with interest.

Whereas PBCL was informed of the foregoing vide D.O. Letter No. I-26(494)/ST/APR/GRAII/234/2008 letter dated 22.04.2008 (RUD-IV), requesting them to co-operate with the service tax check compliance exercise. Agreeing, PBCL paid an initial sum of Rs.10,00,00,000/- (Rupees Ten Crores) as service tax towards their total liability of Rs.87,10,47,545/- through e-payment on 8.5.2009 (RUD-V) as discussed above.”

4. The aforesaid second show cause notice was adjudicated by order dated 5 May 2011 by the Commissioner, Service Tax Commissionerate, New Delhi. The Service Tax demand of Rs.85,55,74,397/- was confirmed with interest and penalty.

5. An appeal was filed against the aforesaid order dated 5 May 2011 which was disposed off by the Tribunal on 5 March 2018. The order is reproduced below:

“2. Brief facts of the case are that the appellant is a Corporation, established under the Prasar Bharati Act, 1990. During the disputed period, the appellant had provided the taxable services falling under the category of “Broadcasting Service”, “Advertising Space or Time Service and Consulting Engineer Service”, as defined under the Finance Act, 1994. While scrutinizing the records of the appellant, it was observed by the Audit Wing of the Service Tax Department that the appellant did not pay the Service Tax for the above taxable services provided by it. The difference in the duty liability was discharged by the appellant subsequently. However, in the adjudication order, the Department has confirmed the entire Service Tax liability along with interest and also imposed penalty on the appellant.

3. The ld. Advocate appearing for the appellant fairly concedes that the appellant is liable to pay Service Tax for the taxable services provided by it. However, he submitted that the sum-tax benefit has not been extended by the original authority. With regard to imposition of penalties, the ld. Advocate submits that the appellant is a statutory body and malafides cannot be attributed for imposition of the penalty. Further, he also pleads for the benefit of Section 80 of the Act, for non-imposition of penalty under Section 77 & 78 of the Act.

4. On the other hand, the ld. DR appearing for the Revenue reiterates the findings recorded in the impugned order. Heard both sides and perused the case records.

5. Since the appellant concedes that it had already deposited the Service Tax along with interest for providing the taxable services, we are not considering the merits of the case as to whether service tax is payable by the appellant or not. However, we find that the Cum-Tax benefit has not been extended to the appellant in this case, to which it is legally entitled to. Therefore, we are of the view that the matter should go back to the original authority for a limited purpose of re-quantification of the Service tax liability. Therefore, we remand the matter to the original authority for re-quantification of the actual Service Tax liability, which is payable by the appellant.

6. Since there is reasonable cause for non-payment of Service Tax within the stipulated time frame, we are of the view that the provisions of Section 80 of the Act can be invoked for non-imposition of penalties under Sections 77 and 78 of the Act. Therefore, we set aside the penalty imposed in the impugned order under Section 77 and 78."

6. The Appellant also filed a reply to the Show Cause Notice dated 17 October 2018 that led to the passing of the order dated 6 August 2014 that has been assailed in this appeal. The relevant portion of the reply is reproduced below:

“Reference is invited to your letter No. C No. IV[16]Hqrs/Adj/PB/390/ST/08/55025 dated 17.10.2008 making Prasar Bharati accountable for payment of „Short paid service tax” for a fractional period of six months only from April to September 2007 during the FY 2007-08 and fixing the date of hearing on 19.12.2013. A copy of the said SCN has been collected personally by the Doordarshan wing of Prasar Bharati on 1012.2013.

In this context, your kind attention is drawn to another „Show Cause Notice” No. C No. 1-26(494)ST/APR/Gr.III/107/2008 dated 18.05.2009 wherein Prasar Bharati was asked to deposit Rs.87.10 crore as „Short paid Service Tax” for the period of pat 5 years from 2003-04 to 2007-08. In compliance thereof, a lump sum amount of Rs. 10 crore was deposited forthwith and subsequently a reply to the Notice was sent to the Service Tax Deptt. in details along with calculations of service tax liability computed by this Secretariat. A personal hearing was also held in the chamber of the Commissioner of Service Tax (Shri R.D. Negi) on 1.11.2010. A representation of PB for allowing a special dispensation of CENVAT credit for the relevant years on pro-rata basis (as suggested bythe Commissioner during the hearing was sent to M/o. I & B on Finance. When this was under process in the MIB, the Learned Commissioner unilaterally passed the order-in-original No. 16/RDN?2011 dated 5.5.2011 (received on 11.5.2011).

As a law abiding entity, Prasar Bharti had deposited a total sum of Rs.160.28 crore (which included penalty of 25% and interest) in June 2011 itself i.e. within 30 days. The position was informed to the CST forwarding therewith a copy of Challan (copy enclosed for ready reference). Prasar Bharti however filed an Appeal before CESTAT in August 2011 praying for refund of excess payment made by PB.

Under the above circumstances, issuance of SCN and calling for a separate hearing would be sub judice to the above appeal.

You are therefore, requested to kindly reconsider in proceeding further with proposed hearing and take appropriate action as deem fit and proper.”

7. Learned counsel for the appellant has submitted that the second show cause notice dated 18 May 2009 which resulted in the order dated 5 May 2011 was examined by the Tribunal in Service Tax Appeal no. 1228/2011 that was decided on 5 March 2018. The Tribunal found that cum-tax benefit had not been granted to the appellant to which it was legally entitled to and so the matter was remanded to the Adjudicating Authority for a limited purpose of quantification of the service tax liability. It is, therefore, his submission that since the period involved in the show cause notice dated 17 October 2008 from April 2007 to September 2007 is included in the second show cause notice dated 18 May 2009, the order dated 6 August 2011 passed by the
8. Shri Vivek Pandey, learned authorised representative for the Department has, however, submitted that the issue involved in the first show cause notice is entirely different from the second show cause notice and, therefore, it is not open to the appellant to contend that the order should be set aside for this reason.

9. We have considered the submissions advanced by the learned counsel for the appellant and the learned Authorised Representative for the Department.

10. In order to appreciate the submissions, it would be appropriate at this stage to examine the chart that is contained in the second show cause notice dated 18 May 2009. The said chart is for the Financial Years 2003-04 to 2007-08. It gives the total income receipt for each of the Financial Years and the taxable value as per ST-3 returns for each of the Financial Years. It then gives the difference in the taxable values for each of the Financial Years and the short paid service tax in each Financial Year.

11. It is no doubt true that the first show cause notice dated 17 October 2008 that was issued to the appellant is for a part of the Financial Year 2007-08, namely from April 2007 to September 2007 which period is included in the second show cause notice dated 18 May 2009, but what needs to be pointed out is that the first show cause notice is based on the total income shown by the appellant in the ST-3 return for the said period. The show cause notice alleges that even on the taxable value shown in the ST-3 return, the appellant short paid service tax. It does not challenge the correctness of the taxable value shown in the ST-3 return.

12. The second show cause notice, on the other hand, challenges the taxable value indicated by the appellant in the ST-3 return for the Financial Year 2003-04 to Financial year 2007-08. It is stated that lesser taxable value has been shown. There is, therefore, no overlapping of issues in the two show cause notices.

13. The appellant has unnecessarily raised this submission. What the appellant has missed out is that the allegations made in the two show cause notices are entirely different. The first show cause notice is for the tax short paid on the taxable value shown by the appellant in the ST-3 returns. The second show cause notice requires the appellant to deposit the short paid service tax as the taxable value shown in the ST-3 return for the five financial years including 2007-08 was lesser than the income receipts as per the balance sheet.

14. It is, therefore, not possible to accept the contention of learned counsel for the appellant.

15. In the end, learned counsel for the appellant has contended that the Commissioner (Adjudication) was not justified in imposing penalties under sections 76 and 77 of the Act for the reason that penalty was set aside in the earlier proceedings before the Tribunal in regard to the second show cause notice.

16. Only penalties penalty under section 77 and 78 of the Act were set aside in view of the provisions of Section 80 of the Act. We therefore, set aside, only the penalty imposed under section 77 of the Act. The impugned order, to this extent, is set aside. The appeal is, accordingly, allowed only to the extent indicated above. The remaining portion of the impugned order is upheld.

Relevant facts are as follows that the appellant filed refund of service tax for the respective amount and the respective period in terms of Notification No. 17/2011-ST as amended by Notification No. 40/2012-ST. The said refunds were rejected by both the adjudicating authorities for being filed beyond the time limit of one year from the end of month in which actual payment of service tax was made by the SEZ unit to the registered service provider without any reason for condonation of delay in filing the claim. Being aggrieved, the appellant is before this Tribunal.

2. I have heard Mr. Suresh Malik and Mr. Yogender Singh, Ld. CAs on behalf of the appellant and Mr. K. Poddar, Ld. DR on behalf of the Department.

3. It is submitted that Notification 40 of 2012 is extending a substantive benefit in favour of the appellant. The same cannot be disallowed merely on the procedural lapse. Decision of Hon’ble Supreme Court in the case of N. Balakrishnan Vs. M. Krishnamurthy reported in 2008 (228) E.L.T. 162 (S.C.) was relied upon to emphasise that though everyday delay has some lapse on part of the litigant concerned however that alone is not enough to turn down his plea and to shut the door against him. If the explanation does not smack of malafides or it is put forward as part of a dilatory strategy, the Court must show utmost consideration to the litigant except when there is a reasonable ground to hold that delay was occasioned by the litigant deliberately to gain time then the court should lean against the expense of the explanation. The Order of Commissioner(Appeals) are therefore prayed to be set aside and appeals are prayed to be allowed.

4. Per contra, Ld. DR has impressed upon that the refund claim under Section Notification 40/2012 has to be filed within one year from the end of the month in which actual payment of service tax was made by the SEZ unit to the registered service provider as one of the condition to claim a refund. The condition was very much part and parcel of the Notification and it is only subject to fulfilment of said condition that benefit of refund could have been allowed to the assessee. While justifying the Order it is submitted that the relevant case law has duly been discussed by the adjudicating authorities. Appeal is accordingly prayed to be dismissed.

5. After hearing both the parties, I observe and hold as follows that Notification No. 40/2012 - ST dated 29.06.2012 exempts the services on which service tax is eligible under Section 66b of the said Act received by a unit allocated in Special Economic Zone (SEZ) or developer of SEZ and used for authorised operation from the whole of the service tax education cess and secondary and higher education cess leviable thereupon. The said exemption is amended to have been provided by way of refund of service tax paid specified services received by the SEZ unit or the developer of SEZ and use for the authorised operations however subject to the conditions as mentioned therein including that the claim especially be filed within one year from the end of the month in which actual payment of service tax was made by such SEZ unit or developer of SEZ to the registered service provider or such extended period as the Assistant Commissioner of Central Excise or the Deputy Commissioner of Central Excise, as the case may be, shall permit.

6. It is apparent from the Order under challenge that admittedly the refund claim was filed beyond the time limit as prescribed above. Admittedly there was no former Application seeking condonation of the said delay except the oral submission of appellant before adjudicating authority below about shortage of staff. I observe that the said plea of the appellant has duly been dealt with in the Order under challenge holding the said explanation is not satisfactory as the appellant was otherwise running business and all other operations pertaining to their business. The law has been settled that the exemption Notification has to be construed strictly and there has to be strict interpretation of the same by reading the same literally as it was held by Hon’ble Apex Court in the case of Uttam Industries Vs. Commissioner of Central Excise, Haryana reported in 2011 (265) E.L.T. 14 (S.C.) . It was clarified by the Hon’ble Apex Court while relying its previous decision in the case of Kartar Rolling Mills Vs. Commissioner of Central Excise reported in 2006 (4) SCC 772 that the conditions of the Notification are the eligibility criteria to claim the benefit out of the said Notification. Once the said eligible criteria has not been made with or any condition pre-requisite for the said benefit has not been made that the benefit of exemption Notification cannot be made available to the assessee. In view of the said settled principle of law, I am of the opinion that there is no infirmity in the Orders under challenge. Same are accordingly upheld. Resultantly, these Appeals stand dismissed.

FINAL ORDER NO. 50348/2019

Per: Rachna Gupta:

The present appeal has been preferred against the order in appeal No.210 dated 12.04.2018 vide which the appeal of the appellant against the Order-in-Original No.114 dated 30.10.2009 has been dismissed on the ground of limitation.

2. The appellant herein is engaged in rendering services of cable operator. The Department during the scrutiny of records of M/s. Rajasthan Telematics Ltd. from whom the appellant was receiving signals observed that during the period w.e.f. 16.08.2002 to 31.03.2006 that M/s. Rajasthan Tele Matrix had raised bills upon the appellant on account of service being provided for receiving the cable signals from them for the onward re-transmission to their subscribers in Kota. However, the appellant has not discharged its service tax liability thereupon. Whereafter show cause notice No.14243 dated 19.10.2007 was served upon the appellant demanding service tax amounting to Rs.65,827/- along with the interest at the appropriate rate and the proportionate penalties under section 76, 77 and 78 of the Finance Act. The aforesaid order in original had confirmed the said proposal due to the lack of evidence tendered by the appellant.

3. It is submitted on behalf of the appellant that after the Department scrutinized the records of the appellant, the appellant very much joined the investigation and provided all relevant details. However, the impugned show cause notice was never served at the appellant's address. No intimation, even subsequently, he got about the impugned adjudication. It is apparent from Order-in-Original as well that the same was passed ex parte. It is further submitted that the appellant came to know about the Order-in-Original only from a recovery note published in the Newspaper dated 28.01.2012. In response there to he deposited the amount of Service Tax i.e. Rs.65,827/- along with the interest at the appropriate rate and the proportionate penalties under section 76, 77 and 78 of the Finance Act. The aforesaid order in original had confirmed the said proposal due to the lack of evidence tendered by the appellant.

4. The appellant has relied upon the decision of DR Mangli vs. Commissioner of Central Excise, Nagpur reported in 2014 (54) STR 396 (Tri. Mumbai), impressing upon that the period of 3 months available to the Commissioner to condone the delay has to reckon from the date when the appellant actually receives the copy of order in original. Affidavit of the appellant has also been placed on record to this effect. Order accordingly prayed to be set aside. Appeal is prayed to be allowed.

4. Per-contra ld. DR has submitted that Commissioner (Appeals) has no statutory power to condone the delay beyond 3 months. The appeal in hand was filed after a delay of 6 years. It is further impressed upon that there is no cogent reason apparent on record, which may be considered as reasonable for the said delay of 6 years. It is impressed upon that as per appellants own submission, he got the knowledge of Order-in-Original in the year 2012 itself. Justifying the order, Appeal in hand is prayed to be dismissed.

5. In addition, it is submitted that the Department subsequently also delivered the copy of Order-in-Original to the appellant on 05.04.2010, as is apparent from the letter dated 26.07.2018 being sent by the Department to the appellant’s Counsel enclosed therewith the copy of the acknowledgement due received in furtherance thereof.

6. After hearing both the parties and perusing the entire record, it is observed that there is no denial on part of the appellant about the scrutiny of the records and also about the demand as has been proposed vide the impugned show cause notice though it is an argument that even the show cause notice was not received by the appellant. However, in view of the above admission and in view of any evidence to the contrary, the same argument is not acceptable. From Order-in-Original also it is apparent that the order of confirming demand has been announced only due to lack of evidence, as was to be tendered by the appellant.

7. It is appellant’s own case that the knowledge of the demand against the appellant came to his notice from Newspaper “Dainikbhaskar” dated 28 January, 2012 whereafter he made the deposit of the amount of service tax of 65,827/- The absence of any effort to enquire about the orders in furtherance whereof the recovery proceedings as mentioned in the said Newspaper except a letter dated 13.02.2012 is not opined sufficient for condoning delay of almost 6 years. It is apparent that reminder to said application dated 13.02.2012 was given on 23.02.2016 i.e. after a gap of 3 years, same rather amount to be highly negligent act.

8. I also draw my support from the case law in the case of Singh Enterprises vs. CCE, Jamshedpur reported in 2008 (221) ELT 163 (S.C.) it is held as follows:-

“10. Sufficient cause is an expression which is found in various statutes. It essentially means as adequate or enough. There cannot be any straitjacket formula for accepting or rejecting the explanation furnished for delay caused in taking steps. In the instant case, the explanation offered for the abnormal delay of nearly 20 months is that the appellant concern was practically closed after 1998 and it was only opened for some short period.

From the application for condonation of delay, it appears that the appellant has categorically accepted that on receipt of order the same was immediately handed over to the consultant for filing an appeal. If that is so, the plea that because of lack of experience in business there was delay does not stand to be reason. I.T.C.’s case (supra) was rendered taking note of the peculiar background facts of the case. In that case there was no law declared by this Court that even though the Statute prescribed a particular period of limitation, this Court can direct condonation. That would render a specific provision providing for limitation rather otiose. In any event, the causes shown for condonation have no acceptable value. In that view of the matter, the appeal deserves to be dismissed, which we direct. There will be no order as to costs.”

9. Though the Commissioner (Appeal) has held that there is a delay of 28 days on the ground that as per Shri Chirag Jain, CA for the appellant the order has received by appellant on 22nd February 2016 and the appeal was filed on 20th May, 2016. But the said observation is wrong as the appeal from the said submission appears to have been filed within the period of 90 days but as per Section 35 of Central Excise Act. The appeal before Commissioner (Appeals) can be filed within sixty days from the date of communication to him of such decision or order. The proviso of the said Section allows the Commissioner (Appeals) to condone a delay of further period of 30 days if a sufficient cause from not presenting the appeal within the aforesaid period of 60 days is shown to the Commissioner (Appeals). It becomes clear that even from the appellant’s perspective the appeal was not filed within the said 60 days from the date of receipt of order.
10. From the above discussion, we are already of the opinion that there is no sufficient cause shown by the appellant even for delay in obtaining the copy of the order. On the other hand Department has tendered documentary proof of the service of the order at the place of the appellant, the acknowledgement due thereof and above all, the admission that on behalf of the appellant that the said order was received by the wife of the appellant. In such circumstances, I am of the opinion that Commissioner (Appeals) is justified while denying the time extension even of 30 days as mentioned in Section 35 (Proviso) of Central Excise Act. The case law G. Swarupa Rani vs Commissioner of Customs, Tirupathi reported in 2009 (245) ELT 364 (Tri.-Bangalore), as relied upon by the appellant about son and daughter to not to be the authorized agent is not applicable to the facts and circumstances of the present case as the appellant in the said case was abroad when his son received the copy of order, which otherwise was not sent by registered post with acknowledgement due. None of those is the fact for the present case. Resultantly, we find no infirmity in the order under challenge. Otherwise also, no reasonable or sufficient cause of delay of 6 years is observed. The order is, accordingly, upheld. The appeal stands dismissed.

ARIHANT TILES & MARBLES PVT. LTD.

Versus

COMMISSIONER (APPEALS), JODHPUR

Shri K. Poddar and Ms. Tamana Alam, Authorized Representatives (DRs), for the Respondent.

[Order]. - With the present order three appeals as mentioned above are disposed of the order-in.appeal/the order-under-challenge being common to three of these appeals and also the issue involved is same.

2. Facts in brief relevant for the purpose are:

The appellant herein is engaged in manufacture of marble slabs and tiles. The appellant on 29-8-2008 & 29-6-2009 filed three refund claims in respect of service tax paid on certain services received and used for export of goods, during the period from April, 2008 to June, 2008 in terms of Notification No. 41/2007-S.T., dated 6-10-2007, relating to refund of service tax paid on GTA services, Port services and technical testing and analysis services. Three of the said claims have been rejected by the Deputy Commissioner, Central Excise, Udaipur, vide Order-in-Original No. 113 dated 2-3-2009 and Order-in-Original No. 402, dated 25-9-2009. Aggrieved by the order of the Deputy Commissioner, the appellant filed an appeal against rejection of their refund claim. The Commissioner (Appeals-II), Jaipur vide Order-in-Appeal No. 282, dated 12-8-2010 and Order-in-Appeal No. 409, dated 27-10-2010, dismissed the appeal of the appellant. Being still aggrieved, the Appellant filed an appeal before this Tribunal challenging the order of the Commissioner (Appeals-II).

2.1 Tribunal vide Final Order No. 50115-50117/2015 (DB), dated 9-1-2015, affirmed the eligibility of the appellant to refund claim and remanded the matter to the lower authorities for re-examination.

In compliance thereof a detailed submission before the Assistant Commissioner, Central Tax, Udaipur, was filed by the appellant on 11-2-2015. Vide Order-in-Original No. 02/15-ST(Ref), dated 7-5-2015 and Order-in-Original No. 03/15-ST(Ref), dated 7-5-2015 the refund in respect of the three of the refund claims was sanctioned. However, interest from the date of filing of refund application was not sanctioned. Aggrieved therefrom the appellant filed an appeal before Commissioner (Appeals), Jodhpur who vide Order-in-Appeal No. 173(CRM)/ST/JDR/2017-18, dated 27-3-2018 and Order-in-Appeal No. 174(CRM)/ST/JDR/2017-18, dated 27-3-2018, since three months from the date of sanction of refund had expired, sanctioned interest from the date of receipt of the application for refund i.e. 29-6-2009 and 6-7-2009, and not 11-2-2015.

2.2 The appellant, however, filed letter dated 18-4-2018 with the Department for interest @ 12.5% on the refund amount sanctioned to them. The Department issued three Show Cause Notices (SCN’s) to the appellant, pursuant to the letters submitted by them denying the interest amount to the extent of 12% rate and that the calculation of interest by the Appellant was alleged to be incorrect.

The appellant filed a detailed reply contesting the allegations and also the proposal for denial of the interest calculated by the appellant before the Assistant Commissioner, Udaipur. In appeals 50120, 50121 & 50122 of 2019 claim for the interest of Rs. 33,54,833/-, Rs. 17,27,601/- & Rs. 79,15,871/- respectively was filed by the appellant.

As against this, the Assistant Commissioner vide Orders-in-Original No. (i) 28, dated 6-7-2018, (ii) 29, dated 6-7-2018 (iii) 30, dated 6-7-2018 sanctioned the charge sequence of three amounts also Rs. 18,45,273/-, Rs. 8,29,314/- & Rs. 4,27,681/- respectively to the appellant as interest.

2.3 To assail the said order, the appellant filed an appeal before Commissioner (Appeals), Jodhpur who vide Order-in-Appeal No. 1129-1131, dated 11-10-2018 (impugned order), observed the following :-

1. There is no provision for interest on interest.

2. Notification No. 67/2003-C.E. (N.T.), dated 12-9-2003, prescribes 6% interest rate per annum for the purpose of Section 11BB of the Excise Act, therefore Appellant is not eligible to interest beyond the statutory 6% interest on delayed payment of refund claims.

Being aggrieved of this order appellant is before this Tribunal.

3. I have heard Mr. Narender Singhvi, Learned Advocate for the appellant and Mr. K. Poddar, Learned Authorised Representative for the Department.

It is submitted on behalf of appellant that in furtherance of the order of CESTAT dated 9th January, 2015, the appellant became entitled for the interest w.e.f. the year 2008-09, but it could get sanctioned, only in the year 2018. The delay of more than 10 years for getting the amount of interest refunded entitles the appellant to be compensated for the same. It is impressed upon that interest is compensatory in nature, therefore, interest on delayed sanction of interest is payable. Learned Counsel has relied upon the decision of Hon’ble Supreme Court in the case of Sandvik Asia Ltd. v. CIT reported as 2006 (196) E.L.T. 257 (S.C.) and that the ratio has not been disapproved by Hon’ble Larger Bench in Gujarat Fluoro Chemicals v. CIT reported as 2008 (300) ITR 328 (Guj.).

3.1 It is submitted that the said decision has not been overruled rather has been relied upon by Supreme Court in a subsequent decision in the case of CIT v. Gujarat Fluoro Chemicals itself. Even the Division Bench of Gujarat, after the matter was referred back by the Supreme Court, is of the opinion that there is general principle for awarding compensation to the assessee for the delay in receiving interest properly due to it. It is alleged that the Appellate Authority below has ignored the said decisions rather the order-under-challenge suffer from gross misinterpretation of these decisions. Learned Counsel has also placed reliance upon the decision of State of Gujarat v. Unjha Pharmacy reported as 2016 (341) E.L.T. 211 (Gujarat) wherein the decision of Gujarat Fluoro (supra) has been followed holding that compensation for prolonged delay in sanction of interest has to be granted.

3.2 In alternative submission, it has been submitted that when principal amount is payable with interest, payment made by the department is to be first adjusted towards the interest and thereafter towards the principal amount. Thus, to the extent of short fall in refund of principal amount after first appropriating the sanctioned amount towards interest, the liability of Revenue to grant interest still stands. Learned Counsel has relied upon the decision in the case of V. Kala Bharathi and Ors. v. Oriental Ins. Co. Ltd. reported as AIR 2014 (S.C.) 1563, decision of Industrial Credit and Development Syndicate v. Smithaben H. Patel & Ors. reported as AIR 1999 (SC) 1036 have been relied upon by the appellant. Finally, impressing upon that on the delayed sanction of refund of interest on 6th July, 2018, the appellant is entitled to interest in the terms of Section 11BB for the period from 28-9-2009 to 6-7-2018. Therefore, the order challenge is prayed to be set aside and three of the appeals are prayed to be allowed.

4. While rebutting these arguments, Learned D.R. has submitted that there is no provision in the relevant statute to grant interest on delayed payment of interest amount and that the appellant vide the impugned appeal is actually asking for the interest on the delayed amount of interest which has been sanctioned in favour of the appellant with reference to the refund which could not be disbursed within three months of the sanction thereof. The claim herein is not for the compensations, as is impressed by the appellant. Hence, none of the case law, as relied upon is applicable to the present facts & circumstances.

4.1 It is submitted that rather the appellant is wrongly interpreting the decision of Sandvik Asia Ltd. (supra). It has been pointed out that the Hon’ble Supreme Court has clarified therein that it is only that interest as provided for under the statute which may be claimed by an assessee from the Revenue and no other interest on such statutory interest. It was only the compensation which as per Hon’ble Apex Court may be granted to the assessee. There is no power vested with the Tribunal to grant compensation in view of delay, if any. It is impressed upon that there is no infirmity, as alleged, in the order-under-challenge. Appeal is, accordingly, prayed to be dismissed.

5. After hearing the rival contentions of the parties and perusing the appeal record as well as the case law relied upon. We observe and hold as follows:

Present is the case where the appellant had filed refund claims in respect of service tax paid on certain services received and used for the export of goods during the period from April, 2008 to June, 2008. The refund claims were accordingly filed on 29-8-2008 & 29-6-2009.

These refund claim Appeals were initially rejected, however, this Tribunal vide order dated 9-1-2015 while affirming the eligibility of the appellant to said refund claims, remanded the matter back to the lower authorities for re-examination. It is, thereafter that three of refund claims as were filed under Notification No. 41/2007, dated 6-10-2007 were got sanctioned by the original adjudication authority vide its order dated 7-5-2015. However, no interest was sanctioned from the date of filing of the refund application. The interest was finally sanctioned on delayed refund of service tax vide order dated 27-3-2018.

6. In furtherance whereof the demand of the sanctioned interest that too @ 12.5% on the refund amount was filed by the appellant. The interest was disbursed @ 6% vide order dated 6-7-2018. The appellant today has not contested the rate of interest. However, has claimed the interest on the said disbursed amount of interest on the ground that the same was disbursed after a reasonable delay. Hence, the only question is to be adjudicated is opined as:

Whether the appellant is entitled to interest on the sanctioned amount of interest qua refund claims which could not be disbursed with three months thereof.

6.1 The relevant provision in this respect is Section 11BB of Central Excise Act, 1944, it reads as follows:
Section 11BB. Interest of delayed refunds. - If any duty ordered to be refunded under sub-section (2) of section 11B to any applicant is not refunded within three months from the date of receipt of application under sub-section (1) of that section, there shall be paid to that applicant interest at such rate, not below ten per cent. and not exceeding thirty per cent. per annum as is for the time being fixed by the Board, on such duty from the date immediately after the expiry of three months from the date of receipt of such application till the date of refund of such duty:

Provided that where any duty ordered to be refunded under sub-section (2) of section 11B in respect of an application under sub-section (1) of that section made before the date on which the Finance Bill, 1995 receives the assent of the President, is not refunded within three months from such date, there shall be paid to the applicant interest under this section from the date immediately after three months from such date, till the date of refund of such duty.

Explanation. - Where any order of refund is made by the Commissioner (Appeals), Appellate Tribunal or any court against an order of the Assistant Commissioner of Central Excise, under sub-section (2) of section 11B, the order passed by the Commissioner (Appeals), Appellate Tribunal or, as the case may be, by the court shall be deemed to be an order passed under the said sub-section (2) for the purposes of this section.

The provision makes it, abundantly, clear that the interest is allowed on delayed refunds. But the provision is silent about any interest on delayed payment of interest as claimed herein. Learned Counsel for appellant has relied upon Sandvik Asia Ltd. (supra) case, impressing upon that the Hon’ble Apex Court has allowed such amount in case of apparent delay. But it is observed that there has been expressed clarification that such interest only can be claimed by an assessee which is provided under the statute and no other interest on such statutory interest can be granted.

The relevant para of the decision of a Division Bench of Hon’ble Supreme Court while considering a reference doubting correctness of their previous decision of Sandvik Asia case had held as:

“In our considered view, the aforesaid judgment has been misquoted and misinterpreted by the assessee and also by the Revenue. They are of the view that in Sandvik case (supra) this Court had directed the Revenue to pay interest on the statutory interest in case of delay in the payment. In other words, the interpretation placed is that the Revenue is obliged to pay an interest on interest in the event of its failure to refund the interest payable within the statutory period.

7. As we have already noticed, in Sandvik case (supra) this Court was considering the issue whether an assessee who is made to wait for refund of interest for decades be compensated for the great prejudice caused to it due to the delay in its payment after the lapse of statutory period. In the facts of that case, this Court had come to the conclusion that there was an inordinate delay on the part of the Revenue in refunding certain amount which included the statutory interest and therefore, directed the Revenue to pay compensation for the same not an interest on interest”.

14. The aforesaid shows that in the latter decision of the Larger Bench, it was held that the decision in the case of Sandvik Asia Ltd. (supra) cannot be read to mean that Revenue is obliged to pay interest on interest in the event of its failure to refund the interest payable within the statutory period. The Apex Court further held that in the peculiar facts and circumstances of the case of Sandvik Asia Ltd. (supra) the Court had come to the conclusion that there was inordinate delay on the part of the Government to refund certain amount, which includes statutory interest and, therefore, directed the Revenue to pay compensation for the same, but not interest on interest.

15. In our view, as per the above referred observations of the Apex Court in the case of Gujarat Fluoro Chemicals (supra), obligation on the part of the Government to pay compensation for non-payment of the statutory interest by way of interest on interest was not approved. Further, in the above referred decision of the Larger Bench of the Apex Court at paragraph 7, it was observed that the interest provided under the statute, which may be claimed by the Assessee from the Revenue would be available and interest on such statutory interest would not be available.

16. From the conjoint reading of the decision of the Apex Court in the case of Sandvik Asia Ltd. (supra) and the latter decision of the Larger Bench in the case of Gujarat Fluoro Chemicals (supra) it appears that the liability to pay interest on interest by the Revenue is not approved and to that extent the contention of the Revenue can be maintained. But the further contention of the Revenue that no interest whatsoever would be payable if the refund of the amount of tax or refund of the amount deposited towards tax is to be made, no interest whatsoever would be available by way of compensatory measure.

17. In our view, the general principles for awarding compensation to the Assessee for the delay in receiving monies properly due to it is not disapproved by the Larger Bench of the Apex Court in the case of Gujarat Fluoro Chemicals (supra).

18. In view of the aforesaid observations and discussion, we find that the petitioner-Assessee would be entitled to compensation and the interest can be awarded by way of compensation, but would not be entitled to further compensation by way of interest on such interest, which is awarded as compensation.

19. Under these circumstances, we find that the Court can take a reasonable approach when the interest is to be awarded by way of compensatory measure, but with further caution that the interest on such interest cannot be ordered as per the above referred latter decision of the Apex Court in the case of Gujarat Fluoro Chemicals (supra)."

The Hon’ble Apex Court in this case while relying upon the decision of Commissioner of Income Tax v. Narender Doshil, 254 ITR 606 (S.C.) has, however, held that the Revenue is liable to pay compensation on the amount of interest which it should have given to the assesse but has unjustifiably failed to do this.
It becomes clear that inordinate delay for the grant of justified claim may entitle the person to get compensation against that delay the power of granting compensation is an inherent power. Present being a tribunal is not vested with any such inherent power. This Tribunal is a quasi judicial authority which is absolutely bound by the statutory provisions. No power as that of awarding compensation is available with the Tribunal as not being provided by the statute.
Otherwise also it has never been the prayer of the appellant. Appellant is praying for entitlement of interest on the amount of delayed interest. Same cannot be called as the claim of compensation.

7. No doubt the decision of Sandvik Asia Ltd. (supra) has not been overruled by the Hon’ble Apex Court in the subsequent decision of Gujarat Fluoro Chemicals (supra). But, perusal of that decision shows that the question to be adjudicated in that decision before the Supreme Court was whether an assessee is entitled to be compensated by the Income Tax department for the delay in paying interest on the refunded amount, admittedly, due to the assessee. The question was adjudicated in affirmative. Revenue was directed to pay compensation for the delay in making payment after the lapse of statutory period. In that case also Hon’ble Supreme Court has clarified that amount, specifically, is compensation and is not an interest on interest. The similar clarification has come in the subsequent case of Gujarat Flouro Chemicals (supra) also i.e. “we clarify that it is only that interest provided for under the statute which may be claimed by an assessee from the Revenue and no other interest on such statutory interest”.

8. Thus, the first argument of the appellants that they are entitled for interest on interest being compensatory in nature is not sustainable. Since, it technically is interest on interest it cannot be called as compensation suo motu, nor has been so prayed by the appellant himself.

In view of this discussion, we answer the afore framed question in favour of Revenue.

9. Now coming to the alternate argument of the Appellant that from the amount of refund sanctioned since there is an interest liability, the amount should be first adjusted towards the interest liability. It is observed that this rule of first appropriating the interest is applicable only to the debts or to the decreetal amount. The case law as relied upon by the appellant is also either qua debts or qua the decreetal amount. Hence, the same is not applicable to the present case of refund of indirect taxes. The said rule of interpretation is otherwise contained in order 21 Rule 1 of Civil Procedure Code relating to execution of decrees for recovery of money. Such a provision stands absolutely excluded from the Central Excise Act, 1944. Further, Hon’ble Apex Court in the case law relied upon by the Appellant i.e. in the case of V. Kala Bharathi (supra) has rather clarified that, “after such appropriation the decree holder is entitled to interest only to the extent of unpaid principal amount. Hence, the interest be calculated on the unpaid principal amount.” This clarification stands unsatisfied by the Appellant in the present case. Hence, the second line of argument of Appellant is also opined not applicable to the given set of facts & circumstances.

10. In view of entire above discussion, we do not find any infirmity in the orders under challenge. Accordingly, same are upheld hereby. Three of these appeals, consequently, stand dismissed.

(Pronounced in the open Court on 31-10-2019)
The appellant herein is engaged in rendering services of cable operator. While scrutiny of its record for the period from 16.08.2002 to 31.03.2006, the Department observed that the party was receiving signals of various Television Networks through Multi System Operator (MSO) managed by M/s. Rajasthan Telematics Ltd., Kota and M/s. Radhaswamy Communications, Kota. The party also received signals of the broadcast relay by the MSO. The services provided by the party are taxable services w.e.f. 16.08.2002, which were charged to Service Tax at the rate of 5% upto 13.05.2003 and at the rate of 8% upto 09.09.2004 and thereafter @ 10% alongwith 2% of education cess during the period from 10.09.2004 to 31.03.2006 on the gross amount charged by the cable operator from the subscribers for the said service.

1.1 The Department further observed that during the period from 16.08.2002 to 31.03.2006 both the MSOs raised bills to the appellant on account of service provided for receiving cable signals from them for onward re-transmission to their subscribers in Kota. However, the appellant failed to discharge the service tax liability. Resultantly, the show cause notice No.13662 dated 09.10.2007 was served upon the appellant. The appellant despite joining the investigation did not provide any documentary evidence. Even the original adjudicating authority afforded five opportunities to the appellant to appear and submit documents. But appellant opted to not to supply the same. Resultantly, the order in original No.854-857 dated 25.08.2009 was passed confirming the demand of service tax of Rs.41,042/- for want of evidence on behalf of the appellant alongwith the interest and the penalty under Section 78 of the same amount. In addition, penalty under Section 76 and 77 was also imposed. Being aggrieved of the said order the appellantpreferredtheargumentwhichhasbeendismissedon the ground of limitation vide the order in appeal No.79 dated 31.01.2018. Being aggrieved, appellant is before this Tribunal.

2. I have heard Mr.Chirag Jain, ld. Chartered Accountant for the appellant and Mr.K. Poddar, ld. D.R. for the Revenue.
3. It is submitted on behalf of the appellant that after the Departments scrutinized the records of the appellant, the appellant very much joined the investigation and provided all relevant details. However, the impugned show cause notice was never served at the appellant’s address. No intimation, even subsequently, he got about the impugned adjudication. It is apparent from Order-in-Original as well that the same was passed ex-parte. It is further submitted that the appellant came to know about the Order-in-Original only from a recovery note published in the Newspaper dated 28.01.2012. In response thereto he deposited the amount of Service Tax i.e. Rs.41,042/- on 23rd July, 2013. On the assurance of the Department that if he deposited the amount of Service Tax there will be no further proceeding against him, that he deposited the said amount. However, in the year 2015 appellant got a phone call from the Department that he has been declared as un-traceable assessee. To find out the exact position, the appellant wrote a letter to Department on 6th August, 2015. No response was received from the Department. It is thereafter that in December, 2015, appellant again enquired about the status of the adjudication against him. Seeking no further response that appeal is before Commissioner appeals was filed on 16.01.2016. It is submitted that all these facts were also brought to notice of the Commissioner (Appeals). However, the same has not been considered and the appeal has been dismissed on the ground of limitation. The appellant has relied upon the decision of DR Mangli vs. Commissioner of Central Excise, Nagpur reported in 2014 (54) STR 396 (Tri. Mumbai), impressing upon that the period of three months available to the Commissioner to condone the delay has to reckon from the date when the appellant actually received the copy of order in original. Affidavit of the appellant has also been placed on record to this effect. Order accordingly is prayed to be set aside. Appeal is prayed to be allowed.

4. Per-contra ld. DR has submitted that Commissioner (Appeals) has no statutory power to condone the delay beyond three months (60+30 days) The appeal in hand was filed after a delay of six years. It is further impressed upon that there is no cogent reason apparent on record, which may be considered as reasonable for the said delay of six years. It is also impressed upon that the appellant, he got the knowledge of Order-in-Original in the year 2012 itself. Justifying the order, Appeal in hand is prayed to be dismissed. filed the reply to the show cause notice. Thus the order announced against the appellant is for lack of evidence.

5. After hearing both sides and perusing entire record, I observe and held as follows:-

The impugned is the case of cable operator services. Those services brought into the tax net w.e.f. 16.08.2002 by amending Section 65 of Finance Act, 2008. Despite that the party had neither obtained registration from the Department under cable operator services nor filed ST-3 return to the Department. Rather, kept suppressing their value of taxable service till the year 2006, when the matter was actually scrutinized by the Department. There is no denial of the appellant that during the investigation, in furtherance of said scrutiny, his statement was recorded and requisite documents were provided by him. It is thereafter that the impugned show cause notice dated 09.10.2007 was issued by the Department. Though the appellant has denied receiving the same, but he has not denied the scrutiny and participating the investigation. In addition there is no submission on his part that since the time of his joining the investigation till the date of issuance of impugned show cause notice there was any change of his address and that the said change was duly intimated to the Department as is prescribed under Rule 4 (2) of the Central Excise Rules. From the Order in Original it is apparent that the appellant despite being called almost five times could not appear. It is also apparent from the order that even filed the reply to the show cause notice. Thus the order announced against the appellant is for lack of evidence.

6. As per Department contention, the order was duly issued on the date of order itself at the address as was available with the Department. There is nothing on record to show that the order so issued ever got received back unserved with the endorsement of change of address to the Department. It is coming out from the submissions on behalf of appellant and even from the affidavit of the appellant as placed on record that the appellant came to know of the demand proceedings going on against it through a local daily newspaper, Dinikbhashkar dated 28.01.2012 under the article heading “Demand from General Notice”.

However, no copy of said Newspaper note is annexed with the affidavit. But it becomes an admitted fact that the knowledge of the impugned adjudication/Order-in-Original came to the notice of the appellant in the year 2012 itself. It is also appellant’s own admission that in furtherance of the said demand note, he made a deposit of Rs.41,042/- on 23rd July, 2013. It cannot be presumed from any stretch of imagination that demand notice would be containing only the demand of the service tax without specifying about the interest and the amount of penalty to have been recovered from the appellant. Thus, it becomes clear that the knowledge of Order-in-Original was with the appellant in the year 2012 for filing the appeal which was filed in the year 2016.

7. The only another ground of appellant is that he received a phone call from the Department about him being declared as untraceable assessee. No document is placed on record to support the same except an application dated 6th August, 2015. The perusal thereof shows that the application is silent about any cogent reason for appellant to note to be aware of the interest and the penalty to have also been his liability along with the amount of service tax Rs.41,042/- as was deposited by him through challan No.0009 dated 23.04.2013. Otherwise also since the time of deposit till the aforesaid application a period of more than 2 years has already elapsed and in filing of the said appeal, there is another period of six months from the date of the said impressed upon letter. Perusal of appellants affidavit shows that the copy of Order-in-Original was received by him on 7th August, 2015. The appeal in hand is still filed on 16th January, 2016 i.e. beyond the period of 5 months. Accordingly, the case law relied upon by the appellant that is DR Mangli (supra) is opined not applicable to the given circumstances. Above all, Commissioner (Appeals) had limitation being a statutory mandate to not to condone the delay of more than three months. The delay herein is of six years and for sake of arguments, if the argument of appellant about the period to reckon from the date of receipt of order is considered, the delay is still of more than 5 months.

8. Despite the knowledge and receipt of impugned SCN, the absence of any effort to enquire about the orders in furtherance whereof the recovery proceedings as mentioned in the said Newspaper except a letter dated 6th August, 2015 is not opined sufficient for condoning delay of almost 6 years. Same rather amount to be highly negligent act.

9. I draw my support from the case law in the case of Singh Enterprises vs. CCE, Jamshedpur reported in 2008 (221) ELT 163 (S.C.) it is held as follows:-

“10. Sufficient cause is an expression which is found in various statutes. It essentially means as adequate or enough. There cannot be any straitjacket formula for accepting or rejecting the explanation furnished for delay caused in taking steps. In the instant case, the explanation offered for the abnormal delay of nearly 20 months is that the appellant concern was practically closed after 1998 and it was only opened for some short period. From the application for condonation of delay, it appears that the appellant has categorically accepted that on receipt of order the same was immediately handed over to the consultant for filing an appeal. If that is so, the plea that because of lack of experience in business there was delay does not stand to be reason. I.T.C.’s case (supra) was rendered taking note of the peculiar background facts of the case. In that case there was no law declared by this Court that even though the Statute prescribed a particular period of limitation, this Court can direct condonation. That would render a specific provision providing for limitation rather otiose. In any event, the causes shown for condonation have no acceptable value. In that view of the matter, the appeal deserves to be dismissed, which we direct. There will be no order as to costs.”

10. In view of the entire above discussion, I do not find any infirmity in the order under challenge. In addition, I do not find any cogent reason still to provide opportunity to the applicant for the delay of 6 years from the date of Order-in- Original to have been condoned. The appeal resultantly, is hereby dismissed.

These two appeals seek to assail the order dated 11 February, 2016 by which the Commissioner (Appeals) Customs, Central Excise & Service Tax, Raipur has dismissed the appeals as having been filed beyond the period of two months and the extended period of one month from the date of communication of the Order.

2. It would be appropriate to first state the necessary facts. The Order was passed by the Additional Commissioner of Customs & Central Excise, Bhopal on 30 August, 2013. This order was admittedly served upon the appellant on 20 September, 2013. Section 85(3A) of the Finance Act, 1994 provides that an appeal can be filed before the Commissioner (Appeals) within two months from the date of receipt of the decision or order of such authority in relation to service tax, interest or penalty. It further provides that the Commissioner of Central Excise (Appeals) may, if he is satisfied that the appellant was prevented by sufficient cause from presenting the appeal within the aforesaid period of two months, allow it to be presented within a further period of one month.

3. In the instant case the order was served upon the appellant on 20
September, 2013 but the appeal was presented before the Commissioner (Appeals) on 05 February, 2016 after a period of almost two years and five months. It is, therefore, clear that the appeal was not filed within a period of two months or even within the extended period of one month. The Commissioner (Appeals), after placing reliance upon the decision of the Supreme Court in Singh Enterprises vs.
Commissioner of C. Ex., Jamshedpur reported in 2008(221) ELT 163 (S.C.) dismissed the appeal for this reason.

4. It is contended by the learned Counsel for the appellant that there was good and sufficient cause that prevented the appellant from preferring the appeal within the period stipulated period provided for in Section 85(3A) of the Finance Act and for this purpose an affidavit of Advocate has also been filed before the Tribunal on 15 February, 2019. It is stated in the affidavit that the learned Counsel was under the impression that his office had filed the appeal against the order dated 30 August, 2013, but he subsequently came to know that the appeal was not filed and the appeal was filed when he conveyed this fact to the appellant. Learned Counsel for the appellant submitted that the delay should be condoned and in support of his submission he has placed reliance upon a decision rendered by a learned member of the Bench of the Tribunal at Mumbai in Uapp India automotive Systems Pvt.
Ltd., vs. CCE & ST, Pune-I reported in 2019(365) ELT 109 (Tri. Mumbai) and also on the decision of the Supreme Court in M. P. Steel Corporation vs. Commissioner of Central Excise reported in 2015 (319) ELT 373 (S.C.).
Learned Counsel, therefore, vehemently urged that the delay in filing the appeal should be condoned.
5. Learned Representative of the Department has, however, placed reliance on the decision of the Supreme Court in Singh Enterprises and has contended that in view of the provisions of Section 85(3A) of the Act, the Tribunal, at best can condone the delay of one month after the expiry of the statutory period of two months. It is his submission that the Division Bench of the Tribunal at Mumbai subsequently in Appeal No.ST/89394/2018 (Muktabai Govind Pawar vs. CC, CE&ST, Aurangabad) held that the Commissioner (Appeals) cannot condone the delay in filing the appeal after the expiry of the extended period of one month under the proviso to sub section (3A) of Section 85 of the Act. Learned Representative of the Department has also placed before the Tribunal the decision of the other Benches of the Tribunal and submitted that the decision of the Supreme Court in M. P. Steel Steel Corporation would not come to the aid of the appellant.

6. We have considered the submissions advanced by both the parties.

7. In order to appreciate the contentions advanced by the parties it would be appropriate to reproduce Section 85(3A) of the Finance Act which is as follows:

"85. Appeals to the Commissioner of Central Excise (Appeals)

(3A) An appeal shall be presented within two months from the date of receipt of the decision or order of such adjudicating authority, made on and after the Finance Bill, 2012 receives the assent of the President, relating to service tax, interest or penalty under this Chapter:

PROVIDED that the Commissioner of Central Excise (Appeals) may, if he is satisfied that the appellant was prevented by sufficient cause from presenting the appeal within the aforesaid period of two months, allow it to be presented within a further period of one month."

8. A perusal of sub section (3A) of Section 85 clearly indicates that an appeal shall be presented within two months from the date of receipt of the order of the adjudicating authority in relation to service tax, interest or penalty. It further provides that the Commissioner of Central Excise (Appeals) may, if he is satisfied that the appellant was prevented by sufficient cause from presenting the appeal within the aforesaid period of two months, allow it to be presented within a further period of one month. The discretion of the Commissioner to condone the delay is, therefore, circumscribed by the condition set out in the provision and the delay can be condoned only if the appeal is presented within a further period of one month after the expiry of the statutory period of two months, provided of course, he is satisfied that the appellant was prevented by sufficient cause from presenting the appeal within a period of two months.

9. In the present case, admittedly, the order of the adjudicating authority was received by the appellant on 20 September, 2013 but the appeal was presented before the Commissioner on 05 February, 2016. It was clearly not presented within the period of two months nor within the extended period of one month. The Commissioner (Appeals) dismissed the appeal after placing reliance on the decision of Supreme Court in Singh Enterprises.

10. The provision of Section 35 of the Central Excise Act, 1944 relating to appeals before Commissioner (Appeals) had come up for consideration before the Supreme Court in Singh Enterprises. Section 35 of the Central Excise Act, 1944 provides that any person aggrieved by any decision or order passed under the Act, may appeal to the Commissioner (Appeals) within sixty days from the date of the communication to him of such decision or order provided that the Commissioner (Appeals) may, if he is satisfied that the appellant was prevented by sufficient cause from presenting the appeal within the aforesaid period of sixty days, allow it to be presented within a further period of thirty days. The provisions of Section 35 of the Central Excise Act, 1944 are paramateria with Section 85(3A) of the Finance Act. The Supreme Court held that the period up to which the prayer for condonation can be accepted is limited by the proviso to sub section (1) of Section 35 of the Act and the position is crystal clear that the appellate authority has no power to allow the appeal to be presented beyond the period of thirty days after the expiry period of sixty days. In other words, the appellate authority can entertain the appeal by condoning the delay only up to 30 days beyond the normal period for preferring the appeal, which is 60 days. The Commissioner (Appeals) was, therefore, justified in dismissing the appeal on the ground of limitation.

11. The decision of a learned member of the Mumbai Bench of the Tribunal in Yapp India Automotive Systems Private Limited seeks to distinguish the decision of the Supreme Court in Singh Enterprises by merely observing that the appeal that was filed before the Supreme Court was against an order of the High Court dismissing a Writ Petition under Article 226 of the Constitution and so the principles would not be applicable when the jurisdiction of the Tribunal is invoked. It is for this reason that the learned member observed that the Tribunal cannot be divested of its power to condone the delay for a period even beyond the extended period of one month.

12. We express our inability to accept this conclusion drawn by the learned member as the artificial distinction drawn by the learned member is without any basis. The decision in Yapp India Automotive Systems Private Limited is completely contrary to the law laid down by the Supreme Court. The principle of law laid down by the Supreme Court is binding on all.

13. The decision of the Supreme Court in M. P. Steel Corporation will not come to the aid of the appellant as it is in connection with Section 14 of the Limitation Act, 1963.

14. The Division Bench of the Mumbai Tribunal in Muktabai Govind Pawar held that the Tribunal would have no power to condone the delay after the expiry of the extended period of one month.

15. The Commissioner (Appeals), therefore, did not commit any illegality in dismissing the appeal. The present appeal is, therefore, dismissed.

Per: C J Mathew:

Impugned in this appeal of M/s HDFC Bank Ltd is the finding of Commissioner of Central Excise, Thane-II that the ‘mark-up’, charged by them for recovery from the holders of credit cards issued by them towards transactions entered into with overseas merchant establishments, is provider of service intended to be taxed by section 65(105)(zm) of Finance Act, 1994 for a part of the disputed period from April 2002 to April 2007 and that intended by section 65(105)(zzzw) of Finance Act, 1994 for the remaining period. The primary challenge to order in original no. 33/AC/COMMR/Th-II/ST/2014 dated 12th August 2014, confirming tax of Rs. 2,03,83,370 under section 73 of Finance Act, 1994, along with interest thereon under section 75 of Finance Act, 1994, and imposition of penalty of like amount under section 78 of Finance Act, 1994 on the appellant as provider of ‘banking or financial services’, defined in section 65 (12) of Finance Act, 1994, and as provider of ‘credit card service’, defined in section 65(33a) of Finance Act, 1994, thereafter, is that the service, having been exported, is beyond the pale of taxation and that the activity, pertaining, as it did, to conversion of foreign exchange, was not liable to tax till the incorporation of section 65(105)(zzk) in Finance Act, 1994 to tax ‘purchase and sale of foreign exchange including money changing’ with effect from 16 May 2008 or, at best, when the expanded definition of ‘credit card service’ was rendered taxable with a separate, and specific, enumeration in May 2006.

2. This dispute is before us for the second time having, on the former occasion, been remanded to the original authority vide order no. A/561/2012 dated 14th June 2012, on the application for inclusion of additional grounds, broached then for the first time in the proceedings commencing with issue of show cause notice, and that, now, are the primary grounds of challenge here. The holders of credit cards provided by the appellant, as issuing bank, procure goods and services from merchant establishments and the expenditure so incurred becomes due for payment by the holder to the appellant at the end of the agreed-upon cycle as indicated in the billing statement. The debt to the merchant establishment is transferred, at pre-determined discount, to an acquiring bank, viz., VISA or Mastercard, which is credited by the issuing bank with the invoiced amount and the said discount is split between them. In cross-border procurements, the inter-bank transaction is agreed to be effected at rates of exchange of the currencies involved that prevail on the date of the transaction and to which the issuing bank adds ‘mark-up’ while billing the holder of the credit card. It is this additional amount retained by the appellant that is bone of contention between the tax authorities and the assessee.

3. It is of interest to note that the scope of tax, as provider of 'banking or other financial service', has, during the period of dispute, undergone changes including the hiving out of 'credit cards' as separate taxable facility as elaborated by the Tribunal in Standard Chartered Bank v. Commissioner of Service Tax, Mumbai-I [2015(40) STR 104(Tri-LB). Likewise, the treatment accorded to export of services has also evolved during the period. Circular No. 36/4/2001 dated 8th October 2001 of Central Board of Excise & Customs (as it then was) clarified that statutory limits of geographical jurisdiction precluded tax on services provided beyond territorial waters while Circular No. 56/5/2003 dated 25th April 2003 of Central Board of Excise & Customs (as it then was) clarified that, notwithstanding the rescinding of notification no. 6/99-ST dated 9th April 1999, which had exempted all receipts in convertible foreign exchange from tax under Finance Act, 1994, to subject, by notification no. 2/2003-ST dated 1st March 2003, all transactions of enumerated services consumed or rendered in India to tax irrespective of currency contracted for payment, services that were exported would continue to be exempted. Thus, till the notification of Export of Service Rules, 2005, tax treatment was, by and large, determined upon the territorial aspect of the transaction.

4. Export of Service Rules, 2005, as originally issued under section 94 of Finance Act, 1994 with effect from 15th March 2005 and, in acknowledgment of the complexity of determining the stage at which intangible services cross territorial frontiers, trifurcating the taxable enumerations in the context of the target of the activity, the place of performance and the location of the recipient, was amended by notification no. 28/2005-ST dated 7th June 2005 for incorporating delivery and usage outside India as well as receipt of payment in convertible foreign exchange as conditions. Further amendments, effected by notification no. 13/2005-ST dated 19th April 2006, appropriated authority for the issuance of the Rules from section 93, besides the existing section 94, of Finance Act, 1994 while re-numbering the existing trifurcation within sub-rule (1) of rule 3 and the conditions of delivery-cum-use and payment in convertible foreign exchange under sub-rule (2) of rule 3 of Export of Service Rules, 2005.

5. These clarifications, including those issued after the disputed period, and amendments were brought to our notice by Learned Counsel in furtherance of his submissions that, for much of the period, currency of payment was irrelevant and that the activity was not 'credit card service' but 'purchase and sale of foreign exchange including money changing' that was taxable from the appellant only from 16th May 2008 by incorporation in section 65(12)(a)(iv) of Finance Act, 1994. Reliance is placed on the decision of the Tribunal in SBI Cards and Payment Services Pvt Ltd v. Commissioner of Service Tax, New Delhi [2016 (41) STR 846 (Tri-Del)], in Citibank NA v. Commissioner of Service Tax, Chennai [2009 (15) STR 727 (Tri-Chennai)] and the ratio of the decisions of the Hon’ble High Court of Bombay in Commissioner of Service Tax v. Reliance Money Express [2017 (10) TMI 853 (Bom HC)] and of the Tribunal in Paul Merchants Ltd v. Commissioner of Central Excise, Chandigarh [2013 (29) STR 257 (Tri-Del)], in Cox & Kings India Ltd v. Commissioner of Service Tax, New Delhi [2014 (35) STR 817 (Tri-Del)], and in Gati Ltd v. Commissioner of Central Excise, Hyderabad [2010 (19) STR 877 (Tri-Bang)]. The last of these, being disposal of application for stay, is not relevant to this proceeding. The irrelevance of receipts in foreign exchange has been highlighted by reference to the finding of the Tribunal in Nipuna Services Ltd v. Commissioner of Service & Tax (A-II), Hyderabad [2009 (14) STR 706 (Tri-Bang)] that upon considering the amendment effected by notification no. 2/2007-ST dated 1st March 2007 as indication that 17. The condition enumerated in sub-rule (2) are applicable to the services mentioned in sub-rule (1). This notification is effective from 1-3-2007. In other words, all the services which are mentioned in the sub-rule (1) including the services rendered by the appellant would be deemed to be treated as export of service only when the payment is received by the service provider in convertible foreign exchange. Alternatively, the appellant has to fulfill the condition of receipt of payment in convertible foreign exchange only with effect from 1-3-2007. && urged before us.

‘16. We find that the condition of payment in foreign exchange is not mentioned in Rule 3 (1). When that condition is not mentioned, there is no requirement for services enumerated in 3 (1) for receipt of payment in foreign exchange rate so as to quality (sic) as export of Foreign Service. In other words, 3 (1) and 3 (2) appear to be independent. As far as the appellant is concerned, their services would squarely fall within the category of 3 (1) and therefore, the conditions given in 3 (2) would not be applicable to them. In fine, Notification dated 19-4-2006 has not changed the position as far as the appellant is concerned.’

6. It is the contention of Learned Authorized Representative that the decision in re SBI Cards and Payment Services Pvt Ltd was, in the light of decision of the Hon’ble Supreme Court in Union of India v. West Coast Paper Mills Ltd [2004 (164) ELT 375 (SC)], in jeopardy owing to the appeal of Revenue having been admitted by the Hon’ble Supreme Court on 24th March 2017. He points out that the decision of the Tribunal in Tata Steel Ltd v. Commissioner of Service Tax, Mumbai-I [2016 (41) STR 689 (Tri-Mumbai) had distinguished the decision in re Cox & Kings India Ltd cited by Learned Counsel and had, therefore, been inappropriately relied upon in the other decisions preferred on behalf of the appellant.

7. Learned Counsel for appellant has contended that the impugned order lacks acceptability owing to being cryptic and for inadequate acknowledgement of several issues pleaded in the adjudication proceedings. Considering the submissions, and elaborately too, made before us, we think that no purpose will be served by directing the original authority to decide the matter for the third time. Before considering the merits of the rival submissions, it would be worthwhile to pause, and deliberate upon, the contention of Learned Authorized Representative that admission of an appeal deprives the decision impugned therein of status as binding precedent. Doubtlessly, the Hon’ble Supreme Court did, in re West Coast Paper Mills Ltd, take note that

'14. Article 136 of the Constitution of India confers a special power upon this Court in terms of an appeal shall lie against any order passed by a Court or Tribunal. Once a Special Leave is granted and the appeal is admitted the correctness or otherwise of the judgement of the Tribunal becomes wide open. In such an appeal, the court is entitled to go into both questions of fact as well as law. In such an event the correctness of the judgement is in jeopardy.'

but its assistance to the proposition of Revenue is not immediately obvious.

8. The architecture of appellate ascendance under Customs Act, 1962, and replicated in Central Excise Act, 1944 as well as in Finance Act, 1994, leads all the way to the highest court in the land as a statutory prerogative and the trajectory of the argument of Learned Authorized Representative would have it that, in the event of appeal before superior for a, inferior appellate bodies are not bound by their own rulings, even if in identical circumstances, and in disputes of the very same assessee. That surely goes against the grain of judicial consistency and cannot but contribute to erosion of the ideal of tax certainty. It would, therefore, appear that the context in which the Hon’ble Supreme Court did make that observation supra has been glossed over in the attempt to persuade us to discard some of the decisions of the Tribunal.

9. The dispute in re West Coast Paper Mills Ltd arose from a commercial engagement of the respondents therein with Indian Railways, as carrier of freight, that, having been placed before the Railway Rates Tribunal following revision of rates on 1st February 1964, was held to be unreasonable leading to special leave petition by the Indian Railways which was ultimately dismissed by the Hon’ble Supreme Court on 14th October 1970. A consequential application by M/s West Coast Paper Mills Ltd before the Hon’ble High Court, seeking issue of writ for refund of excess charged, was dismissed on 29th October 1973 with liberty accorded for filing of suit for recovery. The contention of Indian Railways, that these suits were barred by limitation, not having been accepted by the trial court and not having found favour with the High Court, was carried in appeal before the Hon’ble Supreme Court.

10. While considering the plea of the Indian Railways that the bar of limitation operated with reference to the date on which the Railway Rates Tribunal pronounced its order, and in accordance with section 58 of Limitation Act, 1963, the Hon’ble Supreme Court, in doubt over the correctness of the law laid down in PK KuttyAnuja Raja & another v. State of Kerala & another [JT 1996 (2) SC 167], referred the issue to a larger bench which opined that the said decision was not applicable for not having noticed certain crucial decisions and the doctrine of merger. In deciding upon the applicability of limitation, various aspects and circumstances, including the recourse to constitutional courts under writ remedies, were taken into consideration before holding that the logical, even in the absence of statutory, recourse must be completed before the ticking of the clock commenced was decided upon. Not only was the issue entirely different but even the reference to appeal rendering the order impugned being in jeopardy was not to preclude the applicability of precedent, however tentative it may be, in deciding upon a later dispute. Hence, the reliance on the decision in re West Coast Paper Mills Ltd to deprive another decision of its status as binding precedent is totally misplaced and need not concern us.

11. By issuing credit cards, a 'customer-institution' relationship between the holder and the appellant as a banking company. A Larger Bench of the Tribunal, in re Standard Chartered Bank, had, in a dispute pertaining to taxability of that component of discount charged by the 'acquiring bank' from a 'merchant establishment' which was passed on to the 'issuing bank' and designated as 'interchange fee' as consideration for providing 'banking and other financial services', occasion to consider the scope of the activities pertaining to 'credit cards' within section 65(105)(zm) of Finance Act, 1994. The assessee therein contended that the transactions of the parties, other than that of 'issuing bank' with 'card holder', are not covered by the specified constituent. The observation therein that makes it abundantly clear that the ambiguity was restricted to the transactions that is not germane to the 'card holder'-‘issuing bank' engagement and that too for the period prior to May 2006. The determination thereafter that

'26. On the basis of the above broad principles guiding interpretation including of taxing statutes we now proceed to analyse the ambit of credit card services in BOFS, the taxable service in issue. The identification of which of the transactions among the several transactions that occur during the use of a credit card, fall within the definition and enumeration of credit card services, appears to be a facially nebulous and substantially interpretative problematic issue.

27. On a literal construction of the relevant provisions it appears at first blush that any service provided to a customer by a banking company, etc. in relation to credit card services, is a taxable service. Acceptance of this construction would lead to infinite expansion of the taxable event. Not only would credit facilities provided by an issuing bank to the cardholder fall within the scope of the service but services such as receipt and processing of credit card applications; transferring of embossing data issuing bank's personalisation agency; teller machine personal identification number generation; renewal or replacement of a credit card; change of address; payment updates and an statement generation; settlement of accounts transacted through credit card; services provided by the owner of trademarks or bank name to the issuing bank for use of the trademark or brand name; and a host of other services which are interspersed in the sequence of transactions occurring on the use of a credit card, would all these services provided in relation to credit card services. These services are expressly enumerated in sub- clauses (ii), (iii), (vi) and (vii) of Section 65 (33a), w.e.f 1-5-2006...

'40. On the basis of the principles and guidance derived from aforementioned authority we are compelled to the conclusion that in the context of BOFS, credit card services cover only such services as a provided by an issuing bank to cardholder. This conclusion is fortified by the clarification issued in Board's circular dated 9-7-2001, RBI Circular dated 12-12-2003, RBI Master Circular and the express and specific statutory explication of several services which Parliament has specified the included in card services, Incorporated in the definition of card services, for the subsequent period w.e.f 1-5-2006, in Section 65 (33a)....

again leaves no room for doubt, notwithstanding such in relation to other stakeholders, as to the taxability of the transaction between 'issuing bank' and 'cardholder' as provider of 'banking and other financial services' and as provider of 'credit card service' during the period of dispute. The Tribunal, in re Citibank NA, did not appear to have been placed in possession of the several aspects, including the extract supra, that were considered by the Larger Bench. In the circumstances, the sole issue remaining for consideration is the inclusion of recovery, over and above the reimbursement effected to the 'acquiring bank', by the 'issuing bank' from the 'card holder' which brings it within the scope of section 67 of Finance Act, 1994.

12. The amount recovered from the 'card holder', to the extent paid out by 'issuing bank' to 'acquiring bank', is not in dispute. The claim made on behalf of the appellant is that the 'mark-up' is also an element of the 'foreign exchange' rate for conversion of the invoice amount to Indian currency. This submission does not find favour as this 'mark-up' is, demonstrably, not shown separately, either as exchange rate or additionally, in the statement issued to the 'card holder'. Exchange rate for reimbursement to 'acquiring bank' is contractually enshrined and, in the absence of any other cost associated with the conversion taxation to be borne by the 'issuing bank', is not an element of the rate for conversion of the invoice amount to domestic currency. The amount charged by the appellant from the 'card holder' is in excess of the purchase price contracted with the 'member establishment' for the goods or service transacted and as the 'issuing bank' escapes tax liability only to the extent of the purchase price, the 'mark-up' represents consideration for a service. This is, thus, liable to tax except if the consideration was, as claimed by Learned Counsel, transacted for export of service.

13. It is contended by Learned Counsel that an identical dispute was settled in favour of assessee by the Tribunal in re SBI Cards and Payments Services Ltd and followed in re Citibank NA. In the first of the two, it is seen that the appeal was allowed with the finding that which was arrived at with reference to decision of the Larger Bench in re Standard Chartered Bank and in re Cox & Kings India Ltd. We take note that, in re Standard Chartered Bank, the specific findings of the Tribunal on the 'interchange fee' appears to have been argued without drawing the attention to the elucidation of the unambiguous element of 'banking and other financial services' therein. Relying upon the congruity of the fact that the location of the recipient of service in the impugned purchase transactions and in the outbound tour impugned in re Cox & Kings India Ltd was, indisputably, outside India, the contention of the assessee that the service had been exported was accepted. The correctness of the decision in re Cox & Kings India Ltd, relied upon for excluding tax liability, was doubted by a coordinate bench of the Tribunal in the appeal of M/s Cox & Kings India Ltd against order-in-original no. 34/ST/SB/2011-12 dated 12th March 2012 of Commissioner of Central Excise & Service Tax, Mumbai and is yet to be settled. Furthermore, as pointed out by Learned Authorized Representative, the location at which the taxable service was used had been held to be irrelevant by the Tribunal in re Tata Steel Ltd, by a majority of two to one consequent upon reference to Third Member arising from difference of opinion between the constituents of the original Division Bench which did not extend to the applicability of the decision in re Cox & Kings India Ltd. Its precedential value appears to have been limited to 'outbound tours' in which the recipient of the enumerated service was outside India when the service was provided. We have no reason, therefore, to follow these decisions and are required to consider the merit of the submissions independently.

13. Considering the above discussion and findings we hold that the mark up charges accruing to the appellant when cardholder uses card to pay in foreign exchange abroad is not liable to service tax under 'Credit Card Services' during the impugned period. This conclusion is based on merit of scope of 'Credit Card Services' during the relevant period and lack of jurisdiction of charge.'

14. We are not familiar with the facts and circumstances of the dispute in re SBI Cards and Payments Services Ltd and in re Citibank NA. If the proposition put forth on behalf the appellants that transactions occurring outside India are outside the jurisdictional coverage of Finance Act, 1994 because the service has been exported is to be accepted, it must also be shown that the 'card holder' was on foreign soil when the card was used. In the digitalized economy, physical presence at the premises of a 'merchant establishment' is not of essence. We find nothing on record that the impugned transactions were undertaken outside the country. Further, from the elaborate discussion in re Standard Chartered Bank, it is also made clear that the overt sale and purchase between 'card holder' and 'member establishment' is a sequence of 'behind the scenes' series of services from which the price of the sale is outside the pale of tax. None of these occur at the precise moment of the overt transaction and, therefore, must be adjudged on the performance thereof; only then can the principle of 'destination based consumption tax' find its true fulfilment. The billing occurs in India as does the payment to the 'issuing bank', and even the 'rate of exchange', though relevant to the date of transaction, is applied only when the 'acquiring bank' debits the 'issuing bank'; the impugned transaction can only be subsequent to it. There is no evidence on record that the recipient of 'banking and other financial service’, by being the ‘card holder’ was not in India when those services were rendered. The presumption of the ‘card holder’ being located outside the taxable jurisdiction is a stretch too close to the breaking point.

15. In the intangible world of service transactions, the location of recipient and flow of consideration in foreign currency are sure demonstration of exports. In the present dispute, there is no doubt that the recipients are domestically based and the claim of overcoming the first test by temporary location overseas is but a poor excuse. Learned Counsel submits that, for the entire period of the dispute, repatriation of consideration in convertible foreign currency, was not a necessary qualification. Notification no. 6/99-ST dated 9th April 1999, circular no. 36/4/2001 dated 8th October 2001 of Central Board of Excise & Customs and notification no. 2/2003-ST dated 1st March 2003 do not address exemption to export of services but with taxability when the services are rendered in India even though clarifying for exemption, or otherwise, in the circumstances narrated therein. This is apparent from circular no. 56/5/2003 dated 25th April 2003 of Central Board of Excise & Customs which distinguishes exports for exemption despite domestic rendition of services being taxable even if transacted in convertible foreign currency. The essential qualification of export is the delivery thereof outside the territory of India and, in the absence of palpable markers, there can be no alternative to receipt of consideration in foreign currency as the underlying condition even if not articulated specifically. It was only with the notification of Export of Service Rules, 2005 that legislative silence on the means of acknowledgment was broken. Even then, it did not purport to grant exemption which was invoked only by Export of Services (Amendment) Rules, 2006 with the insertion of section 93 of Finance Act, 1994 as one of the empowering provisions. It would, therefore, appear that the Export of Service Rules, 2005, as originally issued, was intended to enable refunds under rule 5 of CENVAT Credit Rules, 2004 and extended to exempt exports from tax upon the incorporation of taxability of services rendered in the reverse direction. Therefore, there is no statutory basis for arriving at the conclusion that delivery of service outside the tax jurisdiction could be established without corresponding inflow of convertible foreign currency.

16. The dispute in re Nipuna Services Ltd arose from a claim for refund of tax paid on input services used by the appellant therein for rendering services through its agent who received consideration in foreign exchange which was passed on to the provider of service after conversion. It was held therein by the Tribunal that it was only after the Export of Service (Amendment) Rules, 2007 had been notified that receipt in foreign currency was a necessary requirement in qualifying as ‘export’ for the purposes of rule 5 of CENVAT Credit Rules, 2004. That is not the issue in the present appeal which is solely on the controversy of exemption of the service that is claimed to have been exported from the jurisdiction of tax. The ‘mark-up’ charged by the appellant is neither received nor billed in convertible foreign currency and such being the determinant, along with location, for the rendering of service outside the tax jurisdiction, the claim of the appellant to be exempt from tax fails.

17. The complexity of exports and the lack of distinguishment for exports during much of the period of dispute is obvious from our exposition supra and it may not be unnatural for an assessee to resort to superficial interpretation without intention to evade tax. We also find that the show cause notice, and the impugned order, lack convincing evidence of suppression or misrepresentation and, in the circumstances of discharge of tax liability, along with interest, for the period of dispute, it would have been appropriate for the proceedings to have terminated under section 73(3) of Finance Act, 1994 without issue of show cause notice. The imposition of penalty under section 78 of Finance Act, 1994 is not merited.

18. We, therefore, allow the appeal to the extent of setting aside the penalties.

I. Show Cause Notice issued under F.No STII/ Audit/Gr.6/98/SITV/11-12/Pt.I dated 08.04.2013 amounting to Rs 3,94,10,566/- for the period
April 2008 to June 2012

48.1(a) I confirm, in terms of Section 73(2) of the Finance Act, 1994, the demand of Service Tax of Rs 3,94,10,566/- (Rupees Three Crore Ninety Four Lakhs Ten Thousand Five Hundred and Sixty Six Only) made in the Show Cause Notice, as payable by/ recoverable from M/s Sahara India T V Network, Mumbai 400104.

48.2(a) I order recovery of interest at the appropriate rate, on the amount confirmed at par 48.1(a) above from the due date(s) under the provisions of Section 75 of the Finance Act, 1994, from M/s Sahara India T V Network, Mumbai 400104. 48.3(a) I impose penalty of Rs 10,000/- (Rupees Ten Thousand Only) under Section 77 of the M/s Sahara India T V Network, Mumbai 400104.

48.4(a) M/s Sahara India T V Network, Mumbai 400104, shall also pay appropriate late fee for each return at the rate specified in Rule 7C of the Service Tax Rules, 1994 during the relevant period, subject to a maximum of Rs 20,000/- (Rupees Twenty Thousand only), specified under Section 70 of the Finance Act, 1994, for their failure to file periodical returns.

48.5(a) I impose penalty of Rs 3,94,10,566/- (Rupees Three Crore Ninety Four Lakhs Ten Thousand Five Hundred and Sixty Six Only) on M/s Sahara India T V Network, Mumbai 400104, under Section 78 of the Finance Act, 1994

II. Statement of Demand/SCN under Section 73(1A) of The Finance Act, 1994 issued under F.No ST-II/Dn- IV/Gr.II/Shara/04/EA2000/SCN12-13/2013-14 dated 07.04.2014 amounting to Rs 1,41,31,667/- for the period June 2012 to June 2013

48.1(b) I confirm, in terms of Section 73(2) of the Finance Act, 1994, the demand of Service Tax of Rs 1,41,31,667/- (Rupees One Crore Forty One Lakhs Thirty One Thousand Six Hundred and Sixty Seven Only) made in the Show Cause Notice, as payable by/ recoverable from M/s Sahara India T V Network, Mumbai 400104.

48.2(a) I order recovery of interest at the appropriate rate, on the amount confirmed at par 48.1(b) above from the due date(s) under the provisions of Section 75 of the Finance Act, 1994, from M/s Sahara India T V Network, Mumbai 400104.

48.3(a) I impose penalty of Rs 10,000/- (Rupees Ten Thousand Only) under Section 77 of M/s Sahara India T V Network, Mumbai 400104.

48.4(b) I impose penalty under Section 76 of the Finance Act, 1994, which shall be,-

i) One hundred rupees for every day during which such failure continues or

ii) At the rate of two per cent of such tax, per month, Whichever is higher, starting with the first day after the due date till the date of actual payment of the outstanding amount of service tax, provided that the total amount of the penalty payable in terms of this section shall not exceed fifty percent of the service tax payable."

2.1 Appellants are registered with the department and are providing various taxable services namely "broadcasting services", "business auxiliary services", "renting of immovable property services", "erection, commissioning and installation services", "advertising services" and "manpower recruitment/ supply agency services".

2.2 During the course of EA 2000 audit it was observed that they had incurred expenditure in foreign currency towards the services received from M/s Asia Satellite Telecommunication Company Ltd, Hong Kong (AsiaSat) for providing C-Band Transponder on Asisset-3S Satellite, as per the agreement commencing from 15.06.2005.

2.3 The said transponder was used for uplinking the programme to be broadcasted to the satellite and the same was essential for broadcasting operations. Appellant were uplinking the programmes from the teleport situated at their complex in NOIDA. The satellite transformer was an infrastructural requirement for providing the broadcasting services. The aforesaid activity of providing the C-Band Transponder, appeared to be provision of an infrastructural support to the business of the appellant i.e. broadcast of T V channel, and the service was appropriately classifiable as "Support Services for Business or Commerce" as defined under Section 65(105)(zzzq) of the Finance Act, 1994.

2.4 Since AsiaSat was not having any establishment in India, Appellant was required to discharge the service tax liability as recipient of the services as per Section 66A of the Finance Act, 1994 read with Rule 3(iii) of the Taxation of Services (Provided from outside India and received in India) Rules, 2006.

2.5 By not discharging the service tax liability in respect of the services so received by them appellant had contravened various provisions of Finance Act, 1994 and Service Tax Rules, 1994. Thus a Show Cause Notice dated 08.04.2013 was issued to them asking them to show cause as to why:-

- Service tax amounting to Rs 3,94,10,566/- not paid by them in respect of the said services received by them during the period April 2008 to June 2012 should not be demanded and recovered from them by invoking proviso to Section 73(1) of the Finance Act, 1994;

- Interest on the amounts of service tax not paid by the due date be not demanded and recovered at appropriate rate as per Section 75 of the Finance Act, 1994

- Penalty under Section 77 and 78 of the Finance Act, 1994 should not be imposed on them.

2.6 For the subsequent period June 2012 to June 2013, a statement of demand as per Section 73(1A) dated 07.04.20014 was issued for demanding and recovering service tax amounting to Rs 1,41,31,667/- along with interest under Section 75 and for imposition of penalty under Section 76 and 77 of the Finance Act, 1994.

2.7 Show Cause Notice dated 8.04.2013 and Statement of Demand dated 7.04.2014 were adjudicated by the Commissioner as per the impugned order referred in para 1, supra.

2.8 Aggrieved by the impugned order, Appellant have preferred these appeals.

3.1 We have heard Shri S.S. Gupta, Chartered Accountant for the Appellants and Shri Suresh Merugu, Joint Commissioner, Authorized Representative for the revenue.

3.2 Arguing for the appellant learned Chartered Accountant submitted that-

- Service provided to them by AsiaSat are very specialized services which cannot be carried out by the appellant themselves;

- The category of taxable service i.e. Business Support Service is only for the activities which are outsourced by the organization and are in the nature of routine transaction of business as per the clarifications given in a) Circular No 334/4/2006-TRU dated 28.02.2006, b) Circular No 159/10/2012-ST dated 16.06.2012 and c) Circular No 109/3/2009-ST dated 23.02.2009.

- In the present case they have obtained space in transponder from the third party as this activity could not have been carried out in house. Thus availing space on the transponder cannot be said to be outsourced service, which could be levied to service tax under the category of business support services;

- By application of principle of ejusdem generis, the phrase “infrastructure support service” in the definition, should be interpreted to include the services which are in nature of supporting sales, purchase, transaction processing and accounting;

- As per explanation to 65(104c) and CBEC Circular No 334/1/2006-TRU dated 28.02.2006, office shall be provided along with various facilities in order to attract service tax under the category of infrastructure support service. This view is also as per the decisions in following cases

  o Air Liquid North India (P) Ltd [2017 (4) GSTL 230 (TDel)]
  o Mundra Port & Special Economic Zone Ltd [2012 (27) STR 171 (T-Ahm)]

- M/s AsiaSat has transferred the “right to use” of transponder, hence no service tax is payable. As per clause (d) to Article 366(29A) of the Constitution of India, such transaction of transfer of right to use is deemed to be sale and thus not leviable to service tax. In case of Imagic Creative Ltd [2008 (9) STR 337 (SC)] it has been held that if the transaction is considered as “sale”, it cannot be considered as “service”.

- Hon’ble Karnataka High Court has in case of Antrix Corporation Ltd held that leasing of transponder of INSAT Satellites amounts to transfer of right to use the goods. Hence, their agreement with AsiaSat is a transaction for sale and no service tax is payable.

- There is duplication of demand as the demand of same service tax in respect of the payments made to AsiaSat was also made by Commissioner Central Excise NOIDA. The demand confirmed is under challenge before CESTAT Allahabad. Parallel proceedings cannot be pursued for the same matter pertaining to the same period as per the following decisions

  o Paro Food Products [2005 (184) ELT 50 (T-Bang)]
  o Solitaire Machine Tools Ltd [2008 (222) ELT 404 (T-Ahmd)]

- Once CESTAT has confirmed the order and upheld the jurisdiction of the NOIDA Commissionerate in the matter then the same service cannot be also taxed by the Mumbai Commissionerate or else it will lead to parallel jurisdiction with different officers having different view.

- It is not mandatory for the Bench to follow the judgement given on the same matter by another Bench of the CESTAT if the new evidence has been brought to light which was missing in that case.
- Since the amount of service tax sought to be demanded from them on principle of reverse charge shall be available to them as CENVAT Credit the demand is totally revenue neutral. Since it is revenue neutral the invocation of extended period of limitation for making the demand cannot be sustained as per the following decisions:

  o Nirlon Ltd [2015 (320) ELT 22 (SC)]
  o Tenneco RC India Pvt Ltd [2015 (323) ELT 299 (Mad)]
  o Coca Cola India Pvt Ltd [2007 (213) ELT 490 (SC)]

- Since the issue is in relation to interpretation of statue and appellant has reasonable cause for non-payment of service tax imposition of penalties cannot be justified.

3.3 Arguing for the revenue learned Authorized representative submitted that-

- All the pleadings advanced by the Appellant counsel in the matter were also advanced by them before the Allahabad bench of CESTAT in respect of similar proceedings undertaken in respect of the Noida branch. Rejecting the argument on merits tribunal has confirmed the demand for normal period.

- The agreement under consideration has been entered between AsiaSat and Sahara India Commercial Corporation Limited (Appellant is a unit of SICCL) Goregaon, Mumbai for the period 2010 to 2015. - The payments as per the agreement were made from the appellants office at Mumbai.

- No notice after the first Show Cause Notice except the one covering the period from 2007-2011 has been issued by NOIDA authorities.

- Reliance is placed on the decisions as follows:

  o Hospital Mazdoor Sabha & Others [(1960) 2 SCR 866]
  o Indus Towers Limited [2014 (35) STR 459 (Del)]
  o Indus Tower Limited [2017 (52) STR J81 9SC]
  o Indus Tower Ltd [2012 (285) ELT 3 (Kar)] o Tower Vision India Pvt Ltd [2016 (42) STR 249 (TLB)]
  o Essar Telecom Infrastructure Pvt Ltd [2015 (40) STR 591 (T-Mum)]
  o Sahara India TV Network [Final Order No 71339/2018 dated 5.07.2018 of CESTAT Allahabad Bench.]

4.1 We have considered the impugned order along with the submissions made in appeal and during the course of arguments on appeal.

4.2 The matter was earlier heard by the co-ordinate bench and written submissions dated-

- 10th October 2018 and 29th October 2018 were made by the appellant counsel;
- 18.12.2018 were made by the learned Authorized Representative; These written submissions have also been taken on record while considering the matter.

4.3.1 Appellants have during the course of hearing submitted a chart showing the duplication of demand by way of Show Cause Notice issued by NOIDA Commissionerate and that issued by the Mumbai Commissionerate. We reproduce the relevant extract of chart as produced by the appellant counsel below:

4.3.2

Counsel for the appellants have submitted that the there has been duplication of demand, as indicated above and in the case CESTAT Allahabad, has by deciding the issue in respect of these demands conferred the jurisdiction in respect of this issue to the Noida Commissionerate. Hence the demands made by Mumbai Service Tax Commissionerate are not sustainable in respect of the same issue.

4.3.2 We have seen the order of CESTAT Allahabad, [Final Order No 71339/2018 dated 5.07.2018]. In the said order we do not find any such plea of jurisdiction being raised or being considered by the tribunal. Even if CESTAT Allahabad has passed the said order it cannot be said that they have conferred the jurisdiction in respect of the issue to Noida Commissionerate.

4.3.3

In case of multiple registrations of the same entity in different jurisdictions each jurisdiction in which the unit/ person is registered is having jurisdiction over the transactions entered into by the unit/ registrant in that jurisdiction. Commissioner has in para 28 &29 of his order recorded as follows:

"28. The noticee has also stated that similar service received by M/s Sahara India TV Network, Noida registered separately as Service Tax assessee at Noida has been classified under Business Support Service for the purposes of levy of Service Tax and accordingly the Commissioner of Central Excise an Service Tax, Noida confirmed the demand of Service Tax for the Service Tax registration pertaining to Noida vide Order in Original No 08/Commissioner Noida/2013-14 dated 17.06.2013 on the following grounds:-

- The services provided by AsiaSat are of infrastructural support to the business of TV Channel

- Admittedly, Broadcasting cannot be done without uplinking to the satellite.

- The transponder of AsiaSat is an infrastructural requirement which allows TV Channels to be viewed.

- The definition of Business Support Services clearly states that the support service provided in relation to Business or Commerce, in any manner is covered under this service.

29. The noticee have contended that service tax amounting to Rs 23,992,295/- was demanded both by Noida and Mumbai authorities. AsiaSat issued invoices to Sahara India Commercial Corporation Limited, Sahara India T V Network, Noida quoting the PAN Number as AADCA7848N. The PAN Number for the purpose of Service Tax registration at Mumbai is AADCS6118F. Service Tax registration numbers of NOIDA and Mumbai are different. Therefore the contention that demand of Rs 23,92,295/- is common in the SCNs issued at Mumbai and Noida is without basis and is not sustainable”

4.3.4 We have perused the invoices issued by AsiaSat against which the demand of Service tax has been made in the present case. The details as they appear on invoices are tabulated below:
4.3.5 From the facts as they emerge from the Table in para 4.3.4, it is quite evident that in respect of the invoices mentioned at Sl No 1 to 14, the address indicated of the service recipient shown on invoices is that of Mumbai and not of Noida. When the appellant themselves recognize that these services are being received by them for providing the Broadcasting Services from their registered premises at Mumbai, the issue of jurisdiction needs to be decide accordingly.

4.3.6 We have also examined the ST-2 certificates of Appellant issued from Mumbai, as per the ST-2 certificate issued Address of the Business Premises is same as that indicated on the invoices. Interestingly, though Appellants had taken centralized registration at Noida, they have not indicated said business premise in ST-2 certificate issued at Noida. The business premise in Mumbai from where they were providing the taxable services including the Broadcasting Services was indicated as "Sahara India TV Network, B-12, 1st Floor, Ghanshyam Chamber, Opp City Mall, New Link Road, Lokhandwala, Andheri (West), Mumbai. Address of the premises or office paying service tax under centralized billing or centralized accounting under sub-rule (2) and (3A) of rule 14 of the Service Tax Rules, 1994 on the ST-2 certificate issued from Noida is indicated as "Sahara India Complex, C-2, C-3, C-4, Sector 11, Noida." While the ST-2 Certificate at Mumbai was issued on 01.01.2002 and last amended on 19.09.2004, that issued at Noida was issued on 16.09.2006 and last amended on 29.01.2014. These facts clearly show the existence of the premises indicated on the invoices issued by M/s AsiaSat and mentioned at Sl No 1 to 14 as separate registrant for the purpose of providing taxable service and registered in the jurisdiction of Mumbai Commissionerate. In our view the jurisdiction in respect of these 14 invoices to demand service tax on reverse charge basis vests with the Mumbai Commissionerate only. In respect of the invoices mentioned at Sl No 15, 16 & 17 which are in the name of the appellants registered premises as per the registration certificate issued by the Noida Commissionerate the jurisdiction will vest with the Noida Commissionerate, accordingly demand in respect of these invoices made by the Mumbai Commissionerate needs to be deleted.

4.3.7 Counsel for the appellant have relied upon the decision of Hon’ble Apex Court in case of Sayed Ali [2011 (265) ELT 17 (SC)] to argue that for exercising power, the officer should have proper jurisdiction, if there is no jurisdiction then it cannot issue show cause notice. The relevant para of the said decision is reproduced below:

"14. From a conjoint reading of Sections 2(34) and 28 of the Act, it is manifest that only such a customs officer who has been assigned the specific functions of assessment and re-assessment of duty in the jurisdictional area where the import concerned has been affected, by either the Board or the Commissioner of Customs, in terms of Section 2(34) of the Act is competent to issue notice under Section 28 of the Act. Any other reading of Section 28 would render the provisions of Section 2(34) of the Act otiose in as much as the test contemplated under Section 2(34) of the Act is that of specific conferment of such functions. Moreover, if the Revenue's contention that once territorial jurisdiction is conferred, the Collector of Customs (Preventive) becomes a "proper officer" in terms of Section 28 of the Act is accepted, it would lead to a situation of utter chaos and confusion, in as much as all officers of customs, in a particular area be it under the Collectorate of Customs (Imports) or the Preventive Collectorate, would be "proper officers". In our view therefore, it is only the officers of customs, who are assigned the functions of assessment, which of course, would include re-assessment, working under the jurisdictional Collectorate within whose jurisdiction the bills of entry or baggage declarations had been filed and the consignments had been cleared for home consumption, will have the jurisdiction to issue notice under Section 28 of the Act."

In our view the said decision do not help the cause of the appellants because in respect of the premises, registered with the Mumbai Service Tax Commissionerate, the power to assess was vested with the Mumbai Commissioner only and hence the proceedings initiated against the appellant by Commissioner in Mumbai cannot be faulted with.

4.4.1 On merits of the issue appellants have argued that services rendered by M/s AsiaSat do not qualify to be Business Support Services as defined by the 65(105)(zzzq) of the Finance Act, 1994. The definition as incorporated in the Finance Act, 1994 is reproduced below:

"Section 65(104c) of the Finance Act, 1994

"Support Services of Business or Commerce" means services provided in relation to business or commerce and includes evaluation of prospective customers, telemarketing, processing of purchase orders and fulfilment services, information and tracking of delivery schedules, managing distribution and logistics, customer relationship management services, accounting and processing of transactions, operational assistance for marketing, formulation of customer service and pricing policies, infrastructural support services and other transaction processing.

Explanation -For the purposes of this clause, the expression "infrastructural support services" includes providing office along with office utilities, lounge, reception with competent personnel to handle messages, secretarial services, internet and telecom facilities, pantry and security;

Section 65 (105) (zzzq) of the Finance Act, 1994

"Taxable Service" means any service provided or to be provided to any person, by any other person, in relation to support services of business or commerce, in any manner;"

4.4.2 Revenue has sought to classify the said service under this category by holding that the service provided by the AsiaSat to the Appellant is "infrastructural support services". Commissioner has in his order in para 17 to 23 of impugned order Commissioner has observed as follows:

"17 The Show Cause Notice alleges that the activity undertaken is provision of infrastructural support under "Business Support Services." The noticee have contended that they have not received an infrastructural facilities like those mentioned in above Explanation and therefore, they are not liable to pay Service Tax under the category of infrastructural support services classifiable under Business Support Services.

18. In the instant case, the noticee have hired C-band transponder of AsiaSat-3S satellite for uplinking of the programmes to be broadcasted, i.e., to support their business of Broadcasting Services provided by them. It is an admitted fact that without uplinking of the programmes with the support of C-band capacity provided by AsiaSat satellite space, the Broadcasting services provided by the noticee cannot be done. Therefore I am inclined to examine whether the services received by the noticee get covered under the definition of Business Support Services as defined under Section 65(104c) and as classifiable under Section 65(105)(zzzq) of the Finance Act, 1994 in the nature of infrastructural support.

19. As can be seen, the expression “includes” in the above explanation clearly establishes that the definition of “infrastructural support services” itself is exhaustive and those infrastructural support services which are contentious are specified/ explained in the further inclusive part. Therefore, the expression “infrastructural support services” mentioned in the definition itself is adequate to cover the activities received by the noticee. The essential criteria to be satisfied for classification under the said service is that it should support the business or commerce of the recipient and the emphasis is on “in any manner”.

20. CBEC circular issued under D O F No 334/4/2006-TRU dated 28.02.2006 explains the scope of the said service as under:

"3.13 BUSINESS SUPPORT SERVICES: Business entities outsource a number of services for use in business or commerce. These services include transaction processing, routine administration or accountancy, customer relationship management and tele-marketing. There are also business entities which provide infrastructural support such as providing instant offices along with secretarial assistance known as "Business Centre Services". It is proposed to tax all such outsourced services. If these services are provided on behalf of a person, they are already taxed under Business Auxiliary Service. Definition of support services of business or commerce gives indicative list of outsourced services."

21. The CBEC vide Circular No 109/3/2009-ST dated 23.02.2009 further clarified that Business Support Service is a generic service of providing support to the business or commerce of the service receiver. In other words, the principal activity is to be undertaken by the client while the service received is to support the business or commerce of the recipient.

Thus the infrastructural support services are those services which are often outsourced and used for the business activity undertaken by the client.

22. In the instant case, the noticee applied for and obtained Service Tax registration for providing Broadcasting service. The noticee entered into an agreement with M/s Asia Satellite for hiring C-band transponder on AsiaSat 3S satellite. The said transponder was meant for use for uplinking the programme to be broadcasted. In other words, the noticee outsourced the space in C-band transponder for provision of Broadcasting Service. The noticee is entitled to treat the said service as input service used for providing the output service namely Broadcasting service. The Noticee have not denied having received the services and their use for providing the output services. In fact, the output service could not have been provided without the support service.

4.4.3 Appellants have argued that the services provided to them by M/s AsiaSat are specialized services without which the Broadcasting would be impossible. These services cannot be called as outsourced service or infrastructural support service, for classification of these service under the category of Business Support Services. They further stated that the phrase “infrastructure support service” used while defining the “Business Support Service” should be interpreted along with the other terms used in definition by application of principle of “ejusdem generis” or “noscitur a sociis” (Reliance placed on Hon’ble Apex Court decision in case of Siddheshwari Cotton Mills (P) Ltd [1989 (39) ELT 498 (SC)]). It is thus their argument that such specialized service provided by M/s AsiaSat, cannot be covered by phrase “infrastructure support service”, as used in the definition clause.
4.4.4 We have considered the argument of the appellant. However we do not find ourselves to be in agreement with what is stated by them. The principle of “ejusdem generis” and “noscitur a sociis” are essentially principle of construction of the statue, provide that the words used in a statue should be interpreted along with the words in company which they occur i.e. the word occurring together derive the colour from each other. This essentially mean that the word which are more general in nature get restricted by the other words used therein. However the said principles are not applicable when the words used in the statute are simple plain and clear. Hon'ble Supreme Court has in case of Hospital Mazdoor Sabha & Others [(1960) 2 SCR 865] in para 9 held as follows:

"It is, however, contended that, in construing the definition, we must adopt the rule of construction noscuntur a sociis. This rule, according to Maxwell, means that, when two or more words which are susceptible of analogous meaning are coupled together they are understood to be used in their cognate sense. They take as it were their colour from each other, that is, the more general is restricted to a sense analogous to a less general. The same rule is thus interpreted in "Words and Phrases" (Vol. XIV, P. 207): "Associated words take their meaning from one another under the doctrine of noscuntur a sociis, the philosophy of which is that the meaning of a doubtful word may be ascertained by reference to the meaning of words associated with it; such doctrine is broader than the maxim Ejusdem Generis." In fact the latter maxim "is only an illustration or specific application of the broader maxim noscuntur a sociis ".

The argument is that certain essential features or attributes are invariably associated with the words “business and trade” as understood in the popular and conventional sense, and it is the colour of these attributes which is taken by the other words used in the definition though their normal import may be much wider. We are not impressed by this argument. It must be borne in mind that noscuntur a sociis is merely a rule of construction and it cannot prevail in cases where it is clear that the wider words have been deliberately used in order to make the scope of the defined word correspondingly wider. 1 is only where the intention of the Legislature is associating wider words with words of narrow significance is doubtful, or otherwise not clear that the present rule of construction can be useful applied. It can also be applied where the meaning of the words of wider import is doubtful but, where the object of the Legislature in using wider words is clear and free of ambiguity, the rule of construction in question cannot be pressed into service. As has been observed by Earl of Halsbury, L. C., in The Corporation of Glasgow v. Glasgow Tramway an Omnibus Co. Ltd. (1), in dealing with the wider word used in s. 6 of Valuation of Lands (Scotland) Act, 1854 “the words ‘free from all expenses whatever in connection with the said tramways’ appear to me to be so wide in their application that I should have thought it impossible to qualify or cut them down by their being associated with other words on the principle of their being ejusdem generis with the previous words enumerated”. If the object and scope -of the statute are considered there would be no difficulty in holding that the relevant words of wide import have been deliberately used by the Legislature in defining “industry” in section 2(j). The object of the Act was to make provision for the investigation and settlement of industrial disputes, and the extent and scope of its provisions would be realised if we bear in mind the definition of “industrial dispute ” given by Section 2(k), of “wages” by Section 2(rr), “workman” by Section 2(s), and of “employer” by Section 2(g). Besides, the definition of public utility service prescribed by s. 2(m) is very significant. One has merely to glance at the six categories of public utility service mentioned by Section 2(m) to realise that the rule of construction on which the appellant relies is inapplicable in interpreting the definition prescribed by Section 2(m)."

In the Siddheshwari Cotton Mills (P) Ltd [1989 (39) ELT 498 (SC)], Hon'ble Supreme Court has applied the principle of "Ejusdem Generesis" for interpreting the phrase like "or any other process" as is evident from the para 8 of the decision reproduced below:

"8. The preceding words in the statutory provision which, under this particular rule of construction, control and limit the meaning of the subsequent words must represent a genus or a family which admits of a number of species or members. If there is only one species it cannot supply the idea of a genus.
In the present case the expressions bleaching, mercerising, dyeing, printing, water-proofing, rubberising, shrink-proofing, organdie processing which precede the expression ‘or any other process’ contemplate processes which impart a change of a lasting character to the fabric by either the addition of some chemical into the fabric or otherwise. ‘Any other process’ in the section must, share one or the other of these incidents. The expression “any other process” is used in the context of what constitutes manufacture in its extended meaning and the expression “unprocessed” in the exempting notification draws its meaning from that context. The principle of construction considered appropriate by the Tribunal in this case appears to us to be unsupportable in the context in which the expression “or any other process” has to be understood.”

It is not the case herein wherein separate identifiable words have been used in the definition clause. Hence following the decision of Hospital Mazdoor Sabha, supra we hold that the said principles of “Noscitur a Sociis” and “Ejusdem Generis” to be not applicable in the present case.

4.4.5 Relying on the explanation to Section 65(104c) and the decision of the tribunal in the case of Air Liquide North India (P) Ltd [2017 (4) GSTL 230 (T-Del)] and Dish TV India Ltd [2015 (38) STR 857 (T-Del)] appellants have argued that for the service to be considered as “infrastructural support service”, office should have been provided along with various other facilities. In the decision of Air Liquide North India, CESTAT has held as follows:

“10. The appellants strongly pleaded that the scope of infrastructure support as mentioned under tax entry ‘business support service’ will not cover the present case. Reliance was placed on the explanation to state that the nature of activities which are to be generally considered as infrastructural service can be ascertained from such inclusive definition. These are mainly administrative and office related support. The type of activities like putting up and managing gas storage facility in industrial unit are not fitting into overall scope of the infrastructural support service as contemplated by the inclusive definition given in the explanation. We note that though the activities of the appellant, can be brought under very generic understanding of infrastructure support, when examined with statutory scope as per explanation indicating nature of services which are to be brought under tax net than it would appear that the present activity will not get covered under the said tax entry. We also take note that in legal interpretation, there are situation where the word ‘includes’ in certain context be a word of limitation (South Gujarat Roofing Tiles Manufactures- 1997 (1) SCR 878). In certain situations the nature of included items would not only partake of the character of the whole, but may be construed as clarificatory of the whole. In the present case even considering the explanation for infrastructural support service is only defined in an inclusive way, still it will not be incorrect to hold such inclusive definition will throw light upon what are all the nature of services which are sought to be taxed.”

In our view the said decision do not lay down that office should be provided as must for the service to be classified under the category of “infrastructure support service”. Nor do the explanation to Section 65(104c) state so. In the case of South Gujarat Roofing Tiles Manufactures, relied upon by the bench while passing the said decision, Hon’ble Supreme Court was interpreting the entry 22 of Minimum Wages Act, 1948 and held that the items included in it were plainly comprised in the expression ‘potteries industry’ which showed that the word ‘includes’ was not to extend the normal meaning of this expression. The conclusion was that the word includes was used in the explanation in the sense of ‘means’ and the definition provided by the explanation was exhaustive. From the explanation, it is evident that “infrastructure support service” has been defined using the phrase “includes” and not the word, “means”. Hon’ble Supreme Court has in case of Rajasthan Texchem Ltd held as follows:

“…..The word includes gives a wider meaning to the words or phrases in the Statute. The word includes is usually used in the interpretation clause in order to enlarge the meaning of the words in the statute. When the word include is used in the words or phrases, it must be construed as comprehending not only such things as they signify according to their nature and impact but also those things which the interpretation clause declares they shall include……”

4.4.6 Appellants have argued that in this case they were granted the right to use the C-Band Transponder and hence in view of Article 366(29A)(d) such transfer of right to use amounts to transaction of sale and cannot be taxed as service. We have perused the agreement between the Appellant and M/s AsiaSat. In the said agreement following has been provided:

"2. TRANSPOUNDER CAPACITY

2.1 AsiaSat hereby agrees to make available the Transponder Capacity for the Permitted Facilities to the Customer during the Term and the Customer hereby agrees to comply with the terms of this Agreement.

2.3 (a) The Customer will follow practices and procedures established by the ITU for frequency coordination and will not do anything to the Transponder Capacity in any manner that would harm the Transponder Capacity or cause interference to any other transponder capacities on the Satellite, or any other satellites. The Customer shall configure, equip and operate its transmit earth facilities to conform to the technical parameters of the Satellite, and to follow AsiaSat's procedures for transmission to the Satellite as set out in Annex 1 (as may be revised from time to time to conform with ITU regulations and recommendations). The Customer shall be responsible for the acts and omissions of any third parties that it retains for such transmission.

(b) The Customer shall prior to being availed of Transponder Capacity provide AsiaSat with the Customer's written transmission plans in sufficient detail to enable AsiaSat to ensure that the availability of the Transponder Capacity to the Customer does not or will not cause interference with other customers on the satellite or other satellites nor adversely affect AsiaSat's ability to co-ordinate the satellite with other satellite operators. Following receipt of such details, AsiaSat shall promptly notify the Customer in writing whether the transmission plans are acceptable to AsiaSat and, if not, shall notify the Customer in sufficient detail to enable the Customer to amend the transmission plans and submit such amendments until final acceptance by AsiaSat. Thereafter, the Customer shall not amend, modify or alter its transmission plans (which shall include a change of plans due to migration to Substitute Transponder Capacity or transponder capacity on any Replacement Satellite) without AsiaSat's prior approval and AsiaSat shall respond with reasonable promptness to requests from the Customer to approve amended transmission plans.

2.4 The Transponder Capacity shall be provided to the Customer on a non-preemptible basis, meaning that the Transponder Capacity will not be subject to deliberate interruption or cessation of availability by AsiaSat and will only be provided with the protection as set out in clause 7.2. Notwithstanding the foregoing, the Customer acknowledges that AsiaSat may pre-empt or interrupt the Customer's being availed of the Transponder Capacity if such action is required to protect the overall health and performance of the Satellite or if there is an anomaly or other emergency situations affecting the Transponder Capacity, the Transponder or the Satellite or during the Maintenance Window Period. AsiaSat shall give the Customer as much advance notice as is possible in the circumstances other than in emergency situations. AsiaSat shall advise the Customer the action it proposes to take under this Clause over a reasonable period prior to exercising its rights under this Clause.

2.5 (a) AsiaSat shall, in its sole discretion, allocate the Transponder number to the Customer and inform the Customer of that number at least ten (10) Business Days before the Commencement Date. AsiaSat shall have the right at any time either prior to or during the Term, to move the Customer (i) to the Substitute Transponder; or (ii) onto the Substitute Transponder Capacity; PROVIDED that the performance specifications of such Substitute Transponder or Substitute Transponder Capacity are not materially and adversely different to the performance specifications of the Transponder as specified in Appendix 1 or the Transponder Capacity, as the case may be. Upon any such change in Transponder or Transponder Capacity, all rights and obligations of the Parties hereunder shall apply in all respects to such Substitute Transponder or Substitute Transponder Capacity and shall be otherwise unaffected by such change in the Transponder or Transponder Capacity, as the case may be, and from the date the Customer has migrated to the Substitute Transponder or Substitute Transponder Capacity, as the case may be, all references in the Agreement to "Transponder", "Transponder Capacity" and "Annexes" shall be deemed to be references to the Substitute Transponder, Substitute Transponder Capacity and the annexes in respect of such Substitute Transponder or Substitute Transponder Capacity, respectively.

(b) AsiaSat shall give the Customer as much notice as possible in the circumstances of its intention to take action under paragraph (a) of this Clause 2.5 and use its reasonable endeavours to minimise the inconvenience to the Customer.

From the above agreement, it is quite evident that M/s AsiaSat has just granted right to use passive infrastructure of Transponder Capacity available on its Satellite. Hon'ble Karnataka High Court has in case Indus Tower Ltd [2012 (285) ELT 3 (Kar)] specifically held that such transaction is not within the ambit of Article 366 (29A)(d) of the Constitution of India. Hon'ble High Court has held as follows:

"63. The right conferred by the assessee on the mobile operator is in the nature of a personal right granted to him to do something upon the passive infrastructure belonging to the assessee. It does not amount to creation of an interest in the passive infrastructure itself. It is purely a permissive right and is personal to the grantee. The licence has no other effect than to confer a liberty upon the licensee to go upon the land which would otherwise be unlawful. A dominant legally creating leave and licence in favour of the licensee cannot create encumbrance on the immovable property for the simple reason that whenever the licence is created in favour of the licensee, the licensee is always treated to be in permissive possession. He is given only an authority to enter into the premises. The possession is always with the licensor. Only entry in the premises is made legal. It does not create any title in favour of the licensee. A licence is a mere grant of a personal privilege to do something upon, without conferring an estate in the land. A document gives only a right to use a property in a particular way under certain terms while it remains in the possession and control of the owner thereof, it will be a licence. The legal possession thereof continues to be in the owner of the property but the licensee is permitted to make use of the premises for the particular period. But for the permission his occupation would be unlawful, and does not create in his favour any estate or interest in the property.

64. It is well settled that, whether the transaction amounts to transfer of right or not cannot be determined with reference to a particular word or clause in the agreement. The agreement has to be read as a whole to determine the nature of the transfer. From a close reading of all the clauses in the agreement it appears to us that under the terms of the contract there is no transfer of right to use the passive infrastructure conferred on the sharing operator/mobile operator. What is permitted under the contract is, a permission in the nature of a licence to have access to the passive infrastructure and permission to keep the equipments of the mobile operator in the pre-fabricated shelter with permission to have ingress and egress only to the authorised representatives of the mobile operator. It is because an owner of a property has a bundle of rights, namely right to possess, right to use and enjoy, right to usufruct, right to consume, to destroy, to alienate or transfer, etc.. Therefore, to constitute a deemed sale under Article 366(29A)(d) having regard to the object with the 46th Constitutional Amendment was inserted, it is clear the right that is transferred under a contract should be a bundle of rights minus right to title. It is because of the earlier Constitution Bench judgment of the Apex Court where the right to use the property was transferred by the person who retained the title as only a nominal owner with the benefit of the goods has been passed on to the transferee, without paying taxes to the exchequer, that the Constitution was amended to bring within its fold such transactions which are styled as deemed sales. Therefore, in deciding whether a transaction falls within Article 366(29A)(d) so as to constitute a deemed sale, the purpose of the 46th Amendment, the mischief sought to be remedied and the object sought to be achieved by the said provision cannot be lost sight of. In that background, in the facts of this case, if we look into the various terms of the agreement it is clear under the contract, the assessee has not transferred any right in the passive infrastructure to the mobile operators. The right that is conferred on the mobile operator is a permission to have access to the passive infrastructure, a permission to keep the active infrastructure in the site belonging to the assessee, a permission to mount the antennae on the tower erected by the assessee and to have the benefit of a particular temperature so as to operate the equipments belonging to the mobile operator. No sale of goods or transfer is involved in the transaction in question. Therefore, it does not fall within the mischief of Article 366(29A)(d) of the Constitution as held by the learned Judge as well as the assessing authority. Therefore, the impugned order passed by the learned single Judge as well as the assessing authority cannot be sustained.”

4.4.7 In case of Indus Tower, Limited [2014 (35) STR 459 (Del)], Hon’ble Delhi High Court has held as follows:

"16. The main point urged on behalf of the petitioner was that there was no transfer of the right to use any goods by Indus in favour of the sharing telecom operators since the provision of “Passive Infrastructure” was essentially a service which was taxed as a service provided “in relation to support services of business or categories, in any manner” under section 65 (105)(zzzz) of the Finance Act, 1994. It was contended that the same transaction which was treated as a taxable service cannot also be treated as a sale or deemed sale under the DVAT Act. It was contended that at any rate there was no transfer by Indus of the right to use any goods in favour of the sharing telecom operators.

17. We were taken through the agreement dated 25.02.2009 (which is referred to as the “master service agreement” or MSA) and it was contended on the basis of the terms thereof that the Passive Infrastructure provided by the petitioner does not involve any transfer of right to use any goods in favour of the sharing telecom operators. Strong reliance, inter alia, was placed on the judgment dated 07.09.2011 of the Karnataka High Court reported as Indus Towers Ltd. vs. Deputy Commissioner of Commercial Taxes Enforcement, 2012 (285) ELT 3 (Kar), a judgment which disposed of several writ appeals filed by different petitioners of which the present petitioner was one. It was pointed out that the terms and conditions of the MSA were examined by the Karnataka High Court which came to the conclusion that no transfer of any right to use the goods was involved. It was submitted that the Karnataka High Court (supra) has concluded, for reasons stated in the judgment, that the petitioner provided services in relation to site access, power conversion, air-conditioning and safe keeping for which it received a consolidated service revenue from the sharing telecom operators and that there was neither a sale of goods nor a deemed sale so as to attract levy of tax under the Karnataka Value Added Tax, 2003.

19. We are in respectful agreement with the view taken by the Karnataka High Court in the judgment cited (supra). The right to use the goods - in this case, the right to use the passive infrastructure - can be said to have been transferred by Indus to the sharing telecom operators only if the possession of the said infrastructure had been transferred to them. They would have the right to use the passive infrastructure if they were in lawful possession of it. There has to be, in that case, an act demonstrating the intention to part with the possession of the passive infrastructure. There is none in the present case. The passive infrastructure is an indispensible requirement for the proper functioning of the active infrastructure which is owned and operated by the sharing telecom operators. The passive infrastructure is shared by several telecom operators and that is why they are referred to as sharing telecom operators in the MSA. The MSA merely permits access to the sharing telecom operators to the passive infrastructure to the extent it is necessary for the proper functioning of the active infrastructure. The MSA also defines “site access availability” as meaning the availability of access to the sharing operator to the passive infrastructure at the site. Clause 2 of the MSA which has been quoted above provides for “site access” and Clause 1.7 limits the site access availability to the sharing operator on use - only basis so far as it is necessary for installation, operation and maintenance etc. of the active infrastructure; the clause further states that the sharing operator does not have, nor shall it ever have, any right, title or interest over the site or the passive infrastructure. The Clause also takes care to declare that the sharing operator shall not be deemed to be the tenant of Indus and no tenancy rights shall be deemed to exist over the site/passive infrastructure. Clause 2.1.8, presumably by way of abundant caution, states that it is expressly agreed by the sharing operator that nothing contained in the MSA or otherwise shall create any title, right, tenancy, or any similar right in favour of the sharing operator.

20. ....................

21. When Indus has not transferred the possession of the passive infrastructure to the sharing telecom operators in the manner understood in law, the limited access provided to them can only be regarded as a permissive use or a limited licence to use the same. The possession of the passive infrastructure always remained with Indus. The sharing telecom operators did not therefore, have any right to use the passive infrastructure,

22. A careful perusal of the judgment of the Karnataka (supra) shows that the following propositions were laid down:

a) No operation of the infrastructure is transferred to the sharing telecom operator. The latter is only provided access to use the passive infrastructure, but Indus has retained the right to lease, licence etc. the passive infrastructure to any advertising agency;

b) The entire infrastructure is in the physical control and possession of Indus at all times and there is no parting of the same nor any transfer of the right to use the equipment or apparatus;

c) The permission granted to the telecom operator to have access to the passive infrastructure for limited purposes is loosely termed by the taxing authorities as “a right to use the passive infrastructure”;

d) There is no intention on the part of the Indus to transfer the right to use; it is only a licence or an authority granted to telecom operator as defined in Section 52 of the Easements Act, 1952. A licence cannot in law confer any right; it can only prevent an act from being unlawful which, but for the licence, would be unlawful. A licence can never convey by itself any interest in the property;

e) The entire MSA has to be read as a whole without laying any undue emphasis upon a particular word or clause therein. What is permitted under the MSA is a licence to the telecom operators to have access to passive infrastructure and a permission to keep equipments of the sharing telecom operator in a prefabricated shelter with provision to have ingress and aggress only to the authorised representatives of the mobile operator.”

4.4.8 Hon’ble Madhya Pradesh High Court has in case of Bharti Infratel Ltd [2018 (17) GSTL 225 (MP)] Affirmed by Hon’ble Supreme Court as reported in [2018 (17) GSTL J51 (SC)] held as follows:

“35. We are in respectful agreement with the view taken by the Karnataka High Court in the judgment cited (supra). The right to use the goods - in this case, the right to use the passive infrastructure - can be said to have been transferred by the petitioner to the sharing telecom operators only if the possession of the said infrastructure had been transferred to them. They would have the right to use the passive infrastructure if they were in lawful possession of it. There has to be, in that case, an act demonstrating the intention to part with the possession of the passive infrastructure. There is none in the present case. The passive infrastructure is an indispensable requirement for the proper functioning of the active infrastructure which is owned and operated by the sharing telecom operators. The passive infrastructure is shared by several telecom operators and that is why they are referred to as sharing telecom operators in the MSA. The MSA merely permits access to the sharing telecom operators to the passive infrastructure to the extent it is necessary for the proper functioning of the active infrastructure. The MSA also defines “site access availability” as meaning the availability of access to the sharing operator to the passive infrastructure at the site. Clause 2 of the MSA which has been quoted above provides for “site access” and Clause 1.7 limits the site access availability to the sharing operator on use - only basis so far as it is necessary for installation, operation and maintenance etc. of the active infrastructure; the clause further states that the sharing operator does not have, nor shall it ever have, any right, title or interest over the site or the passive infrastructure. The Clause also takes care to declare that the sharing operator shall not be deemed to be the tenant of petitioner and no tenancy rights shall be deemed to exist over the site/passive infrastructure. Clause 2.1.8, presumably by way of abundant caution, states that it is expressly agreed by the sharing operator that nothing contained in the MSA or otherwise shall create any title, right, tenancy, or any similar right in favour of the sharing operator."

4.4.9 In view of the above decisions of High Court we are unable to agree with the submissions made by the Appellant that the agreement between them and M/s AsiaSat, was one transferring right to use and shall be covered by the 366(29A)(d) to be deemed sale of goods and hence cannot be contract for service. Since we refer to the later decisions of High Court of Karnataka than the decision in case of Antrix Corporation Ltd we have not taken up this decision for analysis. Furthermore the appeal filed in the matter has been admitted by the Hon’ble Apex Court as reported at [2018 (361) ELT A63 (SC)].

4.4.10 We also note that CESTAT Allahabad has in the Appellants own case for their Noida Registration has upheld the demand of Service Tax on merits. In our considered opinion the services rendered by M/s AsiaSat to appellant are nothing but “infrastructure support services” for supporting the business of broadcasting services undertaken by the appellants. Thus these services are appropriately classifiable as “Business Support Services” by the Section 65(104c) of the Finance Act, 1994 and taxable as per Section 65 (105)(zzzq) ibid.

4.4.11 Since the service provider i.e. M/s AsiaSat do not have any fixed business establishment in India, appellants as recipient of service are required to discharge the service tax liability as per Section 66A of the Finance Act, 1994 read with Rule 3(iii) of the Taxation of Services (Provided from outside India and received in India) Rules, 2006.

4.5.1 Appellants have argued that certain portion demand made vide show cause notice issued from F No. STII/ Audit/Gr.6/98/SITV/11-12/Pt.1 dated 08.04.2013 is barred by limitation. The only argument advanced by the appellant against the invocation of extended period of limitation for making the demand is that the issue is completely revenue neutral as any service tax paid by them on the basis of reverse charge as recipient of service would be available to them in the form of CENVAT Credit. Thus they do not gain anything by having not paid the service tax and there cannot be any intention to evade payment of tax attributed.

4.5.2 We are not in position to agree with the said submissions made by the appellants. Unlike the erstwhile proviso to section 11A(1) Central Excise Act, 1944 where the intention to evade payment of duty was material factor in cases where suppression etc; was invoked, the construction of Section 73(1) of Finance Act, 1994 is different. Commissioner has in his order in para 37 to 41 held as follows:

"37. The next question that arises is whether the Department is justified in invoking the proviso clause to Section 73 (1) to demand Service Tax as confirmed above, not paid by the Noticee for the aforesaid period. The proviso clause to Section 73(1) of the Finance Act, 1994, provides that Service Tax which has not been paid, can be demanded, under proviso clause to Section 73(1) within five years (from the relevant date) wherever such short payment was " by reason of:-

a) Fraud; or

b) Collusion; or

c) Wilful mis-statement; or

d) Suppression of facts; or

e) Contravention of any of the provisions of this Chapter or of the rules made there under with intent to evade payment of Service Tax."

Thus, it is very clear from the seriatim listing of the situations mentioned against (a) to (e) under the proviso clause to Section 73(1) that these are independent of each other and existence of any/each of the situations specified against (a) to (e) above, is individually good enough to attract demand for extended period under the proviso clause to Section 73(1). In other words, “suppression of facts” alone is a reason sufficient enough to invoke this clause; there is no need to prove that there was “willful mis-statement” too.

38. There is no material to establish that non-payment of Service Tax is on account of bonafide reasons. In fact, the noticee argues that no service tax is payable. On the other hand, there are adequate evidences to establish the fact of suppression of material facts and contravention of provisions of law with intent to evade payment of Service Tax leading to non-payment of Service Tax.

39. It has been alleged that the Noticee have not obtained Service Tax registration in respect of ‘Business Support Service’ for payment of Service Tax; they failed to disclose the fact that they had been receiving the said services; they failed to declare the correct value of the taxable services received by them from their foreign service provider; they have not assessed the Service Tax correctly and not paid the same within the time limit prescribed; they have not furnished to the Department ST-3 returns with the full and correct details of services rendered by them and thereby willfully contravened the provisions of law with intent to evade payment of due Service Tax.

40. Requirement under law to file proper ST-3 returns with full disclosure is not a mere procedural formality but a statutory requirement. In the instant case, the Noticee has not paid Service Tax on the value (amounts) paid by them as consideration for taxable service, classifiable under ‘Business Support Service’ services received from their foreign service provider, viz., AsiaSat. The department had no knowledge of such non-payment of Service Tax, as the activities were never declared to the department. Had it not been for the EA-2000 audit conducted on the records of the noticee, the above mentioned facts would not have come to the notice of the department. The noticee, being a registered Service Tax assessee, being well aware of the statutory provisions, have refrained from obtaining Service Tax registration in respect of the ‘Business Support Services’ received by them, have suppressed the facts and have willfully evaded payment of Service Tax. Thus, there are valid, adequate and justifiable grounds to conclude suppression of material facts by the Noticee resulting in non-payment of Service Tax, thereby warranting invocation of the extended period of limitation to demand the Service Tax.

41. Therefore, I hold that the proviso clause to Section 73(1), as it existed at the material time, to demand Service Tax for an extended period of five years, is rightly invokable in respect of the Service Tax not paid during the period April 2008 to March 2012. Therefore, the demand of Service Tax amounting to Rs.3,94,10,566/- made in the Show Cause Notice under proviso to Section 73(1) of the Finance Act, 1994 is justified.”

4.5.3 We are in complete agreement with the findings recorded by the Commissioner. If the argument of revenue neutrality was to be considered a valid argument under the scheme of Finance Act, 1994, then entire provisions relating to payment of service tax on reverse charge will become otiose and every service recipient will claim that what so ever service tax he pays on reverse charge basis will be available to him as CENVAT Credit. Argument of revenue neutrality thus would not be available in case where the service tax is demanded by the recipient of service on the reverse charge basis. Hon’ble Supreme Court has in case of Star Industries [2015 (324) ELT 656 (SC)] dismissing the argument of revenue neutrality held as follows:

“35. It was submitted by the learned counsel for the assessee that the entire exercise is Revenue neutral because of the reason that the assessee would, in any case, get Cenvat credit of the duty paid. If that is so, this argument in the instant case rather goes against the assessee. Since the assessee is in appeal and if the exercise is Revenue neutral, then there was no need even to file the appeal. Be that as it may, if that is so, it is always open to the assessee to claim such a credit.”

4.5.4 In case of DharampalSatyapal [2005 (183) ELT 241 (SC)] Supreme Court has dismissed the argument of revenue neutrality on the basis of availability of MODVAT Credit stating as follows:

“25. Modvat is basically a duty collecting procedure which provides relief to the manufacturer on the duty element borne by him in respect of the inputs used by him. The relief is given under the modvat scheme on the actual payment of duty on the input. On such payment, the assessee gets a right to claim adjustment/set-off against the duty on the final product. The question of duty adjustment/set-off against duty on the final product was not in issue. In any event, no record on credit entitlement was produced. A right to claim proforma/modvat credit against duty on final product was different from the defence of bonafides in a case where circumstances mentioned in the proviso to section 11A(1) stands proved by the department for invoking larger period of limitation. The burden to prove the defence of bonafides was on the assessee and the assessee in this case has failed to prove its bonafides. Under modvat, excisable finished products made out of duty-paid inputs are given relief of excise duty to the extent of duty paid on inputs. In the circumstances, we are satisfied that the department was justified in invoking the extended period of limitation under the proviso to Section 11A(1).

4.5.6 Thus we uphold the demand made in this Show Cause Notice by invoking the extended period of limitation as per proviso to Section 73(1) of Finance Act, 1994.

4.5.7 The demand made as per Statement of Demand/SCN under Section 73(1A) of The Finance Act, 1994 issued under F.No. ST-II/Dn-IV/Gr.II/Sahara/04/EA2000/SCN12-13/2013-14 dated 07.04.2014 is also upheld. Once we hold that the services provided by the M/s AsiaSat to appellants is a service, it is covered by the definition of Service as per Section 65(44B) of Finance Act, 1994 and is not one in the negative list or in the list of the exempted services. Since the services received by the appellants are taxable service, they were required to discharge the service tax liability in respect of these services as the service provider M/s AsiaSat is not having any fixed business establishment in India.

4.6. Appellants have argued against demand of interest made from them in terms of Section 75 of Finance Act, 1994. However we do not find any merits in those submissions in view of the decision following decisions:

- P V Vikhe Patil SSK [2007 (215) ELT 23 (Bom)] affirmed by the Hon’ble Supreme Court [2016 (335) ELT 196 (SC)]
- Kanhai Ram Thakedar [2005 (185) ELT 3 (SC)]

4.7 While discussing the issue in respect of interest under Section 11AB and penalty under Section 11AC of the Central Excise Act, 1944 which are pari materia to Section 75 and 78 of the Finance Act, 1994, Hon’ble Bombay High Court has in its decision referred in para 4.6 held as follows:

"7. Considering the scheme together, it is evident that interest chargeable u/s. 11AB is a sort of civil liability of the assessee, who has failed to pay the duty or who has short paid the duty. This is irrespective of the fact whether such non-payment/short payment is innocent or mala fide. So far as penalty u/s. 11AC is concerned, it is certainly a provision, penal in nature. This is because, it comes into play only when non-payment/short payment is result of fraud, collusion or any wilful misstatement/ suppression of facts or contravention of any of the provisions of the Act/Rules on the part of the assessee, with intent to evade payment of duty. There is a sense of deliberate evasion and scheming for the purpose on the part of the assessee and that is why in that case, there is no discretion to impose penalty lesser than 100% or 25% in case duty determined is paid within 30 days from the date of determination. The distinction of civil liability and criminal liability stands further demonstrated by Explanation (1) to subsection (2B) of Section 11A, which reads thus :

"Explanation (1): Nothing contained in this sub-section shall apply in a case where the duty was not levied or was not paid or was short levied or was short paid or was erroneously refunded by reason of fraud, collusion or any wilful misstatement or suppression of facts or contravention of any of the provisions of this Act or of the Rules made thereunder with intent to evade payment of duty."
8. The ratio laid down in the matter of Rashtriya Ispat Nigam Ltd. v. Commissioner of Central Excise, Visakhapatnam - 2003 (161) E.L.T. 285 (Tri.-Bang.), relied upon by learned Counsel for assessee, which view was confirmed by the Hon'ble the Apex Court while dismissing the appeal of the department, that in case the duty is paid before issuance of show cause notice, no penalty u/s. 11AC is imposable, was a decision of the Tribunal at Bangalore dated 13-11-2002. Taking into consideration the hierarchy of authorities under the Central Excise Act, 1944 i.e. Assessment Officer conducting enquiry and determining the duty evaded or short paid, Commissioner (Appeals) and thereafter CESTAT, it can safely be said that this was a decision regarding the non-payment of duty of the period prior to insertions by Amendment Act No. 14/2001 with effect from 11-5-2001 by which sub-sections (2A), (2B) and (2C) are inserted in the main Act. Naturally, the Explanation (1) to sub-section (2B), reproduced hereinabove, was neither on the statute book nor was under consideration before the Tribunal or before the Hon'ble the Supreme Court. If the effect of Explanation is taken into consideration, the liberty to pay evaded excise duty as may be ascertained by Central Excise Officer u/s. 11A(2) or on the basis of duty ascertained by himself, was not available to the assessee prior to 11-5-2001. We must say that by insertion of sub-sections (2A) to (2C) and more particularly Explanation (1) to sub-section (2B), the position stands drastically changed. Since there is no liberty to the assessee, who has evaded the duty intentionally, by exercising fraud, collusion etc. for the purpose, the liberty to pay the evaded duty under sub-section (2B) is not available and the terminal portion of sub-section (2B) cannot render any assistance to such an assessee. In other words, the proceedings of ascertainment of evaded duty, imposition of interest and penalty cannot be dropped by virtue of above terminal clause of sub-section (2B) in the cases of asessees, who had intentionally evaded payment of duty by use of fraud, collusion etc. as contemplated by Section 11AC.

In the cases where the finding of fact regarding existence of fraud, collusion, wilful mis-statement/suppression of facts or contravention of any provisions of the Act or Rules with intent to evade the payment of duty is confirmed, it may not be open to the assessee to claim that no penalty is imposable upon him u/s. 11AC, because of payment of evaded duty before issuance of show cause notice, after amendment as inserted by Act No. 14/2001 with effect from 11-5-2001.

As already discussed hereinabove, there is no discretion with the authorities to impose any lesser penalty than 100% and 25% in case duty after being determined u/s. 11A(2), the assessee pays it within 30 days. This answers both the substantial questions of law on which appeal is admitted, so far as penalty imposable u/s. 11AC is concerned."

9. .........

10. So far as interest u/s. 11AB is concerned, on reference to text of Section 11AB, it is evident that there is no discretion regarding the rate of interest. Language of Section 11AB(1) is clear. The interest has to be at the rate not below 10% and not exceeding 36% p.a. The actual rate of interest applicable from time to time by fluctuations between 10% to 36% is as determined by the Central Government by notification in the Official Gazette from time to time. There would be discretion, if at all the same is incorporated in such notification in the gazette by which rates of interest chargeable u/s. 11AB are declared.

The second aspect would be whether there is any discretion not to charge the interest u/s. 11AB at all and we are afraid, language of Section 11AB is unambiguous. The person, who is liable to pay duty short levied/short paid/non-levied/unpaid etc., is liable to pay interest at the rate as may be determined by the Central Government from time to time. This is evident from the opening part of sub-section (1) of Section 11, which runs thus :

"Where any duty of excise has not been levied or paid or has been short levied or short paid or erroneously refunded, the person, who is liable to pay duty as determined under subsection (2) or has paid the duty under sub-section (2B) of Section 11A, shall in addition to the duty be liable to pay interest at such rate
...........

The terminal part in the quotation above, which is couched with the words "shall" and "be liable" clearly indicates that there is no option. As discussed earlier, this is a civil liability of the assessee, who has retained the amount of public exchequer with himself and which ought to have gone in the pockets of the Central Government much earlier. Upon reading Section 11AB together with Sections 11A and 11AA, we are of firm view that interest on the duty evaded is payable and the same is compulsory and even though the evasion of duty is not mala fide or intentional.

4.8 Since we uphold the invocation of extended period of limitation in respect of the show cause notice dated 08.04.2013, the penalties imposed under Section 78 cannot be faulted with in view of the above referred decision of the Hon'ble Bombay High Court and the decision of Hon'ble Supreme Court in case of Rajasthan Spinning and Weaving Mills [2009 (238) ELT 3 (SC)].

4.9 Penalty has been imposed by the Commissioner under Section 77 for various infractions noticed in complying with provision of law. For imposing penalty under Section 77 Commissioner has recorded as follows:

"45. The Show Cause Notices also proposed penalty action under Section 77 of the Finance Act, 1994. It is observed from the records that the Noticee has failed to obtain Service Tax registration in respect of the Business Support services received by them from the service provider, located outside India; failed to file proper statutory returns in form ST-3 and also failed to pay Service Tax within the prescribed time limit. Thus, they have contravened the provisions of Section 66, 67, 68, 69 and 70 of the Finance Act, 1994 read with Rule 4, 5, 6 and 7 of the Service Tax Rules, 1994. Therefore, they are liable to penalty under Section 77 of the Finance Act, 1994. For the reason of not filing Service Tax Returns, they are also liable to pay appropriate late fee as specified under Rule 7e of Service Tax Rules, 1994 subject to ceiling of Rs. 20,000/- each Return, provided under Section 70 of the Finance Act, 1994."

Penalty under Section 77 are civil in nature and are imposed for infractions noticed. Hon'ble Supreme Court has in case of Gujarat Travancore Agency vs. Commissioner of Income Tax [1989 (42) ELT 350 (SC)] Hon'ble Supreme Court held as under:

4. ……….In most cases of criminal liability, the intention of the Legislature is that the penalty should serve as a deterrent. The creation of an offence by Statute proceeds on the assumption that society suffers injury by and the act or omission of the defaulter and that a deterrent must be imposed to discourage the repetition of the offence. In the case of a proceeding under Section 271(1)(a), however, it seems that the intention of the legislature is to emphasise the fact of loss of Revenue and to provide a remedy for such loss, although no doubt an element of coercion is present in the penalty. In this connection the terms in which the penalty falls to be measured is significant. Unless there is something in the language of the statute indicating the need to establish the element of mens rea it is generally sufficient to prove that a default in complying with the statute has occurred. In our opinion, there is nothing in Section 271(1)(a) which requires that mensrea must be proved before penalty can be levied under that provision. We are supported by the statement in Corpus Juris Secundum Volume 85, page 580, Paragraph 1023:

"A penalty imposed for a tax delinquency is a civil obligation, remedial and coercive in its nature, and is far different from the penalty for a crime or a fine or forfeiture provided as punishment for the violation of criminal or penal laws."

Since there is no dispute about such infractions as recorded by the Commissioner in his impugned order, penalties as imposed under Section 77(2) are justified.

4.10 Commissioner has in para 47 of his order recorded as follows for imposing penalties under Section 76 of the Finance Act, 1994.

"47. As regards penalty proposed under Section 76 of the Finance Act, 1994 in the Show Cause Notice dated 07.04.2014, any person liable to Service Tax fails to pay the same is required to pay the same is required to pay penalty under Section 76 at the rate specified therein from time to time, in addition to Service Tax and the interest thereon."
Hon’ble Kerala High Court has in case of Krishna Poduval [2006 (1) STR 185 (Ker)] held as follows:

"11. The penalty imposable under S. 76 is for failure to pay service tax by the person liable to pay the same in accordance with the provisions of S. 68 and the Rules made thereunder, whereas S. 78 relates to penalty for suppression of the value of taxable service. Of course these two offences may arise in the course of the same transaction, or from the same act of the person concerned. But we are of opinion that the incidents of imposition of penalty are distinct and separate and even if the offences are committed in the course of same transaction or arises out of the same act, the penalty is imposable for ingredients of both the offences. There can be a situation where even without suppressing value of taxable service, the person liable to pay service tax fails to pay. Therefore, penalty can certainly be imposed on erring persons under both the above Sections, especially since the ingredients of the two offences are distinct and separate. Perhaps invoking powers under S. 80 of the Finance Act, the appropriate authority could have decided not to impose penalty on the assessee if the assessee proved that there was reasonable cause for the said failure in respect of one or both of the offences. However, no circumstances are either pleaded or proved for invocation of the said Section also. In any event we are not satisfied that an assessee who is guilty of suppression deserves such sympathy. As such, we are of opinion that the learned Single Judge was not correct in directing the 1st appellant to modify the demand withdrawing penalty under S. 76. Therefore, the judgment of the learned Single Judge, to the extent it directs the first appellant to modify Ext. P1 by withdrawing penalty levied under S. 76, is liable to be set aside and we do so. The cumulative result of the above findings would be that the Writ Petitions are liable to be dismissed and we do so. However, we do not make any order as to costs."

Thus in our view penalty imposed under Section 76 is justified.

4.11 Since on the issue in question appellants have not placed on record anything to show that their non payment of tax was a bonafide act, we do not find any reason for allowing the benefit of section 80 of the Finance Act, 1994.

4.12 In view of discussions as above we summarize our findings as follow:

i. Mumbai Service Tax having jurisdiction over the appellant registered in Mumbai, have jurisdiction do demand and recover service due in respect of invoices mentioned at Sl No 1 to 14 in the table in para 4.3.4 supra. In respect of three invoices mentioned at Sl No 15, 16 & 17 the jurisdiction is with Noida Commissionerate.

ii. Service Received by the Appellant from M/s AsiaSat are “infrastructure support services” and are appropriately classifiable as “Business Support Services” as defined by Section 65(105)(zzzq) read with Section 65(104c) of the Finance Act, 1994.

iii. The demand of service tax made from the Appellant to extent of 14 invoices as stated at ‘i’ above in Show Cause Notice dated 8.04.2013 is upheld. In respect of the three invoices which pertain to Noida Jurisdiction demand made by Mumbai Commissionerate is dropped.

iv. The demand of service tax made from the Appellant as per Statement of Demand dated 7.04.2014 is upheld.

v. Demand of interest under Section 75 of Finance Act, 1994 is upheld.

vi. Penalty imposed under Section 78 of Finance Act, 1994 is upheld but reduced by the amount of Service Tax demanded on the three invoices mentioned at Sl No 15, 16 & 17 in table in para 4.3.4.

vii. Penalty imposed under Section 76 and Section 77 of Finance Act, 1994 is upheld.

5.1 In view of discussions as above-

i. Appeal No ST/85354/2015 is dismissed;

ii. Appeal No ST/85355/2015 is partially allowed to extent of reducting the demand by amount of service tax on the three invoices mentioned at Sl No 15, 16 & 17 in the table in para 4.3.4 supra. Penalty under Section 78 is also reduced to that extent. With the above modification impugned order is upheld.

Per: Sanjiv Srivastava:

This appeal is directed against order in original No 26/STCV/ SKD/16-17 dated 30.06.2016 of Commissioner Service Tax – V, Mumbai. By the impugned order, the Commissioner has held as follows:

"5.01 I hold that the services provided by M/s National Securities Depository Ltd to their Depository Participants during the period from 01.04.2004 to 31.03.2009 are classifiable under the category of "Banking and Other Financial Services" as defined under Section 65 (12)(vii) and Section 65 (105)(zm) of the Finance Act, 1994;

5.02 I, confirm the demand of Service Tax totally amounting to Rs 52,36,20,950/- (Rupees Fifty Two Crores Thirty Six Lakhs Twenty Thousand Nine Hundred and Fifty only) for the period 01.04.2004 to 31.03.2009 in terms of Section 73(2) of the Finance Act, 1994, read with Section 66 and Section 68 ibid and Rule 6 of Service Tax Rules, 1994;

5.03 I order for recovery of interest under Section 75 of the Act, at the appropriate rates on the amount of confirmed demand ordered for recovery at Para 5.02 above;

5.04 I impose a penalty of Rs. 500/- (Rupees Five Hundred only) under Section

5.05 I impose a penalty of Rs 52,36,20,950/- (Rupees Fifty Two Crores Thirty Six Lakhs Twenty Thousand Nine Hundred and Fifty only) under Section 78 of the Act.
If the Noticee pays the Service tax confirmed, as mentioned in para 5.02 above, along with the interest on delayed payment within 30 (thirty) days from the date of communication of this Order, the amount of penalty liable to be paid by the Noticee under Section 78 of the Act shall be twenty five percent of the service tax payable/confirmed in para 5.02 above. However, the benefit of reduced penalty under Section 78 of the Act, shall be available only if the said Service Tax confirmed, Interest and the Penalty of twenty five percent of the service tax payable/confirmed, so imposed under the aforesaid Order, is paid within the period of 30 (thirty) days from the date of communication of this Order.

5.06 I impose penalty of Rs 5000/- (Rupees Five Thousand only) on the Noticee for each failure to file proper periodical returns as prescribed under Section 70 of the Finance Act, 1994 read with Rule 7 of the Service Tax Rules, 1994 on the due dates and for failure to furnish the list of all accounts maintained by them in relation to Service Tax as required under Rule 5(2) of the Service Tax, 1994, respectively under Section 77 of the Act. 5.07 I, refrain from imposing penalty under Section 76 of the Act, as I have imposed penalty under Section 78 of the Act at 5.05 above."

2.1 Intelligence gathered by the officers of Directorate General Of Central Excise Mumbai Zonal Unit to effect that Appellants were not discharging service tax on operational income received on account of transaction fees, custodial fees etc, by wrongly claiming exemption from service tax as per Board Circular No.B.II/1/200/TRU dated 09.07.2001. These amounts received by the Appellants from Depository Participants appeared to be liable to taxation under the category of “Banking and Financial Services”.

2.2 Acting on intelligence investigation were initiated and relevant details in respect of Operational Income received under various heads namely Annual Fees, Custodial Fees, Transaction Fees, Software License Fees etc. Along with Balance Sheet, Copy of MOU and projects agreements, service tax returns, registration etc., were called for. Statements of various functionaries of Appellants as detailed below were also recorded:-

- Shri TejasKulin Desai, Sr Vice President on 15.10.09
- Shri Hiten Pratapral Mehta, Vice President on 22.10.2009

2.3 Investigation made revealed that-

- Appellants are a "body corporate" being a company incorporated under Companies Act, 1956 to whom the certificate of commencement of business was provided by SEBI.

- Appellants hold securities (like shares, debentures, bonds, Government Securities, units etc.) of investors in electronic form.

- They also provide related to transactions in securities;

- They interface with the investors through their agents called as Depository Participants;

- As per Balance Sheet, Appellants Depository Segment includes providing various services to the investors like dematerialization, re-materialization, transfer and pledge of securities in electronic form through closed user group network of business partners viz issuers/ Registrar & Transfer Agents and Depository Participants (DP);

- There electronic platform is designed to provide information in relation to securities and enables the DP or their investors to have access to their securities holding at any time;

- Processes of de-materialization/ re-materialization. Pledge, transfer of securities indicate that there is provision of information, transfer of information and data processing through electronic media;

- Appellants are providing "provision and transfer of information and data processing" taxable under the category of "Banking and Financial Services" as defined by Section 65 (12)(a) of the Finance Act, 1994;

- The amounts charged and recovered by the appellants from the DP’s by the Appellant for the provision of these services would be the taxable value on which service tax is liable to be paid;

2.4 After completion of investigations a show cause notice dated 23.10.2009 was issued to appellant asking them to show cause as to why-

i. the services provided by them during the period from 1.04.2004 to 31.03.2009 to their Depository Participants as mentioned above, should not be classified as "Banking and Other Financial Services" as defined under Section 65(12)(vii) and Section 65 (105)(zm) of the Act;

ii. the Service Tax amounting to Rs 52,36,20,950/- (Rupees Fifty Two Crores Thirty Six Lakhs Twenty Thousand Nine Hundred and Fifty only) on the taxable amount of Rs 454,34,55,334/-, as detailed in Annexure –A, should not be demanded and recovered from them under proviso to section 73(1) read with section 66 and section 68 of the said Act under "Banking & Financial Services" category;

iii. the interest on the said ST demanded and payable as mentioned above should not be demanded and recovered from them under Section 75 of the Act;

iv. Penalty should not be imposed upon them under the provisions of Section 75A of the Finance Act, 1994 for failure to make an application for registration in form ST-1 within the prescribed time as required under Section 69 of the Act read with Rule 4 of Service Tax Rules, 1994;

v. Penalty should not be imposed upon them under the provisions of Section 76 of the Finance Act, 1994 for failure to pay service tax in accordance with the provisions of Section 68 of the Act read with Rule 6 of the Service Tax Rules, 1994;

vi. Penalty should not be imposed upon them under the provisions of Section 77 of the Finance Act, 1994 for failure to furnish prescribed returns as required under Section 70 of the Act read with Rule 7 of the Service Tax Rules, 1994;

vii. Penalty should not be imposed upon them under the provisions of Section 78 of the Finance Act, 1994 for suppressing the value of the taxable services with intent to evade payment of service tax;

2.5 The show cause notice has been adjudicated by the Commissioner as per the impugned order referred in para 1, supra.

2.6 Aggrieved by the impugned order appellants are in appeal.

3.1 We have heard Shri S Tirumalai, Advocate for the Appellant and Shri Suresh Merugu, Joint Commissioner, Authorized Representative for the revenue.

3.2 Arguing for the appellant learned counsel submitted that:-

- They have entered into agreement with the Income Tax department for provision of services (non depository segment) and to operate TIN Facilitation centres. For providing these services TIN facilitation Centres have obtained registration with Service Tax department and have paid the service tax due, under the category of Business Auxiliary Services.

- These services and certain other services in respect of which service tax has been paid have been included in the demand resulting in duplication of demands to tune of Rs 19,81,59,112/-. The submissions made by them on this account have been rejected by the adjudicating authority for the reason that Shri T K Desai, SR V P has described various heads under which the service tax has been paid and did not include the service tax paid under this head.

- They had also produced a Chartered Accountant Certificate dated 25.04.2013 in respect of error in computation of demand in SCN, which has been brushed aside contrary to the decisions in following cases;

  o Gopikrishna Processors [2007 (218) ELT 529 (TDel)]
  o Vijay Leasing & Company [2019 (3 TMI 49 CESTAT HYD)]

- As per the following decisions the same transaction could not have been taxed twice

  o Speed and Safe Courier Service
  o ABN Amro Bank
  o Chottey Lal RadheyShyam

- The entire activity relating to the issue of PAN is a sovereign function and TIN facilitation Centres are only agents who have discharged the tax liability. As per Tribunal decision in case of UTI Technology Services Ltd such services rendered in relation to Sovereign function cannot be taxed under the category of Business Auxiliary Services.

- From perusal of the correspondences with the department prior to registration on 17.11.2003/ 19.04.2004 CBEC Circular F No B-II/2001 TRU dated 09.07.2001, stating that service tax will not be leviable on NSDL or CDSL fee paid to the depositories and received from the customers on actual basis, clearly show that department was fully aware of all facts and hence the demand made by invoking extended period of limitation as per proviso to Section 73 (1) is not sustainable as held in following decisions:

- Anand Nishikawa [2005 (188) ELT 149 (SC)]
- Kapoor Lampshade [2016 (337) ELT 14 (P & H)]
- Adani Gas Ltd [2019-VIL-239-CESTAT-Ahm]
- Macleaods Pharmaceuticals [2013 (296) ELT 379 (T)]
- Accurate Chemical Industries [2014 (300) ELT 451 (T)]
- Raymond Limited
  - Extended period could not have been invoked in cases of interpretation of law and bonafide belief on their part
- Microtek Forgings
- Maruti Suzuki India Ltd [2014(307) ELT 625 9SC]}
- Super Synotex [India Ltd [2014 (301) ELT 273 (SC)]
- Srei Equipment Finance Ltd [2018 (17) GSTL 598 (CAL)]
- Bismee India Enterprises [2018 (10) TMI 1560 ]
- Vicco Ltd [2007 (218) ELT 647 (SC)]
- Madura Coats [2016 (4) TMI 989 MHC]
- They are governed by Depositories Act, 1996; SEBI (Depositories and Participants) Regulations, 1995 and the Bye Laws and Business Rules of The Appellant in terms of Depositories Act.
- Depository Participants are merely an agent Depositories. There is no service in the nature of Depository Service provided by the Appellant to the DP’s. This is because in terms of the charging entry under the FA 1994 namely Section 65(105)(zm) the service is to be rendered to a customer. DP’s provide the service to the customer/ client. There is no service in nature of Depository provided to the DP’s as they are not customers in terms of the explanation provided under
- "The word "customer" was substituted by the word "any person" from 16.05.2008. In case of Standard Chartered Bank it has been held that the understanding in terms of above Board Circular with regard to the meaning of the word "customer" should prevail.
- They provide infrastructure to DP’s and no depository service is provided to them. Board has vide Circular No 50/11/2002-ST dated 18.12.2002 clarifying that the services of "EASI" provided by CDSL is part and parcel of the depository service and covered under Banking and Other Financial Services.
- Their Business model requires them to recover from the DP’s fixed fees as approved by the Bye Laws under SEBI Regulations. The DP’s are entitled to charge customers based on the services rendered which shall include the aforesaid fixed fees for depository. The tax is collected on the gross amount charged by the DP’s from the customers and the portion relating to the fixed fee is paid by DP’s to the Depository.. Such a fee is tax paid and therefore there is no need to tax this once again.
- The SCN dated 23.10.2009, alleges that there services will fall under ambit of 65(12)(vii) which is "provision and transfer of information and data processing", on the basis of Master Circular No 96/7/2007-ST dated 23.08.2007. This is contrary to Circular F No B-II/2001-TRU dated 09.07.2001 and Circular No 50/11/2002-ST dated 18.12.2002, as per which their services were held to depository services.
- As per CBEC Letter No 137/57/2006-CX.4 dated 18.05.2007 it has been clarified in context of stock exchange services that processing, clearing and settlement services provided by NSE/ BSE/ MCX/ NCDEX/ NSCCL/ BiOSL/CCIL do not fall under any of the applicable taxable services such as online information and database access or retrieval, business auxiliary service or club and association services. "Provision and transfer of information and data processing' was considered in the context of stock exchange services and it was clarified that these individual services cannot be categorized as stock exchange services. By the same logic, these individual services cannot be categorized as such.

- Provision and transfer of information should be an independent activity and not an integral part of some other activity. It is not the principal service provided by them and no independent charges are collected for the same. Even if they are required to pay service tax under the category of Banking and Other Financial Service then the same will be under 65(12)(v) and not under 65(12)(vii).

- In CMA CGM Global (India) Ltd [2016 (41) STR 292 (T-Mum)] it has been held that it is necessary for levy of service tax to classify the service under a specific clause. Similar view has been in case of United Telecom Ltd [2011 (21) STR 234 (T-Bang)]. Board Circulars are binding on the department and beneficial circular cannot be withdrawn retrospectively as has been held in case of Ultra Tech Cement.

- Since the depository participants act as agents for the purpose of depository services and have discharged Service Tax on entire consideration including fees. Tribunal in case of Canara Bank [2012 (6) TMI 274 CESTAT] held that there cannot be any tax liability on these activities. Hon'ble Supreme Court has in the case of The Cement Allocation and Coordination Organization [1971 (9) TMI 161 Supreme Court] held that exemption available to principal will be available to agents also.

- If it is presumed that they are providing the services to Depository Participants then also the same could be only "infrastructure support service" which is in the nature of Business Support Service and not the Banking and Other financial Service.

- Commissioner has erroneously confirmed the demand on the basis of two circular namely Circular No. 50/11/2002 dated 18.12.2002 and Circular No. 96/7/2007 dated 23.08.2007. The second circular contradicts the earlier circular with regards to the category of service.

- A vague show cause notice which is not specific and demand confirmed on the basis of such vague show cause notice cannot be sustained as has been held in following decisions:
  o Brindavan Beverage (P) Ltd [2007 (213) ELT 487 (SC)]
  o Ballarpur Industries Ltd [2007 (215) ELT 489 (SC)]
- Entire issue is revenue neutral as the service tax paid by them on services provided to DP's will be available as credit to the DP's.
- Penalty is imposable when there is deliberate and malafide intention on their part to evade payment of taxes by suppression/ misrepresentation etc. They had filed proper returns on the due dates.
- Apart from bald assertion there is no substance to show the fact of wilful suppression. Hon'ble Supreme Court has in the case of Uniworth Textiles Ltd [2013 (288) ELT 161 (SC)] held that the burden to prove suppression etc is on the department.
- They have not collected the service tax from their DP's under bonafide belief that they were not liable to pay any service tax.
- Counsel submitted additional documents as directed by the bench, at time of hearing, in form of ST-3 returns for the period 2004-05 to 2008-09.

3.3 Arguing for the revenue learned Authorized Representative while reiterating the findings recorded in the impugned order submitted that:

- The issue involved in the matter is with regards to the services of "provision and transfer of information and data processing" and not in respect of the custodial depository services as argued by the appellant counsel;

- The issue is covered by the decision of the tribunal in case of Bank of Baroda [2016 (43) STR 141 (T-Mum)]. In similar facts of the case it has been held that the services provided are classifiable under the taxable category of "Banking and Other Financial Services" as "provision and transfer of information and data processing".
- The issue in respect of limitation is squarely covered by the decision in the case of Neminath Fabrics [2010 (256) ELT 369 (Guj)].
- Further tribunal has in case of Star India Pvt Ltd [2015 (380 STR 884 (T-Mum)) it has been held that not filing of the ST-3 return or not declaring the complete particulars of the service rendered on the ST-3 returns, amount to suppression and extended period of limitation as per proviso to Section 73 (1) is invokable.

4.1 We have considered the impugned order along with submissions made in appeal and during the course of argument of appeal and in written submission filed.

4.2 The issue for consideration in the present appeal before us is, "whether the services provided by the appellant to their Depository participants are in nature of "provision and transfer of information and data processing" services taxable under the category of Banking and Other Financial Services as defined by Section 65(12) of the Finance Act 1994.

4.3 Period of demand in the present case is for the period 01.04.2004 to 31.03.2009. Section 65(12) of the Finance Act, 1994 reads as follows:

\textbf{Section 65(12).} –

"Banking and Other Financial Services" means
(a) the following services provided by a banking company or a financial institution including a non-banking financial company or any other body corporate or any other person namely :-

(i) financial leasing services including equipment leasing and hire-purchase;
(ii) credit card services;
(iii) merchant banking services;
(iv) securities and foreign exchange (forex) broking;
(v) asset management including portfolio management, all forms of fund management, pension fund management, custodial, depository and trust services, but does not include case management;
(vi) advisory and other auxiliary financial services including investment and portfolio research and advice, advice on mergers and acquisitions and advice on corporate restructuring and strategy;
(vii) provision and transfer of information and data processing; and (viii) banker to an issue services; and

(ix) other financial services, namely, lending; issue of pay order, demand draft, cheque, letter of credit and bill of exchange; transfer of money including telegraphic transfer, mail transfer and electronic transfer, providing bank guarantee, overdraft facility, bill discounting facility, safe deposit locker, safe vaults; operation of bank accounts.
(b) foreign exchange broking provided by a foreign exchange broker other than those covered under sub-clause (a).

4.4 Appellants do not dispute that they are a body corporate and are covered by the phrase "other body corporate" used in the definition of Banking and Other Financial Services.

4.5 As per para 4.4 of impugned order undisputedly appellants provide following services to the Depository Participants:-

- De-materialization i.e. converting physical certificates to electronic form;
- Re-materialization i.e. converting securities in de-mat form to physical certificates;
- Facilitating repurchase/ redemption of units of mutual funds or debt instruments;
- Electronic settlement of trades in stock exchanges connected to NSDL
- Pledging/ hypothecation of de-materialized securities;
- Electronic credit of securities allotted in public issues, rights issue;
- Receipt of non-cash corporate benefits such as bonus, in electronic form;
- Freezing of de-mat accounts, so that the debits from the account are not permitted;
- Nomination facility for de-mat accounts;
- Services related to change of address;
- Affecting transmission of securities;
- Instructions to DP over internet through SPEED e-facility;
- Account monitoring facility over internet through SPEED facility;
- Other facilities viz holding debt instruments in the same account, availing stock lending/ borrowing facility etc.

4.6 For providing these facilities appellants are electronically linked via satellite to various functionaries such as Depository Participants (DPs), issuing companies and their registrars and transfer agents, clearing corporations/ clearing houses of stock exchanges etc. Appellants in para 3.2.4 of their appeal memo provided the following schematic diagram in respect of the interconnections between them and various functionaries electronically:

4.7 From the schematic diagram submitted by the appellant, it is quite evident that Appellant’s are in fact having an electronic system providing for transmission of data to various participants/ partners in their business. In fact they provide the platform to their Depository Participants (DP's) through which they interact with Investor, Issuer, Registrar and Transfer Agents & Clearing House. For providing these services they charge certain fees from their Depository participants.

4.8 Section 4, 5, 9 & 10 of Depositories Act, 1996 read as follows:

"4. Agreement between depository and participant.
(1) A depository shall enter into an agreement with one or more participants as its agent.
(2) ............

5. Services of depository.
Any person, through a participant, may enter into an agreement, in such form as may be specified by the bye-laws, with any depository for availing its services.

9. Securities in depositories to be in fungible form.
(1) All securities held by a depository shall be dematerialised and shall be in a fungible form.
(2) ........

10. Rights of depositories and beneficial owners.
(1) Notwithstanding anything contained in any other law for the time being in force, a depository shall be deemed to be the registered owner for the purposes of effecting transfer of ownership of security on behalf of a beneficial owner."

4.9 On their website, Appellants have specifically stated as follows:

Basic Services

Under the provisions of the Depositories Act, NSDL provides various services to investors and other participants in the capital market like, clearing members, stock exchanges, banks and issuers of securities. These include basic facilities like account maintenance, dematerialisation, rematerialisation, settlement of trades through market transfers, off market transfers & interdepository transfers, distribution of non-cash corporate actions and nomination/ transmission.

The depository system, which links the issuers, depository participants (DPs), NSDL and Clearing Corporation/ Clearing house of stock exchanges, facilitates holding of securities in dematerialised form and effects transfers by means of account transfers. This system which facilitates scripless trading offers various direct and indirect services to the market participants.

Further in FAQ available on their web-site following have been stated:

"How can I avail the services of depository?

A depository interfaces with the investors through its agents called Depository Participants (DPs). If an investor wants to avail the services offered by the depository, the investor has to open an account with a DP. This is similar to opening an account with any branch of a bank in order to utilise the bank’s services. Suggestions on how to select a DP are given in Section IV.

Is it possible to give delivery instructions to DP over the internet and if yes, how?

Yes. NSDL has recently launched a facility for delivering instructions to your DP over the Internet, called SPEED-e. The facility can be used by all registered users. Your DP will help you in registering for the facility.

How does SPEED-e work

You can submit delivery instructions electronically, on the SPEED-e website https://www.speed-e.nsdl.com, after your DP has authorised you to operate your account through the SPEED-e facility. You can monitor the status of such delivery instructions to ensure that the instructions have been executed.

How can I as de-mat account holder/ clearing member benefit from Speed-e?

