boxes supplied Free of Cost by the customer to the appellant is includeable in the Transaction Value of the Metal container manufactured and supplied by the appellant. As regard the limitation vehemently argued by the Learned Senior Counsel on behalf of the appellant, we have examined the facts. We find that the issue involved in the present case is based on strict interpretation of Section 4 of Central Excise Act, 1944 and rules made there under. There are various judgments on this issue therefore, it cannot be said that the appellant had any mala fide intention. It is also observed that the appellant have never suppressed any fact as regard non-inclusion of the cost of corrugated box supplied Free of Cost by their buyer for the reason that this facts was noticed by the Audit Officer from the records which was existing at the time of Audit. It is also observed that the appellant havemade a specific declaration about the fact that they are receiving corrugated cartons Free of Cost from their customers. It is also mentioned in the declaration that there is no impact on the assessable value and the value of such corrugated box was not included in the Assessable Value. Therefore, when the supply of corrugated box Free of Cost by the customer to the appellant was declared by the appellant to the department, it was open for the department to make out a case if they desire and issue the Show Cause Notice well within the stipulated time period of one year but despite all the details available with the department the Show Cause Notice was not issued in the normal period. In this fact the demand for the period before one year of the date of Show Cause Notice is time barred and we set aside the demand for extended period.

15. As per our discussion and finding given herein above on merit the demand is sustainable and on Limitation demand for the extended period is set aside. Appeal Nos. E/642/2008, E/795/2011, E/10112/2014 are partly allowed and all other appeals are dismissed.

This appeal has been filed by M/s. Gujarat State Fertilizers & Chemicals Limited in respect of demand of duty on Sulphur purchased by them by availing benefit of exemption Notification No. 12/2012-CE dated 17 March 2012.

2. Learned Counsel for the appellant pointed out that Notification No. 12/2012-CE dated 17 March 2012 exempts goods falling under Chapter heading 25030010 from whole of Central Excise duty if the same are used for manufacture of fertilizer subject to the condition that where such use is elsewhere than in the factory of production, the exemption shall be allowed if the procedure laid down in the Central Excise (Removal of Goods at Concessional Rate of Duty for Manufacture of Excisable Goods) Rules, 2001 is followed. Entry 55 to the table of Notification No. 12/2012-CE dated 17 March 2012 reads as follows:-

Learned Counsel pointed that there is no dispute regarding following the condition specified in the said notification and therefore, the only issue before the Tribunal is if the goods, namely Sulphur, procured by them availing benefit of Notification No. 12/2012-CE dated 17 March 2012 is used in the manufacture of fertilizers or otherwise. Learned Counsel pointed out that there are four different issues involved. Learned Counsel produced a flow chart which indicates the use of Sulphur in four different streams in the factory. He pointed out that each one of different stream is used and being dealt differently to establish the used of Sulphur for the manufacture of fertilizer.

3. The first issue relates to the use of Sulphur for manufacture of Sulphuric Acid/Oleum which in turn is used in the Urea Plant for manufacture of Molten Urea.
The Molten Urea is in turn used as fertilizer or in the manufacture of Melamine. Learned Counsel pointed out that since Molten Urea is manufactured, the condition specified in Notification No. 12/2012-CE that Sulphur is used for manufacture of fertilizer is satisfied. He pointed out that they use of Molten Urea, which itself is a fertilizer, in the manufacture of Melamine. He relied on the decision of Hon’ble Apex Court in their own case reported at 1997 (91) ELT 3 (SC) where a similar issue was dealt with. In the said case, under Notification No. 75/84-CE dated 01.03.1984 granted concessional rate of duty to raw Naphtha intended for use in the manufacture of fertilizers and ammonia. Notification No. 40/85-CE dated 17.03.1985 granted total exemption to ammonia used in the manufacture of fertilizers. The ammonia so manufactured was used captive for manufacture of Molten Urea. In the said circumstances, it was held that Molten Urea is undisputedly classifiable as a chemical fertilizer under Heading 31.02 of Central Excise Tariff Act, 1985.

3.1 Learned Counsel also pointed out that the said decision has been wrongly distinguished by the original adjudicating authority by stating that Sulphuric Acid manufactured out of Sulphur has not been used to manufacture urea but for maintaining PH level of Cooling Towers. He pointed out that Sulphuric Acid is used in the manufacture of Urea and it is also used for cooling towers. The issue relating to cooling towers is being dealt separately. Learned Counsel argued that in view of the decision of Hon’ble Apex Court in their own case, the benefit of Notification No. 12/2012-CE cannot be denied.

3.2 Learned Counsel pointed out that second issue relates to the use of Sulphur in Caprolactam Plants where the Sulphuric Acid is used to manufacture Caprolactam and Ammonium Sulphate. He pointed out that Ammonium Sulphate is fertilizer. He pointed out that Sulphur used in Caprolactam Plant (HX Plant) which in turn used in the manufacture of HAS. He further pointed out that a part of Hydroxyamine Sulphate (HAS) is also cleared on payment of duty. He pointed out that in respect of Hydroxyamine Sulphate sold by them they are admitting their duty liability. He further pointed out that whatever duty is payable on Sulphur used in the manufacture of HAS, the same is available to them as Cenvat credit and therefore the situation is Revenue neutral. As regards the sulphur used in the manufacture of Caprolactam which in turn used for Ammonium Sulphate is concerned, they are entitled for the benefit of Notification No. 12/2012-CE. He pointed out that the issue is squarely covered by Hon’ble Delhi High Court decision in their own case reported at 2009 (241) ELT 190 (Delhi) In the said case, identical issue was dealt in respect of Sulphuric acid used to manufacture of fertilizers exempted under Notification Nos. 74/66-CE and 81/75-CE. He pointed out that the said decision of single Member Bench of Delhi High Court was challenged before the Division Bench of Delhi High Court by Revenue and the Division Bench dismissed the appeal of Revenue as reported at 2010 (252) ELT 339 (Del). He argued that the said decisions were wrongly distinguished by the Adjudicating Authority on the ground that the said decision relates to use of Sulphuric Acid and not Sulphur. It is also argued that in this process, Ammonium Sulphate is only a by-product and the Caprolactam is the main product manufactured. He pointed out that if 5 ton of Ammonium Sulphate is produced, the production of Caprolactam is just 1-ton therefore, it cannot be called bye-product.

3.3 Learned Counsel pointed out that the 3rd issue relates to use of Sulphuric Acid in the cooling towers. He pointed out that Sulphuric Acid is used to maintain PH balance in the cooling towers. Learned Counsel pointed that the said is use is covered by following decisions:-

(a) 1999 (112) ELT 448 (Tri.) – Indo Gulf Fertilizers & Chemicals vs. CCE.
(b) 1996 (15) RLT 498 (SC) – Indian Farmers Fertilizers Cooperative Limited vs. CCE
(c) 1997 (23) RLT 594 (CEGAT) – Fertilizers Corporation of India Limited vs. CCE
(d) 1996 (85) ELT 187 (T) – CCE vs. Hindustan Fertilizers Corporation of India Limited
(e) 1987 (30) ELT 507 (T) – Fertilizers Corporation of India Limited vs. CCE

He pointed out that maintaining of PH balance is essential in the manufacturing of fertilizers using sulphur for such purpose amounts to use in the manufacture of Urea and Ammonia Sulphate.

3.4 Learned Counsel pointed out that the 4th issue is Sulphur used in the manufacture of Phosphoric Acid and Phospho Gypsum (bye-product). He pointed out that Phosphoric Acid is used captively for manufacture of fertilizers i.e. Ammonium Phosphate Sulphate (APS). He pointed out that part of the Phosphoric Acid is sold by them in the open market on payment of duty. He admitted his liability of duty on Sulphur used in such Phosphoric Acid. He pointed out that the exercise would be Revenue neutral as they would be entitled for Cenvat credit for sulphur used in the manufacture of Phosphoric Acid which is sold on payment of duty. He pointed out that use of Phosphoric Acid for manufacture of Ammonium Phosphate Sulphate, Ammonium Sulphate and Phospho Gypsum amounts to use in fertilizers and thus entitled for exemption Notification No. 12/2012-CE. He pointed out that the benefit of notification has been denied on the ground that a product, other than fertilizers, namely Phospho Gypsum is manufactured. He pointed out that as far as production and clearance of Phospho Gypsum is concerned, the issue is covered by the following judgments:-

(a) 2008 (232) ELT 193 (SC) – CCE vs. National Organic Chemical Industries Limited
(b) 2007 (211) ELT 193 (SC) – CCE vs. Chennai Petroleum Corpn. Limited (c) 2011 (207) ELT 200 (Guj.) – CCE vs. Sterling Gelatin

3.5 Learned Counsel also pointed that penalty has been imposed under the provisions of Section 11AC which is improper as they are entitled exemption of Notification No. 12/2012-CE in respect of Sulphur used in manufacture of fertilizers. He pointed out that in respect of Sulphur used in manufacture of Hydroxyl Amine Sulphate and Phosphoric Acid sold on payment of duty, they are entitled to Cenvat credit therefore, there is no intention to evade payment of duty.

4. Learned Authorised Representative relies on the impugned order. He pointed out that impugned order differentiate the case laws relied on by the appellants. He pointed out that they are seeking to deny benefit of Notification No. 12/2012-CE on Sulphuric Acid directly used in the manufacture of Urea. He also pointed out that the said decision relates to use of raw naphtha in manufacture of Urea and not in respect of Sulphur used in the manufacture of Urea. He pointed out that in so far as Sulphuric Acid claimed to be used in the manufacture of Urea is concerned, the use of Sulphur for maintaining PH balance of cooling towers does not amount to use of Sulphur in manufacture of fertilizers.

3.5 In so far as the issue No. 2 is concerned, learned Authorised Representative tried to distinguish on the ground that notification under consideration in two decisions is not the same. He pointed out that the decision in the case of Indo Gulf Fertilizers & Chemicals vs. CCE – 1999 (112) ELT 448 (T), relied on by the appellant relates to issue No.3 and he relied on the same for this issue.

4.2 In respect of 4th issue relating to use of Sulphur for manufacturing of Phosphoric Acid and Phospho Gypsum, learned Authorised Representative relies on the same arguments as for the use of Sulphur used in the manufacture of Ammonium Phosphate and Phospho Gypsum. Learned Authorised Representative further pointed out that there is no Revenue neutrality in the instant case.

5. We have considered the rival submissions. We find that the appellant are seeking benefit of Notification No. 12/2012-CE dated 17 March 2012. Notification 12.2012-CE grants exemption to goods falling under Chapter heading 25030010 from payment of Central Excise duty subject to condition, entry 55 which reads as under:-

The appellant have placed on record a flow diagram detailing the manner the Sulphur is used:-
6. The first issue relates to use of Sulphur used for manufacture of Sulphuric Acid/Oleum which in turn used for manufacture of Molten Urea. Revenue's objection is that the same quantity of Molten Urea is used as input for the manufacture of Malamine and, therefore, the appellants are not entitled to benefit of notification. It is noticed that Molten Urea which comes into existence is itself a chemical fertilizer, as held by Hon'ble Apex Court in the appellant's own case reported at 1997 (91) ELT 3 (SC). The Hon'ble Apex Court observed as under:-

"10. Then next we turn to exemption Notification No. 40 of 1985, dated 17-3-1985. As per the said notification, as amended from time to time, it had been laid down that the Central Government was pleased to exempt goods of the description mentioned in column (2) of the Table and falling under Chapters 25, 27, 28, 29 and 31 or 32, as the case may be, of the Schedule to the Tariff Act, from the whole of the duty of excise leviable thereon under Section 3 of the Central Excises and Salt Act, 1944, subject to the conditions, if any, laid down in the corresponding entry in column (3) thereof; column (2) of the Table referred to the description of goods and at Sl. No. 3 is mentioned ammonia. Thus ammonia which was manufactured by the appellant out of raw naphtha came under the sweep of the said exemption notification. The condition for earning exemption from excise duty on ammonia as laid down in column (3), which is relevant for our present purpose, is Condition No. (ii) which provides that ammonia should be used in the manufacture of fertilisers. It is not in dispute that ammonia was captively consumed by the appellant in manufacturing molten urea. Therefore, the moot question is whether ammonia could be said to have been utilised for manufacturing any fertiliser. It is no doubt true that molten urea in its turn became an input for producing the final product, namely, melamine which admittedly was not a fertiliser. But as required by the express language of the notification we have to find out whether molten urea which was manufactured out of ammonia was a fertiliser or not. It is now well settled by a catena of decisions of this Court that for deciding whether an exemption notification gets attracted on the facts of a given case, the express language of the exemption notification has to be given its due effect. In this connection, we may refer to a decision of this Court to which our attention was invited by Shri Dave, learned Senior Counsel for the appellant. In M/s. Hemraj Gordhandas v. H.H. Dave, Assistant Collector of Central Excise & Customs, Surat and Ors. [1978 (2) E.L.T. (J 350)], a Constitution Bench of this Court speaking through Ramaswami, J. has made the following pertinent observations in paragraph 5 of the Report:

"....It is well established that in a taxing statute there is no room for any intention but regard must be had to the clear meaning of the words. The entire matter is governed wholly by the language of the notification. If the tax-payer is within the plain terms of the exemption it cannot be denied its benefit by calling in aid any supposed intention of the exempting authority. If such intention can be gathered from the construction of the words of the notification or by necessary implication therefrom, the matter is different but that is not the case here..."

with an exemption notification in connection with raw naphtha laid down in paragraph 5 of the Report that due emphasis had to be given to the clear language of the condition mentioned in the exemption notification. Same view was reiterated in the case of Prince Khadi Woollen Handloom Prod. Coop. Indl. Society v. Collector of Central Excise [1996 (88) E.L.T. 637 (S.C.)]."

"13. That takes us to the consideration of the main submission canvassed by Shri Bhat, learned Additional Solicitor General, that the CEGAT had taken the view that ammonia which was utilised by way of captive consumption by the appellant for manufacture of molten urea was subjected to a continuous process of manufacturing which had resulted in the end product melamine which was admittedly not a fertiliser. That may be so. However, the question remains whether ammonia could be said to have been used in the manufacture of molten urea which was a chemical fertiliser. We have to recall that molten urea itself is an excisable commodity even though it might have been exempted from payment of excise duty by a notification issued by the Central Government. But for the said exemption notification molten urea would have been required to bear the full duty. As seen earlier, it has been classified as a chemical fertiliser under Heading 31.02 by the authorities themselves. For levying excise duty on such a commodity, namely, molten urea, if the department takes the view that it is to be subjected to excise duty as a chemical fertiliser on its clearance even for captive consumption, it is difficult to appreciate the contrary stand of the very same authority that it would cease to be a fertiliser for the purpose of exemption Notification No. 40 of 1985, even though ammonia results in the manufacture of the same excisable item, namely, molten urea. Such a stand cannot be permitted to be adopted by the department, as it would amount to blowing hot and cold at the same time. If molten urea is treated to be an excisable item under Heading 31.02 as a chemical fertiliser, it has to be treated on the same lines while construing the sweep of exemption Notification No. 40 of 1985 which expressly refers to Chapter 31 amongst others. In short, molten urea must be treated to be a fertiliser for the purpose of its exigibility to duty under Heading 31.02 of the Tariff Act and simultaneously also for the purpose of exemption Notification No. 40 of 1985. It is also easy to visualise that if molten urea would have been sold by the appellant in outside market instead of being captively consumed further for the manufacture of melamine, it would have borne full duty subject to exemption notification, if any, under Tariff Item 31.02. Only because it was captively consumed in the onward process of manufacture which had resulted into melamine, it could not be said that the final product for the purpose of Excise Act had not emerged in the shape of molten urea by the captive consumption of ammonia."

Revenue has sought to distinguish this decision by stating that Sulphuric Acid used in Cooling Towers does not qualify as use in the manufacture of Urea. We find that claim of the appellant that Sulphuric Acid is directly used in the manufacture of Urea has not been contested by Revenue in the impugned order. We find that distinction made is not logical as Sulphuric Acid is also directly used in the manufacture of Urea as claimed by the appellant. In this circumstance, we find no merit in the Revenue's case in so far as the use of Sulphur in manufacture of Urea is concerned. Exemption in respect of Sulphur used in manufacture of Urea is allowed.

7. The second issue relates to use of Sulphur in the manufacture of Sulphuric Acid/Oleum which in turn used in Caprolactam Plant. Caprolactam is manufactured along with Ammonium Sulphate, which is undisputedly a chemical fertilizer, and therefore, the appellant would be entitled to avail benefit of Notification No. 12/2012-CE in respect of use of Sulphur which in turn used in the manufacture of Ammonium Sulphate. The issue is also covered by the decision of Single Member Bench of Hon'ble Delhi High Court in their own case reported at 2009 (241) ELT 190 (Del.) and approved by Division Bench of Hon'ble Delhi High Court reported at 2010 (252) ELT 339 (Del.). The Division Bench of Hon'ble Delhi High Court observed as follows:-

"7. Admittedly, the Respondent uses Oleum in the manufacture of Ammonium Sulphate and Caprolactam but according to the Appellant Ammonium Sulphate is only a by-product and as such Oleum is not used in the manufacture of fertilizers. There is no dispute that Ammonium Sulphate is nothing but a chemical fertilizer. The learned Single Judge rightly held that the exemption notifications, on a plain reading, make no mention of a by-product or a primary product. All that is to be seen is whether the use of fuming sulphuric acid results in the manufacture of a fertilizer. In this case, the answer must be in the affirmative since the use of Oleum results in the manufacture of Ammonium Sulphate which is nothing but a chemical fertilizer."
8. Under the circumstances, both the ingredients of the exemption Notifications have been met by the Respondent, namely, that it is using fuming sulphuric acid which is included in the expression sulphuric acid falling in T.I. 14G of the First Schedule to the Act and that this fuming sulphuric acid is intended for use in the manufacture and is in fact used in the manufacture of fertilizer that is Ammonium Sulphate."

The impugned order seeks to distinguish this decision on the ground that Ammonium Sulphate produced by the appellant in this stream is only a bye-product and Caprolactam is main product. It has been argued that appellant produce 5 ton of Ammonium Sulphate to produce just 1ton of Caprolactam therefore, it cannot be treated as bye-product. We find that sulphur used for production of Ammonium Sulphate alongwith Caprolactam is exempted as held by Hon’ble Delhi High Court in the appellant’s case reported at 2009 (241) ELT 190 (Del.). Relevant Para 30 of the decision is reproduced below:-

30. The crucial terms here are sulphuric acid “intended for use in the manufacture of fertilizers”. There are no restrictive terms cutting down the width of the phrase "intended for use". Applying the canon of construction mentioned earlier, i.e. that such exemption notifications are to be considered in their own terms, the Court holds that the express terms here do not make a distinction between "primary" and "secondary" product or "main product" and "by-product". As far back as in Hansraj's case, it was ruled that:

"It is well-established that in a taxing statute there is no room for any intendment but regard must be had to the clear meaning of the words. The entire matter is governed wholly by the language of the notification. If the tax-payer is within the plain terms of the exemption it cannot be denied its benefit by calling

In this case the notification does not prohibit the use of diverse technologies that may enable a manufacture to produce two kinds of goods, simultaneously, in the same process. It is not denied that for each ton of Caprolactum produced 5.1 tonnes of ammonium sulphate is produced. If indeed this is deemed a by-product it appears to be a case of the proverbial tail wagging the dog. The Court cannot be unmindful, here of the object of the notification which was to make fertilizers less expensive, and more widely accessible. The innovative use of a relatively less known technology to achieve production of ammonium sulphate concededly a fertilizer, cannot be denied the benefit of the exemption notification, which contains no support for the distinction between "main product" and "by-product" relied upon by the revenue. Consequently, this question too has to be answered against the revenue.

In these circumstances, we find merit in the arguments of the appellant. However, we find that a small quantity of Hydroxylamine Sulphate (HX/HAS) sold by the appellant and they have admitted their liability in respect of duty free Hydroxylamine Sulphate sold by them in the open market on payment of duty and their argument is only Revenue neutrality. We find, in so far as demand of duty on Sulphur used in the quantity of Hydroxylamine Sulphate sold by them in the open market needs to be confirmed. Accordingly, demand in so far as Sulphur used in the manufacture of Sulphuric Acid/Oleum used for manufacture of Ammonium Sulphate and Caprolactam, is set-aside.

8. 3rd issue relates to use of Sulphuric Acid in maintaining PH balance in cooling towers. In this context, the appellant relied on various decisions of Hon’ble Apex Court and Tribunal as referred to in Para 3.3 above. In the case of Indo Gulf Fertilizers & Chemicals vs. CCE - 1999 (112) ELT 448 (Tri.) (supra), the issue has been examined and following has been observed:-

"4. We find that the issue is covered by the earlier decision of the Tribunal in appellants’ own case in appeal No. E/1357/95-C and the Tribunal vide Final Order No. 435/99-C, dated 19-5-1999 allowed the benefit of Notification 81/75-C.E. in respect of sulphuric acid used in the cooling tower in appellants’ unit. The Tribunal held as under:

The contention of the appellants is that the sulphuric acid is used in the cooling tower for the control of acid alkaline ratio (pH value) of the water which was later on used in the ammonia plant. The contention of the appellants is that since this sulphuric acid was used in or in relation to the manufacture of fertilisers, therefore, they are eligible for the benefit of the notification. The Notification No. 81/75-C.E., dated 22-3-1975 exempts from excise duty the sulphuric acid intended for use in the manufacture of fertilisers. We find the issue is covered by the decision of the Tribunal in the case of Fertiliser Corporation of India Limited v. C.C.E., Patna reported in [1997 (23) RLT 594 (CEGAT)]. In this case, the Tribunal, while following the earlier decisions in the cases of Fertilizer Corporation of India Limited v. C.C.E., Patna reported in [1987 (30) E.L.T. 507] and C.C.E., Patna v. Hindustan Fertiliser Corporation reported in [1996 (85) E.L.T. 187] held that sulphuric acid used in the fertiliser plant is eligible for the benefit of Notification No. 81/75-C.E."

We find merit in the decision and therefore, relying on the said decision, we allow the appeal in so far as use of Sulphuric Acid in the Cooling Towers is concerned.

9. 4th issue relates to use of Sulphuric Acid in the manufacture of Phosphoric Acid (and Phospho Gypsum) which in turn used to produce Ammonium Phosphate. The benefit has been sought to be denied on the ground that bye-product Phospho Gypsum is also manufactured and sold in the open market on payment of duty. It is not in dispute that Ammonium Phosphate is fertilizer. In this regard, the arguments in respect of Sulphuric Acid used in the manufacture of Urea would equally apply that Sulphuric Acid was in turn used for production of Ammonium Sulphate.

9.1 Another objection raised, is in respect of use of Sulphuric Acid and Phosphoric Acid consumed for production of Phospho-gypsum which is a bye-product and sold in the market on payment of duty. The appellant have relied on the extracts of Year Book 2016 (Part-III) wherein following has been stated:-

"Phospho-gypsum is produced as a by-product during the manufacture of phosphoric acid by wet process.

Presently, most phosphoric acid plants dispose the phospho-gypsum generated, by way of stacking it within the plant premises. These stacks are subsequently sold off when demand arises for them. Phospho-gypsum generated from phosphoric acid plants contains three types of impurities such as residual acid, fluorine compounds and trace elements, including those that are radioactive that are considered to be potentially harmful."

The appellant have also relied on various decisions of Hon'ble Apex Court and High Courts as referred to in Para 3.4 above. In the case of National Organic Chemical Industries Limited reported at 2008 (232) ELT 193 (SC) (supra), the Hon'ble Apex Court observed as follows:-

"6. The respondent manufactures petro chemicals falling under chapters 27 and 29 from raw naptha. Raw Naptha is cracked in cracker containing number of burners and heated up to 800 degree centigrade. After the process of cracking, Ethylene and Propylene gases are produced in the factory. These gases are also captively consumed as a refrigerator for cooling since they have the property of reducing temperatures upto 100 degree c. and 30 degree c. respectively.

8. It is the further case of the appellant that as per Exemption Notification No. 217/86-C.E., dated 2-4-1986, the inputs ethylene and propylene (falling under chapter 29) captively consumed in the manufacture of finished goods falling under chapter 29 are exempted from excise duty. As per the said notification such exemption will not be available to ethylene and propylene used in the manufacture of goods falling under chapter 27, namely methane and ethane. In other words, excise duty will have to be paid by the respondent assessee for such of the quantity of ethylene and propylene (inputs) captively consumed and used in the manufacture of products falling under chapter 27 namely methane and ethane.

30. We have heard the learned counsel for the parties at length and perused the judgments cited at the Bar. The Tribunal’s finding that the ethylene and propylene used as refrigerant has been used in or in relation to the manufacture of the same goods. The inevitable and automatic emergence of ethane and methane, therefore, by itself is no ground for denying the exemption contained in the notification. The Tribunal came to the categoric finding that the respondent could not have manufactured ethylene and propylene without manufacturing its by-products ethane and methane. The Tribunal held that in any technology the emergence of ethane and methane was inevitable and hence while it is no doubt correct to say that the ethylene and propylene have been used in or in relation to the manufacture of ethane and methane, the identical quantity of the same goods has simultaneously been used in the manufacture of ethylene and propylene. The emergence of ethane and methane, therefore, cannot be a ground to deny the benefit of exemption to the respondent.

31. In our considered view, no interference is called for in the well-reasoned judgment/order of the Tribunal. The appeal being devoid of any merit is accordingly dismissed. However, in view of the facts & circumstances of the case, the parties are directed to bear their own costs."

We find that ratio of aforesaid decision squarely apply to the instant case.

9.2 Thus, we find no merit in the Revenue's arguments that benefit of Notification No. 12/2012-CE dated 17 March 2012 can be denied on the ground that during manufacture of Phosphoric Acid which in turn used in the manufacture of fertilizer and Phospho-gypsum is manufactured. We find that appellant have admitted liability in respect of Sulphur which is used in the manufacture of Sulphuric Acid and sold in the open market on payment of duty. They have contended that it is Revenue neutral situation. However, we find that liability for Central Excise duty would arise nonetheless in respect of Sulphur used in the manufacture of Phosphoric Acid which was cleared on payment of duty.

10. In this background, we find no penalty can be imposed under Section 11AC, as there is no apparent malafide intention and the issue relates to interpretation. In view of above, we set-aside the demand except for the demand within limitation on the quantity of Sulphur used in the manufacture of Hydroxylamine Sulphate (HX/HAS) and Phosphoric Acid sold by them on payment of duty. In these circumstances the benefit of limitation is also extended.

11. Appeal is partly allowed in the above terms.

APPEARANCE:

Shri. Anand Nainawati, Advocate for the Appellant
Shri. H.K. Jain, Authorised Representative for the Respondent

CORAM: HON’BLE MR. RAMESH NAIR, MEMBER (JUDICIAL)
          HON’BLE MR. RAJU, MEMBER (TECHNICAL)
The present appeals are filed by M/s Gujarat Composite Ltd. (M/s GCL), Shri A.K. Chaturvedi (Vice-president, Works), Shri N.K. Bangur, Managing director, Shri PurshottamSoni (Senior G.M- Finance), Shri H.N.Maheshwari, Executive Director and Shri Basant Kumar Bangur against Order No. 19/COMMISSIONER/RKS/AHD-II/2008 dt. 24.10.2008 passed by Commissioner of Central Excise, Ahmedabad. The facts of the case are that M/s GCL are engaged in manufacture of Asbestos Cement Products viz. Sheets and Pipes falling under chapter 68 of the Central Excise Tariff Act, 1985. They are using Fly Ash, Asbestos Fibre and Cement as an Input. M/s GCL were availing benefit of concessional rate of duty in terms of exemption notification No. 5/99 CE dt. 28.02.99, 6/2000 – CE dt. 01.03.2000 under which they were paying concessional duty on clearances of sheets and pipes subject to the condition that the products should have contained not less than 25% by weight of fly ash or phosphorous Gypsum or both by usage.

1. On the basis of investigation and search, they were issued show cause notice alleging that on the basis of actual weight mixtures report seized from the factory and production shown in the actual wet mixture, the goods contain fly ash less than 25%. The office premise of M/s Vikram foundation and Shree Hanuman Trading company the fly ash suppliers were searched on 17.08.2004 in presence of Shri BasantkumarRaghunathdasBangur, authorised signatory of said firms and he accepted that many times M/s Hanuman Trading only issued bills of Fly ash to M/s GCL without actual supply and such amount was returned in cash. The show cause notice relied upon the Wet Mixture report alleged to be actual and also adjusted. Based upon statements of quality assurance, production, maintenance and finance employees and seized records in the show cause notice it was proposed that M/s GCL are not eligible for exemption under concessional rate of duty as the fly ash content in manufactured product was less than 25% and the Appellant Unit has shown incorrect consumption. It was proposed to demand duty of Rs. 24,65,54,345/- leviable on Asbestos products viz. Pipe and Sheet cleared during the period 01.01.2004 to 17.08.2004 by denying the concessional duty exemption as the goods were cleared in contravention of the same; to impose penalty under section 11AC; to confiscate the finished goods lying in factory as the same was intended to be cleared by availingineligible exemption and since the same was not available for confiscation, to enforce the condition of Bond. The show cause notice also proposed penalty upon Shri N.K. Bangur, Chairman cum Managing Director, Shri H.N. Maheshwari, Executive Director, Shri Arun Kumar Chaturvedi, Vice-President (Works), Shri PurshottamSoni, Senior General manager (Finance), Shri Basant kumarBangur, authorised signatory of M/s Vikram Foundation and Shree Hanuman trading. Vide impugned order the demands and penalties as proposed in show cause notice were confirmed by the adjudicating authority. Hence the present appeals.
production of Sheets/pipes made in his shift. The Wet Mixture report collected by the quality assurance department also notes down the shift wise production on the back side of the Wet mixture report. In addition they also maintain RG-1 Register showing daily production, Note book showing entire production and stocks matured and un-matured, Physical lab register which gives complete break up of finished and unfinished goods, General Shift and Sheet furnishing report prepared by quality control department In charge. It also contains details of materials released for dispatch and production from which details are entered in finished goods record. He submits that vide impugned order a duty demand of Rs. 21,34,09,778/- has been made on sheets and demand of Rs. 3,31,76,764/- on pipes on the ground that the goods contain less than 25% fly ash. The allegation is based upon the consumption of fly ash shown in Wet Mixture report. The actual report as per show cause notice is in register A1, A/4,A5 to A/10 and the Adjusted Wet Mixture report is in document A/2,A/3,A/11 to A/15. The demand in case of Pipes has been confirmed on the ground that the duty liability stands admitted before Settlement Commission. The demand in case of sheets was confirmed on ground that the weight of sheet in dry condition alone is relevant and that the quantity of fly ash used has to be seen vis a vis the total weight of sheet in dry condition. The goods were also ordered to be confiscated on the ground that the goods were in ready to dispatch condition. He takes us through the relevant Exemption Notifications for impugned product issued from time to time. In Notification No. 60/91- CE dt. 25.07.91 the exemption was to goods “containing more than 25% more by weight of fly ash or phosphor-gypsum”. In Notification No. 38/93 – CE dt. 28.02.93 the exemption was given to goods “in which more than 30% by weight (minus the water content) of fly ash of phosphor-gypsum or both has been used”. In Notification No. 38/93 – CE dt. 28.2.93 as amended by Notification No. 79/93-CE dt. 12.03.93 the exemption was given to “goods in which not less than 25% by weight of fly-ash or phosphor-gypsum or both has been used. Further amendments vide notification No. 17/95-CE dt. 16.03.95 added the proviso “provided that the manufacturer maintains proper account in such form and in such manner as the collector of central excise may specify in this behalf for receipt and use of those fly-ash or phospho-gypsum or both, in the manufacture of all goods falling under chapter 68 of the schedule to the central excise tariff act, 1985 and files a monthly return in the form and manner as may be specified by the Collector of Central Excise with the Assistant Collector of Central Excise”. He submits that in all the successive notifications the conditions are identical. He further submits that in case of Asbestos sheet, the adjudicating authority has confirmed demand on the ground that the weight of finished goods has to be taken in dry condition. The actual weight mixture report gives production details based on standard weight i.e Number of sheets x standard weight of sheet, Standard weight of sheet is 38.4 Kg in dry condition as stated by the officer of the company and as per actual Wet Mixture report consumption of Fly Ash had been less than 25%. The finding of the adjudicating authority that weight of finished goods in dry condition is relevant for determining the percentage of use of fly ash is correct but the conclusion that the use of fly ash is less than 25% is wrong. The weight of the finished goods with respect of which the percentage of fly ash has to be arrived at should be determined without any moisture content in finished goods. Vide Circular No. 6/92 dt. 21.10.92, the CBEC Board clarified to maintain shift wise register for ascertaining the percentage of fly ash in final product. However vide Circular No. 477/43/99– CX4 dt. 10.08.99 it was clarified that the percentage by weight of fly ash has to be calculated taking into account of fly ash used with reference to weight of the finished product in dry condition. That circular No. 5/64 dt. 30.6.64 issued in context of notification No. 33/64 granting concessional rate of duty on paper containing not less than 40% of bagasse, jute stalks or cereal straw in form of pulp was issued by CBEC and it was noted that the dry weight of raw materials has to be considered. Thus even if percentage of fly ash has to be determined with respect to finished goods, the weight of finished goods has to be considered without any moisture content. He relies upon decision in case of Sikka Paper Mills Ltd. 1999 (111) ELT 432. He submits that even in the decision of Eternit Everest Ltd. 2002 (150) ELT 1151 (TRI) relied upon by the revenue, the decision supports their contention that weight of goods with respect to which the percentage has to be arrived at should be determined as if no water is contained in those goods. He submits that M/s GCL are engaged in manufacture of Asbestos articles falling under chapter 68. The composition of raw material used by Appellant is Asbestos fibre 5% to 9%, Pulp 1.5% to 2%, Cement 50% to 55%, Fly ash 30% to 36%, H.G Waste 1.5% to 2%. The exemption was denied by lower authority on ground... that if quantity of water used is taken into account then the percentage of fly ash will go down below 25%. The tribunal held that weight of the finished goods is to be considered for arriving at percentage should be in dry condition. Each of the raw material used by them viz. Fly ash, cement, pulp and asbestos fibre are bone dry material and water used has to be ignored as finished goods has to be weighed in dry condition. That in all cases the fly ash used for manufacture of sheet is more than 25%. He also submits that the decision of High Court of Rajasthan cited by the revenue in case of A. Infrastructure Ltd. 2005

9. ELT 111 (RAJ) is not on issue whether weight of finished goods to be taken with moisture or without moisture. He also submits that even if chemically bonded water is taken into account, fly ash use will be more than 25%. After the material is sheeted out from slurry it is in wet condition and the water is added for 21 days to cure/hydrate the cement in the product. Even when the product is used by the customer, it keeps gaining or losing weight by absorbing/ releasing moisture. Therefore dry condition referred to in circular dt. 10.08.99 at the best can include chemically bonded water. He relies upon Volume Encyclopedia of Chemical Technology by Kirk and

(b) page no. 245 of appeal paper book to support his above submission. That in present case as is evident from the wet mixture report alleged to be actual by the Revenue, it shows that in the raw material mix, cement constitutes 55%. 25% (chemically bonded water present after hydration) thereof would be 13.75% dry weight of mix of the raw material. Therefore if total raw material is 100 kgs, the weight of chemically modified water would be 13.75kgs. If dry condition of asbestos sheet is assumed to include chemically treated water, the total weight of asbestos sheet in dry condition would be 113.75 Kgs. Therefore fly ash used is 28.5 Kgs in batch of 100 kgs would be 25% of 113.75 kgs. That whenever fly ash used in not less than28.5% of the total weight of raw materials namely fly ash, cement, asbestos fibre and pulp used in batch, then in such cases fly ash would be more than 25% of weight of asbestos in dry condition, even if it is assumed that dry condition will include chemically combined water. In the present case the actual wet mixture report shows that the fly ash used is not less than the 28.5% for each shift for each day for entire five years except few shifts involving total quantity of 342 mtrs. He relies upon the statement dt. 13.01.2005 of Shri A.K. Chaturvedi based upon experiment conducted in December 1992 that even in normal condition the moisture is 19 to 20% in standard weight. Therefore when the moisture is removed to adjust the weight of sheet, the weight of fly ash would be more than of the weight of sheets. The actual wet mixture report shows that the fly ash mixed is always more than 30% for each shift for each day except some days for a very small quantity as shown by them in their appeal. He takes us through the chart and calculations annexed to the appeal based upon reports in support of his submission. He thus submits that the conditions of the exemption notification were followed and no demand can be made against them.

6 As regard demand on pipes without admitting the demand he submits that the appellants are entitle for adjustment on account of cum duty price and Modvat Credit admissible on Cement Pipes.

4.1 He further submits that the adjudicating authority has confiscated 3270 MT of Asbestos cement sheets and 4589 MT of Asbestos cement pipe on the ground that they were fully finished and their curing period was also over however they were not recorded in RG-1 register and were thus intended to be cleared without payment of excise duty. In this regard, he submits that goods properly accounted for by the appellants and their confiscation under Rule 25 (1)(b) is not warranted. The appellants were maintaining various records for stock and that none of the goods manufactured in the factory goes unaccounted. He submits that records of production are maintained at various stages and only at the final stage the goods are accounted in RG-1 register, therefore, there is no intention to clear the goods without payment of duty. He submits that the appellant have made correspondence vide letter dated. 02.07.1996 the regarding stage at which entries is made in RG-1 register, therefore the stage of entries in RG-
1 register was disclosed to the department. In support, he placed reliance on the following judgments:

15. M/s. Madhu Crimpers Pvt. Ltd-2004 (166) ELT 414 (T)

4.2. He also submits that the issue involved is of interpretation of notification and the appellants understanding regarding such interpretation have submitted Vide there letter No. AR/IV/Fly Ash/98 dated 13.10.1998 to the department. They further made a correspondences vide letter dated 22.10.98, 15.09.99, 29.09.99 and the department's letter dated 26.05.2000 regarding percentage of Fly Ash, therefore, there is no suppression of fact, hence the demand for the extended period is not in sustainable.

4.3. As regard appeal of Shri Basant Kumar Bangur, he submits that during the pendency of appeal Shri Basant Kumar Bangur expired and therefore the appeal filed by him may be abated.

18. Shri Sameer Chitkara ld. AR appeared in the first hearing and during rehearing Shri H.K.Jain appeared for the revenue and reiterate the findings of impugned order. He submits that since as per actual wet mixture reports the content of fly ash was found to be less than 25%, the demands have been correctly made. For the same reason the penalty is also imposable.

19. Heard both the sides and perused the case records. The exemption notification in question i.e 5/99 – CE dt. 28.02.99, 6/2000 – CE dt. 01.03.2000 and other analogues notification during the material time provided exemption to the goods falling under chapter 68 of the CETA of Description “Goods, in which not less than 25% by weight of fly-ash or phosphorgypsum or both have been used” subject to condition of maintenance of proper accounts. The show cause notice on the basis of actual wet mixture reports has alleged that the content of fly ash in Asbestos Sheet was found to be 24.03% and in pipes 14.87%. The adjudicating authority has confirmed demand in case of sheets that the weight of finished goods has to be taken in dry condition; actual weight mixture report gives production details based on standard weight i.e Number of Sheets x standard weight of sheet; standard weight of sheet is 38.4 Kgs in dry condition as stated by the officers of the Appellant Company and as per actual wet mixture report consumption of fly ash has been less than 25%.

15. The Appellant in their reply to show cause notice as well as appeal has submitted chart based upon actual Wet Mixture report, gives details of percentage of quantity of Fly ash used vis-a-vis total raw materials consumed in the manufacture of sheet as per wet mixture report which is almost 31.5% on average basis. Taking date of production of 30.12.2001, the chart takes into account, the date of production/consumption, Total production as per production report of all three shifts in respect of sheets, pipes and moulded goods, details of fly ash consumed shift wise, percentage of fly ash used vis a vis shift wise production as per production report, total raw materials consumed shift wise as per actual wet mixture report and percentage of fly ash used shift wise. On the basis of shift wise entries the actual production as per actual wet mixture report is Shift-I 27.904 MT, Shift – II 25.856 MT, Shift-III- 33.024 MT. The fly ash content in said production in wet form is as under:
The raw materials used for the production of sheet as per Actual Wet mixture Report shiftwise were Shift – I - 21,966 MT, Shift – II - 19,874 MT, Shift – III - 27,196 MT. The percentage of fly ash vis-a-vis total raw material ignoring the moisture is as under:

- Shift – I = \( \frac{6.93}{21.96} \times 100 = 31.5487\% \)
- Shift – II = \( \frac{6.27}{19.874} \times 100 = 31.5487\% \)
- Shift – III = \( \frac{8.58}{27.196} \times 100 = 31.5487\% \)

7.1 The above undisputed position emerging from actual production and consumption based upon actual wet mixture reports the use of Fly ash in Sheets were above 25%. The CBEC vide Circular No. 6/92 dt. 21.10.92 clarified to maintain shift wise register for ascertaining the percentage of fly ash in final product. Vide Circular No. 477/43/99 – CX.4 dt. 10.08.99, the Board clarified that the percentage by weight of fly ash has to be calculated taking into account the weight of fly ash used with reference to the weight of the finished product in dry condition. The gist of the same is as under:

“I am directed to say that it has been brought to the notice of the Board that there is non-uniformity in the practice with regard to determine of percentage of fly ash in the asbestos cement products for the purpose of eligibility of exemption available under Notification No. 60/91 and succeeding notifications presently Notification No. 5/99 (S. No. 179). Some Commissionerates, reportedly have taken a view that percentage of fly ash should be determined taking into account weight of all the raw materials including water used in the manufacture whether continued or not in the final product, whereas some other have taken a view that water contents should not be considered for the purpose of calculating the proportion of fly ash. Some Commissionerates are calculating the percentage with reference to the weight at the wet stage and others at the dry stage of asbestos cement products.

The matter has been re-examined by the Board and it is clarified that the percentage by weight of fly ash has to be calculated taking into account the weight of fly ash used with reference to the weight of the finished product in dry condition i.e. weight of fly ash x 1000/weight of asbestos cement products. The Commissioner may keep the proforma as prescribed under Board’s Circular No. 6/92, dated 21-10-1992 issued from F. No. 134/7/92-CX.4 in mind while specifying the accounts to be maintained by the manufacturers.”

(15) From the above, it is an accepted position of revenue that weight of fly ash used should be with reference to the weight of the finished product in dry condition and thus the percentage of fly ash has to be determined with respect to weight of finished goods without moisture content. In case of Eternit Everest Ltd 2002 (150) ELT 1151 (TRI), the percentage use of raw material was Asbestos fibre 5% to 9%; Pulp 1.5% to 2%; Cement 50% to 55%; Fly ash 35 to 36%; H.G. waste 1.5% to 2%. The tribunal held that the weight of goods with respect to which the percentage has to be arrived at should be determined as if no water is contained in these goods. In the present case the raw material for use in production i.e fly ash, cement, pulp and asbestos fibre are bone dry. The water used in process has to be ignored for computing the ash percentage and weight of finished goods. Since the fly ash used in production is more than 25% as is apparent from the wet mixture content report, therefore it has to be considered that the goods fulfil the condition of the Exemption notification. We also note that in case of Sikka Paper Mills Ltd. 1999 (111) ELT 432, the Tribunal upheld the order passed by the adjudicating authority wherein he held that the paper contains moisture of 5% and additives of 3% and therefore deducted 8% from the total weight of finished paper to arrive at the pulp content. The Bagasse pulp used by the assessee was compared with the total pulp so computed by backward calculation and the adjudicating authority concluded that bagasse has been used to the extent of 75% by weight so as to become eligible for exemption under Notification No. 48/99 – CE which provided use of pulp containing more than 75% bagasse pulp. The decision of the Tribunal thus clearly shows that moisture has to be ignored while arriving at weight of finished goods. Thus we find that the fly ash content in sheet is more than 25% and the Appellant are eligible for the exemption on Asbestos Sheet. However in respect of some quantity of Asbestos Sheet it was admitted by the appellant that fly ash quantity is less than 25% on which duty liability comes to Rs. 2,80,000/- which is liable to be upheld. Accordingly duty demand of Rs. 21,31,29,778/- (Rs.21,34,09,778-2,80,000/-) in respect of Asbestos Cement Sheet and corresponding, Interest and penalty are set aside.

(v) As regard asbestos pipes, we find that the Appellant could not establish that the contents of fly ash in asbestos pipe are more than 25%. Unlike in sheet, the use of fly ash in pipe is much lower than 25% even after excluding the water content. The appellant also not pressed much upon the issue related to pipe. Their main contention in regard to demand on pipe is that they are entitled for cum duty price and modvat credit on the inputs used in the manufacture of Asbestos Pipe. We agree with the appellant on these points that the appellant is legally entitle for the benefit of cum duty price and modvat credit as settled in catena of judgments. Accordingly the duty demand on the Asbestos Pipe shall be re-quantified after allowing the benefit of cum duty price and modvat credit. As per re-quantification submitted by the appellant, the duty on Asbestos Pipe comes to Rs.2,32,20,340/- and on asbestos sheet Rs. 2,80,000/- which is subject matter of verification by the adjudicating authority. Since the duty on pipe/sheet shall be re-quantified, the option of 25% penalty under section corresponding to such re-quantified duty on pipe and sheet is also extended to the appellant in terms of proviso to section 11AC of Central Excise Act, 1944.

(vi) The adjudicating authority in the impugned order confiscated Asbestos Cement pipe and sheets. Considering the submission made in this regard by the Learned Counsel, we find that the appellant in the various correspondences informed the department regarding the stage of making entries in RG-1. It is also observed that the appellant, apart from RG-1 register have been maintaining various other records such as Wet Mixture Reports, Daily Production Reports/Register, Physical Lab Register, General shift furnishing report, Stock register, RG-1 register. Maintenance of these records were not in dispute, as some of these records were relied upon in show cause notice raising the demand, therefore, it cannot be said the stock of goods not entered in RG-1 register is with intent to clear the goods without payment of duty. Moreover, not a single incident of clandestine removal was brought on record by the Revenue. In this fact, we find that the adjudicating authority has erred in confiscating the goods on the pretext of non accountal of the same in RG-1 register. We therefore, set aside the confiscation and consequential redemption fine imposed upon the appellant.

17. As regard personal penalty imposed upon various persons related to the appellant company, we find that the penalty was imposed commensurate to the quantum of total duty and in view of gravity of offence. As held by us above the duty demand has been reduced substantially and the issue involved is of interpretation of notification, therefore the personal penalty also need to be reduced. Accordingly, considering the overall facts & circumstances of the case and our above discussions, the penalty is reduced on Shri Shri A.K. Chaturvedi (Vice-president, Works) to Rs.3,00,000/-, on Shri Shri N.K. Bangur, Managing Director to Rs.3,00,000/-, on Shri
18. All the appeals are partly allowed in the above terms, except the appeal filed by Shri Basant Kumar Bangur which is abated due to his demise.

The facts of the present case is that the appellant is a registered dealer who has issued Cenvatable invoices on which M/s Kothi Steel Ltd. had availed the Cenvat Credit. The case of the department is that the appellant has issued bogus invoice and no goods were sold under those invoices to M/s Kothi Steel Ltd. The appellant sold waste and scrap of iron steel (imported as well as domestic) to M/s Kothi Steel Ltd. To adjust the payment received from M/s Kothi Steel Ltd., there is no evidence of clearance. For this offence, a penalty under Rule 15 of Cenvat Credit Rules, 2004 and Rule 26 of Central Excise Rule, 2002 were imposed on the ground that the appellant alongwith Shri Mohammad Firdos Kothi, Managing Director of M/s Kothi Steel Ltd. involved in devising a well orchestrated plan to default the Government Revenue by arranging bogus invoices and subsequent availment of Cenvat Credit on the strength of those invoices by M/s Kothi Steel Ltd. A Show Cause Notice was issued wherein penalty under Rule 15 of Cenvat Credit Rules, 2004 and Rule 26 of Central Excise Rules, 2002 for their alleged violation of provision of Rule 10,11 & 12 of Central Excise Rules, 2002 and Rule 3, 4, 7 & 9 of Cenvat Credit Rules, 2004 was proposed. The Adjudicating Authority, while adjudicating the case, imposed a penalty of Rs. 10 lakhs on the present appellant, Shri Naresh Agrawal, proprietor of M/s Agrawal Impex under Rule 15 of Cenvat Credit Rules, 2004. In addition, one more penalty of Rs. 10 lakhs was imposed on the appellant under Rule 26 of Central Excise Rules, 2002. The appellant, being aggrieved by the Order-in-Original, filed an appeal before the Commissioner (Appeal), who vide impugned order upheld the decision of the Adjudicating Authority in the Original order dated 29/10/2011 and consequently, the appeal filed by the appellant was rejected. Therefore, the present appeal filed by the appellant.

20. Shri S.J. Vyas, learned counsel appearing on behalf of the appellant submits that as regard imposition of penalty under Rule 15, the said penalty is imposable only on the person who takes or utilizes Cenvat credit. In the present case, the appellant has neither taken nor utilized Cenvat Credit whereas the same was availed and utilized by M/s Kothi Steel Ltd. in whose favour the invoice was issued. Therefore, the penalty under Rule 15 of Cenvat Credit Rules, 2004 was wrongly imposed on the appellant. As regard the penalty imposed under Rule 26 of Central Excise Rules, 2002, he heavily relied on the decision of Madras High Court in the case of M/s Aeon Formulations Pvt. Ltd v/s The Commissioner of Central Excise, Puducherry 2019 (12) TMI 530.

21. Shri Sanjiv Kinker, Learned Superintendent (Authorised Representative) appearing on behalf of the Revenue reiterates the findings of the impugned order. He submits that the judgment in the case of Aeon Formulations Pvt. Ltd. (supra) relied upon by the learned counsel cannot be applied in the present case as the facts of that case are entirely different from the facts of the present case. He submits that in the said case, the assessee had paid the entire amount of duty with interest on mistake being pointed out. In the said case, the Hon’ble High Court of Madras has held that in the case of appellant, imposition of 100% penalty under Rule 26 of Central Excise Rule, 2002 is excessive under the circumstances as alleged ineligible credit probably passed on to buyer is not only recoverable under Rule 14 of Cenvat Credit Rules, 2004, but also because the appellant has paid the amount back with interest before issuance of show cause notice. The penalty was reduced to a token penalty of Rs. 5,000/-. He submitted that the submission of the learned counsel that Rule 26 (2)(ii) of Central Excise Rules, 2002 was held not correct as the Hon’ble High Court did not express its opinions on jurisdiction or validity of Rule 26 (2)(ii) of Central Excise Rules, 2002. Therefore, the facts of the Hon’ble Madras High Court judgment are different from the facts of the present case.

22. We have heard both sides and perused the records. The appellant has challenged the imposition of penalty under Rule 15 of Cenvat Credit Rules, 2004 and Rule 26 of Central Excise Rules, 2002. Rule 15 of Cenvat Credit Rules, 2004 is reproduced below:

23. If any person, takes or utilises CENVAT credit in respect of input or capital goods or input services, wrongly or in contravention of any of the provisions of these rules, then, all such goods shall be liable to confiscation and such person, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding the duty or service tax on such goods or services, as the case may be, or two thousand rupees, whichever is greater.

24. In a case, where the CENVAT credit in respect of input or capital goods or input services has been taken or utilised wrongly by reason of fraud, collusion or any willful mis-statement or suppression of facts, or contravention of any of the provisions of the Excise Act, or of the rules made thereunder with intent to evade payment of duty, then, the manufacturer shall also be liable to pay penalty in terms of the provisions of section 11AC of the Excise Act.

25. In a case, where the CENVAT credit in respect of input or capital goods or input services has been taken or utilised wrongly by reason of fraud, collusion or any willful mis-statement or suppression of facts, or contravention of any of the provisions of these rules or of the Finance Act or of the rules made thereunder with intent to evade — payment of service tax, then, the provider of output service shall also be liable to pay penalty in terms of the provisions of Section 78 of the Finance Act.

26. Any order under sub-rule (1), sub-rule (2) or sub-rule (3) shall be issued by the Central Excise Officer following the principles of natural justice.”

From the plain reading of the above, it is clear that the penalty under Rule 15 can be imposed only on that person who takes or utilizes the Cenvat credit. If in any case, any manufacturer who is liable to pay duty on final product wrongly avails and utilizes the credit in respect of inputs, he is liable for penalty under Rule 15. In the present case, the appellant has neither taken the credit, nor utilized the credit, whereas he has only issued a Cenvatable invoice to some other company M/s Kothi Steel Ltd. Therefore, the Rule 15 is not applicable in the present case. Hence, penalty imposed under Rule 15 of Cenvat Credit Rule, 2004 by the lower authorities is illegal and incorrect. Hence, the same is set aside.

4.1 As regard penalty imposed under Rule 26 of Central Excise Rules, 2002, the learned counsel has heavily relied upon the case of Aeon Formulations Pvt. Ltd. (supra). However, we find that as pointed out by the learned Authorised Representatives, there are differences in the facts between the present case and in the case of Aeon Formulations Pvt. Ltd. (supra). It is also observed that High Court has not held penalty under Rule 26(2)(ii) as invalid. Therefore, ratio of this judgment is not directly applicable. On the contrary, we find that the same issue has been considered by the Hon’ble High Court of Punjab & Haryana in the case of Vee Kay Enterprise 2011 266 ELT 436 (P&H) which was followed by this Tribunal in the case of Commissioner of Central excise, Ahmedabad v/s Navneet Agarwal 2012

6 E.L.T. 515 (Tri- Ahmd.) wherein it was held that penalty under Rule 26 (2) is imposable on the person who has issued the invoices without supply of goods. The Tribunal’s order is reproduced below:

“4. I have considered the submissions made by learned DR. In this case, the issue as to whether Shri Navneet Agarwal is liable to penalty under Rule 26 of the Central Excise Rules, 2002 when the Rule 26(2) was not in force. For ready reference, Rule 25 and 26 of Central Excise Rules, 2002 are reproduced as below:

“Rule 25 - Confiscation and Penalty:

10. Subject to the provisions of Section 11AC of the Act, if any producer, manufacturer, registered person or a warehouse or a registered dealer-remove any exciseable goods in contravention of any of the provisions of these rules or the notifications issued under these rules; or does not account for any exciseable goods produced or manufactured or stored by him; or engages in the manufacture, production or storage or any exciseable goods without having applied for the registration certificate required under section 6 of the Act; or contravenes any of the provisions of these rules or the notifications issued under these rules with intent to evade payment of duty, then, all such goods shall be liable to confiscation and the producer or manufacturer or registered person of the warehouse or a registered dealer, as the case may be, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding the duty on the excisable goods in respect of which any contravention of the nature referred to in clause (a) or clause (b) or clause (c) or clause (d) has been committed, or [rupees two thousand] whichever is greater.

11. An order under sub-rule (1) shall be issued by the Central Excise Officer, following—the principles of natural justice."

"Rule 26. Penalty for certain offences :

Any person who acquires possession of, or is in any way concerned in transporting, removing, depositing, keeping, concealing, selling or purchasing, or in any other manner deals with, any excisable goods which he knows or has reason to believe are liable to confiscation under the Act or these rules, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding the duty on such goods or [two thousand rupees], whichever is greater.

Any person, who is-

27.an excise duty invoice without delivery of the goods specified therein or abets in making such invoice; or

28.any other document or abets in making such document, on the basis of which the user of said invoice or document is likely to take or has taken any ineligible benefit under the Act or the rules made thereunder like claiming of CENVAT Credit under the CENVAT Credit Rules, 2004 or refund, shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding the amount of such benefit or five thousand rupees, whichever is greater."

"10. In spite of non-applicability of Rule 26(2), penalty could be levied as the appellant was concerned in selling or dealing with the goods which were liable to confiscation inasmuch as the appellant claimed to have sold the goods in respect of which the cenvat credit was taken. In such a case, Rule 25(1)(d) and 26(1) are also applicable. The person who purports to sell goods cannot say that he was not a person concerned with the selling of goods and merely issued invoice or that he did not contravene a provision relating to evasion of duty. The appellant issued invoices without delivery of goods with intent to enable evasion of duty to which effect a finding has been recorded and which finding has not been challenged. We are, thus, unable to hold that appellant was not liable to pay any penalty."

"The view taken by the Hon’ble High Court of Punjab & Haryana was that when a person was concerned in selling and dealing with the goods which were liable to confiscation under Rule 25(1)(d), Rule 26(1) is also applicable. In this case also, as in the case of M/s. Vee Kay Enterprises, the appellant claimed to have sold goods in respect of which cenvat credit was taken. The Hon’ble High Court observed that a person who proposed to sell the goods cannot say that he was not a person concerned with selling of goods and merely issued the invoices. In view of the decision of Hon’ble High Court of Punjab & Haryana, the decision of the Larger Bench of the Tribunal cannot be followed. Moreover, the decision of the Hon’ble High Court is subsequent to the decision of the Larger Bench decision. Further, the Hon’ble High Court has clearly held that penalty is imposable even prior to amendment of Rule by inserting Rule 26(2) of Central Excise Rules, 2002."

In view of the above discussions, impugned order is set-aside and appeal filed by the Revenue is allowed."
In view of above settled position, we are of the view that the penalty under Rule 26 was rightly imposed on the appellant. Hence, the same is upheld. Appeal is partly allowed in the above terms.

Per: Raju:

This appeal has been filed by M/s Bharat Resins against confirmation of demand of Cenvat Credit.

2. Ld. Counsel for the appellant pointed out that for the invoice issued during the period 02/04/2014-31/08/2014, they availed credit on 28/02/2015. At the material time sub-rule (7) of Rule 4 of Cenvat Credit Rules restricted availment of credit by virtue of the following proviso:

"Provided also that the manufacturer or the provider of output service shall not take Cenvat Credit after six months of the date of issue of any of the documents specified in sub-rule (1) of rule 9."

2.1 Ld. Counsel pointed out that immediately thereafter on 01/03/2015 the said proviso was amended and the word 'six months' was replaced by 'one year'. Ld.
Counsel argued that however credit was taken after six months after payment of duty, it was taken within one year within payment of duty. He argued that credit should not be denied in these circumstances.

2.2 As an alternate argument, Ld. Counsel pleaded that once the credit has been utilized, demand under Rule 14 of the Cenvat Credit Rules cannot be sustained. For this purpose, he relied on the decision of Sejasmi Industries India Pvt. Ltd. Vs. CCE &
S.T., Ahmedabad-iii Order no. A/13015/2017 dated 03.10.2017 wherein in similar circumstances credit has been allowed. Ld. Counsel also argued that the matter is barred by limitation as extended period has been invoked.

3. Ld. AR relies on the impugned order. He also relied on the decision of the Hon’ble High Court of Bombay in the case JCB India Ltd. vs. Union of India reported at 2018
(15) G.S.T.L. 145 (Bom.). He argued that the Cenvat Credit Rules are strongly implemented as it seen as a concession granted and not as a right. He also relied on the decision in the case of SICGIL Industrial Gases Ltd. Vs. C.C.E. & Cus. Anand. FO

4. I have gone through rival submission. I find that it is not in dispute that when the credit was taken i.e. on 28.02.2015, proviso to sub rule (7) of Rule 4 of CCR provided that such credit could not have been availed. I find significant force in the argument of Ld. AR wherein he relied on the decision of Hon’ble High Court of Bombay in the case of JCB India Ltd. (supra):

This Rule sets out conditions for allowing Cenvat credit. One of the conditions and which is heavily relied upon by the Learned Additional Solicitor General is to be found in sub-rule (7) of Rule 4. It is, therefore, evident that the fifth proviso to sub-rule (7) of Rule 4 would indicate that availment of Cenvat credit is conditional upon the satisfaction of all the provisos. Thus, there is a period stipulated for availment of this Cenvat credit. In addition thereto, there are conditions imposed for the availment.

56. To our mind, therefore, the learned Additional Solicitor General is right in his contention that a Cenvat credit is a mere concession and it cannot be claimed as a matter of right. If the Cenvat Credit Rules under the existing legislation themselves stipulate and provide for conditions for availment of that credit, then, that credit on inputs under the existing law itself is not a absolute but a restricted or conditional right. It is subject to fulfilment or satisfaction of certain requirements and conditions that the right can be availed of.

4.1 The rule was clear and there was no ambiguity in the Rule. The rule changed with effect from 01/03/2015 and the words ‘six months’ were changed to ‘one year’. In the case of SICGIL Industries Ltd. (supra), the Tribunal has observed as follows:

"4. On careful consideration, I find that the provisions inserted in Rule 2(l) of Cenvat Credit Rules, 2004 on 11.7.2014 reads as under:

"Provided also that the manufacturer or provider of output service shall not take cenvat credit after six months of the date of issue of any of the documents specified in sub-rule (1) of Rule 9"

It can be seen from the above reproduced provision, the Rule specifically mandate that cenvat credit shall not be taken after six months of the date of issue of any of the documents. I have no hesitation to hold that this proviso will apply from the date 1.9.2014 for the availment of cenvat credit after that date. Undisputedly, the case in hand, the cenvat credit was availed on documents indicating the date of issue of the said document prior to the date of availing the credit though they may have been shown prior to 1.9.14."

Relying on the aforesaid decision, I hold that amendment made to the said proviso vide notification no. 06/2015-C.E. [N.T.] dated 01.03.2015 would have prospective effect. Consequently, the credit would not be admissible to the appellant since the duty was paid during the period 02.04.2014-31.08.2014 and credit was availed on 28.02.2015.

Ld. Counsel argued that demand cannot be confirmed if credit is already utilized. For this purpose, he relied on the decision of the Tribunal in the case of Sejasmi Industries India Pvt. Ltd. (supra). It is seen that in the said case, the credit was sought to be denied on the ground that proper records were not maintained and credit was availed on finished goods in contravention of provisions of Rule 16 of Central Excise Rules. Reliance has been placed on the decision of M/s Hi-Tech Blow Moulders Pvt. Ltd. Vs. Commr. of C. Ex., Bangalore 2016 (341) ELT 419 (Tri- Bangalore). In the case of M/s Hi-Tech Blow Moulders, the facts were that certain goods which were not in the factory and on which credit was availed were cleared after certain processes on payment of duty. Revenue challenged the process undertaken did not amount to manufacture. It is in this background that the said decision was passed. If the goods brought in the factory on which credit was availed and when the process undertaken on it did not amount to manufacture then for the reason that no new product came into existence, payment of duty would have amounted to reversal of credit on the same goods. Moreover, in that case if the process did not amounted to manufacture, there was no Central Excise levy and therefore, since the amount was paid by reversal of Cenvat Credit where no Cenvat reversal liability arise. In those circumstances, it was held that the Cenvat Credit cannot be denied. In view of that I find that the decision relied upon by the appellant are in totally different facts.

4.1 I also find that the Ld. Counsel has raised the point of limitation. I find that the proviso to sub rule (7) of Rule 4 of CCR clearly prescribes as follows:

"Provided also that the manufacturer or the provider of output service shall not take Cenvat Credit after six months of the date of issue of any of the documents specified in sub-rule (1) of rule 9."

There is absolutely no ambiguity in the law and thus, the availment of credit within six months clearly amounts to misdeclaration, suppression and fraud. Thus, extended period has been rightly invoked.
5. In these circumstances, I do not find any merit in the appeal. The appeal is dismissed.

HON’BLE MEMBER (JUDICIAL) , MR. RAMESH NAIR

Date of Hearing: 30/07/2019
The appellants are engaged in the manufacture of pumps & pump sets. On the basis of intelligence that the appellants are indulged in evasion of Excise duty by way of clandestine clearance of their finished goods and also by wrongly availing exemption under notification 12/2012 dated 17.03.2012, an enquiry was conducted. The Show Cause Notice was adjudicated. The Adjudication Authority dropped the demand of Rs. 13,60,895/- related to notification no. 12/2012. Further, a demand of Rs. 1,20,465/- against the clandestine removal of the goods was confirmed. Consequently, penalty of equal amount was also confirmed. Penalty was also imposed on the partner of the appellant. Being aggrieved by the OIO, Appellants filed appeal before Commissioner (Appeal), who concurring with the Adjudicating Authority, upheld the OIO. Therefore, present appeals.

30. Shri R. Subramanya, Ld. Counsel appearing on behalf of the appellant submits that the demand was raised on the basis of delivery challans record of the appellant. In this regard statements of two buyers were recorded whereas there are a number of buyers whereas only on the basis of statement of two buyers, entire demand was confirmed. He also submits that the appellant have issued invoices. Therefore, there is no clandestine removal. He submits that at the most, demand can be confirmed only in respect of two buyers who have admitted the purchase of clandestinely removed goods. On the query from the bench to the Counsel that whether there is any correlation or reconciliation between the so called delivery challan and invoices were submitted to the lower authority. He fairly denied any such exercise done by the appellant.

31. Shri S.N. Gohil, Ld. Supdt. (AR) appearing on behalf of the Revenue reiterates the findings of the impugned order. He invited my attention to the Show Cause Notice as well as the statements of the appellant’s partner wherein it was admitted that they have cleared the goods with or without invoices.

32. I have heard both sides and perused the records. I find that demand of Rs. 1,20,465/- was confirmed on the basis of challans recovered from the appellant which were accepted in the confessional statements of the partners of the appellant firm. The appellant could not produce any proof that against the goods cleared under any invoices were issued. Therefore, it is clear that the goods cleared under challan, there were no invoices issued by the appellant. Consequently, no excise duty was paid. Therefore, this is a clear case of clandestine removal of goods. Accordingly, I do not see any infirmity in the impugned order, hence, the impugned order is sustained.

4.1 As regard the appeal filed by partner, I find that the partnership firm has already been penalized. There cannot be separate penalty against the partner as held in the judgment in the case of Shri Pravin N. Shah vs. CESTAT 2014 (305) E.L.T. 480 (Guj.). As a result, appeal no. E/ 16276/2018 on F Tech Engineering Co. is dismissed. Appeal no. E/12677/2017 filed by the Shri Jignesh Pambhar is allowed.

This appeal has been filed by M/s Hi Scan Pvt. Ltd. against confirmation of demand and imposition of penalty.

33. Ld. Counsel pointed out that the appellants are engaged in manufacturing plane/printed cartons and boxes, labels, envelopes etc. on their own. They are also manufacturing various goods of Chapter 38, 48 and 49 on job work and using material supplied by various principals like Vinay Printing Press, Gujarat Education Board etc. The appellant were availing benefit of small scale exemption Notification 8/03-CE. The appellant had taken into account only the value of clearance of those goods which were being manufactured by them on their own while availing Notification 8/03. They had not included the value of goods which was manufactured by them on job work basis on behalf of the various principals. On 13.09.2006 the appellant had taken the Central Excise Registration after crossing the Rs. 400 Lakhs limit in the year 2005-06. On 30.09.2006 and 04.07.2006 Central Excise Officers visited the premises and withdrew samples and documents and also recorded statements of various employees. The appellant deposited duty of Rs. 6,80,253/- for clearance from 01.04.2006 to September 2006. Thereafter a SCN was issued to the appellant seeking to include the value of goods manufactured on job work basis for the period 2003-04 to 2006-07. After such addition, it was alleged that the appellants were not entitled to small scale exemption from the entire period of financial year 2003-2004 to 2006-2007 and duty of Rs. 26,51,382/- was demanded. All the above allegation were bases on the assertion that none of the principals who had supplied the goods for manufacture of job work basis to the appellant were registered and they had not filed any declaration/ undertaking under Notification 214/86-CE. Ld. Counsel pointed out that Tribunal had held in many cases that the benefit of job work notification cannot be denied to job worker even if the supplier of raw material had not followed the procedure prescribed in Notification 214/86. He pointed out that even the Additional Commissioner had in the O-I-O held that the benefit of job work notification cannot be denied merely because the supplier of material had not followed the procedure of the Notification. He pointed out that para 3A(e) of SSI Notification 08/03 provides that clearance value of the goods laid on job work under Notification 214/86 or 83/94 or 84/94 are not to be taken into account the aggregate value of excisable goods under 2(vii) of SSI Notification. Consequently, the original adjudicating authority had dropped the demand for the period prior to 01.04.2006 and the demand for the period after 01.04.2006 was confirmed. Revenue reviewed the said decision and Commissioner (Appeals) in the impugned order confirmed the demand and also imposed equal penalty.

2.1 It was argued that all the goods like books, catalogues, booklets etc. exempt under Notification 214/86 if manufactured on job work basis out of material supplied by principals they had not included the said aggregate value while computing the aggregate value of clearance of Rs. 300 Lakhs/ 400 Lakhs in a financial year. He pointed out that in the following decision, it has been held that benefit of Notification 214/86 cannot be denied to a job worker only because the principal has not follow the procedure of filing the declaration/ undertaking.

34. SreeRayalseem Dutch Kassenbouw Ltd. 2006(203)ELT248 (Tri. Bang)
35. Moon Chemicals 2007 (83) RLT 253 (CESTAT-Che.)
36. Salem Weld Mesh 2007 (83) RLT 568 (CESTAT-Che.)
38. Aggarwal Rolling Mills 1997 (93) ELT 615 (Tri.)

2.2 It was argued that in terms of Section 35A(3) of the Central Excise Act, the Commissioner and enhance penalty only after giving reasonable opportunity of showing cause against the proposed order and that Commissioner can pass any order requiring payment of any duty not levied or paid or short payment only giving notice within the time limit prescribed under Section 11A to SCN against the proposed order. He argued that in this case no notice was issued thus the order of Commissioner (Appeals) confirming demand of duty and imposition of penalty are without jurisdiction. He pointed out that in the instant case the receipt of goods, manufactured of finished goods on job work basis and returned of goods is not disputed and thus benefit of Notification 214/86 cannot be denied only because the supplier of raw material had not furnished an undertaking upon himself to pay Central Excise duty on the goods produced on job work basis. He relied on the following decisions in support of his case:

40. Commr. v/s Bharat Foundry 2009 (246) ELT 561
42. Inar Profiles Pvt. Ltd. 2014 (310) ELT 200

2.3 He further argued that the notice is barred by limitation the appellant had a bonafide belief that in these circumstances the goods manufactured on job work basis are exempted from Central Excise duty. He further pointed out that all the decisions rendered by Tribunal also held that if the supplier of raw material does not follow any procedure the benefit of Notification 214/86-CE cannot be denied. He argued that since the appellant took registration as soon as they cross the limit of 400 Lakhs by the end of financial year 2005-06 it shows the bonafide of the appellant.

7 Ld. AR relies on the decision of Larger Bench of the Tribunal in the case of Tehrmax Babcock & Wilcox Ltd. 2018 (364) ELT 945 (Tri. LB). He pointed out that in case of job work the liability to duty is of the job worker and not of the principal. He argued that in the instant case it was not merely a case of failure to give declaration but a case of ineligibility of the principals to avail notification to supply the goods under Notification 214/86. He pointed out that only registered persons who are paying Central Excise duty can supply the goods under Notification 214/86.

8 Subsequently, vide additional submissions Ld. Counsel submitted that liability to duty in case of job work was in doubt and that doubt was settled to rest by decision of Larger Bench in case of Thermax Babcock & Wilcox Ltd. (supra). He argued that since there was a dispute in law and the matter was referred to Larger Bench extended period of limitation cannot be invoked. He relied on the decision of Tribunal in the case of Marsha Pharma Pvt. Ltd. 2009 (248) ELT 687. He argued that the fact that the matter was referred to Larger Bench, itself indicate that there was a reason to have a bonafide doubt.

9 We have gone through rival submissions. We find that in the instant case it is not in dispute that the appellant has received material for manufacture under job work and has failed to take into account the goods manufactured on job work basis into the aggregate value of goods cleared by the appellant. It is also not in dispute that the supplier of goods have not followed the procedures prescribed under Notification 214/86.

10 The appellants have pointed out that at the material time there were various decisions which held that failure to follow the procedure prescribed under Notification 214/86-CE does not disentitle the assessee from the benefit of the said notification. Moreover, it has been argued that the liability of duty on goods manufactured on job work basis, on the manufacture vis a vis the principal who supplied the material, was also in doubt. The issue regarding liability of manufacturer vis a vis the principal was referred to Larger Bench of Tribunal. Larger Bench in case of Thermax Babcock & Wilcox Ltd. (supra) finally resolved the doubt. He pointed out that in view of above, the extended period of limitation cannot be invoked. In support of this contention, he relied on the decision of Tribunal in the case of Marsha Pharma Pvt. Ltd. (supra).

12. We find that as per the decision of Thermax Babcock & Wilcox Ltd. (supra) the liability to pay duty in respect of goods produced on job work basis lies with the appellant being manufacturer of goods. However, since the issue regarding liability of duty on manufacturer vis a vis principal was referred to Larger Bench of Tribunal in case of Thermax Babcock & Wilcox Ltd. (supra) extended period of limitation cannot be invoked in view of the decision of Tribunal in case of Marsha Pharma Pvt. Ltd. In view of above, demand beyond the normal period of limitation is set aside. The penalty is also set aside. Appeal is partly allowed in above terms.

The brief facts of the case are that appellant M/s J & J Plast and M/s Balaji Multiplex Pvt. Ltd are engaged in manufacture of Plastic jerry can and pet bottles on job work basis for the principal manufacturer M/s Ankur Oil Industries, Ankur Protein Industries Ltd and Balaji Wafers Pvt. Ltd. Similarly, M/s Apex (guj) Plastochem Pvt. Ltd, Vijapur, Mehsana are engaged in manufacture of Plastic Container (jar) on job work basis for oil manufacturer namely, M/s Vimal Oil and Food Ltd, Mehsana and M/s Gujarat Spices and Oil Seed Growers Co-Op Union Ltd, Anjar. The raw materials are supplied by the principal manufacturer directly from the place of supplier to the job worker. The job workers are not paying duty on the goods manufactured on job work basis and clear to their principal. The case of the department is that the principal manufacturer are using the job worker manufactured goods in the manufacture of exempted goods, therefore, the job worker being a manufacturer are required to pay excise duty. Accordingly, the excise duty demand was confirmed against the present appellants, therefore, these appeals.

2. Sh. P.M. Dave with Sh. D.K. Trivedi Ld. Counsel & Sh. K.C. Rathod, Ld. Consultant for the appellant submits that at the material time there was general impression among the job worker that job work production i.e. goods produced out of inputs and raw material supplied by others was not to be considered as goods manufactured by the job worker and liabilities of excise duty for the such goods were to be discharged by the supplier of the raw material. He submits that even though as per SSI Exemption Notification No. 1/93-CE & 8/2003-CE, this Tribunal held in few of cases that value of goods produced on job work was not be taken into consideration while determining the aggregate value of clearances form the factory gate. Para 3(A) (e) of SSI exemption Notification provided for exclusion of goods which were exempted under Notification No. 214/86-CE dated 25.03.1986 and two other job work Notification even though the supplier of the material had not followed the procedure of job work Notification. In view of such impression about the job work production, the appellant have not paid the duty on packaging material produced by them on job work and valuation of such job work production is also not been taken into consideration while determining the aggregate value of clearances from their factories in a financial year. There is no evidence of any statement of any person belonging to appellant's organization indicating that duty was not paid even though the appellant knew that they were required to pay excise duty on their job work production or that the supplier of raw material had informed that they were required to pay excise duty on packaging materials produced on job work because such principals were using packaging material for manufacturing of exempted goods. The impression of the job worker appellant was based on various judgments which are cited below:

a. Aggarwal Rolling Mills 1997 (93) ELT 615 (Tribunal)
b. Sree Rayalaseema Dutch Kassenbouw Ltd 2006 (203) ELT 248 (Tri.-Bang.)
c. Moon Chemicals 2007 (83)RLLT 253 (CESTAT-Chennai)
3. He submits that in the above and many other cases, the Tribunal held that in case of job work, the principal supplier of the raw materials are liable to pay the excise duty on the job work goods manufactured by the job worker. Only after so many judgments, the Tribunal's Division Bench has taken a different view and the matter was referred to Larger Bench. The Larger Bench in the case of Thermax Babcock Wilcox Ltd 2018 (364) ELT 945 (Tri.-LB) held that in case of job work, where the principal supplier of raw material is not following the procedure under Notification No. 214/86-CE, the job worker is required to pay the duty. He submits that since after so many judgments in favour of assessee, subsequently Larger Bench has taken a different view no malafide can be attributed to the job worker appellant, therefore, demand for the extended period is not sustainable. In this regard, he placed reliance on the following judgments:

   a. Marsha Pharma Pvt. Ltd 2009 (248) ELT 687 (Tri.Ahmd.) against the said judgment, the Revenue filed Tax Appeal No. 2399 of 2009 which was dismissed by Hon’ble Gujarat High Court vide order dated 30.09.2010.

He further submits that the job worker (appellants) were entitled for cenvat credit in respect of raw material supplied directly from the supplier to job work. He invited our attention to some sample invoices of Reliance Industries wherein the name of the appellant are also appearing. He submits that since the appellant was legally entitled for the cenvat credit, there cannot be any malafide intention. In this regard, he placed reliance on the following judgments:

   Fedders Lloyd Corporation Ltd 2001 (135) ELT 1331 (Tri.Del.)

4. He further submits that for determining the value of goods produced on job work, the element of excise duty involved in inputs and raw material is required deduction as held by Larger Bench of this Tribunal in case of Dai IchiKarkaria Ltd 1996 (81) ELT 676 (Tribunal). This decision of the Tribunal was confirmed by Hon’ble Supreme Court in case of Dai Ichi Karkaria Ltd reported in 1999 (112) ELT 353 (SC). He further submits that in view of above facts, the demand for the larger period of limitation and penalty needs to be set aside on all the appellants and other benefits like proper valuation of Cenvat credit in case any duty liability is confirmed may also be allowed. Subsequently vide Advocate's letter dated 12.07.2019 a copy of this Tribunal's Final Order No. A/11071/2019 dated 05.07.2019 in the case of Hi Scan Pvt. Ltd passed by this Tribunal was submitted and submits that the same may be considered. In the matter of appeals filed by M/s Apex (guj) Plastochem Pvt. Ltd & DeepakbhahaiRaojibhai Patel, their Consultant Sh. K.C. Rathod adopted the submission made by Ld. Counsel Sh. P.M. Dave. Being identical issue involved.

5. On the other hand Sh. L. Patra Ld. Assistant Commissioner (AR), Sh. S.K. Shukla, Superintendent (AR) & Sh. T.G. Rathod, Joint Commissioner (AR) appearing on behalf of the Revenue reiterates the findings of impugned order. He placed reliance on the following judgments:

- Allied Bitumen complex (India) Pvt. Ltd 1997 (90) ELT 374 (T)
- Desh Rolling Mills 2000 (122) ELT 481 (T)
- Smithkline Beecham Asia Ltd 2004 (168) ELT 40 (T)
- Agrofab Machineries (India) Ltd 2017 (5) GSTL 257 (T)
- Thermax Babcock Wilcox Ltd 2018 (364) ELT 945 (Tri.-LB)

We have carefully considered the submission made by both the sides and perused the records. We find that Ld. Counsel has not made any contest on the merit of the case in the light of Larger Bench judgment in case of Thermax Babcock Wilcox Ltd (supra), however, he strongly submits that in the facts and circumstances, the demand for the larger period is not sustainable. We find that there is no dispute that on the issue that in case of job work whether job worker is liable to pay duty or the principal raw material supplier was subject to legal dispute and as submitted by Ld. Counsel there were many judgments such as Aggarwal Rolling Mills, Sree Rayalaseema Dutch Kassenbouw Ltd, Salem Weld Mesh, SuvikramPlastex (P) Ltd, India Fabricators (supra) were in favour of the assessee that the duty was required to be paid by the principal supplier of raw material.