The benefit offered by SPEED-e to a demat account holder / Clearing Member is the convenience of conducting demat account transactions using an Internet connection from anywhere at anytime eliminating paperwork. Time and efforts for obtaining delivery instruction forms from your DP and submitting them to the DP everytime you sell securities is saved.

How can I register myself for SPEED-e?

For using the SPEED-e facility it is essential that your DP must be registered with NSDL for this facility. There are two types of users for this facility, one is password based user who logs in with his password and can transfer securities only to three prespecified broker accounts of his choice. The second is the smartcard based user who is issued a smart card for logging on to the site and can transfer the securities to any account. A password user can visit the SPEED-e website, fill-up the registration form available on the website. The website would allot a registration number and the DP of the client would authorise him for using the facility upon submission of a request with the registration number.

A smart card user can download the form from the website, fill it and submit the same to its DP. The DP will process the form and enable the client for using the facility. The smart card user will also be issued a smart card reader and a smart card.

What will be the charges for account opening and other depository related services?

NSDL charges the DPs and not the investors. NSDL’s charges to its DPs are fixed and are based on the usage of NSDL system. Complete details of NSDL charges as are payable by the DPs are available on NSDL website (www.nsdl.co.in). The DP charges its client for the services offered. The charges that the DP will be charging you for various services are mentioned in the Schedule of Charges which forms a part of the account opening agreement. You may keep a copy of this for your future reference. You can get the details of the charges from the DPs. You can also get a comparative list of DP charges from NSDL’s office or from the NSDL website.

Your DP may revise charges by giving you 30 days notice in advance.

What precaution does NSDL take to protect the data in its depository system?

The data carries a high importance in the NSDL depository system. NSDL has taken necessary steps to protect the transmission and storage of data. The data is protected from unauthorized access, manipulation and destruction. The following backup practices are adopted to protect the data:

- Local Backup
- Remote Backup
- Disaster Recovery Site

In addition to this, every DP is required to take daily backup, at the end of each day of operation.

4.10 As per the Business Rules of the Appellant, Depository participants are charged fees under various heads such as Entry Fees, Transaction Related Fees (namely Settlement Fees, Pledge Fee & Custody Fees) Fee for Dematerialization & Re-Materialization, Security Deposit, Annual Maintenance Fee for Corporate Accounts & Minimum Fee. The business rules make it clear that all such fees will be charged from and paid by the depository participant. Similar fees are charged from issuers. These rules further define the following terms as follows:

"3.1.5 Depository Module (DM) means the software installed at the depository;

3.1.6 Depository Participant Module (DPM) means the software(s) provided by the depository relating to the depository operations deployed and/or assessed using the User Hardware system. This shall be either the DPM (DP), DPM (CC) or the DPM (SHR). The DPM (DP) shall include the e(DPM) and the Local DPM.

3.1.7 Depository Participant Module (Depository Participant) – [DPM (DP)] means the software relating to the Depository operations relating to the Depository operations installed on the hardware system of the Participant and Depository Participant Module (Clearing Corporation) – [DPM (CC)] means the software relating to the Depository operations relating to the Depository operations installed on the hardware system of the Participant which is a Clearing Corporation.

3.1.8 Depository Participant Module (Issuers/ Registrars) – [DPM (SHR)] means the software installed on the hardware system of the Issuer or its Registrar and Transfer Agent.

3.1.9 Depository System means the hardware, software and telecommunication network established by the Depository to facilitate the operations of the Depository. This shall include the Depository Module, Depository Participant Module, User Hardware System and the hardware installed at the Depository.

3.1.15 User Hardware System (Depository Participant)-(DP) means the hardware set up of the Participant relating to Depository operations and User Hardware System (Clearing Corporation)-(CC) means the hardware set up of the Participant which is a Clearing Corporation relating to Depository operations. This shall consist of servers, workstations, router and the communication line linking them to the Depository.

3.1.16 User Hardware System (Issuers/ Registrars)-(UHS (SHR)] means the hardware setup of the Issuer or its Registrar and Transfer Agent relating to Depository operations. This shall consist of servers, workstations, router and the communication line linking them to the Depository."

Further these Business Rules lay down:

"4.1 Depository System

4.1.1 The User shall carry out transactions relating to the Depository only through the approved User Hardware System located at approved locations of the office of the user. No other workstation, computer system or hardware may be connected to the User Hardware System without the prior approval of the Depository.

4.1.2 Each User shall have a unique identification number provided by the Depository called BP ID which shall be used to identify that User by the Depository and by Other Users."
4.1.3 A User shall have a non-exclusive permission to use the DPM as provided by the Depository in the ordinary course of its business as such User.

4.1.4 The permission to use the DPM shall be subject to the payment by the User of such charges as may be specified by the Depository.

4.1.5 …..

4.1.6 A Participant shall not, by itself or through and other person(s) on its behalf, publish, supply, show or make available to any other person or reprocess, retransmit store or use any information provided by the Depository for any purpose other than in the ordinary course of its business as a User of the Depository, except with the explicit approval of the Depository.

5.3 Fess and Charges

The Participant shall have the discretion to charge any fees to its Clients. Further, the Participant may charge different type of fees to its various Clients. In the event of the Client committing a default in the payment of any of the charges within a period of thirty days from the date of demand, without prejudice to the right of the Participant to close the account of the Client, the Participant may charge interest @ not more than 24% p.a. or such other rate as may be specified by the Executive Committee from time to time for the period of such default.

Provided further that the Participant shall file the charge structure every year, latest by 30th April, with the Depository and also inform the depository the changes in their charge structure as and when they are effected.

11.3.6 The Participant shall execute the instructions for Repurchase or Redemption of securities in the DPM (DP).

11.3.7 The Issuer or its Registrar and Transfer Agent shall verify the request in the DPM (SHR), and if in order, confirm the request for Redemption or Repurchase in the DPM (SHR) and pay the proceeds directly to the Client.

11.4.6 The Participant shall execute the instructions for conversion of securities in the DPM (DP).

11.4.7 The Participant shall authorize the ICF, enclose the client details printed from the DPM(DP) and forward it to the Issuer or its Registrar and Transfer Agent.

11.4.8 The Issuer or its Registrar and Transfer Agent shall verify the request in the DPM (SHR), and if in order, confirm the request for ISIN in the DPM (SHR) and provide to the Depository the details of the request for conversion of ISIN.

11.5.6 The Participant shall execute and forward the request electronically for transfer of holdings held in other eligible SGL entity to an account held with the Participant in the DPM System and shall inform the SGL entity name and SGL account number of the other eligible entity to NSDL in such form and manner as may be prescribed.

11.6.7 The Participant shall execute and forward the request electronically for transfer of holdings held in dematerialized form to other eligible SGL entity for transfer to an SGL account with other eligible entity, and shall inform the SGL entity name and SGL account number of the other eligible entity to NSDL in such form and manner as may be prescribed.

11.6.9 In case the request was for transfer to an SGL account with other eligible entity, the Depository shall confirm the acceptance of RRF-GS electronically to the Participant, after obtaining approval from RBI."

4.11 All what has been stated in para 4.8, 4.9 & 4.10, above is stated in the Show Cause Notice. Show Cause Notice also refers to Statements of Shri TejasKulin Desai Senior Vice President of Appellant and Shri Hiten Prataprai Mehta, Vice President of Appellant wherein they were confronted with the above and they have stated as follows:

Statement of Shri TejasKulin Desai:

5.1. On being asked, Shri TejasKulin Desai stated that NSDL is having its Regd Office at 4th floor, A-Wing, Trade World, Kamal Mill Compound, Senapati Bapat Marg, Lower Parel, Mumbai-4000013 and branch offices at New Delhi, Pune, Calcutta and Chennai; that NSDL is formed under the Depositories Act, 1996 and the regulatory framework has been notified by SEBI; under SEBI Depositories &
Participants Regulations, 1996; that the Bye-laws and the Business Rules of NSDL govern the functioning and operational procedures of NSDL; that NSDL is a body providing infrastructure to all its DPs and DPs in turn are mandated to provide services to investors; that NSDL is a depository whose depository-participants provide ‘Depository Service’ in respect of securities to its clients.

5.2 On being asked as to how NSDL is providing services to Depository Participants, Shri Tejas Kulin Desai stated that NSDL is having Centralized Data Base along with the dosed user group of its depository participants; that these DPs are Banks, Custodians, Public Financial Institutions, Stock Brokers, NBFCs; that there are about 280 DPs all over India; that NSDL maintains securities, consisting of shares, debentures; bonds, commercial paper etc. of the securities holder if dematerialized form on being asked about the operation and functioning of NSDL, he stated that an investor wishing to avail depository related services like Dematerializing physical securities (certificates in paper form); transfer an already purchased security in demat form, account transfer etc. has to approach a DP and was required to open an account with any DP appointed by the depository participant, that the investor would submit his physical securities with the DP where he had opened his account; that the DP would capture the required details in his system and forward the physical documents to the concerned company/register; that the electronic data captured by DP would be stored/displayed in the system of the Registrar; that the Registrar would also be connected with NSDL; that the registrar, on receipt of the physical documents, would verify the same and confirm the demat in his system; that the data captured by this DP was transferred to NSDL and stored in its Centralized System; that the demat request could be viewed and confirmed by the Registrar through NSDL system; that on confirmation by the registrar, the investor would get credit of securities in his demat account; that many banking companies and stockbroker companies have been appointed as DPs of NSDL; that investors avail depository services from their DPs; that NSDL provides infrastructure to DPs in order to enable them to provide services to ultimate investors; that NSDL does not have a specific mandate for DPs as regards their service charges and commercial strategy vis-a-vis their customers and therefore the service charge may differ from one DP to another.

5.3. On being asked about the different charges collected by NSDL from the DPs/brokers/other, he stated that NSDL is collecting following charges under invoices from DPs/ Brokers/other : (A) Different types of fees charged namely; (i) fees for demat; (ii) fees for speed facility; (iii) IOS DS fees; (iv) Speed fees; (v) Corporate Action Fees; (vi) Fees for change of share registrar (vii) Custody fees; (B) Fees from DPs Projects: -(a) KW Learning Intermediary Registration; (b) Fees for accepting physical delivery; (c) Fees for e-TDS/TCS/SAI upload; (d) Fees for PAN applications; (e) Fees for IBN (processing fees); (f) Fees for e-TDS/TCS/IBN processing charges; (g) Fees for PAN applications; (h) PAN Registration; (i) Fees for processing charges (CBEC); (C) Fees on HAPIN (D) Miscellaneous: -(A) Dividend Distribution; (B) Exchange trade scheme. On being asked Shri Hiten Prataprai Mehta stated that the Operational Income shown consists of: (a) Annual fees; (B) Settlement fees, (i) Transaction fees; (ii) Trade Fees; (iii) Lending fees; (iv) Penalty fees; (v) Pre-settlement fees; (vi) Remit fees; (D) Entry Fees; (E) Software Fees; (F) Recovery on AVC of IBN; (G) Processing charges; (H) UIN Fees; (J) Training Fees; (K) Fees for WIP etc., that NSDL has not paid service tax on the aforesaid services and the reason for non-payment of service-tax was that they were not providing essential services as defined under ‘Banking and other Financial Services’; that NSDL had collected the aforesaid charges/fees under invoices without charging service tax for the reasons mentioned above.

5.4. Shri Tejas Kulin Desai, Inter alia, stated that under Banking and other Financial Services, NSDL have been paying service tax under the head; (a) Corporate Actions (Transfer); (b) Corporate Action (Fees); (c) Custody fees (on line); (d) Corporate action fees (freedom); (e) Corporate action (NSD/PM); (f) Corporate fees (unlisted companies); (g) fees for change of share registrar (i) fees for speed (ii) fees for demat; (k) Corporate action (Delisting etc.); (l) Speed fees received in advance; (m) fees for Steady forward in advance; (n) fees received in advance; that NSDL charges DPs transaction charges for every transfer of shares (even on Debites from the Demat account). Demat, Remit, WIPs of securities, etc.

Statement of Shri Hiten Prataprai Mehta:
6.1. On being asked about the constitution of NSDL, he stated that NSDL, National Securities Depository Ltd., has its head office at 6th floor, A Wing, Trade World, Kamal Mill Complex, Senapati Bapat Marg, Lower Parel, Mumbai - 400013 and branch offices at New Delhi, Pune, Kolkata and Chennai. NSDL is formed under the Depositories Act, 1996 and the regulatory framework has been notified by SEBI under (Depositories & Participants) Regulations, 1995. that the rules and the Business Rules of NSDL govern the functioning and operational procedures of NSDL, that NSDL is a body providing infrastructure to all its DPs and DPs in turn are mandated to provide services to investors; that NSDL is a depository where depository participants provide "Depository Service" in respect of securities to its clients; On being asked how NSDL is providing services to Depository Participants, Shri Mehta stated that NSDL is having Centralized Data Bank along with the core user group of its depository participants; that these DPs are Bank, Clearing House, Clearing House, Stock Brokers, NBFIs; that there are about 280 DPs all over India. NSDL maintains securities, consisting of shares, debentures, bonds, commercial papers etc. of the securities holders, in dematerialized form.

6.2. On being asked what is meant by Depository Participant Module and its use, Shri Mehta stated that DPM means a software relating to the Depository operations installed on the User hardware system, that Depository System means the hardware, software and telecommunication networks established by the Depository to facilitate the operations of the Depository; that Depository Module means the software installed at the Depository.

6.3. On being asked about Speed-e and IDBIAS facilities, Shri Mehta stated that these are Internet based facilities to enable investors to submit instructions to DPs/NSDL and view statement of transactions respectively. That Speed-e facility is optional.

6.4. On being asked whether DPs can access security information (Centralized system) maintained by NSDL electronically, Shri Mehta stated that DPs are connected to NSDL and DPM software enables them to access the information maintained at NSDL pertaining to its own clients.

6.5. On being asked which are the fees collected under Invoicing by NSDL but no Service Tax was charged on the same, Shri Mehta stated that Invoices are raised on DPs for the fees viz., (a) Annual Fees; (b) Settlement fees i.e. (i) Transaction fees; (ii) Pledge fees; (iii) Lending fees; (iv) Reversal of erroneous A/Cs; (c) Password Fees; (d) Entry Fees; (e) Software Fees; (f) Recovery on A/C of NSDL; (g) Processing charges; (h) ROI Fees; (i) Training Fees; (j) Fees for WAN to WAN etc. that the reason for non payment of service tax on these fees was that they were not providing custodial services as defined under Banking & Financial Services.

6.6. On being asked as to whether the systems of the DP & NSDL were Interconnected, and how, Shri Mehta stated that DPs are connected to NSDL through "Network" V-SAT Modem, ISDN.
4.12 All the above business rules of the appellants and the Statements of their Senior Vice President and Vice President show that are providing for “provision and transfer of information and data processing” and these are provided in relation to their depository operations. In our view by providing for provision and transfer of information and data processing in relation to the depository services appellants have provided the “Banking and Other Financial Services” as defined by 65(12)(a)(vii) to the Depository Participants. Depository Participants have in turn utilized these as input services to provide Depository Related services to their users/clients. Commissioner has in para 1.33 to 1.37 observed as follows:

1.33 From the above facts, it appeared that NSDL holds securities (like shares, debentures, bonds, Government Securities, units etc.) of investors in electronic form. Besides holding securities, NSDL also provides services related to transactions in securities. NSDL interfaces with the investors through its agents called Depository Participants (DPs). As per the Balance Sheet of NSDL, Depository Segment includes providing various services to the investors like dematerialization, rematerialization, transfer and pledge of securities in electronic form through closed user group network of business partners viz., Issuers/Registrar & Transfer Agents and Depository Participants. It appears that the NSDL system is designed to provide information relating to securities in electronic form. It further appeared that the platform provided by NSDL is to enable the DPs or their investors to have access to their securities holding at any given point of time electronically. The processes involved in dematerialization, rematerialization, pledge, transfer of securities appear to indicate that there is provision of information, transfer of information and data processing through electronic means. The nature of services provided by NSDL, as explained in detail in the preceding paragraphs, appear to indicate that they are providing ‘provision and transfer of information and data processing services which are taxable services under ’Banking and other Financial services’ under Section 65 (12) (a) (vii) of the Act. Further, it is not in dispute in this case that NSDL are a ‘body corporate’, being a company incorporated under the Companies Act, 1956 to whom the certificate of commencement of business was provided by SEBI. This fact has not been disputed by NSDL and they have accepted that that NSDL, being a body corporate, have provided infrastructure to all their DPs and the DPs, in turn, were mandated to provide services to investors. Therefore, it appears that the services provided by NSDL to their DPs are taxable services under ‘Banking and other Financial services’ and the amounts charged and recovered from the DPs by NSDL for provision of these services would be the taxable value on which service tax at the appropriate rates appears to be leviable.

1.34 The Central Depository Services Limited (CDSL) has introduced a system called EASI (Electronic Access to Securities Information) to assist a CDSL demat account holder to easily adapt to the fast reducing settlement cycle. EASI is an Internet- enabled service to empower a demat account holder in managing his securities ‘anytime-anywhere’ in an efficient and convenient manner, all in a state-of-the-art secure environment. EASI enables a ‘Demat Account Holder or Beneficial Owner’ (BO) / Broker or Clearing Member’ (CM) to view the holdings and transactions. EASI is a convenient, easy to operate internet based facility, which allows registered Beneficial Owners (BOs) & Clearing Members (CMs) to access their demat account through the internet to check the details of their holdings and/or transactions, anytime anywhere, through CDSL’s website. In the light of the above discussions, it appears that the services offered by NSDL to DPs are similar to the services of CDSL, including that of EASI. In NSDL’s FAQs mentioned earlier, it is stated that NSDL provides its’ services to investors through its agents called depository participants (DPs); that NSDL charges the DPs and not the investors. NSDL’s charges to its DPs are fixed and are based on the usage of NSDL system; that NSDL has taken necessary steps to protect the transmission and storage of data.

1.35 This issue has been dealt with in detail in Circular No. 96/7/2007-ST dated 23-8-2007. In response to a query as to “Whether depository services and Electronic Access to Securities Information (EASI) services provided by Central Depository Services (India) Ltd., (CDSL) are liable to service tax under Banking and other Financial Services [section 65(105) (zsm)],” it has been clarified that “Services provided by CDSL fall within the scope of “provision and transfer of information and data processing”. These services are not in the nature of “on-line information and data base access or retrieval services’. Therefore, the depository services provided by CDSL including Electronic Access to Securities Information (EASI) for a fee are liable to service tax under Banking and other Financial Services [section 65(105)(zsm)].” Further, earlier also, doubts were raised with the Board as to whether Service Tax is payable on the services rendered by Central Depository Services (India) Limited (CDSL), CDSL was providing depository services in respect of DEMAT stocks to its customers. It had also implemented “Electronic Access to Securities Information” (EASI) to enable the customer to access accounts in the first phase and transact depository business in the second phase of the project. CDSL charged certain fees such as registration fee, annual fee etc. for providing service of EASI. The Board, vide Circular No.50/11/2002-ST dt,18.12.2002, clarified that depository service is one of the services covered under the category of ’Banking and other financial services’. The service of ‘EASI’ provided by CDSL is a part and parcel of depository service and hence covered under the category of “banking and other financial services”. They are liable to pay service tax on all depository service even if service is provided through Internet. Since the services offered by NSDL to DPs are similar to the services of CDSL, the aforesaid clarifications appear mutatis
1.36 NSDL have contended that even though they are a body corporate providing taxable services to their DPs, the value of such service is not liable to service tax on the following grounds:

(a) It was clarified vide instruction F.No.B-II/2000 TRU dated 09,07.2001 that service tax will not be leviable on NSDL or CDSL fee paid to the depositories and recovered from the customers on actual basis.

(b) Board, vide letter No. 137/S7/2006-CX.4 dated 18.05.2007, has clarified that the services provided by the Stock Exchanges and transaction charges recovered by them under different categories of services do not fall under the category of any of the existing taxable services. The activities of NSDL and its status as an infrastructural nodal body is analogous to those of stock exchanges and the services provided by them to the DPs would also not fall under any of the existing taxable services.

1.37 It is observed that the clarification provided vide letter F.No.B-II/2000 TRU dated 05.07.2001 was given in the context of “custodial depository and trust services” [falling under category (v) of Section 65 (12) (a)], not in the context of “provision and transfer of information and data processing” [falling under category (vii) of Section 65 (12) (a)]. In this letter, it was, inter alia, clarified that “Custodial Depository Services” means safe keeping of securities of a client and providing services incidental thereto and includes (a) maintaining accounts of securities of a client; (b) collecting the benefit of rights accruing to the client in respect of securities; (c) keeping the client informed of the action taken or to be taken by the issuer of securities, having bearing on the benefits or rights accruing to the client; and maintaining and reconciling records of the services referred to in sub-clauses (a) i.e (c). Therefore, the clarification that service tax will not be leviable on NSDL or CDSL fee paid to the depositories and recovered from the customers on actual basis, does not appear to be relevant in the context of the taxable service viz. “custodial, depository and trust services”. Similarly, the clarification given vide Board’s letter No. 137/S7/2006-CX.4 dt. 18.05.2007 in the context of services provided by Stock Exchanges does not appear to be applicable to the depository services provided by NSDL to Depository Participants in view of the Board’s clarifications dt.18.12.2002 and 23.8.2007 mentioned above. It is also significant to mention that during the relevant time, the Depository Participants were discharging service tax only on the amounts involving services rendered by them to their investors/clients. These Depository Participants were not discharging service tax on the fees payable to NSDL as NSDL were liable to pay service tax on the fees collected from the Depository Participants.

“7. We find from the impugned order that the appellant is receiving the services from SWIFT, the service involved is transfer of information and also includes data processing. As far as transfer of information, there is no dispute even by the appellant. As regard the provision of data processing the messages sent through SWIFT are encrypted and decrypted in SWIFT’s central system and thereafter it is re-encrypted before the transaction to the beneficiary SWIFT customer. Thus the message data is processed at both locations to prevent data loss. This clearly shows that the data is processed in the entire process of transferring of messages through SWIFT operating centre.

7.1 On further perusal of record, we observe that the SCN contended that services provided by SWIFT relate to transmission and exchange of financial messages through SWIFT NETWORK between two users, with SWIFT acting as the carrier of such messages on a day-to-day basis. As per the information available on the SWIFT website, SWIFT provides the proprietary communications platform, products and services that allow their customers to connect and exchange financial information securely and reliably; SWIFT is solely a carrier of messages. It does not hold funds nor does it manage accounts on behalf of customers, nor does it store financial information on an ongoing basis. As a data carrier, SWIFT transports messages between two financial institutions. This activity involves the secure exchange of proprietary data while ensuring its confidentiality and integrity. As per the history of SWIFT available in the said website, SWIFT started the mission of creating a shared worldwide data processing and communications link and a common language for international financial transactions. The services provided by SWIFT involves providing of information related to financial transactions viz. transfer of funds; transfer of information contained in the said message after processing the data contained therein. Data processing in any computer is a process that converts data into information. The data contained in the said financial message when presented for processing is raw data which when processed become useful information for the customers viz. banks, financial institutions, etc., who then use the said processed information to debit and credit the customers' accounts accordingly, i.e., funds settlement between the banks. The computer network operating systems, i.e., SWIFT network, installed at BOB, SWIFT Network at Belgium and at the recipient's end, for whom the message is intended, manipulate raw data into information and likewise information systems typically take raw data as input to produce information as output. In the context of data processing, data are defined as numbers or characters that represent measured information from the real world. Measured information is then algorithmically derived and/or logically deduced and/or statistically calculated from the multiple data available from the said messages transmitted from BOB. Information is defined as either a meaningful answer to a query or a meaningful stimulus that can cascade into further queries. More generally, the term data processing can apply to any process that converts data from one format to another. From this perspective, data processing becomes the process of converting information into data and also the converting of data back into information. The terms 'information' and 'data' are not synonyms. Data is defined as raw facts while information is processed data. Information is the thing that one knows and data is the representation of the information. Information has meaning while data does not. Computers work with data and not information. Information is a subject of data. Data is unstructured, lacks context and may not be relevant to the recipient. When data is correctly organized, filtered and presented with context, it can become information because it then has "value" to the recipient. Data which is not information is often called raw data. The terms "data", "computer network", "information" are defined under various provisions of the ACT read with the relevant definitions provided under the Information Technology Act, 2000. From the discussions above, it appeared that to facilitate transmission of financial messages, computer network systems known as SWIFT network are installed at BOB and at the receiver's end, i.e., between all intended sender's and recipient's end and SWIFT network based at Belgium, which acts as the transporter/carrier of messages, receives, processes and transmits data between such intended users. Therefore, it appears that the entire activity of messaging of financial transactions with the intention to transfer funds, confirm receipt of such messages, etc., is done exclusively with the objective to retrieve the information contained in the said financial message, process the same and then transfer the processed information to the respective customers, i.e., presenting and recipient banks, financial institutions, etc., as the case may be. After the processing is complete in all respects, such processed data leads to settlement of funds between BOB and the recipient banks. It further appeared that messaging data through magnetic media or through communication backbone leads to data being transferred between two intended users related to the same financial transaction. 7.2 From the above detailed process involved, it is clear that the activities appear to amount to provision and transfer of information and data processing in relation to banking and other financial services, as defined under the Act and clearly covered under the entry provided in sub-clause (a)(vii) of Section 65(12), i.e., "provision and transfer of information and data processing". 7.3 As regards the contention of the appellant that SWIFT does not fall under the category of 'banking and other financial institutions' as SWIFT is not engaged in the business of banking and other financial services, we find that if any person provides the service which is covered under the four corners of definition of "Banking and Other Financial Services", it shall be taxable. Moreover there is no dispute that the SWIFT is a 'body corporate' and covered under the definition of "Banking and Other Financial Services". As per the plain reading of the definition, apart from 'banking and other financial institutions', the category of a person such as 'body corporate' and 'any other person' are also covered. Therefore, it is not significant as to what is the nature of the person who is providing the service, but if the service is covered under the definition, such service is liable to service tax, even if it is presumed that SWIFT is not involved in ‘Banking and Other Financial Services’. The service shall remain taxable as the service is clearly covered under the definition of ‘Banking and Other Financial Services’ in clause (vii) of Section 65(12). Moreover the appellant being liable to pay the service tax is ‘deemed service provider’. Therefore, the status of the appellant is required to be considered and not the status of service provider who is located outside India. For this reason the appellant is undisputedly the deemed ‘banking and other financial institution’. Hence, the submission of ld. counsel does not hold water and it is rejected.”

4.14 Thus we find that throughout Appellants were providing for “provision and transfer of information and data processing” and these are provided in relation to their depository operations. Thus the services provided by them to Depository Participants are covered by the definition of Banking and Financial services and are liable to service tax under that category. Appellants have taken the stand that extended period of limitation cannot be invoked as the relevant facts were in knowledge of the revenue and hence they had not suppressed anything from the revenue authorities with the intention to evade payment of tax. They have relied upon various case laws on the subject. From the facts as available on record specifically the correspondences with CBEC, referred to by them we find that the issue involved in those correspondences were in relation to Central Depository Services and not in relation to services of providing for ‘provision and transfer of information and data processing’. Since the services which are subject matter for the present dispute were never disclosed to the concerned revenue authorities hence we are not in position to uphold the contentions raised by the appellant’s against invoking extended period of limitation to demand the tax from them. For upholding the invocation of extended period of limitation we rely on the decision Hon’ble Gujarat High Court in case of Neminath Fabrics [2010 (256) ELT 369 (Guj)] and CESTAT in case of Star India Pvt Ltd [2015 (380 STR 884 (T-Mum)].

4.15 Appellants have challenged the quantification of demand on two counts, stated as follows:

- The amount collected by them from the DP’s was the gross amount collected and if the tax was to be demanded then this amount should be treated as inclusive of Service Tax payable. Thus treating this amount as cum tax amount the tax payable should be computed as per Section 67(2) of the Finance Act, 1994.

- They had paid a certain amount of taxes during the period of dispute. The amounts paid by them towards the tax was also reflected in their ST-3 returns. This tax paid should have been taken into account while determining the tax payable by them.

4.16 Commissioner has dealt the two issues raised by the appellants in para 4.19 and 4.20 of his order. These para’s are reproduced below:

"4.19 The noticee have claimed that there is a computation error in the SCN and excess calculation of Rs.20.03 crores towards alleged liability of Service Tax has been made in the SCN. I have gone through the discrepancies pointed out by the noticee in the Annexure (computation statement) attached to the SCN, the computation statement as provided by the noticee and the documents available on record and find that the objections raised by the noticee with regard to the demand amount is bereft of merit. The contention of the noticee that service tax is not leviable on penalties collected by them from their customers is not acceptable since Service Tax is leviable on the gross amount charged by the service provider in terms of Section 67 of Chapter V of the Finance Act, 1994 and penalties collected by noticee form a part of the gross receipts. The noticee has further claimed that Service tax is already paid on ‘Fees for ETDS (AIR) Upload’, ‘Fees for E-TDS Upload 04-05’, ‘Fees for ETDS Upload 05-06’, ‘Fees for Tin (Pan 45)” ‘Fees for Digitisation charge’ and ‘Fees for Tin (Tan 35)’. In this regard, I have gone through the statement dt. 15.10.2009 of Shri TK Desai, Senior Vice-president of noticee, wherein he has described all the different heads on which Service Tax has. been paid by the noticee. I do not find mention of the heads on which service tax is alleged to have been paid by the noticee in the statement. Therefore, I am not inclined to accept their contention. As regards the noticees contention that Service Tax is calculated twice on same item ‘Recovery on A/c of ISDN’, I find from the data provided by noticee that there are two distinct items ‘Recovery on A/c of ISDN (Tin)’ and ‘Recovery on A/c of ISDN’. Therefore the Service tax calculation is done correctly. The noticee has also contended that ‘Dpm Licence fees’, ‘MS Exchange Licence fees’ and ‘SQL – Licence fees’ are together called ‘Software Licence fees’ and that the department has erred in taking this amounts once individually and again under the broad heading resulting in doubling of demand. I find from the records that all the four heads find separate mention in the date provided by noticee and therefore the same are correctly reflected in the Annexure to SCN. In view of the above, I find that the computation of demand is correctly done as made out in the SCN.

4.20 Another contention of the noticee is that even if service tax is payable on the value of services rendered, then the liability if any has to be determined as if the value is inclusive of service tax. Cum-tax value is provided for in Section 67(2) of the Finance Act, 1994 which is reproduced below:

(1) …………………………………………….

(2) Where the gross amount charged by a service provider, for the service provided or to be provided is inclusive of service tax payable, the value of such taxable service shall be such amount as, with the addition of tax payable, is equal to the gross amount charged.

(3) …………………………………..

(4) …………………………………..

It is not the argument of the noticee that the consideration collected by them is inclusive of service tax nor that is a fact. Provisions of Section 67(2) of the Finance Act, 1994 are not applicable to them.”

4.17 We are in agreement with the submissions made by the appellant that benefit of cum tax value and the tax paid by them during the relevant period should have been taken into account while determining the tax payable by them. Larger Bench of Tribunal has in case of Shri Chakra Tyres [1999 (108) ELT 361 (T-LB)] held as follows:

“9.1 We have carefully considered the pleas advanced from both sides, assessable value is required to be determined in terms of Section 4 of the Act. Sub-section 4(4)(d)(ii) envisages deduction of aggregate effective duty payable on the goods under the Act, and all other Acts, if the wholesale price at which goods are sold includes all such excise duties. Wholesale price is the total consideration received by an assessee against sale of excisable goods in wholesale trade. Wholesale price will include the element of duty payable on any goods because such duty forms part of the consideration for sale of the goods according to terms of sale of the goods. If any further demand of duty is created against an assessee and such further demand of duty cannot be passed on to a customer in view of the terms of sale of any goods between the assessee and a customer, the original consideration (including duty, if any) received by an assessee for sale of the goods in wholesale trade, has to be taken as cumduty price for the purpose of demand of higher duty subsequently. Any hypothetical consideration that the sale price would have gone up had correct duty been paid in the first instance cannot, in our opinion, be made the basis for nonabatement of differential duty from the realised sale price. We have to take into account the facts as they are, not what they might have been. Total duty proposed to be demanded shall have to be abated from the cum-duty price actually received and liable to be received as a consideration for sale of goods. This is the mandate of Sub-section 4(d)(ii). Contention of assessees, as given in examples in para 6.2 above is correct and in conformity with the provisions of Section 4(4)(d)(ii). We take support for our view from the Apex Court’s judgment in Pravara Pulp (supra). Analysis made by the Tribunal in Express Rubber (supra), relevant portion of which has already been extracted above is apt in our view. We endorse the same.”

Same view was expressed by the Hon’ble Apex Court in case of Maruti Udyog [2002 (141) ELT 3 (SC)] in following words

“A reading of the aforesaid Section clearly indicates that the wholesale price which a charged is deemed to be the value for the purpose of levy of excise duty, but the element of excise duty, sales tax or other taxes which is included in the wholesale price is to be excluded in arriving at the excisable value. This Section has been so construed by this Court in Asstt. Collector of Central Excise & Others vs Bata India Ltd., [1996] 4 SCC 563 , and it is thus clear that when cum-duty price is charged, then in arriving at the excisable value of the goods the element of duty which is payable has to be excluded. The Tribunal has, therefore, rightly proceeded on the basis that the amount realised by the respondent from the sale of scrap has to be regarded as a normal wholesale price and in determining the value on which excise duty is payable the element of excise duty which must be regarded as having been incorporated in the sale price, must be excluded. There is nothing to show that once the demand was raised by the Department, the respondent sought to recover the same from the purchaser of scrap. The facts indicate that after the sale transaction was completed, the purchaser was under no obligation to pay any extra amount to the seller, namely, the respondent. In such a transaction, it is the seller who takes on the obligation of paying all taxes on the goods sold and in such a case the said taxes on the goods sold are to be deducted under Section 4(4)(d)(ii) and this is precisely what has been directed by the Tribunal. There is also nothing to show that the sale price was not cum-duty."

4.18 Hence in our view the benefit of "cum tax value" as per section 67(2) of the Finance Act, 1994 should be extended to the appellant’s while determining the tax payable. In our view the Commissioner has erred in not extending the benefit of tax already paid by the appellant in respect of certain services sought to be taxed again in the present proceedings. Hence the matter for quantification of demands on the above lines need to be remanded back to the original adjudicating authority for denovo consideration.

4.19 Since we uphold the demand of tax made, we uphold the demand of interest made under Section 75 of the Finance Act 1994. For doing so we rely upon the decisions as follows:

- P V Vikhe Patil SSK [2007 (215) ELT 23 (Bom)] affirmed by the Hon’ble Supreme Court [2016 (335) ELT 196 (SC)]
- Kanhai Ram Thakedar [2005 (185) ELT 3 (SC)]
- TCP Limited [2006 (1) STR 134 (T-Ahd)]
- Pepsi Cola Marketing Co [2007 (8) STR 246 (T-Ahd)]
- Ballarpur Industries Limited [2007 (5) STR 197 (T-Mum)].

4.20 Penalty has been imposed by the Commissioner under Section 75A & 77 for various infractions noticed in complying with provision of law. For imposing penalty under these Sections Commissioner has recorded as follows:

"4.22 As regards imposition of penalty under Section 75A of the Act, I find that they failed to apply for registration as required under Section 69 of the Act read with Rule 4 of Service Tax Rules, 1994 and therefore penalty under Section 75A of the Act is rightly imposable.

4.25 As regards proposed penalty under Section 77 of the Act, I find that the noticee have failed to file proper periodical return as prescribed under Section 70 of the Finance Act, 1994 read with Rule 7 of the Service Tax Rules., 1994 on the due dates and also failed to furnish the list of all accounts maintained by them in relation to Service Tax as required under Rule 5(2) of the Service Tax Rules, 1994.
By virtue of the provisions of Section 77 and by the acts of omission by M/s. NSDL as mentioned above, I hold M/s. NSDL liable to penal action under Section 77 of the Act."

Penalties under Section 77 are civil in nature and are imposed for infractions noticed. Hon’ble Supreme Court has in case of Gujarat Travancore Agency vs.
Commissioner of Income Tax [1989 (42) ELT 350 (SC)], Hon’ble Supreme Court held as under:

4. ............In most cases of criminal liability, the intention of the Legislature is that the penalty should serve as a deterrent. The creation of an offence by Statute proceeds on the assumption that society suffers injury by and the act or omission of the defaulter and that a deterrent must be imposed to discourage the repetition of the offence. In the case of a proceeding under Section 271(1)(a), however, it seems that the intention of the legislature is to emphasise the fact of loss of Revenue and to provide a remedy for such loss, although no doubt an element of Coercion is present in the penalty. In this connection the terms in which the penalty falls to be measured is significant. Unless there is something in the language of the statute indicating the need to establish the element of mens rea it is generally sufficient to prove that a default in complying with the statute has occurred. We are supported by the statement in Corpus Juris Secundum Volume 85, page 580, Paragraph 1023: “A penalty imposed for a tax delinquency is a civil obligation, remedial and coercive in its nature, and is far different from the penalty for a crime or a fine or forfeiture provided as punishment for the violation of criminal or penal laws.”

Since there is no dispute about such infractions as recorded by the Commissioner in his impugned order, penalties as imposed under Section 77(2) are justified.

4.21 While imposing penalty under Section 78 of Finance Act, 1994, Commissioner has observed as follows:

“4.23 As regards proposed penalty under Section 78 of the Act, it is seen from the case records that the noticee had provided the services for a commercial consideration and have deliberately failed to assess and pay Service Tax due on the value received by them on account of these taxable services provided. They also did not file periodical ST-3 returns for these taxable services provided which clearly proves that they had avoided payment of Service Tax within the due dates stipulated under STR, which but for the said investigation initiated by DGCEI would not have come to light, thereby making them liable to penalty under Section 78 of the Act. Moreover extended period under proviso to Section 73(1) has been correctly invoked in the subject case. Noticee’s reliance, in this regard, on various case laws like: (i) Nizam Sugar Factory vs CCE AP [2006 (197) ELT 465 (SC)] (ii) Dolphin Detective Agency vs CCE Belgaum [2006 (4) STR (25)] (iii) Ugamchand Bhandari vs CCE Madras [2004 (167) ELT 491 (SC)] (iv) Mentha & Allied Products Ltd. [2004 (167) ELT 494 (SC)] wherein the matter is relevant to the Departmental Assessment era of 1991, and other similar judgments are misplaced and not relevant to the subject case. Penalty is punitive as well as preventive measure to act as a deterrent against recurrence of breach of law and also to discourage non-compliance of law especially when there has been deliberate avoidance of payment of tax. Penalty prescribed under Section 78 of the Act is for deliberate avoidance of payment of tax. Noticee’s case is squarely covered under the provisions of Section 78 of the Act for imposition of penalty. In view of the above, Noticee have no case for non imposition of penalty and as such penalty under Section 78 of the Act is rightly imposable in respect of his case.”

Since we uphold the invocation of extended period of limitation in the present case, the penalties imposed under Section 78 cannot be faulted with in view of the above referred decision of the Hon’ble Bombay High Court {para 4.19, supra} and the decision of Hon’ble Supreme Court in case of Rajasthan Spinning and Weaving Mills [2009 (238) ELT 3 (SC)].

4.22 Thus we summarize our findings in the appeal as follows:

1. Services provided by the appellant to depository participants are aptly of “provision and transfer of information and data processing”, classifiable under (vii) of Banking and Financial Services as defined under Section 65(12) of Finance Act, 1994;
2. Extended period of limitation as per proviso to Section 73(1) of Finance Act, 1994, for demanding the service tax is invocable.
3. Benefit of cum tax value as per sub-section (2) of Section 67 of Finance Act, 1994 is admissible to the appellants and so is also the benefit of the tax already paid as per the ST-3 returns filed by them, hence matter needs to be remanded back to adjudicating authority for requantification of demand.
4. Demand of interest under Section 75 of Finance Act, 1994 is justified.
5. Penalties imposed under Section 75A, 77 & 78 of Finance Act, 1994 is justified but needs to be redetermined in light of re-quantification of demand in de-novo proceedings.

5.1 In light of the discussions as above we uphold the impugned order but remand the matter for re-quantification of the demand after allowing the benefit cum tax value as per section 67(2) of Finance Act, 1994 and amount of tax paid by the appellants as per the ST-3 returns for relevant period filed by the appellant. Thus the appeal is allowed to this extent and matter remanded to adjudicating authority for re-quantification of demand and determination of penalties under Section 75A, 77 and 78.

Per: C J Mathew:

This appeal of M/s Go Airlines (India) Pvt Ltd, challenging the recovery of Rs. 56,58,312 under section 73 of Finance Act, 1994 read with section 66A of Finance Act, 1994, along with interest thereon under section 78 of Finance Act, 1994 and Rs. 10,000 under section 77 of Finance Act, 1994 vide order-in-original no. 24/STC-I/SKS/13-14 dated 29th July 2013 of Commissioner of Service Tax-I, Mumbai, is limited to the finding therein that the impugned activity conforms to section 65(105)(zh) of Finance Act, 1994 and not to that in section 65(105)(zzze) of Finance Act, 1994 as claimed by the assessee. It is common ground that the appellant is a recipient of service, provided by M/s Radixx Solutions International Inc., USA, to whom the first payment under the contract was made on 27th June 2006 and that the appellant had discharged tax liability of Rs. 28,01,753 on payments effected after 16th May 2008 with the incorporation of ‘information technology software’ among the taxable services in section 65(105) of Finance Act, 1994. The liability, for the period of dispute from 26th July 2006 to 31st August 2009, was fastened upon them by the operation of the legal fiction in section 66A of Finance Act, 1994 that deemed the recipient as provider to accord jurisdiction for collection of tax on services procured from outside India. The total liability of Rs. 73,43,647 for the period was partly adjusted from the voluntary payment of Rs. 16,85,335 towards the dues from 15th November 2006 to 20th July 2007. As the self-assessed payment of Rs. 28,01,753 has been discharged, the amount in dispute before us is restricted to Rs. 28,56,559.

2. Learned Chartered Accountant appearing for the appellant informs that the contract with M/s Radixx Solutions International Inc involving licensing of software that was utilised for management of the data of the appellant for their own enterprise-wide resource programming. It was pointed out that the product licensed to them was being extensively, and exclusively, used for their operations and, by its very nature, was rendered taxable only with the enumeration of ‘information technology software’ service in Finance Act, 1994. The allegation that the contract purported to provide ‘online information database access and retrieval’ service is, according to him, misconstruing of a minuscule component pertaining to the handling of the ‘booking platform’ accessed by their customers and agents. He also distinguished the said product from that involved in the decision of the Tribunal in Jet Airways India Ltd v. Commissioner [2016 (44) STR...
465 (Tri-Mum) as control over the data remained with the appellant and was accessed, as well as used, primarily by their employees.

3. Referring to the findings of the impugned order that

'4.6…… What exactly is relevant is what is the outcome of the service provided by Radiix. For providing any Online Data Access or Retrieval process, there would definitely be some software and some operating system and both need be worked on some server. The particular software appears to be the property of Radiix and Radiix allow them to use by their customer. It is very important to understand that Radiix is not only giving the software but Radiix also operate the software on their own server which results in to generation of certain outcome....'

Learned Chartered Accountant contends that this clear admission of the nature of the activity should have relieved them of the tax burden from the earlier date proposed in the notice. Further, it is submitted that the due discharge of liability as the recipient of 'information technology software' from June 2008 as well as provision of service, under the classification decided upon in the impugned order, being outside India with consequent exemption from tax is ample evidence of the clear absence of intent to evade tax. The decision, of the Tribunal in re Jet Airways India Ltd and upheld by the Hon’ble Supreme Court, that the revenue neutrality inherent in entitlement to CENVAT credit of the duty paid by them on ‘reverse charge’, according to Learned Chartered Accountant, also suffices to extinguish the intent of evading tax. He, therefore, submits that show cause notice dated 15th December 2009 is barred by limitation for recovery of the any amount prior to their voluntary acceptance of taxability.

4. Learned Authorised Representative contends that the taxability as provider of ‘information technology software service’ cannot be said to apply to the appellant as the software, and control thereof, remains with M/s Radixx Solutions International Inc and access alone is afforded to the licensee for uploading, and retrieval, of data which can, thereafter, the manipulated for management of the business of the appellant. Clarifying that the payments are also effected on per transaction basis, he contends that the activity is no different from that which was disputed in Jet Airways India Ltd v. Commissioner of Service Tax, Mumbai and in British Airways v. Commissioner of Central Excise (Adjudication) and, the demand therein having been set aside not on the ground of not having been received in India but on the bar of limitation, the impugned order must be upheld. According to him, the voluntary payment for part of the period before assessing themselves as liable to tax under section 65 (105) (zzze) of Finance Act, 1994 establishes the correctness of the finding of the adjudicating authority. Reliance was placed upon the decision of the Tribunal in Compton Greaves Ltd v. Commissioner of Central Excise, Aurangabad [2004 (177) ELT 1032 (Tri-Mumbai)], in Commissioner of Central Excise, Chandigarh v. Dharampal Prem Chand Ltd [2011 (263) ELT 81 (Tri-Del)], in Nitin Spinners Ltd v. Commissioner of Central Excise, Jaipur-II [2017 (355) ELT 562 (Tri-Del)], Shree Ranie Gums & Chemicals Pvt Ltd v. Commissioner of Central Excise, Jaipur-II [2017 (4) GSTL 340 (Tri-Del)] and of the Hon’ble Supreme Court in DharampalSatyapal v. Commissioner of Central Excise, New Delhi [2005 (183) ELT 241 (SC)].

5. The primary contention of Learned Chartered Accountant is that, unlike the finding of leviable, though held as irrecoverable, in re Jet Airways India Ltd and in re British Airways, the contract entered into with M/s Radiix Solutions International Inc is not one of ‘computerised reservation system’ but a comprehensive, enterprise-wide software. Undoubtedly, the dispute in the cited decisions pertained to contract for the reservation system providing interface for agents and travelling public but the said decisions did not restrict ‘online information database access and retrieval’ service to ‘computer reservation system’ alone. Admittedly, the impugned contract does provide the very same interface and is intended as a travel business solution. In the definition clause of the contract, it is seen that ‘Radiix System is ‘the Radiix proprietary software system, incorporating the Radiix Software, for use in providing call center and Internet-based consumer reservation and information management services for travel-related business...’ and the hosting of service is to be the responsibility of the licensor of the software. It is also clear from the appended schedules and exhibits that annual payments are to be effected on the basis of ‘passenger segment’ as the variable.

6. As claimed on behalf of the appellant, it is quite probable that the licensed software is deployed across the functional and operational spread of the organisation. Nevertheless, the airline industry is entirely dependent on passenger/cargo traffic and it is the booking/reservation system that is at the heart of it. All other functions, notwithstanding their scale of investment or intensiveness of manpower, are auxiliary to the ticketing of passengers/booking of cargo. Hence, the agreement is intended for the deployment of a system of data accumulation, to enable passenger facilitation, and data retrieval which, in turn, ensures optimal deployment of resources. There is also no doubt that the system of ‘online information database access and retrieval’ interfaces the appellant with intending travellers. This, however, does not exclude the transaction between the appellant and the overseas contractor from the ambit of taxation as it is leviable on ‘(zh) to any person, by any person, in relation to on-line information and database access or retrieval or both in electronic form through computer network, in any manner;’ in section 65 (105) of Finance Act, 1994. Though the information and database may be accessed at either end only by the appellant and intending passengers or agents, the taxability is in relation to such performance that can be undertaken only with the software and hosting provided by the overseas entity. The appellant, by entering into the impugned contract, has a customer-supplier relationship with M/s Radixx Solutions International Inc. This, undoubtedly, is in conformity with the taxable service. Therefore, the tax liability devolves for the receipt of the service throughout the entire period of dispute.

7. The conclusion of the Tribunal that ‘10.7 In our considered view, we have to read the order holistically, i.e. British Airways case; on merit is against the appellant in this case while on the issue of revenue neutrality the order of British Airways supports appellant’s case. The ratio of the Bench applies clearly to the case in hand accordingly respectfully following to ratio we have to hold that the appellant has made out a case in their favour on the question of revenue neutrality. In view of a direct decision on the self same issue, we are not recording any findings on the other case laws relied upon by both sides on the question of revenue neutrality.…’ In re Jet Airways India Ltd is the ground cited by Learned Chartered Accountant for extending the same benefit to the appellant. Our finding supra are not based upon, and did not place reliance on, the decision in re British Airways. It is after examining the facts and submission made on behalf of the appellant and subjecting the terms of the contract to scrutiny that the conformity to the description of the taxable service has been determined.

8. On the other hand, the several decisions cited by Learned Authorised Representative establishes that the liability to pay tax during the extended period cannot be extinguished by adopting the plea of revenue neutrality. While revenue neutrality may be pleaded as evidence of lack of intent to evade tax, it may not, in every circumstance, justify the negation of the scope for invoking the extended period. We find no evidence on record that the appellant had been guided by expert advice to, consciously, be ignorant of the leviability for the said activity. The legal opinion furnished in evidence by Learned Chartered Accountant has been obtained after the issue of default had been raised; moreover, it would appear from the contents therein that it relates to the liability of the appellant under section 66A of Finance Act, 1994 as provider of ‘information technology software service’ and not to the primacy of this service over the one sought to be fastened on the appellant by the tax authorities.

9. It is contended by Learned Chartered Accountant that self-assessment to tax, on incorporation of ‘information technology software service’ in section 65(105)(zzzza) of Finance Act, 1994, is ample evidence of their diligence in discharge of tax liability to exclude the possibility of having contemplated evasion of tax. In terms of the activity that is sought to be taxed by these two entries, the connection with electronic data processing is unmistakable. Considering the mechanism incorporated in the two definitions to render the activity functional, the minor differences between them should have led to a similar speculative reasoning on the part of the assessee and the deliberate discard of applicability after initial discharge of tax liability should have been justified in the proceedings instead of relying upon decisions of the Tribunal rendered subsequent to the period of dispute. The discharge of tax liability after incorporation of the new levy occurred during the investigations and, therefore, does not obtain for themselves the halo of diligence. The observation of the Hon’ble Supreme Court, in re Dharampal Satyapal, that leads to the inevitable conclusion that the plea of operation of the bar of limitation cannot be acceptable in the circumstances sought for by the appellant.

"25.…… A right to claim pro forma/modvat credit against duty on final products was different from the defence of bonafides in a case where circumstances mentioned in the proviso to section 11 A (1) stands proved by the Department for invoking larger period of limitation. The burden to prove the defence of bonafides was on the assessee and the assessee in this case has failed to prove its bonafides…'

10. We take note that the impugned order has imposed penalty of Rs. 56,58,312 under section 78 of Finance Act, 1994. It is seen that appellant has been discharging tax liability since 16th May 2006 and, with payment of taxes amounting to Rs. 16,85,335 at some stage before ceasing to do so in July 2007, the unpaid dues is limited to Rs. 28,56,559. Accordingly, while upholding the impugned order as being consistent with the law, the penalty under section 78 of Finance Act, 1994 is capped at this amount.

11. The appeal is, therefore, dismissed save for this modification.

1.2 By the order dated 16.09.2016 the Commissioner has adjudicated the dispute for the period from 2010-11 to 2014-15. By the order dated 04.09.2019, the dispute for the period April 2015 to June 2017 has been adjudicated.

2.1 Appellant is a scheduled commercial bank and is providing various banking and Financial Services. For undertaking the various operations in relation to conduct of their business as a bank they are required to undertake certain activities which are statutorily prescribed.

2.2 They are required to deposit certain amount as premium for insuring the depositors account to the Deposit Insurance Credit Guarantee Corporation (DICGC). On the premium paid by them to the DICGC, they pay service tax, and claim the same as CENVAT Credit treating these services as input services for providing the output services.

2.3 They are also authorized by the Reserve Bank of India as a primary dealer (PD), to underwrite government securities. In addition to earning interest and trading profits on these government securities, they also get underwriting commission which is subject to service tax (w.e.f). As per Section 11(2)[b][ii] of the Banking Regulation Act, 1949, they are statutorily required to deploy 20 to 25% of their funds in Government Securities and are also require to maintain mandatorily prescribed Statutory Liquidity Ratio (SLR). For the purpose of these they avail the services of stock brokers to buy and sell these government securities in open market.

2.4 A show cause notice dated 08.10.2015 was issued to the appellant proposing to deny the CENVAT Credit availed by them in respect of the these input services, for the period of Financial Year 2010-11 to 2014-15. This show cause notice has been adjudicated vide order dated 16.09.2016, referred in para 1, supra.

2.5 Another show cause notice dated 26.02.2018 was issued seeking to deny the CENVAT Credit in respect of the same services claimed to be input services by the Appellant. This show cause notice has been adjudicated by the Commissioner vide his order dated 04.09.2019.

2.6 Aggrieved by both the adjudication order Appellants have preferred these appeals before CESTAT.

3.1 We have heard Shri Prasad Paranjape, Advocate for the Appellant and Shri D M Shinde, Assistant Commissioner, Authorized Representative for the revenue.

3.2 Arguing for the appellants learned Counsel submits that,-

- Issue in respect of admissibility of CENVAT Credit of the service tax paid on the premium paid to DICGC, by the banks, has been settled by the larger bench of the tribunal in case of South Indian Bank, holding that CENVAT Credit is admissible. Following this decision the Mumbai Bench has also decided the issue in favour of admissibility of credit to the banks in case of DBS Bank Ltd [Appeal No ST/89524/2018 decided on 07.09.2020], Yes Bank Ltd [Appeal No ST/86654/2016,decided on 15.09.2020] and IndusInd Bank [Appeal No ST/86705/2016 decided on 29.09.2020]. Thus following the ratio of these decisions the credit in respect of these services should be allowed to them.

- They receive the services of the stock brokers for the purchase on sale of government securities in the open market for the following reasons,-

  - They underwrite government securities and to ensure sufficient liquidity to make market for each subsequent mandatory auction, they are required to trade in the government securities including those underwritten.
  - To maintain capital adequacy standards prescribed by RBI.
  - To comply with the Section 11 (2) (b)[ii] of The Banking Regulation Act, 1949, 20 to 25% of its profits is mandatorily deployed in cash or government securities.

- They are required to comply with these statutorily prescribed requirements, and... for these they engage the services of the stock brokers. Since the services of stock brokers are required to comply with the statutorily prescribed requirements, the CENVAT Credit in respect of these services should be admissible to them as has been held by the Hon’ble Karnataka High Court in case of PNB Metlife India Insurance Co Ltd.

- In case of Reliance Industry Ltd [2016 (1) TMI 19 CESAT Mumbai], tribunal has allowed the cenvat credit on stock broker services availed an assessee engaged in manufacturing and clearing of goods, on the ground that the same is included in the inclusive part of the definition.

- Since the services of stock broker is essential for providing underwriting services to the RBI and also for maintaining prescribed SLR. Hus there being a direct nexus between the input and output service the ratio of larger bench in case of South Indian Bank, referred above is applicable in this case also.

- Thus in view of the above decisions, the CENVAT Credit, availed by them on the commission paid to stock brokers will be admissible.

- Rule 6 (3B) of the CENVAT Credit Rules, 2004 as it existed at appropriate time, provided for reversal of the credit availed. This reversal is in lieu of non maintenance of separate accounts towards taxable and exempt business. Since they have complied with the said provisions there cannot be separate demand for denial/ reversal of credit availed in respect of individual input services, as per the decision of tribunal in case of South Indian Bank.

- Demand for the period between April 2010 to September 2013 is barred by limitation, in view of the decisions as follows:

  - Continental Foundation [2007 (216) ELT 177 (SC)]
  - Tamil Nadu Housing Board [1994 (90) TMI 69 SC]
  - Uniworth Textiles Ltd [2013 (288) ELT 161 (SC)]
  - Penalty imposed under Section 78 needs to be set aside and relief granted under Section 80 of the Finance Act, 1994, in view of the decisions in following cases:

    - Uniflex Cables Ltd [2011 (271) ELT 161 (SC)]
    - Bharat Hotels Ltd [2018 (12) GSTL 368 (Del)]
  - Even if the penalty under Section 78 is to be maintained it should be restricted to 25% of the disputed CENVAT amount.

  - In respect of the penalty of Rs 25,73,798/-, imposed in respect of certain disputed credits which had been availed by them, but reversed along with interest prior to issuance of show cause notice, benefit of Section 73(3) should be allowed and no penalty imposed. It has been held so in various decisions referred below:

    - Tirupathi Fuels Pvt Ltd [207 (6) TMI 477 (AP)]
    - Adecco Flexione Workforce Solutions Ltd [2011 (9) TMI 114 (Kar)]
    - C Ahead Info Technologies India P Ltd [2010 (19) STR 276 (T-Ahd)]
    - Nischint Engineering Consultants Pvt Ltd [2010 (19) STR 276 (T-Ahd)]
    - Gupta Coal Fields & Washeries Ltd [2013 (29) STR 166 (T-Mum)]

3.3 Arguing for the revenue learned Authorized Representative while reiterating the findings recorded in the order submits that:

- in relation to the admissibility of the CENVAT Credit of the Service Tax p66id on the premium paid to Deposit Insurance Credit Guarantee Corporation to the Bank, the Larger Bench of Hon’ble Tribunal has in its recent judgment in the case of South Indian Bank VS The Commissioner of customs, Central Excise and Service Tax, Calicut has held that the CENVAT credit service tax paid on insurance premium paid to DIGCC can be availed by the bank. A letter has been written to the concerned Commissionerate enquiring whether any appeal has been filed against the said judgment. Reply is still awaited.

- In respect of the second issue i.e. wrong availment of CENVAT credit of service tax paid on brokerage on the sale/purchase of government securities, the appellants state that they have availed the broking service for various activities, and these activities are essential and statutorily prescribed for conducting the business of Bank. These activities are as follows:

o The services of broker are essential for underwriting government securities.

o To maintain the SLR (Statutory Liquidity Ratio) as prescribed by the banking regulations act, 1949.

o They invest in government securities for earning profit or interest or generating money.

- Since these activities are not in relation to the providing the output services the services of the brokerage for the same cannot be said to be an input service as defined by the Rule 2 (k) of the CENVAT Credit Rules, 2004 and hence the service tax paid on broking commission will not be admissible as CENVAT Credit to the appellant.

- The underwriting is completed when appellant takes over unsubscribed portion of the securities if any, and the assessee gets commission for the same. Subsequent sale of these government securities, is simply an act of trading in these securities and cannot be said to be input service for providing the output services.

- As per section 11 of the Banking Regulation Act, 1949 the banks are required to maintain a prescribed percentage of their assets in liquid form viz cash and/or approved securities. It is a fact that cash is the most liquid asset, however, it does not generate any revenue whereas ‘approved securities’ are investments which generate revenue. Thus, the objective of maintaining the SLR in approved securities is to maximize the profits for shareholders and not for providing any service to their clients.

- Thus these are an investment and have nothing to do with the output service i.e. lending.

- Since these activities of purchase/sale of government securities through the brokers is for appropriately investing their funds to maximize their profits on account of such investments they cannot be said to be in relation to providing the output services. Further these activities are in nature of trading activities of the appellant and not in the nature of service. The service tax paid on the brokerage/commission paid cannot be said to be an input service for providing the output service.

4.1 We have considered the impugned order along with the submissions made in appeal made during the course of arguments. We have also considered the submissions made by the appellants in their written submissions dated 9th October 2020 and 14th October 2020, and by the revenue in the written submissions dated 19th October 2020.

4.2 There are three issues before us for consideration in this appeal, namely,-

i. Admissibility of the CENVAT credit of the service tax paid on the insurance premium paid to DICGC.

ii. Admissibility of the CENVAT credit of the service tax paid on the commission paid to the brokers for underwriting the government securities etc and for making investments in securities to maintain mandatory SLR as per the Banking Regulation Act, 1949

iii. Penalties imposed

4.3 There is no dispute about the fact that the issue in respect of the admissibility of CENVAT Credit of the Service Tax paid on the premium paid by the bank to the DICGC, has been decided by the three member bench of this tribunal in case of South Indian Bank, referred to by the learned Counsel and Authorized Representative. Learned Authorized Representative submits that they have enquired from the concerned jurisdictional Commissioner, as to whether any appeal against this decision has been preferred by the revenue and the reply is still awaited. This decision of the larger bench has been followed by the tribunal in various decisions referred in para 3.2 above.
4.4 In respect of the admissibility of the CENVAT Credit of the service tax paid on the commission paid by the appellants to the stock brokers for various services of under writing etc, the argument advanced by the learned counsel for the appellant is that these services have been availed by them for undertaking mandated obligations as per the Reserve Bank of India or the Banking Regulation Act, 1949, and hence the service tax paid on the commission paid to the stock brokers for undertaking these statutorily mandated activities, would be admissible to them as per the decisions of the larger bench of tribunal in case of South Indian Bank referred above. They have also relied upon the decision of the Karnataka High Court in the case of PNB Metlife Insurance and CESTAT West Bench decision in the case of Reliance Industries to argue that CENVAT Credit of service tax paid by them on the stock broker services is admissible.

4.3 We find that in the case of South India Bank, larger bench of tribunal has relied upon the decision of the Karnataka High Court in case of PNB Metlife Insurance to decide upon the admissibility CENVAT Credit in respect of the service tax paid on the premium paid to DICGC. The relevant paragraphs from the decision of South India Bank are reproduced below:

"8. The Appellants herein are banking companies as defined under section 5(c) of the Banking Regulation Act, 1949. The Deposit Insurance Corporation is a subsidiary of the Reserve Bank of India and has been established under the Deposit Insurance and Credit Guarantee Corporation Act, 1961 for the purpose of insuring deposits and guarantee credit facilities. The Deposit Insurance Corporation transacts business of insuring the "deposits" accepted by the banks. It has to register every existing "banking company" as also a "new banking company" as an insured bank and the insured bank has to pay a premium to the Deposit Insurance Corporation at the rate notified by the Deposit Insurance Corporation. In the event of banking failure/winding up/ liquidation of a bank, the Deposit Insurance Corporation protects the deposits of the customers up to a maximum of Rs. 1 lakh per depositor. The banks pay service tax on this premium paid to the Deposit Insurance Corporation and avail CENVAT credit of such service tax for the "output services", which the banks provide in relation to "banking and other financial services" as defined under section 65 of the Finance Act, 1994 by treating the service rendered by the Deposit Insurance Corporation as "input service". These services provided by the banks in relation to 'banking and other financial services' are leviable to service tax as the banks do not receive consideration for the same in the form of interest. In terms of rule 6(3B) of the CENVAT Credit Rules, 2004, the banks also reverse 50% of the total CENVAT credit availed on input and input services during a particular month.

9. The banks claim that they are engaged in "accepting" deposits from the public, which deposits are used for the purpose of lending or investment and though no consideration is charged for making the deposits, but the banks thereafter provide number of services like discounting of cheques, minimum balance charges, handling charges for gold loans, locker rent and similar services, which are in relation to 'banking and other financial services' and are chargeable to service tax as consideration for providing such services are not received in the form of interest. The list of services on which the banks have to pay service tax under "banking and other financial services", can be bifurcated into two categories. The first category consists of services which have a direct nexus with the activity of "accepting" deposits, while the second category consists of those services which have a direct nexus with the "lending" activity of the banks. The services under the aforesaid two categories have been stated by the banks to be as follows:

i. Direct nexus with the activity of accepting deposits.
- Charges towards issuance of Cheque book;
- Charges to maintain minimum balance;
- Debit Card charges;
- Duplicate Pass Book/ Bank Statement charges.
- Stop payment charges
- Cheque return charges
- Demand Draft charges
- Charges for providing bank guarantee
- Safe deposit locker facilities; etc
  ii. Direct nexus with the lending activity.
- Processing fee towards obtaining necessary sanctions/approvals for lending money to customers;
- Documentation charges towards completing loan sanction with respect to preparing, printing and executing the various documents required post appropriate sanctions/approvals being taken.
- Inspection charges towards compensation for the time spent in visiting and inspecting the factory/godown/other assets of the borrowers.

10. The banks claim that they have availed credit of service tax paid on “input services” such as core banking software, renting of premises of the bank, maintenance of ATMs by agencies, on which credits no dispute has been raised by the Revenue. The dispute that has been raised by the Revenue is with regard to the service provided by Deposit Insurance Corporation to the banks for insuring the deposits, which service is not considered by the Revenue as an “input service” for the reason that the activity of “accepting deposits” is not a service defined under the Finance Act and so the deposit insurance service received in relation to “accepting” of deposits would not be an “input service” under rule 2(l) of the 2004 Rules. It is for this reason that show cause notices were issued to the banks for recovery of the CENVAT credit availed by the banks on the service tax paid on insurance service received by the banks by invoking the provisions of rule 14 of the 2004 Rules.

11. A reply was submitted by the banks to the show cause notices. It was pointed out that the banks are engaged in “accepting” deposits and not “extending” the deposits and so section 66D(n) of the Finance Act would not be applicable. It was also pointed out that though no consideration was charged by the banks for “accepting” the deposits, but thereafter charges for various services rendered by the banks are recovered from the depositors, for which service tax is paid by the banks. The banks also highlighted that the payment of insurance premium would fall under the main part of the definition of “input service” since any default in making payment of this insurance premium may result in cancellation of the registration of the banks with the Deposit Insurance Corporation which could also ultimately lead to the cancellation of the licence of the banks by the Reserve Bank of India. The banks, therefore, claimed that they were justified in availing the credit of such service tax for providing “banking and other financial services” as “output services”.

12. The contention of the banks in reply to the show cause notices was not accepted by the Adjudicating Officers and the demands have been confirmed. It has been found that “accepting” of deposits by the banks is not a service defined under the Finance Act and in fact is covered under the negative list of services under section 66 D(n) of the Finance Act. Thus, the “banking and other financial services” provided by the banks could not be considered as “output service” and in turn the insurance services received by the banks in relation to “accepting” of deposits would not be “input service”. Insurance on deposits, it has been noted, is taken by the banks for the purpose of securing the deposits of the public and the insurance premium does not protect the actions taken consequent to the deployment of the funds mobilised by the banks through deposits. Thus, the insurance premium is linked only to the deposits accepted by the banks and has no nexus with any output service. Therefore, even if the said service is received by the banks from the Deposit Insurance Corporation to fulfil a statutory requirement, such service would not qualify as an “input service”, unless the service rendered utilising such input service falls under the scope of “output service”. The deposit of insurance premium could be said to be an activity relating to the business of the banks, but the “activities relating to business” of the banks have been deleted by Notification dated 1 March, 2011.”

4.4 From the facts as narrated and recorded by the larger bench in its order, it is quite evident that there two separate stream of services provided by the banking companies. One stream is in relation to the deposits and the other stream is in relation to the lending. These streams are distinctly identifiable and the law also admits the same. Even the DICGC, insures only the deposits and not the lending. That being so the “business of banking” cannot be said be said to be insured under the DCIGC. Larger bench has in its decision referred to the statement of object and reasons, of the Deposit Insurance Act, Para 33 and 34 of the order reads as follows:

"33. The relevant provisions of the Deposit Insurance Act can now be examined;

Statement of Objects and Reasons.

"The question of establishing statutory Corporation for insuring deposits in commercial banks has been under consideration for some time..............

2. The Deposit Insurance Corporation will be established as a wholly-owned subsidiary of the Reserve Bank with a paid-up capital of a crore of rupees. It will insure all deposits in commercial banks including the State Bank and its subsidiaries,............ The premium rate will be determined by the Corporation from time to time with the previous approval of the Central Government. .......

3. The Corporation’s liability will arise and be discharged in the event of the liquidation of a bank or the enforcement in relation to it for a scheme of compromise or arrangement or reconstruction or amalgamation. The payment due to the depositors up to the limit of the insurance cover offered by the Corporation will be made in the most convenient and expeditious manner which may be possible.

2. In this Act, unless the context otherwise requires:

(a) "banking" means the accepting, for the purpose of lending or investments, of deposits of money from the public, repayable on demand or otherwise, and withdrawable by cheque, draft, order or otherwise.

(b) "banking company" means any company which transacts the business of Banking in India and includes the State Bank, and a Subsidiary bank but does not include the Tamilnadu Industrial Investment Corporation Ltd."

2. In this Act, unless the context otherwise requires:

(g) "deposit" means the aggregate of the unpaid balances due to a depositor (other than a foreign Government, the Central Government, a State Government, a corresponding new bank, Regional Rural Bank or a banking company or a cooperative bank) in respect of all his accounts by whatever name called, with a corresponding new bank or with a Regional Rural Bank or with a banking company or a co-operative bank and includes credit balances in any cash credit account but does not include, xxxxxxxxxxxx

(h) "existing banking company" means a banking company carrying on the business of banking at the commencement of this Act which either holds a licence at such commencement under section 22 of the Banking Regulation Act, 1949, or having applied for such licence has not been informed by notice in writing by the Reserve Bank that a licence cannot be granted to it and includes the State Bank and a subsidiary bank, but does not include a defunct banking company;

(k) "new banking company" means a banking company which begins to transact the business of banking after the commencement of this Act under a licence granted to it under section 22 of the Banking Regulation Act, 1949,

(l) "premium" means the sum payable by an insured bank under section 15 of this Act;

34. Sections 10, 11, 13, 15, 15A and 16 of the Deposit Insurance Act are also relevant and they are as follows:

"10. The Corporation shall register every existing banking company as an insured bank before the expiry of thirty days from the date of commencement of this Act.

11. The Corporation shall register every new banking company as an insured bank as soon as may be after it is granted a licence under section 22 of the Banking Regulation Act, 1949.

13. The registration of a banking company as an insured bank shall stand cancelled on the occurrence of any of the following events, namely:

(a) if it has been prohibited from receiving fresh deposits; or
(b) if it has been informed by notice in writing by the Reserve Bank that its licence has been cancelled under section 22 of the Banking Regulation Act, 1949 or that a licence under that section cannot be granted to it; or

c) if it has been ordered to be wound up; or

d) if it has transferred all its deposit liabilities in India to any other institution; or

(e) if it has ceased to be a banking company within the meaning, of sub section (2) of section 36A of the 'Banking Regulation Act, 1949, or has converted itself into a nonbanking company; or

(f) if a liquidator has been appointed in pursuance of a resolution for the voluntary winding up of its affairs; or

(g) if in respect of it any scheme of compromise or arrangement or of reconstruction has been sanctioned by any competent authority and the said scheme does not permit the acceptance of fresh deposits; or

(h) if it has been amalgamated with any other banking institution.

15. (1) Premium - Every insured bank shall, so long as it continues to be registered, be liable to pay a premium to the Corporation on its deposits at such or rates as may, with the previous approval of the Reserve Bank, be notified by the Corporation, from time to time, to the insured bank and different rates may be notified for different categories of insured banks.

15 A. Cancellation of registration of an insured bank for non-payment of premium

(1) The Corporation may cancel the registration of an insured bank if it fails to pay the premium for three consecutive periods: Provided that no such registration shall be cancelled except after giving to the concerned bank one month’s notice in writing calling upon that bank to pay the amount in default.

(2) The Corporation may restore the registration of a bank whose registration has been cancelled under sub-section (1), if the concerned bank requests the Corporation to restore the registration and pays all the amounts due by way of premia from the date of default till the date of payment together with interest due thereon, on the date of payment. Provided that the Corporation shall not restore the registration unless it is satisfied, on an inspection of the concerned bank or otherwise that it is eligible to be registered as an insure bank.

16 (1) Where an order for the winding up or liquidation of an insured bank is made, the Corporation shall, subject to the other provisions of this Act, be liable to pay to every depositor of that bank in accordance with the provisions of section 17 an amount equal to the amount due to him in respect of his deposit in that bank at the time when such order is made:

Provided that the liability of the Corporation in respect of an insured bank referred to in clause (a) or clause(b) of sub-section (1) of section (13) or clause (a) or clause (b) of section 13 C shall be limited to the deposits as on the date of the cancellation of the registration.

Provided further that the total amount payable by the Corporation to any one depositor in respect of his deposit in that bank in the same capacity and in the same right shall not exceed Rs. 1,00,000/-."

4.5 From the plain reading of the above provisions the scheme and purpose of the DICGC, is evident, and it quite evident that such a corporation and insurance of depositor has been envisaged in law, to statutorily mitigate the risk of the depositors in making the deposits with the bank. The banking company do not operate to accept deposits but will make use of the money mobilized through the deposits, and earn profits by way of lending the money at much higher interest rates. The actual risk which banking business faces is vis a vis the lendings and not the deposits. We would find the case for non performing assets, (NPA), and when such NPA increase a bank starts going bust. So the actual risk to banking business lies in the lendings and not in the deposits. However no such statutory scheme has been envisage for insuring the bank against the lending's. However the banks are always free to mitigate the risk involved, by asking the borrower to insure the loans advanced through a separate insurance scheme. All these facts point that what has been insured is not the bank or the banking business, but the deposits made in the bank, by the depositors, and against that the reason why section 16(1) of the Deposit Insurance Act, provides that the corporation will be liable to pay to every depositor of that bank. Thus the manner in which the scheme operates is to mitigate the risk faced by the depositor while making the deposits with the bank and not the risk which bank or banking business incurs.

4.6 The larger bench has while deciding the case of South India Bank relied heavily on the decision of the Karnataka High Court, in case of PNB Metlife Insurance. The relevant paragraph quoting from the said decision of Karnataka High Court is reproduced below:

“59. In Commissioner of Central Excise, Bangalore vs. PNB Metlife India Insurance Co. Ltd, the issue that came up for consideration before the Karnataka High Court was whether an assessee can avail CENVAT credit of service tax paid on reinsurance services by treating the said service as an “input service”. PNB Metlife India Insurance Company was carrying on life insurance business and on the insurance policy issued by it, service tax was charged from the customers. It also procured reinsurance service from overseas insurance companies and availed CENVAT credit of service tax paid on such services received by it. This CENVAT credit was denied by the Department for the reason that re-insurance service cannot be considered as an “input service” since it takes place after the insurance policy is issued. The Karnataka High Court examined whether CENVAT credit availed and utilized by the insurance company on service tax paid for re-insurance service is an “input service” for the output service of insurance that the company was providing and held that the process of issuance of the policy by the insurer and subsequent procurement of re-insurance policy from another company, which is a statutory requirement, is an integral part of the entire process and the insurance process does not come to end merely on the issuance of the insurance policy since it continues till the existence of the term of the policy. The High Court noted that since re-insurance has to be taken under section 101A of the Insurance Act, it is a statutory obligation and, therefore, has to be considered as having nexus with the “output service” and, therefore, would be an “input service”, for which CENVAT credit can be availed. The portion of the judgment of the High Court pertaining to this aspect is reproduced below:

“6. Having heard the learned counsel for the parties and in the fact of this case, we are of the opinion that the order of the Tribunal does not require any interference. Rule 2(l) of the Cenvat Credit Rules 2004 provides that ‘Input Service’ means service used by a provider of taxable service for providing an ‘Output Service’. The submission of the learned counsel for the appellant that once the Insurance Policy is issued by the Insurer, the transaction comes to an end (and would not depend on the reinsurance policy) and as such the service provided would not come within the ambit of input service, is not worthy of acceptance. The process of issuance of an Insurance Policy by the Insurer and subsequent procurement of reinsurance policy from another company (which is a statutory requirement) is an integral part of the total process. The process of insurance does not come to an end merely on the issuance of the Insurance Policy by the Insurer. In fact, it continues till the existence of the term of the policy. The re-insurance is taken by the Insurer immediately after the insurance policy is issued, as is required under Section 101A of the Insurance Act, 1938. Since reinsurance is a statutory obligation, and the same is coterminus with the Insurance policy issued by the respondent, we are of the opinion that the stand taken by the Tribunal is correct that the transfer of a portion of the risk of the re-insurance has to be considered as having nexus with the output service, since the reinsurance is a statutory obligation and the same is coterminus with the Insurance Policy. We only reiterate that the issuance of insurance policy by insurer, and then taking of reinsurance by it, is a continuous process, and in the facts of the present case, it cannot be said that the same would not be an “input service” eligible for Cenvat credit within the meaning of Rule 2(l) of the Cenvat Credit Rules, 2004.

7. We may further add that the Service Tax is levied for certain service rendered and the provision of giving the Cenvat credit is so that there may not be double taxation. If a person has collected service tax, no doubt the same has to be deposited, but if in the process of the same transaction he has paid some service tax, which is necessary for its business, then he is entitled to the Cenvat credit to the extent of service tax which has been paid by it. In the present case, if the entire Service Tax which is collected by the Insurer, while selling its insurance policies, has to be deposited without being given the credit of the tax which is paid by it while procuring a policy of reinsurance as (mandatorily required in law), the same would be against the ethos of Cenvat credit policy, as the same would amount to double taxation, which is not permissible in law.”

4.7 From the facts, as narrated in the case of reinsurance the insurance company was mitigating its risk by seeking the insurance from the certain other foreign based insurance company. To mitigate such risk they took the insurance cover from the foreign based company, and paid the premium for obtaining such an insurance cover. The service tax paid against such insurance scheme cannot be equated with the scheme as envisaged under the Deposit Insurance Scheme, because in that case what was mitigated was the risk of the insurance company and not the insured person. Definitely for the person insured it was reinsurance but for the insurance company it was the insurance service received, and was an input service. Further the decisions rendered in the case of PNB Metlife Insurance case etc, all have been rendered much prior to the decision of the Apex Court in the case of Dilip Kumar and Co, wherein a five member bench of Hon’ble Apex Court has favored the strict interpretation of the fiscal statute. Even the decision of South India Bank has been passed without consideration of the said decision of Hon’ble Apex Court. Relevant paragraph from the said decision are reproduced below:

“25. We are not suggesting that literal rule de hors the strict interpretation nor one should ignore to ascertain the interplay between ‘strict interpretation’ and ‘literal interpretation’. We may reiterate at the cost of repetition that strict interpretation of a statute certainly involves literal or plain meaning test. The other tools of interpretation, namely contextual or purposive interpretation cannot be applied nor any resort be made to look to other supporting material, especially in taxation statutes. Indeed, it is well settled that in a taxation statute, there is no room for any interpretation; that regard must be had to the clear meaning of the words and that the matter should be governed wholly by the language of the notification.
Equity has no place in interpretation of a tax statute. Strictly one has to look to the language used; there is no room for searching interpretation nor drawing any presumption. Furthermore, nothing has to be read into nor should anything be implied other than essential inferences while considering a taxation statute.

26. Justice G.P. Singh, in his treatise ‘Principles of Statutory Interpretation’ (14th ed. 2016 p. – 879) after referring to Re, Micklethwait, (1885) 11 Ex 452; Partington
v. A.G., (1869) LR 4 IL 100; Rajasthan Rajya Sahakari Spinning & Ginning Mills Federation Ltd. v. Deputy CIT, Jaipur, (2014) 11 SCC 672, State Bank of Syndicate v. IRC, (1921) 1 KB 64, summed up the law in the following manner “A taxing statute is to be strictly construed. The well established rule in the familiar words of LORD WENSLEYDALE, reaffirmed by LORD HALSBURY AND LORD SIMONDS, means: The subject is not to be taxed without clear words for that purpose; and also that every Act of Parliament must be read according to the natural construction of its words. In a classic passage LORD CAIRNS stated the principle thus: “If the person sought to be taxed comes within the letter of the law he must be taxed, however great the hardship may appear to the judicial mind to be. On the other hand, if the Crown seeking to recover the tax, cannot bring the subject within the letter of the law, the subject is free, however apparently within the spirit of law the case might otherwise appear to be. In other words, if there be admissible in any statute, what is called an equitable construction, certainly, such a construction is not admissible in a taxing statute where you can simply adhere to the words of the statute. VISCOUNT SIMON quoted with approval a passage from ROWLATT, J. expressing the principle in the following words: “In a taxing Act one has to look merely at what is clearly said. This is no room for any intention.
There is no equity about a tax. There is no presumption as to tax. Nothing is to be read in, nothing is to be implied. One can only look fairly at the language used.” It was further observed:

“In all tax matters one has to interpret the taxation statute strictly. Simply because one class of legal entities is given a benefit which is specifically stated in the Act, does not mean that the benefit can be extended to legal entities not referred to in the Act as there is no equity in matters of taxation….” Yet again, it was observed:

“It may thus be taken as a maxim of tax law, which although not to be overstressed ought not to be forgotten that, “the subject is not to be taxed unless the words of the taxing statute unambiguously impose the tax on him”, [Russel v. Scott, (1948) 2 All ER 1]. The proper course in construing revenue Acts is to give a fair and reasonable construction to their language without leaning to one side or the other but keeping in mind that no tax can be imposed without words clearly showing an intention to lay the burden and that equitable construction of the words is not permissible [Ormond Investment Co. v. Betts, (1928) AC 143]. Considerations of hardship, injustice or anomalies do not play any useful role in construing taxing statutes unless there be some real ambiguity [Mapp v. Oram, (1969) 3 All ER 215]. It has also been said that if taxing provision is “so wanting in clarity that no meaning is reasonably clear, the courts will be unable to regard it as of any effect [IRC v. Ross and Coutler, (1948) 1 All ER 616].” Further elaborating on this aspect, the learned author stated as follows:

“Therefore, if the words used are ambiguous and reasonable open to two interpretations benefit of interpretation is given to the subject [Express Mill v. Municipal Committee, Wardha, AIR 1958 SC 341]. If the Legislature fails to express itself clearly and the taxpayer escapes by not being brought within the letter of the law, no question of unjustness as such arises [CIT v. Jaiyaon Electric Supply Co., AIR 1960 SC 1182]. But equitable considerations are not relevant in construing a taxing statute, [CIT, W.B. v. Central India Industries, AIR 1972 SC 397], and similarly logic or reason cannot be of much avail in interpreting a taxing statute [Azam Jha v. Expenditure Tax Officer, Hyderabad, AIR 1972 SC 2319]. It is well settled that in the field of taxation, hardship or equity has no role to play in determining eligibility to tax and it is for the Legislature to determine the same [Kapil Mohan v. Commr. of Income Tax, Delhi, AIR 1999 SC 573]. Similarly, hardship or equity is not relevant in interpreting provisions imposing stamp duty, which is a tax, and the court should not concern itself with the intention of the Legislature when the language expressing such intention is plain and unambiguous [State of Madhya Pradesh v. Rakesh Kohli &Anr., (2012) 6 SCC 312]. But just as reliance upon equity does not avail an assessee, so it does not avail the Revenue.” The passages extracted above, were quoted with approval by this Court in at least two decisions being Commissioner of Income Tax vs. Kasturi Sons Ltd., (1999) 3 SCC 346 and State of West Bengal vs. Kesora Industries Limited, (2004) 10 SCC 201 [hereinafter referred as ‘Kesora Industries Case’ for brevity]. In the later decision, a Bench of seven Judges, after citing the above passage from Justice G.P. Singh’s treatise, summed up the following principles applicable to the interpretation of a taxing statute:

“(i) In interpreting a taxing statute, equitable considerations are entirely out of place. A taxing statute cannot be interpreted on any presumption or assumption. A taxing statute has to be interpreted in the light of what is clearly expressed; it cannot imply anything which is not expressed; it cannot import provisions in the statute so as to supply any deficiency; (ii) Before taxing any person, it must be shown that he falls within the ambit of the charging section by clear words used in the section; and (iii) If the words are ambiguous and open to two interpretations, the benefit of interpretation is given to the subject and there is nothing unjust in a taxpayer escaping if the letter of the law fails to catch him on account of Legislature’s failure to express itself clearly”.

27. Now coming to the other aspect, as we presently discuss, even with regard to exemption clauses or exemption notifications issued under a taxing statute, this Court in some cases has taken the view that the ambiguity in an exemption notification should be construed in favour of the subject. In subsequent cases, this Court diluted the principle saying that mandatory requirements of exemption clause should be interpreted strictly and the directory conditions of such exemption notification can be condoned if there is sufficient compliance with the main requirements. This, however, did not in any manner tinker with the view that an ambiguous exemption clause should be interpreted favouring the revenue. Here again this Court applied different tests when considering the ambiguity of the exemption notification which requires strict construction and after doing so at the stage of applying the notification, it came to the conclusion that one has to consider liberally.

28. With the above understanding the stage is now set to consider the core issue. In the event of ambiguity in an exemption notification, should the benefit of such ambiguity go to the subject/assessee or should such ambiguity be construed in favour of the revenue, denying the benefit of exemption to the subject/assessee? There are catena of case laws in this area of interpretation of an exemption notification, which we need to consider herein. The case of Commissioner of Inland Revenue vs. James Forrest, [(1890) 15 AC 334 (HL)] – is a case which does not discuss the interpretative test to be applied to exemption clauses in a taxation statute – however, it was observed that ‘it would be unreasonable to suppose that an exemption was wide as practicable to make the tax inoperative, that it cannot be assumed to have been in the mind of the Legislature’ and that exemption from taxation to some extent increased the burden on other members of the community’. Though this is a dissenting view of Lord Halsbury, LC, in subsequent decisions this has been quoted vividly to support the conclusion that any vagueness in the exemption clauses must go to the benefit of the revenue. Be that as it is, in our country, at least from 1955, there appears to be a consistent view that if the words in a taxing statute (not exemption clause) are ambiguous and open to two interpretations, the benefit of interpretation is given to the subject and it does not matter if the taxpayer escapes the tax net on account of Legislatures’ failure to express itself clearly (See the passage extracted hereinabove from Kesoram Industries Case (supra)).

29. The first case with which we need to concern ourselves is the case in Union of India v. The Commercial Tax Officer, West Bengal and Ors., AIR 1956 SC 202. It may be noted that this case was dealt with by five learned Judges of this Court resulting in two different opinions; one by the then Chief Justice of India, S.R. Das for the majority, and Justice B.P. Sinha (as His Lordship then was) rendering minority view. The question before this Court was whether the sale of goods made by one private mill to the Government of India, Ministry of Industries and Supplies were to be deducted as taxable turnover of the mill for the exemption given under Section 5 of the Bengal Finance (Sales Tax) Act, 1941 (Bengal Act VI of 1941). The exemption under Section 5(2)(a)(iii) of the Bengal Finance (Sales Tax) Act, 1941 provided for exemption ‘to sales to the Indian Stores Department, the Supply Department of the Government of India, and any railway or water transport administration’. The Court was to interpret the aforesaid provision in order to ascertain whether the sale to the Government of India, Ministry of Industries and Supplies would be covered under the Section.

30. The majority was of the view that the Government of India, Ministry of Industries and Supplies was not similar to those mentioned in the exemption notification. The majority extensively relied on the history and origin of Ministry of Industries and Supplies and concluded that the functions of the aforesaid Ministry were different from the erstwhile departments mentioned under the exemption provision. The majority reasoned that the exemption being the creation of the statute itself, it should have to be construed strictly and the interpretation cannot be extended to sales to other departments. We might find some clue as to the content of a strict construction also. It was canvassed before the Court that the object of Section 5(2)(a)(iii) of the relevant statute, was to give exemption not to the particular departments but to the sale of such goods to those departments and, therefore, sale of those goods made to any Departments of the Government of India, which came to be charged with the duty of purchasing those goods should also come within the purview of the exemption. The Court while repelling the aforesaid interpretation, reasoned as under:

"We are unable to accept this line of reasoning. This interpretation will unduly narrow the scope and ambit of the exemption by limiting it to sales of only those goods as, at the date of the Act, used to be sold to those two departments and sales of other goods even to those two departments, however necessary for the prosecution of the war, would not get benefit of the exemption. Such could not possibly be the intention of the Legislature as expressed by the language used by it in framing the Section."

31. The aforesaid placitum is suggestive of the fact that the Courts utilized the rule of strict interpretation in order to decipher the intention of the Legislature and thereafter provide appropriate interpretation for the exemption provided under the provisions of the Act which was neither too narrow nor too broad. It may be noted that the majority did not take a narrow view as to what strict interpretation would literally mean; rather they combined legislative intent to ascertain the meaning of the statute in accordance with the objective intent of the Legislature.

32. On the contrary, the minority opinion of Justice B.P. Sinha (as His Lordship then was) provided a purposive interpretation for Section 5(2)(a)(iii) of the Act, which is clear from the following passage:

"The judgment under appeal is based chiefly on the consideration that the exemption clause in question does not in terms refer to the newly created department which now goes by the name of the Ministry of Industry and Supply. But this department in so far as it deals with industry, is not concerned with the main purchasing activities of the Government of India. The exemption was granted in respect of the purchasing activity of the Government of India and that function continues to be assigned to the Supply Department which has now become a wing of the newly created department of the Government. The question therefore arises whether in those circumstances the Government of India could claim the benefit of the exemption. The High Court in answering that question in the negative has gone upon mere nomenclature. It has emphasized the change in the name and overlooked the substance of the matter."

33. The minority construed 'strict interpretation' to be an interpretation wherein least number of 'determinates in terms of quantity' would fall under the exemption. The minority referred to an old English case of Commissioner of Inland Revenue v. James Forrest, (1890) 15 AC 334. It may be relevant to note that the minority could not find the justification to apply strict interpretation as the exemption notification was broad enough to include exemptions for commodities purchased by the Government of India. The Court was of the opinion that the strict interpretation provided by the majority was uncalled for as there was no additional burden on others by giving such exemptions. The relevant observations are as follows: The High Court referred to the observations of Lord Halsbury in the case of Commissioner of Inland Revenue v. James Forrest (1890) 15 AC 334, to the effect that exemptions from taxation should be strictly construed because otherwise the burden of taxation will fall on other members of the community. Those observations, in my opinion, have no relevance to the facts and circumstances of the present controversy, because we know that the exemption was granted to the Government of India in the department dealing with purchase of certain commodities and articles without reference to quantity. As already pointed out, the Indian Stores Department was concerned with purchase of stores for public services on behalf of all Central Departments of Government and local Government, etc., and the Government of Bengal as then constituted was one of the provinces of India which have been receiving subsidies and subventions to make up the deficit in their budgets. As a matter of fact, as stated on behalf of the Bengal Government the concession was granted in order to enable business communities within the province of Bengal to compete on favourable terms with others outside Bengal in the matter of supplying the needs of the Government. Hence, there is no question of liberal construction of the exemption resulting in throwing a greater burden on other citizens. On the other hand, the larger the sales in the province of Bengal as it used to be, the greater the benefit to the business community doing business within that province. It was therefore stated at the Bar that though the present case involved taxes amounting to less than Rs.10,000, the question arising for determination in this case affected much larger amounts because such sales within the province amounted to several crores. I should have thought that the business community in the province of Bengal having had the advantage of the transactions of sale, the Government of Bengal in all fairness should have allowed the purchasing agency of the Government of India the benefit of the exemption until that benefit was in terms withdrawn sometimes in the beginning of 1949."

34. In Hansraj Gordhandas v. H.H. Dave, Asst. Collector of Central Excise & Customs, Surat and Ors., AIR 1970 SC 755 = (1969) 2 SCR 253 [hereinafter referred as 'Hansraj Gordhandas Case' for brevity], wherein this Court was called upon to interpret an exemption notification issued under the Central Excise Act. It would be relevant to understand the factual context which gave rise to the aforesaid case before the Court. The appellant was sole proprietor who used to procure cotton from a cooperative society during the relevant period. The society had agreed to carry out the weaving work for the appellant on payment of fixed weaving charges at Re.0.19 np. per yard which included expenses the society would have to incur in transporting the aforesaid cotton fabric. In the years 1959 and 1960, the Government issued an exemption notification which exempted cotton fabrics produced by any cooperative society formed of owners of cotton power looms, registered on or before 31st March, 1961. The question before the Court was whether the appellant who got the cotton fabric produced from one of the registered cooperative society was also covered under the aforesaid notification. It may be of some significance that the revenue tried to interpret the aforesaid exemption by relying on the purposive interpretation by contending that the object of granting the above exemption was to encourage the formation of cooperative societies which not only produced cotton fabrics but also consisted of members, not only owning but having actually operated not more than four power looms during the three years immediately preceding their having joined the society. The policy was that instead of each such member operating his looms on his own, he should combine with others by forming a society to produce clothes. It was argued that the goods produced for which exemption could be claimed must be goods produced on his own and on behalf by the society. The court did not countenance such purposive interpretation. It was held that a taxing legislation should be interpreted wholly by the language of the notification. The relevant observations are:

"It is well-established that in a taxing statute there is no room for any intendment but regard must be had to the clear meaning of the words. The entire matter is governed wholly by the language of the notification. If the taxpayer is within the plain terms of the exemption it cannot be denied its benefit by calling in aid any supposed intention of the exempting authority. If such intention can be gathered from the construction of the words of the notification or by necessary implication therefrom, the matter is different, but that is not the case here. In this connection we may refer to the observations of Lord Watson in Salomon vs. Saloman & Co., (1897) AC 22):

'Intention of the Legislature is a common but very slippery phrase, which, popularly understood may signify anything from intention embodied in positive enactment to speculative opinion as to what the legislature probably would have meant, although there has been an omission to enact it. In a Court of Law or Equity, what the Legislature intended to be done or not to be done can only be legitimately ascertained from what it has chosen to enact, either in express words or by reasonable and necessary implication.' It is an application of this principle that a statutory notification may not be extended so as to meet a casus omissus. As appears in the judgment of the Privy Council in Crawford v. Spooner.

'... we cannot aid the Legislature's defective phrasing of the Act, we cannot add, and mend, and, by construction, make up deficiencies which are left there.' Learned Counsel for the respondents is possibly right in his submission that the object behind the two notifications is to encourage the actual manufacturers of handloom cloth to switch over to power looms by constituting themselves in cooperative Societies. But the operation of the notifications has to be judged not by the object which the rule making authority had in mind but by the words which it has employed to effectuate the legislative intent."

35. In the judgment of two learned Judges in Union of India v. Wood Papers Limited, (1990) 4 SCC 256 [hereinafter referred as 'Wood Papers Ltd. Case' for brevity], a distinction between stage of finding out the eligibility to seek exemption and stage of applying the nature of exemption was made. Relying on the decision in Collector of Central Excise vs. Parle Exports (P) Ltd., (1989) 1 SCC 345, it was held "Do not extend or widen the ambit at the stage of applicability. But once that hurdle is crossed, construe it liberally". The reasoning for arriving at such conclusion is found in para 4 of Wood Papers Ltd. Case (supra), which reads: ‘... Literally exemption is freedom from liability, tax or duty. Fiscally, it may assume varying shapes, specially, in a growing economy. For instance tax holiday to new units, concessional rate of tax to goods or persons for limited period or with the specific objective etc. That is why its construction, unlike charging provision, has to be tested on different touchstone. In fact, an exemption provision is like an exception and on normal principle of construction or interpretation of statutes it is construed strictly either because of legislative intention or on economic justification of inequitable burden or progressive approach of fiscal provisions intended to augment State revenue. But once exception or exemption becomes applicable no rule or principles requires it to be construed strictly. Truly speaking liberal and strict construction of an exemption provision are to be invoked at different stages of interpreting it. When the question is whether a subject falls in the notification or in the exemption clause then it being in nature of exception is to be construed strictly and against the subject, but once ambiguity or doubt about applicability is lifted and the subject falls in the notification then full play should be given to it and it calls for a wider and liberal construction...” (emphasis supplied)

36. In Mangalore Chemicals & Fertilizers Ltd. vs. Dy. Commissioner of Commercial Taxes, (1992) Supp. 1 SCC 21 [hereinafter referred as 'Mangalore Chemicals Case' for brevity], the facts of the case were that the State Government issued a notification in exercise of power under Section 8A of the Karnataka Sales Tax Act, 1957, providing certain incentives to entrepreneurs starting new industries in the State pursuant to State's policy for “rapid industrialization”. The notification contains a package of reliefs and incentives including one concerning relief from payment of sales tax with which the case was concerned. There was no dispute that the appellant was entitled to the benefit of the Notification dated June 30, 1969. There was also no dispute that the refunds were eligible to be adjusted against sales tax payable for respective years. The only controversy was whether the appellant, not having actually secured the "prior permission" would be entitled to adjustment having regard to the words of the Notification of August 11, 1975, that "until permission of renewal is granted by the Deputy Commissioner of Commercial Taxes, the new industry should not be allowed to adjust the refunds". The contention of the appellants therein was that the permission for the three years had been sought well before the commencement of the respective years but had been withheld for reasons which were demonstrably extraneous. Therefore, contention was that if, in these circumstances, the Deputy Commissioner could withhold the permission.

37. This Court while accepting the interpretation provided by the appellant, observed on the aspect of strict construction of a provision concerning exemptions as follows:

"... There is support of judicial opinion to the view that exemptions from taxation have a tendency to increase the burden on the other unexempted class of taxpayers and should be construed against the subject in case of ambiguity. It is an equally well known principle that a person who claims an exemption has to establish his case. ... The choice between a strict and a liberal construction arises only in case of doubt in regard to the intention of the legislature manifest on the statutory language. Indeed, the need to resort to any interpretative process arises only where the meaning is not manifest on the plain words of the statute. If the words are plain and clear and directly convey the meaning, there is no need for any interpretation. It appears to us the true rule of construction of a provision as to exemption is the one stated by this Court in Union of India v. Wood Papers Ltd. [(1990) 4 SCC 256 = 1990 SCC (Tax) 422 = JT (1991) SC 151]" Three important aspects which comes out of the discussion are the recognition of horizontal equity by this court as a consideration for application of strict interpretation, subjugation of strict interpretation to the plain meaning rule and interpretation in favour of exclusion in light of ambiguity.

38. We will now consider another Constitution Bench decision in Commissioner of Central Excise, New Delhi v. Hari Chand Shri Gopal, (2011) 1 SCC 236 [hereinafter referred as 'Hari Chand Case' for brevity]. We need not refer to the facts of the case which gave rise to the questions for consideration before the Constitutional Bench. K.S. Radhakrishnan, J., who wrote the unanimous opinion for the Constitution Bench, framed the question, viz., whether manufacturer of a specified final product falling under Schedule to the Central Excise Tariff Act, 1985 is eligible to get the benefit of exemption of remission of excise duty on specified intermediate goods as per the Central Government Notification dated 11.08.1994, if captively consumed for the manufacture of final product on the ground that the records kept by it at the recipient end would indicate its "intended use" and "substantial compliance" with procedure set out in Chapter 10 of the Central Excise Rules, 1994, for consideration? The Constitution Bench answering the said question concluded that a manufacturer qualified to seek exemption was required to comply with the preconditions for claiming exemption and therefore is not exempt or absolved from following the statutory requirements as contained in the Rules. The Constitution Bench then considered and reiterated the settled principles qua the test of construction of exemption clause, the mandatory requirements to be complied with and the distinction between the eligibility criteria with reference to the conditions which need to be strictly complied with and the conditions which need to be substantially complied with. The Constitution Bench followed the ratio in Hansraj Gordhandas Case (supra), to reiterate the law on the aspect of interpretation of exemption clause in para 29 as follows: "The law is well settled that a person who claims exemption or concession has to establish that he is entitled to that exemption or concession. A provision providing for an exemption, concession or exception, as the case may be, has to be construed strictly with certain exceptions depending upon the settings on which the provision has been placed in the statute and the object and purpose to be achieved. If exemption is available on complying with certain conditions, the conditions have to be complied with. The mandatory requirements of those conditions must be obeyed or fulfilled exactly, thought at times, some latitude can be shown, if there is failure to comply with some requirements which are directory in nature, the noncompliance of which would not affect the essence or substance of the notification granting exemption."

39. The Constitution Bench then considered the doctrine of substantial compliance and "intended use". The relevant portions of the observations in paras 31 to 34 are in the following terms –

"31. Of course, some of the provisions of an exemption notification may be directory in nature and some are mandatory in nature. A distinction between the provisions of a statute which are of substantive character and were built in with certain specific objectives of policy, on the one hand, and those which are merely procedural and technical in there nature, on the other, must be kept clearly distinguished... Doctrine of substantial compliance and "intended use"

32. The doctrine of substantial compliance is a judicial invention, equitable in nature, designed to avoid hardship in cases where a party does all that can reasonably be expected of it, but failed or faulted in some minor or inconsequent aspects which cannot be described as the "essence" or the "substance" of the requirements. Like the concept of "reasonableness", the acceptance or otherwise of a plea of "substantial compliance" depends upon the facts and circumstances of each case and the purpose and object to be achieved and the context of the prerequisites which are essential to achieve the object and purpose of the rule or the regulation. Such a defence cannot be pleased if a clear statutory prerequisite which effectuates the object and the purpose of the statute has not been met. Certainly, it means that the Court should determine whether the statute has been followed sufficiently so as to carry out the intent for which the statute was enacted and not a mirror image type of strict compliance. Substantial compliance means "actual compliance in respect to the substance essential to every reasonable objective of the statute" and the Court should determine whether the statute has been followed sufficiently so as to carry out the intent of the statute and accomplish the reasonable objectives for which it was passed.

33. A fiscal statute generally seeks to preserve the need to comply strictly with regulatory requirements that are important, especially when a party seeks the benefits of an exemption clause that are important. Substantial compliance with an enactment is insisted, where mandatory and directory requirements are lumped together, for in such a case, if mandatory requirements are complied with, it will be proper to say that the enactment has been substantially complied with notwithstanding the noncompliance of directory requirements. In cases where substantial compliance has been found, there has been actual compliance with the statute, albeit procedurally faulty. The doctrine of substantial compliance seeks to preserve the need to comply strictly with the conditions or requirements that are important to invoke a tax or duty exemption and to forgive noncompliance for either unimportant and tangential requirements or requirements that are so confusingly or incorrectly written that an earnest effort at compliance should be accepted.
34. The test for determining the applicability of the substantial compliance doctrine has been the subject of a myriad of cases and quite often, the critical question to be examined is whether the requirements relate to the “substance” or “essence” of the statute, if so, strict adherence to those requirements is a precondition to give effect to that doctrine. On the other hand, if the requirements are procedural or directory in that they are not of the “essence” of the thing to be done but are given with a view to the orderly conduct of business, they may be fulfilled by substantial, if not strict compliance. In other words, a mere attempted compliance may not be sufficient, but actual compliance with those factors which are considered as essential.”

40. After considering the various authorities, some of which are adverted to above, we are compelled to observe how true it is to say that there exists unsatisfactory state of law in relation to interpretation of exemption clauses. Various Benches which decided the question of interpretation of taxing statute on one hand and exemption notification on the other, have broadly assumed (we are justified to say this) that the position is well settled in the interpretation of a taxing statute: It is the law that any ambiguity in a taxing statute should endure to the benefit of the subject/assessee, but any ambiguity in the exemption clause of exemption notification must be conferred in favour of revenue – and such exemption should be allowed to be availed only to those subjects/assessee who demonstrate that a case for exemption squarely falls within the parameters enumerated in the notification and that the claimants satisfy all the conditions precedent for availing exemption. Presumably for this reason the Bench which decided Surendra Cotton Oil Mills Case (supra) observed that there exists unsatisfactory state of law and the Bench which referred the matter initially, seriously doubted the conclusion in Sun Export Case (supra) that the ambiguity in an exemption notification should be interpreted in favour of the assessee.

41. After thoroughly examining the various precedents some of which were cited before us and after giving our anxious consideration, we would be more than justified to conclude and also compelled to hold that every taxing statute including, charging, computation and exemption clause (at the threshold stage) should be interpreted strictly. Further, in case of ambiguity in a charging provisions, the benefit must necessarily go in favour of subject/assessee, but the same is not true for an exemption notification wherein the benefit of ambiguity must be strictly interpreted in favour of the Revenue/State.”

4.8 Thus the provisions of the Finance Act, 1994 and the CENVAT Credit Rules 2004 should be considered in the light of the said the principles of interpretation as laid down by the Apex Court in the above referred decision. In our view by extending the benefit by referring to insurance of the bank, and the banking business, may not be the justified approach as per this decision. In our view the matter needs reconsideration, in light of this decision of the Hon’ble Apex Court.

4.9 Since we are unable to agree with the interpretation given to the legal provisions specifically on the point that in respect of the admissibility of CENVAT Credit of the service tax on the services received for fulfilling statutory obligations by the three-member bench in the case of South India Bank, the matter needs to be referred to President for constituting a larger bench to clarify the issues in this regard. Hon’ble Supreme Court has in the case of Paras Laminates [1990 (49) ELT 322] held

"9. It is true that a Bench of two members must not lightly disregard the decision of another Bench of the same Tribunal on an identical question. This is particularly true when the earlier decision is rendered by a larger Bench. The rationale of this rule is the need for continuity, certainty and predictability in the administration of justice. Persons affected by decisions of Tribunals or Courts have a right to expect that those exercising judicial functions will follow the reason or ground of the judicial decision in the earlier cases on identical matters. Classification of particular goods adopted in earlier decisions must not be lightly disregarded in subsequent decisions, lest such judicial inconsistency should shake public confidence in the administration of justice. It is, however, equally true that it is vital to the administration of justice that those exercising judicial power must have the necessary freedom to doubt the correctness of an earlier decision if and when subsequent proceedings being to light what is perceived by them as an erroneous decision in the earlier case. In such circum stances, it is but natural and reasonable and indeed efficacious that the case is referred to a larger Bench. This is what was done by the Bench of two members who in their reasoned order pointed out what they perceived to be an error of law in the earlier decision and stated the points for the President to make a reference to a larger Bench. That the President has ample power to refer a case to a larger Bench is not in doubt in view of sub-section (5) of section 129-C, which we have set out above. That provision clearly says that in the event of the members of a Bench differing in opinion on any point, and the members are equally divided, the case shall be referred to the President for hearing on any such point by one or more of the members of the Tribunal, and such point shall be decided according to the opinion of the majority of the members. It is true that sub-section (5) refers to difference of opinion arising amongst members of a Bench in a particular case, and not specifically where the members of a Bench doubt the correctness of an earlier decision. However, section 129-C confers power of reference upon the President. That power should be construed to be wide enough to enable the President to make a reference where members of a Bench find themselves unable to decide a case according to what they perceive to be the correct law and fact because of an impediment arising from an earlier decision with which they cannot honestly agree. In such cases, it is necessary for the healthy functioning of the Tribunal that the President should have the requisite authority to refer the case to a larger Bench. That is a power which is implied in the express grant authorizing the President to constitute Benches of the Tribunal for effective and expeditious discharge of its functions.

10. In our view, the Bench of two members acted within their power in stating the points of law which required clarification and the President acted equally within the bounds of his power in constituting larger Bench to hear and decide those points."

4.10 Following this decision of Hon'ble Supreme Court, in case of Asia Brown Boveri Ltd [2000 (120) ELT 228 Tri Del], a five member bench of this tribunal held as follows:

"5. As regards the constitution of the Larger Bench by the Hon'ble President pursuing the referral order, ld. Counsel had pointed out that inasmuch as the Tribunal decision in M/s. American Auto Services (supra) being a decision of a Larger Bench consisting of three members, the same was binding on the other Benches of the Tribunal and to the extent the referral order had recommended to the Hon'ble President the constitution of a Larger Bench to resolve a divergence of opinion between a three Member Bench and a Single Member Bench was not a proper and legal order and the order of the Hon'ble President constituting a five Member Bench to determine the difference of opinion between a three Member Bench and a Single Member Bench was beyond the competence of the Hon'ble President. In response to queries from the Bench ld. JDR, Shri S. Srivastava submitted that there was no bar to a Single Member Bench doubting the correctness of an earlier decision of the Tribunal even if that decision was rendered by a Bench consisting of a larger number of Members than the Bench doubting the correctness of the earlier decision. In this connection, he relied on the observations of the Apex Court in Union of India v. Paras Laminates (P) Ltd. reported in 1990 (49) E.L.T. 322 at Paras 9 to 12 thereof. He submitted that in terms of Section 129C(5) of the Customs Act, 1962, where the Members of a Bench of the Tribunal differed in opinion on a point the point, it is to be decided according to the opinion of the majority. If there was no majority of the Members and if the Members were equally divided, they should state the point or points on which they differed and make a reference to the Hon'ble President who may either hear the point or points himself or refer the case for hearing of such point or points by one or more of the other Members of the Tribunal and such point or points shall be decided according to the opinion of the majority of the Members who have heard the case, including those who first heard it. ld. JDR submitted that under Section 129C(5) the Hon'ble President was competent to hear the point himself or refer the matter for hearing by one or more of the other Members of the Tribunal. He underlined the fact that the Hon'ble President himself had the power to hear the point or points and decide the matter himself. Alternatively, he could also refer the point or points to be heard by one or more of the other Members of the Tribunal. Reliance was also placed on the observations of the Apex Court in Paras Laminates case (supra) in which it has been observed that it was vital to the administration of the justice that those exercising judicial powers must have necessary freedom to doubt the correctness of an earlier decision if and when subsequent proceedings brought to light what is perceived by them as erroneous decision in an earlier case. In such cases, it was reasonable and efficacious that the case is referred to a Larger Bench. In the Paras Laminates case, a two Member Bench had doubted the correctness of a decision of an earlier Bench consisting of three Members and reference to a Larger Bench made by the Hon’ble President was upheld by the Apex Court in the said judgment. Following the ratio of the said judgment, ld. JDR submitted that there was no legal infirmity in the referral order nor in the constitution of the present Larger Bench of five Members to hear the divergence of opinion between the three Member Bench decision in the American Auto Services case and the Single Member Bench decision in Chandigarh Bottling Co. case. In this connection, he also relied on the Supreme Court decision in Bengal Immunity Co. case reported in AIR 1955 661 (S.C).

6. On a consideration of submissions made by both the sides and the case law relied on by the Departmental representative, we note that the Apex Court judgment in Paras Laminates case has examined both the aspects, viz., (a) the competence of one Bench of the Tribunal to differ from the view taken by another Bench of the Tribunal and (b) the power of the Hon’ble President to constitute and refer a case to a Larger Bench a matter where Members of the Bench differ in opinion on any point and to refer such a case to one or more Members of the Tribunal. It has been observed in Paragraph 11 of the said judgment that Section 129C confers the power of reference upon the Hon’ble President and the power should be construed to be wide enough to enable the Hon’ble President to make a reference where Members of a Bench find themselves unable to decide a case according to what they perceive to be the correct law and fact because of the impediment of an earlier decision with which they cannot honestly agree. The Apex Court had stated: ‘In such cases, it is necessary for the healthy functioning of the Tribunal that the President should have the requisite authority to refer the case to a Larger Bench. That is the power which is implied in the express grant authorizing the President to constitute Benches of the Tribunal for effective and expeditious discharge of its functions’.

7. Respectfully following the ratio of the aforesaid judgment we find no infirmity in the Single Member Bench in Chandigarh Bottling case not following the three Member Bench decision in American Auto Service case, though we also at the same time fully reiterate and emphasise the observation of the Apex Court in Para 9 of the Paras Laminates case stating that a two Member Bench must not lightly disregard the decision of another Bench of the Tribunal on an identical question particularly when the earlier decision is rendered by a Larger Bench in the interest of continuity, certainty and predictability in the administration of justice. For the same reason we find also no infirmity in the order of the Hon’ble President in referring the present issue to this Larger Bench.”

4.11 In view of the decisions as above we refer the matter to Hon’ble President for referring the matter to larger bench, for resolving the issues as follows:

a. Whether the interpretation of the legal provisions contained in Section 65 and 66 of the Finance Act, 1994 made in the decision of the CESTAT, in case of South India Bank, satisfy to the test laid down by the five member bench of Hon’ble Supreme Court in case of Dilip Kumar and Co, referred above.

b. Whether the CENVAT credit of the Service Tax paid on the services availed to fulfill a statutory obligation, should be admissible even if the services availed do not otherwise qualify to be input services as defined under rule 2(k) of the CENVAT Credit Rules, 2004 as amended.

c. Whether Rule 6(3B), of the CENVAT Credit Rules, 2004, is an authority for the banks to claim the credit in respect of all the services without establishing that the services under consideration are the common input services for providing the exempted and taxable services.

IN THE CUSTOMS, EXCISE AND SERVICE TAX APPELLATE TRIBUNAL REGIONAL BENCH, MUMBAI
[COURT NO. I]
COMMISSIONER OF CUSTOMS & GST, MUMBAI WEST Versus
JUHU BEACH RESORT LTD.

REPRESENTED BY: Shri Onil Shivadikar, AC (AR), for the Appellant.
Shri Chirag Shetty, Advocate, for the Respondent.

CORAM: Hon’ble Dr. D.M. Misra, Member (J)
Hon’ble Shri Sanjiv Srivastava, Member (T)

[Order per : D.M. Misra, Member (J)]. –
Heard both sides and perused the records.

2. Briefly stated the facts of the case are that during the course of investigation, the appellants had deposited an amount of Rs. 50 lakhs. On completion of investigation, a show cause notice was issued, demanding duty of Rs. 6.23 crores, which on adjudication, was reduced to Rs. 5.11 crores and the amount of Central Excise duty paid during the course of investigation, has been appropriated. Considering the said amount, this Tribunal directed to deposit further amount of Rs. 1.50 crores while disposing their application under Section 35F of Central Excise Act, 1944. Aggrieved by the said order, they filed an appeal before the Hon’ble Bombay High Court and Order dated 19-3-2009, the Hon’ble Bombay High Court directed to execute a bank guarantee for the sum of Rs. 1.50 crores. After hearing their appeal finally, this Tribunal vide Order No. A/85566-85568/2018, dated 7-3-2018, allowed the appeals by way of remand to the lower authority for de novo adjudication. Consequently, the appellants filed the refund claim of the deposited amount of Rs. 50.00 lakhs on 24-8-2018 and the same was sanctioned on 16-10-2018 without allowing interest on the same. Aggrieved by the said order, the appellants preferred an appeal before the Learned Commissioner (Appeals). The Learned Commissioner (Appeals), allowing their appeal, directed the Revenue to pay interest from 2-1-2008 to the date of refund of pre-deposit. Hence, the Revenue is in appeal.

3. It is the contention of the Revenue that the Learned Commissioner (Appeals) has failed to appreciate the provision of Section 35FF of Central Excise Act, 1944 as was in existence, on the date the pre-deposit was made. In the amended Section 35FF of Central Excise Act, 1944, the amount deposited prior to the date of amendment i.e. 6-8-2014 has been stated to be governed under the earlier provisions. Thus, the Learned Commissioner (Appeals) has erred in directing payment of interest from 2-1-2008 i.e. the date when the Tribunal granted stay subject to the deposit of the said amount.

4. The Learned Advocate for the respondent reiterates the findings of the Learned Commissioner (Appeals).

5. We have carefully considered the submissions advanced by both sides and perused the records. The short issue involved in the present appeal is whether interest is payable on the pre-deposit made by the appellant pursuant to the order of the Tribunal dated 2-1-2008. It is not in dispute that while disposing their application under Section 35F of Central Excise Act, 1944, this Tribunal, on 2-1-2008 directed them to deposit Rs. 2 crores, of which Rs. 50.00 lakhs was already deposited, hence took into consideration the said deposit. The contention of the respondent that on disposal of the appeal by CESTAT in their favour, they are entitled to interest on refund of pre-deposit amount from the date of the stay order. Revenue’s contention, on the other hand, that as per existing provision i.e. Section 35FF of Central Excise Act, 1944, the interest on pre-deposit is admissible only from the date, on expiry of 3 months consequent to the order of the Appellate authority in terms of Section 11BB of Central Excise Act, 1944. It is their further contention that the amended Section 35FF brought into force w.e.f. 6-8-2014 and the amount deposited under Section 35FF prior to the said date, continued to be governed under the existing provisions of Section 35FF of Central Excise Act, 1944 as it stood before the commencement of the said Act i.e. 6-8-2014. To appreciate the true scope of the said provisions, both are reproduced below :-

Before 6-8-2014 :

35FF. Interest on delayed refund of amount deposited under the proviso to Section 35F.

Where the amount deposited by the Appellant in pursuance of an order passed by the Commissioner (Appeals) or the Appellate Tribunal (hereinafter referred to as the appellate authority), under the first proviso to Section 35F, is required to be refunded consequent upon the order of the Appellate authority and such amount is not refunded within three months from the date of communication of such order to the adjudicating authority, unless the operation of the order of the appellate authority is stayed by a superior court or tribunal, there shall be paid to the appellant interest at the rate specified in Section 11BB after the expiry of three months from the date of communication of the order of the appellate authority, till the date of refund of such amount.

From 6-8-2014 :

35FF. Interest on delayed refund of amount deposited under the proviso to Section 35F.

Where the amount deposited by the appellant under Section 35F is required to be refunded consequent upon the order of the appellate authority, there shall be paid to the appellant interest at such rate, not below five per cent and not exceeding thirty-six per cent per annum as is for the time being, fixed by the Central Government, by notification in the Official Gazette, on such amount from the date of payment of the amount till the date of refund of such amount.

Provided that the amount deposited under Section 35F, prior to the commencement of the Finance (No. 2) Act, 2014, shall continue to be governed by the provisions of Section 35FF as it stood before the commencement of the said Act.

6. A plain reading of aforesaid provisions makes it clear that the appellants are entitled to interest from the date only after expiry of 3 months from the date of communication of the order i.e. in the present case from 17-3-2019. Consequently, the impugned order is modified and for calculation of the interest on the refund amount, the matter is remanded to the Adjudicating authority. Revenue’s appeal is partly allowed.

For Appellant/Petitioner/Plaintiff: N. Viswanathan, Advocate For Respondents/Defendant: Sridevi Taritla, Authorized Representative

ORDER

P. Dinesha, Member (J)

1. The appellant is a registered Authorized Service Station (‘ASS’ for short) rendering services relating to repair and maintenance of TATA brand of motor vehicles. There is no dispute that the appellant is discharging its Service Tax on the taxable value of the above services rendered by them.

2.1. The appellant, in the course of its service, claims to have sold engine oil, coolants, etc., apart from replacement of worn-out parts when required. It is the case of the appellant that they do not independently sell any of the above items to any other customer at their work shop; that the same are exclusively used while rendering the taxable service. It is also a matter of record that upon completion of the service undertaken, the appellant raised a common invoice containing the value of the service portion and also the value of the material/consumable portion used in providing their services; that they paid Service Tax on the value of services rendered and also paid VAT on the consumables used/sold, as required under the respective State Act.

2.2. In view of the above facts, the dispute that has led to the present appeal is - "whether the appellant was required to reverse the proportionate common input service tax credit availed by them in respect of Telephone and Renting of Immovable Property Service as per Rule 6(3) of the CENVAT Credit Rules, 2004 since the consumables sold by the appellant while rendering service was alleged to be a trading activity which is an exempted service from April 2011?" Show Cause Notice came to be issued, to which the appellant filed its effective reply which culminated in the confirmation of demand vide Order-in-Original No.
05/2018 dated 26.04.2018. Thereupon, the same was also upheld by the Ld.
First Appellate Authority vide impugned Order-in-Appeal dated 06.03.2019.

3. When the matter was taken up for hearing, Shri. N. Viswanathan, Ld.
Advocate, appeared for the assessee-appellant and Ms. Sridevi Taritla, Ld. Joint Commissioner (Departmental Representative) appeared for the Revenue.
4. Facts are not in dispute.

5.1. Ld. Advocate for the appellant vehemently contended that the authorities below were not correct in treating the consumables sold while rendering services under ASS as trading activity since the authorities failed to appreciate the crucial differences between a conventional trading activity as opposed to the sale of consumables in the present case.

5.2. He further submitted that the primary and only activity of the appellant was servicing of cars and that it is only during the course of rendering such service, if needed, they would use engine oil, coolants as top-up and/or worn-out parts were also replaced; that the same was not provided independently to any buyer/customer. This, according to the Ld. Advocate, amounted to the rendering of a bundled service with repair and maintenance being predominant; that the same is not complete without the use of consumables. Therefore, the supply of the above consumables was only incidental to the provision of service which could not be segregated.

5.3. Ld. Advocate placed reliance on the C.B.E.C. Circular No. 699/15/2003-CX : MANU/EXCR/0050/2003 dated 05.03.2003 in his support. He also relied on the decision of the Hon’ble jurisdictional High Court in the case of Commr. of C.Ex., Salem Vs. M/s. Salem Co-operative Sugar Mills Ltd. reported in 2014 (35) S.T.R. 450 (Mad.).

6.1. Per contra, Ld. A.R. for the Revenue supported the findings of the lower authorities. She submitted that trading activity was specifically brought within the ambit of "exempted service" under Rule 2(e) of the CENVAT Credit Rules, 2004 and as such, Rule 6 of the CENVAT Credit Rules was made applicable whereby the appellant was required to reverse the proportionate CENVAT Credit availed on the input services in respect of the exempted service, i.e., the trading activity.

6.2. She further submitted that the assessee, however, had followed the above procedure from 01.04.2014 onwards and also reversed the proportionate input service credit attributable to the exempted service, which would prove the Revenue’s case as to the appellant’s liability even for the earlier period.

7. In reply, Ld. Advocate submitted that the period involved is from 2012-13 to 2015-16; the Show Cause Notice issued in 2017 (dated 27.07.2017) is clearly beyond the normal period, which in the absence of suppression, fraud, etc., cannot be sustained. He further submitted that the appellant did not take any credit of the input duty on such consumables used/sold by them and therefore, for the above reasons, the allegation as to treating the appellant’s service as trading, which is exempt, requiring the appellant to reverse the common input service tax credit availed is not correct and proper and hence, the same is liable to be set aside.

8. I have heard the rival contentions, perused the documents placed on record and also gone through the decisions/orders referred to during the course of arguments.

9.1. The C.B.E.C. Circular No. 699/15/2003-CX : MANU/EXCR/0050/2003 (supra), relied upon by the appellant, has clarified the issue regarding Service Tax on Authorized Service Station during the course of providing service, wherein such ASS replaces engine oil, gear oil, coolants, etc., as per the request of the customer, in the following manner:

"Subject: Clarification regarding service tax on authorised service station."
2. During the course of providing service, an authorised service station also replaces engine oil, gear oil and coolants, etc. as per the request of the customer. The price charged by authorised service station for engine oil, gear oil, and coolants is towards sale of these consumables to the customer. Therefore, the sale of consumable during the course of providing service is akin to sale of parts and accessories and therefore value of such consumables is not includible in the value of taxable services, provided value of such consumables is shown separately.”

9.2. The law underwent a change with effect from 20.06.2012 with the inclusion of ‘exempted service’ under Rule 2(e) of the CENVAT Credit Rules, 2004, which under its ambit covered trading of goods. The above Circular dated 05.03.2003 is therefore issued much earlier, obviously without having the benefit of the subsequent development.

9.3. The Hon’ble High Court of Delhi in the case of M/s. Lally Automobiles Pvt. Ltd. (supra) has dealt with a somewhat similar issue. Following are the relevant paragraphs:

"...14. It was submitted that in this case, the assessee was engaged in trading activities in common premises. Those activities were not subjected to service tax, as they involved distribution, sale or vending of goods. The question of any such activity being "exempt" on account of the 2011 amendment Rules, does not arise. The amendment only stated the obvious. However, that did not mean that trading was subject to service tax. If any activity was not subjected to that levy, the question of claiming any credit in respect of it could never arise. The Revenue submitted that in this background, the assessee’s claim that the extended period of limitation could not be invoked, is unsustainable.

Analysis and conclusions

15. Rule 6(2) of the Cenvat Credit Rules, is extracted below:

16. Therefore, the issue is whether the assessee could claim the credit on input which were not services. Input credits can be used for payment of service on output service provided such services are used to provide output services. Undoubtedly, there cannot be an exact correlation between one kind of input and corresponding. That is the reason the Rules cover situations where assesses provide both exempted and taxable services. Wherever someone undertakes activities that cannot be called a service or which is not "manufacture", that activity goes out of the purview of both Central Excise Act as well as Finance Act, 1994. In such cases, an assessee would be ineligible for claiming input-service tax credit on an output which is neither a service nor excisable goods. There is no provision to cover situations where an assessee is providing a taxable service and is undertaking another activity which is neither a service nor manufacture.
In such a situation, the only correct legal position appears to be that it is for the assessee to segregate the quantum of input service attributable to trading activity and exclude the same from the records maintained for availing credit. This cannot be done in advance as it may not be possible to foretell the quantum of trading activity as compared with taxable activity. The obvious solution would be to ensure that once in a quarter or once in a six months, the quantum of input service tax credit attributed to trading activities according to standard accounting principles is deducted and the balance only availed for the purpose of payment of Service tax of output service.

17. In the present case, the assessee's argument that there is no mechanism to reverse credit, once taken, in the opinion of this Court, cannot be accepted. The assessee was well aware of the exact nature and extent of its service tax liability. It was also aware of the eligible service tax inputs. Therefore, when it did claim successfully and unchallenged input credits in respect of activities that were not subjected to service tax levy, it was aware that the claim was excessive and could not be justified. If, for instance, input credits were claimed in respect of goods or rents, attributable to retail business, those credits were clearly impermissible. In these circumstances, this Court finds no infirmity with the concurrent findings of the lower authority and the CESTAT, which concluded that show cause notice and recoveries were in order."

9.4. I find that the issue on hand is squarely covered by the dictum of the Hon'ble High Court (supra) and therefore, I do not find any merit in the appellant’s claim. Accordingly, this ground of the appeal is dismissed.

10.1. With regard to limitation, i.e., invoking the extended period of limitation, I find that the Hon'ble High Court in the case of M/s. Lally Automobiles Pvt. Ltd. (supra) has also dealt with the same issue, in the subsequent paragraphs, as under:

"18. As regards the method of calculation and invocation of extended period of penalty, the assessee's contentions again, to the Court's mind, are groundless. The assessee concededly did not maintain regular separate accounts in respect of non-service tax leviable activities. Therefore, the adjudicating authority adopted the method of proportionate turnover based attribution to the assessee's liability:

"I find that it was clear in 2008 itself that no Cenvat Credit is available for services used for trading as decided by Hon'ble CESTAT in the Metro shoes case. The noticee has availed the Cenvat Credit used for exempted services namely trading without reversing the proportionate credit. They have never informed the department about taking the wrong credit. This would have been undetected if the facts were not noticed during audit. M/s. Lally Automobiles Private Ltd. have failed to inform the department that they are not maintaining the separate records for input services used for taxable and exempted services. It is already noted that the law requires an assessee to maintain separate records of Cenvat credit received on taxable or non-taxable services. In case the separate records are not maintained, the Cenvat credit is to be reversed as per Rule 6(3) of the Cenvat Credit Rules, 2004; I find that : M/s. Lally Automobiles Private Ltd. have not reversed the same by suppression of material facts. The excess credit availed utilized by them is liable to be recovered in terms of Rule 14 of Cenvat Credit Rules, 2004 read with proviso to Section 73(1) of Finance Act, 1994."

19. This Court is of opinion that the lack of any method in the rules in such cases, would only mean that a reasonable and logical principle should be applied, not concededly that what should and could not be claimed as input credit, (but was in fact so claimed) ought to be "left alone" because of the composite nature of the assessee's business. While any assessee has a right to organize its business in the most convenient and efficient manner, it cannot claim that such organization is so structured that its tax liabilities cannot be clearly discerned. In this case, the adjudicating authority adopted the proportionate percentage to the turnover method approach, which in this Court's opinion, is reasonable.
20. This Court is also of the opinion that the invocation of the extended period of limitation was warranted in the circumstances of the case. Being conscious of its trading activity and that it was not liable to service tax (since it did not include the amounts earned from that business, in its returns) meant that the assessee was aware of what it was doing. It cannot now take shelter under the plea that non-trading activity was expressly exempt from claiming credit, in 2011. That amendment made no difference, given that trading was never taxable under the Finance Act, 1994. In these circumstances, the Revenue was justified in invoking the extended period of limitation in this case.

21. In the light of the above findings, all the questions framed are answered in favour of the Revenue and against the assessee. The appeal is, therefore, dismissed."

10.2. Further, it is a fact borne on record that the appellant itself has chosen to follow the procedure laid down under Rule 6(3A) on and from 01.04.2014 by reversing the proportionate input service credit attributable to the exempted service of trading, which clearly shows the knowledge of the appellant as to the requirement of law, which was also done prior to the issuance of the Show Cause Notice. In this connection, I find it apt to refer to paragraph 20 of the decision of the Hon'ble Delhi High Court in the case of M/s. Lally Automobiles Pvt. Ltd. (supra), which is reproduced at the cost of repetition:

"20. This Court is also of the opinion that the invocation of the extended period of limitation was warranted in the circumstances of the case. Being conscious of its trading activity and that it was not liable to service tax (since it did not include the amounts earned from that business, in its returns) meant that the assessee was aware of what it was doing. It cannot now take shelter under the plea that non-trading activity was expressly exempt from claiming credit, in 2011. That amendment made no difference, given that trading was never taxable under the Finance Act, 1994. In these circumstances, the Revenue was justified in invoking the extended period of limitation in this case."

10.3. In the light of the above facts, the decision of the Hon'ble High Court of Judicature at Madras in the case of M/s. Salem Co-operative Sugar Mills Ltd. (supra) is distinguishable.

11. In view of the above, I do not find any merit in the contentions of the Ld. Advocate for the appellant and accordingly, the appeal is dismissed.

Service Tax Appeal No. 41151 of 2013 (Arising out of Order-in-Appeal No. 103/2013 (MST) dated 20.02.2013 passed by the Commissioner of Central Excise (Appeals), 26/1, Mahatma Gandhi Road, Nungambakkam, Chennai - 600 034)

Vs.
Commissioner of Service Tax, Chennai

Hon'ble Judges/Coram:
Hon'ble SulekhaBeevi C.S., Member (J)
Hon'ble Anil G. Shakkarwar, Member (T)

Counsels:
For Appellant: N. Viswanathan, Advocate
For Respondents: L. Nandakumar, Authorized Representative (A.R.)

ORDER

Per SulekhaBeevi C.S:

1. Brief facts are that the appellants are registered with the Service Tax Department for providing Commercial Training and Coaching Service, Business Support Service, etc. They had entered into an agreement with M/s. WTI Advanced Technology Ltd. (M/s. WTI for short) by which it was agreed that the appellants would offer the services of its selected employees to work on the projects identified and allocated by M/s. WTI from time to time.

2. The Department was of the view that the said activity would fall under the taxable service of 'Manpower Recruitment and Supply Agency Service' for which the appellants had not discharged any Service Tax. Show Cause Notice dated 14.10.2009 was issued for the period from 01.04.2008 to 31.03.2009 to demand Service Tax under 'Manpower Recruitment and Supply Agency Service' on the consideration received from M/s. WTI during this period. After due process of law, the Original Authority vide Order-in-Original No. 24/2011 dated 11.03.2011 confirmed the demand along with interest and imposed penalties. On appeal, the Commissioner (Appeals) vide order impugned herein upheld the same. Hence, this appeal.

3.1. On behalf of the appellant, Learned Counsel Shri N. Viswanathan appeared and argued the matter. He submitted that the appellant provided services as CAD consultant involving customization of software for M/s. WTI by deputing their engineers to the job site of M/s. WTI. That such services do not fall under 'Manpower Recruitment and Supply Agency Service'.

3.2. After the issuance of the Show Cause Notice dated 14.10.2009, on 10.11.2009 the Superintendent of the concerned Commissionerate had issued a letter to the appellant to pay up Service Tax under the category of 'Information Technology Software Service' which have become taxable with effect from 16.05.2008. The appellant thus paid the Service Tax on the consideration received from M/s. WTI under Information Technology Software Service for the period from 16.05.2008 to 31.10.2009. The appellant has been continuously paying Service Tax under this category. The considerations received from M/s. WTI during the disputed period is not for any Manpower Recruitment and Supply Agency Service, but is in fact for providing Information Technology Software Service.

3.3. He further submitted that Section 65(68) of the Finance Act, 1994, which defines ‘Manpower Recruitment and Supply Agency Service’, was amended with effect from 16.05.2008 by substituting the words “to a client” with the words “to any person”. The Department has not established that M/s. WTI is the client of the appellant. The transaction was only on principal to principal basis and the authorities below have erred in holding that M/s. WTI is the client of the appellant. That for such reasons, the activity of the appellant will not fall under Manpower Recruitment and Supply Agency Services.

3.4. It is also argued by the Learned Counsel that the Show Cause Notice issued is not maintainable as the same did not allege that the activities of the appellant involved supply of manpower which involves work under the control of M/s. WTI. The said category of taxable service would be applicable only if the employees worked under the control of M/s. WTI. As the Notice does not allege that the employees worked under the control and supervision of M/s. WTI, the demand under the category of Manpower Recruitment and Supply Agency Service cannot sustain.

3.5. Further, that the reliance placed by the Commissioner (Appeals) on the decision of the Tribunal rendered in M/s. Future Focus Infotech India (P) Ltd. v. Commissioner of Service Tax, Chennai reported in MANU/CC/0024/2010 : 2010 (18) S.T.R. 308 (Tri. - Chennai) is incorrect as the facts do not apply to this case.

3.6. He prayed that the demand may be set aside.

4.1. Learned Authorized Representative Shri L. Nandakumar appeared and argued the matter on behalf of the Department. He supported the findings in the impugned order. He adverted to the contract entered between the appellant and M/s. WTI to contend that from the terms of the contract it is very much clear that the contract is for supply of manpower. The consideration is paid on the basis of man-hours and it is clearly stated that the employees of the appellant will not be entitled to overtime charges or to work on any holidays, etc. That the agreement is not for providing services under ‘Information Technology Software Service’ as argued by the appellant.

4.2. He submitted that the Commissioner (Appeals) has rightly relied upon the decision in M/s. Future Focus Infotech India (P) Ltd. (supra) wherein the Tribunal held that when computer engineers were supplied to IT companies to work on software projects and the said engineers were under the supervision and control of the IT companies, the activity would fall under Manpower Recruitment and Supply Agency Service. In the present case also the contract reveals that the employees were under the supervision and control of M/s. WTI to whom the manpower was supplied. The consideration received by the appellant from M/s. WTI during the disputed period as per the agreement would thus be taxable under Manpower Recruitment and Supply Agency Service.

4.3. He argued that the impugned order does not call for any interference.

5. Heard both sides.

6. The moot point for consideration is whether the activity would fall within the definition of "Manpower Recruitment and Supply Agency Service". For better appreciation, the said definition is reproduced as under:

"SECTION 65. Definitions.-- In this Chapter, unless the context otherwise requires,- [(68) "manpower recruitment or supply agency" means any [person] engaged in providing any service, directly or indirectly, in any manner for recruitment or supply of manpower, temporarily or otherwise, [to any other person];]"

7.1. The following clauses in the agreement entered between the appellant (BA) and M/s. WTI would bring out the nature of the transaction:

"WHEREAS, WTI, among other business, is in the business of developing, constructing, licensing, updating, enhancing, implementing, maintaining, supporting and marketing computer application software system;

AND WHEREAS, BA has represented to WTI that it has a pool of highly skilled and specialized Employees experienced in the development, enhancement, implementation and maintenance of Software Projects and proposed to WTI that it is willing to provide on subcontract basis technical assistance in respect of computer application software system development, implementation and maintenance work undertaken by WTI from its various clients by deputing its Employees to WTI/WTI Client locations to work on the project along with WTI Project team.

3. SCOPE OF BA ACTIVITIES: As WTI' Business Associate, BA shall engage in the following activities with due diligence;

a) Upon the request of WTI, BA will offer the technical assistance to WTI through services of its selected Employees to work on the computer software application development, implementation and maintenance of specific projects to be identified and allocated by WTI at its sole and absolute discretion and to carry out such functions and project related activities as may be allocated by WTI from time to time on a fixed man month (consisting of all days in a month excluding weekly offs and holidays declared by WTI or its Clients) fee basis as hereunder agreed under overall guidance and supervision of WTI, as per terms of this agreement.

b) BA and its Employees on the project will perform all activities commonly known and referred to as "Software Development and Maintenance" activities. Such activities include without limitation development, installation, demonstration, Parameters Setting, User Training, Providing Guidance to User, warranty support functions, etc. The Employees deputed by BA will also perform such other functions as may be called upon to do by WTI from time to time.

c) BA shall secure all necessary registrations, authorizations and licenses as required to formalize its appointment hereunder or engagement of Employees by it and fully comply with from time to time and at all times all rules, regulations and laws as may be applicable to performance of its obligations and/or the obligations of its Employees hereunder.

d) BA and its Employees assigned by WTI to its clients shall, at all times, comply with security and confidentiality policies and procedures of WTI and clients.

6. CONSIDERATION

6.1. For the work to be carried out by BA for WTI, WTI shall pay BA technical fees as under:

a) WTI will pay to BA at the rates agreed in terms of Schedule of Technical Fees attached hereto. A person month shall consist of minimum eight (8) hours per day multiplied by number of working days in a calendar month at the location of work.

b) In case of deputation of BA Employees on overseas assignments, WTI shall bear all expenses connected with visa, travel and pay the living expenses of the BA Employees.

c) All payments to BA in terms of clause (a) above shall be made in Indian Rupees only as under:

1. 50% of invoice value within thirty (30) days of submission of invoice

2. Balance payable within thirty (30) days thereafter after proper scrutiny of the invoice submitted by BA

d) BA Employees shall not be entitled to any overtime charges or to work on any holidays as a compensation for the leave taken or absence from work on any other working days. BA employees shall also not be paid for working on any weekends or holidays declared by WTI or its Clients.

6.4. In case, on verification of an invoice, it is found that the BA personnel have not worked for the number of hours invoiced, WTI shall be at liberty to adjust the invoice value proportionately.
6.5. BA shall provide to WTI all, documents, data and information about the salary and other benefits provided by it to its Employees as and when called upon to do so by WTI. However, in case of BA Employees sent on Overseas deputation, BA shall provide this said information in the prescribed form every month.

6.7. WTI shall have the right to withhold payment under the following circumstances,

(a) If, upon a request by WTI, BA has not replaced any Employee(s) within a period of fifteen (15) days from such request having been made, which Employee(s) is (are), in the sole discretion of WTI, incapable of performing the functions assigned to him/her/them by the WTI Project Leader and/or is otherwise considered by WTI in its sole discretion to be replaced for whatsoever reason.

(b) If, BA has not replaced the Employee(s) who has become incapable of performing the obligations of BA under the terms of this agreement, such incapability arising due to death, disease, resignation or by whatsoever means, within a period of fifteen days from such incapability. ...

(Emphasis added)

7.2. From the above excerpts of the contract, it can be safely concluded that the nature of the contract is for supply of manpower. The consideration is paid on the basis of man-hours. It can also be seen that the work is executed as per the guidance of M/s. WTI. Thus, for carrying out the development, maintenance, etc., of software, the persons so deployed by the appellant to M/s. WTI are under the control of M/s. WTI and they work under the guidance and supervision of M/s. WTI.

8. The very same issue was discussed by the Tribunal in M/s. Future Focus Infotech India (P) Ltd. (supra). The relevant portion of the order is extracted as under:

"12. We find that the arguments advanced on behalf of the appellants are mainly based on the various clauses in the agreements executed between them and their clients namely TCS and Infosys. We are of the view that not only the wordings of these clauses are to be considered but also how different clauses of the contracts actually operate have to be seen. We find that the appellants are supplying various skilled personnel to TCS and Infosys to work on software projects undertaken by TCS and Infosys from their respective clients. The personnel deputed by the appellants appear to be working at the site of the clients of TCS and Infosys or in the premises of TCS and Infosys. There is no evidence produced before us to indicate that any of the software projects undertaken by TCS and Infosys from their respective clients has been sub-contracted to the appellants or that the appellants are working on any such project on their own. What has emerged clearly is that the appellants have deputed skilled personnel including computer engineers to work under the supervision and control of TCS and Infosys personnel in-charge of projects undertaken by TCS and Infosys. The appellants are getting paid in terms of the man hours for the persons deputed to work under the control and supervision of TCS and Infosys.

13. No doubt there are clauses relating to deliverables and quality of work in the contracts but these by themselves do not indicate that the appellants are providing information technology software services to TCS and Infosys. Any person or organization obtaining skilled personnel has to ensure that such men deliver work of standard quality. No one would employ a person who is not skilled enough and no one would pay for shoddy work even if done by a skilled man. The relevant clauses in the contract in this regard on which much emphasis was sought to be put by the learned senior counsel for the appellants have to be viewed in the light that TCS and Infosys are merely seeking to obtain personnel from the appellants with necessary skill who will work diligently on the projects undertaken by TCS and Infosys.

14. The learned special counsel for the Department has rightly pointed out a significant provision in the contracts which require the appellants to replace personnel who leave the job by suitably trained personnel as substitutes. Such provisions in the contract go to show that the number of skilled persons supplied is important from the point of view of TCS and Infosys. If the appellants were actually to deliver the software projects, TCS and Infosys would have nothing to say about how many personnel the appellants engage to complete the project or who they employ.

15. Looking at all aspects of the case and taking into account all the arguments made before us, we come to the conclusion that the appellants are only supplying skilled manpower for which they are liable to pay Service tax for supply of manpower services. We note that for similar activities of the appellants in respect of two other clients namely IBM and CAP GEMINI, the appellants have paid Service tax under the category ‘manpower supply service’ and their clients in turn took credit of such Service tax paid by the appellants.”

9. Learned Counsel for the appellant has made much effort to contend that the services are ‘Information Technology Software Services’ and not ‘Manpower Recruitment and Supply Agency Services’. However, from the agreement entered by the appellant with M/s. WTI it is very much clear that activity falls within the four corners of Manpower Recruitment and Supply Agency Service. We therefore hold that the demand is legal and proper.

10. The appeal is without any merits and is dismissed accordingly.

Per: P Anjani Kumar:

Briefly stated the facts of the case are that the appellant, M/s.Emars Mining Construction Pvt.Ltd., are engaged in providing services inter alia in raising, extracting and transportation of iron ore for Mrs.Mala Roy, lease holder of Jalahori Iron & Manganese Mines in Orissa. The appellants were being paid a fixed rate per ton of the iron ore. On scrutiny of the ST-3 returns and other documents, the department has observed that the appellants have short paid Service Tax on ‘Transport of Goods by Road’, ‘Mining Service’, ‘Site Formation and Clearance, Excavation and Earthmoving and Demolition Service’ during the period 2005-06 to 2009-10. Accordingly, a show cause notice dated 19.10.2010 was issued to the appellants demanding Service Tax of Rs.9,12,40,927/-; Education Cess of Rs.18,24,821/- and Higher Education Cess of Rs.5,01,545/- under the proviso to Section 73(1) of the Finance Act, 1994 while proposing to impose penalty under Section 78 of the Finance Act. The show cause notice was adjudicated by the Commissioner vide Order-in-Original No.70/Commr/ST/Kol/2011-12 dated 31.01.2012 wherein Service Tax of Rs.2,90,48,791/- was confirmed with equal penalty and interest. Hence this appeal.

2. Learned Sr.Counsel for the appellant submits that the original agreement was dated 24.03.2005 and similar agreements were entered in respect of subsequent financial years 2006-07 to 2009-10; during 2005-06 and during 2006-07, the appellant did not charge or collect any consideration towards raising/shifting of iron ore and started charging the same from financial year 2007-08 onwards. Learned Sr.Counsel submits that that substantial portion of the activities comprised in transportation of iron ore therefore the appellant entered into the supplementary agreement from 2007-08 whereby the consideration receivable by the appellant was split into mining charges(40%) and transportation charges (60%). The learned Sr.Counsel submits that Service Tax on mining activities were levied w.e.f. June 1, 2007 and the appellant has started paying Service Tax under the category of ‘Mining Services’ in respect of 40% of the consideration they received. In respect of balance 60% of the consideration the lease holder paid Service Tax as per the terms of the agreement. The learned Commissioner has dropped the demand in respect of ‘GTA Services’ and in respect of ‘Cargo Handling Service’ and ‘Site Formation and Clearance Service’ he dropped the demand pertaining to financial years 2005-06 and 2006-07 for the reason that it was not recovered from the lease holder. However, the learned Commissioner confirmed the demand in respect of both the services for the period April and May 2007. The learned Commissioner also confirmed the entire demand in respect of 'Mining Services' allowing the credit of Service Tax paid by the lease holder on GTA in respect of 60% of the consideration.

3. Learned Sr.Counsel for the appellant submits that the issue relating to handling and transportation of coal from pit head to the mines premises was covered by the following decisions:

(i) Karamjeet Singh & Co. Ltd. Vs. Commissioner of C.Ex. & Service Tax [2008 (17) GSTL 255 (T)]

(iii) H.N.Coal Transport Pvt.Ltd. Vs. Commissioner of C.Ex. & S.T. [2019 (26) GSTL 214 (T)]

(iv) Commissioner of Central Excise & Service Tax, Raipur Vs. Singh Transporter [2017 (4) GSTL 3 (SC)]

3.1 Learned Sr.Counsel submits that as held in the above cases, the activity undertaken by the appellant is correctly classifiable under ‘GTA Services’ and Service Tax on the same has already been paid only to the extent of 60% of the consideration received and Service Tax was also paid by them under ‘Mining Services’ for the 40% of the remuneration they have received. He submits that in view of the case law cited above, Commissioner’s order is not tenable.

4. With reference to the confirmation of demand of Rs.18,35,945/- as ‘Cargo Handling Service’ for the period April 2007 to May 2007 was erroneous and not sustainable in view of the following decisions:-

(i) Shree Ganraj Coal Transport Private Limited Vs. CCE & ST [2018 (14) G.S.T.L. 394 (T)] Affirmed by the Supreme Court in Commissioner Vs. Shree Ganraj Coal Transport Private Limited [2018 (14) G.S.T.L. J122 (SC).]

Learned Sr.Counsel, however, fairly concedes the confirmation of Service Tax to the extent of Rs.12,23,964/- for the period April and May 2007 under ‘Site Formation and Clearance Service’.

5. The learned Authorized Representative for the department reiterates the findings of the Order-in-Original and submits that the case law submitted by the appellant is not applicable as the operations undertaken by the appellant is clearly falling under ‘Mining Services’ and it cannot be artificially split into ‘Mining Services’ and ‘GTA Services’. He relies upon the case of Hazaribagh Mining &Engg. Pvt.Ltd. [2017 49) S.T.R. 289 (Tri.-Kol).]

6. Heard both sides and perused the records of the case.

7. We find that the appellants are undertaking the activity for the lease holder in excavation raising and transport of ore. The terms of Para 3 of the contract dated 10.04.2008 is follow:

"3. The contractor shall extract Iron ore from the said mine and shall deliver the exclusively to the leaseholder. In consideration thereof, the Leaseholder shall pay to the contractor in the following manner.

Iron Ore Rate per MT
Iron Ore R.O.M. Rs.500/-
Iron Ore Fines Rs.75/-
Iron Ore 10-40 (R.O.M.) Rs.465/-
Iron Ore 20-40 (R.O.M.) Rs.465/-
The R.O.M. (Crude ore) shall mean iron ore in run of mine from which can be profitably marked only after processing converting and sorting into the prescribed standards by the contractor.

The parties here to further agree to review from time to time the extraction charges of crude ore considering the change in cost and for that purpose if necessary to sign addendum to this agreement.”

7.1 This agreement was supplemented on 28th April 2008 wherein all other terms being unchanged. The following is inserted:-

“This agreement is in continuation of the original agreement made between the parties on 10th day of April 2008 for raising of iron ore from the kine at Jalalhuri wherein in the following price consideration was agreed upon by both the parties.

Rate per MT

Iron Ore R.O.M. Rs.500/-
Iron Ore Fiones Rs.75/-
Iron Ore 10-40 (R.O.M.) Rs.465/-
Iron Ore 20-40 (R.O.M.) Rs.465/-

The essence of the contract is that the Contractor has vast experience and possess technical knowhow and expertise including personnel, mining tools, machinery and other necessary equipment to undertake exploration, excavation, processing, transportation and marketing of iron ore from said Mine.

It has now been agreed upon that out of the above agreed rate it has been felt necessary to bifurcate the expenses relating to mining and transportation as these are the main major heads of operating expenses. After thorough discussion it has now been agreed upon that the contractor however will have to restrict the mining and transportation billing to the ratio of 40:60 (Approx.) and henceforth the payments of the bills will be made according to this supplemental agreement.

In view of the above the implementation of service tax will be as under.

-For raising activities service tax shall be payable by the contractor

-For Transportation and other Logistics service tax shall be payable by the Leaseholder

All other terms and condition will remain unchanged and binding upon both the parties.”

8. Ongoing through the terms of the contract, we find essence of the contract is that the contractor i.e. the appellant shall extract iron ore from the said mine and shall deliver it exclusively to the leaseholder. In consideration thereof the leaseholder shall pay to the contractor in the manner decided. We find that the rates are fixed for different types of iron ore i.e. iron ore R.O.M., iron ore fines, iron ore 10-40 R.O.M.; and iron ore 20-40 (R.O.M.). We also find that the Supplementary Agreement has been expanded to bifurcate the expenses relating to mining and transportation in the ratio 40:60 while making payments. The contracts and supplement over the years were in identical manner. Thus, it is apparent that the contracts undertaken by the appellant are composite contracts involving excavation and transportation of iron ore.

The case laws relied upon by the Sr. Counsel i.e. the cases Karamjeet Singh & Co. (supra), Singh Transporters (supra) appear to be for the cases where the appellants therein are engaged in the transportation of excavated ore from the pit head to dump yard. Therefore, it was held in such cases that the activity undertaken by the concerned parties would not fall under ‘Mining Services’. However, as seen above, the activity undertaken by the appellants is composite activity. For the sake of interpretation and applicability of Service Tax the contract cannot be vivisected. Learned Sr.Counsel attempted to submit that as the payments are received separately for mining and transportation activities they need to be considered as different services. We are not inclined to subscribe to this view. The terms of the contract in the instant case being categorical and the division of the amount payable in a ratio appears to be only for the convenience of the parties involved and therefore it cannot be concluded that the services rendered by the appellants are under two different heads. Such an artificial bifurcation is not acceptable. We find that this Bench of the Tribunal in the case of Hazaribagh Mining &Engg. Pvt.Ltd. (supra) having gone through the scope of the contract therein have concluded that the work undertaken by the appellants therein amounted to ‘Mining Services’. In the instant case also the learned Sr.Counsel for the appellant other than merely showing that there is a division of payment could not produce any documentary proof so as to conclude that the contract is viviseptable. Therefore, we find that the learned Commissioner has correctly concluded that the activities undertaken by the appellants is 'Mining Service' w.e.f. 01.06.2007 and is chargeable to Service Tax accordingly. Learned Sr.Counsel at this juncture submits that the entire Service Tax amount has been paid by the appellants along with interest and 25% of the penalty.

9. Coming to the demand of Rs.18,35,945/- under 'Cargo Handling Services' for the period April 2007 to May 2007, we find that the case law submitted by the learned Commissioner for the appellant squarely covers the issue. We find that there are a catena of judgments indicating that such service cannot be treated as 'Cargo Handling Service' therefore to that extent the arguments of the appellants are acceptable.

10. In view of the above, the appeal is partially allowed in the following terms: -

(i) The demand is confirmed to the extent of Rs.2,59,88,882/- under the taxable head 'Mining and Mineral, Oil, Gas Service' for the period 01.06.2007 to 31.03.2010 and Rs.12,23,964/- on 'Site Formation and Clearance Service' for the period April 2007 to May 2007.

(ii) Penalty under section 78 is restricted to 25% of the above confirmed amounts.

(Order pronounced in the open court on 15.01.2020)
This appeal is filed by the Assessee (T.G.S. for short) against the Order-in-Original No.16/ST/Commissioner/2011 dt. 30/05/2011 passed by the Commissioner of Central Excise and Service Tax, Jamshedpur. Brief facts leading to the present Appeal, inter-alia, are that the appellant during the year under dispute had provided "Commissioning and Installation" and "Maintenance or repair services" without payment of Service Tax; that the same was noticed during the course of checking of records of the assessee by the Preventive Team of the Revenue, that the Appellant appeared to have taken input/service credit for providing above services; that the assessee had provided the above services to M/s. Tata Steel without payment of Service Tax though there was a contract for the above services, etc. Vide Show Cause Notice dt.08/10/2010, TGS was asked to explain inter-alia the non-payment of Service Tax, in response to which, it appears that the appellant filed its replies on various dates contending that the contract and the provision of service was only by one unit to another unit which is otherwise a service for the self and therefore, there was no liability to Service Tax. The Adjudicating Authority vide Impugned Order-in-Original, however considering the explanation, the contract entered into between the appellant and the Tata Steels and the Statements recorded held that the appellant was an independent service provider and consequently, the receipt of service by Tata Steels Ltd. was liable to Service Tax which is not a service rendered to the self and thus confirmed the demands proposed in the Show Cause Notice.

2. Today, when the matter was taken up for hearing, the Senior Advocate, Dr Samir Chakraborty & Abhijit Biswas, Advocate, appeared for the assessee and A. Roy, Ld. DR appeared for the Revenue.

3. The Ld. Senior Advocate reiterates the contentions urged before the Lower Authority and he would also submit, drawing our attention to the Show Cause Notice, that the period in dispute is January 2005 to 31/03/2010 for which the Show Cause Notice, has been issued on 08/10/2010 by invoking the extended period of limitation while all the details as to the alleged suppression had been picked up only from the records maintained by the appellant, by the Preventive Team of the Central Excise Headquarters and therefore, the demand is not justified. The Ld. Senior Advocate also relied on following decisions in support of his submission: -

(i) General Manager, BSNL Cellular Mobile Services Vs. Commr. of GST & C. Ex., 2019 (25) GSTL 238 (T)

(ii) Sahara India Commercial Corporation Vs. Commr. of C. Ex., 2019 (21) GSTL 170 (T)
He also submitted a copy of Annual Report for the period 2013-14 to point out that the appellant is not a separate entity.

4. Per Contra, A. Roy, Ld. AR, submits that there is a valid contract entered into by the appellant with the Service Tax recipient, both are two different entities having both the two different status as far as income tax is concerned, as they have obtained different PAN Numbers which is mandatory for obtaining Service Tax registration. The Ld. DR also drew our attention to various clauses in the contract to buttress that both are different entities and that there is no service to self as contended by the assessee/appellant. He also pointed out to page 55 wherein, the gross price is shown to include Service Tax and Education Cess and there is also Arbitration clause in case of any disputes arising on account of the contract.

5. We have considered the rival contentions, have gone through the documents placed on records and have also gone through various decisions relied upon by the Ld. Senior Advocate. From the Perusal of the documents and the explanations filed by the appellant, we note that but for pleading that there was no service recipient rather service is for self, no documentary evidence is furnished for the satisfaction of either the Ld. Commissioner/Adjudicating Authority or before us. We also find that the Adjudicating Authority has given a finding on the contentions of the appellant; that the services rendered by the appellant was for consideration and that in case of orders for executing service, the appellant had sub-contracted after making payment for which, the appellant had also taken credit for the Service Tax amount charged. There is also a finding by Ld. Commissioner that the appellant did indeed allot vendor code and ledger to Tata Steel Ltd. by treating the other as its customers on which there is no refusal/rebuttal by the appellant and it is also a part of the record that the services rendered were the results of open bidding/tender where even the appellant amongst others, participated. On being successful, purchased order was placed and the contract came up executed.

6. On considering above discussions by the Ld. Adjudicating Authority, suffice it to say that the appellant has failed to prove that it is the case of ‘Self Service’ but the Revenue has clearly established that there exists service, there is a service provider, there is also a service recipient; and for which the payment has been made. In the backdrop of the above, therefore, we are of the humble opinion that the decisions relied on by the Ld. Senior Advocate are distinguishable. But however, it is a matter of record that the Revenue has come to know of the above facts only during the course of checking of records and not from an independent source and therefore, the same cannot be said to have been suppressed with an intention to evade tax and consequently, the demand cannot be raised beyond of the Normal period. We also find that there is no specific allegation of suppression, fraud, etc, to justify invoking larger period of limitation. In the light of the above, therefore the demand in so far as the normal period of limitation alone can be sustained, which we hereby do.

7. In the result, the matter is remanded back to the file of the Adjudicating Authority for working out for liability, if any, for the normal period alone. Matter is partly allowed and partly remanded on the above terms.

Service Tax Appeal No. 132 of 2009
M/s N C Paul & Company
(Ukhra, Burdwan, Dist-Burdwan, WB)

Vs
COMMISSIONER OF CENTRAL EXCISE, BOLPUR

Appellant Rep by: Shri Kartick Kurmy, Advocate.
Respondent Rep by: Shri A Roy, Authorized Representative.

CORAM: Hon’ble Mr P K Choudhary, Member (J)
Hon’ble Mr Bijay Kumar, Member (T)

Date of Hearing: 24.10.2019
Date of Decision: 17.12.2019

Final Order No. 76934/KOL/2019

[Order per: P.K. Choudhary, Member (J)]. –

This appeal arises out of Order (Original) No. 38/Commr./BOL/09, dated 23-2-2009 passed by Ld. Commissioner, Central Excise, Bolpur.

2. The facts of the case in brief are that during the period 16-8-2002 to 31-3-2007, the appellant provided transportation of Coal including incidental loading/unloading to various sites of ECL (M/s. Eastern Coalfields Ltd.). The appellant also provided loading of Coal into Tippers for transportation within the mines and further provided loading of coal into Railway Wagon for outward transportation.

3. The activities of transportation of coal with incidental loading/unloading is provided by the appellant to ECL, Sonpur Bazari, which involves loading of crushed coal into automated tippers at ground stock inside the mines, its transportation up to 06-07 K.M. then automated unloading without human intervention inside the mines near railway siding and then loading the same into the railway wagon by pay loaders. The rate is composite. No separate charges are collected for loading/unloading activities. A perusal of the work order dated 27-4-2005 at Page 59 shows that the parties entered into the contract for transportation of 16.5 lakhs ton coal from CHP (Coal Handling Plant) to Siding. A perusal of Clause 16 of the work order shows that for commencement of work, the appellant has to furnish a list of trucks/tipping trucks to be deployed for carrying out the transportation activities. Similar work orders dated 26/27-2-2004 (Page 68), dated 21-10-2003 (Page 71) and dated 7-6-2004 (Page 64) are awarded by ECL, Sonpur Bazari Area.

4. The appellant has further executed work of only loading coal into tipping trucks at pit head for transportation inside the mines and also loading at railway siding into railway wagon for outward transportation. Separate rates are provided for loading of coal at pit head for transportation inside the mines and loading of coal into railway wagon for outward transportation. The contract is divisible. Such work orders were executed for ECL, Jhanjhra Area vide work order dated 21/22-5-2004 (Page 109), Work Order No. GM/JNR/Sales/35/563 (Page 112), Work Order No. GM/JNR/Sales/35/199 (Page 115).

5. The appellant has further executed work order dated 31-3-2006 (Page 124) and other similar work orders for work of loading coal into railway wagon for outward transportation at ECL, Pandveswar Area.

6. The Ld. Additional Director General, DGCEI, Kolkata, issued Show Cause Notice dated 15-10-2007, demanding Service Tax of Rs. 2,71,55,189/- under the category of Cargo Handling Service for the period from 16-8-2002 to 31-3-2007 along with interest and proposing penalties under Sections 76, 77 and 78. Under Para 6 of the show cause notice at Page 96, out of total service tax demand of Rs. 2,75,60,137/- , Service Tax demand of Rs. 2,47,60,534/- is demanded on transportation of coal with incidental loading/unloading under the category of Cargo Handling Service and the balance Service Tax of Rs. 27,99,603/- is demanded on loading activities i.e. loading at pit head for internal transportation and loading of railway wagon for outward transportation under the category of Cargo Handling Service.

7. The Ld. Advocate for the appellant, Sri Kartik Kurmy, submits that the Service Tax of Rs. 2,47,60,534/- is demanded on transportation contracts with incidental loading/unloading which cannot be classified under the category of Cargo Handling Service. In support of his contentions he relies on the decision of the Tribunal in the case of Tycoons Industries Pvt. Ltd. v. CST reported in 2019-TIOL-1509-CESTAT-KOL, Khanduja Coal Transport Co. v. CGST reported in 2019-TIOL-1018-CESTAT-Del., R.K. Transport Co. v. CCE reported in 2012 (27) S.T.R. 496 (Tri. - Del.) as affirmed by the Hon’ble Supreme Court reported in 2018 (16) G.S.T.L. J78 (SC) and CCE v. Singh Transporters reported in 2017 (4) G.S.T.L. 3 (SC). As regards the demand of Service Tax of Rs. 27,99,603/-, he submits that the said demand is raised on activities of loading at pit head for internal transportation and also loading at railway siding into railway wagon for outward transportation and under the contract separate rates are provided. It is submitted by him that loading of coal at pit head for internal movement inside the mines cannot be classified under the category of Cargo Handling Service. The Ld. Advocate relies on the decision of the Tribunal in the case of Sainik Mining & Allied Services Ltd. v. CCE reported in 2008 (9) S.T.R. 531 (Tri. - Del.)
and Final Order No. 76815/2018, dated 11-10-2018, in the case of Sainik Mining & Allied Services Ltd., in Appeal No. ST/91/2008-DB. The Ld. Advocate further submits that the railway sidings are located within the mines and loading of coal at the railway sidings inside the mines into railway wagons for outward transportation also cannot be classified under the category of Cargo Handling Service. He further submits that in the show cause notice there is no allegations that the appellant is a cargo handling agent and what is handled is nothing but cargo, hence, in absence of twin requirement of Section 65(23), the tax cannot be levied upon them under the category of Cargo Handling Service, by implication. He relies on judgment of the Supreme Court in the case of DCCE v. Sushil & Company reported in 2016 (42) S.T.R. 625 (S.C.) and in the case of Signode India Ltd. v. CCE reported in 2017 (50) S.T.R. 3 (S.C.).

8. On the ground of limitation, the Ld. Advocate submits that the demand for the period from 16-8-2002 to 31-3-2006 is barred by normal period of limitation of one year and only demand from 1-4-2006 to 31-3-2007 is within limitation. It is further submitted that during the material period there were genuine interpretation dilemma in the trade and also within the department during the infancy stage of levy which is taken cognizance in the cases of Vishal Traders v. CCE reported in 2010 (19) S.T.R.
509 (Tri. - Del.), Singh Brothers v. CCE reported in 2009 (14) S.T.R. 552 (Tri. - Del.)
and in the case of Sainik Mining & Allied Services Ltd. cited supra dated 11-10-2018 and the demand is confined to normal period of limitation and penalties are waived.

9. Per contra the Ld. Authorised Representative for the respondent supports the impugned Order. It is submitted by him that the services provided by the appellant is clearly taxable under the category of Cargo Handling Services. He relies upon the decision of the Hon’ble Tribunal in the case of Shreem Coal Carriers (P) Ltd. v. CCE reported in 2015 (37) S.T.R. 1067 (Tri. - Mum.) and in the case of Karamjeet Singh & Co. Ltd. v. CCE reported in 2018 (17) G.S.T.L. 255 (Tri. - Del.).

10. The Ld. Advocate for the appellant submits that the decision of the Shreem Coal Carrier (P) Ltd. is set aside by the Hon’ble Bombay High Court and remanded back as reported in 2016 (42) S.T.R. J314 upon remand by the Supreme Court reported in 2016 (41) S.T.R. J49 and reported in 2016 (41) S.T.R. J304.

11. Heard both the sides and perused the appeal records.

12. We find from the impugned Order passed by the Ld. Commissioner that the Service Tax demand of Rs. 2,47,60,534/- on transportation with incidental loading/unloading is upheld mainly on the ground that the contracts are not for “mere transportation of goods”, hence, it is covered under the category of Cargo Handling Services and since, there is no separate rates provided for transportation, loading and unloading activities, the appellant is liable to pay service tax on the gross amount 13. In respect of the Service tax demand of Rs. 27,99,603/- on loading activities, it is held by the Ld. Commissioner that loading of coal which is cargo is specifically covered under Section 65(23) as Cargo Handling Services and the decision of the Tribunal in the case of Sainik Mining & Allied Services Ltd. holding that loading of tippers done at pit head for internal transportation of Coal within the mining area is not Cargo Handling Services, does not apply.

14. We find that the Service Tax demand of Rs. 2,47,60,534/- on contracts for transportation of Coal from CHP Stock Yard to Railway Siding up to 06-07 K.M. and loading the Coal into Railway Wagon are essentially for transportation of Coal which is evident from the intention of the parties as found from the Work Orders. The work orders are awarded for transportation of coal. In the case of Tycoon Industries Pvt. Ltd. v. CST reported in 2019-TIOL-1509-CESTAT-Kol, it is held by this Tribunal while dealing with similar facts and circumstances, that the dominant activities under the contract are movement of mineral within the mining area and loading to Railway Wagon, which includes loading and unloading, are merely incidental while the activities undertaken are principally transportation of coal within the mining area, hence, the gross amount received for the same cannot be taxed under the category of Cargo Handling Services. Therefore, we are of the view that the Service Tax demand of Rs. 2,47,60,534/- on activities of transportation with incidental loading and unloading including wagon loading is principally and dominantly for transportation of coal within the mines and hence, cannot be taxed under the category of Cargo Handling Service and accordingly, set aside.

15. We find that the Service Tax demand of Rs. 27,99,603/- is confirmed on two kinds of contracts i.e. contract for hiring of pay loader for loading of coal into tippers for transportation within the mines and hiring of pay loader for loading of coal at the Railway Siding for outward transportation. There is no separate quantification of demand in respect of each of them. We find that the activities of hiring of pay loaders for loading of coal at pit head within the mines for internal transportation cannot be classified under the category of Cargo Handling Service as held by the Tribunal in the case of Sainik Mining & Allied Services Ltd., cited supra and accordingly, Service Tax demand on the said portion of the demand out of Rs. 27,99,603/- is set aside.

16. We find that the Service Tax demand on the activity of hiring of pay loader for loading of coal into railway wagon at railway siding for outward transportation is taxable under the category of Cargo Handling Service as held by the Tribunal in the case of Gajanand Agarwal v. CCE reported in 2009 (13) S.T.R. 138 (Tri. - Kol.). However, in the case of Vishal Traders v. CCE cited supra, Singh Brothers v. CCE cited supra and Sainik Mining & Allied Services Ltd. cited supra, the Tribunal taking note of genuine interpretation dilemma in the trade and within the department during the infancy stage of levy, has confined the demand to normal period of limitation and has set aside the penalties. Accordingly, in respect of work orders for hiring of pay loaders for loading of coal at railway siding for outward transportation, we uphold the tax demand on merit but restrict such levy to the normal time limit and set aside the penalties.

17. In the light of the above discussions, we set aside Service Tax demand of Rs. 2,47,60,534/- along with interest and penalties on transportation contracts with incidental loading/unloading. In respect of levy of Service Tax on loading of coal at pit head for internal material, we set aside the service tax demand along with interest and penalty. However, we uphold the Service Tax demand along with interest in respect of contracts for hiring of pay loaders for loading of coal at railway siding for outward transportation but restrict the same to the normal period of limitation. Since, there is no separate quantification/break-up of the Service Tax demand of Rs. 27,99,603/-, hence, we remand the matter to the Adjudicating Authority for the limited purpose of separate quantification of demand in respect of hiring of pay loaders for loading of coal at pit head within the mines and hiring of pay loaders for loading of coal at railway siding for outward transportation. As the service tax demand on contracts for hiring of pay loaders for loading of coal at railway siding for outward transportation is upheld but restricted to normal period of limitation, the Adjudicating Authority is directed to restrict such levy to the normal time limit.

18. The appeal is thus partly allowed in the above terms.

(Pronounced in the open Court on 17-12-2019)
Per P.V.Subba Rao:

None appeared on behalf of the appellant. We find that the case has been regularly listed on various dates and none appeared. No application for adjournment has been received. As the case pertains to 2013, we take up the matter for hearing and decision on merit.

2. Ld.Special Counsel, Shri AKDas, appeared on behalf of the Respondent Department.

3. Heard the Ld.Special Counsel for the respondent and perused the records.

4. This appeal is filed against the impugned Order-in-Original No.08/ST/Commr./2013 dated 22.02.2013. On the basis of Audit Report from DAG (CRA), Office of PAG (Audit). Jharkhand, investigations were initiated by the officers of Central Excise and Service Tax, which culminated in the issuance of show-cause notice dated 21.11.2011 to the appellant. The appellant is a Body Corporate as per Section 3B of Coal Mines Provident & Miscellaneous Provisions Act, 1948 and manages the following funds:

   (i) Coal Mines Provident Fund Scheme;

   (ii) Coal Mines Family Pension Scheme (merged with Pension Scheme in 1998);

   (iii) Coal Mines Pension Scheme;

   (iv) Coal Mines Deposit Linked InsuranceScheme.

They collect these fund amount from Coal Companies and the Coal Mine Workers and invest them in various Banks and Securities so as to ensure a good return and pay provident fund, pension, etc., to the Coal Mine Workers as per specified rates. For such asset’s management, they are paid an amount of 3% of the total amount so collected by the Coal Companies. It is the case of the Department that the appellant has provided the service of asset management (including management of provident fund; pension scheme and insurance scheme) which falls under the category of “Banking and Other Financial Services” as per Section 65(12) and is taxable under this head w.e.f. 16.07.2001 as per Section 65(105)(zm) of the Finance Act, 1994. It is also the case of the Revenue that as per the provisions of Section 65 (45) of the Finance Act, 1994, “Financial Institution” has the meaning of Section 45-I (vi)(c) of RBI Act, 1934 and the appellant is covered by it. On receipt of the Audit objection, the Department wrote to the appellant, after which they obtained service tax registration on 16.03.2011 under the category of Banking and Financial Services, but they have not paid service tax. Therefore, the Department again wrote letters dated 02.05.2011, 23.05.2011, 21.06.2011, 11.07.2011, 28.07.2011 & 03.08.2011 asking them to pay service tax and file challans, but they failed to do so. Therefore, a show-cause notice was issued to the appellant demanding service tax amounting to Rs.50,89,14,218/- for the period 2006-07 to 2010-11 under the first Proviso to Section 73 (1) of the Finance Act, 1994 along with interest under Section 75. It also proposed to impose penalties upon the appellant under Sections 76, 77 and 78 of the Finance Act, 1994.

5. The appellant contested the demand on merit as well as on limitation on the following grounds:
   (i) They are a statutory organization performing statutory functions and hence, they cannot be treated as having rendered a taxable service. They are under direct control of the Central Government.
   (ii) They were created under the provisions of The Coal Mines Provident Fund and Miscellaneous Provisions Act, 1948 (CMPFMPAct)
   (iii) As per their mandate, they are managing funds; their job is one of ensuring some social security, which finds its root in the Directive Principles of State Policy.
   (iv) It cannot be disputed that their organization is functioning for the welfare of the people of the country.
   (v) Services provided by an organization, which are statutory in nature, are not taxable.
   (vi) In the case of CBFC, the Board vide Circular No.89/7/2006-ST dated 18.12.2006, clarified that the activities of that organization, do not constitute provision on taxable service.
   (vii) What they are collecting is only administration charge for rendering this service.
   (viii) Imposition of any tax on them would be contrary to public policy and therefore, perverse.
   (ix) They are neither a banking company nor a financial institute, nor a body corporate, nor a commercial concern, therefore, not covered by the definition of “Banking and Financial Service”. As the levy of service tax itself is contrary to law, the question of imposition of penalty does not arise.
   (x) Lastly, the notice is time barred and extended period of limitation cannot be invoked.

6. After considering the submissions made by the appellant, the Adjudicating Authority confirmed the demand as proposed along with interest under Section 75 and also imposed penalties. Aggrieved, the present appeal is filed on the following grounds:
   (i) They are a statutory organization created under the Act. They are performing duties of Welfare State Mandatory by the Directive Principles of State Policy under the Constitution.
   (ii) They have been exempted from Income Tax by CBDT under Section 10 (25) of the Income Tax Act, 1961.
   (iii) The Order passed by the Commissioner is without jurisdiction and violating principles of natural justice.

They also contested the invocation of extended period of limitation and imposition of penalty. They prayed that the impugned order may be set aside and the appeal may be allowed.

7. The Ld. Special Counsel for the Revenue, contends all the assertions in the grounds of appeal. He would submit that the only thing necessary to be examined is whether or not the appellant is covered by the Finance Act, 1994 and whether their services are covered by the definition of “Banking and Financial services” under it. The Banking and Financial Services is defined as follows:

“banking and other financial services” means -

(a) the following services provided by a banking company or a financial institution including a non-banking financial company or any other body corporate or [commercial concern], namely

(i) financial leasing services including equipment leasing and hire-purchase; [Explanation.—For the purposes of this item, “financial leasing” means a lease transaction where—

(1) contract for lease is entered into between two parties for leasing of a specific asset;

(ii) such contract is for use and occupation of the asset by the lessee;

(iii) the lease payment is calculated so as to cover the full cost of the asset together with the interest charges; and

(iv) the lessee is entitled to own, or has the option to own, the asset at the end of the lease period after making the lease payment;

(ii) [.....]

(iii) merchant bankingservices;

(iv) Securities and foreign exchange (forex) broking, and purchase or sale of foreign currency, including money changing;

(v) asset management including portfolio management, all forms of fund management, pension fund management, custodial, depository and trust services,

(vi) advisory and other auxiliary financial services including investment and portfolio research and advice, advice on mergers and acquisitions and advice on corporate restructuring and strategy;

(vii) provision and transfer of information and data processing; Banker to an issue services; and other financial services, namely, lending, issue of pay order, demand draft, cheque, letter of credit and bill of exchange, transfer of money including telegraphic transfer, mail transfer and electronic transfer, providing bank guarantee, overdraft facility, bill discounting facility, safe deposit locker, safe vaults, operation of bank accounts;"

He would submit that there is no doubt whatsoever that the appellant is performing asset management functions and managing the pension and provident fund of the coal mine workers. These are specifically covered under the above definition. The second point to be examined is whether the appellant is a Banking Company or Financial Institution or any other Body Corporate or Commercial concern. He would submit that the appellant's organization has been created under the provisions of The Coal Mines Provident Fund and Miscellaneous Provisions Act, 1948 (CMPFMP Act) and is headed by Board of Trustees. In terms of Section 3B of the Act, they shall be a Body Corporate under the name specified in the notification and statutorily have a perpetual succession. Therefore, the argument that they are Body Corporate, is not only far from truth but contrary to the provisions to the very Act which created the appellant. He would therefore, submit that there cannot be any doubt that the appellant is a Body Corporate and there is also no doubt that they are managing assets. There is also no doubt that they are receiving the consideration at 3% of the total fund from the Coal Companies for managing these assets. The appellant's activities were especially covered under the definition of Banking and Financial Services.

8. On the question whether the appellant’s activities are statutory functions, the Ld. Spl. Counsel submits that there is a distinction between the Ministry or Department and Organizations created by the Government, which though owned by the State, are separate legal entities. All Public Sector Corporation, such as, ECIL, BHEL, IDBI etc. are created by Acts of Parliament, but they are performing commercial functions. Therefore, they are commercial organizations created and owned by the Government to perform commercial functions with some social objectives also in mind. Merely because these Companies or Corporations or Organizations are functioning under the State and also have same social objectives of the Government in mind, they do not cease to be commercial organizations. Otherwise, no Government Company or Organization must be subjected to tax.

9. Further, he would submit that SBI and nationalised banks are also owned by the Government. Many of these were originally Private Banks, but were subsequently, nationalized by the State, so that they function, keeping in view some social objectives. Similarly, the major insurance companies, such as, LIC and GIC also function under the Government. If the logic of the appellant is agreed to, then none of these organizations are leviable to any taxes. These organisations are not exempted from service tax under the Finance Act, 1994.

10. On the question of the appellant’s claim that they are working for the welfare of the people and hence should not be taxed, he would submit that fiscal statutes must be strictly construed as they are drafted without any intendment as has been held by the Constitutional Bench of Hon’ble Apex Court in the case of Dilip Kumar (in Civil Appeal no. 3327/2007).

If the appellant falls under the charging section, there is no escape from tax. It has been demonstrated by the respondent that the nature of activity undertaken by the appellant falls within the definition of Banking and Financial services and the Organization itself is a Body Corporate. Therefore, they are covered by the charging section.

11. On the appellant’s claim that they are exempted under the Income Tax Act, he would submit that the exemption under I.T. Act, does not mean that there is also exemption from all other taxes.

12. On the question of invocation of extended period of limitation, he would submit that the appellant never came forward to take a registration on their own. It is only after repeated letters and reminders, they took a registration, but still failed to file service tax return or pay service tax. This shows that the appellant’s intention is to evade payment of service tax because they considered themselves to be above the law laid down by the Parliament.

13. For the same reasons, he would submit that the imposition of penalties upon the appellant is fully justified.

14. We have considered the arguments of both sides and perused the records. We find a little force in the arguments of the appellant that they are not a Body Corporate, but a Government Department performing some functions because the very Act which created them and entrusted them with the power states that they are a Body Corporate. Section 3B of the CMPFMP Act, 1948, specifically mention that the appellant is a Body Corporate. The next question to be considered is whether the appellant is covered by the definition of Banking and Finance Services. As can be seen from the definition reproduced above, asset management including portfolio management, all forms of fund management, pension fund management, custodial, depository and trust services, are squarely covered by the definition of “banking and financial services”. The appellant’s organization functions under Board of trustees and under Section 3A of the Act it is a Body Corporate. Their responsibilities as evident from the submissions of the appellants themselves are nothing but funds management, for which they received service charges of @3% from the Coal Companies. Therefore, we find that the appellant is squarely covered by the definition of “Banking and Financial services” and therefore, is liable to pay service tax under this Heading.

15. We have considered the arguments put forth in the appeal that the appellants are performing services to the country. Evidently, they are not performing any sovereign functions of the State. They are managing the some funds and performing some functions for the workers of Coal Companies and are getting paid for such services. These services rendered by the appellants, are not like the services of RTO of issuing driving license after charging a fees for the purpose or the State Drugs control who issues license for manufacture of pharmaceuticals after charging the requisite fees both of which are sovereign functions of the State. The appellant's functions are akin to the activities of other commercial organizations owned by the Government, such as, Public Sector Undertakings, Public Sector Banks etc...In all such organizations, while the nature of their activity is commercial, being owned by the Government, their business is conducted to take into account some social objectives and goals. This, by itself, will not make their activities sovereign functions or get them exempted from the tax.

16. We also find that once the Parliament has passed an Act imposing tax in a particular way that cannot be wished away by the appellant claiming noble objectives of their organization. Once a law is passed, it must be implemented as it is drafted without any intendment. We find that the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Dilip Kumar (supra), has ruled as under:

"19. The well settled principle is that when the words in a statute are clear, plain and unambiguous and only one meaning can be inferred, the Courts are bound to give effect to the said meaning irrespective of consequences. If the words in the statute are plain and unambiguous, it becomes necessary to expand those words in their natural and ordinary sense. The words used declare the intention of the Legislature. In the Kanai Lal Sur vs. ParamnirdhiSadhukhan, AIR 1957 SC 907, it was held that if the words used are capable of one construction only then it would not be open to the Courts to adopt any other hypothetical construction on the ground that such construction is more consistent with the alleged object and policy of the Act.

20. In applying rule of plain meaning any hardship and inconvenience cannot be the basis to alter the meaning to the language employed by the legislation. This is especially so in fiscal statutes and penal statutes. Nevertheless, if the plain language results in absurdity, the Court is entitled to determine the meaning of the word in the context in which it is used keeping in view the legislative purpose. Not only that, if the plain construction leads to anomaly and absurdity, the court having regard to the hardship and consequences that flow from such a provision can even explain the true intention of the legislation. Having observed general principles applicable to statutory interruption, it is now time to consider rules of interpretation with respect to taxation.

21. In construing penal statutes and taxation statutes, the Court has to apply strict rule of interpretation. The penal statute which tends to deprive a person of right to life and liberty has to be given strict interpretation or else many innocent might become victims of discretionary decision making. Insofar as taxation statutes are concerned, Article 265 of the Constitution 32, Assistant Commissioner Gadag Sub Division, Gadag vs. Mathapathi Basavannewadu, [1995(6)SCC 355. Taxes not to be imposed save by authority of law. No tax shall be levied or collected except by authority of law, prohibits the State from extracting tax from the citizens without authority of law. It is axiomatic that taxation statute has to be interpreted strictly because State cannot at their whims and fancies burden the citizens without authority of law. In other words, when competent Legislature mandates taxing certain persons/certain objects in certain circumstances, it cannot be expanded/interpreted to include those, which were not intended by the Legislature."

17. In a conclusion, we find that the appellant is liable to pay service tax.

18. In so far as invocation of extended period of limitation is concerned, this must be examined with reference to the facts of each case. In this case, the appellant has not applied for service tax registration or paid service tax. There is nothing on record to show that the appellant had written to the Department...
intimating their activities and seeking to know if they are liable to pay service tax. On the other hand, when their activities were detected during Audit and the Department had written several letters and reminders, only then they obtained service tax registration. Even after obtaining the service tax registration, they have not paid the service tax nor filed any returns. This conduct of the appellant does not show their bonafides. It demonstrates that they intended to evade payment of service tax at every stage. It is true that an individual may not have personally benefitted from the evasion. It is the organization which has demonstrably evaded the tax to profit. It cannot now profit from its own wrong and escape taxliability. In view of the above, we find that the invocation of extended period of limitation is fully justified in this case.

19. As the interest under Section 75, is directly linked to the payment of duty, the interest must accordingly be paid by the appellant.

20. We also find nothing inconsistent or wrong in the impugned order imposing statutory penalties under Sections 78, 77 & 76 of the Finance Act, 1994, since the appellant has made every possible effort to knowingly evade tax.

21. In view of the above, the impugned order is upheld and the appeal is rejected.

(Pronounced in the open Court on 25.02.2020)
The instant appeal has been filed by M/s. S D Business Enterprise Private Limited against demand of service tax of Rs. 58,29,459/- alongwith interest and penalty vide Order dated 02.06.2008 passed by the Ld. Commissioner of Service Tax, Kolkata, for the period October 2001 to March 2005, which is under challenge in this appeal.

2. Briefly stated, the facts of the case are that the appellant assessee is engaged in rendering taxable services under the category of Clearing and Forwarding services on which service tax is being paid. Show Cause Notice dated 05.03.2007 (SCN) was issued for non-payment of service tax on the expenditure incurred towards warehousing, transportation, electricity, travelling & conveyance, stationary & allied charges sought to be claimed as reimbursement from the principal i.e. the client of the assessee. It is the case of the department that the said expenditures are necessarily to be incurred to render the services of clearing and forwarding services without which said services cannot be rendered and that the assessee cannot artificially bifurcate them to claim deduction from the assessable value for payment of service tax.

4. The Ld. Advocate appearing for the appellant submitted that service tax has been rightly paid on the amount charged towards remuneration for providing the clearing and forwarding services and that the expenses amount recovered from the principal cannot be included in the assessable value for demanding service tax. He also contested the demand on time bar and imposition of penalty.
has been held that such expenses cannot be termed as reimbursement for seeking exclusion from value of taxable services. He specifically relied on the following observation made by the Larger Bench:

“6.4 The claim for reimbursement towards rent for premises, telephone charges, stationery charges, etc. amounts to a claim by the service provider that they can render such services in vacuum. What are costs for inputs services and inputs used in rendering services cannot be treated as reimbursable costs. There is no justification or legal authority to artificially split the cost towards providing services partly as cost of services and the rest as reimbursable expenses.”

The Ld. DR also relied on subsequent decisions of the Tribunal in case of Modern Business Solutions vs. CST Ahmedabad [2019 (24) GSTL 353 (Tri-Ahmd)] and in the case of Adarsh Agency vs. CCE Nagpur [2017 (6) GSTL 157 (Tri-Mum)] wherein the Larger Bench decisions have been relied by the Tribunal. On the basis of said decisions, the Ld. DR submitted that there is no merit in the case of the appellant and hence, the appeal be rejected.

5. Heard both sides and perused the appeal records.

6. We find that the issue is no longer res integra inasmuch as the same stands decided by the Larger Bench of the Tribunal in the case of Sri Bhagavathy Traders (Supra). Therefore, the amount of expenditure claimed as deduction by the appellant is not permissible and hence the appellant is liable to pay the demanded service tax. The plea of limitation raised by the appellant is not acceptable inasmuch as the fact of recovery of said expenses were not disclosed by the appellant. With regard to imposition of penalty, the Ld. Advocate pleaded for waiver in terms of Section 80 of the Finance Act, 1994. We are of the view that the appellant is entitled to relief by way of waiver of penalty under the aforesaid provisions and hence, order accordingly. Thus, penalty imposed on the appellant is set aside.

7. The appeal is thus partly allowed in the above terms.

The present appeal is directed against the impugned order dt.11/12/2007 passed by the Commissioner(Appeals) whereby the Commissioner(Appeals) has upheld the Order-in-Original but dropped the penalty under Section 77.
2. Briefly the facts of the present case are that the appellants are engaged in the services of retreading of worn-out tyres of automobiles. As it appeared that the activities fall under the scope of extended definition of taxable service in the category of “Maintenance or Repair Service” w.e.f. 16/06/2005 and the appellant has failed to pay the service tax and to file a statutory return, a show-cause notice was issued to them demanding an amount of Rs.4,32,840/- (Rupees Four Lakhs Thirty Two Thousand Eight Hundred and Forty only)towards service tax and education cess and proposing penalties under Sections 76 and 77 of the Finance Act. The original authority after due process of law confirmed the demand and imposed penalties. Aggrieved by the said order, appellant filed appeal before the Commissioner (Appeals) on the ground that the lower authority has failed to appreciate the true spirit of the definition under Section2(64) and Section 65(9) of the Finance Act 1994 and the relevant notification issued by the Government that their service will not come under the head “Management, Maintenance or Repair” as their business is excluded as an activity connected with motor vehicle and the section itself has clarified that the maintenance and repair of motor vehicles is excluded and the other ground raised by the appellant is that if at all the activity of the appellant is to be covered then it is covered under the head of Authorized Service Station but the Commissioner(Appeals) has rejected the appeal of the appellant.

3. Heard both the parties and perused records.

4. Learned counsel for the appellant submitted that the impugned order is not sustainable in law as the same has been passed without properly appreciating the facts and the law. He further submitted that the retreading of tyres is excluded from the Service Tax under Section65(64). He further submitted that retreading of tyre is also a part of motor vehicle and same is excluded under Section 65(64) of the Finance Act, 1994. He further submitted that this issue was considered by the Hon’ble Kerala High Court in the case of Kuttukaran Trading Ventures V. CCE wherein the Hon’ble High Court has held that repair and reconditioning of engine of a vehicle is excluded being part of themotor vehicle which is exempted under Section 65(64). He further submitted that the SLP filed by the Revenue against the decision of the High Court has also been dismissed by the Hon’ble Apex Court.

5. On the other hand the learned AR defended the impugned order and submitted that the issue of taxability of a specific activity “retreading of tyre” has been considered by various judicial forum including the CESTAT and the Hon’ble Apex Court and it has been consistently held that it attracts service tax under the category of “Management, Maintenance and Repair Service”. The learned AR further submitted that this issue is no more res integra and has also been settled by the Hon’ble Apex Court in the case of Safety Retreading Company (P) Ltd.Vs.CCE, Salem decided on 18.01.2017 wherein the Apex Court has held that retreading of tyre would attract service tax under the category of “Maintenance and Repair Service”. The learned AR relied upon the following decisions in support of his submission:

i. CCE, Mysore Vs. Karthik Tyre Service – 2018 (8)

ii. M/s.Chakra Tyres Vs.CC, CE&ST, Salem–2019(6)

iii. C.C,C.E&ST,Cochin Vs. Hi-tech Tyres–2019(1)

iv. CC,CE&ST, Guntur Vs. Gripwell Retreads Pvt. Ltd.–2019(2)

Vii. Udaipur Tyre Retreading Co. P. Ltd. Vs. CCE, Jaipur–ll–2015(9)

5.1 He also submitted that the decisions relied upon by the appellant is distinguishable because M/s. Kuttukaran Trading Ventures an authorized Service Centre of automobiles whereas the present appellant is not falling under that category. He further submitted that nowhere in that order, the activity of tyre retreading is discussed. Repair, reconditioning, overhauling parts of motor vehicles like I.C Engines and others are only discussed whereas tyre retreading is a specific activity and the retreading is done on any tyre which is brought to the assessee by anybody. The tyre retreading is a general service offered. It cannot be brought under the ambit of the issue discussed in the order of the Hon’ble High Court.

6. After considering the submissions of both the parties and perusal of the material on record, we find that various Benches of the Tribunal has consistently held that retreading of tyre falls under the category of “Maintenance, Management and Repair Service” and is liable to service tax. Further we find that the Apex Court has also in the case of Safety Retreading Company Ltd, cited supra has specifically held that retreading of tyre is a service which falls under the category of “Management, Maintenance and Repair Service”. Further we find that the decision of the Hon’ble High Court is not squarely applicable in the present case because the activity of retreading of tyre was not an issue in the case decided by the Hon’ble High Court of Kerala whereas the Apex Court has specifically in the case of Safety Retreading has held that retreading of tyre would attract service tax under Management, Maintenance and Repair Service. Further we find that this Tribunal in the case of CCE Vs. Hi-tech Tyres cited supra has held in para 5 as under:

“5. After considering the submission of the learned AR and perusal of the impugned order, we find that the process of retreading done by the respondent is not manufacturing process as no new product emerges but it is a process in which the pre-cured tread rubber/tread rubber is affixed on the surface of the worn-out tyres and subjecting the same to a process of curing in tyre mould using steam and this activity fall under the category of “Maintenance, Repairs and Reconditioning Service”. Further, we find that the Division Bench of this Tribunal in the case of Udaipur Tyre Retreading Co. P. Ltd. cited supra has held that the activity of retreading of tyre does not tantamount to maintenance and repair including the recondition or restoration or servicing of motor vehicles. Further, the Tribunal has relied upon the decision in the case of PLA Tyre Works [2008 (9) STR 20 (Tri.-)] wherein the CESTAT clearly held that the impugned service is covered under the “maintenance and repair service”. Further in the case of P.C. Cheriyan cited supra, the Hon’ble Supreme Court has held that retreading of old tyre does not amount to manufacture. Therefore, by following the ratio of the above said decisions, we are of the considered view that the impugned order holding that the process of retreading of tyre amounts to manufacture is not sustainable in law and therefore we set aside the impugned order. As far as imposition of penalty under various provisions are concerned, since the issue relates to interpretation and there were divergent views during the relevant period, we are not inclined to confirm the imposition of penalties, by extending the benefit of Section 80. Accordingly, we confirm the demands and set aside the penalties. Appeal is partly allowed.”
7. In view of our discussion above, we do not find any infirmity in the impugned order which we upheld by dismissing the appeal of the appellant to the extent of service tax which the appellant is liable to pay. As far as penalty under Section 76 is concerned, we are of the opinion that the issue relates to interpretation of the service and there were divergent views during the relevant time, therefore we extend the benefit of Section 80 to the appellant and drop the penalty. Appeal is partly allowed.

JUDICIAL MEMBER

TECHNICAL MEMBER
Brief facts of the case are that the appellant, Kerala Cooperative Deposit Guarantee Fund Board is constituted, under Kerala Cooperative Deposit Guarantee Scheme, 2012 for administration of Cooperative deposit fund, by Government of Kerala, who notified the scheme vide S.R.O. No. 28/2012 with G.O.(P) No.03/2012/Co-op dated 11-1-2012, vide powers vested in them under Section 57(B) of the Kerala Co-operative Societies Act,1969. The minister in charge of Cooperation would be the chairman of the Board and all other members are nominated by the Government of Kerala. The contribution to the fund is the sum of money payable to the fund by the credit societies at the rate specified; the purpose of the scheme is to provide guarantee for the deposits made in the credit societies and for creating confidence among the depositors and for attracting more details; all Cooperative societies have to follow this; the fund is to be utilized for the settlement of the claims in respect of the deposits which are guaranteed; all the moneys of the fund are to be deposited in the State of District Cooperative Banks or in the treasury; there is no provision that the interest accrued to be added to the corpus fund; if a credit society is unable to make payment to the depositor, the depositor shall be free to approach the Board for assistance. The Department have issued two SCN's dated 31.01.2017 & 12.09.2017 for the periods 2012 to 2016, alleging that their activity must not be charged to Service Tax being 'Services' under Section 65B of Finance Act, 1994 from 01.07.2012 onwards; the SCNs came to be confirmed by a common Order 64 & 65 dated 17.10.2017. Hence, the present appeals.

2. Sh. Ashok M. Cherian, Learned Counsel, appearing for the appellants submits that the demand was built upon on a wrong premise that the activity of the appellant is identical to the service rendered by Deposit Insurance And Credit Guarantee Corporation (DICGC); whereas the DICGC came into existence by an Act and none of the Directors shall be an officer of the Government or Reserve Bank of India whereas in their case, Chairman and Members of the Boards are Ministers and Government officials; DICGC is an Insurance company whereas the Board is constituted for rendering necessary assistance to the depositors of the societies which contributed fund; whereas DICGC indemnifies the Banks and guarantees the deposits made by individual depositors up to Rs.1 Lakh, the Board administers the fund and the guarantee is provided by the Government; the nature of collection of contribution to the fund is to create a corpus and not to levy a fee or provide a service to any business entity. The activity undertaken by the appellant which is under a Kerala Government scheme provided in tune with the Article 43B of the Constitution of India.

2.1 Learned Counsel further submits that in order to constitute a service, four elements must be there, the service provider, the service receive, actual service and consideration for the service; what is chargeable to Service Tax is not the transaction in money itself as it cannot be considered a Service within the meaning of Section 65B(44)(a)(iii). The contribution to the fund is not in the nature of insurance premium or guarantee fee which could be termed as a 'Service' as defined under Section 65B(44) of Finance Act, 1994; a transaction in money can be termed as 'Service' only if it is specifically mentioned in Explanation 2 to Sub-Section 44 of Section 65B; the Explanation carves out an exception to the exclusionary part of the definition by providing that: (i) any activity relating to use of money or its conversion by cash or by any mode, from one form, currency or denomination, to another form, currency or denomination for which a separate consideration is charged; (ii) any activity carried out, for a consideration, in relation to, or for facilitation of, a transaction in money or actionable claim, including the activity carried out - (a) by a lottery distributor or selling agent in relation to promotion, marketing, organizing, selling of lottery or facilitating in organizing lottery of any kind, in any other manner; (b) by a Forman of chit fund for conducting or organizing a chit in any manner, shall not be considered as a transaction in money. Therefore, the only activity, for which a separate consideration is charged, and which cannot be considered as a transaction in money is the activity mentioned in the Explanation 2, and Service Tax would accordingly be charged on the consideration received in respect of such an activity, then it follows that all other cases of ‘transaction in money’ shall be excluded from the charge of Service Tax. Learned Counsel further submits that the Commissioner has seriously erred in following the Education guide issued by CBEC ignoring the above Explanation.

2.2. Learned Counsel further submits that the finding of the Learned Commissioner that the activity of the appellant is ‘service’ is on an erroneous application of law in view of the well settled legal position as laid down by the Hon’ble High Court of Delhi in Delhi Chit Fund Association Vs UOI, 2013 (30) STR 347 (Del.), which was adopted by the Hon’ble Supreme Court in UOI and Others Vs M/s Margadarshi Chit Funds Pvt. Ltd., etc (Civil Appeal No. 5724-5725/2011- decided on 04.07.2017), that the exclusionary part in definition clause (a)(iii) in Sub-Section 44 of Section 65B is construed in the light of or with the aid of Explanation 2 then any activity not being an activity of the nature explained in the said Explanation would be out of the clutches of the definition; applying this principle the activity of the appellant, which is only a transaction in money, would not be a ‘service’ as defined under Sub-Section 44 of Section 65B of Finance Act, 1994.
3. Learned AR for the Department reiterated the findings of the learned Commissioner and submits that the Board is created under Kerala Cooperative Deposit Guarantee Scheme; the payment is mandatory for the Cooperative societies; upon joining the scheme, the liability of the cooperatives is taken care of; the case of DICGC decided by CESTAT, Mumbai, 2015-TMI-143-CESTAT; the contributions of the societies is not a transaction in money as it is fixed at a rate of 10 paisa for every 100 rupees of deposit.

4. Heard both sides and perused the records of the case. In terms of Section 65 B (44) of Finance Act, 1994 “Service” is "any activity carried out by a person for another for consideration and includes a declared service ". Some exclusions are provided in the said Section itself like an activity constituting merely a transaction in money or actionable claim etc. The appellant claims that they are not collecting any consideration for any particular service rendered but are only receiving contribution towards building a corpus fund and therefore, no service is involved. The appellants vehemently claimed that the transactions they do with the Co-operative societies is that of transaction in money and as per Educational Guide to Service Tax issued by CBEC, transactions only in money or actionable claims do not constitute Service Tax. We have gone through the said Guide and we see that at Para 2.8.1 of the Circular referred to by the Advocate for the appellants, it is clarified that:

2.8.1. What kind of activities would come under 'transaction only in money'?
- The principal amount of deposits in or withdrawals from a bank account.
- Advancing or repayment of principal sum on loan to someone.
- Conversion of Rs.1,000 currency note into one-rupee coins to the extent amount is received in money form.

5. Going by the above explanations, we find that the collection of contribution to build a corpus fund to secure the depositors' interest is not a mere transaction in money. The service rendered by the appellants does not find place either in the exclusion or in the Negative List. Therefore, we find that the Learned Commissioner has correctly concluded that the activity undertaken by the appellants is not transaction in money. Further, Learned Commissioner referring to the Indian Contract Act, 1872 shows that the premium collected by the appellants constitutes a consideration as defined under Section 2(d) of the said Act. Consideration for a promise is defined as under:

"When, at the desire of the promisor, the promise or any other person has done or abstained from doing, or does or abstains from doing, or promises to do or to abstain from doing, something, such act or abstinence or promise is called a consideration for the promise".

6. We find that the Advocate for the appellants has relied upon the case of Margadarashi Chit Funds Pvt. Ltd. (supra). However, we find that the case pertains to chit fund companies who function like a Bank and the activity of the appellants is not comparable to that of the appellants therein. Therefore, the case of Margadarashi Chit Funds Pvt. Ltd. (supra) would not be of any help to the appellants. We find that Learned Commissioner has relied upon the case of Deposit Insurance and Credit Guarantee Corporation. The appellants argued that "it would be pertinent to note that the analogy of the Deposit Insurance and Credit Guarantee Corporation of India (DICGC) does not apply in the instant case. We find that Learned Commissioner has rightly observed that DICGC is also providing guarantee for the deposits made by the public in commercial banks. The only difference between the activity performed by DICGC and the appellants is that whereas the former is extending guarantee to the deposits made by the public in commercial banks, the appellant is extending guarantee in respect of deposits made by the public in Co-operative credit societies. The nature of the service is same. Likewise, the consideration obtained might be accounted under different Heads. However, the fact remains that both are getting a consideration for the activity performed. It was submitted by the Authorized Representative for the Department that contribution is collected at the rate of 10 paisa for every 100 rupees of deposit. This fact is not countered by the appellants. Learned Advocate for the appellants submits only to the extent that so far there was no occasion to use the corpus fund for securing the deposits of public in any of the co-operative societies. In view of the above, we find that the case of DICGC is squarely applicable to the case of the appellants. We find that the Tribunal in the case has gone into various aspects and have concluded that “it is clear that deposit insurance undertaken by the appellant falls within ambit of general insurance business defined in Section 65(49) read with Section 65(105)(d) of the Finance Act, 1994”. Tribunal has further observed as follows:

5.4.11. If we apply the above legal principles to the facts of the case in hand, there is no scintilla of doubt that deposit insurance like other insurance is a contract of indemnity and is amenable to the provisions of the Indian Contract Act. Merely because it has been made compulsory under the DICGC Act, 1961, it does not cease to be a contract of insurance. Insurance of the kind described in Paras 5.4.9 and 5.4.10 above, which are statutorily prescribed and where there are more than two parties in many cases, the insurer, the insured and the beneficiary, are also considered as coming under the category general insurance business and nothing has been brought before us to show that they are not so considered/understood in law. By the same logic, Deposit Insurance Contract is also a general insurance contract as defined in law and merely because they are statutorily prescribed, they do not cease to be contract of insurance. The insurer is the Corporation, the insured are the banks and the beneficiary is the depositor(s).

7. In view of the above, we have no doubt, whatsoever, in our minds that the activity of the appellant is same as that of DICGC and if DICGC is liable to pay Service Tax so is the appellant liable to pay Service Tax. Coming to penalties imposed, we find that the appellants are a body constituted by the Government. There are a number of decisions by the Tribunal and Higher Courts that mens rea cannot be attributed to the Public Sector Units. The appellant is a body constituted by Government. Therefore, we find that it is not expedient and necessitated to impose penalties. Therefore, while confirming the duty demand along with interest, we hold that the penalties imposed under Section 77 & 78 are liable to be set aside, by invoking the provisions of Section 80 of the Finance Act, 1994.

8. In the result, Appeal No. ST/20162/2018 & ST/20164/2018 are partly allowed confirming the duty demanded and setting aside the penalties imposed.

FINAL ORDER NO. 21216/2019

Per: S S Garg:

The present appeal is directed against the impugned order dated 10/04/2019 passed by the Commissioner (Appeals) whereby the Commissioner (Appeals) has rejected the appeal of the appellant.

2. Briefly the facts of the present case are that the appellants are holders of Service Tax Registration and are engaged in rendering taxable services. The appellants filed a refund claim of service tax of Rs. 8,97,340/- (Rupees Eight Lakhs Ninety Seven Thousand Three Hundred and Forty only) dated 18/12/2017 before the respondent (received on 20/12/2017). In the instant refund claim, it was stated by the appellant that they had paid service tax of Rs. 59,82,624/- (Rupees Fifty Nine Lakhs Eighty Two Thousand Six Hundred and Twenty Four only), interest of Rs. 44,363/- (Rupees Forty Four Thousand Three Hundred and Sixty Three only) and penalty of Rs. 8,97,340/- (Rupees Eight Lakhs Ninety Seven Thousand Three Hundred and Forty only) as per the audit objections.
However, later on, they realized that there was no necessity of payment of interest or penalty under Rule 15 of Cenvat Credit Rules or under Section 78 of the Finance Act, as they had sufficient balance of cenvat credit during the material period of alleged wrong availment of credit.

2.1. On receipt of the said refund claim, it was noticed by the respondent that the appellant had voluntarily paid penalty along with principal service tax and interest in response to communications received from the departmental auditors who had conducted audit of their records for the period from July 2014 to March 2016. Further they had availed the benefit of 15% penalty and sought closure of the issue. They had also confirmed to the Audit that amounts were paid voluntarily and no further appeal shall be filed in the matter including no refund shall be claimed in future. Therefore, a show-cause notice under C. No. IV/10/57/2017 STR dated 31/01/2018 was issued to the appellant as to why the instant refund claim should not be rejected for the reason that the same was unsubstantiated in terms of any specific statutory provisions, as it appeared to be an afterthought to reopen the closed issue.

2.2. By following the due process, the Assistant Commissioner vide Order-in-Original dated 15/03/2018 rejected the refund claim. Aggrieved by the said order, appellant filed appeal before the Commissioner who also rejected the same. Hence, the present appeal.

3. Heard both the parties and perused the records.

4. Learned counsel for the appellant submitted that the impugned order is not sustainable in law as the same has been passed without properly appreciating the facts. He further submitted that there was no suppression on the part of the appellant and therefore, the question of payment of penalty does not arise. He further submitted that the penalty cannot be imposed without issuance of show-cause notice. He also submitted that there was no suppression on their part and the demand was for the normal period and neither the audit had alleged anything regarding suppression of facts. He further submitted that tax and interest was paid before the issuance of show-cause notice and the said amount was paid out of the credit and the said credit was not used. He further submitted that appellant was not given sufficient time to produce the documents which were available with them. He further submitted that even the payment of interest was also not required and all the payments forcibly made to the Revenue are required to be refunded to the appellant. He further submitted that when the tax was paid under Section 73, penalty is not applicable. He further submitted that the penalty amount was paid under mistake of law and therefore the appellant is to get the refund of the same. In support of his submission, he relied upon the following decisions:

a. CCE & ST, LTU, Bangalore Vs. Adecco Flexione Workforce Solutions Ltd.
c. Jossy Edwin Pinto Vs. CCE & CT, Mangalore
d. Aerosol Filters Pvt. Ltd. Vs. CCT

5. On the other hand, learned AR defended the impugned order and submitted that the Commissioner (Appeals) has given cogent reason for denying the refund. She further submitted that during the course of audit, appellants have voluntarily made the payment and requested for waiver of show-cause notice. The payment was made without any protest. She also submitted that as per the Board clarification F.No. 137/46/2015-ST dated 18/08/2015 it was provided that payment of penalty without issuance of show-cause notice was in accordance with law. She further submitted that there is no bar in law to demand service tax under proviso to Section 73 invoking suppression, fraud, willful misstatement etc. even when the demand is within the normal period.

9. I note that the respondent pointed out that the audit had given an option to the appellant to admit the audit objections and in the event of disagreement with the said objections to submit a detailed reply against the same. However, the appellant vide their letter dated 30/11/2016 accepted all the objections and vide further letter dated 26/12/2016 also informed the details of payment of service tax, interest and penalty made by them in pursuance of audit objections. I note that, further the respondent under Para 13, pointed out that as per Board clarification contained in letter F.No. 137/46/2015-ST dated 18/08/2015 wherein it is clarified that in the event waiver of show-cause notice is sought by the assessee after payment of applicable penalty, there is no obligation on the part of the Department to proceed further in the matter. It was also indicated that such notion is based on verdict of Hon’ble Supreme Court in the case of CC, Mumbai vs. Virgo Steels, reported in 2002 (141) E.L.T. (598) SC. It was held by the Hon’ble Court that the individual always had a right to waive off such right i.e., issue of show-cause notice. In view of the above, the respondent held that since the appellant had already exercised his right, cannot go back on the same again and rejected the refund claim.

11. The appellant had also argued that they had sufficient balance of credit and accordingly, there arise no liability of interest, there was no suppression on their part, demand was for normal period etc. For the reasons stated above, I note that no such questions can be determined at this stage. It was essentially the appellant who has chosen not to litigate further and paid the penalty. There is no dispute that Department has not followed any procedure as per audit manual like issuances of FAR, discussion/consultation with the appellant. It is anybody’s guess that the appellant was quite aware of the fact that for what reasons the penalty was being paid by them. No questions of coercion, pressure, etc. has been brought up on by them by the Auditors. As indicated from the records, it was conscious and voluntary act on their part. As already pointed out above, since the interest of the Department is also involved in the matter and grant of refund would harm the interest of the Department, the findings of the respondent in the matter does not warrant any intervention.” Further I find that the decisions relied upon by the appellant are not applicable in the facts and circumstances of the present case.

7. In view of my discussion above, I do not find any infirmity in the impugned order which is upheld by dismissing the appeal of the appellant.

Date of Hearing: 07/06/2019
Date of Decision: 12/06/2019

CORAM:
HON'BLE SHRI S.S GARG, JUDICIALMEMBER
The present appeal is directed against the impugned order dated 01.02.2019 passed by the Commissioner (Appeals) where by the Commissioner(Appeals) has rejected the appeal of the appellant.

2. Briefly the facts of the present case are that the appellants are rendering taxable service of 'Construction of Residential Complex Service'. The appellants had under taken construction of a residential complex named VIVERA at property bearing No.21,Koramangala Industrial layout, Bangalore, planning to construct 25 floors. The project was underticked after obtaining due NOC from M/s Hindustan Aeronautics Ltd. (HAL), and the Bruhat Bangalore Mahanagara Palike(BBMP). Subsequently,M/s HAL revoked the NOC, against which the appellant filed WP No. 37571/2013(GM-RES) before the Hon’ble High Court of Karnataka, who issued an interim order dated 23.10.2013 to the effect that no construction should be undertaken over above 40.00 meters from the ground level and accordingly the said residential complex was restricted to 17 floors. In the wake of the said litigation, various customers who had booked individual residential flats in the said residential complex cancelled their bookings and sought refund of the amounts paid by them.Accordingly, related agreements were cancelled and the amounts involved repaid/refunded back to the customers by M/s Chalet Hotels Pvt. Ltd. Consequently, M/s Chalet Hotels Pvt. Ltd. filed refund claims with the Department seeking refund of Service Tax paid by them in respect of such amounts collected and refunded to the customers.The details of such refund claims are given in the table below:

The refund claim is in respect of 03 customers to whom therefund were made by the claimant, originally, the earliest date of payment of service to the exchequer was between September 2010 to April 2013, but the claim for refund has been filed on 21.08.2017. Hence, it appeared that the claim for refund has been filed beyond the period of one year as required under Section 11B and therefore the entire claim was hit by limitation of time.After following the due process, the Assistant Commissioner vide Order-in-Original dated 03.08.2018 rejected the refund claim being timebarred as the refund claim was filed beyond one year period in terms of Section 11B of the Central Excise Act as made applicable to Service Tax vide Section 83 of the Finance Act, 1994. Aggrieved by the said order, the appellant filed appeal before the Commissioner (Appeals) who rejected the same. Hence, the present appeal.

3. Heard both the parties and perused the records.
4. Learned Consultant appearing for the appellant submitted that the impugned order is not sustainable in law as the same has been passed without properly appreciating the facts and the law and the decisions rendered by various Tribunals. He further submitted that Section 11B of the Central Excise Act is not applicable as they are claiming refund of service tax paid in advance for which the appellant had not provided any service in terms of Rule 6(1) of the Service Tax Rules. He further submitted that in terms of Rule 6(3) of the Service Tax Rules, 1994, they are entitled to takeback credit on service not provided for any reason. He also submitted that when the service is not provided then the assessee is entitled to refund claim without limitation of Section 11B. In support of his submission, he relied upon the following decisions:

- Commissioner v. Madhvi Procon Pvt. Ltd. – 2015(38)STR74(Tri.)
- Radico Khaitan Ltd. v. Commissioner – 2014(34)STR586(Tri.)
- Wolters Kluwer India Ltd.v.CST – 2014(36)STR396(Tri.Del.)
- Sunrays Engineers Pvt. Ltd.v.Commissioner – 2015(318)ELT583(SC)
- Indo-Nippon Chemicals Co. Ltd.v.UOI – 2005(185)ELT19(Guj.)
- CCE, Pune v. Ispat Pro files Ltd. – 2007(220)ELT218(Tri. Mum.)
- SS Agro Industries v. Commissioner of Customs, Air Cargo(Export), NewDelhi – 2014(309)ELT334 (Tri.Del.)
- Commissioner of C.Ex., Bangalore v. KVR Construction – 2012(26)STR195 (Kar.)
- Chambal Fertilisers and Chemical Ltd.v. Commissioner of C.Ex, Indore – 2017(52)329(Tri.Del.)

5. On the other hand, Learned AR defended the impugned order and submitted that Section 65(105)(zzzh) prescribes Service Tax on construction of residential complex. When advance is received, Service Tax is leviable and in the instant case, the appellant provided this service, collected Service Tax and paid to the Government exchequer. Hence, the amount paid is Service Tax only as per the law and hence it cannot be treated as deposit. The provisions governing Service Tax will apply. He further submitted that the decisions relied upon by the appellant in support of his submission are not applicable to the factual situation and they have been distinguished in subsequent decisions of the Tribunal and finally, the Larger Bench in the case of Veer Overseas Ltd. v. Commissioner of Central Excise, Panchkula – 2018 (15) GSTL 59 (Tri. LB) has settled the issue regarding Section 11B of the Central Excise Act. Besides this, he also relied upon the following decisions:

- ELGI Equipments Ltd. v. Commissioner of C.Ex., Coimbatore – 2013(31)STR583(Tri.Chennai)
- Benzy Tours & Travels Pvt. Ltd. v. Commissioner of Service Tax, Mumbai I – 2016(43)STR 625(Tri.Mumbai)
- Andrew Telecom(India) Pvt. Ltd.v.Commissioner of Customs & Central Excise, Goa – 2014(34)STR562 (Bom.)

6. After considering the submissions of both the parties and perusal of the material on record, I find that when the appellant received the advance from the buyers alongwith Service Tax and paid the same to the Government as Service Tax and if subsequently, the contract was cancelled between the appellant and his buyers and the appellant filed the refund claim on the ground that no service was provided and hence the provision of Section 11B of Central Excise Act is not applicable is devoid of force in view of the Larger Bench decision of the Tribunal in the case of Veer Overseas Ltd. (supra). The Larger Bench of the Tribunal in the said case has analyzed various contradictory decisions and has held in Para 7 to 10 as under:

“7. What is crucial is that the appellants paid the claimed amount as service tax. They have approached the jurisdictional authority of service tax for refund of the said money. It is clear that the jurisdictional service tax authority is governed by the provisions of Section 11B as the claim has been filed as per the said mandate only. Here, we have specifically asked the Learned Counsel for the appellant under what provision of law he is seeking the return of the money earlier paid. He admitted that the claim has been preferred in terms of the provisions of Section 11B. If that being the case, it cannot be said that except for limitation other provisions of Section 11B will be made applicable to the appellant. The Learned Counsel also did not advance such proposition. He repeatedly submitted that the amount is paid mistakenly. The same is not a tax and should be returned without limitation as mentioned in Section 11B. We are not convinced by such submission.

8. Here it is relevant to note that in various cases the High Courts and the Apex Court have allowed the claim of the parties for refund of money without applying the provisions of limitation under Section 11B by holding that the amount collected has no sanctity of law as the same is not a duty or a tax and accordingly the same should be returned to the party. We note such remedies provided by the High Courts and Apex Court are mainly by exercising powers under the Constitution, in writ jurisdiction. It is clear that neither the jurisdictional service tax authority nor the Tribunal has such constitutional powers for allowing refund beyond the statutory time-limit prescribed by the law. Admittedly, the amount is paid as a tax, the refund has been claimed from the jurisdictional tax authorities and necessarily such tax authorities are bound by the law governing the collection as well as refund of any tax. There is no legal mandate to direct the tax authority to act beyond the statutory powers binding on them. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in Mafatlal Industries Ltd. (supra) categorically held that no claim for refund of any duty shall be entertained except in accordance with the provisions of the statute. Every claim for refund of excise duty can be made only under and in accordance with Section 11B in the forms provided by the Act. The Apex Court further observed that the only exception is where the provision of the Act where under the duty has been levied is found to be unconstitutional for violation of any of the constitutional limitations. This is a situation not contemplated by the Act. We note in the present case there is no such situation of the provision of any tax levy, in so far as the present dispute is concerned, held to be unconstitutional. As already held that the appellant is liable to pay service tax on reverse charge basis but for the exemption which was not availed by them. We hold that the decision of the Tribunal in Monnet International Ltd. (supra) has no application to decide the dispute in the present referred case. We take note of the decision of the Tribunal in XL Telecom Ltd. (supra). It had examined the legal implication with reference to the limitation applicable under Section 11B. We also note that the said ratio has been consistently followed by the Tribunal in various decisions. In fact, one such decision reached Hon’ble Supreme Court in Miles India Limited v. Assistant Collector of Customs - 1987 (30) E.L.T. 641 (S.C.). The Apex Court upheld the decision of the Tribunal to the effect that the jurisdictional customs authorities are right in disallowing there fund claim in terms of limitation provided under Section 27(1) of the Customs Act, 1962. We also note that in Assistant Collector of Customs v. Anam Electrical Manufacturing Co. - 1997 (90) E.L.T. 260 (S.C.) referred to in the decision of the Tribunal in XL Telecom Ltd. (supra), the Hon’ble Supreme Court held that the claim filed beyond the statutory time limit cannot be entertained.

9. The Apex Court in Mafatlal Industries Ltd. (supra) observed that the Central Excise Act and the Rules made thereunder including Section 11B too constitute “law” within the meaning of Article 265 and that in the face of the said provisions which are exclusive in their nature no claim for refund is maintainable except and in accordance there with. The Apex Court emphasized that “the provisions of the Central Excise Act also constitute “law” within the meaning of Article 265 and any collection or retention of tax in accordance or pursuant to the said provisions is collection or retention under “the authority of law” within the meaning of the said Article”.

10. Having examined various decided cases and the submissions of both the sides, we are of the considered view that a claim for refund of service tax is governed by the provision of Section 11B for period of limitation. The statutory time limit cannot be extended by any authority, held by the Apex Court.”

Since the Larger Bench after examining the various decided cases has come to the conclusion that the claim of refund of Service Tax is subject to the provision of Section 11B for period of limitation. By following the ratio of the above said decision, I am of the view that there is no infirmity in the impugned order which is upheld by dismissing the appeal of the appellant.

S.S GARG
JUDICIAL MEMBER
The present appeal is directed against the impugned order dated 20.9.2019 passed by the Commissioner (A) whereby the Commissioner (A) has rejected the appeal of the appellant.

2. Briefly the facts of the present case are that the appellants are service providers under the taxable category 'work contract service'. They are holders of service tax registration for collection and payment of service tax on the taxable service provided by them. On the basis of Circular No.108/2/2009 dated 29.1.2009, the appellant filed a refund claim on 5.5.2009 for service tax amounting to Rs.7,95,980/- paid during the period February 2008 to November 2008. After due process, the claim was rejected by the original authority and appeal against the same was also rejected by Commissioner (Appeals) vide Order in Appeal No.TVM-EXCUS-000-APP-022-15-16 dated 28.4.2015. The appellant filed appeal against this in CESTAT, Bangalore which was allowed and remanded the matter to the original authority vide Final Order No.31130/2016 dt.8.11.2016. Based on the said order, the appellant filed a refund claim for Rs.7,95,980/- being the service tax paid of works contract service during the period February 2008 to November 2008. A part of the said refund claim, being the payments made by the assessee prior to 6.5.2008 in respect of 5 challans dated between 4.3.2008 and 5.5.2008 for a total amount of Rs.4,41,123/- were found to be hit by time bar and hence ineligible for refund. Refund of an amount of Rs.3,54,857/- which was not hit, as such, by time bar was sanctioned by the Assistant Commissioner. Aggrieved by the order of the Assistant Commissioner, the appellant filed appeal before the Commissioner (A) for disallowing the refund of Rs.4,41,123/- and the Commissioner (A) after hearing the learned counsel for the appellant, dismissed the appeal.

3. Learned authorized representative, Mr. P. Harikumar, Managing Director of appellant-company, appeared and submitted that the impugned order is not sustainable in law as the same has been passed by wrongly relying upon the decision in the case of M/s. Andrew Telecom (I) Pvt. Ltd. vs. Commissioner Customs and Central Excise, Goa reported in 2014 (34) S.T.R. 562 (Bom.). He further submitted that the said decision of the Bombay High Court is not applicable to the present case. He further submitted that the issue of refund in the context of Board Circular
No. 108/2/2009 dated 29.1.2009 had not been discussed but the Hon’ble High Court dismissed on the ground that there is no substantial question of law involved in that case. He further submitted that the appellant paid the service tax by mistake but came to know subsequently when the Board issued the Circular. He further submitted that subsequent to the issuance of Board Circular, appellants realized that they are not required to pay service tax but paid the same under the mistake of fact/law and therefore, they filed the refund claim. He further submitted that demand of service tax is opposed to Article 262 of the Constitution because the same was collected by the department against the authority of law.

4. On the other hand, the learned AR defended the impugned order and submitted that this issue is no more res integra and has been settled by the Larger Bench of the Tribunal in the case of M/s. Veer Overseas Ltd. vs. CCE, Panchkula reported in 2018 (4) TMI 910 - CESTAT CHANDIGARH. He further submitted that it is wrong to say that the Bombay High Court in the case of M/s. Andrew Telecom (I) Pvt. Ltd. (supra) has not considered the issue of limitation as provided under Section 11B of the Central Excise Act.

5. After considering the submissions of both the parties and perusal of the material on record, I find that the only issue involved in the present case is whether the period of limitation as provided under Section 11B of the Central Excise Act is applicable in the present case or not. This issue has been considered by the Larger Bench in the case of M/s. Veer Overseas Ltd. vs. CCE, Panchkula cited supra and after examining the various decisions of the Tribunal and the Hon’ble Supreme Court in the case of Mafatlal Industries Ltd. vs. Union of India: 1996 (12) TMI 50-SC the Larger Bench in paragraph 9 and 10 has held as under:

"9. The apex court in Mafatlal Industries Ltd. (supra) observed that the Central Excise Act and the Rules made thereunder including Section 11B too constitute 'law' within the meaning of Article 265 and that in the face of the said provisions - which are exclusive in their nature, no claim for refund is maintainable except and in accordance therewith. The apex court emphasized that "the provisions of the Central Excise Act also constitute 'law' within the meaning of Article 265 and any collection of retention of tax in accordance or pursuant to the said provisions is collection or retention under "the authority of law" within the meaning of the said Article".

10. Having examined various decided cases and the submissions of both the sides, we are of the considered view that a claim for refund of service tax is governed by the provisions of Section 11B for period of limitation. The statutory time limit cannot be extended by any authority as held by the Apex Court."

5.1 Further, I find that even the Bombay High Court in the case of M/s. Andrew Telecom (I) Pvt. Ltd. cited supra in paragraph 19 has held that the period of limitation as provided under Section 11B of the Central Excise Act is applicable in the case of refund. Paragraph 19 of this judgment by the Hon’ble High Court is reproduced herein below:

"19. Before us, the undisputed position is that the amount was paid by the appellant as service tax. That tax was not imposable or leviable on export of services was a clarification made by the Department and relying on that clarification, the refund of duty or service tax was claimed. This was squarely a case falling within the provisions of the Central Excise Act, 1944 and therefore, the rule of limitation under Section 11B was applied. That was applied when the application for refund was made invoking Section 11B of the Central Excise Act, 1944. We have no manner of doubt that when this was the provision invoked, same applies with full force including the rule of limitation prescribed therein. For these reasons, we are of the opinion that the decisions relied upon cannot be of any assistance."

6. By following the ratio of the above said decisions, I am of the considered view that there is no infirmity in the impugned order, which is upheld by dismissing the appeal of the appellant.

FINAL ORDER NO. 20067/2020

Per: S S Garg:
The present appeal is directed against the impugned order dated 16.07.2019 passed by the Commissioner (A) whereby the Commissioner (A) has rejected the appeal of the appellant.

2. Briefly the facts of the present case are that the appellant is registered with Service Tax Department for providing Business Management & Consultancy Services. The appellants have filed a refund application on 28.03.2018 for the refund of Service Tax of Rs.17,84,952/- under Section 11B of Central Excise Act, 1944 as made applicable to Service Tax Refund matters. The appellant has raised four invoices on three clients, totally for an amount of Rs.1,18,99,689/- and has charged total Service Tax of Rs.17,84,952/- for the period from April 2017 to June 2017. These transactions were declared along with Service Tax liability of Rs.17,84,952/- in the ST 3 Return filed for the period April to June 2017. They also paid the Service Tax liability using the CENVAT credit available at that time. In their refund claim, they informed that their clients did not accept the Service Tax invoices and as per client’s request, the appellant has raised the Credit Notes and have paid the GST with fresh invoices raised subsequently and hence they filed this refund application. After verification and scrutiny of the refund claim, the Asst. Commissioner of Central of Tax, Bangalore vide OIO No. 58/2018-19 (R) ND2 dated 10.01.2019 rejected the refund claim of Rs.17,84,952/- for the reasons that the raising subsequent invoices under GST as per the request of the clients and claiming for the refund of Service Tax already paid under erstwhile Finance Act, 1994 is not under the purview of the law to consider for refund of Service Tax paid for the correctly declared invoice value in the ST 3 Returns. Aggrieved by the said order, the appellant filed appeal before the Commissioner (A) on various grounds and the Commissioner after considering the grounds raised by the appellant dismissed the appeal. Hence, the present appeal.

3. Heard both the parties and perused the records.

4. Learned Counsel for the appellants submitted that the impugned order is not sustainable in law as the same has been passed without properly appreciating the facts and the law. He further submitted that it is an undisputed fact that the appellant had paid both ST as also GST on the very same transactions performed for three customers. The First Appellate Authority as also Adjudicating Authority acknowledge and admit that the appellant was not liable to pay GST at all. He further submitted that once the Revenue admits that the appellant has wrongly paid the GST, they were obliged to refund the Service Tax levied and collected earlier. He further submitted that it is the mandate in Article 265 that "no tax shall be levied or collected except by authority of law". The authorities have neither refunded GST paid though holding that it was not due, nor Service Tax paid which is in gross violation of Article 265 of the Constitution. He further submitted that the Government has benefited twice over on the payments made by the appellant and the authorities below were duty bound to refund money wrongly collected. They neither refunded the ST nor the GST though the latter was much higher than the ST paid or payable. In support of his submission, he relied upon the following decisions:

- Total Environment Woodwork Pvt. Ltd. Vs CCE, 2017 (357) ELT 1215 (Tri. Bang.)
- GL & V India Pvt. Ltd. Vs CCE, 2013 (30) STR 550 (Tri. Mum.)
- Dew-Pond Engineers (P) Ltd. Vs CCE, 2017 (348) ELT 714 (Tri. Mum.)
- CCE Vs Cipla Ltd., 2004 (166) ELT 421 (Tri. Mum.)
- Godrej & Boyce Mfg. Co. Ltd. Vs CC, 2001 (134) ELT 429 (Tri. Mum.)
- KansalNerolac Paints Ltd. Vs CC, 2014 (300) ELT 255 (Tri. Mum.)
- Bharat Heavy Electricals Ltd. Vs CCE, 2010 (253) ELT 339 (Tri. Del.)

4.1. He further submitted that the appellant cancelled the invoices issued earlier by issuing Credit Notes and the effect of such cancellation is that the Service Tax charged earlier were nullified and the appellant had in-turn raised GST invoices/bills charging GST. He also submitted that the legal and accounting effect of cancellation of Service Tax invoices/bills and raising of Credit Notes have not been appreciated by both the authorities.

5. On the other hand, learned AR defended the impugned order and submitted that both the authorities have observed that the appellant paid the Service Tax of Rs.17,84,952/- on the basis of invoices raised on 17.04.2017, 16.06.2017, 30.06.2017 & 30.06.2017. He further submitted that the Service Tax which was rightly paid under the Finance Act for the services rendered before coming into GST cannot be refunded under GST Regime.

6. After considering the submissions of both the parties and perusal of the material on record, I find that the appellant has filed the refund of Service Tax paid during the period April 2017 to June 2017 for the services rendered before June 2017. This tax liability was correctly paid and declared by them in their ST 3 Returns for the period April to June 2017. The said amount of Service Tax was paid through debit in their CENVAT credit at that time. GST Regime came into being w.e.f. 01.07.2017 and subsequently between September and November, the appellant raised Credit Notes and another four invoices and paid GST on the same. After paying the GST, the appellants are seeking refund of the Service Tax of Rs.17,84,952/- which was paid during the period April to June 2017 on the ground that they have paid Service Tax and GST on the same four transactions. Further, I find that when the Service Tax was paid on the basis of self-assessment and declaration in their ST 3 Returns for the period April to June 2017, the Service Tax was paid correctly for the services which were provided during the period April to June 2017 as per Section 68 of the Act. Further, I find that the appellant issued the GST invoices subsequently in the month of September and November 2017 simply at the instances of their clients. Further, I find that when the Service Tax was paid for the services rendered during the relevant period was liable to be paid. Further, I find that the Commissioner (A) in Para 10, 11 & 12 have given cogent reasoning for denial of the refund claim by the authorities and it is relevant to reproduce the said findings which are reproduced herein below:

"10. Hence the service tax paid by the appellant as on the date of provision of services during April to June 2017 for the services rendered were his liability discharged as is correct as per law. The appellant claims that because of the insistence of the customers he had to pay the GST on September 2017 to December 2017. It is to be noted that as per the provisions of Section 9(1) of CGST Law which has created the levy of GST states "subject to the provisions of sub-section (2), there shall be levied a tax called the central goods and services tax on all intra-state supplies of goods or services or both, except on the supply of alcoholic liquor for human consumption, on the value determined under Section 15 and at such rates, not exceeding twenty percent, as may be notified by the Government on the recommendations of the Council and collected in such manner as may be prescribed and shall be paid by the taxable person". Hence for any supply of goods or services made after the appointed date i.e., 1/7/2017 the supplier has to pay GST on all intra-state or interstate supplies. This also makes it clear that only supplies made after the appointed date attracts GST. In the instant case, the provision of service was before the introduction of GST and the supply was NOT made after the introduction of GST. Hence the appellant was not liable to pay the GST.

11. Further, as per the provisions of Section 122(1) of the CGST Act which talks of penalties that have to be imposed states that "where a taxable person who (ii) issues any invoice or bill without supply of goods or services or both in violation of the provisions of this Act or the Rules made thereunder; he shall be liable to pay a penalty of ten thousand rupees or an amount equivalent to the tax evaded or the tax not deducted under Section 51 or short deducted or deducted but not paid to the Government or tax not collected under Section 52 or short collected or collected but not paid to the Government or input tax credit availed of or passed on or distributed irregularly, or the refund claimed fraudulently, whichever is higher." The fact of the case makes it clear that the appellant has issued subsequent four invoices on regime which in itself is violation warranting rejection of refund. The appellant has violated the provisions of the GST law by issuing an invoice without supply of goods.

12. The tax paid during April to June 2017 against the service tax invoices was the legitimate tax that was due to the Government as per the prevailing Finance Act, 1994. Hence, the service tax paid by the appellant is in order and correct and there are NO provisions under Section 11B of the Central Excise Act for the refund of the duty that was liable to be paid legitimately.

7. Further, I find that the case laws relied upon by the appellant cited supra are not applicable in the facts and circumstances of the present case and are distinguishable. In view of my discussion above, I am of the considered view that there is no infirmity in the impugned order which is upheld by dismissing the appeal of the appellant.

FINAL ORDER NOS. A/30624-30625/2019

Per: P Venkata Subba Rao:

1. These two appeals have been filed by the appellant on the same issue and hence the same are being disposed of together.

2. Heard both sides and perused the records.

3. The appellant herein is an entity incorporated under the Companies Act, 1956 and is a 100% Export Oriented Unit (EOU) registered under the Software Technologies Parks of India (STPI) Scheme. They are engaged in software development and information technology enabled services which they provide to their associated enterprises located outside India. They are registered with the Service Tax Department under the categories of "Business Auxiliary Services" and "Information Technology Software Services". They filed refund claims under Rule 5 of CENVAT Credit Rules 2004 seeking refund of the CENVAT credit used in the output services relatable to their export of services. These refund claims were partly allowed and partly rejected by the original authority and subsequently on appeal, partly modified by the first appellate authority. The details of these are as follows:

benefit of the employees and their respective family members and is in the nature of life insurance. The appellants have not established that the said insurance is in the nature of accident insurance or its being pertaining to the assets of the company or it was statutorily required under any law. Since the Insurance premium has been paid for the benefit of the employees as well as their families, it specifically falls under the exclusion clause of the definition of input service under Rule 2(1) of the CCR.

4. Aggrieved by the orders of the first appellate authority, the present appeals have been filed. In respect of appeal No. ST/30910/2018, the appellant is contesting only two types of services which were denied to them viz; General Insurance Service and Works Contract Service. A small amount related to Meals coupons and food bills is not contested by the appellant. Ld. CA, representing the appellant, explained the details of each of these services as follows:

5. In respect of the invoice issued by ICICI Lombard General Insurance Company Ltd., Ld. CA submits that the insurance is not for the benefit of any individual employee but it is an insurance for the Directors and their Officers against any liability which they may incur during the course of their official work. He draws the attention of the Bench to the definition of ‘input services’ under Rule 2(l) of CCR 2004, as applicable during the relevant period, as follows:

(i) input service” means any service

(ii) used by a provider of output service for providing an output service; or

and includes services used in relation to modernisation, renovation or repairs of a factory, premises of the provider of output service or an office relating to such factory or premises, advertisement or sales promotion, market research, storage up to the place of removal, procurement of inputs, accounting, auditing, financing, recruitment and quality control, coaching and training, computer networking, credit rating, share registry, security, business exhibition, legal services, inward transportation of inputs or capital goods and outward transportation up to the place of removal; but excludes:

(A) service portion in the execution of a works contract and construction services including (hereafter referred to as specified services) in so far as they are used for -

(a) construction or execution of works contract of a building or a civil structure or a part thereof; or

(b) laying of foundation or making of structures for support of capital goods, except for the provision of one or more of the specified services; or

(B) services provided by way of renting of a motor vehicle, in so far as they relate to a motor vehicle which is not a capital good; or

(BA) service of general insurance business, servicing, repair and maintenance, in so far as they relate to a motor vehicle which is not a capital goods, except when used by -

(a) a manufacturer of a motor vehicle in respect of a motor vehicle manufactured by such person; or

(b) an insurance company in respect of a motor vehicle insured or reinsured by such person; or

6. He would argue that the definition of ‘input service’ is quite comprehensive but for the exclusions mentioned above. Insofar as the General Insurance is concerned, the only exclusion is with respect to general insurance in relation to motor vehicles. Further, it also excludes life insurance and health insurance. The insurance in question was to cover the professional liability of the Directors and Officers in the course of their official work. Clearly, such insurance is directly relatable to their official functions. There is no exclusion clause with respect to such insurance in Rule 2(l). Ld. DR argues on this point that the impugned order has clearly held that the general insurance in question is for covering the personal liability of individual employees and therefore is excluded by clause ‘C’ of Rule 2(l) of CCR, 2004.

7. Countering the argument, Ld. CA submits that on similar issue in respect of Ernst and Young Associates LLP as reported in it has been held that professional indemnity service is used by the assessee and is not excluded as an input service under Rule 2(l) of CCR 2004.

8. On examining the issue, I find that the insurance in question was not for the personal benefit of any individual or Director, it only covers any liability that may arise on them in the course of their official work. Therefore, respectfully concurring with the decision of CESTAT, Chandigarh in the case of Ernst and Young Associates (supra), I hold that the appellant is entitled for the benefit of CENVAT credit under Rule 2(l) and consequently refund under Rule 5 of CCR 2004 in respect of this invoice.

9. IFFCO-TOKIO General Insurance Co. Ltd.: These three invoices provide medical insurance for the employees and their families. Ld. CA argues that they should be entitled CENVAT Credit as well as refund of credit on these services. He relies on the case law of Sundaram Fasteners Limited [2016(43)S.T.R. 454 (Tri.-Chennai) and Fiem Industries Limited [2016(43)S.T.R (Tri.-Chennai)]. In both these case laws, the Ld. Member held that the health insurance is excluded only if it is relatable to the travel of an employee on vacation not otherwise. Ld. DR asserts that a plain reading of the exclusion clause ‘C’ of Rule 2(l) of CCR, 2004, health insurance is excluded and not merely health insurance while on vacation. I have gone through the relevant clause which reads as follows:

“Such as those provided in relation to outdoor catering, beauty treatment, health services, cosmetic and plastic surgery, membership of a club, health and fitness centre, life insurance, health insurance and travel benefits extended to employees on vacation such as Leave or Home Travel when such services are used primarily for personal use or consumption by any employee.”

10. A plain reading of the above clause shows that there are various services such as outdoor catering, beauty treatment, health services etc. including travel benefits extended to employees on vacation such as leave or Home travel concession are excluded as such services are used primarily for personal use or consumption by any employee. It does not appear that all the services listed in the above clause have to be relatable to employees being on vacation such as Leave or Home Travel Concession. Such an interpretation would lead to absurd conclusions. It is inconceivable that the company provides outdoor catering to an employee who is on leave or home travel concession. Similarly it is absurd to say that the company may be providing beauty treatment or health services or plastic surgery or membership of a club, health and fitness centres etc., while the employee is in vacation or Home travel concession. For this reason, each of these expressions in this clause have to be read by themselves and travel benefits extended to employees on vacation such as leave or Home travel concession is one of the excluded categories. Other categories such as beauty treatment or health services or plastic surgery are not linked to the employee being on vacation. I, therefore, respectfully disagree with Ld. Member (Judicial) in the case of Sundaram Fasteners Limited and Fiem Industries Limited (supra). I hold that the health insurance services have been clearly excluded from the Rule 2(l) of CCR 2004. Accordingly, the appellant is not entitled to the benefit of CENVAT credit on the invoices issued by M/s IFFCO-TOKIO towards health insurance.

11. Invoices issued by M/s TATA AIG General Insurance Co. Ltd.: A perusal of these invoices clearly shows that no individual has been made the beneficiary in this invoice. It is a commercial liability insurance meant for the company itself. Therefore, this is clearly not excluded under clause ‘C’ of Rule 2(l). I, therefore, find that the appellant is entitled for CENVAT Credit on the invoice issued by M/s TATA AIG General Insurance Company Limited.

12. Invoices issued by New Vision Interiors for works contract services: It is undisputed that all these invoices pertain to Works Contract Services. A perusal of the invoices shows that they pertain to preparation of caution signages and scaffolding for facade glass and fixing of thick toughen glass, lift low side work purpose etc. It is the contention of Ld. CA that Rule 2(l) of CCR 2004 includes services used in modernisation, renovation or repairs of a factory premises of provider of output services or an office relating to such factory or premises. Therefore, they are clearly entitled to CENVAT credit on this account. Ld. DR, on the other hand, asserts that the definition of ‘input service’ as above is subject to the exclusion specifically indicated in clauses (A), (B), (BA) and (C). Clause ‘A’ explicitly excludes service portion in exclusion of the works contract and construction services insofar as they are used for “(a) construction or execution of works contract of a building or a civil structure or a part thereof, or (b) laying of foundation or making of structures for support of capital goods, except for the provision of one or more of the specified services”. He would argue that the works contract services used in relation to execution of works contract of a building have been specifically excluded within the definition of input services under Rule 2(l) and therefore the appellant is not entitled to the benefit of CENVAT Credit.

13. On going through the invoices submitted by the appellant, it is evident that all these are “Works contracts” and they pertain to several activities such as scaffolding for replacement of facade glass of out gate area, fixing of toughen glass etc. Therefore, they are clearly excluded in the definition of ‘input services’ under Rule 2(l) as above. I, therefore, hold that the appellant is not entitled to CENVAT Credit on these services.

14. In conclusion, with respect to Appeal No. ST/30910/2018, I find that the impugned order needs to be modified to the extent of allowing refund of CENVAT credit in respect of the invoices issued by M/s ICICI Lombard GIC Limited for providing professional liability insurance to the Directors and the invoice issued by TATA AIG General Insurance company Limited with reference to Commercial Liability Insurance of the Company. The remaining part of the impugned order is upheld.

15. With respect to appeal No. ST/30911/2018, the disputed claims of refund which were rejected by the lower authorities are as follows:

(i) Works Contract Service: With respect to these services for the aforesaid reasons, I find that the appellant is not entitled to refund of CENVAT.

(ii) Family day celebrations: A copy of the invoice issued by M/s Kethana Eternal Projects, Hyderabad based on which CENVAT Credit was claimed, shows that it is an event organised by the company for the employees and their families. It does not appear that it is meant to be an official function and for official purpose clearly the benefits of these individual employees and their families. The services include food, catering and other event management activities. In view of the above, I find that the benefits of these services have gone to the individual employees and therefore same are excluded by Clause ‘C’ of Rule 2(l) of CCR 2004. Accordingly, I find that the appellant is not entitled to the benefit of refund of CENVAT credit on these invoices.

16. In conclusion, appeal No. ST/30910/2018 is partly allowed as indicated above and appeal No. ST/30911/2018 is rejected.

FINAL ORDER NO. A/30618/2019

Per: P Venkata Subba Rao:

1. None appeared on behalf of the appellant despite the matter being listed on the CESTAT website. The matter was earlier listed on 12.04.2019, 09.05.2019 and 07.06.2019. None appeared on behalf of the appellant on any of these days also. As the appellant is not prosecuting the matter, I proceed to examine the issue and decide it on merits. Heard Learned DR and perused the records. The issue which falls for consideration is whether the appellant is entitled to refund of Rs. 25,87,200/- as per Notification No. 41/2012-ST. The appellant is an exporter of Barytes which are classified under Central Excise Tariff Heading 251110 and chargeable to nil rate of duty.
   When these products were exported, the appellant availed the services of various service providers and have paid service charges alongwith service tax on such services.
   They filed a refund claim for the service tax paid under Notification No. 41/2012-ST dated 29.06.2012 (as amended) in respect of export of 81200 metric tonnes of Barytes powder. The refund application was partly rejected and partly allowed by the Assistant Commissioner. On appeal, the First Appellate Authority has further allowed refund of some amount but rejected refund of Rs. 25,87,200/- on the ground that the application was filed beyond the time limit. The findings of the First Appellate Authority in this regard are were as follows:

5. I have gone through the impugned order, grounds of appeals and written submissions made during Personal Hearing. The questions to be decided are
   i) Whether the decision of adjudicating authority rejecting the refund of Rs.
      25,87,200/- for the reason that the appellant filed 13 shipping bills beyond one year from the date of letter of export is proper or otherwise.
   ii) Whether the decision of adjudicating authority rejecting the refund of Rs. 3,01,365/- for the reason that there was short receipt of amounts in Bank Realization Certificates in respect of certain shipping bills is proper or otherwise.
   5.1 With regard to submission of refund claim pertaining to 13 shipping bills, the appellant accepted that claims were filed on 05.06.2017 whereas the LEOs date was between 27.05.2016 to 30.05.2017 which resulted in late filling of claim beyond one year from the date of LEOs. They have cited a judgment of Hon'ble Tribunal in the case of Ashok Granites Ltd., Vs CCE&ST - 2016-TIOL-2167-CESTAT-MAD for their reliance that time limit of one year has to be reckoned only form the date of shipment and not from the date of issuance of LET Export Order.

5.2 In this regard, I have gone through the Notification and find that as per 3(g) of Notification No. 41/2012-ST dated 29.06.2012, the claim should be filed within one year from the date of export to claim for rebate of service tax paid on the specified services used for export of goods. Since the appellant had not adhered to the conditions specified in the Notification and there is no procedure prescribed in the impugned Notification to condone for late filing of rebate claim. Therefore, the request of the appellant to condone the late filing of claim is not feasible. With regard to applicability of case law cited above, the appellant did not submit the date of shipments to examine whether the claim is submitted within one year period from the date of shipments or not. In the absence of relevant data of date of shipments of exports in respect of 13 shipping bills, it cannot be verified the fact of filing of rebate claims within the period of one year from the date of shipment for applying the ratio of decision pronounced in the aforesaid tribunal judgment. In view of the foregoing discussions, I hold that the appellant is not eligible to claim the rebate of Rs. 25,87,200/- and uphold the decision of adjudicating authority.

5.3 With regard to rejection of Rs. 3,01,365/- concerned, the appellant contended that there is no short receipt of sale proceeds of exported goods as they had realized in full amount mentioned in the shipping bills and also enclosed copies of BRCs for evidencing the same. From the impugned order, I observed that there was a short receipt of 565060 USD in respect of shipping bill no. 8460784 dated 24.06.2016, which ultimately resulted in rejecting of refund claim of Rs. 3,01,365/-. On verification of BRCs in respect of aforesaid shipping bill, I find that there is no short receipt of sale proceeds. With regard to difference of 80 USD concerned, the appellant stated that the same was deducted by the Bank towards charges for processing sale proceeds. The details are furnished below for ready reference:

5.4 Since the appellant submitted requisite documentary evidence in respect of short receipt of sale proceeds, I opine that appellant had adhered the conditions laid down in Para(4) of the Notification No. 41/2012-ST and eligible to avail refund of Rs. 3,01,365/-.

5.5 In view of the foregoing discussions, I disallow the refund of Rs. 25,87,200/- as discussed in Para No. 5.2 and allow the refund of Rs.3,01,365/- as discussed in Para 5.4. It is clear from the above that the appellant had filed a refund claim after one year from the date of let export order in respect of exported goods. The relevant date to be considered for one year for filing refund claim under Notification No. 41/2012-ST is the date of 'let export order'. I have also considered the reliance placed by the appellant on the order of Tribunal in the case of Ashok Granites Vs Commissioner of Central Excise and Service Tax, Salem [2016 (046) STR 0875 (Tri-Mad)]. It has been held therein that since Section 11B of the Central Excise Act prescribes the relevant date for the purpose of that section to be, interalia, "in the case of goods exported out of India, where a refund of excise duty paid is available in respect of the goods themselves or the excisable materials used in the manufacture of such goods, if the goods are exported by sea or air, the date on the which ship or aircraft in which such goods are loaded, leaves India", this "relevant date" prevails over the "date of LEO" prescribed in the notification." It was, therefore, reasoned that refund is admissible within one year from the date of sailing of the ship. I respectfully disagree with this view. The entire benefit of refund accrues to the appellant only from the notification but for which no refund is admissible in this case. Any notification, being an exception to the general rule, must be strictly construed. If the notification prescribes any time limit it must be complied with. It is not open to this Bench to change the notification to enlarge, constrict or otherwise modify it. The vires of the notification has not been questioned or tested nor has any portion of it been declared ultra vires. In this case, the refund application was filed more than one year after the export. Accordingly, the refund is not admissible as per the Notification No. 41/2012-ST. I therefore, find no infirmity in the order of the First Appellate Authority in partly rejecting the refund claim to the extent it is time barred. The impugned order is upheld and the appeal is rejected.

Hon’ble Mr. P.VenkataSubba Rao, Member (Technical)

Per: Rachna Gupta:

The brief facts of the case are the appellant is a proprietary concern of vehicle hiring business under the name M/s. A.H. Tours & Travels Organization.

2. On gathering intelligence that M/s AHT & T were providing the taxable service and realizing the gross amounts charged from their customers for the said service but not paying service tax to the departments, investigations were carried out which revealed that M/s AHT & T have made a payment of only ₹6,09,490/- towards service tax against their actual and much high tax-liability for the financial year 2003-04 and 2007-08. Accordingly, vide a SCN it was alleged that M/s AHT & T despite providing taxable services to various customers and realizing the values of the said services, did not disclose the same to the department and thereby have deliberately suppressed the material facts with intent to evade payment of service tax. Accordingly, recovery of ₹25,14,763/- & ₹3,50,301/- alongwithinterestatappropriateateandproportionate penalty was proposed. The said proposal got confirmed vide order-in-original No. 52/2008 dated 26.12.2008. The appeal thereof has been dismissed by Commissioner (Appeals) vide Order-in-Appeal No. 19/2009 dated 30.06.2009. This order has been assailed before this Tribunal.

3. We have heard both sides. It is submitted on behalf of appellant that the appellant got registered under the provisions of the Finance Act, 1944. The service receiver failed to pay the service tax against the services received. The turnover is net amount of hire charges without any service tax component. The appellant is having no enforcing power to levy and collect the service tax. It is further submitted that the nature and activity of the appellant/assessee is distinctly contrary to the service mentioned in the charging section 66 of Finance Act 1994 as the appellant retains the control of the vehicle with himself/driver. It is impressed upon that the charges collected as per km basis is out of the purview of Service Tax Sec-65(105)(O) of the Finance Act 1994 wherein the cab or motor car is not rented out but let-out on hire. Neither the vehicle is same nor the driver. The hirer/service receiver calls for vehicle. There upon, as their requirement, number of vehicles along the driver is sent to the service receiver/BSNL retaining the control of the vehicle with the driver himself. Ld. Counsel relied upon West Bengal and Anr. Vs. V. Kesoram Industries Ltd. Ors. (AIR 2005 SC 1646). It is also submitted that the charging section does not empower the appellant/assessee to collect the service tax forcibly from the service receiver. The respondent should have notified the service receivers to pay the service tax against. It is finally submitted that the Hon’ble H.C. of Uttarkhand at Nainital, in Commissioner of Customs & Central Excise Vs. Sachin Malhotra has comprehensively dealt with the issue submitted before this Hon’ble Court.
Case is squarely covered by the Sachin Malhotra’s case.

4. Learned DR, on the other hand, while justifying the order has prayed for dismissal of appeal. After hearing the rival contentions of the parties and perusing the record, we are of the opinion as follows:

The issue herein is as to whether the appellant has provided Rent-of-cab service. Foremost the relevant law is discussed as follows:

Section 65(48)(o) of the Act defines “taxable service” as follows:

“taxable service” means any service provided or to be provided to any person, by a rent-a-cab scheme operator in relation to a renting of a cab.”

The words “in relation to” would mean “concerning with” or “pertaining to” and therefore, any service having direct or indirect connection with a specified service needs to be treated “in relation to” that specified service.

Any person engaged in the renting of the cabs has been taken in a tax net for the purpose of levying service tax for rendering such service. In a wide definition made under Section 35(38) of the Finance Act, ‘Rent-a-cab Scheme Operator’ suggests that those who operate in renting of cabs are covered. ‘Cab’ is also defined under Section 65(9) of the Finance Act which means “maxi cab” or ‘motor cab’ and both ‘maxi cab’ and ‘motor cab’ are defined under Sections 2(25) and 2(22) of the Motor Vehicles Act respectively.

In plain terms, it can be said that a rent-a-cab scheme operator is made liable to pay service tax.

Prior to amendment by Finance (No. 2) Act of 1998, under Section 65(32), the definition of “Rent-a-Cab Scheme Operator” was as follows:

After the amendment “Rent-a-Cab Scheme Operator” is defined under Section 65(76) as follows:

“rent-a-cab scheme operator” means any person engaged in the business of renting of cabs.”

The revised definition has made much larger the scope of the earlier definition where a person holding licence with minimum cab of 50 numbers was termed as rent-a-cab scheme operator. Those having less number of vehicles were neither required to obtain license nor liable to pay any service tax. The question, therefore, arises as to whether, consequent upon revision of definition, those persons engaged in the business of rendering specified service and not covered earlier by the definition of “Rent-a-Cab Scheme Operator” also get covered by this changed definition.

Section 3(42) of the General Clauses Act defines word “person” as under:

“person” shall include any company or association or body of individuals, whether incorporated or not;

A person would be either natural person or juristic person and therefore, it would also include individual, partnership firm, Hindu United Family, company, etc.

It would be pertinent to note at this stage the definition of “cab” which would be vital for determining the taxable service. Prior to 1-6-2007, Section 65(20) of the Finance Act defined “Cab” as follows:

“Cab” means -

(i) a motor cab, or
(ii) a maxi cab, or
(iii) any motor vehicle constructed or adapted to carry more than twelve passengers excluding the driver for hire or reward;”
Section 65(70) and Section 65(71) assign the same meaning to the definitions of “motor cab” or “maxi cab” respectively as given under the Motor Vehicles Act.

Definition of “motor cab” under Section 2(25) of the Motor Vehicles Act is as follow:

“motor cab” means any motor vehicle constructed or adapted to carry not more than six passengers excluding the driver for hire or reward;

Definition of “maxi cab” under Section 2(22) of the Motor Vehicles Act is as follow:

“maxi cab” means any motor vehicle constructed or adapted to carry more than six passengers, but not more than twelve passengers excluding the driver, for hire or reward;

Therefore, prior to 1-6-2007, any motor cab carrying not more than six passengers excluding driver and any maxi cab carrying more than six passengers but less than twelve passengers excluding driver were treated as “cab” and renting of such cab would be treated as taxable service. After 1-6-2007, Section 65(20) was substituted an explanation clause.

5. At this stage, it would be worthwhile to consider the definition of “Rent”. Rent means the act of payment for the use of something. It is the act of letting out or allowing the use like apartment, house or car.

Short Oxford English Dictionary, defines “Rent” as under:

“Source of revenue or income, separate pieces of property yielding a certain return to the owner.” “A tax or similar charge levied by or paid to a person.”

As per the Reader's Digest Great Encyclopedic Dictionary, “Rent” means “Tenant’s periodical payment to owner or landlord for use of land, house, or room; payment for hire of machinery etc. charge, periodical charge on land etc. reserved to one who is not the owner-free, exempt from rent; roll, register of person’s lands etc. with rents due from them; sum of person’s income from rents; sum of person’s income from rents-service, (tenure by) personal service in lieu of or addition to rent. Take, occupy, use, at a rent; let or hire for rent; be let at specified rent; impose rent on (tenant).”

As per MacMillan Dictionary “Rent” means an amount of money that you pay regularly for using a house, room, office etc. that belongs to someone else.

As far as word “hire” is concerned, “hire” means “payment under contract for the use of something.”

“Hiring” is bailment by which the use of thing or the services are contacted for, at a certain price and reward.

As per Black’s Law Dictionary, “hiring” means “a contract by which one person grants to another either the enjoyment of a thing or the use of the labor and industry, either of himself or his servant, during a certain time, for a stipulated compensation, or where one contracts for the labor or services of another about a thing bailed to him for a specified purpose.

Renting means a usually fixed periodical return, especially, an agreed sum paid at fixed intervals by a person for any use of the property or car. It is also the amount paid by a hirer to the owner for the use of the property or a car. Hiring is also engaging services or wages or other payment. It also amounts to engaging temporary use.

It cannot be disputed that both in “renting” and “licensing”, de facto possession of the thing is enjoyed. Difference is well carved out under the law wherein both, de jure possession and control is given, but in “renting”, it is right-in-rem whereas in “licensing”, it is right-in-persona. When rent-a-cab scheme operator gives the car on rent, de facto possession is, of course, there but, it is not acceptable to uphold that wherever de jure control and possession of the vehicle stands transferred in law from the owner to the person on renting/hiring the service that the service tax is leviable and this is, of course, not different than services rendered on a contractual basis, providing transport service for fixed amount of periodical return or fare.

This was reiterated by Hon'ble High Court of Allahabad in the case of Anil Kumar Agnihotri Vs. Commissioner of Central Excise, Kanpur reported as 2018(10) G.S.T. 288(All) earlier also. The Punjab & Haryana High Court was also considering the question as to whether transport service provided by the respondent-firm to the Indian Oil Corporation was liable to service tax or not. The Court, after considering various provisions as also decision of the High Court of Judicature at Madras in the case of Secretary, Federation of Bus-operators Assn T.N. v. UOI (supra), applied all vital observations of Madras High Court mutatis mutandis to the case before the High Court. Accordingly, it held that transport service provided to Indian Oil Corporation was the taxable service and it set aside the decision of the Tribunal by upholding the view canvassed by the Revenue.

6. Hon'ble High Court of Gujarat in the case of Commissioner of Service Tax Vs. Vijay Travels reported in (2014) 36 STR 513(Guj) has held as follows:

“...The Legislature has not made any distinction between hiring of vehicle, which the appellant claimed to do so as to be excluded from the tax net, and renting of vehicle for the purpose of levy of Service Tax. Scheme having been formulated for regulating the business of renting of motor cabs or motorcycles to persons desirous of driving by themselves or through drivers, either for their own use or for matters connected therewith, nature of services provided while hiring and renting is the same such that such services are taxable - Fact that legal possession of vehicle not handed over to person renting the vehicle, such that de jure possession continues with owner/provider of service, would not exclude the service from tax net. Thus, respondent cannot escape tax liability on ground that hiring is different from renting as intention of Government is to tax service provider of a service which involves both hiring and renting of a cab for a longer duration. Further, even those persons, natural or juristic, who do not have exclusive control over the vehicle, can be taxed thereto - Respondent was, thus, liable for Service Tax. However, invocation of extended period requires deliberate act of suppression or mala fide intention, which was not there as service having been recently brought under the tax net, there was ambiguity prevailing in respect of the same. Thus, order of Tribunal disallowing invocation of extended period, proper - Sections 65(91), 65(105)(o), 68 and 73(1) of Finance Act, 1994 - Sections 74 and 75 of Motor Vehicles Act, 1988 - Section 35G of Central Excise Act, 1944 as applicable to Service Tax vide Section 83 of Finance Act, 1994.

Rent-a-Cab Scheme Operator Service, Scope of, for demand of Service Tax, Rent-a-Cab Scheme was formulated in 1989 in exercise of powers under Section 75(l) of Motor Vehicles Act, 1988 for regulating the business of renting of motor cabs or motorcycles to persons desirous of driving either by themselves or through drivers, motor cabs or motorcycles for their own use or for matters connected therewith. Tax on service was introduced w.e.f. 1-7-1994 so as to bring under tax net those persons rendering specific kinds of services which constituted a major portion of GDP and service provided by a Rent-a-Cab Scheme Operator in relation to renting of a cab was made a taxable service. Thus, any person engaged in renting of cabs has been taken under tax net for purpose of levying Service Tax, such that Rent-a-Cab Scheme Operator is liable to pay Service Tax. Further, when any person carries on continuous activity of renting of a cab, i.e. letting for the use in case of maxi cab or motor vehicle, such renting out of vehicle would be taxable service. Furthermore, there is no difference between renting and hiring of vehicle for levy of Service Tax under Sections 65(91), 65(105)(o), 68 and 73(1) of Finance Act, 1994 Sections 74 and 75 of Motor Vehicles Act, 1988 - Section 35G of Central Excise Act, 1944 as applicable to Service Tax vide Section 83 of Finance Act, 1994.

Words and Phrases - Rent - It means the act of payment for the use of something - Renting means a usually fixed periodical return, especially, an agreed sum paid at fixed intervals by a person for any use of the property or car. It is also the amount paid by a hirer to the owner for the use of the property or a car. On facts, Legislature not having made distinction between renting and hiring for levy of Service Tax, Rent-a-Cab Scheme Operator liable therefore Sections 65(91), 65(105)(o), 68 and 73(1) of Finance Act, 1994 Sections 74 and 75 of Motor Vehicles Act, 1988 Section 35G of Central Excise Act, 1944 as applicable to Service Tax vide Section 83 of Finance Act, 1994. [paras 14.2,14.3]

Words and Phrases - Hire - It means payment under contract for use of something - Hiring is bailment by which use of thing or the services are contracted for, at a certain price and reward. Hiring is also engaging services or wages or other payment. It also amounts to engaging for temporary use. On facts, Legislature not having made distinction between hiring and renting for levy of Service Tax, Rent-a-Cab Scheme Operator liable therefor

7. Even Principal Bench of this Tribunal in the case of Carzonrent (India) Pvt. Ltd. Vs. Commissioner of Service Tax, Delhi reported at 2017(50) STR 172(Del) has held that taxable service means any service provided or to be provided to any person by a rent-a-cab scheme operator in relation to renting of a cab. No reference to period of renting in statutory provisions. Liability to tax arises when a rent-a-cab operator provides a vehicle to another person on rent and receives consideration. Nature of arrangement may vary from party to party. Premium for insurance paid by appellant, who have effective control of insured vehicles. Maintenance and repair charges of vehicles paid by assessee and even workshop in which the vehicle has to be serviced decided by it does not make any difference. Clients never became owners of cabs but can only use cabs as long as they are paying rent to assessee for such usage. Clients do not possess full effective control of the cabs, which are leased to them. But appellant is liable to Service Tax in respect of services rendered by it under category of “rent-a-cab” service. The case relied upon by appellant is not relevant as being prior in time than above discussed law in favour of revenue. In R.S. Travels Vs. Commissioner of Central Excise, Meerut 2008(12) STR 27 it was held when a cab operator provides his cab with a driver to his client on demand for going from one place to another and charges him on per kilometer basis or a lump sum amount on distance, as fixed with the client and control of the vehicle always remains with the cab operator/driver, he is providing transport service and this activity would be outside the purview of the entry ‘rent-a-cab operator’s service’.

In Kuldeep Singh Gill Vs. Commissioner of Central Excise, Jabalpur reported as 2006(3) STR 689 it was held the contract was clear that the public sector undertaking was not renting out any particular number of vehicles, but, was making payment for operating trips to various places. The vehicle continued to remain with the appellant only and whenever the trips were required to be made, the appellant was asked to carry out the same and he was paid per trip depending upon distance, time, etc. as per the rate sheet. The Tribunal, on taking note of the fact and taxing provisions of the Act, held that it was providing a transport service and was not amounting to a renting of a cab.

8. In view of entire above discussion and applying the same to the contracts herein vide which the appellant is providing several numbers of vehicles to BSNL etc. on monthly basis against considerations which otherwise are on yearly basis. Also keeping in view the appellant is admittedly registered as rent-a-cab service provider, we hereby answer the question so framed in affirmative i.e. in favour of revenue.

9. We, therefore, do not find any infirmity in the order-under-challenge. Same is hereby upheld. Appeal, accordingly, stands dismissed.

FINAL ORDER NO. A/31159/2019

Per: P V Subba Rao:

2. The appellant M/s BHEL is a large public sector undertaking which manufactures various products and avails benefit of Cenvat credit. After the introduction of GST they have moved from the excise and service tax into the GST regime. As per the new provisions of GST, Cenvat credit lying in balance in their accounts at the time of the transition could be taken as input service credit and utilized accordingly. However, as per June, 2017 ST- 3 Return of the appellant, Cenvat credit amounting to Rs.1,46,733/- remained unutilized. his Cenvat credit pertains to Education Cess (EC), Secondary & Higher Education Cess (SHEC) and Krishi Kalyan Cess (KKC). They submitted an application to the Principal Commissioner of Central Tax, Hyderabad dt.30.05.2018 stating "Since this transitory cess amount cannot be carried forward under GST law, we are lodging a claim in Form-R for refund of Rs.1,46,733/- (EC-Rs.96,483/-, SHEC-Rs.47,349/- & KKCRs. 2,901/-)". Along with that letter they have submitted an application for refund of excise duty under Rule 173S of the Central Excise Rules for the aforesaid amount. This application was rejected by the original authority as there is no legal provision under which the refund could have been sanctioned. On appeal, the first appellate authority upheld the order of the original authority and rejected the appeal. Hence, this appeal.

3. After hearing both sides and perusing the records, it is apparent that the application for refund was with respect to the Cenvat credit which has accumulated and remained unutilized on account of EC, SHEC & KKC. Admittedly, these Cesses could not be carried forward by the appellant to the GST as per the provisions of CGST Act. Hence they wanted cash refund of this amount. The application was filed for refund under section 11B of the Excise Act. Section 11B allows refund of duty paid and not of Cenvat credit. In the scheme of Cenvat, the duty/service tax/cesses which have been paid can only be taken as credit by the manufacturer and utilized towards payment of duty/service tax/Cesses, etc., on their final products. There is no scheme under which Cenvat credit can be refunded to them in cash except under Rule 5 of Cenvat Credit Rules (CCR), 2004 in respect of Cenvat credit utilized in manufacture exported goods or exported services. Since export of both goods and services are exempt, cash refund of Cenvat credit which has gone into manufacture of the goods exported or services exported is allowed under Rule 5 of CCR, 2009. Otherwise, there is no provision under which Cenvat credit can be refunded in cash.

4. Learned departmental representative draws the attention of the bench to the judgment of the Larger Bench of the Hon'ble High Court of Bombay in the case of Gauri Plasticulture Pvt Ltd on this issue in which questions framed by the Hon'ble Larger Bench were as follows:

"(a) Whether cash refund is permissible in terms of clause (c) to the proviso to section 11B(2) of the Central Excise Act, 1944 where an assessee is unable to utilize credit on inputs?

(b) Whether by exercising power under Section 11B of the said Act of 1944, a refund of unutilised amount of Cenvat Credit on account of the closure of manufacturing activities can be granted?

(c) Whether what is observed in the order dated 25th January 2007 passed by the Apex Court in Petition for Special Leave to Appeal (Civil) No. CC 467 of 2007 (Union of India vs Slovak India Trading Company Pvt Ltd.) can be read as a declaration of law under Article 141 of the Constitution of India?"

and they were answered as follows:

"40. As a result of the above discussion, we answer the questions of law framed above as (a) and (b) in the negative. They have to be answered against the assessee and in favour of the Revenue. Questions (a) and (b) having been answered accordingly, needless to state that the order of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Slovak India (supra) cannot be read as a declaration of law under Article 141 of the Constitution of India."

5. Per contra, learned counsel for the appellant relies on the judgment of the Hon'ble High Court of Madras in the case of Sutherland Global Services Pvt Ltd [2019 (11) TMI 278 – Madras HC] to assert that the accumulated credit of EC, SHEC & KKC does not lapse on switchover to the GST regime and could be carried forward as credit under GST.

6. I have carefully considered the judgments relied upon by the both sides. The judgment of the Larger Bench of the Hon'ble High Court of Bombay was precisely on the point as to whether the assessee can get cash refund of Cenvat credit which they were not able to utilize and it was answered in negative. The Hon'ble High Court of Madras was examining a different issue as to whether the precision of the credit of EC, SHEC & KKC into the new GST regime was permissible or otherwise. The Hon'ble High Court of Madras has not dealt with the issue of cash refund of unutilized Cenvat credit which is the question in dispute. In view of the above, I find that there is no legal provision under which the assessee's appeal could be entertained.

7. Accordingly, the appeal is rejected and the impugned order is upheld.

FINAL ORDER NOS. A/30661-30662/2019

Per: P Venkata Subba Rao:

1. These two appeals are filed by the assessee and the department against the same impugned Order-in-Appeal No. 89/2010 (H-II) S.Tax dated 30.11.2010 and hence are being disposed of together.

2. The assessee is challenging the demand of service tax upon them and penalty imposed equal to the service tax for the period 01.07.2004 to 31.03.2008 in their appeal ST/636/2011 whereas the department is aggrieved by the first appellate authority allowing the assessee the benefit of notification 24/2004-ST dated 10.09.2004 read with notification 19/2005-ST dated 07.06.2005 for the period 10.09.2004 to 15.06.2005. According to the department the benefit of this exemption notification is not available to the assessee.

3. The facts of the case in brief are that the assessee herein is imparting commercial training or coaching services related to software and are registered with the Central Excise department and are filing periodical returns. Intelligence was gathered by the department that the assessee is not discharging service tax properly on the services rendered by them. Accordingly a search was conducted by the officers of Anti-Evasion, Service Tax, Hyderabad - II Commissionerate on 13.10.2008 and several documents were recovered. Examination of the documents, records and corresponding ST-3 returns filed by the assessee showed that the assessee has not disclosed the full value of the taxable services rendered during the period as follows:
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Year</th>
<th>Value as shown in ST-3 Returns (in Rs.)</th>
<th>Value as shown in Balance Sheet</th>
<th>Taxable Value</th>
<th>Difference in taxable value</th>

4. Thereafter they recorded the statements of Shri M. Gopala Reddy, Managing Director of the assessee firm and Shri Bhikshapathy, Chartered Accountant and questioned about the difference between the value of taxable services shown in the returns and that shown in the Balance Sheet. Shri Bhikshapathy confirmed that the amounts shown under the head ‘Course fee’ in their records was higher and it represented (a) the application fee, (b) registration fee, (c) sale of study materials and (d) examination fee and coaching fee. When asked if they were discharging service tax on the entire amount, he explained that they have not paid tax on amounts received from the students towards supply of materials on the ground that the same are exempted and therefore they have not discharged service tax on the full value. He also paid an amount of Rs.4,99,999/- during the investigation on 04.11.2008 towards service tax on the value not shown in their returns and agreed to work out the differential service tax and pay the same along with interest. Further examination of the records showed that the explanation of the assessee that they claimed exemption for the value of study materials appeared incorrect because they were raising a single invoice on the students for the services rendered and the amount collected is a composite amount for training and there is no separate cost of study materials or examination fee. It was further found that there is no price printed on the study materials provided by the assessee. During the present proceedings, learned counsel for the assessee showed us sample copies of the study materials and also agreed that there is no separate price printed on the study material. A show cause notice was issued to the assessee on 15.05.2009 demanding differential service tax along with interest and proposing to impose penalties under Sec.76, 77 & 78 of the Finance Act, 1994. This demand was confirmed vide Order-in-Original No. 37/2009 dated 17.08.2009. On appeal by the assessee, the Commissioner (Appeals), vide Order-in-Appeal No. 79/2009 (H-II) ST dated 27.11.2009, remanded the matter back to the original authority with a direction to pass the order after following principles of natural justice. In pursuance of this order, Order-in-Original No. 38/2010 (denovo) (S.Tax) dated 12.05.2010 was passed confirming the demand along with interest and imposing penalties under Sec.76, 77 & 78 of the Finance Act, 1994. Aggrieved by this order, the assessee appealed before the first appellate authority who, vide the impugned order, modified the order of the lower authority to the extent of allowing benefits of exemption notification 24/2004-ST dated 10.09.2004 read with notification 19/2005-ST dated 07.06.2005 for the period 10.09.2004 to 15.06.2005. This is the order which is under challenge in the present appeals.

5. After hearing both sides, we find that assessee has not discharged the service tax on the entire amount collected by them from the students under “Commercial Coaching and Training Services” claiming the following as exempted there from.

1. Sale of books
2. Registration fee
3. Examination fee for examinations conducted by Indian Testing Board.
6. It is not in dispute that the sale of books is not a separate enterprise by the assessee. These books are supplied to the students as study materials. They are not priced separately. There is no separate invoice raised upon the students for the sale of books. The cost of the books is also part of the total cost of training rendered by the assessee. Similarly, registration fee and the examination fee claimed by the assessee are also not billed separately. There is no evidence that the examination fee collected by the appellant is an expense and corresponding amount has been paid by them to any Board conducting the examinations. All these deductions are reckoned by the assessee on their own, out of the gross amount collected from the students towards rendering training services. Hence, there is a difference between the amount which was actually collected by them from the students and the amount which was shown by the assessee in their ST-3 Returns on which service tax was paid.

7. During hearing, learned counsel for the assessee could not produce any evidence to show that the amounts on which they have not paid service tax were not part of the consolidated fee collected by them from the students for rendering commercial training and coaching services. It would have been a different case if the books in question were priced publications being sold separately under the invoice. There is nothing on record to show that the books in question are not even priced. Under these circumstances, we find the assessee is liable to discharge service tax on the entire amount collected from the students as fees for commercial training and coaching conducted by them. The next question to be decided is whether the first appellate authority was correct in holding that the assessee was entitled to dated 07.06.2005. This notification reads as follows:

"Exemption to vocational/recreational training institute for providing commercial training or coaching services

Notification No. 24/2004 ST
Dated 10-9-2004
[As amended by Notification No. 19/2005 ST dated 07-06-2005]

In exercise of the powers conferred by sub-section (1) of section 93 of the Finance Act, 1994 (32 of 1994), the Central Government, being satisfied that it is necessary in the public interest so to do, hereby exempts the taxable services provided in relation to commercial training or coaching, by,-
(a) a vocational training institute; or
(b) a recreational training institute, to any person, from the whole of the service tax leviable thereon under section 66 of the said Act.

[Provided that nothing contained in this notification shall apply to the taxable services provided in relation to commercial training or coaching by a computer training institute.]

Explanation. - For the purposes of this notification,-
(i) "vocational training institute" means an Industrial Training Institute or an Industrial Training Centre affiliated to the National Council for Vocational Training, offering courses in designated trades as notified under the Apprentices Act, 1961 (52 of 1961) (ii) "recreational training institute" means a commercial training or coaching centre which provides training or coaching relating to recreational activities such as dance, singing, martial arts or hobbies.
(iii) "computer training institute" means a commercial training or coaching centre which provides coaching or training relating to computer software or hardware."

8. The proviso in the above notification was inserted with effect from 07.06.2005 excluding taxable services provided in relation to commercial training or coaching by a computer training institute. It is the case of the assessee that prior to the introduction of this proviso the benefit of this exemption was available to computer training institutes as well because they were not excluded. It is the case of the department that a plain reading of the notification prior to this amendment shows that the exemption was available only to (a) vocational training institute or (b) a recreational training institute. There was no exemption notification for computer training institutes at all. Therefore, the proviso which was introduced was nothing more than an explanation introduced vide notification 19/2005-ST dated 07.06.2005. To buttress their argument learned departmental representative also draws the attention of the bench to notification 09/2003 which was in existence prior to notification 24/2004. This notification exempted services provided in relation to commercial training or coaching by (a) vocational training institute, (b) a computer training institute or (c) a recreational training institute. Subsequent notification 24/2004-ST restricted the exemption only to vocational training institute and recreational training institute. There was no exemption notification for computer training institutes which, according to the department, is a conscious decision of the Government. The subsequent proviso introduced vide notification 19/2005 dated 17.06.2005 is only by way of explanation/clarification and even without the proviso no benefit was available for computer training institutes.

9. Learned counsel for the assessee, on the other hand, argues that the proviso was introduced with effect from 07.06.2005 specifically stating that the benefit of this notification is not available for commercial training or coaching by computer training institute. It was not an explanation but a proviso. The proviso cannot be presumed to exist prior to this date. In the absence of proviso the presumption is the benefit of notification extends to computer training institutes also. Therefore, they are fully entitled to the benefit of exemption notification. We do find that notification 09/2003-ST dated 20.06.2003 provided for exemption to a vocational training institutes, computer training institutes as well as recreational training institutes up to 30.06.2004. The successor notification 24/2004-ST dated 10.09.2004 provided such exemption only to vocational training institutes and recreational training institutes. Viewed from this point of view the proviso which was inserted excluding computer training institutes from the benefit of this exemption notification is redundant because computer training institutes were not covered at all in the notification. The other way of looking at it is to view the proviso as having made an exception to the notification with effect from 07.06.2005 when it was introduced. We, therefore, find that both views are possible in reading the exemption notification 24/2004-ST dated 10.09.2004 prior to 07.06.2005. As per the judgment of the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Dilip Kumar & Co. and others (Civil Appeal No. 3327/2007) an exemption notification must be strictly construed and in case of ambiguity the benefit of doubt has to go to the revenue and against the assessee. This is a case of glaring ambiguity created by inserting a proviso excluding the category which was not covered at all in the notification in the first place. We have no choice but to follow the judgment of the Constitutional Bench of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in interpreting this notification and hold that the assessee is not entitled to the benefit of notification 24/2004-ST dated 10.09.2004 for the period prior to 07.06.2005 also because the computer training institutes were not covered by the notification. Therefore, the Commissioner (Appeals) has erred in extending the benefit of this notification to the assessee.

10 In view of the above, we find that the assessee is not entitled to deductions on account of sale of books, registration fee, examination fee etc., because no amounts were collected under these heads and gross amount for total services rendered were invoiced to the students by the assessee. Service tax is leviable on the gross amount charged. Assessee is also not entitled to the benefit of exemption notification 24/2004-ST dated 10.09.2004 for the period prior to 07.06.2005 because they were not clearly covered by the exemption notification. In view of the above, the department's appeal is liable to be allowed and the assessee's appeal is liable to be rejected and we do so.

11. The assessee's appeal is rejected and the department's appeal is allowed.

FINAL ORDER NOS. 30734-30736/2019

Per: Rachna Gupta:
This order disposes of three appeals together as the issue being common to all three of these appeals. Orders-in-Original, as detailed below have been challenged in the impugned appeals vide which the demands made against the appellant under the taxable service of Business Support Service (BSS) and Renting of Immovable Property Service (RIPS) has been confirmed alongwith interest and the penalty.

2. Details of three of the appeals are as follows:-

<tr>
<th>Sl. No.</th>
<th>Appeal No.</th>
<th>SCN date</th>
<th>OIO No. &amp; Dt.</th>
<th>Period</th>
<th>Amount (Rs.)</th>

3. The facts in brief are as follows:

The appellants, M/s. Hyderabad Race Club are involved in providing the taxable services falling under Club or Association Membership Services w.e.f. 05.01.2006 and for providing renting of immovable property services w.e.f. 05.05.2009, since when they are registered for the same, under Service Tax. They are the company registered under Section 25 of Companies Act, 1956, in the state of Andhra Pradesh, with main object of carrying on the business of a Race Club in all its branches.

4. Department during the verification of books of accounts of the appellant, noticed that they have received amounts for various taxable services rendered by them. However, no Service Tax liability has been discharged. The details of various services rendered by them were observed as follows:

i) M/s. HRC have rented out space/immovable property to ING Vyasya Bank and to the caterers appointed by the Club;

ii) have also collected entrance fee from the members of the Club;

iii) have provided infrastructural support facilities to the Book makers operating in the club premises;

iv) have provided live telecast of races of other centers/ Race Clubs;

v) have conducted Inter venue betting of the other racing clubs on which the club was receiving a share of income and

vi) have permitted the Book makers to accept bets from the customers on which the club was receiving a share of income.

5. On being pointed out, service tax liability qua the services at Sl. No.(i) & (ii), as above, was discharged by the appellant though under protest, but the liability qua the remaining services has not been discharged. Resultantly, the respective show cause notices as mentioned above for the above mentioned respective periods were issued to the appellants proposing the respective demands alongwith the interest at the appropriate rate and the proportionate penalties. The said demands were confirmed by the adjudicating authority below alongwith the interest at appropriate rate and the proportionate penalties. Being aggrieved the appellant is before this Tribunal.

6. We have heard Shri Y. Srinivas Reddy, ld. Advocate for the appellant and Mr. C. Mallikarjun Reddy, ld. D.R. for the Department.

7. It is submitted on behalf of the appellants that the show cause notice has not appropriately considered the nature of activity, the prospective of the same, documents on record, the scope of activities undertaken and the nature of activity involved but is based on assumptions, presumptions and surmises, which all has been confirmed by the adjudicating authority below. The same is impressed upon, as the important ground for setting aside the impugned order. It is submitted that M/s. Hyderabad Race Club is an Institution registered under Section 25 of the Companies Act, 1956 in the State of Andhra Pradesh with the main object of carrying on the business of Race Club in all its branches. It conducts the Horse Races and is also governed by the provisions of Andhra Pradesh (Telungana Area) Horse Racing and Betting Tax Regulations 1358 F. It is submitted that appellant does not involve in betting but facilitates the better at the "totalizator" which is a machine connected to a server. Betting can be done by the punters either at the said totalizator or with the "book-makers". Book makers/Bookies are the persons, who are given license by the club to operate as book/bet at the races. They collect bids and pay price money to the punters, who bet on winning horses. It is submitted that these book makers act independently and in a sense are the competitors to the appellant.

8. It is further impressed upon that as per the aforesaid regulations these bookies have to operate from the premises of the appellant and an enclosure, accordingly, is provided to the bookies in the appellant's club where the race is actually conducted in the appellant premises or is telecasted in case the race is conducted in the club other than the appellant's club. The appellant charges fee from the bookies in two components one is fixed amount under the head "stall fee" and the other is a variable amount under the head "commission" which is the percentage of the betting amounts collected by such bookies. However, both these amounts are collected towards the stall fee only. It is submitted giving stalls on rent is not business support service and therefore, the demand is liable to be set aside. It is further submitted that the adjudicating authority below has held that the appellant has provided the services of auditing of books of these bookies which amounts to providing Business Support Services but the findings are alleged as wrong. As the book-makers themselves have not outsourced any of the activity, the auditors are engaged by the appellant only to avoid illegal betting by the bookies, so that the auditor of the appellant may get the details of the betting amount and the tax collected by the bookies. However, the nominal amount collected from the bookies as auditor charges are paid to the auditor. Since the appellant is not retaining any amount from these audit charges, the activity of auditing cannot be called as Business Support Service. Otherwise also, the entire amount collected is in lieu of the stall being provided to the appellant, the stall-fee cannot be called as an amount charged for rendering Business Support Service.

9. With respect to the income with respect to live telecast of races, it is submitted that appellant allows other race clubs to give live telecast of the races conducted at the appellants place for which they get share of income from the other clubs and vice versa the appellants pays such share of income to such other club whose race is agreed to be telecasted at the appellants club (inter-venue betting). In this transaction, no service is provided to the bookies, hence, the demand is alleged to wrongly been confirmed under Business Support Services.

10. With respect to the amounts received towards royalty from the caterers, the same is denied to be treated as rent and as such to be classified under Renting of Immovable Property Services. It is submitted that appellant is providing the common/shared areas and facilities to the caterers inside the club premises against an agreement that caterers shall pay the club is specific consideration in form of royalty since no year mark space is provided to the caterers. The said royalty received has wrongly been classified as the money received for providing renting of immovable property services. Appellant has relied upon the Royal Western India Turf Club Ltd. vs. CST, Mumbai reported in 2015 (38) STR 811 (Tri. Mum.).

11. With these submissions, the demand confirmed for the respective activities under the respective category, i.e., BSS & RIPS qua caterers is alleged as highly unreasonable and accordingly, is prayed to be set aside. Learned Counsel has relied upon Royal Western India Turf Club Ltd. Vs. Commissioner of Service Tax, Mumbai reported in 2015 (38) S.T.R. 811 (Tri.–Mumbai) to impress that the issue is no more res integra. Board Circular No. 334/4/2006-TRU dated 28.02.2006 and Circular No. 109/3/2009-ST dated 23.02.2009 is also relied upon. Appeals, accordingly, are prayed to be allowed.

12. While rebutting these arguments, it is submitted by the ld. D.R. that admittedly the appellants are receiving two different amounts, one in the name of stall fee towards the enclosure/ space provided by the appellant to their licensed bookies and another is the commission at the rate of certain percentage of the revenue collected. It is impressed upon that the said commission cannot be categorized as stall fee, as is submitted by the appellant, as the same is with respect to other support services, as that of auditing, facility of live telecast, facility of caterer etc. being provided to the said licensed bookies in the appellant’s club. Hence, the commission is the consideration for providing the Business Support Service by the appellant as such the demand has rightly been confirmed.

13. Coming to the royalty charges as received by the caterers are since the caterers are admittedly serving the food stuff in the premises of the appellant under an agreement entered into between the two, the same definitely amounts to providing a space in the appellant’s premises and hence, the said royalty has rightly been confirmed to be the consideration against providing the Renting of Immovable Property Service to the said caterer. As such, there is no infirmity in the order under challenge. The appeal is accordingly, prayed to be dismissed.

14. After hearing both the parties and perusing the entire record of the impugned appeals, we are of the opinion as follows:-

The Appellants are receiving the amount from their licensed bookies and the caterers on the following counts:-

1) Book makers stall fee
2) Commission from book-makers:
   (i) For inter-venue betting
   (ii) Consideration for live telecast, and;
3) Royalty from caterers

15. The first two counts are alleged to be the Business Support Services being provided by the appellant to their licensed bookies and the third one is held to be the consideration in lieu of providing Renting of Immovable Property Services to the caterer. To adjudicate whether these have rightly been classified by the adjudicating authority or not, we first need to look into the definitions of Business Support Service under Section 65 (104c) of the Finance Act, 1994 and Renting of Immovable Property under Section 65 (90a) of the Finance Act, 1994 which reads as follows:-

"Support Services of Business or Commerce" means services provided in relation to business or commerce and includes evaluation of prospective customers, telemarketing, processing of purchase orders and fulfilment services, information and tracking of delivery schedules, managing distribution and logistics, customer relationship management services, accounting and processing of transactions, operational assistance for marketing, formulation of customer service and pricing policies, infrastructural support services and other transaction processing.

Explanation - For the purposes of this clause, the expression "infrastructural support services" includes providing office along with office utilities, lounge, reception with competent personnel to handle messages, secretarial services, internet and telecom facilities, pantry and security; (Section 65(104c) of the Finance Act, 1994)

"Taxable Service" means any service provided or to be provided to any person, by any other person, in relation to support services of business or commerce, in any manner; (Section 65 (105) (zzzz) of the Finance Act, 1994)

16. As per Sec. 65 (105) (zzzz) of the Finance Act, 1994, the taxable service under the category of "Renting of immovable property service" – means service rendered to any person, by any other person by renting of immovable property or any other service in relation to such renting, for use in the course of or for furtherance of business or commerce;

Explanation 1 – For the purpose of this sub-clause, "immovable property" includes –

i) Building and part of a building, and the land appurtenant thereto;

ii) Land incidental to the use of such building or part of a building;

iii) The common or shared areas and facilities relating thereto; and

iv) In case of a building located in a complex or an industrial estate, all common areas and facilities relating thereto within such complex or estate,

v) Vacant land given on lease or licence for construction of building or temporary structure at a later stage to be used for furtherance of business or commerce;

Explanation 2 – For the purposes of this sub-clause, an immovable property partly for use in the course or furtherance of business or commerce and partly for residential or any other purposes shall be deemed to be immovable property for use in the course or furtherance of business or commerce.

The period involved in three of these appeals is pre as well as post negative list era.

17. Coming to the pre-negative list period first, we adjudicate as follows:-

Definition of Business Support Service, as above, makes it abundantly clear that any service which is in relation to business or commerce and helps in enhancement of business amounts to Business Support Service. Even the infrastructural support provided to run a business is a Business Support Service. In the present case from the license as given by the appellant to the bookmaker, it is abundantly clear that the appellant while providing an enclosure/stall in the appellant’s race club to the bookies is providing as space to him to run his business of booking bets from the bunters available within the premises of the appellants’ Club. The bet has to be on the Races being conducted by the Club in its premises. Hence, providing a space in the Club to such a book-maker is nothing but a facility being given for him to properly run his business and in fact, to have more business. The said service is, therefore, in relation to the business of bookie and thus definitely amounts to Infrastructural Support being provided to the booker by the appellant which is well covered under explanation to Section 65(104C) Finance Act defining BSS. Admittedly, appellant is receiving some stall fee towards the said Infrastructural Support Service. Definitely since the premises are to aid the business of bookie and the arrangement is such that in absence of the premises the question of book-maker to conduct his business does not at all arise. Then this service provided by Club to him is not merely a renting of immovable property as has been held in the case of M/s. Royal Western India Turf Club Ltd. (supra). It definitely amounts to Business Support Service.
18. The facts of the present case are different from M/s. Royal Western India Turf Club Ltd. (supra) case in the terms that of providing stall to the bookie in the club to be Show cause notice in Royal Western India Turf case alleged this service to be taxable under the category of renting of immovable property, where the Tribunal held that it is more an infrastructural support than mere Renting of Immovable Property. In the present case, the show cause notice has been issued alleging that said service to be a Business Support Service. Hence applying the said decision, we hold that the appellant has wrongly interpreted the decision. No doubt, demand under renting of immovable property as far as the stall fee is concerned is not maintainable but the said demand is well maintainable under Business Support Service defined under Section 65(104C) of Finance Act, 1994.

19. Coming to the demands with respect to the charges received by the appellant from the bookies in the name of commission, but for providing Inter-venue Betting Services, Auditing Services, live telecast services and for the catering services being available to the book-makers. As already discussed above, in the given arrangement, the bookmaker can run his business if and only if the Club is able to provide him the aforementioned services. This is sufficient for us to hold that the services are nothing, but the services are provided by appellants in relation to the business of the book-makers. The admission that accounting facility has also been provided by the appellant to the book-makers corroborates the aforesaid opinion. The arguments of the appellant that auditors were provided only to discharge their statutory liability of maintaining the proper accounts and the charges collected from the book-makers against the auditors fee were handed over as such to the auditors does not appear reasonable, as there is nothing on record that in addition to stall fee and the commission amount, as mentioned in the impugned license any other amount has been paid by the book-maker to the appellant. All these activities when taken together are covered under the definition of Business Support Service, as mentioned above. Hence, we do not find any infirmity in the order of the adjudicating authority below while confirming these demands.

20. The decision of M/s. Royal Western India Turf Club Ltd. (supra) again is not applicable to the present case because in that case the demand for the live telecast facility was alleged to be a Broadcasting service, which came into tax-net only in the year 2010 and the demand in that case was pre 2010. With respect to this service to be an Intellectual Property Right Service, the Tribunal has held that the demand for such service can be raised only when there is a transfer of Intellectual Property Rights by the holder of such rights to the person who receives or uses the said Intellectual Property Rights. In the present case, there is no transfer of Intellectual Property Rights from the appellant Club to the book-maker though there may be such service between the two Clubs where Race is being conducted in one Club and is being telecasted in another Club but the said transaction is not the subject matter of the present show cause notice. It becomes clear that the service of live telecast provided by the appellantClub to the bookie is neither a Broadcasting service nor an Intellectual Property Right Service. But it is definitely a Business Support Service for the bookmaker provided by the appellant club. Hence, we hold that demand has rightly been confirmed.

21. The Circular No. 334/4/2006-TRU dated 28.02.2006 is also opined to have been wrongly interpreted. We are of the opinion that mere use of word "outsourc"e in that Circular does not alter the definition of Business Support Service as being given in the statute. Therefore, the argument of the appellant that if the bookmaker has not outsourced the services to the Club, the services cannot be Business Support Service, is not acceptable. It has already been observed that the services which have been received by the book-maker from the appellant Club are the Infrastructural Support for which the appellant is receiving the stall fee and the support of Accountancy, Customer Relationship (bun ters being available to the book-maker within the appellant’s Club), Inter-venue betting and the structural support in the form of live telecast for the same all combined together are definitely the Business Support Services being provided by the Club to the book-makers. Thus, we are of the firm opinion that the demands in hand have rightly been confirmed and that the same is not in contradiction to M/s. Royal Western India Turf Club Ltd. (supra) case.

22. Finally, coming to the demand for providing services to the caterers. The said demand has been confirmed under the head of Renting of Immovable Property. Admittedly, the caterer is allowed to roam around in the entire premises of the appellant to offer the food and the catering services. The appellant has provided a space to the caterer to put his staff within the Clubs premises. Thus, in the case of caterer, the Club is not providing any other service either in the form of cutlery crockery or in the form of serving boys. Hence, the service provided by the appellant is merely Renting of Immovable Property Service. In Royal Western India Turf Club Ltd. case, the said service was alleged and confirmed by the adjudicating authorities as Business Support Service, but was held to be Renting of Immovable Property Service. The present show cause notice has proposed the demand for service provided to the caterer as Renting of Immovable Property Service only. Hence, irrespective the facts of the present case and Royal Western India Turf Club Ltd. case are similar but the proposal in show cause notice for the M/s. Royal Western India Turf Club Ltd. (supra) case and the present case is altogether different. Hence, the adjudication is not completely binding on the facts and circumstances of the present case.

23. For the period which is post negative list era i.e. beyond the year 2012. Value of all the services other than those services specified in negative list, provided or agreed to be provided in the taxable territory by one person to another shall be levied to tax, as is emphasized in Section 66 B, which was introduced with Finance Act, 2012. Hence, for the post negative list era, the services need not to be classified specifically. Whenever there is a service rendered and a consideration in lieu thereof, in whatever form, has been received, the same is leviable to tax. In the present case, admittedly, the book-makers were provided a space inside the appellants' premises. The appellant.... was arranging a live telecast of the Matches conducted in the Race Clubs other than the appellants' own Club, appellant was also providing auditing facility and the catering services were also made available to the book-makers within the appellants' premises. Admittedly, the appellant was charging money from the book-makers on two counts; a fixed amount for stall fee and a profit based amount as commission. These admissions make it abundantly clear that both the requirements of Section 66B stands fulfilled. Hence, we are of the opinion that there is no infirmity in confirmation of demand for the post negative period as well.

24. In view of the entire above discussion, we are of the opinion that the demand qua receiving stall fee and commission from the bookies for services in relation to business including infrastructural support as consideration received for providing Business Support Service to the bookmakers and qua receiving charges from caterers to roam in the appellant's premises as consideration for providing Renting of Immovable property Service has rightly been confirmed. Thus, there is no infirmity in the order under challenge. Order is accordingly, upheld. Appeals are hereby rejected.

Per: Rachna Gupta:

The appellant herein M/s Ushodaya Enterprises Pvt Ltd (UEPL) is a division of Ramoji Film City Rangareddy Distt who is operating satellite T.V. channels. Department while verifying the ledgers of M/s UEPL observed that they have paid hire charges for the purpose of lease/rent of transponders which are attached to satellite owned by M/s Intelsat Global Sales and Marketing Ltd., England (IGSML) and that the said transponders are used by the appellant for providing broadcasting services. The said hire charges observed to have been paid in terms of lease service contract between M/s UEPL and IGSML on 18.02.2004 for hiring their transponders attached to satellite No. Apr-I for the following periods
1st July 2003 to 31st May 2007
1st July 2003 to 9th February 2008
1st July 2003 to 9th February 2011.

The department was of the opinion that the service of providing transponders on hire basis by IGSML to UEPL appears to be classifiable under Business Support Services inviting tax liability from 1st May 2006 onwards resultantlly a show-cause notice No. 215/2010-ST dated 24.03.2010 as was received by the appellant on 7.04.2011 was served upon M/s UEPL proposing to recover the service tax amounting to Rs 3,79,26,213/- for the period from 2006-07 to 2009-10 along with interest at the appropriate rate and the proportionate penalty. This proposal has been confirmed by the Commissioner vide his order-in-original No. 15/2011 dated 30th June 2011 holding that the hire charges paid by the appellant to M/s IGSML for leasing of three numbers of transponders attached to the satellite owned by IGSML are liable towards service tax as the said value is received in lieu of providing business support service by the appellant to M/s IGSML. The proposal for recovery of interest and imposition of penalty was also confirmed. It is to assail the said order being aggrieved thereof that the appellant is before this Tribunal.

2. We have heard Shri M.V.S. Sridhar learned advocate for the appellant and Shri A.V.L.N. Chary learned A.R. for the department. It is submitted on behalf of the appellant that transponders attached to the satellites are in the form of a machine and as such are goods. Websters Dictionary and Chambers Dictionary has been emphasised for the purpose. It is submitted that hiring of such transponders with ownership to still to remain with the owner i.e. IGSML amounts to transfer of right to use the goods. It is further emphasised that as for amendment of Article 366 of Constitution of India in the year 1983 Transfer of right to use goods has been included in the definition of sale. Thus transfer of right to use even without transfer of ownership of property is deemed as a sale. Accordingly hire/lease of goods is a deemed sale and is liable to sales tax. Thus hiring of transponder of satellite can never be a case of providing taxable service. The findings of adjudicating authority are mainly assailed on the reasons above. Learned counsel has placed his reliance upon the decision of Hon’ble High of Karnataka in the case of Antrix Corporation Ltd Vs AssttCommr of Commercial Taxes Bangalore [2016(337)ELT 530(Kar)] wherein transponder of satellite was held to be goods within the meaning of Article 366(12) of Constitution of India and the hiring thereof is held to be a deemed sale as being within the scope of sub-clause (d) of Clause 29(a) of Article 366 of the Constitution of India.

3. In addition to the arguments on merits of the appeal, learned counsel has impressed upon the impugned show-cause notice to be barred by limitation as has been issued by invoking longer period of limitation. It is a fact that there is no allegation of suppression of facts, fraud, collusion, wilful mis-statement, contravention of rules with and intention to evade payment of tax. Learned counsel has brought to our notice a letter of the department bearing No. DL/SC/AE/INQ/GR.1(2)/82/09/42/28273 dated 28.12.2009 issued from the Commissionerate of Service Tax, New Delhi acknowledging the fact about appellants paying hire charges on the transponders. Thus the issue was in their notice since then, the demand vide the impugned show-cause notice cannot be allowed to be extended beyond a period of one year as being permissible period of limitation. Reliance has been placed upon the following judgements:

i) Commissioner of Central Excise & cus Daman Vs Arti Industries Ltd [2008(229)ELT 667 (Tri-Ahmd)]

ii) Athungal Sales Corporation Vs CCE Cochin [2008(11)STR 40 (Tri-Bang)]

In addition, it is submitted that even if for the sake of argument the hire charges for transponder are acknowledged to be liable to service tax, the same could have been availed by the appellant as CENVAT Credit since the transponder is an input in the output broadcasting services of the appellant as such it will be revenue neutral situation resulting into no loss to the govt. Learned A.R. while justifying the order in challenge has impressed upon that the transaction of leasing of transponders between the appellant and M/s IGSML is in the nature of import due to the reason that the later has no office in the territory of India. It is rather based in a foreign country. As such the question of attracting sales tax/VAT on such a transaction does not at all arise. It otherwise is an admitted fact the services of leasing of the said transponder rendered by M/s IGSML are in the nature of support services to the business of broadcasting undertaken by the appellant as the leased space in the transponder is used by the assessee to transmit the signals which are amplified and sent back for broadcasting. As such hire charges paid by M/s UEPL for the purpose was rightly been held to be liable to service tax under the category of business support service. Finally justifying the confirmation of demand along with the order of recovery of interest and imposition of penalty, learned A.R. has prayed for dismissal of the impugned appeal. After hearing both the parties, the rival contentions thereof and perusing the entire record we understand that the admitted transaction between the appellant and M/s IGSML is about hire/lease of transponders, a part of the satellite owned by M/s IGSML. The said transaction is asserted to be transaction of deemed sale in view of Article 366(29A) (d) of Constitution of India, a transponder being in the nature of goods. Whereas department has alleged the transaction to be an activity amounting to service called as business support service being rendered by the owner of the satellite/transponder to the appellant who is doing a business of broadcasting. For the purpose, we foremost need to understand as to what transponder is. From the definitions given in Websters as well as Chambers dictionary as relied upon by the appellant, transponder appears to be a segment in a satellite which orbits the earth. Transponder is an electronic equipment which receives signals from one such communication circuit and transmits corresponding signal to another circuit. It can simply be called a transmitter-cum-receiver which transmits signal. A satellite may have number of transponders. Tribunal Mumbai in the case of Set India Pvt Ltd Vs Commissioner of Customs Cochin [2003(152)ELT 190(Tri-Mum)] has already held satellite as a whole to be a machine and accordingly the goods. From the definition of goods given under sale of goods Act 1930, Section 2(7) thereof the goods are defined as all types of movable property other than ................. The inclusive part of the definition includes stock and shares, growing crops attached to or forming part of the land which are required to be severed before sale or under the contract of sale.

4. Once this becomes apparent status of transponder it becomes relevant for us to proceed adjudicating whether the hire and lease thereof in the given circumstances as to deemed sale in furtherance of Article 366 of Constitution of India sub-clause (29A(d) thereof. The said article was incorporated vide 46th Amendment of the Constitution in the year 1983 based on 61st report of law commission that the Constitution conferred exclusive power to the states to levy sales tax by explaining entry 54 list 2 by insertion of this article 366(29A) i.e. the subject matter of hire purchase and leasing was constitutionally characterised as deemed sale. It was clarified that the deemed sale was no more open to be taxed by the parliament under Entry No. 97 List (1). The said opinion was confirmed by the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of K.L. Johar ...........

5. Though learned counsel has relied upon the decision of Hon'ble High court of Karnataka in the case of Antrix Corporation Ltd (supra) a wholly owned Govt of India Company holding that the providing of space segment capacity in the transponder attached to the satellite belonging to M/s Insat a Company based in India with the company which is also within the State of Karnataka (India) but in view of the above discussion, we are of the opinion that the said very fact is sufficient enough to distinguish the present case from M/s Antrix Corporation Ltd (supra) because as here one out of the two parties is situated outside the territory of India which is why the transaction between the two cannot be called as deemed sale.

6. Once the transaction is within the scope of sale and admittedly the transponder is hired by the appellant from M/s IGSML for supporting his business of broadcasting we are of the opinion that department has rightly categorised the said transaction as an activity being provide by M/s IGSML to M/s UEPL in view of supporting the business of the later classifying it as a business support service.

7. Irrespective of those findings we are unable to accept the demand confirmed as a whole in view of the ground of limitation raised by the appellant. We observe that period of dispute is with effect from 2006-07 to 2009-10. The show-cause notice was received by the appellant only on 7th of April 2011 though it appears to have been issued on 24.03.2010 but we observe that department could not have produced any document of it to have been dispatched within the reasonable time or about the service thereof on the date other than as mentioned by the appellant. From the letter given by the appellant to the department in April 2011 itself which has duly been acknowledged by the department without objecting the date of receipt as mentioned therein, we have no reason to hold that the show-cause is beyond the prescribed period of limitation. We observe that the appellant admittedly were getting audited by the department with no such objection ever raised by the department. Department rather had served a letter dated 22.12.2009 upon the appellant asking for clarify on the notice. The subsequent show-cause notice cannot propose the demand for a period beyond one year of the period in dispute nor can raise the allegation as that of suppression of facts or misstatement on the part of appellant that too with an intention to evade the tax. In these circumstances, the Proviso to Section 73 of the Finance Act extending the said period of limitation from one year to five years could not have been invoked by the department. In view of these findings, we are of the opinion that the impugned show cause notice is barred by limitation. Coming to the last limb of argument about revenue neutral situation, we observe that once the value of hire charges paid by the appellant to the service provider is available to the credit thereof in case such a value is categorised as service tax, there remains no question of any loss to the exchequer and the situation can very well be categorized as revenue neutral situation. As the facts are indicating absence of intention to evade tax in the circumstances, question of imposition of penalty does not at all arise nor that of recovering the interest while drawing our support from the decision of the Tribunal Bangalore in the case of Athungal Sales Corporation Vs Commissioner of Customs Excise [2008(11)STR 40] we are of the opinion that imposition of penalty in this case is rather a harsh decision.

8. In view of the entire case position, though we are not convinced that the argument of the appellant that the impugned transaction is the transaction as that of deemed sale, rather we are confirming the observation of the department for it to amount an activity as that of business support services being received by the appellant but would have been liable to discharge the liability of service tax under reverse charge mechanism but for the show-cause notice being barred by time, we are of the opinion that the demand has still been confirmed. For these reasons, we set aside the impugned demand. As a result the appeals stand allowed.

(Order pronounced and dictated in open court)
1. This appeal has been filed against the Order-in-Original No. 15/2009 (RS)dt.20.11.2009.

2. Heard both sides and perused the records.

3. The appellant is a Multi-disciplinary Engineering & Construction firm engaged in civil, electrical and mechanical works, civil construction projects and infrastructural facilities. They entered into an agreement with the Government of Andhra Pradesh on 06.10.1999 according to which they had to construct a bridge across Gowtami branch of river Godavari between Yanam&Yedurulanka(Y-Y Bridge) on Build-Operate-Transfer (BOT) basis. As per the agreement they were supposed to conduct survey, investigation, studies, planning, design and construct a bridge and maintain it. They were allowed to collect a fee till the recovery of investment is made after which they were supposed to hand it over to the Government of Andhra Pradesh. The estimated total cost of the project was ₹110 crores, of which the Government of Andhra Pradesh gave them a subsidy of ₹69 crores while the rest of the investment had to be made by the appellant. The appellant was entitled to collect a fee on the motor vehicles and users of the bridge during the concessionaire period of 15 years. The salient features of this agreement were as follows:

   a. M/s NEC is permitted to levy fee (toll) for a concession period of 15 years during which period they are also liable for maintaining the facility.

   b. The fee to be collected by M/s NEC is to be retained by them as a nominee of GOAP during the concession period.

   c. M/s NEC should not attempt to assign the project to others.

   d. M/s NEC is permitted to develop way-side facilities like advertisements, hoardings etc., to generate revenue during the BOT period.

   e. The land along with the properties and fee booths etc., so developed by M/s NEC to be handed over to GOAP after the expiry of BOT period.

   f. The ownership of the bridge continues to vest with the GOAP.

   g. M/s NEC shall maintain the project/facility during the period of operation.

4. Para 3.1.1 of the agreement specifically prohibited the appellant from assigning their rights under the agreement to any party other than the financial institutions financing this project.

5. Despite such explicit prohibition of assignment, the appellant formed a 100% subsidiary company by name of M/s Godavari Toll Bridge Pvt Ltd (GTBPL) and transferred the rights to collect toll and maintain the bridge for a consideration. The transferee, GTBPL had been issuing receipts in the name of the appellants themselves and collecting user fee from the users of the bridge and motor vehicles. Revenue was of the opinion that the service being rendered by GTBPL by way of maintaining the toll bridge and allowing its use was being done in the name of the appellants. As per section 65(105)(zze) of Chapter 5 of the Finance Act, 1994, “taxable service” means any service provided or to be provided to franchisee by the franchisor in relation to franchise. The term “franchise” has been defined in section 65(47) as “franchise means an agreement by which the franchisee is granted representational right to sell or manufacture goods or to provide service or undertake any process identified with the franchisor, whether or not a trade mark, service mark, trade name or logo or any such symbol, as the case may be, is involved”. The term “franchisor” is defined under section 65(48) as “franchisor means any person who enters into franchise with a franchisee and includes any associate of franchisor or a person designated by franchisor to enter into franchise on his behalf and the term “franchisee” shall be construed accordingly”. As the appellant had allowed GTBPL to provide service in their name and the invoices were also being issued in the appellant’s name, this falls under the definition of franchise service in terms of section 65(105)(zze) of the Finance Act, 1994. Accordingly, a show cause notice was issued on 03.06.2008 to the appellant calling upon them to explain as to why:

i. The service provided by them to GTBPL in relation to transfer of rights over Y-Y bridge, to collect toll etc., should not be classified as taxable services relating to franchise service under section 65(105) (zze) of the Finance Act, 1994;

ii. An amount of ₹ 12,50,00,000/- being the service tax payable on the franchise service rendered to GTBPL should not be demanded from them under section 73(1) of the Finance Act, 1994 read with the proviso contained therein;

iii. An amount of ₹ 25,00,000/- being the Education Cess payable franchise service rendered to GTBPL should not be demanded from them under section 73(1) of the Finance Act, 1994 read with the proviso contained therein; iv. Interest should not be demanded from them under section 75 of the Finance Act, 1994; and

v. Penalty should not be imposed on them under section 76, 77 & 78 of the Finance Act, 1994.

6. The appellant contested the demand on merits as well as on limitation. After following due process, the learned Commissioner by the impugned order held that service provided by the appellant to GTBPL is a franchise service in terms of section 65(105)(zze) of the Finance Act, 1994. Accordingly, she confirmed the demand of service tax amounting to ₹ 12,50,00,000/- under the proviso to section 73(1) of the Finance Act, 1994. She also confirmed the demand of Education Cess of ₹ 25 lakhs along with interest under section 75 of the Finance Act, 1994. Further she imposed a penalty of ₹ 12,75,00,000/- upon the appellant under section 78 of the Finance Act, 1994.

7. Aggrieved, the present appeal is filed by the appellant on the following grounds:

a) The OIO has been passed by the learned Commissioner without appreciating the factual position and legal provisions in proper perspective and therefore, needs to be set aside.

b) The arrangements between the appellant and the GTBPL are not covered under the taxable category of franchise service as there is no franchisor, franchisee relation between the appellants and GTBPL. M/s GTBPL being 100% subsidiary of the company is their associate and not a franchisee. The term “franchisor” means any person, enters into franchise with franchisee and includes any associate of franchisor. Therefore, GTBPL is their associate and hence is covered by the definition of franchisor and therefore, they cannot be a franchisee also at the same time.

c) No service has been provided or is to be provided by the appellant to GTBPL. They only have assigned the right to collect toll and maintain the bridge to GTBPL which is a special purpose vehicle floated by them only for this purpose. They have sold their consideration for the remaining concession period of 11 ½ years through a Board Resolution by their Board of Directors and it has been accepted by a Board Resolution of the GTBPL.

d) The franchisee service necessarily requires a representational right to be given to the franchisee. The right indicates an entitlement to do or an authority to take action which is legally enforceable i.e., a party must be able to go to court and assert that a right exists in his favour. In the instant case the appellants had sold their right to GTBPL and hence there is no relationship that of a principal and an agent. GTBPL is collecting toll pursuant to the purchase of the right from the appellants. If GTBPL is collecting toll on behalf of the appellant as an agent then toll proceeds must flow back to the appellant and GTBPL should only get a commission from the toll. In this case, the entire toll proceeds are retained by GTBPL.

e) Maintenance of roads and bridges is the sovereign function of the state and the same is identified with the state.

f) The right to collect toll is not representational right. In the instant case no rights were granted by the appellant to GTBPL for rendering any service which is identified by them.

g) The consideration received for construction of bridges is exempted from the service tax under the taxable category of works contract and the same cannot be taxed under a different head.

h) The value of the taxable service received otherwise than by way of money is not taxable prior to 18.04.2006.

i) Without prejudice to contest the case on merits, the value of service should be taken as cum-tax value.

j) The demand is time barred and there is no evidence of fraud, collusion, wilful misstatement or suppression of facts or contravention of the Act or Rules with intent to evade payment of service tax.

k) There was a bonafide belief that no service tax is payable under franchise service. It involves interpretation of the law and therefore, extended period of limitation cannot be invoked.

l) No interest is payable as demand itself is not sustainable.

m) No penalties are imposable as it is question of bonafide belief in interpretation of law.

8. Learned counsel for the appellant reiterated the above submissions and vehemently argued that they have transferred their right to collection of toll to their own subsidiary. It is true that the subsidiary was collecting toll and issuing receipts in their own name until the investigations began. Thereafter, they started issuing toll receipts in their own name.
He would assert that by no stretch of imagination can this be called a franchisee agreement as in the first place, no service was provided or service charge is collected. GTBPL has only collected toll fee from the users of the bridge. They have received an amount towards transfer of such right for collection of toll fee. Therefore, it cannot be called a franchisee service at all.

9. He would also argue that the consideration in this case was paid in the form of allotment of equity shares which, prior to 18.04.2006, cannot be considered as a consideration paid for the service. He also argued that if the case is decided against them on merits, they must be given the cum-tax benefit. He, further, argued that the demand was time barred and no penalties must be imposed.

10. Learned Special Counsel for the revenue would submit that the appellant was permitted to collect toll fee as a nominee of the Government of Andhra Pradesh for a period of 15 years and retain the amount so collected. They were required to maintain the projector facility during the period of operation. Theyw erenot entitled to assign the project to anybody else.

Both the bridge and the booths were to be handed over to the Government of Andhra Pradesh after a period of 15 years. The appellant collected fees and maintained the bridge up to 31.03.2006 and thereafter for the remaining 11 ½ years of the concession agreement they transferred this right to GTBPL. Along with the right to collect the toll, they have also transferred the responsibility of maintenance and use of the property in such manner as may be beneficial to the interest of the appellant.

11. For this transfer of right, the appellant was paid an amount of ₹ 125 crores. A statement of Shri K.R. Kishore, DGM of the appellant was recorded on 18.06.2008 in which he averred that the right to collect toll has been assigned to GTBPL and the concerned authorities of the Government of Andhra Pradesh were informed about it. He admitted that the toll fee receipts were issued in the name of the appellant but the amounts were accounted for in the name of GTBPL. Learned special counsel also takes the bench through copies of receipts issued from June, 2008 onwards by GTBPL in the name of the appellant until the investigations were initiated and thereafter, in their ownname.

12. He would submit that the department’s case is that appellant has given representational right to GTBPL in respect of Y-Y bridged concessionaire agreement which amounts to franchise service. The extended period of limitation has been correctly invoked as the fact that the rights have been transferred to GTBPL was not disclosed to the department at any stage. In fact, these were internal Board resolutions of the two companies i.e., the appellant and the GTBPL. The appellant are registrants of Service Tax and have been filing returns. At no point of time, have they disclosed these facts to the department, hence, they cannot plead bonafide belief.

13. As per clause (3) of agreement between the appellant and the Government of Andhra Pradesh, the appellant was permitted to assign its rights only to banks or financial institutions for financing the project and not to any other person or entity. Hence, any assignment of representational rights would require fresh agreement and no such agreement was produced. It is evident that appellant had done this assignment without taking the approval of the Government of Andhra Pradesh. As confirmed by Shri K.R. Kishore, as on June 2008 their activity was not ratified by the Government of Andhra Pradesh. They did not produce any letter from the Government of Andhra Pradesh in this respect.