In the case of Thermax Babcock Wilcox Ltd (supra), Division Bench of Mumbai Tribunal referred the matter to Larger Bench and then only the Larger Bench has held that in case of job worker when the procedure under Notification No. 214/86-CE is not followed and the principal manufacturer is not discharging the excise duty on their final product, job worker is required to pay excise duty. Therefore the appellants have correctly entertained the bonafide belief that on the basis of various judgments that excise duty was payable by the principal supplier of the raw material. It is settled law in various judgments in the case of Marsha Pharma Pvt. Ltd (supra) which was upheld by Hon’ble Gujarat High Court and also in case of Charak Pharma P. Ltd (supra) that the demand for the extended period of limitation was not permissible when the issue was referred to Larger Bench of Tribunal. Considering this judgment in case of Dharti Automobiles (supra) vide Final Order No. A/11715/2018 dated 30.07.2018 passed by CESTAT-Ahmedabad, the Tribunal has held under:

7. We have carefully considered the submissions made by both the sides and perused the records. We find that there is no dispute that the issue was not free from doubt, there were conflicting opinion from different bench and the matter was referred to Larger Bench. The issue was also clarified by the board Circular No. 87/5/2006 dated 06.11.2006. In these circumstances, the entertaining bonafide belief by the appellant appears to be reasonable. Therefore, the malafide intention cannot be attributed to the appellant. Accordingly, the demand for the extended period does not survive. Hence, impugned order is set aside only on ground of limitation. Therefore, we do not address the issue on merit. The appeal is allowed.

6. In the case of Rajarshi Auto Deals Pvt. Ltd (supra), the Tribunal passed the following order:

"4. Heard both the sides and perused the records. We find that as regard merit of the case, as conceded by the Ld. Counsel demand for the normal period is sustained. As regard limitation, we find that the issue was not free from doubt as the same was finally decided by Larger Bench in case of Pagariya Auto Center (Supra). The Hon'ble Gujarat High Court in the case of Charak Pharma (Supra) also held that when the matter was referred to Larger Bench, extended period cannot be invoked. As regard decision cited by Ld. AR, we observed that in case of Gopinath Agencies (Supra), there was no issue of limitation. In the case of Javiya Marketing, the decision of the Jurisdiction High Court of Gujarat in the case of Charak Pharma was not considered, therefore, the same are not applicable.

a. As per our above discussion, the impugned order is set aside to the extent of demand for the extended period. On the same line, the entire penalty is also set aside. The appeal is partly allowed in above terms.”

7. Similar view was taken by this Tribunal in the Tribunal Final order No.A/11071/2019 dated 05.07.2019 in the case of Hi scan Pvt. Ltd wherein Tribunal held as under

16. The appellants have pointed out that at the material time there were various decisions which held that failure to follow the procedure prescribed under Notification 214/86-CE does not disentitle the assessee from the benefit of the said notification. Moreover, it has been argued that the liability of duty on goods manufactured on job work basis, on the manufacture vis a vis the principal who supplied the material, was also in doubt. The issue regarding liability of manufacturer vis a vis the principal was referred to Larger Bench of Tribunal. Larger Bench in case of Thermax Babcock & Wilcox Ltd. (supra) finally resolved the doubt. He pointed out that in view of above, the extended period of limitation cannot be invoked. In 5 | P a g e E / 1

8. 0 9 - D B support of this contention, he relied on the decision of Tribunal in the case of Marsha Pharma Pvt. Ltd. (supra).

(16) We find that as per the decision of Thermax Babcock & Wilcox Ltd. (supra) the liability to pay duty in respect of goods produced on job work basis lies with the appellant being manufacturer of goods. However, since the issue regarding liability of duty on manufacturer vis a vis principal was referred to Larger Bench of Tribunal in case of Thermax Babcock & Wilcox Ltd. (supra) extended period of limitation cannot be invoked in view of the decision of Tribunal in case of Marsha Pharma Pvt. Ltd. In view of above, demand beyond the normal period of limitation isset aside. The penalty is also set aside. Appeal is partly allowed in above terms.”

In view of above consistent view taken by this Tribunal, we have no hesitation in holding that since in the present case is of prior to Larger Bench decision, the matter was in favour of the assessee in many judgments and the matter was finally settled by Larger Bench. The period involved in the present case is much before the Larger Bench Decision, therefore, there is no malafide on the part of the appellant. Hence the demand for the extended period is set aside.

(viii) We further find that if any demand for the normal period exists, the adjudicating authority should be recomputed. As per the submission of the appellant, the appellant were receiving inputs along with duty paying documents, accordingly, they are entitled for the Cenvat credit subject to verification of duty paying document. As regard, the deduction of excise duty on inputs to arrive at valuation of the job work goods, it is settled law as per Hon’ble Supreme Court judgment in case of Dai IchiKarkaria Ltd (supra), therefore, if any demand arise for the normal period, the same needs to be re-quantified by giving benefit of Cenvat credit and deduction on Cenvat credit for the purpose of valuation of job work goods.
As per our above discussion, the appeals related to the demand of extended period are allowed and in respect of demand for the normal period it is remanded to the adjudicating authority for re-quantification of the demand. It is made clear that since we have held that there was no malafide on the part of the appellants, no penalty is imposable on all the appellants in respect of any duty liability arise after re-quantification. The appeals are disposed of in above terms.

DATE OF DECISION: 01.10.2019
The brief facts of the case are that the appellant M/s Jolly Electrical Industries were engaged in the manufacture of plain paper copier and transmitting apparatus classifiable and chargeable to duties of excise, heading/sub-heading 9009.00 and 8425.00 respectively of the Central Excise Tariff Act, 1985. There are other two units, namely M/s Jolly Enterprises located at K-1, 16-15/GIDC-Dabhoi District-Vadodara (hereinafter referred to as ‘Jolly’ for the sake of brevity) having Central Excise Registration for manufacture of electrical switches transmitting apparatus, micro film, reader printer and computer classifiable and chargeable to duties of excise under heading/sub-heading no. 8536.90, 9525.00 and 8471.00 respectively of Central Excise Tariff Act, 1985 and M/s Kinitronics located at Shed No. 21-22, GIDC Waghodia Distt. Vadodara (hereinafter referred to as ‘Kini’ for the sake of brevity) having Central Excise Registration for manufacture of TV sets, Modular Systems, Plain Paper Copier, paper shedding machine and data display monitors classifiable and chargeable to duty under chapter heading no. 8528.00, 8517.00, 9009.00, 8472.00 and 8471.00 respectively of the Central Excise Tariff Act, 1985. The Central Excise departmental officers carried out massive investigation of all the three units and found that in fact the other two units i.e. Kini and Jolly were not manufacturing the goods whereas the goods manufactured by Jolly Electricals Industries were being cleared under exemption in the name of Kini and Jolly. During investigation various statements of the employees of the appellant and other persons were recorded. The status of the units were also verified and from all these evidences it was revealed that all the clearance shown to have made by Kini and Jolly are in fact manufactured and cleared from Jolly Electrical Industries. Accordingly, the demand of excise duty was raised against the appellant M/s Jolly Electrical Industries. A SCN dated 02.03.1994 was issued wherein demand of duty, penalty, and confiscation of land and building plant and machinery was proposed against M/s Jolly Electrical Industries. M/s Kini and Jolly were proposed for recovery of modvat credit wrongly availed and utilized and also corresponding penalty was proposed to be imposed. Personal penalties under Rule 209A of Central Excise Rules, 1944 was also proposed to be imposed against various persons including partners of all the three partnership firms. The said SCN was adjudicated by the Collector of Central Excise Vadodara vide Order-in-Original No. 117/BRC/MP/95 and held that goods of all the three firms were different for which separate excise license were given and recorded various findings and dropped the SCN against all the noticees. Being aggrieved by the said order in original dated 06.10.1995 the Revenue filed an appeal before the Appellate Tribunal Mumbai praying for setting aside the order in original dated 06.10.1995. The Tribunal remanded the matter vide order dated 08.07.2004. The appellant filed application before the Tribunal for restoration of appeal which was dismissed. Another application was filed by the present appellant for restoration of the Revenue’s appeal and for recalling the order dated 08.07.2004 however the Appellate Tribunal rejected the said application vide order dated 09.07.2007. In the meanwhile, the Tribunal’s Order of remand was complied with and Collector passed de novo order confirming the duty demand against the present appellants with interest and penalties. Aggrieved by the de novo order in original dated 31.01.2007, the appellants filed appeal along with stay petition before this Appellate Tribunal. The Tribunal remanded the matter to the original authority. The Commissioner of Central Excise- Vadodara in the second round of remand has passed the impugned order whereby the duty demand against M/s Jolly Electrical Industries was confirmed and a penalty of Rs. 80 Lakhs was imposed under Rule 173Q(1D) of Central Excise Rules, 1944. It was also ordered for confiscation of land, plant, building, machinery etc. of M/s Jolly Electrical Industries under Rule 173Q(2) and an option was given to redeem the said asset on payment of redemption fine of Rs. 10 Lakhs. A penalty of Rs. 10 Lakhs was also imposed on Sh. Nilesh V Shah, partner of M/s Jolly Electrical Industries under Rule 209A of Central Excise Rules, 1944. Being aggrieved by the impugned order in original dated 06.02.2009, the present appellants filed these appeals.

2. Sh. P.M. Dave, Ld. Counsel appearing on behalf of the appellant submits that in the first round of adjudication the Collector of Central Excise, Vadodara vide Order dated 06.10.1995 dropped the proceedings against all the noticees holding that all the three firms i.e. M/s Jolly Electrical Industries, M/s Kinitronics and M/s Jolly Enterprises are separate units and both cannot be clubbed. Against the said order dated 06.10.1995, the Revenue filed only one appeal i.e. against M/s Jolly Electrical Industries, therefore, finding with regard to the clubbing of two units i.e. M/s Kinitronics and M/s Jolly Enterprises were held to be independent. The clearance of those units cannot be clubbed with the clearances of the appellant M/s Jolly Electrical Industries, therefore, the demand is not sustainable. He submits that in the impugned order demand of modvat credit against M/s Kinitronics and M/s Jolly Enterprises was dropped though it was proposed in the SCN. He submits that if these two units are treated as dummy units for facade created by M/s Jolly Electrical Industries then modvat credit taken and utilized by these alleged dummies had to be denied and recovered but no adverse order for recovery of modvat credit has been made against these two manufacturers. The Commissioner has indirectly recognized them as real and genuine manufacturer. This is fatal legal infirmity in the impugned order and therefore, clubbing of clearances of these two manufacturers with the appellant M/s Jolly Electrical Industries is liable to be set aside on this ground itself. Without prejudice to the above submission, he further submits that in the first round of adjudication, adjudicating authority dropped the proceedings against two of alleged dummies which was not challenged by the Revenue, therefore, in the adjudication against other two units i.e. M/s Kinitronics and M/s Jolly Enterprises, the adjudication order became final and conclusive and therefore, the value of other clearances cannot be clubbed with the clearances of the appellant herein. He placed reliance on the following judgments:

- Elemec Industries 2003 (158) ELT 595 (Tri. Del.)
- CCE vs Tightwell Fastners 2008 (230) ELT 163 (Tri. Ahmd.)
- CCE vs Supreme Electrical Appliances 2001 (113) ELT 271 (Tri. Del.)
- CCE vs Campco 2006 (199) ELT 630 (Tr. Bang.)

He submits that there was only one appeal filed by the Revenue against order in original dated 06.10.1995 namely, Appeal No. E/2474/1996-Bombay and the name of the Respondent against serial No. 2 of EA-5 form was of M/s Jolly Electrical Industries. The notice for hearing of this appeal was also served only on M/s Jolly Electrical Industries. In the order dated 08.07.2004 made by Appellate Tribunal – Bombay also only M/s Jolly Electrical Industries was shown as the Respondent. If appeals were filed against other two firms also then therewill be two more appeals where the ground about demand of modvat credit would have been taken and prayer against these two firms would also have been made and hence notices would have been issued to these two firms also by the Registry of the Appellate Tribunal. Only because it was written in the caption of memo of revenue’s appeal – M/s Jolly Electrical Industries & Ors., the Commissioner could not have now held that appeals were filed against other firms also. He placed reliance on the following judgments:

- Krishna Clearing Agency vs UOI 2016 (334) ELT 427 (Guj.)

He further submits that if appeals filed by the Revenue against the alleged dummies were dismissed as time barred (and not on merits) then also clubbing of clearances is not admissible because the situation is that the order dropping the proposal of clubbing for such units has become final. The case of clubbing alleged dummies has become final, the case of clubbing of other clearances with main unit also does not survive. In this support, he placed reliance on the following judgment:

- CCE Trichirapalli v/s Devi Silicates (P) Ltd. 2004 (178) ELT 1018 (Tri. Chennai)

He further submits that in remand proceedings also the Commissioner has not called M/s Kinitronics and M/s Jolly Enterprises for hearing, because the case against them was dropped by virtue of order in original dated 06.10.1995 and that order was not challenged by the filing the appeals against these two firms. In case of clubbing of clearances, no order can be passed without joining alleged dummies as parties are co-noticees in adjudication proceedings. In this regard he placed reliance on the following judgments:

- K.R. Balachandran 2003 (151) ELT 68 (Tri. Chennai)
- CGST vs Unitech Containers Pvt. Ltd. 2017 (358) ELT 99 (Del.)
- CCE vs Diamond Scaffolding Co. 2011 (274) ELT 10 (Cal.)
- Premier Heavy Engineering Corpn. 2016 (337) ELT 332 (Guj.)

As regard Commissioner’s observation that as per letter dated 11.11.1996 forwarding the memorandum of appeal and appeal paper book to the Assistant Registrar – CESTAT, Bombay, a copy of memorandum was also forwarded to all 8 noticees to whom the SCN was issued, he submits that this objection seems to be incorrect as this matter is not on record and it is not established that a copy of appeal memorandum was actually forwarded to all 8 noticees. He submits that but assuming without admitting that appeal memorandum was forwarded to M/s Kinitronics and M/s Jolly Enterprises also as held by Hon’ble Gujarat High Court in the case of M/s Premier Heavy Engineering Corporation 2016 (337) ELT 332 Guj., certifying a copy of the notice on the alleged dummy units is immaterial because the question whether the unit was dummy or not had to be decided with full participation of such alleged dummy.

As regard the facts on the issue of clubbing, he further submits that the findings of the facts recorded by the predecessor Commissioner while passing order in original dated 06.10.95 have not been considered by the predecessor Commissioner for recording the findings of the facts while passing OIO dated 06.10.95 has also not been considered by the Respondent Commissioner in the remand proceeding, therefore, the findings in the impugned order is contrary to the findings already recorded by the predecessor Commissioner as regard facts of the case and thus impugned order passed on incorrect and non-existent facts deserves to be set aside. He submits that in the OIO dated 06.10.95 it was recorded that all the three units had manufactured and cleared excisable goods independently on their own and their function was not on paper but they were actually in existence and working. The predecessor Commissioner has considered statutory records while recording this finding. As against the said finding the respondent Commissioner has now recorded in the impugned order that the three units were functioning as one unit and all the manufacturing activities were maintained at premises of Jolly Electrical Industries only. He submits that all the staff were looking after activities of all the three units, therefore, all the three units were working independently. The predecessor Commissioner has recorded in the order dated 06.10.95 that electricity in the factories of M/s Kinitronics and M/s Jolly Enterprises was less because the manufacturing activity over there was only of assembling of imported and otherwise procured parts and components so as to produce goods like electrical switches, fax machines, micro film reader and printer as well as telephone sets, plain paper copier and paper shredders. In view of screw driver technology adopted by these two manufacture electricity consumption in their factory was less. In the impugned order now passed by the Respondent Commissioner, it is held that electricity consumption being of less units in the factories of M/s Kinitronics and M/s Jolly Enterprises and electricity consumption of Jolly Electrical Industries being at higher the manufacturing activities were undertaken only in the factory of Jolly Electrical Industries. He submits that only because electricity consumption in one of the three factories was higher it could not be held that other two factories actually did not undertake any process of manufacture. He submits that all the findings given by the Respondent Commissioner is contrary to the findings given by the predecessor Commissioner therefore the impugned order is not sustainable.

He further submits that as regard clubbing of clearances a trade notice No. 59/1992 was issued by the Vadodara Collectorate as far back as 14.07.1992 based on an order No. 6/1992 issued by CBEC under Section 37B of the Act from file No. 213/15/92-C-Ex.-06 and it was clarified thereunder that clubbing of manufacturers and factories was not permissible if (i) all the manufacturers were independent in the sense that they were having their own factories, sheds, machineries and other infrastructural facilities like power (ii) the source of raw material and source of funding was also separate and independent for all the manufacturers (iii) the manufacturers and other factories were registered and recognized as separate entities under various Central and State Legislatures applicable to manufacture and sale activities (iv) the manufacturers were independent in the matters of management and administration of their affairs and one manufacture was not controlling the management of the others and (v) the manufacturers were independent entities and also juristic persons and in such case even if one or two partners, directors were common, said commonness was absolutely irrelevant. He placed reliance on the following judgments:

- Prabhat Dyes and Chemicals 1992 (62) ELT 469 (Tri.)
- Swastik Engg. Works 1992 (62) ELT 313 (Tri.)
- Diamond Engineering & Trading Corpn. 1989 (44) ELT 92
- Bhagwandas Kanodia & Ors. 1987 (32) ELT 204 (Tri.)
- Alpha Toys Ltd. 1993 (66) ELT 375 (Raj.)
- Rang Udyog 1996 (83) ELT 648
- Prima Control (P) Ltd. 1994 (71) ELT 689 (Tri.)

He submits that in view of above judgments the principles were laid down that in each case clubbing of clearances is permissible, taking support of above of the above judgment. He submits that as per the facts of the present case, all the three units cannot be clubbed together.

As regard time bar, he submits that all the three manufacturers were licensed by the Central Excise Department separately. All the three manufacturers have availed benefit of Modvat Credit by maintaining Modvat Register and filing Modvat declaration. All the three manufacturers have paid duty after exceeding SSI limits. All the units were maintaining RG-1 and filing RT-12 returns, therefore, all the activities of three units were well within knowledge of Revenue Officers. The predecessor Commissioner has recorded in the order dated 06.10.95 that the Central Excise Authorities were aware about these manufacturing activities, therefore, the demand for the extended period of limitation is time barred.

He further submits that the demand, if any arise, the same needsto be recomputed by extending the benefit of cum duty price as held by the Larger Bench of CEGAT in the case of Shri Chakra Tyres 1999 (108) ELT 361 and in the case of Dugar Tetenal (India) Ltd. 2008 (224) ELT 180 (SC). Accordingly, the demand of Rs. 80,83,376/- was wrongly made
As regard penalty he submits that since there is no violation of any nature committed by the appellant and they have bona fide acted. Moreover, there is no specific reason or ground spelled out in the order for imposing penalty and thus penalty could not be imposed on hearsay or presumption. Regarding penalty imposed on Sh. Nilesh Shah, he submits that there is no evidence or statement on record to link Sh. Nilesh Shah with the alleged offences, therefore, penalty under 209A could not have been imposed.

3. Sh. L. Patra, Ld. Assistant Commissioner (AR) appearing on behalf of the Revenue reiterates the findings of the impugned order. He further submits that all the arguments made by Ld. Counsel will not help their case for the reason that as per the facts of this case M/s Jolly Electrical Industries cleared the goods clandestinely in the guise of manufacture and clearance of goods by other two units M/s Knitronics and M/s Jolly Enterprises. For the same reason, the extended period was also rightly invoked. In support of the Revenue’s case, he placed reliance on the following judgments:

- Elemec Industries 2003 (158) ELT 595 (Tri. Del.)
- CCE vs Tightwell Fasteners 2008 (230) ELT 163 (Tri. Ahmd.)
- CCE vs Supreme Electrical Appliances 2001 (113) ELT 271 (Tri. Del.)
- CCE vs Meco Tronics Pvt. Ltd. 2003 (159) ELT 628 (Tri. Chen.)
- CCE vs Sompura Ceramics 2001 (130) ELT 195 (Tr. Del.)
- CCE Trichirapalli v/s Devi Silicates (P) Ltd. 2004 (178) ELT 1018 (Tri. Chennai)
- K.R. Balachandran 2003 (151) ELT 68 (Tri. Chennai)
- CGST vs Unitech Containers Pvt. Ltd. 2017 (358) ELT 99 (Del.)
- CCE vs Diamond Scaffolding Co. 2011 (274) ELT 10 (Cal.)
- Premier Heavy Engineering Corpn. 2016 (337) ELT 332 (Guj.)
- Krishna Clearing Agency vs UOI 2016 (334) ELT 427 (Guj.)

4. We have heard both the sides and perused the records. In the first round of adjudication order, the adjudicating authority has dropped the demand holding that all the three units are independent in respect of manufacture and clearance of the goods, therefore, they should not be clubbed. Being aggrieved by the order in original dated 06.10.95 Revenue filed appeal before the Tribunal. The Tribunal allowed the Revenue’s appeal by remanding to the adjudicating authority to re-determine the issue. The present appellants application for restoration of appeal was also dismissed by the Appellate Tribunal. Second application was filed by the present appellant for restoration of Revenue’s Appeal was also rejected by the Tribunal. Meanwhile, the adjudicating authority passed a de novo order whereby the duty demand against the present appellants with interest and penalties were confirmed, therefore, the present appeal filed by the appellants. Ld. Counsel vehemently argued on the following points:

(i) In the first round the then Ld. Collector dropped the proceedings against all the noticees whereas the Revenue filed appeal only against Jolly Electrical Industries. Accordingly, the finding in the first order that M/s Kinitronics and M/s Jolly Enterprises are not dummy units attained finality if that be so, then the clearances of all the three units cannot be clubbed.

(ii) Though in the SCN there was proposal to demand Modvat Credit from M/s Kinitronics and M/s Jolly Enterprises but the same was dropped in the impugned order, therefore, the allegation of these two units being dummy does not sustain.

(iii) For clubbing of clearances of all alleged dummy units, against all the units, appeal should have been filed, therefore, in absence of any appeal filed by the Revenue before the Tribunal against M/s Kinitronics and M/s Jolly Enterprises their clearances cannot be clubbed with the clearances of Jolly Electrical Industries.

(iv) As per the findings of facts in the order dated 06.10.95 clubbing is not permissible.

(v) The case of the appellant does not fulfill the criteria as laid down by the Trade Notice dated 14.07.92 based on CBEC Order No. 6/92 for clubbing of more than one unit.

(vi) The demand is time barred as no suppression of facts involved.

(vii) The appellant is eligible for cum duty price.

5. As regard the submission regarding the first adjudicating order dropping proceeding against two of the alleged dummies and the same was not challenged by the Revenue, we observe from the copy of the appeal memo filed by the Revenue under Appeal No. E/2474/96 of Bom before the Mumbai Tribunal, the cause title shows as under:

"Commissioner of Central Excise and Customs ... Appellant Vs M/s Jolly Electrical Industries and Others ...Respondent"

From the above cause title it is very clear that the appeal was filed not only against M/s Jolly Electrical Industries but all others which were noticees in the SCN.

6. In the Revenue’s appeal memo the relief sought in the appeal was as under:

hereby apply to Customs, Excise and Gold (Control) Appellate Tribunal (hereinafter referred to as the ‘Tribunal’) for the correct determination of the following points arising out of the said order:-

(a) whatever after taking into consideration the facts stated above, ready with Show Cause Notice, the said order of the Commissioner in dropping the demand of duty, non- confiscation of land, building, plant and machinery allowing Modvat benefit and non-imposition of penalty on the noticees is legal and proper?

(b) Whether by an order passed under Section 55C of the Act, the Tribunal should set aside the order passed by the Commissioner? And

(c) Whether the Tribunal should pass any other order as deemed fit?”

7. From the above points raised in the appeal by the Revenue, they sought to set aside the entire order which is against all the noticees, therefore, this shows that the appeal filed by the Revenue is not only against M/s Jolly Electrical
8. The adjudicating authority has observed and recorded in the order that as per the letter F. No. V(Misc.)2-494/96/RC dated 11.11.1996 memorandum of appeal and appeal paper book was forwarded to the Assistant Registrar – CEstat-Bombay and a copy of the same was also forwarded to all 8 noticees to whom the SCN was issued. We find that even if one appeal was filed making number of parties as respondent in the Revenue’s appeal itself the appeal deemed to have been filed against all the respondents.

9. It is also observed from the remand order of this Tribunal bearing No. A/622/WZB/2004/C-III dated 08.07.2004 that the following order was passed.

“When the matter was called, no one appeared for the respondents. Heard the Departmental Representative and nothing that the issue in this appeal filed by the Revenue involved the clubbing of clearances of two units with that of the clearances effected from the Respondents’ unit and finding that some of the partners are common, the appeal filed by the revenue is allowed as remand to the original authority to redetermine the issue, after hearing the respondents. While redetermining the issues, the Supreme Court’s decision in the case of Supreme Washers Pvt. Ltd. vs CCE 2003 (151) ELT 14 (SC) should be applied.

2. Revenue’s appeal allowed in above terms.”

BEFORE THE CUSTOMS, EXCISE AND SERVICES TAX APPELLATE TRIBUNAL, MUMBAI

In Appeal No. E/2474/96
CCE, Baroda

Versus

M/s Jolly Electrical Industries
Petitioner/Respondent

The above numbered appeal has been decided ex-parte by the Hon’ble Tribunal vide the above numbered Final Order. (Copy of the order is annexed hereto as ‘A’)

The departmental appeal was listed for a hearing for the first time on 08.07.2004.

However on this date, the Counsel of this appellant could not appear for the hearing on account of his serious sickness. To this effect a fax was sent on 07.07.2004 followed by a letter through speed post to the Hon’ble Tribunal in advance which was also placed before the Hon’ble Bench. (Copies of fax/letter, fax journal and speed post receipt, are enclosed as annexures ‘B’)

Hon’ble Tribunal is therefore, prayed to recall its Final Order & list this appeal for a hearing. For this favour, the appellants shall be deeply obliged.

This prayer/petition is supported by the following judgments:

3. 2002 (149) E.L.T. 1455(T) in the case of Ganesh Agro pack (P) Ltd. Vs. Collector of Central Excise, Madurai. (The Tribunal relied upon two High Courts’ judgments in support of its judgment, one of Calcutta and another of Kerala High Court)
From the above application it can be seen that after disposal of the appeal by the Tribunal in respect of all the respondents the appellant have raised a specific ground in the ROA application that departmental appeal is not maintainable as the same was not filed against clubbed parities M/s Kinitronics and M/s Jolly Enterprises. This Tribunal dismissed the application for restoration, vide order No. M- 250/WZB/2004-C-III dated 25.11.2004. As per above given facts firstly, we are of the view that the Revenue had filed appeals against all the respondents which further get reinforced on the basis that even though the appellant have raised specific ground for restoration of appeal that the appeals were not filed against M/s Kinitronics and M/s Jolly Enterprises but the same was dismissed, therefore, the issue that the Revenue’s appeal was against all the noticess attained finality. The appellants have not challenged either the remand order or the Miscellaneous Order by which the application for restoration of appeal was dismissed. In this position, the appellant has no locus standi to dispute or to raise the issue that the Revenue’s appeal was only against one party i.e. M/s Jolly Electrical Industries. We therefore, hold that the Revenue’s appeal was filed against all the noticess before this Tribunal; therefore, the issue related to all the noticess were open before the adjudicating authority in de novo adjudication.

10. The appellants have strongly argued that the present adjudicating authority has not considered the findings of fact narrated by the predecessor
Commissioner in the first Adjudication Order dated 06.10.1995. In this regard, we find that the first adjudication order was set aside in the Revenue appeal, therefore, the present adjudicating authority is not judicially required to look into the said order as the same was not in existent. Once, the earlier adjudication order was set aside the entire case has gone back to the stage of SCN and thereafter since the entire matter was kept open the present adjudicating authority was free to take independent view on the overall case without getting influenced by the first order and finding of the predecessor Commissioner, therefore, the submission of the Ld. Counsel on this count is fatal and cannot be accepted.

11. As regard, the submission made by the Ld. Counsel that all the three units are independent and registered with various authorities, filing of returns with various tax authorities does not help their case for the reason that in the present case the case of the department is not on the basis of that all the three units are independently manufacturing and clearing the goods and due to mutual interest, inter unit fund flow availing of common amenities etc., the units are clubbable whereas the adjudicating authority on the basis of strong evidences such as insufficient production facility, electricity consumption and various other aspects came to the conclusion that the other two units i.e. M/s Kinitronics and M/s Jolly Enterprises did not have set up for manufacture of excisable goods, therefore, the present case of the department is that all the goods cleared were manufactured by M/s Jolly Electrical Industries and not by M/s Kinitronics and M/s Jolly Enterprises, if that be so, than all the clearances are of M/s Jolly Electrical Industries and the clearances claimed to have manufactured by M/s Kinitronics and M/s Jolly Enterprises are clearly a clandestine removal of M/s Jolly Electrical Industries, therefore, the demand was rightly made from M/s Jolly Electrical Industries. The submission of Ld. Counsel that since M/s Kinitronics and M/s Jolly Enterprises were not demanded duty, the clubbing of clearances is illegal. As we discussed above, there is no clearance of M/s Kinitronics and M/s Jolly Enterprises but all the clearances are of M/s Jolly Enterprises, therefore, there is no reason or question to implicate M/s Kinitronics and M/s Jolly Enterprises for the purpose of making demand, therefore, even though these two parties were not implicated in the order in original does not make any impact on the demand raised against M/s Jolly Electrical Industries. On these facts even the judgments relied upon by the Ld. Counsel that for clubbing of clearances of other units they should be made party in the case is not relevant. As regard, the argument of Ld. Counsel that though the demand of modvat credit was raised in the SCN against M/s Kinitronics and M/s Jolly Enterprises and the same was dropped in the impugned order, it is otherwise established that they have rightly availed the modvat credit and therefore, the clubbing of both the units with M/s Jolly Electrical Industries cannot be made. In this regard, we find that there was an independent proceeding of modvat case against both the units even though the demand was dropped against both the units therefore but at the same time all the clearances of so called M/s Kinitronics and M/s Jolly Enterprises were also considered, the clearances of M/s Jolly Electrical Industries and the demand was confirmed. The dropping of modvat demand has no impact as far as clandestine removal of goods manufactured and cleared by M/s Jolly Electrical Industries in the guise of manufacture and clearances of M/s Kinitronics and M/s Jolly Enterprises, therefore, merely because the case proceedings of modvat credit has been dropped against M/s Kinitronics and M/s Jolly Enterprises it will not affect the case of clandestine removal against M/s Jolly Electrical Industries, therefore, this argument is of no help to the appellant.

12. As regard the heavy reliance made by Ld. Counsel on the Trade Notice No. 59/1992, we find that we have already given our above finding that all the clearances are of M/s Jolly Electrical Industries, therefore, the Trade Notice which deals with the admitted clearances of more than one unit, is not relevant in the facts of the present case.
13. Ld. Counsel also argued vehemently on the point of time bar. As we observed above that M/s Jolly Electrical Industries were indulge into clandestine removal of excisable goods to intention to evade duty in the guise of manufacture and clearance of goods from M/s Kinitronics and M/s Jolly Enterprises, there is a clear fraud, suppression of fact, misstatement, collusion with intention to evade duty, therefore, as per the facts of the present case it is a fit case to invoke the extended period, therefore, the demand for extended period is clearly sustainable.

14. As regard, the relief sought by the appellants with regard to the benefit of cum duty price, we find that this issue is no longer res-integra and the same has been decided in following judgments in favour of the assessee that as and when the duty is calculated the sale price has to be taken as cum duty price and for the purpose of demand the excise duty needs to be deducted. The judgments are cited below:

- Commissioner of Central Excise Vs. Uday Auxichem 2012 (275) E.L.T. 565 (Tri.Ahmd.)

15. In view of the above settled position of law, the appellant is entitled for the cum duty benefit. Accordingly, the demand of duty and corresponding penalty needs to be recomputed by extending the benefit of cum duty price.

16. As per the above discussion and findings, the appeals are dismissed except for the re-quantification of the duty by extending the cum duty price. Appeals are disposed of in the above terms.

The present appeals have been filed by M/s Shree Meenakshi Food Products Pvt. Ltd. (SMFPPL) and its directors Shri DilipkumarAmrutlal Jani and Shri Jagdishprasad Mohanlal Joshi and Shri Sachin Joshi. The brief facts of the case are that M/s MFPL are engaged in the manufacture of Gutkha falling under chapter 24 of the CETA, 1985. They were discharging duty under the provisions of Pan Masala Packing Machines (Capacity Determination and collection of duty) Rules, 2008 as amended hereinafter referred to as „PMPM Rules, 2008. M/s
SMFPPL had filed declaration on 01.04.2011 in terms of Rule 6 of PMPM Rules wherein they declared the details of packing machines to be used for packing of Gutkha along with specific MRP of the pouches. The said declaration was as under:

It was alleged that in respect of machines installed at first floor, though M/s SMFPPL have declared that pouches of Re. 1/- MRP would be produced but actually they were packing pouches of Rs. 1.5/-. Also that in respect of packing machines installed at second floor, they had declared the pouches to be packed of 1/- on 19 machines and Rs. 2.5 on 5 machines, but actually they were packing Gutkha having Rs. 1.5/- on 6 machines declared for the pouches of Rs. 1/- MRP. That Shri Pradeep Sharma, employee of the Appellant could not give any reply regarding such packing. All the stock lying on the 1st Floor was of “GOA 1000” Brand having MRP of Rs. 1.5/- and not even a single pouch of Rs. 1/- was found in factory premises. Shri Sharma stated that the pouches of MRP of Rs. 1.5/- pertain to the production of that day itself i.e. 21.04.2011. No records and accounts were found from the factory. After investigation and recording of statements of employees, director and other persons and enquiry from the Registrar of Companies, a show cause notice dated 09.03.2016 was issued alleging that the M/s SMFPPL is a group company of JMJ Group and the entire activity of the group is controlled by Shri J. M. Joshi and his son Shri Sachin Joshi. M/s SMFPPL was using logo of the JMJ Group till August/September 2011 and website of JMJ Group was showing unit as part of group. They even had registered office at Mumbai which is corporate office of JMJ Group. The shareholding of M/s SMFPPL was in hands of Shri J.M. Joshi. The directors of the company on record are only for namesake and did not hold any shares and did not have any control on company. The shares were held by Shri J.M. Joshi, his wife and his HUF and entire shares were sold by them on 19.04.2011 to nine different persons. This act of selling shares was necessitated by the DGCEI booking offence case against M/s SMFPPL and the same appears to be keep away himself completely from activities of Appellant Unit and thereby to conceal his actual involvement in the clandestine activities of Appellant unit and to escape the penal actions that may be initiated against him by the department. That in term of section 277 and 270 of the Companies Act, the existing directors are not qualified to be director as they do not hold any shares. That the Appellant unit with malafide intention knowingly mis declared the fact of manufacturing of Gutkha of different MRP using various Pan Masala Machines (PMPM) installed in factory premises in the month of April 2011, manufactured the pouches of GOA brand of higher MRP (Rs. 1.5/-) on machines declared for manufacturing gutkha of Re. 1/- MRP in contravention of declaration filed by them under Rule 6 of PMPM Rules, 2008 and has evaded the Central Excise duty. The show cause notice alleged that the Appellant unit has contravened the provisions of Rule 6 (6), 7 and 9 of the PMPM Rules, 2008 and that as the Appellant has manufactured the notified goods in contravention of their declaration, therefore as per the provisions of Rule 9 of the PMPM Rules, 2008 the rate of duty applicable to goods of Highest Retail sale i.e. Retail sale price of Rs. 3 shall be applicable in respect of all packing machines operated by the Appellant and a central excise duty of Rs. 22,32,00,000/- is payable by the Appellant unit. That the above acts of omission and commission on the part of Appellant unit has been committed wilfully with intention to evade duty and the extended period as provided under Section 11 A (4) of the Central Excise Act is applicable. It was therefore proposed to demand duty of Rs. 22,32,00,000/- along with interest from the Appellant Unit and the amount of duty of Rs. 10,73,50,000/- already paid in respect of declared capacity be adjusted against the same. Penalty under Rule 17 of the PMPM Rules along with Section 11AC was also proposed. Personal penalty was also proposed upon Dilipkumar Amrutlal Jani, director of Appellant unit and Shri Jagdishprasad Mohanlal Joshi, Sachin Joshi under Rule 26 (1) of CER, 2002. The Appellant, its director and individuals Shri ShriJagdishprasad Mohanlal Joshi and Shri Sachin Joshi filed reply to the SCN contesting the charges made against them in SCN. The adjudicating authority vide impugned order confirmed the demand and imposed penalties upon all the Appellants. Aggrieved, the Appellants have filed the present appeals.

Shri P.P. Jadeja, Ld. Consultant appearing for the Appellants submits that the demand confirmed against appellants is not sustainable. He submits that the levy of duty is on manufacture of goods in terms of Section 3 of the Central Excise Act, 1944 and therefore the duty is payable only on manufacture of notified excisable goods in manner as prescribed under Section 3A and PMPM Rules, 2008. The levy of excise duty is attracted on higher MRP only when goods of higher MRP are manufactured in the factory. In the present case the highest MRP Goods i.e. Rs. 3 MRP were not manufactured for whole month but only for a day. The Higher MRP goods of Rs. 1.5/- value were being manufactured and that too due to mistake on the part of the labour that they loaded roll of Rs. 1.5/- pouch. He submits that the duty can be demanded only of Rs. 1.5/- MRP. He also submits that for the above reason no penalty can be imposed upon Shri Dilipkumar Amrutlal Jani.
Shri Makrand Joshi, ld. Counsel appearing for Shri Jagdishprasad Mohanlal Joshi and Shri Sachin Joshi submits that the duty demand under rule 9 of PMPM Rules is on “presumptive basis”. The duty has been demanded without any investigation or allegation of or finding of actual manufacture and removal of goods. Penalty under Rule 26 is not sustainable in absence of any investigation or transaction and involvement of the Appellant in any such clandestine manufacture and removal of goods. The adjudicating authority has held that in terms of section 266 and 270 all the directors existing during April 2011 are not qualified to be directors as they do not hold any shares. The ld. Adjudicating authority has reproduced in the impugned order only partial text of Section 266 of the Companies Act and has conveniently ignored reciting or referring to subsection (5) of Section 266 of the Companies Act. Sub-section (5) of Section 266 of the Companies Act stipulates that provisions of Section 266 do not apply to a private company. Even otherwise, section 266 is wholly irrelevant, as the same is applicable to a company which is to be incorporated and not to an existing company. The ld. Commissioner has referred to Section 270 of the Companies Act to hold that the Directors existing in April 2011 were disqualified however he has ignored Section 273 of the Companies Act which categorically states that Section 270 will not apply to a private company. He also draws attention to clause 27 of Articles of Association of SMFPPL, which states that it shall not be necessary for a director to hold any share in the company. He submits that it is on record that Mr J.M. Joshi was not a director of SMFPPL since year 2000 and had also sold all his shares prior to initiation of investigation of the instant case. Therefore the Appellants had no control whatsoever on the operations of SMFPPL. Further, Mr Sachin Joshi was neither a shareholder nor a director nor an employee of SMFPPL and therefore he cannot have any control on the operations of SMFPPL.

He submits that the adjudicating authority has relied upon the statements of the employees Shri Maurya, Shri Manoj Kumar, Shri Sawant, Shri Gehlot, Shri Gautam. However these statements of witnesses were not recorded by the Officers of the Central Excise Department who have investigated the instant case, pertaining to the month of April 2011. These are the statements recorded by the officers of DGCEI pertaining to the investigation in an independent case pertaining to March 2011 and are, therefore, wholly irrelevant. Appellants had requested for cross examination of these witnesses, which was denied by the Commissioner during the adjudication. It is, therefore, submitted that in term of Section 9D of the Central Excise Act, 1944, these statements cannot be relied upon. The impugned order denying cross examination of witnesses is a gross violation of principles of natural justice and should be quashed and set aside as held by the Hon’ble Supreme Court in Andaman Timber Industries Vs CCE, Kolkata (2015 (324) ELT 641 (SC)). Shri J.M. Joshi was not a director of SMFPPL since year 2000 and that he had sold all his shares even before the investigation in the instant case had begun. None of the witnesses has made any statement to the effect that the Appellants were aware of or involved in the alleged clandestine removal by SMFPPL. Therefore, penalty under Rule 26 cannot be imposed on the Appellants. The statements of witnesses cannot be relied upon unless they are corroborated with cogent evidence whereas there is no iota of corroborative evidence to support statements of witnesses and hence statements cannot be relied upon. Mere observation that Appellants had overall control or played a role in clandestine removal would not support imposition of penalty under Rule 26. The Order must disclose connection between the transactions and directors / appellants so as to impose penalty under Rule 26. In absence of any finding or evidence showing connection between the transaction and the directors/ appellants, penalty under Rule 26 cannot be imposed. Unless there is a finding that role was played by the Appellants in acquiring possession of or appellants were in any way concerned in transporting, removing, depositing, keeping, concealing, selling or purchasing or in any other manner dealt with any excisable goods which they knew or had reason to believe were liable for confiscation under Central Excise Act, 1944 or the Rules, penalty under Rule 26 cannot be imposed.
Shri A. Mishra Ld. AR appearing for the revenue supports the findings of the impugned order. He submits that since the goods other than of declared RSP has been found to be manufactured by the Appellant Unit, therefore the duty is liable to be paid as per highest RSP goods. He also supports the findings for imposition of penalty upon co-appellants.

8 Heard both the sides and perused the records. We find that the Unit had filed declaration on 01.04.2011 in terms of Rule 6 of PMPM Rules wherein they declared the details of packing machines to be used for packing of Gutkha along with specific MRP of the pouches. However the unit was found to be engaged in packing pouches of higher MRP in contravention of declaration filed by them under Rule 6 of PMPM Rules, 2008. Clearly the Appellant unit contravened the provisions of Rule 6 (6), 7 and 9 of the PMPM Rules, 2008 and since the notified goods were manufactured in contravention of their declaration, therefore as per the provisions of Rule 9 of the PMPM Rules, 2008 the rate of duty applicable to goods of Highest RSP, Rs. 3 in this case will be applicable in respect of all packing machines operated by the Appellant and they are liable to pay duty as per said RSP on all machines. The language of Rules is absolutely clear in this regard and leaves no scope of any doubt. We thus hold that the duty demand is sustainable and the impugned order in as much as it relates to central excise duty liability on the basis of Highest retail sale price i.e. Rs. 3, interest on duty and penalty on Appellant Unit as imposed by the adjudicating is legal and we do not find any reason to interfere with the same. Therefore the impugned order in as much as it relates to demand of duty and penalty against the appellant company is concerned is upheld.

9 Coming to the personal penalty imposed upon the Appellant Shri Dilipkumar Amrutlal Jani, director of the Appellant Unit and Shri Jagdishprasad Mohanlal Joshi and Shri Sachin Joshi we find that at the time of the visit of the officers, the affairs of the unit was being found to be managed by Shri Dilipkumar Amrutlal Jani as stated by Production Supervisor Shri Pradeep G Sharma, Labour Supervisor, Shri Narpatsingh Kishorsingh Khichi and Shri Pappuram Mangaram and Authorised signatory Shri Balraj Chamansingh Maurya. Shri Dilipkumar Amrutlal Jani in his statement dt. 25.04.2011 also agreed with the facts of panchnama dated 21/22.04.2011 and also agreed with the verification of machines. He also accepted filing declaration and was aware of the law that the „Guthka” is notified goods and manufactured in Appellant‟s Unit. In such case we find that the director Shri Dilipkumar Amrutlal Jani being managing the affairs of the unit was responsible for violation of Rule 6 of PMPM Rules, 2008. The impugned goods were manufactured in violation of Rule 6 of PMPM Rules, 2008 and since Shri Dilipkumar Amrutlal Jani being involved in violation of subject rules being director of the unit is liable for penalty. However considering the amount of duty and imposition of penalty on the company, we are of the view that personal penalty imposed upon Shri Jani is on higher side, which requires reduction. Therefore we find it appropriate to reduce the penalty, accordingly penalty imposed upon Shri Dilipkumar Amritlal Jani is reduced from Rs. 5,00,00,000/- to Rs. 4,00,00,000/-. Therefore the impugned order against Shri Dilipkumar Amrutlal Jani is modified to the above extent.

8. As regard penalty upon Shri Jagdish M Joshi and Shri Sachin Joshi, we find that no involvement of above persons is on record. We do not find any act committed by both Appellants to evade payment of duty or to violate the Pan masala packaging Rules. Shri Dilipkumar Amrtulal Jani has not named any of these persons to be involved in any act of violation of law nor any of the persons whose statements has been relied upon i.e. production Manager or Supervisors has named the Appellants to be involved in any act of violation. The show cause notice has relied upon the statements of employees Shri Maurya, Shri Manoj Kumar, Shri Sawant, Shri Gehlot, Shri Gautam recorded in relation to some other case booked by the DGCEI against the Appellant Unit to hold both the Appellant’s responsible for alleged violation in present case.

However we find that in the present case no involvement of these Appellants is on record. The Appellant had sought cross examination of the aforesaid persons which has been denied by the adjudicating authority. In such case when the statements were not recorded in investigation of present case, the same cannot be relied upon. Even also in absence of cross examination in terms of Section 9D of the Central Excise Act, 1944, these statements cannot be relied upon. We find that Shri J.M. Joshi was not a director of SMFPPL since year 2000 and that he had sold all his shares even before the investigation in the instant case had begun. None of the witnesses has made any statement to the effect that the Appellants were aware of or involved in the alleged clandestine removal by SMFPPL. Also Shri Sachin Joshi was not even director of the Appellant Unit at any point of time. There is no acceptance of the any of two Appellants to manage the affairs of the unit. The Ld. Adjudicating authority has relied upon section 266 and 270 of the Companies Act and to hold that Shri DilipkumarAmrutlal Jani is director for namesake only and the Appellants hold the company. We find that even before the present case the shares were transferred by the Appellant and he was not even shareholder. Even if assumed to be that he was holding shares, then too without any evidence it cannot be said that any of the Appellant was involved in violation of any law. The adjudicating authority has relied upon section 266 of the Companies Act, to hold that a person cannot become director if he does not hold any shares. However we find that the Sub - Section (1) is applicable only where the company is filing a prospectus of an intending company. It is not applicable in case of an existing company. Further sub – section 5 of section 266 clearly states that the section shall not apply to a private company. In the present case the Appellant unit is a private ltd company and hence section 266 is not applicable to the present case. Therefore the contention of adjudicating authority is incorrect.

9. As regard applicability of section 270, it is submitted that said section is applicable to the person named in Articles of Association as director. It is not applicable to appointment of subsequent directors or nominated directors. Pertinently the Articles of Association of the appellant company permits a person to be director even if he is not a shareholder. We also find that penalty has been imposed under Rule 26 on the Appellant. The said section is applicable on person involved in clearance of goods by different ways as enumerated in Rule 26. Whereas, in the present case the duty demand has been made by interpreting the Pan Masala Packing Machines (Capacity Determination and collection of duty) Rules, 2008 and not on basis of clearance of goods. There is no evidence that any of both the Appellants has concerned himself in transporting, depositing, selling or purchasing of excisable goods which they knew or had reason to believe that the goods were liable for confiscation. There is no findings that the Appellants had played role in acquiring, possessing of, or Appellants were in any way concerned in transporting, removing, depositing, keeping, concealing, selling or purchasing or in any other manner dealt with, any excisable goods which they knew or had reason to believe were liable for confiscation under Central Excise Act, 1944 or the Rules.

Therefore penalty under Rule 26 cannot be imposed. Moreover, it is also seen that in the present case, there was no proposal to confiscate goods. Hence for this reason also the penalty under Rule 26 cannot be imposed. Even above all we do not find any involvement of Appellant in alleged act of violation. Shri J.M. Joshi was director only till year 2000 and no involvement of him or Shri Sachin Joshi who was previously authorised signatory is appearing on record or either through statement of any person. Therefore in absence of any evidence of involvement of both of these persons in any act of violation of Pan masala Packing Machinery Rules, 2008 or central excise law, we do not find any reason to impose penalty upon them. We therefore set aside the impugned order only to the extent, it imposes penalty upon Shri J.M. Joshi and Shri Sachin Joshi, resultant the penalty on both of these persons is set aside.

17. As a result of our above discussions and observations, appeal filed by M/s Minakshi Foods Pvt. Ltd. is dismissed, appeal filed by Shri Dilip Kumar Amritlal Jani is partly allowed in the above terms and appeals filed by Shri J.M. Joshi and Shri Sachin Joshi are allowed.

This appeal has been filed M/s Meghmani Organics Ltd against denial of refund claim.

Ld. Counsel for the appellant pointed out that the appellant had paid the duty under protest on the product ‘Megaboost’ cleared during the period 11.08.2010 to 31.12.2010 on the ground that the said goods did not attract duty. The said refund claim was rejected by the lower authority after issuance of SCN. It was asserted in the SCN that the appellant had imported these goods and during the import of goods, the said goods were clarified under Chapter 31 of Customs Tariff Act. The said goods were re-packed in smaller packs under brand name ‘Megaboost’. It was alleged by the Excise Authority that the said goods were not fertilizer as claimed by them before Customs Authority but are classifiable under Chapter 29 therefore, were liable to be assessed to duty. The appellant paid the said duty under protest.
2.2 The samples of the goods were taken and sent for chemical examination. The chemical examiner, Central Excise Laboratory, Vadodara vide his letters F. No. RCL/AH/C.Ex./10 and No. RCL/AH.C.Ex./11 both dated 16.12.2008 communicated the test result as under:

(A) Megaboost FE

—The sample is in the form of light brown powder. It is ethylene Diamine Tetra Acetic Acid Di-Sodium-Iron Complex. It is a co-ordination compound. It is having following characteristics:

Iron (chelated by EDTA) =11.9%
PH (1%) =4.00
Noter-Co-ordination Compound are finds mentioned in Chapter29 Noters 5 (c) (3)

(B) Megaboost ZN

—The sample is in the form of light brown powder. It is ethylene Diamine Tetra Acetic Acid Di-Sodium-Zinc Complex. It is a co-ordination compound. It is having following characteristics:

10. Zinc (chelated by EDTA) =13.6% PH (1%) =4.00
Noter-Co-ordination Compound are finds mentioned in Chapter29 Noters 5 (c) (3)

The test report was challenged by the appellant and retest report was received from the Director (Revenue Laboratories), Central Revenue Control Laboratory, New Delhi vide their letter F. No. 75-Exo/C-18/2009-10 dated 26.03.2010. The test result is as under:

—The sample is in the form of light brown powder. It is ethylene Diamine Tetra Acetic Acid Disodium (EDTA) – Iron (Fe) Complex. It is a co-ordination compound.

Iron content in the same under reference is more than 12% by wt (on sample as such). It does not contain any nitrogen, phosphorous and potassium (NPK) based fertilizer.

MEGABOOST Zn Lab No. CLR/29,dated.24.02.2010

—The sample is in the form of white powder. It is ethylene Diamine Tetra Acetic Acid Disodium (EDTA) – Zinc (Zn) Complex. It is a co-ordination compound.
Zinc content in the sample under reference is more than 12% by wt. It does not contain any nitrogen, phosphorous and potassium (NPK) based fertilizer.

Regarding the classification of the sample under reference, attention is invited to Notification No.: Central Excise Circular No. 392/1998, dated 19.05.1998 issued by the Central Board of Excise & Customs.

The appellant were not satisfied with that test report and sought for retest of the sample in the Office of Assistant Director of Agriculture Fertilizer Testing Laboratory. The said request was forwarded by Revenue to CRCL, New Delhi for examination in terms of para 8.10 of Chapter 11 of the CBEC’s Excise Manual of Supplementary Instruction-2005 which reads as under:

—Where an assessee requests for retest in a laboratory other than a Control Laboratory (hereinafter in this paragraph referred to as —Outside Laboratory)— whether on the remnant or the duplicate or triplicate sample, such request may be allowed for testing the sample from an outside Government or semi-Government laboratory with the prior permission of the Commissioner or the Appellant or the Reversionary Authority, as the case may be after Director (Revenue Laboratories) has confirmed that the departmental laboratories does not have the facilities for performing the particular test in question. The request for retest in outside laboratories will be conditional upon the party concerned meeting the cost of retest.\r

The DGCRCL, New Delhi vide letter dated 29.12.2010 replied the clarification as under:

—In this connection, it is to inform you that each of the two samples under reference was received in a unit packing in a printed Carton.

As such each is a Ethylene Diamine Tetra Acetic Acid Disodium (EDTA)-Iron (Fe) and Zinc (Zn) Complex- a coordination compound. It is true that each of the two samples contains Nitrogen, but this nitrogen is from EDTA only. Each is free from Mineral or chemical fertilizers-Nitrogenous covered under Chapter31 which is evident from the Iron and Zinc contents in the samples as mentioned under Chapter31. EDTA chelates are not covered under nitrogenous fertilizers. Therefore each merits classification under Chapter29 of Central Excise Tariff.

Further, as per Central Excise Circular No. 392/1998, it is also stated that Notification under FCO covering micronutrients is irrelevant for deciding classification under the Central Excise Tariff and regardless of such notification, the appropriate consideration should be whether or not the micronutrient in question is a separate chemically defined compound, if it is, the classification under Chapter 31.05 is rules out.
On the basis of report it was alleged by the Revenue that the product i.e. Megaboost is ‘Coordination Compound’ which finds mention in Note 5 (c) of Chapter 29 and therefore it appears that the product is rightly classified under Chapter 29 of the Central Excise Tariff Act, 1985 and chargeable to duty accordingly.

8. It was also noticed that test reports of appellant contained the word ‘Chelated Fe’ and ‘Chelated Zinc’. Ld. Counsel was asked to explain the meaning of word ‘Coordination Compound’ and the word ‘Chelated’. Ld. Counsel refuse to assist and stated that the matter should be decided only on the basis of decision given in case of Ciba India Ltd 2009 (237) ELT 207 (Tri.Chennai) and in their own case reported in 2010 (254) ELT 172 (Tri.Bang.).

9. Ld. Counsel argued that matter has been settled by the decision of this Tribunal in the case of Ciba India Ltd (Supra). He argued that in Ciba India Ltd relying on Note 6 of Chapter 31, Tribunal has held that product would be classifiable under Chapter 31. The para 1 & 2 of the said decision reads as under:

1. The issue in this appeal relates to classification of LIBREL Brand Micronutrients imported by the appellants herein for agricultural use — whether under Customs Tariff Heading 29.22 as held by the Commissioner or under CTH 31.05 as claimed by the importers. The imported item contains Ethylene Diamine Tetraacetic Acid (EDTA) which is a chelating agent and also contains nitrogen, zinc, manganese and iron. There is no dispute that it is used as a fertilizer. As per Note 6 to Chapter 31 of the CETA, 1985, the term — other fertilizers applies only to products of a kind used as fertilizers containing, as an essential constituent (emphasis applied) at least one of the fertilizing elements nitrogen, phosphorous or potassium. The department has relied upon clarification issued by the Regional Fertilizer Control Laboratory, Chennai under cover of letters dated 30-10-2006 and 4-1-2007 that the products are micronutrient fertilizers under the Fertilizer Control Order and incidentally contained small quantities of nitrogen because of the chemical composition and cannot be claimed as primary source of nitrogen, to hold that nitrogen is not an essential constituent so as to classify the goods under Chapter 31. However, we note that the International Institute of Biotechnology and Toxicology (IIBAT) has certified on 19-12-2006 that during the process of supply of potential micronutrients for the plant growth, once the micronutrients are delivered at the plant system EDTA breaks out resulting in elemental nitrogen which further helps to promote the plant growth and that without nitrogen it is not possible to deliver the metal ions or micronutrients to the plant system. This certificate was placed by the appellants before the authorities below. Further reliance placed by the Revenue on the specific exclusion of separate chemically defined compounds from Heading 3105.90 in the HSN Explanatory Notes (the EDTA chelate is separate chemically defined compound) is also misplaced for the reason that HSN Explanatory Notes to Chapter 29 clearly state that separate chemically defined compounds containing other substances deliberately added during or after their manufacture are excluded from Chapter 29 and the product in dispute contains zinc/manganese/iron which is deliberately added. In the light of the above discussion, we hold that the imported item falls for classification under CTH 3105.90 of the Customs Tariff Act, 1975 as micronutrient and not under CTH 29.22, that the benefit of the exemption from payment of CVD and SAD under Notification 4/2006 (S. No. 63) and 20/2006 (S. No. 4) is available to the goods, set aside Order-in-Original No. 7114/2008 dated 30-1-2008 challenged in Appeal No. C/88/2008 and allowed the Customs appeal.

Appeal No. E/96/2008, E/103, 104 and 105/2008 which arise out of Order-in-Original No. 33/2007 dated 30-11-2007 holding that the product falls under Chapter Heading 29.22 of the CETA and confirming duty demand of Rs. 86,93,511/- together with Education Cess of Rs. 1,73,870/- on micronutrients repacked and relabelled by M/s. Swathi Organics & Chemicals (P) Ltd. and imposing penalties of Rs. 88,67,381/- on M/s. Swathi Organics & Chemicals (P) Ltd. and Rs. 9 lakhs and Rs. 4.5 lakhs respectively on its Managing Director and Executive Director and Rs. 7.50 lakhs on M/s. Ciba India Ltd. are also allowed, in the light of our finding on classification of the product under Chapter Heading 31.05 of the Customs Tariff as there is no deeming fiction in Chapter 31 of the CETA, 1985 that repacking and relabelling amounts to manufacture so as to give rise to duty liability of M/s. Swathi Organics & Chemicals (P) Ltd. (such deeming fiction is contained in Chapter 29 of the CETA, 1985). In the result, the impugned orders are set aside and the appeals allowed.

He further argued that the said decision relied in their own case reported in 2010 (254) ELT 172 to hold that same product would fall under chapter 31. After hearing on 19.08.2019, on the next day Ld. Counsel sought permission to submit written submission and the same were submitted on 28.08.2019. In the said written submission again he relied on these aforesaid decisions of Tribunal in case of Ciba India Ltd and in their own case. He also relied on the fact that the Gujarat Government has given the permission to sale the product as fertilizer. It has been also argued that once the Customs had done the classification under Chapter 31, it is not open for Central Excise Authority to change the classification to Chapter 29. The Ld. Counsel has however not provided any assistance by giving meaning of words ‘Coordination Compound’ and ‘Chelated’.

10 Ld. AR relies on the impugned order.

11 We have gone through arguments of both the sides. We find that the issue under consideration is if the product sold by the appellant is classifiable under chapter 31 as fertilizer or under chapter 29 specifically defined chemical. It is seen that the decision in case of Ciba India Ltd (Supra) was taken without considering Chapter Note 5 of Central Excise Tariff Act, 1985 which reads as under:

–(C) Subject to Note 1 to Section VI and Note 2 to Chapter 28:

12 Inorganic salts of organic compounds such as acid-, phenol- or enolfunction compounds or organic bases, of sub-Chapters I to X or heading 2942, are to be classified in the heading appropriate to the organic compound; and Salts formed between organic compounds of sub-Chapters I to X or heading 2942 are to be classified in the heading appropriate to the base or to the acid (including phenol- or enol-function compounds) from which they are formed, whichever occurs last in numerical order in the Chapter.

13. Co-ordination compounds, other than products classifiable in sub Chapter XI or heading 2941, are to be classified in the heading which occurs last in numerical order in Chapter 29, among those appropriate to the fragments formed by "cleaving" of all metal bonds, other than metal-carbon bonds.

The earlier decision of Tribunal in the appellant's own case was based essentially relying on the decision of Tribunal in the case of Ciba India Ltd (Supra). In the said decision also the Chapter Note 5 of the Chapter 29 was not examined.

18. The term 'Coordination Compound' is defined in Wikipedia as follows:

-A coordination compound is a compound containing one or more coordinate bonds, which is a link between a pair of electrons in which both electrons are donated by one of the atoms. In other words, it is a compound that contains a coordination complex.

From the above definition, it is seen that the 'Coordination Compound' is a molecule consisting of metal item with numbers of other items or groups, thus it is separately defined chemical and not a mixture of different items. In this context, Ld. Counsel for the appellant was asked to assist by providing the meaning of words 'Coordination Compound' and the word 'Chelated' appearing in Chapter Note 5 to Chapter 29 and in test report which Ld. Counsel refuse to give.

9. Perusal of the Test Report No. C/619/08/08/S of Gujarat Laboratory produced by appellant themselves, describes the product as Iron Chelated. Similarly the Test Report No. C/620/08/08/S of Gujarat Laboratory produced by appellant also describes the product as Zinc Chelated. The certificate of analysis appearing in page 42 of the appeal from Sichuan Jiannachun International Economic & Trade Co. Ltd also describes the product as Zinc Chelated. The letter of Micronutrient Project (ICAR) appears at page 49 of the appeal describes the product as 'chelated Iron' and 'Chelated Zinc'. The Term Chelated is defined in website Free Dictionary.com as follows:

A chemical compound in the form of a heterocyclic ring, containing a metal ion attached by coordinate bonds to at least two nonmetal ions.

From the above, it is apparent that the chelate is specifically separately defined chemical and not a mixture. The chemical examiner report clearly points out that the Chapter Note 5 (c) is relevant for the classification of the product as the said product has been described by the chemical examiner as 'Coordination Compound'.

(17) It is also seen that the Ld. Counsel has claimed that the product is mixture of goods whereas the test report describes the product as 'Coordination Compound' and not as a mixture. The literature of foreign supplier as well as the test reports produced by the appellant also describe product as 'chelated Iron' or 'Chelated Zinc'. It is seen that the decision in case of Ciba India Ltd (supra) was taken in respect of Ethylene Diamine Tetraacetic Acid (EDTA) which is on chelating agent and also contains Nitrogen, Zinc, Manganese and Iron. In the said case, the reliance has been placed on Note 6 of Chapter 31 of Central Excise Tariff Act, 1985 which reads as under:
For the purposes of heading 3105, the term “other fertilizers” applies only to products of a kind used as fertilizers and containing, as an essential constituent, at least one of the fertilizing elements nitrogen, phosphorus or potassium.

It fails to notice that the Chapter 31 does not include separate chemically defined compounds. Chapter Note 1 to Chapter 31 reads as under:

1. This Chapter does not cover: (a) Animal blood of heading 0511; (b) Separate chemically defined compounds (other than those answering to the descriptions in Noter 2(a), 3(a), 4(a) or 5, below); or (x) Cultured potassium chloride crystals (other than optical elements) weighing not less than 2.5 g each, of heading 3824; optical elements of potassium chloride (heading 9001).

In respect of separately defined chemical, the chapter Notes permits classification under Chapter 31 only with reference to chapter 2(a), 3(a), 4(a) or 5 to Chapter 31. It is apparent that separately define chemical which may also answered to Note 6 to Chapter 31 would not be covered under Chapter 31. Moreover, it is seen that Chapter 29 covers all separate chemical define organics compound. The Note 2 of Chapter 29 excludes only Urea falling under heading 3102 or 3105 from the purview of Chapter 29. On combine reading of Chapter Note 1 of Chapter 29 and Chapter Note 2(e) of chapter 29, Chapter Note 1 (b) of Chapter 31 and Chapter Note 6 of Chapter 31 shows that separately define compound which might answer to Chapter 6 would not be classifiable under Chapter 19.

It is seen that the decision in case of Ciba India Ltd (Supra) and Meghmani Organics Ltd (Supra) are per incurium as they have fail to examine the aforesaid Chapter Notes before reaching to conclusion.

(5) The second issue relates to the appellant’s claim that it is open to Central Excise Authority to change the classification made by the Customs Authority. It is apparent that two authorities i.e. Customs and Excise Authority are totally independent authority and mistake by one need not be carried out or followed by another.

(6) In view of above, we do not find any merit in the appeal and the same is dismissed.

DATE OF HEARING/ DECISION : 15.10.2019

RAMESH NAIR:

The brief facts of the case are that appellant filed six refund claims before the Adjudicating Authority and all the six refund claims were rejected by the Adjudicating Authority. Against which, for the refunds pertaining to June 2008 to September 2008, appellant filed appeal before Commissioner (Appeals) which came to be allowed and the appellant received refund. However, refund claims for the period October 2008 and November 2008, though the same were also rejected by the Adjudicating Authority, the appellant did not file any appeal. Against rejection of refund in respect of these two refunds, the appellant approached the Adjudicating Authority for sanction of the refunds on the ground that Commissioner (Appeals), in respect of four refund claims has sanctioned and allowed the refund. The Adjudicating Authority rejected the request of the appellant on the ground that against the order-in-original rejecting the refunds, the appellant had not filed appeal before the Commissioner (Appeals). Against such rejection of request of the appellant, the appellant filed appeal before the Learned Commissioner (Appeals), who also concurring with the stand of the Adjudicating Authority, dismissed the appeal, therefore, the present appeal.

2. Shri Dhaval Shah, Learned Counsel appearing on behalf of the appellant submits that since the admissibility of refund has already been decided in respect of four refund claims, therefore, for other two refund claims the appellant is entitled for refund.

3. Shri S.N. Gohil, Learned Superintendent (AR) appearing on behalf of the Revenue reiterates the findings of the impugned order. He relied on the Hon’ble Supreme Court decision in the case of Collector of Central Excise, Kanpur vs. Flock (India) Pvt. Limited – 2000 (120) ELT 285 (SC).

4. We have heard both the sides and perused the record. We find that there is no dispute for the fact that, in respect of original rejection of refund claims, the appellant did not challenge the adjudication order before the Commissioner (Appeals). Therefore, the first adjudication attained finality by not challenging the same. The appellant, on the basis of order of the Commissioner (Appeals), which was in favour of the appellant cannot challenge before whom the matter of other claim relief in other case, where the rejection of refund order was not challenged. In the case of Flock (India) Pvt. Limited (Supra) the Hon’ble Supreme Court clearly held that without challenging the order, refund cannot be claimed. Therefore, agreeing with the view taken by both the lower authorities, we are also of the view that since the appellant have not challenged the rejection order passed by the Adjudicating Authority, the said order attained finality according to which the refund stand rejected and the same cannot be given to the appellant. Accordingly, the impugned order is upheld and the appeal is dismissed.

DATE OF HEARING: 29.03.2019
DATE OF DECISION: 16.07.2019

RAMESH NAIR
The present appeals have been filed by M/s Mili Detergent Industries, M/s Superchem, M/s Shree Jalaram Chemical Industries and M/s Sonal Cosmetics (Exports) Ltd. against OIO dated 21.04.2009 passed by the Commissioner, Central Excise, Ahmedabad.

The brief facts of the case are that the officers visited the M/s Sonal Cosmetics (Exports) Ltd (SCEL), who are engaged in packing of Detergent Powder which is procured from other three Appellants. The Managing Director of M/s SCEL, Shri Yogesh Shah is also partner of

M/s Mili Detergent Industries. Search conducted at the office premises of M/s SCEL led to seizure of records and documents including loose papers. The director of M/s SCEL Shri Akashbhai Vinodbhai Shah stated that the loose papers pertained to the detergent powder sent by M/s Superchem, M/s Mili Detergent Industries and M/s Jalaram Chemical Industries to them and explained the details written in different columns in said papers. Shri Akashbhai Vinodbhai Shah and Shri Yogeshbhai Jesinghbhai Shah confirmed the facts of Panchnama in their statements dated 4.4.94 and 1.8.94 respectively. Shri Yogesh in his statements dated 16.5.94 and 1.8.94 stated that the vehicle mentioned in the said seized papers was purchased in the name of M/s SCEL and was sold to one Shri Mashrubhai Bharwad. That the work related to the transportation of goods were being looked after by one Shri Nemichand Zaverilal Sharma and the papers contained details of transportation of detergent powder, slurry, soda ash during April’93 to July’93 from different factories to M/s SCEL. That the datewise details were got written by Shri Mashrubhai Bharwad through his man showing the consignments and the consignees. Shri Mashrubhai Bharwad, tempo driver in his statement dated 29.11.94 stated that he used to deliver detergent powder in the godown of M/s SCEL from co-appellants’ factories and used to keep the account of such transportation on kachha papers, which he used to get written by one of his friends known as “Ustad” as he himself was an illiterate person. On being shown the papers seized under Panchnama from M/s SCEL, he stated that the details therein were of the transportation of goods from various factories on day-to-day basis. That he had handed over the above papers containing accounts of transportation to M/s SCEL. In his subsequent statements dated 20.12.94 and 22.03.95, Shri Yogeshbhai Jesinghbhai Shah confirmed that on comparing the details of datewise details of goods as shown in the papers of Shri Mashrubhai Bharwad, seized from his office on 4.2.94 with the relevant books of accounts, the same did not tally as the same did not figure in the books of accounts of M/s SCEL nor were any gate passes found to have been issued by the units in respect of the clearances of the said goods. That the quantity of detergent powder, as mentioned in the said seized papers, had been received in loose condition without any central excise gate pass and that he was giving the statement in the capacity of a partner of M/s Mili Detergent Industries. The statement of Shri Nemichand Zaverilal
Sharma was recorded on 17.1.1995 wherein he admitted that he was the authorized signatory of M/s Jalaram Chemical Industries and M/s Superchem. That no Central Excise Gate Passes were prepared for 237960 kg of detergent powder delivered on 4.4.93, 10.4.93, 12.4.93 and 22.4.93 in the name of M/s Superchem, as mentioned in the seized papers. Similarly, as mentioned in the said papers, 96,000 kg Detergent Powder had also been cleared from M/s Jalaram Chemical Industries, Vatva to Shahwadi in the month of July 1993. On verification of the central excise gate passes issued by M/s Superchem and M/s Jalaram Chemical Industries, it was noticed that no central excise gate pass has been prepared in respect of such clearances and no central excise duty was paid by M/s Superchem and M/s Jalaram Chemical Industries on the said goods. Shri Nirav Arvind Shah, proprietor of M/s Jalaram Chemical Industries in his statement dated 21.3.1995 admitted the authorization of Shri Nemichand Sharma to sign all documents etc. He also agreed with the statement of Shri Nemichand Sharma regarding clearance of goods without payment of excise duty. Shri Indravadan Jesingbhai Shah, proprietor of M/s Superchem in his statement dated 22.3.95 stated that he has authorized Shri Nemichand Sharma for giving statement and agreed with the statement of Shri Nemichand Sharma recorded on 17.1.95. He also agreed that detergent powder found to be entered in the papers seized from the office of SCEL was transported without issuing central excise gate pass and without payment of excise duty. Based on the above statement and the seized documents, M/s Mili Detergent Industries, M/s SCEL and M/s Jalaram Chemical Industries were issued show cause notice dated 26.6.95 demanding duty of Rs. 82,83,811/-, Rs. 16,33,002/- and Rs. 12,51,600/- respectively on Detergent Powder manufactured and cleared without payment of duty by them. Penalty was also proposed and SSI exemption of Rs. 30 lakh availed by all the above units was proposed to be denied on the ground that the units have suppressed the production / clearances with an intent to evade payment of excise duty. M/s Mili Detergent Industries was also proposed to be disallowed the SSI exemption under Notification No. 1/93-CE dated 28.2.93 during 1994-95 as the value of clearances of excisable goods from their factory was exceeded the SSI exemption limit. The Show cause notice was decided ex-parte by the adjudicating authority vide order dated 29.1.98 and the appellant filed an appeal against the said order before the Tribunal, who remanded the case back for giving opportunity of hearing to all

2. Ld Counsel Sh. Anil Gidwani appearing for the appellants. The adjudicating authority vide order-in-original dated 29.12.2000 set aside the demands and the penalties. The said order was reviewed by the Board and an appeal was filed before the Tribunal, who allowed the appeal filed by the Department by way of remand for giving reasonable opportunity of being heard. In de novo adjudication proceeding, vide order-in- original dated 29.2.2008, the demands were confirmed by the adjudicating authority against which the appellants filed appeal before the Tribunal, who vide order dated 6.10.2008 set aside the impugned order and remanded the matter to Commissioner for fresh decision after hearing the appellants in person. The adjudicating authority, after giving an opportunity of being heard to the appellants and taking their submissions on record, vide impugned order has again confirmed the demand. Being aggrieved, the appellants have filed the present appeals.

The driver of tempo, when in the year 2000 during cross examination , had deposed that he was carrying various goods in his tempo and entries in loose papers were made commonly, hence it cannot be said that whatever quantity of detergent powder as stated in the loose papers, might have been cleared from the premises of the appellants. The Ld. counsel placed reliance on the Tribunal judgments in case of Arsh Castings Pvt Ltd - 1996 (81) ELT276 (Tri), Emmtex Synthetics Ltd – 2003 (151) ELT 170 (Tri), Takshila Spinners – 2001 (131) ELT568 (Tri) and other judgments to support the contention that without cross examination, the allegations in the show cause notices cannot be proved. The Ld. counsel submits that on the basis of 11 loose unauthenticated papers recovered from the premises of a third party M/s SCEL, the clandestine removal cannot be alleged as the author of these papers is neither the appellant nor any representative of the appellant. Therefore, the demand cannot be confirmed. There is no documentary evidence except the 11 loose unauthenticated papers. The Ld. counsel submits that the detergent powder was supplied to M/s SCEL where it was packed and labelled with OK brand and supplied to M/s Tata Oil Mills Ltd, who would never buy any non-duty paid goods. The Ld. Counsel also relies upon the judgments in case of Murugan Enterprises – 2003 (162) ELT 233 to state that the admission by the proprietors in absence of any evidence to prove clandestine removal is not sufficient to confirm the demand. Reliance has also been placed in case of Velavan Spinning Mills – 2004 (167) ELT 91 (T), Sayaji Iron & Enng. Co. Ltd – 1990 (45) ELT 104 (T), Sunshine Exports - 2004 (168) ELT 363 (T), Bipin Silk & Synthetics – 2004 (163) ELT 102 (T), Raj Sandeep Co – 2003 (162) ELT 1028 (T), Orkay Polyester - 2003 (161) ELT 227 (T) and Shree Narottam Udyog Pvt Ltd – 2003 (158) ELT 40 (T). That the demands are time barred as the clearances were for the period April 93 to June 93; the show cause notice was issued by not invoking proviso to Section 11A(1), but only by invoking Section 11A. The Ld. Counsel prays to set aside the impugned order and allow the appeal.

10 Shri L. Patra, Ld. AR appearing for the revenue reiterates the findings of the impugned order and prays to uphold the same.

11 Heard both the sides and perused the case records. We find that this is the 4th round of litigation before the Tribunal. In the first round, the Tribunal remanded the case back to the adjudicating authority as the order was passed ex-parte. In the second round of litigation, the demand were dropped by the adjudicating authority and the Revenue filed an appeal. The case was again remanded back to the adjudicating authority. In the third round of litigation, the demands were confirmed and the case was remanded back on the ground that the hearing notices could not be served. This is the 4th round of litigation before us. Since the matter has been lingering for last 24 years, we deem it appropriate to decide the same on basis of case records.

Having heard the Ld. Counsel for the Appellants and Ld. AR for the revenue and going through the case records, we find that the officers seized 11 loose papers containing details of clearances of detergent powder from the office of M/s SCEL, who were consignee of these goods cleared from M/s Mili Detergent Industries , M/s Superchem and M/s Jalaram Chemical Industries. The director of SCEL Shri Yogeshbhai Shah and partner of M/s Mill Detergent Industries has accepted the fact that the seized papers contained details of clearances made by the 3 Appellants to M/s SCEL. Even though the appellants have challenged the demand on the ground that the author of these papers was not investigated but the fact remains that the clearances mentioned in the said papers stand accepted by Shri MashrubhaiBharwad, tempo driver, who had transported these goods to M/s SCEL. Further Shri Yogeshbhai Shah who is Managing Director of M/s SECL and partner of M/s Mill Detergent Industries himself has accepted that the papers pertained to goods cleared by the three units to M/s SECL. In such case when the partner of the consignor unit and Managing Director of consignee unit has accepted removal of receipt of goods from M/s Mili Detergent to M/s SECL, it leaves no doubt that the details found in loose papers pertain to clandestine clearance by three units to M/s SECL. Further even the authorized signatory of M/s Jalaram accepted the details found in papers to be clearances made by them without payment of duty to M/s SECL. The directors of M/s Jalaram and M/s Superchem also agreed with the statement of authorized signatory. The Ld. Counsel has pleaded that the cross examination of Shri MashrubhaiBharwad, Tempo owner and investigating officer was not allowed. We find that cross examination of Shri MashrubhaiBharwad was already allowed earlier and therefore there was no reason for the adjudicating authority to grant cross examination again and again and cannot be considered to be violative of principles of natural justice. We also do not find any reason to grant cross examination of the officers as there is no doubt about the investigation proceedings. Since on merits we find that the clandestine removal stands by the consignors as well as consignee and also by the transporter stands accepted, therefore we do not find any reason to interfere with the impugned order and uphold the same. Consequentially all the appeals are dismissed.

This appeal has been filed by M/s. Rishi Cast Pvt. Limited against the demand of Central Excise duty, interest and confirmation of penalty.

Ld. Counsel for the appellant pointed out that they are manufacturing certain items falling under Chapter heading 7324 and 7325 and one of the items manufactured by them is ‘manhole cover’. The appellant were classifying the product under heading 7324 whereas the Revenue seeks to classify the item under 7325.10. He pointed out that rate of duty is same on both however, the chapter heading 7324 is liable to be taxed under Section 4A of the Central Excise Act, 1944 as it has been notified under Notification No. 13/2002-CE (NT) dated 01.03.2002.

Ld. Counsel pointed out that they are not contesting the issue on merits however, contesting the issue solely on limitation. He argued that the product ‘manhole cover’ were classified by them under heading 7324 and were assessed to duty under Section 4A of the Central Excise Act, 1944. They were printing MRP on the said manhole covers. He argued that vide their letter dated 02.08.1999 they had declared the manufacturing process. He further pointed out that they were regularly manufacturing the said product and were filing ARE-1 returns. He pointed out that in ARE-1 they were describing the product as ‘Cast Iron Manhole Cover’. He pointed that the entire issue was in the knowledge of Revenue therefore, extended period could not have been invoked to demand duty under Section 4 in respect of the product Manhole Cover which they were cleared under Section 4A by declaring the product classified under heading 7324. In Para 6 of the show cause notice where it has been acknowledged that they had vide letter dated 26.09.2009 addressed to the jurisdictional Range Superintendent, indicated the product manufactured by them is being cleared/dispatched in a set of Manhole Cover along with its frame. In the said letter it was also informed that they were printing MRP on the said Manhole Cover.

Ld. Counsel relied on the following decisions:-

c. Cap & Seal (Indore) Pvt. Limited vs. CCE & ST, Ujjain – 2018 (15) GSTL 74 (Tri. Del.)

Ld. AR relies on the impugned order. He particularly relied on Para 13 of the show cause notice wherein it has been alleged that the appellant had never informed the correct nomenclature of the product and it was during the audit of the record came to the notice of the Revenue that the product is Manhole cover. He also pointed out that in the registration certificate itself, the appellant had classified the product CI Casting under heading 7325.10 and CI Sanitary Fittings under heading 7324. He argued that the registration certificate issued in 1999 showed that appellant was classifying the product correctly under Chapter heading 7325.10. He further brought to our notice that in the Invoice No. 148 dated 04.01.2000 the appellant had classified the product as 7325.10 however in the Invoice No. 618 dated 26.03.2001, they had changed the classification as 7324.00 and again in Invoice No. 498 dated 25.03.2002, 634 dated 30.03.2003 and in 643 dated 18.03.2004 etc. they classified the product as 7324. He pointed out that appellant had changed the classification just to avail the benefit of Section 4A and they were aware of the correct classification as 7325 as in the registration certificate obtained in 1999 and invoice No. 148 dated 04.01.2000 issued by them showing classification as 7325.10. He argued that the case law relied upon by the appellant is related to the issue where the appellant had bonafide doubt regarding classification. He argued that the in the instant case, the appellants were aware in the year 1999/2000 that the correct classification of the product is 7325.10 they themselves changed the classification as 7324 later on.
We have gone through the rival submissions. We find that the issue is being contested only on limitation. The appellant argued that they were not sure of the classification and they had doubt which resulted in non-payment of duty. From the facts of the case it is apparent that in 1999, in registration certificate itself they had sought classification as CI Casting under heading 7325.10 and CI Sanitary Fittings under 7324. The appellant were classifying the product in the year 2000 under heading 7325.10 as apparent from Invoice No. 148 dated 04.01.2000 and subsequently they changed the classification. There was a conscious decision to change classification after 2000. In invoice/ declaration prior to 01.04.2000, they have correctly classified and alter they have changed the classification. Thus, it is apparent that appellant had no bonafide belief otherwise. Consequently, the extended period of limitation has rightly been invoked. Since the appellant are contesting the issue only on limitation, the appeal filed by the appellant is rejected and the impugned order is upheld.

This appeal has been filed by M/s Shalu Synthetics Pvt. Ltd. against denial of interest on a refund already sanctioned to the appellant.

2. Ld. Counsel for the appellant pointed out that they had filed the refund claim on 06/12/2007 under Rule 5 of the Cenvat Credit Rules for refund of unutilized Cenvat Credit lying in the balance at the time of surrendering of Central Excise Registration. A Show Cause Notice was issued to them on 31/01/2008 and the same was adjudicated to Dy. Commissioner who vide the Order in original dated 15/03/2008 rejected the refund claim. Thereafter, the appellant filed the refund claim under section 11B of the Central Excise Act, 1944 on 25/07/2008. The same was rejected by Dy. Commissioner on 11/12/2008. The appellant challenged both the rejections, under Rule 5 of Central Excise Rules, 2002 as well as rejection under section 11B of the Central Excise Act, 1944, before Commissioner (A). Such rejection was upheld by Commissioner (A) vide Order in Appeal dated 31/03/2009.

The said order of Commissioner (A) was challenged before the Tribunal and Tribunal vide order no. A/11503/2014 dated 10/06/2004 set aside the impugned order and allowed the appeal with consequential relief. Consequently, the appellant filed a refund claim on 25/06/2014. Simultaneously, Revenue had filed an appeal against the Tribunal order before Hon’ble High Court of Bombay along with the stay application. The appellant meanwhile filed the application before the Tribunal for implementation of the Tribunal order dated 10/06/2014. Tribunal directed the authorities to sanction the refund claim if no stay is obtained from High Court within 6 weeks. The said refund claim was thereafter sanctioned on 10/04/2015. However, interest of the said refund was not sanctioned by the Original Adjudicating Authority on the ground that the said claim was sanctioned in pursuance of Tribunal order without specifying if the said refund was sanctioned under Rule 5 of Central Excise Rules or under section 11B of the Central Excise Act, 1944. The Ld. Counsel relied on the decisions of the Tribunal in the case of AnnapuranaPlasto Pack P Ltd. 2014

1. ELT 529 (Tri-Mumbai) wherein it has been held that liability to pay interest arise not only in case of refund but also refund of MODVAT credit. He also relied on the decision of Tribunal in the case of Birla Texture Ltd. 2010 (257) ELT 146 (Tri) where it was held that refund of pre deposit cannot be allowed by way of credit in the CENVAT account if the assessee has started to avail exemption. It was also found that in the said case that in such circumstances, the assessee is also entitled to interest. Ld. Counsel also relied on the decision of Hon’ble Apex Court in the case of Ranbaxy Laboratories Ltd. 2011 (273) E.L.T. 3 (SC) wherein relying on the circular of CBEC no. 670/61/2002-CX dated 01/10/2002, it was held by Hon’ble Apex Court that interest for delay after expiry of three months from the date of receipt of application has to be granted in case of refund under section 11(B) of the Central Excise Act, 1944.

2. Ld. AR relies on the impugned order. He pointed out that the appellant had not reversed the amount in their RG-23 account at the time of filing the refund and technically the said amount was available in the account of the appellant. He argued that in these circumstances, the balance was throughout maintained by the appellant and, therefore, no interest can be demanded.

3. I have considered rival submissions. I find that the OIO relies on the following observations in the remand order of the Tribunal to deny the claim of interest:

“It can be noted that the refund of the appellant does not fall under the any of the rules and that there are no express or implicit provisions in the Central Excise Act and Cenvat Credit Rules for grant of refund of Cenvat Credit balance lying unutilized at the time of closure of the unit.

4. I find that Hon’ble High Court of Karnataka in the case of Slovak India Trading Company Pvt. Ltd. 2006 (201) ELT 559 (Karn.) has observed as following:

Admitted facts would reveal of a claim of cash refund and admitted facts would reveal of rejection at the hands of the Assistant Commissioner and also the appellate authority. The Tribunal has chosen to allow the claim application on the ground that refund cannot be rejected when the assessee goes out of Modvat scheme or when the Company is closed. The argument is that there is no provision for refund in terms of Rule 5 of Cenvat Credit Rules, 2002. Rule 5 reads as under:

“Rule 5. Refund of CENVAT Credit: When any inputs are used in the final products which are cleared for export under bond or letter of undertaking, as the case may be, or used in the intermediate products cleared for export, the CENVAT credit in respect of the inputs so used shall be allowed to be utilized by the manufacturer towards payment of duty of excise on any final products cleared for home consumption or for export on payment of duty and where for any reason such adjustment is not possible, the manufacturer shall be allowed refund of such amount subject to such safeguards, conditions and limitations as may be specified by the Central Government by notification:

Provided that no refund of credit shall be allowed if the manufacturer avails of drawback allowed under the Customs and Central Excise Duties Drawback Rules, 1995, or claims a rebate of duty under the Central Excise Rules, 2002, in respect of such duty.”

There is no express prohibition in terms of Rule 5. Even otherwise, it refers to a manufacturer as we see from Rule 5 itself. Admittedly, in the case on hand, there is no manufacture in the light of closure of the Company. Therefore, Rule 5 is not available for the purpose of rejection as rightly ruled by the Tribunal. The Tribunal has noticed that various case laws in which similar claims were allowed. The Tribunal, in our view, is fully justified in ordering refund particularly in the light of the closure of the factory and in the light of the assessee coming out of the Modvat Scheme. In these circumstances, we answer all the three questions as framed in para 17 against the Revenue and in favour of the assessee.

4.2 It can be seen that the Hon’ble HC has held that there is no bar under Rule 13. The three questions put before the Hon’ble High Court was as follows:

Whether under the facts and circumstances of the case the Tribunal is right in ordering for refund even if there is no provision in Rule 5 of Cenvat Credit Rules 2002, to refund the unutilized Credit?

Whether under the facts and circumstances of the case the Tribunal is right in ordering for refund even if there is no production and there is no clearance of finished goods?

4. Whether under the facts and circumstances of the case the Tribunal is right in holding that respondent is entitled for refund even if it goes out of Modvat Scheme or Company is closed?

All the questions have been answered in the favour of assessee.

5. It can be seen from the above discussion that Hon’ble High Court has held that there is no provision for grant of refund in rule 5 under the present circumstance. The Hon’ble High Court, however, allows the refund. The lower authorities have followed the ratio of this decision. Thus the present proceeding which follow the decision of Hon’ble High Court also conclude with the same ratio as laid down by the Hon’ble High Court of Karnataka. Thus, the refund has been granted following the ratio of Hon’ble High Court decision in case of Slovak India Trading Company Pvt. Ltd. (supra) honouring judicial discipline. The refund is, therefore, not sanctioned under any express provision of law. In these circumstances, when the refund is not under any provisions of Central Excise Act, the provisions of the act relating to interest do not apply to the facts of the case.
6. The appeal is, therefore, dismissed.

The case of the department is that the appellant have availed the cenvat credit on the inputs and used in the manufacture of crimped yarn on which benefit of Notification No. 30/04-CE dated 09.07.2004 was availed. As per the condition of the Notification the appellant was not supposed to avail the cenvat credit in respect of inputs used in the manufacture of final product. Since the appellant have availed credit, the benefit of Notification 30/04-CE was denied and consequently duty was demanded.

1. Sh. Aditya Tripathi, Ld. Counsel appearing on behalf of the appellant submits that goods which were lying in stock was job work goods and as regard cenvat credit availed, the same was reversed on the stock lying as on 08.06.2006 and the intimation for the same was given, therefore, the appellant is entitled for the exemption. Alternatively, he submits that the demand is also time barred for the reason that the appellant intimated to the department that they are availing the benefit of Notification 30/04-CE and 29/04-CE simultaneously and also the credit in respect of input to be used in the manufacture of goods cleared under 30/04-CE has been informed, therefore, there is no suppression of fact.

2. Sh. K. Kinariwala, Ld. Assistant Commissioner (AR) appearing on behalf of the revenue reiterates the findings of the impugned order. He submits that the appellant could not establish the fact that they have not availed the credit on the inputs used in the exempted goods. As regard the limitation, he submits that though they have given an intimation to the department that too in June 2006 which is much after the relevant period of this case and the fact that they are availing the credit in respect of the exempted goods has not been intimated to the department, therefore, there is clear suppression of fact.

3. Heard both the sides and perused the records. We find that the appellant even before this Tribunal could not establish one to one correlation as regard the use of inputs in the manufacture of dutiable and exempted goods, therefore, as per the findings of the lower authorities it is established that the appellant availed the cenvat credit in respect of inputs used in the manufacture of goods cleared under Notification 30/04-CE, therefore, the appellant have no case on merit as they have violated the condition of Notification. As regard the limitation, we find that the fact regarding availing of cenvat credit of the inputs has not been disclosed to the department. It is obligatory on the appellant that once they are availing the exemption Notification they are bound to follow the condition that cenvat credit should not be availed on the input used in the manufacture of such exempted goods. Accordingly, there is a clear suppression of fact on the part of the appellant.

4. As per our above discussion, there is no infirmity in the impugned order and the same is upheld. Appeal is dismissed.

Per: Ramesh Nair:

This appeal has been filed against the order of the Commissioner (Appeals) whereby the learned Commissioner (Appeals) has upheld the rejection of rebate claim of the Excise Duty paid on the goods exported through merchant exporters.

2. Shri S.N. Gohil, learned Superintendent Authorised Representative has raised preliminary objection that since the case relates to rebate of duty, the Tribunal has no jurisdiction to entertain the appeal whereas the right forum is Revisionary Authority, Additional/ Joint Secretary to the Government of India.

3. Shri Paritosh Gupta, learned Counsel appearing on behalf of the appellant submits that in the impugned order, learned Commissioner (Appeals) has given categorical findings that goods were sold to merchant exporters. Accordingly, the incidence of duty has been passed on hence refund claim is not admissible. He submits that as per this finding of the learned Commissioner (Appeals), the case relates to refund and it is appealable in this Tribunal.

4. Learned Authorised Representative has submitted following judgments to submit that the case relates to rebate hence the appeal is not maintainable:-

(a) 2011 (268) ELT 339 (Guj) — CCE, Surat vs. Imtiyaz Traders
(b) 2011 (270) ELT 334 (Kar) — CCE, Mysore vs. Woifra Tech P Ltd
(c) 2010 (20) STR 243 (Tri-Ahmd) — Rifaa Exports vs. CCE, Surat-I
(d) 2002 (149) ELT 340 (Tri-Chennai) — CCE, Chennai-III vs. Kiwi TTK Limited
(e) 1991 (54) ELT 235 (Tri) — India Jute & Industries Limited vs. CCE
(f) 2014 (34) STR 732 (Tri-Del) - Glyph International Limited vs. CCE, Noida
(g) 2009 (246) ELT 646 (Tri-Kol) - Mercury Exports & Mfg P Limited vs. CC, (Port), Kolkata
(h) 2005 (181) ELT 328 (SC) — Sahakari Khand Udyog Mandal Limited vs.CC
5. Heard both sides and perused the record. We find that there is no dispute that the appellant have claimed rebate of duty paid on the goods exported through merchant exporters. Therefore, even though the Commissioner has given findings as regards unjust-enrichment, the nature of rebate is not altered. As against the export of goods, the duty is refunded as rebate claim and not as a normal refund. Therefore, we are of the clear view that this case relates to rebate of duty paid on export of goods. As per Section 35B (1) proviso (b), the Tribunal has no jurisdiction in the cases relates to rebate of duty. The appellant has liberty to approach the right form, Additional/ Joint Secretary to Government of India, Revisionary Authority by filing revision application. Accordingly, appeal disposed of as non maintainable on the ground of jurisdiction without going into merits of the case.

6. As per the request of the learned Counsel, Registry is directed to return the appeal papers to the appellant.

This appeal has been filed by M/s Vijay Fire Vehicles & Pumps Ltd. against rejection of refund claim filed under Cenvat Credit Rules, 2004.

2. Learned Consultant for the appellant pointed out that the refund claim has been rejected on the ground of limitation. He pointed out that the manufacture and export of fire vehicle took place in June to August, 2015 and refund claim was filed on 22nd September, 2017. He pointed out that there was ambiguity in the notification 27/2012-CE (N.T.). Therefore, vide notification 14/2016-C.E.(N.T.), clause 3(b) of the notification 27/2012-CE was amended. He pointed out that the limitation should only be applied to cases after issue of notification 14/2016-C.E.(N.T.) dated 01.03.2016. He pointed out that there was ambiguity in the notification no 27/2012-CE(N.T.) which necessitated the issue of notification 14/2016- C.E.(N.T.).

3. Learned Authorised Representative pointed out that notification 18/2012 dated 18/06/2012 which substitutes Rule 5 in the in the Cenvat Credit Rules, 2004 itself prescribes that the refund has to be claimed within a period of one year from to the commencement of the CENVAT Credit (Third Amendment) Rules, 2012. He pointed out that there was no ambiguity in the notification 27/2012-C.E. (N.T.) dated 18/06/2012 in so far as its application to manufacturer is concerned. Clause 3(b) of notification 27/2012 reads as follows:

"3 (b) The application in the Form A along with the documents specified therein and enclosures relating to the quarter for which refund is being claimed shall be filed by the claimant, before the expiry of the period specified in section 11B of the Central Excise Act, 1944 (1 of 1944)."

The above provision at paragraph 3(b) was substituted by following paragraph 3(b) vide notification 14/2016-C.E. (N.T.) dated 01/03/2016:

"(b) The application in the Form A along with the documents specified therein and enclosures relating to the quarter for which refund is being claimed shall be filed as under:"
(i) in case of manufacturer, before the expiry of the period specified in section 11B of the Central Excise Act, 1944 (I of 1944);

(ii) in case of service provider, before the expiry of one year from the date of -
(a) receipt of payment in convertible foreign exchange, where provision of service had been completed prior to receipt of such payment; or

(b) issue of invoice, where payment for the service had been received in advance prior to the date of issue of the invoice."

3.1 He pointed out that notification 14/2016 was essentially issued to provide some relaxation to service providers. He pointed out that there was no change as far as the its application to manufacturers is concerned and there was no ambiguity in respect of manufacturers.

4. I have considered rival submissions. I find that substantial force in the argument of Learned Authorised Representative. Clause 3(b) of Notification 27/2012 prescribes as follows so far as limitation is concerned:

"3 (b) The application in the Form A along with the documents specified therein and enclosures relating to the quarter for which refund is being claimed shall be filed by the claimant, before the expiry of the period specified in section 11B of the Central Excise Act, 1944 (I of 1944)."

It clearly prescribes that as section 11B of the Central Excise Act, 1994 will be applicable to all claims made under Rule 5. Vide notification 14/2016-CE [N.T.] dated 01/03/2016, the aforesaid clause 3(b) was replaced by the following:

"(b) The application in the Form A along with the documents specified therein and enclosures relating to the quarter for which refund is being claimed shall be filed as under:

(i) in case of manufacturer, before the expiry of the period specified in section 11B of the Central Excise Act, 1944 (I of 1944);

(ii) in case of service provider, before the expiry of one year from the date of -
(a) receipt of payment in convertible foreign exchange, where provision of service had been completed prior to receipt of such payment; or

It is seen that as far as the manufacturer is concerned, there is no change. However in the case of service provider certain relaxation is granted. In the instant case, the appellant is a manufacturer and, therefore, there is no ambiguity. The refund claim relates to the period June to August, 2015 and the same was filed on 22nd September, 2017 which clearly beyond the scope of limitation prescribed under section 11B of the Central Excise Act, 1944. In these circumstances, I find no error in the order of Commissioner. The appeal is dismissed.

The brief facts of the case are that the appellant was engaged in manufacture of Snuff of Tobacco falling under Chapter 24 of the Schedule to Central Excise Tariff Act, 1985 and registered with Central Excise Department as a manufacturer of tobacco Snuff. On the basis of specific intelligence that the appellant is evading the central excise duty by way of unaccounted manufacture of illicit clearances of excisable goods namely, Snuff of tobacco officers of DECEI carried out searches at the premises of the appellant and their buyers. On scrutiny of seized records and investigation, it was found that during the financial year 2002-03 to 2006-07 (till 27.07.2006), the appellant have cleared snuff of tobacco in retail packages of 50gms, 100gms, 200gms, and 500gms bearing Umashanker and Krishna brand having gross value of Rs. 18,24,550/- by declaring less assessable value and making payment of central excise duty on lesser value of snuff in bulk used within their factory for the manufacture of snuff in retail packages. An amount of clearances of snuff within factory during said period which were used for manufacture snuff of tobacco in retail packages within the factory. Thus, tobacco snuff having assessable value of Rs. 11,28,235/- (arrived at on basis of cum duty price) were cleared by the appellant without preparing appropriate central excise invoices for the retail pack involving central excise duty to the tune of Rs. 7,19,651/- and out of this amount an amount of Rs. 1,92,165/- was already paid by them on such tobacco snuff in bulk, thereby they evaded central excise duty amounting to Rs. 5,27,486/-. Sh. Ashish B Amin, Proprietor of the appellant concern in his statement admitted the above fact, accordingly, they have voluntarily paid an amount of Rs. 1 Lac towards duty evaded before issuance of SCN.

2. In this circumstance, the SCN dated 15.03.2007 was issued to the appellant for demand of central excise duty amounting to Rs. 5,27,486/-along with interest and imposition of penalty under Section 11AC of the Central Excise Act, 1944 and Rule 25 of the Central Excise Rules, 2002. The adjudicating authority vide Order In-Original dated 02.09.2008 confirmed the demand of duty along with interest and imposed penalty of an equal amount of duty under Section 11AC of Central Excise Act, 1944. A penalty of Rs. 50,000/- was also imposed on Ashish B. Amin, Proprietor of the concern. Being aggrieved by Order In-Original, appeal was filed by the appellant which was rejected except for setting aside the penalty of Rs. 50,000/- imposed on Sh. Ashish B. Amin, Proprietor of appellant firm, therefore, the present appeal was filed by the appellant.

3. Sh. Amal Dave Ld. Counsel appearing on behalf of the appellant at the outset submits that the appellant is not contesting the merit of the case i.e. demand of differential duty. However, he strongly submits that the show cause notice is time bar as the same was issued for the period 2002-03 to 2006-07 on 15.03.2007. He submits that the appellant was registered with Central Excise Department and they were filing monthly ER-1 return. They were under bonafide belief that once the goods was manufactured in bulk form, the duty is payable on the value of bulk snuff of tobacco and not on retail pack. He refer to Board Circular No. 818/15/2005-CX dated 15.07.2005 to submit that departmental officer have not properly scrutinise the ER-1 return at the relevant time, therefore, there is no suppression of fact on the part of appellant. He submits that they have correctly declared the production and clearances in their ER-1 return. The extended period cannot be invoked on the ground that certain information was not declared in the ER-1 return which otherwise was not required. He placed reliance on the following judgments in support of his submission:

   a. Dynamic Industries Ltd 2014 (307) ELT 15 (Guj.)
   b. Accurate Chemicals Industries 2014 (310) ELT 441 (All.)
   c. Ultratech Cement P. Ltd 2014 (302) ELT 334 (Guj.)
   d. Himalayan Tea P. Ltd 1997 (94) ELT 52 (P&H)

4. Sh. S.N. Gohil Ld. Superintendent (AR) appearing on behalf of the Revenue reiterates the findings of the impugned order. He submits that the appellant with very consciously made a modus operandi to evade the excise duty, therefore, they issued excise invoices for bulk and even though the re-packing from bulk to retail pack was being carried out within the factory. They have purposely suppressed the clearances of retail pack, thereby evaded the central excise duty. Therefore, the modus operandi adopted with clear intention to evade the excise duty. He further submits that the appellant instead of declaring the removal of retail pack value thereof, they have declared quantity of bulk snuff of tobacco and its value in their ER-1 return, thereby they have suppressed the fact.

5. We have carefully considered the submissions made by both the sides and perused the records. We find that the appellant is not disputing the duty demand on merit of the case. We find that since the appellant in the factory premises manufacturing snuff of tobacco in bulk and in the same premises they were converting from bulk pack to retail pack and the final clearances for sale of goods was made in the retail pack by charging the higher value, therefore, undisputedly the appellant was supposed to pay duty on the value of retail pack. Even otherwise as per Chapter Note of Chapter 24 at the relevant time, the activity of re-packing of goods from bulk pack to retail pack was amount to manufacture, accordingly, there is no doubt that the duty was payable on the clearances of goods in retail pack. As regard limitation raised by the Ld. Counsel, we find that even though there is unambiguous Chapter Note in Chapter 24, the appellant have intentionally devised a method whereby first they have cleared bulk snuff of tobacco captively and issued invoices and paid the duty thereon, thereafter the same goods were re-packed for retail pack in their own factory and issued commercial invoices on higher value, thereby they suppressed the value of the finished goods cleared from the factory. In their ER-1 return, they have not declared the correct clearance value of retail pack whereas they have declared in the ER-1 return only the bulk snuff of tobacco and its value to mislead the department that they have declared the goods in bulk form only. With this modus operandi, the department could not know about their activity of payment of duty on the bulk and removal of goods in the retail form, therefore, there is a clear suppression of fact and mis-declaration on the part of the appellant.

6. The judgments on which the Ld. Counsel have relied upon in the case of Accurate Chemicals Industries (supra) of Hon’ble Allahabad High Court, on going through the said judgment, we find that in the said judgment, the fact was that the appellant was clearing the final product to their own unit and the issue involved was of valuation of goods cleared to related person. However, in the present case, the appellant were showing the clearances in bulk instead of clearances on retail pack, therefore, the facts of the present case is entirely different from the case cited above.

7. As per our above discussion, we are of the clear view that the extended period was rightly invoked in the facts of the present case. Accordingly, the impugned order is upheld on merit as well as limitation. The appeal is dismissed.

The appellants have filed these appeals with a delay of almost 651 days and seeking condonation of delay on the ground that initially against the impugned order, the main party went to the Hon’ble High Court of Punjab & Haryana who set aside the adjudication order, thereafter, the Hon’ble High Court has recalled the order and direct to the main party to approach this Tribunal, therefore, the appellants have filed these appeals before this Tribunal with a delay. In that circumstances, it is prayed that the delay is condoned.

2. We heard the Ld. Counsel for the appellants. It is a fact on record that the appellants before us have not challenged the impugned order before the Hon’ble High Court of Punjab & Haryana and remained silent and opted not challenged the impugned order. After order of the Hon’ble High Court in the case of main party wherein it has been held that the main party can approach to this Tribunal, the appellant approached this Tribunal and filed these appeals with a delay. The appellants have failed to explain why they have not challenged the impugned order before this Tribunal in time. As the appellant neither approached to the High Court and nor approached to this Tribunal in time, in that circumstances, there is no satisfactory explanation to condon the delay of 651 days. It is pertinent to mention that the Hon’ble High Court has not passed any order in case of the appellant, therefore,, the appellant can not take the benefit granted to third party.

In these terms, the applications for condonation of delay are dismissed, consequently, the appeals filed by the appellants are also dismissed.

This stay application is filed by the Revenue seeking stay of the Order-in-Appeal passed by the Commissioner (Appeals), Rohtak. The stay application as well as the appeal are taken up together for hearing and disposal as per the earlier order dated 20.01.2020 and with the consent of both sides.

2. The Revenue is in appeal assailing the impugned order on the ground that the learned Commissioner (Appeals) erroneously directed refund of ₹ 29,91,483/- and interest on the amount paid during investigation from the date of actual payment of the duty to the payment of refund.

3. To appreciate the dispute, it is necessary to analyse the facts of the case giving rise to refund of the duty claimed by the respondent. The respondent are engaged in the manufacture of Chewing tobacco without lime which has been subjected to compounded levy being notified under section 3A of the Central Excise Act, 1944. The respondent had filed necessary declaration under relevant rules declaring the number of machines installed in the factory for determination of annual capacity of production of the installed machines and in turn for payment of duty. The adjudicating authority, to ascertain the correctness of the commodity declared as manufactured, drawn samples and sent for testing at CRCL, New Delhi. From the test report it revealed that the appellant are engaged in the manufacture of Jarda Scented Tobacco classifiable under CSH 24039910 and not Chewing Tobacco without lime tube falling under CSH 24039930 as declared. Consequently, after handing over the test report, the adjudicating authority determined the annual production capacity of installed machines considering the commodity as Jarda Scented Tobacco for the period from July 2015 to January 2016. The respondent assailed the said orders by filing Appeals before the Commissioner (Appeals). In the meantime, on the basis of intelligence, an investigation was initiated by the Department and on completion of the investigation, it is alleged that the respondent had manufactured Jarda Scented Tobacco but discharged less duty considering the manufactured products as Chewing tobacco without lime tube. During the course of investigation, after the test report was issued, the respondent paid differential duty of ₹17,99,72,033/- as applicable to Jarda Scented Tobacco and interest of ₹41,43,757/- for the period from July 2015 to January 2016 under protest. Later, showcase notice was issued on 01.07.2016 proposing various action against the respondent including appropriation of the duty, interest paid during the course of investigation.

4. The orders fixing the annual capacity of production under the relevant rules were passed by the Deputy Commissioner and the same were challenged before the Commissioner (Appeals), who disposed the appeal observing that on the same issue of classification of the declared commodity, show cause notice dated 01.7.2016 issued by the Dept. is pending adjudication, hence the appeals are premature and infructuous. The said order was accepted by the respondent, however, challenged by the Revenue disputing certain findings of the learned Commissioner (Appeals) being the subject matter of Appeal No. E/60106/17. The said appeal was disposed by the Tribunal with direction to the Commissioner, Central Excise to adjudicate the pending Show Cause Notice 01.7.2016 at the earliest.

5. The present dispute relates to refund claim of ₹15,61,27,927/- filed by the Respondent on 20.04.2017. It was filed on the ground that they have paid/deposited the differential duty under protest during investigation, but the show cause notice dated 01.07.2016 issued on completion of investigation had not been adjudicated till that date. A show cause notice proposing rejection of the refund claim was issued to the respondent. On adjudication, the refund claim was rejected. Appeal against the said order before the Commissioner (Appeals) also got rejected. Aggrieved by the same, they filed second appeal before this Tribunal, and by order dated 30.8.2018 this Tribunal allowed their appeal and directed the adjudicating authority to refund the amount. Pursuant to the said direction, the adjudicating authority scrutinised the quantum of refund claim and noticed that an amount of ₹29,91,483/- was not supported with payment particulars. Accordingly, a letter was written to the respondent to place evidence in support of the said amount. As the respondent did not have any evidence relating to the said claim of ₹29,91,483/-, they withdrew the same from the total claim. However, later they filed appeal before the ld. Commissioner (Appeals) against rejection of the said amount and also claimed interest on the amount deposited. The learned Commissioner (Appeals) allowed their appeal. Hence, the Revenue is in appeal.

6. The ld. A.R for the Revenue has submitted that the learned Commissioner (Appeals) is erred in allowing the refund amount of ₹29,91,483/-, even though the respondent had voluntarily withdrew the said amount since they could not produce evidence in support of payment of the said amount. Further, he has submitted that the finding of the Commissioner (Appeals) that the said amount relates to payment of duty for 3 days during which the factory was closed, is extraneous and devoid of merit. It is his contention that refund claim cannot be filed under section 11B of Central Excise Act, 1944 for the period of closure of the factory as the respondent was engaged in manufacturing and packing of Jarda Scented Tobacco and paying central excise duty as per Pan Masala Packing Machines (Capacity Determination and Collection of Duty) Rules, 2008. The Respondent should have claimed abatement for non-production of goods in accordance with Rule 10 of the said Rules. Since the laid down procedure has not been followed, therefore, the abatement is also inadmissible.
7. The learned AR for the Revenue has further submitted that since the learned Commissioner (Appeals) held that the amount deposited during the course of investigation is not a duty but deposit, accordingly, interest is admissible under section 11BB of Central Excise Act, 1944 from the date of deposit of differential duty is unsustainable in law. He has further contended that reliance placed by the Ld. Commissioner (Appeals) on the decision of Tribunal in the case of Amidhara Texturising Private Limited Vs. CCE-2012 (278) ELT 257 is misplaced as the facts involved in the said case is different from the present one. In the present case, the Respondent deposited the differential duty pursuant to the capacity determination order of the adjudicating authority, since the commodity declared, on chemical test, found to be 'Jarda Scented Tobacco' and not 'Chewing Tobacco without lime tubes'. He has submitted that the said Orders of adjudicating authority still holds good as the Appeals against the said Orders by the party were rejected by the Commissioner (Appeals). He has submitted that till the date of deposit of the said amount, no further evidence is required to be submitted about its payment, hence the Ld. Commissioner (Appeals) also allowed the refund of the same. He has fairly submitted that through their letter dt.05.4.2020 they have withdrew the claim amount of Rs.29,91,483/-.

8. Ld. Consultant for the Respondent reiterating the findings of the Ld. Commissioner (Appeals) submitted that the amount deposited during investigation has been refunded to them as directed by the Tribunal, as the issue of classification of the commodity was pending adjudication for a long time. It is his contention that therefore the interest from the date of deposit of the differential amount ought to have been paid to them. For the refund amount of Rs.29,91,483/-. the Consultant has submitted that since the amount has been collected by the Department at the end of the month, no further evidence is required to be submitted about its payment, hence the Ld. Commissioner (Appeals) also allowed the refund of the same. He has fairly submitted that through their letter dt.05.4.2020 they have withdrew the claim amount of Rs.29,91,483/-.

9. Heard both sides and perused the records.

10. The issues involved in the present appeal for determination are –

   (i) Whether the refund amount of Rs.29,91,483/- is correctly allowed to the Respondent;

   (ii) Interest on the total refund amount of Rs.15,61,27,257/- is payable to the respondents from the date of its deposit.

11. We find that the appellant had declared the goods manufactured by them as 'Chewing Tobacco without lime tube' and accordingly discharged duty @ Rs.38.64 Lakhs under Section 3A of Central Excise Act, 1944 read with relevant Notification on the number of machines installed in the factory for the period from July, 2015 to January, 2016. Later, on chemical analysis at the instance of the Dept. at CRCL, New Delhi, the commodity was found to be not Chewing Tobacco but Jarda Scented Tobacco classifiable under sub-heading 24039930 of Central Excise Tariff Act, 1985. Thus, the duty required to be discharged on Jarda scented Tobacco as per the relevant notification was Rs. 82.11 lakhs, higher than the duty that was paid on Chewing Tobacco without lime tube during the relevant period by the respondent. Consequently, investigation was initiated against the respondent. The respondent during the course of investigation, deposited the differential duty amount of Rs.17,99,72,033/- and interest of Rs.41,43,757/- for the period
July, 2015 to January, 2016. A show-cause notice was issued to the Respondent on 01.07.2016 proposing to appropriate the differential duty & interest amount paid and other actions against the respondent. Later, the respondent had filed refund claim of Rs.15,61,27,927/- during the pendency of the adjudication of the said show-cause notice on the ground of inordinate delay in adjudication. The adjudicating authority rejected the said claim and on appeal, the ld. Commissioner (Appeals) upheld the said rejection Order. However, on further appeal to Tribunal, the refund claim was directed to be paid and consequently the adjudicating authority sanctioned the refund claim.

13. From the said refund claim, an amount of Rs.29,91,483/- was denied to the respondent on the ground that no documentary evidence was placed before the adjudicating authority in support of the said claim and the respondent subsequently withdrew the said claim. The Revenue has challenged the finding of the ld. Commissioner (Appeals) allowing the said amount to the Respondent as admissible. We do not find any merit in the observation of the ld. Commissioner (Appeals) in allowing the rejected amount of Rs.29,81,483/- when the respondent himself withdrew the refund claim in absence of documentary evidence of payment of duty for the period from July, 2015 to January, 2016. Since, the said amount was withdrawn by the respondent the adjudicating authority has no occasion to examine its admissibility and record a finding in this regard. The Commissioner (Appeals) finding that the respondent would have paid the duty during the closure of the factory is based on extraneous factors, and thus de hors the records of the case and accordingly devoid of merit, hence unsustainable in law. Consequently, the finding of the ld. Commissioner (Appeals) allowing the said refund amount is devoid of merit and accordingly set aside.

14. As far as the issue of interest on the deposit is concerned, it is not clear whether the same was also raised before the adjudicating authority. We find that the show-cause notice dt. 01.7.2016 issued alleging mis-classification of the commodity declared by the respondent and also there is proposal for appropriation of the differential duty paid with interest consequent to the capacity determination order passed. The said notice is yet to be adjudicated/decided. Till the time the show cause notice is adjudicated, the amount paid by the respondent cannot be said to have attained finality and refundable to them. The Tribunal directed the return of the said amount deposited by the respondent during investigation in all fairness attributable to inordinate delay of adjudication of the Show Cause Notice issued by the department. Needless to emphasize it is an interim measure caused to mitigate the hardship to the respondent for the delay in adjudication by the department. But, that does not mean that respondent can retain the said amount even if the issue of classification is decided against them. Therefore, the ld. Commissioner (Appeals) order directing payment of interest from the date of deposit of the said amount is also devoid of merit and accordingly set aside.

15. In the result, the Order impugned is set aside and the Revenue’s appeal is allowed. Stay application is also disposed off.

While concurring with the order proposed by my learned brother Member (Judicial), I would like to add as follows:

2.0 Any refund made under a taxing statute are governed by the provisions of the said statute, and no refund can be made beyond the provisions of said statute as has been held by the nine member bench of the Apex Court, in case of Mafatlal Industries [1997 (89) ELT 247 (SC)]. In the said decision Hon’ble Apex Court has clearly laid down that there can be no refund made in terms of Section 11B of the Central Excise Act, 1944 without a refund claim. The relevant excerpts from the decision are reproduced below:

“96. It would be evident from the above discussions that the claims for refund under the said two enactments constitute an independent regime. Every decision favourable to an assessee/manufacturer, whether on the question of classification, valuation or any other issue, does not automatically entail refund. Section 11B of the Central Excise Act, 1944 and Section 27 of The Customs Act, 1962, whether before or after 1991 amendment - as interpreted by us herein - make every refund claim subject to proof of not passing on the burden of duty to others. Even if a suit is filed, the same very condition operates. Similarly the High Court while examining its jurisdiction under Article 226 and this Court under Article 32 - would insist upon the said condition being satisfied before ordering refund. Unless the claimant for refund establishes that he has not passed on the burden of duty to another, he would not be entitled to refund, whatever be the proceedings and whichever be the forum. Section 11B/Section 27 are constitutionally valid, as explained by us hereinbefore.

They have to be applied and followed implicitly wherever they are applicable.

99. The discussion in the judgement yields the following propositions. We may forewarn that these propositions are set out merely for the sake of convenient reference and are not supposed to be exhaustive. In case of any doubt or ambiguity in these propositions, reference must be had to the discussion and proposition in the body of judgement.

(x) By virtue of sub-section (3) to Section 11B of Central Excise Act, 1944, as amended by the aforesaid Amendment Act, and by virtue of the provisions contained in sub-section 3 to Section 27 of the Customs Act, 1962, as amended by the aforesaid Amendment Act, all claims of refund (excepting those which arise as result of declaration of unconstitutionality of the provision whereunder the levy was created) have to be preferred and adjudicated only under the provisions of respective enactment. No suit for refund of duty is maintainable in that behalf. So far as jurisdiction of High Court under Article 226 of the Constitution, or this Court under Article 32 - is concerned it remains unaffected by the provisions of the Act. Even so, the court would while exercising the jurisdiction under the said articles, have regard to legislative intent manifested by the provisions of the Act. The writ petitions would naturally be considered and disposed of in the light of and in accordance with the provisions of Section 11B. This is for the reason that the power under Article 226 has to be exercised to effectuate the regime of law and not for abrogating it. Even while acting in exercise of the said constitutional power, the High Court cannot ignore the law nor can it over-ride it. The power under Article 226 is conceived to serve the ends of law and not to transgress them.

3.0 Section 11BB of the said act, ibid, provides for interest from the date, three months from the date of filing the refund claim. Same is provided in the case of refund of pre-deposit, made under Section 35F of the Act, as per Section 35 FF, ibid.

3.0 Admittedly the present case is not the case of refund of pre-deposit, but of certain amounts which were deposited by the respondents during the course of investigation/ inquiry. Hence such a refund even if arising as result of order of CESTAT, has to be strictly governed as per the provisions of Section 11B and Section 11BB. This is the law laid down by the Apex Court in case of Mafatlal Industries.

4.0 We find that in case of refund under Income Tax Act,1961, Hon’ble Apex Court has in case of Sandvik Asia Ltd [2006 (196) ELT 257 (SC)] has held as follows:

“In the present context, it is pertinent to refer to the Circular on Trade Notice issued by the Central Excise Department on the subject of refund of deposits made in terms of Section 35F of the Central Refund/Return of deposits made under Section 35F of CEA, 1944 and Section 129E of Customs Act, 1962 - Clarifications

The issue relating to refund of pre-deposit made during the pendency of appeal was discussed in the Board Meeting. It was decided that since the practice in the Department had all along been to consider such deposits as other than duty, such deposits should be returned in the event the appellant succeeds in appeal or the matter is remanded for fresh adjudication.

2. It would be pertinent to mention that the Revenue had recently filed a Special Leave Petition against Mumbai High Court's order in the matter of NELCO LTD, challenging the grant of interest on delayed refund of pre-deposit as to whether:

(i) the High Court is right in granting interest to the depositor since the law contained in Section 35F of the Act does in no way provide for any type of compensation in the event of an appellant finally succeeding in the appeal, and,

(ii) the refunds so claimed are covered under the provisions of Section 11B of the Act and are governed by the parameters applicable to the claim of refund of duty as the amount is deposited under Section 35F of the Central Excise Act, 1944.

The Hon'ble Supreme Court vide its order dated 26-11-2001 dismissed the appeal. Even though the Apex Court did not spell out the reasons for dismissal, it can well be construed in the light of its earlier judgment in the case of Suvidhe Ltd. and Mahavir Aluminium that the law relating to refund of pre-deposit has become final.

3. In order to attain uniformity and to regulate such refunds it is clarified that refund applications under Section 11B(1) of the Central Excise Act, 1944 or under Section 27(1) of the Customs Act, 1962 need not be insisted upon. A simple letter from the person who has made such deposit, requesting the return of the amount, along with an attested Xerox copy of the order-in-appeal or CEGAT order consequent to which the deposit made becomes returnable and an attested Xerox copy of the Challan in Form TR6 evidencing the payment of the amount of such deposit, addressed to the concerned Assistant/Deputy Commissioner of Central Excise or Customs, as the case may be, will suffice for the purpose. All pending refund applications already made under the relevant provisions of the Indirect Tax Enactments for return of such deposits and which are pending with the authorities will also be treated as simple letters asking for return of the deposits, and will be processed as such. Similarly, bank guarantees executed in lieu of cash deposits shall also be returned.

4. The above instructions may be brought to the notice of the field formations with a request to comply with the directions and settle all the claims without any further delay. Any deviation and resultant liability to interest on delayed refunds shall be viewed strictly.

5. All the trade associations may be requested to bring the contents of this circular to the knowledge of their members and the trade in general.

6. Kindly acknowledge receipt.

through a suitable monitoring mechanism. It is also specifically mentioned that the Commissioners under respective jurisdiction should be advised that similar matters pending in the High Courts must be withdrawn and compliance reported and that the Board has also decided to implement the orders passed by the Tribunal already passed for payment of interest and the interest payable shall be paid forthwith."

4.0 After taking the note of the draft circular reiterating the circular of 2002 placed before it, Supreme Court in Commissioner of Central Excise v. ITC Limited, [(2005) 179 ELT 15 (SC)], interest was payable for the period commencing from three months after the final disposal of the matter till the date of refund. The Circular of 2004 is reproduced below:

“Circular No.802/35/2004-CX
8th December, 2004F.No.387/5/2001-JC
Government of India Ministry of Finance (Department of Revenue)

Subject: Return of deposits made in terms of Section 35F of the Central Excise 1944 and Section 129E of the Customs Act, 1962.

Reference earlier instructions on the above subject and looking to the instances arising out of non-implementation of the judicial orders, the Board has reason to review and reiterate the earlier Circulars on the subject of non-implementation of orders of CESTAT or any Final Authority in relation to returning pre-deposits made as per directions of CESTAT or any other Final Authority in terms of Section 35F of the Central Excise Act, 1944 & Section 129E of the Customs Act, 1962. The Board has taken a strict view with regard to non-returning of such deposits.

2. As we are all aware the CESTAT has in a number of such cases awarded interest on pre-deposits where its orders have not been implemented and the Department had challenged this and filed Civil Appeals in the Supreme Court.

3. The Board has noted the observations of the Hon’ble Supreme Court in its order dated 21.9.2004 and has decided that pre-deposits shall be returned within a period of three months of the disposal of the appeals in the assessee’s favour.

4. Accordingly, the contents of the Circular No. 275/37/2000- CX.8A dated 02.01.2002, as to the modalities for return of the pre-deposits are reiterated. It is again reiterated that in terms of Hon’ble Supreme Court’s order such pre-deposit must be returned within 3 months from the date of the order passed by the Appellate Tribunal/Court or other Final Authority unless there is a stay on the order of the Final Authority/ CESTAT/Court, by a superior Court.

5. Delay beyond this period of three months in such cases will be viewed adversely and appropriate disciplinary action will be initiated against the concerned defaulting officers. All concerned are requested to note that default will entail an interest liability, if such liability accrues by reason of any orders of the CESTAT/Court, such orders will have to be complied with and it may be recoverable from the concerned officers.

6. All Commissioners may advise implementation of these instructions and ensure their implementation through a suitable monitoring mechanism. Field formations may be suitably informed. Copies of the instruction issued may be endorsed to this office for information.

7. Commissioners under your jurisdiction should be advised that similar matters pending in the High Courts must be withdrawn and compliance reported. The board has also decided to implement the CESTAT Orders already passed for payment of interest and the interest payable shall be paid forthwith.

8. This issues with the approval of Chairman/Member (L&S), CBEC.

9. Kindly acknowledge receipt."

5.0 Same view was expressed by a three member bench of the Hon’ble Apex Court in case of Tata SSL [2007 (218) ELT 493 (SC)]. It is settled law as per the above decisions of the Apex Court, and the Circulars issued by the Board, that in case of refund of pre-deposit made as per the order of Courts/ Tribunals, the interest should have been granted within three months of date of the order.

6.0 Hon’ble jurisdictional High Court i.e. High Court of Punjab and Haryana has in case of Shreewood Products Pvt Ltd [2016
7. Keeping in view the aforesaid facts and circumstances, in our opinion, the appellant herein is entitled to payment of interest @ 12% per annum for the period after three months till the refund was granted after passing of the order by the Tribunal on 2.5.2008. The questions, referred to above, are answered accordingly.

“10. Moreover, it appears from the facts of the case that CESTAT order is dated 20.11.2003 and it has been ordered by CESTAT, New Delhi that if the amount is not returned to the petitioner by the respondents within a period of three months the interest shall be payable. The said period comes to an end on 21.02.2003. As the amount at Rs.28,76,578/- was not paid on 21.02.2003 by the respondents, the payment of interest starts till the actual date of payment. The amount was refunded by the respondents on 14.05.2004. Hence, at the highest, the petitioner is entitled to get interest at a reasonable rate of interest for the period running from 21.02.2003 to 13.05.2004.

11. In fact, the petitioner is in search of payment of interest from March/May, 1998 which cannot be granted because there is no provision for the payment of interest nor the aforesaid amount was deposited under any coercion or compulsion. Moreover, the aforesaid amount was deposited by the petitioner voluntarily and, that too, prior to the issuance of the show cause notice dated 04.04.2001.

12. Thus, we see no reason to entertain this writ petition for grant of interest from March/May, 1998 upon an amount at Rs.28,76,578/-. The principal amount has already been paid by the respondents to the petitioner on 13.05.2004. Thus, after three months period is over from the date of the order of the CESTAT (20.11.2003) till the actual payment of the amount (14.05.2004) i.e. for the period running from 21.11.2003 to 13.05.2004, the respondents are hereby directed to make the payment of interest upon the amount at Rs.28,76,578/- @ 6% p.a.”

8.0 Same view has been expressed by Mumbai Bench of CESTAT, in the case Juhu Resorts [Final Order No A/86832/2019 dated 03.10.2019], after taking the note of Section 11B and 11BB in following words:

“5. A plain reading of aforesaid provisions makes it clear that the Appellants are entitled to interest from the date only after expiry of 3 months from the date of communication of the order i.e. in the present case from 17.03.2019. Consequently, the impugned order is modified and for calculation of the interest on the refund amount, the matter is remanded to the Adjudicating authority. Revenue’s appeal is partly allowed.”

9.0 In view of the discussions as above I do not see any merits in the impugned order and concur with the order proposed by the learned brother setting aside the same and allowing the appeal filed by revenue

(SANJIV SRIVASTAVA)MEMBER (TECHNICAL)
The brief facts of the matter are that M/s Panacea Biotec Ltd. (appellants) manufactured and cleared certain dutiable P or P Medicines (drug formulations, but not vaccines – whether in bulk or otherwise) classifying under Chapter 30 of the Central Excise Tariff Act, 1985 from their factory located at Chandigarh – Ambala Highway, Lalru, Punjab. It is claimed by the appellant that in the same premises another independent manufacturing unit in the name of Panheber Biotec Pvt. Ltd. (now name has been changed to Panera Biotec Pvt. Ltd. w.e.f. 02/07/2008) manufactured vaccine namely Haemophilus Influenzae Vaccine. It is claimed that M/s Panera Biotec has taken some portion of premises of the appellant on lease for manufacture of vaccine. During the period April 2008 to April 2009 vaccine attracted nil rate of duty. The vaccine manufactured by M/s Panheber Biotec Ltd. was entirely supplied to the appellant. During the scrutiny of the statutory records of the appellant it had been noticed by the Department that quantities of vaccine manufactured and cleared supposedly by M/s Panheber Biotec Pvt. Ltd. have been entered into RG-1 register of the appellant and clearances have been shown in the appellants records. The Department therefore entertained a view that it is only the appellant who is manufacturing the vaccines which is nil rated for central excise duty and the appellant is not maintaining separate statutory record for Cenvat credit which have been availed on manufactured and exempted goods.

2. Entertaining the above view, the Department had issued a show cause notice dated 17/12/2012 whereunder the provisions of Rule 6 (3) of the Cenvat Credit Rules, 2004 have been invoked and the appellant have been asked to reverse back the Cenvat credit equivalent to 10% of the total turnover of exempted goods namely vaccine cleared by them from their factory premises. Accordingly, a demand for reversal of the Cenvat credit amounting to Rs.1,65,92,802/- has been demanded, other provision such as demand of interest as well as penalty under Rule 15 readwith...
Section 11AC of the Central Excise Act, 1944 has also been invoked. The matter got adjudicated on the first round of litigation by the Commissioner vide his order No. 76/CE/CHD-II/2013 dated 29/11/2013, whereunder the learned Adjudicating Authority has held that the appellant has been indulging into the manufacture of exempted item namely vaccine in the same premises and the details of the production and clearance of the exempted vaccine has been entered into RG-1 register and also filed monthly return in this regard and therefore it has been held by the Adjudicating Authority in his order dated 29 November 2013 that the appellant need to reverse back Cenvat credit amounting to Rs.1,65,92,802/- as per the provision of Rule 6 (3) of the Cenvat Credit Rules, 2004, interest and penalty has also been confirmed by the Adjudicating Authority.

3. The appellant have approached this Tribunal against the above-mentioned order-in-original and this Tribunal vide its final order No. A/52883/2015 – CX (DB) dated 14/09/2015 has passed the following order :-

“6. In this case the claim of the appellant is that they are not the manufacturer of vaccine which is an exempted product. In fact same is manufactured by M/s Panheber Biotec Pvt. Ltd. a separate legal entity located in the same factory compound. This fact is required to be ascertained by verifying whether M/s Panheber Biotec Pvt. Ltd. is a separate entity and manufacturer of vaccine only. The fact that whether the appellant is manufacturer of vaccine or not is also to be verified, which the lower authority has failed to do so. In these circumstances, the impugned order does not deserve any merits. Accordingly, the same is set aside and the matter is remanded back to the Adjudicating Authority first to ascertain whether appellant is manufacturer of vaccine, in question, which is duty free or not and thereafter to pass an appropriate order in accordance with law after consideration of the issues raised by the appellant in their defence by affording reasonable opportunity to the appellant. The appeal is disposed of in the above terms”.

4. Accordingly, the matter was remanded back to the Original Adjudicating Authority. The learned Commissioner in compliance to the above-mentioned final order of this Tribunal has adjudicated the matter again vide its order-in-original No. 33/CE/CHD-II/2017 dated 18/05/2017, whereunder the Commissioner have again confirmed the demand of Cenvat credits under Section 11A readwith Rule 14 of the Cenvat Credit Rules equal amount of the penalty has also been imposed as well as the interest as per the provision of Section 11AA of Central Excise Act, 1944 has also been confirmed.

5. The appellant is before us in the second round of the litigation against the above-mentioned impugned order-in-original.

6. The learned Advocate appearing for the appellant submitted that M/s Panheber is a separate legal entity having necessary drug manufacturing license dated 23 September 2002 issued by the Drug Controller General of India for manufacture of vaccine. It has further been mentioned that all the necessary documents, such as, Memorandum and Article of Association of M/s Panheber/Panera Biotec Pvt. Ltd., the certificate of incorporation by the Deputy Registrar of Companies, the drug manufacturing license as well as a letter dated 06/06/2007 whereunder a permission has been granted to M/s PanheberBiotec Pvt. Ltd. for manufacture of raw material (new bulk drug substance issued by Drug Controller General of India) has been provided which categorically establishes that M/s Panacea Biotec Pvt. Ltd. existed independently of the appellant and they manufactured and supplied the vaccine to the appellant. It has further been contended that there have been no violation of Rule 6 of the Cenvat Credit Rules, 2004. It has further been submitted that the Assistant Commissioner Dera Basi has not examined the record available in the entirety and failed to take note of the fact that M/s Panacea Biotec Pvt. Ltd. Lalru was also maintaining RG-23 register in which the vaccine received from M/s Panheber/Panera was shown as input receipt and it subsequent disposal in use in or in relation to manufacture of final products by the appellant in its factory. In the accounts maintained by the appellant it has categorically been recorded that the vaccine, in question, has been manufactured by M/s Panheber Biotec Pvt. Ltd. and sold to the appellant.

7. An inference has already been made by the Assistant Commissioner only on the basis of entries in the RG-1 register and ER-1 register filed by the appellant. It has further been emphasized that the appellant has already given enough evidence to the Adjudicating Authority that they have not manufactured vaccine and same was manufactured by M/s Panheber/Panera and supplied to them.

8. The learned Advocate has further contended that appellant have submitted a license from the Drug Controller of Government of Punjab which indicate that the appellant did not have necessary license for manufacture of vaccine in its plant at Lalru unit. This very fact should put all the doubts to the rest because a vaccine cannot be manufactured without a proper drug license, however, the Adjudicating Authority has ignored this point and proceeded to confirm the reversal of the Cenvat credit as demanded in the show cause notice.

9. The learned Advocate has also contended that the Department in the show cause notice has not identified the particular services which are alleged to have been used as common services and manufactured dutiable as well as exempted goods.

10. We have also heard learned Departmental Representative who has reiterated findings as given in the order-in-original.

11. Having heard the rival contention and after perusal of the record of the appeal, we feel that it will be appropriate to first refer to the earlier order of this Tribunal dated 21 September 2015 whereunder the Adjudicating Authority had been directed by this Tribunal that to verify whether M/s Panheber Biotec Pvt. Ltd. is a separate entity who was engaged in manufacture of the vaccine or not. We find from the impugned order-in-original that the learned Adjudicating Authority has called for a report from the concerned Jurisdictional Assistant Commissioner. The Jurisdictional Assistant Commissioner vide his letter No. V (13) 13 & 28/D/Panacea/DB/15/2014 dated 10/02/2017 submitted his report wherein he has reported as under –:

“3.4.1 that on further perusal of the records available with his office, it has been observed that the production and clearance of “Haemophilus Influenzae Vaccine” was shown in ER-1 returns of M/s Panacea Biotec Ltd. Lalru and which was also shown in VAT returns for the period 2008-2009 filed with VAT Department as a stock transfer to M/s Panacea Biotec Ltd. Okhla New Delhi and M/s Panacea Biotec Ltd. Vill. Malpur, Baddi, whereas to manufacture the vaccine, the Drug License was issued by State Drugs Controlling and Licensing Authority to M/s Panheber Biotec Pvt. Ltd. on 18/01/2008 and subsequently the same license was endorsed in the name M/s Panera Biotec Ltd. w.e.f. 15/09/2008. With regard to financial transactions, it was submitted that as per verification of the purchase records the payments for raw material used for manufacture of above vaccine were made by Panacea Biotec Ltd.

that no return relating to production was filed with the Drugs Authority as intimated by the Drug Control officer, Mohali, who also informed that there is no procedure or requirement to file any return for production of Bulk Drugs and as per Drugs & Cosmetics Act, 1940 & Rules, 1945.

that with reference to Para 6 of the final order of the Hon’ble CESTAT in question, it is submitted that M/s Panera Biotec Ltd., (Formerly Panheber Biotec Pvt. Ltd.) was issued drugs License on 18/01/2008 to manufacture the vaccine whereas as per records of his office M/s Panacea Biotec Ltd., applied for Central Excise Registration on 07/03/2011 and was issued on 16/05/2011. In the registration application, ground plan of M/s Panacea Biotec Ltd. was also changed because the part of Building Block was leased to Panera Biotec Pvt. Ltd., but there is no record in his office which reveals that Panera Biotec Ltd., was legal entity in the same premises before 2011. that in light of the above, his office is of the view that it cannot be established that M/s Panera Biotec Ltd. was a separate legal entity during the relevant period as they got themselves registered with the department in the year 2011”.

12. It can be seen from the above that the Assistant Commissioner has very categorically mentioned that (i) there is no mention about the existence of M/s Panheber/Panera in the original ground plant. It is also worth taking a note that M/s Panera Biotec Ltd. was issued a drug license on 18/01/2008 to manufacture vaccine whereas as per the central excise record M/s Panheber Biotec Pvt. Ltd./Panera Biotec has applied for central excise registration only on 07/03/2011 which was provided to them on 16/05/2011. We also take note of the fact that the financial statements of M/s Panera for the relevant period i.e. 2008-2009 did not show any supply of vaccine to the appellant. We find that the appellant have not been able to advance any potent evidence to controvert the findings of the Department that vaccine was being manufactured by the appellant on the strength of vaccine manufacturing license issued by the competent authority to M/s Panera Biotech.
13. It is a matter of the common sense that any independent manufacture need to have a independent power connection of electricity or sub-meter for supply of electricity etc. It is surprising that the appellant have not been able to produce any evidence to prove that M/s Panheber/Panera Biotec Pvt. Ltd. existed on their premises independently and they had their own independent electricity connection or sub-lease connection from the main unit of M/s Panacea Biotec Ltd. We take note of the fact that no goods can be manufactured without utilization of electricity/power and from the entire record of the appeal and submissions made by the appellant, we do not find any iota of evidence to indicate that M/s Panheber/Panera Biotec Pvt. Ltd. had independently utilized power for manufacture of vaccine.

14. We also find that as per the contract, in case M/s Panheber/Panera used the facilities of machinery, equipment, etc., they would pay charges at the rate of Rs. 3 lakhs per day to the appellant. It has been pointed out to us that and no payment have been made for use of plant and machinery of the appellant. However, balance sheet of M/s Panheber reveals that Panheber had plant and machinery (Gross value of only) Rs. 8,64,423/- and the total asset were amount of Rs. 14,76,702/- as on 31/03/2008 and 31/03/2009. Further Schedule XIII – Significant Accounting Policies and Notes to accounts at point No. 8 shows that there was no transaction between Panheber and the appellant in this regard. Nor does the balance sheet show receipt of Rs. 4.5 crore by Panheber in 2008-2009.

15. These facts clearly bring out that M/s Panera Biotec Ltd. only existed on paper and actually goods are manufactured by the appellant in the name of Panera Biotec Ltd.

16. Its matter of record that manufacturing and clearance of vaccine has been shown by the appellant in their own statutory records for the relevant period including in VAT records. As the appellant is professionally managed manufacturing plant and it is beyond our comprehension that the goods manufactured by some other plant which is a separate legal entity will find a place in the records of the appellant's statutory books or stock records. We find that these evidences cannot be rejected lightly and the Department has rightly raised the issue of mis-utilization of the Cenvat credit.

17. In view of the entire above discussion, we are of the view that from the record of the appeal and all the arguments it appears that the appellant have failed to adduce any evidence to prove that M/s Panheber/Panera Biotec Pvt. Ltd. had any independent manufacturing facility within the appellant’s own premises and we do not find any fault in the Department’s conclusion that it is the appellant who had manufactured the vaccine in the name of M/s Panheber/Panera Biotec Pvt. Ltd.

18. Thus, we do not find that any legal infirmity in the impugned order-in-original. We uphold the same and the appeal is dismissed.

PER: ASHOK JINDAL

1. The appellant is in appeal against the impugned order denying the cenvat credit on certain items used in the fabrication of storage tanks, platforms and pipelines.

2. The brief facts of the case are that the appellant is engaged in the manufacture of casein and lactose. The appellant was operating under the Cenvat scheme and availing cenvat credit on inputs and capital goods. During the period from 31.12.2005 to 30.06.2007, the appellant availed cenvat credit on various steel plates, stainless steel rolled coil, stainless steel H.R. Coils, SS Strips Coils, Asbestos packing/Tape, Channels, Shapes and sections, Mill Plates, bars, Joists, etc. and used them in the fabrication of storage tanks, platforms and pipelines. An audit was conducted in the premises of the appellant and raised an objection to the availment of the cenvat credit on these items used in the manufacture of exempted capital goods under Notification No. 67/95-CE dated 16.03.1995. The matter was contested by the appellant but the adjudicating authority denied the cenvat credit. Consequently, the demand was confirmed and penalty was also imposed on the appellant. Aggrieved from the said order, the respondent is before us.

3. The ld. Counsel for the appellant submits that these items in question have been used by the appellant in the fabrication of storage tanks, platforms and pipelines and the usage was explained to the adjudicating authority in detail. Therefore, the appellant is entitled to avail cenvat credit on the steel items used in fabrication of storage tank, as storage tank is the capital goods are entitled for cenvat credit under Rule 2(a) of the Cenvat Credit Rules, 2004. He further submits that the storage tank is fixed with nuts and bolts and it can be unfastened, therefore, it cannot be said that it is the immovable property and therefore no manufacture. In that circumstances, the impugned order to be set aside.

4. To support this contention he relied on the certificate issued by the Chartered Engineer where the Chartered Engineer has visited the factory of the appellant on 03.09.09 and examined the various machinery installed in the factory and filed the detailed report.

5. On the other hand, the ld. AR submits that the Chartered Engineer has given the report without examination, therefore, the same cannot be relied upon.

6. Heard the parties and considered the submissions.

7. The ld. Counsel during the course of arguments have produced Chartered Engineer certificate/report which has been issued after examining the storage tank installed in the factory premises of the appellant and that Chartered Engineer report is self explanatory for usage of the items but the same has not been placed before the adjudicating authority for consideration but placed before us. In that circumstances, it would be in the interest of justice to remand matter back to the adjudicating authority for denovo consideration of the issue to entitlement of the cenvat credit on steel items which is claimed by the appellant to be used in fabrication of storage tank etc.

8. In view of the above observations, we set aside the impugned order. The matter is remanded back to the adjudicating authority to pass an appropriate order after considering the report of the Chartered Engineer placed before us by the appellant and in the light of the various judicial pronouncements as on date on the issue.

FINAL ORDER NO. A/85149/2020

Per: S K Mohanty:

Hear both sides and perused the records.

2. The learned Commissioner (Appeals) vide the impugned order dated 12.11.2018 has denied the refund benefit claimed by the appellant under Rule 5 of the Cenvat Credit Rules, 2004, holding that the period of limitation provided under Section 11B of the Central Excise Act, 1944 should be applicable for claiming the refund amount. The issue arising out of the present dispute is no more res integra in view of Order No. A/85514/2019 dated 13.03.2019 of this Tribunal, passed in the case of Technocraft Industries (I) Ltd. The Tribunal has held that the limitation period provided under Section 11B ibid is applicable for refund claim of accumulated Cenvat credit in terms of Rule 5 ibid. The relevant paragraphs in the said order are extracted herein below:

"7. The short issue involved in the present appeal for determination is whether the cash refund claim of accumulated CENVAT Credit under Rule 5 of CENVAT Credit Rules, 2004 for the period January to Sept, 2008 filed by the appellant on 3.9.2010 is barred by limitation or otherwise. Undisputedly, the exports were carried out from the date of filing of refund claim. The contention of the appellant that the period prescribed under Section 11B to claim the cash refund of the accumulated Cenvat credit is not applicable. The Revenue relied upon the judgment of Hon'ble Madras High Court in GTN Engineering (supra), which was subsequently followed in Hyundai Motors’ case (supra). We find that the issue has been considered at length by the Hon'ble Madras High Court in the case of GTN Engineering (supra) and observed as follows: -

"14. The said notification prescribes a period of one year, as provided under section 11B of the Central Excise Act, for the purpose of making application in Form-A along with prescribed enclosures and also the relevant extracts of the records maintained under the Central Excise Rules, 2002, Cenvat Credit Rules, 2004 or Service Tax Rules, 1994 in original. That application should be filed before the Deputy Commissioner of Central Excise or the Assistant Commissioner of Central Excise, as the case may be. For the purpose of finding out as to the relevant date for the purpose of making claim for refund of CENVAT credit, Rule 5 should be made applicable. It is the contention of the learned counsel for the assessee that the provision defining relevant date does not cover the claim for refund of CENVAT credit. We may point out that when a statute empowered for such claim, the said provision must be read to find out as to the relevant date. Rule 5 specifies that ‘where any input or input service is used in the manufactures of final product which is cleared for export under bond or letter of undertaking as the case may be, or used in the intermediate product cleared for export, or used in providing output service which is exported, the CENVAT credit in respect of the input or input service so used shall be allowed.”

15. A reading of the above rule, though there is no specific relevant date is prescribed in the notification, the relevant date must be the date on which the final products are cleared for export. If any other conclusion is arrived, it will result in disentitling any person to make a claim of refund of CENVAT credit. Admittedly, the respondent has made a claim only invoking Rule 5 of the CENVAT Credit Rules, 2004. In that view of the matter, there cannot be any difficulty for us to hold that the relevant date should be the date on which the export of the goods was made and for such goods, refund of CENVAT credit is claimed.

16. The learned counsel for the respondent would rely upon a judgment of the Gujarat High Court reported in 2008 (232) E.L.T. 413 (Guj.) [Commissioner of Central Excise and Customs, Surat-I v. Swagat Synthetics]. That was a case relating to sub-rule (13) of Rule 57F of Central Excise Rules, 1944, which reads as under:

“(13) Where any inputs are used in the final products which are cleared for export under bond or used in the intermediate products cleared for export in accordance with sub-rule (4), the credit of specified duty in respect of the inputs so used shall be allowed to be utilised by the manufacturer towards payment of duty of excise on any final products cleared for home consumption or for export on payment of duty and where for any reason such adjustment is not possible, the manufacturer shall be allowed refund of such amount subject to such safeguards, conditions and limitations as may be specified by the Central Government by notification in the Official Gazette.”

The said rule does not prescribe any time-limit. In the absence of such prescription as to the limitation, the Gujarat High Court has held that the claim of refund could not be rejected on the ground of limitation.

17. The learned counsel would also rely upon a Judgment of Madhya Pradesh High Court at Indore reported in 2009 (236) E.L.T. 248 (M.P.) [STI India Ltd. v. Commissioner of Customs and Central Excise, Indore]. In that case, though the Court has held that Clause 6 of Appendix read with Section 11B of Central Excise Act, 1944, cannot be made applicable insofar as the period of limitation is concerned when a claim for CENVAT credit is made, a reading of the said proviso shows that there is no reference to Rule 5. With great respect, we are not in agreement with the said judgment as the judgment was rendered based on the rules and the notification which are procedural in nature. As we have found that but for the provision of Rule 5 r/w notification, the respondent could not have filed the application for refund, he has to satisfy the limitation clause as provided under Section 11B of the Act.

18. In view of the above, the order of CESTAT holding that the limitation is not applicable to the facts in question to the case has to be set aside. Accordingly the same is set aside.

8. We do not find any reason not to follow the ratio laid down by of the Hon’ble Madras High Court in GTN’s case (supra). Consequently, the impugned order is upheld and appeal, being devoid of merit, is dismissed.”

3. In view of the above decision of the Tribunal, I do not find any infirmity in the impugned order passed by the learned Commissioner (Appeals) in denying the refund benefit to the appellant on the ground of limitation. Accordingly, the appeal filed by the appellant is dismissed.

This is an appeal filed by the Revenue against Order-in- Appeal No. P-III/VM/242-245 dated 23.11.2009 passed by the Commissioner of Central Excise (Appeals), Pune-III.

2. Briefly stated the facts of the case are that the respondent M/s Mali Pipe Industries is a proprietorship firm having its proprietor Shri Kumar Shankar Mali engaged in the manufacture of excisable goods namely, PVC pipes of various sizes falling under Chapter sub-heading 39 of Central Excise Tariff Act, 1985. They have availed benefit of SSI exemption under the relevant notification No. 8/2003-CE dated 1.3.2003 for the clearances made during the relevant financial years 2005-06 & 2006-07. On the basis of investigation that the respondent had wrongly availed the SSI exemption benefit for the financial year 2005-06 & 2006-07 against clearance of PVC pipes by not including the value of clearances from the other unit namely, M/s Kumar Polyextrusion, which is owned by the wife of the proprietor Shri Kumar Shankar Mali, show-cause notice was issued to the respondent for recovery of duty short paid for the said financial years 2005-06 and 2006-07, amounting to Rs.27,66,055/- by clubbing the clearance of both the units; proposed confiscation of unaccounted raw materials in M/s Kumar Polyextrusion valued at Rs.63,29,950/-, proposed for confiscation of machinery and raw materials valued at Rs.12,00,000/- and penalty under relevant provisions; personal penalty on the another noticees. On adjudication, the demand was confirmed with interest and penalty; seized materials were directed to be confiscated with an option to release the same on payment of fine and personal penalty imposed on other noticees. Aggrieved by the said order, the respondents filed appeal before the learned Commissioner (Appeals), who in turn, partly allowed their appeal by upholding confiscation of goods directed by the adjudicating authority, however, set aside the demand of duty, penalty and interest of Rs.27,66,055/- confirmed on clubbing the clearance, confiscation of unaccounted raw materials, demand of Rs.34,466/- confirmed against M/s Kumar Polyextrusion, set aside the penalty against Mrs. Latika Kumar Mali and reduced the penalty to Rs.25,000/- against Shri Kumar Shankar Mali. Hence, the Revenue is in appeal with the prayer that the Order of the Commissioner (Appeals) be set aside as far as clubbing issue is concerned.

3. Learned AR for the Revenue reiterated their grounds of appeal. He has further submitted that the learned Commissioner (Appeals) has ignored the statements recorded during the course of investigation, the evidence on record indicating that even though on paper M/s Mali Pipe Industries and M/s Kumar Polyextrusion are shown to be separate legal entities but in fact in the former Unit, Shri Kumar Shankar Mali was the proprietor and in M/s Kumar Polyextrusion, his wife Mrs. Latika Kumar Mali was the propietress for name sake. All the activities of both units have been controlled and managed by Shri Kumar Shankar Mali.

4. Further, he has submitted that during the course of search of all the units and common office premises, it was noticed that the screens of different brands were lying in the factory of M/s Kumar Polyextrusion, 150 Nos. of 63mm and 315 Nos. of 90 mm size were found short when compared with RG-1 Stock of M/s Mali Pipe Industries and the Manager Shri Waghmare has admitted that these pipes were cleared on 20.4.2007 without preparing invoices and without duty paying documents. Similarly, the vehicle bearing No. MH-45-0012 loaded with 400 pipes of 90mm and 70 pipes of 50mm of Supriya brand was found at M/s Kumar Polyextrusion without any documents. Further, during the course of investigation, Shri Vitthal Ganpat Waghmare, Manager of M/s Mali Pipe Industries admitted to have been looking after production and clearance of both the units and loading of pipes were done as per Kumar Shankar Mali's instructions. The sales invoices were for both Units were prepared at the instruction of Shri Kumar Shankar Mali and manufacturing of pipes of different sizes in both the units were undertaken according to the direction of Shri Kumar Shankar Mali. Raw materials required for both the units were purchased by Shri Kumar Shankar Mali. All instructions in respect of M/s Kumar Polyextrusion was received from Shri Kumar Shankar Mali and the propietress Mrs. Latika Kumar Mali was never involved in day-to-day activity nor looking after the business of the company. Further, he has submitted that the screens of brand names viz, 'Mali Pipe', 'Finoflex' and 'Finorex' are in the custody of M/s Kumar Polyextrusion.

5. He has further contended that in his statement, Shri Kumar Shankar Mali has admitted to have financed M/s Kumar Polyextrusion by selling agricultural land and from the profit earned and loan from Sangola Branch of Pandharpur Urban Bank. Further in his statement, he had stated that he was looking after all the activities of M/s Kumar Polyextrusion. The learned AR has further submitted that Mrs. Latika Kumar Mali in her statement admitted that she was not at all concerned with the day-to-day working of unit and entire work of factory was looked after by her husband for which she has executed the Power of Attorney in his name. Further, she has admitted that she was not aware of anything about business activity of M/s Kumar Polyextrusion and not knowing who is doing what work in M/s Kumar Polyextrusion; when specifically asked about the status of the company, she has stated that she did not know what is a power of attorney and that as per direction of her husband she has signed all the papers and what was written on the paper was not known to her; she had also stated that whenever required her husband was taking her signatures on papers and she did not know anything and that her husband never gave her full information, he used to ask her to sign and she used to sign. She also admitted that she was only a housewife and just lent her name as propietress. Further, the learned AR has submitted that the aabak & Jabak i.e. incoming and outgoing records were maintained in the common office for both the units and the amount of Rs.2,00,000/- though advanced by M/s Mali Pipe Industries to M/s Kumar Polyextrusion, which the later had claimed to have been returned subsequently, but no evidence has been produced in this regard.

6. It is his contention that the goods are manufactured at both the units under common brands and common private records maintained for purchase, issue for production of raw material and sale of finished products for both units, common register for inward/outward movement of manufactured goods and raw materials are maintained at M/s Mali Pipe Industries. In support, the learned AR has referred to the extract of incoming and outgoing register mentioned at para 34 of the adjudication order. It is his contention that learned Commissioner (Appeals) has erred in appreciating the said evidence brought on record by the Department that even though both the units are separate on paper, but controlled by one person i.e. Shri Kumar Shankar Mali, proprietor of M/s Mali Pipe Industries. It is argument that in such circumstances, the clearance of M/s Kumar Polyextrusion be added to the clearance value of M/s Mali Pipe Industries. In support, he has referred to the judgment of this Tribunal in the case of Libra Engineering Works Vs. Commissioner of Central Excise, Ahmedabad-I - 2017 (339) ELT 610 (Tri-Ahmd), Himgiri Plastics Vs. Commissioner of Central Excise, Delhi -II - 2017 (357) ELT 153 (Tri-Del), which has been upheld by the Hon’ble Supreme Court reported as 2018 (360) ELT A137 (SC), and Sansuk Industries Vs. Commissioner of Central Excise, Mumbai-IV - 2017 (350) ELT 265 (Tri-Mum).

7. Per contra, learned Advocate for the respondents has submitted that show-cause notice was issued to them on 16.10.2007 to all the four respondents proposing to deny SSI exemption by clubbing clearance of M/s Mali Pipe Industries and M/s Kumar Polyextrusion, which on adjudication was confirmed and personal penalty imposed on other two respondents. All the four respondents had filed appeal before the learned Commissioner (Appeals). It is his contention that the Revenue has filed only one appeal mentioning all the four respondents whereas the Revenue ought to have filed separate appeals against every party. Since only one appeal has been filed, therefore, the appeal becomes infructuous.

8. On merit, the Ld. Adv. has submitted that both these units having separate Income Tax PAN No., Sales Tax registration, Bank A/c No., SSI registration etc. and these are separate in existence and also function independently having full-fledged machinery and manufacturing activity. It is his argument that there is no free flow of finance between respondent No. 1 and 2. Initially in the year 2001-02, a loan of Rs.2.00 lakhs was advanced to Shri Kumar Shankar Mali, which was later returned by M/s M/s Kumar Polyextrusion. Shri Kumar Shankar Mali is proprietor of Mali Pipe Industries. It is his contention that merely because two units are owned by husband and wife, clearance of one unit cannot be clubbed with another in considering the SSI exemption notification. Further, he has also submitted that merely because both Units were operating from common office, common inward and outward register of materials and finished goods, common staff etc. cannot be a ground to club clearance of both units. In support, they have referred to the judgment of this Tribunal in the case of Commissioner of Central Excise, Kanpur Vs. Sharad Industrreis - 2013 (294) ELT 561, Commissioner of Central Excise, Vadodara Vs. Tightwell Fasteners - 2008 (230) ELT 163, Shri Natraja Industries Vs. Commissioner of Central Excise, Salem - 2005 (187) ELT 45, Renu Tandon Vs UOI - 1993 (66) ELT 375 (Raj).

9. In his rejoinder, the Ld. A.R. for the revenue has submitted that there is no necessary to file separate appeals for each respondent against order of the Commissioner (Appeals). The Department has complied with the provisions of section 6 A of the CESTAT (procedure)Rules, 1982 .

10. Heard both sides and perused the records.

11. The short question involved in the present appeal is whether M/s Mali Pipe Industries and M/s Kumar Polyextrusion are entitled for SSI exemption benefit under Notification No. 8/2003-CE dated 1.3.2003 separately or the clearance value of M/s Kumar Polyextrusion be clubbed with that of M/s Mali Pipe Industries, in considering the said SSI benefit of exemption notification for the later Unit.

12. It is the contention of the learned Advocate for the respondents that both M/s Mali Pipe Industries and M/s Kumar Polyextrusion though proprietorship concerns and the husband and wife are proprietors of the said units respectively, but they have separate premises for manufacture and clearance of the same got separate existence in law inasmuch as they procured/purchased raw materials separately and processed the same in their units and. They possess separate Income Tax PAN No., Sales Tax/ VAT registration number, hence clubbing of clearance of these two units in considering the benefit of exemption notification is not sustainable in law.

13. The Revenue, on the other hand, mainly relies upon the evidence of the proprietors of the respective concern. It is the argument of the Revenue that even though on paper M/s Kumar Polyextrusion has been shown a separate legal entity, whose proprietor is Smt. Latika Kumar Mali, W/o Shri Kumar Shankar Mali, but in fact, the said unit is fully controlled by Shri Kumar Shankar Mali, husband and proprietor of M/s Mali Pipe Industries. In her statement, Smt. Latika Kumar Mali has admitted that she is not at all aware of any of the activities of M/s Kumar Polyextrusion nor even aware of how the said unit is functioning and carrying out its day-to-day business of manufacture and sale of the finished goods. In her statement, she has categorically stated that the entire business and management had been carried out by her husband Shri Kumar Shankar Mali and she being a housewife signs all the paper as directed by her husband from time to time without being aware of what paper was placed before her for signature. The statements furnished by the proprietors and the employees were never retracted nor had been challenged during the entire proceeding as untrue or collected by application of force or question. Therefore, these statements cannot be ignored in absence of reasons.

14. We find that the learned Commissioner (Appeals) has erred in appreciating the evidence as a whole and in particular the control and management of the unit M/s Kumar Polyextrusion by Shri Kumar Shankar Mali of M/s Mali Pipe Industries even though on paper both the units were shown and claimed to have separate existence and functions separately carrying out its business of manufacture and sale of goods independent to each other. On the contrary, the entire operation and business of both the units undoubtedly controlled and managed by one person that is Shri Kumar Shankar Mali, hence, the clearance of both units be clubbed. The facts of the present case are more or less similar to the facts of the case in Libra Engineering Works (supra) and Himgiri Plastics (supra) case, hence by the judgment of this Tribunal delivered in the said case. In these circumstances, we do not find merit in the impugned order setting aside the demand arrived at by clubbing the clearance value of M/s Kumar Polyextrusion with that of M/s Mali Pipe Industries while considering the benefit of SSI exemption under Notification No. 8/2003-CE dated 1.3.2003 as amended from time to time.

15. The learned Advocate for the respondents raised another issue that the Revenue has not filed four appeals but instead filed only one appeal, therefore, the same is not maintainable. Revenue’s answer to the said argument is that the department has complied with the provisions of Rule 6A of CESTAT(Procedure) Rules, 1982 in filing the number of appeals as per the number of adjudication orders. We find merit in the contention of the Revenue. The learned Commissioner (Appeals) has decided the issues partly in favour of the respondents, modifying the Order of the adjudicating authority, therefore, the Revenue has filed only one appeal challenging the Order-in-Appeal only to the extent it was not accepted by the Revenue, that is on the issue of clubbing of clearance. Consequently, we are of the view that the Appeal is sustainable.

16. In the result, the impugned order is modified by setting aside the same to the extent of dropping the demand of Rs.27,66,055/-, interest and penalty on the issue of clubbing of clearance of M/s Mali Pipe Industries & M/s Kumar Polyextrusion and the Order-in-Original to that extent is restored. Appeal disposed of accordingly.

Brief facts: Appellant had availed Cenvat credit on the strength of the invoice issued by M/s Dnyaneshwar Trust. The amount mentioned therein was paid as per a stay order. This was objected by the Department. Matter reached CESTAT. Appellants relied upon the decision in the case of Central Excise, Jaipur-II Vs. Hindustan Zinc Ltd., [2013 (290) E.L.T. 398 (Tri.-Del.)].

Stand of the Revenue.: Cenvat credit of only those duties and service tax mentioned under Rule 3 of the Cenvat Credit Rules, 2004 are allowed as credit. The pre-deposit made under Section 35F of the Central Excise Act, 1944 is mentioned in Rule 3. Revenue relied upon case laws in (i) Suvidhe Ltd. Vs. Union of India – 1996 (82) E.L.T. 177 (Bom.), (ii) Nelco Limited Vs. Union of India – 2002 (144) E.L.T. 56 (Bom.) and (iii) Hindustan Zinc Ltd. Vs. Held: CESTAT vide Order No. A/85658 / 2020 dated 6/3/2020 of CESTAT, Mumbai. Held that the credit availed of pre-deposit was denied. However, the Tribunal found that the appellant had bona fide believed that the amount paid by the service provider should be entitled as credit to the appellant and thus waived penalty.

Per: S K Mohanty:

This appeal is directed against the impugned order dated 28.03.2018 passed by the learned Commissioner (Appeals), CGST & Central Excise, Nasik.

2. Briefly stated, the facts of the case are that the appellants are engaged in manufacture of seamless pipes and tubes, falling under Chapter 7304 of the Central Excise Tariff Act, 1985. During the period 2013-14 and 2014-15, the appellants had exported the finished goods without payment of central excise duty, by executing the letter of undertaking. The proof of export in respect of the goods were not received within a period of six months and accordingly, the appellants had paid central excise duty involved on the goods cleared for export. Subsequently, the proof of export was received by them in the year 2016 and was submitted before the jurisdictional central excise office. Thereafter, the appellants had filed the refund applications, claiming refund of central excise duty paid on the exported goods. The applications were filed under Section 11B of the Central Excise Act, 1944. Vide order dated 18.01.2017, the original authority had rejected the refund applications on the ground that the same were filed beyond the period of one year from the relevant date and as such, are barred by limitation of time as per the provisions of Section 11B ibid. The impugned order has upheld the adjudication order, so far as it rejected the refund applications filed by the appellants. The learned Commissioner (Appeals) has held that relevant date in the case of the refund applications should be considered as the date of payment of duty and since the applications were filed beyond one year from such relevant date, the claim is clearly barred by limitation of time. Further, he has also held that the appellants did not deposit the duty amount under protest and not opted for the provisional assessment. Feeling aggrieved with the impugned order, the present appeal is preferred before this Tribunal.