14. The appellant has stated that in their offer dated May, 1999, they had intimated to the Government of Andhra Pradesh about the confirmation of a separate company. However, the agreement finally executed in October, 1999, specifically bars assigning the project to anybody else.

15. The assignment was, in real terms, an internal and private arrangement between the appellant and the GTBPL. M/s GTBPL was discharging the obligations cast on the appellant under the main contract for a consideration. One of the significant obligations was maintenance of the bridge for a period of 15 years.

16. The toll receipts were issued in the name of the appellant until the investigation began. Therefore, for 20 months, any toll payer dealing with GTBPL was given the impression that they were dealing with the appellant.

17. The appellant’s argument that the receipts were taken on the books of GTBPL and not transferred to them is immaterial because consideration for franchise was already paid to them in one go and the GTBPL was allowed to retain the proceeds and had to carry out the maintenance work for the next 11 ½ years.

18. In view of the above, appellant has been rightly regarded as franchisor and GTBPL as franchisee in terms of section 65(105)(zze).

19. The argument that the consideration received for construction of bridge is exempted from service tax under works contract is irrelevant because there is no demand at all on any amount received for construction of the bridge.

20. As far as the argument of value of taxable services received otherwise than by way of money was not taxable prior to 18.04.2006 is concerned, he argued that section 67 was substituted by the Finance Act, 2006 and it merely clarifies the methods of valuation of services under different situations. The expression “gross amount charged” is a comprehensive term. Besides, non-money transactions were not excluded from section 67 as it existed prior to 18.04.2006.

21. On the question of limitation, learned special counsel argued that appellants were not new to service tax regulations and they had registration of service tax. They were fully aware of the obligations under self assessment scheme. The agreement which they entered with GTBPL was a private arrangement which was not disclosed to the department. There was no precedent decision which could have lead them to believe that no service tax was payable in their case. There is nothing on record to show that the appellant had obtained any legal opinion or sought any clarifications from the department which could have lead them to believe that they are exempted from service tax. The argument that they sold their rights to GTBPL is not correct because it could not have done so under the contract with the Government of Andhra Pradesh. The purported change in the toll fee receipts after investigations have commenced is also indicative of their effort to suppress the fact of their intent to evade payment of tax. In view of the above, the appellant’s appeal has no merits and the demand needs to be confirmed along with interest and penalties imposed also need to be upheld.

22. We have considered the arguments on both sides and perused the records. Construction of roads and bridges is done by the Government either directly or sometimes it is done on Build-Operate-Transfer basis. In the latter case, the Government, instead of investing either the whole or part of the money itself, gives the responsibility to build the bridge to a private party and gives them the right to collect a user fee or toll fee, by whatever name called, from the users of the bridge. The user fee is allowed to be collected over a specified number of years after which the bridge is turned over to the Government. This scheme is known as Build-Operate-Transfer scheme. Evidently, a private company has no interest in building roads for public good. They do it as a profitable business venture. Where a bridge or road is required and it is not there, it is profitable for the public to have such a bridge or road built and maintained. In return for the use of such road or bridge, they pay a consideration in the form of toll fee. However, like in the case of any licenses, there is an element of monopoly in this and therefore, the amounts which can be collected are regulated by the Government. Nevertheless, the fact remains that the user of the bridge is a consumer of the service and for the enjoyment of the facility he pays a consideration to the company which builds and maintains the bridge.

23. In this case, the Government of Andhra Pradesh has assigned the construction of this bridge to the appellants. They allowed them to collect user fee as per the schedule in the agreement. In addition, the Government of Andhra Pradesh also gave them a subsidy of ₹69 crores towards construction of the bridge. The total estimated cost of the bridge was ₹110 crores. The appellant was expected to get the remaining investment and recovered the same and profits through toll fee collected over a period of 15 years.

24. It is very clear from the agreement that the Government of Andhra Pradesh allowed the appellant to assign their rights and responsibilities under the agreement only to the financial institutions which finance their project and not to anybody else. There is no whisper of separate subsidiary company being formed and taking over this particular project in the agreement. Thus, we have no doubt that the agreement had prohibited assigning the rights and responsibilities to the appellant on to any other company. However, the appellant formed a separate legal entity in the form of 100% subsidiary and assigned their rights and responsibilities under the agreement to them in exchange for an amount received in the form of taking over debt and assigning some shares. The value of both these debt and the shares has been quantified and is specifically included in the arrangement between appellant and their subsidiary, M/s GTBPL. Thus, the amount received as consideration for assigning these rights and responsibilities is evident.

25. There is nothing on record to show that the Government of Andhra Pradesh has modified any of the terms of the agreement so as to permit such assignment to third party. Evidently, this has been done behind the back of the Government of Andhra Pradesh. The DGM of the appellant firm had, in a statement, indicated that they have informed the Government of Andhra Pradesh but there is nothing on record to show that this assignment has been approved by the Government of Andhra Pradesh or the agreement has been modified. Thus, the arrangement between the appellant and GTBPL was not disclosed to the Government of Andhra Pradesh. It was also not disclosed to the Revenue in this case to enable them to examine the arrangement from the service tax point of view. In fact, it was done through a Board resolution by the appellant company and accepted by another Board resolution by GTBPL. We, therefore, find that it was never an open arrangement and it had not come to light until intelligence was gathered and investigations were initiated by the Revenue.

26. In this case, the appellant was to provide services to the consumers in the form of maintaining the bridge and allowing its use for which they were entitled to collect remuneration in the form of toll fee. The toll fee, evidently was to be collected in the name of the appellant because they were entitled to collect it as per the agreement with the Government of Andhra Pradesh. This was the business model of the appellant as far as this project is concerned. The appellant had given this right to GTBPL who was rendering all the services which the appellant was required to render and was collecting fees which the appellant was entitled to collect. The receipts were also issued in the name of the appellant themselves. This changed only when the investigations had begun. Until these investigations had begun, every user of that bridge was given the impression that the appellant was rendering service and he was paying a fee for it. Similarly, the Government of Andhra Pradesh was also under the impression that the appellant was rendering service and was collecting fees as we understand from the agreement to which no changes have been produced before us. No document has been produced before us that the Government of Andhra Pradesh has either agreed to the arrangement between the GTBPL and the appellant or has concurred to it.

27. Thus, we find that, as far as both the Government of Andhra Pradesh and the users are concerned, the service which GTBPL was rendering was being rendered by the appellant and the fee which they were collecting was being collected by the appellant. This is akin to McDonald’s restaurant being run in a town by a franchisee. The consumer sees it as McDonald’s restaurant although it is actually being operated by the franchisee. In view of the above, we find that the appellant has provided franchisee service to GTBPL and had collected an amount towards it.

28. Learned counsel for the appellant argued that if they were rendering service the amounts collected as toll fee should have been transferred to them, whereas, GTBPL has actually taken these amounts in their accounts. We do not find much force in this argument. In a franchise agreement, the franchisor and franchisee can have any convenient method of financial arrangement. What is important is the service must be provided and the franchisor must allow franchisee to provide that service and collect the amounts. The franchisor and franchisee can have an arrangement where a portion of amount is paid to the franchisor on every transaction or they could have an arrangement of lump sum payment or any combination of two or any other suitable arrangement. In this case, the entire amount has been paid upfront in one go by the franchisee, GTBPL, to the appellant. Therefore, the entire toll fee is being retained by the franchisee, GTBPL.

29. It has also been argued by the learned counsel for the appellant that the amount was not paid in money. We do not find much force in this argument as the amount was indeed paid in terms of money. It is not necessary for the amount to be paid in cash whether prior to 2006 or thereafter. The money could be paid in the form of cash, cheques, drafts or any other acceptable form. What is important is that the amount must be paid and that amount must be a consideration for the service rendered. In this case both the franchisee taking over the liability of debt of the franchisor and paying an amount by way of shares has been quantified in terms of money and that is how the SCN has computed the demand. There is no doubt that the entire amount has been paid only for consideration of this service. There is no other arrangement in this case. Therefore, we find that the case is against the appellant on merits.

30. As far as the question of limitation is concerned, it can be invoked if there is fraud or collusion or wilful misstatement or suppression of facts or violation of Act or Rules with intent to evade payment of service tax. In this case, nothing was disclosed to the Revenue by the appellant either in their ST3 returns or by way of letters or intimation to the department. In fact, the agreement was entered into privately between the appellant and the franchisee GTBPL through Board resolutions. One reason for such an arrangement could be the express prohibition of assignment of contracts in the agreement entered into... with the Government of Andhra Pradesh. It is not for us to examine whether there was a violation of the agreement with the Government of Andhra Pradesh and its implications. We are merely concerned with the arrangement between the appellant and GTBPL which we have already held to be in the nature of franchise service. Evidently, nothing was disclosed to the department at any stage until the investigations revealed these facts. Therefore, we find sufficient grounds to invoke extended period of limitation in this case. For the same reasons, we find that the imposition of penalty under section 78 is also sustainable. As far as the question of valuation is concerned, we do find in favour of the assessee and any consideration which was received by the appellant must be considered as cum-tax value and accordingly, the service tax must be recomputed. For this limited reason, we remand the matter back to the original authority.

31. In view of the above, the appeal is disposed of as below:

   a) The demand of service tax invoking extended period of limitation along with interest is upheld.

   b) The service tax, however, must be computed taking the amounts received as cum-tax value.

   c) The imposition of penalty under section 78 is upheld.

   d) The appeal is remanded to the original authority for the limited purpose of computation of the service tax taking the amounts received as cum-tax values and corresponding changes in the interest and amount of penalty.

INTERIM ORDER NO. 3/2020

Per: P V Subba Rao:
This appeal is filed against order-in-revision No.01/2011(R)-Adjn ST(Commr) dated 11.03.2011. Heard both sides and perused the records.

2. Sections 84 & 86 of the Finance Act,1994 were amended with effect from 19.08.2009. Prior to this amendment as per Section 84 the Commissioner of Central Excise had the power to revise any order passed by an officer subordinate to him and pass an order-in-revision. An appeal against such orders-in-revision lay with the CESTAT under Section 86. To align these provisions with corresponding central excise provisions, both Sections 84 & 86 of the Finance Act were revised with effect from 19.08.2009. The power of the Commissioner of Central Excise to issue orders-in-revision has been replaced by a provision enabling the department to file an appeal with the Commissioner of Central Excise (Appeals). Corresponding changes have also been made to Section 86 providing for appeals to the Tribunal against orders-in-appeal passed by the Commissioner of Central Excise (Appeals).

3. When Section 84 was amended, an explanation was inserted therein to the effect that if any order was passed by the adjudicating officer subordinate to Commissioner of Central Excise before commencement of these (revised) provisions, they shall continue to be dealt with by the Commissioner of Central Excise as if this section had not been substituted. Thus, it was a saving clause which allowed the Commissioner to pass orders-in-revision even after 19.08.2009 if the original adjudication order was passed prior to the amendment. However, corresponding saving clause was not inserted in Section 86. Therefore, the question which arises is whether the CESTAT can entertain appeals in respect of orders passed after 19.08.2009 under the erstwhile Section 84 by orders-in-revision. The relevant provisions before amendment and after amendment were as follows:

Section 84 as it stood prior to amendment:

Revision of orders by the Commissioner of Central Excise.

84. (1) The Commissioner of Central Excise may call for the record of a proceeding under this Chapter in which an adjudicating authority subordinate to him has passed any decision or order and may make such inquiry or cause such inquiry to be made and, subject to the provisions of this Chapter, pass such order thereon as he thinks fit.
(2) No order which is prejudicial to the assessee shall be passed under this section unless the assessee has been given an opportunity of being heard.

(3) The Commissioner of Central Excise shall communicate the order passed by him under subsection (1) to the assessee, such adjudicating authority and the Board.

(4) No order under this section shall be passed by the Commissioner of Central Excise in respect of any issue if an appeal against such issue is pending before the Commissioner of Central Excise (Appeals).

(5) No order under this section shall be passed after the expiry of two years from the date on which the order sought to be revised has been passed.

Section 84 as it stood after amendment:

Appeals to Commissioner of Central Excise (Appeals)

84. (1) The Commissioner of Central Excise may, of his own motion, call for and examine the record of any proceedings in which an adjudicating authority subordinate to him has passed any decision or order under this Chapter for the purpose of satisfying himself as to the legality or propriety of any such decision or order and may, by order, direct such authority or any Central Excise Officer subordinate to him to apply to the Commissioner of Central Excise (Appeals) for the determination of such points arising out of the decision or order as may be specified by the Commissioner of Central Excise in his order.

(2) Every order under sub-section (1) shall be made within a period of three months from the date of communication of the decision or order of the adjudicating authority.

(3) Where in pursuance of an order under sub-section (1), the adjudicating authority or any other officer authorised in this behalf makes an application to the Commissioner of Central Excise (Appeals) within a period of one month from the date of communication of the order under subsection (1) to the adjudicating authority, such application shall be heard by the Commissioner of Central Excise (Appeals), as if such application were an appeal made against the decision or order of the adjudicating authority and the provisions of this Chapter regarding appeals shall apply to such application.

Explanation.-For the removal of doubts, it is hereby declared that any order passed by an adjudicating officer subordinate to the Commissioner of Central Excise immediately before the commencement of clause (C) of section 113 of the Finance (No. 2) Act, 2009, shall continue to be dealt with by the Commissioner of Central Excise as if this section had not been substituted.

Section 86 as it stood prior to amendment

Appeals to Appellate Tribunal.

86. (1) Any assessee aggrieved by an order passed by a Commissioner of Central Excise under section 73 or section 83A or section 84, or an order passed by a Commissioner of Central Excise (Appeals) under section 85, may appeal to the Appellate Tribunal.

Section 86 as it stood immediately after amendment

Appeals to Appellate Tribunal.

86. (1) Any assessee aggrieved by an order passed by a Commissioner of Central Excise under section 73 or section 83A, or an order passed by a Commissioner of Central Excise (Appeals) under section 85, may appeal to the Appellate Tribunal.

4. In this case, the relevant dates were as follows:

4.12.2008 Show cause notice
13.03.2009 JC's order-in-original
19.08.2009 Amendment to Sections 84 & 86
04.02.2010 Revision notice from Commissioner
16.04.2010 Reply to revision notice
11.03.2011 Order-in-revision (impugned order)

According to the learned counsel for the appellant, they are entitled to appeal before this Bench against the order-in-revision as per the order of the Bangalore Bench of CESTAT in the case of T.A. Pai Management Institute [2013(29)STR 577 (Tri-Bang)]. Relying on the provisions of General Clauses Act, it has been held that in terms of Section 6 clauses c & e of the General Clauses Act, the rights and privileges accrued under the repealed enactment will not be lost by the repeal of the Act itself. Therefore, the appellant has a right to appeal to the CESTAT even though there is no explicit savings clause in Section 86 of the Finance Act 1994.

5. Per contra learned A.R. relies on the order of the Mumbai Bench of CESTAT in the case of Commissioner of Service Tax Mumbai 1 Vs Zee Entertainment Enterprises Ltd [2017(47)STR 297(Tri-Mum)] in which the Tribunal has held that the Committee of Chief commissioners have no power to review an order-in-revision after amendment to Section 86 of the Finance Act 1994 and therefore dismissed the Revenue’s appeal as non-maintainable. Learned A.R. states that the ratio of this judgement should apply in the present case.

6. We have considered the arguments from both sides. We find that the orders of the Bangalore Bench of the Tribunal in the case of T.A. Pai Management Institute (supra) and Tribunal Mumbai in the case of Zee Entertainment Enterprises Ltd (supra) are contrary to each other. Both cases involve the question as to whether the Tribunal has a right to entertain appeals against orders-in-revision after 19.08.2009 in the absence of any explicit provisions by way of saving clause in section 86 of the Finance Act 1994. The only difference we find is that in the case of T.A. Pai (supra) it was the assessee who wanted to appeal before Tribunal Bangalore and the appeal was allowed as maintainable and in the case of Zee Entertainment Enterprises (supra) the Revenue wanted to appeal before the Tribunal Mumbai which has been held as not maintainable. We are of the opinion that the same yardstick should be applied regardless of which party appeals and in view of the conflicting decisions between the Tribunal Bangalore and the Tribunal Mumbai, we find that this is a fit case to be referred to larger bench for a decision on the maintainability of appeals filed under Section 86 after 19.08.2009 by both the Revenue and the assessee against orders-in-revision passed by the Commissioners.

7. In view of the above, Registry is directed to present the file before the Hon’ble President for constitution of a larger bench to decide the following question:

"Are appeals by the Revenue and assessee against orders-in-revision passed after 19.08.2009 maintainable before the CESTAT in the absence of any specific saving clause in Section 86 of the Finance Act 1994?"

FINAL ORDER NOS. A/30898-30899/2020

Per: P V Subba Rao:

1. These two appeals are filed by the assessee and the revenue against the same impugned order and hence are being disposed of together.
2. Heard both sides and perused the records.
3. The facts of the case in brief are that M/s National Remote Sensing Centre (NRSC), Balanagar, Hyderabad is an autonomous body under the Department of Space Research, Government of India. The department informed NRSC that their activities related to photography services, scientific or technical consultancy service and commercial training and coaching services, etc., are taxable services and therefore, they are liable for payment of tax. Accordingly, the assessee applied for and obtained registration to the service tax department under the heads "Photography service", "Scientific and Technical Consultancy service" and "Commercial Training & Coaching service". Records and data were obtained from the appellant by the department and statements of Shri Janardhan Rao, Head of Accounts & Financial department of NRSC, were recorded. After investigating the nature of their activities a show cause notice was issued to the appellant covering period 16.06.2005 to 31.02.2005 invoking extended period of limitation on 23.10.2006. In this SCN, NRSC was called upon to explain why an amount of Rs.19,89,66,570/- should not be demanded from them as service tax on photography services and scientific and technical consultancy services rendered by them. Education Cess amounting to Rs.24,24,689/- was also demanded from them. Interest was also proposed to be demanded on the aforesaid amounts and some amounts of tax and interest already paid by them were proposed to be appropriated against the aforesaid demands. It was also proposed to impose penalties under section 76, 77 & 78 of the Finance Act, 1994 upon the appellant.

4. After following due process, the learned adjudicating authority, by the impugned order, confirmed the demands on photography services and scientific and technical consultancy services along with interest and appropriated the amounts already paid by them towards these demands. He also imposed penalties under section 76, 77 & 78 of the Finance Act, 1994. However, he dropped the demand to the extent of Rs.73,53,987/- towards service tax and Rs.1,18,369/- towards Education Cess in respect of the consultancy projects undertaken by the appellant for other autonomous organisations within the same department treating the same as in-house projects.

5. Revenue is aggrieved by the Adjudicating authority dropping the demands in respect of the projects under which services were rendered by the appellant to other organisations under the same department, such as ISRO, RRSC, treating them as in-house projects. It is the case of the revenue that just like NRSC both ISRO and RRSC have separate legal existence as evidenced from the statements of financial advisor of NRSC, Shri Janardhana Rao. Their annual reports are separate. They fall under the definition of ‘client’ and NRSC has received consideration for the taxable services rendered from the clients. These projects, therefore, cannot be considered as in-house projects. Service tax, therefore, needs to be confirmed even on such amounts, according to the revenue.

6. On the other hand, the assessee is aggrieved by the entire confirmation of the demand itself. Learned counsel for the assessee contested the demands both on merits and on limitation. He also contested the imposition of penalties upon the assessee. On the date of hearing i.e., 21.11.2019, learned counsel for the assessee was requested to provide sample copies of the project reports which they have prepared and supplied to their clients within a month. On 27.01.2020, learned counsel has submitted a note along with the copies of some documents but none of the project reports were submitted. The documents that he submitted were only copies of sanction orders issued by various Ministries to their clients copies of which have also been marked to the appellant. Therefore, we proceed to decide the issues on merits based on the records which are available and submissions made by both sides. Learned counsel for the assessee submits that they are a society registered under Societies Registration Act, 1860, created as per a resolution passed by the Union Cabinet. They initially started functioning under the administrative control of department of science and technology and were subsequently brought under the control of department of space. He submits that they are an autonomous body under the department of space. Subsequently, w.e.f. 01.09.2008, NRSA has been converted into National Research Space Center, a center under the department of Space/ISRO. They conduct aerial surveys and digital mapping surveys. The services which were rendered by them were classified by the revenue as (i) Photography services and (ii) Scientific & Technical Consultancy services. It is his assertion that the services which they have rendered are in the nature of ‘survey and map making services’ covered by section 65(104)[b] and section 65(105)[zzzc] of the Finance Act, 1994 and not under Photography services and Scientific & Technical Consultancy services.

"65(104)[b] – ‘Survey and map-making’ means geological, geophysical or any other prospecting, surface, sub-surface or aerial surveying or map-making of any kind, but does not include survey and exploration of mineral."

"65(105)[zzzc] – to any person, by any other person, other than by an agency under the control of, or authorised by, the Government, in relation to survey and map-making."

7. It is his assertion that survey and map making services were brought under the tax net w.e.f. 2005-06 and the scope of these services and the taxability were explained by TRU in its Letter No.B1/6/2005-TRU dt.27.07.2005 as follows:

"8.2 This service covers geological, geophysical, geochemical and other prospecting services by studying the properties of the earth and rock formation and structures. It also includes services providing information on sub-surface earth formations by different methods such as seismographic, gravimetric, magnetometric methods or other sub-surface surveying methods.

8.3 Further, it covers surface surveying, services of gathering information on the shape, position or boundaries of a portion of earth’s surface by methods such as transit, photogrammetric, or hydrographic, for the purpose of preparing maps. It also includes surveying or collection of data by satellites.

8.5 Map making consists of preparation or revision of maps of all kinds such as topographic, hydrographic, roads, planimetric, cadastral, city maps etc. using various information sources.

8.6 However, survey and map-making services rendered by an agency under the control of the Government or authorised by the Government, such as 'Survey of India' are specifically excluded and are outside the scope of this service."

He would submit that the case of the revenue is that the services rendered by them fall under the definition of 'Photography service' under section 65(78) & 'Scientific and technical consultancy service' under section 65(92) of the Finance Act, 1994. These read as follows:

"Section 65(92) – 'scientific or technical consultancy' means any advice, consultancy or scientific or technical assistance rendered in any manner, either directly or indirectly, by a scientist or a technocrat or any science or technology institution or organization, to any person, in one or more disciplines of science or technology."

9. With respect to the demand under the head photography service, he would submit that they are undertaking different projects for clients. It is the case of the department that they undertake projects in which aerial survey or mapping is done and aerial photography is within the scope of the terms 'photography'. Accordingly, the demand on this ground has been confirmed. With respect to demand under scientific and technical consultancy services, he submits that these pertain to activities which involve photography, conducting surveys and preparation of reports. Learned counsel for the assessee would submit that the nature of their work would squarely fall under the definition of 'survey and map making services' and therefore, the same cannot be called as 'scientific and technical consultancy service'. Therefore, he would submit that the demand on both accounts must be dropped.

10. He would further submit that National Remote Sensing Agency (NRSA) has now been converted into a Government entity called as NRSC under the department of Space and therefore, the Government of India would be remitting tax as NRSC from Consolidated Fund of India and receiving the same as CBIC into the Consolidated Fund of India in case of an adverse decision of the Tribunal. Thus, it will be a case Government paying to itself.

11. With respect to the invocation of extended period of limitation, he would submit that there was no evidence of fraud or suppression of facts or wilful intention to evade tax as the organisation is run by the Government officials who would not benefit in any way if the organisation evades taxes. Therefore, for this reason, the extended period of limitation cannot be invoked. He relies on the Hon’ble Apex Court’s decision in the case of CCE vs Chemphar Drugs & Liniments [1989 (40) ELT 276 (SC)] . He would further assert that the bonafide of the assessee is apparent. Therefore, extended period of limitation cannot be invoked. He would, therefore, urge that the revenue’s appeal may be rejected and their appeal may be allowed with consequential relief.

12. Learned special counsel for the revenue, on the other hand, takes us through the facts of the case and explains that NRSA is an autonomous body under the Government of India and has been rendering certain services to the Government departments, Public Sector Undertakings, Private Sector Undertakings and other organisations on payment of fees and charges. The SCN has been issued under the heads photography services and scientific and technical consultancy services covering the period 16.07.2001 to 31.12.2005. Demands have also been made for the period 16.06.2005 to 31.12.2005 on the advances received against these services. The assessee is in appeal against the confirmation of demand to the extent of Rs.19.39 Crores by the Commissioner along with interest and imposition of penalties while revenue is in appeal against the dropping of demand of Rs.74.72 lakhs in respect of consultancy projects undertaken by the assessee for other autonomous organisations under the same department. It is not in dispute that they have been paid for these services also.

13. As far as the demand on photography services is concerned, he would submit that "photography" has been defined under Chapter V of the Finance Act, 1994 and it includes aerial photography in particular. The Photography division of NRSA (now NRSC) is concerned with processing of aerial films, general photography and data acquisition; aerial division is concerned with aerial photography by low level flying aircrafts specially designed for the purpose. They have rendered these services to other organisations including Government organisations and they charged amounts for these services. They received payments/fees for the projects undertaken by them and none of these were rendered as a social obligation or for some general good or for charitable purposes. These services have been rendered in their capacity as a commercial concern or agency. The term "commercial concern" in the photography services has been replaced by the term "person" w.e.f. 07.06.2005. Even after such amendment, these services do fall under the head of photography services. Therefore, the demand of photography services is correctly confirmed.

14. As far as the demand on scientific and technical consultancy services is concerned, it is on the amounts received under the following projects:

(A) Projects completed under Grants in Aid received from other Government departments: In these cases, it is the case of the assessee that the activities have been undertaken by them under Grants-in-Aid which is misleading. The grants have been given to the various Government departments and organisations and they, in turn, hired the appellant to carry out part of their work. After completing the work, they prepare a report and submit it which is in the nature of rendering technical assistance and advice. The details of these projects are as follows:
   a. Land use/ Land cover mapping
   b. Mapping of ground water prospective zones
   c. Forest type and density mapping
   d. Wasteland mapping and monitoring
   e. Mapping of natural resources on watershed basis
   f. Identification and area estimation of major crops
   g. Mapping vegetation condition
   h. Periodic inventory of snow cover
   i. Geological and geomorphological mapping
   j. Generating information on major natural disasters

These would show that expertise of highly technical nature is required for rendering the services including preparing reports and it does not involve mere retrieval of raw data from the archives and supplying the same to the user departments. These being highly technical subjects, mere provision of data would not help the clients, who, do not have the expertise. Therefore, the nature of these services rendered by the appellant is definitely "scientific and technical consultancy" and is not merely making maps.

(B) National Agricultural Technology Projects (NATP): These projects were executed by NRSC rendering technical consultancy services to the client NATP. NRSC claimed exemption under Notification 16/2002 dt.02.08.2002 which was applicable only to services rendered to international organisations and in this case no service was rendered to an international organisation. Only the project was funded by the World Bank. Therefore, learned Commissioner had correctly rejected the claim of NRSC.

(C) IIRS Projects: These projects are undertaken not by the appellant but by M/s IIRS which is a division of NRSC and whose income from these services is accounted for in the books of NRSC as income. Therefore, the appellant is liable to pay service tax on this income.

(D) Research Projects: Research projects were executed for Indian Council of Agricultural Research (ICAR) for standardization of methodology for large-scale soil mapping data. The assessee's contention is that these were mere research projects. However, the services which were rendered were not merely sharing of data/information but involved evolving standardized methodology and delivering detailed study of the existing methods, availability of data, organisation of systematic requirements arriving at an optimal solution and making recommendations. Thus, it was in the nature of technical consultancy for ICAR, who paid for the services rendered by the appellant.

(E) System Projects for Defence: These services relate to services rendered in respect of earth station at Delhi for which the appellant received payments from the Ministry of Defence and accounted for it under the head 'consultancy' projects. These are also in the nature of scientific and technical consultancy services.
(F) Consultancy projects to ISRO/RRSC: The assessee’s contention is that these were “in-house projects” which contention has been accepted by the learned Commissioner in the impugned order. It is the contention of the learned special counsel that the appellant is a different legal entity and ISRO and RRSC are different legal entities and it is for this reason, they have been paid amounts for rendering services. Therefore, they cannot be considered as part of the same organisation and the services rendered cannot be considered as self-service.

(G) Data dissemination and Photo products project: Under this head, the assessee provides user specific information covering geological studies, mineral exploration, city map preparation, land use and vegetation cover mapping etc. The appellant’s contention is that these involve merely providing data and information on electronic media for a price and did not involve any consultancy. This is not true as they did not just involve provision of data but also its interpretation and providing report. The demand on this account has been confirmed by the learned Commissioner.

15. Learned special counsel contests the assessee’s arguments that the nature of their services is mere survey and mapping services which were subject to service tax only from 16.06.2005. As can be seen from the nature of the activities above, they do not merely involve survey and mapping services but have a much larger scope and involves providing technical assistance and consultancy. Thus, these services fall under scientific and technical consultancy services.

16. On the question of invocation of extended period of limitation, learned special counsel would argue that the assessee never disclosed the nature of their activities to the department. But for the investigations conducted by the department, their activities would not have come to light. This certainly constitutes suppression of facts and justifies invoking extended period of limitation. The penalties imposed by the learned Commissioner are also sustainable for these reasons. He would, therefore, submit that the revenue’s appeal may be upheld and the assessee’s appeal may be rejected.

17. We have considered the arguments on both sides and perused the records. Although the appellant obtained registration under three categories of services the demand in this SCN is only under the heads of ‘Photography services’ and ‘Scientific and technical consultancy services’. We proceed to examine the case on merits in the first place and then on limitation and finally examine the imposition of penalties. As far as the demand under the head of ‘Photography services’ is concerned, the assessee’s contention is that the nature of the services does not fall in the definition of ‘Photography services’ at all. The definition of Photography Service is as follows:

"Taxable service" means any service provided or to be provided by a commercial concern to any person, by a photography studio or agency in relation to photography, in any manner."

Photography is defined under section 65(78) as follows:

18. Thereafter, the scope of this service has been enlarged to cover the service rendered by any person instead of services rendered only by a commercial concern only. We find that the nature of the services rendered by the appellant are photo processing of aerial films, general photography, photography by low level flying aircrafts specially suited for the purpose etc. In our view, all these services squarely fall under the definition of ‘Photography service’ as per Chapter V of the Finance Act, 1994. However, the second question is whether NRSC is a commercial concern or just another legal person. We find from the narration of the nature of the organisation in the SCN, impugned order and in the submissions made by both the parties that it is an autonomous organisation of the department of Space, Government of India. It is not primarily a commercial concern like any public sector undertaking. It is registered as a Society under the Societies Registration Act. Therefore, we find that it is a legal entity and is a juridical person but is definitely not a commercial concern. Having said that, the services rendered by them, for other organisations are in the nature of services in return for a payment. To that extent the nature of the activity is certainly commercial but the organisation itself is not. Therefore, we find that prior to 01.07.2012 the assessee cannot be charged service tax on photography services rendered by them. After this date, the service tax can be charged.

19. As far as the projects completed by the appellant for Rajiv Gandhi Water Mission, Waste Land mapping, bio-electric generation etc., for other Government departments under grants-in-aid are concerned, we find that assessee’s argument is that services rendered under grants-in-aid cannot be charged to service tax. We find ‘grants-in-aid’ is a method under which the Government grants some aid to the individual departments or organisations for carrying out specific activities which are in public good. In order to use the grants so received, they, in turn, need to engage other organisations or individuals and avail their services. For this purpose, they may procure goods or receive services from others. The supplier of such goods and the provider of such services is quite distinct from the person receiving the grants-in-aid. Such persons will not automatically get exempted from payment of service tax or excise duty unless there is a specific exemption notification in respect of such services. For instance, if a department receives grant-in-aid, say, to construct roads, the amount received is a grant-in-aid at the hands of the department. However, in order to build those roads, they will hire other contractors and pay them. At the hands of the contractors who provide necessary services, the amounts are commercial receipts for their services. Therefore, the same cannot be treated as grants-in-aid at the hands of the contractor. Otherwise, all services and goods which are ever used by any Government department will have to be exempted. Learned counsel for the assessee also argues that the payment of service tax by the assessee would mean one organisation of Government of India paying it to another. Even if it is so, if this tax has to be paid it must be. In fact, even if the Service Tax Department itself hires taxis and service tax is payable on such service, they have to pay the same out of their budget along with the billed amount to the service provider who pays the Service Tax to the Government although the amount comes back to the Government as revenue in the form of service tax. We, therefore, find no force in the argument of the appellant that no service tax must be charged on the grants-in-aid. The nature of these services, as can be seen from the records available, clearly indicates that they are in the nature of scientific and technical consultancy provided by the expertise of the assessee.

20. As far as the NATP projects are concerned, the assessee's argument was that these were conducted with funds received from the World Bank and hence must be treated as exempt under notification No.16/2002 dt.02.08.2002. We find that the exemption notification does not extend to every project which is funded by the World Bank but extends only to service which are rendered to international organisations. Therefore, if any service is rendered to World Bank the same could have been exempted but every project which is funded by the World Bank will not get exempted.

21. As far as the projects rendered by IIRS is concerned, it is undisputed that this is a division of NRSC itself though located in Dehradun and the income received by IIRS is recorded as income of NRSC and therefore, as a registrant the assessee is liable to pay service tax on such services.

22. As far as the research projects for ICAR are concerned, as discussed above, we find that these also involve the assessee’s consultancy and advice to enable ICAR to develop and evolve standardized methodologies. Therefore, these are in the nature of 'scientific and technical consultancy services' for which the assessee has been paid service charges and on which service tax has to be paid.

23. Similarly, the assessee has to pay service tax on the projects they had undertaken for the Ministry of defence for which they receive consultancy charges and the receipts have been recorded as 'consultancy' in their own books of accounts. As far as the Revenue's appeal with respect to services rendered by the assessee to ISRO/RRSC is concerned, the only ground on which the learned Commissioner has dropped this demand is on the ground that these should be treated as 'in-house projects' and not services rendered by the assessee to ISRO/RRSC. It is not in doubt that the assessee is an autonomous organisation registered as Society. So are the ISRO and RRSC independent & autonomous organisations. If they were a part of the same organisation, there is no question of any amount being paid by one division to another. Since they are independent, autonomous organisations the services rendered by one to another becomes a service rendered to a client. The services rendered were in the nature of consultancy projects and the demand on this ground needs to be upheld on merits and we do so. To this extent, the order of the Commissioner needs to be set aside. As far as the demand under data dissemination and Photo product projects are concerned, the assessee under these projects provided geological studies, mineral exploration, city map preparation, land use and vegetation cover mapping backed by technical assistance to the customers to help them execute projects. Therefore, this falls under definition of 'scientific and technical consultancy service'.

24. In view of the above, we find that the demands, as raised in the SCN, need to be upheld on merits. However, we find that the assessee in this case is an autonomous organisation under the department of Space, Government of India. It is not a private business entity. They have, of course, undertaken several research projects for a price and that is part of their revenue model. They generate funds from these projects which are used for running the organisation. For these projects, they get paid by other Governmental and non-Governmental organisations under various heads. If the assessee was clearly aware that they had to pay service tax, they could have billed their clients for the Service Tax as well. By not paying the service tax, the assessee is not gaining anything. It is a Governmental organisation run by bureaucrats and scientists, none of whom have any personal interest in evading service tax. In fact, by evading service tax nothing would be gained either by anyone individually or by their organisation. Revenue’s argument is that the assessee had not come forward to disclose all their activities and therefore, they have suppressed the fact which is sufficient to invoke extended period of limitation. We do not agree with this contention. The assessee could have genuinely believed that they were not liable to pay service tax and not disclosed facts to the department or sought any advice or guidance from the department regarding taxability of their services. In this factual matrix, by no stretch of imagination can we hold that the assessee has committed fraud or collusion or wilful misstatement or suppression of facts with an intent to evade payment of service tax. Under these circumstances, we find the extended period of limitation cannot be invoked in this case. The demand, if any, within the normal period of limitation can only survive.

25. As far as the penalties are concerned, in view of our finding that there is no evidence of wilful suppression of facts with intent to evade payment of service tax, we find no penalty is imposable under section 78 of the Finance Act, 1994. We find this a fit case to invoke section 80 of the Finance Act, 1994 and waive all the penalties imposed upon the appellant.

26. In view of the above, both the appeals are disposed of as below:

1) The demands under the head of 'Photography services' prior to 01.07.2012 are set aside and after this date, demands are upheld only within the normal period of limitation.

2) The demand of service tax under the head 'Scientific & Technical consultancy service' is also upheld on all projects including the services rendered by the appellant to other autonomous organisations of the department of Space viz., ISOR and RRSC only within the normal period of limitation.

3) The interest, if any, payable on such amounts are also upheld.

4) The amount of service tax and interest, if any, paid by the assessee needs to be adjusted against these demands.

5) All demands beyond the normal period of limitation are set aside.

6) All penalties are set aside invoking section 80 of the Finance Act, 1994.

27. Both appeals are remanded to the original authority for the limited purpose of calculation of service tax payable.

(Pronounced in the open court on 24.06.2020)

FINAL ORDER NO. A/30908/2020

Per: P V Subba Rao:

1. This appeal is filed against Order-in-Original No.19/2010-ST-Hyd-IIIAdjn- Commnr, dated 25.10.2010.

2. Heard both sides and perused the records. The appellant manufactures speciality chemicals and bulk drugs at their factories in Medak District in Telangana and Bidar in Karnataka and obtained Central Excise Registration for both the units and have been paying excise duty. The appellant had availed the services of M/s Hanovar Square Capital (UK) Ltd., M/s City Bank N.A. (Singapore) and M/s Atherstone Capital Markets Ltd., Mumbai for placing Foreign Currency Convertible Bonds (FCCB) in the International Capital Market to raise capital. The appellant paid fees to the above companies in the form of Lead Manager Charges, Agreement Fee, Corporate Advisory Fee, Listing Fee and other professional charges. After investigation, the officers of Directorate General of Central Excise Intelligence (DGCEI) told the appellant that since they had availed the services of the above companies located outside India and paid service charges, as service recipients, they were required to pay service tax under reverse charge mechanism under Section 66A of the Finance Act, 1994. The total service tax amounting to Rs. 58,86,315/- was paid by the appellant along with an interest of Rs. 5 lakhs during the investigation itself. Later, a show cause notice dated 09.10.2009 was issued to the appellant demanding the aforesaid service tax and proposing to appropriate the amount already paid by them as service tax along with interest and further proposing to impose a penalty equal to the amount of service tax under Section 78 of the Finance Act, 1994. This show cause notice culminated in the issue of the impugned order confirming the demand along with interest and imposing penalties as proposed. Aggrieved, the appellant filed the present appeal. The appellant contested the demand both on merits and on limitation. The appellant also contested the levy of interest and imposition of penalties upon them.

3. Learned Chartered Accountant representing the appellant argues that the demand has been made in the show cause notice under the head of "banking and other financial services". He would argue that the services rendered by the foreign service providers were in relation to placing of FCCBs in those countries and therefore the services were consumed outside India and hence they cannot be charged to service tax in India. Giving details of the services availed, he would submit that they had paid service charges to their service providers under the heads of Lead Manager Charges and Listing Charges. It is his argument that the Corporate Advisory Services and professional charges can by no stretch of imagination classified as "banking and other financial services" and also cannot be classified as "merchant banker services". As per the Stock Exchange Board of India (SEBI) Rules, "Merchant Banker" refers to "any person who is engaged in the business of issue management either by making arrangement regarding buying, selling or subscribing to securities or acting as manager, consultant or referring corporate advisory services in relation to such issue management". The corporate advisory services and professional services were not in relation to the above.

4. With regard to the period of limitation, he would submit that even if they were liable to pay service tax on these services the same would be available as CENVAT credit of tax paid on "input services" for their final products. The entire exercise is one of Revenue neutrality. He would submit that thus the appellant cannot have any intention to evade payment of service tax because whatever tax is paid can be readily taken by them as CENVAT credit and utilized. The intention to evade is evidently lacking in such a situation. Without the intention to evade payment of service tax, the extended period of limitation cannot be invoked. In this regard, he relies on the following case laws:

i) Nirlon Ltd., Vs Commissioner [2015 (320) ELT 22 (SC)]
ii) Hindustan National Glass and Industries Ltd., [2018 (8) TMI 328 – Cestat – Hyd]
iii) Bharat Forge Ltd., Vs CCE, Pune-III [2016 (42) STR 312 (Tri-Mum)]
iv) British Airways Vs Commissioner [2014 (36) STR 598 (Tri-Del)]

5. On the issue of limitation, he would further argue that the service tax was not paid by them on their bonafide understanding that no such service tax was payable and this bonafide belief negates any allegation of suppression of facts. Further, he argued that this is a case of interpretation of the legal provision by the Revenue as opposed to their interpretation and no malafide intention attributed to them.

6. Lastly, he would argue that since the service tax itself cannot be charged being barred by limitation no interest is chargeable or penalty imposable upon them.

7. Per contra, Learned DR submits that specific information was gathered by DGCEI Officers that the appellant had floated FCCBs in the International Capital Market and paid charges towards lead manager charges agreement fees, advisory fees, etc., to foreign service providers. The above services were provided in relation to the FCCBs and they fall under the category of banking and financial services w.e.f. 15.07.2001 and the appellant being the recipient of the services were required to pay service tax in terms of Section 66A of the Finance Act, 1994 read with Rule 2(1)(d)(iv) of the Service Tax Rules, 1994. He would draw the attention of the Bench to the definition of Banking and other Financial Services under the Finance Act, 1994 which was as follows:

"Banking and Other Financial Services" means —

(a) the following services provided by a banking company or a financial institution including a non-banking financial company or any other body corporate or [commercial concern]*, namely :

(i) financial leasing services including equipment leasing and hire-purchase;

Explanation.—For the purposes of this item, "financial leasing" means a lease transaction where—

(i) contract for lease is entered into between parties for leasing of a specific asset;

(ii) such contract is for use and occupation of the asset by the lessee;

(iii) the lease payment is calculated so as to cover the full cost of the asset together with the interest charges; and

(iv) the lessee is entitled to own, or has the option to own, the asset at the end of the lease period after making the lease payment;

(ii) Omitted

(iii) merchant banking services;
(iv) securities and foreign exchange (forex) broking, and purchase or sale of foreign currency, including money changing;
(v) asset management including portfolio management, all forms of fund management, pension fund management, custodial, depository and trust services,
(vi) advisory and other auxiliary financial services including investment and portfolio research and advice, advice on mergers and acquisitions and advice on corporate restructuring and strategy;
(vii) provision and transfer of information and data processing; and (viii) banker to an issue services; and
(ix) other financial services, namely, lending, issue of pay order, demand draft, cheque, letter of credit and bill of exchange, transfer of money including telegraphic transfer, mail transfer and electronic transfer, providing bank guarantee, overdraft facility, bill discounting facility, safe deposit locker, safe vaults, operation of bank accounts;

(b) foreign exchange broking and purchase or sale of foreign currency including money changing provided by a foreign exchange broker or an authorised dealer in foreign exchange or an authorised money changer, other than those covered under sub-clause (a);
He would submit that the merchant banking services have specifically been included under the head of banking and financial services. The term merchant banking services refers to the services rendered by a merchant banker. As per SEBI Merchant Banking Regulations, 1990 “merchant banker means any person who is engaged in the business of issue management either by making arrangements regarding selling, buying or subscribing to securities or acting as manager, consultant, advisor or referring corporate advisory services in relation to such issue management”.

8. There is no doubt that the amounts were paid by the appellant to the service providers only with respect to the floating of their securities namely foreign currencies convertible bonds for the arrangements made and services rendered with respect to these bonds. Therefore, the entire amount spent by the appellant to the overseas service providers were towards merchant banking services. Therefore, in terms of Merchant Banking Rules, 1990 read with the definition of bank and financial services under Finance Act, 1994, the appellant was required to pay service tax under reverse charge mechanism on the amounts.

9. On the question of limitation, he would submit that at no point of time, had the appellant voluntarily disclosed that they have floated these FCCBs or that they availed the services of foreign service providers. Collection of intelligence and subsequent investigations only revealed these facts. On being pointed out, the appellant have not contested the liability of service tax and has already paid the same at the time of investigation. Therefore, the appellant has suppressed the information from the department which justifies the invocation of extended period of limitation as well as imposition of penalty. He relies on the case law of Paramount Communications Ltd., [2019 (29) GSTL 322 Tri-Delhi] in which a similar case, the Principal Bench of the Tribunal has held that service tax was chargeable under reverse charge mechanism on the services availed for floating FCCBs and commercial borrowings and also upheld the invocation of the extended period of limitation in that case. He would therefore submit that the appeal needs to be dismissed.

10. We have considered the arguments on both sides and perused the records. It is not in dispute that the appellant availed the services from foreign service providers in relation to floating of FCCBs in those countries. The nature of services referred by the service providers falls squarely within the definition of merchant banker in terms of the SEBI (MBR 1990). Therefore, in terms of Section 65(12)(a)(iii) the services referred squarely fall under the definition of bank and other financial services. As the recipient of these services, the appellant was required to pay service tax under reverse charge mechanism in terms of Section 66A of the Finance Act, 1994 r/w Rule 2 of Service Tax Rules, 1994.

11. It is not in dispute that the appellant has not paid the service tax and had not disclosed these facts to the Revenue at any stage. Investigation by the officers revealed these facts and on being pointed out the appellant paid the entire amount of service tax along with some interest. Therefore, on merits, we find the case against the assessee and in favour of the Revenue.

12. As far as the invocation of extended period of limitation alleging fraud, collusion, wilful misstatement or suppression of facts is concerned, we find no evidence in the particular facts and circumstances of this case that the appellant tried to actively suppress or misstate facts. It is true that they have not paid service tax which they were required to. It is equally true had they paid the service tax they could have immediately taken the CENVAT credit of the entire amount so paid and utilized it. By delaying the payment, the appellant would only be liable to pay interest which also cannot be claimed as CENVAT credit. Thus, by not paying Service Tax, the appellant would have lost something but gained nothing. We, therefore, find that the intention to evade payment of service tax is lacking in this case. It is a well-established legal principle that in case of revenue neutrality, the intention to evade cannot be presumed because the assessee would gain nothing by evading payment of service tax or excise duty. The case law of Paramount Communications Ltd., relied upon by the Learned DR is distinguishable on facts as it has been found in that case that the assessee had even after issue of multiple SCNs failed to discharge service tax liability. The conduct of the appellant in the present case is quite the contrary and nothing in it suggests their intention to evade payment of Service Tax. Under these circumstances, we find that there is no ground to invoke extended period of limitation. As the entire period of demand is beyond the normal period the same needs to be set aside along with the interest. Consequently, the penalty imposed under Section 78 also needs to be set aside and we do so.

13. In view of the above, the appeal is allowed and the impugned order is set aside with consequential relief, if any.

(Order pronounced on 06.07.2020 in open court)
This appeal has been filed by M/s. Comexx against rejection of refund claim filed by the appellant.

2. The appellant M/s. Comexx are an authorized agent for M/s. Zhangjiagang Kailin Trading Company Limited located in China. The appellant were registered with Service Tax Commissionerate under the category of Business Auxiliary Service. Learned Chartered Accountant appearing for the appellant pointed out that they are engaged in booking orders for their foreign principals. He pointed out that appellant receive commission for the services in convertible foreign currency. The appellants have paid service tax on the said amount received as commission. He pointed out that they are seeking refund of the said amount of service tax paid by them as they were not liable to pay any service tax.

2. Learned Chartered Accountant further pointed out that Revenue has sought to reject the said refund claim on the ground that appellant did not produce evidence or documentary proof that the appellant has not passed the incidence of duty to its customers. It was also alleged that the appellant has not submitted documentary evidence like Contract/MoU to establish that the service provided by the appellant is in the nature of export of service under Export of Services Rules, 2005. The refund was also sought to reject on the ground of limitation as the refund claim was filed after one year from the date of payment of service tax as specified under Section 11B of the Central Excise Act, 1944 made applicable to service tax under Section 83 of the Finance Act, 1994. Learned Chartered Accountant relied on the following decisions to assert that if any amount is paid by mistake, same cannot be treated as duty and therefore, limitation applicable relating to time-limit under Section 11B is not applicable:-

(a) Hon’ble Karnataka High Court in the case of CCE (Appeals), Bangalore vs. KVR Constructions – 2012 (7) TMI – KARNATAKA HIGH COURT
In these circumstances, he argued that provisions of Section 11B can only be invoked if the refund relates to legally payable duty. He, however, admitted that they have filed the refund claim invoking the provisions of Section 11B themselves.

3. Learned Authorised Representative pointed out that there is plethora of decisions that all the refund claims under service tax or Central Excise are governed by limitation prescribed under Section 11B of Central Excise Act, 1944. He relied on the following decision:-

(a) Petronet LNG Limited vs. CC, Ahmedabad
(b) 2018 (15) GSTL 59 (Tri. LB) – Veer Overseas Limited vs. CCE, Panchkula.
(c) 1987 (30) ELT 641 (SC) – Miles India Limited vs. Assistant Collector of Customs.
(d) 2017 (5) GSTL 291 (Tri. Del.) – LNG Security Services Pvt. Limited vs. CST, Delhi.

4. We find that there are decisions on the either side of the issue. There were decisions holding that provisions of Section 11B are not applicable to any amount which was paid by mistake or which was not payable. In these decisions the arguments forwarded was that the amount paid is not duty and Section 11B applies only to duty. It is difficult to comprehend that as to under what circumstances the provisions of Section 11B of Central Excise Act, 1944 can be invoked to claim the refund. The only provision under Central Excise Act which permits refund is Section 11B of the Act. The decisions relied by learned Chartered Accountant held that any amount which was not due to be paid or which was paid by mistake is not duty and therefore, the provisions relating to limitation under Section 11B does not apply. It needs to be noted that entire Section 11B relates to refund of duty. This issue has been examined by Hon’ble Apex Court in the case of Collector of Chandigarh vs. Doaba Co-operative Sugar Mills – 1988 (37) ELT 478 (SC) wherein it has been observed that:-

“6. It appears that where the duty has been levied without the authority of law or without reference to any statutory authority or the specific provisions of the Act and the Rules framed thereunder have no application, the decision will be guided by the general law and the date of limitation would be the starting point when the mistake or the error comes to light. But in making claims for refund before the departmental authority, an assessee is bound within four corners of the Statute and the period of limitation prescribed in the Central Excise Act and the Rules framed thereunder must be adhered to. The authorities functioning under the Act are bound by the provisions of the Act. If the proceedings are taken under the Act by the department, the provisions of limitation prescribed in the Act will prevail. It may, however, be open to the department to initiate proceedings in the Civil Court for recovery of the amount due to the department in case when such a remedy is open on the ground that the money received by the assessee was not in the nature of refund. This was the view taken by the Tribunal in a previous decision in the case of Miles India Ltd. v. The Assistant Collector of Customs but it was assailed before this Court. The appeal was withdrawn. This Court observed that the Customs Authorities, acting under the Act, were justified in disallowing the claim for refund as they were bound by the period of limitation provided therefor in the relevant provisions of the Customs Act, 1962. If really the payment of the duty was under a mistake of law, the party might seek recourse to such alternative remedy as it might be advised. See the observations of this Court in Miles India Ltd. v. The Assistant Collector of Customs [1987(30) E.L.T.641 (S.C.) = 1985 E.C.R. 289].

7. In the aforesaid view of the matter the Tribunal was right. The appeal, therefore, has no merits and it is accordingly not entertained and dismissed. There is no order as to costs.”

The Tribunal in the case of Petronet LNG Limited vs. CC, Ahmedabad has examined the above decision and came to following conclusion:-

“4. We have carefully considered the submissions made by both the sides and perused the record. We find that the limited issue to be decided by us is, whether refund claim filed by the appellant is governed by Section 27 of the Customs Act, 1962 and consequently it is ties functioning under an Act is bound by its statute and the period of limitation prescribed in the Act. Though in the identical facts, the Hon'ble Bombay High Court in the judgment cited by Ld. Counsel, in case of refund, in respect of duty paid on short imported goods held that limitation under Section 27 is not applicable. However, the Hon'ble Supreme Court in various judgments held that all the refund claims of customs and excise has to be governed by Section 27 of the Customs Act or Section 11B of the Central Excise Act, 1944. In the case of Collector of Central Excise, Chandigarh v. Doaba Co-operative Sugar Mills - 1987 (30) E.L.T. 478 (S.C.), the Hon'ble Apex Court held as under :-

"6. It appears that where the duty has been levied without the authority of law or without reference to any statutory authority or the specific provisions of the Act and the Rules framed thereunder have no application, the decision will be guided by the general law and the date of limitation would be the starting point when the mistake or the error comes to light. But in making claims for refund before the departmental authority, an assessee is bound within four corners of the Statute and the period of limitation prescribed in the Central Excise Act and the Rules framed thereunder must be adhered to. The authorities functioning under the Act are bound by the provisions of the Act. If the proceedings are taken under the Act by the department, the provisions of limitation prescribed in the Act will prevail. It may, however, be open to the department to initiate proceedings in the Civil Court for recovery of the amount due to the department in case when such a remedy is open on the ground that the money received by the assessee was not in the nature of refund. This was the view taken by the Tribunal in a previous decision in the case of Miles India Ltd. v. The Assistant Collector of Customs but it was assailed before this Court. The appeal was withdrawn. This Court observed that the Customs Authorities, acting under the Act, were justified in disallowing the claim for refund as they were bound by the period of limitation provided therefore in the relevant provisions of the Customs Act, 1962. If really the payment of the duty was under a mistake of law, the party might seek recourse to such alternative remedy as it might be advised. See the observations of this Court in Miles India Ltd. v. The Assistant Collector of Customs [1987 (30) E.L.T. 641 (S.C.) = 1985 E.C.R. 289].

7. In the aforesaid view of the matter the Tribunal was right. The appeal, therefore, has no merits and it is accordingly not entertained and dismissed. There is no order as to costs." From the above judgment, it is clear that even if there is refund of duty which was recovered without authority of law, the refund made before the departmental authority, limitation provided under Customs/Central Excise Act shall be applicable. The Hon'ble Supreme Court has held that authorities functioning under an Act is bound by its provisions and any refund proceedings beyond the limitation provided under the Customs/Central Excise Act, the same can be initiated in the Civil Court. Accordingly, the time limit under the Customs Act is applicable. We are also of the view that the Tribunal being creature of the statute and under Customs Act have to deal with any refund case within four corners of the Customs Act, since the provisions for refund is only provided under Section 27 of the Customs Act, 1962. This Tribunal also cannot by-pass the same and decide the refund claims under general law. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in a landmark judgment in the case of Mafatlal Industries Limited v. UOI - 1997 (89) E.L.T. 247 (S.C.) endorsed the aforesaid judgment in the case of Doaba Co-operative Sugar Mills (supra). In the case of UOI v. Namdang Tea Estate - 2004 (164) E.L.T. 132 (S.C.), the Hon'ble Supreme Court held that claim filed beyond the stipulated time is not admissible. In the case of UOI v. VIP Industries Limited - 1998 (101) E.L.T. 8 (S.C.) the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the facts of the case held that assessee filing refund claim for past four years following a favourable decision on classification in the case of a manufacturer of similar goods, set aside the Hon'ble High Court order which directed the Assistant Commissioner to consider the claim for beyond limitation period without taking into consideration the question of limitation. Accordingly, the High Court judgment was set aside. In the case of Porcelain Electrical Manufacturing Company v. Collector of Central Excise, New Delhi - 1998 (98) E.L.T. 583 (S.C.), the Hon’ble Supreme Court held that refund claim filed before the departmental authorities to be governed by the time limit provided under the statute, general law of limitation not available. The decisions where assessee has invoked extraordinary jurisdiction of the High Courts and the Courts have applied the period of limitation of three years, the same is inapplicable to cases where the refund application has been moved before the Revenue authority. The decision in the case Escorts Limited v. UOI - 1998 (97) E.L.T. 211 (S.C.), the Hon’ble Apex Court has held that application for refund is presented before the Customs authority under Section 27 of Customs Act, 1962, the said authority must necessarily operate within the four corners of the said Act and cannot have recourse to Section 72 of the Indian Contract Act, 1872 and the delayed application rightly rejected as time barred. The Hon’ble Supreme Court in the case of UOI v. Amines and Plasticizers Limited held that refund claims filed beyond the period prescribed under Customs Act, 1962, the High Court order directing the Revenue to ignore the period of limitation and dispose of the refund claim stands set aside in the light of law declared in Mafatlal’s case and the refund claim was held to be dismissed as barred by time. The Hon’ble Supreme Court in the case of UOI v. Kirloskar Pneumatic Company - 1996 (84) E.L.T. 401 (S.C.) held that the High Courts under writ jurisdiction cannot direct the Customs authorities to ignore the time limit prescribed under Section 27 of the Customs Act, even though High Court itself may not be bound by the time limit of the said Section, Articles 226 and 227 of the Constitution of India, in view of the above judgment, only the High Court, under writ jurisdiction, can exercise the inherent power provided in it but the said power cannot be enjoyed by the Tribunal. In the case of Paros Electronics Pvt. Limited v. UOI - 1996 (83) E.L.T. 261 (S.C.), the Hon’ble Supreme Court held that customs authorities cannot grant refund, being a creation of statute they are bound by limitation of Section 27 of the Customs Act.

5. On the analysis of above judgments of Hon’ble Supreme Court, the gist is that any refund filed before the Customs/Central Excise authorities can only process the claim under Customs/Central Excise Acts and the departmental authorities have no jurisdiction to go beyond the provisions made under the Act and limitations provided under Section 27/Section 11B.

5. A similar view has also been given by Larger Bench of the Tribunal in the case of Veer Overseas Limited vs. CCE, Panchkula – 2018 (15) GSTL 59 (Tri. LB). In the said decision, in Para 8 and 9 the Larger Bench examined the decisions of various Courts where Section 11B has been held to be not applicable to refund of any amount made under any mistake of law. The Larger Bench, after examining the said issue, has come to the following conclusion:-

“7. What is crucial is that the appellants paid the claimed amount as service tax. They have approached the jurisdictional authority of service tax for refund of the said money. It is clear that the jurisdictional service tax authority is governed by the provisions of Section 11B as the claim has been filed as per the said mandate only. Here, we have specifically asked the Learned Counsel for the appellant under what provision of law he is seeking the return of the money earlier paid. He admitted that the claim has been preferred in terms of the provisions of Section 11B. If that being the case, it cannot be said that except for limitation other provisions of Section 11B will be made applicable to the appellant. The Learned Counsel also did not advance such proposition. He repeatedly submitted that the amount is paid mistakenly. The same is not a tax and should be returned without limitation as mentioned in Section 11B. We are not convinced by such submission.

8. Here it is relevant to note that in various cases the High Courts and the Apex Court have allowed the claim of the parties for refund of money without applying the provisions of limitation under Section 11B by holding that the amount collected has no sanctity of law as the same is not a duty or a tax and accordingly the same should be returned to the party. We note such remedies provided by the High Courts and Apex Court are mainly by exercising powers under the Constitution, in writ jurisdiction. It is clear that neither the jurisdictional service tax authority nor the Tribunal has such constitutional powers for allowing refund beyond the statutory time-limit prescribed by the law. Admittedly, the amount is paid as a tax, the refund has been claimed from the jurisdictional tax authorities and necessarily such tax authorities are bound by the law governing the collection as well as refund of any tax. There is no legal mandate to direct the tax authority to act beyond the statutory powers binding on them. The Hon’ble Supreme Court in Mafatlal Industries Ltd. (supra) categorically held that no claim for refund of any duty shall be entertained except in accordance with the provisions of the statute. Every claim for refund of excise duty can be made only under and in accordance with Section 11B in the forms provided by the Act. The Apex Court further observed that the only exception is where the provision of the Act under the duty has been levied is found to be unconstitutional for violation of any of the constitutional limitations. This is a situation not contemplated by the Act. We note in the present case there is no such situation of the provision of any tax levy, in so far as the present dispute is concerned, held to be unconstitutional. As already held that the appellant is liable to pay service tax on reverse charge basis but for the exemption which was not availed by them. We hold that the decision of the Tribunal in Monnet International Ltd. (supra) has no application to decide the dispute in the present referred case. We take note of the decision of the Tribunal in XL Telecom Ltd. (supra). It had examined the legal implication with reference to the limitation applicable under Section 11B. We also note that the said ratio has been consistently followed by the Tribunal in various decisions. In fact, one such decision reached Hon’ble Supreme Court in Miles India Limited v. Assistant Collector of Customs - 1987 (30) E.L.T. 641 (S.C.). The Apex Court upheld the decision of the Tribunal to the effect that the jurisdictional customs authorities are right in disallowing the refund claim in terms of limitation provided under Section 27(1) of the Customs Act, 1962. We also note that in Assistant Collector of Customs v. Anam Electrical Manufacturing Co. - 1997 (90) E.L.T. 260 (S.C.) referred to in the decision of the Tribunal in XL Telecom Ltd. (supra), the Hon’ble Supreme Court held that the claim filed beyond the statutory time limit cannot be entertained.

9. The Apex Court in Mafatlal Industries Ltd. (supra) observed that the Central Excise Act and the Rules made thereunder including Section 11B too constitute “law” within the meaning of Article 265 and that in the face of the said provisions - which are exclusive in their nature no claim for refund is maintainable except and in accordance therewith. The Apex Court emphasized that “the provisions of the Central Excise Act also constitute “law” within the meaning of Article 265 and any collection or retention of tax in accordance or pursuant to the said provisions is collection or retention under “the authority of law” within the meaning of the said Article”.

10. Having examined various decided cases and the submissions of both the sides, we are of the considered view that a claim for refund of service tax is governed by the provision of Section 11B for period of limitation. The statutory time limit cannot be extended by any authority, held by the Apex Court."

6. In the aforesaid circumstances, we find that the decisions relied on by the appellant in his support were passed without appreciating the decision of Hon’ble Apex Court in the case of Doaba Co-operative Sugar Mills (supra) and in the case of Mafatlal Industries Limited vs. UOI – 1997 (89) ELT 247 (SC). In both these decisions it has been categorically held that refund under Central Excise Act would be governed by Section 11B. In these circumstances, we find that the refund claim filed by the appellant would be governed by the provisions of limitation prescribed under Section 11B of Central Excise Act, 1944. Since the refund was filed after expiry of limitation the same cannot be entertained.

7. As regards the issue of unjust-enrichment, we find the same is not dealt in the impugned order. This question would not arise as a refund is not sanctioned on merit. In these circumstances, refund is not admissible being barred by limitation as prescribed under Section 11B of Central Excise Act, 1944. In view of the claim being barred by limitation, other issues do not remain relevant.

We find no merit in the appeal and the same is dismissed.

(Pronounced in the open court on 18.03.2020)
This appeal has been filed by Ketan Construction Ltd. against demand of Service Tax and imposition of penalty. The matter was listed on 5 February, 2019, 27th February, 2019, 01 April, 2019, 01 May, 2019, 20 August, 2019, 27 September, 2019, 28 November, 2019, 18 November, 2019 and no one appeared on behalf of the appellant. On 06 December, 2019, the matter was listed again and no one appeared for the appellant again. Therefore, the matter is taken up for disposal without further delay.

2. Learned Authorised Representative points out that the issue involved in the instant case is that if the services rendered by the appellant in respect of collection of toll fee in respect of National Highway Authority of India are liable to tax under the head of Business Auxiliary Services. He pointed out that the said issue is squarely covered by the decision of this Tribunal in the case of Larson & Toubro Ltd. 2019 (21) GSTL 428 (Ahmd.) and also the decision of this Tribunal in the case of Rishi Enterprises 2019 (25) GSTL 579 (Tri – Del.)

3. We have considered rival contentions made by Learned AR and also the grounds of appeal. We find that in the instant case is squarely covered by the decision of this Tribunal in the case of Larson & Toubro Ltd. (supra). In the aforesaid decision following has been observed:

"4. We have gone through the rival submissions. The definition of BAS at the material time read as follows :

"Business Auxiliary Service" means any service in relation to :-

(i) Promotion or marketing or sale of goods produced or provided by or belonging to the client; or

(ii) Promotion or marketing of service provided by the client; or

(iii) Any customer care service provided on behalf of the client; or
(iv) Any incidental or auxiliary support service such as billing, collection or recovery of cheques, accounts and remittance, evaluation of prospective customer and public relation services, and includes service as a commission agent, but does not include any information technology service.

Explanation. - For the removal of doubts, it is hereby declared that for the purposes of this clause ‘information technology service’ means any service in relation to designing, developing or maintaining of computer software, or computerized data processing or system networking, or any other service primarily in relation to operation of computer systems."

It can be seen that the definition has four limbs. The clause (i) relates to promotion or marketing or sale of goods and therefore, is not relevant in the instant case. The clause (ii) reads as ‘promotion or marketing of service provided by the client’. Ld. Counsel has relied on the decision of Tribunal in case of Intertoll India Consultants (P) Ltd. (supra) and Ideal Road Builders P. Ltd. (supra). It is seen that none of these decisions consider clause (iii) of the definition to ascertain the liability to tax under BAS. There is no doubt that in the transaction for collection of toll the AMTRL are providing the service to the road users and the road users pay to the AMTRL the toll for using the road. Ld. Counsel has used two arguments. The first argument being that the toll collected is a tax, and therefore, there cannot be any service tax liability on the toll collection. The second argument being that the provision of good roads is responsibility of Government and the same cannot be treated as a service provided by the Government. Therefore, no service is provided by AMTRL to road users and clause (ii) of the definition of BAS cannot be invoked to levy service tax on the appellant.

4.1 The Service Tax in the instant case has been demanded, not on the amount of toll collected, but on the compensation received by the appellant with respect to collection of such toll. While the toll may be a tax, the compensation received by the appellant is not a tax. The compensation received by the appellant is for the service provided by the appellant to AMTRL in respect of collection of toll and other assorted services. There is no exemption to any service provided in respect of collection of tax, and therefore, first argument of the Ld. Counsel cannot be sustained.

4.2 In this regard the agreement between AMTRL and the appellant is relevant. The following clauses of the agreement are relevant in this regard:

(A) The State of Gujarat (the “State”) is one of the highly industrialized states in India. The Government of the State (“GoG”), in order to meet the growing demand for a developed, efficient, goods quality and expensive system of road transportation, has formulated a policy enabling private participation in the development, construction, reconstruction, repair, upgrading, management, operation and maintenance of roads within the State. In order to enable to due implementation of this policy, The Bombay Motor Vehicles Tax Act, 1958, which had earlier prohibited the levy of the tolls on motor vehicles utilizing roads within the territory of the State, has been amended, by the Bombay Motor Vehicles Tax (Gujarat Amendment) Act, 1994, to enable GoG to levy tolls on motor vehicles utilizing roads that have been either constructed, reconstructed, upgraded or repaired by private enterprises which have been specifically authorized by GoG to do so. The amended Act upgrading or repaid of the road to collect the toll in relation to such road on the terms and conditions and in such manner as may be prescribed.

(B) Infrastructure Leasing & Financial Services Limited (“IL&FS”) is a company providing financial services one of the main objectives of which is to promote, establish, develop, finance and implement projects establishing infrastructure facilities, including roadways, bridges, transportation systems, power, telecommunications and integrated area development programmes.

(C) GoG, pursuant to the aforementioned policy of involving private participation in the development of roads in the State, entered into a Memorandum of Agreement with IL&FS (the “MOA”), on 31 October, 1995, wherein GoG and IL&FS agreed to the implementation of projects relating to the development, upgrading, repair, operation and maintenance of roads in the State on a commercial basis, through private participation and utilizing private financial resources.

(D) ...

(E) ...
(G) IL&FS, pursuant to the decision of GoG to implement the Project under the MOA, initiated negotiations with the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development (the “World Bank”) in order to make the Project eligible for the line of credit available to IL&FS from the World Bank. IL&FS also appointed through competitive bidding process Scott Wilson Kirkpatrick India Pvt. Ltd. (“SW”) to undertake a detailed feasibility study of the Project in order to prepare the technical and financial details of the implementation of the Project.

(H) In view of the feasibility report submitted by SW, GoG has decided that the Project should be implemented on a Build, Own, Operate and Transfer basis (“BOOT”) by a corporate entity incorporated in the State and promoted by GoG and IL&FS, specifically for the purpose of developing and implementing the Project on a BOOT basis.

(I) …

(J) GoG granted the Owner, the Concession Agreement, the concession to implement, on strictly commercial principles, the Project and to that end design, construct, manage, operate and maintain the Facility in accordance with the terms of the Concession Agreement.

(K) …

(L) After due evaluation of the various bids submitted in response to the RFP, the Owner has awarded the tender for the design and construction of the Project to Larsen & Toubro Limited the Contractor. From the above it is apparent that IL&FS has agreed to take up development, upgrading, repair, operation and maintenance of roads on a ‘commercial basis’. The construction and operation and maintenance has been sub-contracted to the appellant by IL&FS through a corporate entity incorporated in the state and promoted by Govt. of Gujarat and IL&FS specifically for this purpose. From the above terms of the contract, it is apparent that the construction of road, and its operation and management have been undertaken strictly on commercial basis and the toll tax collected is being used for recovery of investment and operating cost on Build Own Operate Transfer (BOOT) basis. In these circumstances merely because a project is funded by toll tax, it cannot be said no service has been provided. Especially on the ground that during the phase when the toll tax is collected, the property owned by a corporate, promoted by Govt. of Gujarat and IL&FS. In view of above, it is apparent that the toll collected is a compensation given to a private operator for providing the services of road used to the public on BOOT basis. Thus, the facility and usage of road against payment of toll is a service provided by the AMTRL.

4.3 Perusal of the contract shows that the appellant are, inter alia, required to maximize the collection of toll. The appellants are also required to minimize the incidents and duration of any period during which the facility or any part thereof is accessible to use. The appellants are also required to ensure that all the services provided under the contract comply with prudent utility practices. In these circumstances, it can be said that appellants are engaged in promotion or marketing of service provided by AMTRL. The term “Marketing” is defined in Oxford dictionary as is under:

“The action or business of promoting and selling products or services, including market research and advertising.”

The term “Marketing” is defined in Cambridge dictionary is as under:

“a job that involves encouraging people to buy a product or service.”

The term “Marketing” is defined in Merriam Webster dictionary is as under:

(1) a : The act or process of selling or purchasing in a market did most of her marketing in local stores, b : The process or technique of promoting, selling, and distributing a product or service. (2) An aggregate (see AGGREGATE 1) of functions involved in moving goods from producer to consumer.

From the above definitions it is apparent that marketing of service is a very wide term. The activities of the appellant which are clearly intended to maximize the Revenue of the Principal comes under the ambit of promotion and/or marketing of service.

4.4 Ld. Counsel for the appellant has argued that the road user is not a customer, and therefore, they would not be cover under clause (iii) of the said definition. Clause (iii) of the definition of BAS reads as "Any Customer Case service provided on behalf of the client". The Ld. Counsel has relied on the decision of Tribunal in the case of Intertoll India Consultants (P) Ltd. (supra) wherein it has been held that road user is not a customer. Para 8 of the said decision reads as under:

"8. At the outset, we find that NTBCL was declared as owner of the "8. DND bridge by the Noida Authority under the Govt. of U.P. The owner had given rights of collection of toll tax to the appellant and to retain a percentage of it and remit the balance. It can be seen that the appellant herein is collecting an amount as toll from the users of the DND bridge. To our mind, the users of toll fee paid bridge cannot be considered as customers. The persons who are using the DND bridge cannot be called as customers of either the appellant or NTBCL for a simple reason, because the expression ‘customer’ as defined in Advanced Law Lexicon read as under:

"Customer is a person with whom a business house or a business man, has regular or repeated dealings; a purchaser of goods; one who frequents any place of sale for the sake of purchasing or ordering goods. A business customer is one who has the use and habit of resorting to the same person or place to do business; therefore, a stranger who goes into bank to get a cheque collected, is not a customer of the bank."

It can be seen from the above definition, a person is considered as customer of a business house when he has repeated dealings with the business house. To our mind, by any stretch of imagination, individual using the DND bridge and pays toll to the authority cannot be considered as a customer. The definition of the BAS either prior to 10-9-2004 or post 10-9-2004 has to be considered from the point of view of whether the appellant has provided any customer care services on behalf of the client. First and foremost, it is to be noted that NTBCL is not a client of the appellant as the appellant is not promoting any customer care service of NTBCL. There is no visible activity done to please the user of the DND bridge to take care of their needs or something which is done which induces to come again and again to the said DND bridge. It may be noted that the users of DND bridge may be paying the toll fees reluctantly as that is the only means to connect the two banks of the rivers."

We respectfully disagree with conclusion reached in the said paragraph. The said paragraph relies on the definition of customer as it appears in Advanced Law Lexicon. According to the said definition only a person who has regular or repeated dealing can be a customer. Customer has been defined as follows in dictionaries:

The term "Customer" is defined in Oxford dictionary as under:
- "A person who buys goods or services from a shop or business."
- "A person of a specified kind with whom one has to deal."

The term "Customer" is defined in Cambridge dictionary as under: "A person who buys goods or a service."

The term "Customer" is defined in Merriam Webster dictionary as under:
- "one that purchases a commodity or service."
- "an individual usually having some specified distinctive trait."

From the above definitions it is apparent that even a single time buyer of service or goods also qualifies as customer. Moreover, the conclusion in para 8 of the decision of Intertoll India Consultant P. Ltd. (supra) is based on the presumption that all the road users of the said road are one time users. There is no basis for the said presumption as it is possible that a lot of road users would be using the said product on daily, weekly, or monthly basis and thus qualifying as customer even by definition relied upon in the case of Intertoll (supra). It is seen that the appellants were responsible to all maintenance services for traffic. They were also responsible to take action during accidents and to clear obstructions, wreckage and broken down vehicles. They were required to ensure road availability of ambulance and toll vehicles at all times. The appellants were also required to arrange and liaison with road transport facilities and local police for the traffic arrangements. In these circumstances, we find that every user is a customer of AMTRL and the appellants are providing services to the customers (the users) on behalf of AMTRL and thus the activity would also be covered under clause (iii) of the definition of BAS.
From the above it is apparent that the appellants are providing a bouquet of services to the customers on behalf of the principal AMTRL and thus the appellants are also covered by the clause (iii) of the definition of BAS.

4.5 It is also seen that appellants are engaged in the following activities:
- Supply of toll tickets to users and collect toll from users;
- Maintain books and records about toll collected, traffic volumes, vehicles classification, exempted vehicles, etc.;
- Establish toll procedures, minimize time taken in collection of toll, ensure that exempted vehicles use only service roads and maintain toll plaza;
- Deposit each business day collection in to the toll account and ensure security of the amount;
- The toll shall be collected by single tickets using Toll Ticket Machines which shall store all the data for further electronic processing;
- Establish enforcement procedures to ensure that all the vehicles pass only after payment of toll tax and in case of failure shall compensate for loss;
- Shall augment the toll collection on the basis of traffic forecast; Ld. Counsel has argued that the issue of toll tickets is not the same as billing. We, however, do not agree with the said contention. Issue of toll ticket is nothing but billing. The activity of billing is identifying the size of vehicle and the destination to ascertain toll charges. Thereafter toll ticket is issued and money is collected. In view of above activities undertaken by the appellant, they would also be covered under clause (iv) of the definition of BAS.

4.6 In view of the above we are of the opinion that the decision in case of Intertoll India Consultants (P) Ltd. (supra) is per incurium as it ignores the common parlance definition of the term 'Customer'. As described above the activity of the appellant would be squarely covered by definition of BAS and would be chargeable to service tax during period prior to 10-9-2004 also.

4.7 The appellants have sought benefit of limitation. We find that the appellants are providing the BAS and there is no doubt regarding the same. Merely, because they are collecting the said amount on behalf of the corporate entity backed by Government it does not constitute a bona fide belief for exemption. The definition of BAS is very clear. Thus, they cannot be given any benefit on account of limitation.

5. The appeal is consequently dismissed.

3.1 It is seen that in the instant case, the nature of services is similar to that of services in the case of Larson & Toubro Ltd. (supra) as can be seen from para 4.4 & 4.5 of the Show Cause Notice:

- The form of agreement dated 31/05/2003 (alongwith the Bid Document) between M/s KCL and M/s AVEXCL was scrutinized by the officers of DGCEI, Ahmedabad. The toll services provided by M/s KCL are given at para 3.6 Scope of work (Section 3A) appearing at page no. 19 of the Bid Notice. The said form of agreement dated 31.05.2003 (along with the Bid document) is enclosed as Annexure-'A' to this SCN. It is evident from said document that M/s KCL were required to mainly provide following services:-
  i. Collection and control of Toll revenue at each plaza by manual computerized method.
  ii. Transfer of Toll revenue to M/s AVEXCL account on a daily basis.
  iii. Insurance of Toll revenue as per the terms agreed upon with M/s AVEXCL.
  iv. Safe keeping, handling, transporting, reconciliation and banking of toll revenue.
  v. Control of traffic for the Toll plaza area.
  vi. Control of and accounting for all the tolls collected.
  vii. Toll reporting and administration.
  viii. Toll related personnel management.
  ix. Security of toll plaza.
4.5 It appears from the statements of Shri Suresh Ambalal Mistry and ‘form of Agreement’ dated 31.05.2003 (alongwith the Bid document) discussed in above para that M/s KCL was providing incidental and auxiliary support Service to M/s ACEXCL in collection of toll fee. They were issuing bills in the form of toll fee tickets to the users. M/s KCL were also collecting toll fee on behalf of their client M/s AVEXCL from the users of said road, and were depositing the same in Toll account and also making arrangement for security of the said amount, M/s KCL were maintaining the accounts of the toll fee collected by them from the users and were remitting the same M/s AVEXCL. They were submitting the information about different types of vehicles which passed through the road and also the exempted vehicles. It thus appears that M/s KCL were providing following incidental and auxiliary support services to their client M/s AVEXCL:

i. Billing of toll fee in the form of toll fee tickets issues to the users of the road;

ii. Collection of toll fee on behalf of M/s AVEXCL from all the users of road, safety of the money collected and its depositing in Toll Fee Account of M/s AVEXCL;

iii. Maintenance of accounts of the toll fee collection in the toll collection machines in electronic form and remittance of the same to its client M/s AVEXCL. In fact, they were providing services like types of vehicles which used the said road and number of exempted vehicles using the road;”

4. Since we find that the nature of services provided is practically similar to the nature of services involved in the case of Larson & Toubro Ltd. (supra). Relying on the decision in the case of Larson & Toubro Ltd. (supra), appeal is dismissed.

WITH

Service Tax Appeal No. 628 of 2011

M/s. Chhatariya Dehydrates Exports ....Appellant

VERSUS

Commissioner of Central Excise & ST, Bhavnagar ....Respondent
RAJU:

These appeals have been filed by M/s. Chhatariya Dehydrates Exports against demand of service tax on commission paid on reverse charge basis.

2. Ld. Counsel for the appellant pointed out that there are three showcause notices. He argued that prior to 18.04.2006, when Section 66A wasintroduced in Finance Act, 1994, there can be no liability under reversecharge basis as held by the Hon’ble Bombay High Court in the case of Indian National Shipowners Association vs. UOI – 2009 (13) STR 235 (Bom.). He further argued that they are engaged in manufacturing of Dehydrate onions and export abroad. The appellants are paying commission to sales agent located abroad and the demand is raised in terms of Section 66A. Ld. Counsel pointed out that they are entitled for full exemption under Notification No.14/2004-ST dated 10.09.2004 as their service was inrespect of agriculture products. He also argued that they are also entitled to Notification No. 13/2003-ST dated 20.06.2003, as amended by Notification No.8/2004-ST dated 09.07.2004 which grants exemption irrespect of commission paid for sale of agricultural produce. He argued that products manufactured by them being Dehydrate onion, is an agriculture produce.

3. He also argued that the issue was under dispute and benefit of section 80 of Finance Act, 1994 for penalties should be extended. He also argued that in view of the decision of Hon’ble Supreme Court in the case of Nizam Sugar Factory vs. CCE, AP-2008(009)STR314(SC), a part of the period in the second show cause notice is also barred by limitation as the first show cause notice on the same was already issued and therefore, second time extended period could not be invoked.

4. Ld. AR relies on the impugned order. He also relied on the decision of Tribunal in the case of Uniworth Textiles Limited vs. CCE, Nagpur-2009(244) ELT 401 (Tri. Del.) wherein it was held that extended period can be invoked even after issue of an earlier show cause notice invoking extended period, in case the assessee fails to give documents and data in time. He also relied on the definition of word ‘processing’ given in the Agricultural and Processed Food Products Export Development Authority Act, 1985.

He argued that the documents asked were not supplied by the assessee as is apparent from Para14.3 and 14.4 of the impugned
5. We have gone through the rival submissions. We find that appellants are exporters of Dehydrated onion and paying commission to sales agents abroad. Demand has been made in respect of service tax on the said sales commission on reverse charge basis. It has been already held by Hon'ble Bombay High Court in the case of Indian National Shipowners Association (supra) that no demand can be sustained prior to 19.04.2006 as per Section 66A. Therefore the said demand for the period prior to 19.04.2006 is set aside.

6. Ld. Counsel claimed the benefit of Notification No. 13/2003-ST. It is seen that Notification No. 13/2003-ST, as amended, exempts commission paid in respect of sale of agricultural products. The said notification defines the agricultural produce as under:-

"(iii) "agricultural produce "means any produce resulting from cultivation or plantation, on which either no further processing is done or such processing is done by the cultivator like tending, pruning, cutting, harvesting, drying which does not alter its essential characteristics but makes it only marketable and includes all cereals, pulses, fruits, nuts and vegetables, spices, copra, sugar cane, jaggery, raw vegetable fibres such as cotton, flax, jute, indigo, unmanufactured tobacco, betel leaves, tendu leaves, rice, coffee and tea but does not include manufactured products such as sugar, edible oils, processed food and processed tobacco."

It is seen that Dehydrate onion is not covered by the said definition and Dehydrate onion cannot be called as agricultural produce. Dehydrate onion cannot be called as agricultural produce in terms of Notification No. 13/2003-ST. Notification No. 14/2004-ST dated 10.09.2004 is also not applicable in the instant situation as the service provided are not covered by any clause of the said notification.

7. The next claim of the appellant is invocation of extended period in the second show cause notice. Ld. Counsel has relied on the decision of Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Nizam Sugar Factory (supra). Ld. AR has relied on the decision of the Tribunal in the case of Uniworth Textiles Limited (supra) wherein in Para 5.3 and 5.4, the following has been observed:-

“5.3 On carefully considering the rival submissions on this point, we are of the view that the ratio of the Hon'ble Supreme Court judgments in the cases of P&N Pharmaceuticals Pvt. Ltd. v. CCE (supra) and Nizam Sugar Factory (supra) is that once a show cause notice for demand of short levied/short paid duty for a particular period is issued on the basis of certain set of facts, show cause notice for recovery of short levied/short paid duty for the subsequent period cannot be issued by alleging willful misstatement, fraud, suppression of facts etc. on the basis of the same set of facts. In the case of Nizam Sugar Factory, first show cause notice for recovery of short paid duty for the period from February 1978 to September 1982 had been issued on 28-2-84 invoking extended period by making allegation of willful misstatement, suppression of facts etc. and subsequently a second show cause notice dated 16-7-87 was issued for the subsequent period from October 1982 to March 1987 on the basis of same set of facts making allegation of wilful statement, suppression of facts, and it is in this background that Hon’ble Supreme Court held that the second show cause notice could not be issued by invoking extended period on the basis of same set of facts. The facts of this case are different. There is no dispute about the fact that during the period from August 1997 to March 2002, the appellants have committed a fraud for evasion of duty by clearing prime quality fabrics as rejects and the show cause notice for the entire period would have been issued on 13-8-02, had UTL furnished the figures of their sales to UIL for July 2001 to March 2002 period in time. A separate show cause notice for the period from July 2001 to March 2002 had to be issued after issue of the first show cause notice dated 13-8-02 only because the information for the period from July 2001 to March 2002 was received subsequently that is after issue of the first show cause notice. In view of these circumstances, we are of the view that extended period is applicable even for the second show cause notice.

5.4 Since this is a case where the appellant have committed a fraud, UTL would be liable for penalty under Section 11AC of Central Excise Act and other notices would be liable for penalty under Rule 209A of the erstwhile Central Excise Rules, 1944/Rules 26 of the Central Excise Rules 2001-02.”

In this case too the appellant had resisted supplying documents and data. The facts are not disputed by the appellant and in these circumstances we find that there was suppression of facts and consequently, extended period has been rightly invoked, in the subsequent notice also.

8. In view of the above, the entire demand for the period after 18.04.2006 is upheld. Penalty imposed under Section 78 is also revised as equal to the demand confirmed in the order. Appeal is partly allowed in the above terms.

The brief facts of the case are that the appellant had obtained workorders from Gujarat State Police Housing Corporation Limited (GSPHCL for short) and accordingly during the year 2009-10 to 2011-12 had constructed residential quarters for the staff of the Gujarat Police. The appellant had also carried out construction of residential complex for Rajkot Municipal Corporation (RMC for short) as subcontractor of M/s. Avadh Construction. The appellant had not paid service tax on the said construction service provided to GSPHCL and RMC, therefore the demand was raised and confirmed under the category of Residential Complex Service.

2. Shri Amal Dave, Ld. Counsel appearing on behalf of the appellant fairly concede that the appellant being sub-contractor is liable to pay service tax as held by the Larger Bench of this Tribunal in the case of CST, New Delhi vs. Melange Developers Pvt. Limited-2019. However, he submits that the entire demand is time-barred as the showcause notice was issued beyond the normal period. He submits that there is no malafide on the part of the appellant. The appellant had not paid service tax as there was confusion that whether the sub-contractor is liable to pay service tax when the entire service tax was paid by the main contractor. On this issue there were conflicting judgments and finally the issue was settled by the Larger Bench in the case of Melange Developers Pvt. Limited (supra). Therefore, in these circumstances, it cannot be said that the appellant suppressed the facts or had malafide intention to evade the service tax. Therefore, the demand for the longer period is time-barred. In support, he relied on the following judgments:-
3. Shri Gobind Jha, Ld. Superintendent (AR) appearing on behalf of the Revenue reiterates the findings of the impugned order. He submits that the confusion on the issue that whether the subcontractor is liable to pay service tax or otherwise has arisen only due to issuance of Board Circular in the year 2002, clarifying that when the main contractor discharged the service tax liability, sub-contractor need not to pay service tax. Subsequently, the Board Circular was modified in the year 2005 according to which the assessee, even though acted as sub-contractor, required to pay service tax. Therefore, after issue of Board Circular in the year 2005, there was no reason to believe that the sub-contractor is not liable to pay service tax. He further submits that the appellant failed to obtain registration therefore, there is a clear suppression of facts on their part. He further submits that all the judgments on limitation are related to the issue on merits or pertaining to the period prior to the issuance of Board Circular in the year 2005 and in the present case, the period involved is 2007-08 which was much after the Board modified the circular in 2005. Therefore, there cannot be a bonafide belief for non-payment of tax. He placed reliance on the following judgments:-
4. Heard both sides and perused the record. We find that there is no dispute on the taxability as has been held by the Larger Bench that the sub-contractor is independently liable to pay service tax even though service tax liability has been discharged by the main contractor. Therefore, in the present case, demand on merit is clearly sustainable. As regards the limitation argued by the ld. Counsel, we find that the confusion arose due to Board Circular issued in 2002 wherein the Board has clarified that in case of sub-contractor, the service tax is not payable by sub-contractor if service tax is discharged by the main contractor. However, the Circular was amended in 2005 and thereafter the issue became clear that the sub-contractor was required to pay service tax and the conflicting judgments were due to the earlier Board Circular. However, after 2005, there was no reason for the assessee to believe that the sub-contractor is not liable for payment of service tax. If any assessee is of the belief that being sub-contractor they are not liable to pay service tax, in the light of amendment in Circular in 2005, the assessee should have approached the department and make the position clear regarding their bonafide belief. But in the present case, the appellant did not approach the department regarding their bonafide belief nor they obtained the registration. Therefore, when the Board issued amendment in 2005, it cannot be said that the appellant entertained bonafide belief correctly.

5. Further, we find that the judgments cited by the ld. Counsel on the issue of limitation are pertaining to the period prior to the Board Circular whereby the sub-contractor was made liable to pay service tax. Therefore, the said judgments cannot be made applicable for the subsequent period particularly in the present case which is for the period 2007-08 and 2008-09.

We also find that in the case of Max Tech Oil & Gas Services Pvt. Limited (supra), on the identical issue of taxability on sub-contractor, it was clearly held that extended period is invokable. Similarly, in the case of Sew Construction Limited (supra), the Tribunal has dealt with the liability to pay service tax by the sub-contractor and has clearly held that since registration was not sought, claim of bonafide belief cannot be accepted and demand for the extended period was maintained and penalty was also intact.

6. In view of our above observations, the impugned order is upheld, the appeal is dismissed.

This appeal has been filed by IILM against order demand of service tax, interest and imposition of penalty under Section 77 and 78 of the Finance Act, 1994.

1.1 None appeared on behalf of the appellant despite notice. The matter was adjourned five times earlier; therefore, the matter is taken up for final disposal.

2 The facts of the case are that the appellants are engaged in imparting courses such as MBA, PGP programme (industry integrated). A Show cause notice was issued to the appellant demanding service tax on this activity under the head of 'Commercial Coaching and Training'. The demand was confirmed and penalty was imposed. The said order was upheld by Commissioner (Appeals) and hence this appeal. From the grounds of appeal, it is seen that the IILM Business School was set up by International School of Learning in Management trust a Public Charitable Trust and it was an approved center of Eastern Institute of Integrated Learning in Management University Sikkim which in turn is approved by University Grants Commissioner. It was also stated that Eastern Institute of Integrated Learning in Management University Sikkim has full authority and legal sanction to grant degrees and diplomas as per section 22 of the said Act to its student upon successful completion of the course. The appellant got approval from the University vide its letter dated 12.02.2009 to be its knowledge hub and to enrol students for the management classes i.e. M.B.A. All the students of the appellant were enrolled for getting degree/diploma/certificate from a University duly recognized under the law, after qualifying the exams. All the enrolled students were required to complete the course as prescribed by the university and have to adhere to the rules and regulations such as minimum attendance, eligibility etc as prescribed by the university so as to be able to appear for the examinations conducted by the university.

It is seen that the original adjudicating authority has confirmed the demand on the ground that noticee has been authorized by Eastern Institute of Integrated Learning in Management as knowledge hub of EIILM University Sikkim. The order in original observes that the appellants are not granting any degree recognized by law but are acting as a knowledge hub for EIILM University set up by State Government of Sikkim and which is approved by University Grant Commissioner. The order in appeal also upholds the order in original on the same ground.

The appellant have also contended that they are entitled to Notification No. 10/2003 dated 20.06.2003 on the ground that they are providing Coaching or Training confirming and essential part of course curriculum of any other institute or establishment leading to issuance of any certificate or diploma or degree or education qualification recognized by law.

3. Learned Authorized Represenative relies on the decision of Hon’ble High Court, State of Telangana in case of NRI Academy Guntur 2019 20 GSTL 23 (AP). We have considered rival submissions. We find that the appellants themselves are not recognized by law to grant any degree and therefore, the service provided by the appellant qualifies as Commercial Coaching and Training. Notification 10/2003 reads as under:-

“Commercial training or coaching centre providing commercial training or coaching of specified type exempted

In exercise of the powers conferred by section 93 of the Finance Act, 1994 (32 of 1994), the Central Government, being satisfied that it is necessary in the public interest so to do, hereby exempts the taxable services provided by a commercial training or coaching centre, in relation to commercial training or coaching, which form an essential part of a course or curriculum of any other institute or establishment, leading to issuance of any certificate or diploma or degree or educational qualification recognised by law for the time being in force, to any person, from the whole of the service tax leviable thereon under sub-section (2) of section 66 of the said Act:

Provided that this exemption shall not be applicable if the charges for such services are paid by the person undergoing such course or curriculum directly to the commercial training or coaching centre.

2. This notification shall come into force on the 1st day of July, 2003.”

It is seen that to claim the Notification benefit, the appellant have to establish that the charge for such services are not paid by the service recipient to the service provider. In the instant case, the order in original as well as the impugned order record that the payment has been made to the appellants by the service recipient and thus, the benefit of Notification 10/2003-ST is not available.

4. In similar circumstances Larger Bench of Tribunal in the case of Sri Chaitanya Educational Committee 2015 TIOL 1175 CESTAT – BANGALORE has observed as follows:

“78. The main contention of the learned Advocate for the appellants is that the Appellant Society through their own junior colleges and the junior colleges of other societies, under its management, imparts education to the students for intermediate 11th and 12th Standards, like any other school/college providing education for 11th and 12th Standard, anywhere in the country, each of the colleges, either belonging to the Appellant Society or belong to other societies and run by the Appellant Society are recognized by the Andhra Pradesh Intermediate Board and are monitored and regulated by the Board. The Appellant Society introduced optional stream of courses in the year 1991, much before service tax was introduced on “Commercial Training or Coaching Centre” in 2003, for students undergoing intermediate courses in their colleges. These optional courses are offered to students securing high percentage of marks in intermediate examination and to enable the students to appear and score high marks in various entrance examinations such as IIT, JEE, Engineering and Medical Common Entrance Test (EAMCET), etc. The contention of the learned Advocate is that as per the Section 65(27), an institute or establishment, which provides training or coaching for imparting skill, knowledge or lessons is a “Commercial Training or Coaching Centre”. But, the institute or establishment, provides training or coaching or imparting skill, knowledge or lessons and issues a certificate/educational qualification recognized by law, would be excluded from the levy of Service Tax. In the present case, the Appellant Society provides the coaching classes to the students, which is integral part of the intermediate course conducted by the college and the certificates issued by BIE (Board of Intermediate Education), Government of Andhra Pradesh and duly signed and endorsed by the Principal of the respective college, are recognized by law. So, it is not covered under the definition.

79. For the purpose of proper appreciation of the case, the definition of “Commercial Training or Coaching Centre” under Section 65(27) of Finance Act, 1994 is reproduced below:

“Commercial training or coaching centre’ means any institute or establishment providing commercial training or coaching for imparting skill or knowledge or lessons on any subject or filed other than the sports, with or without issuance of a certificate and includes coaching or tutorial classes but does not include pre-school coaching and training centre or any institute or establishment which issues any certificate or diploma or degree or any educational qualification recognized by law for the time being in force.”

80. The definition of “Commercial Training or Coaching Centre” have both inclusive and exclusive part, i.e., it may include certain things and exclude others. The word “any”, e.g., institute or establishment providing Commercial Training or Coaching in the main part of the definition, is a word having very wide meaning. It is noted that the definition also categorically includes “coaching or tutorial classes”. The word “includes” in the definition makes it clear that the intention was to make it more extensive. In this perspective, the exclusion part of the definition suggests a very limited purpose to “pre-school coaching and training centre” and any institute or establishment, which issues any certificate or diploma recognized by law. The “coaching or tutorial classes” mentioned in the inclusive part of the definition and it cannot be covered in the exclusive portion of the definition. While interpreting the definition of “Commercial Training or Coaching Centre”, the exclusion part must be strictly construed, what is being included in the definition cannot be excluded, unless it is specifically mentioned. In the present case, according to the appellant, they were offering coaching classes to the students of intermediate standard of their colleges and other colleges for appearing joint entrance examination of IIT, JEE, etc. In my considered view, when “coaching classes” have categorically included in the definition, then, it cannot be excluded by stretching the meaning of exclusion clause of the definition.

81. The learned Advocate strongly relied upon the Board’s Circular No. 59/8/2003-S.T., dated 26-6-2003, whether Service Tax is applicable on institute or establishment providing commercial coaching in addition to the recognized degree courses. It is clarified that some institutes like colleges, apart from imparting education for obtaining recognized degree/diploma/certificate, also impart training for competitive examinations, various entrance tests. Such institutes or establishments, which issue a certificate, diploma or degree recognized by law, are outside the purview of “Commercial Training or Coaching” institute. Thus, even if such institutes or establishment provides training for competitive examinations, etc., such services rendered would be outside the scope of Service Tax. In my view, while deciding the words “any institute or establishment which issues certificate or diploma or degree or any educational qualification recognized by law”, ordinarily, would not include coaching or tutorial classes. After close reading of Board Circular and the definition, it appears that the institute or establishment issuing certificate, recognized by the law, is also conducting coaching classes, would be outside of the purview of the levy of Service Tax. The learned Advocate stated that in the present case, the coaching classes are integrally connected with the intermediate courses conducted by the colleges. The contention of the learned Advocate that the certificate issued by Andhra Pradesh Board is endorsed by the Principal of the college, which would cover the exclusion part of the definition. In this context, it is required to examine the facts of the case as to whether the coaching classes offered by the Appellant Society are integrally connected with the intermediate courses.

82. The learned Member (Technical) in his order had elaborately discussed the facts and held that the courses have no nexus with intermediate courses of the colleges. The adjudicating authority had also given detailed findings on this issue as the coaching classes are conducted in different places (campuses and special fields). These facts were admitted by the appellant in their statements. The relevant portions of the findings of the adjudicating authority are reproduced below :-

“58. In his statement dated 2-3-2006 given before the Superintendent of Central Excise under Section 14 ibid, Sri Yarlagadda Sasi Kumar, Campus Incharge of Sri Chaitanya EAMCET Coaching Centre, Sri Vyshnavi Bhavan, Gurunanaknagar Colony, had stated that “intensive coaching for EAMCET would be given in their premises; that the duration of the coaching is 8 to 10 months, that depending on the performance of the students, fees from Rs. 20,000/- to 50,000/- would be collected from each student; that the collection of fees and the details would be done at the Central Office and that in this premises, Attendance Register and records connecting to education were only maintained.

59. In the Statement dated 13-3-2006 given before the Superintendent of Central Excise under Section 14 of the Central Excise Act, 1944, Dr. B.S. Rao, President, Sri Chaitanya Educational Committee had stated that “their accounting was centralized at Vijayawada for all the branches that in every branch, Principal to look into academic and administration was posted; that in the Head Office at Vijayawada, Dr. B. Jhansi Laxmi and himself would look after the general administration; that some students were day students and some stay as boarders; that the courses offered were Bi.P.C., M.P.C., M.E.C. both English and Telugu media; that the boarding facilities were only for M.P.C. and Bi.P.C. and Boarding facilities were given both for intermediate and coaching students of competitive examinations; that for the students who score more than 90% in 10th class, there was no fees at all, while some concession would be given for the students who got more than 80% in 10th class; that for competitive exams also, the students were offered free seats who got a rank of below 2500 in the previous examination; that there were some more concessions, like 75% concession for the students who got a rank in between 2500-3000, 50% concession who got a rank between 3000-4000 and 25% fee concession for the students who got 4000-5000.” From the above, it is evident that the concessions, benefits were given by Sri Chaitanya Educational Committee to the students on the basis of merit but not on the basis of economic conditions of the students.”

83. The students appear for the intermediate examinations under the hall ticket issued by the respective colleges and the students after passing examination, are awarded a certificate which issued by Intermediate Board Education duly endorsing stamp of respective college. However, the students of said colleges underwent coaching in different campus of the appellant on payment of fee ranging from Rs. 8,000.00 to Rs. 75,000.00 which was accepted by Shri K.V. Subba Rao, Accounts Manager of the appellant in his statement dated 28-2-2006. He also confirmed that the amount was collected from the different students of different colleges whounderwent coaching of JE-IIT, EAMCET, etc., in different branches of the Appellant Society situated in Andhra Pradesh and other places of India. It is clearly evident from the facts of the case that the coaching classes were conducted in different campuses, separate fees and totally independent and had no nexus with the intermediate courses of the colleges. So, I agree with the finding of the learned Member (Technical) that Service Tax is leviable on the Appellant Society on such coaching classes.
84. The next issue is whether the extended period of limitation is invokable as held by learned Member (Technical) or not invokable as held by learned Member (Judicial). Learned Member (Technical) observed that the appellants were aware of their tax liability as they have registered in Kota, Rajasthan and paid Service Tax. There is no logic or rational on different stand taken by the appellant in Kota and Andhra Pradesh. The appellants are not entitled to a bona fide belief that they are not liable to pay Service Tax.”

We find that in view of the decision of Tribunal in case of Shri Chaitanya Educational Committee (supra) the appellants are liable to pay service tax on the service provided by them as the appellants are not falling under any category excluded from the definition of Commercial Coaching and Training.

5. Relying on the aforesaid decision, we hold that the demand of duty, interest and penalty under Section 77 and 78 are upheld. The appeal is consequentially dismissed.

(JUSTICE DILIP GUPTA)
HON’BLE (PRESIDENT)
This appeal has been filed by M/s Masti Tour & Travels against demand of Cenvat Credit.

2. Ld. Counsel for the appellant pointed out that they were availing credit on Service tax deducted by the IATA agent by giving them a commission in respect of sales. The appellants were working as travel agent and utilizing the main IATA agent for booking tickets for their clients. The appellants were paying Service Tax on the processing charges. IATA agent was giving them certain commission and from that Commission, IATA agent was deducting certain amount under the head of Service Tax. Ld. Counsel could not point out what services they were receiving from IATA on which the service tax was paid.

3. Ld. AR relies on the impugned order. He argued that in absence of any specific services which the appellant was receiving from IATA agent any Service Tax element shown in the invoice has no relevance.

4. I have considered rival submission. I find that credit has been taken by the appellant on certain invoice raised by the IATA agent. Ld. Counsel argued that they were providing services to IATA agent and receiving commission on which the IATA agent had paid Service Tax. They had taken credit on the said service tax. I do not find merit in the said argument for the reason that if the appellant was providing service to IATA then it was responsibility of the appellant to pay Service Tax and not by IATA agents. Moreover if the appellant were providing services on the basis of Commission to IATA agents, then IATA agents could have availed the credit in these circumstances. I do not find merit in the appeal, the same is dismissed.

Final Order No. A/ 10337-10338 /2020

DATE OF HEARING: 15.10.2019
DATE OF DECISION: 29.01.2020

These appeals have been filed by M/s. Hindustan Fabricators against demand of Service Tax, Interest, and imposition of penalty.

2. Learned Counsel for the appellant pointed out that they are engaged in provision of service under the category of Works Contract Service, Commercial and Industrial Construction Service and Business Auxiliary Service and held registration under Service Tax for that purpose. During disputed period i.e. 2008-09 to 2013-14 the appellants were engaged in execution of various contract for laying of pipelines for water supply and drainage system and other Civic amenities for Surat Municipal Corporation, Gujarat Water Supply and Sewerage Board (GWSSB), Canal Division, NHAI And M/s. Surat Urban Development Authority which are all Government Organizations. The appellants engaged as main contractor as well as sub-contractor. In some cases the appellants were issued Show Cause Notice demanding Service Tax under the Erection, Commissioning or Installation Service (ECIS) in respect of services provided by them to local authorities for laying of pipelines. The said demand was confirmed by the Original Adjudicating Authority an hence these appeals.

Learned Counsel argued that while demand has been made under Erection, Commissioning or Installation Service there are decisions which hold that such service cannot be classified under the category of ECIS. Learned counsel relied on the decision of tribunal in case of INDIANHUME PIPE CO. LTD. VS COMMISSIONER OF C. EX., Trichy 2008 (12) S.T.R. 363 (Tri.-Chennai) wherein, it was held that the activity of laying of long distance pipelines would not fall under the definition of ECIS. He argued that the said decision has been upheld by Hon’ble High Court of Madras as reported in 2015 40 S.T.R. 214 (Mad.). He also pointed out that the issue is squarely covered by the decision of larger bench in case of LANCO INFRATECH LTD. VS. CC,CE&ST, HYDERABAD 2015 (38) S.T.R. 709 (Tri.-LB) wherein, it was held that construction of pipelines/conduit for transmission of water/sewerage and associated works like digging of the earth, supporting pipeline/conduit, construction of pumping station together with associated machinery and other construction works cannot be classified under ECIS. He argued that the said decision classified such services under Commercial or Industrial Construction Service for the period up to 01.06.2007 but after that period it is not liable to Service Tax. He also pointed out that the said decision of Larger Bench was followed by tribunal in case of SHONAN SIDDHART (J.V) VS CCE 2017 (51) STR 64 (Tri.-Mumbai).

Learned Counsel pointed out that while the demand has been raised under the head of ECIS and the activity cannot be classified under the head of ECIS. In these circumstances no demand can be sustained under any other head of service. He also relied on the decision of tribunal in case of REAL VALUE PROMOTERS PVT. LTD. VS COMMISSIONER OF GST & CENTRAL EXCISE 2018- TOIL-2867-CESTAT-MAD. He argued that the tribunal in case of CONCEPT MOTORS PVT. LTD. vide Order no. A/11717/2018 dated 07.08.2018 held that the service tax demand raised under wrong classification cannot be sustained. He argued that in the present case the services of laying of pipeline and allied works are classifiable under Commercial or Industrial Construction Service or Works Contract Service and not under ECIS and, therefore, demand cannot be sustained.

Learned counsel further pointed out that the services provided by them are not commercial in nature in so much as the services have been provided to various Government Organizations like Surat Municipal Corporation, Gujarat Water Supply and Sewerage Board (GWSSB) and Surat Urban Development Authority. He also relied on the decision of Hon’ble High Court of Gujarat in case of BMS PROJECTS PVT. LTD. 2018 (8) GSTL 13 (Guj.) wherein, it was held that the activity conducted by Gujarat Water Supply and Sewerage Board does not have a profit motive and therefore, the services provided to the board cannot be considered commercial activity. Learned Counsel also relied on decision in case of BJSHIRKE CONSTRUCTION TECHNOLOGY PVT LTD 2019-TIOL-646-HC- MUM-ST wherein it was held that the services provided for construction which are not used for commercial purpose cannot be charged for Commercial Or Industrial Construction Service category.

Learned counsel further argued that after 01.07.2012 the said services are specifically exempted by the negative list. He pointed out that Entry No. 12,13 & 25 of Notification No. 25/2012-ST dated 20.6.2012 clearly covers the activities under taken by them in the negative list.

Learned counsel further pointed out that demand has been raised under Business Auxiliary Service category also. He pointed out that the exact sub-clause of section 65 (19) of the Finance Act, 1994 has not been pointed out while raising the demand under Business Auxiliary Service. He relied on the decision of tribunal in case of SWAPNIL ASNODKAR 2018 (1) TMI 266- CESTAT MUMBAI to hold that demand under these circumstances cannot be sustained.

3. Learned Authorized Representative relied on the impugned order.

4. Learned Counsel argued that the ground relating to non-commercial nature of SMC/GWSSB was not raised before the lower authorities and has been raised for the first time in tribunal. Learned Authorized Representative argued that the appellants have contended that the activity would fall under Works Contract Service. He pointed out that there is no exemption under Works Contract Service in the negative list. Learned Authorized Representative further pointed out the services provided by them was not to SMC or GWSSB in all cases but was to other contractors who were in turn providing services to GWSSB, SMC & Surat Urban Development Authority. Learned Authorized Representative pointed out that the activity done by them is squarely covered under the definition of ECIS. He pointed out that the definition of ECIS at the material time reads as follows:

“Erection, Commissioning or Installation” means any service provided by a commissioning and installation agency, in relation to,—

(i) erection, commissioning or installation of plant, “machinery, equipment or structures, whether pre-fabricated or otherwise” or

(ii) installation of—

(a) electrical and electronic devices, including wirings or fittings therefor; or

(b) plumbing, drain laying or other installations for transport of fluids; or

(c) heating, ventilation or air-conditioning including related pipe work, duct work and sheet metal work; or

(d) thermal insulation, sound insulation, fire proofing or water proofing; or

(e) lift and escalator, fire escape staircases or travelators; or

(f) such other similar services;

He pointed out that the said category specifically covers plumbing, drain laying or other installations for transport of fluids.

5. We have considered rival submissions, we find that the primary defense of the appellant is that the activity under taken by them does not fall under the category of ECIS. It has been argued that since the demand has been made under ECIS only, no demand under any other classification such as Commercial or Industrial Works Construction Service or Works Contract Service can be sustained. For this argument they have relied on the decision of REAL VALUE PROMOTERS PVT. LTD.(supra) and on the decision in the case of CONCEPT MOTORS PVT. LTD. (supra). In the case of CONCEPT MOTORS PVT. LTD. (supra) tribunal has observed as follows:
“As regard the demand of service tax on referral fees received by the appellant from HDFC Chubb insurance company, we find that the service is in connection with business of insurance of HDFC Chubb. In terms of Sub Section 65 of Finance Act, 1994, the service provided by the appellant falls under definition of Insurance Auxiliary Services whereas the Revenue has raised the demand under wrong head. On this ground the demand of service tax under Business Auxiliary Services does not sustain. As per our above discussion, the impugned order is set aside and appeal is allowed.”

The next argument of the appellant is that the service provided by them is not covered under ECIS as held by tribunal in case of INDIAN HUME PIPE CO. LTD. (supra) affirmed by the Hon’ble High Court of Madras. In Para 8, 8.1 & 8.2 of the decision of tribunal in case of INDIAN HUME PIPE CO. LTD. following has been observed:

“8. We have considered the rival arguments. The dispute involves the meaning of the expression and legislative intent behind scope of the levy on erection, commissioning or installation. The impugned order found that up to 16-6-95, the assessee had rendered the taxable activity of erection, commissioning or installation of a plant. The Commissioner found that “plant represented a fixed investment for carrying out certain institutional activity for business”. The water supply system involving pipelines is therefore seen as a plant. The activity undertaken by IHPL is construction of pipeline by earthwork excavation, conveying and lowering of PSC/MS pipes and MS specials, AC pipes, PVC pipes, CI/GI pipes and jointing materials into the trench; laying to proper grade and alignment; refilling the trenches with excavated soil after laying of pipes, construction of sluice valve pits, scour valve pits, air valve pits, thrust blocks, etc.

We find ourselves in agreement with the appellants’ reading of the expressions contained in the relevant entry, namely, ‘erection, commissioning or installation’. We find it elementary that ‘erection’ connotes construction or building of a structure and laying of pipeline does not involve erection. We find no ambiguity in the expression installation. It applies to machinery already made which are formally made ready to operate at the site. Installation implies setting up the machinery ready for use, like giving power connections or installing driver software in the case of a machine run with the aid computer software. Commissioning involves the operationalisation of the machinery after which it starts functioning regularly. In laying of long distance pipeline, earth is dug and pipes laid and jointed, and the pipes pass through sumps with boosters at intervals, if necessary. This activity will not involve erection.

As rightly argued by IHPL, the CBEC Circular No. 62/11/2003-S.T., dated 21-8-2003, inter alia, clarified the levy to the same effect as follows:

“1.2 As commonly understood, the activity of installation means the act of putting an equipment, machinery or plant into its place and making it ready for use. The activity of installation will start after erection which would refer to putting up civil structures. Commissioning of a plant would mean operationalising an installed plant/equipment/machinery.”

Whereas erection became part of the entry only from 10-9-04, from 16-6-05 onwards meaning of ‘erection, commissioning or installation’ [Section 65(39a)] was enlarged to include installation of various devices and equipments. An entry “plumbing, drain laying, or other installation for transport of fluids" was introduced under sub-section (ii)(b). The impugned order found that the service involved was specifically covered from 16-6-05 under the same head by the entry “plumbing, drain laying, or other installation for transport of fluids”. We are inclined to agree with the appellants that this entry covers such facility provided in a building as it appears in the company of air-conditioning system, lifts, electronic devices including wiring etc. which are installed in a building. The Commissioner found that “plant represented a fixed investment for carrying out certain institutional activity for business”. The ld. Consultant for the department has tried to defend the interpretation of the Commissioner of the expression plant. The Commissioner’s interpretation of a plant would cover a long distance pipeline. We find it difficult to accept the above reading of the word plant in the context it is used. It is an inappropriate selection of the various meanings of this simple word. Plant in popular usage means a cluster of buildings or a building in which machinery are installed usually for manufacture of goods. Long distance pipeline is not even remotely associated with this common understanding of the word plant. We also find that a water supply project is an infrastructure facility and a civic amenity the State provides in public interest and not an activity of commerce or industry. The impugned order also did not hold it to come under a service of commercial or industrial nature as submitted by the ld Consultant for the Revenue. Therefore, the impugned order demanding duty on the activity of laying of pipeline interpreting it to be erection, commissioning and installation of a plant is totally misconceived and unacceptable.”

While affirming the decision of tribunal in case of INDIAN HUME PIPE(supra), the Hon’ble High Court of Madras relied on the decision of Larger Bench of tribunal in case of LANCO INFRATECH LTD. 2015 (38) S.T.R.709 (Tri.-LB). Hon’ble High Court observed as follows:

“10. On the question as to what happens if the case is covered by Section 65(25b), a larger Bench of the Customs, Excise and Service Tax has already held in Lanco Infratech Ltd. v. Commissioner of Customs, Central Excise and Service Tax, Hyderabad [2015 TIOL-768-CESTAT-BANG-LB = 2015 S.T.R. 709 (Tri. - Bang)] as follows:

“Considered in the light of the precedents referred to herein above; the definitions of ECIS and CICS; the Board clarification dated 7-1-2010; the Dictionary meanings ascribed to the word "conduit"; and provisions of Section 65A(2)(a) and (b), we conclude that construction of a pipeline/conduit for transmission of water/sewerage and involving associated works like digging of the earth, supporting pipeline/conduit, construction of pumping stations together with associated machinery and other construction works, including for transmission of water in lift irrigation projects, cannot be classified under ECIS. These services are only classifiable as CICS. Where the pipeline/conduit laying is executed for Government or Government undertakings as part of irrigation, water supply, or sewerage projects, the works are not exigible to service tax under CICS (prior to 1-6-2007), since these are not primarily for commercial or industrial purposes and are excluded from the scope of the taxable services qua the exclusionary clause definition of CICS, in Section 65(25b) of the Act.”

11. As rightly pointed out by the Tribunal, the assessee was entrusted with the task of laying a long distance pipeline to enable the Tamil Nadu Water Supply and Drainage Board to supply water. It was an activity in public interest, to take care of the civic amenities liable to be provided by the State. Therefore, the Tribunal was right in holding in favour of the assessee.
Hence, the question of law is answered in favour of the assessee.”

In view of categorical findings of Larger Bench as well as Hon’ble High Court of Madras cited above we respectfully hold that the activities under taken by the appellant cannot be classified under ECIS.

The other arguments of revenue regarding classification of services under Works Contract Service or Commercial or Industrial Construction Service become irrelevant as no demand under the said head has been raised by revenue. No charge for classification of the serviced provided by the appellant under the head of Works Contract or Commercial or Industrial Construction Service has been made against the appellant. In these circumstances we are unable to uphold the demand raised against the appellant in respect of activities relating to laying of pipelines for Surat Municipal Corporation, Gujarat Water Supply and Sewerage Board (GWSSB), Canal Division, NHAI And M/s. Surat Urban Development Authority.

The revenue has also argued that in some cases the appellant have acted as sub-contractor and not as main contractor. We find that the said argument is of no use as the demand has been raised solely under the category of ECIS and in view of the decision of Hon’ble High Court of Madras and the Large Bench cited above, no demand under the said head can be raised against the appellant.

6. The second part of the dispute relates to service tax under the category of Business Auxiliary Service. A demand of Rs. 1,23,856 has been sustained in respect of sales commission received by the appellant from M/s. Electrosteel Castings Ltd., M/s. Lanco Industries Ltd., and M/s. Pacific Pipe Systems Pvt. Ltd. It has been argued by the appellant that the specific sub-clause of the Business Auxiliary Service under which tax is sought to be demanded has not been identified. He placed reliance on the decision of tribunal in case of SWAPNIL ASNODKAR (supra). We find that in Para 6.1 of the Show Cause Notice in the said para after identifying the amount received as the sales commission following has been expressly stated.

“It also reveals from the details submitted by M/s. Electrosteel Castings Ltd., Ahmedabad that they have given work to M/s. Shree Hindustan to act as their sales commissioner agent for pipes. The said work of commissioner agent fails in the Business Auxiliary Services. M/s. Electrosteel Castings Ltd., Ahmedabad has paid Rs. 5,29,110/- to M/s. Shree Hindustan against the services provided to them which includes amount of Service Tax.”

6.1. Similar, assertions have been made in case of all such three clients of the appellant. We find that specific clarity of charge has been made to levy Service Tax under the category of Business Auxiliary Service and no prejudice is caused to the appellant on account of this the demand under the head of Business Auxiliary Service is confirmed. The interest and penalty in respect of Business Auxiliary Service is also upheld. The demand of duty, interest and penalties in respect of demand under ECIS category is set aside.

7. Appeal is partly allowed in above terms.

FINAL ORDER NOS. 61104-61105 of 2019

Per: Ashok Jindal:

The appellants are in appeal against the demand of service tax confirmed against them along with interest and various penalties have been imposed on them.

2. The facts of the case are that an intelligence was gathered that the appellant is a practicing chartered accountant and also providing services, namely, field investigation, collection of payments, recovery of loans etc. to various banks and financial institutions, therefore, on these services the appellant is liable to pay service tax. On the basis of record provided by the appellant before the Revenue and on the basis of the statement of the appellant, it was alleged that the appellant is liable to pay service tax under the category of business auxiliary service with effect from 01.07.2003 and under the category of business support services with effect from 01.05.2006, it was also revealed from the records that the appellant is collecting the service tax from their clients on the services in question and not deposited in the same with the department. Neither the appellant is showing the same in ST-3 return nor they have paid service tax or the service tax in question being exempted, therefore, the show cause notice dated 23.10.2008 was issued to demand service tax under the category of practicing chartered accountant service, business auxiliary service and business support services for the period of 01.07.2003 to 31.03.2008. The matter was adjudicated. As there is no dispute with regard to payment of service tax on practicing chartered accountants and the same was paid by the appellant in time, therefore for the rest of the services the adjudicating authority confirmed the demand of service tax under the category of Business Auxiliary Service along with interest and various penalties under the finance act were also imposed on both the appellants. Against the said order, both appellants are before us.

3. The ld. Counsel appearing on behalf of the appellants submits that whatever amount they have collected from their clients for providing the services in question on which demand has been confirmed, the appellant has paid the same along with interest before issuance of the show cause notice. He further submitted that the case of the Revenue falls flatly as per the show cause notice itself. As for the period prior to 01.05.2006, the service tax is demanded under business auxiliary service and thereafter under business support service, the service tax can’t be demanded under ‘Business Auxiliary Service’ as held by this Tribunal in the case of M/s S.R. Kalyanakrishan Vs. Commissioner of C. ExCochin reported in 2008 (9) S.T.R 255 (Tri.-Bang.) which states that if the service rendered by the assessee falls under Business Support Service, therefore, no service tax is payable prior to 01.05.2006 under the category of Business Auxiliary Service. In that circumstances, the show cause notice is not sustainable with regard to demand of service tax under Business Auxiliary Service and the impugned order is also not sustainable as the adjudicating authority has gone beyond the allegation in the show cause notice demanding service tax under the business auxiliary service, whereas show cause notice demands under the business support service.

4. On the other hand, Ld. AR opposed the contention of the Ld. Counsel and submits that the service tax has been demanded from the appellants under both the categories i.e. Business Auxiliary Service and Business Support Service, therefore, the adjudicating authority has rightly classified their service under Business Auxiliary Service and demand of service tax is rightly confirmed. He further submits that during the course of investigation, the appellants themselves have admitted that they have collected the service tax and the same has not paid. The said collection of service tax is neither shown in their ST-3 return nor shown as exempted service. He further submitted that the appellant has not paid interest as per the records placed before the adjudicating authority. He further submits the decision of the S.R. Kalyanakrishan (Supra) is distinguishable from the facts of the case and the same has been taken care in the impugned order.

5. Heard the parties and considered the submissions.

6. In this case the facts which are not in dispute are that (A) the appellant is practicing chartered accountant and apart from the same, the appellants are providing various services, namely field investigation, collection of payments, recovery of loans etc. to various banks and financial institutions.

7. It is also admitted fact that prior to 01.05.2006 i.e. from 01.07.2003 it has been alleged that the appellant is liable to pay service tax on these services under the category of Business Auxiliary Services, from 01.05.2006 it is alleged in the show cause notice that the appellant is liable to pay service tax under Business Support Service. As these are admitted facts, in this case, as per Revenue’s of the view that prior to 01.05.2006 the appellant was not liable to pay service tax under the category of Business Support Service. As per the show cause notice after 01.05.2006 the liability of the appellant arises under the category of Business Support Service. The Ld. adjudicating authority in the impugned order has not correctly examined the decision of S.R. Kalyanakrishan (Supra) as in the case of S.R. Kalyanakrishan (Supra) wherein this Tribunal held that if a service has been classified in a particular service at a later stage, the said service is not liable to be taxed under any other category prior to that date. Admittedly in the show cause notice, it has been alleged that after 01.05.2006 the merit classification of the services rendered by the appellant do qualify under Business Support Service, therefore, for the period prior to 01.05.2006, demand of service tax cannot be raised against the appellant under the category of Business Auxiliary Service, therefore, the said demand is set aside.

8. After 01.05.06 it is alleged in the show cause notice that the merit classification of the services in question is under the category of Business Support Service, whereas, the adjudicating authority held that said service do qualify under the Business Auxiliary Services which means the adjudicating authority has gone beyond the scope of the show cause notice, therefore, the adjudication order deserves no merits, hence the same is set aside.

9. On perusal of the record, we record the fact the appellant has collected the service tax from their clients and during the impugned period the appellant has collected certain amount as service tax from the service in question from their clients and the same is required to be deposited by the appellant under Section 73(D) of the Finance Act, 1994, therefore, we direct the applicant to deposit whole of the amount collected as service tax from their clients along with interest within 30 days of the receipt of this order. In the facts and circumstances of the case, no penalty is imposable on the appellants.

10. In these terms, the appeals are disposed of.

FINAL ORDER NO. A/60350/2020

Per: D M Misra:

None present for the appellant. Heard the Ld. AR for the Revenue.

2. This is an appeal against the OIA No. 208-213/CE/LDH/2009 dated 15.10.2009 passed by the Commissioner (Appeals) of Central and Customs, Chandigarh.

3. Briefly stated the facts of the case are that the appellant are engaged in distributors of M/s Amway India Enterprises and are not discharging the service liability on the consideration paid to them by M/s Amway. Consequently, show cause notice was issued to them for recovery of the service tax not paid during the relevant period with interest and penalty. On adjudication, the demand was confirmed alongwith interest and penalty. Aggrieved by the said order, they filed an appeal before the Ld. Commissioner (Appeals), who in turn, rejected their appeal. Hence, the present appeal.

3. The Ld. AR for the Revenue brought to our notice that the issue relating to liability of service tax on the distributors in multi-level marketing system has been settled by this Tribunal in the case of Surendra Singh Rathore vs.
4. We find that the facts and circumstances of the case involved in the present case is more a similar to the judgement cited by the Ld. AR for the Revenue. The liability of service tax in multi-level marketing system has been considered by this Tribunal in Surendra Singh Rathore’s case (supra) and later followed by the Tribunal in Lalit Indore’s case (supra). This Tribunal in Surendra Singh Rathore’s case (supra) analysing the agreement which is more or less to the similar facts and circumstances of the case had observed as follows:

"4. The agreement between the appellants and FSL was for the purpose of selling the company’s product as per the RCM Business Marketing Plan (RCM stands for Right Concept Marketing Plan). According to terms and conditions of the agreement between the parties, FSL issues a scratch card having a password along with a standard product "Kit of the Products" by charging a price for same. Any person can submit an application through the internet using password and after acceptance becomes a distributor of the company for the purpose of selling the company’s product under the RCM plan. Minimum purchases in terms of RCM products prescribed by the company from time to time is compulsory for a distributor during the month in which he desires to have the commission credited in his account. Company is obligated to remit consideration to the distributor for selling the company’s product as per terms of conditions specified in the "RCM Business Marketing Plan" of the company. Particulars of the RCM Business Marketing Plan have been set out in the adjudication order. As per this plan a distributor gets commission on the supply made by FSL and also a share in the commission for introducing new customers, after such distributor propagates/promotes FSL products under "share your views with your friends and relatives concept." Thereafter, when a new customer starts using FSL products they in turn will propagate/promote FSL products to other persons and the distributor gets commission in respect of purchases made by such introducees, down the line. He shares the commission with others on such purchases. Consequently FSL sales are boosted.

5. The question is whether the commission received by the appellants as a consequence of the “RCM Business Marketing Scheme” in relation to discounts offered, constitutes consideration paid by the service receiver FSL to the service provider/appellants.

6. Shri Sarwal ld. Counsel for the appellants submitted that the "RCM Business Marketing Plan" is a Multilevel Marketing Scheme and in this scheme the first distributor ‘A’ approaches FSL and purchases their products of certain minimum value. ‘A’ recommends FSL products to another distributor ‘B’ and ‘B’ recommends to subsequent introducees to the scheme namely ‘C’, ‘D’ and ‘E’ and the further introducees ‘C’, ‘D’ and ‘E’ are not known to ‘A’. Ld. Advocate has submitted that ‘A’ gets commission on purchases made by ‘C’, ‘D’ and ‘E’. It is alternatively contented on behalf of the appellants that the so-called commission paid by FSL to the appellant in respect of purchases made by subsequent distributors ‘C’, ‘D’ and ‘E’ does not amount to commissions for promotion or marketing activities permitted by the petitioner but is dividend paid to ‘A’ for his efforts for introducing the scheme to new introducees who also become distributors of FSL.

7. On analysis of the terms and conditions of similar agreements between the FSL and the petitioners, the adjudicating authority confirmed the tax liability against the appellants. We are satisfied that RCM (Right Concept Marketing) Business Marketing Plan is neither a new arrangement nor there is any concept of dividends as suggested by the ld. Counsel. This is a clear Multilevel Marketing Service Scheme. The consideration/commission received by the appellants from FSL (this fact is not disputed) is the result of the marketing/promotion of FSL products by the appellants and constitutes a service (Business Auxiliary Service), provided in respect of FSL products to FSL. The commission/consideration is provided according to the terms and conditions, for marketing/promotion efforts by the appellants. The receipt of commission by the appellants clearly makes them providers of "Business Auxiliary Service" as defined under Section 65(19) of the Act. The appellate and adjudication orders are impeccable on this analysis and warrant no interference."

We don't find any reason not to follow the aforesaid precedents. Consequently, following the same, the impugned order is upheld and the appeal being devoid of merit, accordingly, dismissed.

FINAL ORDER NO. A/60335/2020

PER SANJIV SRIVASTAVA:

This appeal is directed against order in appeal No 36/ST/APPL/CHD-II/2010 dated 8.03.2010 of Commissioner of Central Excise (Appeal) Chandigarh II. By the impugned order Commissioner (Appeal) has upheld the order in original No 58/AC/DB/STC/08 dated 30.12.2008 of assistant Commissioner Central Excise DeraBassi holding as follows:

“15. Having regard to the facts and circumstances of the case, I reject the refund claim of the noticee”

2.1 Appellant have vide their letter dated 26.04.2008 filed in the office of jurisdictional Deputy Commissioner on 06.06.2008 claimed refund of Rs 24,62,063/- paid by them during the period 12.07.2005 to 10.07.2006. For filing the refund claim they relied upon the CBEC’s Letter F No 332/35/2006-TRU dated 01.08.2006.

2.2 Since the refund claim was filed beyond the period of one year from the relevant date as defined under Section 11B of the Central Excise Act, 1944, the same was rejected by the jurisdictional Assistant Commissioner.

2.3 Aggrieved by the order of Assistant Commissioner, Appellants filed the appeal before Commissioner (Appeal). Commissioner (Appeal) has vide the impugned order rejected the appeal.
Aggrieved appellants have preferred this appeal before CESTAT.

3.1 In their appeal, appellants have assailed the impugned order stating that-
- The money deposited by them was deposited under mistaken belief that the tax was payable, however the same was not payable. Any amount deposited under the mistake of law will continue to remain as deposit will not acquire the character of tax, and hence the limitation as prescribed by Section 11B will not be applicable.
- They rely on the decision in following cases to support the said arguments:
  o Motorola India P Ltd [2006 (206) ELT 90(Kar)]
  o Indian Ispat Works P Ltd [2006 (3) STR 161(T)] o Binjraka Steel Tubes Ltd [2007 (218) ELT 563(T)]
- The refund claim has been filed only for that amount the burden of which has not been passed on to their customer/clients. Hence the same is not hit by bar of unjust enrichment. In support they had produced the certificate dated 5.1.2010 of Chartered Accountant Shri S K Aggarwal before the Commissioner(Appeal).
- They rely on various circulars and order of various authorities to argue that the amount deposited by them was not tax, because as per these authorities the tax was not payable by them under the category of “Construction of Complex Services.”

4.1 The matter was listed for hearing on 03.09.2019, 17.12.2019 and on 02.03.2020. None appeared for hearing on any of these dates despite the notice, nor has any written request for adjournment been received.

4.2 Since none is appearing in the matter, Shri Bhasha Ram, Authorized Representative for the revenue was heard.

4.3 Learned Authorized Representative while reiterating the findings recorded in the impugned order submitted that-
- Appellant had paid the Service Tax amounting to Rs 24,62,063/- during the period 12.07.2005 to 10.07.2006 under the taxable category of “Construction of Complex Services”;
- Later on they realized that the tax paid by them was not payable by them and filed the refund claim for the said amount;
- The refund claim has been rejected by both the authorities below for the reason that the same had been filed beyond prescribed period of limitation, and also the appellant has not been able to show that they have not passed on the burden of tax paid by them to their customers/clients.
- It’s admitted that the amount claimed as refund was paid by the appellant voluntarily without any protest.
- Since the appellant had paid the tax and voluntarily even if the refund was to be claimed it could have been claimed within the period of limitation as prescribed.
Hon’ble Supreme Court (Constitutional Bench – 9 Member Bench) has in case of Mafatlal Industries [1997 (89) ELT 247 (SC)] has very categorically stated so. Further in case of Anam Electrical Manufacturing Co [1997 (90) ELT 260 (SC)] has again stated the same. Same view has been expressed by the Larger Bench of Tribunal in case of Veer Overseas Ltd [2018 (15) GSTL 59(T-LB)].

Since the issue is squarely covered by the decisions as above the appeal needs to be rejected.

5.1 We have considered the impugned order along with the submissions made in appeal memo and by the authorized representative during the course of hearing.

5.2 The short point for consideration in this appeal is whether the refund claim filed by the appellant is hit by limitation as provided under Section 11B of the Central Excise Act, 1944 as made applicable to Service Tax matters by Section 83 of Finance Act, 1994.

5.3 We find that the issue involved in the matter is squarely covered by the decision of the Larger Bench of Tribunal in the case of Veer Overseas Ltd [2018 (15) GSTL 59 (T-LB)], wherein it following has been held:

7. What is crucial is that the appellants paid the claimed amount as service tax. They have approached the Jurisdictional Authority of service tax for refund of the said money. It is clear that the Jurisdictional Service Tax Authority is governed by the provisions of Section 11B as the claim has been filed as per the said mandate only. Here, I have specifically asked the learned Counsel for the appellant under what provision of law he is seeking the return of the money earlier paid. He admitted that the claim has been preferred in terms of the provisions of Section 11B. If that being the case, it cannot be said that except for limitation other provisions of Section 11B will be made applicable to the appellant. The learned Counsel also did not advance such proposition. He repeatedly submitted that the amount is paid mistakenly. The same is not a tax and should be returned without limitation as mentioned in Section 11B. I am not convinced by such submission.

8. Here it is relevant to note that in various cases the High Courts and the Apex court have allowed the claim of the parties for refund of money without applying the provisions of limitation under Section 11B by holding that the amount collected has no sanctity of law as the same is not a duty or a tax and accordingly the same should be returned to the party. We note such remedies provided by the High Courts and Apex court are mainly by exercising powers under the Constitution, in writ-jurisdiction. It is clear that neither the Jurisdictional Service Tax Authority nor the Tribunal has such Constitutional powers for allowing refund beyond the statutory time limit prescribed by the law. Admittedly, the amount is paid as a tax, the refund has been claimed from the Jurisdictional Tax Authorities.
and necessarily such tax authorities are bound by the law governing the collection as well as refund of any tax. There is no legal mandate to direct the tax authority to act beyond the statutory powers binding on them. The Hon’ble Supreme Court in Mafatlal Industries Ltd. (supra) categorically held that no claim for refund of any duty shall be entertained except in accordance with the provisions of the statute. Every claim for refund of excise duty can be made only under and in accordance with Section 11B in the forms provided by the Act. The Apex court further observed that the only exception is where the provision of the Act whereunder the duty has been levied is found to be unconstitutional for violation of any of the Constitutional limitations. This is a situation not contemplated by the Act. We note in the present case there is no such situation of the provision of any tax levy in so far as the present dispute is concerned is held to be unconstitutional. As already held that the appellant is liable to pay service tax on reverse charge basis but for the exemption which was not availed by them. I hold that the decision of the Tribunal in Monnet International Ltd. (supra) has no application to decide the dispute in the present referred case. I take note of the decision of the Tribunal in XL Telecom Ltd. (supra). It had examined the legal implication with reference to the limitation applicable under Section 11B. I also note that the said ratio has been consistently followed by the Tribunal in various decisions. In fact, one such decision reached Hon’ble Supreme Court in Miles India Limited vs. Assistant Collector of Customs – 1987 (30) E.L.T. 641 (S.C.). The Apex court upheld the decision of the Tribunal to the effect that the Jurisdictional Customs Authorities are right in disallowing the refund claim in terms of limitation provided under Section 27 (1) of the Customs Act, 1962. We also note that in Assistant Collector of Customs vs. Anam Electrical Manufacturing Co. – 1997 (90) E.L.T. 260 (S.C.) referred to in the decision of the Tribunal in XL Telecom Ltd. (supra), the Hon’ble Supreme Court held that the claim filed beyond the statutory time limit cannot be entertained.

9. The Apex court in Mafatlal Industries Ltd. (supra) observed that the Central Excise Act and the Rules made thereunder including Section 11B too constitute “law” within the meaning of Article 265 and that in the face of the said provisions—which are exclusive in their nature” no claim for refund is maintainable except and in accordance therewith. The Apex court emphasized that “the provisions of the Central Excise Act also constitute “law” within the meaning of Article 265 and any collection or retention of tax in accordance or pursuant to the said provisions is collection or retention under “the authority of law” within the meaning of the said Article”.

10. Having examined various decided cases and the submissions of both the sides, we are of the considered view that a claim for refund of service tax is governed by the provision of Section 11B for period of limitation. The statutory time limit cannot be extended by any authority as held by the Apex court.”

5.4 Since the issue is squarely covered by the decision of the Larger Bench of the Tribunal, we do not find any merits in this appeal.

6.1 The appeal is dismissed and the impugned order upheld.

MISC. ORDER NO. 50388/2019

JUSTICE DILIP GUPTA:

A Division Bench of this Tribunal in its order dated 23 March, 2018 noticed that there were conflicting decisions of Division Benches of the Tribunal on the issue as to whether a sub-contractor is liable to pay Service Tax even if the main contractor has discharged the Service Tax liability on the gross amount and, therefore, considered it appropriate to place the matter before a Larger Bench. This Larger Bench has, accordingly, been constituted.

2. The Respondent was registered with the Service Tax Commissionerate for “Commercial or Industrial Construction” services (section 65(105)(zzq)), “Works Contract” services (section 65(105)(zzza)) and “Transport of Goods by Road in a Goods Carriage” services (section 65(105)(zzp)) under the Finance Act, 1944 (hereinafter referred to as the ‘Act’). During the period 01 October, 2007 to 31 March, 2012, the Respondent was engaged in providing “Works Contract” service as a sub-contractor to the main contractors and details of the contracts are as follows:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>S. No.</th>
<th>Main Contractor</th>
<th>Work Order date</th>
<th>Nature of Work Done by sub-contractor</th>
</tr>
</thead>
3. It was noticed by the Department that in regard to the work orders awarded by M/s S. S. Enterprises, M/s Vijay Nirman Company Private Limited and M/s D.K. Industries, the Respondent had provided services mentioned in the above table as a sub-contractor, but had not paid Service Tax. Accordingly, a show cause notice dated 23 April, 2013 was issued to the Respondent requiring it to explain as to why Service Tax should not be demanded and recovered from it by invoking the extended period of limitation with penalty and interest. The Respondent contended, on the basis of letters received from the main contractors, that since the main contractors had discharged Service Tax liability on the entire amount of contract, it being a sub-contractor, was not required to discharge Service Tax liability on the services provided in these projects.

4. The Commissioner, Service Tax Commissionerate, New Delhi, passed a detailed order dated 06 September, 2013 dropping the proceedings initiated by the show cause notice dated 23 April, 2013 insofar as the demand of Service Tax is concerned, but imposed a penalty of Rs. 10,000/- on the Respondent under Section 77 of the Act for various omissions and commissions. The Commissioner referred to the Circulars dated 02 July, 1997, 13 October, 1997, 07 October, 1998, 17 December, 2004 and the Master Circular dated 23 August, 2007 and observed that till 22 August, 2007 a sub-contractor was not required to pay any Service Tax in cases where the principal contractor had discharged the Service Tax on the gross amount paid by it to the sub-contractors. The Commissioner further observed that even after the issuance of the Master Circular dated 23 August, 2007 that superseded all the earlier circulars, clarifications and communications and provided that a sub-contractor is essentially a taxable service provider, the payment of Service Tax by a sub-contractor would result in double taxation and in any case it would be admissible to the main contractor as CENVAT Credit resulting in revenue neutrality. In reaching such a conclusion, the Commissioner felt bound by the observations made by the Ahmedabad Tribunal in \textbf{M/s Urvi Construction vs CST, Ahmedabad}, reported in \textbf{2010 (17) STR 302 (Tri. -Ahd)}. The proceedings initiated by the show cause notice were, therefore, dropped by the Commissioner but penalty was imposed as the assessee had failed to adhere to the provisions of the CENVAT Credit Scheme for discharge of Service Tax liability. This was, according to the Commissioner, for the reason that at every stage under the CENVAT Scheme the provision of service is taxed and would not lead to double taxation as the credit of the tax earlier paid would be available at a subsequent stage and this would also ensure correct payment of tax to the government exchequer. The relevant observations of the Commissioner in the order are reproduced below:

\textbf{“20. In this connection, I observed that it is a fact that no tax can be levied on single} activity twice as per the statutory provisions of service tax law. Section 66 of the Act, speaks levy of service tax on the taxable services mentioned in Section 65 of the Act ibid. However, in case of service provider liability of paying service tax has cast upon on them whereas the service tax is ultimately collected from the service receiver itself. This all has been done by the legislature to safeguard the government revenue in case the service recipient does not make payment of service tax on the services received by them. In the instant case, the service receivers have themselves discharged whole the service liability on the gross amount received by the sub-contractors from them which is also not disputed in the SCN itself. Therefore, requirement of payment of service tax on the taxable service as per Section 66 of the Finance Act is fulfilled. Hence, I find force in the contention of the assessee that in case the assessee is made to pay tax on the gross amount received by them as sub-contractor from 23.08.07 to 31.03.10, it will amount to double taxation which is totally against the provisions of the Service Tax Law. Further, in the case of M/s Urvi Construction Vs. CST, Ahmedabad – 2010 (17) STR 302 (Tri. -Ahmd.), the Hon’ble Tribunal has held that the assessee as a sub-contractor is not liable to pay service tax when the main contractor has paid service tax on the service.

21. I also find that even if the service tax under Section 68 of the Act read with Rule 6 of the Rules would have been paid by the noticee on the construction service rendered to their principle contractors (M/s SS Enterprises, M/s Vijay Nirman Co. Pvt. Ltd., & M/s D.K. Industries) as sub-contractor then the said amount of tax would have been admissible to the main contractors as CENVAT credit under CENVAT Credit Rules, 2004, therefore, there would be revenue naturally in the instant case and it is a well settled legal position that where revenue neutrality arises, no service tax can be demanded by the revenue.

22. In view of the above discussions, I hold that the noticee is not liable to pay service tax on the gross amount received by them as a sub-contractor as alleged in the SCN. Further, as no service tax is either demandable or recoverable from the noticee, the allegations with respect to interest payable by the noticee as well as question of imposing penalties under section 76 and 78 of the Act as proposed in impugned SCN do not survive.

23. However, while holding that the same amount representing the value of taxable services cannot be subjected to incidence of Service Tax both at the hands of sub-contractor and the main contractor but to my view it is equally important that under the CENVAT scheme every stage of provision of service is required to be taxed and cannot be ignored in as much as the Scheme does not lead to any double taxation as at every stage the credit of earlier tax paid is available at subsequent stage and also ensures the correct payment to the government exchequer. Further, the department’s clarifications issued vide Circular No. 96/7/2007-ST dated 23.08.2007 clearly supports my above view. Therefore, I am of considered opinion that the noticee has miserably failed to discharge their procedure liability laid down under the provisions of Finance Act, 1994, as amended read with Service Tax Rules made thereunder, in as much as it is not open to any assessee to determine the stage of discharge of their due. Service Tax liability particularly when the same has been clearly provided under the relevant provisions itself. Further, such procedural lapse could have lead to tax evasion which is admittedly not there as per the documents available on record and also the fact of discharge of due Service Tax by the main contractor instead of sub-contractor is not disputed in the SCN itself. Although, I am of the view that the noticee should be punished very heavily in the present case but I am constrained to impose the maximum penalty which I am empowered to impose under the provisions of Section 77 of the Act.

24. Accordingly, I pass the following order :-

ORDER

In view of the above discussions and findings, I order to drop the proceedings initiated vide SCN No. 53/Audit/ 2013-14 dated 23. 04. 2013 issued under C. No. I-26(494)ST/ AMR/Gr. A7/53/2011-12 against M/r Melange Developers Pvt. Ltd., C-7/231, IInd Floor, Sector-7, Rohini, New Delhi- 85, to the extent of demanding Service Tax including Cess & SHEC amounting to Rs. 69,95,854/- under proviso to Section 73(1) of the Act along with proposal for imposing penalties under Section 76 and 78 of the Act. However, I hereby impose a penalty of Rs. 10,000/- upon the noticee under Section 77 of the Act for their various omissions & commissions.”

5. Shri Amresh Jain and Shri Vivek Pandey, learned Authorised Representatives of the Department, submitted that at the time when Service Tax was introduced w.e.f. 01 July, 1994, there was no credit mechanism and so to remove any cascading effect, Circulars were issued from time to time for exemption from payment of Service Tax by a sub-contractor. However, credit mechanism was introduced through Service Tax Credit Rules w.e.f. 01 August, 2002 that gave benefit of tax paid on input services, if input services and output services fell under the same taxable service. An amendment was subsequently made on 14 May, 2003 in the Rules giving the benefit of tax paid on input services, even if the input services and output services belonged to different taxable categories. Later, with effect from 10 September, 2004 the Service Tax Credit Rules were superseded by CENVAT Credit Rules, 2004. Learned Authorised Representative, therefore, contended that after the issuance of the Master Circular dated 23 August, 2007 that superseded all circulars, clarifications and communications, a sub-contractor, being essentially a taxable service provider is required to pay Service Tax. Elaborating his submissions, it was contended that every service provider has to discharge Service Tax liability on the activity undertaken by him on the consideration received, and if the recipient of the Service Tax undertakes a further taxable service, he has to discharge Service Tax liability by taking credit of the Service Tax paid at the preceding stage so that there is no double taxation.

6. Shri A. K. Batra, learned Chartered Accountant and Shri Anil Sood, learned Counsel both appearing for the sub-contractors, however, contended that imposition of any Service Tax liability on a sub-contractor will amount to double taxation, which would not only be against the spirit of Service Tax Law, but would also be violative of the provisions of Article 265 of the Constitution since it would result in demand of Service Tax without any authority of law. The submission, therefore, that was advanced was that in a situation when the main contractor has discharged Service Tax liability, there will be no revenue loss to the Department if the sub-contractor does not pay the Service Tax and in any view of the matter recovery of tax from the sub-contractor shall give rise to a revenue neutrality situation. Reliance was placed by learned Counsel on certain decisions, to which we shall refer to at the appropriate stage, to contend that Service Tax imposed upon a sub-contractor is liable to be set aside on grounds of ‘Double Taxation’ and ‘Revenue Neutrality’.

7. We have considered the submissions advanced by the learned Authorised Representative of the Department and the learned Chartered Accountant and learned Counsel for the Respondent.

8. It is w.e.f. 01 June, 2007 that sub-section (zzzza) was inserted in Section 65(105) of the Act in relation to execution of ‘Works Contract’. Taxable Service under Section 65(105)(zzzza) is defined as:

“65(105)(zzzza) - to any person, by any other person in relation to the execution of a works contract, excluding works contract in respect of roads, airports, railways, transport terminals, bridges, tunnels and dams.
Explanation—For the purposes of this sub-clause, “works contract” means a contract wherein,—

(i) transfer of property in goods involved in the execution of such contract is leviable to tax as sale of goods, and

(ii) such contract is for the purposes of carrying out,—

(a) erection, commissioning or installation of plant, machinery, equipment or structures, whether pre-fabricated or otherwise, installation of electrical and electronic devices, plumbing, drain laying or other installations for transport of fluids, heating, ventilation or air-conditioning including related pipe work, duct work and sheet metal work, thermal insulation, sound insulation, fire proofing or waterproofing, lift and escalator, fire escape staircases or elevators; or

(b) construction of a new building or a civil structure or a part thereof, or of a pipeline or conduit, primarily for the purposes of commerce or industry; or

(c) construction of a new residential complex or a part thereof; or

(d) completion and finishing services, repair, alteration, renovation or restoration of, or similar services, in relation to (b) and (c); or

(e) turnkey projects including engineering, procurement and construction or commissioning (EPC) projects;”

9. It is not in dispute that the activity undertaken by the sub-contractor falls under the category of ‘Works Contract’ service. What is sought to be contended is that the main contractors, who had given sub-contracts to the sub-contractor through various work orders, had already discharged the Service Tax liability on the entire contract amount and, therefore, the sub-contractor was not required to pay any Service Tax.

10. Section 66, as substituted by the Finance Act, 2007, provides that there shall be levied a tax (hereinafter referred to as the ‘Service Tax’) @ 12% of the value of taxable services of various sub-clauses of clause (105) of section 65 and collected in such a manner as may be prescribed. Section 68 of the Act provides that every person providing taxable service to any person shall pay Service Tax at the rate specified in section 66 in such a manner and within such a period as may be prescribed. Section 94 of the Act deals with power to make Rules. Sub-section (1) provides that the Central Government may, by Notification in the official gazette, make Rules for carrying out the provisions of Chapter V of the Act. Sub-section (2)(a) provides that such Rules may provide for collection and recovery of Service Tax under sections 66 and 68 of the Act. In exercise of the powers conferred by section 37 of the Central Excise Act, 1944 and section 94 of the Act and in supersession of the CENVAT Credit Rules, 2002 and Service Tax Credit Rules, 2002, the Central Government framed the CENVAT Credit Rules, 2004. It is, therefore, clear that every person (which would include a subcontractor) providing taxable service to any person (which will include a main contractor) shall pay Service Tax at the rate specified in section 66 in the manner provided for. The manner has been provided for in the CENVAT Credit Rules of 2004. ‘Input Service’ has been defined to mean, any service used by a provider of output service for providing an output service. ‘Output Service’ has been defined to mean any service provided by a provider of service located in the taxable territory. Rule 3 stipulates that a provider of output service shall be allowed CENVAT Credit of the Service Tax leviable under Section 66, 66A and 67B of the Act. Thus, in the scheme of Service Tax, the concept of CENVAT Credit enables every service provider in a supply chain to take input credit of the tax paid by him which can be utilized for the purpose of discharge of taxes on his output service. The conditions for allowing CENVAT Credit have been provided for in Rule 4. The mechanism under the CENVAT Credit Rules also ensures that there is no scope for double taxation.

11. In the face of these provisions, it may not be open to a subcontractor to contend that he should not be subjected to discharge the Service Tax liability in respect of a taxable service when the main contractor has paid Service Tax on the gross amount, more particularly when there is no provision granting exemption to him from payment of Service Tax.

12. It is true that prior to 2007, various Service Tax, Trade Notices/Instructions/Circulars/Communications had been issued exempting certain category of persons from payment of Service Tax. A sub-contracting Customs House Agent was exempted from payment of Service Tax on the bills raised on the main Customs House Agent. When an architect or interior decorator subcontracted part/whole of its work to another architect or interior decorator, then no Service Tax was required to be paid by the sub-contractor, provided the principal architect or interior decorator had paid the Service Tax.

However, all these Trade Notices/Instructions/Circulars/Communications were superseded by the Master Circular dated 23 August, 2007 issued by the Government of India, Ministry of Finance. The Circular noticed that when Service Tax was introduced in the year 1994 there were only three taxable services, but later 100 services had been specified as taxable services and that since the introduction of Service Tax, number of clarifications had been issued, but it had become necessary to take a comprehensive review of all the clarifications keeping in view the changes that had been made in the statutory provisions, judicial pronouncements and other relevant factors. The relevant portion of the Master Circular, insofar as it relates to sub-contractors, is reproduced below:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>999.03 / 23.08.07</th>
<th>A taxable service provider outsources a part of the work by engaging another service provider that services provided by such sub-contractors are used by the main service provider for the total work. In such cases, whether service tax is liable to be paid by the service provider of taxable service by the sub-contractor who undertakes only part of the whole work.</th>
</tr>
</thead>

14. It can be used that if a main contractor has paid Service Tax on the entire amount of the main contract out of which a portion has been given to a sub-contractor, then if a sub-contractor is required to pay Service Tax, it may amount to ‘Double Taxation’, but this issue has to be examined in the light of the credit mechanism earlier introduced through Service Tax Credit Rules, 2002 granting benefit of tax paid on input services if the input services and the output services fell under the same taxable services and the subsequent amendment made on 14 May, 2003 granting benefit of tax paid on input services even if the input service and the output service belonged to different taxable categories. The aforesaid Service Tax Credit Rules were later superseded on 10 September, 2004 by CENVAT Credit Rules, 2004. Rule 3 of these Rules provides that a manufacturer or producer of final product or a provider of output service shall be allowed to take credit (known as ‘CENVAT Credit’) of various duties under the Excise Act, including the Service Tax leviable under sections 66, 66A and 66B of the Act. Rule 3(4) further provides that CENVAT Credit may be utilized for payment of Service Tax on any output service. It is for this reason that the Master Circular dated 23 August, 2007 was issued superseding all the earlier Circulars, Clarifications and Communications.

15. It is not in dispute that a sub-contractor renders a taxable service to a main contractor. Section 68 of the Act provides that every person, which would include a sub-contractor, providing taxable service to any person shall pay Service Tax at the rate specified. Therefore, in the absence of any exemption granted, a sub-contractor has to discharge the tax liability. The service recipient i.e. the main contractor can, however, avail the benefit of the provisions of the CENVAT Rules. When such a mechanism has been provided under the Act and the Rules framed thereunder, there is no reason as to why a sub-contractor should not pay Service Tax merely because the main contractor has discharged the tax liability. As noticed above, there can be no possibility of double taxation because the CENVAT Rules allow a provider of output service to take credit of the Service Tax paid at the preceding stage.

16. It is in this light that the main contention of learned Counsel for the Respondent that if a sub-contractor is required to pay Service Tax when the main contractor has actually discharged Service Tax liability, it would amount to ‘Double Taxation’, has to be examined. For this contention, reliance has been placed by the learned Counsel for the Respondent on the following decisions of this Tribunal:

(i) Urvi Construction vs Commissioner of Service Tax, Ahmedabad, reported in 2010 (17) STR 302 (Tri.-Ahmd.);

(ii) BCC Developers and Promoters Pvt. Ltd. vs Commissioner of Central Excise, Jaipur, reported in 2017 (52) STR 22 (Tri.-Del.);

(iii) M/s Dhaneshra Engineering Works vs Commissioner of Central Excise, Allahabad, reported in 2018 (2) TMI 788 – CESTAT – Allahabad;

(iv) Power Mech Projects Ltd. vs Commissioner of Customs, Guntur, reported in 2017 (48) STR 165 (Tri.-Hyd.); and

(v) M/s Edac Engg. Ltd. vs CST, Chennai, reported in 2017 (6) TMI 685 CESTAT Chennai.

17. In Urvi Construction a learned Member of the Tribunal observed:

“2. .. Further the learned advocate also submits that in the Master Circular issued by the Board vide Circular No. 96/7/2007-S. T., dated 23-8-2007, a stand has been taken that there is no exemption to a sub contractor from payment of service tax merely because the contractor pays the tax. However, he submits that for the period circular issued late by the Board in 1997 was applicable and according to this Circular where the services have been provided by the sub-contractors such sub contractors are not liable to pay service tax and service tax liability is on the main contractor. Taking note of the fact of the contention that main contractor has paid the service tax and charging service tax on the sub-contractor again would amount to taxing the same service twice and also taking note of the circular cited by the learned advocate and the decisions of the Tribunal cited, I find that if the appellant is required to pay the service tax it would amount to taxing the same service twice and the circular and the Tribunal’s decision are squarely applicable to the facts of this case and accordingly appeal is allowed with consequential relief to the appellant.”

18. In BCC Developers and Promoters Pvt. Ltd. it was observed:

“6.1. We agree with the submission of the ld. Counsel that no double taxation is permissible under the law. The Constitution (Article 265) provides to take the exact amount of tax i.e. neither more nor less. In the instant case, if the principal has already paid the Service Tax, then the same cannot be demanded from the appellant. As per the clarification of the Board’s Circular dated 23.8.2007 as well as dated 7.10.1998, if the principal had not paid the Service Tax then the same can be charged. If the Service Tax has already been paid by the principal, then the same cannot be demanded again.”

19. M/s Dhaneshra Engineering Works followed the aforesaid decision in BCC Developers and Promoters Pvt. Ltd.

20. In M/s Edac Engg. Ltd., the Division Bench, after placing reliance upon the decision of the Tribunal in Urvi Construction, observed:

“6.2. We are therefore of the considered opinion that these case laws are distinguishable from the decision taken by this very Bench in the case of the present appellants Edac Engineering Ltd. in Final order dated 19.12.2016. We also find that the very same Board’s Circular No. 97/8/2007-ST dated 23.08.2007, relied upon by the ld. AR has been taken note of by the Tribunal in Urvi Construction (supra). This being so, we have no hesitation in ruling that when service tax has been paid by the main contractor, charging the sub-contractor again will amount to taxing the same service twice. In the circumstances, the issue at hand also requires to be remanded to the adjudicating authority to verify whether the service rendered by the appellant has suffered tax in the hands of the principal contracts. If that aspect is able to be proved by the appellants, no tax liability will accrue to them. Towards this end, the adjudicating authority will give suitable opportunity to the appellants to present their case. Appellants are also produce all evidence and documents to establish their claim that the tax liability required to be discharged by them has already been paid up by the main contractor. If that is provided, their will obviously be no demand for interest unless such demands have been made belatedly. Once this aspect is also able to be proved by the appellant, imposition of penalty will also notarise.”

21. The aforesaid decisions do not take into consideration the impact of the CENVAT Rules. It would, therefore, not be correct to conclude that double taxation would result if a sub-contractor is required to discharge the Service Tax liability even if the main contractor has discharged the tax liability.

22. The decisions of the Tribunal holding that double taxation will not result if a sub-contractor discharges the tax liability because of the CENVAT Rules, now need to be referred to.