3. The learned Advocate appearing for the appellants submitted that the goods in question were duly exported by the appellants and due to non-availability of proof of export within the prescribed time frame, the central excise duty amount was deposited by the appellants. Thus, she submitted that upon receipt of proof of export, since the refund claim applications were filed within one year from the date of such receipt, the refund claim will not be barred by limitation of time. In other words, it was stated that submission of proof of export should be considered as the “relevant date” for filing of the refund application under Section 11B ibid. The learned Advocate further submitted that the amount in question deposited by the appellants into the Government exchequer should be considered as ‘deposit of amount’ and not as ‘payment of duty’ and thus, the time limit prescribed under Section 11B would not be applicable.
4. On the other hand, the learned AR appearing for Revenue reiterated the findings recorded in the impugned order and further submitted that since the appellants had paid the duty amount voluntarily and filed the refund applications beyond the prescribed period of one year from the date of such payment, the claim applications are clearly barred by limitation of time. She further submitted that since the refund applications were filed by the appellants and considered by the authorities under the provisions of Section 11B ibid, the time limit prescribed there under has to be strictly adhered to and different interpretation cannot be placed to decide the matter in another way. She has relied upon the judgment of Hon’ble Supreme Court in the case of Miles India Limited Vs. Assistant Collector of Customs-1987 (30) E.L.T. 641 (S.C.), Collector of C.E., Chandigarh Vs. Doaba Cooperative Sugar Mills-1988 (37) E.L.T. 478 (S.C.) and Assistant Collr. of Cus. Vs. Anam Electrical Manufacturing Co.-1997 (90) E.L.T. 260 (S.C.) to justify such stand.

5. Heard both sides and perused the records.

6. Section 11B ibid provides the mechanism for filing of refund application and consideration of the same by the statutory authorities. The statutory provision inter alia, mandates that the refund application should be filed by the claimant before the expiry of one year from the relevant date. The phrase ‘relevant date’ has been explained in Section 11B ibid as under:-

“(B) ‘relevant date’ means,—

(a) in the case of goods exported out of India where a refund of excise duty paid is available in respect of the goods themselves or, as the case may be, the excisable materials used in the manufacture of such goods,-

(i) if the goods are exported by sea or air, the date on which the ship or the aircraft in which such goods pass the frontier, or

(ii) if the goods are exported by land, the date on which such goods pass the frontier, or

(iii) if the goods are exported by post, the date of despatch of goods by the Post Office concerned to a place outside India;

(b) in the case of goods returned for being remade, refined, reconditioned, or subjected to any other similar process, in any factory, the date of entry into the factory for the purposes aforesaid;

(c) in the case of goods to which banderols are required to be affixed if removed for home consumption but not so required when exported outside India, if returned to a factory after having been removed from such factory for export out of India, the date of entry into the factory;

(d) in a case where a manufacturer is required to pay a sum, for a certain period, on the basis of the rate fixed by the Central Government by notification in the Official Gazette in full discharge of his liability for the duty leviable on his production of certain goods, if after the manufacturer has made the payment on the basis of such rate for any period but before the expiry of that period such rate is reduced, the date of such reduction;

(e) in the case of a person, other than the manufacturer, the date of purchase of the goods by such person;

(ea) in the case of goods which are exempt from payment of duty by a special order issued under sub-section (2) of section 5A, the date of issue of such order;

(eb) in case where duty of excise is paid provisionally under this Act or the rules made thereunder, the date of adjustment of duty after the final assessment thereof;

(ec) in case where the duty becomes refundable as a consequence of judgment, decree, order or direction of appellate authority, Appellate Tribunal or any court, the date of such judgment, decree, order or direction;

(f) in any other case, the date of payment of duty.”

7. As per the explanation contained in Section 11B ibid, the term ‘relevant date’ for consideration of the present dispute can be itemized either under clauses (eb) or (f) of the above reproduced explanation. In this case, it is an admitted fact on record that the appellants did not resort to the provisional assessment for payment of duty in question on removal of final product from the factory. Thus, the case of the appellants will not be governed under clause (eb) above for consideration of the relevant date differently. On the contrary, the case of the appellant squarely falls under purview of clause (f), whereunder the relevant date should be construed as “the date of payment of duty”. Admittedly, in this case, the appellants had filed the refund applications beyond the period of one year from the date of payment of duty attributable to exportation of goods. Since the provisions of Section 11B ibid have not prescribed any specific relevant date for consideration of filing of refund claim after obtaining the proof of export of goods, the relevant date for such purpose should be governed only under clause (f) contained in the explanation appended to Section 11B ibid.

8. In this case, the appellants had deposited the central excise duty on removal of excisable goods from the factory premises. Such amount of duty was deposited into the Central Government account under proper accounting code. Thus, under the circumstances, it cannot be pleaded that the duty amount deposited by them should be construed as ‘mere deposit’ in the hands of the Government and for grant of the said refund amount, the provisions of Section 11B ibid would not be applicable. Since, statute clearly mandates that refund claim has to be lodged within a period of one year from the relevant date; such prescribed time limit has to be strictly adhered to by the authorities functioning under the statute. In this context, the Hon’ble Supreme Court in the case of Doaba Co-operative Sugar Mills (supra), have ruled that in making claims for refund before the departmental authorities, an assessee is bound within the four corners of the statute and the period of limitation prescribed there under must be adhered to and that the authorities functioning under the statute cannot place different interpretations and are bound to follow the provisions of the statute alone. Further, in the case of Anam Electrical Manufacturing Co. (supra), the Hon’ble Apex Court have also held that statutory time limit not extendable by any authority or court in case of claim of refund filed under the central excise statute. The Hon’ble Apex Court in the case of Miles India Ltd. (supra), in a Customs refund case have also ruled that the authorities acting under the Act are justified in disallowing the claim for refund, as they were bound by the period of limitation provided under the statute. Though, the said judgment was delivered by the Hon’ble Apex Court in context with the Customs statute, but the ratio of the said judgment is squarely applicable to the facts of the present case inasmuch as both the Customs as well as Central Excise statutes prescribe the time limit for filing of refund application.

9. In view of the above discussions and analysis, I do not find any infirmity in the impugned order passed by the learned Commissioner (Appeals) and uphold the same. Accordingly, appeal filed by the appellant is dismissed.

Appellant was not able to produce the "proof of export " within the period as prescribed in respect of the goods cleared by them for export without payment of duty as per Notification No 42/2001 CE(NT) 26.06.2001. 2.3 First four Show Cause Notices were earlier adjudicated twice. By Order in Original No 7/CEX/07 dated 23.03.2007, in respect of these four show causes, the demand of duty of Rs 2,09,48,845/- was confirmed along with interest and penalty of Rs 2,09,48,845/-.

Against this order Appellant preferred the appeal before CESTAT along with the application for pre-deposit in terms of Section 35F. CESTAT vide its order No 5/654/207/CI(EB) dated 03.09.2007 directed them to make a pre-deposit of Rs 50 Lakhs. Against this order of CESTAT, appellant filed appeal before Mumbai High Court. Mumbai High Court has vide its order dated 29.02.2008 held as follows:

2. Similarly by another order of 31st December, 2005 pertaining to another sugar factory (in respect of other than 3 sugar factories which are subject matter of the earlier appeal) set aside the order with the direction to obtain decision of the Board and thereafter to proceed in the matter.

3. The Board thereafter by its Order No. 17/2006-Central Excise dated 16th June, 2006 directed consolidation of four show cause notices as set out in the order. Grievance of the petitioners is that the Board has not consolidated all the show cause notices which were required to be consolidated so that an effective order could be passed. We now find that in respect of the show cause notice issued to M/s. Sant Tukaram S.S.K. Ltd., Kasarsai it is kept in the D.C. Pune Division and in case of M/s. Daulat S.S.K. Ltd., the documents are kept pending with A.C. (Bond) Mumbai for finalization of proof of export order of consolidation is yet to be passed.

In case any other show cause notices are pending relatable to the issue we direct the petitioners herein to apply to the Board for consolidation of these show cause notices also with the show cause notice already consolidated by the order dated 16th June, 2006. We are informed that there are two other show cause notices. The decision to be taken as early as possible on the petitioners so applying.

4. It is the contention of the petitioners that for the purpose of showing that in fact the goods had been exported they would require the documents in respect of the sugar factories which have participated in the export proceedings and as such these documents should be made available to them when the show cause notices are being adjudicated. We find that the request is reasonable. We, therefore, direct the respondents and the Adjudicating Officer to call for the record and proceedings which the petitioners may apply for in the proceedings before the A.O. so as to enable the petitioner to establish their case. It will be open to the petitioners to apply for documents from the proceedings for the purpose of producing them before the A.O. in support of their contention.
5. Considering the above the impugned order dated 3rd September, 2007 is set aside and consequent by the order of the Commissioner (Appeals) dated 23rd March, 2007 is also set aside and the matter is remanded back to the Commissioner of Central Excise, Pune II, to proceed with the matter in terms of what we have aforesaid.

6. The Commissioner, Central Excise, Pune II, before whom the four show cause notices have been consolidated to proceed in the matter after the Board passes the order on the representation made by the petitioners herein. Such representation to be made within four weeks from today.”

2.4 In terms of the directions issued by the Hon'ble Bombay High Court Order, Central Board of Excise and Customs has vide its order dated 11th August 2008, along with earlier four show cause notice consolidated for adjudication by Commissioner Central Excise Pune – II (Order dated 16th June 2006), directed consolidation of the Show Cause Notices issued in respect of the clearances made from Sant Tukaram SSK and Daulat SSK. Since no notice was issued in respect of the clearance made from Daulat SSK, the show cause notice issued in respect of Sant Tukaram SSK was also taken up for hearing and adjudication by the Commissioner Central Excise Pune-II.

2.5 Since the main grievance of the appellants in earlier proceedings before all the authority was that during the period under consideration they had exported sugar cleared not only from these unit, but from 13 units located in Maharashtra, and hence the clearances made from all the thirteen units should be taken into record and reconcile. Accordingly Commissioner has considered the documents pertaining to all the 13 units. He records in para 3 of the order as follows:

2.6 Commissioner has in para 5 of the impugned order recorded as follows:

“The above five show cause notices are issued because of irreconcilable deficiencies and discrepancies between the various documents namely AR-4/ARE-1, Shipping Bill, Bill of Lading, Invoices, Bank Realization Certificate etc. which have been produced by the noticee for acceptance of proof of export. Broadly, these discrepancies can be categorized as under:

(i) Original and duplicate AR-4/ARE-I with the Customs endorsement not produced.
(ii) The country of destination shown in the AR4/ARE-I and shipping bills are not tallying.
(iii) The sugar was removed from the factory in 100 Kgs. Bags but the shipping documents shown the shipment in 50 Kgs bags.
(iv) Date of shipment/let export in the shipping document is prior to date of ARE-I which is physically impossible.
(v) The shipping bill and the other shipping documents show procurement of the sugar from other Commissionerates than the Commissionerate in whose jurisdiction the sugar factory is located.
(vi) In case of some clearances from Sant Tukaram SSK, the sugar which was shown to have been exported was found to have been loaded on to railway wagons for direct shipment to Pakistan, but the AR-$ which the exporter claimed to relate shipment was cleared from the factory nearly a month earlier.
(vii) AR-4 does not contain the country of export or the marks and nos on the packages so they cannot be matched with the shipping bills.
(viii) Quantity indicated in AR-4 does not tally with the quantity in shipping bill.
(ix) Date of Bank Realization Certificate is prior to the date of export.
(x) Bill of lading or Mate Receipts or both not produced.”

2.6 After considering the documents produced and the submissions made by the appellant in respect of each of the issue specified above, Commissioner has vide the impugned order referred in para 1, supra adjudicated the matter.

2.7 Aggrieved by the impugned order, appellants are in appeal before CESTAT.

3.1 We have heard Shri R K Verma and Shri D K Singh, Advocates for the appellants and Ms A S Parab, Assistant Commissioner, Authorized Representative for revenue.

3.2 Arguing for the Appellants learned Advocate submitted that:-

- There was absolutely no diversion of the goods cleared for export from the various factories located in Maharashtra. These goods were actually exported, however these demands are made for the reason that these exports have not been duly supported by the proper proof of export.

- All ARE-1s which are under dispute and all other ARE-1s are duly endorsed by the Customs Officer at the port of export. In some cases ARE-1s are perfectly correct and in some cases the endorsements are made under which the quantity cleared from factories under relevant ARE-1s an SBs do not tally. However the fact is that these ARE-1s were produced before the Custom Officer hand have been duly endorsed by him certifying the actual export.

- Whatever goods were cleared for Mumbai Port under ARE-1s of different Sugar Mills were ultimately exported under 198 SBS (197 from Mumbai + 1 from Amritsar under which destination has been changed to Pakistan). On comparison of the gods cleared under these ARE-1s and exported under 198 Shipping Bills, only the 272 MT cannot be reconciled (approx 220 Grams per Quintal) which is due to handling wastage during repacking of the same.

- Band Realization Certificate (BRC) has also been produced in respect of 196 SBs and only in respect of two SBs accounting for 350 MT the BRC are not available and not produced.

- Demand has been confirmed under Annexure "A" of impugned OIO on the basis of non production of Original copy of Original and Duplicate ARE-1s, photocopies of same duly by Customs have been produced. Hon'ble Mumbai High Court has in the matter of M/s U M Cables [2013 (293) ELT 641 (Bom)] held that demand could not have confirmed merely for the reason that original of original and duplicate copy of ARE-1s have not been produced.

- Demand has been confirmed under Annexure "B" of impugned OIO on the basis that the ARE-1s were endorsed with the SBs which were prior to the date of clearance of sugar from the factory, which is not possible and in some cases Excise Commissionerate of goods cleared were shown as Hyderabad under the relevant SBs. Though it's a fact that goods could not have been exported prior to the clearance of the goods from the factory, but it is also true that the endorsement has been made by the Customs Officer. The goods were unloaded at the port and re packed in 50 kg bags from the original packing of 100 kgs the identification of the goods factory wise was not possible as sugar got mingled with the sugar cleared from other factories. Thus only option was to make endorsement on the basis of First in First Out (FIFO) basis but such criteria was not adopted which resulted in such mis match. They had submitted that there was no clearance of sugar from the factories located in Hyderabad and the same is mistakenly mentioned on the shipping bills in EDI system.

- Demand has been confirmed under Annexure "C" of impugned OIO on the basis that the quantity in SBs which was endorsed on the back of ARE-1s was more than the quantity cleared under ARE-1s, and on some shipping bills clearance of goods was mentioned as Hyderabad Commissionerate which have been endorsed on the ARE-1s. The goods were not exported ARE-1 wise, and in number of cases the shipping bill covered number of ARE-1s. The total quantity of these ARE-1s is vice versa tallied with the quantity of SBs and in some cases do not. Commissioner has confirmed the demand in respect of those cases were the quantity matched. In their view the only option was to make endorsement on the basis of First in First Out (FIFO) basis but such criteria was not adopted which resulted in such mis match. They had submitted that there was no clearance of sugar from the factories located in Hyderabad and the same is mistakenly mentioned on the shipping bills in EDI system.

- On the basis of above mis matches demand has been confirmed against them. In case of Formica India [1995 (77) ELT 511 (SC)], Hon'ble Supreme Court held "Once the Tribunal took the view that they were liable to pay duty on the intermediary product and they would have been entitled to the benefit of the notification had they met with the requirement of Rule 56A, the proper course was to permit them to do so rather than denying to them the benefit on the technical ground that the point of time when they could have done so had elapsed and they could not be permitted to comply with Rule 56A after that stage had passed."

- They would also rely on the decisions as follows in their support

  - Continental Cement Company [2014 (309) ELT 411 (ALL)]
  - Arya Fibres Pvt Ltd [2014 (311) ELT 529 (T-Ahmd)]
Model Buckets & attachments (P) Ltd [2007 (217) ELT 284 (T-Bang)] affirmed at [2014 (300) ELT 510 (Kar)]

- They are in possession of SBs and BRC evidencing the exports. Adjudicating authority has himself recorded that the goods were repacked at the port, thus admits that the goods had reached the port.

- Hon’ble Apex Court has in case of Suksha International & Nutan Gems & Anr [1989 (39) ELT 503 (SC)] and A V Narasimhalu [1983 (13) ELT 1534 (SC)] stated the administrative authorities should instead of relying on technicalities, act in a manner with broader concept of justice.

- In interest of justice the matter should be remanded back to adjudicating authority for reconsideration.

3.3 Arguing for the revenue learned Authorized Representative while reiterating the findings recorded in the impugned order submitted that:-

- From 2002 onwards it has been the strategy of the appellant’s to moot for tallying the total quantity of white sugar procured from 13 mills in Maharashtra against the total quantity of white sugar procured from 13 Mills in Maharashtra against the total quantity of sugar exported as per rtie shipping bills submitted by them. Throughout it has been their submission throughout that the total quantity of sugar exported by them as per these shipping bills tally with the sugar cleared by them from various factories located in Maharashtra as per the ARE-1s;

- Proofs of Export in respect of sugar cleared from 7 factories in Maharashtra have already been accepted by the department and are not subject/concern of the present proceedings. These proceeding concern 6 factories in respect of which the proper proof of export has not been furnished.

- The contention of the appellant is not acceptable, as the documents do not match and shipping Bills contain declared jurisdiction of other Commissionerates. In such a situation the abstract claim of appellants cannot be validated in any manner and also the it may not be possible administratively to cause such verification.

- To accept gross, cumulative quantity matching of S/Bs with AR4s, without details even matching, is not the procedure and will amount to gross violation of the conditions of notification No 42/2001 CE(NT) r/w Rule 13 of Central Excise Rules, 1944/Rule 19 of Central Excise Rules, 2001, paras 13.2 and para 13.7 of the Chapter 7 of Part 1, Manual of Supplementary Instructions, 2001.

- Hon’ble Supreme Court has constantly in series of decisions rendered by them held that “It is an equally well known principle that a person who claims an exemption has to establish his case.”

- In view of the above submissions there is no merits in the submissions made by the appellants to the effect that the benefit of exemption under Notification No 42/2001 CE(NT) should be admissible to them by tallying the entire quantity exported against the Shipping Bills produced by them which tallies with the total quantity of sugar cleared from the 13 different sugar mills located in Maharashtra.

4.1 We have considered the impugned order along with the submissions made in appeal, during the course of arguments and in written submissions filed.

4.2 The three annexures as per which the demand has been confirmed against the appellant by the adjudicating authority are reproduced below:

Explanation I. - For the purpose of this notification, "merchant exporter" mean any exporter who procures and exports excisable goods manufactured by any other person.

Explanation II. - ……..

4.5 Appellants herein are merchant exporters and have cleared the goods (sugar) from various factories for export in terms of Rule 13 of Central Excise Rules, 194/Rule 19 of Central Excise Rules, 2001 after executing the required bond as per the Notification No 42/2001 CE(NT). They being Star Trading House were not required to furnish required security against the bonds so executed. They had executed the bonds with relevant jurisdictional officers of Central Excise. In terms of the Notification 42/2001 CE(NT) and also in terms of the conditions specified in the bond, they had to furnish the proof of export of the goods cleared to the authority with whom the bond had been executed or were required to pay the duty on the goods with interest @ 24% in case of failure to furnish the proof of export in manner as has been prescribed by the Notification, to the satisfaction of bond accepting authority.

4.6 In the present case as directed by the Hon'ble Bombay High Court the matter of the exports under taken by the Appellants in respect of the goods cleared from various factories in Maharashtra was taken up by the common adjudicating authority appointed by the Board. The direction of the Bombay High Court is in respect of the consolidation of the proceedings initiated by various show cause notices in respect of the clearances made for export from the factories located in Maharashtra before common adjudicating authority. (Refer para 2.3 and 2.4, supra).

4.7 After considering the documents furnished by the appellant, adjudicating authority has demanded the duty in the cases where he was not satisfied with proof of export for the reasons as stated in the three Annexures to the impugned order reproduced in para 4.2 supra.

4.8 It is now settled position in law that any person claiming the benefit of an exemption notification is required to fulfill the conditions specified in the notification. Hon'ble Supreme Court has in case of Dilip Kumar & Co [2018 (361) ELT 577 (SC)] held as follows:

involves literal or plain meaning test. The other tools of interpretation, namely contextual or purposive interpretation cannot be applied nor any resort be made to look to other supporting material, especially in taxation statutes. Indeed, it is well-settled that in a taxation statute, there is no room for any intendment; that regard must be had to the clear meaning of the words and that the matter should be governed wholly by the language of the notification. Equity has no place in interpretation of a tax statute. Strictly one has to look to the language used; there is no room for searching intendment nor drawing any presumption. Furthermore, nothing has to be read into nor should anything be implied other than essential inferences while considering a taxation statute.

27. Now coming to the other aspect, as we presently discuss, even with regard to exemption clauses or exemption notifications issued under a taxing statute, this Court in some cases has taken the view that the ambiguity in an exemption notification should be construed in favour of the subject. In subsequent cases, this Court diluted the principle saying that mandatory requirements of exemption clause should be interpreted strictly and the directory conditions of such exemption notification can be condoned if there is sufficient compliance with the main requirements. This, however, did not in any manner tinker with the view that an ambiguous exemption clause should be interpreted favouring the revenue. Here again this Court applied different tests when considering the ambiguity of the exemption notification which requires strict construction and after doing so at the stage of applying the notification, it came to the conclusion that one has to consider liberally.

52. To sum up, we answer the reference holding as under - (1) Exemption notification should be interpreted strictly; the burden of proving applicability would be on the assessee to show that his case comes within the parameters of the exemption clause or exemption notification.

(2) When there is ambiguity in exemption notification which is subject to strict interpretation, the benefit of such ambiguity cannot be claimed by the subject/assessee and it must be interpreted in favour of the revenue.

(3) The ratio in Sun Export case (supra) is not correct and all the decisions which took similar view as in Sun Export case (supra) stands overruled.”

4.9 We are also not in agreement with the submissions made by the appellant that they are not able to co-relate the documents in view of the certain erroneous method adopted by the Customs Authority while endorsing the documents. In case of Mihir Textiles [1997 (92) ELT 9 (SC)] Hon’ble Supreme Court while rejecting such arguments stated the law as follows:

"11. Learned counsel for the appellant raised an alternative contention that the deficiency in the contract for obtaining the concessions should not have been taken so seriously and the Customs Authorities should have granted the reliefs as the appellants had performed their part in complying with the conditions. Non-compliance of the conditions, according to the counsel, was only due to the lapses on the part of the authorities concerned. This contention was explicated to the extent that the conditions prescribed in the proviso to entry No. 84.66 are merely directory and not mandatory. According to the counsel, the conditions prescribed, if interpreted strictly, would result in the denial of concessional reliefs which statute has conferred on the citizen.

12. In support of that contention, counsel invited our attention to the decision of a Constitution Bench of this Court in State of U.P. v. Manbodhan Lal Srivastava, 1958 SCR 533, wherein their Lordships were considering the implication of non-compliance with the conditions provided in Article 320(3) of the Constitution on an order imposing punishment to a Government servant without reference to the Public Service Commission. While considering that question learned Judges made a reference to the Privy Council decision in Montreal Street Railway Company v. Normandin - AIR 1917 PC 142 and the Federal Court decision in Biswanath Khemka v. Emperor - AIR 1945 PC 67. The Constitution Bench held that the provisions of Article 320(3) are not mandatory and non-compliance of those provisions does not afford any cause of action in a court of law. Privy Council in the above quoted decision has observed that the question whether provisions in a statute are directory or imperative depends upon the object of the statute and no general rule can be laid down. “When the provisions of the statute relate to the performance of a public duty and the case is such that to hold null and void acts done in neglect of this duty would work serious general inconvenience or injustice to persons who have no control over those entrusted with the duty and at the same time would not promote the main object of the legislature, it has been the practice to hold such provisions to be directory.” This is not a case where a certain provision is mandatory or directory. Here the question is whether concessional relief of duty which is made dependent on the satisfaction of certain conditions can be granted without compliance of such conditions. No matter even if the conditions are only directory.

13. In Formica India Division v. Collector of Central Excise, 1995 (77) E.L.T. 511 (SC), non-compliance with Rule 56A of the Central Excise Rules, 1944 was held to be insufficient to deny the benefit of a notification to the assessee. But the said benefit was afforded on the special circumstances of a case as could be seen from the following words:

"The circumstances in which the appellants did not pay the duty on the intermediary product before putting the same to the captive consumption for producing that stage, the appellants contested the correctness of the classification and had, therefore, not paid the duty on the intermediary product. When it was found that they were liable to pay duty on the intermediary product and had not paid the same, but had paid the duty on the end product, they could not ordinarily have complied with the requirements of Rule 56A."

Nor can we find support from the ratio in B.O.I. Finance Ltd. v. The Custodian & Others, JT 1997 (4) 15, that "infringements of the instructions issued by the Reserve Bank of India under the Banking Regulations Act prohibiting the banks from entering into buy-back arrangements do not invalidate such contracts entered into between the banks and it's customers", as it involved a question of invalidation of the contract. Here neither the contract nor the import is invalid or illegal and the question is only whether the importer is entitled to the concessional duty."

"In the situation in the two writ petitions, the rebate claims that were filed by the Petitioner would have to be duly bifurcated. As noted earlier the first writ petition [Writ Petition 3102 of 2013] relates to two claims dated 20 March, 2009 and 8 April, 2009 in the total value of Rs. 12.54 lacs. In respect of the second of those claims dated 8 April, 2009, of a value of Rs. 10.08 lacs, the Petitioner has averred that the goods were loaded by the Shipping Line on the vessel and the vessel sailed on 18 April, 2008 whereas the Let Export Order was passed by the customs authorities on 19 April, 2008. The Petitioner has stated that in view of this position the customs authorities withheld the endorsement of the ARE-1 forms and the issuance of the export promotion copy of the shipping bill [Paragraphs 8(g) and 8(h) of the petition]. We find merit in the contention of counsel appearing on behalf of the Petitioner that in these circumstances, the rejection of the rebate claim dated 8 April, 2009 by the adjudicating authority and which was confirmed in appeal and in revision cannot be faulted. Admittedly even accordingly to the Petitioner the goods came to be exported and the vessel had sailed on 18 April, 2008 even before a Let Export Order was passed by the customs authorities. The primary requirement of the identity of the goods exported was therefore, in our view, not fulfilled. In such a case, it cannot be said that a fundamental requirement regarding the export of the goods and of the duty paid character of the goods was satisfied.

16. However, it is evident from the record that the second claim dated 20 March, 2009 in the amount of Rs. 2.45 lacs which forms the subject matter of the first writ petition and the three claims dated 20 March, 2009 in the total amount of Rs. 42.97 lacs which form the subject matter of the second writ petition were rejected only on the ground that the Petitioner had not produced the original and the duplicate copy of the ARE-1 form. For the reasons that we have indicated earlier, we hold that the mere non-production of the ARE-1 form would not ipso facto result in the invalidation of the rebate claim. In such a case, it is open to the exporter to demonstrate by the production of cogent evidence to the satisfaction of the rebate sanctioning authority that the requirements of Rule 18 of the Central Excise Rules, 2002 read together with the notification dated 6 September, 2004 have been fulfilled. As we have noted, the primary requirements which have to be established by the exporter are that the claim for rebate relates to goods which were exported and that the goods which were exported were of a duty paid character. We may also note at this stage that the attention of the Court has been drawn to an order dated 23 December, 2010 passed by the revisional authority in the case of the Petitioner itself by which the non-production of the ARE-1 form was not regarded as invalidating the rebate claim and the proceedings were remitted back to the adjudicating authority to decide the case afresh after allowing to the Petitioner an opportunity to produce documents to prove the export of duty paid goods in accordance with the provisions of Rule 18 read with notification dated 6 September, 2004 [Order No. 1754/2010-CX, dated 20 December, 2010 of D.P. Singh, Joint Secretary, Government of India under Section 35EE of the Central Excise Act, 1944]. Counsel appearing on behalf of the Petitioner has also placed on the record other orders passed by the revisional authority of the Government of India taking a similar view [Garg Tex-O-Fab Pvt. Ltd. - 2011 (271) E.L.T. 449] and Hebenkraft - 2001 (136) E.L.T. 979. The

4.11 It is also a settled position that when law requires something to be done in particular manner then that has to be one in that manner only and all other method of doing are barred. Hon’ble Supreme Court has in case of Competent Authority vs Bangalore Jute Factory [(2005) 13 SCC 477] stated the law as follows:

"……..It is settled law that where a statute requires a particular act to be done in a particular manner, the act has to be done in that manner alone. Every word of the statute has to be given its due meaning…….."

4.12 Since the issue involved is not in respect of clandestine clearance, but is in respect of the non submission of proof of export to the satisfaction of the bond accepting authority the decision of Hon’ble Allahabad High Court in case of Continental Cables and tribunal in case of Arya Fibres and Model Buckets and Attachments relied upon by the appellant Counsel are distinguishable and not applicable. Since we find that decision of five member bench of Hon’ble Supreme Court in case of Dilip Kumar & Co applicable to present case we are not in position to accept the submissions made by the appellant counsel relying on the decisions of Hon’ble Apex Court in case of Formica India Ltd, A V Narasimhalu and Suksha International & Nutan Gems.

4.13 In view of the above decisions of the Hon’ble Apex Court and Bombay High Court (para 15 of the order reproduced above) the view taken by the adjudicating authority in the impugned order in respect of Annexure B and C cannot be faulted with. However the view of the adjudicating authority in respect of ARE-1s in Annexure A is contrary to the decision of Hon’ble Bombay High Court in para 16 and needs to be reconsidered.

4.14 Thus while upholding the demand made by the adjudicating authority in respect of the documents (ARE-1/AR- 4) in Annexure B and C we set aside the demand confirmed in respect of Annexure A and remand the matter back to adjudicating authority for consideration of the same vis a vis the documents that may be furnished by the appellant. We also set aside the penalty imposed by the adjudicating authority which needs to be re-determined by the adjudicating authority after taking into account the total of demand confirmed against the appellant in respect of Annexure B and C and the demand confirmed by him in respect of Annexure A in the remand proceedings.

5.1 The appeals is thus partially allowed as stated in para 4.14 supra and the matter remanded to adjudicating authority for reconsideration of demand made under Annexure A of the impugned order and for imposition of penalty after such redetermination.

5.2 Since the matter is quite old adjudicating authority should decide the matter in remand proceedings within four months of receipt of this order after allowing the personal hearing to the appellants.

CX -Refund -Cenvat - Closure of factory- The assessee entered into an agreement with Maharashtra State Cooperative Bank, through which it took over the closed Sugar unit of another entity for a period of two years - Such agreement was subsequently renewed for further period for 6 years, but was subsequently terminated by the bank - The cenvat credit for the same could not be utilized by the assessee - It then sought refund of the same which was granted by the Asst Commr. relying on the decision in the case Union of India Vs. Slovak India Trading Co. (P) Ltd. - Thereafter, such refund granted was disallowed by the Commr.(A) relying on the decision in Phoenix Industries Pvt. Ltd. Vs. CCEX, Raigad - Hence the present appeal by the assessee.

Held - In view of the findings of the High Court of Mumbai wherein it was held that the order of the Apex Court in Slovak India Trading Co. (P) Ltd. cannot be read as a declaration of law since SLP was dismissed, leaving the question of law open and the same has been answered by holding that refund is impermissible u/s 11B and Section 11B(2) where Cenvat credit could not be utilized due to closure of manufacturing activities - Hence the assessee's appeals have no merit: CESTAT

2.1 Appellant 1 (M/s Parental Creations Pvt Ltd), had taken the credit on the strength of the invoices/ documents issued by M/s 6 E/1166,1172,1196,1206,1225,1226,1726/2010 Sajjan Textiles, M/s Shreeman Textiles, Appellant 3 M/s Vrindavan Dyeing Mills P Ltd and Appellant 4 M/s Olympia Creations Unlimited. They have cleared the goods for export to various merchant exporters namely Appellant 5 M/s CUSP International Ltd, Appellant 6 M/s Aryan's, Appellant 7 M/s Kabir Exports, M/s Kalinga and M/s Vibrant Exports. Appellant 2 (Shri Dinesh Hariprasad Agarwal) is Director of Appellant 1. Appellant 1 had after obtaining no objection from the merchant exporter filed rebate claim for claiming the refund of duty paid by them making debit from their CENVAT Credit account.

2.2 Appellant 1 was at relevant time having two units one operating at Amrut Industrial Estate Mira Road Thane falling in the jurisdiction of Thane II Commissionerate and the second one operating at Gauri Pada, Dhobi Tala, Bhiwandi, District Thane, falling in the jurisdiction of Thane I Commissionerate. Bhiwandi unit was registered on 14.09.2004 for manufacture of process MMF. When Range officer visited the premises of Bhiwandi Unit on 25.04.2005, he found that the registered premises was used for manufacture of made up articles with sewing machine, this change in activities was intimated vide letter dated 31.01.2005 addressed to Kalyan - I Division.
2.3 Unit at Bhiwandi was claiming the CENVAT credit in respect of the inputs received and was clearing the finished goods after debiting the duty payable, from their CENVAT account. They had issued ARE-1 Nos 1/04-05 to 18/04-05 and corresponding invoices No 1/27.09.04 to 18/09.01.05 showing clearance for exports to four Merchant exporters namely M/s Kabir Exports, M/s Aryan Exports, M/s Cusp International and M/s Kalinga Exports. Further vide invoice no 25 & 26 both dated 11.02.2005 and invoice No 27 & 28 both dated 28.02.2005 they showed clearance of 1,85,149.35 L Mtrs of fabrics claimed to be lying in their stock to their unit at Mira Road Thane.

2.4 Bhiwandi unit had vide its letter dated 16.06.2005 received in range office surrendered the registration and informed that they had stopped their activities in the said unit from 01.03.2005 7 E/1166,1172,1196,1206,1225,1226,1726/2010 and that they had filed all their returns for the period upto 15.06.2005.

2.5 Based on the reference received from the Central Excise Commissionerate Thane-II vide letter darted 22.07.2005 to the effect that Appellant 1 unit at Mira Road Thane, was generating bogus ARE-1s by showing itself as supporting manufacture for the manufacture of “dyed and/or printed fabrics” and the said bogus ARE-1s were issued to various Merchant Exporters for claiming the fraudulent rebate. It was also stated that Shri Dinesh Aggarwal, Director has in his statement recorded, admitted he had also obtained registration in the name of M/s Parental Creation Pvt Ltd in Kalyan I Division Thane I Commissionerate for his Bhiwandi unit and Bhiwandi unit is also indulging in the similar activity of issuing bogus ARE-1s. Also Bhiwandi unit had issued CENVAT Invoices from their Bhiwandi unit to Mira Road unit.

2.6 Based upon the information received investigations were undertaken at the Bhiwandi unit in jurisdiction of Thane - I Commissionerate. Investigations undertaken revealed that Appellant-1 had not received any goods and had taken the CENVAT credit on the basis of bogus invoices/ duty paying documents. Further as they had not received any goods as inputs the documents for the clearance of the goods viz ARE-1s and invoices issued by them to were fraudulently issued without actual removal of goods. On the basis of such fraudulent documents they had filed the rebate claims and also passed on the remaining credit to their own unit located at Mira Road in the jurisdiction of Central Excise Commissionerate, Thane - II.

2.7 A show cause notice dated 9th October 2009 was issued to the Appellants herein and others asking them to show cause as to why-

- Parental Creations (Appellant 1), o The CENVAT credit amounting to Rs 82,91,790/- (Rupees Eighty Two Lakhs Ninety One Thousand Seven Hundred and Ninety Only) fraudulently availed 8 E/1166,1172,1196,1206,1225,1226,1726/2010 during the period September 2004 to February 2005 as detailed in Annexure I to this notice, should not be demanded and recovered from them under the Rule 14 of the CENVAT Credit Rules, 2004 read with proviso to Section 11A(1) of the Central Excise Act, 1944;

- A penalty should not be imposed on them under Section 11AC of the Central Excise Act, 1944 read with Rule 15(2) of the CENVAT Credit Rules 2004 & Rule 26 of Central Excise Rules, 2002;

- An interest at appropriate rate under Section 11AB of the Central Excise Act, 1944 read with Rule 14 of the CENVAT Credit Rules, 2004, should not be charged and recovered from them;

- The 13 (thirteen) number of rebate claims by them (as detailed in Annexure-II to this notice on the strength of no objection certificates obtained by them from their claimed exporter totally amounting to Rs 48,72,328/- (Rupees Forty Eight Lakhs Seventy Two Thousand Three Hundred and Twenty Eight only) which does not represent ‘duty’ shown paid on clearances shown should not be rejected; o 794798 L Mtrs of processed fabric valued at Rs 8,45,04,443/- as detailed in Annexure II to this notice; exported by the merchant exporters, claimed to have been procured from M/s Parental not available for seizure should not be confiscated under Rule 25 of the Central Excise Rules, 2002 read with Rule 15 of the CENVAT Credit Rules 2004;

- Since the goods are not available for confiscation, fine in lieu of confiscation should not be imposed on them.

- Shri Dinesh Agarwal, Director of Parental Creations (Appellant 2), penalty should not be imposed on him under Rule 26 of Central Excise Rules, 2002;
9 E/1166,1172,1196,1206,1225,1226,1726/2010 – M/s Cusp International Delhi (Appellant 5), M/s Aryan Delhi (Appellant 6), M/s Kalinga Exports Delhi (Appellant 7), M/s Kabir Exports Delhi, penalty should not be imposed on him under Rule 26 & Rule 27 of Central Excise Rules, 2002;

→ M/ Vrindavan Mill Pvt Ltd., Surat (Appellant 3) Olympia Creations Unlimited, Surat (Appellant 4), M/s Shreeman Textiles Bhiwandi and M/s Sajjan Textiles Bhiwandi, penalty should not be imposed on him under Rule 26 & Rule 27 of Central Excise Rules, 2002;

2.7 The show cause notice was adjudicated by Commissioner as per the impugned order referred in para 1, supra.

2.8 Aggrieved by the impugned order appellants have filed these appeals.

3.1 We have heard Shri Piyush Chhajed, Chartered Accountant for Appellant 1, 2 and 4, Shri Mukund Chouhan Advocate for Appellant 3. None appeared for appellants 5, 6 & 7. We have heard Shri Anil Choudhary, Deputy Commissioner and Shri N NPrabhudesai, Superintendent, Authorized Representatives for the revenue.

3.2 Arguing for the Appellant 1, learned Chartered Accountant submitted-

→ Issue is in respect of denial of CENVAT Credit taken by them against the purchases made by them from (a) Vrindavan Dyeing Mills Pvt Ltd (Rs 44,90,609/-), (b) Olympiad Creation Unlimited (Rs 22,05,688/-) (c) Shreeman Textile (Rs 14,32,360/-) and (d) Sajjan Textile (Rs 1,67,133/-).

→ They are engaged in exporting the goods procured from third party after getting them processed by third party manufacturers. The exports are done through merchant exporter;

→ Department has proceeded against them merely on the basis of contradictory statements recorded behind their back and concluded that there was no movement of the 10 E/1166,1172,1196,1206,1225,1226,1726/2010 goods hence the entire chain of transactions from the suppliers to the Merchant Exporters was bogus.; → These contradictory statements on which reliance has been placed by the revenue have no evidentiary value, as the persons who had made the statements were never cross examined by them;

→ No evidence has been recovered and placed on the record to show that documents produced by them namely invoices, transport receipts, ARE forms, Shipping Bill, Bank realization certificate (BRC) etc were fraudulent; → In case of their MIRA Road unit in similar circumstances, departmental enquiry was initiated against the conduct of concerned departmental officers for helping them. The said enquiry has been concluded holding that the export were genuine:

→ Department has in the present case confirmed the demand of CENVAT Credit and also denied the rebate claims made by them, thereby demanding the tax twice. This is clear indication of the biased mind against the appellant; → They have filed extensive documentation in total 21 Volumes of paper books to show that the transactions undertaken by them were genuine;

→ Demand has been made by invoking extended period of limitation. In similar circumstances, Hon’ble Gujarat High Court has in case of Prayagraj Dyeing Mills Pvt Ltd [2013 (290) ELT 61 (GUJ)] has held that extended period could not have been invoked;

→ Various suppliers had supplied the goods to them against the invoices and duty paying documents against which they had claimed the CENVAT Credit. These documents or the documents filed by them for claiming the rebate have not been held to be forged;

→ Penalty has been imposed on them under Section 11AC of the Central Excise Act, 1944 read with Rule 15 of CENVAT Credit Rules, 2004 and Rule 27 of the Central Excise Rules. There was no proposal to impose penalty under Rule 27 11 E/1166,1172,1196,1206,1225,1226,1726/2010 hence to that extent order in original has gone beyond the scope of show cause notice;
3.3 Arguing for the Appellant 2 and 4, learned Chartered Accountant submitted that, the penalty imposed on him under Rule 26 cannot be sustained as it is the case of the department that there were no goods involved and all the transactions were merely paper transactions. Since Appellant 2 and 4 had not dealt with any goods liable for confiscation the penalty imposed under Rule 22 is bad in law;

3.4 Arguing for Appellant 3, learned advocate submitted that-– Penalty has been imposed upon him under Rule 26.

Undisputedly they are "Body Corporate" and it has been held in the following decisions that penalty under Rule 26 is not impossible on "Body Corporate"

– Woodmen Industries [2004 (170) ELT A 307 (SC)] – o Apple Sponge and Power Ltd [2018 (362) ELT 894 (T-Mum)] o Homag India Pvt Ltd [2017 (357) ELT 1194 (T)] – During the course of personal hearing before the adjudicating authority they had submitted copy of all the statutory records like RG 23A Part-I and Part -II, RG-1, Lot Register, PLA, Excise Invoice, Rt-12 return, challan for payment of duty etc. etc. Thus it is crystal clear that they had followed all the statutory provisions; – During the month of January 2005, they had paid certain amounts towards the Central Excise Duty from their PLA account also, thereby leaving no doubt that they had received inputs in their factory and finished goods were cleared on payment of duty;

– They would relying on the following decisions that in these circumstances penalty could not have been imposed on them:

3.5 Arguing for the revenue learned Authorized Representative submitted that-

In Appeal No 1166, 1172, 1208, 1225 & 1226/2010- Mum, he reiterates the findings recorded by Commissioner in the impugned order. Further all the documents relied upon in the Show Cause Notice were supplied to the appellant as is clearly pointed out in para 85 of the impugned order. In para 87, 88 & 89, Commissioner has considered the request in relation to the cross examination and has recorded the reasons for not allowing the same, in case were the appellant sought cross examination.

In Appeal No E/1196/2010 - Mum, Appellant 3, the only reason for objecting the penalty imposed under Rule 26, is that being "Body Corporate" penalty could not have been imposed under this rule upon him. The decision of Woodmen Industries relied upon by the Appellant is clearly distinguishable as it was in the case of firm and not in case of limited Company. On the contrary in case of MadhumilanSyntex Ltd [2007 (210) ELT 484 (SC)] it has been held that as company is not a natural person it cannot be imprisoned, but being a legal or juristic person can suffer payment of fine etc. To similar effect are the decisions of Apex Court in case of Iridium India Telecom Ltd [Appeal No 688 of 2005 Order dated 20.10.2010], Mohanal JitamaljiPorwal [AIR 1987 SC 1321], Standard Chartered Bank [2006 (197) ELT 18 (SC)] – In Appeal No E/1726/10-Mum, Appellant 7, the points urged by the Appellant have been discussed and discarded in the following decisions:

4.1 We have considered the impugned order along with submissions made in appeal, during the course of arguments and in the written submissions filed by the appellants and revenue.

4.3 As is evident from the table above three Noticees namely M/s Sajjan Textiles, Thane, M/s Shreeman Textiles, Thane and M/s Kalinga Exports New Delhi are not in appeal before us.

4.4 Appellants had argued that they had not received the documents in respect of the show cause notice issued to them. However in para 85 of the impugned order, Commissioner has categorically recorded as follows:

"85. FINDINGS; - I have carefully gone through the entire case records including written and oral submissions made by the noticees during the hearings and the provisions of law relating to the issue. It is clear from the, records that the service of the subject notice was carried out along with the relied upon documents listed in the relevant Annexure of the notice in pursuance of the provisions of Section 37 C of the Central Excise Act, 1944, by way of service at their registered premises under a regular panchanama and delivery by registered post in the first fortnight of October, 2009, itself. The notice is signed by the issuing authority, with designation indicated below it, and is within its power of demand set by the Board. Calling such a valid and legal notice, an illegal one because all its pages are not signed by the officer is a ridiculous argument. The acknowledgement of a heavy parcel is on record indicating that a complete set of photocopies of the relied upon documents was received by the main two noticees also. However, none of the noticees and especially, the main two noticees, file any reply to the notice even after lapse of around two months time. They did not, till then, felt it necessary to go through the notice and the documents supplied therewith. As late as in December, 2009 when the case was posted for hearing, for the first time, the main two noticees came up with a plea dated 05.12.09, that the notice received by them was a big one and that they needed 5-7 weeks time to analyze the same. After the case was posted for second hearing, the main two noticees filed their so called first part-submission dated 09.12.09, similarly seeking five to seven weeks time to file their reply and that they may require some additional documents/ information. In spite of this letter they did not come up with any requisition for the documents till the third hearing was granted and till a specific request was made to them to come up with details of the documents required by them. Upon this letter of the third hearing they came up with a list of host of documents required for their defense, followed by another such requirement from the jurisdictional Division office. The requests were accommodated and the investigating section was directed to provide them with the documents needed by them. The investigation, after verifying their request reported that most of the documents sought for were nothing but the relied upon documents of the notice itself, which were already provided to them at the time of the service of the notice itself. The two noticees have not denied the receipt of these sets as apparent from their correspondence with the Preventive (Section) of Central Excise directly, where while acknowledging the receipt of the notice with the said documents, they had stated that a few pages of the notice were illegible. Still, the documents, other than those relied upon mentioned in their two requests; one made to the adjudicating authority and the other to the divisional DC, were provided to them by the investigating, Preventive (Section) of Central Excise under letter dated 20.01.10, making the above position clear. Apparently, upon receipt of these documents they came up with the contention that the show cause notice was not a true/legal show cause notice as it’s all the pages were not authenticated and also that the documents supplied to them were also not attested and so were not reliable. The entire episode indicates that against the claim made by them every now and then and about cooperating with the department and seeing justice, they were more interested in raking up trivial issues to falter the adjudication process. The two noticees requesting for certain relied upon documents, who have reportedly received the requisite documents, were at least expected after that, to come out with some evidence glaring from these documents, or even by stating the circumstances for the adjudicating authority to ponder over, to show that the transactions carried out by them were genuine and there were records, such as transportation, payments which could establish their innocence with regard to alleged acts against them. However, this has not happened. When they filed reply it was simple denial of charges not substantiated with any material evidence against the allegation in the notice, and request for ‘attested’ documents already supplied. There was also an unnecessary haggling over the issue of the authentication of the photocopies, without bringing out a single case that the copies were not genuine or that, they had reason to believe that fake copies could have been supplied to them. Thus, in the end there is only denial of charges by them on the 16 E/1166,1172,1196,1206,1225,1226,1726/2010 record, which will be dealt later. However, the entire course from the beginning indicates that all out attempts to impart natural justice have been made by the adjudication process, the main two noticees have also availed it, but have, on the contrary, appeared to have used the same as a tool to delay the proceedings. Thus, observing that the requirements of principles of natural justice have been amply followed, by way of proper service of the notice, supply of copies of documents; even additionally asked for, opportunity to take additional copies required or to inspect the records, and granting a number of hearings spread over a period of four months to put forth the effective defense, the case has to be taken up for decision even if the main noticees till end have chosen not to appear for the hearing. The whole episode clearly indicates that since the main noticees, do not have any proper defense for the case against them, they have chosen to ignore the proceedings of adjudication and yet grumble without any basis that the justice to this end is not imparted to them. This clearly looks like stretching of principles of natural justice beyond limits to suit their ends. The case law, in the case of M/s. Sanghi Textile Processors 1993(65) ELT 357(SC) clearly lays down the principles of natural justice for adjudicating authority in such circumstances, which guide that simple steps of supplying photocopies of relied documents and extending the opportunity of inspection after service of the notice would meet the justice. Thus, in the end there is only denial of charges by them on the 16 E/1166,1172,1196,1206,1225,1226,1726/2010 record, which will be dealt later.

Chartered Accountant appearing for the Appellant 1 had submitted that they had not received some of the documents relied upon in the show cause notice. Considering the submissions made, bench had on 4.12.2019 made the following order:

“The learned C.A. for the appellants submits that the certain documents mentioned in the SCN though requested by them have not been received. He requests time to prepare list of documents which was not supplied and also the correspondence from the Department time to time during the course of 17 E/1166,1172,1196,1206,1225,1226,1726/2010 adjudication and request of cross-examination of the witnesses. He seeks time to furnish the details of these documents on the next date of hearing. Adjourned to 16/12/2019.”

On 16.12.2019, instead of filing the details of the documents not received by him along with the request for cross examination etc., learned Chartered Accountant admitted that they had received all the documents and matter may be taken up. Accordingly the matters were taken up for arguments and consideration.

4.5 Appellant 3 i.e. M/s Vrindavan Dyeing Mills Pvt Ltd Surat had requested for cross examination of Shri Dinesh Agarwal (Appellant 2), Shri Mahesh Agarwal (employee of Appellant 1) and Shri Ravi Sharma, Broker. However his request has been turned down by the Commissioner as per para 87, 88 & 89 of the impugned order. In his appeal or during the course of arguments or in the written submissions filed Appellant 3 has not pressed that denial of cross examination has caused any prejudice to him in making his submissions.
4.6 In their appeal and arguments Appellant 1, have submitted that the revenue has proceeded to the book this case against them, alleging that they had not received any material against the invoices received by them and against which they had taken the CENVAT Credit. They submit that on the contrary they have all the records to show the receipt of the goods against which they had taken the CENVAT Credit. It is also not correct, to say that the suppliers of the input materials were bogus as these suppliers are in existence and M/s Vrindavan Mills Pvt Ltd, Surat (Appellant 3) and M/s Olympia Creations Unlimited, Surat (Appellant 4) are even before tribunal. The other two suppliers namely M/s Sajjan Textiles, Thane and Shreeman Textiles, Thane two existed and were filing regular returns to the concerned jurisdictional officers.

4.7 After the receipt of inputs they had cleared the processed fabrics to various merchant exporters namely M/s Kalinga Exports, New Delhi, M/s Kabir Exports, New Delhi (Appellant 5), 18 E/1166,1172,1196,1206,1225,1226,1726/2010 M/s Cusp International, New Delhi (Appellant 6) and M/s Aryan New Delhi (Appellant 7). These goods cleared to Merchant Exporter, were actually exported by them through various ports in Delhi. Not only the fact of export has been confirmed by the concerned authorities at port of exportation, in the enquiries made from them. Against the exports made Foreign Exchange remittances have also been received. The goods which were not cleared for exports were transferred by them to their unit at MIRA Road after payment of the duty equivalent to the CENVAT Credit taken 4.6 However on the basis of the investigations made and allegations levelled, Commissioner has put on hold the rebate claims filed by them and has also sought to deny the CENVAT Credit taken/availed by them. If the case of revenue is that they had not received any goods and consequently not cleared anything for exportation, then all the entries made in their CENVAT account are nothing but the book entries. It should also be noted since as alleged they had not cleared the goods for exportation the reversal made by them in their CENVAT Credit account, for the clearance of goods itself was not required as nothing was actually being cleared.

4.8 Annexure 1 to Show Cause notice reproduced below, gives the detail of the documents against which the Appellant 1 claim to have received the inputs have availed the CENVAT Credit.

Aj(i) Although, M/s. Olympia seem to have shown supply of goods to M/s. Parental worth nearly Rs.2.70 crores in merely 12 days (from 16.09.04 to 27.09.04), they have not substantiated it with private records viz. commercial invoices, lorry receipts, octroi receipts, purchase orders, documents showing payments, etc. which can establish purchase of fabrics, their processing and movement of finished processed fabrics from Surat to Bhawandi.

(ii) M/s. Olympia, Surat have not been able to name any one other person to whom they have supplied their fabrics. They have supplied the fabrics to M/s. Parental. For these supplies M/s. Olympia Creations Unlimited have purchased processed fabrics from M/s. Parental Creations Pvt. Ltd., Bhawandi, both firms owned by Shri Dinesh Agarwal (his brother). The circumstantial evidence shows as to why the processed fabrics will be transported from Bhawandi to Surat, and then again brought back to Bhawandi, without carrying out any process as stated by Shri Manoj Kumar in his statement dated 30.09.05, and sold back to M/s. Parental. This shows that the transaction is nothing but an eye-wash to mislead the department and to enable M/s. Parental to avail Cenvat credit on the invoices of a seemingly unrelated party. This fact is further confirmed by the fact that Shri Manoj Agarwal is unable to produce any evidence such as LRS, Octroi receipt, escort receipts etc. for the transportation of the processed fabrics from Bhawandi to Surat & from Surat to Bhawandi.

(iii) Further, the claimed suppliers of M/s. Olympia Creations Unlimited have been declared bogus/non-existent as per the Alert Circular issued by Surat-I Commissionerate, hence M/s. Olympia Creations Unlimited, could not have received the inputs, 22 E/1166,1172,1196,1206,1225,1226,1726/2010 was not eligible for any Cenvat credit accordingly is ineligible to issue any invoice for passing on the said bogus Cenvat credit.
(iv) Thane-II Commissionerate investigating the affairs of M/s. Parental Creations, Bhayander (dealer) with M/s. Olympia Creations Unlimited, Surat, on the basis of whose invoices Cenvat credit was availed.

(v) M/s. Olympia itself has been declared bogus/fake by the jurisdictional Surat-I Commissionerate.

(vi) M/s. Olympia Creations, who is also one of the noticees of this notice have not come forward with any defense against these allegations, substantiated by the circumstantial evidences. B. Summonses were issued to Shri Suresh Purohit, Proprietor of M/s. Sajjan Textiles and M/s. Shreeman Textiles. However, the same were returned by the postal authorities. M/s. Shreeman Textiles and M/s. Sajjan Textiles have been declared bogus unit vide alert Circular No.08/2006 dated 19.06.06 of Thane-I Commissionerate. The two units are also noticees of this notice but have not participated in the proceedings from the beginning. In fact, there is also a separate notice issued to these units for the alleged issuance of invoices without supply of any material for which the alert circular is issued against them. Therefore, the supplies of the two units cannot be genuine. C. M/s. Parental have availed Cenvat credit of nearly Rs.45 lakhs on the invoices issued by M/s. Vrindavan Dyeing Mills Pvt. Ltd., Surat. However as per record these invoices were for the processed fabrics for which the grey fabrics was shown supplied from the units of M/s. Sajjan and M/s. Shreeman. Since, these two units itself are declared fake, there could not be any supply of grey to M/s. Vrindavan from them and so the credit, it turn, coming from them to M/s. Parental also could not be practically possible. Further, transactions of M/s. Vrindavan against the claim of Shri Dinesh Agrawal have been examined and the same has revealed that there are serious contradictions in their statements such as:-

i) Shri Dinesh Agarwal in his statement dated 25.08.05 had stated that the transportation as well as payment for 23 E/1166,1172,1196,1206,1225,1226,1726/2010 transportation of the grey fabrics from M/s. Parental to M/s. Vrindavan was arranged by M/s. Vrindavan whereas Shri Nadiwala, Excise Clerk of M/s. Vrindavan in his statement dated 16.05.06 & 28.09.06, had categorically stated (which has been confirmed by Shri Harishchandra Udaynarayan Singh, Director of M/s. Vrindavan) that the transportation was arranged by Shri Mahesh Agarwal of M/s. Parental and the transportation charges has also been paid by M/s. Parental.

   ii) Shri Dinesh Agarwal, in his statement dated 25.08.05, had stated that there was no broker involved in the transaction between them and M/s. Vrindavan, whereas Shri Nadiwala has contradicted this and stated that Shri Ravi Sharma was the broker in the deal. This fact has also been corroborated by Shri Ravi Sharma, the Broker, in his statement.

   iii) Shri Dinesh Agarwal has stated that Shri Mahesh Agarwal was the person responsible for most of his work, which has enabled him to take credit of nearly Rs.61 lakhs from M/s. Vrindavan, M/s. Shreeman & M/s. Sajjan. However, his failures to give any address, etc. of such an employee raised suspicion that he has avoided this to prevent the facts from coming out in the open.

   iv) Shri Mahesh Agarwal in his statement dated 16.06.09 has categorically denied all the activities claimed by Shri Dinesh Agarwal as been done by him. He has specifically stated that he has never visited Parental, Bhawanidi premises, its purchasers or suppliers.

Hence, it is indicated that all the transaction involving M/s. Vrindavan, M/s. Sajjan & M/s. Shreeman, the suppliers and the supply transactions are all proven bogus. M/s. Parental have been unable to produce any evidence to counter these facts."

4.11 The fact that even the so called payments made by the Appellant to the supplier of the raw material have been found to be bogus. Commissioner has in para 96 observed as follows:

"With regards to the second aspect, cheques shown issued to the claimed suppliers of the inputs were found to have gone into the accounts of third parties, discounted in a number of banks at 24 E/1166,1172,1196,1206,1225,1226,1726/2010 Surat and none of the payments are gone to the claimed buyers. These, findings on the main four aspect of the operations, the allegation of paper transactions without dealing in any goods is cemented."

4.12 Apart from the above observation made by the Commissioner we also do not find the submissions made by the Appellant in respect of the goods cleared for export as having any merits because of the time lag between the date of clearance of the goods from the premises of the Appellant and the date of "let export order" indicated on the ARE-1. It is also not understood as to why the goods which were exported were transported from Thane, Mumbai to Delhi for exportation from ICD Tughlakabad and IGI Airport New Delhi, when the gateway port for ICD Tughlakabad is Jahawar Custom House, Nhava Sheva. The act of incurring the expense on transportation of goods from Thane Mumbai to New Delhi and then back to Nhava Sheva, could not be explained by the Appellants or the merchant exporters. Table below indicates the purported date of clearance extracted from ARE-1's and the date of Let Export Order, after actual examination and stuffing of the goods in container at the port of exportation.

Above table above it is quite evident that goods which are cleared from the premises of Appellant premises have been allowed let export from the port located in Delhi within a week time which is highly improbable as the normal travel time of the cargo from Thane-II to Delhi is much higher than that. Also it is noted that the goods as per the consignment notes were consigned and delivered at the premises of the merchant exporter and not directly to the port of exportation. This also would have added some time delay and most likely these goods were not the same goods which were exported by the merchant exporter under the cover of these shipping bills. Appellants have also not produced copies of any documents evidencing the payment of toll/octroi at any of toll/ octroi naka that would have been crossed in course of transporting the goods from Thane to Delhi.

4.13 The facts about non receipt of the inputs/ goods against which the Appellant 1 have availed the CENVAT Credit of Rs.82,95,790/- (Rupees eighty two lakhs ninety five thousand seven hundred and ninety only) has been admitted by the Shri Dinesh Agarwal (Appellant 2) Director of Appellant in various statements recorded. The gist of the statements to this effect is reproduced below:

i) In his statements dated 18/7/2005 and 21/7/2005 Shri Dinesh Agarwal, Director of M/s Parental Creations Pvt. Ltd., recorded before Supdt. C. Ex. Thane II stated that they had issued 18 ARE1s without actually delivering any goods and followed the same modus operandi in his premises at Bhiwandi, which was registered earlier.

ii) Shri Dinesh Agarwal on 8/8/2005, 9/8/2005 and 23/8/2005 inter alia stated that their premises at Bhiwandi was procured on rental basis from Shri Asgar Ali, Company's Bank accounts are at UTI Bank and Indian Overseas Bank, both at Surat, that they had never paid any electricity charges nor there was any 3-phase connection to the said premises, that the premises did not have any water connection, he gave details of equipment as were in the gala (which he changed in subsequent statement), 26 E/1166,1172,1196,1206,1225,1226,1726/2010 that one Shri Mahesh Agarwal (having Mobile no.9376814151) was employed in their Company who was looking after all operations of the company, that they authorized Pawan Singhal C.A. for obtaining C. Ex. Registration, that the address of Shri Mahesh Agarwal was not known to him, that his unit received grey fabrics from M/s Shriman Textiles and M/s Sajjan Textiles both of Bhiwandi, that the grey fabrics were directly delivered to the premises of M/s Vrindavan Dyeing Mills Pvt. Ltd., Surat and as per the arrangement the said processor was lifting the fabrics from Supplier's premises and transported to Surat., that after processing the said fabrics were delivered to his unit at Bhiwandi by the processor under C. Ex. invoices, thereafter the processed fabrics were subjected to cutting and packing, that they availed credit based on the invoices and used the same for payment of duty, that in a few case where the grey fabrics were lifted by his unit and brought to their premises and the same were subjected to bleaching and dyeing without aid of power.

iii) On 25/8/2005, Shri Dinesh Agarwal stated that one Shri Singh is a Director of M/s Vrindavan Dyeing Mills Pvt. Ltd. (Textile Processors) (para 10 and 12 of SCN) and their employee Bharatbhai was dealing with them, the job charges were inclusive of transportation, that the transportation was arranged by M/s Vrindavan Dyeing Mills P Ltd., that no broker was involved in these dealings, transportation was arranged by M/s Vrindavan Dyeing Mills P Ltd., and he did not know the name and address of transporters, processed fabrics were transported to his factory in trucks and Shri Mahesh Agarwal used to receive the goods in the factory, that material received were cut and packed and cleared to Delhi, that transportation was arranged by merchant exporters, that normally a representative of the buyer used to visit his premises to inspect the fabrics before they are packed, the representative of the merchant exporter comes to his factory to prepare ARE1 and packing list, that goods were transported by road to Delhi, that Approx. Rs.10 Lakhs was paid to Vrindavan as job charges. (charge Rs.8 to 10 per Liner mtr.), that his unit availed Cenvat credit on grey fabrics as well as on E/1166,1172,1196,1206,1225,1226,1726/2010 processed fabrics. He did not produce any transportation documents produced. He also stated that his brother Manoj Agarwal was proprietor of M/s Olympia Creations Unlimited.

4.14 All the facts as stated above along with the findings recorded by the Commissioner abundantly make it clear that the appellant 1 had not received any goods against which they had availed the CENVAT Credit and have not cleared the same for exportation or any other purpose. In our view Appellant 1 have fraudulent availed the CENVAT Credit of Rs 82,91,790/- (Rupees Eighty Two Lakhs Ninety One Thousand Seven Hundred and Ninety Only), without receiving any inputs. We are also of the opinion that since the Appellant 1 has not received any goods the clearance of the same by him for exportation or any other purpose also was fraudulent, so that they could have converted the fraudulent credit to cash by claiming the rebate of the duty paid by them by debiting from the fraudulent credit availed by them.

4.15 The evidences in the case in the case clearly suggest that Shri Dinesh Agarwal (Appellant 2), Director of Appellant 1 has in connived with the various suppliers namely M/s Shreeman Textiles, M/s Sajjan Textiles, M/s Olympia Creations Unlimited & M/s Vrindavan Dyeing Mills Pvt Ltd and merchant exporters namely M/s Kalinga Exports, M/s Kabir Export, M/s Aryans & M/s Cusp International to hatch the scheme/ plot for availing the fraudulent credit and then converting the same to cash. The scheme hatched was meant to defraud the exchequer by claiming inadmissible rebate by way of refund of duty paid from the inadmissible credit. To a specific query made counsel for Appellant 1, admitted that they had not been paying any duty for which the rebate claims have been filed in cash and the entire amounts were paid by them from the CENVAT account only. The Appellants in the case before us were part and parcel of the scheme hatched by Appellant 1 through it Director (Appellant 2), to manipulate the documents fraudulently.

4.16 Appellant 1 have argued heavily relying on the decision of Hon'ble Gujarat High Court in case of Prayagraj Dyeing & 28 E/1166,1172,1196,1206,1225,1226,1726/2010 Printing Mills Pvt Ltd [2013 (290) ELT 61 (Guj)] that extended period of limitation cannot be invoked for denying the CENVAT Credit taken by him. In the said decision Hon'ble High Court held as follows:

"8. Therefore, the question that falls for determination is whether the department can escape its liability to find out a person who was registered with them and to pursue him for payment of duty. There is also no dispute in these cases that the goods were purchased by the merchant manufacturer officially and they have suffered the duty thereon and the amounts have been paid through cheques.

9. It is also not a case where the invoices are manufactured documents not signed by the original manufacturer. The invoices which are accounted for in the Return of the person, were the invoices accounted for in the Return of the persons registered with the Central Excise. Thus, merely because the manufacturer cannot be found at the present, such fact cannot make the invoices fake or fraudulent documents in the eye of law. These are actual invoices issued by the manufacturer who is duly registered under the Central Excise Act and, therefore, those cannot be said to be forged documents. In our opinion, merely because today, the original manufacturer, who is registered with the Revenue, is not traceable, it does not mean that he did not exist at the relevant point of time. If today, a manufacturer is not available for various reasons that does not mean that at the relevant point of time, such manufacturer who was registered with the Central Excise, did not exist. In our opinion, once receipt of goods is not disputed by a person taking credit and necessary invoices are issued, he is entitled to take credit provided however that he took reasonable steps to ensure that the inputs or the capital goods in respect of which he had taken CENVAT credit are the goods on which appropriate duty of excise as indicated in the documents accompanying the goods, has been paid.

10. In this connection, we find substance in the contention of Mr. Parikh, the learned senior advocate appearing on behalf of the appellants, that there is a marked distinction between a forged document and a document issued by practising fraud. If it appears that a document is a forged one or a manufactured one, it is concocted or a created one in the eye of law and it is in the eye of law a non-existent document. On the other hand, a document issued in the context of a fraud or misrepresentation, is by itself a genuine document and according to settled law, such document is, at the most, voidable and is valid till it is set aside. A transaction that takes place on the basis of such document is good one and can even give a good title to the holder in due course for valuable consideration. At this juncture, we may profitably refer to the observations of the Supreme Court made in the case of CCE v. Decent Dyeing Co., reported in 1990 (45) E.L.T. 201 = (1990) 1 SCC 180 wherein, the Supreme Court held that it would be intolerable if the purchasers were required to ascertain whether excise duty had already been paid as they had no means of knowing it. It was further pointed out that duty of excise is primarily a duty levied on a manufacturer or purchaser in respect of a commodity manufactured or produced. As pointed out by a Division Bench of this Court in the case of Commissioner of Central Excise v. D.P. Singh reported in 2011 (270) E.L.T. 321, the judgment of the Supreme Court in the case of New India Assurance Company (supra), was distinguished, being one relating to a forged document which renders a document null and void, and as such, has no application to this type of cases. Similarly, reliance over the judgment of the Supreme Court in the case of Commissioner of Customs (Preventive) v. Aafloat Textiles (I) P. Ltd. reported in 2009 (235) E.L.T. 587, cannot be supported as Afloat case is one pertaining to a forged document but not in respect to a document otherwise genuine, issued by practising fraud. The facts stated in the case of Afloat indicated that the same was a case of a forged invoice and thus, the principles laid down therein cannot have any application to an invoice which is, otherwise, genuinely issued by a manufacturer registered with the Revenue. Justice Arijit Pasayat who delivered the judgment of the Supreme Court held that the transferee of the license should not be made liable. It may not be out of place to mention here that the Tribunal, in its judgment, reported in 2006 (205) E.L.T. 747 indicated in paragraph 7 as follows:

"If that be so, the concept that a fraud vitiates everything would not be applicable to cases where a transaction of transfer of license for value consideration without notice, arising out of mercantile transactions, governed by common law and not provisions of any statute."

11. We, therefore, find no substance in the contention of the learned counsel for the Revenue that simply because the original manufacturer is now not traceable, is sufficient for reversal of cenvat credit already taken by the appellants by virtue of the original invoices. However, at the same time, we find substance in the contention of Mr. Oza and Mr. Champaner, the learned counsel appearing on behalf of the Revenue, that in order to get the credit of CENVAT, Rule 7(2) cast a further duty upon the appellants to take all reasonable steps to ensure that the inputs or the capital goods in respect of which the Appellants had taken the credit of CENVAT are the goods on which appropriate duty of excise as indicated in the documents accompanying the goods, has been paid. The Explanation added to Rule 7(2) even describes the instances which are the reasonable steps. The Appellants in these cases, however, not having taken those steps, cannot get the benefit of the credit even though he is not party to fraud. In this connection, we fully agree with the views taken in the case of Sheela Dyeing (supra), and hold that the said decision supports the case of the Revenue and taking of all reasonable steps as provided in Rule 7(2) is an essential condition of availing the credit. The distinction sought to be made by Mr. Parikh that the period involved therein related to 31 E/1166,1172,1196,1206,1225,1226,1726/2010 June, 2003 is not tenable because sub-rule (e) of Rule 7 was introduced even earlier with effect from April 1, 2003.

12. The next question is whether demand of reversal is barred by the period of limitation. In our opinion, in view of our above finding that if the original document is issued even by practising fraud, a holder in due course for valuable consideration unless shown to be a party to a fraud, cannot be proceeded with by taking aid of a larger period of limitation as indicated in Section 11A(1) of the Act. It is now settled law that Section 11A(1) is applicable when there is positive evasion of duty and mere failure to pay duty does not render larger period applicable. In the case before us, it is not the case of the Revenue that the transferees were party to any fraud and therefore, the Revenue cannot rely upon a larger period of limitation. Our aforesaid view finds support from the following decisions of the Supreme Court:

(iii) Lubrichem Industries Limited v. CCE, Bombay, reported in 1994 (73) E.L.T. 257.

(iv) Nestle (India) Limited v. CCE, Chandigarh, reported in 2009 (235) E.L.T. 577.

13. We thus find substance in the contention of Mr. Parikh that in the case before us, in the absence of any allegation that the appellants were parties to the fraud, the larger period of limitation cannot be applied, and thus, even if the original document was assumed to be issued by practising fraud, the appellants being holders in due course for valuable consideration without notice, the larger period of limitation cannot be extended in the case before us. In this connection, we may profitably refer to the decision of the Supreme Court in the case of Commissioner of Central Excise, Belapur v. E. Merck India Ltd. reported in 2009 (238) E.L.T. 386 (S.C.) where the Supreme Court took a view that in the absence of a willful misdeclaration on the part of the respondent-assessee, there was no scope of invoking Section 11A of the Act."

4.14 This decision of High Court was distinguished by the CESTAT Ahmedabad Bench in case of Shri Labdhi Prints [2014 (308) ELT 178 (T-Ahmd)] stating as follows:

"5. Heard both sides and perused the case records. So far as admissibility of Cenvat credit on invoices of grey fabrics is concerned, it is evident from the evidences on record, especially statement dated 20-4-2005 of Shri Biren H. Vakharia, Partner of the main appellant, that only invoices were received by the appellant without receipt of grey fabrics covering those invoices. The supplier of the grey fabrics have been found to be non-existing hence the invoices on the basis of which credit has been taken are to be considered as forged. Shri Vakharia in his statement, inter alia, admitted that the whole transactions are sham being mere paper transactions. He explained that the impugned invoices of grey fabrics were made available to him by one Shri Girdharilal Dadhich. In his statement, Shri Dadhich admitted that he in conspiracy with one Shri Yogesh Vashi fraudulently obtained registration in the name of M/s. Inder Silk Mills and M/s. I.G. Fabrics and made fraudulent declaration of stock to avail deemed credit. The evidence in the form of Panchnama and alert circulars have not been challenged nor there is any retraction of statements.

5.1 Hon'ble High Court of Gujarat in the case of Prayagraj Dyeing and Printing Mills Pvt. Limited v. UOI (supra) made following observations in Paras 9 and 12, reproduced below :-

10. ............

5.2 It is evident from the above observations that the facts before the Hon’ble High Court were different from the facts of 33 E/1166,1172,1196,1206,1225,1226,1726/2010 this case. In the present proceedings appellant was a party to the fraud committed in availing Cenvat credit on grey fabrics which was never received. Accordingly, Cenvat credit has been correctly denied by the lower authorities by invoking extended period."

4.17 In view of above we are of the view that the CENVAT Credit availed by the appellants fraudulently without receiving the corresponding inputs covered by the duty paying documents/ invoices needs to be denied to the Appellant 1 by invoking extended period of limitation as per Rule 14 of CENVAT Credit Rules, 2004 read with proviso to Section 11A(1) of the Central Excise Act, 1944. Since no inputs were received by the Appellant 1 the clearance of the goods by him by debiting the duty against such fraudulent clearances from the CENVAT Account is also not sustainable. In fact as no goods were received they have also not been cleared and hence the debits made from the CENVAT accounts which is subject matter of thirteen rebate claims filed by the Appellant after taking no objection from the merchant exporters is also not sustainable. Accordingly all the rebate claims filed by the Appellant 1 and subject matter of these proceedings need to be disallowed as have been done by the Commissioner by withholding the same. However since we hold the credit itself as fraudulent the debits made from the CENVAT account to are fraudulent. Thus in absence of the clearance of the goods by the appellant, if the duty is sought to be demanded from appellant 1 against the goods which were never cleared by them for export would amount to double jeopardy. In case of the goods cleared by the appellants to their sister concerned by debiting the fraudulent CENVAT Credit availed by them, the appellants have fraudulently transferred this CENVAT Credit to their sister concern who would have utilized the same. Hence these amounts need to be recovered from the Appellant 1, whereas in case of exports under the claim of rebate, the denial of rebate claim will amount to recovery of the fraudulent CENVAT Credit.

4.18 In view of discussions as above we uphold the order of Commissioner denying the CENVAT Credit to the tune of Rs 82,91,790/- (Rupees Eighty Two Lakhs Ninety One Thousand Seven Hundred and Ninety Only) in terms of Rule 14 of CENVAT Credit Rules, 2004 read with proviso to Section 11A(1) of Central Excise Act, 1944. However the part of the credit denied which is covered by the thirteen rebate claims [Rs.48,72,328/- (Rupees forty eight lakhs seventy two thousand three hundred and twenty eight only)] filed by the Appellant and withheld by the Commissioner will be recovered by denying the rebate claims. Remaining amount which is not covered by these claims needs to be recovered in cash from appellant 1.

4.19 In para 4.12 supra, we have held that all the appellants have connived with appellant 1 and 2 in their nefarious design to defraud the exchequer by hatching the scheme of availing the fraudulent credit having held so we hold that the penalties imposed on the appellants to be justified. In view of the Apex Court decision in case MadhumilanSyntex Ltd [2007 (210) ELT 484 (SC)], Iridium India Telecom Ltd [Appeal No 688 of 2005 Order dated 20.10.2010][, Mohanlal JitamaljiPorwal [AIR 1987 SC 1321], Standard Chartered Bank [2006 (197) ELT 18 (SC)] we are not in position to accept the arguments advanced by the appellants to effectthat penalty under Rule 26 could not have been imposed on body corporate. Hon’ble Apex Court has clearly laid down as follows:

"23. It is no doubt true that company is not a natural person but ‘legal’ or ‘juristic’ person. That, however, does not mean that company is not liable to prosecution under the Act. ‘Corporate criminal liability’ is not unknown to law. The law is well settled on the point and it is not necessary to discuss it in detail. We may only refer to a recent decision of the Constitution Bench of this Court in Standard Chartered Bank &Ors. v. Directorate of Enforcement &Ors., (2005) 4 SCC 530 : JT (2005) 5 SC 267. In Standard Chartered Bank, it was contended on behalf of the company that when a statute fixes criminal liability on corporate bodies and also provides for imposition of substantive sentence, 35 E/1166,1172,1196,1206,1225,1226,1726/2010 it could not apply to persons other than natural persons and Companies and Corporations cannot be covered by the Act. The majority, however, repelled the contention holding that juristic person is also subject to criminal liability under the relevant law. Only thing is that in case of substantive sentence, the order is not enforceable and juristic person cannot be ordered to suffer imprisonment. Other consequences, however, would ensue, e.g. payment of fine etc.

24. K.G. Balakrishnan, J. (as His Lordship then was), speaking for the majority, summarized the law thus :
"As the company cannot be sentenced to imprisonment, the court cannot impose that punishment, but when imprisonment and fine is the prescribed punishment the court can impose the punishment of fine which could be enforced against the company. Such a discretion is to be read into the Section so far as the juristic person is concerned. Of course, the court cannot exercise the same discretion as regards a natural person. Then the court would not be passing the sentence in accordance with law. As regards company, the court can always impose a sentence of fine and the sentence of imprisonment can be ignored as it is impossible to be carried out in respect of a company. This appears to be the intention of the legislature and we find no difficulty in construing the statute in such a way. We do not think that there is a blanket immunity for any company from any prosecution for serious offences merely because the prosecution would ultimately entail a sentence of mandatory imprisonment. The corporate bodies, such as a firm or company undertake series of activities that affect the life, liberty and property of the citizens. Large scale financial irregularities are done by various corporations. The corporate vehicle now occupies such a large portion of the industrial, commercial and sociological sectors that amenability of the corporation to a criminal law is essential to have a peaceful society with stable economy."

25. In our opinion, therefore, it cannot be successfully contended that prosecution could not have been ordered against the company and no charge could have been framed.

26. So far as Directors are concerned, it is alleged in the show-cause notice as well as in the complaint that they were 'principal officers' of the company. In the show-cause notice, it was asserted that the appellants were considered as principal officers under Section 2(35) of the Act. In the complaint also, it was stated that the other accused were associated with the business of the company and were treated as principal officers under Section 2(35) of the Act and hence they could be prosecuted. Dealing with an application for discharge, the trial Court observed that accused No. 1 was company whereas other accused were Directors. Whether they could be said to be principal officers or not would require evidence and it could be considered at the stage of trial and the application was rejected. In Revision, the First Additional Sessions Judge took similar view.

27. The learned Counsel contended that the Courts committed an error of law in ordering prosecution against the Directors. The counsel, in this connection, invited our attention to certain decisions. In Municipal Corporation of Delhi v. Ram Kishan Rohtagi & Ors., AIR 1983 SC 67, the accused invoked the jurisdiction of the High Court under Section 482 of the Code praying for quashing of criminal proceedings initiated against them under the Prevention of Food Adulteration Act, 1947. Whereas accused No. 1 was Manager of the company, accused Nos. 2-5 were Directors. A complaint was filed by the Food Inspector of the Municipal Corporation, inter alia, alleging that 'Morton toffees' sold by the accused did not conform to the standards prescribed for the commodity. The Metropolitan Magistrate issued summons to all the accused for violating the provisions of the Act. It was contended on behalf of the accused that proceedings were liable to be quashed as it was not shown that accused persons were in-charge of and responsible for the conduct of business. The High Court allowed the petition and 37 E/1166,1172,1196,1206,1225,1226,1726/2010 quashed the proceedings. Aggrieved Municipal Corporation challenged the decision. This Court was called upon to consider as to whether the High Court was right in quashing the proceedings against the accused.

28. The Court reproduced clause (5) of the complaint which read thus --

"That the accused No. 3 is the Manager, of accused No. 2 and accused Nos. 4 to 7 are the Directors of accused No. 2 and as such they were in charge of and responsible for the conduct of business."