23. In Max Tech Oil & Gas Services Pvt. Ltd. Vs Commissioner of Service Tax, Delhi, reported in 2017 (52) STR 508 (Tri.-Del.), the Division Bench has held:

“6. Regarding the contention of the appellant that they have acted only as a sub-contractor and demanding service tax from them will amount to double taxation as the main contractor also is rendering similar service to ONGC, we find no legal basis for the contention of the appellant. The service tax leviable at the hands of each service provider is decided by nature of activities undertaken by them. If the same is covered by scope of the taxable entry under Finance Act, 1994 tax liability arises. The said service becomes part of final service rendered by main contractor is of no consequence to determine the tax liability of each and every service provider. If at all, the service tax paid by a sub-contractor which becomes part of service further provided by the main contractor, the scheme of credit as envisaged by the Cenvat Credit Rules, 2004 will come into play subject to fulfilment of conditions therein. It is nobody’s case that the sub-contractors per se are not liable to service tax even if they rendered taxable service. ”

[emphasis supplied]

24. The same view was taken by the Division Bench of the Tribunal in CCE & ST, Raipur vs. M/s J. K. Transport, reported in 2017 (9) TMI 993 – CESTAT New Delhi. The relevant paragraph is reproduced below:

“5. We find that the CBEC vide Circular dated 23.08.2007 has clarified that the services provided by the sub-contractor isa taxable service, even if the same is used for completion of the work by the main service provider. Thus, for providing the taxable service, the sub-contractor is liable for payment of service tax on provision of such service. .........................”

25. Similar views were taken by the Tribunal in (i) Max Logistics Ltd. vs Commissioner of Central Excise, Raipur, reported in 2017 (47) STR 41 (Tri. -Del.); (ii) Hargovind Electric Decorators vs. Commissioner of Central Excise, Jaipur-I, reported in 2016 (43) STR 619 (Tri. -Del.); and (iii) Sew Construction Ltd. vs Commissioner of Central Excise, Raipur, reported in 2011 (22) STR 666 (Tri. -Del.).

26. At this stage, it would also be useful to refer to a larger Bench decision of the Tribunal in Vijay Sharma & Company vs CCE, Chandigarh, reported in 2010 (20) STR 309 (Tri.-LB). The issue that arose before the larger Bench was as to whether service provided by a sub-broker are covered under the ambit of Service Tax and taxable or not. After noticing that a sub-contractor is liable to pay Service Tax, the larger Bench examined as to whether this would result in double taxation if the main contractor has also paid Service Tax and observed that if service tax is paid by a sub-broker in respect of same taxable service provided by the stock broker, the stock broker is entitled to the credit of the tax so paid in view of the provisions of the CENVAT Credit Rules. The relevant paragraph 9 is reproduced below:

“9. It is true that there is no provision under Finance Act, 1994 for double taxation. The scheme of service tax law suggest that it is a single point tax law without being a multiple taxation legislation. In absence of any statutory provision to the contrary, providing of service being event of levy, self same service provided shall not be doubly taxable. If Service tax is paid by a sub-broker in respect of same taxable service provided by the stock-broker, the stock broker is entitled to the credit of the tax so paid on such service if entire chain of identity of sub-broker and stock broker is established and transactions are provided to be one and the same. In other words, if the main stock broker is subjected to levy of service tax on the self same taxable service provided by sub-broker to the stock broker and the sub-broker has paid service tax on such service, the stock broker shall be entitled to the credit of service tax. Such a proposition finds support from the basic rule of Cenvat credit and service of a sub-broker may be input service provided for a stock-broker if there is integrity between the services. Therefore, tax paid by a sub-broker may not be denied to be set off against ultimate service tax liability of the stock broker if the stock broker is made liable to service tax for the self same transaction. Such set off depends on the facts and circumstances of each case and subject to verification of evidence as well as rules made under the law w. e. f. 10-9-2004. No set off is permissible prior to this date when sub-broker was not within the fold of law during that period.”

27. The Commissioner did express in the impugned order that under the CENVAT Scheme every stage of provision of service is required to be taxed and if a sub-contractor discharges the Service Tax liability, it will not result in double taxable even if the main contractor discharges the Service Tax liability because the credit of the earlier tax paid is available at a subsequent stage, but it is because of the decision of the Tribunal in Urvi Construction, that the Commissioner held that double taxation would result if a sub-contractor is also required to discharge Service Tax liability when the main contractor has discharged the entire liability.

28. Learned Counsel for the Respondent has, however, relied upon the decision of the Supreme Court in Larsen and Toubro Ltd. vs
Additional Deputy Commissioner of Commercial Taxes and Anr., reported in 2016-TIOL-155-SC-VAT. In this case, the contracts which were secured by the Appellant therein were works contract and a part thereof was assigned to the sub-contractor who had submitted returns and said taxes for the execution of the works contract. During the course of the assessment, the Appellant submitted that the sub-contractors had already been taxed and, therefore, the Appellant cannot be taxed again under Section 6B of the Karnataka Sales Tax Act. The submission, therefore, was that the value of the work entrusted to the sub-contractors could not be taken into account while computing the total turnover of the Appellant for the purpose of taxation under the Karnataka Sales Tax Act. It is in view of the provisions of the Karnataka Sales Tax Act that the Supreme Court observed that the value of the work entrusted to the sub-contractors or payments made to them shall not be taken into consideration while computing total turnover for the purposes of Section 6-B of the Karnataka Sales Tax Act. This decision of the Supreme Court will not come to the aid of the Respondent in this case in view of the specific provisions of Section 66 and 68 of the Act as also the CENVAT Rules discussed in the foregoing paragraphs of this order. It also needs to be noted that there is no provision for input tax credit on deemed sales in levy of VAT.

29. The submission of the learned Counsel for the Respondent regarding ‘revenue neutrality’ cannot also be accepted in view of the specific provisions of Section 66 and 68 of the Act. A sub-contractor has to discharge the Service Tax liability when he renders taxable service. The contractor can, as noticed above, take credit in the manner provided for in the CENVAT Credit Rules of 2004.

30. Thus, for all the reasons stated above, it is not possible to accept the contention of the learned Counsel for the Respondent that a sub-contractor is not required to discharge Service Tax liability if the main contractor has discharged liability on the work assigned to the sub-contractor. All decisions, including those referred to in this order, taking a contrary view stand overruled.

31. The reference is, accordingly, answered in the following terms:

“A sub-contractor would be liable to pay Service Tax even if the main contractor has discharged Service Tax liability on the activity undertaken by the sub-contractor in pursuance of the contract. “

32. The Appeal shall now be placed before the Division Bench for hearing.

FINAL ORDER NO. 50146/2020

Per: Dilip Gupta:

This appeal seeks to assail the order dated 29 February 2016 passed by the Principal Commissioner of Service Tax, New Delhi the Principal Commissioner, by which the demand of service tax has been confirmed after invoking the extended period of limitation provided for under the proviso to section 73 (1) of the Finance Act, 1994 the Act. After invoking the provisions of section 72 of the Act, the taxable value of services has been computed under rule 6 (7) of the Service Tax Rules, 1994 the Rules. The Principal Commissioner has also ordered for recovery of Cenvat credit not admissible and wrongly availed. The Principal Commissioner has also ordered for payment of interest and penalty.

2. The appellant is engaged in the business of booking of tickets by air and is registered under the category of air travel agent. It filed ST-3 returns. For the period 2007-2008 to 2011-2012 it opted to make payment of service tax on an amount calculated @0.6% of the basic fare in case of domestic booking and @1.20% of the basic fare in case of international bookings of passage for travel by air during any calendar month or year. The Appellant has stated that the total number of airlines for which the appellant booked tickets is 73, but as some of the airlines are small, no bookings took place in particular months. It has also been stated that the method of payment of commission to the agents varies from airline to airline. Some of the airlines do not make payment of commission, but permit making recovery of transaction charges. Some of the airlines pay commission on the basic fare and some of the airlines pay commission on basic fare plus fuel surcharge, for which the code name is YQ. The appellant claims that the total fare recovered from the customers by an agent is normally broken up in the ticket in components like :

(i) Basic fare
(ii) YQ = (fuel surcharge)
(iii) WO = (passenger service fee)
(iv) Other tax.

3. The Appellant is required to submit a Billing Settlement Plan BSP statement every fortnight of every airline. This statement gives the breakup of the fare of the ticket between basic fare, fuel surcharge, miscellaneous expenses and other charges. This amount, it is claimed, is not the income of the Appellant, but is the amount payable to the airlines. The income of the Appellant is only from the commission received from the airline, which is accounted for in the financial ledger.

4. A show cause notice dated 16 April 2013 was issued to the appellant. It mentions that during the audit conducted in March/April 2013 for the period 2007-2008 to 2010-2011, the appellant produced records pertaining to the period 2010-2011 and 2011-2012 only. The show cause notice, therefore, computed the value of taxable service under section 72 of the Act that relates to best judgment assessment. A demand on various other charges under different categories recovered by the appellant was also made and the appellant was also denied Cenvat credit.

5. The appellant filed a detailed reply. The Principal Commissioner did not agree with the method adopted for computation of the taxable service under section 72 of the Act and adopted a different method after taking into account the BSP statement made available by the appellant. The demand made on various other income has also been confirmed by the Principal Commissioner.

6. Shri S.S. Gupta, learned Chartered Accountant appearing for the appellant has submitted:

(i) Under Rule 6 (7) of the Rules, a person liable for paying service tax in relation to the services provided by an air travel agent shall have the option to pay an amount calculated @ 0.6% of the basic fare in case of domestic bookings and @ 1.2% of the basic fare in case of international bookings, of passage for travel by air towards the discharge of the service tax liability instead of paying service at the rate specified in Section 66 of the Act. The basic fare has been defined in the Explanation to mean that part of the air fare on which commission is normally paid to the air travel agents by the airlines. Thus, as only four airlines out of seventy three airlines handled by the appellant were paying commission on fuel surcharge, this commission could not have been included in the "basic fare", since it is normally not paid to the air travel agent by the airline;

(ii) This was specifically stated by the appellant in reply to the show cause notice, but the Principal Commissioner failed to advert to this issue in the impugned order;

(iii) Even the method adopted by the Principal Commissioner for computing the taxable income under section 72 of the Act is not correct and even otherwise no opportunity was provided by the Principal Commissioner to the appellant to make any submission on the said method adopted by the Principal Commissioner. If opportunity had been given to the appellant, it could have satisfied the Principal Commissioner that commission is not received on international bookings, but the Principal Commissioner has accounted the average commission as 3% of domestic as well as international bookings;

(iv) The Principal Commissioner committed an error in denying the benefit of Cenvat credit; and

(v) The demand on other incomes has also been confirmed without any discussion. The appellant, however, is not pressing the demand on incentive to abacus since only a meager amount of Rs. 12,500/- has been demanded on this.

7. The learned Authorized Representative of the Department has, however, supported the impugned order and has stated that since the appellant did not furnish the records for the years 2007-2008, 2008-2009 and 2009-2010, the Principal Commissioner was justified in computing the taxable income on the basis of best judgment assessment as contemplated under section 72 of the Act. The learned Authorized Representative also submitted that the commission paid on fuel surcharge would be included in the basic fare as it is normally paid by the airlines to the travel agents. Learned Authorized Representative has also submitted that the demand on other heads has been correctly confirmed.

8. The submissions advanced by the learned Authorized Representative of the appellant and the learned Authorized Representative of the Department have been considered.

9. According to the learned Authorized Representative of the appellant, the main dispute is with regard to the service tax on the commission received by the appellant, which is to the extent of Rs. 7,75,00,000/- out of the total demand of Rs. 8,15,00,000/- that has been confirmed by the Principal Commissioner. The contention is that the commission received by the appellant could not have been added to the basic fare for the reason that fuel surcharge is normally not paid to the air travel agents by the airlines and though this issue was specifically raised by the appellant in reply to the show cause notice, but it has not been considered by the Principal Commissioner in the impugned order.

10. As noticed above, under rule 6 (7) of the Rules, a person is liable to pay service tax in relation to the services provided by an air travel agent, has an option to pay an amount calculated @0.6% of the basic fare in case of domestic bookings and @1.2% of the basic fare in case of international bookings. 'Basic fare' has been defined in the Explanation to mean that part of the air fare on which commission is normally paid to the air travel agent by the airlines. According to the appellant, commission is normally not paid to the air travel agents by the airlines on fuel surcharge and, therefore, commission, if any, received from the four airlines out of the seventy three airlines for fuel surcharge could not have been subjected to service tax under rule 6 (7) of the Rules. In support of this submission, learned Chartered Accountant has placed reliance upon the decision of the Division Bench of this Tribunal in Kafila Hospitality and Travels Ltd. versus Commissioner of Service Tax, Delhi 2015 (38) S.T.R. 184 (Tri. – Del.)

11. It is a fact that though a defence was taken by the appellant in reply to the show cause notice that the commission received on fuel surcharge could not have been subjected to levy of service tax under rule 6 (7) of the Rules, but there is no discussion of this issue in the impugned order.

12. In Kafila Hospitality & Travels Ltd., Explanation to rule 6 (7) came up for interpretation before the Tribunal and the observations are as follows :-

"7. The appellant as IATA Agent have two options to discharge Service Tax liability. The first option is to pay Service Tax on the gross amount of commission received. However, Rule 6(7) provides another option to them to pay Service Tax @ 0.6% of the basic fare in respect of domestic bookings and @1.2% of the basic fare in respect of the international booking. The [term], "basic fare" is defined in the Rule as the part of the airfare on which the commission is normally paid to the Air Travel Agent by the Airlines. The explanation to Rule 6(7) defining the term "basic fare" clearly indicates that the basic fare for the purpose of this sub-rule is not the gross fare but is the part of the gross airfare charged from the passengers on which the Airlines normally pay commission to the Air Travel Agent. The expression "air fare on which the commission is normally paid" means the portion of airfare, whether 100% or a lesser percentage, on which most of the Airlines pay the commission ignoring1 the stray cases in which commission is paid on a different part of airfare. The appellant's plea is that they have discharged Service Tax liability under Rule 6(7), only on that part of the gross airfare on which the commission was paid to them by the Airlines and most of the Airlines pay commission only on that portion of fare. In other words, the appellant's plea is that they have paid Service Tax on the basic fare as defined in the Rule. The department's contention, however, is that since the appellant have not given the break-up of the gross fare into basic fare and the fuel surcharge to enable the department to determine the basic fare component for the purpose of Rule 6(7), they would not be eligible for the facility of discharge of Service Tax under Rule 6(7) of the Service Tax Rules and accordingly, the department has determined the Service Tax liability on the basis of the gross commission. In our view, the term "basic fare", in terms of its definition in Rule 6(7), is not the gross fare including fuel surcharge, but is that part of the gross airfare on which the concerned Airlines normally pay the commission to the Air Travel Agent. Therefore, what is relevant for the purpose of Rule 6(7) is as to on which part of the airfare, the commission was being normally paid by the Airlines to the Air Travel Agents. According to the appellant, they have evidence to prove that they have discharged the Service Tax liability under Rule 6(7) only on that part of the fare on which the commission was being paid, but this plea has not been considered by the Commissioner. In view of this, the impugned order is set aside and the matter is remanded to the Commissioner for de novo decision after considering the appellant's plea and also our observations in this order. Misc. application for additional evidence is also allowed. In course of de novo proceedings, the Commissioner shall consider the documents produced by the appellant in support of their plea that they have paid Service Tax on that part of the airfare on which the commission is normally paid by the Airlines. The appeal, stay application as well asmisc. application stand disposed of as above”.

13. The appellant contends that out of the seventy three airlines only four airlines pay commission on fuel surcharge and, therefore, it cannot be said that commission is normally paid to the air travel agent by the airlines on fuel surcharge. It was, therefore, obligatory on the part of the Principal Commissioner to have considered this issue raised by the appellant in response to the show cause notice, but that has not been done. The matter, therefore, has to be remitted to the Principal Commissioner to decide this issue. It shall be open to the parties to place additional evidence, if so required, before the Principal Commissioner for a proper determination of this issue.

14. It is only when this issue is decided against the appellant, that would be necessary for the Principal Commissioner to take recourse to the provisions of section 72 of the Act for determination of the taxable value. This issue again would have to be decided by the Principal Commissioner afresh as it has been submitted by the learned Authorized Representative of the appellant that a new method was adopted by the Principal Commissioner without providing any opportunity to the appellant to make submission. The appellant contends that commission is not charged in international bookings but this has also been taken into consideration by the Principal Commissioner. Certain other issues have also been raised by learned Chartered Accountant of the appellant to dispute the correctness of the method adopted by the Principal Commissioner. As this issue may have to be considered afresh by the Principal Commissioner, if a finding is recorded against the appellant on the first issue, it is not considered appropriate to deal with this issue on merits. All the contentions with regard to this issue are left open to be decided by the Principal Commissioner afresh.

15. Learned Chartered Accountant of the appellant has also made submissions on the denial of Cenvat credit to the appellant and also confirmation of demand under other heads of services. In this connection, it has been pointed out that the demand has been confirmed and the Cenvat credit has been denied without taking into consideration the submissions that were advanced and, therefore, the demands have to be set aside. A perusal of the impugned order does indicate that reasons have not been indicated and the submissions of the appellant have not been taken into consideration. It is, therefore, appropriate that the Principal Commissioner examines these issues also afresh.

16. Thus, for all the reasons stated above, the impugned order dated 29 February 2016 deserves to be set aside and is set aside. The Principal Commissioner shall pass a fresh order in accordance with the observations made above. The appeal is allowed to the extent indicated above.

(Dictated and pronounced in open court)
The present appeal is directed against Order-in-Appeal No. 64-ST-RPR-I-2012 dated 26/11/2012. The period under dispute is January, 2006 to January, 2007. The appellant executed certain contracts for M/s Lafarge India Pvt. Ltd, Gopalanagar, Bilaspur. M/s Lafarge has a cement factory and the contract executed was for removal of over burden in the mine attached to the cement factory. The Department was of the view that the activity carried out by the appellant was liable for payment of Service Tax under the category of 'Site Formation and Clearance, Excavation, Earth moving and Demolition Services' which is covered under Section 65 (97a) of the Finance Act, 1994. Accordingly, show cause notice was issued and both the Authorities below ordered payment of Service Tax amounting to Rs. 9,68,857/- along with interest and penalties. Aggrieved by the order for payment of Service Tax, present appeal has been filed.

2. In this connection, we heard Ms Rinki Arora, Ld. Counsel for the Appellant and Shri V. Pandey, Ld. DR for the Revenue.

3. The Ld. Advocate summarized the grounds of appeal made by the appellant as follow:-

i. The demand for Service Tax has been raised under the category of 'Site Formation and Clearance' but the activity carried out by the appellant was in the mines attached to the cement plant of M/s Lafarge. She drew our attention to the relevant contract executed by the appellant with M/s Lafarge and pointed out that the appellant was required to deploy various equipments such as HEMS, suitable excavator, tipper and dozer for top soil removal in the mine. Hence, she submitted that the activity is to be considered as relating to mining and since the mining service was made liable for payment of Service Tax only w.e.f 01/06/2007, she pleaded that the demand for Service Tax for the period prior to the date is not sustainable.

ii. She also relied on the following case laws:-

b. M. Ramakrishna Reddy V/s Commissioner of C. EX &CUS., Tirupathi 2009 (13) STR 661 (Tri. -Bang.)

iii. She also argued that the demand is hit by limitation since for the period January, 2006-07 the show cause notice was issued on 15/04/2011.

iv. She also submitted that the Commissioner (Appeals) in the impugned order has recorded his opinion that the activity will be covered within mining service w.e.f. 01/06/2007.

4. The Ld. DR justified the impugned order.

5. He submitted that the activity, even though carried out in the mine, was limited only to removal of over burden. Such activity is to be carried out prior to the actual mining activity. He brought to our notice CBEC Circular 232/2006–CX. 4 dated 12/11/2007 in which various activities were explained in relation to levy of Service Tax on mining. He submitted that the activity of removal of over burden is liable for Service Tax under Site Formation Service and other activities such as coal cutting and mineral excavation will be liable to Service Tax under Mining Services after 01/06/2007. Finally he submitted that the present contract is only for removal of over burden and not for mining and hence Service Tax is liable to be paid under the category of ‘Site Formation’.

6. We have heard both sides and perused the record.

7. The nature of the activity carried out by the appellant for M/s Lafarge is evident from perusal of the relevant contract. The contract is dated 11/05/2006 and the activities are :-

```
- DEPLOYMENT OF HEMS (SUITABLE EXCAVATOR, TIPPER AND DOZER) FOR TOPSOIL REMOVAL AT ARASMETA CEMENT PLANT.
- EXCAVATION, TRANSPORTATION, DUMPING & DOZING
APPROX AREA TO BE DEVELOPED: 37,000 SQ. MTR.
AVERAGE DEPTH OF TOPSOIL- 2 TO 3. 5 MTR.APRrox VOLUME-1,18,500 CUM MTR.
LEAD FOR TRANSPORTATION WILL BE APPROX-1. 5KM (ONE SIDE) RATE APPLICABLE RS 52/- (RS FIFTY TWO ONLY) PER CUBIC MTR.
-SCOPE OF WORK
- Deployed HEMs should be in Tiptop condition and should beroadworthy.
- All required safety gadgets to be fitted on the HEM equipments.
- Maintenance of HEMs equipments will be under your scope &cost
- You should deploy competent & sufficient crew alongwith safety supervisor for timely and safe completion of the job.
```

- Your crew deployed for operating the HEMs should have valid license at per norms.

- You will arrange required fuel & lubricants at your own cost for deployed HEMs

- Work should be carried out in two shifts & generally to be carried out during day light hours.

- You will not engage any female workers for the job.

- Before commencement of work joint measurement/levels to be taken for deriving volumetric basis.”

8. From the terms of the contract it is evident that the activity carried out by the appellant was limited to removal of over burden only. Even though such activity has been carried out in the mine area, the contract does not cover any other activity relating to mining. Hence, it is to be considered as a service contract simplicitor for the activity of removal of over burden. This activity is very much covered within the definition of ‘Site Formation and Clearance Services’ which was included in the statute w.e.f. 16/06/2005. Consequently, we are of the view that during the period under dispute the appellant will be liable to payment of Service Tax under the category of Site Formation.

9. We have perused the various case laws cited in support of the appeal. We note that all these case laws are dealing with composite contracts which include not only the removal of over burden and similar activities, but also the mining activities such as removal of ore and segregation thereof. No doubt the Tribunal has held in those cases that such composite contracts will be liable to Service Tax only under the category of mining w.e.f. 01/06/2007. But in the case before us it is a case of contract simplicitor only for removal of over burden and hence we are of the view that the ratio of such case laws will not be applicable to present case.

10. The appellant has also raised the argument of time bar. But it is seen from the record that the appellant has failed to discharge their responsibility in terms of self assessment of the tax and filing statutory returns. Hence, we are of view that the revenue is justified in invoking the extended period in raising the present demand.

11. In view of above, impugned order is upheld and the appeal is rejected.

FINAL ORDER NO-70173/2019
Per: Archana Wadhwa

As per facts on record, the appellant is engaged in providing ‘Commercial Training’ to the various eligible candidates. As per the revenue the activities undertaken by them were liable to service tax under the category of “Commercial Training or Coaching Services”. As such service tax demand of around Rs. 5.26 crores was raised against them by way of the show cause notice, which was confirmed by the Original Adjudicating Authority. The order of the Commissioner was appealed against by the assessee before the Tribunal vide its Final Order No. ST/A/56872-56885/2013-U(DB) dated 02. 07. 2013 set aside the same and held that the services provided by the appellant cannot be held to be taxable. The said order of the Tribunal was appealed against by the revenue before the Lucknow Bench of Hon’ble Allahabad High Court, who rejected the revenue’s appeal.

2. However, it seems that subsequent to the confirmation of demand by the Original Adjudicating Authority in the above set of proceeding, the appellant got a registration and started paying service tax on their activities, till the matter was decided by the Tribunal. It is important to mention that the appellant neither paid the service tax under protest nor took recourse to provisional assessment. However, on finalization of the dispute by the Tribunal and subsequently by the Hon’ble Allahabad High Court (Lucknow Bench) vide their Order dated 21. 01. 2014, they filed a refund claim of Rs. 3,86,51,321/- on 22.04. 2014 for refund of the service tax paid by them during the period December, 2009 to October, 2012. The said claim was made on the ground that the same was erroneously paid by them, as it clear from the subsequent order of the Tribunal, as upheld by the Lucknow Bench of Hon’ble High Court.

3. Revenue being of the view that such refund claim filed by the appellant claiming refund of service tax for the period subsequent to the earlier order of the Commissioner, was barred by limitation, inasmuch as the same stands filed after a period of one year from the relevant date prescribed under Section 11B of the Central Excise Act, which stands made applicable to the provisions of service tax. Accordingly, the appellant was issued with a show cause notice proposing denial of the said refund claim on the point of limitation as also on unjust-enrichment. The Original Adjudicating Authority denied the claim as barred by limitation, which stands upheld by Commissioner (Appeals). Hence, the present appeal by the appellant.

4. Arguing the matter, learned Chartered Accountant Shri Dharmendra Srivastava submits that they were initially not paying service tax, when a demand of show cause notice was issued to them raising demand of service tax for the period from 2004-05 to 2009-10. The said show cause notice was confirmed by the Commissioner and hence, thereafter they started paying service tax on the activity undertaken by them. The dispute in the earlier case reached the Tribunal and subsequently before the Hon’ble High Court of Allahabad. Both the authorities have held that the appellant is not liable to pay any tax. As such, he submits that the relevant date should be considered to be the Hon’ble High Court’s order dated 20.01.2014, when the disputed issue attend finality and as such refund claim filed on 22.04.2014 should be considered as having been filed within the time.

5. The Commissioner (Appeals) while dealing with the said plea of the assessee has observed as under:-

“In the case, the appellant has pleaded that they filed claim in consequence to the Hon’ble High Court’s order, thus, the relevant date should be considered as the date of High Court’s order i.e. 20.01.2014 and their refund claim filed on 22.04.2014 is within the prescribed period as provided under Section 11B of the Central Excise Act, 1994. Here, I find that the Hon’ble High Court has passed order in respect of Service Tax demand of the appellant for the period 2004-05 to 2009-10 and so relief consequent to said order will be limited to refund of Service Tax covered by the said order. The appellant has filed refund claim of Service Tax deposited during the year 2012 against the tax liability pertaining to the period December, 2009 to October, 2012 on 22.04.2014. Thus, the refund claim of Service Tax which is neither covered by the said order of High Court nor been paid under protest has been filed after stipulated period of one year from the date of payment of tax in the year 2012. It has also come to the notice that the department has filed SLP before the Supreme Court against the said order of High Court and issued notices for demand of Service Tax for the subsequent period and decision is pending till date. Therefore, in the situation, I am of the view that the “date of payment of duty” is the relevant date as per clause (f) of Explanation (B) of Section 11B (5) of the Central Excise Act, 1994. Thus, the refund claim of the appellant is premature as the demands pertaining to the period in question are subjudice as also the decision of High Court has not reached finality being challenged before the Apex Court by the department. The refund claim has been filed after the expiry of one year from the relevant date i.e. date of payment of duty and the same is non-maintainable on limitation aspects as well."

6. Admittedly, the period before the Hon'ble High Court was from December, 2009 to October, 2012. The same was a demand case and the Hon’ble High Court held that no tax liability would arise against the assessee as the activity undertaken by them do not fall under the category of ‘Commercial Training and Coaching Services’. The Tribunal's order setting aside the confirmed demand, was upheld by Hon’ble High Court. The consequence of the said order of the Hon'ble Allahabad High Court would relate to the demand, which was earlier confirmed by the Original Authority for the period 2004-05 to 2009-10 and if the appellant had deposited any amount towards this confirmed demand, the same would be refundable to the assessee.

However, in the present case the refunds claim by the appellant are for the period subsequent to the period involved in the earlier set of proceeding and has got no relevance with the earlier demand proceedings. The same has to be independently adjudged in the light of Section 11-B. As provided in terms of Section 11B of Central Excise Act, 1994 the relevant date is the date of payment of duty and the refunds, if any, are required to be filed within a period of one year from the relevant date. It is not the appellant’s case that subsequent to arising of dispute with the revenue they started paying duty under protest or adhered to provisional assessment. It was open to the appellant to pay duty under protest, by following the procedure prescribed for the same, in which case upon the success of their earlier matter, the tax paid for the subsequent period would become refundable to them, inasmuch as, there is no limitation for refund of tax paid under protest. The appellant having not adopted any of the such circumstances, the refund filed beyond the period of one year from the relevant date have to be governed by the provisions of Section 11 B of the Central Excise Act. The Hon’ble Supreme Court in the case of Porcelain Electrical Manufacturing Co. reported as 1998 (98) ELT 583 (SC) have held that the authorities working under the provisions of the Act are bound by the same and cannot relax the time limit provided under Section 11 B for the refund of erroneously paid duty. As such, we are of the view that the refund claimed by the assessee having no connection with the earlier demand of tax by revenue and the same having being filed beyond the period of one year from the relevant date, stands rightly rejected by the lower authorities as bared by limitation.

7. Accordingly, we uphold the impugned order and reject the appeal filed by the appellant.

The issue involved is demand of service tax on repair and maintenance of computer UPS, computer systems and computer peripherals for the period 2003. The adjudicating authority in the first adjudication order dropped the demand on time bar. The order was appealed against before Commissioner (Appeals) by the Revenue, the Commissioner (Appeals) did not agree that the demand is time barred and accordingly, the matter was remanded to the adjudicating authority to be decided the matter afresh on merit. Against the order of Commissioner (Appeals), the appellant filed the appeal which was disposed of. Against the same order, the appellant filed the present appeal. Therefore, the limited issue involved is that whether the demand dropped by the adjudicating authority on limitation is correct or otherwise.

Shri. Amal Paresh Dave along with S. Bissa Ld. Counsels appearing on behalf of the appellant submits that the appellant was under bonafide belief that during the relevant period, the repair and maintenance of computer peripherals were not taxable, therefore, the service tax was not paid. He submits that on this issue the superintendent on 30.09.2004 filed ST-3 letter regarding payment of service tax of the said service which was responded by the appellant vide letter dated 13.10.2004 wherein, they have expressed views that the repair and maintenance of computer peripherals is not taxable. Subsequently, the matter was taken up with Superintendent as a letter dated 10.10.2007 was filed. The SCN came to be issued on 10.03.2008, therefore, the facts regarding non payment of service tax was within knowledge of the department hence, the demand is time bar. Therefore, the adjudicating authority had rightly dropped the demand on time bar. He placed reliance on the following judgment:

• Ajit India Pvt. Ltd-2018 (19) GSTL 659 (Tri.-Mumbai)
• Mattel Toys (India) Pvt. Ltd-2015 (320) ELT 628 (Tri. Mumbai)
• Mac Charles (India) Ltd. -2009 (248) ELT 632 (Tri. Bang.)
3. On the other hand, Sh. S. N. Gohil Ld. Superintendent (AR) appearing on behalf of the Revenue reiterates the finding of the impugned order. He submits that the case was made out on the basis of inquiry/investigation made by the department. The appellant have not informed in advance to the department regarding their bonafide belief, therefore, there is clear suppression of fact on the part of the appellant. Hence the extended period was rightly invoked.

4. On careful consideration of the submission made by both the sides and perusal of the record, we find that only issue involved is that whether the demand is time barred or otherwise. As per the facts, the appellant had not suo-moto disclosed their intention of not paying the service on the belief that the activity is not taxable to the department. It is only when the department started inquiry by writing letter dated 30/09/2004, the appellant responded that the service is not taxable, therefore, before initiation of the inquiry, the appellant has never disclosed the fact that they do not intend to pay service tax on their bonafide belief therefore, the fact which was dug out by the Revenue, shows that the appellant have not disclosed the fact and they have suppressed the facts. As regard, the judgment cited by Ld. Counsel, on going through the same, we find in all such cases, the assessee first informed the department regarding facts, thereafter the extended period was involved. In such cases, it is clear that there is no suppression of fact on the part of the assessee, therefore, considering the facts of the present case, we are of the view that there is clear suppression of fact on the part of the appellant. Hence, the demand was wrongly dropped by the adjudicating authority. Ld. Commissioner (Appeals) has remanded the matter to decide on merit by setting aside the adjudicating order holding that demand cannot be set aside on time bar. The appellant has liberty to pursue the matter on merit before adjudicating authority. Accordingly, impugned order is upheld appeal is dismissed.

PER: RACHNA GUPTA

The appellant herein are engaged in providing renting of immovable property services and have got themselves registered on 26.02.2007. The appellant under Voluntary Compliance Encouragement Scheme dated 30.12.2013 had filed VCES-I declaring the tax dues of Rs. 4,50,756/- against renting of immovable property services for the period w. e. f. 01.10.2008 to 31.03.2010 vide challan No. 50518 dated 28.12.13. On examination of the said VCES-I, the Department observed that the tax dues declared by the appellant were for the subsequent period on the same issue for which a show Cause Notice dated 04.01.2011 for the period w.e.f. 01.10.2008 to 31.03.2010 vide challan No. 50518 dated 28.12.13. On examination of the said VCES-I, the Department observed that the tax dues declared by the appellant were for the subsequent period on the same issue for which a show Cause Notice dated 04.01.2011 for the period w.e.f. 01.10.2009 to 31.03.2010 had already been issued. Accordingly, a Show Cause Notice dated 25.02.2014 was issued proposing the rejection of the said VCES-I. The said proposal was confirmed vide Order-in-OriginalNo. 1 dated 18.05.2015. It is thereafter that another Show Cause Notice No. 1216 dated 01.03.2016 was issued proposing the recovery of the service tax on Rs. 4,50,756/-. The said recovery has been confirmed vide the Order-in-Original dated 22.05.2018. Being aggrieved, the Appeal in hand have been filed. The said rejection ofVCES was confirmed vide Order-in-Original No. 1 dated 18.05.2015. Being aggrieved the appeal was preferred before Commissioner(Appeals) who vide Order No. 53 dated 31.05.2018 has upheld the Order of rejection. Still being aggrieved Appeal is before this Tribunal.

2. I have heard Mr. Rahul Lekhwani, Ld. Advocate for the appellant who has mentioned that the VCES-I of appellant has been rejected by the Department relying upon second proviso to Section 106(1) of Finance Act, 2013... on the ground that it involved the same issue for the subsequent period as of that involved in Show Cause Notice dated 04.01.2011, consequent to audit conducted in case of the assessee. It is submitted that the issue for the Show Cause Notice dated 04.01.2011 and for the present Show Cause Notice dated 25.02.2014 is absolutely different except that both the Show Cause Notices are about the liability of renting of immovable property services by the appellant. It is impressed upon that the same category of service cannot be considered as the same issue which has been wrongly interpreted by the Department. It is further submitted that the Show Cause Notice is otherwise beyond the normal period of one year of the limitation and there was no intention of the appellant to evade the duty, extended period could not be invoked. Show Cause Notice is therefore barred by time and thus is liable to be set aside on this ground itself. Appeal is accordingly prayed to be allowed.

3. Mr. PR Gupta, Ld. DR while rebutting these arguments has submitted that there is no wrong interpretation on the part of the adjudicating authority below as alleged vide the previous Show Cause Notice of the year 2011. The liability of the appellant on account of renting of immovable property services for the same period for which the VCES has been filed was issued. The VCES has rightly been held to be covered under proviso 2 of Section 106. Appeal is prayed to be dismissed.

4. After hearing both the parties before proceeding further Section 106 of Voluntary Compliance Encouragement Scheme (VCES), 2013 is to be looked into. It reads as follows:

“106. (1) Any person may declare his tax dues in respect of which no notice or an order of determination under Section 72 or Section 73 or Section 73A of the Chapter has been issued or made before the 1st day of March, 2013:
Provided that any person who has furnished return under Section 70 of the Chapter and disclosed his true liability, but has not paid the disclosed amount of Service tax or any part thereof, shall not be eligible to make declaration for the period covered by the said return:
Provided further that where a notice or any order of determination has been issued to a person in respect of any period on any issue, no declaration shall be made of his tax dues on the same issue for any subsequent period.”

Section 106 is an enabling provision which deals in a situation where a particular class of assessee is liable to take advantage of the VCES Scheme and submit a declaration. Under this Section, any person may declare his tax dues in respect of which no notice or an Order of determination under Sections as mentioned above has been issued or made before first day of March 2013. It further provides that where a notice or Order of determination has been issued to any person that person is debarred to avail the benefit of Scheme. Ld. Counsel for the appellant has challenged the Order alleging that the adjudicating authority below has given a wrong interpretation of the word “any issue” and “same issue” as used in Section 106. The term “issue” has nowhere being defined in the Finance Act 1944, or even in the Central Excise Act, 1994.
Tribunal being a quasi-judicial authority can well rely upon the Civil/ Criminal Procedural Codes in the situations of ambiguity as the one in hand. Order 14 of Civil Procedure Code is about settlement of issues. Rule 1 sub-rule 1 thereof says that issues arise when a material proposition of fact or law is affirmed by one party and denied by the other. Sub-rule 3 thereof says that each material proposition affirmed by one party and denied by other shall form the subject of distinct issue. In the present case, Show Cause Notice dated 04.01.2011 was issued to the appellant calling him upon to pay the service tax liability qua renting of immovable property services for the period w.e.f. 01.01.2009 to 31.03.2010. Vide the impugned VCES-I, the appellant has declared his tax dues of Rs. 4,50,756 against the renting of immovable property services for the period w.e.f. 01.10.2008 to 31.03.2010. This perusal makes it clear that it is not merely that the category of service rendered is same but the allegation of not discharging the tax liability for rendering the said service and that the period for the alleged default is also same. Thus it becomes clear that a notice has already been issued to the appellant in respect of the same issue for the same period for which the appellant made the declaration under VCES-I. In view thereof I am of the firm opinion that the said declaration is prohibited under proviso 2 to Section 106(1) of VCES 2013. The Adjudicating Authority below are held to have committed no error while rejecting the said VCES Scheme. Order is held to have no infirmity. Appeal is accordingly dismissed.

5. The argument of the appellant for Show Cause Notice to be barred by time are also held to be not sustainable because the time limit for issuing notice under 101 of VCES will be applicable if and only if the assessee is entitled to file the VCES. Once it is apparent on record that rejection of VCES of appellant is correct due to a wrong declaration and non compliance of statutory provision. There is no need to look into the issue of limitation. As a result, I hold that there is no infirmity. Appeal is dismissed.

Dated : 22/03/2019

Per. Rachna Gupta :-

This order disposes of two appeals arising out of common order-in-appeal No. 55 and 54/ST/DLH/20 dated 30 October 2015 and issue also being common to both the appeals. Factual matrix relevant for adjudication is that the appellant M/s Subway Systems Pvt. Ltd. (SSIPL) are registered with the Service Tax Commissionerate, New Delhi under the category of franchise service. The appellant is a 100% subsidiary company of M/s Subway System International BV (SIBV), a Netherlands based company. After the course of the audit of appellant’s record as was conducted during 20 June 2008 to 24 June 2008 it was observed that SSIPL/appellant entered into a master license agreement dated 01/10/20 with SIBV for developing franchise and service Sandwich shops to be known as franchise to SSIPL. The Department further observed that as per the said agreements Clause 3.03 thereof each franchise was liable to pay weekly royalty and an amount equal to 8% of their total gross sales and an advertising fee equal to 4.5% of their total gross sales and the appellant had further to pay royalty amount @ 35% to SIBV of all fee and royalties derived from each and every sandwich shop that is the franchise in India. However, it was noticed that the appellants were discharging their tax liability qua the royalty amount received from the franchise which was equal to 8% of the total gross sales, but, no liability was being discharged for an amount received equal to 4.5% of the weekly gross sales towards the contribution referred to as Subway Franchise Advertisement Fund Trust (SFAFT). Resultantly show cause notice No. I-26(494)ST/APR (Gr. III)14/2008/4253 dated 13 February 2009 was served upon the appellant proposing the recovery of service tax alongwith the interest and penalty as follows :-

(i) Service tax amounting to Rs. 10,06,940/- on account of reverse charge mechanism being the recipient of services;

The service tax amounting to Rs. 1,44,624/- on account of non-payment of service tax on value of withholding tax; Service tax amounting to Rs. 30,86,667/- on account of non-payment of service tax on the amount recovered as Franchise Advertisement Fund; Service tax amounting to Rs. 3,83,711/- on the “amount shown as amount received but unidentified” in balance sheet. The said show cause notice was originally adjudicated vide order No. 28/NK Mallick/2013-14 dated 18/02/2014 vide which the demand on the amount received but unidentified and the demand on account of Franchise Advertisement Fund alongwith the respective education cess was confirmed alongwith the interest and the proportionate penalties. Being aggrieved, the appeal was preferred. Commissioner (Appeals) vide the orders under challenge/order-in-appeal No. 56/ST/DLH/20 dated 30 October 2015 rejected the appeal resuitantly the appellant is before this Tribunal.

2. We have heard Shri Abhishek A. Rastogi, learned Advocate for the appellant and Shri Vivek Pandey, learned DR for the Department. Learned Counsel for the appellant had conceded the liability as confirmed about the amount received but unidentified and acknowledged for the same to have been deposited alongwith the interest and the proportionate penalty. However, with respect to the demand confirmed on account of Franchise Advertisement Fund it is submitted that the said demand is about the contribution for an advertisement Fund (SFAFT) which do not qualify as a franchise service for not being covered under the definition of “franchise” under Section 65 (47) of the Finance Act, 1944. The said contribution was collected by the appellant acting merely as a pure agent without providing any service. Learned Counsel has placed reliance on the decision in the case of [Kumar Beheray Rathi vs. CCE, Pune – III – 2014 (34) S.T.R. 139 (Tri. – Mumbai)]. It is submitted that the order under challenge has failed to consider that under Rule 5 (2) of Service Tax (Determination of Value) Rules 2006 vide which the expenditure or costs incurred by the service provider as a pure agent as the recipient of service has to be excluded from the value of taxable services. It is further submitted that the amount collected in SFAFT, the utilization thereof is undertaken by the franchise themselves and there is no control of the appellant upon the said amount. Even after the said amount remotely benefited the appellant had still cannot be the consideration for the service provided by the appellant as that of “franchise”. Above all the said amount is reflected as a liability in the books of account of the appellant and is not accounted as income. The decision of [Philips India Ltd. vs. CCE, Pune – 1997 (91) E.L.T. 540 (S.C.)] is relied upon, whereby it was held that the advertisement expenses shared by the dealer thereby do not form part of the assessable value. The appellant also relied upon the decision of [Intercontinental Consultants & Technocrafts Pvt. Ltd. vs. Union of India – 2013 (29) S.T.R. 9 (Del.)], wherein it was held that for valuation of taxable service only consideration which is paid as quid pro quo can be brought to the charge. Finally, it is impressed upon that there is nomalafide intent on the part of the appellant to evade any payment of service tax as is alleged question of imposition of penalty does not at all arises. Order under challenge is accordingly prayed to be set aside and appeal is prayed to be allowed.

Rebutting these arguments, it is submitted on behalf of the respondent that the amount collected by the appellant in the name of Subway Franchise Advertisement Fund, in the account of SFAFT is nothing but a bifurcation of the gross value received by the appellant, for providing the service of “franchise”. The bifurcation is with the intend of evading/short paying the service tax liability. Section 67 of the Finance Act is being impressed upon to submit that the amount of Franchise Advertisement Fund is not the expenses but is the part of the income of the franchisor being paid to him as is very much part of the payment clauses of the franchise agreement. From any set of imagination same cannot be considered being excluded from the gross value/transaction value. Justifying the impugned order appeal is prayed to be dismissed.

3. After hearing both the parties at length, keeping in view the rival contentions and perusing the entire record including the impugned ‘Franchise Agreement’, we are of the considered view as follows:

Out of the several demands proposed vide impugned showcase notice, the original Adjudicating Authority confirmed two demands:

(a) on the unaccounted amount of liability shown in balance sheet

(b) on the amount collected from Franchise in the name of Advertisement Fund.

4. With respect to former liability, the same has duly been conceded by the appellant and stands discharged too. Now the controversy only remains about the value given by the Franchise to the appellant/ Franchiser in the name of Franchise Advertisement Fund. The said Franchise Advertisement Fund is 4.5% of the weekly gross sales which is paid in addition to 8% of weekly gross sales as ‘Royalty’. Thus, the main controversy to be adjudicated by us is as follows:

Whether bifurcating the amount of weekly gross sales into the payment of royalty (@ 8% thereof) and the payment towards Franchise Advertisement Fund (@ 4.5% thereof) takes the later value out of the ambit what is called as transaction value/the gross value.

Normally what is the integral part of service provided forms the part of gross value as was also held by Tribunal Kolkata in Naresh case reported as 2008 – TIOL – 1016 – TRI. – KOL. Value is derived from the price and value is the function of price themselves. This is the conceptual meaning of value. Section 67 is the sole repository of law governing value of taxable service no ambiguity persists in Section 67 of the Act whatever is included in the section has to be considered as the value for taxable service. The wording of the said provision being absolutely clear no other interpretation can be attributed to the same. We draw our support from the decision of Apex court in the case of Government of Andhra Pradesh vs. P. Laxmi Devi – (2008) 4 SCC 720, wherein it was held that if the words used in a taxing statute are clear, one cannot try to find out the intention and the object of the statute. Thus the correct assessable value of the service provided since service commands that value only and that should only be taxed without any hypothetical rule of computation of value of taxable service under Section 67 of the Act. Section 67 reads as follows:-

7. Section 67 of the Act deals with valuation of taxable services. This Section was amended w.e.f. April 18, 2006. Un-amended provision reads as under:

67. Valuation of taxable services for charging service tax.- For the purposes of this Chapter, the value of any taxable service shall be the gross amount charged by the service provider for such service provided or to be provided by him.

Explanation 1. - For the removal of doubts, it is hereby declared that the value of a taxable service, as the case may be, includes,- the aggregate of commission or brokerage charged by a broker on the sale or purchase of securities including the commission or brokerage paid by the stock-broker to any sub-broker;

(a) the adjustments made by the telegraph authority from any deposits made by the subscriber at the time of application for telephone connection or pager or facsimile or telegraph or telex or for leased circuit;
(b) the amount of premium charged by the insurer from the policy holder;
(c) the commission received by the air travel agent from the airline;
(d) the commission, fee or any other sum received by an actuary, or intermediary or insurance intermediary or insurance agent from the insurer;
(e) the reimbursement received by the authorised service station from manufacturer for carrying out any service of any motor car, light motor vehicle or two wheeled motor vehicle manufactured by such manufacturer; and
(f) the commission or any amount received by the rail travel agent from the Railways or the customer, but does not include –
(i) initial deposit made by the subscriber at the time of application for telephone connection or pager or facsimile (FAX) or telegraph or telex or for leased circuit;
(ii) the cost of unexposed photography film, unrecorded magnetic tape or such other storage devices, if any, sold to the client during the course of providing the service;
(iii) the cost of parts or accessories, or consumable such as lubricants and coolants, if any, sold to the customer during the course of service or repair of motor cars, light motor vehicle or two wheeled motor vehicles;
(iv) the airfare collected by air travel agent in respect of service provided by him;
(v) the rail fare collected by rail travel agent in respect of service provided by him;
(vi) the cost of parts or other material, if any, sold to the customer during the course of providing maintenance or repair service;
(vii) the cost of parts or other material, if any, sold to the customer during the course of providing erection, commissioning or installation service; and (viii) interest on loans.

Explanation 2. - Where the gross amount charged by a service provider is inclusive of service tax payable, the value of taxable service shall be such amount as with the addition of tax payable, is equal to the gross amount charged.

Explanation 3. - For the removal of doubts, it is hereby declared that the gross amount charged for the taxable service shall include any amount received towards the taxable service before, during or after provision of such service.”

(i) in a case where the provision of service is for a consideration in money, be the gross amount charged by the service provider for such service provided or to be provided by him;

(ii) in a case where the provision of service is for a consideration not wholly or partly consisting of money, be such amount in money as, with the addition of service tax charged, is equivalent to the consideration;

(iii) in a case where the provision of service is for a consideration which is not ascertainable, bet he amount as may be determined in the prescribed manner.

(2) Where the gross amount charged by a service provider, for the service provided or to be provided is inclusive of service tax payable, the value of such taxable service shall be such amount as, with the addition of tax payable, is equal to the gross amount charged.

(3) The gross amount charged for the taxable service shall include any amount received towards the taxable service before, during or after provision of such service.

(4) Subject to the provisions of sub-sections (1), (2) and (3), the value shall be determined in such manner as may be prescribed.

Explanation. - For the purposes of this section.

(a) “consideration” includes any amount that is payable for the taxable services provided or to be provided;

(b) “money” includes any currency, cheque, promissory note, letter of credit, draft, pay order, travellers cheque, money order, postal remittance and other similar instruments but does not include currency that is held for its numismatic value;

(c) “gross amount charges” includes payment by cheque, credit card, deduction from account and any form of payment by issue of credit notes or debit notes and [book adjustment, and any amount credited or debited, as the case may be, to any account, whether called „suspense account’ or by any other name, in the books of account of a person liable to pay service tax, where the transaction of taxable service is with any associated enterprise.]”

8. After the amendment, Section 67 of the Act is as follows:

Section 67. Valuation of taxable services for charging service tax. –

(1) Subject to the provisions of this Chapter, service tax chargeable on any taxable service with reference to its value shall, -

(i) in a case where the provision of service is for a consideration in money, be the gross amount charged by the service provider for such service provided or to be provided by him;
(ii) in a case where the provision of service is for a consideration not wholly or partly consisting of money, be such amount in money, with the addition of service tax charged, is equivalent to the consideration;

(iii) in a case where the provision of service is for a consideration which is not ascertainable, be the amount as may be determined in the prescribed manner.

(2) Where the gross amount charged by a service provider, for the service provided or to be provided is inclusive of service tax payable, the value of such taxable service shall be such amount as, with the addition of tax payable, is equal to the gross amount charged.

(3) The gross amount charged for the taxable service shall include any amount received towards the taxable service before, during or after provision of such service.

(4) Subject to the provisions of sub-sections (1), (2) and (3), the value shall be determined in such manner as may be prescribed.

Explanation. - For the purposes of this section,-

(a) [“consideration” includes –

(i) any amount that is payable for the taxable services provided or to be provided;

(ii) any reimbursable expenditure or cost incurred by the service provider and charged, in the course of providing or agreeing to provide a taxable service, except in such circumstances, and subject to such conditions, as may be prescribed;

(iii) any amount retained by the lottery distributor or selling agent from gross sale amount of lottery ticket in addition to the fee or commission, if any, or, as the case may be, the discount received, that is to say, the difference in the face value of lottery ticket and the price at which the distributor or selling agent gets such ticket.]

(c) “gross amount charged” includes payment by cheque, credit card, deduction from account and any form of payment by issue of credit notes or debit notes and [book adjustment, and any amount credited or debited, as the case may be, to any account, whether called “Suspense account” or by any other name, in the books of account of a person liable to pay service tax, where the transaction of taxable service is with any associated enterprise.”]

5. On the reading of above definition, it is clear that both prior and after the amendment the value on which service tax is payable has to satisfy that (i) the value is the gross amount charged i.e. the entire contract value between the service provider and the service recipient without deduction of any expenses; (ii) the amount charged should be for “for such service provided” that the gross amount charged by the service provider has to pay for the service provided. By using the word “for such service provided”, the Act has provided a nexus between the amount charged and the service provided.

6. For appreciating the first ingredient we revert to the master license dated 01/10/2002 between the SIBV and SIIPL authorizing the later to enter into series of franchise agreements to develop franchise and service sandwich shops in the territory of Republic of India. Clause 3 thereof is the payment clause vide which SIBV is entitled to receive 33% of all the fees and royalties derived by SSIPL.
3.03 talks about the payment received by SSIPL from the franchise it develops in furtherance of said master license. It reads as follows: “3.03 Master Licensee shall also cause payments of all weekly royalties and advertising fees due from all Sandwich Shops franchised pursuant to this Agreement, to be delivered to Master Licensee or the Franchise Advertising Fund (FAF) timely by the Franchisees and deposited in Master Licensee’s and FAF’s respective bank account. Pursuant to the Franchise Agreements, Franchisees shall pay weekly a royalty in an amount equal to Eight Percent (8%) of their total Gross Sales and an advertising fee in an amount equal to at least Three and One Half Percent (3.5%) of their total Gross Sales. (“Gross Sales” means all sales or revenues, including catering or delivery, from their SandwichShop’s business, inclusive of value-added tax.)”

7. The afore-said 33% of the royalties as to be paid to the master licensee (SIBV) is out of the payment of fees and royalties as collected from the franchisees. Though Clauses 3.00 and 3.05 mentioned that the said 33% excludes the advertisement fee but it is received in the context of providing ‘franchise service’ from SSIPL to the franchise (various Subway Sandwich Shop in the Territory of India). Also the said advertising fee is nothing but is @ 4.5% of the amount collected out of weekly gross sales. The royalty @ 8% is also the part of said weekly gross sales and is admittedly taxable. Thus, we are of the opinion that by merely mentioning that for master licensee 33% of all the fees collected shall exclude advertising fee does not takes that amount out of the tax net of the amount received from franchisees for providing them the ‘Franchise Service’. Thus the sole reason of this advertisement fee is also the part of the contract value. More so, this value is not at all the expense incurred by the franchise for advertising his own outlet but this is the amount out of his income from the sales passed on to the service provider SSIPL in lieu of the franchise agreement between the two. Hence, we are of the firm opinion that this ‘Franchise Advertisement Fund’ is despite a different nomenclature of being a different fund but actually is the value received by the appellant for providing franchise service to its franchisees.

8. Coming to the second ingredient it is observed that the appellant/assessee had submitted that advertising service is not the part of franchise service and that the amount is not to be retained by SSIPL but is to be diverted back to the respective franchisees for advertisement in their local area the same has been rebutted by the department submitting that it is SSIPL only which ultimately is getting the benefit out of the said service. To adjudicate, the same we first look into the definition of franchisees/franchise service. As per Section 65 (105) (zze) ‘franchise service’ is:

any service provided or to be provided to a franchise by thefranchiser in relation to franchise.

The Finance Act, 2005 had substituted this definition w.e.f. 16/06/2005 as follows: -

Franchise means an agreement by which the franchise is granted representational right to sale or manufacture the goods or to provide service or undertake any process identified with franchiser, whether or not a trade mark, service mark, trade name or logo or any such symbol, as the case may be, is involved.
Thus after the amendment, the franchise service is not confined merely to the representational right to sale or manufacture goods or to provide the service but it extends to any process identified with franchiser with respect to the trade mark, service mark, trade name etc. The amount, in question, is the part of the weekly gross sales being given by the service recipient to the service provider mutually consenting for the same to be used for the process identified by SSIPL to advertise the subway brand/trade name. Hence, it is not simplicitor on advertising service, but is very much the part of the franchise service rather than by the appellant to the franchisees. Hence, definitely qualify for “for such service provided”. From the above discussion, we are of the firm opinion that the amount of weekly gross sales @ 4.5% but for franchise advertisement fund is nothing but the part of gross value of the contract for providing the franchise service and, hence, was equally taxable as 8.5% of the said weekly gross sales is taxable.

9. The case laws as relied upon by the appellant are not applicable to the facts and circumstances of the present case for the simple reason that present is not issue between dealer and manufacture. It is a case of providing the franchise service where representational right to use or identify/advertise the trade name is very much part of the franchise service itself. Similarly, Intercontinental Consultants and Technocrats Pvt. Ltd. (supra) is also not applicable in view of the above discussion about Section 67 of the Act in accordance where off the valuation of taxable service is nothing more or nothing less than the consideration paid as quid pro quo for the service. As already discussed above even 4.5% of weekly gross value, irrespective given as franchise advertisement fund, is the value as a quid pro quo service.

The argument of appellant to be acting merely as a pure agent is also held not sustainable because appellant being the franchiser is simultaneously getting benefit out of the advertisements. More so, the money fixed for advertisement was not the expenditure separately either on the part of franchiser or on the part of the franchise but is very much the part of the franchise fee given to franchiser in compliance of the terms of the franchise agreement between the two.

Finally coming to the issue of show cause notice being barred by time, we have already observed that the bifurcation of weekly gross sales by the appellant is a mere strategy to cut short its tax liability. Thus we opine that the element of mis-representation is very much apparent on part of the appellant that too with an intent to evade payment of tax. The decision of Hon’ble Apex court in the case of Nizam Sugar Factory – 2006 (197) E. L. T. 465, as relied upon by the appellant is therefore not applicable to the present case. Resultantly it is held that the Department was entitled to invoke the extended period as per proviso to Section 73 (3) of the Act. Show cause notice dated 13/02/2009 proposing the demand for the period w.e.f. April 2007 to March 2008 is therefore denied to be barred by time. As a result of entire above discussion, we do not find any infirmity with the order under challenge. Same is accordingly upheld. Consequent thereupon both the appeals stand dismissed.
(Order pronounced in open court on 22/03/2019.)

Final Order No. 53531/2018 Dated : 26/10/2018 Per. C.L. Mahar :-

The brief facts are that the appellant is engaged in the business of providing rent a cab service. The department after undertaking a detailed investigation issued show cause notices that were adjudicated by the Competent Authority in the manner indicted in the following chart :-

<table>

<tr>
<th>Sl. No</th>

2. It was alleged by the department that the appellant had not declared the correct taxable value of rent a cab service as they had been providing cab on higher basis to West Central Railway Zone as well as Indian Army and the value of services provided to these organizations were not included in the taxable value by the appellant for the period 2001-2002 to 2004-2005.

3. The above-mentioned order-in-originals were challenged by the appellant before the Commissioner (Appeals). The Commissioner (Appeals) vide his order-in-appeal dated 27 December 2005 as well as order-in-appeal dated 3 August 2006 dismissed the appeals and upheld the levy of service tax and imposition of penalty.

4. Being aggrieved by above-mentioned order-in-appeals, these appeals have been filed before this Tribunal.

5. The Tribunal in its previous final order dated 08/04/2009 ordered that the matter be decided afresh on denovo basis and the observations are :-

   “it would therefore proper to remand back the matter to the learned adjudicating authority to re-examine the matter afresh on the touch stone of law and the decisions of the tribunal. It would be open to the appellant to argue on all legal points before the learned adjudicating authority in view of remand we made by this order”.

The Tribunal passed the order because of the observations made by the Tribunal in R.S. Travels vs. CCE, Meerut – 2008 (12) S.T.R. 27:-

   “Rent-a-cab service operators service – Renting vis-a-hiring service tax – to rent is allowing use of something one owns in exchange of payment. – Test for ascertaining whether activity covered involves giving cab to client for a certain period of time for some consideration. Vehicle being at disposal and under control of client – can operator providing can with driver for going from one place to another on per kilometer basis or on lumpsum amount based on distance is providing transport service, control of vehicle remaining with cab operator/driver – latter service is outside purview of Rent-a-cab operator service – Matter remanded to ascertain facts. Section 65 (91) and 65 (105) (o) of Finance Act, 1994”.

6. In view of above order of this Tribunal, the Original Adjudicating Authority by order dated 29/05/2012 has confirmed service tax amount of Rs. 4,61,284/- under Section 73 of the Finance Act, 1994; penalty of an equal amount has also been imposed individually both under Section 76 and under Section 78 of the Finance Act, 1994. Against the above-mentioned order-in-originales, the appellant went before the Commissioner (Appeals) who vide his order dated 07/10/2013 has upheld the original order of Adjudicating Authority. The appellant are before us against the above-mentioned order of Commissioner (Appeals) dated 07/10/2013.

7. The learned Counsel appearing for the appellant has contended that the department has made out a case against the appellant only on the basis of figures given in their balance sheet and the profit and loss account and have calculated the taxable value of the appellant without substantiating the same with any documentary evidences, except that they had received certain payments from West Central Railway Zone as well as from establishment of the Indian Army. It has also been pleaded that the appellant have received certain amounts in foreign exchange and the required details in Form X for the period 2001-2002 to 2004-2005 were submitted for consideration before Commissioner (Appeals) stating that as per the provisions of Notification No. 21/2003-ST, the amount of the payments received by them for rent a cab service in convertible foreign exchange was exempted from payment of service tax. It is submitted that the Commissioner (Appeals) failed to consider their claim and has not allowed deduction of such payments from the entire taxable receipts. The learned Counsel has also relied upon certain decisions of the High Court specially in Commissioner of Customs and Central Excise, Meerut – I vs. R. S. Travels – 2015 (38) S. T. R. 3 (Uttarakhand) and CCE vs. Sachin Malhotra – 2015 (37) S. T. R. 684 (Uttarakhand) and a decision of this Tribunal in the case of CCE, Nagpur vs. P. B. Bobde – 2015 (40) S. T. R. 953 (Tri. – Mumbai).

8. We have also heard the learned Departmental Representative who has submitted that the decision of this Tribunal in the case of R.S. Travels vs. Commissioner – 2008 (12) S. T. R. 27 (Tribunal) has been discussed by Hon’ble Gujarat High Court and same has been reversed by the High Court in the case of CST vs. Vijay Travels – 2014 (36) S. T. R. 513 (Guj.). It is his submission that the same cannot be relied upon for deciding the taxability of rent-a-cab activity. It has also been contended by the learned Departmental Representative that the claim of the appellant that they had received payment of certain rent-a-cab services in convertible foreign exchange, is not correct as the certificate submitted by them mentions that they had received payment in Indian currency only.

9. We have heard both the sides and perused the records of the appeal.

10. It would be appropriate to refer to the relevant provisions before proceeding to consider the submission. Section 65 (105) (o) defines Rent-A-Cab service to means any service provided or to be provided to any person by a rent a cab scheme operator in relation to the renting of a cab. Section 65 (91) defines a rent a cab scheme operator to mean any person engaged in the business of renting a cab.

11. It is a matter of record that the appellant had been renting cars on monthly charge basis to West Central Railway Zone as well as Indian Army establishment in Jabalpur and other places. As per the department, the appellant has been agitating that the department has not adduced any evidences other than the fact that they provided certain number of cabs on rental basis to West Central Railway Zone and they have arbitrarily taken the full value of receipt shown in the balance sheet and profit and loss account for calculation of service tax.

12. We have perused the records of the appeal and find that the appellant has failed to prove that the receipts in the balance sheet and profit and loss account are accountable for activity of rent a cab service. We find that the appellant has been changing its stand before various authorities in an attempt to get out of the service tax liability. At one stage they argued that they did not own the required number of vehicles for providing rent a cab service and were providing cars only on commission basis. We find that the appellant has been providing rent a cab service and they have not discharged their service tax liability on the same. The decision in the case of Commissioner of Customs & Central Excise, Meerut – I vs. R.S. Travels – 2015 (38) S.T.R. 3 (Uttarakhand) is of no help to the appellant as same has been considered in the case of Vijay Travels (supra), and a contrary view, as follows has been taken:-

“14.3. Renting means a usually fixed periodical return, especially, an agreed sum paid at fixed intervals by a person for any use of the property or car. It is also the amount paid by a hirer to the owner for the use of the property or a car. Hiring is also engaging services or wages or other payment. It also amounts to engaging temporary use.

When rent-a-cab scheme operator gives the car on rent, de facto possession is, of course, there but, it is not acceptable to uphold that wherever de jure control and possession of the vehicle stands transferred in law from the owner to the person on renting/hiring the service that the service tax is leviable and this is, of course, not different than services rendered on a contractual basis, providing transport service for fixed amount of periodical return or fare. We also need to remind ourselves that concept of providing transportation service where de jure control remains with the owner or company of the vehicle and the driver and yet, it functions in accordance with the wish and desire of the person hiring such vehicle is extremely popular in India unlike the concept of person renting the cab desiring to drive himself by having all liabilities on himself. In absence of any specific exclusion in the statute of such service from the taxing net, large portion of such services cannot be held to be non inclusive by any artificial interpretation.

14.4. From the aforesaid discussion, it can be said that the petitioner cannot escape tax liability on the ground that the hiring is different from renting as the intention of the Government is to tax service provider of a service which involves both hiring and renting of a cab for a longer duration and distinction as sought to be carved out by the petitioner is not finding favour with this Court.
21. In view of the discussion above, it is to be concluded that the service tax which was introduced for levying the tax on certain taxable services as such services contributed substantially to Gross Domestic Product (GDP) and rent-a-cab service is specifically covered under the tax net. The question Nos. I and II needs to be answered this wise that the services provided by the respondent herein would get covered under rent-a-cab service and thereby, respondent is to be held liable for the service tax thereon.

22. This brings us to the question Nos. V and VI which concern invoking of extended period of five years for levying service tax in case of the respondent”.

13. Thus, it can be seen that the type of services provided by the appellant is covered within the scope of Rent-A-Cab service. The appellant has failed to discharge its service tax liability on the same and, therefore, we do not find any fault with the conclusions arrived at by Commissioner (Appeals).

14. In so far as the submission of the learned Counsel for the appellant that as certain part of receipts were received in convertible foreign exchange, they are entitled for Notification No. 21/2003-ST dated 20 November 2003, it is necessary to examine the certificate which has been issued under Form X CCAE. The scanned copy of such certificate is reproduced below:-
15. A perusal of above certificate indicates that the appellant has in fact received the payment in lieu of providing the rent a cab service in the form of Indian currency. Payment has been received in convertible foreign exchange by the main service provider namely, Ess Dee Travel Express Pvt. Ltd. and not by the appellant.

16. We are, therefore, of the view that the benefit of Notification 21/2003-ST dated 20 November 2003 cannot be extended to the appellant as a plain reading of the notification indicate that exemption will be available to persons who receive payment in the convertible foreign exchange. This apart, the benefit of the notification may have been availed of by M/s Ess Dee Travels Express Pvt. Ltd.

17. The appeal is, therefore, without any merit. It is, accordingly dismissed.

CORAM : HON’BLE MR.JUSTICE DILIP GUPTA, PRESIDENT
HON’BLE MR. BIJAY KUMAR, MEMBER (TECHNICAL)

Date of Hearing: 20 September, 2019
Date of Decision: 27 September, 2019

DEFECT MISCELANEOUS No.: 95/2019

JUSTICE DILIP GUPTA

The Appeal was filed before the Principal Bench of the Customs, Excise and Service Tax Appellate Tribunal (the Tribunal) at New Delhi on 19 September, 2017. The appeal papers were, thereafter, transferred to the Chandigarh Regional Bench of the Tribunal by a communication dated 10 October, 2017 sent by the office of the Principal Bench. The Appellant, however, filed Writ Petition(C) 10959 of 2017 before the Delhi High Court against the sending of the papers to the Chandigarh Regional Bench by the office of the Principal Bench of the Tribunal. In view of the statement made on behalf of the respondent-Tribunal before the Delhi High Court that the question whether the appeal would be heard by the Principal Bench at New Delhi or any other Regional Bench would be decided on the judicial side, the writ petition was disposed of by the Delhi High Court.

2. Pursuant to the order passed by the Delhi High Court, a communication was sent by the office of the Principal Bench at New Delhi to the Assistant Registrar of the Regional Bench of the Tribunal at Chandigarh to return the records of the appeal. Accordingly, the records were returned by the Chandigarh Regional Bench of the Tribunal to the Principal Bench at New Delhi by a letter dated 19 December, 2017. The matter has, accordingly, been placed before the Bench.

3. Shri J.K. Mittal learned Counsel appearing for the Appellant has pointed out that the demand-cum-show cause notice dated 23 October, 2013 was issued by the Commissioner in the office of the Commissioner of Service Tax at New Delhi and it also required the Appellant to file a reply to the Commissioner of Service Tax Commissionerate at New Delhi. Learned Counsel also pointed out that the Appellant is registered with the Service Tax Commissionerate at Delhi and the Service Tax audit of the Appellant was also conducted by the Officers of the Service Tax Commissionerate at New Delhi from 25 June of 2013 to 27 June of 2013 on the basis of which the show cause notice was issued. In view of this factual position, learned Counsel for the Appellant submitted that the Principal Bench of the Tribunal at New Delhi would alone have the jurisdiction to hear the appeal. In support of his contention learned Counsel placed reliance upon a decision of the Supreme Court in Ambica Industries Vs. Commissioner of Central Excise, 2007 (213) ELT 323 (SC).

4. Learned Authorised Representative of the Department, however, pointed out that the show cause notice was issued on 24 October, 2013 by the Commissioner of Service Tax at New Delhi to the Appellant, whose address is Galaxy Towers, Part-II, Sector-
15, Gurgaon but, after the restructuring of the Service Tax Commissionerate, the Appellant fell under the jurisdiction of Service Tax Commissionerate at Gurgaon in terms of Trade Notice No. 02/2014 dated 1 October, 2014. The show cause notice was, therefore, ultimately adjudicated upon by an order dated 28 February, 2017 passed by the Commissioner of Service Tax at Gurgaon. It is, therefore, his submission that when the Appellant is situated at Gurgaon and the order was also passed by the Commissioner of Service Tax at Gurgaon, the Regional Bench of the Tribunal at Chandigarh would alone have the jurisdiction to hear the appeal.

5. The submissions advanced by the learned Counsel for the Appellant and the learned Authorised Representative of the Department have been considered.

6. A show cause notice was issued by the Commissioner of Service Tax at New Delhi on 28 February, 2017 calling upon the Appellant to submit a reply before the Commissioner of Service Tax at New Delhi. This show cause notice was issued on the basis of an audit conducted by the Officers of the Service Tax Commissionerate at New Delhi in June 2013. A perusal of the order dated 28 February, 2017 passed by the Commissioner of Service Tax at Gurgaon indicates that after the issuance of the show cause notice, there was a restructuring of the Service Tax Commissionerate, as a consequence of which the jurisdiction of the Appellant fell under the Service Tax Commissionerate at Gurgaon. The order dated 28 February, 2017 states that this restructuring was done in terms of Trade Notice No. 02/2014 dated 1 October, 2014. The impugned order, therefore, mentions that the show cause notice was being adjudicated upon by the Commissioner of Service Tax at Gurgaon. Thus, what is important to notice is that not only is the Appellant situated at Gurgaon, but the impugned order was also passed by the Commissioner of Service Tax at Gurgaon.

7. Earlier, all matters arising out from the Union Territory of Chandigarh, the States of Punjab and Haryana, Himachal Pradesh and Jammu & Kashmir fell within the jurisdiction of Principal Bench at New Delhi. However, by a notification dated 1 November, 2013 that was published in the Government of India Gazette dated 2 November, 2013, the Central Government notified the creation of six additional Benches of the Tribunal, including three at the existing locations at New Delhi, Mumbai and Chennai and three new Benches at Chandigarh, Allahabad and Hyderabad with effect from the date the Notification was published in the Gazette. The Government of India, Ministry of Finance by letter dated 13 November, 2013 also specified the location and jurisdiction of the proposed new Benches. In respect of the Bench at Chandigarh, it was provided that the jurisdiction of the Bench at Chandigarh was carved out from Delhi jurisdiction to deal with matters arising from the Union Territory of Chandigarh, the States of Punjab and Haryana, Himachal Pradesh and Jammu & Kashmir. The Regional Bench at Chandigarh was established by a Notification No. 02/2015 dated 4 November, 2015 and it started functioning from 1 November, 2015.

8. According to learned Counsel for the Appellant, the Principal Bench at Delhi would have the jurisdiction because not only was the audit of the Appellant conducted by the Officers of Service Tax Commissionerate at New Delhi, but the Show Cause Notice was also issued by the Commissioner at New Delhi and it called upon the Appellant to submit a reply before the Commissioner at New Delhi. It is no doubt true that the show cause notice was issued by the Commissioner of Service Tax at New Delhi but, subsequently by Trade Notice of 02/2014 dated 1 October, 2014 restructuring the Service Tax Commissionerate took place and the jurisdiction of the Appellant that is situated at Gurgaon, fell under the jurisdiction of the Service Tax Commissionerate at Gurgaon. It is for this reason that the show cause notice was adjudicated upon by the Commissioner of Service Tax at Gurgaon. It is, therefore, clear that the matter arose from the territorial jurisdiction of the State of Haryana, in which case, the Regional Bench of the Tribunal of Chandigarh alone would have the jurisdiction.

9. In Ambica Industries, on which reliance has been placed by learned Counsel for the Appellant, the issue was regarding determination of the High Court before which Appeals would lie under Section 35G (1) of the Central Excise Act, 1944 (the Act). The Appellant carried business at Lucknow and the matter was ultimately decided by the Tribunal at New Delhi since the Tribunal at New Delhi exercised jurisdiction in respect of cases arising within the territorial limits of Uttar Pradesh, National Territory of Delhi and the States of Maharashtra. Having regard to the situs of the Tribunal, an appeal in terms of Section 35F of the Act was filed before the Delhi High Court. The Delhi High Court, however, held that it had no territorial jurisdiction in the matter. It is in this context that the Supreme Court held:

“12. The said decision proceeded on the basis that part of the cause of action may arise at the forum where the appellate order or the revisional order is sourced. If, thus, a cause of action arises within one or the other High Court, the petitioner shall be the dominus litis. Indisputably, if this set of reasoning is to be accepted, the impugned judgment as also the decision rendered in Bombay Snuff (supra) would not be correct. Before dilating on the said proposition of law it may be noticed that the decision of a Tribunal would be binding on the Assessing Authority. It the situs of the appellate Tribunal should be considered to be the determinative factor, a decision rendered by the Tribunal shall be binding on all the authorities exercising its jurisdiction under the said Tribunal.

13. The Tribunal, as noticed hereinbefore, exercises jurisdiction over all the three States. In all the three States there are High Courts. In the event, the aggrieved person is treated to be the dominus litis, as a result whereof, he elects to file the appeal before one or the other High Courts, the decision of the High Court shall be binding only on the authorities which are within its jurisdiction. It will only be of persuasive value on the authorities functioning under a different jurisdiction. If the binding authority of High Court does not extend beyond its territorial jurisdiction and the decision of one High Court would not be a binding precedent for other High Courts or Courts or Tribunals outside its territorial jurisdiction, some sort of judicial anarchy shall come into play. An assessee, affected by an order of assessment made at Bombay may invoke the jurisdiction of the Allahabad High Court to take advantage of the law laid down by it and which might suit him and thus he would be able to successfully evade the law laid down by the High Court at Bombay.

14. Furthermore, when an appeal is provided under a stature, Parliament must have thought of one High Court. It is a different matter that by way of necessity, a Tribunal may have to exercise jurisdiction over several States but it does not appeal to any reason that Parliament intended, despite providing for an appeal before the High Court, that appeals may be filed before different High Courts at the sweet will of the party aggrieved by the decision of the Tribunal.”

10. In the present case, it is not in dispute that the Appellant is situated in Gurgaon and the impugned order was passed by the Commissioner of Service Tax at Gurgaon. The aforesaid decision of the Supreme Court in Ambica Industries cannot be pressed by the Appellant to contend that the Principal Bench of the Tribunal at New Delhi would have jurisdiction to hear the appeal. The jurisdiction to hear the appeal would lie with the Regional Bench of the Tribunal at Chandigarh.

11. The records of the appeal shall, therefore, be sent to the Regional Bench of the Tribunal at Chandigarh. The Office is directed to take necessary steps.

ST - ‘Pouring fees’ received by the appellant cannot be considered as a discount for sale transaction or as non-compete fee - it is more in the nature of fee received for promotion of Pepsi products - correctly held as taxable under BAS by adjudicating authority - appellants did not disclose the receipt of consideration as ‘pouring fees’ in any of their returns, therefore, extended period of limitation correctly invoked - penalties also upheld - impugned order correct and legal - appeal dismissed: CESTAT [para 5, 6]

Appeal dismissed

Per: B Ravichandran:
The appeal is against order dated 17/11/2011 of Commissioner (Adjudication), New Delhi. The appellant is in the business of running multiplex cinema houses in different parts of the country. They are registered with the Department for the payment of service tax under various taxable categories. The dispute in the present appeal is relating to their service tax liability on the income received from Pepsi which are attributable to promoting their products. The appellants have promoted the products of Pepsi and the consideration is attributable to said promotion. Accordingly, the proceedings initiated against the appellant concluded in the confirmation of demand of service tax of Rs. 40,14,042/ for the period 01/07/2003 to 31/03/2007. The Original Authority also imposed penalty of equivalent amount under Section 78 and further penalty of Rs. 5,000/- under Section 77 of the Finance Act, 1994.

3. The learned Counsel for the appellant submitted that the agreement with Pepsi is basically for buying products of Pepsi for sale in their premises. The pouring fees received from Pepsi is correctly to be considered as an additional discount in such sale transaction. The learned Counsel also submitted that they have, exclusive arrangement for supply of beverages, with Pepsi and, as such, the pouring fees is to be considered as an amount received for not allowing other competing products to be displayed and sold in their premises. In other words, he contended that it should be considered as non-compete fees not liable to service tax. The learned Counsel also contested the demand for extended period referring to the terms of agreement which states that any service tax liability shall be in the account of Pepsi. As such, he pleaded that there is no malafide intend on the part of the appellant for not discharging service tax on pouring fees. There is a bonafide interpretation as understood by the appellant. Accordingly, the demand for extended period and penalty under Section 78 are not sustainable.

4. The learned AR supported the findings of the Original Authority. On merit, he submitted that the agreement is not only for sale and purchase of products of Pepsi. As can be seen from the terms of the agreement, the appellants are having obligation with reference to installation, display of vending machines and marketing of various products of Pepsi in their premises. It is not a simple sale agreement of products. Regarding the argument of the appellant on the nature of pouring fees, the learned AR submitted that the agreement itself did not elaborate the nature of such fee. However, from the context and the schedule of payment, it is clear that the said pouring fee is nothing but a consideration for promotional activity undertaken by the appellant. Regarding demand for extended period and imposition of penalty, learned AR submitted that the appellant were registered with the Department and were paying service tax under BAS. They did not include the full consideration received from Pepsi in their periodical returns filed with the Department. It is only after the investigation by the officers of DGCEI that the appellant got clarification from Pepsi and also defended their nonpayment attributing the same to bonafide belief. When the appellant received various considerations under different headings which are not directly attributable to sale of Pepsi products, then such receipts should have figured in their return under gross income. As such, the learned AR supported the findings of the Original Authority for demand invoking extended period and penalty.

5. We have heard both the sides and perused the appeal records. On the merits of the case, we note that the agreement itself simply states that Pepsi shall pay the appellant, pouring fees as per Schedule 5. The nature of such fee and the reason for such payment is not elaborated in the agreement. The appellant submits that it is nothing but an additional discount. We are not able to appreciate such argument in the absence of any specification to that effect in the agreement itself. In fact Clause 5 of the agreement clearly stipulates the price consideration and the discounts entitled, very clearly. There is no reason to consider pouring fees as additional discount. Regarding the argument that it should be considered as a non-compete fee pursuant to an exclusive arrangement between Pepsi and the appellant, we note that there is no stipulation regarding noncompete obligation on the part of the appellant in the agreement itself. There is no linkage of a particular act of the appellant to receive the pouring fees. In fact, in the letter dated 23/01/2012 Pepsico clarified to the appellant that the said fee is paid to dissuade PVR from entering into similar contract with other competitor of Pepsi. We note that if pouring fee is to be considered as non-compete fee, first of all there should have been indication in the agreement to that effect and second such non-compete arrangement should be enforceable by law. Payment of an amount to dissuade an appellant from displaying competitor's products by itself cannot be equated to a noncompete agreement. In fact this type of submission is made based on clarification of Pepsi. There is no clause in the agreement itself regarding the nature of such fee. We have perused the terms of agreement, various clauses regarding the role of the appellant in receipt, display and arrangement with reference to Pepsi products, manner of display and marketing and promotion services to be rendered by the appellant. Clause 12 is in continuation, after elaborating the various details of promotional support to be provided by the appellant for Pepsi. We find that pouring fees as received by the appellant cannot be considered as a discount for sale transaction or as a payment for non-compete reason as given by the appellant. The indication is that it is more in the nature of fee received for promotion of Pepsi products. As such, we find no merit in the appellant’s plea regarding non-taxability of the said consideration received by them.

6. Regarding the plea of the appellant on the question of time bar and imposition of penalty, we find that the appellants were registered with the Department under taxable categories of BAS and other tax entries and the appellants did not disclose the receipt of consideration as ‘pouring fees’ in any of their returns. The facts remains that even on enquiry the appellants did not take any effort to get the issue clarified except seeking advice from Pepsi. When the appellants were showing and discharging service tax on receipts for various promotional activities it is apparent that significant portion of receipt under the category of ‘pouring fees’ received for such activities should have been included in the tax returns during the material time. The tax, if any, paid could have been reimbursed from Pepsi, by itself does not establish the bonafide of the appellant. Having examined the reasons recorded by the Original Authority for invoking the demand for extended period and for imposing penalty, we find no reason to vary the finding. Accordingly, the appeal is dismissed.

FINAL ORDER NO. - A/85255-85256/18

Per: Raju:

These appeals have been filed by M/s Poonam Roofing Products Pvt. Ltd. against confirmation of demand of Service Tax along with interest and imposition of penalty under Section 78 of the Finance Act, 1994.

2. Learned Counsel for the appellant pointing out that 2 show-cause notices were issued to them for the period October, 2005 to March, 2010 issued on 29.3.2011 and for the period April, 2010 to March, 2011 issued on 19.10.2011. Learned Counsel pointed out that they are the owners of brand name "SWASTIK and had entered into an agreement with M/s New Sahyadri Industries Ltd. for permitting them to use the said trade name. As per the agreement, the appellants were charging 0.01% of the value of the sale of the goods from M/s New Sahyadri Industries Ltd. He pointed out that Revenue has treated this amount as a consideration for the taxable service provided under Intellectual Property Service and demanded Service Tax on the same. Learned Counsel argued that they have paid VAT on this receipt treating brand name as goods.
Learned Counsel further pointed out that under the VAT Laws, brand name is treated as goods and therefore, transfer of right to use of goods is taxable under VAT. He argued that since they have paid the VAT, there cannot be any leviability of Service Tax.
2.1 Learned Counsel relied on the decision of Hon’ble High Court of Mumbai in case of Tata Sons Ltd. & Another Vs. The State of Maharashtra & Another. He argued that in the said case in almost identical circumstances, it has been held that on the transactions of transfer of right to use trade mark or brand name, VAT is payable. Learned Counsel also relied on the decision of Hon’ble High Court of Mumbai in case of Mahyco Monsanto Biotech (India) Pvt. Ltd. Vs. Union of India - 2016 (44) STR 161 (Bom) wherein Hon’ble High Court has held as under:

"38. We must note that Mr. Venkatraman s submission that the BSNL test must always be present in each and every case for a transaction to be considered a transfer of the right to use goods is over broad. We do not think that in BSNL the Supreme Court intended to prescribe a test of global or universal application without regard to individual circumstances. The judgment of the Supreme Court (in Paragraph 90) notes the factual aspects. Therefore, the entire infrastructure, instruments, appliances and exchange remained in the physical control and possession of the petitioner at all times and there was neither any physical transfer of such goods nor any transfer of the right to use such equipment or apparatuses. One of the issues that arose for consideration was whether there was any transfer of the right to use goods by providing access or a telephone connection by the telephone service provider to a subscriber. This BSNL test, was, therefore, set out in these circumstances. The Court had no occasion to consider its applicability to intangible property like intellectual property. This is how BSNL has been interpreted by us in Tata Sons. We think that this interpretation is correct. In any case, it binds us. The Kerala High Court in Malabar Gold, in Paragraph 35, took a contrary view. It took the BSNL twin test to be applicable as a general proposition, i.e., one that admits of no variance. As discussed above, we do not think this can ever be the a correct reading of BSNL.

In para 38 captured above, Hon’ble High Court was responding to the argument presented in para 27 of the said decision, which read as follows:

27. Mr. Venkatraman concludes his summation of the law on the transfer of the right to use goods by relying on the Supreme Court decision in Bharat Sanchar Nigam Limited v. Union of India - 2006 (2) S.T.R. 161 (S.C.). In his separate but concurrent judgment, Lakshmanan J listed the five attributes that must be present for a transaction to qualify as a transfer of the right use goods. Most pertinent, Mr. Venkatraman says, are Attributes 4 and 5. He refers to these two collectively as the BSNL “twin test”. Paragraph 91 lists these attributes as follows:

To constitute a transaction for the transfer of the right “91. to use the goods the transaction must have the following attributes:

a. There must be goods available for delivery;

b. There must be a consensus ad idem as to the identity of the goods;

c. The transferee should have a legal right to use the goods - consequently all legal consequences of such use including any permissions or licences required therefore should be available to the transferee;

d. For the period during which the transferee has such legal right, it has to be the exclusion to the transferor - this is the necessary concomitant of the plain language of the statute - viz. a transfer of the right to use and not merely a licence to use the goods;

e. Having transferred the right to use the goods during the period for which it is to be transferred, the owner cannot again transfer the same rights to others.”

(Emphasis added)"

2.2 Learned Counsel also relied on the decision of Hon’ble High Court of Kerala in case of Malabar Gold Pvt. Ltd., wherein Hon’ble High Court of Kerala differed with the decision of Hon’ble High Court of Bombay in case of Tata Sons (supra) and held that franchise agreement considered in that case will not attract the provisions of Kerala Value Added Tax (KVAT) Act. Earlier a Single Judge Bench of Hon’ble High Court of Kerala in its order reported in had held that royalty received by the dealer in the said
2.3 Learned Counsel took us through the provisions of the agreement. The terms of the agreement were as follows:

"Company hereby confirms to use of trademark namely Swastik on the following terms and conditions:-

1. You have agreed to permit us for our use of trademark namely Swastik in manufacturing, selling, marketing and other allied business activities for a period of ten years commencing from 1st January 2006.

2. A company will pay a license fee for use of trademark @ 0.1% of its sales.

3. The company shall pay the monthly license fee regularly on or before 15th day of succeeding month subject to tax deduction at source.

4. During the term of license, New Sahyadri Industries Ltd. shall use the trademark for its own business activities and shall not assign the trademark to any other party.

5. These understandings are for a period ten years, which may be renewed for further period on such terms and conditions as mutually agreed by both of us. Anyone of us shall be entitled to terminate this understanding by giving the notice to other party for the period not less than three months.

6. The Company shall be entitled to use the said trademark for the purpose of lawful business and shall not use the trademark for any other purpose, than explicitly stated in this letter.

7. You shall not permit to any other party for use of trademark Swastik during the period of licensing arrangement with us without our prior consent in writing.

In the token of your acceptance of conditions of this letter, please sign and return duplicate copy of this letter for our record.

2.4 Learned Counsel further pointed out that in terms of Trade Mark Act if the trademark is not renewed then the same is available for anybody to use after expiry of 10 years. He pointed out that tenure of this agreement was also 10 years. Learned Counsel further pointed out that the impugned order does not give any reason for imposition of penalty and is silent and non-speaking in that aspect.

3. Learned AR relies on the impugned order. Learned AR pointed out that decision of Hon’ble High Court in the case of Tata Sons Ltd. (supra) pertains to the period 2001-02 and during the said period, there was no taxable service under the head of IPR and therefore, the provisions of Finance Act, 1994 were not before the Hon’ble High Court. Learned AR relied on the decision of Hon’ble High Court of Delhi in the case of McDonalds India Pvt. Ltd. - 2017 (5) GSTL 120 (Del). In the said case, relying on the decision of Hon’ble High Court of Kerala in the case of Malabar Gold Pvt. Ltd. (supra) held as follows:

"45. Likewise, the Supreme Court in State of Andhra Pradesh and Anr. v. Rashtriya Ispat Nigam Ltd. - [2002] 126 S.T.C 114 (S.C.) upheld the Andhra Pradesh High Court’s decision that the essence of transfer is passage of control over the economic benefits of property which results in terminating rights and other relations in one entity and creating them in another. A similar decision was made in Malabar Gold Private Ltd. v. CTO - (2013) 63 VST 496 = 2013 (32) S.T.R. 3 (Ker.), where a Division Bench of the Kerala High Court considered the nature of the franchise agreement as well as the scope of the expression "transfer of right to use the goods...". The High Court concluded that the tests laid down in the BSNL (supra) case were squarely applicable, that there were no goods which were deliverable at any stage and there was no transfer of right to use any trademark.

46. For a transfer of the right to use goods to be effective, such transfer of right should be one that the transferee can exercise in exclusion of others; which is not the case in the present appeals and petitions, as the franchise agreement only grants a non-exclusive right, retaining the franchisor's right to transfer the composite bunch of services to other parties, apart from it retaining ownership to the same. The ownership in the trademark, logo, service marks, and brand name is solely vested in appellant and the petitioners and has not been transferred; as is clearly manifest in the various clauses of the franchise agreements. The appellant and the petitioners grant a non-exclusive license to the franchisees, which can be revoked upon non-compliance of the terms and conditions as stipulated in their franchise arrangement. Clearly, this does not amount to a transfer of the right to use goods.

47. The peculiarity of intangibles or incorporeal property, of the kind this Court has to deal with, i.e. intellectual property, is that unlike real property, its boundaries are unset. These rights are only real and effective to the extent they enable the owner or transferee to keep out from use those who are not permitted to do so. In other words, the nature of intellectual property and the remedies provided for their enforcement, hinge upon the right to exclude others from using it. The distinctiveness of a mark, earned through dint of continuous use and brand building, results in the trademark which is classically known as a badge of origin that assures the user of the products the constancy of the quality associated with it. Only ensuring that others who do not own it are prevented from using or appropriating it ensures its enforcement. In the case of the franchise agreements involved in the present case, none of the franchisees or in the case of the trademark licensee (or in GSK's petition the trademark licensee), are empowered to safeguard violation of the mark, through enforcement mechanisms, such as filing suits for injunction or damages. This underlines that the most important attribute of ownership or transfer (even in the most evanescent sense) is absent. Furthermore, by reason of Section 48 of the Trade Marks Act, the utilization of the mark by the franchisee/licensee would accrue to the trademark owner. Therefore, the reputation or brand building which accrues on account of increased volume of business because of the franchise/licensing arrangement, continues to be with the owner. No brand building or brand benefit accrues or arises to the franchisee/licensee.

48. From the above analysis, what irrefutably follows is that the franchise agreements in the three cases (and trade mark licensing agreement in GSK's petition) permit a limited right to use the composite system of the respective businesses of the appellant and the petitioners to the franchisors/licensee, and the dominant intention, as well as the specific provisions arising from the franchise agreements are not of a "transfer of the right to use goods.

3.1 Learned AR pointed out that even in this case there is no exclusive right to use the said trade mark in favour of New Sahyadri Industries Pvt. Ltd. Learned AR also relied on the decision in the case of Mahyco Monsanto Biotech (India) Pvt. Ltd. Vs. Union of India 2016 (44) STR 161 (Bom). He pointed out that in the said case, there were two appeals considered. While in case of Mahyco Monsanto Biotech (India) Pvt. Ltd., the decision was against the Revenue but in case of M/s Subway, the decision was in favour of Revenue. He particularly relied on the following paragraphs of the said decision:

"57. Mr. Shroff's argument on behalf of Subway is that the franchise agreement is not one for sale or transfer of right to use but merely permits the franchisee to display certain marks and to use certain technologies and methods in preparing the salads and sandwiches for sale. Therefore, he submits, it is liable to be taxed as a service, which Subway has been paying in any case. He adopts virtually all of Mr. Venkatraman's arguments. Mr. Shroff also refers to the cases of Tata Sons. He relies on these cases to urge that in Subway's case, all that is granted is a permissive use. The franchisee under the agreement obtains a mere permission to display the name Subway in a particular fashion, along with other services.

58. Mr. Shroff formulates his case on several distinct grounds. First, the franchisee is entitled to display the name Subway only for a limited period of time as stipulated in the agreement. After the expiry of this period of time, as provided in Clauses 8 and 8(g) of the Franchise Agreement, Mr. Shroff submits, and we agree with him, all the rights of the franchisee are terminated. A breach of the agreement also results in potential termination at the option of Subway. Second, Mr. Shroff argues that the franchisee cannot subfranchise the mere permission it obtains under the agreement on account of the prohibition in Clause 9(a) of the agreement. Third, there is no territorial restriction or competition restriction of any kind placed on Subway. It is entitled to enter into as many or as few franchisee agreements as it wants, even simultaneously, and it can on its own directly compete with its franchisees too.

69. We believe that Mr. Shroff is correct when he says that the agreement between Subway and its franchisees is not a sale, but is in fact a bare permission to use. It is, therefore, subject only to service tax. In our opinion, the fact that the agreement between Subway and its franchisee is limited to the precise period of time stipulated in the agreement is vital to Subway's case. At the end of the period of the agreement, or before in case there was any breach of its terms, the right of the franchisee to display the mark Subway and its trade dress, and all other permissions would also end. This is what sets this agreement apart from the case of Monsanto and its sub-licensee. There, the seed companies could do as they pleased with the seeds; they could alienate or even destroy them. In Subway's case, there are set terms provided by the agreement which have to be followed. A breach of these would result in termination of the agreement. We believe that there is no passage of any kind of control or exclusivity to the franchisees. In fact, this agreement is a classic example of permissive use. It can be nothing else. For all the reasons in law and fact that the sub-licensing of technology in Monsanto is held to be a transfer of right to use, this franchising agreement must be held to be permissive use.

70. We do not mean to suggest that every franchise agreement will necessarily fall outside the purview of the amended MVAT Act. There is conceivably a class of franchise agreements that would have all the incidents of a sale or a deemed sale (i.e., a transfer of the right to use). Black's Law Dictionary defines a franchise, in the context of a commercial transaction as (Black's Law Dictionary, 8th Ed.):

The sole right granted by the owner of a trade mark or a trade name to engage in business or to sell a good or service in a certain area.

74. In our opinion, the mere inclusion of franchises under the MVAT Act would not automatically make all franchise agreements liable to sales tax. What must be looked at is the real nature of the transaction and the actual intention of the parties. The agreement must be considered holistically, and effect must be given to the contracting parties intentions. The label or description of the document is irrelevant. An agreement styled as a franchise might, on a proper examination, turn out to be nothing more than a mere licence (as in Subway's case). On the other hand, an agreement that calls itself a licence might actually be a franchise. If, in a given case, a franchise agreement is effectively nothing more than a mere permissive use, it cannot be made liable to VAT. It would be a service, and hence liable to service tax. When interpreting a taxing statute, or for that matter any statute, full effect must be given to the words used by the Legislature. This, however, does not mean that this principle must be stretched to a point which leads to an absurd result, or one that was not contemplated by the Legislature. The Legislature is presumed to know the law and to have acted in accordance with it. We, therefore, do not think that the Legislature intended for this Notification to have such a sweeping effect as to bring all franchise agreements within the ambit of the MVAT Act. Presumably, what the Legislature intended was to be included only those franchise agreements that involved a transfer of the right to use or some other aspect of a deemed sale as defined under Article 366(29A) of the Constitution. As discussed above, we find that Subway's franchise agreement grants to the franchisee nothing more than mere permissive use of defined intangible rights. It is, therefore, a service, and is not amenable to VAT. We also hasten to clarify that we are not determining whether any particular kind of arrangement is or is not a franchise. Any examples, we have given are merely illustrative, and not binding or final findings.

4. We have gone through the rival submissions. We find that Hon'ble High Court of Mumbai in case of Mahyco Monsanto (supra) has clearly held as under: -

74. In our opinion, the mere inclusion of franchises under the MVAT Act would not automatically make all franchise agreements liable to sales tax. What must be looked at Any examples, we have given are merely illustrative, and not binding or final findings.

It is apparent from the above decision that the terms of agreement need to be examined in each case before the decision regarding leviability of VAT or Service Tax can be taken. Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of BSNL - 2006 (2) STR 161 (SC) had prescribed the following test: -

"91. To constitute a transaction for the transfer of the right to use the goods the transaction must have the following attributes:

a. There must be goods available for delivery;

b. There must be a consensus ad idem as to the identity of the goods;

c. The transferee should have a legal right to use the goods consequentially all legal consequences of such use including any permissions or licenses required therefor should be available to the transferee;

d. For the period during which the transferee has such legal right, it has to be the exclusion to the transferor this is the necessary concomitant of the plain language of the statute - viz. a transfer of the right to use and not merely a licence to use the goods;

e. Having transferred the right to use the goods during the period for which it is to be transferred, the owner cannot again transfer the same rights to others.

4.1 Learned Counsel for the appellant have argued that in case of Tata Sons (Supra), Hon'ble High Court had not applied the test laid down by Hon'ble Apex Court by observing as follows: -

"51. It is in relation to such a controversy that the observations, findings and conclusions must be confined. We do not see as to how they can be extended and in the facts and circumstances of the present case to the enactment that we are dealing with. Going by the plain and unambiguous language of the Act of 1985 we cannot read into it the element of exclusivity and a transfer contemplated therein to be unconditional. Therefore the tests in para (d) and (e) cannot be read in the Act of 1985.

It is seen that in the said case, Hon'ble High Court order was concerned with leviability of Sales Tax under Maharashtra Sales Tax (on Transfer of Right to use any goods for any purpose) Act, 1985 With respect to the test prescribed, the Hon'ble Apex Court has observed as follows: -

38. We must note that Mr. Venkatraman's submission that the BSNL test must always be present in each and every case for a transaction to be considered a transfer of the right to use goods is overbroad. We do not think that in BSNL the Supreme Court intended to prescribe a test of global or universal application without regard to individual circumstances. The judgment of the Supreme Court (in Paragraph 90) notes the factual aspects. Therefore, the entire infrastructure, instruments, appliances and exchange remained in the physical control and possession of the petitioner at all times and there was neither any physical transfer of such goods nor any transfer of the right to use such equipment or apparatuses. One of the issues that arose for consideration was whether there was any transfer of the right to use goods by providing access or a telephone connection by the telephone service provider to a subscriber. This BSNL test, was, therefore, set out in these circumstances. The Court had no occasion to consider its applicability to intangible property like intellectual property. This is how BSNL has been interpreted by us in Tata Sons. We think that this interpretation is correct. In any case, it binds us. The Kerala High Court in Malabar Gold, in Paragraph 35, took a contrary view. It took the BSNL twin test to be applicable as a general proposition, i.e., one that admits of no variance. As discussed above, we do not think this can ever be the a correct reading of BSNL.

4.2 From the above discussions, it is apparent that there are no universal tests for testing of levy of Sales Tax or Service Tax and each contract is to be examined with respect to its own terms. In this regard, the facts in the case of Mahyco Monsanto (supra) were as follows:

11. The Petitioner in Writ Petition No. 9175 of 2015, Monsanto India, is a joint venture company of Monsanto Investment India Private Limited (“MIPL”) and the Maharashtra Hybrid Seeds Co. Monsanto India develops and commercializes insect-resistant hybrid cottonseeds using a proprietary 'Bollgard technology', one that is licensed to Monsanto India by Monsanto USA through its wholly-owned subsidiary, Monsanto Holdings Private Limited (“MHPL”). This technology is further sub-licensed by Monsanto India to various seed companies on a non-exclusive and non-transferable basis to use, test, produce and sell genetically modified hybrid cotton planting seeds. In return for this technology, Monsanto India receives trait fees based on the number of packets of seeds sold by the sub-licensees. These sub-licensing agreements, with almost 40 seed companies, are the transactions in question. Respondent Nos.1 and 2 in the Monsanto Writ Petition are the Union of India and the State of Maharashtra respectively. Respondent No. 3 is the Principal Commissioner of Service Tax. Respondent No. 4 is the Commissioner of Sales Tax.

12. The Monsanto Petition, filed under Article 226 of the Constitution of India, brings a challenge to Entry 39 of Schedule C to the Maharashtra Value Added Tax Act, 2002 ("the MVAT Act"); the definitions under Section 65(105)(zzr), 65(55a) and 65(55b) of the Finance Act, 1994; and sub-clause (c) of Section 66E of the Finance Act, 1994. The challenge is on two grounds. First, that these are ultra vires Articles 14, 19(1)(g) and 265 of the Constitution of India. Second, that the exercise of power of the Respondent No.1 under Entry 54 of List II of the Constitution is ultra vires; it encroaches on the power vested exclusively in the Union under Entry 97 of List I.

13. The principal question of this dispute is whether these agreements whereby the Monsanto technology is granted by the Petitioner to the seed companies amounts to mere permissive use and, therefore, a service under Section 65B(44) of the Finance Act, 1994 ("Finance Act") read with Entry 97 of List I of the Constitution, or whether it is a deemed sale in the nature of transfer of right to use goods under clause (b)(iv) of the Explanation to Section 2(24) of the MVAT Act read with Article 366(29A)(d) and Entry 54 of List II of the Constitution.

14 A brief background of the Monsanto technology and business structure is necessary. Bacillus Thuringensis ("BT") is a naturally occurring bacterium that produces proteins that kill specific insects. Using biotechnology, Monsanto USA introduces a specific BT gene into the cotton genome. This produces a toxin protein in the cotton seed sufficient to kill specific insects, viz., boll weevils or bollworms. These Bollgard cotton seeds, called the donor seeds", containing the BT gene were initially imported by MHPL in India from Monsanto USA. MHPL also uses these seeds to produce more donor seeds in its facilities, and licences the technology to Monsanto India in return for a 16.5% royalty on the latter's turnover. The process thereafter is as follows. Monsanto India enters into sub-licensing agreements with other seed companies through which it claims to grant permissive use of the technology via donor seeds. A sample of such sub-licensing agreement is annexed (Monsanto Petition, Exhibit D, pp. 44-69.). Monsanto India delivers fifty sample BT donor seeds to the seed companies for BT cotton hybrid production, along with the Standard Operating Procedure (SOP) manual prepared by Monsanto USA. The seed companies produce or generate additional donor seeds from these given seeds. Monsanto India provides initial training to the seed companies to assist them in using the donor seeds and developing foundation seeds, which will enable them to eventually produce BT cotton hybrids. Monsanto India thereafter provides training to the seed companies to carry out the Zygosity Test, which tests the execution of the breeding plan. The sub-licensors, at the end of this process, are required to undertake regulatory trials to obtain the relevant approvals from the various institutes such as the Institutional Biosafety Committee of the Department of Biotechnology, Ministry of Science and Technology, Ministry of Environment, Genetic Engineering Advisory Committee (GEAC) and others responsible. These approvals need certificates of validation and test reports, which are provided by Monsanto India. Once such approval is obtained from the GEAC, each sub-licensee can produce BT cotton hybrid seeds. These BT cotton hybrid seeds are then sold to farmers.

15. At present, the technologies licensed are Bollgard I (“BG I”) and Bollgard II (“BG II”). The agreement provides for a few restrictions on the seed companies: the technology is non-transferable, non-exclusive, and cannot be assigned except in the manner provided in the agreement. The seed companies cannot grant further sub-licenses, and the sub-licensee is not permitted to reverse engineer, modify or use the BT gene without the prior consent of Monsanto India. Under the agreement, Monsanto India has also to provide training to produce hybrids at various stages, apart from assisting the seed companies in obtaining the required approvals and conducting Zygosity Tests. This training includes classroom training and sharing of protocols. Under the sub-licensing agreement, Monsanto India receives consideration from the seed companies in the form of a one-time fixed fee and a recurring variable based on the sale of the genetically modified seeds; in essence, a trait fee.

4.3 The terms of agreement were examined in para 40 and 42 of the said decision, where Hon’ble High Court has observed as follows:

"40. We are, therefore, in complete agreement with Mr. Sonpal when he says that this is a case of a transfer of the right to use goods. He points out certain clauses in the Monsanto India s sub-licence agreement which, in our opinion, further substantiate this. Clause 1.1 defines Cotton Proprietary Germplasm to mean proprietary hybrid cotton parent lines developed or owned by the sub-licensee during the term of the agreement. The word owned implies that a sale has taken place. The term of the agreement, as provided under Clause 9.1, is for an initial period of ten years and is further renewable in increments of five years by mutual consent of both parties, unless it is otherwise terminated earlier. What happens after the expiry or termination of the agreement is most interesting. Under Clause 9.4, the sub-licensee is not bound to return to Monsanto India any portion of the initial fifty seeds given under the agreement, nor any additional donor seeds the sub-licensee may have produced. The control (and ownership) of the Bollgard Technology contained in those initial fifty donor seeds, as also in the additional donor seeds produced by the sub-licensee is with the sub-licensee. Monsanto India has nothing whatsoever to do with this portion of the technology. The only restriction appears to be on the sale of the GMO cotton planting seeds. The sub-licensee is given a two-years window to sell or otherwise dispose of any remaining GMO planting seeds. After this period, Monsanto India has the option of requiring the sub-licensee to sell these planting seeds to Monsanto India itself or to dispose of them for non-planting purposes. This clause makes it evident that the ownership of even the planting seeds is with the sub-licensee. Clause 2.5(4) then provides that Monsanto India can further sub-license the Bollgard Technology to a maximum of three other companies in the same territory as that of the original sub-licensee. For additional transfers, Monsanto India would have to first consult the sub-licensee. Mr. Sonpal rightly states that this suggests that a transfer of the right has, in fact, taken place; and, even on Mr. Venkatraman s own illustrations, this case would not fall within the third illustration, but within the second and perhaps even the first. The degree of territorial exclusion is surely irrelevant; the question is whether or not there is any exclusivity. If it were mere permissive use, there would be no question of the Monsanto India having to first consult the sub-licensee before effecting further transfers. Further, under Clause 7.1 the sub-licensee can assign the agreement and its rights and obligations under it to its wholly-owned subsidiaries without Monsanto India’s permission. Mr. Sonpal rightly says that this can never happen in a case of a permissive use. In law, a wholly-owned subsidiary is a distinct legal entity. In a case of service or permissive use, a person can never assign the goods or rights to a third person.

41. At this stage, we find that a parallel to practical, everyday examples would be useful. Take, for instance, the example of when one buys a book from Amazon for their Kindle device. In this case, Amazon can transfer the intellectual property of the book to multiple other users simultaneously, but each single transaction would still be a sale. This would also be true of the example of a music CD. The CD is the medium by which the intellectual property, viz. the songs, passes to the buyer. The manufacturer can sell it to an end-user or to an intermediate retailer. The same song can be put on countless CDs. This too is a sale. When one buys a car, one buys the technology that is contained in the body of the car; the body is just the medium. On iTunes, when one buys a song, the song is transferred into a format which is accessible to the buyer, a proprietory format that needs a special device or software. Yet it is a sale. Limitless iTunes users can buy the song simultaneously. This is a sale to each of them. In the case of CD containing software, say for example Microsoft Word, the medium would again be the CD holding the intellectual property, which would be the software technology. This would also be a sale, despite the fact that this same software technology could be put on unlimited number of CDs and sold to multiple users simultaneously. Effective control of that particular software on that one CD is passed to the buyer. The buyer could use it, alienate it, destroy it, and do anything at all that he likes with it. If he made illicit copies of it, this would constitute infringement; and that in itself would not make the transfer of the software on a CD a service. Even if the buyer transferred this non-transferable software, it would amount to a breach of contract provided in the CD package, just as it would under Monsanto India’s sublicensing agreement. However, this does not do anything to disqualify the transaction itself from being a sale. These are all sales.

42. In our opinion, the most fundamental aspect of permissive use of goods is that at the end of the period for which the use is granted, the goods must be returned to the transfereor. Let us consider this in the context of a car hire service, a book library service, Amazon Kindle Unlimited and iTunes Radio. When a car is taken on hire, a fee is paid and the car can be used for a certain period of time. During this time, the person renting the car can only use it. He cannot part with it and certainly cannot destroy it. Once the period of hire comes to an end, the car must be returned to the transfereor. Therefore, the effective control over the car remains with the transfereor. Likewise, in the case of a book library, the books must be returned to the library. With the Kindle Unlimited, one must pay a subscription fee to gain access to an unlimited number of books in the proprietory AZW format. When the subscription expires, all the books are repossessed. iTunes Radio too is a similar concept. A subscription fee is paid, which allows access to music. Once this expires, access to the music is denied. These, in our opinion, are cases of permissive use. The Monsanto India sub-licensing transaction could only be a service in one circumstance, i.e., if the seed companies gave Monsanto India a bag of seeds to mutate and improve with the Bollgard Technology which would, thereafter, be returned to the seed companies. That might perhaps be a service. In this context, the Hon’ble High Court held that the transactions undertaken by Mahyco Monsanto were in the nature of sale.

4.4 In case of Subway, the facts before Hon’ble High Court were as follows: -

"55. A brief description of Subway’s business is this. Subway was granted a non-exclusive sub-license by Subway International B.V. (SIBV), a Dutch Limited Liability Corporation to establish, operate and franchise others to operate SUBWAY-branded restaurants in India. This non-exclusive license was granted to SIBV itself by Subway Systems International Ansalt, which in turn was granted such a license by Doctor’s Associates Inc., an entity that owns the proprietory system for setting up and operating these restaurants. These restaurants serve sandwiches and salads under the service mark SUBWAY. The agreement includes not only the trade mark SUBWAY, but also associated confidential information and goodwill, such as policies, forms, recipes, trade secrets and the like. Typically, Subway enters into franchise agreements with third parties, under which it provides specified services to the franchisee. In return, the franchisee undertakes to carry on the business of operating sandwich shops in Subway’s name. The agreement only provides for a very limited representational or display right, and the franchisee cannot transfer or assign these exclusive rights to any third person. Subway also reserves the right to compete with these franchisees in the agreement. Under this agreement, Subway receives two kinds of consideration, one being a one-time franchisee fee which is paid when the agreement is signed; and the second is a royalty fee paid weekly by the franchisee on the basis of its weekly turnover. A sample franchise agreement is annexed (Subway Petition, Exhibit A, pp. 30-49). Under these agreements, the franchisees have not more than a right to display Subway’s intellectual property in the form of marks and logos, and a mere right to use such confidential information as Subway discloses and as prescribed by the franchise agreement.

Learned Counsel for M/s Subway elaborated the terms of contract in his own words as follows:

“58. Mr. Shroff formulates his case on several distinct grounds. First, the franchisee is entitled to display the name Subway only for a limited period of time as stipulated in the agreement. After the expiry of this period of time, as provided in Clauses 8 and 8(g) of the Franchise Agreement, Mr. Shroff submits, and we agree with him, all the rights of the franchisee are terminated. A breach of the agreement also results in potential termination at the option of Subway. Second, Mr. Shroff argues that the franchisee cannot subfranchise the mere permission it obtains under the agreement on account of the prohibition in Clause 9(a) of the agreement. Third, there is no territorial restriction or competition restriction of any kind placed on Subway. It is entitled to enter into as many or as few franchisee agreements as it wants, even simultaneously, and it can on its own directly compete with its franchisees too.

After analyzing the aforesaid facts, Hon’ble High Court has observed as follows:

69. We believe that Mr. Shroff is correct when he says that the agreement between Subway and its franchisees is not a sale, but is in fact a bare permission to use. It is, therefore, subject only to service tax. In our opinion, the fact that the agreement between Subway and its franchisee is limited to the precise period of time stipulated in the agreement is vital to Subway’s case. At the end of the period of the agreement, or before in case there was any breach of its terms, the right of the franchisee to display the mark Subway and its trade dress, and all other permissions would also end. This is what sets this agreement apart from the case of Monsanto and its sub-licensee. There, the seed companies could do as they pleased with the seeds; they could alienate or even destroy them. In Subway’s case, there are set terms provided by the agreement which have to be followed. A breach of these would result in termination of the agreement. We believe that there is no passage of any kind of control or exclusivity to the franchisees. In fact, this agreement is a classic example of permissive use. It can be nothing else. For all the reasons in law and fact that the sub-licensing of technology in Monsanto is held to be a transfer of right to use, this franchising agreement must be held to be permissive use.

72. We find, on facts, that the Subway franchise does not meet these tests. There is no such exclusivity. The agreement itself says that Subway may itself open and operate its own outlets in direct competition with the franchisee [Subway Petition, Clause 11(l) of the Agreement, p. 46]. The agreements themselves expressly contemplate that Subway may create further franchisees in the very area in which these franchisees operate [Subway Petition, Clause 11(l) of the Agreement, p. 46]. The franchisee cannot unilaterally subfranchise [Subway Petition, Clause 9 of the Agreement, p. 42.]; if it could do without Subway’s prior permission or leave, then the consideration might be wholly different and it may then be possible to say that there is a transfer of the right to use. We find that the right of transferability is extremely restricted and is impossible without Subway control throughout. Similarly, if there is no requirement of having to cease display and use [Subway Petition, Clause 8(e) of the Agreement, p. 41], or return the intangible property at the end of the franchise agreement’s term [Subway Petition, Clauses 8(e) and (j) of the Agreement, p. 41.], then the transaction might arguably be a sale. Exercises in cobranding or sub-branding, where one party franchises its mark on a territorially-restricted basis and allows the franchisee to combine it with its own or other marks may also well have an element of sale. Similarly, where a dealership for, say, automobiles, has a territorial exclusivity, then it may amount to a franchise. The Subway franchise model has none of these elements. The so-called system is controlled by Subway and it is exclusive to Subway. At the end of the franchise term, it cannot be used. Some (though not all) of the ingredients - breads, salad dressings and other key items - are to be sourced from Subway or Subway-authorised vendors and nowhere else. This gives Subway deep and pervasive control and dominion over the franchisee’s daily operations, without, at the same time, ceding to the franchisee the slightest hint or latitude in what it may do with the permitted marks and technology. This is, therefore, diametrically opposed to the Monsanto model, for Monsanto India has no control whatever in what its licensee does with the BT-infused donor seeds; that licensee may choose not to use them at all. There is also no question of any return or cessation to Monsanto India. Thus, viewed from any perspective, and on the facts of the case, we are unable to hold that the Subway franchise agreements have any of the necessary elements of a sale or a deemed sale.

74. In our opinion, the mere inclusion of franchises under the MVAT Act would not automatically make all franchise agreements liable to sales tax. What must be looked at is the real nature of the transaction and the actual intention of the parties. The agreement must be considered holistically, and effect must be given to the contracting parties intentions. The label or description of the document is irrelevant. An agreement styled as a franchise might, on a proper examination, turn out to be nothing more than a mere licence (as in Subway’s case). On the other hand, an agreement that calls itself a licence might actually be a franchise. If, in a given case, a franchise agreement is effectively nothing more than a mere permissive use, it cannot be made liable to VAT. It would be a service, and hence liable to service tax. When interpreting a taxing statute, or for that matter any statute, full effect must be given to the words used by the Legislature. This, however, does not mean that this principle must be stretched to a point which leads to an absurd result, or one that was not contemplated by the Legislature. The Legislature is presumed to know the law and to have acted in accordance with it. We, therefore, do not think that the Legislature intended for this Notification to have such a sweeping effect as to bring all franchise agreements within the ambit of the MVAT Act. Presumably, what the Legislature intended was to be included only those franchise agreements that involved a transfer of the right to use or some other aspect of a deemed sale as defined under Article 366(29A) of the Constitution. As discussed above, we find that Subway’s franchise agreement grants to the franchisee nothing more than mere permissive use of defined intangible rights. It is, therefore, a service, and is not amenable to VAT. We also hasten to clarify that we are not determining whether any particular kind of arrangement is or is not a franchise. Any examples, we have given are merely illustrative, and not binding or final findings.

4.5 In view of the above decision, we examined the terms of the contract in the appellant’s case. The agreement reads as follows: -

“Company hereby confirms to use of trademark namely Swastik on the following terms and conditions:-

1. You have agreed to permit us for our use of trademark namely Swastik in manufacturing, selling, marketing and other allied business activities for a period of ten years commencing from 1st January 2006.

2. A company will pay a license fee for use of trademark @ 0.1% of its sales.

3. The company shall pay the monthly license fee regularly on or before 15th day of succeeding month subject to tax deduction at source.

4. During the term of license, New Sahyadri Industries Ltd. shall use the trademark for its own business activities and shall not assign the trademark to any other party.

5. These understandings are for a period ten years, which may be renewed for further period on such terms and conditions as mutually agreed by both of us. Anyone of us shall be entitled to terminate this understanding by giving the notice to other party for the period not less than three months.
6. The Company shall be entitled to use the said trademark for the purpose of lawful business and shall not use the trademark for any other purpose, than explicitly stated in this letter.

7. You shall not permit to any other party for use of trademark Swastik during the period of licensing arrangement with us without our prior consent in writing.

In the token of your acceptance of conditions of this letter, please sign and return duplicate copy of this letter for our record.

It is apparent from the agreement that, (i) No exclusive right to use the trade mark “Swastik” has been given to M/s New Sahyadri Industries Ltd. The appellants are free to give this trade mark to other even in the same territory. (ii) M/s New Sahyadri Industries Ltd. are not free to permit use of the trade mark to anybody else i.e. they cannot sub-license. (iii) If M/s New Sahyadri Industries Ltd. wish to permit to any other support for use then they have to seek permission of the appellant. The trade mark cannot be assigned to anybody by M/s New Sahyadri Industries Ltd. (iv) While the agreement is for a period of 10 years, both parties have option to terminate the agreement by giving the notice of three months.

4.6 In the above circumstances, it is apparent that the agreement is very similar to the agreement examined by Hon’ble High Court in respect of M/s Subway in the decision reported in case of Mahyco Monsanto (supra). The agreement in the instant case is an agreement of permissive use of the trade mark “Swastik and no transfer of right to use of the said trade mark.

4.7 In these circumstances, we do not find any merit in argument of the appellant that the said transaction is not liable to Service Tax under Finance Act, 1994.

4.8 Learned Counsel has further argued that they have paid VAT and therefore, no Service Tax can be demanded. It is not in the jurisdiction of this Tribunal to adjudicate on the leviability of VAT or otherwise. This Tribunal is competent to adjudge regarding leviability of Service Tax under the Finance Act, 1994 only. In these circumstances, in so far as the payment of VAT is concerned, the appellant may approach the appropriate authority.

4.9 Learned Counsel has further argued that the impugned order does not give any findings with respect to imposition of penalties. We find that the Commissioner (Appeals) in his order as observed as under: -

"18. The appellant have contended that they had not suppressed the facts from the department, when they had produced all the documents before the investigating officers and the demand in the initial case (Appeal No. 191/2013) is hit by time limitation. I find that the appellant had obtained registration under the category of Intellectual Property Service only on 25.6.2007 and were filing Nil returns against this service. During auditing of the records of the appellant, the Department came to know that the appellant was not discharging their Service Tax liability on this service. It is a fact that in their Service Tax returns for the relevant period, the Appellant had willfully mis-stated that they have received zero amount towards provision of this service. The appellants contention that the impugned services were non-taxable is not legally correct, as already concluded above. Thus, willful mis-statement on the part of the appellant stands established and thus extended period has been correctly invoked in the initial case (appeal No. 191/2013).

4.10 In so far as the invocation of extended period is concerned, we find that the elements for imposing the penalty are identical to those necessary to invoke the extended period of limitation. In these circumstances, no separate specific findings are needed for imposition of penalty under Section 78 of the Finance Act, 1994.

5. The appeals are consequently dismissed.

M/s INDIAN INSTITUTE OF PLANNING AND MANAGEMENT

Appellant Rep by: Shri Amresh Jain, DR

CORAM: S K Mohanty, Member (J)

FINAL ORDER NO. 51033/2018

Per: V Padmanabhan:

1. The present appeal is filed by the Revenue against the Order-in-Original No. 17-49/2012 dated 27/01/2012 passed by the Commissioner of Service Tax, Delhi. Vide the impugned order the Ld. Adjudicating Authority dropped most of the Service Tax demand raised by Revenue on the respondent, Indian Institute of Planning and Management (IIPM). He however confirmed the demand of Service Tax along with interest and penalties to the extent of Rs. 8,08,000/- on the respondent. Aggrieved by the same, Revenue is in appeal before us.

2. The facts relevant to the case are briefly summarized below:

IIPM is engaged in conducting management courses leading to the award of Certificate of Associate Fellow in Indian Institute of Planning and Management (AFIIPM), Fellow Indian Institute of Planning and Management (FIIPM) of IIPM and also MBA, BBA Degrees of International Management Institute (IMI), Europe. Head Office and Institutes are situated in New Delhi with various branch offices and institutions in other places. Intelligence was received by DGCEI that IIPM was not paying Service Tax on the fees collected for the various academic courses like MBA, BBA, FIIPM, AFIIPM and also various training courses being organized by them. Accordingly, investigation was undertaken by DGCEI, Chennai Unit. After collecting relevant documents and recording the statements of various persons connected with IIPM Show Cause Notice dated 10/02/2006 was issued and after the due process of adjudication the impugned order came to be passed. It is pertinent to record that the respondent was not registered centrally under the provisions of Finance Act, 1994; hence show cause notices demanding Service Tax were answerable to various Jurisdictional Service Tax Authorities. The Commissioner, Service Tax, Delhi adjudicated the matter as a Common Adjudicating Authority nominated by CBEC vide Order No. 2/2007 dated 06/09/2006. Revenue has filed the present appeal contending that the Ld. Adjudicating Authority has erred in dropping the bulk of the demand of Service Tax made in the show cause notice.

3. The allegations raised in the Show Cause Notice are summarized below:

i. The investigation undertaken by the DGCEI has concluded that IIPM were charging huge amounts of about Rs. 5 Lakhs per student in the case of MBA-2 Years Courses and around Rs. 8 Lakhs to 9 Lakhs per student in respect of BBA-3 Years courses. These facts have been deposed by Shri Shouvick Dutta, Dean, IIPM.

ii. The academic courses conducted by IIPM are not approved by All India Council of Technical Education (AICTE) which is under Ministry of Human Resources Development. The Institute is also not affiliated to any University or recognized by UGC or any State or Central Act and they are not following any of the regulations of AICTE, UGC etc. These facts have been declared by IIPM in their prospectus as well as advertisement routinely released in newspaper.

iii. In view of the above, since the training courses conducted by IIPM do not result in award of any certificate/ Diploma/ Degree or any other educational qualification recognized by the law being in force, the activity will fall under the category of Section 65 (105) (zzc) of the Act and is a taxable service liable to payment of Service Tax.

4. The findings of the Adjudicating Authority leading to the dropping of demand are summarized below:-

i. The Adjudicating Authority referred to the legal provisions i.e. Section 65 (105) (zzc) of the Act and found that some of the courses conducted by the IIPM in the form of purely training programs intended for providing skill or knowledge in the respective fields are covered within the above statutory definitions and are liable to payment of Service Tax.

Accordingly, he has confirmed the demand of Service Tax to the extent of Rs. 8,08,000/-.

ii. He has considered the training programs leading to the award of Certificate such as AFIIPM, FIIPM of IIPM as well as MBA and BBA degrees of IMI, Europe as academic programs. After referring to definitions of the Commercial Training or Coaching under Section 65 (26) of the Act, he has concluded that such programs are by way of academic education and are distinct from the ambit of Commercial Training or Coaching. Accordingly, he has dropped the demand of Service Tax on the fees collected by IIPM towards such courses.

5. With this background we heard Shri Amresh Jain, Ld. DR for the revenue as well Shri Amit Singh, Ld. Advocate appearing for the respondent.

6. The Ld. DR submitted the arguments of Revenue which are summarized below:-

i. The Adjudicating Authority has erred in making a distinction between academic courses and Commercial Training or coaching. The statute provides for a specific definition for both Commercial Training or Coaching [Section (65) (26)] as well as Commercial Training or Coaching Centre [Section (65) (27)]. Only those centers which are covered under the exclusions provided in Section 65 (27) will fall outside the Service Tax ambit. Evidently, the activity of IIPM is in a field other than sports, or pre-school coaching. The Certificates/ diploma/ degree issued by IIPM are not recognized by law since they do not have the approval of AICTE or UGC. IIPM is also not affiliated to any University. Consequently, the exclusion provided in the statutory definition is not applicable to IIPM.

ii. The adjudicating authority has classified the course run by IIPM under the category of academic education and has excluded the same from the ambit of Service Tax. This view is totally erroneous in as much as the statutory definition does not provide for such exclusion.

iii. Referring to the meaning of the term 'Education' as listed in WIKIPEDIA, he argued that the term 'Education' has a very wide meaning and includes all modes of learning. He submitted that any kind of learning through any course conducted by any institute which is not covered by exclusions in Section 65 (27) will be liable to Service Tax. Since the degrees awarded by IIPM for its academic courses are not recognized by law, Service Tax is liable to be paid on such fees recovered.

iv. He also relied on the Tribunal decision in the case of M/s Unitech Southcity Educational Charitable Trust and others V/s CST (Adj.), New Delhi vide Final Order No. 55907-55911/2017 dated 17/08/2017 wherein the Tribunal has upheld the demand for Service Tax in respect of courses run by the appellant in that case which resulted in award of degree by the University in U.K.

7. He also filed written submissions dated 08/03/2018 in which he has mainly contended as follows:-

7.1 The Adjudicating Authority has erred in making a distinction between 'Academic
The adjudicating authority erred in citing the situation of a secondary school or a degree college to make such distinction and observing that such an institution is engaged in providing 'academic education', thus, not liable to service tax, even when they do not confer any degree, diploma or certificate, therefore, could have been chargeable to service as they do not fall under the exclusion clause. However, the adjudicating authority while making such observation erred in not considering that such school or college is attached/affiliated to any of various Central or State Education Boards or Universities or Deemed Universities, recognized by the law, and their students are awarded such degrees, diplomas or certificates, recognized by law, issued by such Board or University. Such school or college follows the curriculum, instructions, guidelines, regulations etc. of the Board or the University to which it is affiliated or attached. Therefore, it is quite clear that such institutions were not liable to service tax only by virtue of exclusion clause prevailing at the relevant time in section 65(105) (zzc) of the Act, ibid. In Board's letter F. No. 334/1/2010-TRU dated 26.02.2010 in para 6.1 it has been clearly stated that the schools, institutes, colleges, universities providing courses that lead to award of recognized diplomas, degrees and sports education were kept out of tax net. As such, it cannot be argued that 'academic education' is distinct from 'training' or 'coaching' and that, since, these institutions were imparting 'academic education', they were not liable to service tax.

7.2 Erroneous import of words "Education" and "Academic" by Adjudicating Authority-

The legislative intent of the taxing entry has been clearly brought out in the legal provisions contained in Section 65 (105) (zzc) read with Section 65 (26) and Section 65 (27) of Finance Act, 1994, where under, definition of 'Commercial training and Coaching' is clearly stipulated. In such a scenario, as per the rules of interpretation, there was no need for Adjudicating Authority to import words like "Education" & "Academic".

Even otherwise as per Wikipedia, Education has been defined as follows:-

"Education is the process of facilitating learning, or the acquisition of knowledge, skills, values, beliefs, and habits. Educational methods include storytelling, discussion, teaching training and directed research. Education frequently takes place under the guidance of educators, but learners may also educate themselves".

The above clearly shows that acquisition of knowledge or skills through training or coaching clearly falls within the follicles of the taxing entry. The only exceptions provided are sports and the training or coaching which results in grant of certificate or diploma or degree recognized by law.

7.3 The activity of the respondent does not fall under any exception or exemption:-

It may be seen that the only exception/exemption which the Finance Act provides are as follows:-

(a) Commercial training and coaching in the field of sports.
(b) Commercial training and coaching resulting in grant of certificate or diploma or degree which is recognized by law.

(c) Commercial training and coaching which are vocational in nature. The activity of the respondent does not fall in any of the above and hence, would be charged to service tax. The Revenue also relies on the Final Order No. ST/A/55907-55911-CU[DB] dated 17.08.2017.

8. Shri Amit Singh, Ld. Advocate appearing for the respondent on the strength of his written submission, submitted as follows:-

i. He justified the impugned order in which Service Tax demand has been substantially dropped by the Ld. Adjudicating Authority.

ii. He referred to the statutory definition Section 65 (26) and argued that the term ‘Commercial Training or Coaching’ refers to courses other than academic courses. He argued that most of the courses conducted by IIPM are in the nature of academic courses leading to various certificates/degrees. Such courses cannot be brought within the definition of Commercial Training or Coaching as has been rightly held by the Adjudicating Authority.

iii. The activity of imparting education is not subject to Service Tax. He has referred to Supreme Court decisions and submitted that in construing the fiscal statutes and in determining the liability of a subject to tax, one must have regard to the strict letter of the law.

iv. He relied on the decision of the Hon'ble High Court, Delhi in the case of Delhi Music Society V/s Director General of Income Tax in Writ Petition (C) No. 4726/2011 dated 16/12/2011. In the above case, the Hon'ble High Court considered the status of the petitioner with reference to Section 10 (23) C of the Income Tax Act. The Hon'ble High Court held that even though the petitioner was not an Institution recognized by UGC for imparting formal education, they cannot be considered as Coaching or Training Institute. The petitioner was held to be an Educational Institution. On similar lines he submitted that IIPM is to be considered as an Academic Educational Institution and not covered within the definition of "Commercial Coaching or Training Centre".

v. Referring to the case law of United Southcity (supra) relied upon by the Ld. DR, he submitted that even going by the said case law, the demand is required to be restricted to that falling within the normal time limit.

vi. He also argued that the levy of Service Tax on Commercial Coaching or Training Services was not free from doubt and hence there is no justification for invoking the extended time limit.

9. We have carefully considered the submissions made by both sides. Our findings and conclusions are given below.

10. The statutory definitions which are relevant for the purpose of present dispute are reproduced below for ready reference.

Sections 65(26) and 65(27) of the Finance Act, 1994 defines commercial training or coaching as follows:

'(26) "commercial training or coaching" means any training or coaching provided by a commercial training or coaching centre;

'(27) "commercial training or coaching centre" means any institute or establishment providing commercial training or coaching for imparting skill or knowledge or lessons on any subject or field other than the sports, with or without issuance of a certificate and includes coaching or tutorial classes but does not include pre-school coaching and training centre or any institute or establishment which issues any certificate or diploma or degree or any educational qualification recognized by law for the time being in force.'

The taxable service was defined in Section 65(105)(zzc) as follows:

'(zzc) any service provided or to be provided to any person, by a commercial training or coaching centre in relation to commercial training or coaching." An explanation was inserted in sub-clause (zzc) vide Finance Act, 2010 retrospectively with effect from 1-7-2003 which read as follows:

Explanation. - For the removal of doubts, it is hereby declared that the expression "commercial training or coaching centre" occurring in this sub-clause and in clauses (26), (27) and (90a) shall include any centre or institute, by whatever name called, where training or coaching is imparted for consideration, whether or not such centre or institute is registered as a trust or a society or similar other organisation under any law for the time being in force and carrying on its activity with or without profit motive and the expression "commercial training or coaching" shall be construed accordingly;

11. The issues pertaining to interpretation of 'commercial training or coaching', taxable service specified in Section 65(105)(zzc) of the Finance Act, 1994, Section 65(26) defining 'commercial training or coaching' and Section 65(27) defining 'commercial training or coaching centre' were referred to a Larger Bench of this Tribunal and the Larger Bench in the Great Lakes Institute of Management Ltd. 2013 (32) STR 305 (Tri.-LB) examined these issues at length after considering the various decisions on the matter and the circulars issued in this regard by the C.B.E. & C. and answered the reference as follows :-

"25. On the aforesaid analysis, we answer the reference as follows :

(i) The taxable service of "commercial training or coaching" occurs when any institute or establishment is engaged in the activity of imparting skill, knowledge or lessons on any subject or field (excluding sports), irrespective of whether such imparting of skill, knowledge or lessons is in respect of particular discipline or a broad spectrum of disciplines/academic areas; irrespective of the nomenclature or description of the institute or establishment, as a coaching or training centre or an educational institution; regardless of whether an institute or establishment is incorporated by or registered under any law; and irrespective of distinctions on the basis of curriculum, course content, teaching methodology, course duration or otherwise. Activities of imparting skills, knowledge, lessons on any subject or field or when provided by any entity, institution or establishment which is excluded by a specific and legislated exclusionary clause would alone be outside the fold of the taxable activity."

12. If we apply the above ratio to the facts of the case before us, we are led to the conclusion that there is no scope to exclude "Academic Courses", conducted by IIPM, from the purview of Service tax levy. The exclusion provided in Section 65 (27) is available to any institute or establishments which issues any certificate or any educational qualification recognized by law for the time being in force. But it is an admitted position that the certificates and degrees awarded by IIPM and also by IMI, Europe do not enjoy the recognition from AICTE or UGC. These facts have been declared by IIPM in their prospectus and advertisements and such facts have been admitted by the Dean of IIPM in his statements before the investigating authorities.

Therefore, IIPM clearly falls under the definition of Commercial Training or Coaching Centre as defined in law Section 65 (27) and the services rendered by them are liable to Service Tax, and we hold accordingly. In respect of the few management courses conducted by IIPM which are categorized by the Adjudicating Authority himself as other than academic, Service Tax demand has already been confirmed in the impugned order.

13. The Ld. Advocate appearing for the respondent has relied on the decision of the Hon'ble Delhi High Court in the case of Delhi Music Society (supra). He has argued that even though the respondent is an Educational Institution, they cannot be considered as Coaching or Training Centre. After perusing the decision of the Hon'ble Delhi High Court, we note that the decision has been rendered in the context of Section 10 (23) of the Income Tax Act. In Section 65 (27) of the Finance Act, 1994, there is a specific definition for the term Commercial Training or Coaching Centre. As discussed Supra, we are of the view that the activities of the respondents fall under the above definition. Consequently, the Hon'ble Delhi High Court's decision, which is on different facts is distinguishable and cannot be applied to the facts of the present case.

14. The next issue for consideration is whether extended period of time could be invoked in the present case for confirmation of Service Tax demand. Revenue has relied on the Tribunal decision in the case of Unitech Southcity Educational Charitable Trust and others. In the said decision the appellant in that case was held to be liable for payment of Service Tax under the category of "Commercial Training or Coaching Centre" for the reason that the courses being run lead to a Degree by the Foreign University but the demand was restricted to normal time limit. The reason cited in the order for such restriction is the retrospective amendment carried out by the Finance Act, 2010 in the definition of Section 65 (27) wherein an "Explanation" was inserted w.e.f. 01/07/2003. The Explanation is relevant only in respect of a "Commercial Training or Coaching Centre" which is registered as an Organization carrying out activity without profit motive.

In the facts of the present case this aspect of IIPM is not in debate. This plea has neither been taken before the Adjudicating Authority nor before us. Consequently, we are of the view that the case of M/s Unitech Southcity Educational Charitable Trust and others is distinguishable to this extent from the facts of the present case.

15. It is on record that IIPM neither took registration nor registered themselves with Department up to 22/07/2005. On the said day the registration was taken only at Bangalore even though IIPM has Institutes in many other places. They also did not pay any Service Tax or file ST-3 Returns even though the tax on Commercial Training or Coaching Centre was levied w.e.f. 01/07/2003. Since they have failed to obtain registration or file returns or even intimate the Department of the activities undertaken, the Department is fully justified in issuing show cause notice to demand of Service Tax along with interest by invoking the extended period of time.

16. In view of the above discussions we find that Adjudicating Authority has erred in dropping the demand of the Service Tax by considering the activities as falling outside the scope of Commercial Training or Coaching Centre. For the reasons set out above we conclude that the impugned order is not sustainable. We set aside the impugned order to the extent of dropping of Service Tax demand and uphold the entire demand of Service Tax raised in the show cause notice dated 10/02/2006. Such demand will be payable along with interest under Section 75. IIPM will also be liable to pay penalty equal to the Service Tax demanded under Section 78 as well as under Section 77 of the Finance Act, 1994. Since penalty under Section 78 is upheld, we do not impose penalty under Section 76.

Per: B Ravichandran:
The appellant is aggrieved by the order dated 09.10.2013 of Commissioner (Appeals - I), Jaipur. The appellants are engaged in construction of the residential complex and they are registered with the Service Tax Department. The dispute in the present appeal relates to the period 16.06.2005 to 30.09.2009 with reference to non-payment of service tax by the appellant under the category of management, maintenance and repair service in respect of one of their projects of residential complex.

2. The brief facts of the case are that the appellants built a residential complex having multiple units. They have collected from their clients a fixed amount towards corpus fund in respect of each dwelling unit, apart from the consideration for construction of the residential unit. The said fund is to be transferred to the welfare association of residents, as and when formed, for maintenance and management of the said complex. As the project was on-going and the welfare association was yet to be formed, the appellants undertook the work of maintenance of the whole project premises, which included already sold dwelling units in which some of the residences were occupied. The Revenue entertained a view that the appellants have rendered service of management maintenance and repair of the said dwelling units/ complex and are liable to pay service tax. As there is no direct consideration received from the occupants of the flats, the Revenue invoked the provisions of valuation rules, to arrive at equivalent consideration for tax value. The interest, based on prime lending rate on the corpus fund deposited by the buyers of the flat, was considered on notional basis and tax demand was confirmed against the appellant. The original authority apart from confirming the service tax liability of Rs.9,96,844/- imposed penalties under Section 76, 77 and 78 of the Finance Act, 1994. On appeal, the order was upheld by the impugned order.

3. The ld. Counsel for the appellant submitted that the project was still under completion and as a promoter - builder, they were bound to maintain the said complex in good condition as some of the residential units are yet to be disposed of. Such maintenance of their own project cannot be taxed under management, maintenance and repair service. Further, the valuation adopted by the Revenue is strongly disputed. Admittedly, when the corpus fund was never spent, there can be no consideration to be taxed under the said tax entry. The method of taxing notional interest on such corpus fund is not supported by the law. The ld. Counsel also contested the demand on the question of time bar. He submitted that as the appellant did not receive any consideration from the occupants of the flats, they have, bona fide, believed that there is no taxable service in maintaining the ongoing project. As such, he pleaded for setting aside the demand on the question of time bar and also setting aside various penalties imposed on them.

4. The ld. A.R. while reiterating the findings of the lower authorities submitted that the appellant did provide service of maintenance to various occupants of the residential complex. There is no direct consideration received for this. However, the occupants of the flats already deposited the corpus-fund towards maintenance of their complex and such fund is very much available with the appellant. The said fund is to be transferred, in future, to the welfare association to be formed after all occupants duly joined to create such association. As the taxable service has been provided and no direct consideration is available as per the accounts, Revenue correctly resorted to the provisions of valuation rules, to arrive at equivalent consideration by following the principles laid down under Rule 3 of Service Tax (Determination Value) Rules, 2006. Regarding time bar, the ld. A.R. submitted that the appellant did provide taxable service and did not take steps to fulfill the legal obligation for discharging the tax. As such, he supported the findings of the lower authorities in this regard.

5. We have heard both the sides and perused the appeal records. The admitted facts of the case are that the appellants did maintain the residential complex in which there were various occupants. There is a taxable service under the category of management, maintenance and repair in terms of Section 65(64) of Finance Act, 1994. The main dispute in the present appeal is with reference to valuation of such taxable service. Admittedly, the appellant did not receive any separate consideration from the occupants of the flats for such management/ maintenance of their property.

6. However, a fixed amount of deposit was received, alongwith consideration for construction of the flats, with a specific reason for transferring the same to the welfare association which will be in-charge of management and maintenance of the said complex. Till the formation of the association the appellants as a builder/promoter did undertake the work of management / maintenance of the complex. As such, we are of the opinion that the appellant did provide taxable service to various occupants of the complex under tax entry of "management, maintenance and repair service" which specifically talks about management and maintenance of immovable properties.

7. Regarding the valuation of such taxable service, we find that the notional interest adopted by the Revenue will not Form a proper basis. Admittedly, there is no evidence regarding accrual of interest to the appellant on the deposit/ corpus fund received from the occupants of the flats. No such finding has been recorded by the lower authorities. The appellant also contested that all the residential units in the complex were not sold or occupied by various owners. A portion of the building is still under the control / maintenance of the appellants themselves. We find that while tax liability of the appellant has to be upheld, the method of arriving at the tax value has to be in terms of Rule 3 (b). For applying the provision of Rule 3 (b), the stipulation is that the value shall not be less than the cost of provision of such taxable service. The equal money value has to be arrived at based on the documents and supporting evidence to be submitted by the appellant. In case, no separate supporting evidences are available, a value, not below minimum benchmark value of cost of provision of such taxable service should be arrived at. For this, we remand the matter to the Original Authority, who will examine the evidences to be submitted by the appellant to arrive at a proper value in terms of Section 67 read with Valuation Rules, 2006. Since the case is remanded to determine the quantum of tax liability, we find that the plea of appellant on the question of time bar as well as their liability to penalty under various Sections may also be looked into by the original authority afresh. The appeal is disposed of in the above terms.

2. Facts are almost common to all these appeals. However, to appreciate the question of law involved, it would suffice to state the facts of the appellant M/s ICICI Bank Ltd. Briefly stated the facts of the said case are that the appellants are engaged in providing taxable services of banking and other financial services. During the relevant period they had availed cenvat credit in respect of service tax paid on various input services including deposit insurance service provided by Deposit Insurance and Credit Guarantee Corporation (DICGC). Alleging that the premium paid on deposit insurance to DICGC since not an ‘input service’ as defined under Rule 2 (I) of Cenvat Credit Rules, 2004 show cause notices were issued to the appellants, after completion of necessary investigation, for recovery of the credit availed on the service tax paid on such insurance service with interest and penalty. On adjudication, the demand was confirmed with interest and penalty. Aggrieved by the said order, the appellants are in appeal.

3. Ld. advocate Shri V. Sridharan appearing for the appellant ICICI Bank has submitted that it is a scheduled bank at the relevant point of time and has been rendering banking services in India and overseas. The appellants offer a wide range of banking services across retail and corporate sector and are registered with the Department for payment of service tax. The appellant had been duly discharging their service tax liability wherever applicable and also they have been availing cenvat credit of service tax paid on various input services received and used in providing the taxable output service. In terms of rule 6(3B) of the Cenvat Credit Rules, 2004 the appellant was liable to reverse 50% of the total Cenvat Credit availed during a particular month, which they have been meticulously complying with during the relevant period. It is his contention that as per RBI norms, the appellant is required to have a capital adequacy ratio of 9% and should be registered with the Deposit insurance and credit guarantee Corporation (DICGC), a subsidiary of Reserve Bank of India. The DICGC protects small depositors, in the event of failure of bank, by way of ensuring return of the deposits up to Rs. 100,000/- per depositor. Every bank in India is mandatorily required to insure its deposits through DICGC. During the relevant period from July 2012 to March 2014 the... appellant ICICI Bank Ltd. have paid Rs.4,869,765,276/- towards insurance premium to DICGC on which they paid service tax amounting to Rs. 70,49,47, 822/-and consequently avail credit of the said amount.

4. Referring to the definition of 'input service', the learned advocate for the appellant has submitted that the case of the Department mainly rests on three counts; (i) the insurance service is for the benefit of the depositors and not for the bank. DICGC has not insured the Bank and thus the bank cannot be treated as an insured person; (ii) Deposit insurance premium is linked only to deposits accepted by banks and has no nexus with any other service provided by banks so it cannot be termed as 'input service' used for rendition of any output service.; (iii) The appellant did not charge any consideration for the acceptance of the deposit, so it is a transaction in money only and outside the purview of service tax.

5. Responding to the said observation in the impugned order, the learned advocate has submitted that the services in the present case are covered by 'means' clause of the definition of 'input service'. He has submitted that the insurance services are essential for rendering output services and the banks primary source of income is in the form of interest out of its lending activity. Such interest is not liable to service tax by virtue of being included in the negative list of the definition of 'service' with effect from 01.7.2012. But, it is directly linked to the lending activity. The bank receives taxable incomes as well as in the form of interest which are consideration for services performed consequent to the lending activity or the activity of acceptance of deposits and on such other incomes service tax has been discharged by the appellant. He has further submitted that all these considerations received for identifiable services performed, and are not independent of the activity of accepting deposits. In other words, such services have a direct nexus to the activity of accepting deposits. The appellants have also submitted that all services cannot be rendered without the bank having accepted the money from depositors. It can be concluded that deposit insurance is an input service by virtue of it being directly linked to the activity of accepting deposits from which a bank earns various charges and on which service tax liability have been discharged.

6. Ld. advocate has further submitted that the expression 'used for provision of output service' is wider than the expression 'used in manufacture of goods' in the definition of "input service". Rule 2(l) of the cenvat credit Rules provides that input service means any service used by a provider of output service for providing an output service. It also provides that the input service means any service used by the manufacture in or in relation to the manufacture of final product. In other words, the definition of input service is wider for a service provider in comparison to a manufacturer. In support, the learned advocate referred to the Larger bench decision assessed at in the case of Jawahar Mills Ltd Vs. CCE, Coimbatore 1999 (108) ELT 47(Trb.) wherein it is held that 'used for' is wider than the phrase 'used in' and 'used for' would cover any of the goods if used for producing or bringing about any change in any substance for the manufacture of final product would be capital goods and thus qualify for input credit. Similarly the learned advocate has also referred to the judgement of this Tribunal in the case of Mundra Port & Special Economic Zone Ltd. Vs. CCE, Rajkot 2009 (13) STR 178(Tri.-Ahmd.), whereunder the credit of duty paid on cement and steel used in construction of jetty were held to be not admissible but the said judgment was set aside by the Hon’ble Gujrat High Court reported at 2015 (39) STR 726(Guj.)

7. The Ld. advocate has further submitted that insurance being a statutory obligation, the reserve Bank of India has power to cancel the license of the bank for non-compliance, thus, the service of DICGC is not only commercially expedient but also mandatory nature. It is submitted that deposit insurance, being a statutory obligation for bank, non-compliance with the same could impact the mobilization activity of the bank, without which the lending activity cannot be judiciously carried out. He has further submitted that the service of DICGC is mandatory nature, and without it Bank cannot function at all. Hence, the amount paid to DICGC will certainly qualify as an input service.

8. Further, referring to the definition of 'input service', the Ld. Advocate has submitted that its scope is very wide; not only it includes the services used for provision of services, but also services necessary to run day-to-day business or services, commercially expedient avail. Therefore, for a service to qualify as an input service, it has to be either used for provision of service or if such nexus is not present, it shall be included in the inclusive component of the said meaning. He has also submitted that in the inclusive portion of the definition of 'input services' the service viz. “services in relation to 'financing' is specifically mentioned; since the services of DICGC are essential and mandatory for raising money by bank and deposits are the main source of finance for any Bank, hence it is an input service.

9. Further, the Ld. advocate has submitted that even though there is a direct nexus between the deposit insurance services received by the appellant and output services provided by the appellant, without accepting, even if it is as assumed that some part of the deposit is not used for provision of output services, then also the appellant are entitled for the credit as the appellant has already paid the 50% of total cenvat credit taken in terms of Rule 6(3B) of Cenvat Credit Rules, 2004.

10. Further, rebutting the observation that collection of deposits, loans or advances so far as the consideration is represented by way of interest, is a transaction in money hence not a 'service' being covered under the negative list prescribed at section 66D of Finance Act 1994, hence not an output service, the Ld. Advocate has submitted that in the present case, the appellant while accepting deposits from the public under obligation to be insured. He has submitted that the theory of negative list has been misconstrued by the Department. Further, he has submitted that it is incorrect to look at the transaction of receiving deposits in isolation. The appellant is in the banking business whose activities comprise of accepting deposits and granting loans. Without the activity of receiving the deposits, the appellant would not be able to grant loans. Further, it is an undisputed fact that the appellant has discharged service tax on various charges/incomes earned in the course of providing loans such as documentation services, loan processing service, delay payment charges etc.. Acceptance of deposits was in the normal course of banking business. The same has been explained in the judgement of Indian Bank Ltd., Madras Vs. Commissioner of Income Tax, Madras 1959 3 SCC (Madras HC).

11. The Ld. advocate assailing the observation that the insurance services were received by the depositor and not by the Bank, hence credit of the service tax paid on such premium not admissible, submitted that the Commissioner has travelled beyond the scope of the show cause notice as no such allegation was made thereunder. Secondly, the contractual relationship between the bank and the DICGC exists and not between the depositor and DICGC. The uncertain event in the deposit insurance, is liquidation or winding up of the insured bank. It is this risk which might impair the capacity of the insured bank to repay its debt/liability to the depositor, that is being insured with certain limit (Rs. 1.00 lakh per depositor). DICGC is not even aware who is the depositor, what type of account he is holding and other personal particulars of the depositor. Therefore in such circumstances the appellant is the recipient of the service and not the depositor. Further as per the provisions of DICGC Act, the appellant bank is debarred from recovering the cost of insurance premium from the depositors. The ld. Advocate has submitted that since the credit availed by them is legal and proper and not in contravention of any of the rules, no interest is payable nor imposition of penalty is warranted.

12. Learned Advocate Shri S.S. Gupta for the appellant M/s IDBI Bank Ltd., referring to the judgment of this Tribunal in the case of Deposit Insurance and credit Guarantee Corporation Vs. Commissioner of Central Excise & Service Tax, Mumbai, submitted that this Tribunal while examining the issue of leviability of Service Tax on Insurance premium collected by DICGC from the Banks observed that the Corporation is assessed to Income Tax as a company and its function as an Insurer, the insured are the various banks who pay the insurance premium and the beneficiaries are the depositors of the insured banks. It is his contention that the service is provided by DICGC to Banks who pay the premium and beneficiaries are the depositors of the Bank. Therefore, the observation of the learned Commissioner that Banks are not recipients of service is incorrect. Further, he has referred to the judgment of the Tribunal in M/s Paul Merchants Ltd. Vs. Commissioner of C.Ex. 2013 (29) STR 257(Tri.-Del.) to emphasize that the Banks are receiver of the services and the contract to provide service since between the Bank and the DICGC and not between the depositor and DICGC, therefore, the services are received by the Banks.

13. Further, he has submitted that the adjudicating authority erred in observing that the insurance service was in relation to exempted supply and is also for exempted output service, therefore, payment of Service Tax on such insurance is not admissible as credit being exempted from Service Tax. Referring to the definition of 'Banking' under the Banking Regulation Act, 1949, he has submitted that such definition prescribes that the deposit is accepted for the purpose of lending, hence, acceptance of deposit is to provide the output services of lending. Thus, the acceptance of deposit is directly linked to the output supply of lending. Further, he has submitted that there are various types of deposits, which are made by customers, namely, fixed deposit, saving account, current account etc. When the customer open an account and operates the said account, various charges like, issuance of Demand Draft, RTGS charges, Cheque Book issue charges, Debit-credit card issue charges etc. are collected by the Bank from the customers, which are chargeable to Service Tax. These charges are collected on supply of service made to the customers only when he opens the account for deposit. Therefore, the acceptance of deposit is not wholly exempted from Service Tax.

14. Further, he has submitted that as per Section 10 of the DICGC Act, 1961, every Bank is required to register with DICGC. It is a compulsory registration. Further, Section 15A of the said Act provides that the Corporation may cancel the registration of an insured bank, if it fails to pay the premium for three consecutive period. This default will ultimately lead to cancellation of License granted under section 22 of the Banking Regulation Act, 1949. Therefore, no output services can be provided unless the statutory requirement of insuring the deposit has been complied with. Hence, obtaining insurance deposit is having direct nexus with the provision of output service, therefore, such payment of insurance premium be considered as 'input service'. Further, he has submitted that wherever there is any statutory obligation, and without compliance of such statutory provisions, no output service can be provided, the compliance ought to be considered as an 'input service'. In support, the learned C.A. referred to the judgment of M/s Nhava Sheva International Container Terminal (P) Ltd. - 2017 (30 STL 509 (Tri-Mum); M/s Rane TRW Steering Systems Ltd. - 2017 (4) GSTL-133 (Tri-Chennai).

15. Further, he has submitted that in the definition of 'input service' applicable to a service provider, the word "used for" has been very wide as interpreted by various Courts. In the present case, the appellant cannot provide any output service without obtaining insurance cover from the depositors. Therefore, obtaining of insurance from DICGC on deposits shall be considered as input service. In support, he has referred to the judgment of this Tribunal in the case of Utopia India Pvt. Ltd. - 2011 (23) STR 25 (Tri-Bang), JSW Steel (Salav) Ltd. - 2017 (46) STR 863 (Tri- Mum), DSCL Sugar - 2014 (34) STR 59 (Tri-Del).

16. Further, referring to Rule 6(3B) of the CENVAT Credit Rules, 2004, the learned C.A. has submitted that in compliance with the said Rules, they have already reversed 50% of the total CENVAT Credit availed on various input and input services. This is a statutory obligation to reverse the credit. It is his contention that the learned Commissioner has erred in demanding the credit on the entire amount when the appellant had already reversed 50% of the credit. Further, he has submitted that the issue relating to admissibility of credit on deposit insurance premium is settled in their favour by two judgments of this Tribunal reported as DCB Bank Ltd. - 2017 (6) GSTL 479 (Tri-Mum) and M/s Punjab National Bank. Further, he has submitted that no penalty is imposable as the issue relates to interpretation of statutes.

17. Similar arguments have been advanced on behalf of other appellants.

18. Per contra, learned Commissioner (AR) Shri Roopam Kapoor for the Revenue has submitted that there are two issues involved in the present case: -

(i) Whether the transaction between DICGC and the Banks falls within the definition of input service particularly when the definition of the output service is read in conjunction with the definition of input service; (ii) Whether service is being received by the Bank or by the depositor.

19. Elaborating his argument, he has submitted that so far as scope of 'input service' for availing CENVAT Credit under the CENVAT Credit Rules is concerned, clause (eee) of sub-section (2) of Section 94 of the Finance Act, 1994 empowers the Central Government to frame Rules pertaining to "the credit of Service Tax paid on the services consumed or duty paid or deemed to have been paid on goods used for providing a taxable service". Thus, it is his contention that scope of the rules framed under Section 94(2)(eee) of Finance Act, 1994 is limited to the service consumed in providing taxable services. Further, referring to the definition of 'input service' prescribed under rule 2((i) of the CENVAT Credit Rules, 2004, the learned AR has submitted that between clause (i) and clause (ii) of said Rule, absence of phrase "in or in relation to" in clause (i) shows that the scope of input services for provider of output service is narrower, when compared to that applicable to manufacturer. Further, he has submitted that so far as the scope of 'output service' is concerned, it is limited within the scope of taxable service as defined under section 65B(51) of the Finance Act, 1994 as "any service on which Service Tax is leviable under Section 66B." Section 66B excludes the service provided in the negative list (specified under Rule 66D of the Finance Act, 1994) from the scope of taxable service. In the said negative list of services, clause (ii) excludes services by way of - (i) extending deposits, loans or advances in so far as the consideration is represented by way of interest or discount. The definition of 'output service' w.e.f. 1.7.2012 has been changed to mean "any taxable service excluding the taxable service referred to under clause (zzp) of clause (105) of Section 65 of the Finance Act, provided by the provider of taxable service, to a customer, client, subscriber, policy holder or any other person, as the case may be, and the expressions 'provider' and 'provided' shall be construed accordingly." Thus to cover within the scope of input service, the services should be consumed or at least used for providing the output services.

20. He has further submitted that the definition of input service has undergone change after 1.4.2011. From the scope of amended definition of 'input service' "activities relating to business" has been deleted. In the amended definition, it contained two limbs. The first limb allowed the credit of tax paid on any services used by the provider of taxable service for providing output service; the second limb is inclusive clause which included specific services used in relation to various activities used by provider of taxable service. It is submitted that any interpretation making a legislative provision redundant must be avoided and as the legislature has given an extended meaning to the definition of 'input service' for the manufacturer in clause (ii) of the definition and a restrictive meaning to that a service provider clause (i) should be appreciated. Further, he has submitted that since the activities of advancing principal amount of loans cannot be treated as 'output service', insurance premium paid for depositors cannot be considered as input service. Answering the argument that deposit is basically as input service for all other activities undertaken by the Bank, the learned AR has submitted that it is not correct in so far as deposit are solely transaction in money and are raised for providing loan, which is also a transaction in money not covered within the scope of Service Tax or excluded as per Section 66B being not a taxable service. He has further submitted that there are host of other services provided by the Banks, namely, safe deposit vault, issuance of DD against cash, issuance of cheque books for transferring money, providing Bank Guarantee etc. In all such cases, common input services namely, hiring of premises, security service, management, maintenance and repair service, on which credit would be available to the Banks. Further, in case of issuance of DD, cheque books etc., no Service Tax is leviable on the principal amount, tax is charged only on the fees levied by the Bank for issuance of these services. Thus, any transaction in money including making deposit, receiving deposits/extending loan cannot be treated as input or output service.