29. Considering the above clause, this Court held that as far as the Manager was concerned "it was not and could not be reasonably argued that no case is made out against him because from the very nature of his duties, it is manifest that he must be in the knowledge about the affairs of the sale and manufacture of the disputed sample". But so far as accused Nos. 4 to 7 were concerned, it was alleged that they were Directors. Interpreting the words 'as such' the Court observed that there was no clear averment that the Directors were in charge of and responsible for the conduct of business and the complainant has merely presumed that the Directors of the company must be guilty because they were holding a particular office.
30. This Court, in the circumstances, observed:

“So far as the Manager is concerned, we are satisfied that from the very nature of his duties it can be safely inferred that he would undoubtedly be vicariously liable for the offence, vicarious liability being an incident of an offence under the Act. So far as the Directors are concerned, there is not even a whisper nor a shred of evidence nor anything to show, apart from the presumption drawn by the complainant, that there is any act committed by the Directors from which a reasonable inference can be drawn that they could also be vicariously liable. In these circumstances, therefore we find ourselves in complete agreement with the argument of the High Court that no case against the Directors (accused Nos. 4 to 7) has been made out ex facie on the allegations made in the complaint and the proceedings against them were rightly quashed.”

31. A similar question came up for consideration before the Court in Municipal Corporation of Delhi v. Purshotam Dass Jhunjunwala & Ors., AIR 1983 SC 158. There also, a complaint was filed under the Prevention of Food Adulteration Act, 1947 against the Directors of the company.

32. In Para 5 of the complaint, it was stated:

“That accused Ram Kishan Bajaj is the Chairman, accused R.P. Neyatia is the Managing Director and accused Nos. 7 to 12 are the Directors of the Hindustan Sugar Mills Ltd. and were in charge of and responsible to it for the conduct of its business at the time of commission of offence.”

33. Setting aside the order of the High Court quashing the proceedings against the Directors and distinguishing Ram Kishan Rohtagi, the Court held that there was a clear averment as to the active role played by the accused and the extent of their liability. A prima facie case for summoning of accused was, therefore, made out and the High Court was wrong in holding that allegations were vague. Further details could be given only in evidence.

34. In Puran Devi & Ors. v. Z.S. Klar, Income Tax Officer, (1988) 169 ITR 608, the High Court of Punjab & Haryana held that a person or a partner of a firm prosecuted for false verification of return must have been in charge of and responsible to the firm for the conduct of its business. Necessary allegations, therefore, must be made in the complaint.

35. In K. Subramaniam v. Income Tax Officer, (1993) 199 ITR 723, the High Court of Madras held that before prosecuting a person under the Act, it must be proved that the person was ‘in charge of’ and ‘responsible to’ the Firm or Company for the conduct of its business. The Court observed that the word used is ‘and’ and not ‘or’. Both the ingredients, therefore, have to be pleaded and proved by the prosecution and the burden is on the prosecution that the accused was ‘in charge of’ and ‘responsible to’ the Firm or Company.

36. In Jamshedpur Engineering & Machine Manufacturing Company Ltd. & Ors. v. Union of India & Ors., (1995) 218 ITR 556, the High Court of Patna (Ranchi Bench) held that no vicarious liability can be fastened on all Directors of a company. If there are no averments in the complaint that any Director was ‘in charge of’ or ‘responsible for’ conduct of business, prosecution against those Directors cannot be sustained.

37. In M.A. University & Ors. v. Deputy Commissioner of Income Tax (Assessment), (1996) 218 ITR 606, the High Court of Kerala held that when there was failure to deduct tax at the source by a firm, prosecution can be launched for violating the provisions of the Act against the Firm. But if the complaint is filed against partners also, there must be specific allegation that such partners were responsible for conduct of business of firm. In absence of such allegation, proceedings against the partners cannot continue.

38. Attention of the Court was also invited to a decision of this Court in Sham Sunder v. State of Haryana, (1989) 4 SCC 630. In Sham Sunder, this Court indicated that it is not uncommon that some of the partners of a firm may not even be knowing what is going on day to day in the firm. There may be partners known as ‘sleeping partners’ who are not required to take any part in the business of the firm. Then there may be ladies and minors who are admitted to the partnership firm only for the benefit of business. They also may not be aware about the business of the firm. It would be a travesty of justice to prosecute all the partners and ask them to prove that the offence was committed without their knowledge. The requisite condition, according to this Court, was that it is for the prosecution to prove that the partner was responsible for 40 E/1166,1172,1196,1206,1225,1226,1726/2010 carrying on business and was, during the relevant time, in charge of the business.

39. Reference was also made to State of Karnataka v. Pratap Chand & Ors., (1981) 2 SCC 335. In that case, this Court held that ‘person in charge’ would mean a person in overall control of day to day business. A person who is not in overall control of such business cannot be held liable and convicted for the act of firm.

40. In MonabenKetanbhai Shah & Anr. v. State of Gujarat & Ors., (2004) 7 SCC 15 : JT (2004) 6 S.C. 309, dealing with the provisions of Sections 138 and 141 of the Negotiable Instruments Act, 1881, this Court observed that when a complaint is filed against a firm, it must be alleged in the complaint that the partners were in active business. Filing of the partnership deed would be of no consequence for determining the question. Criminal liability can be fastened only on those who at the time of commission of offence were in charge of and responsible for the conduct of business of the firm. The Court proceeded to observe that it was because of the fact that there may be sleeping partners who were not required to take any part in the business of the firm; there may be ladies and others who may not be knowing anything about such business. The primary responsibility is on the complainant to make necessary averments in the complaint so as to make the accused vicariously liable. "For fastening the criminal liability, there is no presumption that every partner knows about the transaction. The obligation of the appellants to prove that at the time the offence was committed they were not in charge of and were not responsible to the firm for the conduct of the business of the firm, would arise only when first the complainant makes necessary averments in the complaint and established that fact."

41. Finally, the counsel referred to S.M.S. Pharmaceuticals Ltd. v. Neeta Bhalla & Anr., (2005) 8 SCC 89 : JT (2005) 8 S.C. 450, wherein this Court held that essential averments must be made in the complaint that the person against whom complaint is made was in charge of and responsible for the conduct of 41 E/1166,1172,1196,1206,1225,1226,1726/2010 business of the company. Without such averment, no criminal liability would arise.

42. From the statutory provisions, it is clear that to hold a person responsible under the Act, it must be shown that he/she is a ‘principal officer’ under Section 2(35) of the Act or is ‘in charge of’ and ‘responsible for’ the business of the Company or Firm. It is also clear from the cases referred to above that where necessary averments have been made in the complaint, initiation of criminal proceedings, issuance of summons or framing of charge, cannot be held illegal and the Court would not inquire into or decide correctness or otherwise of the allegations levelled or averments made by the complainant. It is a matter of evidence and an appropriate order can be passed at the trial."

In view of the above decision of the Apex Court we are not impressed by the arguments advanced relying on certain decisions of tribunal (which if contrary to principles laid down by the Apex Court are per-incuriam) to effect that penalty under Rule 27 could have not been imposed on the body corporate.

4.20 Thus we summarize our findings in all the seven appeals under consideration as follows:

- CENVAT Credit of Rs.82,95,790/- (Rupees eighty two lakhs ninety five thousand seven hundred and ninety only) availed by the Appellant 1, fraudulently without receiving the goods is disallowed in terms of Rule 14 of CENVAT Credit Rules, 2004 read with proviso to Section 11A(1) of Central Excise Act, 1944.

- The amount of CENVAT Credit so disallowed, shall be recovered after allowing the adjustment of the amounts of Rs.48,72,328/- (Rupees forty eight lakhs seventy two thousand three hundred and twenty eighty only) involved in the 13 rebate claims filed by the Appellant 1 and which have been held to be inadmissible.

- Interest on the CENVAT Credit taken fraudulently is demandable under Rule 14 of CENVAT Credit Rules, 2004 read with Section 11AB of the Central Excise Act, 1944.

42 E/1166,1172,1196,1206,1225,1226,1726/2010 → Penalty under Section 11AC imposed on Appellant 1 is justified.

- Penalties imposed on other appellants under Rule 26 too are justified.
5.1 Thus we dispose of the appeals as follows:

i. Appeal No E/1166/2010 is partially allowed to the extent of restricting the recovery of CENVAT Credit amount disallowed, to the amount of credit disallowed reduced by the amount involved in 13 rebate claims filed by the Appellant. With the above modification the impugned order is upheld.

Per P Venkata Subba Rao

1. The facts of the case and the arguments made on both sides have been detailed by Hon'ble Member (Judicial) and I find no reason to reiterate them. The question to be decided in this case is whether or not the appellants are entitled to the benefit of Notification No. 4/2006 -CE dated 1.3.2006 (S.No. 72) in respect of the matches manufactured and cleared by them during the period September 2010 to August 2011. This notification reads as follows:

Exemption and effective rate of duty for specified goods of Chapters 25 to 49 in exercise of the powers conferred by Sub-section ( 1) of section 5A of the Central Excise Act, 1944 (1 of 1944), the Central Government, on being satisfied that it is necessary in the public interest so to do, hereby exempts excisable goods of the description specified in column (3) of the Table below read with the relevant List appended hereto, as the case may be, and falling within the _ Chapter, reading or sub-"heading or tariff item of the First Schedule to the Central Excise Tariff Act, 1985 (5 of 1986) (hereinafter referred to as the Central Excise Tariff Act), as are given in--the "corresponding entry in column (2) of the said Table, from 50 much of the duty of excise specified thereon under the First Schedule to the Central Excise Tariff Act, as is in excess of the. amount calculated at the rate. specified in the corresponding entry in column (4) of the said Table and subject to the relevant conditions specified in the Annexure to this. notification, and the Condition number of which, is referred to in the. corresponding entry in column (5) of the Table aforesaid. We Explanation.-- For the purposes of this notification, the rates specified in column: (4) of. the said Table are ad valorem rates, unless otherwise specified.

S. Chapter Description of excisable Rate | Condition 'No. or . No. heading or sub-heading or tariff --

(4) 2|8) __ (4) (5)
72. Matches, in or in relation to Nil -- 10° or the manufacture of which 3605 00 none of the following 90 processes is ordinarily carried on with the aid of power, namely:

(i) the process of giving the 'veneer flats or strips, the configuration of a match box including the outer Slide or the inner slide with the use of match Paper.

(ii) frame filling;

(ii) dipping of splints in the 'composition for match heads;

(iv) filing of boxes with matches;

(v) pasting of labels on match boxes or veneers or cardboards;

(vi) packaging

A plain reading of the above notification shows that there is no stipulation in it that all the above processes have to take place within the same factory. It also does not stipulate that the benefit is available if the power is not used by the person claiming the benefit of the exemption notification or his job workers. Therefore, the place of use of power is irrelevant. The person who uses the power is also irrelevant. The only thing that is relevant is, that the power should not have been used in any of the. Six processes mentioned therein. It does not matter if the power is used in any - of the other processes in the manufacture of the Watches, the benefit is still available as long as the power is not used in the above SIX processes. If power is used in any of the above SIX processes, then 'the benefit of the exemption notification is not available regardless of who used the power in that process or on whose account..

2. The assessee could either undertake the entire manufacture themselves: or outsource any of the processes to a job worker (who completes the process on account of the assessee) or they could purchase goods from a vendor (who completes the process on his own account and sells to the assessee) and then complete the remaining processes. It is immaterial as far as the notification is concerned which method is adopted. What is crucial 'is whether the power has been used in any of these processes.

3. In the case of Standard Fireworks dealing with a notification similar to the present notification, Hon'ble Apex Court held that benefit of the notification is not available even if the processes were undertaken outside of the factory of the assessee: with the aid of power. In that: case, the power was used by 'the Job workers in one of the processes. In the present case, 'the power is used by the vendor in one of the processes. What is relevant for the exemption notification is whether power was used in one of the six processes and NOT who used it. The ratio of the judgment of the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Standard Fireworks Industries vs CCE [1987 (28) ELT 56 (SC)] (supra) squarely applies to the Present case inasmuch as in "O both cases, the notification only specified the processes in which: the power should not be used 'without specifying who should not be using the power in that processes and it is. held that even if the power is not used in the factory of the manufacturer but it is used 'outside, the benefit of the exemption notification: is not available.

4. To say that the exemption is. not available only if the power was not used by the assessee, one needs to insert the words 'by the manufacturer or his job workers' in the notification and read it as Matches, in or in relation to the manufacture of which none of the following processes is ordinarily carried on with the aid of power by the assessee'.

5. To hold that the exemption is not available only if the power was not used by the assessee or his job workers, one needs to insert the words 'by the manufacturer or his job workers' in the notification and read it as Matches, in or in relation to the manufacture of which none of the following processes is ordinarily carried on with the aid of power by the assessee or his job workers'. 'Such enlargement of the scope of the notification is beyond the powers of this Tribunal.

6. The Constitution of India divides the powers between Lefislature, Executivebl and Judiciary with legislation being solely domain of the Parliament. Subordinate legislation such as this notification is made by the Government which is answerable to the Parliament. Further each and every | notification is placed before the Parliament whose Committee on Subordinate Legislation scrutinises the notification and directs any changes which it feels is necessary. It is for this reason, the power of making subordinate legislation is delegated to the Government which is answerable to the Parliament and not to other arms of the State.

7. qt is therefore, not open for the Tribunal to: enlarge the scope of the notification by reading into it the additional words that do not exist. Even if it is viewed that the exemption notification can also be interpreted to mean that the power should not be used by the assessee or his job workers only, it cannot be denied that a plain reading of the exemption notification forbids the use of power in processes, without reference to who undertakes the processes.

8. Over years, two different approaches were taken while interpreting the exemption notifications - strict and liberal or purposive construction. Beneficial exemption notifications have, at times, been interpreted so as to serve the purpose - of the exemption notification without being unduly restricted by the words of the notification. Both approaches to interpret the notifications were taken even by the Supreme Court and therefore the issue - a was referred to the five member Constitutional bench of the Hon'ble Supreme Court which has finally settled the law in the case of Dilip Kumar & Co. [2018 (361) ELT 0577 (SC)] in the following words: [52]. To sum up, we answer the reference holding as under - (1) Exemption notification should be interpreted strictly; the burden of proving applicability would be on the assessee. (2) When there is ambiguity in exemption notification which is subject to strict interpretation, the benefit of such ambiguity cannot be claimed by the subject/assessee and it must be interpreted in favour of the revenue. (3) The ratio in Sun Export case (supra) is not correct and all the decisions which took similar view as in Sun Export case (supra) stands overruled.

The ratio of the judgments of Standard Fireworks Industries vs CCE [1987 (28) ELT 56 (SC)] and Dilip Kumar & Co. [2018 (361) ELT 0577 (SC)] are binding on all courts and tribunals leaving me with no option but to conclude that the appellant assessee are not entitled to the benefit of the exemption notification.

9. It has also been canvassed on behalf of the appellants that what they are doing is mere packing of the splints into boxes and no new commodity has come into existence and there is no Chapter note in the Central Excise Tariff to hold that packing of matches amounts to manufacture. It has also been argued that the Tariff heading indicates the standard unit as kg and: not as boxes and hence there is no intention to tax matches packed in boxes. Even a child knows that the match box is merely a packing material but it has half the chemicals required to make fire through friction. It does not take too much effort to understand that the splints Hameooie Ge and the matches in boxes are different commodities as known to the market. The standard unit indicated in the tariff does not determine whether duty is payable or not. Match boxes are countable but they can also be weighed. Simply because they can be easily counted and the standard unit indicated in the tariff is kg, it does not mean that no excise duty is payable on matches in boxes. Several other goods in the same chapter which are equally countable such as safety fuses, detonators, signalling flares, etc., all have the standard unit as kg. This does not make them not dutiable.

10. It has also been argued on behalf of the appellants that with respect to an exemption notification no. 49/86-CE for footwear, CBEC issued circular NO. 1/93-CX dated 2-12-1993 indicating that the particular exemption notification is available even in cases where the suppliers of the inputs used power. Therefore, the same logic should apply to them. I find that in the first place, CBEC's circular is binding on the department but not on the Tribunal. Secondly, the circular dealt with a different exemption notification and it cannot be treated as a binding ratio and extended to other exemption notifications. Thirdly, the circular was issued at a time when the issue of how to interpret an exemption notification was not settled by the Constitutional bench of the Supreme Court in the case of Dilip Kumar (supra). Lastly, any clarification by the Board in the form of a Circular cannot prevail over the ruling of the Hon'ble Apex Court that the exemption notifications must be interpreted strictly with benefit of any doubt going against the assessee and in favour of the Revenue. Thus, I find that the circular relied upon does not carry the case of the appellants any further.
41. In view of the above, I find that the benefit of the exemption notification no. 4/2006-CE is not available to the assesses and the demands confirmed by the impugned orders need to be upheld and the en are liable to rejected.

24. Registry is directed to place the matter before the Hon'ble President to refer the matter to a third member to decide the following question: “Whether the appellants are eligible for the exemption notification no. 4/2006-CE dated 1.3.2006 as held by Member (Judicial) or they are not eligible for the exemption as held by Member (Technical).” (Order pronounced in open court on )

~ The above: matter has come up for hearing as per the order of reference by the Hon'ble President vide letter in F.No. -- 01(06)/DOO/CESAT/Reg./2017 dated 18.09.2019.

2:1 When the matter was taken up for hearing on _ 16.10.2019, Shri. Ss. Venkatachalal, Ld. Advocate appearing for the appellants, submitted a Memo for withdrawal of Excise Appeal No. 40692 of 2013 in respect of M/s. Jeyakannan Matches Pvt. Ltd., Sivakasi, stating that the appellant is exploring the possibility of availing the benefit -of. the Sabka Vishwas (Legacy Dispute 7 Resolution). Scheme, 2019 and thus requested that the appeal may be permitted to be withdrawn.

2.2. The scope and cause of reference to the Third Member is limited to the difference of opinion between the Members and therefore, as a Third Member, I cannot go beyond: the reference to entertain the - above. application. However, I deem it proper to place the above application before the regular Bench for any order on the _ application: --

3.1. The facts have been meticulously reflected in the Interim Order and therefore, the same are not repeated oe here. The only issue to be decided by me is whether the

- appellants. are. eligible for. the benefit of exemption of Notification No. 04/2006-C.E. dated 01.03.2006. _ 3.2 The Member (Judicial) has held that the appellants are eligible for the benefit of the Notification (supra ) and : has: set aside the “demand whereas, the Member (Technical) has held that the benefit of the exemption Notification (supra) is not available to the assessees and

- has accordingly confirmed the demand. The only question

- formulated by the Members on the Difference of Opinion is “whether the appellants are eligible for the exemption . Notification No. 04/2006-C.E, dated 01.03.2006 as held &.

ce by Member (Judicial) or they are not eligible for the -- oo exemption as held by Member (Technical).” 4.4 During the hearing on 16.10.2019, Shri. S. Renganathan, Shri. K. Ramachandran and Shri. S. ~ Venkatachalal, Ld. Advocates, appeared for the. na appellants. and inter alia contended that in Chapter Note 3

- of Chapter 36, there is no mention as regards packing of match sticks amounting to manufacture; that the _ appellants are purchasing - duty paid match splints and ; that if dipped splints | are matches, then there was no

- further : manufacture taking place in the appellants’

- factory, etc.

4. 2 - They further relied on their arguments recorded in the Interim Order.

5.1 Per - contra. -- Shri. Ss. Govindarajan, Ld. Departmental Representative, appeared for the Revenue:

-He- would submit that the Notification No.. 04/2006 (supra) is issued | In order to encourage the industries | which. are manufacturing goods without the aid of power. and the same is available only if all the processes mentioned therein are carried out without the aid of power.

5.2 He also drew support from the findings of the lower authorities to inter alia contend that the dipped match splints by itself cannot be considered as matches; that the same are manufactured with the aid of power, are marketable and excisable and so are a lot of intermediate products which are sold in the market; that, the match splints manufactured with the aid of power are raw materials for the appellants and therefore, the appellants have not satisfied the conditions for claiming the benefit of the exemption Notification (supra).

5:3 He concluded that the ratio in the case of M/s. -- Standard Fireworks Industries Vs: Collector of Central Excise, Madurai reported in 1987 (28) E.L.T..I : a* 56 (S.C.) squarely applies and therefore, the ratio of the Tribunal: or of other High Courts | need not be considered in the light of a clear Supreme Court Judgement.

6. I have considered the rival contentions and os perused the documents placed on record.

7 Ld. Advocate submitted that there is no issue with regard to the interpretation 'of the exemption Notification © - since the conditions | are very clear and that the appellants/manufacturers have 'satisfied the conditions : inasmuch as, they have not used 'the power in so far as. their manufacturing activities are concerned. Ld. DR also contends that there is no issue with regard to the Notification since, according to him, the manufacturing activity is 'required to be looked into as a whole. comprising of all the processes and hence, in one of the processes the power having been admittedly used, that is 7 _ sufficient to dislodge claim of appellants that they are 'entitled to the benefit. He vehemently contended that the benefit is qua processes and not qua manufacture and not even: qua person since the very purpose of impugned Notification is to encourage manufacturing sector wherein power is not at all used.

8.1 I consider. it expedient to. first set out some principles of interpretation that will guide me 'in this exercise. In Union of India VS. Elphinstone Spinn & ; Weaving Co. Lid. " reported in AIR 2001 SC 724, the Hon'ble 'Apex. 'Court formulated what it termed the cardinal principle of construction in the following words: "a statute is a command of the Legislature. The interpreter must, therefore, in interpreting and construing the statute, identify the intention of the Legislature; that. in identifying the intention of the Legislature by the "process of constructing, the Court will have to adopt both literal and purposive approaches. This would mean that - the true or legal meaning of an enactment is derived by construing / the . meanings of the words. used in the Be .

0% enactment in the | fight of any discernible purpose or Yo object which comprehends the mischief of its remedy | to which: the enactment is directed. "

8.2 In State of Uttar Pradesh Vs. Vijay Anand reported in AIR 63.SC 946, the Hon'ble Apex Court inter alia n __ observed that "when the language is plain and | unambiguous | and admits of only one meaning, no ~ question of construction of a statute arises, for the Act speaks | for itself....".

8. 3 Thus, when the meaning is s plain and unambiguous, "no process of construing. or interpreting a statute can .: proceed beyond the literal or textual interpretation except if absurdity results asa consequence. In my considered opinion, the 'same. principles apply to _ construing 'notifications too.

8.4 Although. courts. have historically taken the | assistance of common law principles | in interpreting : statutory law, there is very little. common-about the tax - : laws. There are a sul generis set of principles that apply 7 to the 'interpretation of taxing statutes. ".....It is the well " settled proposition that the subject -is not to be taxed without clear words for that purpose; and every Act of Parliament must. be. read according. to the natural construction of its words......, held the Hon'ble, Apex Court _in Member Secretary, AP; State Board for Prevention and -- Control of Water Pollution Vs. Andhra Pradesh Rayons Ltd. AIR 1989 SC 611. se .

8, 5 In Commissioner of Central Excise, Pondicherry Vs. 7 ACER 'India Ltd. Reported | in (2004).8 SCC 173 and
- Commissioner of Central Excise. Vs. Kisan Sahkari Chinni 7 Milis Ltd. Reported in (2001) 6 SCC.697, the Hon'ble Apex Court inter alia observed that " win a taxing. Act, one has to look merely at what. is clearly said. There is no room "for any intendment. There 'is no equity about a tax. There is no presumption.as to tax. Nothing is to be read

- in, nothing is to be implied. One can only look fairly at the a e

- language used.... . It is also an equally well- settled rule . that exemption notifications are to be construed strictly to ~ the extent that their applicability is being examined. 9.1 Now, I may proceed' to apply these principles in . figuring out if the appellants qualify for exemption "notification no. 4/2006-CE dated Ol. 03.2006 which is 'presently | under dispute and since appropriate extracts of 'the notification. have already been reproduced by both the Ld. Members, I need not do so once again.

"912. In view of broader principles laid down by any ~. number of judgments including those quoted in the above paragraphs, it is imperative that all the words used in the _ notification/statute are to taken into consideration and all 'the words should 'be given the mest. natural/possible meaning. Statutory: pronouncements must be read in a . manner that they are given effect to in the most complete "manner, .

9.3. Firstly, the notification reads as:“ Matches, in or in 'relation to the manufacture of which ....". It is important that it is' either in the manufacture or in relation. to manufacture. of Matches with ne caveat to either of the _ cases. 4 9.4 Secondly, the use of the word "ordinarily" in Sl. No... 72 in the exemption notification no. 4/2006-CE is thus of particular significance and cannot be ignored. it has the . effect of further widening the scope of the restrictions. ~ Thé restriction that the processes must not be carried out. with the. aid. of power applies not just to the specific goods under consideration but the same goods whenever | manufactured. In, other words, if the specified processes in relation' to such goods are, in the ordinary. course of commerce, carried out with the aid of power, the | "restrictions would apply and the exemption would not be. available. This conclusion may be reached de hors the: facts of the specific cases at hand. Thus, in order to: succeed in its claim for exemption, the burden on the é assessei is heavy ~ it must prove that the specified or

- listed processes are not ordinarily carried out with the aid of power and not merely that power was not used in its specific case. This burden has not been discharged. 9.5 I may also » point out that in the case of Omega 7 Packing relied on by. the Member(Judici, this 'tribunal has clearly noted that the condition in the notification considered there (Notification No, 71/83-CE) was that "such containers must not be carried out with the aid of power." = Such a finding of the tribunal would indicate that the word "ordinarily" used in the present notification constitutes a 'material departure from: the law as it then stood. 9.6 I may point € out in passing that, presumably, the Intention of the subordinate legislation. was to prevent 'businessmen from. artificially splitt

- manufacturing processes across multiple. assessees to enable a larger than deserving claim for exemption.

10. | Further, Member(Judicial) rightly points out that ~ the notification does 'not require that the processes listed |

- therein are required to be carried out by a single/same

-manufacturer. However, for the reasons I have given above, the converse too is not true. That is, the absence of such a requirement does not. automatically entitle the assessees to the exemption. -

11. The very heading of the Notification, i.e., GENERAL. EXEMPTION NO. AT reads thus: ‘Exemption and: effective ‘ rate of duty for SPECIFIED GOODS of chapters 25 to 49’ : and it applies. to exempt excisable goods. of the | description specified in column (3) of the table. So, the conditions upon which the exemption depends is relatable snot to the assessees, not the manufacture and not even ~ the manufacturer, but only to the goods specified.

12. It is the case of the - appellants that they have procured dipped match splints from other manufacturers . who have removed such goods on payment of duty. I find that this would not make any difference: since the entitlement to exemption is to be determined separately - in each, assessee's case. The fact that duty has been paid on some intermediate/ semi-finished goods not themselves entitled to exemption is in no manner -- relevant to whether 'exemption is to be granted at a subsequent stage to the finished goods. In any event, the - cascading effect is effectively mitigated by CENVAT credit. ' The exemption notification must be applied only to the goods it seeks to cover.

13... There are also references to many Circulars/Notifications by. Member(Judicial), but as is well known, each Notification/ Circular is issued in particular circumstances, in- respect of particular: areas or. sectors, | with' particular intentions. f am of the view that we must” be circumspect. ins determining their analogous applicability to other circumstances. One size. does not fit: all. There can b

14. - The notification under consideration refers to many activities i.e, processes, right from- procurement of

- inputs/raw materials, that culminate. in or in relation to manufacture of Matches and. hence, there is no scope to ignore/omit any. _ process/es to claim the benefit. As” regards raw. materials, 'I need not burden myself with that: -. | issue | as. the Moreover, it is none of the processes 'that is ordinarily "carried on with the aid of power AND NOT the o manufacture per se, at is carried on with or without the aid of power. That 'is, the center of gravity is the 'Processes' and not' manufacture'.

It is. not disputed that the ‘cutting of the steel wires or the treatment of paper is a process for the manufacture of goods in question. It is not necessary to refer to any authority. inasmuch as on the analysis , indicated above the claim for refund appears to have a | been rightly rejected... -

HON’BLE MR. P. DINESHA, MEMBER (JUDICIAL)

DATE OF HEARING:
24.01.2020
DATE OF DECISION:
05.02.2020

This appeal is filed by the assessee against the denial of refund of Countervailing Duty (CVD) and Special Additional Duty (SAD) of Rs. 22,24,104/-.

2. Brief facts leading to the present controversy are, the assessee made a request for refund of the Customs Duty paid, due to unfulfilled export obligation against Advance Authorization, under Section 142 (3) of the C.G.S.T. Act, 2017. The assessee-appellant could not fulfill its export obligation in some cases, as per annexure to its request for refund dated 16.05.2019, owing to lack of export orders, which prompted the appellant to pay off the Customs Duties on account of short export and thereby close the export obligation under the above Advance Licences. It is also an admitted fact that the above Customs Duty was paid along with appropriate interest. It is the case of the appellant that since the inputs imported by it were used in the manufacture of final products on which Central Excise Duty/G.S.T., as the case may be, was paid/to be paid, they were eligible for refund of CVD and SAD paid. Further, post the introduction of G.S.T., the appellant having left with no option to claim the above credit under the CENVAT Credit Rules with also no scope to report the same under Transitional Credit while migrating to G.S.T., the refund incash was claimed under Section 142 (3) ibid.

3. The Adjudicating Authority vide communication dated 06.06.2019 after considering the contentions of the appellant insofar as refund was concerned, intimated that the refund claim of the assessee of Customs Duty (i.e., CVD and SAD) which were legitimately payable, having been paid for non-fulfilment of the conditions of import under Advance Licence, was not covered under Section 142 ibid and consequently, the refund was rejected. Aggrieved, the assessee preferred an appeal before the Commissioner of G.S.T. and Central Excise (Appeals-I), Chennai, who vide impugned Order-in-Appeal No. 326/2019 (CTA-I) dated 17.10.2019 upheld the rejection. Consequently, the present appeal is filed before this forum.

4. When the matter was taken up for hearing, Shri. V. Ravindran, Ld. Advocate, appeared for the assessee-appellant and Ms. Sridevi Taritla, Ld. Joint Commissioner (Authorized Representative), appeared for the Revenue-respondent.

5. Ld. Advocate for the appellant reiterated the grounds and contentions urged before the lower authorities. He also submitted that when the import was made and the applicable duty was paid, the same would tantamount to a normal import and hence, the CENVAT Credit would remain available. He also relied on the following decisions of various Benches of the Tribunal:

(i) T2S Software Solutions Pvt. Ltd. v. Commr. of G.S.T. & Central Excise [2019 (7) T.M.I. 1299 – CESTAT Chennai];
(ii) Rawatwasi Ispat Udyog Pvt. Ltd. v. C.C.E., Panchkula [2019 (7) T.M.I. 1242 – CESTAT Chandigarh];
(iii) JMT Consultant Detailing Pvt. Ltd. v. Commr. of Central Tax, Bengaluru East [2019 (12) T.M.I. 648 – CESTAT Bangalore];
(iv) German Remedies Ltd. v. C.C.E., Goa [2004 (177) E.L.T. 539 (Tri.– Del.)]

Per contra, Ld. Authorized Representative for the Revenue supported the findings of the lower authorities. Ld. Authorized Representative also pointed out that by Advance Authorization, the appellant was permitted to import without payment of duty which the assessee has done, but the same was subject to the condition of fulfilling export obligation of the final product; that the appellant having not fulfilled the said obligation, the same has rightly suffered Customs Duty because of the duty free import.

With regard to the cases relied on by the assessee, she would submit that the decisions are on refund per se under Rule 5 of the CENVAT Credit Rules, 2004 and hence, the same ratio is not applicable to a refund of duty arising on account of non-fulfilment of export obligation under Advance Authorization.

7. In rejoinder, Ld. Advocate would submit that the Advance Licence was always renewed and there is no finding by the lower authorities as regards the lapse of the period prescribed for export. Moreover, he would submit, that the appellant had voluntarily paid the Customs Duty because the appellant did not get export order and the voluntariness has never been questioned by the lower authorities.

Heard both sides. The only issue to be decided is, “whether the appellant has made out a case for refund under Section 142 (3) ibid, of the Customs Duty paid in view of non-fulfilment of its export obligations?”

None of the decisions relied on by the assessee are dealing with the refund arising on account of failure to comply with export obligation vis-à-vis Advance Authorization and therefore, as pointed out by the Ld. Authorized Representative for the Revenue, the same are not applicable to the facts of this case.
Advance Authorization is issued in terms of paragraph 4.03 of the Foreign Trade Policy [FTP (2015–20)] and the relevant Notification is Notification No. 18/2015-Cus. dated 1st April, 2015. The said Notification exempts materials imported into India against a valid Advance Authorization issued by the Regional Authority in terms of paragraph 4.03 of the FTP subject to the conditions laid down thereunder. One of the conditions, as per clause (iv), is that it requires execution of a bond in case of non-compliance with the conditions specified in that Notification. Further, paragraph 2.35 of the FTP also requires execution of Legal Undertaking (LUT)/Bank Guarantee (BG) : (a) Wherever any duty free import is allowed or where otherwise specifically stated, importer shall execute, Legal Undertaking (LUT)/Bank Guarantee (BG)/Bond with the Customs Authority, as prescribed, before clearance of goods.

Further, there is no dispute that the above is guided by the Handbook of Procedure (‘HBP’ for short) and paragraph 4.50 of the HBP prescribes the payment of Customs Duty and interest in case of bona fide default in export obligation (EO), as under:

“(a) Customs duty with interest as notified by DoR to be recovered from Authorisation holder on account of regularisation or enforcement of BG / LUT, shall be deposited by Authorisation holder in relevant Head of Account of Customs Revenue i.e., “Major Head 0037 - Customs and minor head 001-Import Duties” in prescribed T.R. Challan within 30 days of demand raised by Regional / Customs Authority and documentary evidence shall be produced to this effect to Regional Authority / Customs Authority immediately. Exporter can also make suo motu payment of customs duty and interest based on self/own calculation as per procedure laid down by DoR.”

10. Thus, the availability of CENVAT paid on inputs despite failure to meet with the export obligation may nothold good here since, firstly, it was a conditional import and secondly, such import was to be exclusively used as per FTP. Moreover, such imported inputs cannot be used anywhere else but for export and hence, claiming input credit upon failure would defeat the very purpose/mandate of the Advance Licence. Hence, claim as to the benefit of CENVAT just as a normal import which is suffering duty is also unavailable for the very same reasons, also since the rules/procedures/conditions governing normal import compared to the one under Advance Authorization may vary because of the nature of import.

11. The import which would have normally suffered duty having escaped due to the Advance Licence, but such import being a conditional one which ultimately stood unsatisfied, naturally loses the privileges and the only way is to tax the import. The governing Notification No. 18/2015 (supra), paragraph 2.35 of the FTP which requires execution of bond, etc., in case of non-fulfilment of export obligation and paragraph 4.50 of the HBP read together would mean that the legislature has visualized the case of non-fulfilment of export obligation, which drives an assessee to paragraph 4.50 of the HBP whereby the payment of duty has been prescribed in case of bona fide default in export obligation, which also takes care of voluntary payment of duty with interest as well.

Admittedly, the inputs imported have gone into the manufacture of goods meant for export, but the export did not take place. At best, the appellant could have availed the CENVAT Credit, but that would not ipso facto give them any right to claim refund of such credit in cash with the onset of G.S.T. because CENVAT is an option available to an assessee to be exercised and the same cannot be enforced by the CESTAT at this stage.

12. There is no question of refund and therefore, I do not see any impediment in the impugned order.

13. Accordingly, the appeal is dismissed.

The Appellant herein are engaged in manufacture of vegetable oil and by products thereof. The amount of Rs. 18,90,323/- (Rs. 4,72,600/- and Rs. 14,17,723/-) was deposited by the Appellant on 29.12.2003 and 02.03.2012. The said amount was initially proposed to be recovered vide show cause notice dated 31.05.1994 and the proposal thereof was confirmed in April, 1998. The Commissioner (Appeals) also ordered pre-deposit of 100% duty. However, penalty in full was waived off. It is only vide order dated 06.08.2012 in an SLP of the Appellant that Hon'ble Supreme court directed for restoration of the previous appeal, directing the Commissioner (Appeals) to dispose of the same on merits without taking any coercive steps during the pendency thereof. In furtherance of the said order Commissioner (Appeals) allowed the appeal of the Appellant vide order dated 08.02.2016 holding the Appellant to be entitled for the refund of the aforesaid entire amount.

2. In furtherance thereof the said amount got refunded on 19.04.2006. It is thereafter that the Appellant demanded interest, however, the impugned show cause notice bearing No. 4118 dated 28.01.2017 was served upon the Appellant proposing the rejection of the claim of interest on the said amount that to from the date of deposit. The said proposal was confirmed initially vide Order-in original No. 031 dated 28.08.2017 the appeal thereof was dismissed vide Order No. 604 dated 13.02.2018 which has been assailed before this Tribunal.

3. I have heard Mr. Rajesh Rawal, Advocate.

It is submitted on behalf of the Appellant that the appellant was forced to make a deposit of Rs. Rs. 4,72,600/- in 2003 and 14,17,723/- in 2012, the same has finally been refunded in 2016 but the fact remains is that the amount was lying detained with the department unlawfully over these years which entitles the Appellant for the interest on the said refunded amount that too from the date of the payment thereof. Learned Counsel has relied upon (i) 2004 (174) E.L.T. 422 (All.) Hello Minerals Water (P) Ltd. Vs. Union of India (ii) 2009 (243) E.L.T. 560 (Tri.-Bang.) Omjai Bhavani Silk Mills (P) Ltd. Vs. C.C.E., Cus. & S.T., Hyderabad (iii) 1997 (95) E.L.T. 3 (S.C) Kuil Fireworks Industries Vs. Collector of Central Excise (iv) 2009(240)

Vs. COMMR. Of CUS, Bangalore to justify the submissions.

While rebutting these arguments, it is mentioned by learned Department Representative that the amount was deposited in furtherance of the due adjudication orders not only of the adjudicating authorities of the department but also by the High Courts and even by the Hon’ble Supreme court. It is submitted that interim order of Commissioner, Bhopal directing pre-deposit of 100% duty was challenged by the Appellant before High Court, Jabalpur where 1/4th amount of duty was directed to be pre-deposited within three weeks time vide Order dated 07.05.1999, the SLP thereof was also dismissed vide Order dated 15.07.1999. Before the pendency of said SLP, since Commissioner (Appeals) had already dismissed the appeal Hon’ble Apex Court ordered the restoration thereof. The order of Commissioner (Appeals) was challenged before CEGAT/present CESTAT. However, the appeal was dismissed vide Order dated 07.02.1999. The writ petition against the said order as was filed before High court, M.P, Jabalpur bench was also dismissed. LPA thereof was also dismissed, the SLP thereof was also rejected by Hon’ble Supreme Court on 22.07.2002. It is thereafter that the 1/4th amount of duty that is Rs. 4,72,600/- was deposited on 29.12.2003. In view of the submissions, it is impressed upon by learned Department Representative that the arguments of the Appellant for amount to have been detained by the department illegally and unlawfully are absolutely false. It is submitted that in furtherance of subsequent order of Hon’ble Supreme court directing restoration and disposal of appeal on merits that Commissioner (Appeals) ordered for refund of amount on 08.02.2016 which was finally refunded/disbursed on 29.04.2016 i.e within a period of three months. Hence, no question of any entitlement of the Appellant for interest at all arises, appeal is prayed to be dismissed.

After hearing both the Parties, it is observed that the narrow compass of the present adjudication is:

Whether Appellant is entitled for interest on the amount refunded w.e.f the date of respective payments in accordance of Section 35 FF of the Central Excise Act, 1944.

For the purpose the section is relevant to be quoted 35FF. Where an amount deposited by the appellant in pursuance of an order passed by the Commissioner (Appeals) or the Appellate Tribunal (hereinafter referred to as the appellate authority), under the first proviso to section 35F, is required to be refunded consequent upon the order of the appellate authority and such amount is not refunded within three months from the date of communication of such order to the adjudicating authority, unless the operation of the order of the appellate authority is stayed by a superior court or tribunal, there shall be paid to the appellant interest at the rate specified in section 11BB after the expiry of three months from the date of communication of the order of the appellate authority, till the date of refund of such amount.

It is observed that this provision is the amended provision as applicable w.e.f 06.08.2014, the proviso makes it abundantly clear that this will be applicable only for such deposits as are made after coming into existence of this amendment. Apparently and admitted, the amounts in this case were paid in the year 2003 and 2012. The both payments being prior the aforesaid amendment in Section 35FF, this provision is not applicable. Otherwise also it is an admitted fact that order of refund was announced on 08.02.2016, the amount was disbursed on 29.04.2016 once the payment is made within three months of the refund, no question of any interest to be paid along therewith at all arises.

The case law as relied upon by the Appellant is not applicable to the facts and circumstances of the present case, as in the present case there is no illegal detainment of the impugned amount by the department as is apparent from the arguments put forth by the Department Representative that the amount in question was deposited only after Hon'ble Supreme Court had confirmed the deposit of 1/4th amount of duty as was proposed to be recovered vide show cause of the year 1994. The said order was initially passed in December, 2003 and the residual payment of Rs. 14,17,723/- on 02.03.2012 was also made in furtherance of the directions of the Hon'ble Supreme Court. The amount deposited was, therefore, in furtherance of the direction of the Apex Court hence cannot be called as illegally detained amount. Further no doubt Hon'ble Supreme Court in August, 2012 directed the department to dispose of the matter on merits and that the order was passed on 08.02.2016 but there is no apparent delay that too intentional or malafide or even negligent on part of the department as is alleged by the Appellant.

It is observed from the order of Hon'ble Supreme Court dated 06.08.2012 that there are no findings about the entitlement, if any, of the Appellant except ordering restoration of the appeal and disposal thereof on merits. Keeping in view the same even for the period since August, 2012 till February, 2016, the Appellant is held not entitled for the interest as prayed.

As a result of these findings, I do not find any merit in the contention of the appellant. Appeal is accordingly stands dismissed.

ORDER

1. With the present order three appeals as mentioned above are disposed off, the order-in-appeal/the order-under-challenge being common to three of these appeals and also the issue involved is same.

2. Facts in brief relevant for the purpose are:
The appellant herein is engaged in manufacture of marble slabs and tiles. The Appellant on 29.08.2008 & 29.06.2009 filed three refund claims in respect of service tax paid on certain services received and used for export of goods, during the period from April 2008 to June 2008 in terms of Notification No. 41/2007-ST, dated 06.10.2007, relating to refund of service tax paid on GTA services, Port services and technical testing and analysis services. Three of the said claims have been rejected by the Deputy Commissioner, Central Excise, Udaipur, vide Order-in-Original No. 113 dated 02.03.2009 and Order-in-Original No. 402-402 dated 25.09.2009. Aggrieved by the order of the Deputy Commissioner, the Appellant filed an appeal against rejection of their refund claim. The Commissioner (Appeals-II), Jaipur vide Order-in-Appeal No. 282 dated 12.08.2010 and Order-in-Appeal No. 409 dated 27.10.2010, dismissed the appeal of the appellant. Being still aggrieved, the Appellant filed an appeal before this Tribunal challenging the order of the Commissioner (Appeals-II).

2.1. Tribunal vide Final Order No. 50115-50117/2015 (DB) dated 09.01.2015, affirmed the eligibility of the appellant to refund claim and remanded the matter to the lower authorities for re-examination.

In compliance thereof a detailed submission before the Assistant Commissioner, Central Tax, Udaipur, was filed by the appellant on 11.02.2015. Vide Order-in-Original No. 02/15-ST(Ref) dated 07.05.2015 and Order-in-Original No. 03/15-ST(Ref) dated 07.05.2015 the refund in respect of the three of the refund claims was sanctioned. However, interest from the date of filing of refund application was not sanctioned. Aggrieved there from the Appellant filed an appeal before Commissioner (Appeals), Jodhpur who vide Order-in-Appeal No. 173(CRM)/ST/JDR/2017-18 dated 27.03.2018 and Order-in-Appeal No. 174(CRM)/ST/JDR/2017-18 dated 27.03.2018, since three months from the date of sanction of refund had expired, sanctioned interest from the date of receipt of the application for refund i.e. 29.06.2009 and 06.07.2009, and not 11.02.2015.

2.2. The Appellant, however, filed letter dated 18.04.2018 with the Department for interest @ 12.5% on the refund amount sanctioned to them. The Department issued three Show Cause Notices (SCN's) to the Appellant, pursuant to the letters submitted by them denying the interest amount to the extent of 12% rate and that the calculation of interest by the Appellant was alleged to be incorrect.

The Appellant filed a detailed reply contesting the allegations and also the proposal for denial of the interest calculated by the Appellant before the Assistant Commissioner, Udaipur. In appeals 50120, 50121 & 50122 of 2019 claim for the interest of Rs. 33,54,833/-, Rs. 17,27,601/- & Rs. 79,15,871/- respectively was filed by the appellant.

As against this, the Assistant Commissioner vide Orders-in-Original No. (i) 28 dated 06.07.2018, (ii) 29 dated 06.07.2018 (iii) 30 dated 06.07.2018 sanctioned the charge sequence of three amounts also Rs. 18,45,273/-, Rs. 8,29,314/- & Rs. 4,27,681/- respectively to the appellant as interest.

2.3 To assail the said order, the Appellant filed an appeal before Commissioner (Appeals), Jodhpur who vide Order-in-Appeal No. 1129-1131 dated 11.10.2018 (impugned order), observed the following:-

1. There is no provision for interest on interest

2. Notification No. 67/2003-CE(NT), dated 12.09.2003, prescribes 6% interest rate per annum for the purpose of Section 11BB of the Excise Act, therefore Appellant is not eligible to interest beyond the statutory 6% interest on delayed payment of refund claims. Being aggrieved of this order appellant is before this Tribunal.

3. I have heard Mr. Narender Singhvi, learned Advocate for the Appellant and Mr. K. Poddar, learned Authorised Representative for the Department. It is submitted on behalf of appellant that in furtherance of the order of CESTAT dated 9th January, 2015, the appellant became entitled for the interest w.e.f. the year 2008-09, but it could get sanctioned, only in the year 2018. The delay of more than 10 years for getting the amount of interest refunded entitled the appellant to be compensated for the same. It is impressed upon that interest is compensatory in nature, therefore, interest on delayed sanction of interest is payable. Learned Counsel has relied upon the decision of Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Sandvik Asia Ltd. Vs. CIT reported as 2006 (196) ELT 257 (S.C.) and that the ratio has not be disapproved by Hon'ble larger bench in Gujrat Fluorochemicals Vs. CIT reported as 2008 (300) ITR 328 (Guj.).

3.1. It is submitted that the said decision has not been overruled rather has been relied upon by Supreme Court in a subsequent decision in the case of CIT Vs. Gujarat Fluoro Chemicals itself. Even the division bench of Gujrat, after the matter was referred back by the Supreme Court, is of the opinion that there is general principle for awarding compensation to the assessee for the delay in receiving interest properly due to it. It is alleged that the Appellate Authority below has ignored the said decisions rather the order-under-challenge suffer from gross misinterpretation of these decisions. Learned Counsel has also placed reliance upon the decision of State of Gujarat Vs. Unjha Pharmacy reported as 2016 (341) ELT 211 (Gujrat) wherein the decision of Gujrat Fluoro (Supra) has been followed holding that compensation for prolonged delay in sanction of interest has to be granted.

3.2. In alternative submission, it has been submitted that when principal amount is payable with interest, payment made by the department is to be first adjusted towards the interest and thereafter towards the principal amount. Thus, to the extent of short fall in refund of principal amount after first appropriating the sanctioned amount towards interest, the liability of Revenue to grant interest still stands. Learned Counsel has relied upon the decision in the case of V. Kala Bharathi and Ors. Vs. Oriental Ins. Co. Ltd. reported as AIR 2014 (S.C.) 1563, decision of Industrial Credit and Development Syndicate Vs. Smithaben H. Patel & Ors. reported as AIR 1999 (SC) 1036 have been relied upon by the appellant. Finally, impressing upon that on the delayed sanction of refund of interest on 6th July, 2018, the appellant is entitled to interest in the terms of Section 11BB for the period from 28.09.2009 to 06.07.2018. Therefore, the order challenge is prayed to be set aside and three of the appeals are prayed to be allowed.

4. While rebutting these arguments, learned D.R. has submitted that there is no provision in the relevant statute to grant interest on delayed payment of interest amount and that the Appellant vide the impugned appeal is actually asking for the interest on the delayed amount of interest which has been sanctioned in favour of the appellant with reference to the refund which could not be disbursed within three months of the sanction thereof. The claim herein is not for the compensations, as is impressed by the appellant. Hence, none of the case law, as relied upon is applicable to the present facts & circumstances.

4.1. It is submitted that rather the appellant is wrongly interpreting the decision of Sandvik Asia Ltd. (Supra). It has been pointed out that the Hon'ble Supreme Court has clarified therein that it is only that interest as provided for under the statute which may be claimed by an assessee from the Revenue and no other interest on such statutory interest. It was only the compensation which as per Hon'ble Apex Court may be granted to the assessee. There is no power vested with the Tribunal to grant compensation in view of delay, if any. It is impressed upon that there is no infirmity, as alleged, in the order-under-challenge. Appeal is, accordingly, prayed to be dismissed.

5. After hearing the rival contentions of the parties and perusing the appeal record as well as the case law relied upon. We observe and hold as follows:
Present is the case where the appellant had filed refund claims in respect of service tax paid on certain services received and used for the export of goods during the period from April, 2008 to June, 2008. The refund claims were accordingly filed on 29.08.2008 & 29.06.09. These refund claim Appeals were initially rejected, however, this Tribunal vide order dated 09.01.2015 while affirming the eligibility of the appellant to said refund claims, remanded the matter back to the lower authorities for re-examination. It is, thereafter that three of refund claims as were filed under Notification No. 41/2007, dated 06.10.2007 were got sanctioned by the original adjudication authority vide its order dated 07.05.2015. However, no interest was sanctioned from the date of filing of the refund application. The interest was finally sanctioned on delayed refund of service tax vide order dated 27.03.2018.

6. In furtherance whereof the demand of the sanctioned interest that too @ 12.5% on the refund amount was filed by the appellant. The interest was disbursed @ 6% vide order dated 06.07.2018. The appellant today has not contested the rate of interest. However, has claimed the interest on the said disbursed amount of interest on the ground that the same was disbursed after a reasonable delay. Hence, the only question is to be adjudicated is opined as: Whether the appellant is entitled to interest on the sanctioned amount of interest qua refund claims which could not be disbursed with three months thereof.

If any duty ordered to be refunded under sub-section (2) of section 11B to any applicant is not refunded within three months from the date of receipt of application under sub-section (1) of that section, there shall be paid to that applicant interest at such rate, not below ten per cent and not exceeding thirty per cent per annum as is for the time being fixed by the Board, on such duty from the date immediately after the expiry of three months from the date of receipt of such application till the date of refund of such duty:

Provided that where any duty ordered to be refunded under sub-section (2) of section 11B in respect of an application under sub-section (1) of that section made before the date on which the Finance Bill, 1995 receives the assent of the President, is not refunded within three months from such date, there shall be paid to the applicant interest under this section from the date immediately after three months from such date, till the date of refund of such duty.

Explanation : Where any order of refund is made by the Commissioner (Appeals), Appellate Tribunal or any court against an order of the Assistant Commissioner of Central Excise, under sub-section (2) of section 11B, the order passed by the Commissioner (Appeals), Appellate Tribunal or, as the case may be, by the court shall be deemed to be an order passed under the said sub-section (2) for the purposes of this section.

The provision makes it, abundantly, clear that the interest is allowed on delayed refunds. But the provision is silent about any interest on delayed payment of interest as claimed herein. Learned Counsel for appellant has relied upon Sandvik Asia Ltd. (Supra) case, impressing upon that the Hon'ble Apex Court has allowed such amount in case of apparent delay. But it is observed that there has been expressed clarification that such interest only can be claimed by an assessee which is provided under the statute and no other interest on such statutory interest can be granted.

The relevant para of the decision of a division bench of Hon'ble Supreme Court while considering a reference doubting correctness of their previous decision of Sandvik Asia case had held as:

"In our considered view, the aforesaid judgment has been misquoted and misinterpreted by the assessee and also by the Revenue. They are of the view that in Sandvik case (supra) this Court had directed the Revenue to pay interest on the statutory interest in case of delay in the payment. In other words, the interpretation placed is that the Revenue is obliged to pay an interest on interest in the event of its failure to refund the interest payable within the statutory period.

7. As we have already noticed, in Sandvik case (supra) this Court was considering the issue whether an assessee who is made to wait for refund of interest for decades be compensated for the great prejudice caused to it due to the delay in its payment after the lapse of statutory period. In the facts of that case, this Court had come to the conclusion that there was an inordinate delay on the part of the Revenue in refunding certain amount which included the statutory interest and therefore, directed the Revenue to pay compensation for the same not an interest on interest."

8. The aforesaid shows that in the latter decision of the Larger Bench, it was held that the decision in the case of Sandvik Asia Ltd. (supra) cannot be read to mean that Revenue is obliged to pay interest on interest in the event of its failure to refund the interest payable within the statutory period. The Apex Court further held that in the peculiar facts and circumstances of the case of Sandvik Asia Ltd. (supra) the Court had come to the conclusion that there was inordinate delay on the part of the Government to refund certain amount, which includes statutory interest and, therefore, directed the Revenue to pay compensation for the same, but not interest on interest.

9. In our view, as per the above referred observations of the Apex Court in the case of Gujarat Fluoro Chemicals (supra), obligation on the part of the Government to pay compensation for non-payment of the statutory interest by way of interest on interest was not approved. Further, in the above referred decision of the Larger Bench of the Apex Court at paragraph 7, it was observed that the interest provided under the statute, which may be claimed by the Assessee from the Revenue would be available and interest on such statutory interest would not be available.

10. From the conjoint reading of the decision of the Apex Court in the case of Sandvik Asia Ltd. (supra) and the latter decision of the Larger Bench in the case of Gujarat Fluoro Chemicals (supra) it appears that the liability to pay interest on interest by the Revenue is not approved and to that extent the contention of the Revenue can be maintained. But the further contention of the Revenue that no interest whatsoever would be payable if the refund of the amount of tax or refund of the amount deposited towards tax is to be made, no interest whatsoever would be available by way of compensatory measure.

11. In our view, the general principles for awarding compensation to the Assessee for the delay in receiving monies properly due to it is not disapproved by the Larger Bench of the Apex Court in the case of Gujarat Fluoro Chemicals (supra).

12. In view of the aforesaid observations and discussion, we find that the petitioner-Assessee would be entitled to compensation and the interest can be awarded by way of compensation, but would not be entitled to further compensation by way of interest on such interest, which is awarded as compensation.

13. Under these circumstances, we find that the Court can take a reasonable approach when the interest is to be awarded by way of compensatory measure, but with further caution that the interest on such interest cannot be ordered as per the above referred latter decision of the Apex Court in the case of Gujarat Fluoro Chemicals (supra)."

The Hon'ble Apex Court in this case while relying upon the decision of Commissioner of Income Tax Vs. Narender Doshil 254 ITR 606 (S.P.) has, however, held that the Revenue is liable to pay compensation on the amount of interest which it should have given to the assessee but has unjustifiably failed to do this. It becomes clear that inordinate delay for the grant of justified claim may entitle the person to get compensation against that delay the power of granting compensation is an inherent power. Present being a tribunal is not vested with any such inherent power. This Tribunal is a quasi-judicial authority which is absolutely bound by the statutory provisions. No power as that of awarding compensation is available with the Tribunal as not being provided by the statute. Otherwise also it has never been the prayer of the appellant. Appellant is praying for entitlement of interest on the amount of delayed interest. Same cannot be called as the claim of compensation.

7. No doubt the decision of Sandvik Asia Ltd. (Supra) has not been overruled by the Hon'ble Apex Court in the subsequent decision of Gujarat Fluoro Chemicals (Supra). But, perusal of that decision shows that the question to be adjudicated in that decision before the Supreme Court was whether an assessee is entitled to be compensated by the Income Tax department for the delay in paying interest on the refunded amount, admittedly, due to the assessee. The question was adjudicated in affirmative. Revenue was directed to pay compensation for the delay in making payment after the lapse of statutory period. In that case also Hon'ble Supreme Court has clarified that amount, specifically, is compensation and is not an interest on interest. The similar clarification has come in the subsequent case of Gujrat Flourochemicals (supra) also i.e. "we clarify that it is only that interest provided for under the statute which may be claimed by an assessee from the Revenue and no other interest on such statutory interest".

8. Thus, the first argument of the appellants that they are entitled for interest on interest being compensatory in nature is not sustainable. Since, it technically is interest on interest it cannot be called as compensation suo moto, nor has been so prayed by the appellant himself. In view of this discussion, we answer the afore framed question in favour of Revenue.

9. Now coming to the alternate argument of the Appellant that from the amount of refund sanctioned since there is an interest liability, the amount should be first adjusted towards the interest liability. It is observed that this rule of first appropriating the interest is applicable only to the debts or to the decreetal amount. The case law as relied upon by the appellant is also either qua debts or qua the decreetal amount. Hence, the same is not applicable to the present case of refund of indirect taxes. The said rule of interpretation is otherwise contained in order-21 Rule-1 of Civil Procedure Code relating to execution of decrees for recovery of money. Such a provision stands absolutely excluded from the Central Excise Act, 1944. Further, hon’ble Apex Court in the case law relied upon by the Appellant i.e. in the case of V. Kala Bharathi (supra) has rather clarified that, "after such appropriation the decree holder is entitled to interest only to the extent of unpaid principal amount. Hence, the interest be calculated on the unpaid principal amount." This clarification stands unsatisfied by the Appellant in the present case. Hence, the second line of argument of Appellant is also opined not applicable to the given set of facts & circumstances.

10. In view of entire above discussion, we do not find any infirmity in the orders under challenge. Accordingly, same are upheld hereby. Three of these appeals, consequently, stand dismissed.

The issue involved in both these appeals is whether in the event of upward price revision, post removal of goods, whether the appellant-assessee is liable to pay interest under Section 11AB of the Central Excise Act for the period when the Central Excise duty was due as per the original invoice, upto the date of payment of balance duty, under the supplementary invoice raised.

2. Heard the parties.

3. The similar issue was considered by the Hon’ble Supreme court in Steel Authority of India Ltd. Vs. Commissioner of Central Excise, Raipur – 2019 (5) TMI 657 (SC) wherein by judgment dated 08.05.2019, considering the similar issue of interest on differential duty, due to price escalation clause, the Larger Bench of the Supreme court framed the issue – Whether interest is payable on the differential excise duty with retrospective effect that became payable on the basis of escalation clause, under Section 11AB of the Central Excise Act, 1944. The Larger Bench of the Hon'ble Supreme Court considered the following questions for fresh decision:

“7. In our view, the following questions will fall to be decided by us:

1) Whether the decision in SKF case and also in International Auto lay down the correct law having regard to the decision of this Court in MRF case which was in fact rendered by a Bench of three Judges.

2) The effect of the judgment in J.K. Synthetics vs. State of Rajasthan as also the other judgements cited before us in regard to demand for interest under fiscal statutes.

3) Whether the determination of duty under Section 11A(2) is necessary to sustain the demand for interest under Section 11AB of the Act.

4) The impact of Rule 7 of the Central Excise Rules, which contemplates provisional assessment.

5) Whether payment of differential duty can be treated as a case of payment of duty under the head “short paid”.

6) The effect of decisions under the Income Tax Act relating to accrual of income and the impact of accrual of income under the Income Tax Act on the liability under Section 11AB of the Act having regard to the statutory scheme under the Act and the Rules”.

4. The Hon'ble Supreme Court answered the questions in para 63 of the judgment as follows:

“63. We are of the view that the reasoning of this Court in the order referring the cases to us (to this Bench) that for the purpose of Section 11AB, the expression “ought to have been paid” would mean the time when the price was agreed upon by the seller and the buyer does not square with our understanding of the clear words used in Section 11AB and as the rules proclaim otherwise and it provides for the duty to be paid for every removal of goods on or before the 6th day of the succeeding month. Interpreting the words in the manner contemplated by the Bench which referred the matter would result in doing violence to the provisions of the Act and the Rules which we have interpreted. We have already noted that when an assessee in similar circumstances resorts to provisional assessment upon a final determination of the value consequently, the duty and interest dates back to the month “for which” the duty is determined. Duty and interest is not paid with reference to the month in which final assessment is made. In fact, any other interpretation placed on Rule 8 would not only be opposed to the plain meaning of the words used but also defeat the clear object underlining the provisions. It may be true that the differential duty becomes crystallised only after the escalation is finalised under the escalation clause but it is not a case where escalation is to have only prospective operation. It is to have retrospective operation admittedly. This means the value of the goods which was only admittedly provisional at the time of clearing the goods is finally determined and it is on the said differential value that admittedly that differential duty is paid. We would think that while the principle that the value of the goods at the time of removal is to reign supreme, in a case where the price is provisional and subject to variation and when it is varied retrospectively it will be the price even at the time of removal. The fact that it is known, later cannot detract from the fact, that the later discovered price would not be value at the time of removal. Most significantly, section 11A and section 11AB as it stood at the relevant time did not provide read with the rules any other point of time when the amount of duty could be said to be payable and so equally the interest. We would concur with the views expression in SKF case (supra) and International Auto (supra).” In view of the law laid down by the Hon'ble Supreme Court, I hold that the appellant is liable to pay interest. Learned Counsel states that the amount of pre-deposit made by them, exceeds the amount of interest payable under Section 11AB of the Act. Accordingly, I direct the adjudicating authority to verify the calculation of interest as submitted by the appellant and to refund the excess amount paid by the appellant (if any), with interest as provided under Section 35FF of the Act.

5. Both the appeals stand dismissed.

ORDER

V. Padmanabhan, Member (T)

1. The present appeal is filed against the Order-in-Original No. 32-33/2016-17 dated 15.03.2017.

2. M/s. Guruharkishan Industries [GHI], situated at WZ-424, Gali No. 19, Sant Garh, Tilak Nagar, New Delhi, was visited by the Central Excise Officers on 21.11.2012 and the premises was searched, in connection with the intelligence that GHI was indulging in the evasion of Central Excise duty. During the search, Shri Mukhtiar Singh, Prop. was present. It was observed that GHI was engaged in the manufacture of hydraulic door closers under various brand names, such as, "Samrat", "Doorwell", "Alcon", "Turbo", "AAI-JEE". The factory premises of GHI, was built on a plot of area of 100 Sq Yds and its back side was interconnected in the ground floor with plot Nos. 423 & 422. The plot No. 422 measured about 85 sq yds and had a big hall and one small room. Back side of ground floor of plot No. 423 and entire back side of plot No. 424 consisting of three floors were interconnected with each other to make one full factory premises. The two floors on the front portion of plot No. 424 were used as office. 08 lathe Machines, 10 Drill Machines, 2 Grinder Machines, 3 pressing Machines, 01 patta, 01 Adda and one digital weighing machines were found on the ground floor. First floor comprising of one big hall and four rooms was used for storage of finished/semi-finished goods, and for enamelled painting and drilling of the goods. Eight drill machines, two grinders and one painting machine were installed on that floor. Second floor comprising of one big room was used as storage of finished/semi-finished goods for enameled painting of the goods.

3. During verification of physical stock of finished goods with various brand names, the stock valued at Rs. 6,51,100/- was seized. The officers also recovered certain incriminating documents along with the "Weston" Digital External Hard Disk for further investigation.

4. The statement of Shri Mukhtiar Singh was recorded on 17.12.2012 in which he admitted that he was manufacturing door closers under different brand names of different buyers and were selling their goods through their dealers. Such goods were being sold under sale bills and delivery challans. Shri Mukhtiar Singh failed to appear before the Departmental Officers on subsequent dates even though summons were issued for his appearance on several different dates.

5. The statement of Shri Amarpreet Singh, authorized signatory of GHI, appeared before the Departmental Officers on 16.04.2013 under the authorization of Shri Mukhtiar Singh and his statement was recorded. He admitted in his statement that GHI was engaged in the manufacture of door closers bearing different brand names out of which for "Doorwell" they had applied for allotting the brand name. No other brand names belonged to them.

6. Shri Mukhtiar Singh, prop. was summoned for being present to witness the opening of the recovered hard disk and to print-out the data contained therein, but he chose not to appear. Finally on 27.08.2013, in the presence of two independent witnesses and under panchnana proceedings, data from the hard disk was retrieved by a computer expert. Both the deleted data as well as readable data of the said hard disk was printed-out. Such data included the details as below:

a) Challans issued in the name of different buyers for the period 2010-11 to 2012-13. Such details retrieved were found to tally with the physical copies of the challans retrieved from the factory during search operation.

b) Soft copy of month-wise/date-wise details of goods delivered to different buyers. The details were found to tally with other seized documents.

c) Bills indicating sale of goods to M/s. Jai Durga Hardware and Jai Mata Hardware.

d) Soft copies of various retail invoices indicating that the data in the hard disk was in relation to appellant’s transactions.

e) One folder containing the details of payments received during May to June, 2013.

The data retrieved indicated the clearance of goods during the period 2008-09 to 2012-13 (upto 21.11.2012) to the tune of Rs. 15,60,36,729/-.

7. Investigation was also made with the various transporters, prominent among them was M/s. P.K. Transport Corporation, Punjabi Bagh, Delhi. Shri Manjit Singh, partner, in his statement, accepted transporting goods from the appellant to different buyers during 2010-11 and 2011-12. He further admitted that the charges were received in cash and that they did not mention their bill numbers in the GRs.

8. After conclusion of investigation, two separate SCNs were issued to the appellants. Vide the SCN dated 17.05.2013, the seized goods were proposed for confiscation and vide the SCN 16.12.2013, duty demand to the extent of Rs. 3,64,33,287/- was proposed.

9. During the course of adjudication proceedings before the lower authority, the appellant sought cross-examination of various witnesses including the Departmental Officers, who participated in the investigation; Shri Manjit Singh, partner, M/s. PK Transport Co.; panch witnesses in whose presence the hard disk was opened; as well as many of the buyers. The adjudicating authority permitted cross-examination of various buyers and during cross-examination some of them retracted their statements. Finally, the impugned order was passed in which:

a) The seized goods were ordered for confiscation and allowed for redemption on payment of redemption fine and penalty;

b) Duty demand was confirmed amounting to Rs. 3,64,33,287/- along with interest and equal penalty;

c) Penalties were also imposed on various connected persons including buyers.

10. All the appeals have been filed challenging the impugned order and are being disposed-of through this common order.

11. On behalf of all the appellants, we heard Shri Vineet Kumar, Advocate. Revenue was represented by Shri R.K. Mishra, DR.

12. Submissions made on behalf of the appellants:

i) It was submitted that the appellant, namely, M/s. Guruharkishan Industries (GHI) was only a distributor of M/s. Guru Harkishan Mechanical Works (GHMW). GHI is situated at WZ-424 whereas the premises at 422-423 belong to M/s. GHMW. It is submitted that the door closers were manufactured by GHMW and GHI has acted only as a distributor for the NCR territory since 2011. In this connection, he filed an affidavit by Shri Nirmal Singh prop. of GHMW.

II) He submitted a copy of electricity bill dated 18.12.2012 for the premises at WZ 422-423 and submitted that such connection is "Industrial Type" and from the number of units consumed, it can be seen that manufacture was done by GHMW. On the other hand, he submitted that the electricity connection for premises of 424 was a domestic connection indicating very few units consumed. He also submitted a copy of the Income Tax Return and Balance Sheet of Shri Nirmal Singh for the period ending 31st March, 2012 indicating a turnover of about Rs. 64 lakhs to support the above arguments.

iii) He argued that the data printed-out from the hard disk drive cannot be used in evidence against the appellant since the same was printed-out without the presence of any authorized person of the appellant

iv) The case is built entirely based on third party evidence in the form of register seized from the transporter as well as the statements of several buyers, many of whom have retracted their statements subsequently.

v) The Revenue has failed to prove procurement of huge quantity of raw materials and packing materials required for manufacture of the alleged quantity of clandestine clearances. It was argued that the activity carried-out in GHI was only repair and refurnishment of old door closers.

vi) The department also did not make available all the witnesses for cross-examination.

13. The ld. DR, opposed the arguments raised by the appellant.

(i) He justified the impugned order. He specifically drew our attention to the search proceedings held at the appellant's factory on 21.11.2012, during which the officers found that GHI was engaged in the manufacture of hydraulic door closers bearing various brands. It was further observed that the factory premises was built on a plot area of 100 Sq Yds and further that the backside was interconnected on ground floor of plot Nos. 423 & 422. The front portion of plot No. 424 was used as office. On the ground floor, various machineries including lathe, drilling machine, grind machine, pressing machine, digital weighing machine etc. were found installed, whereas the first and second floors were used for drilling of goods as well as various operations and storage of goods. He submitted that the entire arrangement was made to camouflage the activity of manufacture being carried-out.

(ii) The ld. DR further submitted that Shri Mukhtiar Singh, prop. of GHI had adopted an attitude of total non-cooperation in the investigation. He initially refused to sign the search warrant during search proceedings, did not respond to as many as 16 summons issued for joining the investigation; and in spite of specifically requesting his presence at the time of data retrievable, he did not honour the summons. Accordingly, the Departmental Officers had retrieved the data in the presence of two respectable witnesses with the help of computer expert. Hence, he submitted that the validity of the data retrieved from the seized hard disks cannot be questioned.

(iii) The data printed-out from the hard disk tallied with the physical copies of the challans resumed from the factory during search. Further, most of the buyers have also admitted receipt of the clandestinely cleared goods, by identifying the challans bearing their name. He submitted that this corroborates data retrieved from the hard disk drives.

(iv) Regarding the retraction of statements by some witnesses at the time of cross-examination before the adjudicating authority, he submitted that such retraction alone will not render the evidence of the original statements as null and void, as has been held by the Tribunal in the case of M/s. MM Industries vide Excise Appeal No. 51686-51687/2017.

(v) He submitted that the affidavit dated 08.05.2018 filed by Shri Nirmal Singh to the effect that GHI was their sole distributor is nothing but a belated attempt to save his brother Shri Mukhtiat Singh from the tax net. No credence should be given to such an affidavit. Finally, he submitted that the impugned order may be upheld.

14. In the re-joinder, the ld. Advocate submitted that Shri Mukhtiar Singh did not appear before the Departmental Officers for fear of harassment. He further submitted that from the turnover as indicated in the Income-tax Return of GHMW, it is evident that they were the manufacturers and not GHI. Finally, he submitted that the impugned order merits to be set-aside. He also relied on various case laws including:

b) Commissioner Vs. KP Pouches MANU/CE/0542/2017 : 2017 (352) ELT 29 (Tri. DL)

15. Heard both sides at length and perused the voluminous record.

16. It is seen that the allegations raised in the SCN and confirmed in the impugned order are based on elaborate investigation carried-out by Revenue. As briefly stated in the above paragraphs, this evidence includes incriminating documents recovered from the factory of the appellant, statements recorded from various persons including the transporter as well as various buyers and also significantly the data printed-out from the electronic devices recovered during the search proceedings. One of the main defences advanced by the appellant is that the data printed-out from the electronic devices should not be relied since the same was printed-out without the presence of Shri Mukhtiar Singh, prop. or anybody else representing the appellant. The other main ground is that in the statement of Shri Mukhtiar Singh and also many buyers have been retracted. Also, it is claimed that the goods, in question, were not manufactured by GHI but by GHMW. The appellant has also sought to differentiate the premises of GHI as well as GHMW.

17. Initially, we take up the issue regarding data printed-out from the electronic devices. It is not in dispute that these electronic devices were recovered from the factory premises of the appellant under proper Panchnama. Several summons were issued to Shri Mukhtiar Singh, prop. requiring the presence in the office for retrieval of data from such devices. But Shri Mukhtiar Singh chose to ignore such summons and did not respond with his presence. Finally, retrieval of data from the resumed electronic devices was done on 27.08.2013 with the help of an expert under proper Panchnama. The Panchas, who witnessed the activity, were also offered for cross-examination before the adjudicating authority when they were also cross-examined. Consequently, we are of the view that such data is to be considered, as admissible evidence, in the case.

18. The adjudicating authority has analyzed and discussed the data printed-out from the electronic devices, in detail, on the impugned order. It is seen that the details of the challans, so retrieved, tallied with the physical copies of the challans resumed from the factory during such operation. Further, it is seen that various details of the goods delivered to different buyers, such as, challan number, name of the party, data, description, quantity, etc. were found in the soft copy. These details were found to tally with the record physically resumed. Many of the buyers, whose statements were recorded, also confirmed the receipt of the goods. In view of above, it is clear that the data in the electronic devices were in relation to the transactions undertaken by the appellant and for such transactions, no evidence of excise duty payment have been produced by the appellant.

19. The second main ground is regarding the retracted statements. Shri Mukhtiar Singh, prop., in his initial statement dated 17.12.2012, admitted to the manufacture of various types of door closers bearing various brand names, which were not owned by him. Subsequently, in his statement dated 28.12.2012, he stated that the door closers were not manufactured by him but by GHMW run by his brother. It is also pertinent to record that during the period between the above two statements, the Departmental Officers also recorded the statement of Shri Aman Preet Singh on 16.04.2013, for which he was authorized by Shri Mukhtiar Singh. He had also admitted to the manufacture of door closers with the brand name not registered with them. It is also alleged that some of the buyers retracted their original statement at the time of cross-examination before the adjudicating authority. It is the argument of the appellant that all these statements lose their evidentiary value on account of retraction.

20. It is a settled position of law that the original statement does not become null and void only because it has been retracted on a subsequent date. Such retraction is to be assessed by the adjudicating authority in the light of the circumstances of the case and the existence of corroborated evidence. In the present case, we note that Shri Mukhtiar Singh has gone against his original statement, several years after the initial admission. Likewise, the buyers retracting such statements at the time of cross examination by itself will not make their statement inadmissible. Such retraction especially when supported by other evidences is to be ignored as has been held in the following cases:

ii) CC Vs. Shamshuddin M.A. Kedar - MANU/MH/1153/2010 : 2010 (259) ELT 44 (Bom.)

Similarly views have been taken by the Tribunal in the case of MM Industries Pvt. Ltd. vide Appeal No. 51686-51687/2017 dated 08.05.2018.

21. It is further seen that Shri Mukhtiar Singh was not responding to as much as 16 summons issued by the department soliciting his presence to join the investigation. But he chose to ignore the summons and hence his version could not be recorded during the time of the investigation.

22. The appellant has argued that the premises bearing the address WZ-424 belonged to GHI whereas the premises situated at WZ-422 & 423 belonged to GHMW. It is further argued that GHMW was the manufacturer of the door closer and GHI was only the sole distributor. To this effect, an affidavit of Shri Nirmal Singh, prop. of GHMW, has been submitted during the course of hearing of the appeal along with a copy of the electricity bill for premises at 422 & 423 claiming that this was industrial connection.

Such claim has never been made before the investigating or adjudicating authorities. Such claim also merits to be ignored since it appears to be only an attempt made belatedly at the time of the appeal before this Tribunal. The Panchnama, at the time of search on 21.11.2012, records that the premises situated at 422-423 and 424 were all connected together at the back side and all the machines required for manufacture were found in the building comprising all the three plot numbers. The front portion of 424 has been made to appear as the office of GHI whereas in reality the factory premises situated over all the three plot numbers has been used for manufacture. On the basis of the documents recovered and the statements recorded, it leaves very little scope for doubt that such manufacture has been done by GHI.

23. In view of the above detailed discussions, we are led to the inescapable conclusion that the allegation of clandestine manufacture and clearance and evasion of duty stands established. Further, the seized goods are also liable for confiscation.

24. In the result, we upheld the impugned order along with the reasons mentioned therein and the appeals are consequently dismissed.

(i) Naphtha and NGL are two different products, under the category of light oils and preparations falling under the broad sub-heading of 2710 12 of the Central Excise Tariff Act, 1985.

(ii) Naphtha can be classified under Tariff Item 2710 12 19 under the sub category of motor spirit other than SBPS, (special boiling point solvent) as it was earlier (old six digit tariff) grouped under the sub category of motor spirits or it can be classified under Tariff Item 2710 12 90 under the category of light oils and preparations, other than Motor spirits and NGL.

(iii) The product Naphtha falling under Heading 2710 is entitled for exemption under Notification No. 23/2006, dated 1-3-2006 upto 6-7-2009 and thereafter under Notification No. 18/2009, dated 7-7-2009.

(iv) Naphtha is a petroleum product and liquid product of natural gas not less than 10% of which distils below 175°C and 95% of which distils below 240°C when subject to standard method test as per Bureau of Indian Standards and Hawley's Condensed Chemical Dictionary. Both NGL and Naphtha are low boiling liquid petroleum products under the category of light oils and preparations.

(v) Naphtha has RVP slightly more than 10 psi can be treated as Naphtha, whereas NGL is having RVP more than 10 and upto 34 psi depending upon it volatility.

(vi) Both Naphtha and NGL contain pentane and heavier hydrocarbon.

(vii) The product cleared by the Noticee broadly satisfies the universally accepted parameters of Naphtha and also the definition and description of Naphtha as per various technical literature. The parameters of the product Naphtha cleared by the Noticee is similar to that of other manufactures of Naphtha i.e. ONGC, BPCL and MRPL. The product is bought and sold as Naphtha as is otherwise apparent from respondent, major customers and on the basis of individuals test reports submitted at the time of clearance of the product. Further Indian Institute of Petroleum has also certified the, product as Naphtha.

(viii) There is no suppression of fact on the part of the Noticee with the intent to evade payment of duty, as there is no evidence of alleged act. Hence no penalty can be imposed under Section 11AC of CEA. Being aggrieved of the said order the Department is before us vide the present appeal.

3. We have heard Shri Harpreet Singh Standing Counsel for the appellant and Shri V. Lakshmi Kumar Ld. Advocate & Shri Anurag Kapur Ld. Advocate for the respondent/assessee.

4. It is submitted on behalf of Department that the committee of Chief Commissioner constituted statutorily under Section 35E(1) of the Act, after examining the order-in-original has viewed the same as “not legal nor proper” as the same has wrongly determined the product of the respondent as Naphtha despite obtaining the parameters from the Like M/s. MRPL, ONGC, BPCL and India Institute of Petroleum Dehradun pointing it to be natural gasoline liquid. It is submitted that the Adjudicating Authority below has ignored the statements of the customers of the respondent indicating that the product manufactured is NGL. It is otherwise an admission of the respondent themselves that they were initially clearing their product as NGL. There is neither the change in procedure of manufacture nor in the customers of the respondent despite the alleged change from manufacturing NGL to manufacture of Naphtha. It is further impressed upon that there is not only the ample evidence but the enough technical literature as well as data available on the net as well which are indicative of the fact that the product cleared by respondent is the product other than Naphtha has been held by the Chief Chemical Analyst vide its report dated 30th August 2011. He has accordingly held the product of respondent as low boiling point liquid extracted from Natural gas which is other than Naphtha. NGL is specifically defined vide supplementary note of chapter 27 of CETA as low boiling petroleum product extracted from natural gas. Since, the chemical examiner report also duly classifies the impugned samples having same property, the Adjudicating Authority has committed blatant error while still holding the samples/product of respondent as Naphtha. NGL and Naphtha are impressed as two different products as have otherwise been recognized differently even by CETA.

4.1 The Ld. Counsel also impressed upon the fact that the only drawn sample along with test memo was the first sample having the report dated 31st August 2011. The remaining samples’ test reports as have been relied upon to an extent by the respondent, were obtained without preparation of any test memo. As the result, the Report of 31st August, 2011 only can be relied upon based whereupon it is abundantly clear that the product of respondent is not Naphtha but NGL inviting extra duty of Rs. 15 per litre in addition to 14 per cent ad valorem duty. The authority below is therefore alleged to have committed an error while ignoring the said test report. It is also impressed upon that the contents are otherwise acknowledged and admitted in the statements of the officer in charge of respondents and also in the statements of the respondent’s customers. While miserably ignoring those statements as a corroborative piece of evidence to the report of chemical examiner the Adjudicating Authority definitely has committed error. The Department has accordingly prayed for the order under challenge to be set aside. In addition it is submitted that since there is major duty difference between NGL and Naphtha, the impugned misclassification cannot be ruled out to be a deliberate strategy with intention to evade the payment of additional duty on NGL. The Department was thus entitled to invoke the extended period of limitation. The findings of the order under challenge to that effect also are prayed to be set aside appeal is accordingly prayed to be allowed.

5. While rebutting all these arguments, it is submitted on behalf of the respondent-assessee that they are the manufacturers of liquefied petroleum gas (LPG) and Naphtha at four of their plants. It is submitted that initially they were manufacturing NGL, however, due to presence of high amounts of pentane their product was extremely volatile. Due to which the provisions were made to spike the manufactured NGL back into the feed stream along with the lean gas. It is impressed upon that the said factum has duly been recorded by this Tribunal in respondent’s own case i.e. GAIL v. CCE Indore and Vadodara, 2004 [170] E.L.T. 75 (Tri-Del.), and that the said decision was also upheld by the Hon’ble Supreme Court vide its decision reported at 2015 [319] E.L.T. 5 (S.C.). The said process change and manufacturing of pentane and Special-Boiling Point Solvents (SBPS) was brought to the notice of the Department vide respondent’s letter, dated 21-2-2000. It is thereafter that the Government instructed respondent to stop manufacturing SBPS due to potential misuse thereof and to manufacture an alternate product since then the respondent is manufacturing Naphtha. The Ld. Counsel has expressed upon the procedure adopted by respondent/assessee for manufacturing Naphtha, from natural gas by first converting gas into a liquefied portion then subjecting it to further fractioning thereby removing the lighter hydro carbons mainly Methane (C1), Ethane (C2) and Propane (C3). Thereafter the content is transferred to the LPG column where mixture of Propane (C3), Butane (C4) is separated from the top of the column and the heavier fractions that is Pentane and Hexane are fed into NGL fractioning column. From the top of this column Pentane is separated and the bottom product having hydro carbons ranging from Hexane (C6) and above are stored as Naphtha. Due to the product being classified as Naphtha having Tariff Item 2710 11 90 that the respondent were availing the benefit on the concessional rate of duty under Notification No. 18/2009-C.E., dated 7-7-2009. In the line of these submissions it is alleged that the Department had initiated a wrong investigation against the respondent. The show cause notices have wrongly proposed the demand of differential duty of excise on the product of respondent that is Naphtha wrongly alleging the same to be a Natural Gasoline Liquefied (NGL) classified under Tariff Item 2710 11 20.

6. It is submitted that the chemical examiner’s report dated 30th August 2011 is based on the false presumption that since the product is derived from natural gas it is a low boiling liquid other than Naphtha. It is submitted that there is ample of technical literature even the lab texts reports the shows that even Naphtha can be manufactured from natural gas as contrary to the stand of Chemical Examiner. The Ld. Counsel further impressed upon that the cross-examination of the Chemical Examiners vanishes entire sanctity in the report which is the sole criteria for the Department to inhibit the impugned adjudication against the respondent. The Ld. Counsel further impressed upon that the Chemical examiner has miserably been silent about giving any reason as to why sample tested cannot be treated as Naphtha. The Chemical Examiner is alleged to have a wrong understanding that Naphtha and NGL are two different chemical/petroleum products obtained from two different sources. It is reiterated that Naphtha can also be obtained from Natural Gas. The report of examiner is, therefore, alleged to be full of discrepancies and thus is unreliable.

6.1. The sample which was drawn by the Department subsequently were with the mala fide motive of testing Reid Vapour Pressure (RVP), the same being differentiating criteria for the impugned both the products. However no new test memo was issued at the time of subsequently drawn samples. There otherwise is discrepancy about who visited Vadodara unit for drawing and testing samples. Ld. Counsel pointed out towards the contradiction in the statement of chemical examiner and that of Mr. Krishan Kumar, in-charge of engineering laboratory in Vadodara unit. The samples from Gandhar as well as Vadodara were collected at the same time by one and the same person despite the fact that there is the distance of almost 125 Km. between the two units due to which it is not practically possible for one single person to visit both the units and to collect samples and also to test them on the same day. Otherwise also there appear no bases for the Chemical Examiner for arriving at the conclusion about RVP of the sample from Gandhar and Vadodara Unit to be found as 10.23 PSI.

6.2. It is further submitted that non availability of Mr. Pradeep Maru who is asserted to had gone for collecting said samples, is sufficient to extend the benefit in favour of the assessee and to falsify the allegations of the department. As he would have been the most-relevant witness for bringing the precise clarity about the controversy in question. With holding his availability for being cross-examined by the assessee clearly establishes the mala fide of the Department to assert and get confirmed a wrong claim heavily detrimental to the interest not only of the respondent but to the industry as a whole.

6.3 Further, while justifying the order under challenge, Ld. Counsel for respondent has submitted that as per the Technical literature, tests reports of respondent’s product and the specification of other manufactures Naphtha have duly been compared by the Adjudicating Authority below for rightly holding that the product in question is Naphtha. Legal and technical literature as to Naphtha (Acquisition Sales Search and Prevention of Use in Automobile) order, 2000, Indian standard glossary of Petroleum terms, Hawley's condense dictionary, literature from Indian Institute of Petroleum, Dehradun and handbook of hydro carbons, manual of Department Instruction of Excisable Manufactured Products etc. has been relied upon by the respondent to define Naphtha as a product different from natural gasoline liquid and as one having such specification as are reflected in the chemical examination reports dated 30th August 2011 thereby impressing upon that the product manufactured and cleared by the respondent-assessee is nothing but Naphtha to which the exemption under Notification No. 18/2009 and 18/2012 was very much available to the respondent. In alternative, it is argued that no duty can be demanded as the impugned product is classified under Chapter Heading 2709.

6.4 It is further impressed upon that the end use of Naphtha and natural gasoline liquid are absolutely different. However Naphtha can also be manufactured from natural gas contrary to the stand of the chemical examiner. Had the respondent been not providing Naphtha to its customers he would have been amenable to litigation on account of the breaching its contractual obligations. Since the definition of Naphtha has not been provided within the frame work of laws, it is required that Naphtha is to be understood. Finally it is submitted that in the manner the persons engaged in the trade understand it to be in commerce parlance and that the onus of classification lies upon the Revenue. The respondent-assessee has relied upon [following] case laws;

7. After hearing both the parties, at length and perusing the entire record and literature referred we are of the opinion :

8. The moot question to be adjudicated herein is as to whether the product manufactured by the respondent/assessee is Natural Gasoline Liquid (NGL) having excise duty at the rate of 14 per cent ad valorem plus Rs. 15 Per litre having Tariff Entry as 2710 12 20 or it is Naphtha having the excise duty at the rate of 14 per cent ad valorem and tariff entry as 2710 12 90.

Since, the entire case rests upon the reports given by the Chemical Examiner and that the product manufactured and cleared is the petroleum chemical product, it is foremost relevant to understand the chemistry of both these products.

9. For the purpose we have perused the literature as has been impressed upon by the respondent-assessee i.e. Indian Standard Glossary of Petroleum Terms, Hawley's Condense Dictionary, Indian Institute of Petroleum Dehradun literature, handbook of Industrial Hydro Carbons Process Manual of Departmental Instructions on excisable manufactured products.

10. In addition the Handbook on Petroleum Products by Gems G. Schied and also, the wikipedia portal is being looked into with respect to the Chemistry of products from petroleum refinery. We have concluded our observation as far as the chemistry involve for various products of petroleum refineries with the specific reference of the products under adjudication i.e. NGL and Naphtha as follows :

Based on the above mentioned literature we have been concluding that the NGL and Naphtha are highly overlapping constituents of oil refineries both being hydro carbons ranging from Butane (C₄) to that of Heptanes (C₁₂) and even above. However, with the help of entire above mentioned literature including those as relied upon by the respondent we have concluded the following differences between the impugned two products as:
NGL
Produced from natural gas or produced during extraction process in the field by way of retrograde condensation and also by isomerisation of normal pentane.

Naphtha
Produced from crude oil by way of fractional distillation & even from natural gas condensation & even by destruction distillation of wood.

The first unit in extraction process is light end fractionate followed by liquefied petroleum gas column from the top where propane and butane are removed as LPG and at the bottom of this column are collected pentane & hexane as NGL.

Produced from crude oil by way of fractional distillation even from natural gas condensation & even by destruction distillation of wood.

Initial B.P. 35°C. Final boiling point is 75° more than 50 % evaporates at 60° C

Final B.P. 240°C though initial B.P. is 35°C light Naphtha (35°C - 140°C) Heavy Naphtha (140°C-240°C). Not less than 10% distils below 175°C

It contains traces of Hexane and more of larger hydro carbons, Light Naphtha (C6-C8). Heavy Naphtha (C8-C12).

NGL is a set of ARN, SKO, HSD & ATF.

Naphtha is subset thereof being the fractionating product

11. Applying the entire above chemical/ technical discussion about the impugned products to the facts and circumstances as well as the evidence of the present case we proceed to adjudicate the question as formulated above as follows. The entire case revolves upon the report of chemical examiner dated 30th August 2011 as reproduced below :

Test Report from SCN or O-I-O.

“The samples are in the form of clear colourless low boiling liquid. It is mainly composed of lighter mineral hydrocarbon oil, having following characteristic,

13. If all these reports looked in comparison to the above observations based on the chemical literature, it is observed as:

13.1 The presence of lower hydro carbon i.e. pentane was found more than Hexane. As per the glossary of terms in Bureau of Indian standards, NGL is such petroleum product having fairly higher proportions of pentane and even butane and propane than the presence of higher hydro carbons. Had it been Naphtha, the sample would have traces of pentane with more of higher hydro carbons. But as per the chemical examination report, the impugned sample was found to have only two kinds of hydro carbons i.e. Pentane (C5) and Hexane (C6). Though the Ld. Counsel had impressed upon the same to be called as light Naphtha having the hydro carbon as that of Pentane, Hexane, heptanes etc but number of hydro carbon being the key difference between the two products herein, more presence of lower hydro carbon with traces even of butane is sufficient to classify the product as NGL and not even light NAPTHA.

13.2 The flash point for Naphtha is as low as -2 if it is below 25° it is more the characteristic of NGL. The flash point finding also corroborates the sample to the NGL. Apparently and admittedly the appellants were manufacturing their product from natural gas. As already discussed above that it is the natural gasoline liquid which is produced from natural gas by way of retrograde condensation whereas Naphtha is extracted by way of distillation that too from crude in normal course. No doubt, the Naphtha can also be obtained from the bottom of distillation chamber after extraction of NGL but the same does not sounds reasonable in the terms that when the product can be extracted directly from crude why the element of more steps shall be involved in extracting the main product indirectly, involving ore expedition had it been the main product as is thus, it becomes clear that since natural gas is used as raw material the main product extracted is NGL.

13.3 No doubt the boiling range for Naphtha (light as well as heavy) is from 30°C to 240°C and that of NGL is 30°C to 140°C i.e. the range is overlapping but the range classifies that for a product to be Naphtha only 10 per cent and more thereof has to be distilled below 175°C as per impressed upon definition of Hawley’s Condensed Chemical Dictionary (relied upon the respondent assessee). Whereas in the present case more than 66% of product has evaporated at 60° temperature. Thus there remains no doubt that the sample belongs to the product having comparatively lesser boiling point range, which is NGL as apparent from above discussed chemistry. Thus irrespective, that both are NGL as well as Naphtha classified as low boiling liquid petroleum product extracted from natural gas but the fact remains is that the product herein is the one which is evaporating at its maximum at lower temperature and as observed from the above table concluded from the literature provided by the respondent, it is NGL which has lesser boiling point range than that of Naphtha. The argument of respondent that light Naphtha also has lower range of boiling point is also not acceptable because the sample herein has more number of Pentane (C5) with traces of Hexane (C6) & as discussed, for sample to be classified as light Naphtha, it first has to be Naphtha i.e. The compound having more Hexane (C6) and even higher hydrocarbons with traces of Pentanes (C5).

13.4 Chemical Examination report classified that sample has 53.21% of C5 and lesser percentage of C6 i.e. 33.20-%. Number of carbon being the key difference (as mentioned above) between NGL & Naphtha, we are of the opinion that Chemical examiner has not committed any mistake in his report dated 30th August 2011 while making the observation that the sample is the low boiling point liquid other than Naphtha. The respondent had never contested the said report at the appropriate stage in appropriate manner.
14. The case law as relied upon by the respondent to impress that it was the duty of Department to prove the classification of the product/article is not applicable to the present facts and circumstances as department herein has already discharged its burden of proving the product manufactured by respondent is NGL and not Naphtha. Thereafter it is for respondent to rebut if they feel aggrieved. But there is nothing brought on record to falsify the said report except the minor procedural discrepancy while obtaining the samples from the other units of respondent and while getting those samples tested. Also the respondent had opportunity to contest the said report below itself. But admittedly said option has not been exercised by the respondent. From the above discussion it becomes clear that chemistry involved in extraction & segregation of various hydrocarbons in a refinery or petroleum industry supports that the product extracted by respondent is Natural Gasoline liquid and not Naphtha.

15. For further appreciation from the viewpoint of evidence on record herein we observe and opine as:

15.1 Various statements of the office bearers, employees and even the customers of the respondent assessee, are looked into. It is observed that the General Manager of Respondent Mr. M.B. Gohil has specifically defined the assessee’s product as “low boiling liquid petroleum product extracted from natural gas”. The said description is in due corroboration of the chemical examiner’s report on which based is the Department’s case. Mr. Gohil has gone to the extent of clarifying that the proportion of propane and butane are fairly high in their product in its instability condition which are removed to yield a stabilised natural gasoline. The same is acknowledged as a distinct product extracted from a specified raw material viz. natural gas. In his statement dated 31st August 2012, he also acknowledged the feasibility report of LPG recovery plant Pata as was submitted by the senior officer of respondent itself, that the said report specifically envisages the product therein to be NGL. He specifically stated that the plant was initially erected to manufacture NGL however some modifications were carried out subsequently to produce some other products such as Special Boiling Point Solvents (SBPS) and Naphtha. He then detailed the procedure adopted at their factory deposing that natural gas is used as the raw material by them from which first LPG (C3, C4) got separated in the LPG chamber. The condensate thereof is transferred to the NGL fractioning chamber from the top whereof is recovered NGL (C5, C6) and from the bottom whereof the another low boiling point liquid i.e. Naphtha is collected.

This witness when was specifically asked about the key differences between NGL and Naphtha, he expressed his inability. Similar inability was expressed by Shri L.R. Gupta, the General Manager, (Finance and accounts) of the respondent. He deposed about decentralisation of all locations of respondents as far as the finance is concerned. However payments of Central Excise duties are being made from respective units. He could not depose as to product of which unit is Naphtha. Not even in terms of the duty deposited by Gandhar Units whose sample has been acknowledged as NGL. Mr. M.B. Gohil and Shri C.N. Chatruvedi Executive Director (petrochemicals) of the respondent also deposed about distillation range of Naphtha that not less than 10% of which distils below 175° C and not less than 95% of which distils below 240° C. Accordingly, to them he rather deposed that he is not competent enough to offer any comments in the matter regarding the classification of the product and the differential duty liability in the matter. In his statement dated 3-3-2012.

“He deposed that, what leaves the LEF/C2-C3 column, in their plant after removal of lighter components, which further enters into Propane or LPG column for their extraction, may be termed as Natural Gasoline Liquid which as per above said definition is nothing but the wild form of Natural Liquid. In the succeeding column, the Propane and Butane are further removal from this liquid, by way of fractional distillation and what leaves the said columns appears the stabilized form of National gasoline and not Naphtha. The said liquid being qualified to be called as a “low boiling liquid”, as understood in the Petroleum Chemistry of Petroleum Engineering has already been discussed in foregoing paras, which has also been corroborated by the Chemical Examiner Grade. 1, Vadodara”.

Even the Adjudicating Authority has opined that Shri Gohil in his above said statements has himself described unstable and stable form of Natural Gasoline Liquid and has also explained that removal of lighter fraction makes the Natural Gasoline liquid a stable product. Thus, it appeared that what is manufactured by the Noticee under the name and narration of Naphtha is nothing but stabilized form of Natural Gasoline Liquid.
15.2 Mr. Anup Kumar Gupta Chief Manager (gas processing unit) has also deposed that from the bottom of the LPG column NGL is extracted and to reduce its volatility that the procedure of Pentane removal, was later incorporated. He also deposed that the goods produced at Pata unit of respondent are Ethane/Propane mixture, LPG, Pentane and Naphtha. The hydrocarbons extracted from Natural gas. He also deposed that the procedure of extraction in due corroboration to Mr. M.B. Gohil. However with reference to NGL, he denied his knowledge even about the full name thereof. Now, if the statement of Mr. Arjan Kalara Jadav Chief Manager Operations is perused. It appears that respondents were extracting the NGL from the bottom of LPG column, he also deposed that before year 2011 respondent used to crack the said NGL further to form MFO but thereafter the said NGL used to be sent to a butanizer to obtain the required suitable product.

15.3 When all these testimonies it becomes clear that the product manufactured by respondent is the one as is collected from the bottom of LPG column the said product was earlier used to be cracked to be converted into MFOs but beyond the year 2011 the said product is simply butanized. It is also apparent from the statement of Mr. M.B. Gohil that the sample as was collected on 24-8-2011 with test report of chemical examiner dated 30th August 2011, was collected from the loading area. Above all these statements makes it ample clear that the de-butanized product of LPG column goes to the loading area. Thus it becomes clear that the product manufactured by the respondent has not come across the stage of distillation of NGL whereafter only the product collected could be Naphtha, as can readily be observed from the above discussed chemistry and even from the above said statements. From another statement of Mr. Kalara senior chemist of the respondent, it is clear that the sample is not denied. He specifically deposed that in their lab they were instructed only to test the density, IBP and FBP of the product manufactured they were never asked to report as to whether the said sample is Naphtha. Perusal of the statement of this witness makes it clear that he could not offer comments as to whether the density, IBP and FBP values as given in his report matches the characteristic of NGL or that of Naphtha.

16. Senior Manager, Production, Mr. Rajiv Kumar of M/s. Reliance Industries Petro Chemical, the major customer of the respondent/assessee was also examined. He specifically deposed that the material which they are getting from the respondents are the hydro carbons ranging from (C5 & C15). Though he specifically deposed that the product which is received from respondent is Naphtha but simultaneously he deposed that after receiving the same M/s. RIL need to de-butanize the product. As already discussed above the presence of Butane is a key characteristic of NGL. Hence it stands corroborated that the product purchased by M/s. RIL from the respondent-assessee was NGL. Otherwise also, this witness, was also specifically asked about any idea regarding the product as that of natural gasoline liquid but he out rightly denied his knowledge. He being Senior Manager Production is supposed to be chemically and technically sounds for the products cleared by his unit such a vague denial affects the respondent adversely. Shri Pritesh Patel Director of M/s. Maa Bijasani Petrochemical Pvt. Ltd. (a customer of respondent) has deposed that product purchased from M/s. Gail is produced from natural gas and is costlier. Irrespective he named this it becomes clear that since natural gas is used, the main product extracted is NGL and not Naphtha product as Naphtha. Perusal of the statement of this witness makes it clear that he could not offer comments as to whether the density, IBP and FBP values as given in his report matches the characteristic of NGL or that of Naphtha.

16.1 The statements of the people from other petro chemical industries as that of M/s. Bharat Petroleum Corporation (BPL) M/s. ONGC the major oil marketing companies as were recorded are also perused. They all acknowledged that the Naphtha they are manufacturing is extracted from refined crude oil in their crude distillation units. As already discussed above, that is the characteristic manufacturing process for Naphtha. Admittedly and apparently, the Naphtha by respondent assessee is not manufactured by crude oil but by natural gas that too not by the method of distillation but by method of condensation. Mr. M.B. Gohil more specifically defined the product of respondent based on Indian Glossary of Petroleum Products as low boiling liquid petroleum product extracted from natural gas. When these testimonies are read together these are observed to have ample. He has gone to the extent of stating that Propane and Butane are fairly high natural gas which are removed to yield stabilized natural gasoline thus natural gasoline is classified by him as the distinct product from a specific parameters finds natural gas.

16.2 Thus from the statements of various customers of the respondent-assessee it is coming as an apparent admission that the product purchased by them from the respondent is M/s. GAIL is different from Naphtha which has been purchased from other Naphtha manufacturing companies.

17. From the above discussions it becomes clear that chemically NGL and Naphtha are two different products having overlapping physical and chemical properties but the key differences as discussed above have been seen in relation with the statements on record have established it beyond doubt that the product manufactured by the respondent-assessee is natural gasoline liquid (NGL) which attracts duty at the rate of 14 per cent \textit{ad valorem} + Rs. 15 per litre and not Naphtha.

18. Now having seen the controversy from the Central Excise point of view we hold that;

The Product of the respondent is admittedly the one falling under the chapter 27, the controversy is as to whether it falls under 2710 12 20 that is NGL or under 2710 12 90 i.e. Naphtha. Chapter 27 deals with mineral fuels, mineral oils and product of their distillation; bituminous substances, mineral waxes. Chapter note 2 keeps petroleum oils and oils obtained from bituminous substances under heading 2710. \textit{Chapter supplementary note specifically defines Natural Gasoline Liquid (NGL) as a low boiling liquid petroleum product extracted from natural gas}. It is observed that in the old Tariff Naphtha and NGL were specifically mentioned to be classified under motor spirit and both had specific entries in tariff. But in the new Tariff NGL is treated separate from motor spirit and continues to have a specific entry i.e. 2710 12 20 but Naphtha finds no mention under the new Tariff. However both have been grouped under "light oils and preparations". If at this stage the report of chemical examiner about the sample in question is observed, it specifically mentions the product as a low boiling liquid petroleum product extracted from natural gas. The new tariff defines such a product specifically as NGL. Once this is so, there is no reason to still hold the product as Naphtha. To our opinion the findings of the Adjudicating Authority below that the chemical examiner have not given any reason as to why the sample tested is to be treated as Naphtha. The findings are rather opined to be based on pre-supposition that the product in question is Naphtha.

18.1 Central Excise Tariff in its various Notifications distinguishes NGL & Naphtha. Since NGL is defined in Chapter notes, NGL reflected in the Notification is a derivative of Natural Gas and Naphtha being shown separately other than NGL, it is a product of Petroleum oil. Also in the exemptions Notification Naphtha has been categorically placed under CETA 2710 of the schedule to CETA, thus it becomes clear that Naphtha can be classified under the broad category of other light oils and preparations i.e. under 2710 11 90 also.

19. Thus irrespective of that Naphtha is a low boiling liquid petrol product but as is discussed above, it is not directly extractable from natural gas this may be the reason for no specific entry called Naphtha under Chapter 27. The classification of the product in the Central Excise Tariff has to be done as per the rules of Interpretation, Chapter notes and Section notes contained in the Tariff. The definition under the trade parlances and Commercial understanding or definition under any other literature including scientific literature can only be referred if specific definition is not given in the chapter or the section notes. Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of \textit{Cannought Plaza Restaurant Pot. Ltd., 2012 (286) E.L.T. 321 (S.C.)} has held that the classification of an excisable goods shall be determined according to the terms of headings as per Rules of Interpretation in the First Schedule, to the Tariff Act. Rule 2 thereof says that it is only when the headings of the chapter or section notes are not clearly determinative of the classification that Rules 3, 4 or 5 of the said general rules of Interpretation will come into the effect. The entries are to be construed according to common parlance understanding the goods only in a situation where there is no statutory definition of the product. Hon'ble Apex Court further clarified that ordinary rule of construction is that a provision to statute must be construed in accordance with the language used therein unless there are compelling reasons such that the literal construction would reduce the provision to absurdity or would prevent manifest intension of the legislature from being carried out. Naphtha described here is in generic term. Since two separate origin of the product Naphtha has been described, the product can be named as “Petroleum Naphtha" if derived from oil/petroleum and “gas Naphtha" if derived from Natural gas, such a terminology is not uncommon in the Petroleum industry Gas Naphtha here also contain low boiling point hydrocarbons and is liquid as well. But the fact remains is that present Tariff has nothing called Naphtha. \textit{Per Contra}, NGL has specifically been classified & defined too.

has held that when words in statute are clear and unambiguous and only one meaning can be inferred the courts are bound to give effect to the said meaning irrespective of the consequences.

It was further held that if the words used are capable of one construction only then it would not be open to the Courts to adopt any other hypothetical construction on the ground that such construction is consistent with the alleged policy of the act. Hon’ble Apex Court has also clarified that the exemption notification also has to be strictly construed so that if the person claiming exemption does not fall strictly within the letter and spirit of the notification, he cannot claim exemption. The respondent in the present case is also availing the benefit of exemption Notification about Naphtha but word Naphtha has not found any place under new Tariff Entry. Any benefit cannot be claimed of non-existing entry irrespective of that the product exist and is classifiable under any other Tariff head. At this stage it may be seen that chapter Heading 2710 in old 6 digit Tariff, which existed in 2005 there was a specific sub-heading 2710 14 for Naphtha and 2710 15 for NGL, both were the products grouped under broad heading of motors spirit however in the present 8 digit Tariff entry Naphtha has been removed and natural gasoline liquid is grouped under a variety of light oils and preparations (2710 12) and continues to exist being classified under Tariff item 2710 12 20. Supplementary note (b) of Chapter 27 of CETA defines NGL as a low boiling liquid petroleum product extracted from natural gas. NGL has been separated from the group of Moters sprits. Earlier NGL, SBPS and Naphtha all were under the Tariff Group of Motors spirits, (as discussed above). This we take as a ground to hold that legislature intended to seggregate NGL, it being a different product than Naphtha irrespective of both being low boiling point liquids.

21. The Authority relied upon by the respondent are not opined applicable to the present case. As in that case the product was the one as that of remnant/return stream. The Hon’ble Apex Court in that case has specifically held that in the absence of the definition of Naphtha in Central Excise Tariff, its understanding in technical books along with the report of Chief Chemist should be accepted for its classification. But, in the present case the product is the one as was admittedly collected from the bottom of LPG column and was de-botanized later and from the technical understanding as well as from the Report of chief chemist, it is NGL, i.e. the low boiling liquid other than Naphtha. It was also held by Hon’ble Supreme Court that as per the Rules of Interpretation an Item if it is not specifically covered by way of the precedent entries, it would fall under a residuary entry. This finding rather support the product in the present case as the one falling under the specific entry that is 2710 12 20 i.e. NGL sufficiently established that the product of respondent is not Naphtha as has been reported by the chief chemical examiner in his report dated 30-8-2011 (as discussed above). In addition, Naphtha is defined to be a compound having carbon atoms ranging from C4 to C12. As discussed above, the evidence on record is that the product of respondent has more of C5 with traces of C6 and other higher hydro carbons as nil. Seen from this angle the product in hand is NGL having a specific definition in the Tariff. The question of construing it as Naphtha from the view point of the ordinary or popular sense has no relevance.

21.1 No doubt the onus is upon the department for establishing that goods are classifiable under a particular tariff entry, we are of the opinion that the chemical examiner report dated 30th August 2011 is the sufficient evidence with department to discharge the said burden. Due test memo was prepared while collecting the sample of the said report on 24th August 2011. The Chemical Examiner was cross-examined by the respondent. Except the minor contradictions nothing could be extracted to prove the product as Naphtha. The respondent has nowhere confronted the chemical examiner with the specifications of Naphtha and that the specifications of the sample match with that of Naphtha. Further, the contradictory stand of respondent is very much apparent from his reliance upon the case Gail v. Commissioner, 2004 (170) E.L.T. 75 (Tri - Del.) where the respondent has impressed upon the NGL to have fallen under Chapter Heading 2719. Also respondent in alternative, has prayed for rejecting this appeal on this grounds submitting that no extra duty is leviable under Heading No. 2719. This submission rather amounts as apparent acknowledgment on the part of the respondent for its product to be NGL and not Naphtha. It is also observed from this case law that it was acknowledged on the part of the M/s. Gail “it is universally known that in the process of extraction of LPG from natural gas NGL would be imparted. As already discussed above the product of respondent is the one which is extracted from LPG column it has to be NGL and not Naphtha. The said case however is not applicable to the present case for the reason that the product involved therein was the condensate whereas the product in hand is the one collected from the bottom of LPG column. Similar acknowledgment of appellant is apparent in another of its case Commissioner v. Gail, 2015 (319) E.L.T. 5 Supreme Court where M/s. Gail took the stand that natural gas after extraction of LPG remains natural gas, and therefore, lean gas is also to be classifiable under sub-heading 2711 21 the product in hand is not natural gas but natural gasoline liquid specifically defined under Chapter Heading No. 2710.

22. Further as per the information available in Wikipedia, respondent i.e. M/s. Gail is the largest natural gas processing and distribution agency in India initially it was given the responsibility of constructing, operating and maintaining Hazira/Vijaypur/Jagdishpur /HVJ pipeline product it is one of the largest natural gas pipeline product in the world. Its business is to secure gas for being transported to various parts of the country though M/s. GAIL has diversified into petro chemicals and liquid hydro carbons but the key product of M/s. Gail is still natural gasoline liquid (NGL) (78.15), LPG 10 %, propane 3.5%, Naphtha 0.5% and other products 0.45 %. The sample collected is admittedly of the major product of the respondent seen from this information as well there is no reason to hold the product of respondent as Naphtha. Adjudicating Authority is therefore opined to have committed an error.

23. In the light of the entire above discussion, we conclude as follows;

a) The Adjudicating Authority below has rightly concluded that Naphtha and the NGL are two different products however under the category of light oils and preparations. Naphtha is a petroleum product of which not less than 10 % distils below 175°C and 95 % of which distils below 240°C when subjected to standard method test and both contains pentanes and heavier hydro carbons. But the Adjudicating Authority failed to observe that the product in hand has only two kinds of hydro carbons i.e. pentanes and hexanes that too with more of pentanes (53.21%). No doubt both these products are overlapping but still the key difference (as discussed above) is that for a product to be Naphtha it should have traces of pentanes and more of higher hydro carbons groups even to the extent of C12. Apparently and admittedly latter is not the case the product hence has wrongly been concluded as Naphtha. The distillation range of the product is less than 175°C. As per the conclusion of original Adjudicating Authority and the chemical definitions about Naphtha it is the product of which not more than 10 % distils below 175°C, when the entire amount of the sample got distils below 121°C and this the literary evidence that NGL has much lower distillation range than Naphtha, the Adjudicating Authority has committed the blatant error while still holding the product as Naphtha. The conclusion arrived at by the Adjudicating Authority below are the correct characteristic for a product to be Naphtha. But the authority has failed to apply those conclusions to the evidence on record and the available literature (chemistry). The decision under challenge is held to be non-speaking decision reflecting a presupposed mind of the authority in ignorance of the entire material on record.

24. Finally coming to the plea of show cause notices being barred by time; From the entire above discussion, it is clear that the product of the respondent has wrongly been classified by the respondent as Naphtha. It is also apparent fact that the Naphtha has much lesser Excise Duty as less as Rs. 15 per litre. In view thereof misdeclaration cannot be ruled out to be a strategy for tax evasion. We also opine that the act to the extent of even claiming exemption on the misdeclared product is a positive act of misrepresentation of the facts with sole intention to evade duty. Resultantly the Department, in view of the proviso to Section 73 of Central Excise Act, is held to be very much entitled to invoke the extended period of limitation. Not only this, the penalties are also held to have been rightly proposed in the show cause notices but wrongly done away by the Adjudicating Authority below. The case law as relied upon by the respondent to impress that it being PSU no mala fide can be attributed is not applicable to M/s. GAIL where Government of India is not the only stake holder. We draw our support rather, from Bharat Petroleum Corporation Limited v. Commissioner - 2015 (326) E.L.T. A33 (S.C.) where it was held that mandatory penalties can be imposed on PSU there are precedent of involving penalty on PSUs. Hon'ble High Court Madras in another case CCE, Chennai v. Peter & Miller Packers - 2015 (319) E.L.T. 631 (Mad.), has also held that ignorance of law is not an excuse even to PSU, if there is element of apparent on its pact. In the present case the misdeclaration on pact of respondent has already been established. Major duty difference on the misdeclared product is also held to be the strategy of tax evasion. Merely that assessee is PSU is not sufficient to set aside the SCN as being barred by time. To this aspect also Adjudicating Authority below is held to be incorrect.

25. It is held that the Adjudicating Authority below has committed a blatant error while dropping such a heavy demand that too vide nonspeaking order having just the recitals of the facts and the statements with not cogent reasoning of arriving to the conclusion that the product is Naphtha. The entire chemical literature and even the evidence in the form of statements (as discussed above) has miserably been ignored by the Adjudicating Authority below. He has failed to connect the same with the conclusions drawn in Order-in-Original. The conclusions of Commissioner detailed above, in view of the entire above technical and factual discussions are held to be mere conclusion about characteristic features of the product of the respondent without any finding as to whether these concluded characteristics are of NGL or Naphtha. The findings of ours, based on chemical literature available and the evidence on record, classify the product of respondent as Natural Gasoline Liquid (NGL). Hence it is held that Commissioner rather has proceeded with the pre-supposed mind of holding the product of respondent being Naphtha. The findings accordingly are held as apparently wrong hence are hereby set aside.
Resultantly the impugned order is set aside and the appeal of the Department is hereby allowed.

Section 4

1[4. Valuation of excisable goods for purposes of charging of duty of excise.—

(1) Where under this Act, the duty of excise is chargeable on any excisable goods with reference to their value, then, on each removal of the goods, such value shall—

(a) in a case where the goods are sold by the assessee, for delivery at the time and place of the removal, the assessee and the buyer of goods are not related and the price is the sole consideration for the sale, be the transaction value;

(b) in any other case, including the case where the goods are not sold, be the value determined in such manner as may be prescribed. 2[Explanation.—For the removal of doubts, it is hereby declared that the pricecum-duty of the excisable goods sold by the assessee shall be the price actually paid to him for the goods sold and the money value of the additional consideration, if any, flowing directly or indirectly from the buyer to the assessee in connection with the sale of such goods, and such price-cum-duty, excluding sales tax and other taxes, if any, actually paid, shall be deemed to include the duty payable on such goods.]

From the above section 4 it can be seen that if the price is a sole consideration for the sale of the goods, the transaction value for such sale of the goods shall be assessable value in terms of Clause (a) of sub section (1) of the section 4. However, in any other case the value shall be determined in such manner as may be prescribed. In the present case the customer supplied free of cost packing material to the appellant. For this purpose the relevant Rule 6 of Central Excise Valuation (Determination of price on excisable goods) Rules, 2000 reads below:

"Rule 6. - Where the excisable goods are sold in the circumstances specified in clause (a) of sub-section (1) of section 4 of the Act except the circumstance where the price is not the sole consideration for sale, the value of such goods shall be deemed to be the aggregate of such transaction value and the amount of money value of any additional consideration flowing directly or indirectly from the buyer to the assessee.

Explanation 1. - For removal of doubts, it is hereby clarified that the value, apportioned as appropriate, of the following goods and services, whether supplied directly or indirectly by the buyer free of charge or at reduced cost for use in connection with the production and sale of such goods, to the extent that such value has not been included in the price actually paid or payable, shall be treated to be the amount of money value of additional consideration flowing directly or indirectly from the buyer to the assessee in relation to sale of the goods being valued and aggregated accordingly, namely :-

(i) value of materials, components, parts and similar items relatable to such goods;

(ii) value of tools, dies, moulds, drawings, blue prints, technical maps and charts and similar items used in the production of such goods;

(iii) value of material consumed, including packaging materials, in the production of such goods;

(iv) value of engineering, development, art work, design work and plans and sketches undertaken elsewhere than in the factory of production and necessary for the production of such goods.

Explanation 2. - Where an assessee receives any advance payment from the buyer against delivery of any excisable goods, no notional interest on such advance shall be added to the value unless the Central Excise Officer has evidence to the effect that the advance received has influenced the fixation of the price of the goods by way of charging a lesser price from or by offering a special discount to the buyer who has made the advance deposit.

Illustration 1. - X, an assessee, sells his goods to Y against full advance payment at Rs. 100 per piece. However, X also sells such goods to Z without any advance payment at the same price of Rs. 100 per piece. No notional interest on the advance received by X is includible in the transaction value.

Illustration 2. - A, an assessee, manufactures and supplies certain goods as per design and specification furnished by B at a price of Rs. 10 lakhs. A takes 50% of the price as advance against these goods and there is no sale of such goods to any other buyer. There is no evidence available with the Central Excise Officer that the notional interest on such advance has resulted in lowering of the prices. Thus, no notional interest on the advance received shall be added to the transaction value."

From the plain reading of Rule it can be seen that the value of packing material consumed in the production of goods shall be included in the transaction value. The appellant also made submission that the packing material which supplied by customer free of cost was used after the manufacture of final product i.e. Metal Container and not consumed in the manufacture. In this regard we are of the view that packaging of goods is carried out only after the final product is manufactured. The packaging material cannot be consumed and loses its identity in the manufacture of final product, therefore, the term used consumed in the production means only for packing of final product. Therefore, the interpretation made by appellant is absolutely incorrect. As regard the contention of the appellant that Rule 6 cannot overriding the effect on the section 4. In this regard, we find that authority of Rule 6 is flowing from section 4(1)(b) only, therefore, it cannot be said that Rule 6 has overriding effect on the section. Therefore, we are of the clear view that in terms of section 4 read with Rule 6 of valuation Rules, 2000, the packing material supplied free of cost by the customer is includable in the transaction value (Assessable Value) and the same will be chargeable to excise duty. Therefore, the Ld. Commissioner (Appeals) after analyzing all the statutory provision and distinguishing the judgments which were related to the departed provision of section 4 and Valuation Rules, 1975 given a clear finding that cost of packing material shall be included in the assessable value. We do not find any infirmity in the findings of the Ld. Commissioner (Appeals), accordingly, the impugned order is upheld and the appeal is dismissed.

COMMR. OF C. EX. & S.T., AHMEDABAD-III

REPRESENTED BY :Shri Rahul Gajera, Advocate, for the Appellant.

Shri J. Nagori, AR, for the Respondent.

[Order]. - This issue involved in the present case is that whether the appellant is entitled for interest on refund of amount of duty paid during the investigation of the case from the date of deposit or after 3 month from the date of filling appeal in the event when the demand was dropped by the Tribunal order.

2. Shri Rahul Gajera, Ld. Counsel appearing on behalf of the appellant submits that the appellant have paid an amount during the investigation of the case. The said amount was not towards the duty but it was deposit. Refund is not governed under Section 11B. Accordingly, the appellant is entitled for the interest on the refund of such pre deposit right from date of deposit and not from the date after 3 month of filling the refund application. He relied up on the decision of this Tribunal, in the case of Futura Ceramics Pvt. Ltd. v. CCE & ST, Vadodara-I passed by CESTAT Ahmedabad Vide Order No. A/13764/2017, dated 21-11-2017.

3. Shri. J. Nagori, Ld. Additional Commissioner (AR), appearing on behalf of the Revenue reiterates the findings of the impugned order. He submits that the amount paid by the appellant is towards the duty due to the investigation for demand of duty initiated. Therefore, the payment made during the investigation by the appellant is the amount of duty only. Hence, the refund of the same is applicable under Section 11B of Central Excise Act, 1944. Hence, the interest provided under Section 11BB is only from the date after 3 months of filling of refund claim, therefore, the interest in the present case is not payable by the revenue to the appellant. In support of his submission, he placed reliance on the following judgments :

   • Ajay Metachem Sud Lchemie Pot. Ltd. v. Commr. or C. EX., Ranchi - 2014 (303) E.L.T. 280 (Tri.-Kolkata)
   • Kamakshi Tradexim (India) Pvt. Ltd. v. Union of India, 2017 (351) E.L.T. 102 (Guj.)
   • Ruchi Soya Industries Ltd. v. Union of India - 2016 (336) E.L.T. 423 (Guj.)
   • Lorenzo Bestonso v. Commissioner of Customs, JNCH - 2017 (347) E.L.T. 104 (Tri.-Mumbai)

4. I have carefully considered the submissions made by both the sides and perused the Records.

5. I find that the limited issue to be decided by all this case is that in case, of deposit made during the investigation of the demand case whether interest on refund of such amount shall be payable from the date of deposit of such amount or from the date after 3 months of filling the refund application. As regard, the deposit made during the investigation it is obvious that there is no provision in Central Excise or to make a deposit. Whatever payment made it is towards the probable Excise duty liability for which the investigation is undergoing, therefore, it cannot be said that any deposit made during the investigation so made by the assessee is not a duty but only a deposit. Once the adjudication authority confirms the demand the said amount stands confirmed as duty only, the same being the duty stands appropriate against the demand confirmed in the adjudication order. For this reason also the amount even though that paid during the investigation, shall be considered as payment of duty. When this be so the refund of such duty amount is clearly governed by the Section 11B of Central Excise Act, 1944. In case of refund under Section 11B provision, of interest is available under Section 11BB. In terms of such section, of interest is payable only from the date after completion of 3 months from the date of filling the refund application. Therefore, the interest in any case is not payable from the date of deposit of the amount during the investigation. On the issue of interest on refund of duty the Hon’ble Supreme Court in the case of Ranbaxy Laboratories Ltd. v. Union of India, 2011 (273) E.L.T. 3 (S.C.) wherein, the Court has held that the interest on refund under Section 11B is payable only from the date of expiry of three months from the date of receipt of application for refund. Therefore, now there is no ambiguity or doubt that from which the date interest is payable in case of refund of duty. As Regard the decision relied upon by the Ld. Counsel in the case of Futura Ceramics Pvt. Ltd. (supra). I find that this decision has not considered the various judgment relied upon by the Ld. AR particularly the case of Ranbaxy Laboratories Ltd., Kamakshi Tradexim (India) Pvt. Ltd., therefore, the decision of this Tribunal dated 21-11-2017 is distinguished. As per my above discussion, the impugned order is upheld. The appeal is dismissed.

Per: Rachna Gupta:

The order of Commissioner (Appeals) bearing No. 1068/2016 dated 22.12.2016 is assailed vide the present appeal. The facts relevant for the purpose in brief are as follows:

2. In furtherance of a specific information about a person with smuggled gold that on 02.06.1999 a person namely, Shayam Lal Pal, Son of Rampal was stopped outside the Railway station, Bikaner. From the pocket of his trousers 3 pieces of gold weighing 5 grams each alongwith a slip dated 01.06.1999 and a railway ticket No. 148344 from Delhi to Bikaner was recovered. Also from his cloth-belt were recovered 10 biscuits of 10 grams each. Said Shyam Lal Pal could not produce any valid document/bill showing the lawful possession of the gold as recovered.

3. The department considered the recovered gold as smuggled one. Accordingly, seized it under Section 110 of Customs Act and served a notice of confiscation thereof under Section 111 of Customs Act, 1962. In the statement of Shyam Lal Pal as was recorded on 02.06.1999 itself, he stated that the said gold was given to him by his owner, Mr. Gopal Sita, owner of Shop No. 668, Kucha Mahajani, Chandni Chowk on 01.06.1999 with the directions to deliver the same to Shri Shyam Sunder Soni of Thakuro Ka Mohalla, Bikaner. However, said Shri Gopal Sita on being interrogated denied any affiliation with Shyam Lal Pal. Shyam Sunder Soni statement could be recorded only on 22.06.1999 that to in furtherance of directions of Additional Session Judge, Jodhpur who stated Shyam Lal to be the servant of Shri Badri Narayan Sharma of M/s Dhancholia Sons. He also stated that he placed an order for gold with said Shri Badri Narayan Sharma. Statement of Shri Badri Narayan Sharma was also got recorded on 04.08.1999 who stated about giving the 10 gold bars with Bill No. 3 dated 01.06.1999 to Shri Shyam Lal Pal to deliver the same to Shyam Sunder Soni at Bikaner. Thus based upon said investigation the show cause notice proposing confiscation of seized goods and for imposition of penalty was served upon all the above named persons.

4. The said show cause notice was adjudicated vide Order-in-Original No. 03/2000 dated 23.03.2000 as was passed by Additional Commissioner (Customs), Jodhpur Rajasthan ordering confiscation of 10 gold biscuits weighing 100 grams and 3 pieces of gold weighing 5 grams. Simultaneously, proposing penalty on all the noticees. The said order was assailed before Commissioner (Appeals), Jaipur who vide Order-in-Appeal No. 566-569 dated 31.08.2004 has upheld the order of confiscation, however, had reduced the penalty by 50%. Still an appeal was preferred by Shri Badri Narayan Sharma before this Tribunal which was allowed vide Order No. A/523378/2015 SM dated 04.08.2015 with... the directions to the adjudicating authority to release the impugned goods to the Appellant therein i.e. Shri Badri Narayan Sharma.

5. Consequent to the said order that an application dated 18.09.2015 was filed by the Appellant seeking release of the seized goods. The said application was adjudicated by the Order bearing No.01/Refund/2015, dated 14.12.2015. It was observed that Dy.
Commissioner, by the said order, had sanctioned an amount of Rs. 4,84,545/- the value of sales proceeds of 10 gold biscuits and 3 pieces of gold in favour of the Appellant. The Appellant being aggrieved filed an appeal challenging the order on the ground that the original adjudicating authority has committed the contempt for not obeying the order of CESTAT dated 04.08.2015 vide which the seized gold was ordered to be released. The sale proceeds of the seized gold as on 26.03.2001 were alleged to be illegal and improper and contrary to the aforesaid verdict. However, the appeal thereof was also rejected.
Consequent thereto the Appellant is before this Tribunal.

6. We have heard Shri Jatin Mahajan, learned Advocate for the Appellant and Mr. K.
Poddar, learned AR for the Department, it is submitted that department had not followed any procedure for the disposal of the gold and the said fact has been admitted by the department vide their letter dated 16.03.2018. It is further emphasized that as per the procedure laid down in Customs Preventive Manual, department is duty bound to issue notice to the owner or to the person from whom such goods were recovered. In the present case admittedly, no such notice was issued. The disposal of the gold, therefore, is bad in law. Appellant, therefore, is entitled either for the return of the gold seized.
Finally, submitting that irrespective there was the dispute regarding the ownership of the goods, the procedure laid down for disposal of the goods as per Department's manual was strictly to be followed. The failure thereof entitles the Appellant to have the present market value of the gold disposed of. Order under challenge is, accordingly, prayed to be set aside, appeal is prayed to be allowed.

7. Per contra learned DR has submitted that the initial show cause notice was adjudicated vide Order dated 23.03.2000 the confiscation of the seized gold was confirmed vide Order-in-Appeal No. 566-569/2004 dated 31.08.2004. It is further submitted that there was ambiguities about the ownership of the gold. Initially, vide Order dated 13.05.2005 Shri Narayan Sharma was held to be the owner of the gold seized. Subsequently, a miscellaneous application was filed by Shri Badri Narayan Sharma who filed an appeal before this Tribunal in the year 2005 against the order of Commissioner Appeals dated 31.08.2004. The Tribunal observed that the appeal of Badri Narayan Sharma has already been disposed of vide Order dated 13.05.2005. This created a doubt in the mind of the Bench about as to who is real Badri Narayan Sharma.
Matter was, accordingly, referred to identify the real Badri Narayan Sharma. It is thereafter that the order dated 04.08.2015 was passed. Since the goods were seized as early as on 02.06.1999 and were confiscated vide Order in original dated 23.03.2000 that the department undertook the process of disposal of seized/confiscated goods. It is due to this reason that the order dated 04.08.2015 of this Tribunal directing the release of impugned goods to the Appellant could not be complied with. However, in furtherance thereof the amount of sale proceeds as was received at the time of disposal of confiscated goods was released to the Appellant vide Cheque No. 109003 dated 11.12.2015 for an amount of Rs. 4,84,585/- which has already been encashed by the Appellant on 11.01.2016. Impressing upon that the disposal of seized gold was absolutely in furtherance of the procedure as prescribed under the statute and the department manual and that there is no infirmity in the order upholding the sanction of sale proceeds while complying the order of this Tribunal dated 04.08.2015, the appeal is, accordingly, prayed to be dismissed.

8. After hearing the rival contentions and perusing the entire record, I am of the opinion that the moot question to be adjudicated herein is as to Whether in view of the given facts and circumstances and the order of this Tribunal dated 04.08.2015, the appellant is entitled to receive the market value of the gold as prevalent for the year 2015 despite that the said gold was disposed of in the year 2001 for value of Rs. 4,84,585/-.

To adjudicate the same the notification No. 31/1986- Customs dated 05.02.1986 as has been brought to the notice by the department is hereby perused. This notification specifies the goods which have to be dealt with in accordance of Section 110(1A) of Customs Act, 1962. The same reads as follows:

(1A) The Central Government may, having regard to the perishable or hazardous nature of any goods, depreciation in the value of the goods with the passage of time, constraints of storage space for the goods or any other relevant considerations, by notification in the Official Gazette, specify the goods or class of goods which shall, as soon as may be after its seizure under sub-section (1), be disposed of by the proper officer in which manner as the Central Government may, from time to time, determine after following the procedure hereinafter specified.

From this notification it is apparent that gold in all forms, including bullions, ingot, coin, ornament, crude jewellery is one of the specified goods therein.

9. Further it is observed that the gold was seized on 02.06.1999, the order of confiscation was announced on 23.03.2000. The aforesaid provision permits the disposal of seized goods. In the present case pursuant to the said seizure the original adjudicating authority had confirmed the confiscation where after only the department proceeded for disposal of goods, it being one of the specified goods, in terms of the notification as passed under Section 110(1A) of the Customs Act.

10. I further observe that Section 1B of 110 of Customs Act provides a procedure to be undertaken by the proper officers for disposal of the goods. It is apparent from record that the said procedure was also duly followed by the department as the inventory of the seized goods was got prepared on 02.06.1999 on the date of seizure itself. The same was also got verified by the Additional Civil Judge (Jr. Division)-Cum-Judicial-Magistrate, Bikaner that too twice i.e. on 03.06.1999 and also on 16.05.2000. Thereafter the impugned goods were deposited in the Malkhana of New Customs House, IGI Airport, New Delhi on 13.07.2000 from where the gold was handed over to State Bank of India (SBI) on 20.03.2001 for disposal which was ultimately sold by SBI on 26.03.2001 for an amount of Rs. 4,84,545/. This particular perusal is clear enough to show that the disposal of goods was very much in compliance of the statutory procedure. Otherwise also there is always a presumption of correctness in the act of discharge of duty by a competent officer as was held by Tribunal, Chennai in the case of Ajanta Music Palace Vs. Collector of Customs reported as 1993 (68) ELT 414. There is no evidence produced by the Appellant to rebut the said presumption.

11. It is further perused that the order of confiscation of year 2000 was confirmed by Commissioner Appeals vide the order dated 31.08.2004, it is mentioned by the department that at the time of the said adjudication before Commissioner Appeals, the factum of disposal was brought to the notice of the Appellant. Though the said order is not on record. However, it is simultaneously not the case of the Appellant that the disposal of gold during pendency of appeal before Commissioner (Appeals) was ever objected by the Appellant. The said order of 31.08.2004 was assailed by Appellant before this Tribunal vide his appeal No. C/254/2005. There also the present Appellant except highlighting the controversy of his mistaken identity had failed to challenge the disposal of the seized gold.

12. It is coming apparent from the order of 24.07.2015 of this Tribunal that the order of appeal dated 31.08.2004 passed by Commissioner (Appeals) confirming the confiscation was earlier appealed by Shri Badri Narayan Sharma on 31.08.2004 was already assailed by Shri Badri Narayan Sharma and the said appeal was disposed of vide order dated 13.05.2005. Appellant had put no effort to place on record the copy of the previous appeal to prove that the disposal of the seized gold either was never brought to his notice or ever was challenged by him. There is no denial of Shyam Lal Pal admittedly the servant of the present Appellant to have received the notice at the time of the disposal of the seized goods. Resultantly, I am of the opinion that the disposal of the seized goods was absolutely in accordance of the statutory provisions. The order of return of seized gold has been announced 14 years later than the said disposal. What can be returned while complying with the directions of return of seized gold is the sale proceeds of the said gold received at the time of disposal thereof. Also it is apparent that present appellant was held owner of the seized & confiscated gold vide order of this Tribunal dated 13.05.2005. Time taken till the order of Tribunal dated 24.07.2015 directing the return of the impugned gold is on account of mistaken identity of Shri Badri Narayan the appellant himself. The order of confiscation was otherwise served on Shyam Lal Pal as well as Shri Badri Narayan who was held owner of the impugned gold vide order of the year 2005. The said Badri Narayan impersonated the actual Badri Narayan whose appeal was decided in his favour in the year 2015 does not reflect any mistake or even delay on part of Department. It is already held that they followed due procedure for disposal of said gold in the year 2001.

13. The Hon’ble High Court of Bombay in the case of Shabbir Ahmed Abdul Rehman Vs. Union of India reported as 2009 (35) ELT 402 has held that when the confiscated gold was handed over for disposal immediately after serving the order of confiscation thereof. The sale of the said gold during the pendency of appeal before Commissioner Appeals is though not justified. However, the claim of the petitioner in seeking the market value of gold cannot be accepted. The Customs Authority is liable to return the entire sale proceeds, however, without deducting there from the duty. In the present case the gold was sold after the confirmation of confiscation and prior the appeal challenging the same was filed. The said order of Bombay High court has been affirmed by Hon’ble Supreme court vide the decision reported as 2010(253)ELT A142 Tribunal Ahmedabad also in the case of Om Merchant Exports Pvt. Ltd. Vs. CCE, Lucknow 2017(358) ELT 643 has held that the appellant therein to be entitled for immediate release of their confiscated goods. It was, simultaneously, held that in case the goods have been auction sold in meantime, the Appellant shall be entitled to sale proceeds of the same in accordance with law. The plea of Appellant of no notice being served before disposal is otherwise not acceptable in view of the admitted mistaken identity of the owner of the gold. Admittedly and apparently, two different persons representing them as Badri Narayan Sharma filed the appeal challenging the order of confiscation of the goods, as discussed above.

14. In the given circumstances and in the light of the fact that gold is a commodity the value where of has been increased enormously since the date of impugned disposal in the year 2001 till the date of the order of return in the year 2015 and that there is no apparent fault on part of the department while disposing the same. The department rather has duly complied with the order of return of confiscated goods of the year 2015 by refunding the sale proceeds of the gold as was received in the year 2001. The said amount has duly been encashed by the Appellant that to more than a year prior filing of the impugned appeal.

15. As a result the question framed herein above is answered with the finding that in the given facts & circumstance, the order of this Tribunal dated 04.08.2015 stands duly complied with when department returned the sale proceeds of impugned gold as were received in the year 2001 when this gold was auction sold. Thus the appellant is not held entitled for the gold as such nor for its market value as prevalent in the year 2015. Seen from any angle, there is opined no infirmity in the order under challenge. The appeal in hand has no legal ground to succeed. Appeal is, accordingly, dismissed.

Per: Rachna Gupta:

None is present for the Appellant. Learned D.R has brought to the notice that this appeal has been remanded back by the Hon’ble High court of Delhi vide the final order dated 26.11.2018. It is impressed upon the Revenue that it has approached the High court being aggrieved of final order of this Tribunal bearing no. A/56364-56365/2017 dated 01.09.2017. On merits, the appeal of Revenue has been allowed and the matter has been remanded only for the limited purpose of adjudicating certain other issues, including particularly the question of limitations. It’s also impressed upon that in fact there is no other issue as has been raised by the Appellant in the grounds of appeal. Since the demand against him stands already confirmed and since there is no notice for any appeal to have been filled by the assessee against the Hon’ble High court possibility of Appellant to no more be interested in pursuing the present appeal can not be ruled out.

In view of the submissions, the order of Hon’ble High court is perused and the appeal in hand is disposed of in the following terms:

A show cause notice bearing no. 556 dated 21.06.2013 was served upon the Appellant observing the contravention on part of Appellant exporter for the provisions of para 4.55 point 3 hand book of restructure volume 1(2004-2009)/ volume 1 of FTP 2009-2014 which enjoined the exporters to disclose technical characteristics, quality and specifications of the essential oil said to have been used in manufacture of Paan Masala/Gutka in their shipping bills at the time of export and thereafter while applying for the duty free import authorisation (DFA licences) under chapter 4 of Foreign trade policy 2004 to 2009.

Accordingly, the confiscation of goods & the imposition of penalty upon the Appellant was proposed. The proposal was confirmed by the original adjudicating authority vide order no. 08/2015 dated 04.06.2015. The said order was set aside vide the Order of single member bench of this Tribunal bearing No. A/56364- 56365/2017 dated 01.09.2017. Being aggrieved the department approached the Hon’ble High court of Delhi. It is observed that Hon’ble High court has been of the considered view that the arguments of Revenue have merits and deserves acceptance. The contention of the exporter that the declaration requirement of the exception notification is applicable only if the exported goods are included in the list of items enumerated in paragraph 4.55.3 was not accepted by the Hon’ble High court. In furtherance whereof the following questions were framed:

(i) Did the Customs Excise and Sales Tax Appellate Tribunal (hereinafter ‘CESTAT’) fall into error in its interpretation of Notification No. 40/2006-Cus dated 01.05.2006, and also with respect to para 4.55.3 of the Handbook of Procedure for Export and Import;

(ii) Did the CESTAT err in law in its appreciation of specifications that the exporter had to provide and the declaration required, in terms of the above Notification No. 40/2006-Cus read with para 4.55.3 of the Handbook of Procedure for Export and Import) in the circumstances of the case?"

The same have been decided in affirmative i.e. in favour of Revenue and against the assessee. The matter has been remanded for certain other issues, including particularly the question of limitations to be reconsidered by this Tribunal as is apparent from para 19 of the said order of Hon'ble High Court.

At this stage, grounds of appeal are perused. There is no other issue as has been raised by the Appellant then the merits/facts/circumstances as were required for the adjudication of the aforementioned two issues except that in para 23 thereof the issue of bar of limitation has been raised on the ground that no ingredients of section 28 of the Customs and Excise Act has been invoked. No doubt the show cause notice in the present case has been issued after a period of expiry of two years as mentioned in the said section. But the show cause notice itself has alleged the suppression of facts on part of the exporter. The same has even been confirmed by the original adjudicating authority as in Para-21 of the order dated 04.06.2015 it is appreciated that the non-disclosure of the technical characteristics as a consciously done act of the exporter. It has also been held in Para-22 thereof:

On scrutiny of the said correspondences it was observed that DGFT, Kanpur had issued SCN dated 18.07.2012 to the Exporters under Section 13 of Foreign Trade Development & Regulation (FTD&R) Act 1992 wherein, it has been inter-alia, alleged that the technical characteristic, quality and specifications of the essential oil used in the export product had not been mentioned on the Shipping Bills in contravention of 4.55.3 handbook of procedure 2004/09 thereby suppressing the facts from the licensing authority while availing facility of transferable DFIAs; that by doing so the said DFIAs were obtained by suppression of facts and utilized for the purpose for which they were not used.

When this order was challenged before the Hon'ble High court in para-6 of the order by high court, the commissioner's view that DFI licences were obtained by suppression and distortion of facts has been observed with no contrary finding to the said observations. From the record, I found no other reason to differ from the said observations of suppression and distortion of facts and the act being a consciously done act of the exporter. Hence, I am of the view that department has committed no error by invoking the extended period of limitation.

The order of remand is otherwise clear that the tribunal is bound by the decision already given by the high court. Hence, merits are no more to be touched as stands finally decided. Limitation is found to be extendable. As a result of entire above discussion, the appeal stands dismissed.

Per: Rachna Gupta:

The appellant is a 100% Export Oriented Unit and is engaged in the import of Video tape for manufacture and export of blank video cassettes out of it. The Department got a specific intelligence that video cassettes manufactured by the appellant are out of old and used tapes instead of the brand new tapes imported duty free fallen under the 100% EOU Scheme and the container of such tapes bearing No. CRXU 2689406 which had already been dispatched to Bombay on 12.09.1998. The Officers of Customs (Preventive) Branch, New Delhi reached Bombay in presence of Mumbai Port Trust got examined the said container on 30th September 1998. After breaking open four seals (intact) 640 cartons were recovered. 60 were randomly selected and examined. Each of those sample was found to contain 200 spools of video magnetic tapes packed in 46 (each set of 5 spools) and to have 850 feet tape. The Customs Officers drew samples from 12 cartons (five spools from each carton) and took the shipping bill No.1032006 dated 07.09.1998 covering the above consignment into their possession vide Panchnama dated 30.09.1998 drawn on the spot. It is after subsequent investigation in the form of searches and recording the statement of all concerned that the impugned goods were seized on 19th November, 1998 and a show cause notice under Section 124 of Customs Act, bearing No.5606 dated 19.03.1999 was served upon the appellant calling him to explain as to why the seized goods i.e. 630 cartons containing Rs.1,26,000/- pieces of video magnetic tapes shall not be confiscated and that the duty amounting to Rs.19,83,883/- as deposited by the proprietor of the appellant on 16.10.1998 (Rs.18,00,000/-) and on 08.10.1998 (Rs.1,83,883/-) may not be adjusted against the duty of customs foregone by the appellant on the import of the goods alongwith the imposition of penalty upon the appellant.

1.1 The said Show cause notice was adjudicated by Commissioner of Customs (General) vide order No.36 dated 02.08.2000 against the appellant. An appeal was filed before CEGAT. Vide Final Order No.459 dated 27.03.2002 the Tribunal remanded the case to the adjudicating authority for a fresh adjudication after allowing the cross-examination of Station Engineer, Doordarshan Kendra, New Delhi (who tendered his report about tapes) and after affording a reasonable opportunity of hearing to the appellant, it is thereafter that the matter was re-adjudicated vide Order-in-Original No.43 dated 03.12.2004 vide which the impugned goods were confiscated along with the appropriation of the duty amount herein. However, an option to get redeem the said goods on payment of fine of Rs.10.00 Lakhs was given. In addition, the penalty was also imposed. An appeal was again filed against this order, which was decided vide Final Order No.249 dated 20.03.2007 of CESTAT upholding the order of Original adjudicating authority. However, against this order and also against the Final Order of CEGAT No.459 dated 27.03.2002 that the civil appeal was filed in Supreme Court, which was decided vide order dated 02.09.2008 remanding the matter on the question of limitation, as the matter was already been remanded by the Tribunal to the Commissioner for fresh decision on merits. It is thereafter that the order under challenge i.e. Order No. 32/2008 dated 31.12.2008 was announced confirming the demand of the impugned show cause notice after holding the show cause notice well within the period of limitation. The appellants still being aggrieved have preferred the impugned appeal.

2. It is submitted on behalf of the appellant that appellant was 100% EOU and the magnetic tapes which were imported by the appellant were used to be stored in its bonded warehouse under the supervision of Central Excise authorities. The finished goods i.e. the spools of these tapes and the cassettes were also under the lock and key of the Central Excise Authorities. Hence, the Commissioner, Customs had no authority to issue the show cause notice. The order under challenge has failed to consider this aspect, despite the matter being remanded time and again. It is impressed upon that the customs authority do not qualify to be called as, “proper officer”, as required under the statute, to issue the notice specially when “let-export” order was issued by Central Excise Officer. It is further submitted that the goods were detained on 19.09.1998 at Mumbai. The show cause notice issued on 19.03.1999 and served on 28.03.1999 was beyond the limitation as the period had to reckon from the date of detention itself but the adjudicating authority has committed an error while distinguishing detention from seizure. The Id. Counsel has relied upon Ferro Alloys Corporation Ltd. Vs. Collector of Appeals, Bhubaneswar - 1995 (77) ELT 310 (L.B.) and on Pharma Chemicals reported in 2005 (181) ELT 339 (S.C.). It is also submitted that no demand of duty can be ordered without issuance of SCN. Reliance is placed upon:

- Nath International Corp Vs. CC, Mumbai 2003 (152) E.L.T. 430 (T)

It is also submitted that reliance is placed upon:

- Uma Rajeshwarrao Patra Vs. UOI 1999 (109) E.L.T. 123 (Cal.)
- Kantilal Somehand Shah and Anr. Vs. CC & CCE, West Bengal and Anr. 1982 (10) E.L.T. 902 (Cal.)

3. With respect to the merits of the case, it is submitted that the decision is solely based upon the test report from Doordarshan, but there have been doubts as to the fairness of the testing for the reason that there was no test memo prepared by the Department. The samples were obtained in the form of spools but as per the report these were the video cassettes which have been examined. It has specifically been admitted by Doordarshan Kendra vide letter dated 28.04.2006 that the Kendra has no testing laboratory for testing VHS video tapes nor they have the equipments to carry out physical tests on the video nor even any machine to assemble the video tapes from hub form to cassettes form. Thus, the report cannot be looked into and there remains no other reason for ordering confiscation of the seized goods of the appellant nor there was any reason for imposition of penalty. The order under challenge is accordingly prayed to be set aside. Reliance is placed upon:

- York Exports Vs. CC (Exports) 2004 (169) E.L.T. 175 (T)
- Nanavati Engineering Co. (P) Ltd. Vs. CCE 2000 (40) RLT 240 (T)
- Hari Kewal Vanaspati Mills Vs. CCE 2010 (262) E.L.T. 331 (T)
4. While rebutting these arguments, it is submitted by the Department that present case is not covered by Ferro Alloys case because irrespective of duality of control of Excise Commissionerate as well as Customs Commissionerate, in case of 100% EOU, but the moment manufactured goods leave the premises under the control of Excise Commissionerate, Customs Commissionerate acquires jurisdiction. Notification No. 27 dated 07.07.1997 has been relied upon and it is submitted that Commissioner, Customs was the competent officer/the proper officer to issue the impugned show cause notice.

4.1 With respect to the limitation issue, it is submitted that Mumbai Customs received a letter dated 28.09.1998 about the impugned consignment to be restrained for the purpose of examination. It is in furtherance thereof that the goods were detained on 28.09.1998 itself and were examined on 30.09.1998. It is after this examination that the goods were seized on 19.11.1998. Resultantly, the show cause notice as issued on 27.03.1999 is well within the period of 6 months. Limitation issue has rightly been adjudicated against the appellant by the order under challenge.

4.2 With respect to the merits of the case, it is submitted that the proprietor of appellant Mr. Rakesh Kumar Bhagat himself vide his voluntary statement dated 05.10.1998 admitting entire incrimination against him confessing that the video tapes which were imported by him vide bill of entry No.111376 dated 09.10.1997 were sold by him in the local market in India. He also admitted for purchasing old and used video cassettes from the local market and export the same packed in 630 cartons vide shipping bill No.1032006 dated 07.09.1998. There is no retraction of this admission which otherwise is the best evidence against the appellant, except Mr. Bhagat’s Counsel letter dated 23.11.1998. It is impressed upon that said letter has rightly been ignored by the adjudicating authority while confirming the confiscation, appropriation of duty and imposing the penalty. It is further submitted that at the first round of litigation, the appellant was allowed to cross-examine the Engineer from Doordarshan Kendra. Nothing cogent in favour of the appellant could come on record out of the said cross-examination as may support the appellant.

5. Thus, the order under challenge has no infirmity. Appeal is accordingly prayed to be dismissed.

6. After hearing both the parties and perusing the entire record, we observe and hold as follows:-

Appellant has raised two issues, one about jurisdiction of the officer who issued SCN and another about the said SCN being hit by principle of limitation. I deal with these issues separately as:

6.1 JURISDICTION

6.1.1 The Issue to be decided is as to whether the Commissioner, Customs had competent jurisdiction to issue a show cause notice proposing confiscation, to a 100% EOU under the supervision of Central Excise Officers.

6.1.2 The appellant is impressing upon that the Commissioner, Customs is not the proper officer for the purpose and he has placed reliance upon Ferro Alloy (supra) case. Perusal of this decision shows that the Tribunal was of the opinion that in a situation of clearance of warehoused goods, the jurisdiction for raising demand for short levy or refund on re-assessment will be with the proper officer under Central Excise Act granting ex-bond clearance. Thus, it becomes clear that jurisdiction of a Custom House in case of 100% EOU has been barred by this decision for such short levy or refund on re-assessment where the goods were assessed on an "into-bond" bill of entry for the purpose of being warehoused or on "ex-bond" clearance from said warehouse.

6.1.3 But the fact of the present case is that the goods manufactured in the EOU of appellant had left the warehouse and had reached Mumbai Customs after having been given “Let Export Order” by Delhi Customs and it was an intelligence by Delhi Customs only on the basis of which the goods were intercepted detained and subsequently seized. Thus, I am of the opinion that above referred case law is not applicable, facts being distinct.
6.1.4 In the case of EOU there is duality of jurisdiction. The proper Officer of Excise has jurisdiction till the goods are warehoused and are released for clearance, but beyond this stage, the proper officer is the one under Customs Act. Otherwise also, in case of exports, the Customs procedure finds conclusion at the Customs because thereafter the goods actually leave the Indian Territory. Notification 27 dated 07.07.1997 as impressed upon by the Department is perused vide entry No.7 of the said Notification Commissioner of Customs, Delhi has been declared as the proper officer to carry out Customs Procedure. Thus, the moment the manufactured goods enter the precincts of Customs Commissionerate they have to be dealt with by them and Notification No. 27 has to come into play. This stands clarified from Section 69 of the Customs Act, which speaks about clearance of warehoused goods for export, Section 2 (34) of the Customs Act define proper officer in relation to any functions to be performed under this Act to mean the officer of Customs. Stage clearance of warehoused goods onwards is a function under Customs Act, the proper Officer is definitely the Officer of Customs. The situation stands clarified vide Circular No.126 dated 12.12.1995 stands modified vide Circular No.27 of 10.05.1996. It has been clarified that there is no overlapping of jurisdiction but a clear cut demarcation of function to be performed by Central Excise Commissionerate and Customs formation. Since in the present case, the goods were intercepted at Mumbai Customs area. They had already reached into the jurisdiction of Customs Commissionerate. To my opinion, the Commissioner, Customs was the competent /“proper Officer” to issue the impugned show cause notice. The issue of jurisdiction is therefore decided against the appellant.

Whether the show cause notice dated 19.03.1999 is within the period of 6 months in terms of Section 124 of the Customs Act.

6.2.1 The appellants’ plea is that the goods were detained on 30.09.1998 itself. Hence, the period of 6 months as mentioned under Section 124 of Customs Act has to reckon from this date. It is emphasized that detention and seizure has no different meaning. However, the Department has rebutted the arguments. To adjudicate, I observe that seizure is made under Section 110 (1) of the Customs Act which says that if the proper Officer has reason to believe that any goods are liable for confiscation under this Act, he may seize such goods. From the bare reading, it becomes clear that prior seizing the goods, the proper Officer has to do such act which may give him a reason to believe that the goods are liable for confiscation. Thus, the seizure under Section 110 connotes something different from the simple and mere detention of the goods for the examination thereof for sake of reason as mentioned in Section 110(1) of Customs Act.

6.2.2 It was way-back been clarified by Hon’ble High Court of Kolkata in the case of Collector vs. Hindustan Motors reported in 1979 (4) ELT 313 that mere direction of the proper Officer asking the owner of the goods to not to remove them except with the permission may be a simple prohibitory order but when there is an overt act that amounts to exercise of dominion over the goods that it becomes an act of seizure of goods. Hon’ble Allahabad High Court in State of Uttar Pradesh vs. Lavkush Kumar has also made a distinction between detention and seizure stating that detention can be for the purpose of enquiries without making seizure. It was clarified by Hon’ble High Court of Madras in another case of Promusical vs. Joint Commissioner of Customs (Preventive) Mumbai that at the time of enquiry the assessee has all opportunity to produce the documentary proof in order to establish the correctness. If the documents prove bona fide, the goods detained shall be returned with immediate effect without any formal procedure to be followed. But in case those documents are not sufficient to satisfy the objection raised by the Competent Officer, it is at this stage that the control of goods shall be taken by the Department and loss of complete domain over the goods and the technical order of the competent authority about something called as seizure is announced.

6.2.3 This distinction is sufficient for us to hold that the detention is a case prior of acquiring convection that seizure is required and hence is different from seizure. As per Section 124 of Customs Act, period of 6 months has to reckon from the date of seizure. Resultantly, I am of the opinion that the show cause notice is well within the limitation period. In view of above discussion and the quoted law, the case law as relied upon by the appellant is not applicable.

7. Now coming to the merits of the case, it is impressed upon by the appellant that the statement of Mr. Rakesh Kumar Bhagat dated 05.10.1998 as is relied upon by the adjudicating authority to confirm the demand and impose the penalty was retracted vide letter dated 23.11.1998, since it amounts to withdrawal of admission, if any, the same cannot be read against the appellant. The order confirming the penalties is therefore, liable to be set aside.

7.1 The submission is rebutted on the ground that retraction has come beyond 45 days and that the appellant had already deposited the duty and the value of confiscated goods that too voluntarily.

8. In the light of these submissions and perusing the record, I observe that the Proprietor of appellant vide his first statement had admitted about the discrepancy, as noticed by the Department, to have been committed by him that he was manufacturing blank video cassettes out of the raw-material (tape) imported vide Bill of Entry No. 111376 dated 09.10.1997 and was releasing them to the bonded warehouse. Also that he sold those cassettes in the open market in India. He also admitted about purchasing old and used video cassettes from the local market and about manufacturing 126000 pieces of Video Tapes on single hubs of 850 feet length for 3 Hours duration and subsequently exported the same packed in 630 cartons vide shipping bills No.1032006 dated 07.09.1998. I also observe that on the very next date of this statement, he deposited duty amounting to Rs.18.00 Lakhs and remaining Rs.1,83,883/- were deposited on the next date without taking any protest about the statement to be got recorded under pressure, threat or coercion. This act of the appellant to my opinion is sufficient corroboration to the admission of appellant's guilt. Had that been the fact, there was no compulsion on the appellant to deposit the duty confirmed.

8.1 Though there has been a letter dated 23.11.1998 retracting the said admission but to our opinion same is not sufficient, in view of above discussed circumstances and also for the reason that the retraction came not from the horses mouth but by the appellants' Counsel that too vide a letter. Hon'ble High Court of Madras in the case of Collector of Central Excise vs. V.K. Ranganathan as decided in the year 1995 has held that the admissions made before the statutory authorities are binding upon the person concerned in the Departmental proceedings a retraction of confession that too belated is not withstanding. In view thereof, the Counsel's letter is not opined to be sufficient withdrawal of the admission which was already acted upon without any protest. I therefore, find no infirmity in the order while relying upon the confessional statement of the proprietor of the appellant for confirming the impugned demand.

9. Finally coming to the grievance of the appellant about the test report as prepared by Doordarshan about the impugned samples, I am of the opinion that to test the veracity of the examiner thereof, the appellant was granted the opportunity of cross-examination. Perusal thereof shows that the test report mentioned the initials AKM i.e. of Mr. Anil Kumar Mangli, who was Station Engineer, Doordarshan Kendra, Delhi and was competent to conduct the impugned test.

10. It was admitted by the witness that Doordarshan Kendra had tape recording maintenance unit and all those tests were carried out by the said unit. With respect to no use of testing equipment it was deposed that the physical condition of video tapes were so bad that no such equipment was required. From the physical appearance itself, the tape had scratches and wrinkles on the edges i.e., the condition was such as no new tape could have. Further deposed that the test clarified that the tapes have erased characteristics as such no further elaboration was required to hold that the tapes of the samples recovered by impugned PanchNama were the old and used tapes. The reply of Doordarshan Kendra dated 28.04.2006 as impressed upon by the appellant is opined to have no significance in view of the above deposition as made by the witness, who prepared the test report. The entire above evidence also falsifies any need for Department to investigate the scrap vendors from the local market from whom the appellant admittedly purchased the old video cassettes.

11. In view of entire above discussion, we do not find any infirmity in the order under challenge. Same is accordingly, upheld. Appeal stands dismissed.

Per: Ashok Jindal:

The appellant is in Appeal against the impugned order wherein the export consignment has been confiscated and part consignment is allowed to be redeemed on payment of redemption fine and penalties are also imposed.

2. The facts of the case are that the appellant filed a shipping bill on 14.04.2014 for export of handicraft items. There were 70 packages packed in a consignment, which were packed in a container. On examination of the container containing the consignment, it was found that out of 70 consignments 6 packets are red sanders, which is prohibited item and cannot be exported. In these set of facts, proceedings were initiated against the appellant. Various statements were recorded. Thereafter, the show cause notice was issued to the appellant to confiscate the entire consignment and to take action against the appellant. The matter was adjudicated. The 6 packets of red sanders were absolutely confiscated. Remaining goods, namely, handicraft furniture of woods /metal were held liable for confiscation and allowed to redeem on redemption fine of Rs.2.00 Lakhs. Penalties under Section 114 (i) & 114 (iii) of the Customs Act, 1962 were imposed of Rs.5.00 Lakhs and 3.00 Lakhs respectively. Against the said order, appellant is before me.

3. The ld. Counsel for the appellant submits that the value taken by the authorities below while valuing the red sanders as well as the handicraft furniture is not correct. As the value of the whole consignment was about Rs.11.00 lakhs and value of red sanders is of about Rs.1,38,000/- but they have taken the value of red sanders at Rs.3,06,000/- and others at Rs.11,27,111/- respectively. But nothing was explained how the value of the said goods were arrived. Therefore, the value taken by the Revenue and imposing redemption fine is not correct. He further submits that as all the goods were separately packed in separate packages, therefore, the handicraft furniture of woods/ metal cannot be confiscated as held by this Tribunal in the case of Mazda Chemicals vs. CC (Prev.), Ahmedabad - 1996 (88) ELT 767 (Tri.) and Santosh Radio Products vs. CC (Port), Kolkata - 2018 (359) ELT (713) (Tri.-Kolkata). He further submitted that if the goods are held liable for confiscation, in that circumstances also, the redemption fine imposed of 2.00 Lakhs on the appellant is on higher side.

4. With regard to penalty imposed of Rs.3.00 Lakhs under Section 114 (iii) of the Customs Act, it is his submission that the said penalty can impose only if the goods are held liable for confiscation under Section 113 of the Act and in this case goods were not confiscated under Section 113 of the Act, therefore, penalty under Section 114(iii) cannot be imposed. With regard to penalty is of Rs.5.00 Lakhs imposed on the appellant, it is his submission that the value of red sanders is Rs.1,38,000/- whereas penalty imposed of Rs.5.00 Lakhs which is on higher side. With regard to absolute confiscation of red sanders, it is his submission that red sander has been loaded without the knowledge of the appellant by the staff of the appellant. Therefore, the red sanders cannot be confiscated, as the same has been purchased by the appellant under auction by Tamil Nadu Government and appellant has applied for a license on 13th February, 2014 for manufacturing certain items out of that red sander. Therefore, he prayed that impugned order is to be set aside.

5. On the other hand, ld. A.R. supported the impugned order and submits that red sander is a prohibited item and cannot be exported. Therefore, appellant was exporting red sander under the guise of handicraft items. In that circumstance, whole of the consignment is liable to be confiscated and redemption fine and penalty imposed on the appellants are justified.

6. Heard both the parties. Considered the submissions.

7. On consideration of submissions made by both the sides, the facts are not in dispute that the appellant filed a shipping bill containing 70 packages and on examination 6 packages were found of red sanders. On being asked about the invoice, the ld. Counsel for the appellant failed to produce the invoice before the Bench for proper examination of the contents of the invoice. Therefore, adverse view has been taken against the appellant and it is observed that in the guise of handicraft furniture and woods/metals the appellant intended to export red sander. Therefore, red sander is absolutely confiscated. For that part of the order, I do not find any infirmity.

8. With regard to the confiscation of handicraft furniture and wood/metals the main contention of the ld. Counsel for the appellant is that they were in separate packages and are free items for export. Therefore, the same cannot be confiscated. To support this contention he relied on the two decisions of this Tribunal, viz. Mazda Chemicals (supra) and Santosh Radio Products (supra). I have gone through both the decisions. In the case of Mazda Chemicals (supra), I find that from the facts, it is not coming out whether it is an export consignment or import consignment. Moreover, the case of the appellant in the said case was absolute confiscation of Soda Ash whereas in the Truck containing certain contravened items. But in that said case, the appellant did not sought the release of the contravened items and disowned the same. But in this case both red sander as well as handicraft items are owned by the appellant. Therefore, facts of the said case are not applicable to this case. Further, in that case of Santosh Radio Products (supra), the appellant was an importer and having no knowledge of the goods found in the container. But in this case, the red sander as well as the other handicraft items were owned by the appellant and shipped from their own premises for export of the same. Therefore, the said facts are not applicable in this case.