21. Further, he has submitted that DICGC provides insurance only to the depositor of the Bank and this was not for the benefit of the Bank or for protecting the interest of the Bank. It was meant for the benefit of small depositors. Reference in this regard was made to the judgment of this Tribunal in the case of M/s DICGC’s case (supra). The learned AR submitted that there is no contractual relationship between the appellant and the Bankers. The Corporation does not execute any contract with the Bank, as the activity is statutory in nature. The learned AR further submitted that the Bank cannot be treated as an ‘insured person’ and hence accordingly, not the recipient of insurance service from DICGC. This is the reason the Bank has no freedom but to insure all their deposits which is limited to the extent of Rs.1.00 lakh. In the event of liquidation, the Bank is not paid by DICGC any amount to offsets its liabilities. The recipient of the benefit is the depositor, hence Bank cannot claim the receipt of the service. merely because the Bank pays the premium will not make the Bank as recipient of service.

22. Referring to the judgment of the Hon’ble Supreme Court in Maruti Suzuki Ltd. Vs. Commissioner of Central Excise, Delhi - 2009 (240) ELT 641 (SC), he has submitted that in the said case, it has been held that in case where electricity is used for sale outside the factory, the nexus between the process and the use gets disconnected, hence the credit is admissible. Drawing analogy from the principles laid down in the said case, it is his contention that the service has not been consumed for providing the taxable services. Firstly, these services have not at all been consumed by the Banks but have been consumed by the depositors; secondly the service has not been consumed for providing the “taxable service”. Replying to the argument of the appellant that they have already discharged 50% of the CENVAT Credit availed in compliance with Rule 6(3B) of CCR, 2004 the learned AR has submitted that the terms ‘input and output service’ have already been defined and if the tax paid on the invoices does not fall within the scope of the ‘input services’, thus credit could not have not been availed on the same. It is his contention that in the present case if the service provided by the DICGC is held not to be covered within the scope of input service then irrespective of Rule 6(3B), the credit of the same cannot be availed. He has submitted that the provision of law is to be read in harmony and even the interpretation which is inconsistent with the legal provision ought to be avoided. He has submitted that interpretation advanced by the appellant that since they have already been allowed to avail credit by depositing 50% of the credit availed, therefore, the credit availed on Service Tax paid on insurance premium automatically admissible to them, is incorrect inasmuch as a person cannot avail credit of input service and not all services that were used in running the business. Accordingly, irrespective to the scope of Rule 6(3B), the credit of the Service Tax paid on insurance premium to DICGC by the Bank not admissible. The learned AR further submitted that the principles referred by the appellant laid down by the Hon’ble High Court of Gujarat in Mundra Ports & Special Economic Zone - 2015 (39) STR 726 (Guj) and the judgment of Hon’ble Andhra Pradesh High Court in the case of Sai Samhita Storage Ltd. - 2011 (23) STR 341 (AP) have already been considered by the jurisdictional Hon’ble Bombay High Court in the case of Bharat Airtel Ltd. Vs. CCE - 2014 (35) STR 865 (Bom). The Hon’ble High Court in para 27 of the judgment observed that the towers cannot be considered as an integral part in providing the telecom services.

23. Referring to appeals mentioned at Sr. No. 3 and 6, the learned AR submitted that the appellant have availed Service Tax credit under Rule 9 of CENVAT Credit Rules, 2004. The appellants had already deposited the Service Tax. It is now their claim that this is a procedural irregularity and hence CENVAT Credit cannot be denied to them. Since they have contravened the provisions of Rule 9 of the CENVAT Credit Rules, which is mandatory in nature, therefore, availing credit at back dated invoice cannot be allowed.

24. Heard both sides at length and perused the records.

25. The short issue involved in the present appeals for determination is: whether the appellants are eligible to avail CENVAT Credit of the amount of Service Tax paid to DICGC for insuring the deposits of the customers involving the period after 01.4.2012.

26. The main arguments of the appellants, are that it is a statutory obligation in carrying out the banking business to comply with the provisions of DICGC Act, 1961 where under the deposits of customers are required to be insured. Also, it is contended that without accepting the deposits, the core banking business i.e. lending cannot be carried out, therefore, payment of insurance premium be construed as used for providing output service i.e. banking service. Besides, it is pleaded that the scope of the definition ‘input service’ is very wide and it covers all services that are required for providing an output service, to be considered as an input service. It is their further argument that Rule 6(3B) of CENVAT Credit Rules, 2004 prescribes that a Banking Company engaged in providing services by way of extending deposits, loans or advances has the option to discharge 50% of the CENVAT Credit availed in a month, therefore, accepting deposits from the public be considered as a service and the appellants are eligible to avail CENVAT Credit on the Service Tax paid on premium amount of insurance paid to DICGC.

27. Revenue’s contention on the other hand is that accepting deposits from the customers by the appellants is not a ‘service’ as defined under Section 65B(44) of the Finance Act, 1994; the activity of lending is also not a service, as the consideration in the form of interest finds a place under the negative list enumerated under Section 66D of the Finance Act, 1994; also it falls under the exclusion sub-clause (iii) of the clause (a) of the said definition, being a transaction in money. It is their further argument that once the activity of accepting deposit is not a service, consequently cannot come within the scope of ‘output service’ as defined under Rule 2(p) of CENVAT Credit Rules, 2004. Hence, the definition of input service laid down at Rule 2(l) of the CENVAT Credit Rules, 2004 is also not satisfied. It is also contended that Section 94(eee) of the Finance Act, 1994, empowers to make rules in relation to the credit of service tax paid on the services consumed, accordingly, the input service definition cannot be interpreted to provide the meaning beyond the scope of rule making power. The revenue has also argued that Rule 6(3B) of CCR, 2004 is applicable when the input service qualifies to be eligible to credit. It cannot be interpreted to mean that the said provision allows the appellant to avail credit on the activity which is not at all a ‘service’ least an input service.

28. To examine the rival contentions, analysis of relevant provisions needs to be carried out. However, before undertaking such an exercise, it is necessary to have a brief understanding of the historical growth of credit scheme of the duty/tax paid on the inputs, input services and capital goods which are used in the activity of manufacture of dutiable goods or providing taxable services. Initially credit of the duty paid on the inputs used at the manufacturing stage, extended in a limited sense in the form of proforma credit under the Rule 56 of the erstwhile Central Excise Rules, 1944. It covered limited number of raw materials/inputs on which credit was allowed when used in the manufacture of few dutiable final products. But, with the introduction of MODVAT scheme in the year 1986, its scope was expanded by inserting chapter VAAA in the erstwhile Central Excise Rules, 1944, 1944, where under more ‘inputs’ were covered by providing definition of ‘input’ and ‘final product’. Later, the Modvat credit was extended to ‘capital goods’ in the year 1994. Even though service tax levy on various services introduced into the indirect tax system by passing Finance act, 1994, however, credit of service tax paid on input services has been allowed only from 2004 by replacing CENVAT Credit Rules, 2002 with the new set of Credit Rules. Needless to emphasize, the sole objective of the credit system, from the very beginning, as a measure of tax reform has been to avoid cascading effect, that is, to minimize and avoid tax on tax already paid on the inputs/raw materials/services. With this objective, tax paid on the inputs, input services, capital goods used in or in relation to manufacture of the final products and for providing output services has been allowed as credit for its utilization in discharging the liability on final product and out put service.

29. Reading the provisions governing the credit scheme since its beginning, it could easily be discerned that though the objective has always been to avoid cascading effect, but simultaneously through various parameters/restrictions including by way of laying down the definition of ‘inputs’, capital goods, input services, and other provisions prescribing necessary procedure, the extent of credit of the tax/duty paid as admissible to off set against the duty/tax liability on the goods manufactured or service provided has been legislated under the rulemaking power. It has never been the intention of the legislator that whatever duty or tax paid on any of the inputs, capital goods, input services which has been used/consumed in or in relation to the manufacture of finished goods or for providing taxable service would be eligible as credit to offset the liability of duty/tax payable on the manufacture of final products or taxable services rendered, as the case may be.

30. In the present case, the central point of dispute is admissibility of CENVAT Credit of the Service Tax paid on insurance premium by the appellant bankers to DICGC insuring the small investors which is mandatory under the DICGC Act, 1961. Payment of such Service Tax whether comes within the definition of 'input service' or otherwise is the question needs an answer. But, to make our task easier it is essential to restate the principle of interpretation applicable to a tax legislation. The Hon'ble Bombay High Court in the case of GREATSHIP (INDIA) LTD Vs. COMMISSIONER OF SERVICE TAX, MUMBAI-2015 (39) S.T.R. 754 (Bom.) observed as:

"34. It would thus appear that it is settled position of law that in taxing statute, the Courts have to adhere to literal interpretation. At first instance, the Court is required to examine the language of the statute and make an attempt to derive its natural meaning. The Court interpreting the statute should not proceed to add the words which are not found in the statute. It is equally settled that if the person sought to be taxed comes within the letter of the law he must be taxed, however, great the hardship may appear to the judicial mind to be. On the other hand, if the Crown seeking to recover the tax, cannot bring the subject within the letter of the law, the subject is free, however apparently within the spirit of law the case might otherwise appear to be. It is further settled that an equitable constru ction, is not admissible in a taxing statute, where the Courts can simply adhere to the words of the statute. It is equally settled that a taxing statute is required to be strictly construed.
Common sense approach, equity, logic, ethics and morality have no role to play while interpreting the taxing statute. It is equally settled that nothing is to be implied and one is required to look fairly at the language used and nothing more and nothing less. No doubt, there are certain judgments of the Apex Court which also holds that resort to purposive construction would be permissible in certain situation.
However, it has been held that the same can be done in the limited type of cases where the Court finds that the language used is so obscure which would give two different meanings, one leading to the workability of the Act and another to absurdity."

31. The definition of 'input service' as prescribed in the year 2004 though amended from time to time, but undergone a metamorphosis in the year 2012. Therefore, it is relevant to read the said definitions for the period prior to 01.4.2012 and there after.

Prior to 01.4.2012:
(1) "input service" means any service, -
(i) used by a provider of taxable service for providing an output service; or
(ii) used by the manufacturer, whether directly or indirectly, in or in relation to the manufacture of final products and clearance of final products upto the place of removal, and includes services used in relation to setting up, modernization, renovation or repairs of a factory, premises of provider of output service or an office relating to such factory or premises, advertisement or sales promotion, market research, storage upto the place of removal, procurement of inputs, activities relating to business, such as accounting, auditing, financing, recruitment and quality control, coaching and training, computer networking, credit rating, share registry, and security, inward transportation of inputs or capital goods and outward transportation upto the place of removal ;

After 01.4.2012:
(1) "input service" means any service, -
(i) used by a provider of [output service] for providing an output service; or (ii) used by a manufacturer, whether directly or indirectly, in or in relation to the manufacture of final products and clearance of final products upto the place of removal, and includes services used in relation to modernisation, renovation or repairs of a factory, premises of provider of output service or an office relating to such factory or premises, advertisement or sales promotion, market research, storage upto the place of removal, procurement of inputs, accounting, auditing, financing, recruitment and quality control, coaching and training, computer networking, credit rating, share registry, security, business exhibition, legal services, inward transportation of inputs or capital goods and outward transportation up to the place of removal;

[but excludes], -

[(A) service portion in the execution of a works contract and construction services including service listed under clause (b) of section 66E of the Finance Act (hereinafter referred as specified services) in so far as they are used for -

(a) construction or execution of works contract of a building or a civil structure or a part thereof; or

(b) laying of foundation or making of structures for support of capital goods, except for the provision of one or more of the specified services; or]

[(B) [services provided by way of renting of a motor vehicle], in so far as they relate to a motor vehicle which is not a capital goods; or]

[(BA) service of general insurance business, servicing, repair and maintenance, in so far as they relate to a motor vehicle which is not a capital goods, except when used by -

(a) a manufacturer of a motor vehicle in respect of a motor vehicle manufactured by such person; or

(b) an insurance company in respect of a motor vehicle insured or reinsured by such person; or]

(C) such as those provided in relation to outdoor catering, beauty treatment, health services, cosmetic and plastic surgery, membership of a club, health and fitness centre, life insurance, health insurance and travel benefits extended to employees on vacation such as Leave or Home Travel Concession, when such services are used primarily for personal use or consumption of any employee;]

32. To attempt a simple analysis of the definition as has been in force after 01.4.2012, the same could broadly be divided into four parts. The first part lays down, any service used by a provider of output service for providing the output service, and the second part prescribes use of any service by a manufacturer who uses the services directly or indirectly in or in relation to manufacture of the final product; the inclusive portion of the definition which is common to both service provider and manufacturer, enumerates the specific services which are used in various activities both by the service provider as well as the manufacturer; finally, the exclusion clause enumerates various services, which in any case, shall not be considered as input services. Therefore, it can safely be concluded that all or any of services that suffers service tax in the hands of the service providers or the manufacturer, as the case may be, cannot said to be an ‘input service’ as defined under Sec. 2(l) of CCR, 2004 and eligible to credit.

33. To appreciate the true meaning and scope of the ‘input service’, which means any ‘service’, it is necessary to refer to the meaning of ‘service’, and the scope of negative list of services, as defined under Finance Act, 1994; ‘output service’, ‘exempted service’ as defined under the Cenvat Credit Rules, 2004.

Sec. 65B(44) ‘service’ means any activity carried out by a person for another for consideration, and includes a declared service, but shall not include-

(a) an activity which constitutes merely, -

(i) a transfer of title in goods or immovable property, by way of sale, gift or in any other manner; or

(ii) such transfer, delivery or supply of any goods which is deemed to be a sale within the meaning of clause (29A) of Article 366 of the Constitution, or

(iii) a transaction in money or actionable claim;

(b) a provision of service by an employee to the employer in the course of or in relation to his employment;

(c) fees taken in any Court or tribunal established under any law for the time being in force.

Section 66D Negative list of services:

(a)...........

(n) services by way of-

(i) extending deposits, loans or advances in so far as the consideration is represented by way of interest or discount;

(ii) inter se sale or purchase of foreign currency amongst banks or authorised dealers of foreign exchange or amongst banks and such dealers;

Rule (2) of Cenvat Credit Rules, 2004

p) "output service" means any service provided by a provider of service located in the taxable territory but shall not include a service, -

(1) specified in section 66D of the Finance Act; or

(2) where the whole of service tax is liable to be paid by the recipient of service.]

[e] "exempted service" means a -

(1) taxable service which is exempt from the whole of the service tax leviable thereon; or

(2) service, on which no service tax is leviable under section 66B of the Finance Act; or

(3) taxable service whose part of value is exempted on the condition that no credit of inputs and input services, used for providing such taxable service, shall be taken;

[but shall not include a service -

(a) which is exported in terms of rule 6A of the Service Tax Rules, 1994; or

(b) by way of transportation of goods by a vessel from customs station of clearance in India to a place outside India.;]

34. In the present case, the Revenue’s arguments is that the deposit received from the customers has been insured by the banks and the activity of accepting ‘deposits’ being not a service, inasmuch as the consideration on deposits, in the form of interest flows from the Banks to the customers, hence, the Banks are receivers of service of deposit against consideration of the interest paid by them to depositors; when the Banks deposit their money in another Banks/institutions, such deposits are not insured, and the interest paid/received on such deposits falls under the negative list of service. Similarly, the activity of loans or advances provided by the Banks as service providers to the customers out of the deposits received from the public, the consideration thereof received by the Banks as ‘interest’ from the borrower is placed in the negative list defined under Section 66D of the Finance Act, 1994, accordingly, falls outside the scope of ‘output service’; and consequently also falls outside the scope of ‘input service’. The argument of the appellant banks, on the other hand, is that deposit is an activity/service which has a direct bearing/nexus on the core banking function i.e. lending and borrowing, also it is being mandatory to insure the small investors/depositors under the DICGC Act, 1961, therefore, insuring the deposits ought to be considered as an input service.

35. Considering the arguments vis-à-vis the statutory provisions and keeping in mind the concept of credit facility of the tax paid on services used for discharging Service Tax, it cannot be denied that all services/activities which are required for promoting or running the business cannot be considered as ‘input service’; the CENVAT Credit facility of the tax paid on such services, could be allowed only when it falls within the scope of the present definition of ‘input service’.

36. Needless to mention, there are myriad activities/functions, the modern banks undertake to augment the banking business and it is not limited to the precincts of deposit and lending only. The money deposited in a locker, and the rent paid by the customer to the bank for such purpose, is a service provided by the Bank to the customer and the consideration in the form of rent is taxable; consequently, it is an output service for the Banks. While placing the extent to which the banking activities/operations be subjected to Service Tax levy, it has been made clear under Section 66D of the Finance Act, 1994, that is, the negative list; which prescribes that services rendered by way of extending deposit, loans or advances, to the extent the consideration is represented by interest is not leviable to service tax. In other words, the consideration received in extending deposit, loan or advance being out of the service tax net cannot come under the scope of taxable services, defined at Section 66B of the said Act. Hence, the activity for providing the said service cannot also be an input service.

37. It is a common knowledge that the customers deposit their money in the Banks and in turn receive interest as consideration from the Banks. The money received by the Bank from the customers is not kept idle but further invested by them in various manners in furtherance to their Banking business, one such way is by providing loans or advances, for which the Banks receive consideration as interest. The deposits kept in the Bank are in different forms like, saving bank deposit, current deposit, fixed deposit etc. The consideration received by the customers, in the form of interest, and such deposit per se is not a taxable service, since the consideration, in the form of interest, does not come under the Service Tax net. Thus, the inference that could safely be drawn from the above analysis is that even though deposit is an activity relating to banking business but not a taxable service under the Finance Act, 1994, as the consideration for such service is exempted.

38. The contention of the Advocates for the appellants that since lending is the core banking business and without accepting the deposit, lending business by the Bank since not possible, therefore, the activity of accepting deposit be considered as provision of service for the core business of the banking. Also, the argument of the appellants is that compliance of the provisions of DICGC Act, 1961 as per the RBI guidelines is mandatory and to commence and continue the business of banking, therefore, it is an input service used for providing output service. Both these arguments would not also hold good, firstly, in view of the above analysis that deposit by customers does not involve any service by the bank to the customer, and interest against loans or advances covered under the provisions of Section 66D of the Finance Act, 1994; secondly, this plea would have some basis under the definition of ‘input service’ as was in force prior to 01.4.2012, which, interalia in the inclusive portion contained the expression ‘the activities relating to business’. With the deletion of the said expression, all the activities which contribute to the commencement and continuation of the banking business may not be relevant for bringing the same within the fold of definition of ‘input service’ post amendment era. It is settled principle of interpretation that the specific ‘words’ or ‘expression’ used in the provision carries with it the intention of the legislature, therefore, its incorporation or deletion be given due importance in understanding the meaning of the provision. Thus, the deletion of the expression ‘activities relating to business’ post 01.4.2012 is with some significance and in that sense, the new amended provision has to be read and understood. Hence, the argument that to commence and continue the banking business, insuring the deposits of customers is mandatory, accordingly, the service tax paid on such insurance premium, become an input service, in our opinion could not be sustained under the amended definition of ‘input service’ brought into effect from 01.4.2012. Besides, it is not the business of the bankers which has been insured, but the deposit of the customers, with the social objective of the Government/RBI to protect the interest of small depositors, in the event the banks undergoing liquidation, the customers will be directly paid the insured amount.

39. Now, coming to the interpretation relating to Rule 6(3B) of CENVAT Credit Rules, 2004 advanced by the appellant in support of their argument that since already 50% of the credit was directed to be reversed under the said provision, therefore, recovery of the remaining 50% of the credit is untenable in law. To address the said argument, it is necessary to refer Rule 6 of the CENVAT Credit Rules, 2004, which reads as under:

6. [Obligation of a manufacturer or producer of final products and a [provider of output service]]

(1) The CENVAT credit shall not be allowed on such quantity of [input used in or in relation to the manufacture of exempted goods or for provision of exempted goods or for provision of exempted services, or input service used in or in relation to the manufacture of exempted goods and their clearance upto the place of removal or for [PROVIDED that the CENVAT credit on inputs shall not be denied to job worker referred to in rule 12AA of the Central Excise Rules, 2002, on the ground that the said inputs are used in the manufacture of goods cleared without payment of duty under the provisions of that rule.]

[Explanation 1: For the purposes of this rule, exempted goods or final products as defined in clauses (d) and (h) of rule 2 shall include non-excisable goods cleared for a consideration from the factory.

Explanation 2: Value of non-excisable goods for the purposes of this rule, shall be the invoice value and where such invoice value is not available, such value and where such invoice value is not available, such value shall be determined by using reasonable means consistent with the principles of valuation contained in the Excise Act and the rules made thereunder.]

[(2) Where a manufacturer or provider of output service avails of CENVAT credit in respect of any inputs services and manufactures such final products or provides such output service which are chargeable to duty or tax as well as exempted goods or services, then, the manufacturer or provider of output service shall maintain separate accounts for-

(a) the receipt, consumption and inventory of inputs used-
   (i) in or in relation to the manufacture of exempted goods;
   (ii) in or in relation to the manufacture of dutiable final products excluding exempted goods;
   (iii) for the provision of exempted services;
   (iv) for the provision of output services excluding exempted services; and

(b) the receipt and use of input services
   (i) in or in relation to the manufacture of exempted goods and their clearance upto the place of removal;
   (ii) in or in relation to the manufacture of dutiable final products, excluding exempted goods, and their clearance upto the place of removal;
   (iii) For the provision of exempted services; and
   (iv) For the provision of output services excluding exempted services, and shall take CENVAT credit only on inputs under sub-clauses (ii) and (iv) of clause (b).]

[(3) Notwithstanding anything contained in sub-rules (1) and (2), The manufacture of goods or the provider of output service, opting not to maintain separate accounts, shall follow 2[any one] of the following options, as applicable to him, namely:-

[i] (i) pay an amount equal to 4[six per cent.] of value of the exempted goods and 5 [seven per cent. of value of the] exempted services; or
(ii) pay and amount as determined under sub-rule (3A); or
(iii) maintain separate accounts for the receipt, consumption and inventory of inputs as provided for in clause (a) of sub-rule (2), take CENVAT credit only on inputs under sub-clauses (ii) and (iv) of said clause (a) and pay an amount as determined under sub-rule (i) and (ii) of clause (b) and sub-clauses (i) and (ii) of clause (c) of sub-rule (3A) shall not apply for such payment:

PROVIDED that if any duty of excise is paid on the exempted goods, the same shall be reduced from the amount payable under clause (i):

PROVIDED FURTHER that if any part of the value of a taxable service has been exempted on the condition that no CENVAT credit of inputs and input services, used for providing such taxable service, shall be taken then the amount specified in clause (i) shall be [seven per cent.] of the value so exempted:

[ PROVIDED that in case of transportation of goods or passengers by rail the amount required to be paid under clause (i) shall be an amount equal to 2 percent of value of the exempted services.]

Explanation I: If the manufacturer of goods or the provider of output service, avails any of the option under this sub-rule, he shall exercise such option for all exempted goods manufactured by him or, as the case may be, all exempted services provided by him, and such option shall not be withdrawn during the remaining part of the financial year.

Explanation II: For removal of doubt, it is hereby clarified that the credit shall not be allowed on inputs used exclusively in or in relation to the manufacture of exempted goods or for provision of exempted services and on input services used exclusively in or in relation to the manufacture of exempted goods and their clearance up to the place of removal or for provision of exempted services.

Explanation III: NO CENVAT credit shall be taken on the duty or tax paid on any goods and services that are not inputs or input services.]

(3A) ..................................................

[(3B)] Notwithstanding anything contained in sub-rules (1), (2) and (3), a banking company and a financial institution including a non-banking financial company, (engaged in providing services by way of extending deposits, loans or advances) shall be required to pay for every month an amount equal to fifty per cent. of the CENVAT credit availed on inputs and input services in that month.

40. A plain reading of the aforesaid sub-rule (1) reveals that CENVAT Credit is not admissible of the service tax paid on inputs used in the manufacture of exempted goods or for providing exempted service. The subsequent sub-rule (2) prescribes that in the event common inputs are used both for taxable and exempted services, separate accounts for receipt and use of input service in the providing taxable and exempted service be maintained. The sub-rule (3) lays down the procedures, for the assessee who is unable or choose not to comply with the provisions of sub-rule (2), whereunder he can opt to reverse certain presumptive amount i.e. 6%, or reverse the amount as per the formula prescribed under Sub-Rule (3A) or avail credit only on the inputs or input services used in the manufacture of dutiable goods or in providing taxable service on the basis of records maintained. However, sub-rule (3B), as was in force during the material time, which begins with the non-obstante clause, was applicable to banking company and financial institutions, engaged in providing services by way of extending deposits, loans or advances shall be required to pay 50% of the Credit availed on the inputs and input services during the month. Therefore, it is clear that irrespective of the situation whether common inputs or input services are used for providing output services and exempted services, a banking company and a financial institution is required to be 50% of the credit availed on the input and input services in that month. The argument of the appellant that they become eligible to avail credit of the service tax paid on insurance premium for deposits to DICGC, in view of the sub-rule (3B), in our opinion, is fallacious. The said sub-rule directs payment of 50% credit on the input or input services availed. In the aforesaid analysis, we came to the conclusion that the insurance premium paid on deposits to DICGC is not an input service, consequently, the service tax paid on such insurance premiums, cannot be available as credit to the appellant during a particular month. The payment of 50% credit means that it is from the admissible amount of credit on inputs or input services as defined under the cenvat credit rules, 2004.

41. Since we have decided the issues on merit holding that cenvat credit of the service tax paid on insurance premium is not admissible, we do not find necessary to deliberate other procedural issues denying the credit on the same.

42. On going through the case laws cited by the appellants and the revenue, we find that the same are pertaining to the definitions as was in existence period prior to 1.4.2011, hence could not be of much assistance and accordingly not applicable to the facts of the present case. The finding by SMC of this Tribunal in DSC Bank Ltd.’s case which was followed subsequently in Punjab National Bank’s case(supra) is per incuriam in as much it has been passed without considering the relevant statutory provisions and hence cannot be considered as binding precedent

43. On the issue of penalty, it cannot be denied that there has been a lot of changes in the cenvat credit provisions after 01.4.2011 and also on introduction of negative list service tax regime from July 2012. Therefore, since the present issue relates to interpretation of law, and the demand notices have been issued for normal period, we do not find justification in imposing penalty on the appellants.

44. To sum up, the amount of service tax paid on the insurance premium relating to the deposits of customer to DICGC by the Appellant Banks cannot be considered as an “input service” accordingly, credit of the said amount is not admissible to the Appellants. The amount of 50% of the available credit in a month, required to be paid under Rule 6(3B) of CCR, 2004 by the Appellants, cannot include the inadmissible credit of service tax paid on insurance premium paid to DICGC. Since the issue involved is a pure question of interpretation of law, no penalty is imposable on the appellants. Consequently, the impugned orders against which the appellants are in appeal are modified by setting aside penalties imposed and appeals are partly allowed to that extent.

45. As far as revenue’s appeal are concerned, Appeal No. ST/86160/16 which is filed challenging the impugned Order on the issue of penalty, the same is hereby rejected. The appeal No. ST/85915/16 which is filed assailing the impugned order on merit, the same is allowed, setting aside the impugned order of the Ld. Commissioner to the extent it is contrary to the findings recorded above.

46. All appeals are disposed of as above. MA disposed.

47. While concurring with the order as per learned brother Member (Judicial), I would add as follows:-

47.1 The issue for consideration can be summarized as follows:-

(i) Whether the services in taking deposits for the purpose of further lending can be considered as a service under Section 65B(44) of the Finance Act, 1994.

(ii) If so, whether such services fall under the negative list under Section 66D.

(iii) Whether the credit in respect of service tax paid on premium to insure the deposits can be considered as an input service for purpose of allowing the credit.

(iv) Whether Rule 6(3)(b) of the Cenvat Credit Rules be a factor for determining the eligibility to the credit in respect of services which otherwise do not qualify as input services under Rule 3 of the Cenvat Credit Rules.

47.2 Learned brother has succinctly laid down the facts of the case and also the provisions of law on the subject, hence I am not reproducing the same and would be referring to the para’s from his order.

47.3 In para 32, Section 65B(44) definition of ‘service’ has been extracted. It clearly shows that for an activity to be considered as a service, the said activity should be performed for a consideration. The word ‘consideration’ as used in the said section refers to the consideration by the service recipient of the service provided. Thus consideration is paid by recipient to the service provider. In the present case the deposits are being made by various depositors with the financial institutions/banks. Banks need these deposits for the purpose of conducting their business and in turn for receiving deposits, paid certain amounts as interest to the depositors. Thus banks are not receiving any consideration for deposits taken by them from the depositors. Even otherwise the DICGC Act provides for protection of the interest of the depositors and not the bank in case the bank goes worst. In absence of any consideration from the depositors to the bank for the activity of accepting deposits, the same cannot be considered as a service in terms of Section 65B(44).

47.4 If that be so, any service tax paid in relation to the premium for insuring interest of the depositors cannot be considered as an input service as defined under Rule 2 of the Cenvat Credit Rules, 2004. (The definition has been reproduced in para 30).

48. Further, Cenvat Credit Rules for the purpose of service tax has been made in terms of Section 94(eee) of the Finance Act, 1994. Any rules framed in terms of the said section need to be interpreted in terms of the said section and for purpose of carrying out the same section. Section 94(eee) of the Finance Act is as follows:-

“the credit of service tax paid on the services consumed or duties paid or deemed to have been paid on goods used for providing a taxable service.”

A reading of the said section makes it clear that the Central Government could have made rules only in respect of allowing the credit of the service tax paid on services consumed for providing a taxable service. In case the service provided is not a taxable service, in that case the Central Government could have made any rules for allowing credit in respect of service tax paid on the service consumed in providing such taxable service.

49. It has been argued that after 1.4.2012, the word ‘output service’ has been defined to mean a service provided by the provider of service located in the taxable territory. This means that output service could be both taxable and non-taxable service. Such interpretation will go contrary to the scheme of Section 94 (eee) and could not be agreed to. Definition of output service and will have to be read in consonance with the provisions of Section 94 (eee) of the Finance Act, 1994 and thus it will be referring only to taxable services. In case of Intercontinental Consultants and Technocrats [2018 (10) GSTL 0401 (SC)] = 2018-TIOL-76-SC-ST re-stated the said principle as follows:

27) The aforesaid principle is reiterated in Chenniappa Mudaliar holding that a rule which comes in conflict with the main enactment has to give way to the provisions of the Act.

28) It is also well established principle that Rules are framed for achieving the purpose behind the provisions of the Act, as held in Taj Mahal Hotel:

‘the Rules were meant only for the purpose of carrying out the provisions of the Act and they could not take away what was conferred by the Act or whittle down its effect.”

29) In the present case, the aforesaid view gets strengthened from the manner in which the Legislature itself acted. Realising that Section 67, dealing with valuation of taxable services, does not include reimbursable expenses for providing such service, the Legislature amended by Finance Act, 2015 with effect from May 14, 2015, whereby Clause (a) which deals with ‘consideration’ is suitably amended to include reimbursable expenditure or cost incurred by the service provider and charged, in the course of providing or agreeing to provide a taxable service. Thus, only with effect from May 14, 2015, by virtue of provisions of Section 67 itself, such reimbursable expenditure or cost would also form part of valuation of taxable services for charging service tax. Though, it was not argued by the learned counsel for the Department that Section 67 is a declaratory provision, nor could it be argued so, as we find that this is a substantive change brought about with the amendment to Section 67 and, therefore, has to be prospective in nature. On this aspect of the matter, we may usefully refer to the Constitution Bench judgment in the case of Commissioner of Income Tax (Central)-I, New Delhi v. Vatika Township Private Limited8 wherein it was observed as under:

“27. A legislation, be it a statutory Act or a statutory rule or a statutory notification, may physically consists of word sprinted on papers. However, conceptually it is a great deal more than an ordinary prose. There is a special peculiarity in the mode of verbal communication by a legislation. A legislation is not just a series of statements, such as one finds in a work of fiction/non-fiction or even in a judgment of a court of law. There is a technique required to draft a legislation as well as to understand a legislation. Former technique is known as legislative drafting and latter one is to be found in the various principles of “interpretation of statutes”. Vis-à-vis ordinary prose, a legislation differs in its provenance, layout and features as also in the implication as to its meaning that arise by presumptions as to the intent of the maker thereof.

28. Of the various rules guiding how a legislation has to be interpreted, one established rule is that unless a contrary intention appears, a legislation is presumed not to have a retrospective effect. The idea behind the rule is that a current law should govern current activities. Law passed today cannot apply to the events of the past. If we do something today, we do it keeping in view the law of today and in force and not tomorrow’s backward adjustment of it. Our belief in the nature of the law is founded on the bedrock that every human being is entitled to arrange his affairs by relying on the existing law and should not find that his plans have been retrospectively upset. This principle of law is known as lex prospicit non respicit: law looks forward not backward. As was observed in Phillips v. Eyre[(1870) LR6 QB 1], a retrospective legislation is contrary to the general principle that legislation by which the conduct of mankind is to be regulated when introduced for the first time to deal with future acts ought not to change the character of past transactions carried on upon the faith of the then existing law.

29. The obvious basis of the principle against retrospectivity is the principle of “fairness”, which must be the basis of every legal rule as was observed in L’Office Cherifien des Phosphates v. Yamashita-Shinnihon Steamship Co. Ltd. Thus, legislations which modified accrued rights or which impose obligations or impose new duties or attach a new disability have to be treated as prospective unless the legislative intent is clearly to give the enactment a retrospective effect; unless the legislation is for purpose of supplying an obvious omission in a former legislation or to explain a former legislation. We need not note the cornucopia of case law available on the subject because aforesaid legal position clearly emerges from the various decisions and this legal position was conceded by the counsel for the parties. In any case, we shall refer to few judgments containing this dicta, a little later."

50. Rule 3 of the Cenvat Credit Rules provides that credit of taxes paid on input services can be allowed only if it is used for providing an output service. In case there is no output service which is taxable or is falling under the category of exempted services or fall outside the definition of the service itself, CENVAT credit is not taxable except in a situation when the same common input service is being used for providing both taxable and nontaxable output service. In the present case the service tax paid for which credit is sought is in respect of the services which first, do not fall within the definition of service. - Secondly, if they fall within the definition of service, then they are excluded by virtue of negative list prescribed under Section 66D, hence get excluded from the scheme of output service. If deposits do not fall within the category of output service, CENVAT credit in respect of services that go exclusively for taking such deposits is not admissible. There can be certain services such as renting of immovable property, I.T. services which are used as common input service for accepting deposits and for providing other taxable services which qualify as output service under the scheme of Cenvat Credit Rules. Credit in respect of these input services, is eligible, and availed but to the extent of providing such non-taxable services/exempted services is sought to be reversed by application of Rule 6.

51. Rule 6(3B) referred to in para 38 of the order is a mechanism for reversal of credit used for such activities which are an output service but qualify to be exempt service. Rule 6(3B) when interpreted in light of Section 94 (eee) of the Finance Act, 1994, would imply that “Banking and financial institutions including a non-banking financial company engaged in providing services by way of extending deposits, loans or advances” are required to reverse 50% of the CENVAT credit availed i.e. eligible credit taken by them during that month. This rule does not create an additional mechanism for allowing credit of those service taxes paid which do not qualify to be eligible credit in terms of Rule 2 and 3 of the Cenvat Credit Rules, 2004.

52. It has been argued that phrase "services by way of extending deposits, loans or advances" used in Section 66D is identical to the phrase used in Rule 6(3B) of the CENVAT Credit Rules, 2004. Hence the credit in respect input services for extending/accepting deposits is admissible, in terms of the said Rule subject to reversal of 50% of the same. Fallacy in the said argument is self evident from the reading of the two provisions. While in Section 66D the phrases is used qua the expression service, in Rule 6(3B) it is used qua the person providing such service. Rule 6(3B) casts an obligation on such person who provides such service to reverse to reverse the eligible credit. This rule in no way creates an additional entitlement to the credit over and above as available in terms of Rule 3.

53. Thus Rule 6(3B) of CENVAT Credit Rules, 2004 cannot be used for extending the benefit of ineligible credit and thus allowing reversal of 50% of eligible and ineligible credit availed by the appellants during the month.

54. Thus the four questions posed in para 46.1 are answered as follows:

i. The activity of taking the deposits by Bank/Financial Institution, is not covered by the term "service" as defined by section 65B(44) of the Finance Act, 1994.

ii. The question becomes irrelevant as the deposits taken by the bank without any consideration are not covered by the term "service" as stated in ‘i.’ above.

iii. Since deposits have been held not to be service, they go out of the definition of output services as defined by Rule 2 of CENVAT Credit Rules, 2004, the CENVAT Credit in respect of the input/input services exclusively in relation to such deposits is not admissible.

iv. Rule 6(3B) of CENVAT Credit Rules, 2004 casts an obligation and specifies the quantum of eligible credit to be reversed by the person specified in the said rule. It does not create any eligibility to credit.

55. In light of above observations, I concur with the order of the learned brother Member (Judicial).
These 11 appeals are on identical issue of service tax liability of the appellants, on reverse charge basis, in respect of commission paid to the overseas agents as a consideration for providing marketing services, covered under category of “Business Auxiliary Service”. The period involved in these appeals are from 18/04/2006 to 06/07/2009. The Revenue initiated recovery proceedings by issue of show cause notices to all the appellants and the case was adjudicated by the Original Authority. The Original Authority confirmed service tax liability on the appellants for the period from 18/04/2006 in terms of Section 66A of Finance Act, 1994. However, no penalties were imposed except in two cases where penalty under Section 76 alongwith Section 77 (one case) was also imposed.

2. Contesting the impugned orders the learned Counsel for the appellant submitted on the following grounds:-

(a) The appellants are entitled for Cenvat credit on the service tax now demanded and the said credit is refundable under Rule 5 of Cenvat Credit Rules, 2004 or under Rule 18 of Central Excise Rules, 2002. Further, the commission paid to the foreign agent is eligible for exemption for part of the period, under Notification 41/2007-ST, as amended by Notification No. 17/2008-ST;

(b) the whole of service tax now demanded is available as a credit to the appellants and, as such, it is a revenue neutral situation and the demands was not sustainable on this ground alone. On the issue of revenue neutrality even the Original Authority dropped the demand in a similar set of facts vide order dated 29/07/2016 issued with reference to M/s Shree Nath Gum & Chemicals, Jodhpur and vide order dated 25/11/2016 in respect of M/s Mec Shot Blasting Equipment Pvt. Ltd. As such, when benefit is given to similar by placed assesses, the demand in the present cases are also should be held as untenable.

(c) major portion of the demands are also hit by time bar. There was a bonafide belief on the part of the appellants, regarding non-taxability of services rendered in foreign country, during the material time. Even the Board vide a Circular dated 08/10/2001 clarified that services provided beyond territorial waters of India are not liable to service tax. Even the Original Authority as well as First Appellate Authority held in these proceedings, that penalties are not imposable as the issue involved is one of interpretation of law and in any case, the matter is revenue neutral;

(d) all the notices which are subject matter of these appeals were issued prior to 10/05/2013 invoking proviso to Section 73 (1) of the Finance Act, 1994. As there is no case for suppression of facts with intent to evade payment of service tax, to demand for normal period also cannot be upheld. Section 73 was amended by Finance Act, 2013. W.e.f. 10/05/2013 sub-Section (2A) was inserted under Section 73. Prior to that date, there is no provision to restrict the demand to normal period, in case the demand for extended period was held to be not sustainable.

3. The learned AR submitted that Section 66A of the Act is very clear and unambiguous. Admittedly, the appellants availed services of foreign selling agents and paid consideration for such services. The liability to service tax under BAS cannot be disputed. The appellants are taking a plea regarding revenue neutrality and unsustainability of demand due to time bar only to avoid the legitimately payable service tax. The revenue neutrality can be a defence to plead for bonafide belief and nonexistence of malafide intent on the part of the assesses. Revenue neutrality by itself cannot be pleaded for non-payment of service tax. If such proposition is accepted any assessee who is entitled to avail Cenvat credit of tax paid can choose to not to pay tax at all. Such proposition will be against the very basis of taxation. Regarding sustainability of demand even for normal period, if the demand for extended period was held unsustainable, the learned AR submitted that the authorities who issued show cause notice are competent to issue notice both for normal period as well as for extended period. In case, if the demand was issued for extended period it does not mean that the normal period demand cannot be part of the same. In other words, prior to 10/05/2013 it is not the case that for each proceedings involving longer period two show cause notices are to be issued one for normal period and another for extended period. Such proposition will be legally unsustainable.

4. We have heard both the sides and perused the appeal records.

5. Admittedly, the appellants did avail services of foreign selling agents and such services are clearly covered by the tax entry Business Auxiliary Services in terms of Section 65 (19) of the Finance Act, 1994. Even the appellants do not challenge the legal position in this regard. However, the demands are contested on various other technical grounds.

6. The first one is to the effect that the demands are not sustainable as there is a revenue neutral situation. In case the service tax is paid on such services the appellants are eligible for credit of tax paid and thereafter eligible for refund of such tax under Rule 5 of Cenvat Credit Rules, 2004. The appellants relied on certain case laws in this regard. Tribunal in the case of Taxyard International vs. CCE, Trichy reported in 2015 (40) S.T.R. 322 (Tri. - Chennai) held that the appellants were exporters of taxable articles. The Foreign Trade Policy does not allow the export of taxes. Following the general principle that the tax paid by the appellants are available as a credit in that case, the Tribunal set aside the demand. We note that in the said case it was recorded that the demand was hit by limitation.

7. Before applying the principles of revenue neutrality, it is to be noted that the eligibility of credit to the appellant should be clearly established with supporting evidence. Further, the appellants claim for refund of the said credit is subject to various conditions stipulated under Rule 5 of Cenvat Credit Rules, 2004 or Rule 18 of Central Excise Rules, 2004. We cannot record a categorical finding regarding the eligibility of the appellants for such benefits as these matters are not before us for decision. As rightly contended by the Revenue that revenue neutrality as a concept will help the appellants to defend their case of bonafide belief against service tax liability and accordingly to defend against penal action or demand for extended period. The penal action and demand for extended period arises when the ingredients of suppression, willful mis-statement etc. are established. Further, we also note that there can be no general rule to the effect that the assessee need not pay tax if the same is available as a credit to them. In other words, a purported revenue neutral situation cannot, by any means, mitigate a tax liability of an assessee, which is otherwise payable in view of clear legal position of charging section and the tax entry, found correctly applicable to the assessee. The whole scheme of Cenvat credit as envisaged by the Cenvat Credit Rules, 2004 will become redundant if the proposition of revenue neutrality is invoked for non-payment of service tax or duty on inputs/input services. We find that such interpretation of law will be against the very basis of value added taxation and leaves the discharge of tax liability to the discretion of the assessee. We find no legal sanction for such interpretation.

8. Having examined and upheld the liability of the appellants to pay service tax on reverse charge basis, in respect of services availed from foreign commission agents, we note that the appellants have a strong case regarding limitation. Wherever the demands issued invoking the provisions applicable to extended period, we find that the same is not legally sustainable for such longer period. The Original Authority himself recorded that the issue is one of interpretation of provision of law and refrained from imposing penalty. It is relevant to note that the penalty was not waived under the provisions of Section 80, but the penalty was held to be not imposable. A perusal of the impugned orders indicate that no sustainable reasons were recorded to support the demand for extended period. We find, only a passing remark to the effect that the appellant did not inform the facts to the Department and these facts came to the notice of the Department only at the time of enquiry and, hence, the appellants suppressed the facts from the Department. We find such summary assertions cannot support the demand for extended period. Admittedly, the tax liability under reverse charge basis itself is a new concept and was subjected to various litigations and clarifications. In such situation, we find no scope for invoking extended period for demand of service tax. There is no case for fraud, collusion, willful mis-statement or suppression of facts with intent to evade service tax in these cases. Accordingly, we hold the service tax liability should be restricted to the normal period available under Section 73 (1) of the Finance Act, 1994.

9. The appellants contested that once the demand is held to be not sustainable for extended period, the same cannot be held to be tenable even for normal period. The amendment carried out in Section 73 w.e.f. 10/05/2003 was quoted in support of such assertion. It is the case of the appellant that the demand for normal period can stand only for the period after 10/05/2013 when sub-Section (2A) was inserted under Section 73. The appellants relied on the decision of Hon’ble Calcutta High Court in Infinity Infotech Parks Ltd. vs. Union of India reported in 2014 (36) S.T.R. 37. The Hon’ble High Court relied on the decision of Hon’ble Supreme Court in Alcobex Metals - 2003 (4) SCC 630. However, on examination of these decisions, we find that no law has been laid down by the Hon’ble Supreme Court regarding the non-sustainability of demand for normal period in case the demand for longer period was held untenable. The Hon’ble Calcutta High Court in Naresh Kumar & Co. Pot. Limited vs. Union of India reported in 2014 (35) S.T.R. 506 (Calcutta) held as below ::

“13. .... In case of Collector of Central Excise, Jaipur v. Alcobex Metals reported in 2003 (153) E.L.T. 241 (S.C.), one of the plea agitated before the Supreme Court was whether the show cause notices can still be treated as invalid for the period which is within the normal period of limitation. The Apex Court did not lay down the law on the above subject but proceeded to declare the show cause notice as invalid on the ground that the same was issued by an authority not competent under the relevant statute. The aforesaid judgment, in my view, is not pointer to an issue whether the show cause notice can still be validated for a period which is within the normal period enshrined under the statute. .....”
10. The provision of Section 73 (1) are as below:-

"Where any service tax has not been levied or paid or has been short-levied or short-paid or erroneously refunded, Central Excise Officer may, within eighteen months from the relevant date, serve notice on the person chargeable with the service tax which has not been levied or paid or which has been short-levied or short-paid or the person to whom such tax refund has erroneously been made, requiring him to show cause why he should not pay the amount specified in the notice :

Provided that where any service tax has not been levied or paid or has been short-levied or short-paid or erroneously refunded by reason of -

(a) fraud ; or

(b) collusion ; or

(c) willful mis-statement ; or

(d) suppression of facts; or

(e) contravention of any of the provisions of this Chapter or of the rules made thereunder with intent to evade payment of service tax, by the person chargeable with the service tax or his agent, the provisions of this sub-section shall have effect, as if, for the words ["eighteen months"], the words "five years" had been substituted".

11. It is clear that in show cause notice for demand of service tax short paid or not paid can be issued only under the provisions of sub-Section (1) of Section 73. The proviso to the said sub- Section does not form the basis for demand of service tax. The said proviso only has got the effect of fixing the time period of 5 years instead of 18 months for issue of show cause notice, if such short payment is by any one of the reasons mentioned therein. As such, it is clear that any show cause notice issued by Central Excise officer for demanding service tax can be only in terms of Section 73 (1). If the ingredients of proviso to the said sub- Section is found to be not available in respect of any show cause notice, then apparently the Adjudicating Authority can restrict the demand for the normal period, as per the main sub-Section. This is clear even from the newly inserted sub-Section (2A) of the said Section. It states that where any appellate Authority or Tribunal or Court concludes that the notice under proviso to sub-Section (1) is not sustainable, then the Central Excise officer shall determine the service tax payable for the period of 18 months, as if the notice has been issued with a limitation applicable under sub-Section (1). It is clear that the said sub-Section refers to only findings by the Appellate Authority. It means that when the Original Authority himself decides, that based on evidences, the ingredients of proviso clause is not available in a particular case then he himself will restrict to the demand to the normal period. Such restriction of demand to the normal period can be done in case of direction by appellate Authority also. Considering the fact that there cannot be two different show cause notices against the same assessee simultaneously, one under the main sub-Section (1) of Section 73 and another one invoking proviso to sub- Section (1) of Section 73, it is apparent that a demand issued for longer period includes the demand of normal period, falling under the very same main sub-Section. It is relevant to note that the officer who issued the show cause notice is competent to issue, invoking either one of the time limit. In case, the limitation of longer period was invoked, it is well within his right to determine the demand for normal period also.

12. Considering the above legal position, we find that there is no merit in the submission of the appellant that when the demand for longer period was held to be not sustainable, then the whole demand will fall. As discussed above that such proposition is not supported by the provisions of Section 73. We may also note that here we are dealing with period of limitation, not the power to demand and recover short paid tax. The Hon’ble Supreme Court in Thirumalai Chemicals Ltd. vs. Union of India reported in 2011 (268) E.L.T. 296 (S.C.) held that law of limitation is generally regarded as procedural and its object is not to create any right but to prescribe periods within which legal proceedings be instituted for enforcement of rights which exist under substantive law. The Hon’ble Supreme Court held as below :-
15. Law on the subject has also been elaborately dealt with by this Court in various decisions and reference may be made to few of those decisions. This Court in Garikapati Veeraya v. N. Subbiah Choudhry & Ors. - AIR 1957 SC 540, New India Insurance Company Limited v. Smt. Shanti Mishra - (1975) 2 SCC 840, Hitendra Vishnu Thakur & Ors. v. State of Maharashtra & Ors. - (1994) 4 SCC 602; Maharaja Chintamani Saran Nath Shahdeo v. State of Bihar & Ors. - (1999) 8 SCC 16; Shyam Sundar & Ors. v. Ram Kumar & Anr. - (2001) 8 SCC 24, has elaborately discussed the scope and ambit of an amending legislation and its retrospectivity and held that every litigant has a vested right in substantive law but no such right exists in procedural law. This court has held the law relating to forum and limitation is procedural in nature whereas law relating to right of appeal even though remedial is substantive in nature.

16. Therefore, unless the language used plainly manifests in express terms or by necessary implication a contrary intention a statute divesting vested rights is to be construed as prospective, a statute merely procedural is to be construed as retrospective and a statute which while procedural in its character, affects vested rights adversely is to be construed as prospective”.

13. The right of the Revenue to recover service tax not paid or short paid is a substantive right in terms of Section 73 (1). As already noted that the said provision is invoked by Central Excise officer to demand service tax, not paid or short paid. The period of limitation being procedural has to be examined in this context. In the present cases demands were issued within the prescribed periods, by the competent officer.

14. In view of above discussion and analysis, we hold that the appellants are liable to service tax on reverse charge basis in respect of commission paid to foreign agents. Such liability will be only w.e.f. 18/04/2006 and restricted to the normal period of demand. There can be no justification for imposition of penalty on any of the appellants. Accordingly, the penalty imposed in two cases is set aside. The appeals are disposed of in the above terms.

Per: Rachna Gupta:

2. The facts, in brief, for the impugned adjudication are that the appellants are engaged in manufacture of excisable goods and are also availing Cenvat credit benefit under Cenvat Credit Rules, 2004. Department, during the scrutiny of their record observed that the appellants are manufacturing and clearing casting items (machinery parts) to various customers. These casting items were manufactured as per the specification of drawing supplied by the buyers of such casting items. With this observation, Department while forming an opinion that the value of the said drawings has not been added in the assessable value that the show cause notice dated 4 November 2008 was served upon the appellant proposing the recovery of amount of Rs. 6,33,497/- alongwith interest at the appropriate rate and the proportionate penalty. The said proposal was initially confirmed by the original Adjudicating Authority vide order No. 94 dated 22 July 2009. The appeal thereof has been rejected vide the order under challenge. Being aggrieved, the appellant before this Tribunal.

3. We have heard Ms. Surabhi Sinha, learned Counsel for the appellant and Shri V.B. Jain, learned Departmental Representative for the Revenue. It is submitted on behalf of the learned Counsel for the appellant that the issue is no more res-integra. It stands already decided that when there is no additional consideration flowing from the customers to the assessee the cost of any drawing provided by the customer is beyond the scope of Section 4 of Central Excise Act, 1994. Learned Counsel has relied upon the final order of this Tribunal in the case of Commissioner of Central Excise, Pune versus Maharashtra Scooter Ltd. reported in 2009 (246) E.L.T. 209 (Tri. - Mumbai) . The learned Counsel has also impressed upon that there was prevalent confusion during the relevant period of dispute regarding the inclusion of the value of drawing and technical knowhow etc. to be included in the assessable value. Hence, it cannot be said that the appellant had an intention to evade the duty rather the appellant under bonafide belief for non-payment. Hence, the penalty has wrongly been confirmed against the appellant. The order is accordingly set aside. It is prayed to be allowed.

While rebutting the said submission the learned Departmental Representative has placed reliance on the final order of this Tribunal No. A/56665 of 2017 - EX (DB) dated 21 September 2017 in the case of M/s Magadh Precision Equipments Ltd. versus Commissioner of Central Excise, Indore submitting that the issue about the inclusion of casting of drawings rather stands decided in favour of the department. The appeal is accordingly prayed to be rejected.

4. After hearing both the parties, we observe and hold as follows :-
The only contention to be adjudicated is as to whether the value of drawings provided by the customers to the appellant for manufacturing of the casting items has to be included in the assessable value or not.

Section 4 of Central Excise Act read with Rule 6 of Central Excise Valuation (Determination of Price of the Excisable Goods), Rules, 2000 are relevant for the purpose. Both read as follows :-

Section 4 :

(1) Where under this Act, the duty of excise is chargeable on any excisable goods with reference to their value, then, on each removal of the goods, such value shall -

(a) In a case where the goods are sold by the assessee, for delivery of the time and place of the removal, the assessee and the buyer of the goods are not related and the price is the sole consideration for the sale, be the transaction value;

(b) In any other case, including the case where the goods are not sold, be the value determined in such manner as may be prescribed.

Explanation : For the removal of doubts, it is hereby declared that the price-cum-duty of the excisable goods sold by the assessee shall be the price actually paid to him for the goods sold and the money value of the additional consideration, if any, flowing directly or indirectly from the buyer to the assessee in connection with the sale of such goods, and such price-cum-duty, excluding sales tax and other taxes, if any, actually paid, shall be deemed to include the duty payable on such goods."

Rule 6 reads as follows :-

"Where the excisable goods are sold in the circumstances specified in clause (a) of sub-section (1) of Section 4 of the Act except the circumstance where the price is not the sole consideration for sale, the value of such goods shall be deemed to be the aggregate of such transaction value and the amount of money value of any additional consideration flowing directly or indirectly from the buyer to the assessee."

Explanation 1 - For removal of doubts, it is hereby clarified that the value, apportioned as appropriate, of the allowing goods and services, whether supplied directly or indirectly by the buyer free of charge or at reduced cost to use in connection with the production and sale of such goods, to the extent that such value has not been included in the price actually paid or payable, shall be treated to be the amount of money value of additional consideration flowing directly or indirectly from the buyer to the assessee in relation to sale of the goods being valued and aggregated accordingly, namely :-

(i) Value of materials, components, parts and similar items relatable to such goods ;

(ii) value of tools, dies, moulds, drawings, blue prints, technical maps and charts and similar items used in the production of such goods;

(iii) value of material consumed, including packaging materials, in the production of such goods ;

(iv) value of engineering, development, art work, design work and plans and sketches undertaken elsewhere than in the factory of production and necessary for the production of such goods".

5. The bare reading makes it clear that the statute provides for adding the value of drawings, blue prints, technical expertise, maps and of such similar items as are used in production of the goods. Apparently and admittedly the drawings herein, for the goods manufactured/produced, are provided by the customers and the value thereof has not been included in the assessable value. Rule 6, as above, specifically includes the value thereof in the assessable value. Irrespective those drawings have been provided free of cost to the appellants, the value thereof is required to be included as per Rule 6 itself. Even in terms of Section 4, as above, the value of these drawings is something else in addition to money. Hence, we are of the opinion that the value of the impugned drawings is liable to be included in the assessable value. Thus we have no reason to differ from the earlier decision of this Bench in final order No. A/56665 of 2017 - EX (DB) dated 21 September 2017 in the case of M/s Magadh Precision Equipments Ltd. versus Commissioner of Central Excise, Indore. The decision of the Tribunal, as relied upon by the appellant is opined to be not applicable to the facts and circumstances of the present case.

6. Coming to the aspect of imposition of penalty on the appellant. The appellant has taken the plea of prevalent confusion but we observe from the record that the appellant was several time asked by the department to produce the evidence about receipt of drawings free of charge and that the same never provided nor ever was declared in the ER-1 returns. Such a conduct of the appellant rather corroborate the alleged intention of the appellant to not to include the value of drawings into the assessable value so as to evade the duty. Otherwise also, the question of confusion has no meaning once it is statutory mandate that any other expertise as that of drawings, technical knowhow etc., if is utilized in the manufacture of a product the value thereof, irrespective not in terms of money has to be the part of the transaction value. We are therefore not inclined to accept the submission of the appellant. Accordingly, we do not find any infirmity in the order under challenge. Same is hereby upheld. The appeal stands rejected. The miscellaneous application filed by the appellant also stands disposed of.

APPEARANCE:
Shri Z.U. Alvi, Advocate for Appellant
Shri Anupam Kumar Tiwari, Authorized Representative for Respondent
The issue involved in all the three appeals is identical and as such all the appeals are being disposed of by a common order.

2. After hearing both sides duly represented by Shri Z.U. Alvi, advocate for the appellant and Shri Anupam Kumar Tiwari, AR for the Revenue. I find that the appellant, who is engaged in the manufacture of transformers and parts thereof, cleared the manufactured goods to various customers under provisional invoices inasmuch as in large number of contracts, the price variation clause was available. The final price of the goods, so supplied were arrived at subsequently and the appellant paid the differential duty, on finalization of the assessment, by way of issuance of supplementary invoices. The dispute in the present appeal relates to the interest confirmed against them. The lower authorities by relying upon Hon’ble Supreme Court’s judgement in the case of CCE, Pune vs. SKF Ltd. as reported in 2009 (07) LCX001 has held against the appellant.

3. It is seen that the Hon’ble Supreme Court decision in the case of SKF Limited was subsequently referred to three Judge Bench in the case of Steel Authority of India Limited. The three Judge Bench of the Hon’ble Supreme Court in the case of SAIL reported as 2019 (366) E.L.T. 769 (S.C.) has held that where the differential duty, on account of variation/enhancement in the price is paid subsequently, the interest element gets raised from the date when the duty was required to be paid till the date when it was paid.

4. As the issue now stands decided against the assessee by the above referred decision of the Hon’ble Supreme Court, I find no reasons to interfere in the impugned orders of the authorities below and reject all the three appeals.

The present impugned order stands passed by the Commissioner in remand proceedings when the matter was remanded by the Tribunal vide Final Order No.FO/A/57508-57530/2013-EX(DB) dated 07 August, 2013 for fresh decision in the light of the law declared by the Hon’ble Supreme Court in the case of M/s Salora International Ltd. V/s Commissioner of C.EX., New Delhi reported at 2012 (284) E.L.T. 3 (S.C.).

2. As per facts on record, the appellant is engaged in the manufacture of sub assemblies of colour T.V. and audio systemsetc. falling under Chapter 85 of the First Schedule to the Central Excise Tariff Act, 1985. The dispute relates to the correct classification of the colour Television (C.T.V.) sub assembly manufactured by the appellants and cleared by them. It is seen that during the period February 2000, appellants had filed declaration claiming the goods to be complete unit of C.T.V. and the same were being cleared as C.T.Vs only. Thereafter they changed their stand and started clearing the goods as sub-assembly of CTVs . Revenue by entertaining a believe that the goods cleared by appellant were nothing but complete CTV sets, raised demands against them by way of issuance of two show cause notices dated 06 December, 2001 covering the period from November, 2000 to 31 March, 2001 for demand of Rs.73,50,272/- and vide show cause notice dated 27 February, 2002 covering the period April, 2001 to 31 July, 2001 raising the demand to the extent of Rs.43,31,748/-. The said demands stand confirmed by the Original Adjudicating Authority totaling to the extent of Rs.1,16,82,020/- along with confirmation of interest and imposition of penalty to the extent of Rs.20 lakhs and Rs.10 lakhs in terms of Rule 173 Q of Central Excise Rules read with Rule 25 of the said Rules. The order passed by the Commissioner is impugned before the Tribunal.

3. After hearing both the sides duly represented by Shri Rajesh Kumar learned advocate appearing on behalf of the appellant and Shri Anupam Kumar Tiwari, leaner A.R., we note that the crux of the issue relates to the correct classification of the products manufactured by the assesseei.e. whether the same have to be treated as sub-assembly of CTV or a complete colour television set. The appellants were clearing cabinets fitted with a coloured picture tube/Spk. Packing material etc as also CTV chassis (populated PCB duly wired with remote control). The said goods were being cleared by them to M/s C.K. Electronics (P.) Limited, Mohali (Punjab) and M/s TTRV Electronics Products (P) Limited, Bhiwadi. The buyers were assembling these sub-assemblies and were clearing the same as complete CTVs. The Revenue has observed that the goods namely cabinet fitted colour picture tube and CTV chassis constitute a complete CTV and need only screw fitting/connection. The model and function of CTV are well defined and the same have all the essential character of television. As such, the product would fall under complete television set classifiable under Chapter sub-heading 8528.00 instead of Chapter sub-heading 8529.00 claimed by the party. The Adjudicating Authority has observed that CTV basically consists of PVBs and CPT fitted inside a cabinet and connected through wire and cables. The audio and video signals are received through devices known as assembly and sub-assembly. Assemblies and sub-assemblies are manufactured by mounting complicated integrated electric circuits on board in a preplanned way. By connecting all such assemblies and sub-assemblies, essential character of a signal receiving device come into existence. Inasmuch as chassis, sub-assembly was manufactured by the party by mounting various integrated circuits and components, they loose their character as a part and are called as sub-assemblies and various sub-assemblies like cabinet assembly, chassis assembly etc have essential character of TV receiver. The appellant has complete facility to manufacture the CTVs. The various sub-assemblies along with picture tubes and other component parts are captive used by appellants to manufacture CTVs and the same are also sent to the buyers for specific models which can simply be assembled at the buyers end. The process undertaken by the buyer at their end was only fitting of the assembly and sub-assembly in the chasis and connection of wire/cables. No activity of manufacture of substantial nature takes place at the end of buyers. Even the packing material was being supplied by the appellant. The appellant was not selling these assemblies/sub assemblies in the general market or to OEMs, who were not selling the same in the open market. The same number of assemblies /sub-assemblies were supplied to the OEMs as is the number of CTVs intended to be assembled at their premises. The supplying of assembly or sub-assembly was not in bulk but was matching each television sets. He has further observed that the assemblies or subassemblies supplied by the appellant to the television manufacturers were exactly in the same number as was the number of CTV sets assembled by the buyers in their premises. They were just put together in assembled form and no vital manufacturing activity took place at their end. As such, by relying upon the Hon’ble Supreme Court decision in the case of Salora International Ltd. referred supra he held that the goods cleared from the appellant’s factory were fully manufactured coloured television sets and have to be assessed accordingly.

4. Learned advocate appearing for the appellant has not disputed the fact that as per the Hon’ble Supreme court decision in the case of Salora International Ltd., the complete set of assembly and sub-assembly cleared form the manufacturer’s premises and requiring only assembling in the buyers premises so as to convert them into coloured television sets have to be assessed as CTVs only. However, his contention is that in case of Salora International Ltd. the manufacturer was first assembling all the parts in his factory so as to check the working of the CTVs and thereafter the goods were being unassembled and cleared as parts.
However, we note that the said factual difference, if at all, does not distinguish the present case from the facts of the case available in the decision of the Salora International Ltd. Even if the said fact is taken into consideration, the same will not make substantial difference inasmuch as in terms of interpretative Rule 2(a), the incomplete television or unfinished television having essential character of television is to be assessed as complete television when removed in unassembled or disassembled from.

Inasmuch as the goods being cleared from the assessee’s factory were having all the essential character of CTV, the same were required to be assessed under Chapter Heading 8528.00. Inasmuch as the issue stands decided by the said decision of the Hon’ble Supreme Court in the case of Salora International Ltd., we find no justifiable reason to take a view different than the one taken by the Hon’ble Supreme Court. We, further note that the said decision of the Hon’ble Supreme Court was followed by the Tribunal in the case of Vewvox Systems V/s Commissioner of Cus., E. EX. & S.T., Noida-I reported at 2017 (355) E.L.T. 148 (Tri.-All.) and it was held that various parts of television sets cleared in SKD conditions have to be treated as clearance of complete television sets falling under sub-heading 8529.00. Assessee’s appeal against the said decision of the Tribunal stands rejected by the Hon’ble Supreme Court reported as Vewvox Systems V/s Commissioner reported at 2017 (355) E.L.T. A24 (S.C.). The Tribunal decision in the case of Salora International Ltd. V/s Commissioner of C.Ex., Delhi-II reported at 2018 (12) G.S.T.L. 173 (Tri.-Del.), by following the earlier decision of the Hon’ble Supreme Court, is also to the same effect.

5. In view of the forgoing we find that the issue stand covered by the Hon’ble Supreme Court in the case of Salora International Ltd., and find no infirmity in the impugned order of the Commissioner. The same is accordingly upheld and appeal is rejected.

(Arising out of Order-in-Original/CCE/Shillong No.01/2009 dated 21.01.2009 passed by Commissioner of Central Excise, Shillong)

M/s Adhunik Meghalaya Steel Pvt. Ltd. ...........Appellant

VERSUS

Commissioner of Central Excise, Shillong ..........Respondent

Appearance:

Shri A.K.Bhattacharya, Consultant for the Appellant

Shri K.Chowdhury, Authorized Representative for the Appellant

CORAM:

HON’BLE MR.JUSTICE DILIP GUPTA, PRESIDENT HON’BLE
SHRI P. ANJANI KUMAR, TECHNICAL MEMBER

FINAL ORDER NO.75346/2020

Date of Hearing 16.01.2020

Date of Decision : 16.01.2020

Per P.AnjaniKumar :

1. Heard both sides and perused the records of the case.

2. Briefly stated the facts of the case are that the appellant is engaged in the manufacture of excisable goods, i.e. Ferro Silicon and Ferro Silico Manganese falling under Chapter 72 of the Central Excise Tariff Act, 1985. The appellant has been availing benefit of Notification No.32/99-CE dated 08.07.1999 as applicable to specific areas in the State of Meghalaya. During the period October 2006 to February 2007, the appellant removed capital goods, namely, Sub-merged Arc Furnace after using the same in the factory; it filed a refund claim at the end of the month in terms of Notification and such refund was granted.

3. Revenue issued a show-cause notice dated 24 September 2007 proposing to recover the refund granted alleging that the same was erroneously granted; the said show-cause notice was issued under the provisions of Section 11A of Central Excise Act, 1944; the Show-cause notice was confirmed by the learned Commissioner of Central Excise, Shillong vide Order-in-Original/CCE/Shillong No.01/2009 dated 21.01.2009. Hence, this appeal.

4. The learned Counsel for the appellant contends that the issuance of show-cause notice under the provisions of Section 11A of Central Excise Act, 1944, is erroneous and the learned Commissioner should have utilized the provision of review as contained in Section 35E (2) of the Central Excise Act, 1944. In his defence, he relies on the decision of the Hon’ble Guwahati High Court in the case of Commissioner of Central Excise, Shillong Vs. Jellalpore Tea Estate as reported in 2011 (268) ELT 14 (Gau.); on the decision of the Tribunal in the case of Commissioner of Central Excise, Shillong Vs. Assam Surfactants as reported in 2007 (217) ELT 123 (Tri.-Kolkata).
5. Per contra, the learned Authorised Representative, appearing for the Revenue, submits that the brief issues involved in the instant case are as to whether the amount is payable under Sub-Rule 5 of Rule 3 of Cenvat Credit Rules, 2004, or not and as to whether the exemption in terms of Notification No.32/99-CE dated 08.07.1999, is applicable to the goods, which are procured by the appellants and removed afterwards. Learned Authorised Representative also submits that the exemption would be applicable only to the goods to be produced by a manufacturer in the specified area. Distinguishing the judgment of the Hon’ble Guwahati High Court, learned Authorised Representative submits that Hon’ble High Court has referred to the decision of the Madras High Court in the case of Ponds (India) Ltd. Vs. Assistant Collector of Excise, Madras as reported in 1994 (73) ELT 272 (Mad.); impugned goods in the case before the Hon’ble Guwahati High Court, were the goods manufactured by the appellant therein, but not the goods procured by them. The learned Authorised Representative for the Revenue, relies on the judgment of the Hon’ble Supreme Court in the case of Grasim Industries Ltd. Vs. Commissioner of Central Excise, Bhopal as reported in 2011 (271) ELT 164 (S.C.), wherein it was held that in order to recover the refund, Section 11A is the appropriate remedy.

6. We find that there are two issues involved in the instant appeal that require our attention. The first one is on the applicability of the provisions of Section 11A to recover amount refunded in such cases. Learned Counsel for the appellant submitted that Section 11A would not be applicable in the instant case, as the issue is about area based exemption and refund was granted in accordance with the mechanism provided in the Notification. It is the submission that refund did not arise out of an order of assessment of goods or applicable rate of duty.

7. Section 11A of the Central Excise Act, 1944 reads as under:-

“11A. Recovery of duties not levied or not paid or short paid or short-levied or short-paid or erroneously refunded

8. A plain reading gives a clear understanding that it not only provides for the recovery of duties not paid/ not levied or short paid/short levied but also provides for recovery of duty erroneously refunded irrespective of the fact whether or not the refund is on account of any assessment. Alternatively, any order under any provision of this Act or the Rules made thereunder amounts to assessment if such a decision concerns the levy of duty. It is to be seen that basically the exemption provided by the Notification No 32/99 is operationalised by way of granting refund of the duty paid by the units which claimed the exemption contained therein. It cannot be said that the refund did not arise from an order of assessment. The scheme of Section 11A indicates that it would be operational even in cases of erroneous refunds whether or not such refunds relate to assessment. In the operation of Notification No 32/99, the assessee is required to pay the duty initially and then claim it as a refund at the end of the month. In view of the same, we are not inclined to accept the contention of the learned Counsel for the appellant. We find that the Commissioner has deliberated in a detailed manner on the issue as to whether, the amount that is payable in terms of sub-rule (5) of Rule 3 of the Cenvat Credit Rules, 2004, is a duty or an amount. We find that going by a plain reading of the provisions of the Rule, it is an amount. The only concession given to the manufacturer is that they can clear such inputs or capital goods on payment of amount equal to credit availed by them, when the inputs or capital goods, are received in their factory. Understandably, the amount is to be paid from the credit of duties availed by the manufacturer, on the inputs and capital goods used by him. Once the amount is refunded in terms of Notification 32/99, it acquires the nature of duty and therefore, the provisions of Section 11A are attracted. Therefore, we find that the Revenue has correctly invoked the provisions of Section 11A to recover the amount or duty erroneously refunded in the instant case.
9. Ongoing through the provisions of the Notification No.32/99-CE dated 08.07.1999, it is abundantly clear that the scheme of the Notification is available to the manufacturer in the specified area mentioned therein in the Notification. Paragraph 1A of the Notification clearly states that “in cases where all the goods produced by a manufacturer are eligible for exemption under this notification, the exemption contained in this notification shall be available subject to the condition that the manufacturer first utilizes whole of the Cenvat credit available to him on the last day of the month under consideration for payment of duty on goods cleared during such month and pays only the balance amount in cash”. The provisions of this notification indicate that the intention of the Government is to give incentive to the manufacturer, who establishes a new unit/production facility or incurs expenses to increase the capacity of the existing factory in the specified area with a view to boost the industrial infrastructure. Therefore, we find that the exemption contained therein, though made operational through a refund mechanism, shall be applicable to the goods manufactured by the units and not to goods procured and later cleared by the manufacturer. Cenvat Credit has been allowed to manufacturers to reduce the cascading effect of taxation and as such manufacturers were allowed to avail the credit of duties paid on inputs and Capital goods. A provision has been made in the Cenvat Rules to allow the manufacturers to remove the inputs and Capital Goods as such or after use by debiting the credit availed by them or by paying an amount attributable to the credit availed in the cases they have no sufficient balance of credit. These Rules are made to operationalise the credit mechanism. For this reason, goods produced and cleared by a manufacturer and inputs and Capital goods cleared by a manufacturer after procurement cannot be equated and it cannot be argued that exemption available for goods manufactured in specified areas is applicable to inputs and Capital Goods procured and cleared by the manufacturer. An interpretation that the exemption would be applicable to all the goods cleared by the manufacturer, would defeat the very purpose of the notification. At this juncture, learned Authorised Representative, highlighting the intention of the Notification, submits that the intention of the Government was to incentivize production activity in specified areas: If exemption is made applicable to inputs and capital goods cleared by manufacturers after procurement, the specified areas would turn out to be trading hubs rather than production centres. We find that there is substance in the contention of the learned Authorised Representative.

10. Learned Counsel for the appellant, intervenes and submits that they have acted upon subsequent to a letter submitted by them to the jurisdictional Superintendent on 4 October 2006 and a clarification given by the Range Superintendent on 12.10.2000. We find that the Superintendent has clarified only to the extent that the appellant is required to first utilize the Cenvat credit available and the balance be paid through PLA when capital goods are removed. We find that the clarification by the Superintendent, does not in any manner confer any right to the appellant to make a claim of refund of duty paid in terms of Notification No.32/99-CE dated 08.07.1999.

11. The learned Counsel for the appellant further, seeks to rely on the CBEC Circular dated 9 July 1999. On going through the provisions of the said Circular, we find that the said Circular was issued to operationalise the notification and as such cannot come to the rescue of the appellant.

12. In view of the above, we find that the Department has correctly invoked the provisions of Section 11A to recover the amount refunded erroneously. Reliance placed by the appellant on the decision of the Hon’ble Guwahati High Court and the exemption claimed, shall not be applicable to the goods procured and cleared by the appellant.

13. In view of the above, we find that the appeal is devoid of any merit and thus, liable to be dismissed. Accordingly, the Appeal is dismissed.

All these three appeals are involved the same issue and hence, are being disposed off together.

2. Ex. Appeal No.494 of 2009, is filed by the assessee, M/s H.S.Builders against confirmation of demand of Rs.5,26,615/- and imposition of penalty of an equal amount. Ex.Appeal No.148 of 2010 is filed by M/s Gurmit Construction against the demand of duty of Rs.19,41,722/- and imposition of equal amount of penalty by the original authority, which has been remanded by the first appellate authority for re-computation after taking the pricecollected by the appellant as cum-duty price. Ex.Appeal No.206 of 2010 is filed by the Revenue against the first appellate authority giving the benefit cum-duty price while confirming the demand.

3. The facts of the case in brief are that the assessee herein are engaged in fabrication of steel tanks for Oil Companies, such as, M/s Bharat Petroleum Company Ltd., M/s Indian Oil Corporation Ltd. and M/s Indo-Burma Petroleum Company Ltd. as per their specifications. The Department received intelligence that the appellants did not obtain Central Excise Registration even after exceeding the SSI exemption limit of turnover Rs.1.00 Crore. Accordingly, the Officers investigated the matter, inspected the premises of the assesses, issued summons and recorded statements and came to the conclusion that the assesses have not obtained Central Excise Registration nor have they paid duty on the steel tanks, which have been manufactured for the aforesaid Oil Companies. Show-cause notices were issued proposing to recover the aforesaid short paid duty and impose penalties. While proposing to recover the duty for extended period of limitation in the show-cause notices, no specific allegation of fraud, collusion, willful mis-statement, suppression of facts or violation of provisions of Act and Rules, with an intent to evade payment of duty, has been alleged or evidenced.

4. The specific activities of the appellants are that they purchase steel sheets and bend them into cylindrical structures and at the site attach side sheets to fabricate steel tanks, in which, Oil is stored by the Oil Companies. It is undisputed that these tanks are being fabricated by the assessee and shifted to the premises of these Oil Companies. The end pieces of the steel tanks and the valves etc. are being attached at site. The cylindrical tank is being fixed on the foundation and is placed below the ground.

5. It is the case of the assessee that no steel tank has come into existence at their premises. It is not complete when it leaves the factory gate. The steel tank comes into existence only at the premises of the buyers of Oil Companies when all parts are welded together. At this place, the steel tanks are fixed to the foundation and are placed under-ground. Therefore, they cease to be the goods because they are attached to the earth. No Excise duty is, therefore, leviable on the goods because the steel tanks, when they came into existence, are attached to the earth and cannot be called as goods at all. Before the steel tanks reached the buyers’ premises, they are incomplete and cannot be called as steel tank at all. Therefore, they are not liable to pay Excise duty at all and have not taken Central Excise Registration nor have they paid Central Excise duty and there is nothing wrong in this contention.

6. The Ld.Counsel for the assessee also argued that the show-cause notices specifically lack either an allegation or any evidence of fraud, collusion, willful mis-statement or suppression of facts or violation of any provisions of the Act or Rules with an intent to evade payment of duty. Although, show-cause notices do not specifically make these allegations that the demand was raised for the extended period of limitation. Therefore, they were never given any opportunity to defend themselves against allegation of elements necessary for invoking extended period of limitation. Therefore, demand has to fail for the extended period of limitation on this ground alone.

7. Thirdly, he argued that they had reason to believe that they were not liable to pay Central Excise duty because their tanks were attached to the foundation and placed under-ground. They honestly believed that they do not qualify to be called as goods and therefore, no Central Excise duty was payable. For this reason, no penalty under Section 11AC is imposable upon them. Penalties imposed upon them need to be set aside even if on merit, the demand is upheld.

8. Further, Ld. Counsel argued if the demand are decided against them, the prices received by them may be taken as cum-tax prices and CENVAT Credit on inputs may be given to them.

9. The Ld. Departmental Representative, on the other hand, submits that the assessee have had at no point of time taken Registration or informed the Central Excise Department regarding their activities. They have not paid any Central Excise duty and they have dealt with large Oil Companies under large contracts and it was expected from them to have acted responsibly and paid Central Excise duty. If they had any doubt, they could have sought clarification from the Department. They did no such thing. They have clandestinely manufactured and cleared the goods without informing the Department. Therefore, the extended period of limitation is invokable.
and penalties under Section 11AC are rightly imposable. On merit, he argued that it is now well settled that merely because the goods are attached to the earth, they do not cease to be goods. The goods can always be removed from the earth and sold. There is no force in the contention of the assessee that tanks do not come into existence in their factory because essential character of the tank is very much present when the tank left the factory. Even if, end piece, valves etc. are attached at the customers' premises, the tank can only be said to be an in-complete article when it left the factory which should be classified as complete article for the purpose of levies of Central Excise duty. Even if, the manufacture is undertaken outside the factory premises of the assessee, the Central Excise duty is still payable. Merely because the tank is placed on a foundation and is eventually placed below underground, it does not cease to be goods.

10. I have considered the arguments of both sides and perused the records.

11. The first issue is to be decided is whether the tanks fabricated by the assessee are goods and whether they are liable to Central Excise duty. From the facts narrated by the ld. Counsel for the appellants, it is evident that they indeed manufactured tanks, although some parts of the tanks are finally attached at the buyers premises only. The goods, which left the factory, can, at best, be called incomplete or un-finished tanks. They have to be classified as "tanks". The next question is about marketability of these products, which is not in doubt because the tanks are being marketed by the assessees to the Oil Companies. Section 3 of the Central Excise Act levies duties of excise on excisable goods manufactured or produced in India. Excisable goods are defined in Section 2 of the Act as those specified in the Schedules to the Central Excise Tariff Act, 1985. The term "goods" is not defined in the Central Excise Act. Sale of Goods Act, 1930, defines "goods" in Section 2 (7) as follows:

""goods" means every kind of moveable property other than actionable claims and money; and includes stock and shares, growing crops, grass, and things attached to or forming part of the land which are agreed to be severed before sale or under the contract of sale;"

12. The question to be addressed is if the goods, say, the tanks in question are attached to the foundation in the earth whether they continue to be goods or they cease to be so. The term "attached to earth" is not defined either in the Sale of Goods Act or in the Central Excise Act. In the absence of any definition of "attached to earth", the question arises as to how to interpret this expression in the context of Central Excise Act. This has been answered in the judgment of the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Solid & Correct Engineering Works [2010(252)ELT 481 (S.C.)] and the definition in the Transfer of Property Act, 1882 has been adopted. Respectfully following the ratio, I also adopt the same definition. The relevant portion of the judgment of Apex Court is as follows:

"10. Section 3 of the Central Excise Act, 1944, inter alia, sanctions what was during the relevant period called "central excise duty" on all "excisable goods" produced or manufactured in India at the rates set forth in First Schedule to the Central Excise Tariff Act, 1985. The term "excisable goods" appearing in Section 3 has been defined under Section 2(d) of the said Central Excise Act which reads as under:

"2(d) : "excisable goods" means goods specified in the First Schedule and the Second Schedule to the Central Excise Tariff Act, 1985 as being subject to a duty of excise and includes salt.

Explanation : For the purposes of this clause, "goods" includes any article, material or substance which is capable of being bought and sold for a consideration and such goods shall be deemed to be marketable."
11. Entry 8474 in the First Schedule to the Central Excise and Tariff Act, 1985 stipulates the rate at which excise was payable on machinery of the kind enumerated in that Entry which reads:

“Machinery for sorting, screening, separating, washing, crushing, grinding, mixing or kneading earth, stone, ores or other mineral substances, in solid (including powder or paste) form; machinery for agglomerating, shaping or moulding solid mineral fuels, ceramic paste, unhardened cements, plastering materials or other mineral products in powder or paste form; machines for forming foundry moulds of sand.”

12. It is evident from the above that any machinery which is used for mixing is dutiable. That Asphalt Drum/Hot Mix Plant is a machinery meant for mixing etc. was not disputed before us. It was fairly conceded by Mr. Bagaria that assembling, installation and commissioning of Asphalt Drum/Hot Mix Plants amounted to manufacture inasmuch as the plant that eventually came into existence was a new product with a distinct name, character and use different from what went into its manufacture. Super added to the above is the fact that Section 2(f) of the Central Excise Act does not define the term “manufacture” exhaustively. The definition is inclusive in nature and has been understood to mean bringing into existence a new product with a distinct name, character and use. [See (i) Union of India v. Delhi Cloth and General Mills Co. Ltd. - 1977 (1) E.L.T. 199, (ii) BPL India Ltd. v. CCE - (2002) 5 SCC 167, (iii) Sirpur Paper Mills Ltd. v. Collector of Central Excise, Hyderabad (1998) 1 SCC 400].

13. Mr. Bagaria strenuously argued that even when the setting up of the plant has been held to be tantamount to manufacture of a plant and even when the plant may be machinery covered by Entry 8474 of the First Schedule to the Central Excise Act, the same would not necessarily amount to manufacture of “exigible goods’ keeping in view the fact that such plants have to be permanently embedded in earth. Reliance in support was placed by Mr. Bagaria upon the finding recorded by the Tribunal that the plant is required to be fixed to a foundation that is 1 and ½ ft. deep for the sake of stability of the plant which causes heavy vibrations while in operation. The following passage from the Tribunal’s order was in particular relied upon by Mr. Bagaria in support of his submission that the size and nature of the plant was such as made its fixing to the ground essential:

“The individual element such as feeder bins, conveyor, rotary mixing drum, asphalt tank, fuel tanks, etc. have to be separately embedded into the earth. This is done on a civil foundation of 1.5 deep. This is because the weight of the material as well as the vibrations caused by the movement thereof is very substantial. The drier at one time holds 40MT of raw material.”

14. Relying upon certain decisions of this Court, Mr. Bagaria argued that the plants in question did not satisfy the test of marketability and moveability. According to Mr. Bagaria, the setting up of the plant was no more than an accretion/annexation to immovable property which was far from manufacture of goods exigible to excise duty. We shall presently refer to the decisions relied upon by Mr. Bagaria, but before we do so we may briefly refer to the relevant statutory provisions to examine, what would constitute moveable or immovable property.

15. The expression “moveable property” has been defined in Section 3(36) of the General Clauses Act, 1897 as under:

“Section 3(36): “movable property” shall mean property of every description, except immovable property.”

16. From the above it is manifest that the answer to the question whether the plants in question are moveable property, would depend upon whether the same are immovable property. That is because anything that is not immovable property is by this very definition extracted above “moveable” in nature.

17. Section 3 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882 does not spell out an exhaustive definition of the expression “immovable property”. It simply provides that unless there is something repugnant in the subject or context ‘immovable property’ under the Transfer of Property Act, 1882 does not include standing timber, growing crops or grass. Section 3(26) of the General Clauses Act, 1897, similarly does not provide an exhaustive definition of the said expression. It reads:

“Section 3(26) : “immovable property” shall include land, benefits to arise out of land, and things attached to the earth, or permanently fastened to anything attached to the earth.”

18. It is not the case of the respondents that plants in question are per se immovable property. What is argued is that they become immovable as they are permanently imbedded in earth in as much as they are fixed to a foundation imbedded in earth no matter only 1½ feet deep. That argument needs to be tested on the touchstone of the provisions referred to above. Section 3(26) of the General Clauses Act includes within the definition of the term “immovable property” things attached to the earth or permanently fastened to anything attached to the earth. The term “attached to the earth” has not been defined in the General Clauses Act, 1897. Section 3 of the Transfer of Property Act, however, gives the following meaning to the expression “attached to the earth”:

“(a) rooted in the earth, as in the case of trees and shrubs;
(b) imbedded in the earth, as in the case of walls and buildings;
(c) attached to what is so imbedded for the permanent beneficial enjoyment of that to which it is attached.”

19. It is evident from the above that the expression “attached to the earth” has three distinct dimensions, viz. (a) rooted in the earth as in the case of trees and shrubs (b) imbedded in the earth as in the case of walls or buildings or (c) attached to what is imbedded for the permanent beneficial enjoyment of that to which it is attached. Attachment of the plant in question with the help of nuts and bolts to a foundation not more than 1½ feet deep intended to provide stability to the working of the plant and prevent vibration/wobble free operation does not qualify for being described as attached to the earth under any one of the three clauses extracted above. That is because attachment of the plant to the foundation is not comparable or synonymous to trees and shrubs rooted in earth. It is also not synonymous to imbedding in earth of the plant as in the case of walls and buildings, for the obvious reason that a building imbedded in the earth is permanent and cannot be detached without demolition. Imbedding of a wall in the earth is also in no way comparable to attachment of a plant to a foundation meant only to provide stability to the plant especially because the attachment is not permanent and what is attached can be easily detached from the foundation. So also the attachment of the plant to the foundation at which it rests does not fall in the third category, for an attachment to fall in that category it must be for permanent beneficial enjoyment of that to which the plant is attached.”

13. The definition of this term in Section 3 of the Transfer of Property Act may be considered which defines it as follows:

“attached to the earth” means –

(a) rooted in the earth, as in the case of trees and shrubs;
(b) imbedded in the earth, as in the case of walls or buildings; or attached to what is so embedded for the permanent beneficial enjoyment of that to which it is attached;”

From the above, it is evident that the goods in question, namely, tanks, do not fall under the category of immovable property “attached to earth” as per the above definition but continue to be goods.

14. In view of the above, on merits, I find that the assesses are liable to pay the Central Excise duty.

15. The next question is of invoking extended period of limitation. On behalf of the Revenue, it has been canvassed that the assesses have not been obtained Central Excise Registration nor have they filed any Returns with the Department, nor have they declared in any manner that they are engaged in manufacturing these goods. Therefore, they have suppressed the facts and extended period of limitation is correctly invoked. On behalf of the Assessees, it has been pointed out that the extended period of limitation has been invoked without specifying any of the elements necessary for invoking the extended period of limitation, nor showing as to how those elements have been fulfilled in their case. On perusal of the records, I find it so. Therefore, I find that the assessee has not been put to notice to explain why the extended period of limitation cannot be invoked in the case. This vitiates the demand for extended period of limitation. Therefore, the demand only within the normal period of limitation, sustains and the demand for extended period of limitation does not survive.

16. For the same reason, I find that the penalties under Section 11AC also do not sustain and need to be set aside.

17. In so far as the Appeal of the Department (Ex.Appeal No.206 of 2010) against giving benefit cum-duty for the clearance of goods, is concerned, the said issue has now been settled by the judgement of the Hon’ble Apex Court in the case of Commissioner of Central Excise, Delhi Vs. Maruti Udyog Ltd. reported in 2002 (141) ELT 3 (S.C.), wherein it has been held that in case where duty has not been paid, the price which has been recovered by the assessee, should be taken as cum-duty price. The Department sought to rely on the judgement of the Hon’ble Apex Court in the case of Amrit AgroIndustries Ltd. Vs. Commissioner of Central Excise, Ghaziabad reported in 2007 (210) ELT 183 (SC). In that particular case, based on the facts and circumstances, the Hon’ble Apex Court held that the lower authorities had to examine whether the price charged by the assessee to his customers contains profit element or duty element or otherwise. In view of the specific facts of the case, the Hon’ble Apex Court has remanded the matter to the lower authorities. I find no such justification in the present case. I also find that if the assesses have to pay duty, CENVAT Credit cannot be denied to them.

18. The appeal filed by the Revenue is liable to be rejected and I do so and the appeals filed by the assesses are rejected on merit, but demand for extended period of limitation, cannot be sustained.

19. In view of the foregoing, the appeals are disposed of as follows:

(i) Demands for normal period, is confirmed in both the impugned orders.
(ii) Demands for extended period is set aside.
(iii) Cenvat credit is available to the assesses.
(iv) The prices received by them may be taken as cum-duty prices and duty calculated accordingly.

(v) All penalties are set aside.

(vi) Appeals are remanded to the original authority for the limited purpose of computation.

Order per : P. K. Choudhary, Member [J] :

1. After having gone through the order dictated by my Learned brother Shri P. V. Subba Rao, I agree with him as regards the non-applicability of extended period of limitation, appellant’s entitlement of cum-tax benefit and Cenvat credit on inputs and waiver from imposition of penalty. However, as regard merits of the case, I have a different opinion. Most respectfully, I feel that my learned brother has not gone into the detailed facts and the legal pleadings made by the appellant and the settled judicial pronouncements having a direct bearing on the case before us, I proceed to deal with the same.

2. The issues to be decided in the instant case is whether the tanks fabricated by the assessee are ‘goods’ and whether they are liable to Central Excise duty and on what value. From the facts narrated by the Ld. Counsel for the assessee, it is evident that they indeed fabricated steel sheets for conversion to cylindrical tank which is a part of the manufacturing process, although some part of the tanks are finally attached at the buyers’ premises only. The goods, which left the factory, can, at best, be called incomplete or unfinished tanks. It is not in dispute that the assessee is under obligation to fix the cylindrical tank underground wherein civil work is also involved and link the pipelines for filling and evacuating / clearing of Oil through pipelines, after having fabricated the steel sheets into the desired sizes. I have also carefully perused the photographs provided by the Ld. Advocate which shows that the fabricated tanks are installed underground which also involves civil work. Considering the arguments of the assessee that the tank becomes immovable, which I think proper to separately discuss below, I find that in the entire proceedings, the very aspect of correct valuation for duty ascertainment has not been examined since not raised in SCN and the demand has been incorrectly raised on the entire contract value.

3. The proceedings have mainly focused on the aspects whether the activities undertaken constitute ‘manufacture’ for levy of excise duty. I also find that the fabricated tank after being removed from the factory to the site is fastened by undertaking civil construction on all four sides of the tank and then necessary nozzles, tubes, dip pipes, etc. are attached and a complete foundation is made on the top of the tank which is said to be the complete tank in a usable condition. The said facts have nowhere been disputed in the entire proceedings. Moreover, the photographs produced by the assessee also clearly depicts the chain of activities involved post fabrication of steel sheets into cylindrical incomplete tank, including the underground fixation of fabricated tanks involving civil works.
4. In my view, the duty is payable only on the activities for fabrication of steel tank, by applying the provisions of Rule 8 read with Rule 11 (i.e. residuary rule providing application of reasonable means) of the Central Excise Valuation Rules, 2000, which have not been invoked in the present case. The Tribunal in Indian Hume Pipe Co. Ltd vs. CCE, Trichy [2015 (321) ELT 460 (Tri-Chennai)], while dealing with the valuation of pipes manufactured by assessee for use in execution of contract awarded by State Water Board for laying down the pipelines, has held that the valuation has to be done on cost construction basis plus 15% / 10%, as applicable during the material period as per Rule 8 read with Rule 11 of the Valuation Rules, which provided that value shall be determined using reasonable means consistent with the principles and general provisions of the Valuation Rules and Section 4(1) of the Act.

5. In the present case, it is not in dispute that the fabricated tanks in cylindrical shape, when they left the assessee’s factory were incomplete, which is actually the stage where the duty could be levied. The above view is also supported by the decision of the Tribunal in Stumpf, Scheule & Somappa Ltd. vs. CCE, Bangalore [2007 (212) ELT 118 (Tri-Bang)], wherein it was held that :

“5. On a careful consideration, we notice from the facts alleged in the Show Cause Notice that the appellants had cleared only semi-finished goods. The goods had not attained the fully finished condition. In a circumstance like this, the Commissioner's direction to assess the goods as fully finished goods is not supported by law. The said findings are not sustainable. The goods have to be assessed on the “as in where” basis when they are cleared from the factory to another unit for further manufacture. This view was expressed by this Bench in the case of IFB Automation India Ltd. (cited supra). The findings recorded in Paras 5(d) and 5(e) are reproduced herein below:

“(d) After carefully going through the relevant Rules, we are of the view that the Commissioner’s reasoning is not sound. We shall show it presently. In the present case, the appellant ‘A’ manufactures at his factory an incomplete product ‘P’ and duty is paid on this incomplete product. Hence, this product is excisable and there is no dispute on this fact. The incomplete product is not sold because it is cleared to the sister unit ‘S’. Can we say that the appellant uses the incomplete product for consumption in the sister unit? Yes, it is not incorrect to hold that the appellant uses the incomplete product for consumption in the sister unit. In the sister unit many other processes are undertaken and a complete product emerges. An incomplete product emerges as a complete product in the sister unit. The appellants have quoted relevant section note, wherein it is stated that the processes by which an incomplete item becomes a fully manufactured item amounts to process of manufacture. Hence, here is a case where excisable goods are not sold by the assessee but are used on his behalf in the production of other articles. A complete product is different from an incomplete product. We do not agree with the Commissioner that the identity of the product does not change. The identity definitely undergoes a change. If the identity does not change, there is no point in sending the incomplete product to the sister unit. Hence, the Commissioner’s reasoning is not sound. Assuming but not admitting that his contention is correct, we can also take it that the incomplete product is used for consumption by him. In either of the cases, the transfer of the goods is squarely covered by Rule 8. The appellants have correctly discharged the duty liability under Rule 8. The Commissioner has given a finding that Rule 7 is applicable to the present case. Wen shall show how Rule 7 is not applicable. We reproduce Rule 7 herein below

6. Further, in the decision of this Tribunal in Otis Elevator Company (India) Ltd vs. CCE, Bangalore [2008 (229) ELT 568 (Tri-Bang)], it was held as under:

"9. On a very careful consideration of the entire issue, we find that the main point herein is the valuation of the parts and components cleared from the Jigani factory to the sites of the customers for erection and installation of the lifts. The valuation of the parts and components cleared to the National Service Centre for Annual Maintenance Contract and also for modernization, is involved. The appellant had adopted the valuation based on the cost construction under Rule 8 read with Rule 11 of the Central Excise Valuation Rules. We find that the appellants have actually entered into works contract with various customers for the installation and erection of the lifts. Therefore we are of the view that this contract is an indivisible contract and no sale value of the components cleared is available. In other words, we do not have a transaction value. Therefore Section 4(1)(a) of the Central Excise Act cannot be applied to the present case. Alternatively Section 4(1)(a) value is not at all available. If Section 4(1)(a) value is not available, then one should go to Section 4(1)(b) and then to the Valuation Rules. That means, in terms of the Central Excise Act, the value has to be determined within the frame work of Valuation Rules, if the value is not available under Section 4(1)(a). There is no escape from this method. Therefore we are in agreement with the learned Advocate that transaction value cannot be determined from the total contract value by means of certain deductions. The method of valuation adopted should be within the ambit of Section 4 read with Valuation Rules. The learned Advocate has clearly shown that while arriving at the reduced transaction value, the Commissioner has simply gone by certain estimate.

Compared to the method adopted by the Commissioner, we are of the considered view that the valuation method adopted by the appellant is more acceptable as it is within the ambit of Valuation Rules. It is very clear that the valuation cannot be dealt in terms of Rules 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9 & 10 and then finally, one has to come to Rule 11. While coming to Rule 11, the nearest thing which is consistent with Section 4 is only the cost construction method. We are also in agreement with the learned Advocate that the Commissioner has erred in holding that the cost construction method can be applied only if the goods are used for consumption for manufacture of other excisable goods. The word "article" is not limited to excisable goods. In the present case, the components were cleared to the sites and in the sites, they were actually used in the manufacture of the lifts or elevators which should be considered as article. Even in respect of the components cleared for modernization and also for Annual Maintenance Contract, the nearest rule which is consistent with Section 4(1)(a) will be Rule 8 and not the deductive method adopted by the Commissioner "

7. In view of the aforementioned decisions, I am of the view that the duty could be recovered from the appellant assessee upto the stage of fabrication of incomplete steel tanks and not on the whole value paid by the clients which included the price for installation of fabricated tanks below the ground. Having not invoked the relevant provisions contained in Rule 8 read with Rule 11 of the Valuation Rules, the entire proceedings initiated by the Revenue is liable to be set aside. At this stage, it is important to mention that the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of CCE, Nagpur vs. Ballarpur Industries Limited [2007 (215) ELT 489
(SC) has deliberated on the importance of the SCN in the very context of Valuation Rules, the relevant portion is extracted below:

“21. Before concluding, we may mention that, in the present case, the second and the third show cause notices are alone remitted. The first show cause notice dated 21-5-1999 is set aside as time-barred. However, it is made clear that Rule 7 of the Valuation Rules, 1975 will not be invoked and applied to the facts of this case as it has not been mentioned in the second and the third show cause notices. It is well settled that the show cause notice is the foundation in the matter of levy and recovery of duty, penalty and interest. If there is no invocation of Rule 7 of the Valuation Rules 1975 in the show cause notice, it would not be open to the Commissioner to invoke the said rule.”

8. Moreover, it is also relevant to note that since the Revenue never proposed levy of duty as per the correct legal position discussed above, the Tribunal cannot make out the case against the assessee to raise a demand for the portion which is actually amenable to Central Excise levy when the Revenue has failed to do so. While holding so, I take note of the decision of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Reckitt & Colman of India Ltd vs. CCE [1996 (88) ELT 641 (SC)], wherein the Apex Court made a very important observation that the Appellate Tribunal is not competent to make out a case in favour of the Revenue which was never canvassed. The relevant portion of the judgment is reproduced hereunder:

“3. It will be remembered that the case of the Revenue, which the appellant had been required to meet at every stage from the show cause notice onwards, was that the said product was a preparation based on starch. Having come to the conclusion that the said product was not a preparation based on starch, the Tribunal should have allowed the appeal. It was beyond the competence of the Tribunal to make out in favour of the Revenue a case which the Revenue had never canvassed and which the appellants had never been required to meet. It is upon this ground alone that the appeal must succeed.”

The above legal position has also been upheld by the Larger Bench of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in SACI Allied Products Ltd. vs. CCE, Meerut [2005 (183) ELT 225 (SC)].

9. Regarding the issue whether the Oil storage tank in question could be said to be ‘goods’, it is the stand of the assessee that the tanks become ‘immovable’ as they are affixed underground. In an identical situation, in the case of Prodig Engineering Works vs. CCE Kolkata [2007 (216) ELT 534 (Tri-Kol)], the various activities undertaken by the contractor for fabrication of oil storage tanks for underground installation have been examined. In this case, the Tribunal observed that the said underground tanks were not removable. The Tribunal came to the conclusion that those tanks which were not removable without being dismantled or causing significant destruction could not be said to be ‘goods’ and hence, were not dutiable. I find that in the instant case, the Revenue has not made out the case that the subject tanks could be removed without causing significant destruction, so as to render themmovable. In this context, the relevant portion of the decision of this Tribunal in Servesham Construction Ltd vs. CCE Jaipur [2004 (171) ELT 204 (Tri- Del)] is reproduced:

“6. The Adjudicating Authority has left out two tanks in question which were of the diameter 3.8 Mtr. x height 4.4 Mtr. with capacity of 49.9 Cub. Mtr. each and demanded duty in respect of the same on the ground that these being in smaller in size than the other ten tanks, could be removed, transported and installed anywhere. But the authority has lost sight of the fact that these tanks along with other ten tanks were fabricated by same process and embedded to earth permanently. These could not be removed from the earth without dismantling. The benefit of Board Circular dated 15-1-2002 allowing exemption from duty liability to the tanks made and capable for storage of petroleum products in oil refineries or installation at the site and being not able to move without dismantling, could not be denied to these two tanks in question. These tanks had been fabricated for storage of raw naphtha, urea, etc. along with other ten tanks. The ratio of law laid down in M/s. Triveni Industries v. CCE [2000 (120) E.L.T. 273 (S.C.)] and M/s. Bhagwanpura Sugar Mills [2001 (134) E.L.T. 673 (T) = 2001 (47) RLT 409] which has been extended to denied these two tanks in question in the light of the facts detailed above. The fact that these two tanks were fabricated at one place and then shifted to their respective foundations, as observed by the adjudicating authority in the impugned order on the basis of statement of Shri C.S. Naik, Project Manager of the Principal contractor, did not make them as movable goods when these had been also embedded to earth permanently and could be removed only after dismantling the same. These tanks could be taken out only as sheets/scraps. Therefore, the duty demand raised in respect of these two tanks cannot be sustained.

10. Since, the instant case pertains to the mobility of the goods in question, the definitions of ‘immovable property’ as per Section 3(26) of the General Clauses Act, 1897 and ‘attached to the earth’ as per Section 3 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882 are reproduced: “immovable property” shall include land, benefits to arise out of land, and things attached to the earth, or permanently fastened to anything attached to the earth;”

“attached to the earth” means--

(a) rooted in the earth, as in the case of trees and shrubs;

(b) imbedded in the earth, as in the case of walls or buildings; or

On a conjoint reading of the above definitions, it is clear that anything attached to the earth, which has been so attached for permanent beneficial enjoyment qualifies as ‘immovable property’. In the instant case, the tanks are permanently fastened and placed underground for storing oil. Therefore, I find that such tanks are ‘immovable’ and cannot be made exigible to levy of central excise duty.

11. Further, on the question of invocation of extended period of limitation, it has been submitted that the said ground was not raised in the Show Cause Notice. Therefore, I am of the view that the Revenue has travelled beyond the scope of the Show Cause Notice in invoking the extended period of limitation.

12. It is pertinent to mention that on the date of hearing i.e. 26.06.2019, we had held that the assessee were liable to pay Central Excise duty for the normal period of limitation on cum-duty basis, for which the assessees’ appeals were partly allowed by way of remand for computation purpose and the Department’s appeal bearing Ex. Appeal no. 206 of 2010 filed against allowing the benefit of cum-duty was rejected. In view of the legal position discussed in the foregoing paragraphs, I am of the view that the Tribunal is duty bound to follow the same, as also to ensure consistency on applicability of taxation, and hold that the duty is legally not payable in the instant case.

13. I would like to visit the obvious question that arises, as to whether the order pronounced in Open Court can be recalled and subsequently, a different decision altogether can be rendered by the Tribunal. In this regard, it is pertinent to refer to the decision of the Income Tax Appellate Tribunal in the case of Kamaljit Singh vs. Income Tax Officer, Bathinda [[2019] 106 taxmann.com 251 (Amritsar – Trib.)], wherein the Tribunal relying on the Supreme Court decision in Kaushalbhai Ratanbhai Rohit vs. State of Gujarat, held that the Court could recall its order and change its mind even if the draft copy is signed and order is dictated in the open Court. The relevant portion of the decision is quoted below:

“3.1 The question arises as to whether the Bench while hearing the appeal has given any decision. May be the assessee got the impression in good faith. Even if the impression went to the assessee then also the same does not have any effect on the order of the Court as it is well settled law that a judge can recall the order and change his mind in extreme case where the though draft copy signed and dictated in the open, as held in the case of Kaushalbhai Ratanbhai Rohit v. State of Gujarat [2014] 45 taxmann.com 250/126 SCL 442 (SC), by the Apex Court. For ready reference and brevity the relevant part of decision referred above is reproduced herein below.—

............................................

3.2 From the dictum of the Hon’ble Apex Court it is clear that until and unless the order is signed and sealed cannot be treated as final and as per wisdom of the Court, in certain circumstances the order can be recalled and altered to a certain extent, even if it was dictated in the Open Court. Hence, the contention of the assessee to the effect that the Bench had shown their mind to remand the case to the file of the Ld. CIT(A) and therefore the rectification of the order is necessary, is not sustainable “

14. In view of the above discussion, I am of the view that since no central excise duty is payable, the appeals filed by the assessees are to be allowed in totality and the appeal filed by the Revenue is liable to be dismissed.

DIFFERENCE OF OPINION

Whether central excise demand is legally sustainable on merits for the normal period of limitation as held by the learned Member (Technical) or the entire demand is unsustainable on merits as held by the learned Member (Judicial). Registry is directed to place the matter before Hon’ble President to consider referring the same to a third Member to settle the difference of opinion.
1. The Division Bench of the Tribunal heard the present appeals on 24/06/2019 but there was a difference of opinion between learned Member(Judicial) and learned Member(technical) while disposing of these three appeals involving a common issue together vide the Interim Order dt. 24/06/2019. I was nominated by the President to settle the difference of opinion. Before I proceed to discuss the relevant findings rendered by each learned Member, it is pertinent to reproduce the difference of opinion between the two learned Members, which is reproduced herein below:

Whether central excise demand is legally sustainable on merits for the normal period of limitation as held by the learned Member(Technical) or the entire demand is unsustainable on merits as held by the learned Member(Judicial)?

2. Before proceeding further, it is necessary to examine the facts of the case and submissions of the parties, which are as under:

- Excise Appeal No.494 of 2009, is filed by the assessee, M/s H.S. Builders against confirmation of demand of Rs.5,26,615/- and imposition of penalty of an equal amount. Excise Appeal No.148 of 2010 is filed by M/s Gurmit Construction against the demand of duty of Rs.19,41,722/- and imposition of equal amount of penalty by the original authority, which has been remanded by the first appellate authority for re-computation after taking the price collected by the appellant as cum-duty price. Ex. Appeal No.206 of 2010 is filed by the Revenue against the first appellate authority giving the benefit cum-duty price while confirming the demand.

- That the assessee herein are engaged in fabrication of steel tanks for Oil Companies, such as, M/s Bharat Petroleum Ltd., M/s Indian Oil Corporation Ltd. and H/s Indo-Burma Petroleum Company Ltd. as per their specifications. The Department received intelligence that the appellants did not obtain Central Excise Registration even after exceeding the SSI exemption limit of turnover Rs.1.00 Crore. Accordingly, the Officers Investigated the matter, inspected the premises of the assessee, issued summons and recorded statements and came to the conclusion that the assessee have not obtained Central Excise Registration nor have they paid duty on the steel tanks, which have been manufactured for the aforesaid Oil Companies. Show-cause notices were issued proposing to recover the aforesaid short paid duty and impose penalties. While proposing to recover the duty for extended period of limitation in the show-cause notices, no specific allegation of fraud, collusion, wilful mis-statement, suppression of facts or violation of provisions of Act and Rules, with an intent to evade payment of duty, has been alleged or evidenced.

- The specific activities of the appellants are that they purchase steel sheets and bend them into cylindrical structures and at the site attach side sheets to fabricate steel tanks, in which, Oil is stored by the Oil Companies. It is un-disputed that these tanks are being fabricated by the assessee and shifted to the premises of these Oil Companies. The end pieces of the steel tanks and the valves etc., are being attached at the site. The cylindrical tank is being fixed on the foundation and is placed below the ground.
It is the case of the assesses that no steel tanks have come into existence at their premises. It is not complete when it leaves the factory gate. The steel tank comes into existence only at the premises of the buyers of Oil Companies when all parts are welded together. At this place, the steel tanks are fixed to the foundation and are placed under-ground. Therefore, they cease to be the goods because they are attached to the earth. No Excise duty is, therefore, leviable on the goods because the steel tanks, when they came into existence, are attached to the earth and cannot be called as goods at all. Before the steel tanks reached the buyers’ premises, they are incomplete and cannot be called as steel tank at all. Therefore, they are not liable to pay Excise duty at all and have not taken Central Excise Registration nor have they paid Central Excise duty.

The Ld. Counsel for the assesses also argued that the show-cause notices specifically lack either an allegation or any evidence of fraud, collusion, wilful mis-statement or suppression of facts or violation of any provisions of the Act or Rules with an intent to evade payment of duty. Although, show-cause notices do not specifically make these allegations that the demand was raised for the extended period of limitation. Therefore, they were never given any opportunity to defend themselves against allegation of elements necessary for invoking extended period of limitation. Therefore, demand has to fail for the extended period of limitation on this ground alone.

Thirdly, he argued that they had reason to believe that they were not liable to pay Central Excise duty because their tanks were attached to the foundation and placed under-ground. They honestly believed that they do not qualify to be called as goods and therefore, no Central Excise duty was payable. For this reason, no penalty under Section 11AC is imposable upon them. Penalties imposed upon them need to be set aside even if on merit, the demand is upheld.

Further, Ld. Counsel argued if the demands are decided against them, the prices received by them may be taken as cum-tax prices and CENVAT Credit on inputs may be given to them.

The Ld. Departmental Representative, on the other hand, submits that the assessee have had at no point of time taken Registration or informed the Central Excise Department regarding their activities. They have not paid any Central Excise duty and they have dealt with large Oil Companies under large contracts and it was expected from them to have acted responsibly and paid Central Excise duty. If they had any doubt, they could have sought clarification from the Department. They did no such thing. They have clandestinely manufactured and cleared the goods without informing the Department. Therefore, the extended period of limitation is invokable and penalties under Section 11AC are rightly imposable. On merit, he argued that it is now well settled that merely because the goods are attached to the earth, they do not cease to be goods. The goods can always be removed from the earth and sold. There is no force in the contention of the assessee that tanks do not come into existence in their factory because essential character of the tank is very much present when the tank left the factory. Even if, end piece, valves etc. are attached at the customers’ premises, the tank can only be said to be an in-complete article when it left the factory which should be Classified as complete article for the purpose of levies of Central Excise duty. Even if, the manufacture is undertaken outside the factory premises of the assessee, the Central Excise duty is still payable. Merely because the tank is placed on a foundation and is eventually placed below under-ground, it does not cease to be good.

Further after considering the above submissions of the parties, learned Member(Technical) disposed of the appeals as follows:-

i. Demands for normal period are confirmed in both the impugned orders.

ii. Demands for extended period are set aside.

iii. Cenvat Credit is available to the assessee.

iv. The prices received by them may be taken as cum-duty prices and duty calculated accordingly.

v. All penalties are set aside.

vi. Appeals are remanded to the original authority for the limited purpose of computation.

3. On the other hand, learned Member(Judicial) agreed with learned Member(technical) as regards the non-applicability of extended period of limitation, appellants’ entitlement of cum-duty benefits and cenvat credit on inputs and waiver from imposition of penalty but on merits, learned Member(Judicial) has held that no central excise duty is payable by the assessee on the impugned goods. Further both the learned Members agreed that Department’s appeal needs to be dismissed and the same was dismissed.

4. After considering the submissions of both the parties and perusal of the records, I find that the only issue on which both the learned Members have contrary view is whether the tanks fabricated by the assessee are goods and whether they are liable to Central Excise duty. Learned counsel for the appellant submitted that learned Member(technical) while upholding the demand for the normal period of limitation has mainly relied upon the decision of the Hon’ble Apex Court in the case of CCE, Ahmedabad Vs. Solid & Correct Engineering Works [2010(252) ELT 481 (SC)]. He further submitted that the decision of the Apex Court as relied upon by learned Member(technical) is not applicable to the facts in hand and is quite distinguishable. In the case before the Apex Court, the Asphalt Drum Mix plant was attached on a foundation at a depth of 1.5 feet not for permanently but for a fixed period of time and after the period is over, the same is removed and shifted to other place. The attachment of the plant to the earth is only intended to provide stability and to prevent vibration. He also submitted in those circumstances, the Apex Court has held that such plant is excisable. Learned counsel further referred to the definition of ‘excisable goods’ as provided in Section 2(d) of Central Excise Act and also the definition of ‘movable property’ as provided in Section 3(36) of the General Clauses Act, 1897 and definition of ‘immovable property’ as provided in Section 3(26) of the General Clauses Act, 1897. He also referred to the definition of ‘attached to earth’ as provided in Section 3 of Transfer of Property Act, 1882. After referring to these definitions, the learned counsel submitted that the goods in question i.e. ‘steel tanks’ after being removed from the factory in semi-finished and incomplete condition are placed on the civil foundation permanently for storage of petrol / diesel and they are permanently attached to the earth. In such circumstances, the tanks qualify to be immovable property and not liable to duty of excise. Learned counsel also submitted six photographs in order to exhibit the manner of erection of such tanks on civil foundation. He also submitted that if these tanks are removed / detached from the civil foundation, then it will be recovered only as a scrap and not in the form of tank. He also submitted that since tanks are attached permanently, the liability of excise duty on such tanks does not arise and learned Member(Judicial) is correct to hold that the tanks are not excisable goods being permanently attached to the earth. He also argued that learned Member(Judicial) has rightly relied upon the decision in the case of Prodip Engineering Works Vs. CCE, Kolkata [2007(216) ELT 534 (Tri. Kol)] and Servesham Construction Ltd. Vs. CCE, Jaipur [2004(171) ELT 204 (Tri. Del.)]. He also submitted that the decision in the case of V.D. Engineering Vs. CCE, Jabalpur [2019(366) ELT 123 (Tri. Del.)] relied upon by the learned AR is not applicable in the present case as the said decision has been passed without considering the statutory provisions of Central Excise Act, Transfer of Property Act, General Clauses Act or Sale of Goods Act as has been elaborately raised by the appellant in the present case.

5. On the other hand, the learned AR submitted that the findings returned by the learned Member(Technical) is perfectly in accordance with law and should be upheld. He further submitted that learned Member(Judicial) has gone beyond the case as set up by the Revenue in the show-cause notice. He further submitted that the valuation of the impugned goods was not the issue at any stage and further even in appellants’ ground of appeal also, the appellants havenot raised this issue and hence setting aside the demand of excise duty even for normal period is not legally sustainable in law. He also submitted that the Division Bench decision of the Delhi Tribunal in the case of V.D. Engineering cited supra has held that storage tanks (impugned goods in the present case) are liable to excise duty as the activity of converting steel sheets into the form of storage tank amounts to manufacture. He also submitted that the Division Bench decision of the Delhi Tribunal in V.D. Engineering case was not brought to the notice of the Bench at the time of hearing the case and further the findings returned by the learned Member(Technical) is in consonance with the decision of the Delhi Tribunal in the case of V.D. Engineering.

6. I have examined the submissions of both the sides. From the facts as submitted by the learned counsel for the appellants, I find that the appellant manufacture tank in their factory, although some parts of the tanks are finally attached at the buyers’ premises only. I agree with the submission of the learned counsel for the appellant that the impugned goods when left the factory is incomplete and unfinished tanks. But they are still classified as tanks and is liable to excise duty under CETH 73090090 of CETA. Further I find that learned Member(technical) has considered the definition of ‘goods’ and the definition of ‘attached to earth’ and has rightly relied upon the decision of the Apex Court in the case of Solid & Correct Engineering Works cited supra. The relevant portion of the said decision is as follows:-

10. Section 3 of the Central Excise Act, 1944, inter alia, sanctions what was during the relevant period called ‘central excise duty’ on all “excisable goods” produced or manufactured in India at the rates set forth in First Schedule to the Central Excise Tariff Act, 1985. The term “excisable goods” appearing in Section 3 has been defined under Section 2(d) of the said Central Excise Act which reads as under:

"2(d): “excisable goods” means goods specified in the First Schedule and the Second Schedule to the Central Excise Tariff Act, 1985 as being subject to a duty of excise and includes salt.

Explanation: For the purposes of this clause, “goods” includes any article, material or substance which is capable of being bought and sold for a consideration and such goods shall be deemed to be marketable."
11. Entry 8474 in the First Schedule to the Central Excise and Tariff Act, 1985 stipulates the rate at which excise was payable on machinery of the kind enumerated in that Entry which reads:

"Machinery for sorting, screening, separating, washing, crushing, grinding, mixing or kneading earth, stone, ores or other mineral substances, in solid (including powder or paste) form; machinery for agglomerating, shaping or moulding solid mineral fuels, ceramic paste, unhardened cements, plastering materials or other mineral products in powder or paste form; machines for forming foundry moulds of sand."

12. It is evident from the above that any machinery which is used for mixing is dutiable. That Asphalt Drum/Hot Mix Plant is a machinery meant for mixing etc. was not disputed before us. It was fairly conceded by Mr. Bagaria that assembling, installation and commissioning of Asphalt Drum/Hot Mix Plants amounted to manufacture inasmuch as the plant that eventually came into existence was a new product with a distinct name, character and use different from what went into its manufacture. Super added to the above is the fact that Section 2(f) of the Central Excise Act does not define the term "manufacture" exhaustively. The definition is inclusive in nature and has been understood to mean bringing into existence a new product with a distinct name, character and use. (See (i) Union of India V. Delhi Cloth and General Mills Co. Ltd. (1977) 1 ELT 199, (ii) BPL India Ltd. V. CCE (2002) 5 SCC 167, (iii) Sirpur Paper Mills Ltd. V. Collector of Central Excise, Hyderabad (1998 (1) SCC 400).

13. Mr. Bagaria strenuously argued that even when the setting up of the plant has been held to be tantamount to manufacture of a plant and even when the plant may be machinery covered by Entry 8474 of the First Schedule to the Central Excise Act, the same would not necessarily amount to manufacture of ‘exigible goods’ keeping in view the fact that such plants have to be permanently embedded in earth. Reliance in support was placed by Mr. Bagaria upon the finding recorded by the Tribunal that the plant is required to be fixed to a foundation that is 1 and ½ ft. deep for the sake of stability of the plant which causes heavy vibrations while in operation. The following passage from the Tribunal’s order was in particular relied upon by Mr. Bagaria in support of his submission that the size and nature of the plant was such as made its fixing to the ground essential:

"The individual element such as feeder bins, conveyor, rotary mixing drum, asphalt tank, fuel tanks, etc. have to be separately embedded into the earth. This is done on a civil foundation of 1.5 deep. This is because the weight of the material as well as the vibrations caused by the movement thereof is very substantial. The drier at one time holds 40MT of raw material."

14. Relying upon certain decisions of this Court, Mr. Bagaria argued that the plants in question did not satisfy the test of marketability and moveability. According to Mr. Bagaria, the setting up of the plant was no more than an accretion/annexation to immovable property which was far from manufacture of goods exigible to excise duty. We shall presently refer to the decisions relied upon by Mr. Bagaria, but before we do so we may briefly refer to the relevant statutory provisions to examine, what would constitute moveable or immovable property.

15. The expression "moveable property" has been defined in Section 3(36) of the General Clauses Act, 1897 as under:

"Section 3(36) : "moveable property" shall mean property of every description, except immovable property.”

16. From the above it is manifest that the answer to the question whether the plants in question are movable property, would depend upon whether the same are immovable property. That is because anything that is not immovable property is by this very definition extracted above “moveable” in nature.

17. Section 3 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882 does not spell out an exhaustive definition of the expression “immovable property”. It simply provides that unless there is something repugnant in the subject or context ‘immovable property’ under the Transfer of Property Act, 1882 does not include standing timber, growing crops or grass. Section 3(26) of the General Clauses Act, 1897, similarly does not provide an exhaustive definition of the said expression. It reads:

“Section 3(26) : “immovable property” shall include land, benefits to arise out of land, and things attached to the earth, or permanently fastened to anything attached to the earth.”

18. It is not the case of the respondents that plants in question are per se immovable property. What is argued is that they become immovable as they are permanently imbedded in earth no matter only 1= feet deep. That argument needs to be tested on the touch stone of the provisions referred to above. Section 3(26) of the General Clauses Act includes within the definition of the term “immovable property” things attached to the earth or permanently fastened to anything attached to the earth. The term “attached to the earth” has not been defined in the General Clauses Act, 1897. Section 3 of the Transfer of Property Act, however, gives the following meaning to the expression “attached to the earth”:

"(a) rooted in the earth, as in the case of trees and shrubs;
(b) imbedded in the earth, as in the case of walls and buildings;
(c) attached to what is so imbedded for the permanent beneficial enjoyment of that to which it is attached."

19. It is evident from the above that the expression “attached to the earth” has three distinct dimensions, viz.

(a) rooted in the earth as in the case of trees and shrubs (b) imbedded in the earth as in the case of walls or buildings or

(c) attached to what is imbedded for the permanent beneficial enjoyment of that to which it is attached. Attachment of the plant in question with the help of nuts and bolts to a foundation not more than 1= feet deep intended to provide stability to the working of the plant and prevent vibration/wobble free operation does not qualify for being described as attached to the earth under any one of the three clauses extracted above. That is because attachment of the plant to the foundation is not comparable or synonymous to trees and shrubs rooted in earth. It is also not synonymous to imbedding in earth of the plant as in the case of walls and buildings, for the obvious reason that a building imbedded in the earth is permanent and cannot be detached without demolition. Imbedding of a wall in the earth is also in no way comparable to attachment of a plant to a foundation meant only to provide stability to the plant especially because the attachment is not permanent and what is attached can be easily detached from the foundation. So also the attachment of the plant to the foundation at which it rests does not fall in the third category, for an attachment to fall in that category it must be for permanent beneficial enjoyment of that to which the plant is attached.

7. Further I find that the issue involved in the present case is squarely covered by the Division Bench decision of the Delhi Tribunal in the case of V.D. Engineering cited supra relied upon by the learned AR wherein identical goods were involved. Though the decision was rendered prior to the decision of this case, the same was not brought to the notice of the Bench at the time of hearing the matter. It is pertinent to reproduce the relevant findings of the Tribunal recorded in para 6 to 9 and reproduced herein below:

6. Heard both sides and carefully and perused the record. We have also perused some of the work orders placed by IOCL/ HPCL on the appellant. In terms of such work orders, IOCL/ HPCL would supply steel sheet to the appellant and using them the latter, is required to fabricate the storage tanks of the required capacity and return the manufactured tanks to IOCL/ HPCL. From the nature of the work in the appellant’s factory, it is evident that the appellant has undertaken the activity of manufacture i.e. activity of converting steel sheets into the form of storage tanks. Storage tank is commodity which is liable for payment of excise duty under CETH 73090090 of the Central Excise Tariff. Consequently, the liability of excise duty on the tanks fabricated by the appellant is established and hence the same is sustained.

7. Next we deal with the arguments advanced on behalf of the appellant that such storage tanks are embedded to the earth and hence no duty is payable. It also stands argued that tanks are not marketable. We are of the view that liability for excise duty is to be determined on the basis of the activity carried out in the appellant’s factory and not on the basis of the use of such products after clearance from the factory. Inasmuch as the storage tanks have arisen in the factory of the appellant, the liability for payment of excise duty gets fastened on the appellant.

8. The arguments regarding the tanks being not marketable is also to be discarded since the tanks are in fact procured by the customer i.e. IOCL/ HPCL even though in the form of job work contract.

9. In the result, the impugned order merits no interference. The same is sustained and the appeals are dismissed.

8. As the ratio of the Division Bench decision is squarely applicable in this case, by following the said decision, I hold that the impugned goods are liable to excise duty and the opinion expressed by the learned Member (Technical) is in accordance with law and I also hold the same opinion.

9. Now the matter may be placed before the concerned Division Bench for further action.

MAJORITY DECISION

10. In view of the majority decision, Central Excise demand is legally sustainable on merits for the normal period of limitation and the appeals are disposed of as follows:

(i) Demands for normal period, is confirmed in both the impugned orders.

(ii) Demands for extended period is set aside.
(iii) Cenvat credit is available to the assessee.

(iv) The prices received by them may be taken as cum-duty prices and duty calculated accordingly.

(v) All penalties are set aside.

(vi) Appeals are remanded to the original authority for the limited purpose of computation.

FINAL ORDER No. 77057/2019

[Order per: P. VENKATA SUBBA RAO.]

Date of Hearing: 25.11.2019
Date of Decision: 25.11.2019

1. This appeal is filed against Order-in-Original No. 15/SR/GHY/2009-10 dt.05.04.2010.

2. The appellant is a manufacturer of cement from bought out clinker falling under Chapter 25 of the Central Excise Tariff. The appellant’s factory is located in Kamrup, Assam which entitles them to special exemption available to units in north-eastern India. Notification No. 33/1999-CE dt.08.07.1999, as amended, allows exemption to the extent of duty payable on value addition undertaken in the manufacture of the specified goods by the units located in north-eastern states subject to fulfilment of some conditions. The notification also specifies the rates of value addition for different commodities.

3. However, if the manufacturer finds that their actual value addition in the manufacture of goods is at least 115% of the rate specified in the notification they may make an application to the jurisdictional Central Excise Commissioner for determination of special rate stating all relevant facts and supporting their claim with a certificate from the auditor. Para 2.1(1) of the notification provides that such an application must be made by the manufacturer in writing to the Commissioner not later than 30th of September. It, further, provides that Commissioner may, if satisfied that the manufacturer was prevented by sufficient cause from making the application within the time, allow such manufacturer to make an application within a further period of 30 days. Thus, the condonable period ends on 30th of October.

4. The appellant prepared their application dt.30.10.2009 but submitted it to the Commissioner only on 03.11.2009. As the application for special rate of value addition was hit by limitation of time, the same has been rejected by the Commissioner without going into merits of the claim.

5. Aggrieved by this order, the present appeal is filed seeking condonation of the delay and a direction to the Commissioner of Central Excise to fix a special rate based on the application and clarifications by the appellant.

6. Learned departmental representative supports the impugned order and argues that the delay cannot be condoned in this case and the rejection was justified.

7. We have considered the arguments on both sides and perused the records. Two questions which arise in this case are as follows:

   a) Where there is a statutory time limit with statutory condonable period, can the Commissioner or this Tribunal go beyond provisions of statute and condone the delay beyond the condonable limits?

   b) If the exemption notification provides for exemption subject to some conditions and if one of the conditions required for getting a larger refund has not been fulfilled by the appellant, can the exemption notification be read, ignoring such conditions?

8. We find that both these issues have been settled by the Hon’ble Supreme Court. On the question of condonable limit for delay in the case of Singh Enterprises vs CCE, Jamshedpur [2008 (221) ELT 163 (SC)] the Hon’ble Supreme Court has held as follows:

   “8. The Commissioner of Central Excise (Appeals) as also the Tribunal being creatures of Statute are vested with jurisdiction to condone the delay beyond the permissible period provided under the Statute. The period upto which the prayer for condonation can be accepted is statutorily provided. It was submitted that the logic of Section 5 of the Indian Limitation Act, 1963 (in short the ‘Limitation Act’) can be availed for condonation of delay. The first proviso to Section 35 makes the position clear that the appeal has to be preferred within three months from the date of communication to him of the decision or order. However, if the Commissioner is satisfied that the appellant was prevented by sufficient cause from presenting the appeal within the aforesaid period of 60 days, he can allow it to be presented within a further period of 30 days. In other words, this clearly shows that the appeal has to be filed within 60 days but in terms of the proviso further 30 days time can be granted by the appellate authority to entertain the appeal. The proviso to sub-section (1) of Section 35 makes the position crystal clear that the appellate authority has no power to allow the appeal to be presented beyond the period of 30 days. The language used makes the position clear that the legislature intended the appellate authority to entertain the appeal by condoning delay only upto 30 days after the expiry of 60 days which is the normal period for preferring appeal. Therefore, there is complete exclusion of Section 5 of the Limitation Act. The Commissioner and the High Court were therefore justified in holding that there was no power to condone the delay after the expiry of 30 days period.”

Thus, it has been held that where a statutory time limit is fixed for condonation, the delay cannot be condoned beyond the time limit so fixed.

9. The second question is about interpretation of the exemption notification. There were several views on how exemption notifications must be interpreted i.e., either strictly or liberally. There were judgments taking both views at various levels including by the Hon’ble Apex Court, some case laws viewing exemption notifications strictly and others viewing them liberally. It has also been held in some decisions that beneficial notifications must be viewed liberally and the substantive benefits should not be denied on procedural grounds. In view of the conflicting decisions, the matter was referred to a five member Constitutional Bench of the Hon’ble Supreme Court which, in the case of Dilip Kumar & Co. [2018 (361) ELT 577 (S.C)], has held as follows:

“52. To sum up, we answer the reference holding as under -

1) Exemption notification should be interpreted strictly: the burden of proving applicability would be on the assessee to show that his case comes within the parameters of the exemption clause or exemption notification.

2) When there is ambiguity in exemption notification which is subject to strict interpretation, the benefit of such ambiguity cannot be claimed by the subject/assessee and it must be interpreted in favour of the revenue.

3) The ratio in Sun Export case (supra) is not correct and all the decisions which took similar view as in Sun Export case (supra) stand overruled.

10. Thus, it is now well settled that the exemption notification must be strictly construed against the person who is claiming it. In this case, if the appellant wants to claim a higher rate of refund under exemption notification, the condition therein that they should have made an application by 30th of September must be fulfilled. If they were prevented by sufficient cause from making such application the Commissioner could have condoned the delay only up to 30th of October and not beyond. The application was clearly made beyond the condonable time limit and therefore, was correctly rejected. In view of the above, we find no infirmity in the impugned order and uphold the same.

11. The impugned order is upheld and the appeal is rejected.

(Operative part of this order was pronounced in the open court on conclusion of hearing)

Shri H.S. Abedin, Authorized Representative for Department.

CORAM:
HON’BLE SHRI S.S. GARG, MEMBER(JUDICIAL)
HON’BLE SHRI P.V.SUBBA RAO, MEMBER(TECHNICAL)

Final Order No. 75327-75328/2020
Appeal No. E521/2010 is filed by the appellant assessee, while Appeal No. E624/2010 has been filed by the revenue against the same impugned Order. Hence, both Appeals are being taken up together for disposal. Learned Counsel for the Appellant Assessee submits that the name of the Company has been changed from M/s. Texmaco Ltd. to M/s. Texmaco Rail and Engineering Ltd. as per the Order of the Hon'ble High Court Calcutta dated 6th September 2010. Accordingly, we direct that the name of the Appellant/Respondent may be recorded M/s. Texmaco Rail and Engineering Limited.

2. The facts of the case are that the Assessee is registered with the Central Excise Department and are manufacturing excisable goods such as structural materials, Pressure Vessels, parts of Sugar Mills machinery, railway wagons, etc. They have imported wheel sets for use in the manufacture of railway wagons. They availed CENVAT credit on the amount of additional duty of Customs (CVD) and special additional duty of Customs (SAD) paid on the imported wheel sets on the strength of the Bills of Entry. However, after availing the CENVAT Credit they have not used some of the wheel sets for manufacture of railway wagons, but instead transferred them to their Sister Unit at Sodepur during the period May 2008 to October 2008 after reversing the CENVAT Credit.

3. Scrutiny of the records of the Assessee by the department revealed that while they availed CENVAT Credit on both the CVD and SAD they have reversed only the CVD and they have not reversed the credit of SAD availed by them.

4. Therefore, a Show Cause Notice dated 20.10.2009 was issued to the Appellant demanding an amount of Rs.63,40,120.00 equal to the credit of SAD availed by them along with interest under Rule 14 of CENVAT Credit Rules 2004. It was also proposed to impose a penalty under Rule 15 of CENVAT Credit Rules 2004 read with Section 11 A Cof the Central Excise Act 1994.

5. After following due process, the Learned Commissioner, by the impugned Order, confirmed the demand along with interest as proposed. He also imposed a penalty of equal amount under Rule 15 (2) of CENVAT Credit Rules 2004 read with Section 11AC of the Central Excise Act 1944. The Assessee is aggrieved by this Order confirming the demand and also imposing the penalty. Revenue is aggrieved by the fact that no penalty has been imposed under Rule 15 (1) of the CENVAT Credit Rules 2004.

6. Learned Counsel for Assessee Appellant contests the demand on the following grounds:

(i) Against the same Bills of Entry which are subject of dispute in the present appeals, they had imported wheel sets both “on payment of duty” and without payment of duty under DEEC Licence. The goods which were imported under DEEC Licence were not subject to any duty and therefore they had not availed any CENVAT Credit at all on the goods. Therefore, they were not required to reverse any CENVAT Credit at all while transferring the goods to their Sister Unit. By mistake, they reversed CENVAT Credit of the CVD taken. The amount of CVD so reversed has been taken as credit by the receiving Sister Unit. Therefore, the question of reversing more amount towards the SAD does not arise. He gave the details of the imports as follows:
Sl. No. Bills of Entry No. and date Quantit. (nos.) Quantity (nos.) Imported on payment of appropriate duty Total Quantity (nos.) covered by Bill of Entry Quantity (nos.) removed to Sodepur Works from Remarks

(A) (B) (C) (D) (E) (F) (G)

1. 37787 dated 26/11/2007 425 325 750 325 322
2. 335971 dated 11/04/2007 274 326 600 82 82
3. 342281 dated 16/05/2007 488 146 634 56 56
4. 381155 dated 12/12/2007 680 800 1480 370 370

TOTAL 1867 1597 3464 833 830

(ii) Even if it is held that they were required to reverse the CENVAT Credit, it cannot be alleged that they had an intention to evade payment of duty since the entire exercise is revenue neutral. Whatever CENVAT was reversed by them was taken as credit by their sister unit. For this reason extended period of limitation cannot be invoked for raising the demand.

iii. For the same reason, the penalty imposed under Rule 15 (2) of CENVAT Credit Rules 2004 read with Section 11 AC of the Central Excise Act 1944 is liable to be set aside.

(iv) With respect to the appeal filed by the Revenue he would argue that there is no case for imposition of penalty under Rule 15 (1) of CCR 2004. This Sub - Rule was not invoked in the SCN at all. During the period this Sub - Rule read as follows :-

“If any person, takes or utilises CENVAT Credit in respect of the input of capital goods or input services wrongly or in contravention of any of the provisions of this Rule 6 of such goods shall be liable to confiscation and such person shall be liable to penalty not exceeding the duty or services takes on such goods or services as the case may be, or Rs.2,000.00, whichever is higher”.

Learned Counsel for the Assessee would submit that there is no allegation in the entire SCN that they have availed or utilized CENVAT Credit wrongly. The only allegation is that they have not reversed the CENVAT Credit while transferring the goods to their sister unit. Therefore Rule 15 (1) of CCR 2004 does not apply to their case.

On a specific query from the Bench as to how they have inventorised the imported wheel sets and which wheel sets have been transferred to their sister unit i.e. whether duty paid and CENVAT availed wheel sets were transferred or duty free DEEC cleared wheel sets were transferred, he submits that the two types of wheel sets cannot be distinguished. They maintain of bill of entry-wise stocks of the wheel sets but cannot say on which wheel sets duty was paid and on which it was not against the same Bill of Entry.

7. Learned D.R. reiterates the grounds of appeal as far as the imposition of penalty under Rule 15 (1) is concerned. As far as the substantive question of reversal of CENVAT Credit availed on SAD is concerned, he would submit that it is not the revenue which has decided that the goods which were transferred were duty paid and CENVAT availed. The assessee themselves who have reckoned the transferred wheel sets as duty paid and CENVAT availed. Therefore, they have reversed the CENVAT Credit availed on the goods but only partly and the demand is with respect to the non-reversed part of the CENVAT Credit. He would, therefore, argue that the demand has been correctly confirmed and the penalty has been correctly imposed.

8. We have considered the argument on both sides and perused the records. It is not in dispute that the appellant assessee availed CENVAT Credit on the imported wheel sets in respect of both the CVD and SAD paid by them. It is not in dispute that against the same Bills of Entry some wheel sets were cleared on payment of duties and some were cleared under DEEC without payment of duty and it is not possible to separate duty paid goods from the goods cleared under DEEC. Therefore, the only way to decide whether the goods which were transferred to the sister unit were duty paid or duty free is based on the records of the assessee and how they treated the transferred goods.

9. It is not in dispute that the appellant assessee has treated the transferred goods as duty paid and also reversed some portion of the CENVAT Credit so availed. The amount of CENVAT Credit so reversed has been taken as credit by the sister unit. Under the circumstances we find that no force in the argument of the Assessee that the goods which were treated by them as duty paid for the purpose of reversing CENVAT Credit of CVD must be treated as duty free for the purpose of reversing SAD. Just as a man cannot be both married and unmarried at the same time, the goods in question cannot be both duty paid and duty free at the same time. Once the Assessee has reckoned the goods as a duty paid, they must reverse the entire amount of CENVAT Credit availed on them. Therefore, on merits, we do not find any force in the argument of the assessee. They must reverse the CENVAT Credit availed on SAD in respect of the transferred goods. Since they have not done so, the demand, along with the interest on this ground has been correctly confirmed by the original authority in the impugned order.

10. However, we had find force in the argument of the assessee that their sister unit gets credit of the amount of CENVAT Credit reversed by the appellant and therefore no malafide can be attributed to them. For extended period of limitation to be invoked, there must be fraud or collusion or willful misstatement or suppression of facts or violation of the provisions of the Act or Rules with an intent to evade payment of duties. We find none of these elements in the present case. For this reason, we find that extended period of limitation under Section 11 (A) cannot be invoked. For the same reason, we also find that the imposition of penalty under Rule 15 (2) of CENVANT Credit Rules 2004 read with Section 11 A C of the Central Excise Act 1944 is liable to be set aside.

11. So far as the appeal of revenue is concerned we find that penalty under Rule 15 (1) of CCR 2004 is impossible only when any person takes or utilizes CENVAT Credit wrongly. There is no such allegation at all in the Show Cause Notice. Therefore revenues appeal is liable to be rejected and we do so.

12. In view of the above, the appeals are disposed of as below :-

b. The demand of reversal of CENVAT Credit within the normal period of limitation is upheld along with applicable interest.

c. The demand, if any, for the extended period of limitation is set aside.

d. The penalty under Rule 15 (2) of CCR 2004 read with Section 11AC of the Central Excise Act 1944 imposed in the impugned order is set aside.
e. The appeal is remanded to original authority for the limited purpose of calculation of the amount of CENVAT Credit to be reversed for the normal period of limitation.

FINAL ORDER NO…75221/2020
DATE OF HEARING : 29.01.2020
DATE OF DECISION : 29.01.2020

PER P.V.SUBBA RAO :

This appeal is filed by the appellant against the Order-in-Appeal No.04/Kol.VI/2009 dated 27.08.2009 passed by Commissioner of Central Excise (Appeals), Kolkata.

2. None appeared on behalf of the appellant. As the matter is very old pertaining to 2009 and the issue is in a narrow compass, the matter has been taken up for decision even in the absence of the appellant.

3. Heard the Ld.D.R. for the Revenue and perused the records.

4. The appellant had been sanctioned refund as well as interest on the refund as applicable under Section 11BB of the Central Excise Act, 1944. The appellant also sought an interest on the interest, which has been rejected by the first appellate authority in the impugned order.

The relevant portion of the impugned order at Page 4 in Para 4, is reproduced below:

“4. I have gone through the materials on record, the appeal petition and the records of personal hearing. The Commissioner (Appeals) in his Order-in-Appeal dated 25.03.2008 has ordered as under:

‘in view of the above, the impugned order is set aside and Lower Authority is directed to refund the interest amount paid.’

Accordingly, the Assistant Commissioner, Central Excise, Taratala IV Division, in compliance of the above Order-in-Appeal dated 25.03.2008 sanctioned the refund of interest of Rs.1,27,340.00. I find that the Order-in-Appeal dated 25.03.2008 has not allowed refund of “interest on interest”. I do not find any flaw in the order dated 11.06.2008 of the Assistant Commissioner. The present appeal has not merit and therefore stands dismissed.”

5. The relevant claim in the Appeal Memorandum in Sl.No.14, is “to quash and/or set aside the order appealed against, and refund the Interest on Interest”. The grounds of appeal are as follows:

The Commissioner (Appeals) in the said order has further observed that none of the ingredients namely, suppression of fact, willful mis-statement with intent to evade payment of duty was present. If the said ingredients are not present the provision of Section 11AB of the Act is not applicable.

It is settled that interest becomes due after three months of becoming eligible for refund. If such interest is not paid interest on interest is payable.

The Commissioner of Central Excise, Appeal II, vide his Order-in-Appeal No.14/Kol.VI/2008 dated 25.03.2008 discussed regarding our claim i.e. interest on interest with various judgements and lastly directed to lower authority to refund the interest.

The lower authority passed by the Assistant Commissioner of Central Excise, Taratala-IV Division vide his Order-in-Original No.R. 72/AC/Tara-IV/Kol-VI/2008 dated 11.06.2008 refunded the interest of Rs.1,27,340/- only but not the interest on interest.

We have also filed the appeal before the Commissioner of Central Excise, Appeal Kolkata II for payment of interest on interest, who without going through the various judgements of CESTAT dismissed the appeal vide his order No.04/Kol.VI/2009 dated 27.08.2009.

For that further and in any event and without prejudice to the aforesaid, the Commissioner of Central Excise, Appeal, Kolkata II failed to appreciate that the appellant all along acted bona fide in the matter and there had been no dishonest or willful disregard of any statutory provision on its part.

For that the order appealed against is otherwise erroneous on facts and/or in law. The appellants craves leave to add to alter, amend or modify the grounds taken herein.

Section 11B of the Central Excise Act, 1944 provides for refund of duty paid. If the refund is not sanctioned within prescribed time limit, a provision has been made under Section 11BB for payment of interest. However, there is no provision for payment of interest on such interest if the interest itself was paid belatedly. The question of law which arises is when there is no explicit provision for payment of interest on interest, whether it can be paid. This question of law was decided by Three Member Bench of the Apex Court in the case of Commissioner of Income Tax, Gujarat Vs. Gujarat Fluoro Chemicals : 2013 (296) ELT 433 (SC), in which, a batch of SLP were disposed off. Although the case pertains to the income tax, the question of law is identical to the present one inasmuch as where the interest on the refund is paid belatedly, whether the assessee is entitled to interest on such interest, in the absence of any explicit provisions of law for such payment.

This issue has been decided by the Hon’ble Apex Court in negative. Paras 7,8 & 9 of this judgement, are reproduced below:

As we have already noticed, in Sandvik case (supra) this Court was considering the issue whether an assessee who is made to wait for refund of interest for decades be compensated for the great prejudice caused to it due to the delay in its payment after the lapse of statutory period. In the facts of that case, this Court had come to the conclusion that there was an inordinate delay on the part of the Revenue in refunding certain amount which included the statutory interest and therefore, directed the Revenue to pay compensation for the same not an interest on interest.

Further it is brought to our notice that the Legislature by the Act No. 4 of 1988 (w.e.f. 1-4-1989) has inserted Section 244A to the Act which provides for interest on refunds under various contingencies. We clarify that it is only that interest provided for under the statute which may be claimed by an assessee from the Revenue and no other interest on such statutory interest.

With the aforesaid clarification we now refer back all the matters before a Two Judge Bench of this Court to consider each case independently and take an appropriate decision one way or the other.”

Respectfully following the judgement of the Larger Bench of the Hon’ble Supreme Court, we hold that the appellant is not entitled for interest on interest and there is no infirmity in the impugned order rejecting such a claim for interest on interest.

In view of the above, the impugned order is upheld and the appeal is rejected.

FINAL ORDER NO. 76924/2019

P.V.SUBBA RAO :

DATE OF HEARING :25 November 2019
DATE OF DECISION : 18 December 2019

This appeal is filed by the appellant challenging the Order-in-Appeal
No.112/DIB/CE(A)/GHY/14 dated 10.11.2014.

2. The facts of the case in brief are that the appellant is a manufacturer of tea and has submitted an application on 02.01.2008 seeking exemption from duties of excise in terms of Notification

No.33/99-CE dated 08.07.1999 on the ground that they have increased their overall installed capacity by 37% during the period 01.01.1998 to 01.07.1999. They also submitted a Chartered Engineer’s assessment report for installed capacity, invoices/challans in respect of the new machinery installed by them, diagrammatic representation of the machines before and after expansion, etc.. The department issued a show cause notice on 29.09.2008 alleging that the appellant has submitted their application after about nine years from the date of completion of expansion or the date of the said Notification. It is also alleged that they have not stated any reasons for the inordinately long delay nor submitted original copies of the relied upon documents. In reply the appellant submitted copies of the relevant documents and informed that the original copies were available in the factory. They also informed that though they have submitted reports or documents on 02.01.2008 a letter forwarding the copy of the machinery, lay out plan duly certified and accepted by the Chief Inspector of Factories was submitted and acknowledged by the jurisdictional range office. During the hearing, the appellant did not submit copy of the letter acknowledged by the jurisdictional range. By their letter dated 09.03.2010 they further said that they have actually submitted RT-12 returns to the range office informing about the registration of new machinery. The appellant was repeatedly asked, in vain, to submit the particular copy of RT-12 returns on which they have claimed the exemption Notification and submitted the fact of expansion of their plant capacity. Therefore the Deputy Commissioner of Central Excise rejected the claim as time barred. Being aggrieved the appellant filed an appeal before the Commissioner(Appeals), Guwahati, who ruled in favour of the appellant on the ground that the appellant informed the department about their expansion in the month of December 2000. The department filed an appeal against this order of Commissioner(Appeals) before CESTAT, Kolkata and during the pendency of this case the appellant filed a Writ Petition in the Hon'ble High Court of Guwahati who passed an order and directing the department to implement the order of Commissioner(Appeals). Finally, CESTAT, Kolkata passed an order remanding the matter to the original adjudicating authority for re-adjudication.

3. While re-adjudicating, the adjudicating authority have found
   (1) that the original copies of the documents were submitted only on 16.12.2009 i.e. one year after the submission of refund application.
   (2) that the appellant could not prove that they have informed the range office about their expansion in 2001.
   (3) though the Commissioner(Appeals) had, in his original order, held that the appellant informed the department through RT-12 returns in December 2000, but a copy of that was only submitted by the appellant before CESTAT and the RT-12 returns did not bear any endorsement as claimed by the appellant.
   (4) the claim of the appellant regarding endorsement in RT-12 is a willful misstatement on their part with mala fide intention of getting benefit of exemption Notification. Thus holding, the adjudicating authority rejected refund claim as time barred.

4. Aggrieved by this order (de novo) of the adjudicating authority, the appellant appealed to the first appellate authority, who upheld the order of the adjudicating authority and rejected their appeals. Hence the present appeal.

5. Learned Counsel for the appellant would submit that they have substantially met the requirement of the exemption Notification inasmuch as they have declared in their RT-12 returns that they have expanded the capacity of their plant in order to avail the benefit of exemption Notification. The second main ground for rejection of their claims was that they are time barred. There is no dispute or doubt that they are eligible for the benefit of refund under Notification No.33/99-CE dated 08.07.1999. She relied on the following case laws:

   (a) CCE, Shillong v. Shiv Dham Industries Private Limited
       2002 (141) E.L.T. 272 (Tri.-Kol) – in which it was held that RT-12 returns were filed within seven days from the duty paid month, they can be taken as statements showing payment of duty to avail benefit of refund of duty under Notification No.33/99.

(c) CCE, Shillong v. Vinay Cement Limited 2002 (147) E.L.T. 724 (Tri.-Kol)

6. In view of the above she would urge that they are eligible for the benefit of the exemption Notification and the substantive benefit of this exemption Notification No.33/99-CE dated 08.07.1999 cannot be denied on procedural grounds especially when they had already indicated in their RT-12 returns that they are expanding the capacity of the plant in order to avail the benefit of exemption Notification. She would therefore urge that their appeal may be allowed and the impugned order may be set aside.

7. On a specific query from the Bench as to whether their RT-12 returns which have been assessed have been challenged before any higher judicial forum, she replied in the negative.

8. Learned Authorized Representative on the other hand draws the attention of the Bench to the paras 2 and 3 of the exemption Notification No. which are as follows:-

2. The exemption contained in this notification shall be given effect to the following manner, namely:-

(a) The manufacturer shall submit a statement of the duty paid from the said account current to the Assistant Commissioner or the Deputy Commissioner of Central Excise, as the case may be, by the 7th of the next month in which the duty has been paid, other than the amount of duty paid by utilization of CENVAT credit under the CENVAT Credit Rules, 2001.

(b) The Assistant Commissioner of Central Excise or the Deputy Commissioner of Central Excise, as the case may be, after such verification, as the case may be deemed necessary, shall refund the amount of duty paid, other than the amount of duty paid by utilization of CENVAT credit under the CENVAT Credit Rules, 2001, during the month under consideration to the manufacturer by the 15th of the next month.

[Provided that such refund shall not exceed the amount of duty paid less the amount of the CENVAT credit availed of, in respect of the duty paid on the inputs used in or in relation to the manufacture of goods cleared under this notification.]

(c) If there is likely to be any delay in the verification, Assistant Commissioner of Central Excise or the Deputy Commissioner of Central Excise, as the case may be, shall refund the amount on provisional basis by the 15th of the next month to the month under consideration and thereafter may adjust the amount of refund by such amount as may be necessary in the subsequent refunds admissible to the manufacturer.

3. The exemption contained in this notification shall apply only to the following kind of units, namely :-

(a) New industrial units which have commenced their commercial production or on after the 24th day of December, 1997;

(b) Industrial units existing before the 24th day of December, 1997 but which have undertaken substantial expansion by way of increase in installed capacity by not less than twenty five per cent on or after the 24th day of December, 1997.

9. He would submit that this exemption Notification is a special exemption meant for North-East Region available conditionally, therefore, it is essential that all the conditions of the exemption Notification are met before they are given the benefit of the exemption Notification. As can be seen para 2 of the exemption Notification requires the manufacturer to submit a monthly statement to the Assistant Commissioner or Deputy Commissioner of Central Excise. It further requires the Assistant Commissioner or Deputy Commissioner to carry out the necessary verifications. Undisputedly, in this case that neither the statements were submitted by the appellant, nor was any verification carried out. He draws attention of the Bench to the copies of the RT-12 returns submitted by the appellant in the present appeal in support of their contention that they have declared necessary details in their RT-12 returns. He points out that such a declaration is neither explicit nor is available in all the RT-12 returns. In the RT-12 return dated 02.01.2001 received by the Inspector of Central Excise on 05.01.2009 it states as follows:-

“N.B.: We have installed machinery in factory for exemption benefit.”

From the above it can neither be inferred that they were claiming the benefit of exemption Notification No.33/99 nor that they are expanding or have expanded their installed capacity as per the requirements in the exemption Notification. He would further draw the attention of the Bench to the subsequent returns enclosed in the appeal memorandum to show that the other returns do not even contain this cursory remark. He would argue that by no stretch of imagination can this ambiguous endorsement by the appellant in one of the returns be taken as a substitute for the substantial requirement in para 2 of the exemption Notification. He would argue that the facts in the case laws relied upon by the appellant were different and there is nothing in this case to show that in their RT-12 returns they have claimed the benefit of exemption Notification or the fact that they are likely to claim it.

10. He would further argue that the scope of the availability of benefit of exemption Notifications has been a matter of dispute. In several judicial fora including by the Hon'ble Apex Court two types of decisions were taken. In some cases it has been held that the substantive benefit of an exemption Notification cannot be denied to the assessee on mere procedural grounds. This view was also taken in the three case laws relied upon by the appellant. The second set of decisions held that the exemption Notification being an exception to the general rule, must be construed strictly against the person claiming the exemption. In view of the conflicting decisions, the question of interpretation of an exemption Notification was referred to a five member constitutional Bench of the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Commissioner vs. Dilip Kumar [2016 (339) ELT A-146 (SC), which has finally decided that any exemption Notification must be construed strictly and in case of any doubt, the benefit of doubt must go in favour of the Revenue and against the assessee. In view of this judgement of the constitutional Bench of Hon'ble Supreme Court, which is binding on this Tribunal, the benefit of this exemption Notification cannot be granted to the appellant as they have not fulfilled the conditions of submitting statements as per para 2 of the exemption notification. In view of the judgment of the constitutional bench in the case of Dilip Kumar (supra), RT-12 return cannot be taken as a substitute for the statements required under the notification. They have not even mentioned the benefit of this exemption Notification in their RT-12 returns nor fulfilled other conditions required therein. All previous orders of this Tribunal or the Hon’ble High Courts get over-ruled in view of the judgement of the constitutional Bench of the Hon’ble Apex Court in the case of Dilip Kumar (supra).

11. He would further argue that another important aspect of this refund is whether the refund can be sanctioned without first amending the assessment itself. He would submit that the exemption Notification in question was not claimed in the RT-12 returns which were assessed/self-assessed. These returns, admittedly were neither challenged nor set aside by any higher judicial forum. The question which arises is whether refund can be claimed without revising the assessment itself and whether officers sanctioning the refund can revise the assessment/self-assessment done by the assessing officer/assessee. This issue has been decided by the Hon’ble Apex Court in the cases of Priya Blue Industries Limited v. CC(Prev.) [2004 (172) E.L.T. 145 (SC)] and CCE, Kanpur v. Flock India Private Limited [2000 (120) ELT 285 (SC)]. In both these judgements it has been held that whenever a refund arises out of an assessment, it cannot be sanctioned unless the assessment itself is appealed against and revised. The process of sanction of refund is a mere mechanical process consequent upon the assessment/self-assessment. Subsequently, the Hon’ble High Court of Delhi had, in a few cases where there was no assessment order, but there was self-assessment, distinguished those cases and held that in such cases refund can be sanctioned even without revising the assessment. These judgements of the Hon’ble High Court along with several others were taken up by a larger Bench of the Hon’ble Apex Court in the case of ITC Limited V. CCE, Kolkata-IV (CivilAppeal No.293-294 of 2009) recently decided by the Hon’ble Apex Court. It has been held that once an assessment is finalized whether the assessment is done by the officer or it is a case of self-assessment, no refund can be sanctioned unless the assessment is first appealed against and revised. It has been categorically held that the definition of assessment includes self-assessment and therefore self-assessment can also be challenged before first appellate authority or higher judicial forum. It has also been held that no refund can be sanctioned unless such re-assessment has been done. He would submit that in view of the strict interpretation of the exemption Notification with benefit of doubt going in favour of Revenue as held by the constitutional bench of the Hon’ble Supreme Court in the case of Dilip Kumar (supra) and the fact that the assessments were not challenged in these cases, no refund can be sanctioned to the appellant. Both these judgements being judgements of the Hon’ble Apex Court prospectively apply in other decisions of the Tribunal or High Courts. The appeal may therefore be rejected.