9. Further, the ld. Counsel for the appellant has raised an issue of valuation, how the valuation has been arrived. On the contrary the appellant has failed to produce the invoices of the said goods. Therefore, the valuation taken by the Revenue is taken as correct. At this time, the Bench also found that as the appellant has raised an issue of valuation, therefore, why not matter be transferred to Division Bench of this Tribunal, but on perusal of the records, I find that the said issue has been dealt by this Tribunal on 28.09.2018 wherein, this Tribunal hold that it is a case of mis-declaration and is to be dealt by Single Member Bench. Therefore, I am dealing this issue.

10. Therefore, I hold that the other goods are also liable for confiscation as in the guise of these goods, the appellant sought export of red sander. As goods are held liable for confiscation, but these goods are not contravened goods, therefore, allowed to be redeemed on payment of redemption fine of Rs.1,50,000/-.
11. With regard to penalty of Rs.3.00 Lakhs imposed on the appellant, as it has been held that goods are liable for confiscation, therefore, penalty under Section 114 (iii) is rightly imposed on the appellant to the tune of Rs.3.00 Lakhs. Therefore, penalty of Rs.3.00 Lakhs imposed on the appellant is affirmed.

12. With regard to penalty of Rs. 5.00 Lakhs imposed on the appellant under Section 114 (i) of the Customs Act, 1962 for attempting to export prohibited goods, I find that the said penalty imposed on the appellant is on higher side; therefore, the same is reduced to Rs.3.00 Lakhs.

13. In view of the above, the following order is passed:-

a) Red sander being 450 Kg is absolutely confiscated.

b) The other goods, namely, handicraft furniture of wood/metal are liable for confiscation and can be redeemed on payment of redemption fine of Rs.1,50,000/-.

c) Penalty of Rs.3.00 Lakhs under Section 114 (iii) of the Customs Act, 1962 is affirmed and penalty of Rs.3.00 Lakhs is reduced under Section 114 (i) of the Act for attempting to export of prohibited goods.

Present is an appeal preferred against Order-in-Original No.2 dated 7th February, 2018. The said adjudication is arising out of show cause notice No.5263 dated 25.09.2015 which was served upon the appellant as one of the noticee therein, on the basis of a specific intelligence as was received by the Directorate of Revenue Intelligence (DRI) about some importers being engaged in mis-declaration of LED TVs as LED TV panels, which were being cleared through various Ports in India. It was observed that the parts were got removed from these LED TVs and were being separately imported. The LED TVs were separately imported as LED panels. Those imported panels were re-fitted with those imported parts and were sold in the domestic market as LED TVs. In furtherance thereof, various searches were conducted by the Department including in the premises of the present appellant that is M/s. Gyani Electronics Repairs and M/s. Mania Enterprises, both at Saraswati Marg, Karol Bagh, New Delhi. The appellant being the proprietor of both the firms was present at the time of the search whereby 60 pieces of complete LED TVs were recovered being packed in their respective original cartons of LED TVs bearing details as that of brand-name, model No. etc. However, no valid documents were recovered or produced by the appellant establishing the legal procurement of the said 60 pieces of LED TVs. Thus, the Department got a reasonable belief that the TVs so recovered are liable to confiscation. Accordingly, the impugned show cause notice was served upon proposing the confiscation as well as the penalties upon the appellant and other two co-noticees. The said proposal has been confirmed vide the order under challenge. Being aggrieved, the appellant is before this Tribunal.

2. I have heard Ms. Priyadarshi Manish, ld. Advocate for the appellant and Mr. P.R. Gupta, ld. D.R. for the Department.

3. It is submitted on behalf of the appellant that the order of absolute confiscation is absolutely erroneous as the confiscation has been confirmed on the ground not only of the TVs proposed to have been improperly imported but also on the ground that BIS certification was not available for the goods in question. It is impressed upon that all the LED TVs as recovered from the appellants’ premises, the cartons thereof specifically mentioned that the TVs are of 80CMs i.e. 31.5 Inches. She impressed upon the RTI information as received from Ministry of Electronics and Information Technology to impress upon that the BIS is required for LED TVs where the screen size is 32 Inches and above. It is submitted that since the TV in Question were less than 32 Inches, the adjudicating authority has committed an error while still ordering confiscation of those TVs for want of BIS Registration. It is submitted that the appellant here is the small trader. The penalty imposed is not arising out of any of his fault and shall rather affect him adversely. The order under challenge is accordingly prayed to be set aside. Appeal is prayed to be allowed.

4. While rebutting these arguments, it is submitted on behalf of the Department that there was a specific intelligence received by the DRI that the various searches including the one in both the premises of the appellant were conducted. It is impressed upon that during the search of any of those premises no authenticated document proving the proper import of the impugned TVs could have been produced. Rather the appellant himself admitted that the LED TVs were purchased from the market without any bills on cash payments but on hefty discounts from various agents. Same is sufficient to prove the improper import as has been held by the adjudicating authority. It is further submitted that all the recovered TV sets were of 32 Inches, as is clearly apparent from the model Nos. for these TVs as mentioned in the table annexed to the show cause notice. The another relied upon document by the adjudicating authority is the confirmation from M/s.Soni India and M/s.Samsung India Electronics that none of the seized LED TVs models are registered with these companies and that the TV in their own name are being imported directly. It is also clarified that their products have BIS Certification. It is impressed upon that thus there is no infirmity while confirming the proposal of the show cause notice based on the said two grounds. Appeal is prayed to be dismissed.

5. After hearing both the parties and perusing the entire record, I observe that the Department recovered the LED TVs under question during search conducted in the premises of the appellant that too in his own presence and the Panchnama dated 27th September, 2014 was prepared that too in the presence of the appellant itself. After conducting raid in both of his companies detail of each of the LED TV recovered as far as the model, size, brand-name etc. were duly noted while seizing the same. It is thereafter that summon was served upon the appellant to get his statement recorded under Section 108 of the Customs Act. His statement got recorded on 14th November, 2014, though he failed to join the investigation at the first available opportunity. In the said statement, it is observed that there is a clear admission on part of the appellant that the LED TVs are purchased by him from the local sales without bills as the local sellers were offering the hefty discounts. These local sellers works through selling agents. Names of such few agents were disclosed by the appellant himself in the said statement. He again was summoned and a subsequent statement was recorded on 1st May, 2015, where he, after acknowledging the correctness of his previous statement dated 14th November, 2014, signed the same adding to the previous statement that the purchased TVs were cheaper as compared to those purchased against the regular bills. He clearly acknowledged that it was in his knowledge that these goods were smuggled in nature and the same were smuggled by the syndicates of those agents. However, he deposed that he purchased those TVs without bills with the motive of earning profits. The law of admission is absolutely clear that admissions needs no further proof unless and until contrary is proved or are withdrawn. I observe that despite being summoned for more than four times and despite being recorded twice there is no retraction on part of the appellant for the admission of impugned LED TVs to have been procured by way of improper imports. Rather the statement of the co-noticees goes on to further corroborate the admission of the present appellant. Thus, I do not find any infirmity in the order under challenge while directing the confiscation of goods being the result of improper import.

6. Now coming to the another ground taken about BIS Certification, I observe that it is an acknowledgement on the part of the appellant that BIS Certification is required for all such LED TVs, which are measuring 32 Inches and above, as is also apparent from the appellants emphasis about the information received from Ministry of Electronics and Information Technology dated 24th May, 2017. Though appellants defense is that the LED TVs recovered from their premises are of 80 CMs. i.e. 31.5 Inches, measurement being less than 32 Inches, no BIS registration is required. But seen from the Panchnama having the details of the TVs recovered from the appellant, as also got acknowledged by the appellant himself in his defence reply, it is apparent that there is the complete details about the model No., the size of the panel and the brand as well. Perusal thereof shows that LED for Samsung brand as well as for Sony brand are mentioned to be of 32 Inches. The appellant could not produce any other document to support that the dimension thereof was 31.5 Inches. in absence thereof and in view of the above noticed acknowledgement on part of the appellant, I hold that adjudicating authority has committed no error while holding these LED TVs of 32 Inches for which mandatory BIS Certification is required as per Electronic and Information Technology goods (Requirement of Compulsory Registration) Order, 2012 as was notified on 3rd October, 2012.

7. In view of the entire above discussion holding no infirmity in the order under challenge, same is hereby upheld. Appeal stands dismissed.

FINAL ORDER NO. A/55379/2017

Per: V Padmanabhan:

The present appeals have been filed by the appellant against the order Nos. 16/2016 dated 15.09.2016.

2. The appellant is a trader engaged in trading of calculators, watches, clocks, etc. They imported certain non branded items from China and filed Bill of Entry no. 4432821 dated 02.03.2016 declaring the goods as "Baby watch, watch modules, ladies watch, wall clock, incomplete calculators, and some accessories (PCB, solar dummy + patti, LED bulb)" declaring the assessable value amounting to Rs. 9,16,364/-.

3. On the basis of specific intelligence received from Directorate of Revenue Intelligence, the container was examined by the customs officers on 30.04.2016 and found that goods imported were unbranded and generic in nature. It was noticed during examination that the list of imported goods did not fully tally both in respect of description as well as total quantity in respect of many items declared in the Bill of Entry. Further, it was noticed that the goods declared as incomplete calculators were in fact complete calculators "in semi knock down condition (SKD)". From the components imported, complete calculator can be easily assembled by the addition of a few missing components viz. Diode number 103, connecting wire and solar panel with battery. Authorities were also of the view that the value of imported goods was mis-declared.

4. Investigations were carried out into the value of imported goods. Since the imported goods were unbranded and generic in nature, for which NIDB data should not be applied readily owing to the lack of quality mentioned in the data, market enquiries were conducted with importers in respect of various goods. Consequent upon the market enquiry assessable value was re-determined after giving standard deduction for VAT (12.5%), retailer margin (20%), wholesaler margin (15%), duty component and other incidental expenses (5%) and also Customs duty (29.441%). The total value of the goods was revised to Rs.56,61,033/- as against the declared value of Rs.9,16,364/-.

5. The Department further observed that the goods calculators imported from China were liable for anti dumping duty at the rate of US$1.22 per piece in terms of notification no. 24/15-Cus (ADD) dated 29.05.2015. Since the imported goods contained calculators in SKD form, it was proposed to levy anti dumping duty at the re-determined value. Accordingly, the Department adjudicated the goods for mis-declaration as well as levy of Anti Dumping Duty. The impugned order was passed upholding re-determination of value, levy of customs duty, anti dumping duty on the enhanced value. Penalty equal to duty was also imposed. Confiscated goods were also allowed to be redeemed on payment of fine and penalty. Penalty was imposed under section 114 equal to duty as well as under section 114 AA of the Customs Act 1962. Aggrieved by the impugned order, present appeal has been filed.

6. With the above background, we have heard Shri S.N. Panda, Advocate for the appellant and Shri R.K. Manjhi, DR for the respondent.

7. The impugned order has been challenged mainly on the following grounds:

i) The appellant has imported parts and accessories of calculators in SKD condition. Since the imported goods were not complete calculators, levy of anti dumping duty is not justified.

ii) Enhancement of value of the imported goods has also been challenged with the argument that market enquiry has been conducted by the customs authorities behind the back of the importer since relevant documents were not supplied to them.

8. The Ld. Advocate explained the grounds and also relied upon some case laws.

9. The Ld. DR supported the impugned order. He argued that what has been imported by the appellant were calculators only and the absence of one or two components should not be cited as reason for non imposition of anti dumping duty. He also argued that the enhancement of value has been accepted by the importer. Shri Jay Shiv, Proprietor of the appellant had appeared before the customs officers on 08.07.2016 in which he was shown the relevant market enquiry report dated 22.06.2016. Since the report as well as the enhancement of value has been accepted by him, the appellant cannot challenge the same in appeal.

10. Heard both the sides and perused the records.

11. The declaration of goods made in the relevant Bill of Entry by the importer was not substantiated by the examination report when the goods were taken up for 100% examination. Significant differences were noticed in respect of description as declared in the Bill of Entry as well as actual value. The quantities declared were also found to be not correct. Consequently, the charge of mis-declaration stands established against the importer and hence we find no reason to interfere with the confiscation of the goods ordered by the adjudicating authority in terms of the section 114 ibid.

12. The second issue for decision before us is whether anti dumping duty is liable to be levied on the electronic calculators imported from China in terms of notification no. 24/15-Cus (ADD) dated 29.05.2015. The above notification imposed anti dumping duty at the rate of US$ 1.22 per piece on electronic calculators imported from China. When the goods were examined, it was found that various parts and accessories of calculators have been imported which can be easily assembled to make calculators. However, it is not in dispute that the calculators will become functional only by addition of a few more components such as Diode and connecting wire, etc. Even if the imported parts and accessories make up 98% of the calculator we are of the view that the imported goods cannot be considered as calculators imported from China. Consequently, the non functional calculators cannot be levied to anti dumping duty in terms of the notification (supra). Accordingly, the levy of anti dumping duty in the impugned order is required to be set aside.

13. The appellant has also challenged the valuation adopted by the customs authorities. From records, it is seen that such re-determination of value has been carried out in terms of Rule 7 of the Customs Valuation Rules which provides for determination of value on the basis of the price of identical or similar imported goods in India. It is further seen from records, that the proprietor of the appellant, Shri Jay Shiv, was shown the market enquiry report at the time of recording his statement on 08.07.2008. Further, in the statement he has voluntarily accepted the increased valuation of the imported goods. It is settled position of law that once the importer has admitted the re-determination of value on record and has accepted the method of such valuation, he cannot... subsequently challenge the same on the same ground. Consequently, we uphold the re-determination of value carried out by the customs authorities.

14. In view of the observations above, impugned order is modified as below:

i) We uphold the re-determination of value from Rs.9,16,364/- to Rs.56,61,033/-.

ii) Customs duty is to be paid on such increased value. However, anti dumping duty will not be payable.

iii) Confiscation of goods under section 111 is upheld. Goods are however allowed for redemption on payment of fine of Rs. 7.50 lakhs.

iv) Importer will be liable for payment of penalty under section 114 A equal to the duty re-determined as above.

14. In the facts and circumstances of the case, we are of the view that penalty is not leviable under section 114 AA.

15. The appeal is partially allowed and impugned order modified as above.

Versus

SODAGAR KNITWEAR

REPRESENTED BY : Shri R.K. Manjhi, AR, for the Appellant.

Shri Avijit Dikshit, Advocate, for the Respondent.

[Order per : V. Padmanabhan, Member (T)]. - The present appeal is against the Order-in-Appeal No. CC(A) CUS/D-II/ICD/TKD/Imp/1256/2017, dated 22-11-2017 passed by the Commissioner of Customs (Appeals), New Custom House, New Delhi.

2. The respondent-assessee imported certain goods and filed Bill of Entry No. 7080250, dated 14-10-2016 under EDI at ICD, Tuglakabad, New Delhi and declared various items such as Baby Caps, Cloth Gloves, Baby Bootie, Baby Tights and Baby tops. When the goods were examined on 2nd check basis, certain discrepancies were noticed in respect of the total quantities on some of the declared goods. Further, certain extra items were also found during examination including adult jacket of ‘Versace’ brand. The Customs Authorities investigated the charges of misdeclaration as well as undervaluation of the impugned goods and recorded the statement of Sh. Eklovey Chug, Manager of the assessee firm, in which he admitted that certain goods of the nature of adult jacket of ‘Versace’ brand and children jacket were inadvertently sent by the supplier. He also admitted that the imported goods were not as per the declarations made in the Bill of Entry. Further, he also agreed with the manner of calculating the assessable value and differential duty on the basis of market enquiry conducted by the Customs Officers. The importer waived the issue of show cause notice and personal hearing. The case was adjudicated by the Additional Commissioner in which the declared transaction value was rejected under Rule 12 of the Customs Valuation Rules; the assessable value was redetermined in terms of Rule 7 and enhanced to Rs. 39,64,694/- The adjudicating authority upheld the confiscation of the goods under Section 111(1) and (m) of the Customs Act, 1962 and allowed redemption of the same on payment of redemption fine and penalties. Differential duty of customs was demanded and penalties were also imposed on the appellant as well as the Partners.

3. When the order of the Original Authority was challenged before the Commissioner (Appeals) he held that there was no misdeclaration of the goods, since the departmental officers have not recorded the length of the garment in the examination report. He also set aside the redetermination of the value of the imported goods on the basis of market enquiry. Finally, he set aside the confiscation of goods and penalties imposed. Aggrieved by the impugned order, Revenue has filed the present appeal in which it has been submitted that the Order-in-Original merits to be upheld since the importer had admitted the misdeclaration as well as redetermination of value on record. They also relied on the decision of the Tribunal in the case of Commissioner v. Jai Shiv Trading Company vide order dated 20-7-2017.

4. With the above background, we heard Sh. R.K. Manjhi, Ld. AR for the Revenue as well as Sh. Arijit Dikshit, Ld. Advocate for the assessee.

5. Heard both sides and perused record.

6. The respondent-assessee filed Bill of Entry for import of certain goods and when the consignment was examined it was noticed that, the quantities of goods imported did not tally with that declared in the Bill of Entry. It was noticed that a few extra items were also found, the details of the goods as declared and as found are given in the following table :-

7. From the above, it is evident that extra items have been found including adult jacket ‘Versace’ brand. In particular, it is evident that the branded goods bearing the brand name Versace stand imported in the consignment which has not been declared at all. Consequently, we are of the view that there has been misdeclaration on the part of the importer and hence, confiscation of the imported goods under Section 111(1) is upheld.

8. The second issue in the present appeal is regarding the value of the imported goods. The Customs Authorities redetermined the value of the imported goods in terms of Customs Valuation Rules, 2007. Since the importer had failed to advance any documents/invoice to substantiate the value of the goods, the transaction value stands rejected and the value of the goods have been redetermined as per Rule 7 of the Customs Valuation Rules, 2007. It is noteworthy that the representative of the importer has been specifically shown the basis for redetermination of the value and his statement recorded by the Customs Officers. It is on record that Sh. Eklovey Chug, Manager of the importer has specifically admitted in his statement dated 31-12-2016 that he agreed with the manner of calculating the assessable value and differential duty.

9. It is settled position of law that the facts which are admitted need not be proved. In the case of CCE, Madras v. Systems & Components Pvt. Ltd. - 2004 (165) E.L.T. 136 (S.C.), the Hon'ble Apex Court in para 5 of the order has observed as follows:

"... ... Once it is an admitted position by the party itself, that these are parts of a Chilling Plant and the concerned party does not even dispute that they have no independent use, there is no need for the department to prove the same. It is a basic and settled law what is admitted need not be proved".

10. Further, this Tribunal in the case of Jai Shiv Trading Company vide F. O., dated 20-7-2017 has observed as follows:

"The appellant has also challenged that valuation adopted by the customs authorities. From record, it is seen that such redetermination of value has been carried out in terms of Rule 7 of the Customs Valuation Rules which provides for determination of value on the basis of the price of identical or similar imported goods in India. It is further seen from records, that the proprietor of the appellant, Sh. Jayshiv, was shown the market enquiry report at the time of recording his statement on 8-7-2008. Further, in the statement he has voluntarily accepted the increased valuation of the imported goods. It is settled position of law that once, the importer has admitted the redetermination of value on record and has accepted the method of such valuation, he cannot subsequently challenge the same on the same ground. Consequently, we uphold the redetermination of the value carried out by the customs authorities”.

11. In view of the above discussion, the impugned order is set aside and Order-in-Original No. 38/2017, dated 9-3-2017 is restored. However, in the facts and circumstances of the present case, we are of the view that the redemption fine merits reduction from Rs. 5 lakhs to Rs. 3 lakhs under Section 125 of the Customs Act. Further, the penalty imposed on Sh. Jaganath, Partner under Section 112(b) of the Act is reduced from Rs. 3 lakhs to Rs. 1.5 lakhs.

12. In the result, the appeal filed by the Revenue is partially allowed, the Order-in-Original is restored but with the above modification. Stay application also stands disposed.

The present appeal is filed against Order-in-Original No.14/2017 dated 14.06.2017. The appellant imported certain goods described as Reflective Sheet and Luminescent Film and filed bill of entry No.9962802 dated 20.07.2015. After examining the consignment, the Customs Authorities were of the opinion that there was mis-declaration in the quantity of goods since 578 rolls of the material were found as against 577 rolls, declared in the Bill of Entry. It further appeared that the goods were mis-declared in terms of value also. To probe the matter further, searches were conducted on 20.08.2015 at the business premises of the importer, residence of the proprietor as well as other connected premises. During the search, one laptop as well as mobile phone found was recovered and the data contained therein was retrieved and printed through panchannama proceedings on 24.08.2015 and 27.08.2015 in the presence of witnesses as well as Shri Sumit Chawla and Rajiv Chawla, the concerned persons of the importer. The data retrieved included proforma invoices, price list, commercial invoices, etc. of various goods imported by the appellant in the past. Shri Sumit Chawla, authorized representative and son of the proprietor of M/s Lakshmi Enterprises, was interrogated and his statements were recorded in relation to the documents recovered from the laptop and mobile phone. In his statement dated 17.09.2015, he confirmed that the documents like invoices, proforma invoices related to consignments imported by him for which the real value of the goods was hidden from the Customs Authorities. In his further statement dated 19.01.2017, towards conclusion of the investigation, he confirmed that the grade and specification of goods imported by them in the past were not cleared in the Bill of Entry; the invoices/commercial invoices recovered could be taken for re-assessment for past import; he further accepted the duty liability for the past consignments on the basis of invoice/commercial invoice found in the electronic devices, as per the following table:

2. Shri Sumit Chawla further admitted in his statement dated 19.01.2016 that the differential amount, over and above declared in the bills of entry, was remitted in Indian currency to the representative of supplier through un-official channels.

3. The goods covered by the current bill of entry were provisionally released to the appellant and on conclusion of investigation, SCN dated 11.08.2016 was issued to the appellant demanding the differential customs duty for past consignments. This SCN was finalized by issue of impugned order as follows :-

i) Declared Customs value in respect of past clearances made under 32 bills of entry was rejected and re-determined on the basis of the documents recovered during investigation.

ii) Differential customs duty amounting to Rs.1,10,86,061/- was demanded along with interest.

iii) Goods seized in various places were ordered for confiscation and redemption fine imposed.

iv) Penalty equal to the customs department demanded was imposed on the appellant.

4. Aggrieved by the impugned order, the present appeal has been filed mainly on the following grounds:

i) The case has been made based upon the relied upon documents in the form of prints-out from laptop and mobile phone. These documents are not permissible evidence under Section 138C of the Customs Act, 1963, since there is nothing on record to show that the conditions specified in relation to the data have been satisfied.

ii) The adjudicating authority has not followed the Customs Valuation Rules sequentially in arriving at the valuation for demand of duty.

iii) He has failed to cite the value of contemporaneous import of the same kind and quality of goods and hence the transaction value cannot be rejected.

iv) The adjudicating authority has ignored the evidence produced by the appellant regarding contemporaneous import of identical/similar goods.

v) The alleged invoices/commercial invoices cannot be applied to past imports. In particular, the 32 import consignments are spread-over a period of two years and four months which have been re-valued on the basis of evidence of December, 2013. This is improper since these invoices cannot be used to recover a period of more than 90 days.

vi) They also relied on various case laws, to the effect that transaction value is required to be accepted.

5. With the above background, we heard Shri Prabhat Kumar, ld Advocate, representing the appellant. He explained the facts of the case as well as various grounds of appeal, in detail.
6. We also heard Shri R.K. Manjhi, Id DR on behalf of the Revenue. He submitted that the original invoices/commercial invoices pertain to the past imports were found in the laptop and mobile phone recovered during the search proceedings of 20.08.2015. Shri Sumit Chawla, in his statements, has admitted the under-valuation of the past consignments and has given his consent for re-determining the value of past consignments on the basis of the above invoices. He specifically pointed-out that none of the statements has ever been retracted. He submitted that the impugned order is fully justified and may be sustained.

7. We have heard both sides and perused the record. The appellant has imported certain goods described as "Self Adhesive Reflective Sheeting" and filed bill of entry dated 20.07.2015 at ICD Tughlakabad, New Delhi. While examining the goods imported under the above bill of entry, the department was of the view that the value declared by the appellant was incorrect and the goods were under valued. There was also mis-declaration in the total quantity of goods imported. As part of the investigation against under-valuation, the department searched the business premises of the importer and other connected premises on 20.08.2015. During the search, along with various documents, electronic media, in the form of laptop and mobile phone, was recovered and the data contained therein was printed-out under panchnama proceedings. These devices were found to contain invoices/commercial invoices, price list, etc. in respect of the same goods imported in the past. In the statements recorded from Shri Sumit Chawla son of proprietor, he admitted that many of the past consignments were under valued and that the documents recovered from the electronic devices pertain to the consignments imported earlier by the appellant. Accordingly, the department proceeded to demand differential duty in respect of goods imported earlier by the appellant and covered by 32 bills of entry. The present appeal challenges the demand for differential duty and imposition of penalties, levied by the impugned order.

8. In the main grounds of the present appeal, it has been argued that transaction value was required to be accepted in the absence of evidence produced by Revenue of contemporaneous import of identical/similar goods. The appellant has argued that the documents printed-out from the electronic media are not admissible for non-compliance of specified conditions specified in the Section 138C of the Customs Act.

9. The valuation of imported goods is required to be done in terms of Section 14 of the Customs Act, 1962, read with the Customs Valuation Rules, 2007. The transaction value of imported goods can be rejected only as per the provisions of Rule 12 of the Customs Valuation Rules. In the present case, in respect of 32 Bills of Entry pertaining to imports, certain documents were recovered during the course of search from the laptop and mobile phone. From among the documents recovered from the laptop and mobile phone, the department has recovered the invoices/commercial invoices pertaining to the goods imported under these Bills of Entry. Such invoices indicate that the goods were procured by the appellant from the foreign supplier at significantly higher prices than what has been declared to the department at the time of filing Bills of Entry. It further has been admitted by Shri Sumit Chawla, son of the proprietor, that these invoices, printed-out from laptop/mobile phone, reflect the correct value of imports. He has even admitted that the differential amount, over and above the invoice originally declared, have been paid to the foreign supplier through means other than the banking channels.

10. In the light of the evidence, as above, we are of the view that the adjudicating authority has rightly rejected the transaction value of goods imported under the 32 Bills of Entry, in terms of Rule 12 of the Customs Valuation Rules, 2007. In fact, Explanation (f) to Rule 12 ibid specifically provides for rejection of the transaction value in the case of fraud or manipulated documents as in the present case.

11. The appellant has raised objections to the admissibility of the documents recovered from the laptop. They have cited the provisions of Section 138C of the Customs Act. We find such objections without basis in as much as the truth of the documents printed-out from the laptop has been admitted by Shri Sumit Chawla son of the proprietor in clear terms. Further, their clear admission by him that these invoices recovered, reflect the correct valuation at which the transaction was concluded with the valuation supplier. Further the appellant was given an opportunity to prove the correct transaction value of the goods imported under 32 bills of entry by providing bank attested genuine invoices but Shri Sumit Chawla did not make same available. On the other hand, in his statement dated 19.01.2016, that the prices indicated in the invoices/commercial invoices could be taken for assessment of all past imports as the rate of product did not change much during period of imports. We are of the view that there is no infirmity on the part of the adjudicating authority in re-determining the value of the past imported goods on the basis of such invoices. In the peculiar facts and circumstances of the present case, there is no need for the Revenue to collect evidence in the form of contemporaneous imports.

12. In view of above discussions, we find no infirmity in the impugned order, which is upheld and the appeal dismissed.

Per: Rachna Gupta:

1. The order in original no. 20-Commr-HKC-2010 dated 27.07.2010 has been assailed vide present appeal. The relevant facts in brief for the purpose are that M/s. East India Hotels Ltd. imported a new aircraft, Hawker 850 XP vide Bill of Entry no. 218981 dated 21.05.2007 with the declared value of Rs. 56.15 crores. The importer/appellant had also obtained a no objection certificate from Director General of Civil Aviation (DGCA) on 20.06.2007 for using the said aircraft for the purpose of non scheduled air transport services, under passenger category.

2. The Department got intelligence that the said aircraft had been imported for private use by the appellant under the guise of non scheduled operator (passenger permit) herein after referred to as NSOP, with sole intention to evade the payment of customs duty. The Department alleging violation of the condition in said notification, provisions of Customs Act 1962 and that of Foreign Trade Policy issued a show cause notice upon appellant bearing no. 5192 dated 27.6.2008 proposing confiscation of the aforesaid aircraft along with the recovery of total customs duty amounting to Rs.13.92 crores as was not paid due to said exemption. The interest under section 28 AB of the Customs Act and the penalties under section 112 read with section 140 of the Customs Act were simultaneously proposed. This proposal has been confirmed by the order in original bearing no. 20-Commr-HKC-2010 dated 27.07.2010. Being aggrieved of the said order that the present appeal has been filed before this Tribunal.

3. We have heard Mr. Narender M. Sharma & Ms. Anandita Saha, Advocates for the appellant and Mr. Rakesh Kumar, Authorised Representative for the Respondent.

4. It is submitted on behalf of the appellant that no condition of NSOP permit as was granted by DGCA in favour of appellants (EIH Ltd.) has been violated by the appellant. It is impressed upon that once a license is being issued by DGCA, the same cannot be questioned by the licensing authority. It is submitted that the Department cannot refuse the benefit of exemption notification on the allegation that there was mis-representation on part of the appellant/importer of aircraft while availing the said benefit. It is further submitted that the show cause notice is otherwise illegal and without jurisdiction as no show cause notice under section 28 of the Customs Act 1962 can be issued for failure to comply with post importation condition. Otherwise also the show cause notice is issued by Commissioner (Preventive) who is not a jurisdictional Commissioner, hence he is not a proper officer under the provisions of the Act.

5. Learned Counsel in addition has submitted that the impugned aircraft was provisionally released after EIH Ltd. furnished a bond of Rs.56,15,42,299/- and the Bank Guarantee of Rs. 14,03,85,600/- dated 5.7.2008 in compliance of the stay order of this Tribunal dated 1.4.2011. The said Bank Guarantee is still alive and is valid upto 31.3.2020. The same is liable to be released. Learned Counsel has brought to the notice that an order has been passed by this Tribunal in Reliance Transport and Travel Ltd. vs. CCE New Delhi in appeal no. C/497/2010-Cus (DB) dated 15.10.2018. The Tribunal has held that Reliance Transportation and Travel Ltd. (RTTL) had rightly availed the benefit of exemption and concession of notification no. 21/2002-Cus read with notification no. 61/2007-Cus as amended. The appeal of RTTL has been allowed by the coordinate bench of this Tribunal by setting aside the order in original passed by the adjudicating authority. It is submitted that the facts of the present case are absolutely identical to RTTL case. Appellant has prayed that the similar order may be passed in the present case as well in favour of the appellants. Appeal is accordingly prayed to be allowed. The learned Counsel has relied upon the decision of this Tribunal in the case of CC New Delhi Vs. Sameer Gehlot reported as 2011 (263) ELT 129 (Tri-Del) wherein it was held that the entire condition no. 104 of Notification no. 21/2002-Cus (Sl. No. 347B) as amended by notification no. 61/2007-Cus is a pre-importation condition. The Tribunal held that these conditions stands complied with by the importer in case he produces DGCA permit for non scheduled air transport services along with an undertaking to the effect that aircraft would be used only for providing said services. Learned Counsel laid emphasis on the recent decision in the case Reliance Transport & Travels Ltd. Vs. CCE New Delhi in Customs appeal no. 497/2010 as was decided on 15.10.2018. Submitting that irrespective there are two contradictory opinions of two co-ordinate benches of this Tribunal and that the matter had already been referred to Larger Bench and as on date it stands sub judice before Hon’ble Supreme Court of India. Still this tribunal vide the aforesaid decision in the case of M/s. Reliance Transport and Travels Ltd. has decided the appeal in favour of assessee holding that the permit of the assessee therein has been renewed from time to time by DGCA. Thus, there is no apparent objection by DGCA which is sufficient to hold that there is no violation of the impugned condition. Decision in the case of Sameer Gehlot’s has also been relied upon. Ld. Counsel therefore prayed that order under challenge to be set aside and appeal in hand to be allowed.

6. Department on the other hand has submitted that by using the aircraft for the personnel of the appellant company itself, the appellant has violated the undertaking for using the said aircraft for NSOP purposes as was given to DGCA while taking the license at the time of import of the aircraft and for availing the benefit of exemption from payment of customs duty. As such there is no infirmity in the order under challenge declining the benefit of exemption and demanding the customs duty, the exemption whereof was claimed based on the said condition. Learned DR has relied upon the decision of Mumbai Tribunal in the case of King Rotors and Air Charter Pvt. Ltd. Vs. CC(ACC & Import) Mumbai reported as 2011 (269) ELT 343 (Tri Mum) where the benefit of exemption notification has been denied to the assessee on account of furnishing wrong undertaking to DGCA in compliance of condition no. 104 of the said notification. After having heard the rivals contention of both the parties and perusing the entire record as well as the relevant statutory provisions, we opine that the moot controversy to be adjudicated in this case is:-

Whether the appellant herein has violated condition no. 104 (under sl. No. 347 N) of notification no. 21/2002-Cus as amended by notification no. 61/2007-Cus while importing an aircraft vide B/E No. 218981 dated 21.05.2007 by not complying with the undertaking as was given to DGCA at the time of said import.
7. Foremost requirement for the purpose is to have a look on the impugned notification which is as follows:

(i) The aircraft are imported by an operator who has been granted approval by the competent authority in the Ministry of Civil Aviation to import aircraft for providing non-scheduled (passenger) services or non-scheduled (charter) services and

(ii) The importer furnishes an undertaking to the Deputy Commissioner of Customs or Asstt. Commissioner of Customs, as the case may be, at the time of importation that :

(a) The said aircraft shall be used for providing non-scheduled (passenger) services or non-scheduled (charter) services; and

(b) He shall pay on demand, in the event of his failure to use the imported aircraft for the specified purposes, an amount equal to the duty payable on the said aircraft but for the exemption under this notification.

Explanation. - for the purposes of this entry.

(a) Operator means a person, organization, or enterprises engaged in or offering to engage in aircraft operation;

(b) Non-scheduled (passenger) services means, air transport services other than scheduled (passenger) air transport services as defined in Rule 3 of the Aircraft Rules, 1937.

(c) Non-scheduled (charter) services means services provided by a nonscheduled (charter) air transport operator, for the charter on a hire of an aircraft to any person, with the published tariff, and who is registered with and approved by the Directorate General of Civil Aviation for such purposes, and who conforms to the civil aviation requirement under the provision of Rule 133A of the Aircraft Rules, 1937.

Provided that such Air Charter operator is a dedicated company or partnership firm, for the above purposes. Notification No. 21/2002 stood amended by Notification No. 61/2007, which provided for exemption of additional duty of customs also."

8. Clause (i) clarifies that import of aircraft is permissible but to an operator who is granted approval by the competent authority in the Ministry Of Civil Aviation to import aircraft for providing non scheduled (passenger services) or non schedule charter services (hereinafter called as NSOP/C). In respect of import of aircraft there has been a DGFT notification no. 2(RT-6)2004-09 dated 7.4.2006. This notification allows import of aircrafts and helicopters by a person who has been granted permission by the Ministry of Civil Aviation, Government of India for operating scheduled or non scheduled air transport services subject to the condition that the import of the aircraft or helicopter and there use is in accordance with that permission. This notification, therefore, clarifies that the use of imported aircraft has to confirm to the permission granted by Ministry of Civil Aviation.

9. The minimum requirements for grant of permit as mentioned above, Ministry of Civil Aviation has to relate to:

a. Civil Aviation Requirement Rules. Perusal of these rules, section 3 precisely, clarifies that while issuing the permit to a non scheduled operator, he has to clarify as to whether the aircraft is to be used in private category or as a non-scheduled operator. This article therefore clarifies that NSOP is different from the private aircraft operator.

b. This observation further stands clarified from air transport circular no. 998 dated 21.4.1998 which makes a specific categorisation of NSOP/C flight into following:

i. International Cargo Freight

ii. Non Revenue passenger charter flight:

a. Private aircraft owned by individuals

b. Private aircraft owned by companies/corporations
iii. Aircraft belonging to non scheduled/scheduled operators.

c. Further, Rule 3(43) of Aircraft Rules 1937 defines the private aircraft as an aircraft other than the public/passenger transport.

d. Rule 3(39) of Aircraft Rules 1937 defines passenger aircraft as an aircraft which effects the public transport of passengers. The definition also find place under Rule 3(45) thereof. Also DGCA vide letter dated 30.7.2010 clarified that a non revenue charter flight will fall under the category of private flight.

10. To give further elaboration to the observation that the Aviation Rules and Aircraft Rules intend to create a distinction between public and private operators, we bank upon the meaning of word public in popular dictionary of English. We observed that

a. Collin’s Dictionary of English described public to mean:

Community or people in general, New World Dictionary explains public to be people as a whole or community at large,

b. As per New Shorter Oxford Dictionary public is to mean: Public collectively and the

c. Concise Oxford English Dictionary explains public as:

Ordinary public in general, the community at large,

d. Oxford Advanced learners Dictionary has given the meaning to public as: Ordinary people in society in general.

11. Sub clause 1 of the impugned notification talks about non scheduled/passenger charter services, we need to know as to how statute defines these services. It is observed that the definition of non scheduled services is given in this notification itself in explanation (C) thereof as quoted above. The basic characteristics of NSOP appears to be as follows:

a. Aircraft is used either passenger or charter air transport services.

b. On hire or on published tariff.

c. Aircraft is such as is registered with Directorate General of Civil Aviation (DGCA).

d. To be used for such purpose as declared DGCA and approved by it.

e. It must confirm to civil aviation requirement in terms of Rule 133 A (applicable to non scheduled air transport services (charter services) Rules 1937).

12. From the above discussion, we are able to hold that there are three categories of airport transport services operators:

a. Scheduled air transport services operators (SOP)

b. Non scheduled air transport services operators passenger or charter (NSOP/C)

c. Private Operators

Under the impugned notification condition no. 104 to avail the benefit of exemption from payment of customs duty, any of these operators may import an aircraft, however the exemption under Notification No.21/2002-Cus dated 01.03.2002 as amended is available only to SOP and NSOP/C and that to private operators. Scheduled air transport (SOP) services is defined under Rule 3 (49) which is para materia to clause 3.2 of Civil Aviation Rules which says that it is the air transport services undertaken between the two or more places and operated according to a published time table or with flights so regular or frequent that they constitute a recognisably systematic series, each flight being open to use by members of the public. Aircraft rules define non scheduled air transport services is under Rule 3(49) of Aircraft Rules which is para materia to clause 3.3 of CAR to mean air transport service other than scheduled air transport service being operated for carriage of passengers, mail and goods and includes charter operations. Word air transport has also been defined in Rule 43 of Aircraft Rules to mean all carriage of person effected by aircraft for a remuneration in any nature whatsoever and all carriage of persons or things effected by such aircraft with such remuneration, if the carriage is effected by an air passenger undertaking."

13. These definitions are sufficient for us to hold that the only difference between two types of air transport services i.e. SOP & NSOP/C lies in the simple fact that one is a scheduled while other is non scheduled (the words passenger and air transport service shall carry the same meaning for the both as discussed above). This would mean that scheduled air transport services involve flight services operated on the basis of a schedule of time whereas the non scheduled air transport services are without any time schedule for the flights. We draw support to this observation from clause 9.2 of passenger CAR which while dealing with non scheduled operator and their operation says "in such operations the operator shall not publish their time schedule as the operations are of non scheduled nature". Other features are common to both scheduled and non scheduled services.

13A. Thus we are of the opinion from the above discussion that scheduled as well as non scheduled air transport services firm (whether for passenger or charter) are open to use by the members of public and as such stands distinguished from what can be called as private use of the aircraft. The another thing which distinguishes scheduled air transport services and non scheduled from being called as the private use of aircraft is being published tariff/hire charges/remuneration against use of the said aircraft by any group but of public. Coming to the clause 2 of the impugned notification where lies the impugned controversy we observe that this notification if read as a whole has two conditions to be complied with at the time of import of aircraft while seeking the exemption from payment of customs duty:-

a. Approval by competent authority in the Ministry Of Civil Aviation to import the aircraft;

b. Furnishing and undertaking by the importer at the time of import to the competent authority i.e. (DGCA) to the effect that the said aircraft shall be used for providing non scheduled passenger/charter services.

14. In the present case as per the Department, this undertaking has been violated due to which the importer appellant is denied exemption of customs duty as was extended to him at the time he importered the aircraft. The DR has relied upon the King Rotors & Air Charter Case (Supra).

15. Per contra it is the case of the appellant that there is no violation of the said undertaking as the competent authority i.e. DGCA is renewing the permit given to the appellant from time to time. While laying this emphasis learned counsel has re-impressed upon the case of Sameer Gahlot (Supra).

16. We observe that both these decisions are diagonally contrast decision rendered by two coordinate benches of this Tribunal due to which a reference was made for the matter to be considered by the Larger Bench. However, before Larger Bench could take into consideration the impugned controversy that the pendency of another appeal titled as CC Mumbai Vs. Global Vectra Helicorp Ltd. 2016 (332) ELT A188 (SC) involving the same issue of violation of the undertaking given in furtherance of notification no. 61/2007-Cus dated 3.5.2007 before the Hon'ble Supreme Court was brought to the notice and the Larger Bench thus kept the issue pending till the decision of the Hon'ble Apex court. However, subsequently the Division Bench of this Tribunal in Reliance Transport and Travels Ltd. (Supra) case has decided similar controversy in favour of the appellant importer therein distinguishing the facts of Reliance Transport and Travels Ltd. case from the case of King Rotors & Air Charter as well as that of Sameer Gehlot's.

17. The Division bench has specifically held that facts herein are at variance. Support has been drawn from the decision of Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Collector Vs. Al Noori Tobacco Products-2004 (170) ELT 135 (SC).

In the present case we are also of the firm opinion that facts of the present case are different from the case of King Rotors & Air Charter (Supra) and that of Sameer Gehlot (Supra) because the main allegation qua the violation of undertaking was based on the fact that the undertaking was given for using the aircraft only for NSOP (passenger service) whereas the assessees therein were found to use the same for NSOC (charter services). Both the cases are pre 2010 when there had been an amendment in this notification. With the introduction of new CAR issued by DGCA on 1.6.2010, it has been clarified that non scheduled air transport services can be the passenger as well as charter services simultaneously.

18. Prior to amendment clause (ii)(a) of the notification used to read as:

“The aircraft shall be used only for providing non scheduled passenger services or non scheduled charter services, as the case may be”

Whereas new CAR 2010 rules read this condition as:

19. The deletion of word “only” and “as the case may be” clarifies that prior this deletion the importer/assessee, at the time of import of aircraft had to undertake that the use of aircraft shall be either for Non Scheduled Passenger Services (NSOP) or for non scheduled charter services, (NSOC) whereas post said deletion by way of amendment in year 2010 the undertaking given in terms of condition no. 104 of the impugned notification includes providing both or either of the kind of services without specifying the same in the undertaking. Hence we are of the opinion that irrespective of pendency of issue related to this notification before the Hon’ble Apex Court, the facts of these other cases are very much different from the facts of the present case, the earlier cases being prior the amendment of year 2010 and the present one being post amendment in CAR. The issue in the earlier cases is as to whether undertaking for using the aircraft for non-scheduled operator services includes the use thereof for non-scheduled charter services. The amendment of CAR 2010 clarifies that both are inclusive. The issue in the present case primarily is whether the undertaking for using the imported aircraft of non-scheduled passenger/charter services includes the use thereof only for private purposes or not.

20. Reverting back to the present case, since the undertaking has been given for using the imported aircraft for NSOP/C services published tariff to the public is still the mandatory requirement. Clause 2 of condition no. 104 of notification no. 21/2002 as amended by 61/2007, lays down the requirement that the importer has to furnish the undertaking to the Customs Department to use the imported aircraft only for an avowed purpose. As mentioned in the said undertaking, the purpose of such undertaking is to avail the exemption of customs duty which otherwise were to be paid to the Customs Department except in case of the use of the imported aircraft for the specific purpose in a specified manner as mentioned in the said undertaking. It becomes absolutely clear that any breach of such undertaking will definitely be actionable. From this discussion we hold that furnishing of undertaking by the importer to the Ministry of Civil Aviation (DGCA) to make the specific use i.e. NSOP/C of the said aircraft is sufficient to permit the import of the aircraft, that too with exemption from payment of customs duty. This undertaking binds the importer that he shall use the aircraft for NSOP/C. This indicates that the said use of the aircraft will be possible only after the aircraft is imported pursuant to the said permission of DGCA. Accordingly, we held that the nature of use as to whether it is in terms of the undertaking given or not. can be appreciated only post import.

21. The sole motive of impugned notification is to get exemption from customs duty which is the domain of Customs Department, DGCA has no concern beyond taking on record the furnished undertaking. It shall be a duty of Customs Department only to ensure as to whether the importer after putting the imported aircraft to use, is continuing to be eligible to remain exempted from paying customs duty as per the terms of undertaking furnished by him. Otherwise also, impugned notification has been issued in furtherance of section 25 of Customs Duty Act and the exemption from payment is towards customs revenue. It is definitely the Customs Department’s duty to ensure continuous compliance of the undertaking as was furnished by the importer at the time of importing the aircraft. As already discussed above, the usage of aircraft for NSOP/C services continuously against the published tariff the passengers who are none but the public will satisfy the continuous compliance of the said undertaking. Absence of any of these conditions will make the usage different from NSOP/C services and the said variation will definitely amount to violation of the said undertaking and the benefit of exemption from payment of customs duty as was extended to the importer of aircraft at the time of import thereof shall not be allowed to continue to still be available to the importer.

22. Notifications otherwise have to be strictly and rigidly followed. Interpretation should also be rigid unless and until is required for the intent of legislature. The exemptions from payment of customs duty are granted to the importers with the sole object of extending some benefit to the public at large. Otherwise there seems no reason to have any such exemption clause to air transport service operators. As already discussed above private operators have been differentiated from the scheduled/non scheduled air transport passenger services. Thus we are of firm opinion that any usage of imported aircraft, if amounts to private usage of the said aircraft though under the guise of it being non scheduled NSOP/C air transport services, the same shall definitely be in violation of the undertaking as furnished under condition no. 104 of the impugned notification. Since in absence of the said undertaking the importer was liable to pay customs duty while importing the aircraft, the violation of the undertaking subsequent thereto shall definitely be a case of non payment of customs duty. We therefore, hold that the Customs Department has committed no error while initiating the investigation the Commissioner (Preventive) has committed no error while confirming the demand of customs duty as was allowed to be exempted at the time of import pursuant to the undertaking for using the imported aircraft for NSOP/C used.

23. We conclude from the above discussion in the terms that for seeking the benefit of impugned notification two conditions were required (as already quoted above). The former that is taking an approval from Civil Aviation subject to impugned undertaking as a pre import condition and verifying the compliance of the said undertaking as a post import condition. This finding has been corroborated from clause (ii)(b) of Condition no. 104 of the Notification no. 21/2002 as amended by 61/2007 which has already been quoted above. A perusal makes it abundantly clear that in the event of importer failing to use the imported aircraft for the purpose as is specified in the undertaking that an amount equal to the duty payable on the said aircraft shall be paid by the importer on demand. The amount to be paid apparently and admittedly is the amount of customs duty which was to be paid at the time of import at the undertaking for using the aircraft for the specified purpose i.e. NSOP/C being given. Clause 2A thus clarifies that the correlative right to monitor the manner of use of the aircraft and determine whether it was being used for the said purpose as undertaken vested in Customs Department. The DGCA authority to monitor the manner of utilisation of the permit is subtly another thing which can in no way effect the jurisdiction of the Customs Department. Hon’ble Supreme Court in the case of Shashank Sea Foods Pvt. Ltd. Vs. UOI reported as 1996 (88) ELT 626 (SC) while considering analogues question in reference to another notification no. 116/1988-Cus held as follows:

“We do not find in the provisions of import and export policy or the handbook of procedure issued by Ministry of Commerce, Government of India, anything that even remotely suggest that the aforesaid power of Customs authority had been taken away or abridged or that an investigation into such alleged breach could be conducted only by the licensing authority that the licensing authority (DGCA in the present case).”

24. In that case, the licensing authority therein (Ministry of Finance) was empowered to conduct such an investigation as far as downsize of the said notification were concerned while Hon’ble Apex Court held that such power does not by itself preclude the Customs Authority from doing verification on their part.

25. In the present case, neither the Civil Aviation Rules nor Aircraft Rules empower DGCA to investigate about the compliance of the undertaking. The undertaking is given in furtherance of the notification issued by the Customs Department in compliance of the Statutory Provisions of the Customs Act 1962.
The verification as to whether the benefit of exemption from payment of customs duty should continue or not is opined definitely to lie with Customs Department only.

26. In the facts of the present case we observe that the appellant has imported Hawker 850 XP aircraft pursuant to the permission/no objection certificate given by the Ministry of Civil aviation vide B/E No. 21898 dated 21.5.2007. The undertaking as is required under the impugned notification was furnished by the importer appellant on 22.5.2007 to the effect that the aircraft once imported would only be used for providing non scheduled air transport services (passenger only). No doubt the permit is renewed from time to time. It was specifically stated in the undertaking as follows:

"We further undertake to pay on demand, in event of failure to use the said imported aircraft for the specified purse, an amount equal to the duty payable on the said aircraft but for the exemption under the notification no. 21/2002-cus sl. No. 347 (P) Condition no. 104." Irrespective permit is renewed from time to time but it was not only noticed by the Custom Department but has also been admitted by the importer and as also otherwise apparent from the passenger logbook and passenger manifest that the chairman of the appellants company and other officers of the company have frequently travelled under the category of non revenue flight which can only be for personal use of the company and its officials. The said voluntary statement as never been retracted by the appellant except refuting allegations on the ground that the NSOP permit has been renewed from time to time by DGCA in their favour.

27. Applying the entire above discussion to the facts of the present case, we hold that restricted use of the imported aircraft under the impugned notification only for a particular category of the people takes the use of the said aircraft from the ambit of what is called 'passenger services' which are otherwise meant to be open to public. No doubt the restricted group is a part of public and the person in the group are in any case the member of the public but the use of the aircraft which has been undertaken to be used for public as such it gets restricted to a particular group irrespective that restricted group is paying revenue or not it comes out of the ambit of the authorised public use of such imported aircraft. The notification condition requires not merely the payment of revenue per usage of such aircraft either for passenger or for charter services; either against the issuance of individual tickets or the price for the aircraft as a whole in case of charter, it requires that the use of the aircraft has to be kept open to public at large or to any other group of the said public not so restricted as to mean private; it shall forfeit the intention of legislature. It has been brought to the notice that Global Vectra Case stands decided by Hon'ble Apex Court with following findings:

"Offering service to the public at large also included entering into agreement for providing regular service to a few members of the of the public on a regular basis over a period of time. The expression person included company which also forms part of the general public. Further, printing of tickets was not the essential requirement of the Notification. Therefore, denial of benefit of Notification no. 21/2002-Cus as amended by Notification no. 61/2007-Cus on the ground that imported helicopters were not used in providing non-scheduled passenger services and no printing tickets issued, could not be justified."

28. The Department’s circular that the benefit of notification is still available if the aircraft is providing NSOP/C certificate to the related or group company the same also doesn’t hold good in the present case because there is no evidence about anyone else except the Oberoi Group to have used the impugned aircraft in the given circumstances that too without any tariff. The usage, of the impugned aircraft post import is not for non scheduled passenger/ charter air transport services but only for private use. The same amount to violation of the undertaking based upon which the exemption was granted to the appellant from paying the customs duty. Consequently to the said violation the appellant has made himself liable to pay the said customs duty as if he has failed to pay the same at the relevant point of time to the jurisdictional customs authority from any point of imagination cannot be ruled out. They are held to vest with the jurisdiction to demand the customs duty. Since the benefit of exemption has been claimed by giving an undertaking whereupon the appellant has failed to stand with the possibility of intent of the appellant to evade said duty at the time of import of the aircraft cannot be ruled out especially when there is no evidence produced on record by the appellant.

29. In the light of the entire above discussion we do not find any ambiguity or infirmity in the order under challenge. Same is hereby upheld. Appeal stands dismissed.

4. The matter has been got adjudicated vide order-in-original No. 1/19/Pr. Commr./Import/ICD/TKD dated 28 January 2019. Vide the impugned order dated 28 January 2019 all the charges as leveled in the show cause notice have been confirmed by the Adjudicating Authority. The appellant are before us against the impugned order-in-original.

5. The learned Advocate appearing for the appellant has submitted that the appellant have imported the goods vide finally assessed bills of entry through
ICD, TKD Tughlakabad at ICD Airport, New Delhi and ICD, Patparganj, New Delhi at lower rate of the basic customs duty at 10% in terms of Notification No. 21/2002-Cus. dated 01/02/2002 under Sl. No. 345 and thereafter under Notification No. 12/2012-Cus. dated 17/03/2012 by declaring the same as CKD parts assembly (part of electrically operated two wheeler for captive use) classifying the same under Customs Tariff Heading 87149990 primarily. The lithium ion battery imported separately were classified under Chapter Heading 85076000 and appropriate rate of customs duty under the said heading has been paid at the time of import. The learned Advocate has contended that the Adjudicating Authority has erred in classifying the product under CTH 87119091 as this heading is applicable only for electrically operated motorcycles (including mopeds) and cycle fitted with auxiliary motors with or without cars. The learned Advocate has tried to impress that Segway in common parlance is not understood as motorcycle or moped or cycle fitted within an auxiliary motor. It has further been added by the learned Advocate that the Adjudicating Authority has wrongly taken a view that wheel power fitted for movement of a person are akin to the goods covered under CTH 8711. It has been the contention of the learned Advocate that Segway being battery operated vehicle cannot be classified to be a motor vehicle as per Motor Vehicle Act, 1988 as its maximum speed is 12.5 miles per hour equal to 20 km. and, therefore, Segway cannot be equated with the electrically operated motorcycle or moped or cycle fitted with the auxiliary the motor. It has further been argued that though the appellant had classified their product under a particular customs tariff heading and if the Department wants to change the classification of the product to some other tariff heading the burden of proof for classifying the product in a different tariff heading has to be discharged by the Department. The learned Advocate has taken reliance of following cases in support of his argument on this count: (a) Commissioner of Central Excise, Nagpur versus Vicco Laboratories - 2005 (179) E.L.T. 17 (S.C.); (b) Raptakos Brett & Co. Ltd. versus Commissioner of Central Excise, Raigad - 2014 (307) E.L.T. 565 (Tri. - Mumbai)

6. It has further been submitted that the Commissioner has wrongly denied them the benefit under Notification No. 12/2012-Cus. dated 17/03/2012 at Sl. No. 443 (1) (a) saying that the gear box imported by the appellant were in pre-assembled condition at the time of the import and, therefore, the benefit of above said notification is not available to the appellant. The learned Advocate submitted that the basic evidence for denying the benefit of this notification to the appellant is Chartered Engineer certificate and Chartered Engineer Shri Vinod Soorma has not been made available for cross-examination to the appellant at the time of adjudication. The report given by him cannot therefore be made basis for arriving at the conclusion that the gear box imported by them were at the pre-assembled form.

7. Regarding opinion of Shri Devesh Pareekh, it is submitted that during cross examination, in reply to question 7, he stated that the parts shown to him were not motorcycle parts and were parts of Segway. The opinion of Shri Pareekh doesn’t support the Department’s case that others electrically operated motorcycles (including mopeds) and cycles fitted with an auxiliary motor, with or without side-cars classifiable under CTH 87119091 were imported.

8. The appellant further submit that learned Commissioner erred in denying the alternative submission of the appellant claiming benefit of Notification No. 12/2012-Cus. dated 17/03/2012 as per entry 444. Entry 444 of the said notification is extracted below for ready reference.

A perusal of packing list will show that the parts (in sets) required to assemble Segways classifiable under Chapter Heading 8714 9990 are fully covered under Serial No. 444 of Notification No. 12/2012-Cus. dated 17/03/2012 attracting basic customs duty @ 10%.

It has further been submitted that all the ten bills of entry, after examination and after several queries from the Customs Appraising Officers, were cleared against 10 finally assessed bills of entry. All the invoices, packing list etc. were submitted to the Department and nothing was concealed or suppressed by the importer. The value of goods and the description of goods declared by the appellant has not been disputed by the Department. The only dispute relates to interpretation of clauses of Notification No. 12/2012-Cus. dated 17/03/2012; therefore invoking extended period of limitation in respect of 7 B/E dated prior to 11/01/2015 (beyond two years), ignoring the various submissions of the appellant discussed in Ground - G of the appeal, is not sustainable.

9. That the learned Commissioner in the impugned order confiscating the seized goods and holding other than seized goods liable to confiscation u/s 111 (m) of Customs Act 1962 and imposing penalties u/s 112, is not sustainable. The appellant also submit that as per Annexure - A of the show cause notice the differential duty has been demanded in respect of all goods including seized goods, which were cleared for home consumption against 10 finally assessed B/E. The said goods are not covered by the definition of imported goods which definition excludes goods which have been cleared for home consumption. The duty less paid on such goods can be recovered under Section 28 of the Customs Act, 1962. In the present case the notice for recovery of differential duty has been issued under Section 28 (4) of the Customs Act, 1962.

10. The penal provisions in respect of duty short paid etc. are contained in Section 114A of the Customs Act, 1962 which Section 114A contains inter-alia a proviso that where any penalty has been levied under Section 114A, no penalty shall be levied u/s 112 or Section 114. The said Sections 112 and 114 provide for penalties consequent to confiscation of goods or holding goods liable to confiscation u/s 111 or 113 of the Act ibid. It is appellant submissions that once demand of differential duty on disputed goods u/s 28 of the Customs Act has been issued, the penalty under Section 114A can only be imposed. The provisions contained in Sections 111 and 112 cannot be invoked in respect of same goods which are outside the definition of imported goods under Section 2 (25) of the Customs Act, 1962.

11. That the learned Commissioner's impugned order imposing penalty on appellant No. 1 under Section 114A and 114AA are not acceptable.

12. We have also heard the learned Departmental Representative who has vehemently supported the findings as given in the impugned order-in-original.

13. We have heard both the sides and have also perused the record of the appeal.

14. The issue for consideration before us in these proceedings is whether the consignments imported by the appellant vide 10 subject bills of entries were 'Segway electrically operated personal balancing vehicle' in condition of completely knocked down condition classifiable under Chapter Heading 87119091 or whether these were CKD parts and assemblies of parts of electrically operated two wheelers for captive use as declared by the appellant in their import bills of entries whereunder they have classified the same under Chapter Heading 87149990 and whether the appellant are entitled for the benefit of the Notification No. 21/2002-Cus. dated 01/02/2002 (Sl. No. 345) and Notification No. 12/2012-Cus. dated 17/03/2012 (Sl. No. 443 and 444); (ii) whether the appellants have mis-declared the description of the imported goods with an intent to evade customs duty ; (iii) whether appellant are liable to pay the differential amount of the customs duty under Section 28 (4) of the Customs Act, 1962 and are also liable for penalty under provisions of Section 112, 114A and 114AA of the Customs Act, 1962. Before proceeding further in the matter, it is relevant to first have a glance at what is being imported by the appellant. It emerges from the investigation that the appellant No. II namely Shri Rony Abraham business head of the appellant No. I has submitted the samples of the import consignment which were in the 'same form and condition' as were being imported by them before the officers as well as before Shri Vinod Soorma - Chartered Engineer. The samples of the imported goods were in the form of power base, transmission assembly, gear box, info key and wheels with tyres. These products were produced before the Chartered Engineer. The Chartered Engineer vide his report dated 1 August 2015 submitted as follows:

"This is to certify that I have inspected/examined the following units which were imported by M/s Bird Retail Pvt. Ltd., New Delhi. The same were found in the form of assemblies of -

1. Transmission Assembly ;
2. Power Base assembly (without Batteries) ;
3. Wheel Assembly with tyre ; and
4. Info Key (in complete form).

All the above units were in the form of assemblies and not in knocked down condition. These units which are in the form of assemblies, are absolutely complete and are ready for use and only need to be attached/fixed to each other for use off the final product i.e. Segway. The said inspection was carried out at DRI - Delhi office on 26/07/2016."

15. During the course of investigations statement of several other relevant persons including Shri Rony Abraham - appellant No. II were recorded. Shri Rony Abraham in his statement dated 08/07/2016 has stated that Segway were being imported by them in parts and they consisted with the following components:

(i) Power Base : which was the main part of the Segway and was in the form of a platform on which the rider stands and which contains sensors, computer parts etc.;

(ii) Info Key : the remote control which controls the operation of the Segway (all the components required for operations of the Segway were contained in it);

(iii) Fender frame : which was made of plastic;

(iv) Wheel : used in the Segway for its movement, each wheel consisted of one rim, one tyre and one tube (only in 12 model);

(v) Gear Box : mentioned as transmission assembly in the Bill of Entry and which controls the speed of the Segway requiring no further assembly;

(vi) Battery : imported in complete ready to use condition, each Segway having two batteries.

That all the components required for assembly of a Segway were being imported in a single Bill of Entry or mere including Nuts, screw etc., user manual as received from the manufacturer; that they neither procured nor required any local part/component for assembling a Segway and the same was being assembled with the imported parts only; that Segway could be assembled completely with the help of instructions contained in the manual being imported with the help of the available imported components; that the parts/components being imported were not further worked except to assemble them in to a Segway.

16. Further Shri Devesh Pareekh, Deputy Manager, International Centre for Automobile Technology at Manesar on 22 December 2016 has examined the samples of the gear boxes imported as transmission assembly by the appellant as well as the power base in presence of Shri Rony Abraham (appeellant No. II) and specifically opened that samples of gear box/ transmission assembly and power base were in "pre-assembled form".

17. We find from the above facts that it categorically emerges from the entire discussions, which have also been not rebutted by the appellant, that under the various bills of entries the appellant have imported all parts including screw, nuts and user manual etc. for assembling Segway in India. The parts and assemblies imported were not subjected to any modification or addition of the local parts or hardware. The imported assemblies, such as, transmission assembly, power base assembly, wheel assembly with tyre, info key assembly and batteries were just put together by following the instructions with the screw driver technology and complete Segway unit came into existence. It also emerges from the entire investigation that gear box mentioned as the transmission assembly were imported in the form of the pre-assembled unit and same were used, as such, while assembling the 'Segway' the final product.

18. It also emerges that no plant, machinery was required for assembling 'Segway' imported by the appellant and the 'Segway' were imported in the CKD condition, which were got assembled with the help simple hand tools like spanner, screw driver etc. and it also emerges from the investigations that sometimes the product were got assembled at the buyer’s premises itself.

19. Thus, it emerges that the Segway product was being imported in a CKD condition under various bills of entries and same was got assembled in India for further sale with the simple screw driver technology. It is also matter of fact that the parts such as Power Base, Gear Box were imported in assembled forms and not in CKD condition and thus these crucial parts were assembled/ready to use components for further assembly of 'Segway' product.

20. For deciding the appropriate classification for imported consignments of the Segway in CKD condition it will be appropriate to have look at the relevant Customs Tariff Heading 8711 and 8714.

21. It can be seen that Chapter 8711 covers primarily motorcycles and like products which includes mopeds, side cars, scooters as well as electrically operated bicycles. It is relevant to mention here that Harmonization Committee of the World Customs Organization in its 58th Session of the Committee has further elaborated the scope of classification under Chapter Heading 8711 to cover the products such as self-balancing, electrically power two wheel transportation devices which are known by various names, such as, hover board, smart scooter, drift vehicle. The relevant extract is reproduced here below :-

The Segway product which is the subject matter of this dispute also falls under this very category.

22. It can also be seen that as per the interpretative rules to the Customs Tariff Act, the general rule for interpretation of the Schedule II provides as follows :-

"Rule 2 (a) : Any reference in a heading to an article shall be taken to include a reference to that article incomplete or unfinished, provided that, as presented, the incomplete or unfinished article has the essential character of the complete or finished article. It shall also be taken to include a reference to that article complete or finished for falling to be classified as complete or finished by virtue of this rule, presented unassembled or disassembled".
23. The above-mentioned Rule 2 (a) makes it clear that any product, which is imported in the form of completely knocked down condition (CKD) and if such components imported in CKD condition have all the essential ingredients to work as a complete vehicle after assembly of the same, in that case such components need to be classified as a complete motor vehicle, motorcycle etc. In the present case it has very categorically been established that the products which were imported were completed assemblies of the components when put together would work as complete Segway product. It has also categorically been opined by the Chartered Engineer who in his report dated 1 August 2016 has categorically certified that the various assemblies which have been imported by the appellant, such as, transmission assembly, power base assembly (without batteries), wheel assembly with tyre and info key etc. were imported in the form of the assemblies not in the knocked down condition and the final product namely Segway can be made just by attaching these assemblies with the simple screw driver technology. Thus, it proved without any doubt that what has been imported by the appellant were various assemblies, such as, transmission assembly, power base assembly etc. to make a product called Segway. Thus, it can be seen that the correct classification for the product imported in the CKD condition as is the case in this particular appeal, same need to be classified under Chapter sub-Heading 87119091. We have also analyzed the declaration which have been made by the appellant while making import of various complete assemblies of various components of Segway and find that the classification adopted by the appellant was under CTH 87149990, which primarily pertains to parts and accessories of the vehicles of heading classifiable under 8711 to 8713. Since it has already been established with the help of an expert that the components imported by the appellant while put together will form a complete operative Segway product. We, therefore, feel that classification claim by the appellant while getting clearance of the consignment appears to be not correct. Since the technical person has given his categorical finding that what has been imported by the appellant were the Segway product in the CKD condition and the appellant did not have any evidence to contradict the finding of the technical expert, we are inclined to accept the opinion expressed by the technical expert. We also take support of a decision given by Hon'ble Gujarat High Court in the case of Inter Continental (India) versus Union of India - 2003 (154) E.L.T. 37 (Guj.), to rely on the expert opinion. The relevant extract of the above decision is reproduced here below :-

"19. Mr. Patel during the course of discussion referred to the provisions of Prevention of Food Adulteration Act, 1954 as well as Rules thereunder with special reference to Sec. 6 of the said Act and Rule 5 which defines standards of quality on various articles as specified in Appendix "B" to the Rules. Our attention was invited to various standards set out in Appendix "B" to urge that only slight difference was there between the different kinds of oils for the purpose of ascertaining whether oil was of edible grade or not. It is not necessary for our purpose to deal with the various technical aspects laid down in Appendix "B" for the simple reason that it is an admitted position between the parties that when the imported goods entered territorial waters of India, the Boarding Officer had drawn samples of the product for test in the presence of the representative of the Master of Vessel, the Shipping Agent and representative of the Importer; and such samples had been sent for testing to the Chemical Examiner, Customs House, Kandla, who has opined that the same does not conform specification for crude palm oil (edible grade) as per IS-8323-E-1977. It appears that the said sample was also forwarded through the Referral Hospital and Community Health Centre, Mundra-Kutch, to the Public Analyst, Food and Drug Laboratory, Vadodara for opinion. He has opined to the effect that the sample conforms to the standards and provisions laid down under the Prevention of Food Adulteration Rules, 1955, for palm oil and cannot be used as such for human consumption. Therefore, once the competent authority who is technically qualified to tender opinion in relation to the technical standards prescribed under the provisions of Food Adulteration Act and Rules thereunder has tendered his opinion it would not be open to any one to take a contrary stand, unless and until such technical opinion is displaced by specific and cogent evidence in the form of another technical opinion. Merely by approaching the matter by stating that the goods could be converted into palm oil of edible grade by carrying out certain processes, the respondent No. 3 who is an officer of the department cannot displace the report of technical expert, nor can he insist that inspite of such report the importer must establish that end-use of the product shall not be other than one as regards entry in which the goods admittedly fall at the time of import”.

24. Now coming to the question whether the benefit of the Notification No. 12/2012-Cus. dated 17/03/2012 is available to the appellant or not it will be proper to have a glance at the relevant entry of the above notification for sake of convenience:

25. It can be seen from the entry 443 of the above-mentioned Notification No. 12/2012-Cus. dated 17/03/2012 that the concessional rate of Customs duty @ 10% available under category 1 (a) for engine, gear box and transmission mechanism not in a pre-assembled condition. We find that the benefit under this category has wrongly been claimed and availed by the appellant as from the expert opinion as well as from the facts of the matter it has come out specifically that what has been imported by them were not CKD condition components or parts, such as, engine, gear box, transmission mechanism etc. rather they were in the form of completely assembled components in the form of transmission assembly, power base assembly, wheel assembly with tyre etc. and, therefore, the benefit of the concessional rate of the duty were certainly not available to them.

26. In view of entire above discussion, we find that appellant have mis-declared their import consignment and what they have imported were Segway product classifiable under Customs Tariff Heading 87119091 in completely knocked down condition. We, therefore, uphold the findings of the impugned order-in-original classifying the import consignments under 87119091. We also find no reason to interfere with the order-in-original with regard to demand of Customs duty under Section 28 (4) of the Customs Act, 1962 by invoking the extended time proviso as we find that the appellant have been fully aware as to what is being imported by them and they have consciously mis-declared their product as CKD parts of electrically operated two wheelers of captive use classifying the same under chapter sub-Heading 87149990. As discussed in preceding paragraphs it is come out very categorically that what has been imported by the appellant was Segway product in the CKD condition which required to classified under Chapter sub-Heading 87119091. This attempt of mis-declaration was consciously was done to evade customs duty by availing concessional rate of the duty. Notification No. 12/2012- Cus. dated 17/03/20912. In view of this, we uphold the correlating finding of the order-in-original with regard to confiscation of the mis-declared goods under Section 111 (m) of the Customs Act, 1962 as well as imposition of the penalties on the appellant No. 1 as per the provision of Section 114A and 114AA of the Customs Act, 1962 as well as the demand of the interest under the provisions of the Customs Act under Section 28AA.

27. With regard to imposition of penalty on appellant No. 2 namely Shri Rony Abraham, Manager Sales and appellant No. 3 namely Shri Ankur Bhatia, Director of the appellant No. 1. From the record of the appeal, we find that both the appellant 2 and 3 were fully aware that M/s Bird Retail Pvt. Ltd. is importing complete Segway electrically operated product in CKD condition by mis-declaring the same as CKD parts of components such as Power unit, transmission kit etc. Both the appellants were aware that the components which have been imported just indeed screw drive technology to make the same as functional Segway product. Shri Rony Abraham, Sales Manager was looking after the work pertaining to import, preparation of import documents and liaisoning with the customs clearing agent and subsequent sale of Segway products in a complete functional form. Shri Ankur Bhatia was controlling the activity of the imports as he was financing the same and gave financial approval for various activities of the import of the Segway product. Both of them were instrumental and devising a modus-operandi to evade customs duty by wrongly availing the benefit of the Notification No. 12/2012-Cus. dated 17/03/2012. Considering the involvement of both the appellants in entire activity, we feel that the Adjudicating Authority is right in imposing penalty upon them under provision of Section 114A and Section 114AA of the Customs Act, 1962 and we refrain from interfering the finding and imposition of the penalty upon these two appellants also.

28. The miscellaneous application filed by the appellant for additional ground have also been considered and while deciding the above appeal and same are also being kept in mind and accordingly the miscellaneous application also stand disposed of as being decided in the case of the main appeal.

29. In view of above, all the appeals are dismissed.

M/s Keihin Automotive Systems India Pvt. Ltd. ( KASIPL) is a company incorporated which is engaged in imports of fuel pump unit assembly. Various bills of entry from 29.01.2014 to 18.02.2016 for import of said fuel pump from Thailand at a combined assessable value of Rs. 426752486/- were filed by the Appellant. They were classifying the said goods under the tariff item 8409-91-99 of first schedule to Customs Tariff Act, 1975 (Tariff Act). And were availing exemption from Basic Customs Duty BCD) in furtherance of notification 85/2004-CUS dated 31.08.2004 which provides for exemption from BCD to the extent of 50% of the rates prescribed therein on the import of specified goods from Thailand. Entry No. 43 of said notification includes all goods classifiable under sub-heading 8409-91.

2. During test check of EDI data, department noticed that the appellant has wrongly classified the goods and that Rule 126 of General Rules of Interpretation (GIR) of harmonized system for classification of goods have not been followed. The Rules inter-alia provides that, “for legal purposes, classification shall be determined according to the terms of headings and any relative section or chapter notes”. Accordingly, an opinion was formed that the pumps for liquid whether or not fitted with a measuring device are classifiable under chapter 8413 and fuel lubricating or cooling medium pumps for internal combustion piston engines are classified under sub-heading 8413-30. In pursuance thereto show cause notice bearing No. 144 dated 26.11.2018 was served upon the appellant denying the eligibility of the appellant to the benefits of exemption under notification No. 85/2004 and proposing the recovery of short paid BCD of Rs. 3,83,93,215/-. Simultaneously, the interest is prayed to be levied and the penalty is to be imposed. The said proposal has been confirmed vide the Order No. 02/2019 dated 04.02.2019 being aggrieved the appellant is before this Tribunal.

3. It is submitted on behalf of the appellant that there is no contravention of any provision of Customs Act or the Customs Tariff Act on part of the appellant, as alleged by the department. It is submitted that foremost it is important to understand the nature and functioning of the impugned goods (fuel pump unit assembly) which comprises of two items:

1. Pumps

2. Floaters

It is further submitted that these goods are placed inside the fuel tank of a two-wheeler and are specifically designed for use with spark ignition internal combustion engines of Yamaha. These pumps cannot be used with two-wheelers of other brands. The main function of these goods is to pump the fuel into cylinders of an engine so as to keep the engine running in smooth condition. The amount of fuel pump into the engine and the power generated is also patrolled by this pump. As such the impugned goods being, specifically, designed for use with internal combustion engine, it is nothing but the part thereof and as such has rightly been classified under chapter 8409 sub-heading 91-99. The order-under-challenge is alleged to have failed to appreciate that chapter heading 8409 talks about the parts which are suitable for use, "solely or principally". The order-under-challenge is alleged erroneous and is prayed to be set aside, appeal is prayed to be allowed.

4. Per contra the order under challenge is being justified by the DR. It is submitted that as per the first rule of interpretation, the head-note of the chapter and the description of goods of each entry as provided in HSM code has to be the foremost criteria to classify the goods. Chapter 84 is about the nuclear reactors, boilers, machinery and mechanical appliances and the parts thereof. Description of goods for 8409 and 8413 in itself is sufficient to hold that the fuel pump unit assembly is specifically classifiable under 8413. It is alleged that the appellant has wrongly classified under 8409 may be to take the undue benefit of notification 85/2004. Impressing upon no infirmity in the order, appeal is prayed to be dismissed.

5. After hearing both the Parties, perusing the record and the order under challenge, I observe and hold as follows:

6. The appellant has imported fuel pump unit assembly, classifying the same under chapter heading 84099199. During the random check, the department formed an opinion that the goods imported are rather classifiable under chapter heading 84133090. Apparently, 54 bills of entry have already been cleared under the classification of 84099199 seeking an exemption of 50% BCD furtherance of notification 85/2004 denying the applicability of the said notification upon the appellant for the goods imported being classified under 8413 to which the notification is not applicable, that the benefit of exemption is denied and recovery to the extent of Rs. 38393215/- has been confirmed which has been challenged by the Appellant before us. Thus, it becomes clear that the controversy is about the classification of the impugned goods. For the purpose, foremost we need to look into the HSN code chapter 84 thereof.

7. No doubt, the fuel pump unit assembly of the appellant is meant to be used with the spark ignition internal combustion engine but admittedly it is such part which is rather a pump. It is the admission of the appellant that the impugned goods are responsible for pumping fuel into cylinders of an engine of two-wheelers while offering, control over the amount of fuel pumped into the engine and the power generator. Thus admittedly, this part of engine is a pump. Pumps are, specifically, classified under sub-heading 8413 as noted above.

8. A conjoint reading of description of goods for tariff item 8413 and 8409 makes it abundantly clear that all pumps meant for fuel lubricating or cooling medium for internal combustion piston engines are classified under 841330 and all other pumps for internal combustion piston engines for other than lubricating or cooling medium are classified under 84133090.

9. Thus, the tariff Act itself gives a clear cut distinction between a good which is merely a part or the part which can, specifically, be classified as a pump.

10. Now coming to the principles of classification of parts of machines of chapter 84, as contained in section note 2 to section 16 of the Customs Tariff, it provides as under:

2. Subject to Note 1 to this Section, Note 1 to Chapter 84 and to Note 1 to Chapter 85, parts of machines (not being parts of the articles of heading 8448, 8544, 8545, 8546 or 8547) are to be classified according to the following rules: (a) parts which are goods included in any of the headings of Chapter 84 or 85 (other than headings 8409, 8431, 8448, 8466, 8473, 8487, 8503, 8522, 8529, 8538 and 8548) are in all cases to be classified in their respective headings; (b) other parts, if suitable for use solely or principally with a particular kind of machine, or with a number of machines of the same heading (including a machine of heading 8479 or 8543) are to be classified with the machines of that kind or in heading 8409, 8431, 8448, 8466, 8473, 8503, 8522, 8529 or 8538 as appropriate. However, parts which are equally suitable for use principally with the goods of headings 8517 and 8525 to 8528 are to be classified in heading 8517; (c) all other parts are to be classified in heading 8409, 8431, 8448, 8466, 8473, 8503, 8522, 8529 or 8538 as appropriate or, failing that, in heading 8487 or 8548.

11. It becomes clearer that the items which are specifically included in CTH 8413 are clearly excluded from CTH 8409 irrespective they are used solely or principally with the engines of heading 8407 and 8408.

12. Coming to Rule 1 of General Rules of Interpretation, we note that the classification has to be determined as per the heading and related section or chapter notes. The relevant extract is reproduced as follows:

“The titles of Section, Chapters and Sub-Chapters are provided for the ease of reference only; for legal proposes, classification shall be determined according to the terms of the headings and any relative Section or Chapter Notes and, provided such headings or notes do not otherwise require, according to the following provisions.....”

13. From the entire above discussion, we are of clear opinion that fuel injecting pumps are neither an accessory not the spare part of the engine of a motor vehicle. These pumps are classifiable only under heading 8413, the parts of these pumps are classifiable only under heading 841391.

14. We draw our support from the decision of this Tribunal in the case Monitor Enterprises Vs. Commissioner of Customs reported in 2001 (239) ELT 2017 wherein it was held that fuel injection pumps for ignition engine are excluded from heading 8409 as per explanatory notes volume 3 at page 1152 of the HSN explanatory notes.

15. Section note 2 clarifies that the parts which in themselves constitute an article those all have to be classified in their appropriate heading irrespective they are specifically designed to work as a part of a specific machine. The importance of HSN explanatory notes in the matters relating to classification has been time and again underlined holding that more reliance has to be placed on chapter notes and explanatory notes to HSN. We find no infirmity in the order under challenge when reliance is placed on the decision of CCE Hyderabad Vs. Bakelite Hyman Ltd reported as 1997(91) ELT 13 (SP).

16. In view of this opinion and in view of the fact, we observe that notification 85 of 2004 has no such entry which includes items of chapter 8413. We are of the firm opinion that the appellant has wrongly availed the benefit of exemption of 50% BCD of the products imported by him by wrongly classifying them as the parts solely and exclusively used with the engines ignoring the specific entry for classification of pumps. There is no denial that the goods which are classified by him as parts are actually meant to function as pumps. Accordingly, we do not find any infirmity in the order-under-challenge. Finally, coming to the plea that the show cause notice is barred by time, we are of the opinion that:

17. In view of above discussion, it stands clear that the appellant has wrongly classified his goods classifiable under CTH 831330 intentionally under Customs Tariff Heading of 840991 with an intend to wrongly avail the benefit of exemption of 50% of BCD. It is worth taking a note of the fact that the bill of entry was filed under self-assessment regime and the importer need to be doubly sure that what they are claiming is legally correct.