12. We have considered the arguments of both sides and perused therecords.

13. We find that the exemption Notification in question is a conditional exemption Notification available by way of refund. Para 2 of that exemption Notification prescribes the procedure for claiming it. This procedure requires the manufacturer to submit a statement of duty paid etc. on a monthly basis to the Assistant/Deputy Commissioner, who is required to verify the same and refund the amount. Admittedly the appellant had not done so. We have considered the learned Counsel’s arguments that the RT-12 returns submitted by them should be considered as equal to the statements has been held by the CESTAT in the cases relied upon by her. Clearly the exemption Notification provides for a separate statement and not merely the RT-12 returns which have to be filed in the way. Therefore to that extent the appellant has not fulfilled the condition of the exemption Notification. Secondly we have also examined the copies of RT-12 returns submitted by the learned Counsel in the appeal book. We find except for the cursory remark on one of the returns stating that they are expanding the capacity of the plant to claim exemption. There is nothing in the returns to show that they had intended to claim the benefit of exemption Notification No.33/99-CE or actually claimed in any of their returns whatsoever. In our considered view, this cannot be equated with fulfilling the conditions required under para 2 of the exemption Notification. We respectfully follow the judgement of the constitutional bench of the Hon’ble Apex Court in the case of Dilip Kumar (supra) wherein it has been categorically held that benefit of an exemption Notification must be construed strictly and any benefit of doubt must go against the assessee and in favour of the Revenue. In this case the availability of benefit is clearly not beyond any reasonable doubt. For that reason we find that the appellant is not entitled to the benefit of this exemption Notification. All the three case laws relied upon by the appellant pertain to the period prior to the legal position was settled by the Constitutional Bench in the case of Dilip Kumar and therefore stand over ruled.

14. We further find that RT-12 returns which have been assessed were not challenged by the appellant. On a specific query from the Bench learned Counsel for the appellant had admitted so. As held by the larger Bench of the Hon’ble Apex Court in the case of ITC Limited(supra), the refund which arises out of an assessment cannot be sanctioned unless the assessment itself has been challenged which is not the case in this appeal. For these reasons we find that the appellant is not entitled to the benefit of the refund claim.

In view of the above, the impugned order is upheld and the appeal is rejected.

FINAL ORDER NO.75330/2020

Date of Hearing: 06/02/2020
Date of Decision: 02/03/2020

PER P. V. SUBBA RAO:

This appeal is filed against Order-in-Original No. 01-03/Commissioner/CE/Haldia/Adjn/2017 dated 22/02/2017.

2. Heard both sides and perused the records.

3. The appellant assessee is a manufacturer of various petrochemicals. They cleared them on payment of Central Excise Duty. As per the scheme of the West Bengal VAT Department, they are entitled to invoice for applicable rate of VAT on their clearances and collect the same as VAT from the customers but not pay to the State government. This is referred to as remission under the scheme known as West Bengal Incentive Scheme, 1999.
4. Revenue is of the opinion that the additional amount which has been collected by the appellant from their customers as representing VAT but which has not been deposited as VAT forms an additional consideration for sale and therefore, Excise Duty has to be paid on the same. It is the case of the assessee that they are not liable to pay Excise Duty on this amount.

5. Ld. Counsel for the appellant contests the demand confirmed on the impugned order on the following grounds:

(i) No Excise Duty is payable on the amounts which they have collected as representing VAT but which they have not paid to the State Government under the Remission Scheme. He would submit that in the impugned Order, the Adjudicating Authority has confirmed the demand relying upon the judgment of the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Super Synotex (India) Ltd. [2014 (301) E.L.T. 273 (S.C.)] in which the Hon'ble Apex Court has held that where an amount is collected as the representing VAT/Sales Tax but which has not been paid to the State Government, is includable in the assessable value for the purpose of Central Excise Duty. Ld. Counsel would argue that this judgment of the Hon’ble Apex Court has not taken into account the fact that VAT itself is payable on the price plus Excise Duty. Therefore, if VAT is then added to the assessable value, we will get into loop in which the determination of the liability of VAT and Excise Duty become impossible. He also relies on the Order of Tribunal, Mumbai in the case of Welspun Corporation Ltd. 2017 (358) E.L.T. 630 (Tri.-Mumbai) in which that Bench had distinguished that case from the case of Super Synotex (Supra) and held that the Sales Tax actually payable at the time of removal but not paid is not includable in the transaction value for the purpose of Excise Duty.

He would submit that the demands up to period 2009-10 were all time barred as there is no evidence of fraud, collusion, willful miss-statement, suppression of facts, etc. In fact, earlier, a demand on exactly the same issue for the period July 2000 to December 2000 was decided in their own case by the Haldia Commissioner by this Order dt. 27/08/2004 in their favour. He held that no Excise duty is payable on such amounts. Revenue has not filed any appeal against the Order of the Commissioner. Therefore, it cannot, be said by any stretch of imagination be said that there was fraud, collusion, etc on the part of the appellant.

(iii) For the same reasons, no fine and penalty can be imposed upon them.
(iv) This matter is also a case of “res judicata” as the issue once settled in their favour cannot be opened again and again by the Department even for a different period.
(v) The quantification of the duty is erroneous. Even if, on merits, the matter is held against them, it is a well-settled legal position that for such cases, the amounts which have been received must be taken as Cum Duty Price.

6. Ld. Departmental Representative supports the impugned Orders and counters the arguments of the appellant. He would submit as follows:-

(i) As far as the merits of the case are concerned, the question of law to be decided as whether in any case where the assessee collects from the customers some amount as representing VAT but does not deposit the same with the State Government as per some Scheme and is entitled to keep the amount, the amount so collected and retained can be treated as additional consideration for sale. Accordingly, whether Excise Duty can be charged on such amounts. He would submit that this issue has been discussed at length in batch of civil appeals decided by the Hon’ble Supreme Court in the case of Super Synotex (Supra).

(ii) Paras 20 to 28 of this judgment read as follows”:-

20. The question that would still remain alive is that what would be the effect of amendment of Section 4 which has come into force with effect from 1-7-2000. The Section 4(3)(d) which defines “transaction value”, reads as follows :-

“4. Valuation of excisable goods for purposes of charging of duty of excise. -

(3) For the purposes of this section, -

(a) to (cc)
(d) “transaction value” means the price actually paid or payable for the goods, when sold, and includes in addition to the amount charged as price, any amount that the buyer is liable to pay to, or on behalf of, the assessee, by reason of, or in connection with the sale, whether payable at the time of the sale or at any other time, including, but not limited to, any amount charged for, or to make provision for, advertising or publicity, marketing and selling organization expenses, storage, outward handling, servicing, warranty, commission or any other matter; but does not include the amount of duty of excise, sales tax and other taxes, if any, actually paid or actually payable on such goods.”

21. After the substitution of the old Section 4 of the Act by Act, 10 of 2000 as reproduced hereinabove, the Central Board of Excise and Customs, New Delhi, issued certain circulars and vide Circular No. 671/62/2002-CX, dated 9-10-2002 clarified the circular issued on 1-7-2002. In the said circular reference was made to the earlier Circular No. 2/94-CX 1, dated 11-1-1994. It has been observed in the circular that after coming into force of new Section 4 with effect from 1-7-2000 wherein the concept of transaction value has been incorporated and the earlier explanation has been deleted, the circular had lost its relevance. However, after so stating the said circular addressed to the representations received from the Chambers of Commerce, Associations, assessees as well as the field formations and in the context stated thus :-

“5. The matter has been examined in the Board. It is observed that assessees charge and collect sales tax from their buyers at rates notified by the State Government for different commodities. For manufacture of excisable goods assessees procure raw materials, in some State, by paying sales tax/purchase tax on them (in some States, like New Delhi), raw materials are purchased against forms ST-1/ST-35 without paying any tax). While depositing sales tax with the Sales Tax Deptt. (on a monthly or quarterly basis), the assessee deposits only the net amount of sales tax after deducting set off/rebate admissible, either in full or in part, on the sales tax/purchase tax paid on the raw materials during the said month/quarter. The sales tax set off in such cases, therefore, does not work like the central excise set off notifications where one to one relationship is to be established between the finished product and the raw materials and the assessee is allowed to charge only the net central excise duty from the buyer in the invoice. The difference between the set off operating in respect of central excise duty and that for sales tax can be best illustrated through an example. If the sales tax on a product ‘A’ of value Rs. 100/- is, say 5% and the set off available in respect of the purchase tax/sales tax paid on inputs going into the manufacture of the product is, say, Re. 1/-, then the sales tax law permits the assessee to recover sales tax of Rs. 5/-. But while paying to the sales tax deptt. be deposits an amount of Rs. 5 – 1 = Rs. 4 only. On the central excise duty payable would have been Rs. 5 – 1 = Rs.4, in view of the set off notification, and the assessee would recover an amount of Rs. 4 only from the buyer as Central Excise duty. Thus, it is seen that the set off scheme in respect of sales tax operate in these cases somewhat like the Cenvat Scheme which does not have the effect of changing the rate of duty payable on the finished product.

6. Therefore, since the set off scheme of sales tax does not change the rate of sales tax payable/chargeable on the finished goods, the set off is not to be taken into account for calculating the amount of sales tax permissible as abatement for arriving at the assessable value u/s 4. In other words only that amount of sales tax will be permissible as deduction under Section 4 as is equal to the amount legally permissible under the local sales tax laws to be charged/billed from the customer/buyer.”
It is evincible from the language employed in the aforesaid circular that set off is to be taken into account for calculating the amount of sales tax permissible for arriving at the “transaction value” under Section 4 of the Act because the set off does not change the rate of sales tax payable/chargeable, but a lower amount is in fact paid due to set off of the sales tax paid on the input. Thus, if sales tax was not paid on the input, full amount is payable and has to be excluded for arriving at the “transaction value”. That is not the factual matrix in the present case. The assessee in the present case has paid only 25% and retained 75% of the amount which was collected as sales tax. 75% of the amount collected was retained and became the profit or the effective cost paid to the assessee by the purchaser. The amount payable as sales tax was only 25% of the normal sales tax. Purpose and objective in defining “transaction value” or value in relation to excisable goods is obvious. The price or cost paid to the manufacturer constitutes the assessable value on which excise duty is payable. It is also obvious that the excise duty payable has to be excluded while calculating transaction value for levy of excise duty. Sales tax or VAT or turnover tax is payable or paid to the State Government on the transaction, which is regarded as sale, i.e., for transfer of title in the manufactured goods. The amount paid or payable to the State Government towards sales tax, VAT, etc. is excluded because it is not an amount paid to the manufacturer towards the price, but an amount paid or payable to the State Government for the sale transaction, i.e., transfer of title from the manufacturer to a third party. Accordingly, the amount paid to the State Government is only excludible from the transaction value. What is not payable or to be paid as sales tax/VAT, should not be charged from the third party/customer, but if it charged and is not payable or paid, it is a part and should not be excluded from the transaction value. This is the position after the amendment, for as per the amended provision the words “transaction value” mean payment made on actual basis or actually paid by the assessee. The words that gain signification are “actually paid”. The situation after 1-7-2000 does not cover a situation which was covered under the circular dated 12-3-1998. Be that as it may, the clear legislative intent, as it seems to us, is on “actually paid”. The question of “actually payable” does not arise in this case.

In view of the aforesaid legal position, unless the sales taxes actually paid to the Sales Tax Department of the State Government, no benefit towards excise duty can be given under the concept of “transaction value” under Section 4(4)(d), for it is not excludible. As is seen from the facts, 25% of the sales tax collected has been paid to the State exchequer by way of deposit. The rest of the amount has been retained by the assessee. That has to be treated as the price of the goods under the basic fundamental conception of “transaction value” as substituted with effect from 1-7-2000. Therefore, the assessee is bound to pay the excise duty on the said sum after the amended provision had brought on the statute book.

What is urged by the learned counsel for the assessee is that paragraphs 5 and 6 of the circular dated 9-10-2002 do protect them, as has been more clearly stated in paragraph 5. To elaborate, sales tax having been paid on the inputs/raw materials, that is excluded from the excise duty when price is computed. Eventually, the amount of tax paid is less than the amount of tax payable and hence, the concept of “actually paid” gets satisfied. Judged on this anvil the submission of the learned counsel for the assessee that it would get benefit of paragraph 6 of the circular, is unacceptable. The assessee can only get the benefit on the amount that has actually been paid. The circular does not take note of any kind of book adjustment and correctly so, because the dictionary clause has been amended. We may, at this stage, also clarify the position relating to circulars. Binding nature of a circular was examined by the Constitution Bench in CCE v. Dhiren Chemical Industries - are -

e direction of any authority in respect of 26.

"7. Circulars and instructions issued by the Board are no doubt binding in law on the authorities under the respective statutes, but when the Supreme Court or the High Court declares the law on the question arising for consideration, it would not be appropriate for the court to direct that the circular should begiven effect to and not the view expressed in a decision of this Court or the High Court. So far as the clarifications/circulars issued by the Central Government and of the State Government are concerned they represent merely their understanding of the statutory provisions. They are not binding upon the court. It is for the court to declare what the particular provision of statute says and it is not for the executive. Looked at from another angle, a circular which is contrary to the statutory provisions has really no existence in law."

25. The legal position has been reiterated in the State of Tamil Nadu and Anr. v. India Cement Ltd. - (2011) 13 SCC 247. Therefore, reliance placed on the circular dated 9-10-2002 by the Tribunal is legally impermissible for two reasons, namely, the circular does not so lay down, and had it so stated that would have been contrary to the legislative intention.

26. In view of the aforesaid analysis, we are of the considered opinion that the assessees in all the appeals are entitled to get the benefit of the circular dated 12-3-1998 which protects the industrial units availing incentive scheme as there is a conceptual book adjustment of the sales tax paid to the Department. But with effect from 1-7-2000 they shall only be entitled to the benefit of the amount “actually paid” to the Department, i.e., 25%. Needless to emphasise, the set off shall operate only in respect of the amount that has been paid on the raw material and inputs on which the sales tax/purchase tax has been paid. That being the position the adjudication by the Tribunal is not sustainable. Similarly the determination by the original adjudicating authority requiring the assessees to deposit or pay the whole amount and the consequential imposition of penaltyalso cannot be held to be defensible. Therefore, we allow the appeals in part, set aside the orders passed by the Tribunal as well as by the original adjudicating authority and remit the matters to the respective Tribunals to adjudicate as far as excise duty is concerned in accordance with the principles set out hereinabove. We further clarify that as far as imposition of penalty is concerned, it shall be dealt with in accordance with law governing the field. In any case, proceeding relating to the period prior to 1-7-2000 would stand closed and if any amount has been paid or deposited as per the direction of any authority in respect of the said period, shall be refunded. As far as the subsequent period is concerned, the Tribunal shall adjudicate as per the principles stated hereinbefore.

27. Coming to the appeals preferred by the assessees, the challenge pertains to denial of benefit of the Central Sales Tax Act, the aforesaid reasoning will equally apply. The submission that the concession of excise duty is granted by the Excise Department of the Central Government is not acceptable. On a perusal of the circulars dated 12-3-1998 and 1-7-2002 we do not find that they remotely relate to any exemption under the Central Sales Tax imposed on the goods. What is argued by the learned counsel for the assessees is that the benefit should be extended to the Central Sales Tax

(2002) 2 SCC 127 = 2002 (139) E.L.T. 3 (S.C.), and it was held that if there are circulars issued by C.B.E. & C. which placed different interpretation upon a phrase in the statute, the interpretation suggested in the circular would be binding on the Revenue, regardless of the interpretation placed by this Court. In CCE v. Ratan Melting & Wire Industries - (2008) 13 SCC 1 = 2008 (231) E.L.T. 22 (S.C.) = 2008 (12) S.T.R. 416 (S.C.), the Constitution Bench clarifying paragraph 11 in Dhiren Chemical Industries (supra) has stated thus :- as the tax on sales has a broader concept. The aforesaid submission is noted to be rejected and we, accordingly, repel the same. In view of the aforesaid, the appeals preferred by the assessees stand dismissed.

28. In the result, both sets of appeals stand disposed of accordingly. There shall be no order as to costs.

(iii) He would submit that one of the appellants in that case, namely M/s. Bharat Roll Industry (CA No. 4621/2008) also had their case decided in the matter with respect to the specific scheme of remission of VAT under the West Bengal Government VAT Scheme. Aggrieved by the Order of the Hon'ble Apex Court, M/s. Bharat Roll Industry filed a review petition which was dismissed by the Hon'ble Apex Court with the following words:

“Applications for open hearing of the review petitions are rejected.

We have perused the Review Petitions and record of the Civil Appeals and are convinced that the Order of which Review has been sought does not suffer from any error apparent warranting its reconsideration.

He would therefore, urge that the ratio of the judgment of the Hon’ble Apex Court is binding in this Bench and there is no scope for taking any different view.

(iv) As far as the question of invoking the extended period of limitation, alleging suppression, etc. and imposition of penalty is concerned, he reiterates the impugned order.

(v) On the argument of the issue being res judicata, he would argue that after the year 2000, valuation of each consignment is a separate assessment in itself. Merely because the Department has not challenged an order passed by the Commissioner for an earlier period, it does not mean that the Department is estopped from raising a demand for a subsequent period. Therefore, there is no force in the argument that the matter is hit by the principle of res judicata.

(vi) On the argument that the Tribunal Mumbai had in the case of Welspun Corporation Ltd. (Supra) distinguished the case from the case of Super Synotex Ltd. (Supra), he would take us through the case and submit that in Para 5.5 of the Order, it is clearly recorded that the Commissioner (Appeals) in that case distinguished that case from the case of Super Synotex. Revenue’s proposal to challenge this finding was rejected by the Bench only on the Technical Ground that such refutation was not part of the Review Order/Appeal. Therefore, he would submit that the distinction was not made by the Tribunal on merits of that case but only a technicality which should not bind this bench in this case. He would therefore, urge that the appeal is without merits and needs to be rejected.

7. We have considered the arguments on both sides and perused the records. There are several schemes of State Governments in which, as an incentive, businesses are allowed to collect amounts as representing VAT/Sales Tax but not remit the amount to the State Government. The question is whether in such cases the amounts so retained form part of the assessable value for the purposes of Excise Duty. Since such matters were pending in various States all these appeals or at least many of them were disposed of by the Hon’ble Apex court who held that Excise Duty has to be paid on such amounts which are retained by the assessee.

8. We note that this judgment was not confined to any particular law of a particular state or a particular scheme but has laid down the law. Review Petitions filed against this judgment were also dismissed by the Hon’ble Apex Court. There is nothing on record to show that a larger Bench of Supreme Court has taken any contrary view. We therefore, find this judgment is binding on us and leaves us with no option but to hold that the assessee in the present case is bound to pay Excise Duty on the amounts collected as representing VAT but which were not paid to the government under the scheme. Ld. Counsel would argue that the Supreme Court’s judgment was not correct inasmuch as it had not taken in their account the computational difficulties which would arise. We are not impressed by this argument considering that the Review Petition has also been dismissed by the Supreme Court. It is not for this bench to sit in judgment over the law laid down by the Apex Court. We are bound to follow it.

8. The case of Welspun Corporation Ltd. (Supra) relied upon by the Ld. Counsel is a judgment of the Tribunal Mumbai Bench, where the case law laid down by the Hon’ble Apex Court was not considered on a technical ground that the same was not part of the appeal. Such technicality in that case does not prevail over the judgment of the highest Court of the land. We, therefore, find the case in favour of the revenue and against the appellant on merits.

9. As far as the argument of res judicata is concerned, it estops either party from raising the same case again and again. In Central Excise Duty, each individual consignment is an assessment by itself and a mistake made in one assessment by either party and not challenged by the other, does not mean that the other party is bound by such decision contrary to law for all subsequent periods. Such a view will lead us to absurd conclusions. For instance, Service Tax was paid by many assessee on Works Contract Service prior to 01/06/2007 although subsequently, it was held by the Hon’ble Apex Court that no such tax is payable. Merely because assessee had paid Service Tax wrongly for an earlier period, it does not mean that they are bound to pay Service Tax for subsequent periods also on the principle of res judicata. In this particular case, when there is a clear ruling by the Hon’ble Apex Court, the assessee cannot be get away from tax liability on the ground that a wrong decision was taken for some earlier period by the Commissioner which was not challenged for that period by the Revenue.

10. As far as the invocation of extended period of limitation is concerned, we find such a suggestion preposterous considering that it is clearly on record that the Revenue is aware of modus operandi of the assessee. To allege fraud, collusion, willful misstatement or suppression of fact or violation of Act or rules with an intent to evade payment of duty and invoke extended period has no basis. For this reason, we find the demand for extended period of limitation needs to be set aside and we do so. For the same reasons, we also find that the penalty imposed upon the appellant is sustainable.

11. In view of the above, the appeal is disposed of as follow:-

(a) The demand for the normal period of limitation is upheld and the demand for extended period of limitation is set aside.

(b) The amounts which have been collected by the appellant as VAT and retained must be taken as cum duty price and Excise Duty are calculated accordingly.

(c) The penalties imposed upon the appellant are set aside.

(d) The appeal is remanded to the Adjudicating Authority for the limited purpose of recomputation of duty.

FINAL ORDER No. 75365/2020

Date of Hearing: 04.02.2020
Date of Decision: 03/07/2020

[Order per: P. VENKATA SUBBA RAO.]

1. This appeal is filed by the appellant challenging the impugned Order-in-Original No.80-83/COMMR/DGP/2016 dt.26.02.2016.

2. Heard both sides and perused the records. The appellant is a 100% Export Oriented Unit (EOU) registered with the department. EOUs are units which are primarily setup to manufacture of goods for export and are given special concessions by the Government. The capital goods, raw materials, etc., which are procured by them are exempted from payment of customs duties (in case of imports) and Central Excise duty (in case of domestic procurement). They are required to export their final products. They are also permitted to sell some portion of their final products within the country (Domestic Tariff Area) subject to conditions as specified from time to time. As EOUs are practically duty-free, they are also treated as if they are outside India. Therefore, in respect of any goods which are cleared by the EOU for sale within India, excise duty is collected at a rate equivalent to Customs duty leviable on identical goods imported into India in terms of the proviso to section 3 of Central Excise Act, 1944.
In this case, the appellant had imported inputs claiming the benefit of exemption notification No.52/2003-CUS dt.31.03.2003 for Basic Customs Duty and applicable Central Excise Duty (on indigenously procured raw materials). They were supposed to manufacture solar modules and export. However, the appellant was not able to export goods and had cleared their final products in DTA claiming exemption under notification Nos.24/2005-CUS as amended by notification No.132/2006-CUS and notification No.06/2006-CE and notification No.12/2012-CE. Final products manufactured by the appellant have zero basic customs duty because they appear in List-5 of notification No.06/2006-CUS dt.01.03.2006 and at Sl.No.332 of notification No.12/2012-CE dt.17.03.2012. In other words, the final products manufactured by the appellant were fully exempted from payment of duty. The question which arises is, under such circumstances, whether the appellant is entitled to claim the benefit of exemption notifications meant for 100% EOUs in respect of the inputs which they had procured. It is the case of the revenue that the appellant is not entitled to the benefits of exemptions on the inputs. It is the case of the assessee that they were entitled to the benefits of these exemption notifications. Four Show Cause Notices (SCN) were issued as follows:

4. The appellant contested the jurisdiction of the adjudicating authority as two of the SCN were issued by the Commissioner of Central Excise, Bolpur and the other two SCN were issued by the Commissioner of Central Excise, Durgapur. All were decided by the Commissioner of Central Excise, Durgapur. During hearing, learned Departmental Representative (DR) has clarified that there was only re-organisation of the Commissionerates’ jurisdiction and as a result, the Commissioner of Central Excise and Service Tax, Durgapur had decided all the four matters. Learned Counsel for the appellant also did not press this point before us. It is not in dispute that the appellant’s final products were exempted from payment of duty under both the customs notifications and the central excise notification. As the appellant is a 100% EOU the duty has to be paid on their final products cleared to the DTA as if such goods are imported into India i.e., at the rate at which customs duties will be applicable if similar goods were imported to India. If such goods were imported to India they would be subjected to basic customs duty as per the Customs Tariff and additional duty of customs (also known as CVD) as per the Central Excise Tariff. Both the basic customs duty and additional duty of customs are ‘NIL’ for their final products by virtue of the exemption notifications available to them. Therefore, no duty was paid on the final products cleared by the appellant to the DTA. There is no dispute regarding the eligibility of the exemption notification for their final products.

5. What is in dispute is whether the appellant is also entitled to duty-free inputs (both imported and indigenous) under the exemption notifications 52/2003-CUS dt.01.03.2003 and 22/2003-CE.

6. It is undisputed that the notification Nos.52/2003-CUS and 22/2003-CE are meant for exemption to 100% EOUs. It is also not in dispute that both these exemption notification are issued by the Finance Ministry in consonance with corresponding provisions of Foreign Trade Policy. Para 6 of notification No.22/2003-CE reads as follows:

“6. Notwithstanding anything contained in this notification, the exemption contained herein shall also apply to the goods used for the purposes of processing, manufacture, production or packaging of articles in an user industry and such articles (including rejects, wastes, scrap and remnants arising out of such processing, manufacture, production, or packaging of such articles) even if not exported out of India are allowed to be cleared outside the user industry under and in accordance with the Export and Import Policy and subject to such other limitations and conditions as may be specified in this behalfly Development Commissioner, or the Board of Approval or the Inter Ministerial Standing Committee (IMSC), as the case may be, on payment of appropriate duty of excise, or where such articles are cleared to the warehouse appointed or registered under notification of the Government of India in the Ministry of Finance, Department of Revenue, No. 26/98-Central Excise (NT), dated the 15th July,1998 or No. 46/2001-CE ( NT), dated 26th June, 2001 or cleared to the warehouse authorised to carry on manufacturing process or other operation under section 65 of the Customs Act, 1962 (52 of 1962) and under the Manufacture and Other Operations in Warehouse Regulations, 1966, or cleared to the holders of certificate for duty free import from Apparel Export Promotion Council and Council for Leather Export as specified in paragraph 6.9(e) of Export and Import Policy, without payment of duty.Provided that goods which have been repaired, reconditioned, re-engineered shall not be allowed to be cleared outside the units.Provided further that where such articles (including rejects, waste and scrap materials) are not excisable, duty foregone equal in amount to that leviable on the inputs obtained under this notification and used for the purpose of manufacture of such articles, which would have been paid but for the exemption under this notification, shall be payable at the time of clearance of such articles.”
Similarly, Para 3 of notification No.52/2003-CUS dt.01.03.2003 reads as follows:

"3. Notwithstanding anything contained in this notification, the exemption herewith shall also apply to goods which on importation into India or procurement, are used for the purpose of manufacture of finished goods or services and such finished goods and services, (including by-products, rejects, waste and scrap arising in the course of production, manufacture, processing or packaging of such goods) even if not exported, are allowed to be sold in Domestic Tariff Area in accordance with the Export and Import Policy and subject to such other limitations and conditions as may be specified in this behalf by Development Commissioner, or the Board of Approval or the Inter Ministerial Standing Committee, as the case may be, on payment of appropriate duty of excise leviable thereon under section 3 of the Central Excise Act, 1944 (1 of 1944) or where such finished goods (including by-products, rejects, waste and scrap) or services are cleared to the warehouse appointed or registered under notification of the Government of India in the Ministry of Finance (Department of Revenue) No. 26/98-Central Excise (NT), dated the 15th July, 1998 or No. 46/2001-Central Excise (NT), dated the 26th June, 2001 or cleared to the warehouse authorised to carry out manufacturing process or other operation under section 65 of the Customs Act, 1962 (52 of 1962) and under the Manufacture and Other Operations in Warehouse Regulation, or cleared to the holders of certificate from Apparel Export Promotion Council and Council for Leather Export for duty free imports as referred to in clause (e) of the paragraph 6.9 of the Export and Import Policy, without payment of duty.

Provided that where such finished goods (including rejects, waste and scrap and remnants) are not excisable, customs duty equal in amount to that leviable on the inputs imported under this notification and used for the purpose of manufacture of such finished goods, which would have been paid but for the exemption under this notification shall be payable at the time of clearance of such finished goods.

Provided further that the Software Technology Park (STP) unit and the Electronic Hardware Technology Park (EHTP) unit engaged in manufacture of electronic hardware and software in integrated manner, shall be allowed to sell software, data entry and conversion, data processing, data analysis, control data management or rendering of call center services through data communication link and or tele communication link subject to such conditions as may be specified by the Commissioner of Customs or Commissioner of Central Excise, as the case may be."

5. As may be seen, both the exemption notifications extend the exemption even to inputs which are used for manufacture of goods which are cleared to DTA. However, if such final products are “not excisable”, duty foregone equal in amount to that leviable on inputs obtained under these notifications and used for manufacture of such articles would have to be paid at the time of clearance of such articles. This is evident in the second proviso to Para 6 of notification No.22/2003-CE above and first proviso to Para 3 of notification No.52/2003-CUS.

6. That takes us to the next question as to what is the meaning of “not excisable”, within the context of this particular exemption notification. This is clear from the corresponding Foreign Trade Policy. Para 6.08(J) of Foreign Trade Policy 2015-2020 as well as Para 6.8(J) of Foreign Trade Policy 2009-2014 which explained that non-excisable products in the context of EOU/EHTP/STP/BTP includes any product where the basic customs duty and CVD is ‘NIL’. This Para reads as follows:

“ In case of DTA sale of goods manufactured by EOU/EHTP/STP/BTP, where basic duty and CVD is nil, such goods may be considered as non-excisable for payment of duty.”

7. It is the case of the revenue that since the final products cleared by the appellant were chargeable to ‘NIL’ basic customs duty and ‘NIL’ CVD and were also cleared paying ‘NIL’ rate of duty, they are not excisable and the exemption on the inputs under the notification No.52/2003-CUS and 22/2003-CE on the inputs is not available to the appellant. Accordingly, the following duties were demanded in the four SCNs.

Interest was also demanded on the aforesaid amounts and penalties were proposed to be imposed under section 11AC of Central Excise Act and Rule 25 of Central Excise Rules (CER), 2002. Penalty was also proposed to be imposed under section 112 of Customs Act, 1962. The appellant contested the demands and after following due process, the learned Commissioner, in the impugned order, held as follows:

“In view of the discussions made hereinbefore, I pass the following order:

i. I confirm the demand of Central Excise duty of an amount Rs.3,52,99,354/- (Rupees Three Crore Fifty-two lakh Ninety-nine thousand Three hundred Fifty-four only) and order recovery of the same from M/s Sova Power Ltd., under proviso to erstwhile Section 11A(1) and Section 11A(10) of the Central Excise Act, 1944.

ii. I impose interest at appropriate rate under provision of Section 11AA (Erstwhile Section 11AB) of Central Excise Act, 1944.

iii. I impose penalty Rs.3,52,99,354/- (Rupees Three Crore Fifty-two lakh Ninety-nine thousand Three hundred Fifty-four only) on the said notice Company under Rule 25 of Central Excise Rules, 2002 read with Section 11AC of Central Excise Act, 1944.
iv. I confirm the demand of Customs duty of amount Rs.6,24,07,996/- (Rupees Six crore Twenty-four lakh Seven thousand Nine hundred Ninety-six only) and order recovery of the same from M/s Sova Power Ltd., in terms of Section 28(2) of Customs Act, 1962 as amended from time to time.

v. I impose interest at appropriate rate under provision of Section 28AB of Customs Act, 1962 (Section 2811 wherever applicable).

vi. I impose penalty of Rs.6,24,07,996/- (Rupees Six crore Twenty-four lakh Seven thousand Nine hundred Ninety-six only) on the said notice Company under section 114A of Customs Act, 1962.”

7. Aggrieved, the appellant filed the present appeal. Before filing this appeal, the appellant had approached the Hon'ble High Court of Kolkata by filing Writ Petition No.10544/2016 which was dismissed by the Hon'ble High Court of Kolkata on 15.07.2016 giving the appellant the opportunity to seek alternative remedy before this Tribunal. Thereafter, they filed the present appeal. The SCN was issued seeking to deny benefit of notification No.52/2003-CUS and 22/2003-CSE on the inputs which they used to manufacture. Learned counsel for the appellant did not contest that they were not eligible for the aforesaid two notifications. Instead his argument was that even if they were not entitled to the benefit of the aforesaid two notifications, they were indeed entitled to the benefit of notification Nos.24/2005-CUS dt.01.03.2005 as amended by notification No.132/2006-CUS dt.30.12.2006 read with notification No.06/2006-CE dt.01.03.2006 and notification No.12/2012-CE dt.17.03.2012 in respect of the inputs which were imported as well as which were procured indigenously. His argument was that if they are covered by other exemption notifications, even if they were not entitled to the benefit of exemption notifications which they had sought, they would still be eligible for the exemption and therefore, no demand can be confirmed against them. Accordingly, the entire demand needs to be set aside along with interest and penalties.

13. Learned DR argues in the first place that this bench cannot go beyond the scope of the SCN which only sought to deny the benefit of such exemption notifications which they were admittedly not entitled to. However, even if the submissions of learned counsel were accepted, the appellant was not entitled to the benefit of the other exemption notifications which they now claimed in respect of these inputs which they had procured. Therefore, he submits that this appeal needs to be rejected.

14. In this factual background, we proceed to examine the appellant’s eligibility to exemption notifications which are now being sought. Notification No.24/2005-CUS reads as follows:

“In exercise of the powers conferred by sub-section (1) of section 25 of the Customs Act, 1962(52 of 1962), the Central Government, on being satisfied that it is necessary in the public interest so to do, hereby exempts the following goods, falling under the heading, sub-heading or tariff-item of the First Schedule to the Customs Tariff Act, 1975 (51 of 1975) and specified in column (2) of the Table below, when imported into India, from the whole of the duty of customs leviable thereon under the said First Schedule, namely:-

All goods for the manufacture of goods covered by S.Nos. 1 to 4 above, provided that the importer follows the procedure set out in the Customs (Import of Goods at Concessional Rate of Duty for Manufacture of Excisable Goods) Rules, 1996.

(This was amended by notification No.132/2006 dt.30.12.2006.)

“ In exercise of the powers conferred by sub-section (1) of section 25 of the Customs Act, 1962(52 of 1962), the Central Government, on being satisfied that it is necessary in the public interest so to do, hereby makes the following amendments in the notification of the Government of India in the Ministry of Finance (Department of Revenue), No.24/2005-Customs, dated the 1st March, 2005, namely:-

In the said notification

(i) in the opening paragraph for the words, figures and letters “following goods, falling under the heading, sub-heading or tariff-item of the First Schedule to the Customs tariff Act, 1975 (51 of 1975) and specified in column (2) of the Table below”, the words “following goods of the description as specified in column (3) of the Table below and falling under the heading, sub-heading or tariff-item of the First Schedule to the Customs Tariff Act, 1975 (51 of 1975) as specified in the corresponding entry in column (2) of the said Table” shall be substituted;

16. Notification No.24/2005-CUS exempts certain goods including the final products manufactured by the appellant viz., solar modules which fall under the Customs Tariff 8541. These are covered at Sl.No.3 of the table. The inputs which they used are admittedly not covered at Sl.No.3. Learned counsel for the appellant submits that all goods used for manufacture of goods covered at Sl.No.1 to Sl.No.4 of the table are also covered at Sl.No.5 of the table which is reproduced above.

17. This notification was revised by notification No.132/2006-CUS which also covers the products at Sl.No.23 of the table and their inputs at Sl.No.39 of the table. Both S.No.5 of Notification No.24/2005-CUS and S.No.39 of the Notification No.132/2006-CUS require the importer to follow the procedures set out in Customs (Import of goods at concessional rate of duty for manufacture of excisable goods) Rules, 1996. These rules require the claimant to obtain a registration from the department and also follow some procedures. However, they were already registered with the Central Excise department as an EOU. The CBEC had issued a clarification in DOF No.334/7/2017/TRU dt.01.02.2017. Para 6 of which interalia reads as follows:

“...EOUs will also be eligible to import or procure raw materials/ inputs at other concessional/ nil rate of BCD, excise duty/ CVD or SAD, as the case may be, provided they fulfil all conditions for being eligible to such concessional or nil rate of duty. For these purposes, if an EOU is already registered with the jurisdictional central excise authority, it will not be required to take any fresh registration under the Customs (Import of Goods at Concessional Rate of Duty for Manufacture of Excisable Goods and Other Goods) Rules, 2016, as the case may be.”

18. Learned counsel would submit that although the clarification was issued by the CBEC in 2017, this should be applied to earlier periods also as it is only a question of technicality of being registered once or registered twice. Therefore, they cannot be denied the benefit of this exemption notification on the ground that they were not registered separately under the Rules.

19. Per contra, learned DR argues that a plain reading of the clarification shows that the exemption was given only with respect to the registration clarifying that two registrations, one with Central Excise department in the normal course of business and another for this purpose under the Customs (Import of goods at Concessional Rate of Duty for Manufacture of Excisable goods) Rules, 1996 was not required. This clarification was issued in the context of 2016 Rules which are more or less similar to the 1996 Rules. A perusal of these rules shows that several procedures have to be followed under these rules and the registration is only one of the steps. What has been exempted by the Board is only an additional registration but the remaining part of the rules has not been exempted. He would take us through these rules which read as follows:

“In exercise of the powers conferred by section 156 of the Customs Act, 1962 (52 of 1962), and in supersession of the Customs (Import of Goods at Concessional Rate of Duty for Manufacture of Excisable Goods) Rules, 2016 except as things done or omitted to be done before such supersession, the Central Government hereby makes the following, namely: –

1. Short title and commencement. –

(1) These rules may be called the Customs (Import of Goods at Concessional Rate of Duty) Rules, 2017.

(2) They shall come into force on the 1st day of July, 2017.
2. Application. –

(1) These rules shall apply to an importer, who intends to avail the benefit of an exemption notification issued under sub-section (1) of section 25 of the Customs Act, 1962 (52 of 1962) and where the benefit of such exemption is dependent upon the use of imported goods covered by that notification for the manufacture of any commodity or provision of output service.

(2) These rules shall apply only in respect of such exemption notifications which provide for the observance of these rules.

3. Definition. –

In these rules, unless the context otherwise requires, –

(a) “Act” means the Customs Act, 1962 (52 of 1962);

(b) “exemption notification” means a notification issued under sub-section (1) of section 25 of the Act;

(c) “information” means the information provided by the manufacturer who intends to avail the benefit of an exemption notification;

(d) “Jurisdictional Custom Officer” means an officer of Customs of a rank equivalent to the rank of Superintendent or an Appraiser exercising jurisdiction over the premises where either the imported goods shall be put to use for manufacture or for rendering output services;

(e) “manufacture” means the processing of raw material or inputs in any manner that results in emergence of a new product having a distinct name, character and use and the term “manufacturer” shall be construed accordingly;

(f) “output service” means supply of service with the use of the imported goods.

4. Information about intent to avail benefit of exemption notification. –

An importer who intends to avail the benefit of an exemption notification shall provide the information to the Deputy Commissioner of Customs or, as the case may be, Assistant Commissioner of Customs having jurisdiction over the premises where the imported goods shall be put to use for manufacture of goods or for rendering output service, the particulars, namely:-

(i) the name and address of the manufacturer;

(ii) the goods produced at his manufacturing facility;

(iii) the nature and description of imported goods used in the manufacture of goods or providing an output service.

5. Procedure to be followed. –
(1) The importer who intends to avail the benefit of an exemption notification shall provide information –

(a) in duplicate, to the Deputy Commissioner of Customs or, as the case may be, Assistant Commissioner of Customs having jurisdiction over the premises where the imported goods shall be put to use for manufacture of goods or for rendering output service, the estimated quantity and value of the goods to be imported, particulars of the exemption notification applicable on such import and the port of import in respect of a particular consignment for a period not exceeding one year; and

(b) in one set, to the Deputy Commissioner of Customs or, as the case may be, Assistant Commissioner of Customs at the Custom Station of importation.

(2) The importer who intends to avail the benefit of an exemption notification shall submit a continuity bond with such surety or security as deemed appropriate by the Deputy Commissioner of Customs or Assistant Commissioner of Customs having jurisdiction over the premises where the imported goods shall be put to use for manufacture of goods or for rendering output service, with an undertaking to pay the amount equal to the difference between the duty leviable on inputs but for the exemption and that already paid, if any, at the time of importation, along with interest, at the rate fixed by notification issued under section 28AA of the Act, for the period starting from the date of importation of the goods on which the exemption was availed and ending with the date of actual payment of the entire amount of the difference of duty that he is liable to pay.

(3) The Deputy Commissioner of Customs or, as the case may be, Assistant Commissioner of Customs having jurisdiction over the premises where the imported goods shall be put to use for manufacture of goods or for rendering output service, shall forward one copy of information received from the importer to the Deputy Commissioner of Customs, or as the case may be, Assistant Commissioner of Customs at the Custom Station of importation.

(4) On receipt of the copy of the information under clause (b) of sub-rule (1), the Deputy Commissioner of Customs or, as the case may be, Assistant Commissioner of Customs at the Custom Station of importation shall allow the benefit of the exemption notification to the importer who intends to avail the benefit of exemption notification.

6. Importer who intends to avail the benefit of an exemption notification to give information regarding receipt of imported goods and maintain records. –

(1) The importer who intends to avail the benefit of an exemption notification shall provide the information of the receipt of the imported goods in his premises where goods shall be put to use for manufacture, within two days (excluding holidays, if any) of such receipt to the jurisdictional Customs Officer.

(2) The importer who has availed the benefit of an exemption notification shall maintain an account in such manner so as to clearly indicate the quantity and value of goods imported, the quantity of imported goods consumed in accordance with provisions of the exemption notification, the quantity of goods re-exported, if any, under rule 7 and the quantity remaining in stock, bill of entry wise and shall produce the said account as and when required by the Deputy Commissioner of Customs or, as the case may be, Assistant Commissioner of Customs having jurisdiction over the premises where the imported goods shall be put to use for manufacture of goods or for rendering output service.

(3) The importer who has availed the benefit of an exemption notification shall submit a quarterly return, in the Form appended to these rules, to the Deputy Commissioner of Customs or, as the case may be, Assistant Commissioner of Customs having jurisdiction over the premises where the imported goods shall be put to use for manufacture of goods or for rendering output service, by the tenth day of the following quarter.

7. Re-export or clearance of unutilised or defective goods. –

(1) The importer who has availed benefit of an exemption notification, prescribing observance of these rules may re-export the unutilised or defective imported goods, within six months from the date of import, with the permission of the jurisdictional Deputy Commissioner of Customs or, as the case may be, Assistant Commissioner of Customs having jurisdiction over the premises where the imported goods shall be put to use for manufacture of goods or for rendering output service:

Provided that the value of such goods for re-export shall not be less than the value of the said goods at the time of import.

(2) The importer who has availed benefit of an exemption notification, prescribing observance of these rules may also clear the unutilised or defective imported goods, with the permission of the jurisdictional Deputy Commissioner of Customs or, as the case may be, Assistant Commissioner of Customs having jurisdiction over the premises where the imported goods shall be put to use for manufacture of goods or for rendering output service, within a period of six months from the date of import on payment of import duty equal to the difference between the duty leviable on such goods but for the exemption availed and that already paid, if any, at the time of importation, along with interest, at the rate fixed by notification issued under section 28AA of the Act, for the period starting from the date of importation of the goods on which the exemption was availed and ending with the date of actual payment of the entire amount of the difference of duty that he is liable to pay.

8. Recovery of duty in certain case. –

The importer who has availed the benefit of an exemption notification shall use the goods imported in accordance with the conditions mentioned in the concerned exemption notification or take action by re-export or clearance of unutilised or defective goods under rule 7 and in the event of any failure, the Deputy Commissioner of Customs or, as the case may be, Assistant Commissioner of Customs having jurisdiction over the premises where the imported goods shall be put to use for manufacture of goods or for rendering output service shall take action by invoking the Bond to initiate the recovery proceedings of the amount equal to the difference between the duty leviable on such goods but for the exemption and that already paid, if any, at the time of importation, along with interest, at the rate fixed by notification issued under section 28AA of the Act, for the period starting from the date of importation of the goods on which the exemption was availed and ending with the date of actual payment of the entire amount of the difference of duty that he is liable to pay.

20. He would submit that the above rules are not a mere formality but have a specific purpose of ensuring that the goods are not diverted and they are used for a particular purpose. The appellant has neither registered under the Rules nor followed any of the procedures required. Unless all the conditions of an exemption are fulfilled, the benefit of this exemption cannot be given. He would further argue that even if it is held that both views are possible the benefit of doubt has to go in favour of the revenue and against the assessee while applying an exemption notification as per law laid down by the Constitutional Bench of the Hon’ble Supreme Court in the case of Dilip Kumar and Co. &Ors [2018 (361) ELT 577 (SC)]. Learned counsel for the appellant argues that once they are exempted from the registration under the rules, it automatically means that they are exempted from all the remaining rules altogether. Therefore, they are entitled to the exemption even though they have not followed any of the Rules.

21. As far as the Central Excise duty is concerned, the learned counsel for the appellant submits that their final products are exempted by notification 06/2006-CE and they had indeed availed the benefit of this exemption notification. Their goods are covered at Sl.No.84 of the table in this exemption notification. This notification refers to List-5 annexed to the exemption notification. Sl.No.11 of the List-5 reads “Solar Photovoltaic module and panel for water pumping and other applications.” There is no dispute that their final products fall under this category being solar modules. Therefore, their parts are covered at SL.No.21 which reads “Parts consumed within the factory of production of such parts for the manufacture of goods specified at Sl.No.1-20 above”. He would, therefore, argue that all the parts which they have imported are covered by Sl.No.21 List-5 read with Sl.No.84 of the table of exemption notification 06/2006-CE. Therefore, no demand can be sustained on the CVD components as well as on the indigenously procured goods.

22. Per contra, learned DR argues on this point that a plain reading of exemption notification undoubtedly exempts the final products of the appellant being covered at Sl.No.84 of the table read with Sl.No.11 of List-5. In fact they have also availed benefit of exemption notification. As far as Sl.No.21 of List-5 is concerned, it is very specific that it exempts parts consumed within the factory of production of such parts. It does not exempt parts which are sold outside the factory. There is no dispute that the parts have not been manufactured by the appellant. In fact, there is no demand on any parts manufactured by the appellant and used within the factory of the manufacture. The demand is on account of the parts which are either been purchased by them from other suppliers or parts which have been imported by them. In either case, they are clearly not covered by Sl.No.21 of List-5. Therefore, the appellant is not entitled to the benefits of this exemption notification as well.
23. In conclusion, learned counsel for the appellant submits that since they are entitled to the benefit of the aforesaid notification i.e., 24/2005-CUS, as amended by notification 132/2006-CUS dt.30.12.2006 and notification 06/2006-CE, regardless of the fact that the parts which were used were not manufactured within their factory of production and regardless of the fact that they have not followed the rules required for claiming the Customs exemption notification, they should be given the benefit of these exemption notifications on all the inputs which they have used. If they do get the benefit of these exemption notifications, no demand will survive and therefore, the impugned order needs to be set aside.

24. The learned DR, in conclusion, argues that the SCN was with respect to two exemption notifications which admittedly are not available if the final products cleared by the appellant to the DTA were exempted from duty. There is no doubt that the final products were exempted from duty and were indeed cleared without payment of duty. Therefore, the demand is on the duties foregone on the inputs in terms of the exemption notifications. In the first place, this bench, at this stage, cannot go beyond the SCN and give the benefit of some other exemption notifications which was not the point of dispute in SCNs themselves. Further, he would argue that even if the benefit of these exemption notifications now claimed by the appellant are considered, a plain reading of all the exemption notifications shows that the appellant was clearly not entitled to the benefit of these exemption notifications. Even if it is argued that more than one view is possible, with respect to the exemption notifications, the benefit of doubt, if any, cannot go to the appellant and must go in favour of the revenue as per the ratio of the judgment of the Constitutional Bench of the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Dilip Kumar & Co. and Ors. (supra).

25. We have considered the arguments made exhaustively by both sides and perused the records. It is undisputed that the appellant is a 100% EOU, they imported inputs availing the benefit of exemption notifications available only to 100% EOUs. These exemption notifications are available to the EOUs even if the final products are cleared to DTA. However, where the final products are cleared to DTA and such final products are non-excisable, no benefit of exemption on the inputs is available to the appellant. The term non-excisable in this context has been clarified in the Foreign Trade Policy (in consonance of which the exemption notifications are issued) as “such goods which are exempted from both the basic customs duty and additional duty of customs”.

26. It is not in dispute that the final products manufactured and cleared by the appellant are exempted from both the basic customs duty and additional duty of customs. Therefore, they are non-excisable and inputs used in their manufacture are clearly not covered by the exemption notifications originally claimed by the appellant and which were sought to be denied in the SCNs. Hence the demands on this ground must sustain.

27. The argument before us by the learned counsel is that even if their inputs are not covered by exemption notifications which they claimed and which are disputed in the SCN, they are covered by other exemption notifications. Therefore, no demand can be sustained against them. Learned DR argues that in the first place this amounts to going beyond the scope of the SCN. He also argues that they are otherwise also not entitled to the benefit of these exemption notifications. It is true that once an SCN is issued, the demand cannot go beyond the scope of the SCN nor can any penalties not proposed in the SCN be imposed. However, the noticee is not estopped from putting forth other grounds of defence and if he does so, fairness requires that they are also considered. We, therefore, find in favour of the appellant as far as the question as to whether the new exemption notifications not being the subject matter of the SCN can be raised as a point of defence at this stage of appeal. Evidently, if the goods are otherwise covered by another exemption notification and the appellant is entitled to such exemption notification, fairness requires that such benefit should be given to the appellant.
28. This leads us to the next question as to whether the appellant was entitled to the benefit of the exemption notifications now claimed. We find that the notification 24/2005-CUS dt.01.03.2005 as well as amended notification 132/2006-CUS dt.30.12.2006 exempt the final products manufactured by the appellant unconditionally. However, they exempt the inputs used by the manufacturer conditionally the condition being that they have to follow the procedure set out in the Customs (Import of goods at concessional rate of duty for manufacture of excisable goods) Rules, 1996. Among these rules is also a requirement of registration with the department. In 2017, TRU clarified that if the appellant is already registered with the Central Excise department, obtaining a fresh registration under the rules is not required. However, the remaining conditions of the rules which are equally substantive have not been waived by the department. They must be followed to claim the exemption notification. At this stage, we feel that it is also pertinent to consider whether CBEC can enlarge or modify the scope of an exemption notification which is in the form of a subordinate legislation through a letter or circular. Taxing statutes have to be strictly construed and the power of taxation lies with the Parliament. The power to issue exemption notifications rests with the Central Government. Every exemption notification which is issued is placed before the Parliament and is subjected to scrutiny by a Committee of subordinate legislation of each House which at times modify the notifications on their instructions. Therefore, as far as the exemption notifications issued by the Government are concerned, they are clearly in the nature of subordinate legislation. We do not think that a letter issued by the CBEC can enlarge the scope of the exemption notifications thereby truncating the scope of taxation levied by the Parliament. Even if it is presumed that CBEC had such power, these letters are not subject to scrutiny and review by the Parliament.

29. Notwithstanding the above observations, we find that the exemption given by the CBEC by way of a letter was only to the extent of avoiding two registrations but no exemption has been given with respect to following remaining conditions of the Rules to be followed. In view of this, we find that the appellant is not entitled to benefit of the exemption notification 24/2005-CUS or 132/2006-CUS in respect of the inputs procured by them.

30. As far as the exemption notification 06/2006-CE dt.01.03.2006 is concerned, what is claimed is an exemption available for “parts consumed within the factory of production of such parts for manufacture of goods specified at Sl.No.1-20 above” (Sl.No.21, List-5 read with Sl.No.84 of the table). Clearly, there is no dispute with regard to the parts manufactured by the appellant and consumed within their factory. What is in dispute is that the parts which they have procured either by importing or from other indigenous suppliers, those are not consumed within the factory of production. There is no exemption for such parts. Therefore, the appellant is also not entitled to the benefit of exemption notification 06/2006-CE.

31. Notwithstanding the above observations and our clear finding that appellant is not covered by any of the exemption notifications claimed, even if a view can be taken that the exemption notifications may be available to them, the benefit of such doubt cannot go to the appellant as this is a case of exemption notification which must be interpreted as per the ruling of the Constitutional Bench of the Hon’ble Supreme Court in the case of Dilip Kumar & Co. and Ors (supra). Para 52 of this reads as follows:

“52. To sum up, we answer the reference holding as under -

(1) Exemption notification should be interpreted strictly; the burden of proving applicability would be on the assessee to show that his case comes within the parameters of the exemption clause or exemption notification.
When there is ambiguity in exemption notification which is subject to strict interpretation, the benefit of such ambiguity cannot be claimed by the subject/assessee and it must be interpreted in favour of the revenue.

The ratio in Sun Export case (supra) is not correct and all the decisions which took similar view as in Sun Export case (supra) stands overruled.”

32. In view of the above, we find that the appellant is not entitled to the benefit of the exemption notifications which they have wrongly claimed and is liable to pay duties on the inputs as demanded in the SCN.

33. Now coming to the penalties imposed under Rule 25 of the Central Excise Rules, 2002 and Section 114A of the Customs Act, 1962, we find that in the impugned order, the learned Commissioner imposed penalties under Rule 25 of the Central Excise Rules, 2002 read with Section 11AC of the Central Excise Act, 1944 without specifying as to which particular clause of Rule 25 has been contravened by the appellant. None of the show-cause notices mentioned regarding the violation of particular clause of Rule 25. In such circumstances, as per the Apex Court’s decision in the case of Amrit Foods Vs. CCE, UP [2005(190) E.L.T 433 (SC)], imposition of penalty is bad in law and is liable to be set aside. This decision of the Apex Court was subsequently followed by the Apex Court in the case of Noble Moulds Pvt. Ltd. Vs. CCE [2010(259) ELT 338 (Del.)] wherein the Hon’ble Apex Court has held in para 9 as under:-

9. We may, with advantage, referred to another judgment of the Apex Court in the case of Amrit Foods v. Commissioner of Central Excise, U.P. - 2005 (190) E.L.T.

433 (S.C.). In that case, penalty was imposed under Rule 173Q of the Central Excise Rules, 1944 without mentioning that provision in the show cause notice. The said penalty was set aside and in the process, the Court made the following observations :-

“5. The Revenue has preferred an appeal from the order of the Tribunal setting aside the imposition of penalty under Rule 173Q of the Central Excise Rules, 1944. The Tribunal has set aside the order of the Commissioner on the ground that neither the show cause notice nor the order of the Commissioner specified which particular clause of Rule 173Q had been allegedly contravened by the appellant. We are of the view that the finding of the Tribunal is correct. Rule 173Q contains six clauses the contents of which are not same. It was, therefore, necessary for the assessee to be put on notice as to the exact nature of contravention for which the assessee was liable under the provisions of the 173Q. This not having been done the Tribunal’s finding cannot be faulted. The appeal is, accordingly, dismissed with no order as to costs.”

Further, the Apex Court decision in the case of Amrit Foods cited supra was followed by the Tribunal in the following cases:-
i. Tata Motors Ltd. Vs. CCE, Jamshedpur [2006(199) ELT 837 (Tri. Kol.)]

ii. Shree Precoated Steel Vs. CCE, Pune [2006(203) ELT 506 (Tri. Mum.)]

Hence by following the ratio of the above said decisions, we set aside the penalties imposed under Rule 25 which is parimateria to erstwhile Rule 173Q.

34. Coming to the penalties imposed under Section 114A of the Customs Act, 1962, we find that in all the 4 show-cause notices issued to the appellant, penalty was proposed under Section 112 of the Customs Act, 1962 but while passing the impugned order, the learned Commissioner imposed penalty under Section 114A of the Customs Act by observing in para 5.12.5 of the impugned order that the provision of Section 114A of the Customs Act is more appropriate in the present case. Here we note that it is settled law that any penalty not proposed in the show-cause notice cannot be imposed. The justification given by the learned commissioner for imposition of penalty under Section 114A instead of Section 112 of the Customs Act, 1962 as proposed in the show-cause notice is not tenable in law and do not apply to penalty provisions which are to be strictly construed in view of the following judgments:

i. CCE, Nagpur Vs. Ballarpur Industries Ltd.
   [2007(215) ELT 489 (SC)]

ii. B. Lakshmichand Vs. GOI [1983(12) ELT 322 (Mad.)]

iii. Shree Precoated Steel Vs. CCE, Pune [2006(203) ELTG 506 (Tri. Mumbai)]

Hence by following the ratio of the decisions cited supra, we also set aside the penalty imposed under Section 114A of the Customs Act, 1962.

35. In the result, both the penalties imposed under Rule 25 of the Central Excise Rules, 2002 and Section 114A of the Customs Act, 1962 are set aside and rest of the impugned order remains intact and is upheld. The appeal is accordingly disposed of.

FINAL ORDER NO 75077/2020

DATE OF HEARING : 25 July 2019
DATE OF DECISION: 15 January, 2020

PER BENCH:
STATEMENT OF FACTS

1. M/s. Brahmaputra Cracker & Polymer Limited (hereinafter referred to as the ‘Appellant’), a public sector undertaking (PSU), filed the present appeal against the impugned order/letter C.No. IV(16)28/TECH/COMMR/DIB/2017-18/PART-III/8254 dated 26.10.2017 issued by the Commissioner of CGST & Central Excise, Dibrugarh (hereinafter referred to as the impugned letter) refusing to grant registration to the premises of the appellant at Duliajan wherein, according to the appellant, certain activities related to manufacture have been undertaken. As a result, they are unable to avail CENVAT Credit on capital goods – both imported and indigenous installed and services of Erection & Commissioning received and consumed at Duliajan Plant.

2. The Appellant, inter alia, manufactures and sells various grades of polypropylene which is dutiable/ taxable under both Central Excise and GST Law. Their main manufacturing unit is in Lepetkata, Dibrugarh, Assam and their associated units are at Duliajan, Lakwa and Tinsukia which carry on certain activities. The units located at Duliajan and Lepetkata fall within the same jurisdiction of the same Central Excise Commissionerate, though under different ranges.

3. Another unit of the Appellant is at Lakwa where C2+ Liquid is manufactured and transferred to the Lepetkata for which they have taken separate Excise Registration of Lakwa Unit as dutiable goods are being manufactured.

4. Their Duliajan unit is a gas compression and dehydration unit (hereinafter referred to as ‘GDU’) where they purchase natural gas from Oil India Ltd, compress it and dehydrate and transfer it to their Lepetkata unit located 48 km away through a 18 inch pipe for use in manufacture of dutiable polymers. The gas which is left after manufacture (lean gas) is again sent by their manufacturing unit at Lepetkata unit to the Duliajan unit which pumps it back into the Oil India Ltd.

5. Thus, in their Duliajan plant they only compress and dry the gas and do not create any new marketable commodity and they are also not registered with the central excise department. They also receive the lean gas and return it to the Oil India Ltd. The appellant wanted their processing plant at Duliajan to be included in the Registration of their Lepetkata unit (where the goods are actually manufactured) so that they can avail CENVAT credit on the capital goods (both domestic and imported) installed at Duliajan and they can also avail CENVAT credit of the service tax paid on input services used in Duliajan.

6. The appellant filed an application with Superintendent CE Dibrugarh dt.25.11.2011 seeking registration under Rule 9 of Central Excise Rules, 2002 and were issued a Registration Certificate No: AADCB2356EEM001 dt.09.12.2011 for the Lepetkata Plant, Dibrugarh Assam as manufacturer of Excisable goods. The certificate of registration was re-issued on 24.07.2012. In their ER-1 Return they claimed CENVAT credit on imported and indigenous capital goods installed not in their factory at Lepetkata but in their processing plant at Duliajan which was not part of their registered premises at all but which was located 48 km away. They also filed a request with the Superintendent of Central Excise seeking to include the following additional facilities in their Central Excise Registration on the ground that these units are connected by pipe lines to their manufacturing unit at Lepetkata.

(i) LPG recovery plant Kakwa,

(ii) Gas Compressor (GDU) Station Duliajan and,

(iii) Tinsukhiya Rly Sdg,

They further followed up with the Commissioner who, by the impugned letter rejected their request for inclusion of their Duliajan processing plant in their Registration for Lepetkata manufacturing unit. Hence, this appeal. The series of events and dates as submitted by the appellant are as follows.

06.07.2017 Former meeting in the Office of Commissioner CGST C, & CE OF BCPL's representative with Chief Commissioner CGST, C & CE on the issue of Single Registration for the four integrated installations and admissibility of the credit on the capital goods installed therein.

11.07.2017 BCPL's letter (pursuant to the meeting dt:06.07.2017) praying for carry forward of the CENVAT Credit on Capital goods installed at: Lakwa (Gas Sweetening & C2+Recovery Plant), Duliajan (intake of Natural Gas and de-hydration Compression and Pumping the main CNG inputs directly to Lepetkata Plant), Lepetkata Plant turning out the final products, HDPE, LLDPE and PPE. and Tinsukia Rly. Sdg. (uploading Naptha input and pumping the same to Lepetkata Plant).

The request was accompanied with Diagrammatic representation of integrated manufacturing processes spread over the four installations and justification for Single Registration.
7. Ld. Counsel for the appellant submits that the following are the two issues to be decided:

a) Whether they are eligible for common registration for their Duliajan plant and Lepetkata plant by inclusion of the former in their registration certificate already issued for the latter.

b) Admissibility of CENVAT credit on the capital goods received in their Duliajan plant based either on common registration or irrespective of the registration.

8. He asserts that the Duliajan plant only provides inputs for further manufacture in their Lepetkata plant and both are connected through their own 48 km pipeline and hence both should be given one registration regardless of the fact that they are located far from each other and they are also located in different range offices of the Commissionerate. He relies on the CBEC’s manual chapter 2 para 3.2 of which reads as follows:

>“3.2 Separate registration is required in respect of separate premises except in cases where two or more premises are actually part of the same factory (where processes are interlinked) but are segregated by public road, canal or railway-line. The fact that the two premises are part of the same factory will be decided by the Commissioner of Central Excise based on factors, such as:

1. Interlinked process product manufactured/produced in one premises are substantially used in other premises for manufacture of final products.
2. Large number of raw materials are common and received/proposed to be received commonly for both/all the premises.”
(3) Common electricity supplies.

(4) There is common labour/work force.

(5) Common administration/work management.

(6) Common sales tax registration and assessment.

(7) Common Income Tax assessment.”

9. He would urge that both their plants are only separated by their pipeline and hence they squarely fall under this para and hence are eligible for a single registration.

10. As an alternative argument, he states that even if they are not granted a single registration, CENVAT credit on the capital goods used in their processing plant at Duliajan should also be allowed to be taken and used in their Lepetkata plant.

11. Ld. DR opposes the claim of the appellant and supports the impugned letter. He also asserts that the appellant is not entitled to CENVAT credit on capital goods not used in the manufacture of their final products.

12. We have considered arguments on both sides and perused the records. The two issues in this case have been accurately put forth by the Ld Counsel for the appellant (para 7 above) which we now proceed to decide.

Registration

13. The first issue which falls for our consideration is whether the appellant’s Duliajan plant where the gas is merely dried and compressed for supply to their manufacturing facility at Lepetkata located 48 km away should be considered as part of the same manufacturing facility and included in their registration or otherwise. It would be profitable to examine the relevant legal provisions as applicable during the relevant period. Article 246 of the Constitution gives the Parliament exclusive jurisdiction to legislate on matters included in List I to the Seventh Schedule to the Constitution. Entry 84 of this list reads as follows: “Duties of excise on tobacco and other goods manufactured or produced in India except-

(a) Alcoholic liquor for human consumption;

(b) Opium, Indian hemp and other narcotic drugs and narcotics, but including medicinal and toilet preparations containing alcohol or any substance included in sub-paragraph(b) of this entry.”

14. Central Excise Act, 1944 pre-dates the Constitution but continues to be in force as per Article 372 of the Constitution. Nevertheless, this Act is squarely covered by the aforesaid entry 84 of List I of the Seventh Schedule.

15. Section 3 of the CE Act is the charging section and the other sections are the machinery sections which provide the modalities for giving force to the charging section (including the provisions for registration). It reads as follows: “Section 3. Duties specified in First Schedule and the Second Schedule to the Central Excise Tariff Act, 1985 to be levied. -

(1) There shall be levied and collected in such manner as may be prescribed, -

(a) a duty of excise to be called the Central Value Added Tax (CENVAT) on all excisable goods (excluding goods produced or manufactured in special economic zones) which are produced or manufactured in India as, and at the rates, set forth in the First Schedule to the Central Excise Tariff Act, 1985 (5 of 1986);

(b) a special duty of excise, in addition to the duty of excise specified in clause (a) above, on excisable goods excluding goods produced or manufactured in special economic zones specified in the Second Schedule to the Central Excise Tariff Act, 1985 (5 of 1986) which are produced or manufactured in India, as, and at the rates, set forth in the said Second Schedule.
Provided that the duties of excise which shall be levied and collected on any excisable goods which are produced or manufactured,-

(i) Omitted.

(ii) by a hundred per cent export-oriented undertaking and brought to any other place in India, shall be an amount equal to the aggregate of the duties of customs which would be leviable under the Customs Act, 1962 (52 of 1962) or any other law for the time being in force, on like goods produced or manufactured outside India if imported into India, and where the said duties of customs are chargeable by reference to their value; the value of such excisable goods shall, notwithstanding anything contained in any other provision of this Act, be determined in accordance with the provisions of the Customs Act, 1962 (52 of 1962) and the Customs Tariff Act, 1975 (51 of 1975).

16. From this section, it is evident that there must be goods which are excisable goods and which must be either manufactured or produced for this charging section to apply. If these elements are missing, the activity falls outside the scope of this Act. The key terms used in the charging section are ‘excisable goods’, ‘manufacture’ and ‘production’. ‘Excisable goods’ is defined in Section 2(d) and ‘manufacture’ in section 2(f). The term ‘production’ is not defined in the Act and neither is the term ‘goods’. Sections 2(f) and 2(d) are as follows:

“Section 2(d): “excisable goods” means goods specified in the First and Second Schedules of Central Excise Tariff Act, 1985 as being subject to a duty of excise and includes salt; Section 2(f): “manufacture” includes any process,

i) incidental or ancillary to the completion of a manufactured product;
ii) which is specified in relation to any goods in the Section or Chapter notes of the First and Second Schedules to Central Excise Tariff Act, 1985 as amounting to manufacture;
iii) which, in relation to the goods specified in the Third Schedule, involves packing or repacking of such goods in a unit container or labelling or re-labelling of containers including the declaration or alteration of retail sale price on it or adoption of any other treatment on the goods to render the product marketable to the consumer; and the word “manufacturer” shall be construed accordingly and shall include not only a person who employs hired labour in the production or manufacture of excisable goods, but also any person who engages in their production or manufacture on his own account.”

17. The term ‘goods’ itself is not defined and hence, through a series of judicial decisions, it is now well settled that ‘goods’ is understood as having the same meaning as in the Sale of Goods Act section 2(7) of which defines ‘goods’ as follows:

“goods” means every kind of moveable property other than actionable claims and money; and includes stock and shares, growing crops, grass, and things attached to or forming part of the land which are agreed to be severed before sale or under the contract of sale;

18. Thus, for the excise duties to apply, they must be “goods” in terms of the above definition and the goods must be “excisable goods” and they must be either manufactured or produced. The definition of ‘manufacture’ in section 2(f) is an inclusive definition indicating what all elements need to be included in the manufacture. Through a series of judicial decisions, it is now well settled that every processing of goods does not amount to manufacture and only such processes which result in emergence of new distinct, marketable goods amount to manufacture. Else, excise duty cannot be levied as mere processing does not amount to manufacture. It is not open for the officers to treat any odd process as manufacture and to compel the processor to obtain registration and pay excise duty. Conversely, it is not open to the processor to say that he wants to call his process as manufacture even if it is not and to ask for central excise registration and pay excise duty. However, the definition of ‘manufacture’ under the Central Excise Act includes any activity which is incidental or ancillary to manufacture. For instance, ‘packing’ (except in respect of some goods where a legal fiction is created), does not amount to manufacture. However, if the factory is manufacturing the product and then packing and dispatching it, the packing becomes included in the manufacture. The manufacturer cannot exclude the packing value while paying the central excise duty. On the other hand, if A manufactures the product and sells it to B who only packs or repacks and sells it/ transfers it further, B is not a manufacturer and is not liable to excise duty.

19. Unlike Income Tax, Central Excise Law is focused on the manufacturing facility or the factory and not on the corporate entity. If a corporate entity has several manufacturing facilities and some other offices and establishments, a separate registration has to be obtained for each of the manufacturing facilities and none for the other establishments and offices. If one of the other facilities undertakes some processing which is clearly not manufacturing, it is not open either for the Revenue or for the Assessee to treat it as manufacture. The test of manufacture must pass. Conversely, it is not open to either side to say that although some activity amounts to manufacture, they want to treat it as “not manufacture”.

20. The relevant provisions regarding Central Excise Registration are as follows:
Section 6 of the Central Excise Act, 1944

“SECTION 6. Registration of certain persons. - Any prescribed person who is engaged in-
(a) the production or manufacture or any process of production or manufacture of any specified goods included in the First Schedule and the Second Schedule to the Central Excise Tariff Act, 1985 (5 of 1986), or
(b) the wholesale purchase or sale (whether on his own account or as a broker or commission agent) or the storage of any specified goods included in the First Schedule and the Second Schedule to the Central Excise Tariff Act, 1985 (5 of 1986), shall get himself registered with the proper officer in such manner as may be prescribed.”

Rule 9 of the Central Excise Rules, 2002

“Rule 9 Registration. –
(1) Every person, who produces, manufactures, carries on trade, holds private store-room or warehouse or otherwise uses excisable goods, shall get registered:
Provided that a registration obtained under rule 174 of the Central Excise Rules, 1944 or rule 9 of the Central Excise (No. 2) Rules, 2001 shall be deemed to be as valid as the registration made under this sub-rule for the purpose of these rules.
(2) The Board may by notification and subject to such conditions or limitations as may be specified in such notification, specify person or class of persons who may not require such registration.
(3) The registration under sub-rule (1) shall be subject to such conditions, safeguards and procedure as may be specified by notification by the Board.”

CBEC’s manual chapter2 para 3.2 as applicable during the period:

“3.2 Separate registration is required in respect of separate premises except in cases where two or more premises are actually part of the same factory (where processes are interlinked) but are segregated by public road, canal or railway-line. The fact that the two premises are part of the same factory will be decided by the Commissioner of Central Excise based on factors, such as:
(1) Interlinked process product manufactured/produced in one premises are substantially used in other premises for manufacture of final products.
Large number of raw materials are common and received/proposed to be received commonly for both/all the premises.

Common electricity supplies.

There is common labour/work force.

Common administration/work management.

Common sales tax registration and assessment.

Common Income Tax assessment."

21. As can be seen from the above, Central Excise Registration is required for a manufacturing facility and not for any facility owned by the manufacturer. If there are more than one manufacturing facilities, each of these require a separate registration. In fact, the appellant themselves have two registrations. There are cases where the same factory is split on to opposite sides of a road or pipeline or railway track. In such cases, effectively, it is the same factory with different parts of it working on either side. For such cases, CBEC’s manual instructs that a single registration may be given.

22. The present case is not one such. It is case where the assessee has a registered manufacturing facility and a facility 48 km away where it only some processing (which undisputedly does not amount to manufacture) takes place and the two facilities have a common pipe through which the processed gas is transported to the manufacturing facility. The appellant’s argument is that since the gas is transported through the pipeline (and not through trucks, etc.) and the pipeline is connected to both the processing unit and the manufacturing facility, both should be treated as a single unit and they should be given a single registration. It is their assertion that this is covered by the CBEC’s manual. We do not agree with this assertion for following reasons:

a) The CBEC’s manual dealt with cases where the factory is split by the intervening road, railway line or pipe etc. and not cases where two units, located far from each other, are merely connected by pipes.

b) Central Excise Registration has a specific requirement and it is not open for either the assessee or the Revenue to register or not register any premises beyond the legal provisions.

c) The Duliajan plant in this case is merely processing the gas and is not engaged in any manufacturing and therefore, it cannot be treated as a part and parcel of the manufacturing facility at Lepetkata.

d) Conversely, it is also not open to the Revenue to compel registration of premises of any assessee where no manufacturing takes place even if such places are connected by pipes to a manufacturing facility. It is also not open to the Revenue to demand duty on the processing activities carried out at such premises even if they are connected by a pipe to actual manufacturing unit.

e) The provisions relating to the Registration are in the CE Act and Rules and it is not open to this Tribunal to modify them or enlarge or constrict their scope.

23. In conclusion, we find in the given factual matrix that the appellant is not entitled to get their Duliajan processing plant included in their registration for Lepetkata manufacturing plant.

CENVAT Credit.

24. The second issue to be considered is whether the appellant is entitled to the CENVAT credit on the capital goods and services received at their Duliajan plant even if it is not part of their registered premises. CENVAT credit is governed by the Cenvat Credit Rules, 2004 framed under Section 37 of the Central Excise Act, 1944 and Section 94 of the Finance Act, 1994. Both these sections empower the Central Government to frame Rules under the respective Acts. Thus, CCR, 2004 is a delegated legislation. Whenever the Parliament delegates powers to make Rules, it always does so to some arm of the State which is answerable to it such as the Government. The Rules which are notified are then placed by the Government before the Parliament where the Committee on Subordinate Legislation and at times the rules are changed on the directions of the Committee to bring them in conformity with the legislative intent.

25. It is now settled by a five-member Constitutional bench of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Commissioner of Customs (Import) Mumbai vs Dilip Kumar and Company [2018 (361) ELT 577(SC)] that where the words in a statute are clear and plain and unambiguous and only one meaning can be inferred, Courts are bound to give effect to the said meaning irrespective of the consequences. Their Lordships were seized of the question of whether an exemption notification should be construed strictly or liberally. In that background, their Lordships examined the core principles of interpretation of statutes, especially fiscal statutes in various judicial pronouncements dating back as far as 1890 till that date and held as follows in paras 19, 20, 25 & 26 of the judgment.

"19. The well-settled principle is that when the words in a statute are clear, plain and unambiguous and only one meaning can be inferred, the Courts are bound to give effect to the said meaning irrespective of the consequences. If the words in the statute are plain and unambiguous, it becomes necessary to expound those words in their natural and ordinary sense. The words used declare the intention of the Legislature. In Kanai Lal Sur v. Paramnidhi Sadhukhan, AIR 1957 SC 907, it was held that if the words used are capable of one construction only then it would not be open to the Courts to adopt any other hypothetical construction on the ground that such construction is more consistent with the alleged object and policy of the Act.

20. In applying rule of plain meaning any hardship and inconvenience cannot be the basis to alter the meaning to the language employed by the legislation. This is especially so in fiscal statutes and penal statutes. Nevertheless, if the plain language results in absurdity, the Court is entitled to determine the meaning of the word in the context in which it is used keeping in view the legislative purpose [Assistant Commissioner, Gadag Sub-Division, Gadag v. Mathapathi Basavannewada, 1995 (6) SCC 355]. Not only that, if the plain construction leads to anomaly and absurdity, the Court having regard to the hardship and consequences that flow from such a provision can even explain the true intention of the legislation. Having observed general principles applicable to statutory interpretation, it is now time to consider rules of interpretation with respect to taxation.

25. We are not suggesting that literal rule de hors the strict interpretation nor one should ignore to ascertain the interplay between ‘strict interpretation’ and ‘literal interpretation’. We may reiterate at the cost of repetition that ‘strict interpretation’ of a statute certainly involves literal or plain meaning test. The other tools of interpretation, namely contextual or purposive interpretation cannot be applied nor any resort be made to look to other supporting material, especially in taxation statutes. Indeed, it is well-settled that in a taxation statute, there is no room for any intendment; that regard must be had to the clear meaning of the words and that the matter should be governed wholly by the language of the notification. Equity has no place in interpretation of a tax statute. Strictly one has to look to the language used; there is no room for searching intendment nor drawing any presumption. Furthermore, nothing has to be read into nor should anything be implied other than essential inferences while considering a taxation statute.

"A taxing statute is to be strictly construed. The well-established rule in the familiar words of LORD WENLEYDALE, reaffirmed by LORD HALSBURY AND LORD SIMONDS, means : The subject is not to be taxed without clear words for that purpose: and also that every Act of Parliament must be read according to the natural construction of its words. In a classic passage LORD CAIRNS stated the principle thus: "If the person sought to be taxed comes within the letter of the law he must be taxed, however great the hardship may appear to the judicial mind to be. On the other hand, if the Crown seeking to recover the tax, cannot bring the subject within the letter of the law, the subject is free, however apparently within the spirit of law the case might otherwise appear to be. In other words, if there be admissible in any statute, what is called an equitable construction, certainly, such a construction is not admissible in a taxing statute where you can simply adhere to the words of the statute. VISCOUNT SIMON quoted with approval a passage from ROWLATT, J. expressing the principle in the following words: "In a taxing Act one has to look merely at what is clearly said. This is no room for any intendment. There is no equity about a tax. There is no presumption as to tax. Nothing is to be read in, nothing is to be implied. One can only look fairly at the language used."

26. This judgment of the five member Constitutional bench of the Supreme Court, which prevails over any contrary decisions of the lower courts or smaller benches leaves us with no option but to interpret the Act and Rules as they were framed and applicable during the period without any intention and regardless of the consequences.

27. Our role is to apply the Rules as they existed during the relevant period. Rule 2(a) of the CCR 2004 defines capital goods as below:

"(a) "capital goods" means:

(A) the following goods, namely:

(i) all goods falling under Chapter 82, Chapter 84, Chapter 85, Chapter 90, heading No. 68.05 grinding wheels and the like, and parts thereof falling under heading 6804 of the First Schedule to the Excise Tariff Act;
(ii) pollution control equipment;
(iii) components, spares and accessories of the goods specified at (i) and (ii);
(iv) moulds and dies, jigs and fixtures;
(v) refractories and refractory materials;
(vi) tubes and pipes and fittings thereof; and
(vii) storage tank, used-

(1) in the factory of the manufacturer of the final products, but does not include any equipment or appliance used in an office; or
(2) for providing output service;
(B) motor vehicle registered in the name of provider of output service for providing taxable service as specified in sub-clauses (f), (n), (o), (zzr), (zzp), (zzt) and (zzw) of clause (105) of section 65 of the Finance Act;"

28. Input service is defined in Rule 2 (i) of the CCR, 2004 as follows:

"input service" means any service,-

(i) used by a provider of taxable service for providing an output service; or
(ii) used by the manufacturer, whether directly or indirectly, in or in relation to the manufacture of final products and clearance of final products up to the place of removal, and includes services used in relation to setting up, modernization, renovation or repairs of a factory, premises of provider of output service or an office relating to such factory or premises, advertisement or sales promotion, market research, storage up to the place of removal, procurement of inputs, activities relating to business, such as accounting, auditing, financing, recruitment and quality control, coaching and training, computer networking, credit rating, share registry, and security, inward transportation of inputs or capital goods and outward transportation up to the place of removal;"
29. A plain reading of the above Rules makes it clear that there is no room in them to provide for Capital Goods credit on capital goods used in a processing facility outside the factory which does not manufacture any goods but only supplies the processed goods as inputs to the manufacturing facility. Similarly, there is no scope in the Rules to allow CENVAT credit of service tax paid on services used not in the manufacturing facility itself but elsewhere in a processing facility owned by the same legal entity.

30. Learned Counsel for the appellant relied upon the case of the case of the Vikram Cement vs CCE Indore [2006 (194) ELT 3 (SC)], in which the Hon’ble Apex Court allowed MODVAT credit/ CENVAT credit on inputs, viz., explosives used for blasting mines to produce limestone for manufacture of cement/ clinkers even though these inputs were not used in the factory of manufacture. A perusal of this judgment shows that their Lordships interpreted the erstwhile MODVAT Rules under which Rule 57J provided for credit of duty in respect of inputs used in an intermediate product which, in turn, is used for manufacture of final products. The CENVAT Credit Rules which replaced the MODVAT Rules did not have a provision corresponding to Rule 57J. Their Lordships held that there is no difference between the CENVAT and MODVAT Rules and even in the absence of an explicit provision, credit of CENVAT of explosives is still available. The present case is completely different as the question is not with respect to MODVAT Credit/ CENVAT Credit on inputs but is the question of CENVAT Credit on capital goods.

31. Learned counsel also relied upon the judgement of the Apex Court in the case of Vikram Cement [2006 (197)ELT 145] in which it was held that MODVAT /CENVAT credit on capital goods used in captive mines which form an integrated unit with the factory is available. The ratio of this judgment does not apply to the present case as we have specifically examined the facts of this case and ruled that the processing plant at Duliajan is a separate processing plant and is not part of the manufacturing unit at Lepetkata. Further, we are also bound now by the five member Constitutional bench of the Supreme Court in the case of Dilip Kumar & Company (supra) which categorically held that fiscal statutes must be interpreted applying the Rule of plain meaning without any intendment and regardless of any consequencesor hardships caused.

32. For these reasons, we find that the appellant is not entitled to CENVAT credit on the capital goods installed and the services used in their processing plant in Duliajan.

33. The appeal is rejected.

2. The appellants in all these cases have taken Cenvat credit of the Clean Energy Cess (CEC) which they paid on the coal imported by them for use in their factory. It is the case of the appellants that they are entitled to the Cenvat credit on the CEC paid by them while it is the case of the revenue that no Cenvat credit can be granted for the Clean Energy Cess as it is not covered under Rule 3 of Cenvat Credit Rules (CCR), 2004. Show cause notices have been issued and demands have been confirmed proposing recovery of the allegedly wrongly availed Cenvat credit along with interest and penalties have been imposed as indicated in the table above. Aggrieved by the impugned orders, the present appeals have been filed.

3. We have heard the learned Counsels for the appellants as well as the learned Departmental Representatives at length. It is the case of the appellants that the CEC is levied as per Section 83 of the Finance Act, 2010 which specifically states that “they shall be levied and collected in accordance with the provisions of this Chapter, a Cess to be called, Clean Energy Cess, as a duty of excise on goods specified in Tenth Schedule being goods produced in India at the rate set forth in the said Schedule for the purposes of financing and promoting clean energy initiatives, fund the research in the area of clean energy or for any other purpose relating thereto.” They argued that the CEC is nothing but a duty of excise and is collected by the Central Excise officers and therefore there is no reason to deny them the credit of Cenvat under Rule 3 of CCR, 2004. While agreeing that the CEC is not explicitly listed in Rule 3 of CCR as one of the taxes on which credit can be taken, it is the argument of the appellants that this should not be the reason for denying them the Cenvat credit because CEC is also a form of excise duty. They rely on the case law of Shree Renuka Sugars [2014 (302) ELT 33 (Kar.)] in which the Hon’ble High Court of Karnataka held that with reference to sugar cess which was also in the nature of duty of excise that Cenvat credit is admissible even though it is not explicitly mentioned in Rule 3 of CCR, 2004. They would also place reliance in the order of CESTAT in the case of Strategic Engineering Pvt Ltd [2014 (310) ELT 509] held the assessee is entitled to the Cenvat credit of CEC relying on the aforesaid judgment of Hon’ble High Court of Karnataka in the case of Shree Renuka Sugars. They also placed reliance on the decision of State Street Syntel Services Pvt Ltd [2019-TIOL-1468-CESTAT-Mumbai] in which the Tribunal allowed Cenvat credit of Swachh Bharat Cess which is also not indicated in Rule 3 of CCR, 2004 as a duty eligible for Cenvat credit.

4. With respect to imposition of interest, it is their contention that credit of CEC and interest cannot be imposed because credit has been availed after 01.04.2012 and interest can therefore be imposed only if the credit has been availed as well as utilized and not otherwise. In this regard they place reliance on the judgment of the Hon’ble High Court of Karnataka in the case of Bill Forge Pvt Ltd [2011-TIOL-799] in which it was held that if the assessee has reversed wrongly availed Cenvat credit without utilizing, it will amount to not taking credit at all. Therefore, if Cenvat credit is availed by the party but is unutilized and subsequently reversed, it amounts to nonavailing of Cenvat credit and no interest accrues.

5. On the question of penalty, it is submitted on behalf of the appellants that a plain reading of Rule 15(1) of CCR shows that penalty has to be levied in cases where Cenvat credit is availed or utilized. However, the Hon’ble High Court of Madras in the case of Strategic Engineering Pvt Ltd [2014 (310) ELT 509] held that mere taking of Cenvat credit is not sufficient for imposition of interest as well as penalty. In view of the above, they pleaded that the impugned orders may be set aside and their appeals may be allowed.

6. On behalf of the revenue, learned departmental representatives forcefully argued that no Cenvat credit is admissible with respect to CEC under CCR, 2004 for the following reasons:

(1) A plain reading of Rule 3 of CCR, 2004 shows that the manufacturer or producer of final products or a provider of output service shall be allowed to take credit only of the following duties and cesses:

i. the duty of excise specified in the First Schedule to the Excise Tariff Act, leviable under the Excise Act;

ii. the duty of excise specified in the Second Schedule to the Excise Tariff Act, leviable under the Excise Act;

iii. the additional duty of excise leviable under section 3 of the Additional Duties of Excise (Textile and Textile Articles) Act, 1978 (40 of 1978);

iv. the additional duty of excise leviable under section 3 of the Additional Duties of Excise (Goods of Special Importance) Act, 1957 (58 of 1957);

v. the National Calamity Contingent duty leviable under section 136 of the Finance Act, 2001 (14 of 2001);

vi. the Education Cess on excisable goods leviable under section 91 read with section 93 of the Finance (No.2) Act, 2004 (23 of 2004); via. the Secondary and Higher Education Cess on excisable goods leviable under section 136 read with section 138 of the Finance Act, 2007 (22 of 2007);

vii. the additional duty leviable under section 3 of the Customs Tariff Act, equivalent to the duty of excise specified under clauses (i), (ii), (iii), (iv), (v) (vi) and (via);

viia. the additional duty leviable under sub-section (5) of section 3 of the Customs Tariff Act, viiia. the additional duty of excise leviable under section 157 of the Finance Act, 2003 (32 of 2003);

ix. the service tax leviable under section 66 of the Finance Act;

ixb. the service tax leviable under section 66A of the Finance Act;

x. the Education Cess on taxable services leviable under section 91 read with section 95 of the Finance (No.2) Act, 2004 (23 of 2004); and

xa. the Secondary and Higher Education Cess on taxable services leviable under section 136 read with section 140 of the Finance Act, 2007 (22 of 2007);

xi. the additional duty of excise leviable under section 85 of Finance Act, 2005 (18 of 2005) paid on-(i) any input or capital goods received in the factory of manufacture of final product or premises of the provider of output service on or after the 10th day of September, 2004; and
(ii) any input service received by the manufacturer of final product or by the provider of output service on or after the 10th day of September, 2004 including the said duties, or tax, or cess paid on any input or input service, as the case may be, used in the manufacture of intermediate products, by a job-worker availing the benefit of exemption specified in the notification of the Government of India in the Ministry of Finance (Department of Revenue), No. 214/86-Central Excise, dated the 25th March, 1986, published in the Gazette of India vide number G.S.R. 547 (E), dated the 25th March, 1986, and received by the manufacturer for use in, or in relation to, the manufacture of final product, on or after the 10th day of September, 2004.

7. Therefore, every form of cess or tax paid by the appellant is not admissible for Cenvat credit under CCR, 2004. They concede that CEC is collected as a duty of excise. However, they point out that various other forms of cesses are also collected by the Government and all Cesses are collected as if they are a form of duty of excise. If the intention of the Legislature/Government was to provide credit of any duty of excise or any cess paid by the assessee, Rule 3 would have been worded so, instead of listing a few specific forms of duty of excise and cesses as eligible for credit. Therefore, simply because a particular tax is collected as a duty of excise, it does not automatically entitle the assessee to avail Cenvat credit on such duty. They further argue that the case of Shree Renuka Sugars (supra) does not apply to present case as that was in the context of sugar cess and not in respect of CEC. Although sugar cess was also not explicitly covered in CCR, 2004, the Hon’ble High Court of Karnataka had allowed such credit against which they filed an SLP which is pending before the Hon’ble Apex Court as reported in 2015 (319) ELT A.119 (SC). Even the reasoning given by the Hon’ble High Court of Karnataka for allowing Cenvat credit of sugar cess does apply to this case. In the case of sugar cess, all provisions of Central Excise Act and Rules were made applicable to sugar cess as well. However, with respect to the CEC, Notification No. 02/2010 has been issued making some provisions of the Central Excise Act, 1944 applicable to the CEC. These Sections are 5A, 6, 9, 9A, 9C, 9D, 9E, 11, 11A, 11AA, 11AB, 11C, 11B, 11BB, 11C, 11D, 11DD, 11DDA, 12A, 12B, 12C and 12D; Chapters III, VI, VIA and VIB. From the above, it is evident that other provisions of Central Excise Act do not apply to the CEC. The CCR, 2004 have been framed under Section 37 (Chapter VII) of the Central Excise Act, 1944. Neither Chapter VII nor Section 37 has been made applicable for CEC at all. Therefore, any rule that has been framed under Section 37 including CCR, 2004 cannot, by any stretch of imagination, be made applicable to CEC. Therefore, the ratio of the judgment of the Hon’ble High Court of Karnataka in the case of Shree Renuka Sugars (supra) with respect to sugar cess for which the entire Central Excise Act and Rules were made applicable, will not apply to the present case.

8. They further argued that the CEC has been levied by the Parliament for a specific purpose. It is based on the principle “Polluter pays” which is a well established principle in the field of environment and has been emphasized by the Hon’ble Apex Court in several cases related to the environment. This principle states that if any activity is causing pollution, the polluter has to pay for the cleanup. Coal is a cheaper but a polluting form of energy. Therefore, cess has been levied on it so as to increase the cost of such form of energy. The amounts so collected from the CEC are to be used for development of cleaner forms of energy. Thus, it is a case of environment protection and those who are using dirty forms of energy such as coal have to pay for it. If the assessee are allowed Cenvat credit of CEC, it would amount to returning with one hand what has been collected from them with the other to discourage use of dirty polluting fossil fuels. This defeats the purpose of levying CEC. Therefore, no Cenvat credit should be given for the CEC paid by the appellants.

9. They, further argued that Cenvat credit or erstwhile Modvat credit or present day GST input tax credit system are all based on the principle of avoiding cascading effect of taxes. The tax is levied at several stages and the tax paid at each stage is given as credit to the next stage payer. Thus, the tax paid gets sets off against the tax paid at the next stage. Ultimately, the consumer bears the full burden of tax on the full value. Therefore, where there is only levy of one tax at one point, no Cenvat credit is admissible. If Cenvat credit or any other form of refund of the tax is given with respect to taxes levied at single point, there is no point in collecting taxes at all. In the present case, the CEC is levied at one and only one stage. There is no CEC again on the cement or other products manufactured by the assessee. This is similar to the basic customs duty which is also levied at one point and no Cenvat credit is given on such duty.

10. With respect to interest they would assert that once the assessee has availed or utilized Cenvat credit, interest is payable. On the question of penalty also they would assert that penalty is imposable on all the appellants for wrongly availing Cenvat credit in clear violation of CCR, 2004. They relied on the order of this Bench in the case of Singareni Collieries Co. Ltd [2016 (341) ELT 378 (Tri-Hyd)] to assert that the CEC was imposed on the principle of ‘Polluter pays’ and therefore it stands on a different footing than other Cesses.
We have considered the arguments on both sides and perused the records. The short point to be decided is whether the appellants are entitled to Cenvat credit of the CEC paid on the coal imported by them or otherwise. The CEC was levied under Section 83 of the Finance Act, 2010 which reads as follows:

"83. (1) This Chapter extends to the whole of India. (2) ........................................... (3) There shall be levied and collected in accordance with the provisions of this Chapter, a cess to be called the Clean Energy Cess, as duty of excise, on goods specified in the Tenth Schedule, being goods produced in India, at the rates set forth in the said Schedule for the purposes of financing and promoting clean energy initiatives, funding research in the area of clean energy or for any other purpose relating thereto.

The purpose of levying the CEC is evidently to promote and finance clean energy initiatives by taxing the coal.

A plain reading of Rule 3 of CCR, 2004 shows that it did not provide for Cenvat credit of every duty of excise and cess but only of some and this list does not include CEC imposed in Finance Act, 2010. It is the case of the assesses that since CEC is also a form of excise, they are entitled to Cenvat credit even in the absence of an explicit provision under Rule 3 of CCR, 2004. It is also their assertion that following the ratio of the decision of the Hon'ble High Court of Karnataka in the case of Shree Renuka Sugars (supra) with respect to sugar cess, Single Member Bench of Tribunal-Bangalore in the case of The Ramco Cements Ltd (supra) allowed credit of CEC. Therefore, the ratio may be followed and they may be allowed Cenvat credit. We proceed to decide this issue on merits. It is undisputed that a plain reading of Rule 3 of CCR, 2004 shows that Cenvat credit is admissible only in respect of some cesses and not in respect of all the cesses and duties of excise. The Hon'ble High Court of Karnataka gave benefit of credit of sugar cess in respect of Shree Renuka Sugars (supra) expanding the scope of Cenvat Credit Rules by taking a broader view and holding that sugar cess also being duty of excise Cenvat credit may not be denied.

It is, however, now a well settled legal position laid down, after the aforesaid decision of Hon'ble High Court of Karnataka that fiscal statutes must be interpreted strictly as per the letter of word and not the spirit of the law, ignoring any amount of hardship and eschewing any equity in taxation. However, in the event of ambiguity in taxation liability statute, the benefit should go to the assessee. From a plain reading of Rule 3 of CCR, 2004, we do not find any ambiguity. If the intention was to allow credit of all forms of duties of excise and cesses, the Rule would have said so. Instead, it only listed some forms of duties of excise, additional duties of customs and cesses on which credit will be admissible and they do not include CEC. In other words, neither does Rule 3 of CCR provide for credit of CEC nor do the provisions of CEC make CCR and any other Rules under Central Excise Act applicable to it. Therefore, this is clearly distinguishable from the case of the Hon'ble High Court of Karnataka in the case of Shree Renuka Sugars (supra).

Although it is now settled that taxing statutes must be literally interpreted, we have also examined the spirit and purpose of levying the CEC. It is evident from Section 83 of Finance Act, 2010 that CEC has been levied on coal to discourage use of the polluting forms of energy and encourage use of cleaner forms of energy. This is based on the principle of ‘Polluter pays’. If the CEC collected by the Government is returned to the assessee through the backdoor in the form of CCR, 2004, we will be doing a great disservice to the country by replacing the principle of ‘Polluter pays’ with ‘Pollution pays’. We will be encouraging use of polluting forms of energy by undoing the very purpose for which CEC has been levied.

16. We also proceed to examine the matter in the larger context of our legal system. The Constitution of India has divided the powers between Legislature, Executive and Judiciary. The law making power has been given to the Legislature which frames the Acts. Subordinate legislations in the form of rules, regulations, notifications (including CCR, 2004) are notified by the Government and are then placed before the Parliament whose Committee of subordinate legislation examines them to see whether they reflect the intent of the Act and get modifications made, if necessary. Thus the legislative power delegated to the Government is again subject to control of the legislature. It is for this reason the rule making power is not delegated to any other arm of State but only to Government which is answerable to the legislature.

17. However, where there is a conflict between the constitutional provisions and the laws made or the parent act and the subordinate legislations vires of such act and rules are tested and decided by the Hon’ble Supreme Court and Hon’ble High Courts under Article 32 and 226 of the Constitution of India. The Tribunals (including this Tribunal) are created under Article 323B of the Constitution of India which was inserted by the 42nd amendment to the Constitution. The Jurisdiction of the Tribunals and their powers have been examined by the Five Member Constitutional Bench of the Supreme Court in the case of L. Chandra Kumar Vs Union of India in Civil Petition No. 481/1980 vide judgment dated 18.03.1997. Paras 94 and 100 of which are reproduced below:

“94. Before moving on to other aspects, we may summarise our conclusions on the jurisdictional powers of these Tribunals. The Tribunals are competent to hear matters where the vires of statutory provisions are questioned. However, in discharging this duty, they cannot act as substitutes for the High Courts and the Supreme Court which have, under our constitutional setup, been specifically entrusted with such an obligation. Their function in this respect is only supplementary and all such decisions of the Tribunals will be subject to scrutiny before a Division Bench of the respective High Courts. The Tribunals will consequently also have the power to test the vires of subordinate legislations and rules. However, this power of the Tribunals will be subject to one important exception. The Tribunals shall not entertain any question regarding the vires of their parent statutes following the settled principle that a Tribunal which is a creature of an Act cannot declare that very Act to be unconstitutional. In such cases alone, the concerned High Court may be approached directly. All other decisions of these Tribunals, rendered in cases that they are specifically empowered to adjudicate upon by virtue of their parent statutes, will also be subject to scrutiny before a Division Bench of their respective High Courts. We may add that the Tribunals will, however, continue to act as the only courts of first instance in respect of the areas of law for which they have been constituted. By this, we mean that it will not be open for litigants to directly approach the High Courts even in cases where they question the vires of statutory legislations (except, as mentioned, where the legislation which creates the particular Tribunal is challenged) by overlooking the jurisdiction of the concerned Tribunal.

100. In view of the reasoning adopted by us, we hold that Clause 2(d) of Article 323A and Clause 3(d) of Article 323B, to the extent they exclude the jurisdiction of the High Courts and the Supreme Court under Articles 226/227 and 32 of the Constitution, are unconstitutional. Section 28 of the Act and the “exclusion of jurisdiction” clauses in all other legislations enacted under the aegis of Articles 323A and 323B would, to the same extent, be unconstitutional. The jurisdiction conferred upon the High Courts under Articles 226/227 and upon the Supreme
18. From the above, it is evident that this Tribunal can also examine the vires of the Act and Rules with the condition that the Statute under which this Tribunal was created (Customs Act, 1962) cannot be questioned by this Tribunal. Further, the power of this Tribunal to decide on the vires of the Act or Rules is subject to scrutiny by Division Bench of the High Courts.

19. It may be seen that the scope of this Tribunal may extend to testing the vires of rules, regulations etc., but certainly does not extend to making the rules or modifying them. In the absence of any explicit provision to give Cenvat credit of CEC under Rule 3 of CCR, 2004, it is not for this Tribunal to enlarge its scope. To sum up:

a) Rule 3 of CCR, 2004 does not provide for Cenvat credit of CEC.

b) Rules under Central Excise Act including CCR, 2004 or Section 37 under which they are framed are not made applicable to CEC under the Finance Act, 2010.

c) It is not open for this Tribunal to enlarge or modify the scope of Act or rules and they should be interpreted as they are drafted without any intention.

d) If Cenvat credit of CEC is allowed, it will undo the very purpose for which it is levied and vitiate ‘polluter pays’ principle.

e) The ratio of the judgment of the Hon’ble High Court of Karnataka in the case of Shree Renuka Sugars (supra) does not apply to CEC.

Hence, we find that the assessee is not entitled to Cenvat credit under Rule 3 of CCR, 2004. We respectfully disagree with the Order of the Hon’ble Single Member in the case of The Ramco Cements Ltd (supra) in view of the above, especially the inapplicability of Section 37 and by implication, the CCR, 2004 framed thereunder to the Clean Energy Cess.

20. Insofar as the interest on Cenvat credit taken is concerned, wherever Cenvat credit has been availed but not utilized, the interest need not be paid but it has to be paid in cases where the Cenvat credit has been taken as well as utilized as has been held by the Hon’ble High Court of Karnataka in the case of Bill Forge Pvt Ltd (supra).

21. As far as the imposition of penalties are concerned, we find that this is an interpretational issue and it is possible for the assessee to have held a genuine belief that they are entitled for Cenvat credit of CEC and hence have taken Cenvat credit. Therefore, we find that the imposition of penalty under Rule 15 of CCR, 2004 is not justified and needs to be set aside. In conclusion, the impugned orders are modified as follows:

A. The denial of Cenvat credit on Clean Energy Cess is upheld.

B. In all cases where Cenvat credit has been availed but not utilized, no interest is payable and in cases where Cenvat credit has been availed and utilized, appropriate amount of interest is payable.

C. All penalties are set aside.

22. The appeals are partly allowed as herein above.

(Order Pronounced in the open court on 16.07.2019)

Separate assenting order - Per Ms. SulekhaBeevi C.S.

(SULEKHA BEEVI C.S) MEMBER (JUDICIAL) (P.VENKATA SUBBA RAO) MEMBER (TECHNICAL)

23. I have gone through the order recorded by brother Member (Technical) in these appeals. I agree with the conclusion arrived by my brother Member as to the issue whether credit is eligible on Clean Energy Cess paid by the appellant. However, I do not concur with the entire discussions recorded by my brother Member for reaching such conclusion. I therefore record separate order as under:-

24. Clean Energy Cess is levied as duty of excise on goods specified in Tenth Schedule. Thus, it is a cess in the nature of excise duty on the ‘production’ of coal and is collected at the time of removal of raw coal, raw ignite and raw peat from the mines of the factory. The intention of the levy of this cess is for the purposes of financing and promoting clean energy initiatives, fund the research in the area of clean energy or for any other purposes relating thereto. It is specifically stated in the notification that this cess has to be paid by cash. The liability to pay cess cannot be discharged using CENVAT credit.

25. As already discussed by brother Member, Rule 3 of CENVAT Credit Rules, 2004 does not expressly provide for availing credit on Clean Energy Cess. The sixth proviso introduced in Rule 3(4) of CENVAT Credit Rules, with effect from 29.6.2010, provides that CENVAT credit on any duty specified in sub-rule (1) shall not be utilized for payment of Clean Energy Cess leviable under section 83 of the Finance Act, 2010 (14 of 2010). Thus, CEC has to be paid using cash only. This consequently implies that no credit can be availed on C.E.C so as to utilize it for making payment of any other duty.

26. The argument put forward by the Revenue pointing out that facts in the case of M/s. Shree Renuka Sugars Ltd. (supra) cannot be applied to the facts of these appeals also merits consideration. In Shree Renuka Sugars (supra), the question was with regard to the eligibility of credit on sugar cess paid by the assessee therein. The Hon’ble High Court of Karnataka held the issue in favour of assessee observing that the entire provisions of Central Excise Act / Rules are made applicable to sugar cess. In respect of Clean Energy Cess, only certain provisions of Central Excise Act are made applicable. The CENVAT Credit Rules have been made on exercise of powers conferred by Section 37 of Central Excise Act, 1944. However, Section 37 has not been made applicable to Clean Energy Cess. Thus, it can be seen that there was no intention to allow credit on the clean energy cess levied. For these reasons, I concur with the conclusion arrived by Member (Technical) that credit on Clean Energy Cess is not eligible.

27. I agree with para 20 and 21 with regard to demand of interest and penalties imposed. Further, wherever refund of the unutilized credit on cess is sought, the refund is not eligible since the credit itself is wrongly availed and ineligible.

The appeals are partly allowed as above.

(Pronounced in open court on 16.07.2019)
1. This appeal is filed by appellant against Order-in-Appeal No. VIZ-EXCUS- 001-APP-021-18-19, dated 27.04.2018. This is the second round of litigation after the matter was earlier remanded vide Final Order No. 21727/2014, dt. 16.09.2014 to the original authority, without expressing any opinion and leaving all matters open and with a direction to reconsider the manufacturing process once again and the use of machinery by the appellants, afresh.

2. The appellant herein is a manufacturer of Maize Starch and Dextrine falling under CETH 1108 11200 and 3505 1090 of the first schedule of Central Excise Tariff Act, 1985. They are registered with the Central Excise Department and avail CENVAT Credit under CCR 2004. A show cause notice dated 19.11.2010 was issued to the appellants by the Revenue seeking to disallow CENVAT Credit on capital goods availed by them on the following items on the ground that as per Rule 6(4) of CCR 2004, no CENVAT Credit shall be allowed on capital goods which are used exclusively for the manufacture of exempted products:

   i) Decanter for Gluten

   ii) CPD (Flash Dryer) used for drying the Gluten.

   iii) Tubular Dryer or Rotary Dryer used for drying maize fibre/Germ taken by them during the period November 2007 to April 2008.

3. It has been alleged in the show cause notice that the appellants manufacture both dutiable as well as exempted products. While starch is a dutiable product, Gluten, maize fibre and Germ are exempted products. In the manufacturing process, starch gets separated from the maize at some stage beyond which the other exempted products are also processed and packed and sold. As per Rule 6(4) of CCR 2004, no CENVAT Credit shall be allowed on capital goods which are used exclusively for the manufacture of exempted goods and on verification by the Department it was found that the appellant had wrongly availed CENVAT Credit on the aforesaid three capital goods which are used exclusively for the manufacture of exempted products, beyond the stage at which they get separated from the dutiable product. In other words it is the position of the Revenue that after the dutiable product viz; Starch has been separated from the process, these exempted products get processed using the aforesaid three capital goods and on which they have wrongly availed CENVAT Credit on capital goods with an intent to wrongly availing CENVAT Credit. Accordingly, a demand was raised to recover the aforesaid CENVAT Credit under Rule 14 of CCR 2004 read with proviso to Section 11A(1) of Central Excise Act, 1944 along with interest under section 11 AB. It was also proposed to impose penalty under section 11AC of Central Excise Act, 1944.

4. After the matter was remanded, the original authority re-examined the entire manufacturing process which he described as follows:

“PROCESS DESCRIPTION:

Initially they take corn approximately at 14% moisture and corn will be cleaned through cleaning machine and separate cobs and dust etc.

Corn fed into the steeping vats and maintain 50 – 52 degree centigrade with SO2 water for 44 – 50 hours to achieve final moisture of corn 30 – 40%.

Germ separation:

After steeping, steeped maize fed into the Grinder 1 & 2 for separating the Germ through Germ cyclone. Along with Germ, Starch and Protein liquid is also going along with Germ to Germ filter and Squeezer (squeezing machine) for reducing the moisture and rest of starch and protein liquid goes to main process and semi wet germ (55% moisture) will be goes to Tubular dryer for drying and packing.

Fibre separation:

Rest of the material like Starch, protein and Fibre fed into the fine milling. In this process all the ingredients are completely grinded and finally it goes to the multi stage (fibre separation area). Liquid (starch and protein) again it goes to process and after squeezing, Fibre will dry through Tubular Dryer or Rotary Dryer and will be packed. After squeezing the fibre the moisture content of the fibre is 55%, due to its perishable nature they have to dry immediately through Tubular Dryer or Rotary Dryer to reduce moisture to the level of 5%.

Gluten (Protein Flour) Separation:

Rest of Starch and Protein passes through different separation equipments like Main stream Thickner, Primary Separator, gluten Decanter.

During separation of Starch and Gluten (Protein), the Gluten has very low solid content approximately 2 – 3%, without Gluten Decanter they cannot concentrate the Gluten and run the plant.

After concentration of liquid Gluten, it goes through the vacuum filter for further reducing the moisture and left over liquid contains fine Gluten and again it goes to the main process for recovery. Finally semi wet Gluten (Protein flour) obtained from the vacuum filter 60% moisture content Gluten goes to the CPD Flash dryer and obtained final moisture 10% and packed.

After vacuum filter gluten cake moisture is 60%, as protein (Gluten) is perishable product we have to dry through CPD Flash Dryer to achieve moisture 10%.

Starch Separation:

Finally they get the liquid Starch and this will go through nine different stages for better refining and starch liquid passes through centrifuge machine and finally dry it through the dryer and get Native Starch. Centrifuge overflow and filtrate water again goes to the main process. In modified starches they add chemical in the liquid starch stage for reaction in separate tanks to maintain the different parameters. Finally, after reaction with chemicals, starch liquid goes through the centrifuge machine and finally dry through starch dryers.

This process is totally integrated with main process and all the by products which they are separating in liquid form with density difference. So in every process during separation, some starch and protein liquid go along with the by product. During squeezing and filtration process the liquid again and again reprocessing to the main
5. Accordingly, he confirmed the demand for recovery of CENVAT Credit along with interest and imposed penalties as proposed in the show cause notice.

6. Aggrieved, the appellant appealed to the first appellate authority who affirmed the order of the lower authority. Hence this appeal.

7. Ld. Counsel for the appellant submits that the process of manufacture in their factory is a continuous one and an integrated one and therefore they should not be denied CENVAT Credit on the disputed capital goods. He sought to rely on the order of the Principal Bench of CESTAT in the case of Rana Sugar Ltd. vs. CCE, Ludhiana [2012(11)TMI 299-CESTAT, New Delhi] in which it is held that in case the capital goods/inputs were used in the process of manufacture of intermediate exempted goods which were further used in the manufacture of dutiable products, CENVAT Credit cannot be denied. With respect to the specific three capital goods, he submitted as follows:

“a) DECANTER FOR GLUTEN: Gluten is an intermediate stage in the manufacture of starch and it is subjected to the decantation for obtaining pure starch which is dewatered and starch is processed and packed for sale. Hence the decanting cannot be treated as used for manufacture of gluten, but it is a process for manufacture of starch.

b) CPB (Flash Dryer) USED FOR DRYING THE GLUTEN: Flash Dryer is used for extracting process water and protein flour from the process material and unless the water along with starch is extracted and used in the system neither gluten nor substantial process of starch refining can be completed. In a process involving multiple operations, it is not possible to earmark any equipment for any one product and separation of water containing starch and obtaining clean water from other process is a basic requirement for obtaining the finished excisable goods namely, starch.

c) TUBULAR DRYER OR ROTARY DRYER USED FOR DRYING MAIZE FIBRE/GERM: Tubular Dryer or Rotary Dryer is used for drying of Maize Fibre/Germ. Drying of the products at both intermediate stage and also at dutiable goods stage are same and are part of the manufacturing process. In the above background the capital goods employed as above are eligible for availing CENVAT Credit on them as per the role played mainly in recovery of starch from the process material functions, rendered by each of the item as explained above.”

8. After hearing, both sides were given one week to make additional submissions, if any. Accordingly, an unsigned copy of the written notes was sent by the Ld. Counsel which explained the process of manufacturing of various products and the equipment used at each stage, as follows:

“The Maize seed contain 64% starch and the same is sought for recovery by employing the following:

9. ld. DR, on the other hand, reiterates the findings of the lower authorities and asserts that the case of Rana Sugar Limited (supra) stood on a different footing as the issue was whether the CENVAT Credit can be denied on capital goods used for manufacture of intermediate products which are exempted but which are further used in the manufacture of dutiable final products. The present case is different. Although the process is integrated one, starch is separated by the appellant from the maize corn and after the separation the other by-products namely Gluten and Maize Germ etc. come out. Thereafter, these exempted products are further dried and processed to pack and market them. What is sought to be denied is only the credit used on such goods which have been procured and used only for the processing of these exempted products after their separation from the main product. Therefore, the appellant is clearly not entitled to CENVAT Credit on these capital goods and they have wrongly availed CENVAT Credit with an intent to avail ineligible CENVAT Credit and accordingly the impugned orders are correct and require no interference.

10. I have considered the arguments on both sides and perused the records. The lower authority has explained the process lucidly. The disputed capital goods are used at the following stages.

i) Decanter for Gluten – for Decanter for Gluten after separating free from the starch. Thereafter Gluten is done concentrating through vacuum filters and dried and packed.

ii) CPD (Flash Dryer) used for drying the Gluten – it is used for drying gluten after it has been decanted in the Gluten Decanter.
iii) Tubular Dryer or Rotary Dryer or Rotary Dryer used is used to squeeze the fiber to reduce the moisture content from 55% to 5% making it suitable for further processing and packing.

11. The case of Rana Sugar Limited (supra) sought to be relied upon by the appellant was on a different footing where the sugar factory was manufacturing denatured alcohol which is dutiable and the intermediate product in the process of manufacturing was ethyl alcohol which was exempted. It has been held by the Tribunal that CENVAT Credit on the inputs and capital goods used in the manufacture of exempted intermediate product cannot be denied when the final product is dutiable. In the present case, the starch is the dutiable final product and gluten maize germ are final products which are exempted. What is sought to be denied is CENVAT Credit of capital goods on such machinery which is used for processing the exempted products after they are separated from the raw material. Ld. Counsel for the appellant sought to impress upon the Bench that the entire process is an integrated one and therefore CENVAT Credit cannot be denied on the capital goods. Even if the process is an integrated one, if a separate machinery is used for processing the exempted products after it has been separated from the main product or raw material and such machinery is used only for processing exempted products, CENVAT Credit cannot be availed by the appellant in view of the explicit provisions of Rule 6(4) of CCR 2004. I have also gone through the table submitted by the Counsel for the appellant cited above but the equipment indicated therein do not include the three equipments in dispute. Therefore, this argument does not carry their case any further.

12. In view of the above, I find that the impugned order does not call for any interference and it needs to be upheld and I do so.

13. The impugned order is upheld and the appeal is rejected. (Pronounced in open court on 26.08.2019)
1. None appeared on behalf of the appellant despite the matter being listed. It is seen from the records that the appellant had not been represented during the previous hearings also. Heard the learned departmental representative and perused the records of the case and proceed to decide the matter on merits.

3. The appellants are manufacturers of Hydraulic Cylinders falling under CETH 8412 1000 of the Central Excise Tariff and are registered with the Central Excise department. During scrutiny of the Cenvat credit availed by the appellant, the department observed that they had availed Cenvat credit of ₹ 7,614/- on the same invoice twice in the month of June 2014. The department further observed that they had short paid Cenvat credit of ₹ 9,869/- on capital goods cleared after putting them to use. Accordingly, a show cause notice dt.18.04.2016 was issued proposing to recover irregularly availed Cenvat credit under Rule 14 of Cenvat Credit Rules (CCR), 2004 read with section 11A(4) of the Central Excise Act. It was further proposed to impose a penalty under Rule 15(2) of CCR, 2004 read with section 11AC. The appellant had not disputed the fact that they had availed Cenvat credit twice on the same invoice and also had short paid Cenvat credit on capital goods removed after being put to use. However, they contended that they have reversed the aforesaid amounts on being pointed out by the department. Therefore, they argued that no penalty should be imposed upon them. After following due process, the adjudicating authority confirmed the demands and appropriated the amounts already reversed by the appellant. He also imposed a penalty of ₹ 7,614/- and ₹ 9,869/- under Rule 15(2) of CCR, 2004 read with section 11AC(1) of the Central Excise Act, 1944. Aggrieved, the appellant filed an appeal before the first appellate authority who, upheld the order of the lower authority and rejected the appeal. Hence, this appeal. In this appeal they are contesting the imposition of penalty on the ground that they had no intention to evade payment of Cenvat credit and they had already reversed the amounts on being pointed out by the department. They had further contended that they had sufficient balance in their Cenvat credit account.

4. Learned departmental representative supports the impugned order and argues that it is not in doubt that the appellant had availed Cenvat credit twice on the same invoice which was in complete violation of any provisions of CCR, 2004. This would have gone unnoticed if there was not an audit by the department. This shows that the appellant had the intention to evade ineligible Cenvat credit without backing of any document and has put such intention to practice. When caught, he reversed the Cenvat credit. Similarly, he has not reversed Cenvat credit on the capital goods fully while removing them. This shows the intention of the appellant to evade wrongly availed Cenvat credit and thereby evade payment of excise duty to that extent. The mere fact that they have reversed the amounts on being caught does not render the appellant innocent. It is not in doubt that the availedment of Cenvat credit and non-reversal of Cenvat credit fully on clearance of capital goods was in violation of the Act and Rules. Therefore, the penalty has been correctly imposed.

5. I have considered the arguments on both sides and perused the records. I have no doubt that the appellant had wrongly availed Cenvat credit twice in the same invoice. It is not the case where one could have a doubt about the admissibility of such Cenvat credit. Evidently, nobody can legitimately claim Cenvat credit twice on one invoice. Similarly, with respect to the capital goods removed after use, they have reversed inadequate amount of Cenvat credit which remains undisputed. In this factual matrix, I find that the intention is self-evident and the violation of Act and Rules are undisputed. Therefore, I find no infirmity in the impugned order.

6. The appeal is rejected and the impugned order is upheld.

(Operative part of this order was pronounced in the open court on conclusion of hearing)
1. These three appeals are on the same issue and hence are being disposed of together.

2. Heard both sides and perused the records. The appellant M/s Adani Power Ltd, Gujarat are co-developers of Multi-Product Special Economic Zone in Gujarat. They procured stores, spares and consumables from M/s HBL Power Systems Ltd (HBLPSL), Kothur Division, Hyderabad-II. Appropriate excise duty was paid while clearing the goods to the appellant. It appeared to the appellant that they are not liable to pay excise duty and hence they filed refund applications with the jurisdictional Central Excise Officer of the supplier which were rejected. Aggrieved, the appellant appealed to the first appellate authority, who, vide the impugned orders rejected their appeals. Hence, these appeals.

3. Learned counsel for the appellant submits that in terms of the Special Economic Zone (SEZ) Act, 2005, they are entitled to procure goods and services required for undertaking the authorized operations without any duty or tax liability in terms of section 7 and section 26 of the SEZ Act. The SEZ Act is a self-contained code and provides for the mode and the mechanism for claiming exemption from payment of different duties. Insofar the supply of goods from Domestic Tariff Area (DTA) to SEZ unit is concerned, such supplies would be exempt from payment of duty and such exemption has to be claimed by the developer/entrepreneur after executing an appropriate bond-cum-legal undertaking as per Rule 22 of the SEZ Rules. They are also required to maintain proper accounts, financial year wise, which should indicate the value of the goods imported or procured from DTA, their consumption, etc. On receipt of the goods at the SEZ gate, in respect of which exemptions, drawback or concession are to be claimed by the developer for undertaking authorized operations, a Bill of Export is required to be filed by the unit/developer on behalf of the supplier which has to be assessed by the authorized officer. Upon such assessment the goods are admitted into the SEZ and the bill of export copy is endorsed by the authorized officer. However, where the unit or the developer has not claimed any exemption, drawback or concession at the time the goods are brought into the SEZ, the goods procured from the DTA can be brought into the SEZ on the basis of invoice or a transport document issued by the DTA supplier. As per Rule 25 of the SEZ Rules a developer/entrepreneur is liable to refund the exemption, drawback or concession claimed by it under the Customs Act, Central Excise Act etc., if the goods have not been used for the authorized operations. In their case, they have procured the goods on the strength of normal commercial invoice and the goods were cleared by their suppliers after paying appropriate duty.

4. Thereafter, they filed refund applications under section 11B of the Central
5. Regarding the refund application not having been filed with the jurisdictional Central Excise Officer as per Rule 47(5) of SEZ Rules, he would submit that this Rule pertains to sales in DTA by the SEZ and it does not pertain to procurement of goods by the SEZ unit/developer. As per Rule 47(5), refund, demand adjudication, review and appeal, with regard to matters relating to authorized operations under SEZ Act, 2005, transactions and goods and services related thereto, shall be made by the jurisdictional Customs & Central Excise authorities in accordance with the relevant provisions contained in the Customs Act, 1962, Central Excise Act, 1944 and the Finance Act, 1994 and the rules made there under or notifications issued there under. He would submit that this reference to the jurisdictional excise officer or customs officer having jurisdiction over the SEZ unit for the purpose of clearance of goods by the SEZ units to the DTA. In the present case, the goods were cleared by their supplier in Hyderabad to the SEZ unit. Therefore, the appropriate officer before whom the application for refund can be filed is the jurisdictional officer of Central Excise in Hyderabad. He would submit that this order the Tribunal has held that a refund under section 11B can be availed not just by the assessee by any person who suffers Central Excise duty which is not payable as per the law. Therefore, he would urge that they are entitled to refund and the impugned orders may be set aside and they may be allowed refund. He further submits that they are also entitled to interest at appropriate rate from the date of filing of the refund claims till the date of payment of the refund amounts.

6. Learned departmental representative, on the other hand, reiterates the findings of the lower authorities and asserts that there is no provision under which the SEZ unit/developer can claim refund of duties paid by their supplier. He draws the attention of the bench to Rule 30 of the SEZ Rules which reads as follows:

"30. Procedure for procurements from the Domestic Tariff Area.- (1) The Domestic Tariff Area supplier supplying goods to a Unit or Developer shall clear the goods, as in the case of exports, either under bond or as duty paid goods under claim of rebate on the cover of ARE-1 referred to in Notification number 42/2001-Central Excise (NT) dated the 26th June, 2001 in quintuplicate bearing running serial number beginning from the first day of the financial year.

(2) Goods procured by a Unit or Developer, on which Central Excise Duty exemption has been availed but without any availment of export entitlements, shall be allowed admission into the Special Economic Zone on the basis of ARE-1.

(3) The goods procured by a Unit or Developer under claim of export entitlements shall be allowed admission into the Special Economic Zone on the basis of ARE-1 and a Bill of Export filed by the supplier or on his behalf by the Unit or Developer and which is assessed by the Authorised Officer before arrival of the goods:

Provided that if the goods arrive before a Bill of Export has been filed and assessed, the same shall be kept in an area designated for this purpose by the Specified Officer and shall be released to the Unit or Developer only after completion of the assessment of the Bill of Export.

(4) A copy of the ARE-1 and/or copy of Bill of Export, as the case may be, with an endorsement by the authorized officer that goods have been admitted in full into the Special Economic Zone shall be forwarded to the Central Excise Officer having jurisdiction over the Domestic Tariff Area supplier within forty-five days failing which the Central Excise Officer shall raise demand of duty against the Domestic Tariff Area supplier.

(5) Where a Bill of Export has been filed under a claim of drawback or Duty Entitlement Pass Book, the Unit or Developer shall claim the same from the Specified Officer and jurisdictional Development Commissioner respectively and in case the Unit or Developer does not intend to claim entitlement of drawback or Duty Entitlement Passbook Scheme, a disclaimer to this effect shall be given to the Domestic Tariff Area supplier for claiming such benefits:
Provided that the Duty Entitlement Passbook Scheme may be claimed by Domestic Tariff Area supplier from the Development Commissioner or their jurisdictional Regional Licensing Authority of the Directorate General of Foreign Trade.

(6) The Bill of Export shall be assessed in accordance with the instructions and procedures, including examination norms, laid down by the Department of Revenue as applicable to export goods:

Provided that at the time of assessment, it shall be specifically examined whether the goods are required for the authorized operations by the Unit or Developer, with reference to the Letter of Approval or the list of goods approved by the Approval Committee for the Developer.

(7) On arrival of the goods procured from the Domestic Tariff Area at the Special Economic Zone gate, the Authorized Officer shall examine the goods in respect of description, quantity, marks and other relevant particulars given in the ARE-1, invoice, Bill of Export of packing list and also as per the examination norms laid down in respect of export goods in cases where the goods are being procured under claim of an export entitlement.

(8) Drawback or Duty Entitlement Pass Book credit against supply of goods by Domestic Tariff Area supplier shall be admissible provided payments for the supply are made from the Foreign Currency Account of the Unit.

Provided that the reimbursement of duty in lieu of drawback or Duty Entitlement Pass Book credit against supply of goods by Domestic Tariff Area supplier to Special Economic Zone developers shall be admissible even if payment is made in Indian Rupees. Reimbursement of duty in lieu of drawback against supply of goods to Special Economic Zone developer shall be made as per the procedure prescribed by the Central Government.

(9) A copy of the Bill of Export and ARE-1 with an endorsement of the Authorised Officer that the goods have been admitted in full in the Special Economic Zone, shall be treated as proof of export.

(10) Where the goods are to be procured by a Unit or Developer from a Domestic Tariff Area supplier who is not registered with the Central Excise authorities, or is a trader or merchant exporter, the procedure under sub-rules (1) and (2) above shall apply, mutatis mutandis, except that the goods shall be brought to the Special Economic Zone under the cover of an invoice and the ARE-1 shall not be required.

(11) The Unit or Developer may also procure goods from Domestic Tariff Area without availing exemptions, drawbacks and concessions on the basis of invoice or transport documents, issued by the supplier:

Provided that such invoices or transport documents shall be endorsed to the effect that no exemptions, drawbacks and concessions have been availed on the said supplies.

(12) Procedure for procurement from warehouse shall be as under:-

(a) where goods are to be procured from warehouse, a Unit or Developer shall file a Bill of Entry with the Specified Officer;

(b) the Unit or Developer shall submit Bill of Entry assessed by the Authorized Officer to the Customs Officer in charge of the warehouse from where the Special Economic Zone Unit or Developer intends to procure the goods;

(c) the Customs Officer in charge of the warehouse shall allow clearance of the goods from the warehouse for supply to the Unit or Developer without payment of duty on the cover of exbond Shipping Bill and on the basis of Bill of Entry duly assessed by the Authorized Officer;

(d) where the re-warehousing certificate by way of endorsement by the Authorized Officer on the copy of ex-bond Shipping Bill is not received by the Customs Officer in charge of warehouse within forty-five days from the date of clearance of the goods from the warehouse, the Customs Officer in charge of the Provided that for procurement of goods from Nominated Agency located in Special Economic Zone, the procedure as specified by Specified Officer shall be followed and there shall be no requirement of assessment of Bill of Entry or transfer of the goods under the cover of ex-bond Shipping Bill.

(13) A Special Economic Zone Unit or Developer may also procure goods from international exhibitions held in India following the procedures under sub-rule (12).

(14) A Unit or Developer may also procure goods or services, without payment of duty from an Export Oriented Unit or Software Technology Park Unit or Bio-Technology Park Unit, by following procedures under sub-rule (12).

(15) A Unit or Developer may procure goods and services from another Unit located in the same or any other Special Economic Zone, subject to following conditions, namely:-

(i) the receiving Unit or Developer shall file Bill of Entry for home consumption with the Authorized Officer, in quintuplicate, giving description of the goods along with an invoice and packing list for assessment;

(ii) on the basis of such assessed Bill of Entry, the goods shall be allowed to be transferred to the receiving Unit or Developer under transhipment permit;

(iii) there shall be no requirement to file any additional document or bond(s) for the purpose of transhipment of goods and the transhipment permission shall be stamped on the Bill of Entry itself;

(iv) the supplying Unit shall submit the re-warehousing certificate to the Specified Officer having jurisdiction over the supplying unit within forty-five days, failing which the Specified Officer of the supplying Unit shall write to the Specified Officer having jurisdiction over the receiving Unit or Developer for demand of duty from the receiving Unit or Developer;

(v) where the supplying and receiving Units or Developer are located in the same Special Economic Zone, the provisions of subrules (i) and (iv) shall not apply and the movement of goods shall be allowed and such transactions shall be recorded in the regular books of accounts of the receiving Unit or Developer and the supplying Unit and no Bill of Entry shall be required to be filed.

(16) Procurement of cut and polished diamonds and precious and semiprecious stones from Domestic Tariff Area-A gem and jewellery Unit may procure cut and polished diamonds and precious and semi precious stones from the Domestic Tariff Area, as per the following procedure, namely:-

(i) the parcel shall be brought into the Zone in a sealed condition by the authorized representative of the Domestic Tariff Area supplier or Customs House Agent, who shall present the invoice clearly marked original, duplicate and triplicate to the Authorized Officer at the gate;

(ii) the Authorized Officer shall register the invoice at the gate of Special Economic Zone and endorsing the registration number on the original and duplicate copies of the invoice and the parcel shall be allowed to be taken into the premises of the Unit and such goods shall be separately accounted for by the Unit.

(iii) the duplicate copy of the invoice with the endorsement of the Authorized Officer shall be forwarded to the supplier in the Domestic Tariff Area for claiming Replenishment Licence from the Development Commissioner of the Special Economic Zone.

7. He would assert that there is no exemption for supply of goods to SEZ units just as there is no exemption notification for export of goods. In fact, SEZ is treated, for all purposes, as a place outside India and it is for this reason goods are procured by filing an ARE-1 by the supplier and a Bill of Export before the goods enter the SEZ unit. Therefore, the supplies to SEZ developer/unit are at par with the exports. The mechanism provided for such supply in the SEZ Rules only provides for supply against a bond or legal undertaking after following the process and procedure indicated therein. Any SEZ unit claiming a refund is like an overseas buyer of exported goods claiming refund of Central Excise duty for which there is no legal provision. He would submit that the assessee has not made out a case to show under what law they have claimed refund of the excise duty. He would further urge that the Hon'ble Supreme Court has, in the case of Priya Blue Industries Ltd [2000-TIOL-78-SC-CUS] and Flock India Pvt Ltd [2000 (6) SCC 650], clearly held that no refund can be claimed in respect of the goods which have already been assessed unless the assessment itself has been challenged. In this case there is no evidence, whatsoever, that the assessment of the goods by the supplier M/s HBLPSL, Hyderabad to the appellant has been challenged either by M/s HBLPSL themselves or by the appellant. In view of the above, the question of refund does not arise.

8. He further submits that as decided by the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Dilip Kumar & Co. and others (Civil Appeal No. 3327/2007) when the appellant is claiming an exemption notification, it must be strictly construed and any benefit of doubt must be given to the revenue and decided against the assessee. In this particular case, the SEZ Rules do not provide for refund of duty in respect of goods which have been procured from DTA at all and neither does the Central Excise Act or Rules provided for such refund. The exemption which is available under SEZ Rules is only through the process of bond/legal undertaking. Therefore, the appeal needs to be dismissed both on merits and on the grounds of lack of jurisdiction.

9. I have considered the arguments on both sides and perused the records. The appellant, a developer of SEZ unit has procured goods from a DTA unit which he could have also procured without payment of excise duty if he had followed the appropriate procedure prescribed under SEZ Act and Rules. SEZ area is treated for all practical purposes as a place outside India. For this reason, goods which are imported into SEZ are not subject to customs duties. Goods from DTA which are supplied to SEZ units are treated at par with exports. In fact, documents such as ARE-1 and Bill of Export which are usually filed in case of exports are also filed in case of SEZ units. In case of actual exports, Central Excise Act provides for two options viz., (1) Export under Bond under Rule 19 and (2) Export under claim for rebate under Rule 18 of Central Excise Rules, 2002. The SEZ Rules, however, have only provided a mechanism for clearance of goods under bond. I find that there is no mechanism under SEZ Rules for claiming rebate/refund on goods procured from the DTA.

10. In the absence of any specific provision for exemption by way of refund in the SEZ Rules or under Central Excise Rules, I find that the appellant is not entitled to refund of the duty. I find that in the assessee's own case decided by the CESTAT-Kolkata, vide Final Order No. F/76332-76339/2017 dt.30.07.2017, this issue does not appear to have been contested by the revenue or discussed. In the light of the judgment of the Constitutional Bench of the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Dilip Kumar & Co. and others (supra), I find that no exemption by way of refund can be sanctioned to the appellant in the absence of any explicit provisions.

11. I also find that the assessment by the supplier of goods has not been challenged. At least, there is nothing on record to indicate so. It has been held by the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Priya Blue Industries Pvt Ltd (supra) and Flock India Pvt Ltd (supra) that unless the order of assessment has been challenged no claim for refund under section 11B can be made. These judgments were distinguished by the Hon'ble High Court of Delhi in the case of Aman Medical Products Pvt Ltd [2009-TIOL-566-HC-DEL-CUS] and Micromax Informatics Ltd [2016 (355) ELT 446 (Del)]. However, the Larger Bench of the Hon'ble Supreme Court has now decided in the case of ITC Ltd [2019-TIOL-418-SC-CUS-LB] that the ratio of Priya Blue Industries Pvt Ltd (supra) and Flock India Pvt Ltd (supra) applies in every case and no refund can be sanctioned even in cases of self-assessment unless such assessment itself is appealed against before the Commissioner (Appeals). In view of the above, I find that the assessee is not entitled to refund at all in the present case, both on account of lack of explicit provision for such refund as well as on the ground that the assessments were not challenged by the appellant.

12. In view of the above, appeals are rejected. (Order pronounced in the open court on 05.11.2019)
The facts of the case are that the appellant is a co-noticee in the show cause notice issued alleging fraudulent availment of CENVAT Credit based on invoices issued without actual supply of material mentioned in the invoices. The DGCEI, on receiving information, conducted search operations on 29.09.2010 at the factory and office premises of M/s Reliance Cellulose Products Limited, M/s Y.M. Drugs, the office premises of M/s Aerochem Impex Limited, M/s Finechem (Registered Central Excise dealer and appellants herein) and recovered certain incriminating documents and records. Search operations were also conducted at the office and factory premises of M/s Pavan Drugs on 15.03.2011 and relevant records were recovered.

Scrutiny of records revealed that M/s Reliance Cellulose Products Limited have shown that they supplied 6,00,000 Kgs of 'Micro Crystaline Cellulose' to M/s Aerochem Impex Pvt. Ltd. during February and March 2010 and accordingly Central Excise invoices were issued. This entire quantity was shown as received by M/s Aerochem Impex Pvt. Ltd. in their records and shown as supplied 5,15,000 Kgs and 85,000 Kgs of Micro Crystaline Cellulose to M/s Y.M. Drugs and M/s Pavan Drugs respectively. It was noticed that CENVAT invoices were issued by M/s Aerochem, M/s Y M Drugs and M/s Pavan Drugs without actual supply of material. It appeared that M/s Y M Drugs and M/s Pavan Drugs have shown as processed Micro Crystaline Cellulose received by them and shown as supplied Micro Crystaline Cellulose powder to M/s Finechem, another Central Excise dealer and in turn M/s Finechem has shown as supplied Micro Crystaline Cellulose powder received by them to M/s Reliance Cellulose Products Limited for which dealer invoices were issued by them. Basing on the CENVAT invoices issued by M/s Finechem which are issued without actual supply of material mentioned therein, M/s Reliance Cellulose Products Ltd. availed CENVAT credit even though they did not receive the goods namely Micro Crystaline Cellulose powder from M/s Finechem. Enquiry made with M/s Finechem showed that they neither received MCC from M/s Y M Drugs and Pavan Drugs nor supplied the same to M/s Reliance Cellulose Products Limited.

Since the goods as shown in the duty paying documents were not supplied by the dealers, the usage of the same by M/s Y M Drugs or M/s Pavan Drugs or M/s Reliance Cellulose Products Limited in relation to manufacture of finished products is not possible and the CENVAT Credit in such cases where the inputs were not actually received or used in the manufacture of final products was not admissible. Separate show cause notices were issued to M/s Y M Drugs & Chemicals Limited and M/s Reliance Cellulose Products Limited and M/s Pavan Drugs and Chemicals Pvt. Ltd. Proceedings were initiated against M/s Finechem as a co-noticee (appellant herein).

After due process of law, the original authority vide Order-in-Original dated 31.10.2012 (impugned order) confirmed the demand against the noticees. A penalty of ₹ 22.00 lakhs was imposed under Rule 26(2) of Central Excise Rules, 2002 upon the appellant. Aggrieved by such order, the appellant is now before the Tribunal.

5. The Ld. Consultant, Shri R. Narasimha Murthy appeared on behalf of the appellant. He referred to Rule 26(2) of Central Excise Rules, 2002 and submitted that a bare perusal of the provision would indicate that penalty under this provision can be imposed only on a natural person. The appellant is a partnership firm and per se is not a natural person.
Therefore, the provision of imposing penalty would not attract in the instant case. He relied upon the decision in the case of Homag India Pvt. Ltd. vs. CCE, ST & Customs, Bangalore reported in [2017(357)E.L.T. 1194 (Tri.-Bang.]) and also M/s Apple Sponge and Power Limited vs. CST, Audit-I reported in [2018(362)E.L.T. 894 (Tri.-Mum.)]. The appellant being a registered dealer is excluded from the purview of Rule 26 of Central Excise Rules, 2002 as a registered dealer can be covered only under Rule 25 of Central excise Rules, 2002. He prayed that the penalty may be set aside.

6. The Ld. AR Shri A.V.L.N. Chary supported the findings in the impugned order. He referred to the said provisions contained in Central Excise Rules, 2002 and submitted that the penalty has been imposed under Sub Rule 2 of Rule 26. He referred to the provisions contained in Rule 26(1) of Central Excise Rules 2002 and argued that only Rule (1) deals with the intention of the knowledge of fraudulent act for imposing penalty. Whereas, Rule
(2) does not talk about any such men sera required for the fraudulent act. The penalty imposed in the present case is under Rule 26(2) and not under Rule 26(1). Sub rule
(2) of Rule 26, even though uses the word “any person” as per general clauses act “person” includes legal person also. The penalties imposed therefore are legal and proper.

7. Heard both sides. For better appreciation, the relevant provisions of Rule 26(1) and Rule 26(2) of Central Excise Rules, 2002 are reproduced as under:

“26. Penalty for certain offences.-

[(1) Any person who acquires possession of, or is in any way concerned in transporting, removing, depositing, keeping, concealing, selling or purchasing, or in any other manner deals with, any excisable goods which he knows or has reason to believe are liable to confiscation under the Act or these rules, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding the duty on such goods or rupees [two thousand rupees,] whichever is greater.]

[Provided that where any proceeding for the person liable to pay duty have been concluded under clause (a) or clause (d) of sub-section (1) of section 11AC of the Act in respect of duty, interest and penalty, all proceedings in respect of penalty against other persons, if any, in the said proceedings shall also be deemed to be concluded.]

(2) Any person, who issues-

(i) an excise duty invoice without delivery of the goods specified therein or abets in making such invoice; or

(ii) any other document or abets in making such document, on the basis of which the user of said invoice or document is likely to take or has taken any ineligible benefit under the Act or the rules made there under like claiming of CENVAT credit under the CENVAT Credit Rules, 2004 or refund, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding the amount of such benefit or five thousand rupees, whichever is greater.]”

8. As per Sub Rule (2) clause (i) if any person issues an excise duty invoice without delivery of the goods, the penalty under the sub rule would apply. Sub Rule (1) of Rule 26 adds a condition that such person should have knowledge or reason to believe that the goods are liable for confiscation. Such a qualification is absent in Rule 26(2). The Ld. Counsel has relied upon the decisions passed by Single Member in the case of HomagIndia Pvt. Ltd. as well as Apple Sponge and Power Limited (supra). In the present case, the appellant is a partnership firm and has received the invoices from M/s Pavan Drugs and M/s Y.M. Drugs without receiving any goods. The invoices were again passed on to M/s Reliance Cellulose Products Limited who availed the fraudulent credit. Thus, without receiving goods or supply of goods, the appellant has received invoices and also issued cenvatable invoices, facilitating M/s Reliance Cellulose Products Limited to avail fraudulent credit. The appellants having issued excise duty invoice without delivery of goods is, therefore, liable for penalty under Sub Rule 2 of Rule 26 of Central Excise Rules, 2002. We, therefore, do not find any grounds to interfere with the findings of the Commissioner that the appellant is liable for penalty under Rule 26(2). However, taking into consideration the entire facts and circumstances of the case, we are of the opinion that the penalty of ₹ 22.00 lakhs imposed on the appellant is on the higher side. We hold that imposition of fine of ₹ 5.00 lakhs (Rupees five lakhs only) would meet the ends of justice.

9. The impugned order is modified to the extent of reducing the penalty imposed on the appellant under Rule 26(2) to ₹ 5.00 lakhs only.

10. The appeal is partly allowed in above terms, with consequential reliefs, if any. (Operative portion of the order pronounced in open court on conclusion of hearing)

FINAL ORDER NO. A/30886/2020

Per: P V Subba Rao:

1. This appeal is filed by the Revenue against Order-in-Appeal No. 02/2011(T) CE, dated 31.01.2011.

2. The respondent is a manufacturer of PVC Pipes and PVC Compound and was availing the benefit of MODVAT credit under Rule 57 of the erstwhile Central Excise Rules 1944. They filed a refund claim for Rs. 1,81,23,725/- on 24.05.2010 with the Joint Commissioner pursuant to order no. 1/2010-CEx dated 08.04.2010 issued by the Hon’ble Settlement Commissioner.

3. The background of the case is that originally a show cause notice dated 21.03.2010 was issued to the appellant demanding an amount of Rs. 3,14,53,090/- on account of alleged unaccounted manufacture and clearance of goods without payment of excise duty. The respondent approached the Hon’ble Settlement Commission in January who, after following due process, issued its final order dated 08.04.2010 determining the duty liability at Rs. 2,36,75,539/- along with simple interest at a rate of 5% and imposed some penalties. The Settlement Commission while passing this order has also allowed the assessee to take credit of Rs. 1,81,23,725/- in their MODVAT account being the duty involved on the unaccounted duty paid raw materials. The appellant paid the dues as per the order issued by the Hon’ble Settlement Commissioner.

Finally, their unit was closed by this time. They, therefore, filed a refund claim for Rs. 1,81,23,725/- in cash on the ground that their unit was closed and they were not able to utilise the MODVAT credit which they were entitled to take. The original authority examined the application and found that the Hon’ble Settlement Commission has only ordered MODVAT credit to be given and not cash refund. Further, in terms of the Rule 5 of Cenvat Credit Rules, 2004 (which were in vogue at the time this decision was taken), refund of credit can only be allowed in case input or input services is used in export of goods or services and for any reason, such credit cannot be used towards domestic clearance of goods. Therefore, the adjudicating authority rejected the refund claim filed by the appellant.
4. Aggrieved, the appellant appealed to the First Appellate Authority who, by the impugned order, reversed the order of the lower authority and held that the appellant is entitled to refund of the MODVAT/CENVAT in cash. Aggrieved, Revenue filed this appeal.

5. Learned Counsel for the respondent relies on the judgment of the Hon’ble High Court of Karnataka in the case of Slovak India Trading Company Pvt Ltd., [2006 (201) ELT 559, (Kar)] in which the Hon’ble High Court expressed the view that Rule 5 of Cenvat Credit Rules, 2004 does not specifically prohibit refund of cenvat credit if the factory is closed and has allowed refund in that case. He further submits that this judgment of the Hon’ble High Court of Karnataka was upheld by Hon’ble Supreme Court in the case Union of India Vs Slovak India Trading Co. Pvt Ltd., [2008 (223) ELT A170 (SC)]. He would further submit that the issue is well settled and the matter has been decided by the Commissioner (Appeals) in the impugned order as per the settled legal position.

6. Per contra, Learned DR asserts that a bare perusal of the order of the Hon’ble Supreme Court shows that the SLP in that case has been dismissed with the following words:

“Learned ASG appearing for the Union of India fairly concedes that those judgments of the High Court which were relied upon by the Tribunal have not been appealed against. In view of the concessions made by the Learned ASG, this Special Leave Petition is dismissed’.

Learned DR would submit that prima facie, it appears that the Hon’ble Apex Court has not laid down the law as far as the judgment of the Hon’ble High Court of Karnataka in the case of Slovak India is concerned but the case was dismissed in view of the concession made by the Learned ASG.

7. He would submit that the question which arises in such a case is whether the judgment of the Hon’ble Apex Court in the aforesaid SLP will be a declaration of law under article 141 of the Constitution of India which binds all the courts in the country or otherwise. This issue was examined at length by the Larger Bench of Hon’ble High Court of Bombay in the case of Gauri Plasti Culture P Ltd., and others [2019 (6) TMI 820 Bombay] Hon’ble High Court framed the following questions:

“(a) Whether cash refund is permissible in terms of clause (c) to the proviso to section 11B(2) of the Central Excise Act, 1944 where an assessee is unable to utilize credit on inputs?

(b) Whether by exercising power under Section 11B of the said Act of 1944, a refund of un-utilised amount of Cenvat Credit on account of the closure of manufacturing activities can be granted?

(c) Whether what is observed in the order dated 25th January 2007 passed by the Apex Court in Petition for Special Leave to Appeal (Civil) No. CC 467 of 2007 (Union of India Vs Slovak India Trading Company Pvt Ltd.) can be read as a declaration of law under Article 141 of the Constitution of India?”

These questions were answered by the Hon’ble Larger Bench of Bombay High Court in para 40 as follows:

40. As a result of the above discussion, we answer the questions of law framed above as (a) and (b) in the negative. They have to be answered against the assessee and in favour of the Revenue. Questions (a) and (b) having been answered accordingly, needless to state that the order of the Hon’ble Supreme Court in the case of Slovak India (supra) cannot be read as a declaration of law under Article 141 of the Constitution of India.

8. He would further rely on the order of the Tribunal in the case of Phoenix Industries Pvt Ltd., [2015 (330) ELT 303 Tri-Mum] in which it has been held that refund under Rule 5 of Cenvat Credit Rules, 2004 is subject to conditions laid down in Notification No. 5/2006-CE[NT] and no refund can be sanctioned beyond this.

9. We have considered the arguments on both sides and perused the records. Rule 5 of Cenvat Credit Rules, 2004 reads as follows:

“RULE 5. Refund of CENVAT Credit.- Where any input or input service is used in the final products which is cleared for export under bond or letter of undertaking, as the case may be, or used in the intermediate products cleared for export, or used in providing output service which is exported, the CENVAT credit in respect of the input or input service so used shall be allowed to be utilized by the manufacturer or provider of output service towards payment of,

(i) duty of excise on any final products cleared for home consumption or for export on payment of duty; or

(ii) service tax on output service, and where for any reason such adjustment is not possible, the manufacturer shall be allowed refund of such amount subject to such safeguards, conditions and limitations, as may be specified, by the Central Government, by notification:

Provided that no refund of credit shall be allowed if the manufacturer or provider of output service avails of drawback allowed under the Customs and Central Excise Duties Drawback Rules, 1995, or claims a rebate of duty under the Central Excise Rules, 2002, in respect of such duty.

Provided further that no credit of the additional duty leviable under sub-section (5) of section 3 of the Customs Tariff Act, as amended by clause 72 of the Finance Bill, 2005, the clause which has, by virtue of the declaration made in the said Finance Bill, under the Provisional Collection of Taxes Act, 1931, the force of law, shall be utilised for payment of service tax on any output service.

Explanation: For the purposes of this rule, the words ‘output service which are exported’ means any output service in respect of which payment is received in India in convertible foreign exchange and the same is not repatriated from, or sent outside, India.

Provided that the CENVAT credit or inputs shall not be denied to job worker referred to in rule 12AA of the Central Excise Rules, 2002, on the ground that the said inputs are used in the manufacture of goods cleared without payment of duty under the provisions of that rule.”

10. This is the only provision under which a refund of Cenvat credit can be allowed. Such refund is also subject to conditions notified by the Government. There is no provision in the Cenvat Credit Rules for refund of cenvat credit if the assessee is not able to utilise it for any other purpose, such as the factory being closed. The Hon’ble High Court of Karnataka in the case of Slovak India (supra), has however allowed such refund. The SLP filed by the Revenue against this judgment has been dismissed by the Hon’ble Apex Court in view of the concessions made by the ASG. The question which arises is in such a case the dismissal by the Hon’ble Supreme Court of the SLP should be treated as a law laid down under article 141 of the Constitution or otherwise. This issue was examined by the Larger Bench of the Hon’ble High Court of Bombay which also examined whether unutilised cenvat credit can be refunded on account of the closure of manufacture activities of the factory. The Hon’ble Larger Bench has found that the law has not been laid down by the Hon’ble Apex Court and the SLP was merely dismissed on account of the concession made by the ASG. Further, the Larger Bench of Hon’ble High Court of Bombay has held that no refund can be sanctioned under Section 11B if the assessee is unable to utilise cenvat credit on account of closure of the manufacturing activities.

11. In view of the above, we find that the ratio of the judgment of the Larger Bench of the Hon’ble High Court of Bombay is binding and prevails and accordingly no refund of MODVAT/Cenvat credit can be sanctioned to the respondent. We also find that the law has now been laid down by the constitutional bench of the Hon’ble Supreme Court in the case of Dilip Kumar and Company & Other [2018 (361) ELT 577 (SC)] and it is held that the fiscal laws must be interpreted as they are, without any intendment, regardless of the consequences. As per the ratio of this judgment also we cannot sanction a refund against the explicit provisions. In view of the above, the appeal filed by the Revenue is allowed and the impugned order is set aside.

2. The appellants manufacture Aloe Vera Juice and Aloe vera powder from Aloe vera plant and Amla juice and Amla powder from amla fruit. They registered with central excise department and have been filing ER-1 returns with the department, as required. Initially they classified their products under Chapter 6 of the Central Excise Tariff. A show-cause notice dated 09.04.2010 was issued to them under Section 11A invoking extended period of limitation proposing to reject the classification of the products under Chapter 6 of the Central Excise Tariff and instead proposing to classify them under Chapter 13 and accordingly demanded differential duty along with interest. It was also proposed to impose a penalty equal to the differential duty upon the appellant. Subsequent demands are periodical demands which also confirmed differential duty along with interest and imposed penalties upon the appellant. The issues which fall for consideration in these appeals are:

(i) Whether the Aloe Vera juice, Aloe Vera powder, amla juice and amla powder manufactured by the appellant are classifiable under chapter 6 as originally classified by the appellant or under Chapter Heading 13021919 as confirmed in the impugned order or under Chapter Heading 20098990 as now claimed by the appellant.

(ii) Whether differential duty along with interest is recoverable from the appellant.

(iii) Whether there are sufficient grounds to invoke extended period of limitation in the demands made under Section 11A in respect of Appeal No. E/25/2012.

(iv) Whether interest is chargeable on the duty demanded.

(v) Whether penalties are imposable on the appellant under Section 11AC of Central Excise Act, 1944 and Rules 25 of Central Excise Rules 2002.

3. Before proceeding further, it would be profitable to review, in brief, the relevant legal provisions. Central Excise duty is levied and collected as per Section 3 of the Central Excise Act, 1944 on ‘excisable goods’ manufactured or produced in India at the rates set forth in the Schedule to the Central Excise
The most important point of dispute in these appeals is the classification of the goods under the Central Excise Tariff. Unlike its predecessors, this tariff is based on the internationally accepted Harmonised System of Nomenclature (HSN)- a system which classifies every conceivable type of goods including plants and animals in a systematic manner. HSN, as well as the Central Excise Tariff are divided into Sections and Chapters within each Section. The scope of each section including specific inclusions and exclusions are spelt out in the Section notes of that section. Similarly, the scope of each Chapter including specific inclusions and exclusions are spelt out in the Chapter notes of that chapter. The Chapters are given a two digit numbers and within each chapter, tariff headings of the goods are given in four digits and further into six digit sub-headings. Although the Central Excise Tariff is based on the HSN, it is not exactly identical and some modifications are made to suit the purpose of the tariff.

Despite the systematic classification of the goods and the Section notes and Chapter notes, there could be ambiguity as to which of the two competing entries of the tariff is the correct classification of the goods. General Rules of Interpretation of the tariff help answer such questions.

Valuation of goods for calculating excise duty in case the duty was not paid and also not charged by the assessee from the buyer

If the tariff prescribes, as it does in most cases, duty on ad valorem basis, the value to be reckoned for calculating the duty shall, as per Section 4 of the Act, be the transaction value where the price is the sole consideration for sale. Special provisions have been made for cases where there is no sale or where price is not the sole consideration for sale or where the transactions are between related persons. In these cases, there is no dispute about the transaction value. Usually, the manufacturer bills the buyer for the sale price of the goods and adds the excise duty payable to it and the sales tax payable on the cost plus excise duty (since sales takes place after the manufacture the same sequence is followed while invoicing). Thus, the buyer of the goods shoulders the burden of the excise duty paid by the manufacturer. A question which arises is where the goods were sold by the manufacturer without paying any excise duty and without billing his buyer for it as well and thereafter a demand is confirmed holding that the manufacturer is liable to pay duty on the goods which were so removed, on what value should the duty be reckoned. Through a series of judicial decisions, it has been held that in such cases, the amount paid by the buyer as the price of the goods must be taken as cum-duty value and the price of the goods reckoned and the duty calculated accordingly. For instance, if the goods are priced at ₹ 110 and the duty payable is 10%, the assessable value of the goods should be taken as ₹ 100 and the duty as ₹ 10 thus bringing the total to ₹ 110 which has been paid by the buyer. This has come to be called commonly as ‘cum duty benefit’ and has been given even in cases where the goods were clandestinely removed.

Recovery of short paid duty and refund of duty paid in excess

9. If the duty is not levied, short levied, not paid, short paid or erroneously refunded, Section 11A of the Act provides for a mechanism of issuing a Show Cause Notice and adjudicating such matters. Conversely, if excess duty is paid, Section 11B enables the assessee (or some other person who may have borne the burden of the duty) to claim refunds. Time limits have been set out both for the department to issue an SCN proposing a demand of differential duty and for the claimant to claim refund. A demand under Section 11A can be raised by the Revenue only within one year. However, if the non-levy, short levy, non-payment, short payment or erroneous refund is by reason of (a) fraud; (b) collusion; (c) wilful misstatement; (d) suppression of facts; or (e) contravention of any provisions of the Act or the rules made thereunder with an intent to evade payment of duty, the demand under Section 11A can be made within five years from the relevant date.

Interest for short paid duty

10. Interest is also payable under Section 11AB on the amount so short paid.

Penalties

11. If the short levy, non-levy, short payment or non payment is on account of the aforesaid fraud, collusion, wilful misstatement or suppression of facts or contravention of any provisions with an intent to evade payment of duty, a penalty equal to the amount of duty evaded is leviable under Section 11AC of the Act.

12. Further, subject to the aforesaid provisions of Section 11AC, under Rule 25 of the Central Excise Rules if the manufacturer:

   a) Removes any excisable goods in contravention of any of the provisions of the Rules or notifications issued under the Rules;

   b) Does not account for any excisable goods produced or manufactured or stored by him;

   c) Engages in the manufacture, production or storage of any excisable goods without having applied for registration certificate required under section of the Act; or

   d) Contravenes any of the provisions of the Rules or notification issued under the rules with an intent to evade payment of duty, then all such goods are liable to confiscation and the assessee is liable to penalty.

13. In the impugned order of Appeal no. 25/2012, penalties have been imposed both under both Section 11AC of the Central Excise Act and under Rule 25 of Central Excise Rules. In the impugned orders pertaining to the remaining appeals, penalty has been imposed under Rule 25 only.

CENVAT Credit

14. The last relevant factor to this case is the CENVAT credit which enables the manufacturer, subject to the Cenvat Credit Rules, 2004, to take credit of the excise duty paid on the inputs and service tax paid on the input services which were used in the manufacture of the goods and use it to pay the excise duty. If no duty is payable on the final product, no CENVAT credit is admissible on such inputs and input services but if duty is payable, the manufacturer can take credit as per the Rules.

15. Initially, the appellant classified their products under Chapter 6 of the Central Excise Tariff which covers live trees and plants, bulbs, roots, cut flowers and ornamental flowers and ornamental foliage. The show-cause notice proposed to classify their products under Central Excise Tariff Heading 13021919. During the adjudication proceedings, the appellants conceded before the adjudicating authority that their products do not merit classification under Chapter 6. Instead, they claimed that they are classifiable under Chapter 20 of the tariff being in the nature of fruit juices and not under Chapter 13 as extracts. The appellant continues to maintain this position. Therefore, the question of classification under Chapter 6 is not a point of dispute before us. The competing headings for classification are Chapter heading 13021919 (alleged by the Revenue) and Chapter heading 2009 (claimed by the assessee).

16. According to the appellant aloe plant has an outer rind and a yellow bitter liquid just inside it known as aloe latex. Inside this latex is the inner leaf juice. The Central Excise Tariff Heading 13021919 is applicable only to the aloe latex which is separately extracted and not to the aloe juice which they are manufacturing. They explained the process which they follow for manufacture as follows:-

   Step 1: The aloe vera leaves are sorted out manually from foreign matters, damaged portions of the leaves are separated.
   Step 2: Clean the Aloe vera leaves and by decontamination in washing conveyor to remove the mud and surface adhering material
   Step 3: Thereafter leaves are kept in chlorine water to remove bacterial or fungal infections present in the leaves. Step 4: Chlorine water treated leaves are transferred to the washing conveyor to spray the water for dechlorination.
   Step 5: After the leaves are finally cleaned, leaves are transferred on the elevated conveyor for crushing the cleaned aloevera leaves.
   Step 6: Crushed the whole leaves in fruit mill.
   Step 7: The crushed material is sent for filtration into GYRO screen to separate the pulp and juice (called as first digestion juice).
   Step 8: Take pulp from the GYRO and do 2nd digestion with water, after digestion separate the pulp and juice using GYRO screen.
   Step 9: Mix the first and second digestion juices passed through the clarifier to remove the sludge material and get the clear juice.
   Step 10: Give carbon treatment to clarified juice to remove the aloin content.

   Step 11: After carbon treatments filter the juice and sent for HPL analysis to analyze the aloin content, if the analysis report is NMT 1 only will go to RO for concentration.
   Step 12: The juice [filtrate from the above carbon treatment filtration] is passed through the reverse osmosis filtration (RO) where all the juice and water is separated.
   Step 13: After removal water we will get concentrated juice. Step 14: Spray dry the concentrated juice to make powder.

Step 15: Mill the material to make fine powder, sift the material, blend the powder and pack the material. Thus they are not extracting only the latex part of the plant but are extracting juice from the entire leaf which can be consumed as aloe juice. They also spray dry the concentrated juice to make it into aloe vera power. As per the explanatory notes to HSN of Chapter 13, the saps and extracts under Chapter Heading 1302 include interalia, aloes, a thickened sap with a very bitter taste, obtained from several varieties of plants with the same name (lillace family). The learned counsel would argue that if the intention of the classification was to cover all forms of aloe vera juice, there was no need to include only the yellow bitter sap. Therefore, they are clearly excluded by Chapter Heading 1302. On the other hand, he would argue that Chapter Heading 2009 includes fruit juices and vegetable juices unfermented and not containing added spirit, whether or not containing added sugar or other sweetening matter. Nothing in the Chapter Notes to Chapter 20 indicate that this Chapter excludes aloe vera juice or amla juice. There can be no dispute that both the amla and aloe vera are vegetables and therefore their juices must be covered as vegetable juices under Chapter 2009.

17. Learned counsel would also argue that even if it is accepted for the sake of argument that both chapter 13 and Chapter 20 may cover the products manufactured by them, as per General Rule of Interpretation 3(a), the heading which gives a more specific description should be preferred over the one which gives a general description. He would submit that Chapter Heading 13021919 deals with extracts. Therefore, it is a more general description and Chapter Heading 2009 is a more specific description which covers juices which must prevail. Further, as per General Rule of Interpretation 3(c), if the goods cannot be classified with reference to Rules 3(a) or 3(b), they shall be classified under the heading which occurs last in numerical order among those which equally merit consideration. He would, therefore, argue that even as per this Rules 3(c), their products should fall under Chapter 20. He relies on the decision in the case of Forever Living health Vs CCE Mumbai [2006(193) ELT 45 (Tri-Mum)] in which it was decided that aloe vera gel, aloe vera nectar and aloe vera freedom were held classifiable under 2009.90. He also relied upon the case law of Commissioner of Commercial Taxes Lucknow Vs Forever Living Imports (I) Ltd [2018(9) GSTL11(A11) upheld by the Hon’ble Supreme Court in 2018(9) GSTL J39(SC) in which it was held that aloe vera juice was classifiable under Entry No. 103 of Schedule-II of U.P. Value Added Tax Act 2008.

18. On the question of invocation of extended period of limitation, learned counsel would submit that there is no dispute that they had obtained registration, declared the nature of their product correctly in their ER-I returns and claimed the classification which they deemed appropriate at that time and paid duty accordingly. No element of fraud or collision or wilful misstatement or suppression of facts was brought out in the show-cause notice or established in the impugned order to justify the invocation of extended period of limitation. He would draw the attention of the Bench to para 19 of the order-in-original 32/2011 passed by the learned Commissioner in which he records “the assesses have submitted in their reply that extended period of limitation is not invokable as all facts were in the knowledge of the department and that they have filed the returns regularly. The contention of the assessee is not acceptable inasmuch as they failed to correctly assess the duty payable on the impugned goods and have wrongly assessed the goods to ‘Nil’ rate of duty under Chapter 6 of the Central Excise Tariff Act 1985 whereas they attract duty and rightly merit classification under Chapter 13 of the Central Excise Tariff Act 1983 and as such the extended period of demand of duty is rightly invokable”. He would submit that from the above, it is evident that the only ground on which extended period of limitation has been invoked in the impugned order is that they have classified the goods under a wrong heading. This is not a ground on which extended period of limitation can be invoked under Section 11A.

19. On the question of interest under Section 11AB, he would submit that since the entire demand itself is not sustainable, interest is also not payable. On the question of penalty under Section 11AC, he would argue that no penalty is imposable upon them even if the matter is decided against them as it is only a question of classification and the dispute is whether the department's classification is correct or their classification. On the question of penalty under Rule 25, he would argue that this is not imposable as none of the elements mentioned in this Rule are established and there is also no order of confiscation.

20. If the matter is decided against them on merits, he would submit that they would be eligible to CENVAT credit on inputs and input services which may be allowed to them. Further, he would submit that since they have sold the goods without charging any excise duty thereon, the cum tax benefit treating the sale price as cum-duty price will be available to them which may also be allowed.

21. Per contra, learned A.R. supports the impugned order. He would submit that the products manufactured by the appellant are rightly classifiable under Chapter Heading 1302 and not under 2009 as claimed by the appellant. He would submit that it is not in dispute that the appellant has manufactured aloe vera juice, aloe vera powder, amla juice and amla powder by extracting them from the aloevera plants and amla fruit. These are squarely covered under Chapter Heading 1302 and not as vegetable juices under 2009. A perusal of the juices covered under 2009 shows that juices such as oranges, grape fruit juice, pineapple juice, tomato juice, apple juice, mango juice etc. are covered in this Heading. Aloe vera juice and amla juice and aloe vera powder and amla powder are not in this category. Countering the argument of the learned counsel that only yellow latex which is a yellowish layer in aloe vera gets covered under 1309, he would submit that the explanatory notes to HSN Chapter 13 relied upon by the appellant only clarifies that certain saps and extracts are included in this heading. It does not exclude other saps and extracts. While the thick aloe sap is specifically included, aloe juice manufactured by the appellant is not excluded from this Chapter. A perusal of the process of manufacture of the products presented by the appellant themselves shows that their products are manufactured by extracting from plants and fruit, thus cannot be treated as fruit juices and vegetable juices meant for consumption which are classifiable under 2009. Regarding the case law of Forever Living Health (supra) relied upon by the appellant, he would submit that the products in that case were different and the issue in question was different as well. The department in that case wanted to classify the products as food supplements under Chapter 16 while the appellant claimed the classification under Chapter 20. Therefore, the Tribunal had only to decide as to which is a better classification between the two and it was decided that aloevera products manufactured by that appellant in that case were not food supplements. Therefore, the ratio of that classification should not apply to the present case as neither the products are identical nor is the question of classification. As regards the case law of Commissioner of Commercial Taxes Vs Forever Living (supra) decided by the Hon'ble High Court of Allahabad and upheld by the Hon'ble Apex Court, he would submit that these case laws are irrelevant to the present case as the dispute in these cases was with reference to classification under Entry No. 103 of Schedule-II of U.P. Value Added Tax Act 2008. The present case is on classification of products under CETA which is based on HSN and which has no similarity to U.P. Value Added Tax Act Schedule-II. On the question of invoking extended period of limitation, he would argue that it was for the appellant to correctly classify their products and pay appropriate amount of duty. They classified their products under Chapter-6 which pertains to live plants even though the appellants have themselves admitted even before the adjudicating authority that their products do not merit classification under Chapter-6. Therefore, the intention to evade payment of duty is evident and accordingly the extended period of limitation has been correctly invoked. He also supports the demand of interest on the differential duty and imposition of penalties in the impugned orders.
22. After hearing both sides, both sides were given 10 days to make additional submissions. Learned counsel for the appellant made additional submissions on 16.03.2020 which reiterated the aforesaid arguments.

23. We have considered the arguments on both sides and perused the records. Coming to the first question of classification, there is no dispute at this stage that the original classification by the appellant under Chapter 6 was not correct and the dispute now is between Chapter 13 and Chapter 20. Chapter 13 deals with lac, gums, resins and other vegetable saps and extracts. Chapter note 1 specifically shows that Chapter Heading 1302 applies, interalia, to liquorice extract and extract of pyrethrum, extract of hops and extract of aloe. This note also excludes certain types of products to which this heading does not apply. The exclusions in this chapter note do not cover aloe vera juice, aloe vera powder, amla juice and amla powder. The exclusion also does not cover specifically any product which can also be covered under Chapter 20. It is pertinent to note that this Chapter or Chapter Heading 1302 do not confine themselves to juices. Other forms of extracts are also covered in this chapter. A plain reading of Chapter heading 1302 shows that this covers the vegetable saps and extracts, pectic substances and pectates agar agar and other mucilages and thickeners, whether or not modified, derived from vegetable products. Evidently, this chapter covers products which are either in liquid form or otherwise. There cannot be any dispute that both amla and aloe vera are plants and the juices and powders which are extracted from them can therefore be clearly covered under Chapter Heading 1302. On the other hand, Chapter Notes to Chapter 20 also do not exclude any products which may fall under Chapter 13. Chapter Heading 2009 clearly covers fruit juices and vegetable juices, unfermented and not containing added spirit whether or not containing added sugar or sweetening matter. Therefore, it is equally logical to classify the aloe vera juice and amla juice under Chapter Heading 2009 as claimed by the appellant. However, we find no ground to call the powders manufactured by the appellant as juices as powder is a solid and the juice is a liquid. There is nothing in the description of Chapter Heading 2009 to suggest that it also includes powders. Therefore, we find that the aloe vera powder and amla powder manufactured by the appellant cannot be classified under Chapter Heading 2009.

23.1 Learned counsel argued before us that the vegetable juice under 2009 is a more specific heading than the vegetable extracts under Chapter Heading 1302. We do not find any reason to hold that one is more specific description than the other. We, therefore, find that as far as the aloe vera juice and amla juice are concerned, both chapter heading 1302 and Chapter Heading 2009 equally merit consideration and therefore Chapter Heading 2009 being the last in the numerical order prevails in terms of General Rules of Interpretation Rule 3(c). Therefore, aloe vera juice and amla juice are classifiable under Central Excise Tariff Heading 2009 as claimed by the appellant.

24. As far as the aloe vera powder and amla powder are concerned, as they are not juices, they are not classifiable under Tariff Heading 2009. Being extracts of vegetables, they are classifiable under 1302.

25. In view of the above, we find that the demand on aloe vera juice and amla juice for the entire period is to be calculated reckoning their classification under Chapter 20 and the demand of duty for aloe vera powder and amla powder needs to be upheld.

26. As far as the question of limitation is concerned, it is evident from the order of the adjudicating authority that the only ground on which the extended period of limitation has been invoked and upheld in this case is that the appellant has wrongly classified the products in their ER-1 returns and paid less duty. We find that in terms of Section 11A of the Central Excise Act, extended period of limitation can be invoked only in cases of fraud, collision, wilful misstatement, suppression of facts or violation of Act or Rules with an intention to evade payment of duty. Claiming wrong classification cannot be the ground for invoking extended period of limitation, therefore, the entire demand beyond normal period of limitation needs to be set aside and we do so.

27. Learned counsel for the appellant has pleaded that cum duty benefit and also credit on inputs if any applicable be given to them. We find in favour of the appellant on this ground. The duty therefore needs to be calculated accordingly.

28. As far as the interest is concerned, once the duty is payable to some extent, interest on that amount has to be paid as per law and this is not a matter of discretion.

29. As far as the penalties imposed upon the appellant are concerned, we find that no penalty can be imposed under Section 11AC as there is no element of fraud, collusion wilful misstatement or suppression of facts or violation of the provisions of the Act or Rules with an intent to evade payment of duty. No penalty is imposable upon the appellant under Rule 25 also as the assessee has not violated any Rules and it is only a matter of difference of opinion regarding classification by the assessee and by the department. Therefore all penalties need to be set aside and we do so.

30. In view of the above, all appeals are disposed of as below:-

1) Aloe vera juice and amla juice are classifiable under 2009 being the later entry of the two headings equallymeriting consideration.

2) Aloe vera powder and amla powder are classifiable under 1309.

3) Extended period of limitation cannot be invoked and the demand beyond the normal period is set aside.

4) The demand shall be recomputed taking the sale price as cum-duty price and extending the benefit of CENVAT credit on inputs and input services if any, available to the appellant as per CENVAT Credit Rules.

5) Interest, as applicable, on the demands is upheld.

6) All penalties are set aside as the issue is only one of interpretation.

7) All appeals are remanded to the original authority for the limited purpose of calculation of demand as above.

(Order pronounced in open court on 22/07/2020)
These appeals have been filed by the appellants against the same impugned order and hence are being disposed of together.

2. Heard both sides and perused the records. The facts of the case in brief are that the appellant M/s Vishnu Chemicals Ltd (VCL) is engaged in manufacture of Sodium Bichromate (SB) falling under Chapter heading 2841.10, Basic Chromium Sulphate (BSS) falling under heading 2833.00 and Yellow Sodium Sulphate (YSS) falling under heading 2833.00. They have been paying Central Excise duty on these products. On receiving information that they are not discharging the duty liability on the full value of their clearances, the officers of Central Excise searched the premises and took stock and found that there was shortage of 5.060 MTs of Sodium Bichromate Mother Liquor (SBML) in the factory on which the duty liability comes to ₹ 28,567/-. Further, they conducted detailed investigation and recorded statements of various persons and seized private records which showed removal of goods without showing them in the Central Excise records and paying Central Excise duty. After analysing all these records, they issued a Show Cause Notice OR No. 54/99- Adjn. dated 10.04.2000 demanding the following duty from VCL.

It was also proposed to impose penalties on the other appellants.

3. The period of dispute in this case was March, 1997 to June, 1998. The appellants submitted their replies to the adjudicating authority and sought cross-examination of some persons. After following due process, but without allowing cross-examination, the OIO No. 04/2002 dated 25.01.2002 was passed confirming the demand of duty with equal amount of penalty, interest as well as penalties under Rule 173Q upon M/s VCL and personal penalty of ₹ 50,000/- under Rule 209A on the Managing Director, Shri CH. Krishna Murthy, a penalty under Rule 209A of ₹ 10,000/- on Shri M.V. Murali Krishna, Marketing Manager and penalty of ₹ 2,000/- on Shri M.V. Ramana Murthy, Central Excise Incharge of M/s VCL.

4. Aggrieved by the order, the appellants appealed to the Tribunal who, vide Final Order No. 961-963/2002 dated 24.07.2002, remanded the matter to the adjudicating authority directing him to allow cross-examination as sought by the appellants.

The department’s appeal to the Hon’ble High Court against this order of the Tribunal was dismissed on 07.07.2003. On 31.07.2006, the cross-examination of Shri Krishnaiah, Shri Ramana Murthy, Shri Vinay Mehta, Shri Krishna R Latwade and Shri Surender Jhawar were allowed. The appellants also gave written submissions to the adjudicating authority on 24.08.2006. Thereafter the adjudicating authority vide the impugned Order-in-Original No. 18/2006 dated 24.08.2006:

a) Confirmed the demand of ₹ 21,91,131/- under section 11A upon M/s VCL along with interest under section 11AB.

b) Imposed a penalty equal to the amount of duty under section 11AC upon M/s VCL.

c) Imposed penalty of ₹ 10,00,000/- under Rule 173Q upon M/s VCL.

d) Imposed penalty of ₹ 1,00,000/- under Rule 209A on Shri CH. Krishna Murthy, Managing Director of M/s VCL.

e) Imposed penalty of ₹ 10,000/- on Shri Murali Krishna, Marketing Manager of M/s VCL.

f) Imposed penalty of ₹ 5,000/- on Shri M.V. Ramana Murthy, Central Excise Incharge of M/s VCL.

5. Aggrieved by this impugned order the present appeals have been filed by M/s VCL, Shri M.V. Ramana Murthy and Shri CH. Krishna Murthy. Learned Consultant for the appellants takes the bench through the chronology of events and summary of demands raised. He submits that the SCN has raised a demand of ₹ 28,567/- on shortage of SBML found during the stock taking as recorded in the panchanama. He submits that the remaining amount of the demand is based on the analysis of various documents which have been summarized in Annexures A to E attached to the SCN. These are as follows.

1) Annexure-A - the details of SBML cleared in excess over the invoice quantities during the years 1997-98 and 1998-99. The total amount of differential duty demanded on this differential quantity was ₹ 2,16,007/-.

2) Annexure-B - the details of clearances of SB made in the guise of YSS during 1997-98 and 1998-99. The differential duty demanded on this count is ₹ 3,87,351/-.

3) Annexure-C - the details of the BCS cleared without payment of duty and without any bill. The differential duty demanded on this head is ₹ 1,36,750/-.

4) Annexure-D - details of actual production of SB, SBML and YSS as per the recovered notebook during the period 01.06.1998 to 15.06.1998. The differential quantity, the value and the duty on this count were as follows.

DETAILS OF DIFFERENTIAL QUANTITIES BETWEEN NOTE BOOK AND RG-1
5) Annexure-E is the details of actual production of SB & YSS as per the labour contractor reports. He submits that on this count the demand was raised on the difference between RG-1 quantities and quantities indicated as produced in the labour contractor reports. However, the actual amount of differential duty on this count has not been indicated in the Annexure-E. However, the learned Commissioner in the impugned order calculated this duty as ₹ 12,69,832/- and confirmed the demand accordingly.

6. Learned counsel fairly submits that the demands were raised based on the investigation conducted by the department and various notes and other records recovered from the factory by the departmental officers. These have been collated into five annexures to the SCN as indicated above. When questioned, the company officers have confirmed in their statements that the clearances in Annexure-A, B & C were unrecorded clearances. These statements have not been retracted by the officers of the company so far. However, as far as Annexure-D and E are concerned, he argued that Annexure-D is based on the difference between RG-1 quantity and the quantity recorded in a private note book maintained in the factory and the differential duty has been demanded. On this issue, he submits that even if it is presumed that there was excess production which was not shown in the RG-1, there is no evidence that goods so manufactured have been removed and in the absence of evidence of removal the demand does not sustain. He, further, argues that this demand of goods based on the presumption that there was excess unrecorded production, must be set off against any alleged unrecorded clearances in Annexure-A, B & C. The logic for this is simple. If there is allegation that there was unrecorded clearance of goods, such production must have come from unrecorded manufacture or recorded manufacture. If the clearance was on account of recorded manufacture, the same would have been reflected as shortage during stocktaking. If it was from unrecorded manufacture, a separate demand cannot be raised first, on the ground that there was unrecorded manufacture and second, again on the ground that unrecorded goods have been cleared. As far as Annexure-E is concerned, he would submit that this is based on note book which was maintained for the purpose of making payments to the labour contractor, Shri Ganga for the services rendered by him. The signature of Shri Ganga was not there and during cross-examination it was confirmed that he was an uneducated and cannot read or write. The authenticity of this annexure has not been established by the department. Further, the alleged clandestinely manufactured products must also be set off against the alleged clandestinely removed goods and there cannot be a charge of duty twice – first on the manufacture and again on its removal. He would, therefore, urge that as far as Annexure-E is concerned, they do not subscribe to the authenticity of the records and the department has not been able to establish the same. In view of the above, he pleads that their appeals must be allowed and the impugned order may be set aside.

7. Learned departmental representative reiterates the findings of the OIO. He submits that the assesses were allowed an opportunity to cross-examine the person whose statements were referred to while passing the OIO and four persons appeared for cross-examination on 31.07.2006 and retracted the statements given by them in 1998. The persons are (a) Shri Surender Jhawar, Proprietor of M/s Piyush Chemicals Ltd, (b) Shri Vinay Mehta, Proprietor of M/s Delight Enterprises, (3) Shri Krishna R

Latwade, Partner of M/s Krishna Chemicals and (4) Shri K. Krishnaiah, Managing Partner of M/s Kalyani Chemicals Ltd. During the entire intervening period of eight years, these persons never approached the department or retracted their statements. All these four persons are the alleged recipients of the clandestinely removed goods. The incriminating documents were recovered from the factory on 16.06.1998 under a Panchanama and hence the entries made therein must be considered as substantial evidence and the case is built up based on the differences noticed in these documents and statutory documents such as RG-1 returns and invoices. Further, the Chartered Engineer's report submitted by the appellant was also considered by the adjudicating authority and a detailed perusal of the said report was made in Para 7.5 of the OIO. The efficiency of the plant at 92.5% was also taken into consideration while arriving at the different products manufactured by the assessee. Even after taking the Chartered Engineer's certificate into account, there were still differences between the production particulars and the records in RG-1 which could not be explained by the assessee and hence the demands were confirmed. He would submit that production figures were reckoned by taking the molecular weights of the raw materials and final products through stoichiometric calculations. These calculations show what should be the production based on pure chemical equations. The actual production would be less depending upon the efficiency of the plant which factory has been brought out by the Chartered Engineer whose certificate was produced by the appellants themselves. Accordingly, the difference in production was worked out and the duty has been demanded and penalties have been imposed.

8. I have considered the arguments on both sides and perused the records. The SCN lists out the framework for raising the demand and imposing penalties. I do not find from the SCN any reliance on stoichiometric calculations or on the Chartered Engineer's certificate. In this regard, I reproduce Para 13 of the SCN which reads as follows.

"13. Reliance for issue of this notice is based on the following documents,-

i. Panchanama dt.16.6.98 drawn at the factory premises of the assessee.

ii. Panchanama dt.16.6.98 drawn at the Regd./Admn office premises of the assessee.

iii. Statement dated 16.6.98 of Shri E.V. Koteswar Rao, Chemist.

v. Statements of Shri M.V. Murali Krishna, Marketing Manager given on 17.6.98, 4.8.98, 12.8.98, 22.8.98, 23.9.98, 26.9.98 & 11.12.98.

viii. Statement dated 18.8.98 of Shri K. Krishnaiah, Managing Partner, M/s Kalyani Chemicals, Hyderabad.

xiv. Statement dated 26.12.98 of Shri Krishna R Latwade, Partner, M/s Krishna xvi. Statement dated 30.11.98 of Shri R.K. Mittal, Partner, M/s United Chemplast, New Delhi.

xix. A Notebook recovered vide Sl.No.5 of the Panchanama dt.16.6.98 drawn at the factory premises.

xxi. Files recovered vide Sl.No. 4, 8 & 10 of the Annexure to the Panchanama dt.16.6.98 drawn at the Regd./Admn. Office, M/s Vishnu Chemicals Pvt Ltd, Hyderabad.

xxii. Made up file recovered vide Sl.No.6 of the Annexure to the Panchanama dt.16.6.98 drawn at the factory premises.

xxiii. RG-1 registers for the period 1196-97, 1997-98 & 1198-99.

xxiv. Invoices raised during the relevant period.”

9. As can be seen, the demand was raised based on the Panchanama, statements and the private records seized from the premises of the appellant as well as statements of the alleged buyers of the clandestinely removed products. All these have been summarized into Annexures-A to E enclosed to the SCN giving cross reference to Pg.Nos., File Nos. and Note book Nos., etc. As far as Annexure-A, B & C are concerned, learned counsel for the appellants fairly submits that these have been agreed to by the officers of the company in their statements and which have not been retracted so far. These are as follows.

a) Annexure-A: Details of Sodium Bichromate Mother Liquor cleared in excess over the invoice quantities during the years 1997-98 & 1998-99.

b) Annexure-B: Details of clearances of Sodium Bichromate made in the guise of Yellow Sodium Sulphate by M/s. Vishnu Chemicals Pvt Ltd during the year 1997-98 & 1998-99.

c) Annexure-C: Details of Sodium Bichromate and Basic Chromium Sulphate cleared without payment of duty and without any bill.

10. All these pertain to alleged clandestine clearances of goods. As far as Annexure-D is concerned, he fairly submits that the notebook in this case was also seized from the premises of the factory and the differential duty was worked out. However, he submits that differential duty worked out as per this annexure alleging that there was excess unrecorded production which must be set off against demand of alleged excess unrecorded clearance as in Annexure-A, B & C. As far as Annexure-E is concerned, he submits that this was a notebook meant for payment to the labour contractor and it cannot form a sound basis for alleging that there was clandestine production and clandestine clearance of the goods. Therefore, the demand on this account is not sustainable.

11. This is a case of alleged clandestine removal of goods. Therefore, it is unthinkable that there will be official records of the clandestine manufacture and clandestine clearance. If these were recorded, they will no longer be clandestine. By their very nature, unrecorded production and clearance of goods can only be found based on evidence gathered during investigation such as stock taking, private records, private statements of persons concerned, their examination and cross-examination which will lead to conclusion whether there was a clandestine removal of goods and if so, to what extent. Private notebooks seized from the factory under panchanama during the course of investigation and their analysis, as supported by the statements of various persons in the factory, form a fairly sound basis for demanding duty on such clearance. These statements can be supported by the statements of alleged recipients of the clandestinely removed goods. Such statements were recorded in this case. After a gap of eight years, during cross-examination, four of them have retracted their statements. However, this can, at best, be said to be an afterthought. Any person who makes statement under duress or coercion will, at the earliest opportunity, retract the statement so made. The conduct of these persons does not instil confidence that they have not voluntarily given the statements. Nevertheless, even if the statements of the alleged recipients are ignored, as far as Annexure-A, B & C are concerned, the statements of the factory employees themselves also support the evidence of clandestine removal of the goods. Therefore, the demand to that extent needs to be sustained.

12. As far as the alleged clandestine production of goods is concerned, this is listed in Annexure-D and E of the SCN. Annexure-D deals with the differential production arrived at from the differences between the RG-1 and the private notebooks also seized from the factory of the manufacturer. Learned Counsel for the appellants submits that if this production is considered then the demand on this account needs to be set off against the alleged clandestine removal as listed in Annexure-A, B & C. I find considerable force in this argument. Even if the assessee is clandestinely manufacturing and removing the goods without accounting for the same in their Central Excise returns and registers, duty cannot be demanded first alleging that they have clandestinely manufactured the goods and again alleging that they have clandestinely removed the same. In fact, I find in the initial order of the adjudicating authority in 2002 that this set off was allowed and accordingly, the demand was confirmed for a much lower amount than was indicated in the SCN. In view of the above, I find that the demand raised under Annexure-D needs to be set off against demands alleging clandestine clearance for the same period under Annexure-A, B & C. As far as Annexure-E is concerned, this is based on labour contractor reports which are meant for paying amounts to the labour contractor, Shri S. Ganga. It is not clear as to who has prepared these records. Shri S. Ganga himself states to be an uneducated person and is unable to support the statement as representing the manufacture of the goods clandestinely removed during the period. Further, I find that there is no quantification of the demand in this annexure. For these reasons, I find demand in Annexure-E is not sustainable and needs to be set aside. In conclusion, the demands raised under Annexure-A, B & C to the SCN are upheld; demand under Annexure-D is upheld but the same needs to be set off against any demand on the ground of clandestine clearance in Annexure-A, B & C for the same period; demand based on the alleged clandestine production based on labour contractor reports in Annexure-E are not sustainable and are set aside; demand on shortage of SBML noticed during panchanama is upheld. Consequently, the demand of interest has to be recalculated and the penalty under section 11AC upon the appellants/assessee also needs to be recalculated. Considering the reduction in the demand, the penalty under Rule 173Q upon the assessee M/s VCL is reduced to 2,00,000/-; the personal penalty on Shri CH. Krishna Murthy, Managing Director of M/s VCL, under Rule 209A is reduced to 50,000/-; penalty on Shri M.V. Murali Krishna is reduced to 8,000/- and the penalty on Shri M.V. Ramana Murthy, Central Excise Incharge of M/s VCL is reduced to 2,000/-.

13. The appeals are remanded to original authority for the limited purpose of calculation as above. The appeal is disposed of as herein above.

CUSTOMS, EXCISE & SERVICE TAX APPELLATE TRIBUNAL

CESTAT HYDERABAD

M/S NCL INDUSTRIES LTD.

VERSUS

COMMISSIONER OF CENTRAL TAX, GUNTUR – GSTCOMMISSIONERATE

Excise Appeal No. 30419 of 2018
FINAL ORDER No. A/30910/2020
Dated: - 14 July 2020

Mr. ANIL CHOUDARY, MEMBER (JUDICIAL)
Mr. P.V. SUBBA RAO, MEMBER (TECHNICAL)
Shri G. Prahlad, Advocate for the Appellant.
Shri B. Guna Ranjan & Shri C. Mallikarjun Reddy, Superintendents for the Respondent

1. Heard both sides and perused the records.

2. The present appeal has been filed by the appellant against Order-in-Appeal No. GUN-EXCUS-000- APP-175-17-18, dated 31.01.2018.

3. After hearing both sides and perusing the records, we find that the short issue to be decided is in a case where goods (cement) is sold by the assessee to their customers on FOR destination basis, if the appellant can claim CENVAT credit on the outward transportation of goods from their premises to the buyers premises or otherwise. It is the case of the appellant that when they sell goods on FOR (buyer’s premises) basis, the “place of removal” shifts to the buyer’s premises as held by the Hon’ble Apex Court in the case of Roofit Industries [2015 (319) ELT 221 (SC)] as the sale takes place only at the buyer’s premises. Therefore, they are entitled to the benefit of the CENVAT credit on the outward transportation of goods up to the buyer’s premises. It is the case of the Revenue that the buyers’ premises can never be the place of removal as has been decided by the Hon’ble Apex Court in the case of Ispat Industries [2015 (324) ELT 670 (SC)]. Therefore, no CENVAT credit is admissible on the outward transportation of goods from the assessee’s premises to the buyer’s premises even though the sale of goods is on FORdestination basis.

4. We find that an identical matter was before the Hon’ble Apex Court in the case of CCE and ST Vs Ultra Tech Cement [2018 (9) GSTL 337 (SC)]. It has been decided by the Hon’ble Apex Court that no CENVAT credit is admissible for transport of goods by the assessee to the buyer’s premises.

5. Briefly, the appellant is a manufacturer of cement and also avails the benefit of CENVAT credit under CENVAT Credit Rules, 2004. CENVAT credit is available on the inputs and input services which are used in the manufacture of the product. Rule 2(l) of CENVAT Credit Rules, 2004 defines input service and it was amended w.e.f. 11.03.2008 as follows:

(l)”input service” means any service, -

(i) used by a provider of taxable service for providing an output service; or

(ii) used by the manufacturer, whether directly or indirectly, in or in relation to the manufacture of final products and clearance of final products up to the place of removal, and includes services used in relation to setting up, modernization, renovation or repairs of a factory, premises of the provider of output service or an office relating to such factory or premises, advertisement or sales promotion, market research, storage up to the place of removal, procurement of inputs, activities relating to business, such as accounting, auditing, financing, recruitment and quality control, coaching and training, computer networking, credit rating, share registry and security, inward transportation of inputs or capital goods and outward transportation up to the place of removal;

Prior to 01.03.2008 the words used in this definition were “outward transportation from the place of removal”. Thus, up to 01.03.2008 all assesses were entitled to claim CENVAT credit on outward transportation of goods. After 01.03.2008 they were entitled to claim benefit of CENVAT credit only on goods transport agency service up to the place of removal and not beyond. The term “place of removal” is defined in Section 4 of Central Excise Act, 1944 as follows:

(c) “place of removal” means:

(i) a factory or any other place or premises of production or manufacture of the excisable goods;

(ii) a warehouse or any other place on premises wherein the excisable goods have been permitted to be deposited without payment of duty;

(iii) a depot, premises of a consignment agent or any other place or premises from where the excisable goods are to be sold after their clearance from the factory;

The same definition was introduced in CENVAT Credit Rules post 11.07.2014. The appellant’s appeal is on the following grounds:

a) Service on outward transportation used by the appellant qualifies as input service in terms of the definition of input service

b) The value of services of outward transportation is included in the value of excisable goods and thus not allowing CENVAT credit thereon would be against the scheme of the CENVAT credit. The “includes” part of the definition of the input service cannot restrict the “means” part of the definition

c) CENVAT credit on outward transportation services is admissible as the sale is on FOR basis.

6. We find that this issue is no longer Res integra. It has been settled by the Hon’ble Apex Court in the case of Ultra Tech Cement (supra) and the issues were identical. In that case, the original adjudicating authority namely the Assistant Commissioner had denied the benefit of CENVAT credit on the outward transportation of the goods from the factory to the buyer’s premises when the sale was on FOR destination basis. The assessee challenged the order of the original authority and the Commissioner (Appeals), relying on the Board Circular dated 23.08.2007 has held that the appellant is entitled to the benefit of CENVAT credit on the outward transportation of goods up to the buyer’s premises. This order of the Commissioner (Appeals) was also upheld by the Hon’ble CESTAT, Bangalore and Hon’ble High Court of Karnataka. The approach of these courts has been held to be untenable by the Hon’ble Apex Court and it has been held that no CENVAT credit is admissible.

Paras 8, 9 and 13 of this judgment are as follows:

8. The aforesaid order of the Adjudicating Authority was upset by the Commissioner (Appeals) principally on the ground that the Board in its Circular dated August 23, 2007 had clarified the definition of ‘place of removal’ and the three conditions contained therein stood satisfied insofar as the case of the respondent is concerned, i.e. (i) regarding ownership of the goods till the delivery of the goods at the purchaser’s door step; (ii) seller bearing the risk of or loss or damage to the goods during transit to the destination and; (iii) freight charges to be integral part of the price of the goods. This approach of the Commissioner (Appeals) has been approved by the CESTAT as well as by the High Court. This was the main argument advanced by the learned counsel for the respondent supporting the judgment of the High
9. We are afraid that the aforesaid approach of the Courts below is clearly untenable for the following reasons:

13. The upshot of the aforesaid discussion would be to hold that Cenvat Credit on goods transport agency service availed for transport of goods from place of removal to buyer’s premises was not admissible to the respondent. Accordingly, this appeal is allowed, judgment of the High Court is set aside and the Order-in-Original dated August 22, 2011 of the Assessing Officer is restored.

7. We further note that after the aforesaid judgment a review petition was filed by the assessee which was disposed of by the Hon’ble Apex Court with the following words:

“Delay condoned.

The instant Review Petition is filed against the order dated 1-2-2018 whereby the aforementioned appeal was allowed.

We have carefully gone through the Review Petition and the connected papers. We find no error much less apparent in the order impugned. The Review Petition is, accordingly, dismissed.”

Thus, we find that after considering all aspects, in the original judgment, as well as in review petition, the Hon’ble Apex Court has laid down that where the goods are sold on FOR destination basis i.e., where the ownership of the goods gets transferred only at the buyer’s premises also no CENVAT credit is admissible for transportation of goods to the buyer’s premises.

8. Respectfully following the judgment of the Hon’ble Apex Court, we hold that no CENVAT credit is admissible to the appellant. Accordingly, the appeal is rejected.

(Order pronounced on 14.07.2020 in open court)
The Registry is directed to put up the appeal record before the Hon’ble President for nomination of learned third Member to consider the aforementioned questions and difference of opinion, for his opinion.

Heard both sides and perused the records. Both these appeals arise from the same impugned order and hence are being disposed of together. Appeal E/386/2012 has been filed by the assessee while appeal E/387/2012 has been filed by Shri Sama Rajasekhar, Managing Director of the assessee firm challenging personal penalty imposed upon him. The Show Cause Notice (SCN) in this case was issued on 31.10.2005 which culminated in an adjudication order by the Commissioner which, on appeal has been remanded for denovo adjudication by this bench by its earlier final order No.A/1649-1656/2009 dt.24.11.2009. Meanwhile, the assessee company has gone into liquidation and therefore the matter was argued on behalf of the company by the learned counsel for the official liquidator before us.

2. The appellant/assessee was a manufacturer of Alkyd, Phenolic and Malleic Resins (herein after referred to as “resins”) falling under Chapter heading 3907.50/3909.51 of the First Schedule to the Central Excise Tariff Act, 1985. Shri Sama Rajasekhar was the Managing Director of the appellant/assessee and is the appellant in the appeal E/387/2012. Officers of DRI conducted searches and seizures, investigated and came to the conclusion that the appellant was clearing resins in excess quantity which were being booked for transportation under fictitious bills issued in the name of M/s Kalyan Chemicals, M/s Prasad Chemicals and M/s Priya Chemicals. It was further found that the goods in such invoices were declared as Orthoxylene, MTO, Xylene, etc. During searches they found 10 barrels of chemicals at the premises of the transporter M/s SRMT Ltd issued under the cover of two bills of M/s Kalyan Chemicals, Vijayawada and the goods therein were declared as orthoxylene. Further investigation by the officers showed that the goods were indeed the resins manufactured by the appellant/assessee and were misdeclared as orthoxylene and booked in the name of M/s Kalyan Chemicals. Chemical analysis of the samples confirmed that the goods were indeed resins.

3. After completing their investigations two show cause notices were issued by the officers of the DGCEI, Chennai OR No.57/2003 dt.19.04.2004 and OR No.54/2005 dt.31.10.2005 for ₹ 1,00,000/- and ₹ 67,47,513/- respectively. These, on adjudication, culminated in an Order-in-Original passed by the Commissioner of Central Excise which on appeal was remanded to the original authority by CESTAT Bangalore by Final Order No.1397-1404/2009 and S.O. 1649-1656/2009 dt.24.11.2009. The specific direction given while remanding the matter was to provide to the appellants copies of all the relied upon documents and allow cross examination of various witnesses sought by the appellant and pass an order after following principles of natural justice.

4. In compliance of these directions, the impugned adjudication order (denovo) has been passed which is under challenge in these cases. During the denovo proceedings cross examination was conducted in respect of 12 of the 18 persons whose statements were relied upon. The list of these statements is as follows:

S.No.11 above had died and therefore, could not be cross examined, while, S.No.15 has expressed her inability to come because of her severe lower back pain. Thus only 12 of the 18 witnesses could be cross examined.

As far as the relied upon documents are concerned, it is the case of the revenue that all relied upon documents were already supplied along with the original SCN. As relied upon documents were not legible, fresh copies of all relied upon documents, except five, have been supplied to the appellant. The five documents which could not be supplied were S.No.23, 42, 44, 46 & 48 of Annexure-C to the SCN which are as follows:

"23. Made-up file No.1 with pages (odd-numbered) from 1 to 447.

"Invoice of Kalyan Chemicals, submitted by Nirma Paints, Bellary."

The reason for the inability of the department to supply these documents was that the original documents could not be traced in the office of DGCEI.

At this stage, it would be pertinent to discuss the evidentiary value of the statements made by various persons before the officers of Central Excise. Such statements are made under section 14 of the Central Excise Act and such enquiry shall be deemed to be a judicial proceeding within the meaning of section (14) and section 228 of the Indian Penal Code. The statements so made are relevant for any prosecution of offence before the Court under the Act and also before any other proceeding under the Act other than before the Court as per section 9D subject to some conditions. Section 14 & section 9D of this Act are reproduced below:
“Section 14. Power to summon persons to give evidence and produce documents in inquiries under this Act. -

(iii) Any Central Excise Officer duly empowered by the Central Government in this behalf, shall have power to summon any person whose attendance he considers necessary either to give evidence or to produce a document or any other thing in any inquiry which such officer is making for any of the purposes of this Act. A summons to produce documents or other things may be for the production of certain specified documents or things or for the production of all documents or things of a certain description in the possession or under the control of the person summoned.

(iv) All persons so summoned shall be bound to attend, either in person or by an authorised agent, as such officer may direct; and all persons so summoned shall be bound to state the truth upon any subject respecting which they are examined or make statements and to produce such documents and other things as may be required:

Provided that the exemptions under Sections 132 and 133 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 (5 of 1908) shall be applicable to requisitions for attendance under this section.

16. Every such inquiry as aforesaid shall be deemed to be a “judicial proceeding” within the meaning of Section 193 and Section 228 of the Indian Penal Code, 1860 (45 of 1860).

Section 9D. Relevancy of statements under certain circumstances.

A statement made and signed by a person before any Central Excise Officer of a Gazette rank during the course of any inquiry or proceeding under this Act shall be relevant, for the purpose of proving, in any prosecution for an offence under this Act, the truth of the facts which it contains, - when the person who made the statement is dead or cannot be found, or is incapable of giving evidence, or is kept out of the way by the adverse party, or whose presence cannot be obtained without an amount of delay or expense which, under the circumstances of the case, the Court considers unreasonable; or when the person who made the statement is examined as a witness in the case before the Court and the Court is of opinion that, having regard to the circumstances of the case, the statement should be admitted in evidence in the interests of justice.

(22) The provisions of sub-section (1) shall, so far as may be, apply in relation to any proceeding under this Act, other than a proceeding before a Court, as they apply in relation to a proceeding before a Court.”

18. It has been the practice for a long time to accept the statements made before the officers of Central Excise under section 14 as evidence in judicial/quasi-judicial proceedings without having regard to the provisions of section 9D. This matter came up before the Hon’ble High Court of Punjab & Haryana in the case of Jindal Drugs Ltd [2016 (340) ELT 67 (P & H)] and the Hon’ble High Court has held that section 9D is a mandatory provision and no statement before an officer under section 14 is relevant as evidence in any judicial/quasi-judicial proceedings unless the requirement of section 9D is fulfilled viz., the person being examined as witness and the Court being of the opinion that having regard to the circumstances of the case, the statement should be admitted as evidence in the interest of justice. Thus, if any statement is made under section 14 before an officer and the person making the statement has not been examined as witness, it cannot be admitted as evidence or used in any judicial/quasi-judicial proceedings. Para 25 of the judgment of the Hon’ble High Court is reproduced below:

“25. In the light of the above, respondent no. 2 is directed to adjudicate the Show Cause Notice issued to the writ petitioners by following the procedure contemplated by Section 9D of the Act and the law laid down by various judicial authorities in this regard, including the principles of natural justice, in the following manner:

20. In the event that the Revenue intends to rely on any of the statements, recorded under Section 14 of the Act and referred to in the Show Cause Notices issued to Ambika and Jay Ambey, it would be incumbent on the Revenue to apply to Respondent No 2 to summon the makers of the said statements, so that the Revenue would examine them in chief before the adjudicating authority, i.e. before Respondent No 2.

21. A copy of the said record of examination-in-chief, by the Revenue, of the makers of any of the statements on which the Revenue chooses to rely, would have to be made available to the assessee, i.e. to Ambika and Jay Ambey in this case.

22. Statements recorded during investigation, under Section 14 of the Act, whose makers are not examined in chief before the adjudicating authority, i.e. before Respondent No 2, would have to be eschewed from evidence, and it would not be permissible for Respondent No 2 to rely on the said evidence while adjudicating the matter. Neither, needless to say, would be open to the Revenue to rely on the said statements to support the case sought to be made out in the Show Cause Notice.

23. Once examination-in-chief, of the makers of the statements, on whom the Revenue seeks to rely in adjudication proceedings, takes place, and a copy thereof is made available to the assessee, it would be open to the assessee to seek permission to cross-examine the persons who have made the said statements, should it choose to do so. In case any such request is made by the assessee, it would be incumbent on the adjudicating authority, i.e. on Respondent No 2 to allow the said request, as it is trite and well-settled position in law that statements recorded behind the back of an assessee cannot be relied upon, in adjudication proceedings, without allowing the assessee an opportunity to test the said evidence by cross-examining the makers of the said statements. If at all authority is required for this proposition, reference may be made to the decisions of the Hon'ble Supreme Court in Arya AbhushanBhandar v U.O.I., 2002(143)ELT 25 (SC), Swadeshi Polytex v Vollector, 2000 (122) ELT 641 (SC).”

2. In the present case, only 12 out of 18 statements can be considered as these were the cases where the persons were cross examined during the proceedings before the adjudicating authority.

3. The case of the department rests on the following 6 pieces of evidence:

The representative samples drawn from barrels seized at the premises of M/s SRMT Ltd, Chennai, the transporter, by Panchnama dt.14.04.2004 and the test report indicated that the materials are resins and not orthoxylene as declared. The modus operandi adopted by the assessee in clearing the resins clandestinely in the guise of orthoxylene is therefore, held to be proven beyond doubt. When the assessee was questioned, their only explanation was they were not concerned with the seized consignment because it was not theirs.

Goods were cleared from the factory of the appellant as per the statement of Shri V. Durga Prasad, Booking clerk of M/s SRMT Ltd dt.19.08.2004. Consignment notes were being written at the place of loading i.e., factory in the name of another firm and as per the description given to them. These clearances were also maintained in the form of registers by the transport company. The ten barrels of chemical described as orthoxylene which was seized by DGCEI were booked in the name of M/s Kalyan Chemicals. This confirms the modus of misdeclaration of the nature of the goods and also of booking the consignment in the name of front companies.

In the case of Inter City Cargo Movers, Shri S.S. Abrar, Proprietor, in his statement dt.28.07.2005 said that they were clearing the material from the consignor's godown only. However, Shri Abrar has negated his own statement during the cross examination although there was no specific retraction by him before the cross examination.

Private books of accounts maintained by the employees of the appellant contained references to the consignment notes, quantities and actual quality/grade of the goods and the realisation actually done. In some cases, the books contained entries other than those transported by the above two transporters viz., M/s SRMT and M/s Inter City Cargo Movers. These entries were explained by the authors of the books in their statements under section 14 of the Central Excise Act. The two authors who made the entries were Shri V. Srinivas Mahesh, Marketing Representative of the appellant and Shri V.B.S. Durga Prasad, Sales Executive of the appellant. Shri Srinivas Mahesh was not cross examined. Shri Durga Prasad reaffirmed his original statement during the cross examination.

Corroborative evidence taken in the form of statements by the buyers as follows:

Statement dt.18.07.2005 of Shri T. Kalyana Sundaram, Managing Director of M/s Veena Paints, Madurai.

Statement dt.21.10.2003 of Shri N. Nagarajan, Proprietor, M/s Balaji Enterprises, Chennai.

Statement of Shri R. Karthick (Alias R. Daniel Karthick), Proprietor of M/s Raja Colour Tech, Chennai recorded on 03.08.2004.

Statement dt.29.08.2005 of Shri K. Nagaraj, Partner of M/s Nirma Paints & Chemicals, Bellary.

All but two of the above eight were cross examined. During the denovo proceedings when the above were cross examined, all the above purchasers have held that they purchased only resin from M/s HRPL, the appellant under proper invoices thus supporting the assessee's case. They have not, however, retracted their earlier statements made under section 14.

Evidence of sale proceeds flowing back to the appellant by way of cash/DD was discovered during investigation. The counterfoils of deposit slips pertaining to deposits of cash and cheques into savings bank account of Shri V. Srinivas Mahesh, Marketing Representative with Canara Bank were recovered. Some of the DD application counterfoils showed that DDs were obtained favouring the appellant and M/s Priya Chemicals. The amounts collected from customers in cash as well as in cheques were deposited into accounts of Shri V. Srinivas Mahesh and further the DDs were obtained against cash from the said accounts. Shri V. Srinivas Mahesh dt.21.10.2003 said that three different accounts were maintained by him as per instructions of Shri Sama Rajasekhar to avoid tracing; he had purchased DDs out of sale proceeds collected by him under different names including the name of the assessee/appellant and the DDs were sent by courier along with the covering letter; that he sent an amount of ₹ 70,00,000/- in this manner.

4. The assertion of the learned counsel for the appellant before us is that the entire case is based on assumptions and presumptions and does not hold water. The only physical evidence which the officers have collected were some barrels of Chemicals which the transporter M/s SRMT booked in the name of M/s Kalyan Chemicals and which were described as orthoxylene which on testing proved to be resin. These barrels are not related to them. All documents showed that they pertain to M/s Kalyan Chemicals. Therefore, clearance of these barrels cannot be attributed to them.
5. He would argue that although the seizure was with respect to these barrels, the case was made out to be much larger and this case was built on the basis of statements of 18 persons and several relied upon documents. Of the 18 persons, 6 were not examined/cross examined by the adjudicating authority even during the denovo proceedings and hence their statements cannot be relied upon. As far as the remaining 12 are concerned, the alleged buyers of the goods, whose statements were relied upon, have negated their statements during the cross examination and affirmed that they only purchased resin from the assessee/appellant under the cover of proper documents and made payments accordingly. Thus, their statements do not support the contention of the department that goods were cleared in the name of M/s Kalyan Chemicals, M/s Prasad Chemicals etc., describing the goods as orthoxylene, xylene etc., while the actual goods were resins manufactured by the assessee/appellant clandestinely and sold to them. The department could not also establish that the goods were indeed manufactured by the appellant/assessee. The department also could not establish that the money has flown back to the assessee. With regard to the above 6 specific pieces of evidence on which the department’s case is built up, he would argue as follows:

(g) The samples of the chemicals drawn from the seized barrels do not pertain to them as has been always maintained by them from date of seizure.

(h) The statement of Shri V. Durga Prasad, Booking clerk of M/s SRMT Ltd (transporter) was relied upon by the department to assert that the goods were indeed collected from the assessee/appellant. Shri V. Durga Prasad was not examined under section 9D or cross examined during the proceedings and therefore, his statement cannot be relied upon. Once the statement of Shri V. Durga Prasad is not relied upon, nothing survives against the assessee as far as the seized barrels are concerned.

The statement of Shri S.S. Abrar, Proprietor of M/s Inter City Cargo Movers, another transporter was relied upon by the revenue in which he said that he was collecting material from the assessee/appellant although the bills were issued in the name of M/s Kalyan Chemicals. It is true that Shri S.S. Abrar has not retracted his statement on his own. However, when he was examined/cross examined during the denovo proceedings, he negated his own statement and affirmed that he was only collecting materials from the consignor’s godown. In view of section 9D of the Central Excise Act, his statement having been negated by Shri S.S. Abrar, this evidence also does not stand.

The alleged private books of accounts maintained by employees/agents of the assessee/appellant was the fourth piece of evidence relied upon by the revenue. These were maintained by Shri V. Srinivas Mahesh, Marketing Representative, who gave his statement on 21.10.2003, 03.12.2003 & 24.12.2003. Shri V. Srinivas Mahesh was not cross examined and therefore, in terms of section 9D his statement is not relevant and cannot be considered in these proceedings. Shri V.B.S. Durga Prasad, Sales executive has stood by his earlier statement that he is an employee of the assessee/appellant and that he opened a unit in the name of M/s Prasad Chemicals on instructions of Shri S. Rajasekhar within the factory of the assessee only. The firm was run in his name from the same premises as the assessee and it does not have any independent business. Only documents are signed in the name of Prasad Chemicals. Similarly, Shri Kalyana Chakravarthy, another employee of the assessee has confirmed that Kalyan Chemicals was a unit opened in his name and he was actually only an employee of the assessee and only papers are drawn in the name of M/s Kalyan Chemicals. Both Shri Kalyana Chakravarthy and Shri V.B.S. Durga Prasad have affirmed their statements during the cross examination. Learned counsel would submit that these statements, per se, would not be sufficient to assert that M/s Kalyan Chemicals and M/s Prasad Chemicals are fictitious firms created as front for assessee. He would submit that separate VAT registrations have been obtained for each of these companies and have been filing returns also.

The statements of the buyers taken by the revenue as evidence are no longer relevant because of the buyers who have been cross examined have negated their statements made before the officers.
As far as the evidence in the forms of sale proceedings flowing back to the assessee by way of cash/DD are concerned, he would submit that these allegations are based on the statement of Shri V. Srinivas Mahesh who was not cross examined.

(iii) In view of the above, he would urge that there is no evidence, whatsoever, adduced by the revenue in the case and the entire case has been built on assumptions and presumptions. Consequently, the case needs to be dismissed and impugned order needs to be set aside and their appeal needs to be allowed with consequential relief.

(iv) Per contra, learned Departmental Representative (DR) supports the impugned order. At the outset, he would argue that in case of clandestine removal it will be impossible to have records with mathematical precision. If everything has been recorded in the books of accounts then the clearance will not be clandestine at all. Such cases must necessarily take into account various pieces of evidence which come to light during investigations such as the private records, cash flow details, statements of various persons concerned, etc. He would submit that case started on the basis of specific intelligence. The barrels of the chemicals seized at the transporter M/s SRMT Ltd was just the beginning of the case. The barrels were marked in the name of M/s Kalyan Chemicals and were said to contain orthoxylene but had the resin instead. The person who booked the consignments, Shri V. Durga Prasad, agent of M/s SRMT Ltd was questioned and he confirmed that the goods were received from the appellant’s place. Subsequent investigation showed that there were three dummy firms viz., M/s Kalyan Chemicals, M/s Prasad Chemicals and M/s Priya Chemicals while the goods were all being cleared by the assessee/appellant. The other companies were mere dummy firms. Two of these were opened in the premises of the assessee by their own employees. The so called owners of M/s Kalyan Chemicals and M/s Prasad Chemicals were actually the employees of the assessee. When examined, they have confirmed that they are only employees and they have affirmed this position during the cross examination made by the assessee's own advocate. Thus, there cannot be any doubt that these are dummy firms. The third company M/s Priya Chemicals was opened in the name of the wife of the owner of the assessee firm which was also a dummy firm.

6. Statements were also records from other transporters such as Shri S.S. Abrar of M/s Inter City Cargo Movers. Statements of the buyers of the chemicals who were mainly the paint manufacturers were also recorded. None of these people have retracted their statements. The buyers as well as Shri S.S. Abrar have negated their statements during the cross examination which was conducted after several years. The learned adjudicating authority has correctly held that such negation during cross examination without having retracted their statements made several years ago cannot be accepted and their original statements must be relied upon. Therefore, it must be held that appellant has cleared goods clandestinely in the name of three dummy firms.

7. He would further submit that not only has the clearance of goods been established but the flow back of money has also been established by producing evidence of cash deposits and DDs being made in the favour of the assessee. In view of the above, he would submit that the case is fully established and the impugned order is correct and balanced and needs to be upheld and the appeals may be rejected.

8. We have considered arguments of both sides and perused the records. At the outset, we observe that the evidentiary value of any statement made before the Central Excise officer under section 14 of Central Excise Act is subject to fulfilment of procedure under section 9D of the Act. This is a statutory provision in the Act itself and has been interpreted as such by the Hon’ble High Court of Punjab & Haryana in the case of Jindal Drugs Pvt Ltd (supra). Therefore, the statement of six persons who could not be cross examined are not relevant for the present proceedings and only the statements of 12 persons who have been cross examined are relevant. Of the persons who have been cross examined, we find that Shri Kalyana Chakravarthy and Shri V.B.S. Durga Prasad have stood their ground and affirmed their original statements made before the Central Excise officers. Shri Kalyana Chakravarthy worked as clerk/typist in the assessee’s firm and has opened another company in the name of M/s Kalyan Chemicals. He confirmed when cross examined by the assessee’s counsel that it was a dummy firm created at the behest of Shri Sama Rajasekhar, Managing Director of the appellant firm and no manufacturing activity takes place there and only papers are made in the name of M/s Kalyan Chemicals for the goods actually cleared by the assessee. Similarly, Shri V.B.S. Durga Prasad, Sales executive has also confirmed that M/s Prasad Chemicals was dummy firm opened by him at the behest of his employer Shri Sama Rajasekhar, through which only bills are raised while the actual goods are cleared by the assessee. All the buyers of the paints have however retracted their original statements and affirmed that they were buying only from assessee/appellant under the cover of proper invoices and paying for the goods.

9. Thus, we find, as far as the present case is concerned, the alleged buyers of the clandestinely removed goods have negated their own statements when cross examined before the adjudicating authority. Without such examination/cross examination before the adjudicating authority their statements are not relevant and cannot be relied upon. The learned adjudicating authority has observed that although they negated their statements, such negation is only an afterthought as they have not retracted their statements before. We find that the admissibility of the statements itself depends upon the examination/ cross examination of the person making the statement under section 9D. If the statement has been negated during such cross examination, the evidentiary value of such statement is in doubt.

Similarly, the statement of Shri S.S. Abrar, Proprietor of M/s Inter City Cargo Movers also has been negated by him during the cross examination. Thus, the evidence, as far as the transportation of the goods alleged to be clandestinely manufactured and removed as well as their sale to the prospective buyers has not been established to a reasonable degree of certainty in this case. As far as the manufacture and clearance are concerned, the alleged owners of M/s Kalyan Chemicals and M/s Prasad Chemicals have confirmed that they have set up dummy units at the behest of Shri Sama Rajasekhar, Managing Director of the assessee only to make paper entries. They have affirmed this position during the cross examination by the assessee's advocate. The assessee's advocate could not establish during the cross examination that their statements were false.

2 As far as the flow back of cash is concerned, we find that there is some evidence of the accounts being opened and cash being deposited and counterfoils of DDs present but we find it not sufficient to establish with a reasonable degree of certainty that the money has flown back to the assessee.

3 To sum up, in this factual matrix, we find as follows:

1 The fact that M/s Kalyan Chemicals and M/s Prasad Chemicals were dummy firms has been established by the revenue and it has not been countered effectively by the assessee.

2 The evidence regarding transportation of goods alleged to be clandestinely manufactured and removed and their sale to the buyers have not been established as both the transporters and the buyers have all negated their statements during cross examination before the adjudicating authority. In terms of section 9D the statements are only admissible if the persons were examined before the adjudicating authority. Thus, the evidential value of the original statement is in doubt.

3 As far as the alleged flow back of money is concerned, we do find that there is some evidence regarding cash deposits and counterfoils of DDs but we do not find this sufficient to establish a flow back of money to the assessee.

4 We are aware that the case under Central Excise Act is civil case and preponderance of probabilities is the level of evidence required and not proof beyond reasonable doubt. We are also fully conscious of the fact that in case of clandestine removals there cannot be a 100% accurate point to point correlation with mathematical precision. If such accounts are maintained then it will no longer be clandestine removal. However, in this factual matrix where the evidence is based on statements and all but two of which have, during cross examination, reneged on the original statements and thus negatived their value in terms of section 9D, we find that the revenue could not establish the case based on the preponderance of probabilities and statements which are admissible in terms of section 9D that the assessee/appellant has clandestinely removed goods without paying Central Excise duties.

5 In view of the above, we find that the impugned order needs to be set aside and we do so.
The appeals are allowed and the impugned order is set aside with consequential relief, if any. (Pronounced in the open court on ________________________)

(separate order)

(ANIL CHOUDHARY)
MEMBER (JUDICIAL)

ANIL CHOUDHARY:

I have the benefit of going through the order recorded by learned brother Shri P. V. Subba Rao, Member (Technical) but I am unable to agree with the same. I hereby record my separate order as follows:

Revenue had intelligence of evasion of duty by the appellant company and accordingly parallel search was organised in the premises of the appellant and also in the premises of some of the suppliers as well as buyers of finished goods, as well as transporters. Search was also conducted at the residential premises of employees / sales agent. From all these places incriminating documents were seized and the concerned persons admitted to the removal of excisable goods clandestinely by the appellant, which is more fully discussed in the following paragraphs.

2 The Managing Director - Shri S. Rajsekhar of M/s Harika on being confronted with the documents and statements of other connected person(s), admitted clandestine removal in his statement recorded on 22.10.2003 and also on other dates. He categorically admitted that he was clearing part of his finished goods in the name of M/s Kalyan Chemicals, a trading concern the proprietor of which was Shri N. Kalyan Chakraworty (employee). The plot where the trading premises of M/s Kalyan Chemicals was situated is owned by Managing Director Shri S. Rajsekhar. Shri N. Kalyan Chakraworty was working as a Typist in M/s Harika Resins who admitted in his statements that M/s Kalyan Chemicals has been set up at the behest of Shri S. Rajsekhar. Further, he categorically admitted that his duty included typing, correspondence, maintaining various records and other things in HRPL. He also looked after the work of M/s Priya Chemicals, the other firm owned by Mrs. M. Varalaxmi w/o Shri S. Rajsekhar, the Managing Director. He further admitted that he has signed various documents like bank account opening forms, cheque books, bills, sales tax registration application, etc. etc. on the instruction of Shri S. Rajsekhar. He did not know the details of the business and was signing on the dotted line, as being instructed by Shri S. Rajsekhar. He categorically stated that he has nothing to do with the amount deposited in the bank account No. 1142 and 1248 with Global Trust Bank, Vijayawada. He also stated that the cheque book and passbooks were kept with Shri S. Rajsekhar only. He also identified various bills issued in the name of M/s Kalyan Chemical and corresponding slips written by him at the instruction of Shri S. Rajsekhar. He also categorically stated that the bills of M/s Kalyan Chemicals were used to cover the finished goods clandestinely removed by M/s HRPL to various customers. Such bills were prepared, showing the bills for sale of orthoxylene, M.T.O. or castor oil etc., which are actually the raw material for manufacture of resin. He further stated that the purchasers made payment of the actual value, as per the slips annexed to the bills, either by cash or demand draft through the employees/ agent of M/s HRPL situated at Chennai or were deposited in the account held in Global Trust Bank in his name or in the name of other employees. On being questioned by Revenue as to the non accountal of the sale transaction, despatched through the transporter SRMT or ICCM in his books, he replied that sale bills and sale tax return of M/s Kalyan Chemicals were also prepared as per the instruction of Shri S. Rajsekhar and he did not know any details, etc. Further, purchase invoices in the name of M/s Kalyan Chemicals were also arranged by Shri S. Rajsekhar. He also stated that he has done all these activities on the instruction of his employer - Shri S. Rajsekhar to save his job, without any other consideration.

3 Shri Kalyan Chakraworty was cross examined on 08.12.2010, and he stood by his earlier statement given during investigation. He also filed written submission being reply to the show cause notice, wherein he also reiterated the facts as aforementioned and affirmed his statement.

4. Further, ten barrels of goods described as orthozylene were seized by the Revenue from the godown of transporter – SRMT at Chennai, consignor - M/s Kalyan Chemicals. On the test being done of the samples drawn, the goods were found to be ‘resin’ and not ‘orthozylene’. M/s Kalyan Chemicals has not purchased resin nor have the manufacturing facility to manufacture resin. Thus, evidently the ten barrels of resin were despatched clandestinely by M/s HRPL, in the name of M/s Kalyan Chemicals misdeclared as orthozylene to evade payment of duty.

8. Similarly, appellant has created another proprietorship concern in the name of style of M/s Prasad Chemicals, Prop. Shri C.S. Durga Prasad, an employee – Accountant, working for HRPL and M/s Priya Chemicals. Under similar modus operandi finished goods of M/s HRPL has been cleared through M/s Prasad Chemicals.

9. Further, from the documents seized, simultaneous despatch on the same date was found to the same buyer, wherein some part of despatch was accounted as despatch by M/s HRPL and some despatch was shown in the name of either M/s Kalyan Chemicals or M/s Prasad Chemicals under misdeclaration. Even the LR nos. was found to be consecutive. Further, the transporters have also affirmed that they were lifting the goods from the premises of M/s HRPL, partly consigned by M/s HRPL and partly (purportedly) consigned by M/s Kalyan Chemicals or M/s Prasad Chemicals. The transporters categorically stated that they had ignored the anomaly in view of their business interest.

10. Shri Durga Prasad, agent of M/s SRMT, Vijayawada (transporter), in his statement dated 19.08.2004 stated that they used to go with lorry for pick up to the premises of M/s HRPL for booking of resin barrels. He used to deal with Shri S. Rajsekhar for getting the transport orders for M/s HRPL and its sister concern M/s Priya Chemicals. On being questioned as to the booking made by them in the name of M/s Kalyan Chemicals he stated that he did not know where M/s Kalyan Chemicals were actually located or to whom it belongs. He categorically stated that the bills in the name of M/s Kalyan Chemicals were actually for covering the barrels which were loaded at M/s HRPL factory, as required by Shri S. Rajsekhar. He also stated that the staff of M/s HRPL used to give the bills in the name of M/s Kalyan Chemicals also, which were signed by M. Kalyan Chakravorty, a Clerk of HRPL.

11. Usually the number of barrels despatched by HRPL, which were loaded at the same time from its factory, were split by issue of separate invoices by HRPL and M/s Kalyan or M/s Prasad Chemicals. As per instructions, he took two or more sets of LRs for booking. Such LRs usually had continuous or consecutive sl. Numbers. He further pointed out that the LR numbers were available on the bills and the LRs were prepared by him, both for M/s HRPL and M/s Kalyan Chemicals. He also identified and explained the contents of the ‘outward register’ maintained by M/s SRMT and identified the pages /entries made by him and other staff. On being queried as to the name of M/s Prasad Chemicals, appearing in the outward register of M/s SRMT (till June, 2001), Shri Durga Prasad explained that prior to giving bills of M/s Kalyan Chemicals, M/s HRPL use to give the bills under the name of M/s Prasad Chemicals in the same/ similar manner as in the name of M/s Kalyan Chemicals. He also stated that the address of M/s Prasad Chemicals is indicated as Kabela area, Vijayawada, but the goods were actually loaded and booked for transport at M/s HRPL factory only.

The aforementioned facts are further corroborated from letter dated 15.10.2003 written by M/s Kalyan Chemicals on its letterhead to M/s SRMT, with regard to claim for damage of goods suffered during transit. As per the letter, the consignments were booked in the name of M/s Kalyan Chemicals vide LR Nos. 1218202 and 1218203 both dated 04.09.2003 and consigned to parties at Chennai were stated to be paints/resin and the value of damaged or leaked quantity was required to be settled @ ₹ 49/- per kg. Further, as evident from M/s SRMT booking register and also from the copy of LR, these two consignments were originally booked by describing the goods as orthozylene with value at ₹ 10/- per kg. Thus, this fact also corroborates the clandestine despatch of resin (finished goods) by M/s HRPL by resorting to misdeclaration and under the invoice of M/s Kalyan Chemicals.
2 Similar dispatches in the name of M/s Kalyan Chemicals was also found through another transporter

Inter cities Cargo Movers, Vijayawada (ICCM in short). From the consignment notes found and recovered from the premises of ICCM, it was found that these bookings under the name of M/s Kalyan Chemicals were made from May, 2003 onwards while in the earlier period certain booking of M/s HRPL were available. Evidently in the consignment note No. 8114 dated 01.05.2003 pertaining to the first booking in the name of M/s Kalyan Chemicals by ICCM, the consignor name column was written as ‘M/s Kalyan Chemicals, Vijayawada c/o Harika’. The goods were usually indicated as ‘alkyd resin’ and the values reflected in the LR was about ₹ 10/- per kg.

9. The Proprietor of ICCM Shri S.S. Abrar in his statement dated 28.07.2005 stated that they were transporting for M/s HRPL being resin in barrels to Chennai through railway. He further stated - regarding consignments of M/s Kalyan Chemicals, these were also brought by the staff of M/s HRPL for transport to Chennai. Shri Abrar identified LRs and they were indicative of M/s Harika in the consignor name, was written to identify the party in case of any need. He reiterated that the barrels covered under the bills of M/s Kalyan Chemicals were brought by M/s HRPL staff only.

10. Revenue also searched Room No. 20 at Shivkasi Nadar Mansion at Chennai which was taken on rent by Shri V. B. Durga Prasad, Sales Executive of M/s HRPL who looked after the sales, collection of sales proceeds by visit to the outstation customer(s) at Chennai and other places. Certain documents were found and recovered which included ‘Executive Diary -2003’ containing handwritten entries. The entries contained details of payment receipt/ collection from different parties, party name, outstanding balance and noting etc. Diary appears to be maintained in regular course of business showing particulars of (a) party name/ short name (b) a multi digit Sl. No. followed by (c) an encircled number (d) coded description of goods, (e) quantity in number of barrels and weight per barrel, and (f) rates/ price per kg. On verification, the aforementioned particulars at (a) to (e) were found to match with the details of consignee name, LR No., the quantity in barrels and total weight respectively of the consignment booked for transport from Vijayawada in the name of M/s Kalyan Chemicals also corroborated with record of the transporter. The dates of entry in the diary by and large correlated to the date on which the consignments were booked for transport at Vijayawada (as per the transporter records), or were either of immediately preceding or following dates. While the description and value as per the available transport record of the consignment were those of orthoxylene / zylene /MTO etc. having value approximately ₹ 10/- per kg., the particulars denoted at Sl. No. (d) and (f) as mentioned above pertain to the actual description of the goods as resin of different variety as indicated in short or code form, as RML, RMD, etc. having value/ price in the range of ₹ 50 per kg.

The following representative examples found in the Diary would illustrate the above deductions:-

2 In page of the date of 24th March, 2003 – two handwritten entries read as follows:

8. Raja Paints (C), 5 RMD >951413 – 5- RMD 5 x 190 @ 49 – PAID

9. Bhagwan Paints (C), 951414 – 5 RMD – 5 x 190 @ 49 – PAID

The above date (24 march, 2003), party-names and the numbers 951413 and 951414 were correlatable to the date, consignee –names and LR Numbers in the SRMT’s booking Registers, pertaining to the consignments booked under the name ‘Kalyan Chemicals’, consisting of 5 barrels in each consignment, which also tallied with the quantity indicted in the entry as above. The indication ‘C’ was apparently a reference to ‘Chennai’, where the party was located as also used in other instances. However, for booking the transport, the goods were declared as ‘Orthoxylene’ with the price at ₹ 10/- per kg., while in actuality, the goods were Resin i.e., RMD (Rosinated Medium DCO (Dehydrated Castor Oil-based) Alkyd Resin of value at ₹ 49/- per kg., as depicted in the above entry.
21. Similarly, in the page dated 17th March, 2003 of the said Diary, the following handwritten entry was available:

Vivek, Erode - 951202 -10

RMD (LAV) - 9@ 48
MM - 1@ 50

These particulars were correlatable to a consignment booked under LR No. 951202 of SRMT, Vijayawada, the consignor – name being Kalyan Chemicals, of 10 barrels declared to be containing ‘Orthoxylene’. However, as the above entry shows, the goods actually consisted of 9 barrels of Alkyd Resins indicated as RMD-LAV plus one barrel consisting of Malleic Resin denoted as ‘MM’ beneath these entries and the total value was arrived at as ₹ 91,580/- against which the payment of ₹ 49,580/- was deducted and the balance indicated as ₹ 42,000/- (which was also indicated as subsequently paid on 04.06.03). The details of payment of ₹ 49,580/- were also written with details of the Demand Draft number and date, etc.

24. Thus, the aforementioned Executive Diary - 2003 was found to be a privately maintained record, showing the actual description and value of resin that were supplied to various parties under the fictitious bills of M/s Kalyan Chemicals during the period from January, 2003 to October, 2003. Further, in respect of various consignments/party, the datewise detail of payment receipt were also found available in this diary, and the noting ‘PAID’ was written against the specific consignment wise entries. This diary contained despatches made both in the name of M/s Kalyan Chemicals as well as M/s HRPL. It was also found that certain despatches by M/s HRPL purportedly as trading despatches, example - vide invoice No. T-364 dated 18.01.2003 showing sale of MTO 950 kg. in five barrels @ 16.70 per ltr., valued ₹ 16,500/- booked to M/s Durga Coating, Bangalore through SRMT vide LR No. 767607. This transaction in the said diary was recorded on dated 18.01.2003 as – Durga Coating LR No. 767607 (5) and RMD @ ₹ 45/-. Similarly other trading invoices of M/s HRPL for purportedly sale of MTO were correlatable to the entries in the diary wherein the actual description and value recorded shows the goods were actually resin.

25. Further, small diaries ‘Dolphin’, ‘Vajawat’ ledgers were recovered vide Mahazar Sl. No. 2 and 3 maintained as pocket ledger containing partywise account for the period January, 2003 onwards. Such parties accounts were maintained containing name or short name of the party such as ‘Master’ for ‘Master Paints, Chennai’, ‘Archana’ for ‘Archana Colour coatings, Chennai’ etc.. Each such account contained datewise particulars and amounts posted accordingly as debit and credit and also the balance after each transaction/ entry. The particulars of debit included description of the goods i.e. resin –RML/RMD /RDCO/ Soya etc. followed by a number in brackets such as (2) or (5) etc. The particulars of credit amount were indicated as ‘by chq’ or ‘cash’ also with cheque /DD number. On verification the date and particulars pertaining to the debit in the party’s account, matched with the date, description and the party name as recorded in the Executive Diary-2003. While the number in bracket match with the quantity in terms of number of barrels, and these were further correlatable to the particulars of the consignment transported through SRMT or ICCM. Most of the entries in the private ledger /diary were correlatable to the consignment transported through SRMT or ICCM in terms of date, party name, quantity and also the actual description of the consignment transported under the bill of M/s Kalyan Chemicals. The amounts written in partywise account in the private ledger were found to be expressed in code, as was evident from comparison with the value arrived at from the entries in the Executive Diary-2003 (i.e. rate per kg. and total quantity in kgs.). For example, the figures 389.50 were written in ledger to denote ₹ 38,950/-. For illustration, in folio No. 30 of pocket ledger vide Mahazar Sl. No. 2 pertaining to the party ‘BHARANI’, such entry dated 09.06.2003 is RMD 5 barrels x 190 kg. - 475.00. But, in page for 09.06.2003 in the Executive Diary-2003, the supply of 5 barrels of 190 kg. each of RMD @ ₹ 50/- is equal to ₹ 47,500/- supplied vide LR No. 1144296 to BHARANI was mentioned. Similarly, in folio 50 of the pocket ledger against ten barrels @ ₹ 49/- per kg. was mentioned. Thus, the debit apparently pertains to the value of supplies and credit for the payments received against the supplies.

26. The record recovered vide Mahazar Sl. No. 4 was a small notebook containing various notings including datewise details of expenses apparently incurred by Shri V. B. Durga Prasad in the course of his duty and also certain notings showing the actual description, quantity and value/ rate of certain consignments, which was on verification, pertained to those cleared under the bills of M/s Kalyan Chemicals.

26. Further, various loose sheet slips including computer printed partywise account – statement of M/s HRPL, letters/ correspondence of M/s HRPL, M/s Priya Chemicals etc. were found and recovered and placed in a file at Sl. No. 5 in the Mahazar. The following documents in the said file were found to be of significance:-

29. Pages 19, 25 to 31, 145, 381 to 385 of the said file Sl. No. 5 consisting of the LRs of SRMT/ ICCM pertaining to consignments booked under the name Kalyan Chemicals to various parties at Chennai, bills No. 1/98 of Kalyan Chemicals (corresponding to the LR dated 04.08.03 of ICCM) and No. 2/11 dated 20.08.03 and a letter on the letterhead of Kalyan Chemicals dated 04.08.03, addressed to Check-post authorities requesting clearance, in the absence of Way-bills. The said letter contained the signature of M. Kalyan, as proprietor of 'Kalyan Chemicals'. The said name and signature were identical to those appearing in a letter on the letterhead of HRPL containing C-Form reminder dated 30.07.2003, signed by 'M. Kalyan' as Manager, HRPL, available at page 327 of the same file.

30. Pages 279 to 283, 319, 321, 323, 351, 365 & 411 of the said file Sl. No. 5 were handwritten statements (including faxcopies and originals at page 351, 411) showing the details of Resin' consignments supplied during June and July, 2003 to various parties. The particulars of each consignment in these statements include date, party-name, LR number, transport name, the actual description/ coded name of the Resin, quantity in no. of barrels, price per kg. etc. On verification, the particulars of consignments in these statements were found to be corelatable to those booked under the name of Kalyan Chemicals, wherever transported through SRMT and ICCM, except the description of goods (indicated as Xylene/ Orthoxylene, etc. in SRMT’s LRs) and the values.

31. Page 257 of the above said file Sl. No. 5 was a small slip dated 26.07.03 bearing handwritten particulars as “RMD10X190 kgs. @ 46/- to Star Paints, Chennai through SRMT (Door delivery)”, which on verification, apparently showed the actual description (and price) of the consignment booked with SRMT under the name of Kalyan Chemicals vide LR No. 1171077 to M/s Star Paints, Chennai on 26.07.03, however with goods described as ‘orthoxylene’.

32. Page 371 of the above said file consists of a handwritten statement of party-wise outstanding amounts, showing certain remarks, additions and adjustments from different parties’ amounts. The caption on the page 'Mahesh book and boss book' appeared to be self-indicative that the details pertained to a reconciliation between the amounts reflected in the privately maintained ledger of Sri V. Srinivas Mahesh, the employee of HRPL at Chennai and the amounts as per the ‘boss-book’ an obvious reference to Sri Sama Rajasekhar, M.D. of HRPL.

33. More importantly, page 299 of the above said file was a printed List of products i.e. Resins manufactured by HRPL (with the printed company name and address). In this sheet, prices were handwritten against many items and in addition notings/ remarks were written as the prices being effective from 1st August, 2002 and also that the rates are including CST. The said handwriting was identical to that appearing in the small slips (showing the actual description and price/ rates), as also the other privately maintained documents including those showing the consignment-wise details of the actual description and values corelatable to the bills of Kalyan Chemicals.

It thus appeared that the above documents pertained to and showed the actual sales of Resin by HRPL, (including those made under the bills of Kalyan Chemicals, with mis-declared description), collections made against the same from various parties and other related details, which were apparently recorded by Sri V.B. Durga Prasad in the course of his day-to-day activities as Sales Executive of HRPL. The particulars in the above pages, sheets, etc. were found to be identical or matching with the entries in the Executive Diary-2003 vide Mahazar Sl.
No. 1 and the ledgers, vide Mahazar Sl. No. 2 & 3 detailed above, and thus, the later records appeared to be maintained as a regular/ consolidated record of the transactions and basing on the entries noted down in loose sheets, slips, etc.

The aforementioned details and record were identified and explained by Shri V. B. Durga Prasad in his statement under Section 14 of the Act.

31. One Shri V. Srinivas Mahesh was the Marketing representative of the HRPL at Chennai from 1997 till about June, 2003. In the course of search at his residence, certain privately maintained account notebooks and other documents were found. These were similar to those recovered from the room of Shri V. B. Durga Prasad and discussed hereinabove relating to the period 2000-2001 to 20022003. In the pocket / small ledger notebooks recovered vide Mahazar Sl. No. 4 and 5, the accounts were maintained in the name / short name such as ‘Master’ for ‘Master Paints’, Chennai, ‘Archana’ for ‘Archana Colour Coatings’, Chennai etc. These accounts contained details of debit and credit and the balance amount after each transaction/ entry in similar fashion, as in the small diary recovered from Shri V. B. Durga Prasad. On finding the correlation between the entries in these private ledgers and the consignment booked under the name of M/s Kalyan Chemicals, M/s Prasad Chemical and M/s Priya Chemical etc. has been tabulated in Annexure D-1 to the show cause notice.

32. The other records / documents recovered from the residence of Shri V. Srinivas Mahesh include – made up file No. 1 containing various documents as party’s account – statements, correspondence, etc. pertaining to HRPL and M/s Priya Chemicals. Sheet 64 and 65 of the file consist of Bill No. 1/65 dated 20.06.2003 of M/s Kalyan Chemicals, Vijayawada showing supply of goods declared as orthoxylene ten barrels x 190 kg @ ₹ 10/- per kg. total value ₹ 19,000/- (including CST) to M/s Ranga Paints, Chennai vide LR No. 1009160 of SRMT for door delivery. Sheet 66 is the small slip, stapled to sheet No. 64 and containing handwritten details as follows:-

20.06.2003: Ranga Paints, Chennai, RML (LAV)- 10x 190 kg. @ 49/-; SRMT – Door delivery.

Thus, from the matching of the particulars and date, consignee, quantity and transporter’s name in the bill and LR with the small slip, it is apparent that the goods supplied were resins (EML-LAV denoting Resonated Medium Linseed Resin with Low Acid Value) at a price of ₹ 49/- per kg., while the corresponding bill was issued showing supply of orthoxylene @ ₹ 10/- per kg.

2 Similarly, sheet No. 57 to 62 consist of set of LR of SRMT, Vijayawada and corresponding small handwritten slip confirming supply of Resin @ ₹ 50/- or ₹ 51/- whereas as per the invoice of M/s Kalyan Chemicals and in LR the description was orthoxylene @ ₹ 10/- per kg.

Sheet No. 53 and 54 of the file consist of photocopy of various cheques received during June and July, 2003 all payable to M. Kalyan Chakrawarty. Further, counterfoils of bank deposit slips and demand draft application forms were also found as mentioned in Sl. No. 8 to the Mahazar.

34. The counterfoils of deposit slips found pertaining to deposit of cheque and cash into the saving account No. 2273, 1834 and 2034 of Shri V.S. Mahesh with Canara Bank at Chennai. The pay in slips also indicated the source of receipt mentioned on the reverse side such as ‘Master’, ‘Ranga’, ‘VKJ’ etc. pertaining to the parties to whom resin were supplied. Further, from the copy of demand draft application, it was found that these are obtained in favour of firms like Oswal Traders, Oilchem India etc. and also in the name of employees of HRPL at Vijayawada namely Shri C. Durga Prasad, Shri M. K. Chakraworty, Shri V. Durga Prasad, Shri T. Sharma, Saroj Rani etc., Copy of counterfoil at page 44 showing demand draft for ₹46,859/- was obtained on 17.01.2001 out of ₹ 47,090/- received from Sujatha Paints. The entry in the ledger book vide Mahazar Sl. No. 5 maintained by Shri V. S. Mahesh, on verification was found to be to the date, party name and amount as appearing on the bank deposit / demand draft application counterfoil. Similarly, folio No. 69 of ledger vide Mahazar Sl. No. 5 seized from V.S. Mahesh relates to Surya Chemicals containing details of receipt of cash amounting to ₹ 14,785/- on 04.04.2002. Oncomparing the same bill entry and report of Shri V.S. Mahesh dated 04.04.2002 available at sheet No. 389 and 391 of made up file seized from the room of Shri V. Durga Prasad, it is evident that ₹14,790/- was collected in cash by Shri V.S. Mahesh from Surya Chemicals on 04.04.2002.

Thus, HRPL was receiving the flowback i.e. cash/cheque for clandestine removal through Shri V.S. Mahesh, cheque received were encashed in the personal account of Shri V.S. Mahesh and further demand draft were obtained against cash or transfer from the account as narrated hereinafter.

434 Further, Shri V.S. Mahesh, the Marketing Representative of HRPL in his statement recorded with the department on various dates under Section 14 has identified the documents and admitted the same as being maintained in the normal course of business at the instance of Shri S. Rajsekhar. He further admitted that he has been employee of HRPL from 1997 till June, 2003 stationed at Chennai and his duty included contracting buyers of resin manufactured by HRPL, procuring orders, forwarding the same to HRPL, receiving the LR and collecting the sale proceeds from the buyers. Normally he communicated the orders for sale to Shri S. Rajsekhar over phone and raisin was despatched generally by door delivery through SRMT, Vijayawada. That after dispatch of resin Shri S. Rajsekhar used to send the third copy of the LR along with a chit of Kalyan Chemicals or Prasad Chemicals or Priya Chemicals. That the chit contained details of the buyers name, description of goods, quantity and actual rate at which the resin was supplied. That the set of documents i.e. LR, chit and bill was received by courier and were handed over by him to the respective buyers, who in turn issued a chit being an acknowledgement of receipt of goods and in these chits also the actual rate, quantity and total value of the goods were indicated. That on due date of payment, he contacted the buyers and collected the amount as per the chit and returned the chit issued by the buyer on receipt of the full value/amount. He also identified that sheet No. 57 and the made up file No. 1 recovered from his residence where some of the chits and LRs received from HRPL for resin supplied through SRMT. He further identified sheet No. 30 of the message received by him from HRPL informing the despatch of ten barrels of resin through ICCM to VKJ Paints, Chennai. He further affirmed that in this manner demand draft totalling about ₹70.04 lakhs were purchased by him out of sale proceeds of clandestine removal. He further identified and explained that the entry of the reverse side of pay in slips denotes from whom the sale proceeds were received and the name of such buyers and the amount realised. He further admitted that the private records were maintained as per the instruction of Shri S. Rajsekhar in order to closely monitor the outstanding amount from the various customers. Shri V. Mahesh also identified the documents recovered from the room of Shri V. Durga Prasad which were in his handwriting, such as collection – daily report, partywise account, amount etc.

iii. The department also obtained copy of account statement from Canara Bank, Chennai relating to saving account Nos. 2273, 1834 and 2034 opened and operated by Shri V. S. Mahesh. Account statement of account No. 2273 showed various deposits of relatively larger amount during the period 2001-02, also from which amounts were drawn in cash or demand draft obtained. These deposits correlated to the sale proceeds collected from the parties as per the entries in privately maintained ledger by Mahesh. The total amounts thus deposited in the bank account of Shri V. Mahesh amounted to ₹39.04 lakhs. The said practice of collecting the flow back or amount of clandestinely removed goods is also evident from the bank account in Global Trust Bank in the names of employees of HRPL, namely Shri V. B. Durga Prasad, C.S. Durga Prasad and M. Kalyan Chakravorty. The said practice is evident from the following documents found and recovered.

Page 21 of the made-up file No. 77/1, recovered from the factory of HRPL during the search on 21.10.03 was a type-written sheet/letter, unsigned, but bearing the rubber-stamp impression of HRPL. The contents of this documents were as follows: “Dear Mahesh, Today, we opened Current Account Premium at Global Trust Bank Ltd., in the name and style of M. KalyanaChakravartthy A/c No. 29011 01142. Today onwards, you deposit all the ‘without funds’ in the above account. Also we are going to close V. Durga Prasad A/c. So please do the necessary action immdtly”.

35. On requisition, Global Trust Bank, Vijayawada furnished the copies of the Account-Statements of the above said accounts alongwith copies of the Account-Opening forms and related documents. The relevant details as per these documents, are as follows:

For the above accounts, the introduction for the account opening in the name of V. Durga Prasad was given by Ch. S. Durga Prasad (who held the account operated in the immediately preceding period), while in respect of Shri M. Kalyan Chakravorthy account, the introduction was given by Sri V. Durga Prasad. The telephone numbers given (namely 414124) in the Account-Opening forms for accounts in the names of S/Sri Ch. Siva Durga Prasad and V. Durga Prasad was the factory-telephone number of HRPL. The amounts deposited into each of the above accounts, were relatable to the payment/ realisation details available in the privately maintained ledgers/ records of Shri Srinivas Mahesh and Sri V. Durga Prasad, as detailed above and also the DDs/ deposits remitted by Sri Srinivas Mahesh / Sri Durga Prasad, as evident from the documents seized from their respective residential premises. Apart from this, amounts pertaining to deposits/ remittances made at other places such as Bangalore, Trichy, Madurai, Nagapattinam etc. and also those at Chennai - Kilpauk (in the period not covered in the above records), were also found to be credited into the above accounts. The withdrawals/ debits in these accounts were broadly in the form of iv. cash/ ATM withdrawals, (ii) Demand drafts obtained payable at Mumbai, Hyderabad etc., and (iii) cheques issued in the names of different parties.

36. Shri S. Rajsekhar, the Managing Director of M/s HRPL in his statement dated 22.10.2003 inter alia admitted that the bills of M/s Kalyan Chemicals were used for covering the transport of resin clandestinely cleared by M/s HRPL. He also submitted certain records of M/s Kalyan Chemicals which included sale - bill books and other files containing purchase documents, vouchers, sales tax return, etc. On scrutiny of the records, it was observed that the sales reflected in the sale bill of M/s Kalyan Chemicals were mostly for castor oil cleared to various parties located in and around Vijayawada within the State. Thus, none of the sale/ consignment booked for transport through SRMT and ICCM were accounted for in this record. All the aforementioned records were found handwritten by Shri Kalyan Chakravorthy. Significantly, the vouchers for rent payment by M/s Kalyan Chemicals were in the signature of the rent recipient, identified as Shri S. Rajsekhar, the Managing Director of Harika. As regards similar records of M/s Prasad Chemical, Shri S. Rajsekhar vide his letter dated 10.08.2004 specified that the records of M/s Prasad Chemicals as well as those of M/s Kalyan Chemicals for the earlier period were destroyed and hence not available. Shri S. Rajsekhar further confirmed that Plot No. R.S. 409/2 which was the address of M/s Prasad Chemicals belongs to him and the address of M/s Kalyan Chemicals D. No. 25-52/1, Kabela Road was a room in a corner of the plot which was used by the Watchman who stayed there and reared cattle. He also identified and admitted the rent receipts of M/s Kalyan Chemicals as issued by him. He also affirmed that all the letters in the name of M/s Kalyan Chemicals were delivered at HRPL factory located nearby.
47. Thus, it is evident that M/s Prasad Chemicals and M/s Kalyan Chemicals were created and registered with the Sales Tax Authority in the name of employees of HRPL to clandestinely purchase raw materials for HRPL and also clandestine clearance of the finished goods of HRPL for the purpose of evading Central Excise duty and other taxes. Further, bank accounts were opened in the name of the said employees namely Shri M. Kalyan Chakraworty, V. B. Durga Prasad, C. S. Durga Prasad etc. to facilitate the receipt of flow back of money for the clandestinely cleared finished products. The transaction of large amounts reflected in these bank accounts, hereinaabove mentioned, is abnormal and unexplained in respect of status of these individuals who are the employees of M/s HRPL at meagre salary. Further, these employees in their statements have admitted that these accounts were opened and operated at the instance of Shri S. Rajsekhar.

48. Shri M. Kalyan Chakraworty - employee of M/s HRPL, in his statement dated 09.08.2004 stated that he had joined M/s HRPL sometime in the year 2000 as a Typist-cum-Clerk and his duty included typing, correspondence, maintaining various records of M/s HRPL, M/s Priya Chemicals, and some other firms belonging to Shri S. Rajsekhar. On being questioned regarding the large amounts regularly transacted in the two bank accounts with Global Trust Bank, Vijayawada, he stated that the said two accounts were opened at the instruction of Shri S. Rajsekhar and he had nothing to do with the amount deposited in or paid from the said account(s). He had signed on the account opening form and other form / enclosures and given his certificates, etc. He had also signed the cheques, withdrawal/ deposit slips as and when asked by Shri S. Rajsekhar. That the cheque books and passbooks to these accounts were kept by Shri S. Rajsekhar. He further identified various bills of M/s Kalyan Chemicals with the corresponding slips, forming part of the seized records as written and prepared by him on the instructions of Shri S. Rajsekhar. He further stated that as instructed by Shri S. Rajsekhar, he used to prepare the bills of M/s Kalyan Chemicals and these were used to cover the transport of resin manufactured by M/s HRPL to various customers showing the goods as orthozylene/ MTO/ Castor oil etc. The copy of the LR alongwith the slip showing the actual description, quantity and rate (prepared by him mostly), were sent to the party or M/s HRPL's representative. He further stated that the buyers made the payment as per the value indicated in the slip either by cash or demand draft, and further admitted that these amounts were deposited in the account held in Global Trust Bank in his name or in the name of other employees. That the demand drafts were also obtained favouring certain raw material suppliers from the said account. He also stated that all the records of M/s Kalyan Chemicals like sale bills, sales tax return etc. were also prepared as instructed by Shri S. Rajsekhar, and he did not know anything or any details. He also stated that the purchase invoices for M/s Kalyan Chemicals were also arranged by Shri S. Rajsekhar and he did not know the manner of disposal of the purchases. Further, he categorically stated that he has done all activities in the name of M/s Kalyan Chemicals on the instruction of Shri S. Rajsekhar, being the employee and have not received any additional consideration for the same.

49. Shri V. B. Durga Prasad, Sales Executive of M/s HRPL in his statement dated 09.08.2004 deposed, that in connection with his duty he used to visit Chennai and other places frequently for procuring orders and collection of payment from the customers. That the amount(s) collected were deposited in the account of M/s HRPL and also in the account of Shri M. Kalyan Chakraworty in Global Trust Bank, and sometimes the customer deposited the payments directly in the accounts as per the instructions of Shri S. Rajsekhar. He used to note down the details of despatches of resin and collection of payment. He had taken a room on rent in Shivkasi Nadar Mansion, Chennai for his stay. He also identified the Executive Diary -2003 recovered from his room at Chennai, containing the datewise details of despatch of resin from M/s HRPL for the period January, 2003 to 17.10.2003. He also explained the contents therein including the abbreviation(s) used for description of the resin, and admitted that the same was maintained by him. He also identified the small diary recovered vide sl. No. 2 as maintained by him, containing the details of resin supplied from M/s HRPL to the customers (both accounted & clandestine), and the balance of payment due from them. He also identified the other ledger book recovered vide Sl. No. 3, wherein entries were mostly written by Shri V. S. Mahesh the former Sales Executive of M/s HRPL and explained the contents therein. He also explained the contents as queried in respect of various pages in the made up File No. 5 including the details of actual description and value of resin supplied from M/s HRPL to various customers and the collections/ realisation against such supplies. He also admitted that bank account No. 29011 -01075 with Global Trust Bank, Vijayawada in his name was opened at the instance of Shri S.
Rajsekhar who operated the said account till its closure in May, 2003. The said account was used to deposit the unaccounted money realised out of the unaccounted / clandestinely sale of resin, under the bills of M/s Kalyan Chemicals. He has no personal interest in the transactions in the said account as the same was operated as per the direction of Shri S. Rajsekhar. He had signed blank cheque books and handed over the same to Shri S. Rajsekhar. He further identified and explained the documents at pages 3 and 7 in the made up File No. 6 showing details of payment(s) deposited in the account of M/s HRPL and Shri M. Kalyan Chakraworty denoted in code as – HK and KC respectively and such entries were written by him.

50. Shri C. S. Durga Prasad, Accountant of M/s HRPL in his statement dated 09.08.2004 and 29.07.2005 inter alia stated that the firms M/s Kalyan Chemicals and M/s Prasad Chemicals were created at the instance of Shri S. Rajsekhar to cover up the clandestine clearance of M/s HRPL. He was working as Accountant of M/s HRPL and also handled the work of M/s Priya Chemicals and some other firms belonging to Shri S. Rajsekhar and his relatives. He further admitted that he created the proprietorship concern M/s Prasad Chemicals at the instance of Shri S. Rajsekhar, obtained the Sales Tax registration, opened the bank account, signed the blank cheques and everything at the instance of Shri S. Rajsekhar. He has no personal interest in M/s Prasad Chemicals or in the bank account No. 29000 -18190 opened in Global Trust Bank, Vijayawada. He further affirmed that the said account was used for depositing the unaccounted amounts (flow back) from the sale of resin removed clandestinely by M/s HRPL under the invoices of M/s Prasad Chemicals or M/s Kalyan Chemicals. He also stated that he has not received any additional consideration in this matter.

51. In the course of enquiry made with M/s Oilchem India, they admitted that they have supplied raw materials to M/s HRPL as well as M/s Prasad Chemicals on receipt of payment by way of demand draft.

52. Further, the clandestine purchase of raw materials by M/s HRPL is also established from several payments made from the aforementioned bank accounts of Shri V. B. Durga Prasad and Shri M. Kalyan Chakraworty during the year 2002-2003 in the name of Shri K. Rajeshwar Rao and Shri K. Rajnikant. These payments aggregate to about ₹ 32 lakhs which were mainly credited in the name of these two persons in their bank account held with Global Trust Bank at Hyderabad. The copy of the account statement obtained by Revenue from Global Trust Bank, Hyderabad with respect to the said accounts being No. 1111011-4983 and 1111011-7088, shows receipt of money in the said accounts from the employees of M/s HRPL namely Shri V. B. Durga Prasad and Shri M. Kalyan Chakraworty. In the account opening forms of these two accounts Phone No. 24557077 appeared which belongs to ‘M/s Sandhya Trading Company’ who are brokers in oils, oilseeds etc and find mention also in certain acknowledged courier receipts available in made up File No. 77/2, recovered from the factory of M/s HRPL. In his statement recorded under Section 14, Shri K. Prabhruraj, Prop. M/s Sandhya Trading Co., on perusing the bank documents, confirmed that Shri K. Rajeshwar Rao and Shri K. Rajnikant were his two sons and the amount credited in their account in Global Trust Bank were received from M/s HRPL towards payment of supplies of castor oil, soya oil and cotton oil etc. which were arranged by him. He also stated that as per request of Shri S. Rajsekhar the supplies were arranged by him on commission, without any bills. He also confirmed that the payment for such clandestine supplies to M/s HRPL were received by him in the bankaccount of his sons, as aforementioned. He further stated that the documents of the transactions with M/s HRPL were not available with him as he has periodically destroyed on completion of the transaction.

53. Further, several buyers of the clandestinely removed goods by M/s HRPL, like M/s Balaji Enterprises, Chennai through its Prop. N. Natarajan have admitted to received resin from M/s HRPL under the invoices of M/s Prasad Chemicals / M/s Priya Chemicals etc. He further stated that demand drafts were taken in the name of the firm as per the invoice and the difference amount was collected in cash by Shri S. Mahesh of M/s HRPL or deposited by his employee in the bank account in the name of Shri Kalyan Chakraworty. He also identified the entries in Diary No. 3 pertaining to the payment made by him on various dates to HRPL, including those through Shri S. Mahesh, particularly for procurement of 30 barrels during 2003 for which no bills were issued and he had scored out the entries, as HRPL clandestine confirmed the receipt of amount in cash. He also accepted the clandestine transactions recorded in the resumed private records vide Mahazar from V. S. Mahesh and V. B. Durga Prasad.
54. Similar confirmation was made by other buyers of clandestinely removed goods namely - M/s Sujatha Paints, Chennai through its Partner Shri M. Mohan, by M/s Vee Kay Jay Paints & Chemicals, Chennai through its prop. V. Veeraraghavan, M/s Star Paints, Chennai through its Prop. Shri R. Radhakrishnan, M/s Raja Paints, Chennai through its Prop. R. Karthikeyan etc.

55. From the aforementioned documentary facts which were revealed in the course of investigation and enquiry, I find that the statements of various persons are supported by documentary evidence. Such documentary evidence have been admitted by the concerned employees of M/s HRPL and also admitted by Shri S. Rajsekhar, the Managing Director of M/s HRPL. Both clandestine purchases of raw materials, clandestine removal of finished goods, evidence of transport, flow back of sale proceeds of the clandestinely removed goods have been established. I further hold that retraction of the statements by some of the persons at the later stage as well as non appearance of some of the witness in the adjudication proceedings, is of hardly any consequence in view of the overwhelming documentary evidence discussed hereinabove. Revenue in this matter has established the full cycle of the clandestine activity, which is normally not easy to establish. In this view of the matter, the appeals are fit to be dismissed.

56. Accordingly, I uphold the impugned order-in-original and dismiss both the appeals filed by the appellant company and its Managing Director Shri S. Rajsekhar.

DIFFERENCE OF OPINION:

In view of the difference of opinion, the following questions arise for consideration by learned third Member:-

1. There is lack of sufficient evidence, as evidence being the statement of some of the persons given in the course of investigation is not reliable, as such persons have not stood by their earlier statement at the time of cross examination or not appeared for crossexamination, as held by learned Member (Technical)

Or

The statements of the persons recorded at the time of investigation is based or co-relatable with documentary evidence. Such documentary evidence having not been denied, the denial of clandestinely removed goods in cross-examination is of no avail to the appellant and such evidence is reliable for the purpose of adjudication as held by Member (Judicial).The case of Revenue is not proved on the principle of preponderance of probability and accordingly the appeals are fit to be allowed as held by learned Member (Technical)OrIn view of the documentary evidence brought on record in the course of investigation and duly supported by oral evidence of several persons and also supported by some of the key persons involved in the transaction, including in the course of cross-examination, the allegation of Revenue is established and accordingly the appeals are fit to be dismissed as held by Member (Judicial).

The Registry is directed to put up the appeal record before the Hon’ble President for nomination of learned third Member to consider the aforementioned questions and difference of opinion, for his opinion.

FINAL ORDER NOS. A/30714-30719/2019

Per: P Venkata Subba Rao:

1. These six appeals pertain to the same issue and hence are being disposed of together. Appeal No. E/1768/2012 is filed by M/s Little Star Foods Pvt. Ltd. (hereinafter referred to Little Star) while appeal No. E/1781/2012 is filed by Mondelez India Foods Pvt. Ltd. (hereinafter referred to Mondelez) (previously called Cadbury India Limited) against the demands raised covering the period October 2009 to September 2011. The remaining appeals are for the subsequent periods. The details are as follows:

2. The issues which fall for consideration in these appeals are:

(a) whether Little Star is entitled to the benefit of exemption Notification No. 03/2006 (Sl. No. 19) for the goods "Cadbury Perk with Glucose Energy" manufactured by them on behalf of M/s Mondelez;
(b) whether the dealer's margin, RD markup and post manufacturing expenses claimed by the appellant in their price list but included in the assessable value by the original authority need to be included for determining the excise duty payable or otherwise;

(c) whether the extended period of limitation for raising the demand under section 11A can be invoked in respect of appeals No. E/1768/2012 and E/1781/2012;

(d) whether the differential duty is recoverable along with interest from the appellants and if so to what extent;

(e) whether penalties have been correctly imposed upon Little Star and

(f) whether penalties have been correctly imposed upon Mondelez.

3. The facts of the case in brief are that Little Star manufactures 'Cadbury perk with glucose energy' and supplies them to Mondelez on job work basis. The products are, thereafter, sold by Mondelez from their depots through their marketing chain. Mondelez is the brand owner of the products. The entire manufacture by Little Star is as per the specifications and directions of Mondelez in their agreement. Being the manufacturers of the products, Little Star discharges Central Excise duty. Little Star claimed the classification of their products under 1905 3290 of Central Excise tariff. The relevant entry is as follows:

4. Initially, a show cause notice dated 08.11.2011 was issued to the appellants covering the period October 2009 to September 2010 proposing to classify the product under 1905 3211 and demanding appropriate amount of differential duty. It was also proposed in that show cause notice that the product deserved to be valued under section 4A instead of Section 4 of Central Excise Act, 1944. Thereafter, another show cause was issued to the appellant covering the period October 2009 to September 2011. In this second show cause notice, the department did not contest either classification by the appellant or the fact that they are not covered by Section 4A but are covered by Section 4 for the purpose of valuation. The second show cause notice only sought to deny the exemption notification claimed by the appellant and also sought to value the goods under section 4 of Central Excise Act, 1944 as per the price list denying some exclusions claimed by the appellant. Both the show cause notices were decided by Ld. Adjudicating authority vide O-I-O No. 09/2012-Adjn. (Commr.) CE, dt. 26.03.2012. He dropped the proceedings in pursuance of the first show cause notice. Therefore, the dispute with regard to the classification and valuation under section 4A instead of under Section 4 have reached finality. The adjudicating authority has also held that their products are classifiable under chapter heading 1905 3290 and that their products are not covered under section 4A and therefore are chargeable as per valuation under section 4. The subsequent show cause notices are periodical demands which have been confirmed by the Adjudicating authority and are in challenge in these appeals.
5. Accordingly, the differential duty was demanded and confirmed along with interest by (a) denying them the benefit of exemption notification No. 3/2006 (Sl.No. 19) and (b) denying them the deduction from their price of the dealer's margin, RD mark up and post manufacturing expenses from the assessable value. Penalties have been imposed upon Little Star under section 11 AC of the Central Excise Act and on Mondelez under Rule 26 of Central Excise Rules, 2002.

6. Before examining the rival contentions made on both sides, it will be necessary to set out the relevant legal provisions.

(a) Excise duty on tobacco and other goods manufactured in India except alcoholic liquor for human consumption, opium and other narcotic drugs are included in the union list in the Constitution of India (list-1 of Seventh Schedule of the Constitution). The relevant statute for levy of these excise duties is as the Central Excise Act, 1944. Section 3 of this Act is the charging section which states "there shall be levied and collected in such a manner as may be prescribed a duty of excise to be called Central Value Added Tax on excisable goods which are produced or manufactured in India as, and at the rates, set forth in Schedule-I of the Central Excise Tariff Act .........".

(b) The term 'Excisable goods' has been defined as "goods specified in the first schedule and the second schedule to the central Excise Tariff Act as being subject to a duty of excise and includes salt" (Section 2(d) of the Act). The duty of excise is leviable either based on quantity (specific rate of duty) or value (ad valorem rate of duty) as specified in the tariff. However, in respect of the goods which are notified under section 4A of the Central Excise Act, the duty is levied based on the retail sale price with some abatement.

(c) Section 5A of Central Excise Act empowers the Central Government to grant, by notification, exemptions from the Central Excise duties. These exemptions can be either full or partial and can be either conditional or unconditional.

(d) To sum up, if any excisable goods are manufactured or produced in the country, they are chargeable to Central Excise duties at the rates set forth in the schedules to Central Excise Tariff Act, 1985, read with any exemption notifications that may apply.

(e) Where the excise duty has to be levied based on the value, the value shall be determined as per Section 4 of Central Excise Act and the Central Excise Valuation Rules.

(f) Where any duty of excise has not been levied or paid or short levied or short paid or erroneously refunded, the same can be recovered by raising a demand under Section 11A of the Act. Further, if such non-levy, short-levy, non-payment, short-payment or erroneous refund is by reason of fraud or collusion or any wilful misstatement or suppression of facts or contravention of any provision of the Act or Rules made thereunder with intent to evade payment of duty, the demand can be raised within an extended period of limitation of five years from the relevant date.

7. In these appeals, it is not in dispute that the excisable goods have been manufactured and they are leviable to Central Excise duty at the rates set forth in the Central Excise Tariff and that the valuation of these goods is covered by Section 4 read with Central Excise Valuation Rules. The initial contention of the Revenue in the first show cause notice that these goods are notified under Section 4A and hence chargeable to duty based on retail sale price, has been dropped by the Commissioner in his Order-in-Original and the decision of the Commissioner has been contested by the Revenue. Therefore, the only disputes which remain in this case are:

(i) whether the assessees are eligible for exemption notification No. 3/2006 (S.No. 19) issued under Section 5A claimed by them which is sought to be denied by the Revenue;

(ii) what value should be adopted for reckoning the Central Excise duty;

(iii) Whether extended period of limitation under Section 11A can be invoked for raising the demand and

(iv) whether penalties are imposable upon the appellants.

8. On the question of exemption notification, Ld. Counsel for the appellants submits that it is undisputed that Little Star are manufacturing "Cadbury Perk with Glucose Energy" which has been described by them as 'chocolate coated wafers for some period and subsequently as coated wafers. He produces before us a sample copy of the product, the label of which also describes the product as 'coated wafers'. He explains that in the coating, they have been using only coco powder but not coco butter and therefore the same cannot be called as chocolate coating and hence they described the product as coated wafers. The relevant entry (Sl.No. 19) in exemption notification 3/2006 reads as follows:

"EFFECTIVE RATES OF DUTY FOR GOODS OF VARIOUS CHAPTERS

GENERAL EXEMPTION No. 46

Exemption and effective rate of duty for specified goods of Chapters 1 to 24 - in exercise of the powers conferred by Sub Section (1) of Section 5A of the Central Excise Act, 1944 (1 of 1944), the Central Government, on being satisfied that it is necessary in the public interest so to do, hereby exempts excisable goods of the description specified in column (3) of the Table below and falling within the Chapter, heading or sub heading or tariff item of the First Schedule to the Central Excise Tariff Act, 1985 (5 of 1986) (hereinafter referred to as the Central Excise Tariff Act), as are given in the corresponding entry in column (2) of the said Table, from so much of the duty of excise specified thereon under the First Schedule to the Central Excise Tariff Act, as is in excess of the amount calculated at the rate specified in the corresponding entry in column (5) of the Table aforesaid.

Explanation. - for the purposes of this notification, the rates specified in column 4 of the said Table are ad valorem rates, unless otherwise specified.

9. Ld. Counsel submits that the classification of their product is not in dispute and the department has accepted the classification under chapter heading 1905 32 90 and there is no condition for availing the benefit of this exemption notification. The description of the product for which the exemption is available is ‘wafer biscuits’ whereas they described their product as chocolate coated wafers or coated wafers and therefore the Revenue sought to deny them the benefit of exemption notification. He asserts that all wafers are essentially biscuits and therefore their wafers must be considered as ‘wafer biscuits’ and they should be entitled to the benefit of exemption notification No. 03/2006. He relies on the case laws of International Foods vs. CCE, Hyderabad [1978(2)ELT (J 50) (A.P.)] and R. Sikaria vs. CCE, Hyderabad [2000(125)ELT 141 (A.P)] in which the Hon’ble High Court of Andhra Pradesh having jurisdiction over this Bench, had held that wafer is a kind of biscuit although it may be different in size and in shape and therefore the same is chargeable to Central Excise duty in terms of item (1)(c) of the erstwhile Central Excise Tariff. He would assert that the jurisdictional Hon’ble High Court has already decided that wafer is indeed a biscuit and this decision of Hon’ble High Court is binding on this Bench and therefore they cannot be denied the benefit of exemption available to wafer biscuits. He also cites the Cambridge dictionary which explains the meaning of ‘wafer’ as under:

"noun

(1) A thin, crisp cake or biscuit, often sweetened and flavoured.
(2) A thin disk of unleavened bread, used in the Eucharist, as in the Roman Catholic Church.
(3) A thin disk of dried paste, gelatin, adhesive paper, or the like, used for sealing letters, attaching papers etc.
(4) Medicine/Medical. A thin sheet of dry paste or the like, used to enclose a powder to be swallowed.
(5) Any small, thin disk, as a washer or piece of insulation."

He also cites the Oxford dictionary's meaning of 'wafer' as under:

"A thin, light, crisp biscuit, especially one of a kind eaten with ice cream.
- A thin piece of something. 'wafers of smoked salmon' Synonyms
1. A thin disc of unleavened bread used in the Eucharist."
2. Electronics A very thin slice of a semiconductor crystal used as the substrate for solid-state circuitry.

Synonyms

3. (also wafer seal) a disc of red paper stuck on a legal document as a seal.

4. historical A small disc of dried paste used for fastening letters or holding papers together.

VERB [WITH OBJECT]archaic
- Fasten or seal (a letter or document) with a wafer.

Derivatives wafery adjective.

Origin
Late Middle English from an Anglo-Norman French variant of Old French gaufre (see goffer), from Middle Low German wāfel ‘waffle’; compare with waфle. Compare with WAFFLE.”

He further cited description of “waffles and wafers” in the HSN as under:

“Waffles and wafers, which are light fine bakers’ wares baked between patterned metal plates. This category also includes thin waffle products, which may be rolled, waffles consisting of a tasty filling sandwiched between two or more layers of thin waffle pastry, and products made by extruding waffle dough through a special machine (ice cream cornets, for example). Waffles may also be chocolate-covered. Wafers are products similar to waffles.”

10. On the question of valuation, he would take us through the impugned Order-in-Original No. 09/2012-Adjn. (Commr.) CE, dt. 26.03.2012 and explain that in their case there is no transaction value because they do not sell the goods but manufacture them on job work basis. Little Star manufactures the goods on job work basis for Mondelez and supplies them directly to the depots of the latter. Mondelez, in turn, sells the goods through their marketing net work. Little Star gets their job work charges. Section 4 of the Central Excise Act reads as follows:

“Section 4 in the Central Excise Act, 1944

4. Valuation of excisable goods for purposes of charging of duty of excise.—

(1) Where under this Act, the duty of excise is chargeable on any excisable goods with reference to their value, then, on each removal of the goods, such value shall—

(a) in a case where the goods are sold by the assessee, for delivery at the time and place of the removal, the assessee and the buyer of goods are not related and the price is the sole consideration for the sale, be the transaction value;

(b) in any other case, including the case where the goods are not sold, be the value determined in such manner as may be prescribed.

Explanation.—For the removal of doubts, it is hereby declared that the pricecum-duty of the excisable goods sold by the assessee shall be the price actually paid to him for the goods sold and the money value of the additional consideration, if any, flowing directly or indirectly from the buyer to the assessee in connection with the sale of such goods, and such price-cum-duty, excluding sales tax and other taxes, if any, actually paid, shall be deemed to include the duty payable on such goods.

(2) The provisions of this section shall not apply in respect of any excisable goods for which a tariff value has been fixed under sub-section (2) of section 3.

(3) For the purposes of this section,—

(a) “assessee” means the person who is liable to pay the duty of excise under this Act and includes his agent;

(b) persons shall be deemed to be “related” if—

(i) they are inter-connected undertakings;
(ii) they are relatives;
(iii) amongst them the buyer is a relative and distributor of the assessee, or a subdistributor of such distributor; or
(iv) they are so associated that they have interest, directly or indirectly, in the business of each other. Explanation.—In this clause—
(i) "inter-connected undertakings" shall have the meaning assigned to it in clause (g) of section 2 of the Monopolies and Restrictive Trade Practices Act, 1969 (64 of 1969); and
(ii) "relative" shall have the meaning assigned to it in clause (41) of section 2 of the Companies Act, 1956 (1 of 1956);

(c) "place of removal" means —
(i) a factory or any other place or premises of production or manufacture of the excisable goods;
(ii) a warehouse or any other place on premises wherein the excisable goods have been permitted to be deposited without payment of duty;
(iii) a depot, premises of a consignment agent or any other place or premises from where the excisable goods are to be sold after their clearance from the factory; from where such goods are removed;

4[(cc) "time of removal", in respect of the excisable goods removed from the place of removal referred to in sub-clause (iii) of clause (c), shall be deemed to be the time at which such goods are cleared from the factory;
(d) "transaction value" means the price actually paid or payable for the goods, when sold, and includes in addition to the amount charged as price, any amount that the buyer is liable to pay to, or on behalf of, the assessee, by reason of, or in connection with the sale, whether payable at the time of the sale or at any other time, including, but not limited to, any amount charged for, or to make provision for, advertising or publicity, marketing and selling organization expenses, storage, outward handling, servicing, warranty, commission or any other matter; but does not include the amount of duty of excise, sales tax and other taxes, if any, actually paid or actually payable on such goods."

11. He would submit that since the goods are not sold by them, they are not covered by Section 4(1)(a) but are covered by Section 4(1)(b). The prescription mentioned in 4(1)(b) is as per the Central Excise Valuation (Determination of Price of Excisable Goods) Rules, 2000, Rule 10A of these Rules is relevant to their case which reads as follows:

“RULE 10A. Where the excisable goods are produced or manufactured by a job-worker, on behalf of a person (hereinafter referred to as principal manufacturer), then, -

i. in a case where the goods are sold by the principal manufacturer for delivery at the time of removal of goods from the factory of job-worker, where the principal manufacturer and the buyer of the goods are not related and the price is the sole consideration for the sale, the value of the excisable goods shall be the transaction value of the said goods sold by the principal manufacturer;

ii. in a case where the goods are not sold by the principal manufacturer at the time of removal of goods from the factory of the job-worker, but are transferred to some other place from where the said goods are to be sold after their clearance from the factory of job-worker and where the principal manufacturer and buyer of the goods are not related and the price is the sole consideration for the sale, the value of the excisable goods shall be the normal transaction value of such goods sold from such other place at or about the same time and, where such goods are not sold at or about the same time, at the time nearest to the time of removal of said goods from the factory of job-worker;

iii. in a case not covered under clause (i) or (ii), the provisions of foregoing rules, wherever applicable, shall mutatis mutandis apply for determination of the value of the excisable goods : Provided that the cost of transportation, if any, from the premises, wherefrom the goods are sold, to the place of delivery shall not be included in the value of excisable goods.

Explanation. - For the purposes of this rule, job-worker means a person engaged in the manufacture or production of goods on behalf of a principal manufacturer, from any inputs or goods supplied by the said principal manufacturer or by any other person authorised by him.”

12. Little Star have, indeed, paid the duty on the value at which the principal manufacturer Mondelez has sold the goods to their buyers. Since Mondelez gets such goods manufactured by a large number of firms across the country, they have a uniform method of pricing the goods which is set out in the price list prepared by them. This price list has been re-produced in the impugned Order-in-Original No. 09/2012-Adjn. (Commr.) CE, dt. 26.03.2012 at para 20.13, which is as follows:

![Price List Image]

13. The entire demand has been raised based on the figures indicated in this price list itself. As can be seen, the price list indicates the consumer end price and various margins at various levels and indicates the invoice price which is the price at which the depots sell to the distributors including taxes. If the excise duty, Cess and post manufacturing expenses are deducted from this invoice price, we get the assessable value of Rs. 78.04 for a pouch of 55 retail packs which, according to him, is the correct invoice price which is adopted by Mondelez and the same should be adopted for determining the tax liability of Little Star as well. In para 20.15 of the impugned order, Ld. Commissioner sought to include dealer margin, RD Markup and the post manufacturing expenses in the assessable value. As far as the Dealer margin is concerned, Ld. Commissioner held that the dealer is the assessee's own place of removal or otherwise, it would have been reflected as retailer margin. Ld. Counsel would submit that this conclusion is preposterous. They have dealers as well as retailers and redistributors in their chain of net work. The re-distributor who buys from the depot cannot be the same as the retailer who sells it to the consumer. There is no evidence to show that the retailer is the same as the dealer and it is extremely unlikely that in a product with a retailer price of Rs. 2/- per piece, the retailer is the one who goes to the depots of the manufacturer and buys the goods from them. Therefore, the dealer’s margin is to be excluded from the value. As far as the RD Markup is concerned, Ld. Commissioner presumed that this is an amount set aside for R&D purpose by M/s Cadbury (Mondelez) and held that the same is includable in the assessable value. Ld. Counsel for the appellant submits that there is nothing on record to show that RD Markup being the R&D expenses. In fact, RD Markup stands for re-distributor mark up. The re-distributors form part of their marketing chain and they get this margin for their service. Therefore, the same cannot be included in the assessable value. As far as the third item sought to be included in the assessable value by Ld. Commissioner is concerned, Ld. Counsel would submit that the post manufacturing expenses are actually nothing but cheque discounting charges which they paid to their banks. He would submit that the cheque discounting charges have been held by the Tribunal in their own case (Cadbury India Limited) to be admissible deduction as reported at [2015(323) ELT 606 (Tri.-Del.)]. He also produces copies of agreements which they had with their re-distributors in support of his contention that they indeed had re-distributors who were given a margin.

14. As far as the first period covering October 2009 to September 2010 is concerned, he would submit that the first show cause notice issued by the Department on 08.11.2010 and the second one on 08.11.2011 invoking the extended period of limitation under section 11A. Section 11A of Central Excise Act permits invocation of extended period only if the elements necessary for invoking the extended period namely fraud, collusion, wilful misstatement, suppression of facts or violation of the provisions of the Act or Rules with an intent to evade payment of duty are present. It is on record that all facts are presented before the department. The returns were filed periodically and honestly by them. The first show cause notice dated 08.11.2010 was issued within the normal period of limitation proposing to classify the products under different tariff heading and valued them as per Section 4A based on retail sale price. This shows that the department was fully aware of what they are doing and they have taken a particular view and issued show cause notice accordingly. Using the same information but proposing a different classification and a different method of valuation, the second show cause notice was issued invoking the extended period of limitation. This shows that there was no element necessary for invoking the extended period of limitation because all facts were known to the department before the first show cause notice was issued. Therefore, the extended period of limitation cannot, in any case, be invoked in the second show cause notice. The demand has to fail to that extent on this ground also. Ld. Counsel also produced before us copies of letters written by the assessee to the Central Excise Officers informing them about the nature of their products.

15. On the question of imposition of penalty, he would urge that the entire matter is nothing but a question of interpretation of the eligibility of exemption notification as well as the valuation. No facts were either actively suppressed or not disclosed to the department. On the question of interpretation itself, they held a consistent view but the department changed its stand. Penalty under section 11AC can be imposed where duty has not been paid or short paid or not levied or erroneously refunded or by an act of fraud, collusion, wilful mistatement, suppression of facts or contravention of any provisions of the Act or Rules with an intent to evade payment of duty. Since none of these elements are provided/established, no penalty can be imposed upon them under Section 11 AC. As far as the penalty imposed upon M/s Mondelez under Rule 26 of Central Excise Rules, 2002 is concerned, he would draw the attention of this Bench to this rule which reads as follows:

"26. Penalty for certain offences.-

[(1) Any person who acquires possession of, or is in any way concerned in transporting, removing, depositing, keeping, concealing, selling or purchasing, or in any other manner deals with, any excisable goods which he knows or has reason to believe are liable to confiscation under the Act or these rules, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding the duty on such goods or rupees [two thousand rupees, whichever is greater.]

[Provided that where any proceeding for the person liable to pay duty have been concluded under clause (a) or clause (d) of sub-section (1) of section 11AC of the Act in respect of duty, interest and penalty, all proceedings in respect of penalty against other persons, if any, in the said proceedings shall also be deemed to be concluded.]

[(2) Any person, who issues-

(i) an excise duty invoice without delivery of the goods specified therein or abets in making such invoice; or

(ii) any other document or abets in making such document, on the basis of which the user of said invoice or document is likely to take or has taken any ineligible benefit under the Act or the rules made there under like claiming of CENVAT credit under the CENVAT Credit Rules, 2004 or refund, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding the amount of such benefit or five thousand rupees, whichever is greater."

16. Ld. Counsel would submit that none of the elements necessary for invocation of Rule 26 as above have been proved or established in their case, therefore the penalty imposed on Mondelez under Rule 26 needs to be set aside. He would draw the attention of the Bench to para 23.2 of the impugned order which reads as follows:

"Regarding penalty proposed on M/s Cadbury India Limited under Rule 26, it is seen that they are the principal manufacturers of the impugned goods. The said rule stipulates that any person who acquires possession of, or is in any way concerned in transporting, removing, depositing, keeping, concealing, selling or purchasing, or in any other manner deals with, any excisable goods which he knows or has reason to believe are liable to confiscation under the Act or these rules, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding the duty on such goods or rupees [two thousand rupees, whichever is greater.] Obviously, the assessee are only job workers for CIL and act on their instructions or otherwise they would lose their livelihood. Moreover, CIL is a multi-national company having their own legal cell and are expected to possess wide knowledge of the provisions. Accordingly, it can be said that they are well aware that the impugned goods do not fall under the category of "wafer biscuits" nor they would get the benefit of deductions claimed by them. By their own admission, the goods are 'coated wafers' and that valuation is required to be done under Rule 10A, which required the depot invoices to be submitted by them to the Department and LSFPL cannot do anything about it. However, they failed to submit the same even by the date of passing of this order, which indicates that they have something to suppress in the matter. Thus, they have flaunted an irresponsible attitude of defiance and blatant non-compliance of the provisions, which they knew or believed, can lead to confiscation of the impugned goods. In this regard, their contention that they have not provided any incorrect data is not acceptable since the price list data is not the proper data to arrive at the AV as per the provisions applicable to the case on hand. Also, since they have received and distributed/sold the impugned goods, which they knew are misclassified/undervalued (by their own admissions regarding description of goods and declaration that they will follow Section 4 r/w Rule 10A and are liable for confiscation, the provisions of Rule 26 are squarely applicable in their case. As such, for the reasons discussed supra, the impugned goods are liable for confiscation (which is not being done for want of seizure of the goods) and consequently, CIL would be liable for penalty as provided under the said Rule."

17. He would assert that the only dispute is regarding the interpretation by the department as opposed to the interpretation of the appellants and therefore no penalty can be imposed under Rule 26 of Central Excise Rules, 2002.

18. Ld. DR reiterates the statements and arguments made in the impugned order. He agrees that the only two points of dispute on merit are (a) whether the appellants are entitled to the benefit of exemption notification 3/2006 (Sl.No. 19) for "Cadbury perk with glucose energy" manufactured by them and (b) whether the dealer's margin, re-distributors margin, post manufacturing expenses have to be included in the assessable value or otherwise. There is no dispute regarding the classification of the product or that it deserves to be asserted under section 4 and Rule 10A of Central Excise Valuation (Determination of Price of Excisable Goods) Rules, 2000. On the first point of availability of exemption notification, he asserts that a plain reading of the exemption notification shows that it is not available to all goods which may fall under chapter heading 1905 3290 but to only "wafer biscuits". If the intention had been to give the benefit of exemption to any goods which falls under the heading, the description of the goods in the notification would have been "all goods" similar to some other entries in the same exemption notification such as S.No. 26, 26B, 27 etc. This brings the question whether the goods which are cleared by the appellant are "wafer biscuits" or otherwise. ER-1 returns filed by the appellant that the department described the goods as 'chocolate coated wafers' (for some period) or 'coated wafers'. The invoices are also described the product so. The wrappers of the product also indicates them as coated wafer layers. It nowhere specifies that these are 'wafer biscuits'. Therefore, neither has the appellant had at any point of time described the product as 'wafer biscuits' to the department nor has the product has been so described in any of the documents. Everyone from the manufacturer down to the ultimate consumer in the market understand the disputed products as coated wafers or chocolate coated wafers and NOT as wafer biscuits. It is quite evident that when the wrapper describes them as coated wafers, the dealers, retailers and consumer will not understand them as 'wafer biscuits'. Even till date, the appellant continues to describe their product as coated wafers and not as "wafer biscuits". That leads us to the next question whether wafers are same as wafer biscuits or otherwise. Ld. Counsel for the appellant had relied on the judgment of Hon'ble High Court of Andhra Pradesh in the case of International Foods (supra) and R. Sikaria (supra). A plain reading of both these judgments show that the question as to whether 'wafers can be charged to Central duty under the category of biscuits under the erstwhile Central Excise Tariff'. Ld. DR submits that prior to 1985 (when the Central Excise tariff Act was passed), there was an old Central Excise tariff which was not based on HSN. It only had a list of items and the rates at which excise duty has to be collected. The question in both these judgments of Hon’ble High Court was whether the wafers can also be charged to central excise duty at the rates applicable to biscuits in that particular tariff. The Hon'ble High Court has held that wafers are in essence biscuits and can be so charged. The judgments were not in the context of the new Central Excise tariff which is a detailed and elaborate one nor is it in the context of interpreting the exemption notification. He further argues that exemption notifications were interpreted in a number of ways, some strictly and some liberally by various judicial fora including by the Hon'ble Apex Court. In view of the conflicting decisions, the matters were referred to the Constitutional Bench of Hon’ble Apex Court in the case of Commissioner of Customs (Import) Mumbai vs. Dilip Kumar & Company & others as reported in, in which the Hon’ble Apex Court held as follows:

"To sum up, we answer the reference holding as under:

(1) Exemption notification should be interpreted strictly; the burden of proving applicability would be on the assessee to show that his case comes within the parameters of the exemption clause or exemption notification."
(2) When there is ambiguity in exemption which is subject to strict interpretation, the benefit of such ambiguity cannot be claimed by the subject/assessee and it must be interpreted in favour of the revenue.

(3) The ratio in Sun Export case (supra) is not correct and all the decisions which took similar view as in Sun Export case (supra) stands overruled.”

19. He would submit that any exemption notification being an exception to the general rule that tax must be paid at the rates in the tariff, must be interpreted strictly. If there is an ambiguity as to whether an exemption notification is applicable or otherwise, the benefit of doubt must go in favour of the Revenue and against the assessee as per the law laid down by the Constitutional Bench of Hon’ble Apex Court in the landmark judgment above. He would urge that in this case, there is absolutely no ambiguity at all that the goods which are being manufactured are coated wafers and they are described as such by the assessee to their consumers and to the department in their returns and in all other documents. Nowhere have been described as wafer biscuits. Therefore, the exemption available to wafer biscuits only cannot be extended to get wafers manufactured by the appellant.

20. On the question of valuation, he would submit that the Ld. Commissioner has recorded quite clearly that the assessee has not produced the depot invoices at which the goods are sold and therefore the Ld. Commissioner has, in the impugned order, relied on the price list of M/s Mondelez and calculated their assessable value correctly. He also asserted that the extended period of limitation has been correctly invoked and penalties need to be upheld.

21. We have considered the arguments on both sides and perused the records. It is not in dispute that the appellant has manufactured coated wafers (described for some time also as chocolate coated wafers) and cleared them. The goods were not described as ‘wafer biscuits’ either to the department or in the invoices or on the wrappers of the product. Therefore, both the Revenue and everyone in the trade including the consumer understands them as wafers or coated wafers and not as wafer biscuits. It is true that wafer is technically a thin biscuit by itself. Therefore, in the context of the erstwhile Central Excise tariff, the Hon’ble High Court of Andhra Pradesh has held that the same can be charged to Central Excise Duty on the tariff item 1(C) as biscuits. However, this judgment was not in the context of either the new Central Excise Tariff or on how to interpret the exemption notification. The interpretation of exemption notification has to be done strictly giving the benefit of any ambiguity in the exemption notification to the Revenue and against the assessee as has now been laid down by the Constitutional Bench of Hon’ble Apex Court in the case of Dilip Kumar & Company and others (supra). A plain reading of the exemption notification does not show that it is intended to cover all products covered by the tariff heading 1905 3290 or wafers (coated or uncoated) falling under tariff heading. It specifically includes only wafer biscuits falling under tariff heading. If the intention of the notification was to exempt ‘wafers’ also, it would have said so. The assessees’ products are not described as ‘wafer biscuits’ by the assessee themselves either to the department or in any of the documents or to the ultimate consumers on their wrappers. Thus, we find nobody in the chain of trade from the manufacturer to the ultimate consumer know the products as ‘wafer biscuits’ but know them only called as coated wafers. It is not for this Tribunal to enlarge the scope of an exemption notification meant for ‘wafer biscuits’ to cover ‘coated wafers’ as well. Even if it is held that ‘wafers’ could possibly be broadly considered as wafer biscuits, the matter is definitely not free from doubt/ambiguity. Under these circumstances, in terms of ratio laid down by the Hon’ble Apex Court in the case of Dilip Kumar and Company & others, we have no option but to hold that the assessee is not entitled to the benefit of exemption notification No. 03/2006.

22. Coming to the question of valuation, it is not in dispute that the assessee is manufacturing the goods on job work basis and are therefore covered by Rule 10A of Central Excise Valuation (Determination of price of Excisable Goods) Rules, 2000. This rule reads as follows:

"RULE 10A. Where the excisable goods are produced or manufactured by a job-worker, on behalf of a person (hereinafter referred to as principal manufacturer), then,-

i. in a case where the goods are sold by the principal manufacturer for delivery at the time of removal of goods from the factory of job-worker, where the principal manufacturer and the buyer of the goods are not related and the price is the sole consideration for the sale, the value of the excisable goods shall be the transaction value of the said goods sold by the principal manufacturer;

ii. in a case where the goods are not sold by the principal manufacturer at the time of removal of goods from the factory of the job-worker, but are transferred to some other place from where the said goods are to be sold after their clearance from the factory of job-worker and where the principal manufacturer and buyer of the goods are not related and the price is the sole consideration for the sale, the value of the excisable goods shall be the normal transaction value of such goods sold from such other place at or about the same time and, where such goods are not sold at or about the same time, at the time nearest to the time of removal of said goods from the factory of job-worker;

iii. in a case not covered under clause (i) or (ii), the provisions of foregoing rules, wherever applicable, shall mutatis mutandis apply for determination of the value of the excisable goods : Provided that the cost of transportation, if any, from the premises, wherefrom the goods are sold, to the place of delivery shall not be included in the value of excisable goods.

Explanation. - For the purposes of this rule, job-worker means a person engaged in the manufacture or production of goods on behalf of a principal manufacturer, from any inputs or goods supplied by the said principal manufacturer or by any other person authorised by him.”

23. It is also not in dispute that the Little Star paid duty based on the values declared by Mondelez. These values are reflected in the price list discussed above. The only point of dispute are the three elements which the Ld. Adjudicating Authority sought to include in the assessable value i.e. the Dealer’s margin, RD Markup and Post Manufacturing expenses. As far as the dealer’s margin is concerned, the Ld. Adjudicating authority felt that there is no dealer and the dealer’s premises are the assessee’s own premises. From the sample contract with the dealer produced by the Ld. Counsel for the appellant before us, we are convinced that there are indeed dealers. Therefore the dealer’s margin cannot be included in the assessable value. We further find that in a commodity which costs Rs. 2/- per piece, it is inconceivable that M/s Mondelez was selling these goods directly to individual retailers across the country. Therefore, there is no room for disallowing dealer’s margin as a deduction.

24. As far as the RD Mark up is concerned, the Ld. Commissioner considered this to be an R&D cost and Ld. Counsel for the appellant clarifies that this is a margin given to the re-distributors. There is no evidence on record to show that this actually pertains to R&D expenses. Therefore, inclusion of R&D mark up in the assessable value is not sustainable and it deserves to be set aside.

25. As far as the PME (post manufacturing expenses) is concerned, inclusion of these expenses depends upon the nature of the post manufacturing expenses. In case where these are expenses incurred upto the place of removal, the same have to be included in the assessable value. However, if these represent other expenses such as cheque discounting charges as has been asserted by the Ld. Counsel before us, they cannot be included in the assessable value, as has been held by the Tribunal in their own case (supra). This is a fact which can be verified by the adjudicating authority based on any evidence that may be provided by the appellants.

26. On the question of invoking the extended period in appeals No. E/1768/2012 and E/1781/2012, we find from the records that all necessary information was already made available to the department based on which a show cause notice was initially issued and thereafter a subsequent show cause notice was issued, invoking the extended period of limitation alleging suppression of facts which is certainly not sustainable. Once all facts were noted in the department and the department has come to some tentative conclusion regarding the classification and valuation under section 4A of the Central Excise Act and thereafter after a period of one year based on the same facts issued a different show cause notice, coming to a different set of conclusion, all that can be said, it was a question of interpretation which the department itself was not sure about it. Therefore, the demand of extended period of limitation cannot be sustained. Accordingly, the demand to that extent has to fail.

27. As far as the imposition of penalties are concerned, penalties under section 11AC can be imposed where there is fraud, collusion, wilful misstatement, suppression of facts or contravention of any provisions of the Act or the rules made there under with an intent to evade payment of duty. In the present case, we have already held with respect to the invocation of the extended period on limitation that these factors have not been established. Clearly, this is only a question of interpretation regarding the exemption notification and value. Therefore, the penalties imposed under Section 11AC need to be set aside and we do so.

28. As far as penalty under Rule 26 upon Mondelez is concerned, on a plain reading of this Rule (supra), we do not find any grounds to uphold the penalties imposed upon them (Mondelez), as we have already held that the elements of fraud, collusion, wilful misstatement, suppression of facts or violation of act of Rules with an intent to evade payment of duty, have not been established. In view of the above, the appeals are disposed of as under:

ORDER

(I) The benefit of Exemption Notification No. 3/2006 (Sl.No. 19) meant for wafer biscuits is not available to the appellant (Little Star) as their products are not wafer biscuits.

(II) The dealer’s margin and RD Mark up are not includable in the assessable value of the products manufactured by the assessee (Little Star).

(III) As far as the post manufacturing expenses are concerned, the matter is remanded to the original authority to enable the assessee (Little Star) to establish that these pertain to the cheque discount charges as asserted by them or any other expenses not covered by Section 4.

(IV) The demand for the extended period of limitation is unsustainable and is consequently set aside.

(V) The demand and interest in all appeals have to be recomputed as above and for this limited purpose of computation, the matters are remanded to the original authority.

(VI) As the matter is an interpretational one and no elements of fraud, collusion, wilful misstatement or suppression of facts or violation of Acts or Rules made there under, are established, the penalties imposed under Section 11 AC on Little Star and the penalties imposed under Rule 26 upon Mondelez are set aside.

Final Order No. A/ 12297-12326 /2019

RAMESH NAIR

DATE OF HEARING :06.08.2019

DATE OF DECISION: 02.12.2019
The brief facts of the case are that the appellant are engaged in the Manufacture of Metal Containers falling under Chapter Heading 73 of the Central Excise Tariff Act, 1985. During the course of audit it was noticed that for the purpose of packing of their final product i.e. Metal Container, they are using corrugated boxes which were supplied by their buyers free of cost. However, the cost of such corrugated boxes supplied free of cost by the buyers were not included in assessable value of the final product. The case of the department is that since the packing material i.e. corrugated boxes were supplied free of cost by the buyers, the cost of the same needs to be included in the assessable value as in the form of supply of corrugated box, there is also an additional consideration flowing directly or indirectly from the buyers resulting in under valuation of Excisable goods and short levy of duty. Accordingly various Show Cause Notices were issued for different periods demanding duty on cost of corrugated boxes. The Adjudicating Authority confirmed the demand of duty along with interest and also imposed penalty equal to duty Under Rule 25 of Central Excise Rules, 2002. Being aggrieved to the Order-In-Original, the appellant had filed appeals before the Commissioner (Appeal) which came to be dismissed. Therefore, the present appeals filed by the appellants.

2. Sh.Devan parikh, Learned Senior Counsel along with Sh. Nirav Shah(Advocate) appearing on behalf of the appellant argued the appeal on various points. Later on a detailed written submission was submitted on 24.10.2019 which was taken on record. Learned Senior Counsel submits that in case of three Show Cause Notices dated 31.1.2007, 3.05.2010 & 22.2.2011 it has invoked extended period. He submits that the issue involved in the given case is appreciation of Section 4 and interpretation of Rule 8, therefore, the larger period cannot be rendered applicable. It is held in the various judgments that when issue is of interpretation and differences on the legal view of a matter the larger period cannot be applied. There is bound to be bona fide belief either. He placed reliance on the following judgment;

- Graphite India Ltd. Vs. Commissioner of Central, Nashik-2017 (358) E.L.T. 263

3. He further submits that in the present case there is no discovery of new facts. The case of the department is not based upon the unit being raided or some new facts being coming on record. The case was made out on the basis of audit of the appellant’s records, therefore, there is no suppression of any fact. Since all the facts were available on record and the same was pointed out during audit. He submits that the declarations were filed wherein it was specifically mentioned that corrugated cartons are supplied Free of Cost by the customers and there is no impact on the assessing value is to narrate that this value is not included in Assessable Value.

4. In any case there was sufficient material on record that the department to have included this material. At the relevant time it is also mentioned in the declaration that when such material is supplied free the unit does not charge for packing material cost. However, when the packing material is supplied by the unit the value is included therefore, there is no suppression of facts. In this undisputed fact the “demand for the longer period in any case is not sustainable”. As regard the merit he submits that in the normal course the Metal Containers are sold by packing them on plastic pallets which are returnable. On rare occasions they are also sent on wooden pallets. On some occasions they are also sold loose by merely tying with string. He submits that as per the representative copies of invoices along with lorry receipts the clearances of Metal Containers were made on pallets. He submits that the cans are otherwise marketable by packing the same in a pallet. The marketability of the cans does not depend at all on putting the same in any cartons, the cartons if at all are used primarily when the customers so requires. The cartons are basically used to serve the purpose of the customers and not to render cans marketable. The cartons supplied by various dairies have absolutely no mention of appellants name or their product.

5. On the contrary the cartons mentioned the name of customer and also mentioned the product which is going to be packed in the container. In this regard he invited our attention to the photographs produced. Thus, AMUL supplied Cartons with the symbol of AMUL thereon and with the details as well as details of their products, say Milk powder or Ghee, etc. Such cartons have no details whatsoever of the appellants. The customer on receiving the cans in these cartons used the cans to pack this product in it and put the packed cans in this very carton. This is for the convenience of the customer but has no connection with the marketability of the appellant's product. He further submitted that for the period prior to new Section 4 came into effect, the issue whether such cartons provided Free of Cost by the customers to the appellants are includable in the Assessable value of cans stands concluded by the judgment of an authority not less than the Hon'ble High Court in the case of the appellant themselves. The Hon’ble High Court in special CA No. 1994/1980, as held that in case where the buyers supplied the packing material on their own cost the same cannot be included in the value. It held that if this is so, they were entitled to refund of Excise Duty.

6. Since this Judgment of 22.2.1990 till new Section 4 came into force, the appellant have continuously followed his practice and on not a single occasion has any demand being raised for including the cost of cartons supplied free by their customers in the assessable value. He further submits that only after the new section 4 came into operation that the litigation was restarted. The very basis of the Show Cause Notice for the period after the introduction of New Section 4 is that the new Section 4 changed the basis of valuation as compared to old Section 4. While passing the main impugned order of the Commissioner dated 14.03.2008 clearly holds that there is distinction between Old and New Section 4 and that it is due to this that any activity of packing prior to sale(Whether or not it renders the product marketable) could be includable in the Transaction Value. A reference was also made to the Board Circular to reiterate that under new Section 4 nature of packing is irrelevant and it is immaterial whether it is ordinarily supplied.

7. Thus, the entire basis of the demand was that the new Section 4 was different from the old Section 4. In this regard he submits that even after enactment of the new Section 4 the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the various judgments it was held that there is no departure from old Section 4 and the judgments given in context with the old Section 4 is to hold the field even for the cases after new Section 4 was enacted. He placed reliance on the following judgments.

- Commissioner of Central Excise, Indore Vs. Grasim Industries Ltd., 2014 (304) E.L.T. 310
- JAUSS Polymers Ltd. Vs. Commissioner of Central Excise, Meerut, 2003 (157) E.L.T. 626 SC
- Commissioner of Central Excise, Mysore Vs. TVS Motors Co.Ltd. 2016 (331) E.L.T. 3 (S.C.)
- TATA Motors Ltd. Vs. Union of India, 2012 (286) E.L.T. 161 (Bombay).
- Nova Iron and Steel Ltd., Vs. Commissioner of Central Excise, Raipur, 2016 (343) E.L.T. 660
- Commissioner of Central Excise, Allahabad Vs. Indian AirGases Ltd., 2015 (318) E.L.T. 434

He further submits that while the aforesaid some Judgment directly on the point, there are innumerable other judgments under old Section 4 which hold that prices of packing material supplied Free of Cost by the customers cannot be included in the value. They are as follows;

I) 2014 (309) E.L.T.-385

II) 2008 (230) E.L.T.-3

III) 2010 (256) E.L.T.-321

IV) 2008 (229) E.L.T.-A183

V) 2007 (216) E.L.T.-77

VI) 2008 (230) E.L.T.-104

VII) 2006 (206) E.L.T.-191

VIII) 2003 (157) E.L.T.-626

IX) 2003 (160) E.L.T.-314

X) 2006 (202) E.L.T.-355

XI) 2001 (136) E.L.T.-1025

XII) 2000 (122) E.L.T.-535

. He further submits that the department has not brought any evidence on record that without cartons the product cannot be sold. On the contrary, the department’s case is that Marketability is irrelevant to the inclusion of packing charges. He submits that the cans Manufactured by the appellant can be supplied without corrugated boxes. The corrugated boxes supplied by the buyers are for the benefit of the said customers as they find it convenient to repack their goods in this very carton containing Containers. It assists their handling and their factory. These cartons are therefore, essential packing for their final products and are not essential packing for merely the containers. He also submits that it is consistently held that even the bought out item supplied with the required product cannot be included in the value unless it is essential for its functioning or renders it marketable. Such view was taken in the following.

i) 2005 (192) E.L.T. 620 (Para-4)

ii) 2005 (191) E.L.T. 379 (Para-1)

iii) 2009 (235) E.L.T. 737 (Paras- 3.4, 6.1, 31 & 32)

iv) 2017 (351) E.L.T.-307 (Paras- 1 &3)

The analogy of the above judgment is that free supply of cost of carton which have no role to play any product nor render the same marketable, its value cannot be included in the value of the final product of the appellant.

8. On the other hand, Sh. K.J. Kinariwala, Learned Assistant Commissioner (Authorized Representative) appearing on behalf of the revenue reiterates the finding of the impugned order. He referred to the Central Excise Valuation Rules, 2000 and pointed out that as per the new Rule effective from July, 2000 the packing material supplied Free of Cost by the customer, the value consideration of the said packing material needs to be included in the Assessable Value. He submits that there was no Pari- materia provision of this rule in the Old rules. Therefore, As per Learned Counsel there is no change in the old Section and the new Section 4 is incorrect. As per the specific provision the lower authorities have rightly included the cost of packing material supplied Free of Cost to the customer in the Assessable Value of the appellant’s final product. Therefore, the impugned orders are sustainable.

9. We have carefully considered the submission made by both the sides and perused the record. As regard the facts of the case there is no dispute that the appellant are manufacturer of Metal Containers and the same is supplied to AMUL where this Container are used for Manufacture and filling of various products such as milk powder, baby milk powder, Ghee, etc. In the normal course these Metal containers are supplied on pallet used by the appellant for packing of this cans. In some cases M/s AMUL are supplying corrugated boxes Free of Cost wherein, the appellant packed the final product i.e. Metal container and supplied to M/s. AMUL. The revenue included the value of corrugated box in the Assessable Value for the purpose of charging Excise Duty. The entire defense of the appellant is that there are various judgments of the Hon’ble Supreme Court according to which any packing material supplied Free of Cost or packing of the final product the value of such packing material is not includable in the assessable value. All those judgments are in context with the provision of unamended Section 4 and Central Excise Rules, 1975 for the period prior to 1.07.2000. The appellant heavily relied upon the judgments in the case of Hon’ble Supreme Court in the case of TVS Motors Co. Ltd. (supra) and the Larger Bench judgment of Hon’ble Supreme Court in the case of M/s. Grasim Industries Ltd. (supra) whereby they submitted that these judgments are in respect of new Section 4 wherein, it was held that there is no substantial change between the old Section 4 and new Section 4. Therefore, the judgments delivered with reference to the old Section 4 will still hold the field on the issue herein.

10. In this regard, on going through all the judgments and the statutory provision we find that as far as inclusion of cost of packing material supplied Free of Cost for the purpose of packing of final product by the appellant there is no ambiguity in the law. For the ease of reference we reproduce the new Section 4.

"1[4. Valuation of excisable goods for purposes of charging duty of excise.-

(1) Where under this Act, the duty of excise is chargeable on any excisable goods with reference to their value, then, on each removal of the goods, such value shall-

(a) in a case where the goods are sold by the assessee, for delivery at the time and place of the removal, the assessee and the buyer of goods are not related and the price is the sole consideration for the sale, be the transaction value;

(b) in any other case, including the case where the goods are not sold, be the value determined in such manner as may be prescribed. 2[Explanation.-For the removal of doubts, it is hereby declared that the price-cum-duty of the excisable goods sold by the assessee shall be the price actually paid to him for the goods sold and the money value of the additional consideration, if any, flowing directly or indirectly from the buyer to the assessee in connection with the sale of such goods, and such price-cum-duty, excluding sales tax and other taxes, if any, actually paid, shall be deemed to include the duty payable on such goods.]"

From the above section 4 it can be seen that only in cases where the transaction value is sole consideration such transaction value shall be the Assessable Value for charging of Excise Duty. However, in the present case apart from the transaction value the packing material supplied Free of Cost by the customer was also used by the appellant. The value of such packing material was not included. When any Excisable product is manufactured and cleared the value of such goods shall be the total value of the goods in the form it is cleared from the factory of the Assessee. It is immaterial that whether a part of the material contained in the final product to borne the cost. In the present case undisputedly the case of the appellant i.e. Metal Container cleared were packed in the corrugated boxes. Therefore, the value of the Metal Containers duly packed in the corrugated box has to be valued. Since the appellant have charged the value excluding the Cost of packing material the revenue is right in including the Cost of the packing material fora very simple reason that the goods were cleared duly packed in such corrugated boxes. Merely because the corrugated box was supplied by the customer that does not make difference as far as inclusion of cost of packing material required to arrive at the Assessable value. Since the Transaction Value is not the sole consideration as the packing cost was not included the value has to be determined resorting to the Valuation Rules made by authority of Section 4. The relevant Rule 6 of the Central Excise Valuation (Determination of price on excisable goods) Rules 2000 reads as under:

"Rule 6. - Where the excisable goods are sold in the circumstances specified in clause (a) of sub-section (1) of section 4 of the Act except the circumstance where the price is not the sole consideration for sale, the value of such goods shall be deemed to be the aggregate of such transaction value and the amount of money value of any additional consideration flowing directly or indirectly from the buyer to the assessee.

Explanation 1. - For removal of doubts, it is hereby clarified that the value, apportioned as appropriate, of the following goods and services, whether supplied directly or indirectly by the buyer free of charge or at reduced cost for use in connection with the production and sale of such goods, to the extent that such value has not been included in the price actually paid or payable, shall be treated to be the amount of money value of additional consideration flowing directly or indirectly from the buyer to the assessee in relation to sale of the goods being valued and aggregated accordingly, namely:

(i) value of materials, components, parts and similar items relatable to such goods;
(ii) value of tools, dies, moulds, drawings, blue prints, technical maps and charts and similar items used in the production of such goods;
(iii) value of material consumed, including packaging materials, in the production of such goods;
(iv) value of engineering, development, art work, design work and plans and sketches undertaken elsewhere than in the factory of production and necessary for the production of such goods.

Explanation 2. - Where an assessee receives any advance payment from the buyer against delivery of any excisable goods, no notional interest on such advance shall be added to the value unless the Central Excise Officer has evidence to the effect that the advance received has influenced the fixation of the price of the goods by way of charging a lesser price from or by offering a special discount to the buyer who has made the advance deposit. Illustration 1. - X, an assessee, sells his goods to Y against full advance payment at Rs. 100 per piece. However, X also sells such goods to Z without any advance payment at the same price of Rs. 100 per piece. No notional interest on the advance received by X is includible in the transaction value.

Illustration 2. - A, an assessee, manufactures and supplies certain goods as per design and specification furnished by B at a price of Rs. 10 lakhs. A takes 50% of the price as advance against these goods and there is no sale of such goods to any other buyer. There is no evidence available with the Central Excise Officer that the notional interest on such advance has resulted in lowering of the prices. Thus, no notional interest on the advance received shall be added to the transaction value."

From reading of the above rule it is absolutely clear that the said rule was made amongst other circumstances for the purpose of inclusion of Cost of packing material, if it is supplied Free of Charge by the buyer. Therefore, by virtue of the above Rule 6 read with Explanation 1 Clause-iii the value of packing material supplied Free of Cost by the buyer mandatorily needs to be included in the price of final product. Therefore, in view of the above Section 4 read with Rule 6 there is absolutely no ambiguity on the issue involved in the present case in as much as the cost of corrugated boxes supplied by the buyer to the appellant is includable in the Assessable Value. As regard the submission made by the appellant that the final product of the appellant in Metal Containers is fully manufactured without packing, therefore, the packing cost of the corrugated box supplied by the buyer is not part of the manufacture of the final product.

11. We find that every goods manufactured is otherwise complete in its manufacturing before packing. However, even though the packing is part of the manufacturing activity or otherwise, the Excise Duty is chargeable on the value of the goods in the form it is cleared from the factory of the manufacturer. In the present case, there is no dispute that the Metal Containers manufactured by the appellant are packed in the corrugated box and the same duly packed are cleared for sale to their customers. Therefore, since the goods are cleared in the packed form, the cost of packing material needs to be included in the Assessable value. Hence the argument of the appellant that the packing of the Metal container is beyond the stage of manufacturing will not help as long as the Valuation of goods for the purpose of charging Excise Duty in the form it is cleared. As regard the judgment of the Hon'ble Gujarat High Court in the appellants own case. We find that the said judgment was given with reference to the old Section 4 and the judgments delivered in that reference. We agree that with reference to the old Section 4, as per the various judgments of the Hon’ble Supreme Court in the case of JAUSS polymers Ltd., Hindustan Polymers Ltd. 1989 (E.L.T. 165(SC)), the cost of packing material supplied Free of Cost by the buyer was not included in the Assessable Value. The legislature to overcome the judgment of the Hon’ble Supreme Court on the issue of inclusion of cost of packing material amended the Section 4 and made new Valuation Rules of 2000 according to which no scope was left for interpretation of the issue which was existing prior to 1.07.2000. Therefore, after introduction of amended Section 4 and New Central Excise Valuation Rules, 2000 the law is very clear that in case where the packing material is supplied Free of Cost by the buyer to the assessee the cost thereof is includable in the Assessable value.

12. As regard the heavy reliance placed on the Hon’ble Supreme Court Judgment which are with reference to the New amended Section 4 from 1.07.2000. We find that in case of TVS Motors Co. Ltd. the issue was related to Pre-Delivery Inspection and after sale service charges. These chargers were not collected, the same was incurred by the manufacturer of Motor Vehicle after clearance of the goods. Therefore, there is no extra consideration flowing to the manufacturer. On that basis the Hon’ble Supreme Court held that the Pre-Delivery Inspection and after Sale Service Charges are not includable in the value. The facts of that case is totally different from the facts of the present case. As in the present case the issue of inclusion of packing material supplied Free of Cost by the buyer is involved. Therefore, the judgment of Hon’ble Supreme Court in the case of TVS Motors Co. Ltd being on altogether different facts and the issue shall not apply in the present case. In case of Grasim Industries Ltd. (supra) the Larger Bench of the Hon’ble Supreme Court dealing with old Section 4 and New Section 4 held that there is no difference in statutory concept of Transaction Value and judicially evolved meaning of normal price. The appellant on this basis argued that with these judicial pronouncements all the judgments given with reference to the old Section 4 i.e. before amendment of 2000 shall equally apply in the cases related to the period after amendment of 2000.

13. On going through the facts of the said judgment we find that the assessee are charging to their customer certain amounts under different heads namely packing charges, facility charges, Service Charges, Delivery and Collection charges, rental charges, repair and testing charges. The facts of the present case is different as the appellant is not charging separately. The issue involved in the present case is that the Cost of corrugated boxes which were supplied by the customer Free of Cost and such corrugated boxes are used for packing of the final product is includable as clearly provided under Rule 6 of Central Excise Valuation Rules, 2000. Therefore, the facts of the present case is completely different from the facts of the Hon’ble Supreme Court judgment in the case of Grasim. Moreover, as per Rule 6 of Central Excise Valuation Rules, 2000 it is explicit wherein, the provision for inclusion of cost of packing material supplied Free of Cost by the customer is provided. The Hon’ble Supreme Court in the case of Grasim (supra) have not dealt with the provision of Rule 6 of the Central Excise Valuation Rules, 2000. It is also pertinent that the Central Excise Valuation Rules, 2000 have not been struck down by the Hon’ble Supreme Court in the case of Grasim’s judgment (supra). It is also observed from the judgment that the Hon’ble Supreme Court in Para 18 referring to the Bombay Tyres International Ltd. on principle agreed that the Cost of primary packing needs to be included. This provision was not under dispute even in the old Section 4. In the present case there is no dispute that the corrugated box even though supplied by the buyer was used as primary packing. For this reason also the judgment of Hon’ble Supreme Court of Grasim would not adversely affect the revenues case. As regards the judgment in the case of Innovative Tech Pack Ltd., decided by this tribunal, we find that the entire case was decided on the fact that the packing material was meant only for transportation of manufactured goods to the buyer and it is not necessary for rendering the said goods marketable. In the present case, since the box was used as a primary packing it would not be said that it is used only for transportation of the goods. Moreover in some of the supplies the appellant’s units are located within the premises of the customer i.e. M/s. AMUL despite that the Metal Containers were packed and supplied in corrugated box. Therefore, the corrugated box used for packing of Metal Containers is not for transportation of goods, therefore, the decision of Innovative Tech Pack Ltd. is clearly distinguished. As regards the reliance placed on the Nova Iron and Steel Ltd., we find that in the said judgment it was decided that the cost of packing is not includeable only on the basis that the goods otherwise was marketable in the loose form and the fact was also noted that the goods namely sponge iron were being supplied without packing if dispatched through road transport. In the said case the packing was done particularly for dispatch of goods through Railways. In the present case, it is undisputed that in some cases where the customer has not provided the corrugated box the goods i.e. Metal Container were not supplied in loose condition whereas, the same were supplied on the pallet therefore the goods of the appellant i.e.
Metal container is not capable of being dispatched without any packing. Therefore, the facts of the present case is different from that of M/s Nova Iron Steel Ltd. (supra).

14. As per our above discussion we are of the view that the cost of corrugated