18. We are of the opinion that department has committed no error while holding such an act on the part of the appellant as an intentional misrepresentation, which the section note 2 to section 16 of the Customs Tariff specifically provides a methodology of classification of pumps and parts of engines. In view entire discussion, we are of the opinion that classifying the product under a wrong entry continuously for as many as more than 50 bills of entry cannot be an act of ignorance. Hence, we hold that department has committed no error while invoking the extended period of limitation and, therefore, the show cause notice cannot be held to be barred by time.

19. Consequence to the above discussion, the order under challenge is hereby upheld. Appeal, accordingly, stands dismissed.

Per: Dilip Gupta:

M/s Hanuman Prasad and Sons Hanuman Prasad and M/s Niraj Silk Mills Niraj Silk had imported various kinds of polyester knitted fabric of different weights and colours the goods and had submitted 27 and 9 Bills of Entry respectively, declaring the value of the goods @ 1.2 USD per kg. The Assessing Officer enhanced the assessable value, on the basis of contemporaneous imports data and which value was also accepted by Hanuman Prasad and Niraj Silk in writing, to 1.80 USD per kg for Hanuman Prasad and 1.94 USD per kg Niraj Silk. However, appeals were filed against each of the Bills of Entry by Hanuman Prasad and Niraj Silk before the Commissioner of Customs (Appeals) the Commissioner (Appeals), who by an order dated April 26, 2019 allowed all the 27 appeals filed by Hanuman Prasad and by an order dated May 08, 2019 allowed all the 9 appeals filed by Niraj Silk. The Department has, accordingly, filed these 36 appeals to assail the orders passed by the Commissioner (Appeals).

2. The records indicate that Hanuman Prasad had submitted 27 Bills of Entry declaring the value of the goods at 1.2 USD per kg and Niraj Silk had submitted 9 Bills of Entry declaring the value of the goods at 1.2 USD per kg. The Assessing Officer believed that he had reason to doubt the accuracy of the value so declared, since it was lesser than the contemporaneous export data. On being confronted with such data, both Hanuman Prasad and Niraj Silk submitted identical letters in connection with the Bills of Entry. Hanuman Prasad specifically stated that though it had declared the value of the goods at 1.2 USD per kg but on contemporaneous data having been shown, it agrees for enhancement of the value to 1.80 USD per kg and that it did not want any show cause notice to be issued to it or personal hearing to be provided, nor did it want any speaking order to be passed on the aforesaid Bills of Entry. It further stated that it was voluntarily relinquishing the rights provided to it under sections 124 and 17(5) of the Customs Act, 1962 the Customs Act. The letter written by Niraj Silk is identically worded, except for agreeing to the enhancement of the value of the declared goods to 1.94 USD per kg.

3. A copy of one such letter dated January 3, 2019 submitted by Hanuman Prasad to the Assessing officer in connection with the assessment of the Bills of Entry is reproduced below:

In this regard, we submit that we do not want any Show cause Notice & Personal Hearing on this matter as envisaged under section 124 of Customs Act, 1962 read with Section 28 of this Act. We do not want any Speaking Order of Aforesaid B/E's. We, therefore, voluntarily relinguish our Rights provided u/s 124 & 17(5) of Customs Act, 1962.

5. The value of the declared goods was thereafter enhanced by the Assessing Officer to 1.80 USD per kg. in the case of Hanuman Prasad and to 1.94 USD per kg. in the case of Niraj Silk.

6. However, Hanuman Prasad and Niraj Silk challenged the order passed by the Assessing Officer on the Bills of Entry by filing 36 appeals before the Commissioner (Appeals).

7. The Commissioner (Appeals), by two separate orders dated April 26, 2019 and May 08, 2019, allowed the 36 appeals. The relevant portion of the order dated April 26, 2019 relating to the 27 Bills of Entry in the matter of Hanuman Prasad is reproduced below:

"5.3 The appellant has contended that the acceptance of enhanced value proposed by the Revenue during assessment and clearance to save demurrages by the appellant does not preclude from challenging the enhancement by way of appeal. I find considerable force in the contention of the appellant. The issue as to whether an assessee can file an appeal against assessment made in respect of Bill of Entry has been settled by judicial pronouncements. It is settled legal proposition that there is no estoppel in taxation matters. The Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Dunlop India Limited Vs. UOI reported in 1983(13) ELT 1566(SC) has laid down that even assuming that there is an acceptance it does not preclude the assessee from challenging by way of appeal as there cannot be an estoppel against law. Similar view was held in 2015(329) ELT 307(T) and 2016(343) ELT 963(T).

5.4 The appellant has assailed that the enhancement of assessable value is arbitrary and illegal as the practice of not making the assessment on the declared value in terms of the mandate of Section 14 of the Customs Act, 1962 read with Rule 3 of Customs Valuation (Determination of Price of Imported Goods) Rules, 2007 (CVR, 2007), is against the provisions of law. Rule 3 of CVR, 2007 provides that subject to Rule 12, the value of imported goods shall be the transaction value adjusted in accordance with provision of Rule 10 and unless the price actually paid for the particular transaction falls within the exceptions in Rule 3(2), the Customs authorities are bound to assess the duty on the transaction value. There is no question of determining the value under the subsequent Rules if the same does not fall within the exception provided therein. The appellant relied upon the above mentioned judgments in their support.

5.5 I find that an obligation was cast on the assessing authority to pass a speaking order disclosing the grounds for rejecting the declared value and then resorting to loading and enhancement in value. The declared value can be rejected on the basis of reasonable and cogent evidence only and Revenue should discharge the heavy burden to prove that invoice value does not represent the true transaction value in the international market.

5.6 I find that in the Bills of Entry for a large period of time the assessable values are being enhanced uniformly which, in my view, is not correct. Parameters like nature, quality, level of import, time etc. are to be looked into while applying the value of contemporaneous imports. Uniform value loading in each Bill of Entry at uniform price on the basis of DRI Alerts, DGoV Circulars and other Standing Orders, etc., is not in consonance with the provision of the Customs Act & Rules.

5.8 It is settled law by the following decisions of the Hon'ble Supreme Court that unless there is additional consideration involved or any of the exceptions of Rule 4(2) is attracted, transaction value cannot be rejected:

5.9 If the circumstances mentioned in proviso to Rule 4(2) are not applicable, the Department is bound to assess the duty of transaction value. NIDB data alone cannot be made basis of enhancement of value.

5.10 In the case of M/s Maruti Fabric Impex & Ors., where the enhancement of value was resorted to by the Department and was rejected by Commissioner of Customs (Appeals), Delhi and the matter travelled to the Hon’ble CESTAT by Department’s Appeal, the Hon’ble CESTAT vide Final Order No. C/A/51690-51694/2016-CU(DB) dated 27.04.2016 held that for rejecting the transaction value, first it has to be rejected as incorrect value and there being no evidence to show that the importer has paid over the above the transaction value to the seller of goods, there is virtually no reason to reject the transaction value. Similar view has been held by Tribunal in Final Orders C/A/52972/2016 dated 08.08.2016 and C/A/52685-86 dated 27.07.2016.

5.12 Hon’ble Supreme Court in the case of Noida Vs. M/s Sanjivani Non-Ferrous Trading Pvt. Ltd. (Civil Appeal No. 18300-18305/2017) held vide judgement dated 10.12.2018 that “The normal rule is that assessable value has to be arrived at on the basis of the price which is actually paid, as provided by Section 14 of the Customs Act. That the declared price could be rejected only with cogent reasons by undertaking the exercise as to on what basis the assessing Authority could hold that the paid price was not the sole consideration of the transaction value. Since there is no such exercise done by the Assessing Authority to reject the declared in the Bills of Entry, Order-in-Original was therefore clearly erroneous.”

5.15 In view of the facts and findings, supra, I set aside the reassessment of goods covered under the impugned Twenty Seven Bills of Entry. I allow the appeals filed by the appellant accordingly and restore the assessment at the declared values.”

8. The order dated May 08, 2019 passed relating to 9 Bills of Entry in the matter of Niraj Silk is identical and, therefore, is not being reproduced.

9. Shri Rakesh Kumar, learned Authorized Representative of the Department has made the following submissions:

(i) The Assessing Officer had reason to doubt the accuracy of the value declared in the Bills of Entry submitted by the importers as they were grossly undervalued as compared to the contemporaneous import data and since the two importers had submitted letters clearly stating that they have agreed for enhancement of the value to 1.8 USD per kg and 1.94 USD per kg and did not require any personal hearing or a speaking order, the Assessing Officer enhanced the value. Thus, once having accepted the value of the goods in writing, it was not open to the importers to challenge the value of the goods, nor was it open to the importers to file appeals for the reason that the requirement of not passing any speaking order is to reduce litigation;

(ii) The decisions relied upon by the Commissioner (Appeals) are clearly distinguishable on facts, as in the present case, letters were submitted voluntarily by the importers accepting the enhanced value based on contemporaneous data;

(iii) The findings of the Commissioner (Appeals) that the importers had accepted the value to avoid demurrages and detention is not borne out from the records;

(iv) The Commissioner (Appeals) was not justified in making a general statement about uniform enhancement of value by the Assessing Officer on the basis of NIDB data;

(v) The finding of the Commissioner (Appeals) that the valuation of the declared goods has to be first rejected under rule 12 of the Customs Valuation (Determination of Value of Imported Goods) Rules, 2007 the Valuation Rules, is not correct in the facts and circumstances of the present case;

(vi) The Commissioner (Appeals) committed an error in observing that the Assessing Officer should have passed a speaking order, in view of the specific statements made by the importers that they did not want a speaking order; and

(vii) The Commissioner (Appeals) was not justified in holding that the transaction value declared by the importers should have been determined in accordance with the provisions of section 14 of the Customs Act and rule 3 of the Valuation Rules.
10. Shri B.L. Narasimhan, learned Counsel appearing for the importers made the following submissions:

(ii) Section 17 of the Customs Act does not preclude an assessee from filing an appeal against a Bill of Entry;

(iii) The Department did not follow the procedure contemplated under rule 12 of the Valuation Rules to reject the transaction value declared by the importers. Reliance has been placed on the following decisions:

(i) Eicher Tractors Ltd. Vs. Commissioner of Customs, Mumbai 2000 (122) ELT 321 – CESTAT (SC)

(iv) NIDB data cannot be the sole basis to reject the transaction value without any cogent reasons. Reliance has been placed on the following decisions:

(i) M/s Sai Exports Vs. Commissioner of Customs 2019(8) TMI 432 – CESTAT Chennai

(ii) Commissioner of Customs, New Delhi Vs. Rainbow Impex 2013(296) ELT 207 – (Tri.-Del.)

(iv) Commissioner of Customs, New Delhi Vs. Marble Art 2013(289) ELT 346 – (Tri.-Del.)

(v) Commissioner of Central Excise, Rohtak Vs. Sail Sales Corporation 2012(278) ELT 197 – (Tri.-Del.); and

(v) The burden of proof lies upon the Department to prove the charge of under valuation, which burden has not been discharged in the present case.

11. The submissions advanced by the learned Authorized Representative for the Appellant and the learned Counsel for the respondent have been considered.

12. What transpires from the records is that both Hanuman Prasad and Niraj Silk had declared the value of the goods in the Bills of Entry as 1.2 USD per kg. Section 14 of the Customs Act deals with ‘Valuation of Goods’ and is reproduced below:

"Section 14. Valuation of goods. - (1) For the purposes of the Customs Tariff Act, 1975 (51 of 1975), or any other law for the time being in force, the value of the imported goods and export goods shall be the transaction value of such goods, that is to say, the price actually paid or payable for the goods when sold for export to India for delivery at the time and place of importation, or as the case may be, for export from India for delivery at the time and place of exportation, where the buyer and seller of the goods are not related and price is the sole consideration for the sale subject to such other conditions as may be specified in the rules made in this behalf:

Provided xxxxxx xxxxxx xxxxxx"

13. It would be seen that section 14 of the Customs Act provides that the transaction value of goods shall be the price actually paid or payable for the goods when sold for export to India where the buyer and the seller of the goods are not related and the price is the sole consideration for the sale, subject to such other conditions as may be specified in the rules made in this behalf. The Valuation Rules have been framed in exercise of the powers conferred by section 14 of the Customs Act. Rule 12 deals with rejection of the declared value and is reproduced below:

"Rule 12. Rejection of declared value. - (1) When the proper officer has reason to doubt the truth or accuracy of the value declared in relation to any imported goods, he may ask the importer of such goods to furnish further information including documents or other evidence and if, after receiving such further information, or in the absence of a response of such importer, the proper officer still has reasonable doubt about the truth or accuracy of the value so declared, it shall be deemed that the transaction value of such imported goods cannot be determined under the provisions of sub-rule(1) of rule 3.

(2) At the request of an importer, the proper officer, shall intimate the importer in writing the grounds for doubting the truth or accuracy of the value declared in relation to goods imported by such importer and provide a reasonable opportunity of being heard, before taking a final decision under sub-rule (1).

Explanation.-(1) For the removal of doubts, it is hereby declared that:-

(i) This rule by itself does not provide a method for determination of value, it provides a mechanism and procedure for rejection of declared value in cases where there is reasonable doubt that the declared value does not represent the transaction value; where the declared value is rejected, the value shall be determined by proceeding sequentially in accordance with rules 4 to 9.

(ii) The declared value shall be accepted where the proper officer is satisfied about the truth and accuracy of the declared value after the said enquiry in consultation with the importers.

(iii) The proper officer shall have the powers to raise doubts on the truth or accuracy of the declared value based on certain reasons which may include -

(a) the significantly higher value at which identical or similar goods imported at or about the same time in comparable quantities in a comparable commercial transaction were assessed;

(b) the sale involves an abnormal discount or abnormal reduction from the ordinary competitive price;

(c) the sale involves special discounts limited to exclusive agents;

(d) the misdeclaration of goods in parameters such as description, quality, quantity, country of origin, year of manufacture or production;

(e) the non declaration of parameters such as brand, grade, specifications that have relevance to value;

(f) the fraudulent or manipulated documents."

14. Rule 12 provides that when the proper officer has reason to doubt the truth or accuracy of the value declared in relation to any imported goods, he may ask the importer of such goods to furnish further information including documents or other evidence and if, after receiving such further information, or in the absence of a response of such importer, the proper officer still has reasonable doubt about the truth or accuracy of the value so declared, it shall be deemed that the transaction value of such imported goods cannot be determined under the provisions of rule 3(1). Explanation (iii) to rule 12 provides that the proper officer shall have the powers to raise doubts on the truth or accuracy of the declared value based on certain reasons, which may include any of the six reasons contained therein, one of which is that there is a significantly higher value at which identical or similar goods imported at or about the same time in comparable quantities in a comparable commercial transaction were assessed.

15. The proper officer doubted the value of the goods declared by Hanuman Prasad and Niraj Silk since the contemporaneous data in respect of the goods imported by Hanuman Prasad was 1.80 USD per kg, while that for Niraj Silk was 1.94 USD per kg. On being confronted with this contemporaneous data, both Hanuman Prasad and Niraj Silk submitted letters. Hanuman Prasad specifically stated that it agrees for enhancement of the value of goods to 1.80 USD per kg, and that it did not desire that any show cause notice to be issued or personal hearing to be provided, as is contemplated under section 124 of the Customs Act. It also stated that it did not desire that a speaking order, as contemplated under section 17(5) of the Customs Act, should be passed on the Bills of Entry. A similar letter was written by Niraj Silk.

16. The relevant portion of section 17(5) of the Customs Act is reproduced below:

"Section 17. Assessment of duty.- (1) An importer entering any imported goods under section 46, or an exporter entering any export goods under section 50, shall, save as otherwise provided in section 85, self-assess the duty, if any, leviable on such goods.

(2) The proper officer may verify the entries made under section 46 or section 50 and the self-assessment of goods referred to in sub-section (1) and for this purpose, examine or test any imported goods or export goods or such part thereof as may be necessary.

Provided that the selection of cases for verification shall primarily be on the basis of risk evaluation through appropriate selection criteria.

(3) For the purposes of verification under sub-section (2), the proper officer may require the importer, exporter or any other person to produce any document or information, whereby the duty leviable on the imported goods or export goods, as the case may be, can be ascertained and thereupon, the importer, exporter or such other person shall produce such document or furnish such information.

(4) Where it is found on verification, examination or testing of the goods or otherwise that the self-assessment is not done correctly, the proper officer may, without prejudice to any other action which may be taken under this Act, reassess the duty leviable on such goods.

(5) Where any reassessment done under sub-section (4) is contrary to the self-assessment done by the importer or exporter and in cases other than those where the importer or exporter, as the case may be, confirms his acceptance of the said reassessment in writing, the proper officer shall pass a speaking order on the reassessment, within fifteen days from the date of reassessment of the bill of entry or the shipping bill, as the case may be.

17. It would be seen that though in a case where reassessment has to be done under sub-section (4) of section 17 of the Customs Act, the proper officer is required to pass a speaking order on the re-assessment, but if the importer or exporter confirms his acceptance of the re-assessment, a speaking order is not required to be passed.

18. In view of the specific requests made in the letters that were submitted by Hanuman Prasad and Niraj Silk in regard to all the 36 Bills of Entry that they had agreed for the declared value of the goods to be enhanced to 1.80 USD per kg and 1.94 USD per kg, the assessing officer assessed the value of the goods at 1.80 USD per kg for Hanuman Prasad and 1.94 USD per kg for Niraj Silk.

19. It is after the payment of duty on the aforesaid assessments made by the assessing officer that Hanuman Prasad and Niraj Silk filed 36 Appeals before the Commissioner (Appeals), which Appeals were ultimately allowed by orders dated April 26, 2019 and May 08, 2019.

20. The Commissioner (Appeals) allowed the Appeals primarily for the following reasons:

(i) The acceptance of the enhanced value proposed by the Revenue does not preclude an assessee from filing an Appeal to challenge the assessment order;

(ii) An obligation was cast on the assessing officer to pass a speaking order disclosing the grounds for rejecting the declared value and only thereafter the proper officer could have resorted to enhancement of the value;

(iii) The declared value can be rejected on the basis of reasonable and cogent evidence only and the Revenue has to discharge this burden by proving that the invoice value did not represent the true transaction value in the international market;

(iv) For a considerable period of time, the Bills of Entry were being enhanced uniformly, which in the opinion of the Commissioner (Appeals), was not correct.
Parameters like nature, quality, level of import, time etc. were required to be looked into while applying the value of contemporaneous imports;

(v) Unless there is an additional consideration involved or any of the exceptions of rule 4(2) of the Valuation Rules are attracted, the transaction value cannot be rejected. NIDB data alone cannot be made the basis of enhancement of value; and

(vi) In view of the judgment of the Supreme Court in C.C.E. & S.T., Noida vs. Sanjivani Non-Ferrous Trading Pvt. Ltd. 2019 (365)E.L.T. 3 (S.C.), the transaction value has to be arrived at on the basis of the price that is actually paid as provided by section 14 of the Customs Act and the declared price can be rejected only by giving cogent reasons, but no such exercise was undertaken by the Assessing Authority to reject the value declared in the Bills of Entry.

21. The Commissioner (Appeals), despite a categorical statement made by the importers that they did not desire a speaking order to be passed, observed “an obligation was cast on the assessing authority to pass a speaking order disclosing the grounds for rejecting the declared value and only then the assessing officer could have enhanced the value.” This finding of the Commissioner (Appeals) is perverse as it is clearly contrary to the specific statement made by the importers in the letters submitted by them to the assessing officer. What has also to be kept in mind is that section 17(5) permits the importer to waive this right.

22. It is seen from a perusal of section 17(4) of the Customs Act that the proper officer can re-assess the duty leviable, if it is found on verification, examination or testing of the goods or otherwise that the self-assessment was not done correctly. Sub-section (5) of section 17 provides that where any re-assessment done under sub-section (4) is contrary to the self-assessment done by the importer, the proper officer shall pass a speaking order on the re-assessment, except in a case where the importer confirms his acceptance of the said re-assessment in writing.

23. In the present case, as noticed above, the proper officer doubted the truth or accuracy of the value declared by the importer for the reason that contemporaneous data had a significantly higher value. It was open to the importers to require the proper officer to intimate the grounds in writing for doubting the truth or accuracy of the value declared by them and seek a reasonable opportunity of being heard, but they did not do so. On the other hand, the importers submitted in writing that though they had declared the value of the imported goods at 1.20 USD per kg., but on being shown contemporaneous data, they have agreed that the value of the goods should be enhanced to 1.80 USD per kg for Hanuman Prasad and to 1.94 USD per kg. for Niraj Silk. The importers also specifically stated that they did not want to avail of the right conferred on them under section 124 of the Customs Act and, therefore, they did not want any show cause notice to be issued to them or personal hearing to be provided to them. The importers also specifically stated that they did not want a speaking order to be passed on the Bills of Entry. It needs to be noted that section 124 of the Customs Act provides for issuance of a show cause notice and personal hearing, and section 17(5) of the Customs Act requires a speaking order to be passed on the Bills of Entry, except in a case where the importer/exporter confirms the acceptance in writing.

24. It is no doubt true that the value of the imported goods shall be the transaction value of such goods when the buyer and the seller of goods are not related and the price is the sole consideration, but this is subject to such conditions as may be specified in the rules to be made in this behalf. The Valuation Rules have been framed. A perusal of rule 12(1) indicates that when the proper officer has reason to doubt the truth or accuracy of the value of the imported goods, he may ask the importer to furnish further information. Rule 12(2) stipulates that it is only if an importer makes a request that the proper officer shall, before taking a final decision, intimate the importer in writing the grounds for doubting the truth or accuracy of the value declared and provide a reasonable opportunity of being heard. To remove all doubts, Explanation 1(iii)(a) provides that the proper officer can have doubts regarding the truth or accuracy of the declared value if the goods of a comparable nature were assessed at a significantly higher value at about the same time.

25. Explanation (1)(i) to rule 12 of the Valuation Rules, however, provides that the rule only provides a mechanism and procedure for rejection of declared value and does not provide a method for determination of value and if the declared value is rejected, the value has to be determined by proceeding sequentially in accordance with rules 4 to 9.

26. In Century Metal Recycling, the Supreme Court summarized the provisions of rule 12 of the Valuation Rules and the observations are as follows:

“15. The requirements of Rule 12, therefore, can be summarised as under:

(a) The proper officer should have reasonable doubt as to the transactional value on account of truth or accuracy of the value declared in relation to the imported goods.

(b) Proper officer must ask the importer of such goods further information which may include documents or evidence.

(c) On receiving such information or in the absence of response from the importer, the proper officer has to apply his mind and decide whether or not reasonable doubt as to the truth or accuracy of the value so declared persists.

(d) When the proper officer does not have reasonable doubt, the goods are cleared on the declared value.

(e) When the doubt persists, sub-rule (1) to Rule 3 is not applicable and transaction value is determined in terms of Rules 4 to 9 of the 2007 Rules.

(f) The proper officer can raise doubts as to the truth or accuracy of the declared value on certain reasons which could include the grounds specified in clauses (a) to (f) in clause (iii) of the Explanation.

(g) The proper officer, on a request made by the importer, has to furnish and intimate to the importer in writing the grounds for doubting the truth or accuracy of the value declared in relation to the imported goods. Thus, the proper officer has to record reasons in writing which have to be communicated when requested.

(h) The importer has to be given opportunity of hearing before the proper officer finally decides the transactional value in terms of Rules 4 to 9 of the 2007 Rules.

16. Proper officer can therefore reject the declared transactional value based on certain reasons to doubt the truth or accuracy of the declared value in which event the proper officer is entitled to make assessment as per Rules 4 to 9 of the 2007 Rules. What is meant by the expression grounds for doubting the truth or accuracy of the value declared has been explained and elucidated in clause (iii) of Explanation appended to Rule 12 which sets out some of the conditions when the reason to doubt exists. The instances mentioned in clauses (a) to (f) are not exhaustive but are inclusive for there could be other instances when the proper officer could reasonably doubt the accuracy or truth of the value declared.”

27. It is non-consideration of the factual position emerging from the statements made by Hanuman Prasad and Niraj Silk that led the Commissioner (Appeals) to believe that the declared value could be rejected only on the basis of reasonable and cogent evidence, which burden the Revenue failed to discharge as it could not prove that the invoice did not represent the true transaction value in the international market.

28. Despite the specific requests made by the importers in the letters submitted by them, it was sought to be contended by the importers in the Appeals filed by them before the Commissioner (Appeals) that the transaction value of the imported goods alone should have been treated to be the value of the goods, as provided for under rule 3(1) of the Valuation Rules, since none of the conditions stipulated in the proviso to sub-rule (2) of rule 3 were attracted and in any case, if the declared value could not be determined under sub-rule (1) of rule 3, it was required to be determined by proceeding sequentially through rules 4 to 9.

29. Rule 3 of the Valuation Rules is, therefore, reproduced below:

(1) Subject to rule 12, the value of imported goods shall be the transaction value adjusted in accordance with provisions of rule 10;

(2) Value of imported goods under sub-rule (1) shall be accepted: Provided that –

(a) there are no restrictions as to the disposition or use of the goods by the buyer other than restrictions which –

(i) are imposed or required by law or by the public authorities in India; or

(ii) limit the geographical area in which the goods may be resold; or

(iii) do not substantially affect the value of the goods;

(b) the sale or price is not subject to some condition or consideration for which a value cannot be determined in respect of the goods being valued;

(c) no part of the proceeds of any subsequent resale, disposal or use of the goods by the buyer will accrue directly or indirectly to the seller, unless an appropriate adjustment can be made in accordance with the provisions of rule 10 of these rules; and

(d) the buyer and seller are not related, or where the buyer and seller are related, that transaction value is acceptable for customs purposes under the provisions of sub-rule (3) below:

(3) xxxxxxxxx xxxxxxxxx xxxxxxxxx

(4) If the value cannot be determined under the provisions of sub-rule (1), the value shall be determined by proceeding sequentially through rule 4 to 9.

30. The very fact that the importers had agreed for enhancement of the declared value in the letters submitted by them to the assessing authority, itself implies that the importers had not accepted the value declared by them in the Bills of Entry. The value declared in the Bills of Entry, therefore, automatically stood rejected. Further, once the importers had accepted the enhanced value, it was really not necessary for the assessing authority to undertake the exercise of determining the value of the declared goods under the provisions of rules 4 to 9 of the Valuation Rules. This is for the reason that it is only when the value of the imported goods cannot be determined under rule 3(1) for the reason that the declared value has been rejected under sub rule 2, that the value of the imported goods is required to be determined by proceeding sequentially through rule 4 to 9. As noticed above, the importers had accepted the enhanced value and there was, therefore, no necessity for the assessing officer to determine the value in the manner provided for in rules 4 to 9 of the Valuation Rules sequentially.

“5. We have considered the contentions of both sides. We find that whatever may be the reasons, the appellant expressly gave its consent to the value proposed by Revenue and expressly stated that it did not want any Show Cause Notice or personal hearing. Even the duty was paid without protest. By consenting to enhancement of value and thereby voluntarily foregoing the need for a Show Cause Notice, the appellant made it unnecessary for Revenue to establish the valuation any further as the consented value in effect becomes the declared transaction value requiring no further investigation or justification. To allow the appellant to contest the consented value now is to put Revenue in an impossible situation as the goods are no longer available for inspection and Revenue rightly did not proceed to further collect and compile all the evidences/basis into a Show Cause Notice as doing so, in spite of the appellant having consented to the enhancement of value and requested for no Show Cause Notice, could/would have invited allegation of harassment and delay in clearance of goods. When Show Cause Notice is expressly foregone and the valuation is consented, the violation of principles of natural justice cannot be alleged. In the present case, while value can be challenged but such a challenge would be of no avail as with the goods not being available and valuation earlier having been consented, the onus will be on the appellant to establish that the valuation as per his consent suffered from fatal infirmity and such onus has not been discharged. Further, valuation of such goods requires their physical inspection and so re-assessment of value in the absence of goods will not be possible. The case of Eicher Tractors v. Union of India (supra) cited by the appellant is not relevant here as in that case there was no evidence that the assessee had consented to enhancement of value."

32. In Vikas Spinners, the Tribunal dealing with a similar situation, observed as under:

"7. In our view in the present appeal, the question of loading of the value of the goods cannot at all be legally agitated by the appellants. Admittedly, the price of the imported goods declared by them was US $ 0.40 per Kg. but the same was not accepted and loaded to US $ 0.50 per Kg. This loading in the value was done in consultation with Shri Gautam Sinha, the Representative and Special Attorney of the appellants who even signed an affirmation accepting the loaded value of the goods on the back of the Bill of Entry dated 7-5-1999. After loading of the value, the appellants produced the special import licence and paid the duty on the goods accordingly of Rs. 4,22,008/- on 19-5-1990. Having once accepted the loaded value of the goods and paid duty accordingly thereon without any protest or objection they are legally estopped from taking somersault and to deny the correctness of the same. There is nothing on record to suggest that the loaded value was accepted by them only for the purpose of clearance of the goods and that they reserved their right to challenge the same subsequently. They settled their duty liability once for all and paid the duty amount on the loaded value of the goods. The ratio of the law laid down by the Apex Court in Sounds N. Images, (supra) is not at all attracted to the case of the appellants. The benefit of this ratio could be taken by them only if they had contested the loaded value at the time when it was done, but not now after having voluntarily accepted the correctness of loaded value of the goods as determined in the presence of their Representative/Special Attorney and paid the duty thereon accordingly."

33. In Guardian Plasticote Ltd., the Tribunal after placing reliance on the decision of the Tribunal in Vikas Spinners, had also observed as follows:

"4. The learned Advocate also cites the decision of the Tribunal in the case of M/s. Vikas Spinners v. C.C., Lucknow - 2001 (128) E.L.T. 143 (Tri.-Del.) in support of his arguments. We find that the said decision clearly holds that enhanced value once settled and duty having been paid accordingly without protest, importer is estopped from challenging the same subsequently. It also holds that enhanced value uncontested and voluntarily accepted, and accordingly payment of duty made discharges the burden of the department to establish declared value to be incorrect. In view of the fact that the Appellants in this case have not established that they had lodged any protest and on the contrary their letter dated 21-4-1999 clearly points to acceptance of the enhanced value by them, the cited decision advances the cause of the department rather than that of the Appellants contrary to the claim by the learned Counsel."

34. In BNK Intrade (P) Ltd. vs Commissioner of Customs, Chennai 2002 (140) ELT 158 (Tri.-Del), the Tribunal observed as follows:

"2. ............... It is also to be noted that the importer had also agreed for enhancement of the price based on contemporaneous prices available with the Department. We, therefore, find no merit in the contention raised in the appeal challenging the valuation and seeking the refund of the differential duty paid by the appellants on enhancement."

35. The following position emerges from the aforesaid decisions of the Tribunal:

(i) When an importer consents to the enhancement of value, it becomes unnecessary for the revenue to establish the valuation as the consented value, in effect, becomes the declared transaction value requiring no further investigation;

(ii) When an importer accepts the loaded value of the goods without any protest or objection, the importer cannot be permitted to deny its correctness; and

(iii) The burden of the Department to establish the declared value to be in correct is discharged if the enhanced value is voluntarily accepted.

36. Learned Counsel appearing for the Respondent has, however, placed reliance upon certain decisions passed by the Tribunal to contend that the transaction value has to be first rejected and thereafter the assessing officer can re-assess with reasons and in accordance with the provisions of the Valuation Rules.

37. The first decision is Maruti Fabric Impex, a matter concerning the present appellant. The Tribunal observed:

"2. As per facts on record, the respondents imported fabrics and filed bills of entries declaring the transaction value as the assessable value in terms of the provisions of Section 14 of Customs Act. The bills of entries were assessed by the proper officer by enhancing the declared assessable value. The respondents cleared the goods on payment of duty on the enhancement.

3. The Appellate Authority took into consideration various facts including the issue as to whether an assessee can file an appeal against assessment made in the bills of entries, once he pays duty on the same and clears the goods, observed that acceptance of enhanced value proposed by the Department by an assessee does not preclude him from challenging the enhancement by way of appeal. As regards enhancement of assessable value, he observed that no reasons stand given by the Revenue for such an enhancement. There is no rejection of the transaction value and in such a scenario, the transaction value has to be adopted as the assessable value. He also observed that though no reasons stand reflected in the Revenue's assessment but the same seems to have been done on the basis of a DRI Alert dated 9-5-2011.

6. As regards the second issue, we find that Commissioner (Appeals) has gone into detailed examination of the provisions of Section 14 as also the Customs Valuation (Determination of Value of Imported Goods) Rules, 2007. As rightly observed by him, for adopting the provision of Customs Valuation Rule, the transaction value is required to be rejected as incorrect value. There being no evidence to show that the importer has paid over and above than the transaction value, to the seller of the goods, there is virtually no reasons to reject the transaction value. It is also a settled law that DRI Alerts cannot be adopted as a reason for enhancing the value. As such, we find no infirmity in the views adopted by Commissioner (Appeals) so as to interfere in the impugned order. Accordingly, the appeals filed by the Revenue are rejected."

38. The Tribunal noticed that with regard to the enhancement of the assessable value, the Appellate Authority had observed that no reasons had been recorded by the assessing officer for such enhancement and there was no rejection of the transaction value. It needs to be noted that there is nothing in the decision which may indicate that the importer had himself accepted the transaction value indicated by the proper officer in writing or that he had forgone his right to a speaking order.
39. This decision of the Tribunal in Maruti Fabric Impex was followed in Hanuman Prasad.

40. The next decision relied upon by learned Counsel for the Respondent is Artex Textile Private Limited. The Tribunal observed that:

"2. The brief facts are that the respondent importer of polyester knitted fabrics were filing Bill of Entry from time to time at ICD Soanepat on the basis of self assessment of duty on the declared transaction value. The Bills of Entry were assessed by Assistant/Deputy Commissioner of Customs, by enhancing the value over and above the declared value. However, no speaking order was passed giving reasons for rejection of the declared value and enhancement thereof.

41. A perusal of the aforesaid decision also does not indicate that the importer had accepted the declared value in writing or that the importer had waived his right to a speaking order. In fact, only a general statement has been made that the assessing officer have been making enhancement in a routine manner and that an importer has no choice but to sign in order to save demurrage charges.

42. It has to be noted that the two importers, Hanuman Prasad and Niraj Silk, had not made any statement that they have accepted the value of the goods proposed by the Revenue to save demurrage charges nor did they state in the letter that the value was being accepted by them under protest and they would agitate the matter in appeal. It is only in this appeal that it has been suggested that the value was accepted to save demurrage charges, perhaps prompted by the observations made by the Tribunal in Artex Textile Private Limited.

43. Learned Counsel for the Respondent also relied upon the decision of the Tribunal in Commissioner of Customs, New Delhi (ICD TKD) vs M/s Uniexcel Polychem Pvt. Ltd 2016 (8) TMI 829- Cestat New Delhi . The Tribunal observed that:

"4. On the merit of enhancement of value, we are in agreement with the findings in the impugned order. No detailed reason has been given by the Original Authority for rejection of the transaction value. Apparently he was guided only by DRI alert which formed basis of enhancement of value. It has been repeatedly held by this Tribunal as well as Hon'ble High Courts that the transaction value cannot be rejected mechanically based on suspicion or general alert without supporting evidence to the effect that the invoice value does not reflect the transaction value required for assessment. In the present case, we find that no evidence of any nature has been brought out or discussed before such enhancement. Even contemporaneous value of similar or identical goods have not been examined and discussed."

44. This decision also does not indicate that the importers had accepted the value of the goods proposed by the Revenue in writing or that the importers had waived their right to a speaking order. In fact, it was the DRI alert that formed the basis of enhancement of value.

45. The Supreme Court observed in Eicher Tractors Ltd., which decision has also been relied upon by the learned counsel for the Respondent, that it is only when the transaction value under rule 4 of the Valuation Rules is rejected that the transaction value is required to be determined by proceeding sequentially through rules 5 to 8. The decision of the Supreme Court in Century Metal Recycling also holds that if the declared transaction value is rejected, then it has to be determined in accordance with the procedure prescribed in rules 4 to 9. These decisions of the Supreme Court, for the reasons stated above, do not help the respondent.

46. Learned counsel for the respondent has also emphasized that NIDB data cannot be the sole basis to reject the transaction value without any cogent reasons. As seen above, the importers had in writing accepted the transaction value and it is perhaps for this reason that they did not require any show cause notice to be issued to them or a personal hearing to be granted to them. The respondent is, therefore, not justified in asserting that the transaction value has been determined on the basis NIDB data. It was their acceptance of the value that formed the basis for determination of the value. The decisions relied upon by the respondent to support the contention sought to be raised are, therefore, of no benefit to them.

47. The general observations made the Commissioner (Appeals) in the impugned order that the value declared in the Bills of Entry were being enhanced uniformly by the Department for a considerable period of time was uncalled for. The Commissioner (Appeals) completely failed to advert to the crucial aspect that the importers had themselves accepted the enhanced value. The Commissioner (Appeals) in fact, proceeded to examine the matter as if the assessing officer had enhanced the declared value on the basis of other factors and not on the acceptance by the importers. This casual observation is not based on the factual position that emerges from the records of the case.

48. Thus, for all the reasons above, the Commissioner (Appeals) was not justified in setting aside the orders passed by the assessing officer on the Bills of Entry.

49. When on merits it has been found that the Commissioner (Appeals) committed an error in allowing the appeals, it is not necessary to decide whether the appeals against the accepted transaction value were maintainable or not.

50. All the 36 orders passed by the Commissioner (Appeals) that have been impugned, therefore, deserve to be set aside and are, accordingly, set aside and the 36 Appeals filed by the Commissioner of Customs are allowed.

IN THE CESTAT, PRINCIPAL BENCH, NEW DELHI

[COURT NO. IV]

Shri C.L. Mahar, Member (T) and Ms. Rachna Gupta, Member (J)

RAJESH MAIKHURI

COMMISSIONER OF CUSTOMS (EXPORTS), NEW DELHI

REPRESENTED BY : Shri B.L. Garg, Advocate, for the Appellant.

Shri Rakesh Kumar, AR (DR), for the Respondent.

[Order per : C.L. Mahar, Member (T)]. - The brief facts of the matter are that M/s. Ethan Sales & Services, the importer had filed a Bill of Entry No. 2924132, dated 6-8-2013 for certain Dietary supplements classifying the same under CTH 2106 10 00 through CHA M/s. R.U. Imports-Exports Pvt. Ltd. The consignment was examined by the Inspector on first check basis on the directions of the Superintendent “Please open and examine 10% of the total no. of packages subject to a minimum of 2 packages and check declaration. Please verify that the goods are as per invoice, packing list, B/E and the B/L. Please ensure compliance to CCR/Target Intervention instructions before o/c. Please check NOC from PHO/FSSAI or check previous 5 NOC as per DGFT Circular No. 25/2004 and 37/2004 for PHO waiver.” The consignment was examined and cleared with examination report bearing “O/E 10% of the goods in presence of CHA representative and found to contain Dietary Supplements as per Inv/PL/BL. Five previous B/E att. for waiver of FSSAI.”. The consignment was given out of charge on 14-8-2013 after enhancing the declared value. However, on the request of DRI, Lucknow, the said consignment was put on hold on 14-8-2013 by Deputy Commissioner of Customs, ICD, Tughlakabad for 100% examination in the presence of DRI. The said consignment was examined by DRI on 21-8-2013 under a panchnama dated 21-8-2013 and was detained vide DRI F. No DRI/NCO/EXAM/52/2013, dated 21-8-2013. During examination it was observed the MRP/RSP and other details regarding the importer, stipulated under Rule 6 and Rule 10 of the Legal Metrology (Packaged Commodity) Rules, 2011 have not been declared on the packages of the said goods. The representative samples were also drawn for testing. The test reports received from FSSAI Laboratory, Ghaziabad for 15 items stated. “The sample is thus unsafe under Section 3(1)(zz) of the FSS Act, 2006” and for other two items stated “The sample is misbranded under Section 3(1)(zf) of FSS Act, 2006.”

2. Statements of several persons including appellants were recorded and the appellant was not aware of the actual value of the goods as the same were negotiated by their Consultant. The purchase and sale of the goods were completely arranged by their Consultant and the profit was to be shared between the importer and his Consultant. For payment of duty the appellant No. 2 took a loan of Rs. 10 lakhs from M/s. Ranbir Finance Company and rest of the four lakhs were arranged by the CHA. He was not aware of the origin of the goods as no certificate of origin was available. That neither his firm was registered with FSSAI nor has obtained NOC prior to customs clearance of the goods. The appellant no. 2 voluntarily deposited Rs. 10 lakhs on account of anticipated adjudication levies. The appellant No. 1 is the Director of CHA firm who has undertaken the clearance work of the consignment that he was aware of requirement of NOC from FSSAI but he did not obtain and instead submitted five previous bills of entry in respect of same goods and same supplier for waiver; he has wrongly mentioned the country of origin as UAE instead of USA in B/E and also filled blank GATT declaration forms having signature of the party on forms only; he did not comply with the requirements of Legal Metrology (Packed Commodity) Rules, 2011, that he knows to Shri Sunny Gujral, the supplier of the consignment and he introduced appellant No. 2 to him for supply of dietary supplements.

3. Show Cause Notice dated 2-2-2014 was issued by Additional Director, Directorate of Revenue Intelligence, Lucknow Zonal Unit, Lucknow to the four Noticees for violation of the Section 25 of the FSS Act, 2006, procedure prescribed by C.B.E. & C. vide Circular No. 3/2011 and Rule 6 and Rule 10 of the Legal Metrology (Packaged Commodity) Rules, 2011 which prescribed that every package intended for retail sale, MRP/RSP, name and address etc. of the importer have to be declared. Inspector and Superintendent of Customs who were involved in examination of the goods were also issued show cause notice for their failure to draw samples in terms of C.B.E. & C. Circular No. 3/2011, dated 6-1-2011 and to ensure compliance with the Legal Metrology (Packaged Commodity) Rules, 2011. Penalties were proposed on all the Noticees under Section 112(a) of the Customs Act, 1962 for improper importation of the impugned consignment which appeared liable to confiscation under Section 111(d) of the Customs Act being prohibited for import not complying with the Section 25 of FSS Act, 2006 and also follow the prescribed procedure under Circular 3/2011 which read as

“25. All imports of articles of food to be subject to this Act. - (1) No person shall import into India —

(i) any unsafe or misbranded or sub-standard food or food containing extraneous matter;

(ii) any article of food for the import of which a licence is required under any Act or rules or regulations, except in accordance with the conditions of the licence; and

(iii) any article of food in contravention of any other provision of this Act or of any rule or regulation made thereunder or any other Act.”

(a) consignments of high risk food items, as listed in DGFT Policy Circular No. 39(RF-2003)/2002-2007, dated 14-6-2004 (as may be modified from time to time), shall be referred to Authorised Representative of FSSAI or PHOs, as the case may be, for testing and clearance shall be allowed only after receipt of the test report as per the instructions contained in the Customs Circular No. 58/2001-Cus., dated 25-10-2001.

(b) All consignments of perishable items like fruits, vegetables, meat, fish, cheese etc., will continue to be handled in terms of the guidelines contained in Para 2.3 of the Board’s Circular No. 58/2001-Customs dated 25-10-2001.
In respect of food items not covered under (a) and (b) above, the following procedure would be adopted in addition to the general checks prescribed under Para 2.1 of the Circular No. 58/2001-Cus., dated 25-10-2001:

i. Samples would be drawn from the first five consecutive consignments of each food item, imported by a particular importer and referred to Authorised Representative of FSSAI or PHOs, as the case may be, for testing to ascertain the quality and health safety standards of the consignments.

ii. In the event of the samples conforming to the prescribed standards, the Customs would switch to a system of checking 5%-20% of the consignments of these food items on a random basis, for checking conformity to the prescribed standards. The selection of food items for random checking and testing would be done by the Customs taking into consideration factors like the nature of the food products, its source of origin as well as track record of the importers as well as information received from FSSAI from time to time.

iii. In case, a sample drawn from a food item in a particular consignment fails to meet the prescribed standards, the Customs would place the import of the said consignment on alert, discontinue random checking for import of such food items and revert to the procedure of compulsory checking. The system of random sampling for import of such food items would be restored only if the test results of the samples drawn from the 5 consecutive consignments re-establish that the food items are in conformity with the prescribed standards.

4. Vide impugned order, the Learned Commissioner found that the conduct of the Inspector and Superintendent could not be considered sufficient to hold that they had abetted in the offence even though there may be some omissions by these officers and accordingly no penalty was imposed upon them. He imposed penalties equal to value of the seized goods Rs. 2,17,97,466/- on both the appellants. However, he ordered that “no penalty is imposed on Noticee No. 3, as the penalty has been imposed on Director of the CHA firm”. Against the impugned order present appeals No. C/51595/2018 and C/50523/2018 have been filed by the appellant No. 1 & 2 respectively, Appeal No. C/50196/2018 has been filed by the Revenue for not imposing any penalty against the CHA firm which has been dealt separately.

5. After hearing both the sides, we find that in the appeals filed by both the appellants, no evidence has been adduced which contradicts the facts that the import consignment were of the goods which did not confirm to the standards laid down under Food Safety & Standards Act, 2006. The test report of the samples drawn from the import consignment has categorically mentioned that the samples are unsafe and misbranded as per the provisions of Section 3(1) of the FSS Act, 2006. The Commissioner in impugned order-in-original has categorically brought out the role of both the appellants very categorically in his findings given on Para 28.1 for Shri Anand Kadiyan, the Proprietor of the importing firm and Para 28.2 for Shri Rajesh Maikhuri, Director of the CHA firm. Both the appellants have not adduced any evidences to disapprove the findings of the Adjudicating Authority. It has been submitted by Shri Anand Kadiyan that the penalty under Section 112A of the Customs Act, 1962 should have been equivalent to the declared value of the import consignment rather than the market value of the import consignment. We find that the argument made by the appellant is not legally sustainable as the Customs Act under Section 112A provides that penalty under the Section should not exceed the value of the goods. Since, the import consignment falls under the category of the prohibited goods and it has also been found that the value declared by the importer is not correct. The seizure value of these goods have been taken as market value since as the goods are of prohibited nature, they are certainly to fetch high margin of profit in the domestic market. The Adjudicating Authority has accordingly taken the market value of such goods as prevailing in the local market for imposition of penalty, we are of the opinion that the amount of the penalty imposed on both the appellants is in accordance with the provisions of Section 112A (i) of Customs Act, 1962 and, therefore, we find no reason to interfere with the amount of penalty.
imposed on both the appellants. We also take note of the fact that the dietary supplements imported by the importer and assisted by Director of the clearing firm namely Shri Rajesh Maikhuri in attempted clearance of the same [and] has not confirmed to the Food Safety & Standards Act and by their this Act, they have tried to put the health of several customers of the domestic market under danger only with a motive to earn profit. We are of the firm opinion that deterrent penalty need to be imposed on such importers and their accomplices and thus we do not find any reason to interfere with the amount of penalty imposed by the Adjudicating Authority in the impugned order-in-original.

6. In view of above, both the appeals are hereby dismissed.

[COURT NO. IV]

Ms. Archana Wadhwa, Member (J) and Shri V. Padmanabhan, Member (T)

INDUS CHEMITEX LTD.

Versus

COMMISSIONER OF C. EX., NEW DELHI (ICD TKD)

REPRESENTED BY : Shri Rajesh Yadav, Advocate, for the Appellant.

Shri K. Poddar, DR, for the Respondent.

[Order per : Archana Wadhwa, Member (J)]. - After hearing both the sides duly represented by Shri Rajesh Yadav, Advocate for the appellant and Shri K. Poddar, DR for the respondent, we find that they filed shipping bills for export of fabrics on 18-8-2011 and on 13-9-2011. The same were detained and seized by the Customs Officers on 25/26-8-2011 and 30-9-2011 on the allegations of over valuation.

2. Inasmuch as the show cause notice under Section 124 was not possible to be issued within the period of six months, a show cause notices dated 9-2-2012 was issued to the appellant in terms of Section 110(2) of the Customs Act proposing extension of the period for issuance of the show cause notice under Section 124 upto 24-8-2012. The said show cause notice was adjudicated by the Commissioner vide his order dated 23-12-2012, extending the period for issuance of regular show cause notice under Section 124 by six months i.e. upto 24-8-2012.

3. The said order of the Commissioner was put to challenge by the appellant before Tribunal, who vide its order dated 19-6-2012 set aside the same and remanded the matter to Commissioner for fresh decision, after observing the principles of natural justice. The remand kept pending at the Commissioner level, who took up the matter only on 18-12-2012 and vide his present impugned order observed that the show cause notice has already been issued on 23-8-2012 and as such the present extension being granted by him would relate back to 23-2-2012 when the first extension order was passed. Being aggrieved with the said order of Commissioner, the appellant is in appeal.

4. The main grievance of the appellant is that when the show cause notices under Section 124 of the Customs Act was issued on 23-8-2012, there was no valid order of extension passed in terms of Section 110(2) of the Customs Act inasmuch as the same was already set aside by the Tribunal. As such reference to the earlier extension order in the show cause notice issued on 23-8-2012 was factually incorrect. Further, they have submitted that the present order of extension under Section 110(2) stands passed by the Commissioner on 18-12-2012 i.e. after expiry of one year from the actual date of seizure. By drawing our attention to the provisions of Section 110(2), ld. Advocate submits that the show cause notices under Section 124 is required to be issued within six months of the seizure of the goods and on sufficient cause being shown, the Commissioner can extend the same by another six months. As such total period granted under the said section is one year from the date of the seizure and the present impugned order passed by the Commissioner, extending the period is even beyond the period of one year from the date of the seizure and as such cannot be upheld on that ground.

5. Ld. DR appearing for the Revenue submits that while remanding the matter to the Commissioner there was a direction to the appellant to appear before him on 2-7-2012. The appellant did not adhere to the said direction of the Tribunal and approached the Commissioner only on 24-7-2012 for the first time. It is in this scenario that the Commissioner could not pass the extension order well within time.

6. After appreciating the factual position as also the submissions made by both the sides as also the provisions of Section 110(2), we note that the said section provides for extension for issuance of show cause notice under Section 124 within a period of six months from the date of seizure of the goods. Admittedly, when the show cause notice in terms of Section 124 was issued on 23-8-2012 there was no valid order of extension inasmuch as the same was set aside by the Tribunal on 19-6-2012. The subsequent extension order was passed belatedly on 18-12-2012, and by that time the show cause notice had already been issued on 23-8-2012. As such it can be safely concluded that the show cause notice having been issued on 23-8-2012 was beyond the period of six months from the date of seizure.

7. On being questioned, Ld. Advocate fairly agrees that the show cause notice issued on 23-8-2012 can be adjudicated by the Commissioner and the effect of belated issuance of the same would only be what the seized goods are required to be returned to the appellant. He also fairly agrees that if the adjudicating authority comes to a finding that the goods are liable to confiscation the same can also be confiscated.

8. In view of the above submission of the Ld. Advocate and in view of the findings arrived at by us, in the preceding para, we direct the authorities to return the seized goods to the appellant. We make it clear that the adjudication proceedings shall continue in terms of the SCN dated 23-8-2012.

9. With the above observations, the appeals are disposed of.

The brief facts of the matter are that M/s Ethan Sales and Services have imported a consignment of Dietary Supplements under the bill of entry No. 2924132 dated 06/08/2013 at ICD, Tughlakabad, New Delhi. The Department has received an intelligence that the subject consignment has been imported without required no objection certificate from Food Safety & Standards Authority of India (FSSAI). The consignment was put under 100% examination by the officers of the DRI. During course of examination of the consignment, it was observed by the officers in their examination report that the MRP/RSP and other details regarding importer, their addresses etc. as required under Rule 6 and Rule 10 of Legal Metrology (Packaged Commodity) Rules, 2011 have not been complied with as the required details have not been given on the packets of dietary supplements. The officers have also drawn representative samples from the consignment and same have been got... chemically tested from the FSSAI Laboratory, Ghaziabad. The FSSAI Laboratory vide their report dated 18/12/2013 has held as follows:-

2. In view of above facts, the department was of the view that since the goods as tested by FSSAI have been declared as unsafe for human consumption, they become prohibited goods as per Section 25 of the Food Safety & Standards Act, 2006 and, therefore, a show cause notice was issued for confiscation of the imported consignment under Section 111D of the Customs Act, 1962, penal provisions of Section under 112A have also been invoked against the importing firm and its Proprietor Shri Anand Kadiyan, against Shri Rajesh Maikhuri, Director of the CHA firm M/s R.U. Imports-Exports Pvt. Ltd., against M/s R.U. Imports-Exports Pvt. Ltd., Shri Rajinder Madhok (Consultant) and Shri Ved Prakash Dhembula, Superintendent of Customs, ICD, Tughlakabad and Shri Ranjeet Singh Rana, Inspector, Customs, ICD, Tughlakabad. The matter got adjudicated vide order-in-original No. 18/2007 dated 29 September 2017 whereunder it has been held as under :-

“(i) seized goods (seizure value Rs. 2,17,97,466/-) are liable for confiscation under Section 111 (d) as they are prohibited goods and are absolutely confiscated under Section 125 of the Customs Act, 1962;

(ii) penalty equivalent to seizure value i.e. Rs. 2,17,97,466/- (Rupees Two Crore Seventeen Lakhs Ninety Seven Thousand Four Hundred and Sixty Six) is imposed on Noticee 1 under Section 112 (a) of the Customs Act, 1962;

(iii) penalty equivalent to seizure value i.e. Rs. 2,17,97,466/- (Rupees Two Crore Seventeen Lakhs Ninety Seven Thousand Four Hundred and Sixty Six) is imposed on Noticee 2 under Section 112 (a) of the Customs Act, 1962;

(iv) No penalty is imposed on notice 3, as the penalty has been imposed on the Director of the said CHA firm;

(v) Penalty equivalent to seizure value i.e. Rs. 2,17,97,466/- (Rupees Two Crore Seventeen Lakhs Ninety Seven Thousand Four Hundred and Sixty Six) is imposed on Noticee 4 under Section 112 (a) of the Customs Act, 1962;

(vi) No penalty is imposed on Noticee 5 and Noticee 6 under Section 112 of the Customs Act, 1962;

(vii) Show cause notice issued vide DRI F. No. DRI/NCO/exam/52/2013 dated 02/02/2014 has been issued by Additional Director Directorate of Revenue Intelligence, Lucknow Zonal Unit, Lucknow is disposed accordingly”.

3. The department is in appeal against the above-mentioned order-in-original on the ground that the CHA firm namely M/s R.U. Imports-Exports Pvt. Ltd. has played a crucial role in violation of the provision of the Foods Safety & Standards Act, 2006 as well as violation of provisions of the Customs Act, 1962, however, the Adjudicating Authority has failed to impose penalty on the respondent CHA firm and, therefore, the Adjudicating Authority has erred in not imposing penalty under Section 112A on the CHA firm namely M/s R.U. Imports-Exports Pvt. Ltd.

4. The learned Departmental Representative has mentioned that from the investigation it is very apparent that the Director of the CHA firm Shri Rajesh Maikhuri was fully aware that the subject consignment required NOC from FSSAI and still ignoring the statutory requirements of FSSA, 2006, the goods were cleared without necessary test report. He is also responsible of filing blank GATT declaration forms with only signature of the importing firm. From the investigation it has categorically emerged that previous consignment of Dietary supplements were also cleared without compliance of FSSA, 2006 and without submitting of the complete necessary documents at the time of the import. It has further been revealed that imposition of the penalty on the Director under Section 112A of the Customs Act, 1962 is not sufficient as the CHA firm is an independent legal entity and thus CHA firm is responsible for compliance of all the legal requirements of the Customs Act, 1962 as well as the Food Safety & Standards Act, 2006. Since, the Customs house clearing agency has failed to ensure compliance of the requirements of the Customs Act as well as FSSA, 2006 and, therefore, the CHA firm should have been penalized as per the provision of Section 112A of the Customs Act, 1962 which the Commissioner has failed to do and, therefore, the order-in-original to that extent is bad in law and a penalty under Section 112A need to be imposed on the CHA firm.

5. Having heard both the sides, we find that the subject import consignment have been found to have been imported in violation of provision of Food Safety & Standards Act, 2006. It is a matter of record that the samples drawn from the import consignment were got tested from the laboratory of FSSAI, Ghaziabad and it has been found that the imported goods have been found unsafe as per standards laid down under Section 3 (1) (zz) (v) and mis-branded under Section 3 (1) (zfs) of FSSA, 2006. Thus, there is no doubt that the import consignment was of the prohibited goods as same was not found fit for human consumption. The statement of various persons including the Director of the CHA firm reveals that the Director of the CHA firm was aware that the present import consignment as well as the consignment, which have been cleared previously were not meeting with the legal requirement of the FSS Act, 2006 and thereby the same had been imported and cleared in violation of the provision of the Customs Act, 1962. We also find that the Adjudicating Authority under para 28.3 of the order-in-original has categorically mentioned that the CHA firm is responsible for filing the documents for clearance of goods from the customs and the firm has failed to ensure compliance of the provisions of Food Safety & Standards Act, 2006 as well as the provision of the Customs Act, 1962, still the Adjudicating Authority did not impose any penalty under Section 112A of the Customs Act, 1962.

6. We are of the opinion that CHA firm being independent legal entity and responsible for ensuring compliance of the customs provisions. The CHA firm has been provided with a CHA license as per the provisions of the Customs Broker Regulations CBLR which mandate them to ensure compliance of provisions of the Customs Act and since they have failed in their duty and such act have rendered the subject consignment liable for confiscation as per provisions of Section 111 (d) of the Customs Act, 1962, a penalty under Section 112 (a) of Customs Act is required to be imposed.

7. In view of above discussions, we feel that the Adjudicating Authority after providing an opportunity hearing to the respondent CHA firm will adjudicate the matter afresh only with regard to issue of the imposition of the penalty under Section 112A of the Customs Act, 1962.
8. The appeal is therefore allowed with the way of remand to the original Adjudicating Authority to decide the issue afresh in view of the above discussions.

Per: Rachna Gupta:

Appellant herein is the holder of Customs Broker License valid upto 31.12.2026 issued by Commissioner of Customs (General), New Delhi. Department acting upon an intelligence noticed that through appellant as Custom Broker (CB/CHA), M/s. Arun Enterprises had imported consignment vide Bill of Entry No. 4470298 dated 19.12.2017 containing mobile accessories by way of mis-declaring the same in terms of value/quantity. On the basis thereof the said consignment was put on hold vide letter dated 20.12.2017. On examination, the quantity and description of goods were found mis-declared.

The products i.e. mobile touch panel, mobile LCD, mobile bag housing, hands-free of Samsung brand were also found in the consignment which were registered with Customs under Intellectual Property Rights (Imported Goods) Enforcement Rules, 2007 (IPR Rules hereinafter). Thus, the goods infringing IPR Rules were also found in the consignment. The Authorised Representative of these brands i.e. M/s. React India Pvt. Ltd., Lajpat Nagar, New Delhi was called upon to verify the noticed IPR infringement about the aforesaid products. M/s. React India Pvt. Ltd. after necessary inspection submitted their Technical Analysis Report vide letter No. 180004IN dated 13.01.2018 certifying that the products of Samsung brand found in the consignment under the impugned Bill of Entry were counterfeited and necessary actions in accordance of IPR Rules was accordingly prayed. Accordingly, the goods of the impugned Bill of Entry were seized. However, those were handed over for the safe custody to Shri Chaman Kumar Verma, the Authorised Representative/ G-Card Holder of the appellant, the CB/CHA, who was present at the time of checking of goods, after drawing representative samples of each item for further investigation.

2. The proprietor of M/s. Arun Enterprises, Shri Mohan Kumar Jha vide letter dated 22.12.2017 requested for warehousing of the aforesaid goods under Section 49 of Customs Act, 1962 on the ground of bearing heavy demurrage charges. The Space Availability Certificate No. 072 dated 22.12.2017 issued by M/s. All-ways Logistics India Pvt. Ltd., the public bonded warehouse, was annexed with the said letter. Permission accordingly was granted by the Assistant Commissioner of Customs (Preventive) vide their letter No. 24150– 24153 dated 27.12.2017 to warehouse the seized goods in M/s. All-Ways Logistics Warehouse. The said warehouse was visited by officers of Customs Preventive on 16.04.2018 to physically verify the goods imported vide impugned Bill of Entry and it came to their notice that the goods imported by M/s. Arun Enterprises vide Bill of Entry No. 4470298 dated 19.12.2017 were never warehoused in the warehouse of M/s. All-ways Logistics India Pvt. Ltd. It was informed by the warehouse to the inspecting officers that despite issuance of the space certificate to the importer for warehousing the impugned goods none approached. Hence, they contacted the concerned person i.e., importer through e-mail. The copy of the said e-mail was also given to the visiting officers who submitted his report dated 16.04.2018. It was perused that the said e-mail was sent to Shri Aakash Sharma. The documents as were provided by the Assistant Commissioner, Import Shed vide letter dated 18.04.2018 including gate pass revealed that 99 packages having weight of 3178 Kgs. under the impugned Bill of Entry was issued on 28.12.2017 at 16:12:17. Signature of said Shri Aakash Sharma alongwith the vehicle number DL1LT2858 was found on gate pass at the place of consignee.

3. During further investigation, Department noticed, especially from the statement of Shri Niyaz Khan, the team leader of warehouse, M/s. All-Ways Logistics India Pvt. Ltd. that though the aforesaid vehicle reached the warehouse on 04.01.2018 but since the vehicle was found to not to be sealed with the Customs seal, the goods were refused to be off loaded and warehoused. Shri Jatin Bakshi, the owner of vehicle No. DL1LT2858 by which the goods under impugned Bill of Entry were transported from Air Cargo Complex it revealed that the goods thereafter were taken to a godown at Mahipalpur behind Apra Automobiles owned by Mr. Ramu Chhetry. All the 99 packets were unloaded there and kept at that godown. Those packets were opened one by one and goods inside the cartons were transferred in gunny bags and thereafter the said 99 packets were filled with bricks and stones got packed in original packages. Those bags got again loaded in the same vehicle No. DL1LT2858 with the instruction to the driver for taking the same to M/s. All-ways Logistics India Pvt. Ltd. But after the subsequent refusal of Shri Niyaz Khan for taking those bags into the warehouse that all the bags were brought back to Mahipalpur godown of Shri Ramu Chhetry. The bricks and stones were removed and the bags/ packets got destroyed.

4. The office address of importer M/s. Arun Enterprises was verified alongwith the address of its proprietor Shri Manoj Kumar Jha. Both the addresses were found false. Statements of Shri Aakash Sharma, Shri Chaman Kumar Verma, Shri Rajesh Kumar–driver of vehicle No. DL1LT2858 in which were loaded the goods from the Customs area to be taken to M/s. All-ways Logistics India Pvt. Ltd. and of Shri Ramu Chhetry, the actual recipient of the imported goods having his godown at Mahipalpur, Delhi behind Apra Automobiles were recorded. Finally, the statement of Shri Rajnish Kumar, proprietor of M/s. Skytrain was also recorded. The Department concluded that Shri Raman Kumar Jha had taken IEC in the name of M/s. Arun Enterprises, the proprietor, Shri Manohar Kumar Jha whereof was his brother-in-law. He in connivance with Shri Chaman Kumar Verma, the Authorised Representative/ G-Card Holder of the appellant/ Custom Broker and Shri Aakash Sharma the associate of G-Card holder and Shri Rajnish Kumar, the proprietor of appellant/ Custom Broker had got cleared the goods of Shri Ramu Chhetry imported vide the impugned Bill of Entry but in the name of M/s. Arun Enterprises and on the pretext of the permission of warehousing the seized goods under Section 49 of the Customs Act and have committed the Act of mis-declaration as far as the quantity and the quality of goods are concerned and have also violated the IPR Rules. As such, the appellant has violated the provisions of CBLR, 2013/2018. Those seized goods could never reach the said warehouse rather were stolen from the carrier of goods in gross violation of Customs Act and by hatching a conspiracy with other persons.

5. Based thereupon the show cause notice No. 19/MK/2018 dated 23.07.2018 was served to the appellant. The enquiry report thereof was submitted on 16.10.2018 recommending revocation of licence, the forfeiture of part or whole of the security and the imposition of penalty upon the appellant. The said entire proposal and the recommendation of the enquiry report were confirmed vide the Order of Commissioner of Customs (Airport & General) vide Order No. 01/MK dated 10.01.2019. Being aggrieved, the present Appeal has been filed.

6. We have heard Ms. B.S. Goyal & Mr. Shaveer Ahmed learned Advocates for the appellant and Mr. Rakesh Kumar, learned Authorised Representative for the Department.

7. It is submitted on behalf of the appellant that Mr. Rajnish Sharma is the proprietor of the appellant who is holding Custom Broker License since the year 1987 and that the license is valid upto 21.12.2026. There has been no single instance of blame on the impugned CB/CHA. The present case of Customs is based upon Bill of Entry No. 4470298 dated 19.12.2017 containing 99 packages of mobile accessories which was filed by importer M/s. Arun Enterprises, the proprietor whereof is Shri Manohar Kumar Jha. On the basis of allegations for the goods to be under-valued and infringement of IPR Rules that the entire consignment was seized under Section 110 of Customs Act, 1962 vide the Panchnama dated 20.12.2017. However, the copy of such Panchnama was never given to the appellant nor the customs Broker was ever informed about the alleged violation and even the seizure of the goods. It is alleged that in the gross violation of established norms and procedures, the Customs Authorities on the Application filed by the importer under Section 49 of Customs Act on 22.12.2017 granted permission for the seized goods to be warehoused at M/s. All-ways Logistics India Pvt. Ltd. and the authorities had handed over the goods under seizure to one Shri Aakash Sharma. It is impressed upon that he said Shri Aakash Sharma is neither the employee of the CHA nor is its agent. CHA was otherwise not to take care of seized goods. Apparently, no such authority was given to the appellant by the Customs Authority. It is suddenly after four months on 16.04.2018 that Shri Niyaz Khan from warehouse authority informed Customs (Preventive) about not receiving the goods from the importer despite issuance of Space Availability Certificate. But no enquiry was got conducted from said Shri Niyaz Khan about not informing the authorities concerned on 04.01.2018 itself. With respect to deviation and disappearance of goods after the seizure of the same by the Customs Authorities, the CHA had no role to play. Nothing has been attributed to the CHA/ appellant even in the enquiry report.

8. The valuation of the goods as far as the false declaration thereof is concerned, the appellant is impressed to have no knowledge especially in the absence of any material on record to that effect. Learned Counsel has emphasised sub-para 8 under ‘Discussion and Finding’ at page 53 of the Final Order where the inquiry officer has observed that there is no evidence to establish the role of Shri Rajnish Sharma, proprietor of CB/CHA in the above said violations. The involvement of Shri Aakash Sharma alongwith Shri Raman Kumar Jha, brother-in-law of the importer has clearly been observed by the inquiry officer. With respect to the confessional statement of his G-Card holder, Shri Chaman Kumar Verma as was recorded post his arrest on 24.05.2018, it is submitted that the statements were coerced, hence cannot be relied upon. It is further submitted that Customs Authorities have failed not only to inform the appellant/CHA about the mis-declaration of the goods or the seizure thereof or even about handing over of the seized goods to Shri Aakash Sharma and the manner in which the goods were released despite being seized under Section 110 of the Customs Act.

9. It is further been argued that there is no room for doubt that the Customs Authorities themselves connived and were hand-in-gloves with Shri Aakash Sharma and Shri Raman Kumar Jha. No doubt CHA had a responsibility of failing to monitor the whole transaction but once the goods were seized under Section 110 same became the property of the Customs which could not be handed over to any one not even to the CHA. Hence, the events post seizure cannot be attributed to CHA’s failure to observe any of the obligations of CBLR Regulations. The appellant has relied upon Flacon Air Cargo & Travels Pvt. Ltd. Vs. C.C., New Delhi reported in 2002 (141) E.L.T. 284 and Kunal Travels Vs. C.C. (I&G) reported in 2017 (354) E.L.T. 447. Admittedly, appellant/CHA did not apply for release of goods. With these submissions the inferences drawn in inquiry report as well as the Order under challenge are prayed to be set aside. Appeal is accordingly prayed to be allowed.

10. While rebutting these arguments it is submitted that apparently and admittedly at the time of examination of the goods imported vide the impugned Bill of Entry and the subsequent seizure, the G-Card holder of the appellant/CHA was present in person. In his statement dated 20.12.2017 he has acknowledged Shri Aakash Sharma to be his associate/employee. Said Shri Aakash Sharma in his statement dated 19.04.2018 and 24.04.2018 has acknowledged that he has been working in association with appellant/CB. The Department has impressed upon a letter of the appellant written to the Superintendent of Customs (Preventive), New Customs House, IGI Airport, New Delhi as was received by the Department on 18.04.2013 wherein the appellant has acknowledged that the consignment of M/s. Arun Enterprises against the Bill of Entry No. 4470298 dated 19.12.2017 was allowed to be sent to public bonded warehouse namely M/s. All-ways Logistics India Pvt. Ltd. Mr. Aakash Sharma is acknowledged to be the person authorised by the appellant and is mentioned to have been handed over with the shipment to be taken to the warehouse with Mr. Niyaz Khan as the concerned in-charge there. However, on checking the cargo in the warehouse, the shipment was not found. The intervention was requested by the appellant from the Customs Authorities. It is impressed upon that the said letter is sufficient to highlight the involvement of the CHA in the entire transaction and is also sufficient to prove that CHA had all the knowledge of alleged mis-declaration and the infringement of IPR Rules. He knowingly was the party for diversion of the seized goods to the godown of Shri Ramu Chhetry, the actual beneficiary instead the same being deposited to the public bonded warehouse as per the permission under Section 49 of the Customs Act. Finally, relying upon the decision of Supreme Court in the case of Commissioner of Customs Vs. KM Ganatra and Co. reported in the Authorised Representative has impressed upon no infirmity in the Order under challenge wherein the violation of the obligations on the part of CHA have duly been observed against the appellant. Order accordingly is prayed to be upheld Appeal is prayed to be dismissed.

11. After hearing both the parties and perusing the entire record we observe and opine as follows:

11.1 The admitted facts in the present case are:–

(ii) The said Bill of entry and the consignment thereof was intercepted on the basis of information for the goods being mis-declared, under-valued and are infringing Intellectual Property Rights.

(iii) The goods were seized vide panchnama dated 20.12.2017.

(iv) At the time of examination of goods and the impugned panchnama, and the delivery thereof the G-Card holder of the appellant namely Shri Chaman Kumar Verma was present in person.

(v) On the request of the importer, the seized goods were allowed to be warehoused in public bonded warehouse, i.e. M/s. All-ways Logistics India Pvt. Ltd. on 22.12.2017.

(vi) The goods never got warehoused and this fact was not taken care of till the expiry of four months i.e. 16.04.2018, nor was ever got verified nor even was informed to the Customs by the appellant or his G-Card holder.

(vii) The appellant was granted license to act as Custom Broker in the year 1987 which is valid till 21.12.2026.

12. The question for adjudication is as to:

12.1 Whether the Custom Broker can be held responsible for the alleged mis-declaration and under valuation of goods, for infringement of Intellectual Property Rights due to the mobile accessories of Samsun brand to also be present in the consignment and also for the alleged diversion of the goods.
12.2 For the purpose, foremost, we need to first appreciate the obligations as have been imposed upon the Customs Brokers by the Customs Broker License Regulation 2013/2018. We observe that the same are mentioned under Regulation 14 thereof which reads as follows:

"14. Obligations of Customs House Agent. - A Customs House Agent shall :

(a) obtain an authorisation from each of the companies, firms or individuals by whom he is for the time being employed as Customs House Agent and produce such authorisation whenever required by an Assistant Commissioner of Customs or Deputy Commissioner of Customs;

(b) transact business in the Customs Station either personally or through an employee duly approved by the Assistant Commissioner of Customs or Deputy Commissioner of Customs, designated by the Commissioner;

(c) not represent a client before an officer of Customs in any matter to which he, as officer of the Department of Customs gave personal consideration, or as to the facts of which he gained knowledge, while in Government service;

(d) advise his client to comply with the provisions of the Act and in case of non-compliance, shall bring the matter to the notice of the Assistant Commissioner of Customs or Deputy Commissioner of Customs;

(e) exercise due diligence to ascertain the correctness of any information which he imparts to a client with reference to any work related to clearance of cargo or baggage;

(f) not withhold information relating to clearance of cargo or baggage issued by the Commissioner of Customs from a client who is entitled to such information;

(g) promptly pay over to the Government, when due, sums received for payment of any duty, tax or other debt or obligations owing to the Government and promptly account to his client for funds received for him from the Government or received from him in excess of Governmental or other charges payable in respect of the clearance of cargo or baggage on behalf of the client;

(h) not procure or attempt to procure directly or indirectly, information from the Government records or other Government sources of any kind to which access is not granted by proper officer;

(i) not attempt to influence the conduct of any official of the Customs Station in any matter pending before such official or his subordinates by the use of threat, false accusation, duress or the offer of any special inducement or promise of advantage or by the bestowing of any gift or favour or other thing of value;

(j) not refuse access to, conceal, remove or destroy the whole or any part of any book, paper or other record, relating to his transactions as a Customs House Agent which is sought or may be sought by the Commissioner;

(k) maintain records and accounts in such form and manner as may be directed from time to time by an Assistant Commissioner of Customs or Deputy Commissioner of Customs and submit them for inspection to the said Assistant Commissioner of Customs or Deputy Commissioner of Customs or an officer authorised by him whenever required;

(l) ensure that all documents prepared or presented by him or on his behalf are strictly in accordance with orders relating thereto;

(m) ensure that all documents, such as bills of entry and shipping bills delivered in the Customs Station by him show the name of the importer or exporter, as the case may be, and the name of the Custom House Agent, prominently at the top of such documents;

(n) in the event of the licence granted to him being lost, immediately report the fact to the Commissioner;

(o) ensure that he discharges his duties as Customs House Agent with utmost speed and efficiency and without avoidable delay; and

(p) not charge for his services as Customs House Agent in excess of the rates approved by the Commissioner from time to time under Regulation 25."
Regulation 19 provides for maintenance and inspection of accounts. We have referred to the said Regulation as it casts number of obligations on the Customs House Agent."

12.3 The perusal makes it clear that the CHA is created as a link between Customs Authorities and the importers with an object of facilitating the clearances at Customs as the Custom procedures are complicated. The CHA is thus supposed to safeguard the interests of both the Customs as well as the importers. Hon'ble Supreme Court in KM Ganatra and Co. (supra) case while relying upon the decision of Mumbai Tribunal in the case of Noble Agency Vs. Commissioner of Customs, Mumbai reported in 2002 (142) E.L.T. 84 has held as follows:

"The CHA occupies a very important position in the Customs House. The Customs procedures are complicated. The importers have to deal with a multiplicity of agencies viz. carriers, custodians like BPT as well as the Customs. The importer would find it impossible to clear his goods through these agencies without wasting valuable energy and time. The CHA is supposed to safeguard the interests of both the importers and the Customs. A lot of trust is kept in CHA by the importers/exporters as well as by the Government Agencies. To ensure appropriate discharge of such trust, the relevant regulations are framed. Regulation 14 of the CHA Licensing Regulations lists out obligations of the CHA. Any contravention of such obligations even without intent would be sufficient to invite upon the CHA the punishment listed in the Regulations...."

12.4 It becomes clear from the above provisions and the decision of the Hon'ble Apex Court that CHA is not supposed to be a formal agent either of Custom House or of the importer. But the utmost due diligence in ascertaining the correctness of the information related to clearance of cargo is the CHA's duty. He not only is supposed to advise the importer/exporter about the relevant provisions of law and the mandate of true compliance thereof but is also responsible to inform the Department if any violation of the provisions of the Customs Act appears to or have been committed by his client at the time of the clearances. We have no difference of opinion from the case law as cited by the appellant that the revocation of license is a grave punishment and should not be imposed against the principle of proportionality. There is no dispute about the settled law that CHA is not an inspector to weigh the genuineness of the transaction. It is merely a processing agent of documents with respect to clearance of goods through the Custom House either himself or through his authorized personnel. Penalty as that of revocation of license cannot be imposed upon the CHA in absence of any active or passive facilitation by the appellant.

13. To appreciate the extent of due diligence on part of the CB/appellant or of any active or passive involvement of the appellant herein, so as to adjudicate the question as framed above, we hereby revert to the record of this case. Admittedly, the authorized representative of appellant i.e. his G-Card holder namely Shri Chaman Kumar Verma was present in the Customs House area at the time the goods were seized and the panchnama dated 20.12.2017 was prepared. The goods were handed over for safe custody to the CELEBI/ the authorized representative. The G-Card holder of the appellant, Shri Chaman Kumar Verma, in his statement, as was recorded on 20.12.2017 and even subsequently on 20.04.2018, acknowledged him to be working with the appellant since 2010 and looking after the filing of Bill of Entry for clearance of goods landed in ACC (Import), New Delhi. Shri Rajnish Kumar, proprietor of the appellant is stated to have the knowledge of Bill of Entry No. 4470298 dated 19.12.2017 and that the said Bill of Entry was filed after getting proper authorization from importer M/s. Arun Enterprises, Shri Manohar Kumar Jha, the proprietor thereof. The KYC of this importer was examined, not only that even the goods under said Bill of Entry are acknowledged to be examined in presence of said G-Card holder. He also acknowledged to have visited the office of importer several times. However, this acknowledgment about visiting the office stands contradicted from a report by the Department about M/s. Arun Enterprises to be dummy Company, found non-existent at the given address and the proprietor thereof Shri Manohar Kumar Jha as well as his residential address being also fake. This report, with no evidence to the contrary, is sufficient for us to form an opinion that the Custom Broker/ the appellant and his G-Card holder had sufficient knowledge about the importer being fake. It stands established that the Custom Broker at least had failed in observing due diligence about verifying the antecedents as far as KYC of the importer. Same definitely amounts to violation of Regulation 11(e)/ 14(e) of CBLR 2013/2018.

14. No doubt, the request for warehousing the seized goods under Section 49 of Customs Act, 1962 was made by the importer but after the grant of the permission, since the goods were given in the safe custody of CELEBI/Shri Aakash Sharma in presence of G-Card Holder of the appellant the subsequent movement thereof is not possible without the knowledge and the consent of the said G-Card holder who was the authorized representative of the appellant and the appellant is bound by his acts and conducts. The said permission of warehousing was granted on the basis of Space Availability Certificate given by the public bonded warehouse namely M/s. All-ways Logistics India Pvt. Ltd. It is on record that the said certificate was submitted by G-Card holder of the appellant. It is also on record that on the physical examination of the said warehouse on 16.04.2018 specifically about the goods imported vide the impugned Bill of Entry filed by M/s. Arun Enterprises it was found that the goods had never reached the warehousing despite that the OTL seal No. 035263 was issued to the vehicle in which the said goods were loaded for warehousing. The in-charge of said warehouse is observed to have denied to off load the goods at warehouse due to said seal being doubtful.

15. The other document as was submitted by the Assistant Commissioner, Import Shed vide letter No. VIII(12)ACC dated 18.04.2018 was the gate pass as was issued on 28.12.2017 at 16.12 for release of 99 packages weighing 3178 Kgs of goods as were mentioned in the impugned Bill of Entry. The gate pass bears the signature of one Shri Aakash Sharma endorsed at the place of consignee. The said Shri Aakash Sharma is acknowledged to be the associate of Shri Chaman Kumar Verma. Though the appellant has taken the stand that he has no knowledge about any person known as Shri Aakash Sharma and any act done by Shri Aakash Sharma and that the liability cannot be fastened upon the appellant, but the appeal record is found to have a letter written by the appellant/ CHA to the Superintendent of Customs (Preventive) as was received by them on 18.04.2018 informing about the shipment of M/s. Arun Enterprises under the impugned Bill of Entry to the warehouse. It has specifically been mentioned in the said letter that the person of the CHA/appellant namely Shri Aakash Sharm handed over the shipment to the warehouse which was received by Shri Niyaz Khan. This acknowledgment about Shri Aakash Sharma is sufficient to falsify the contention of the appellant about having no knowledge of the issue involved but to corroborate the statement of Shri Niyaz Khan. The warehouse had contacted the concerned person through email. It was revealed from the record that those e-mails were sent to Shri Aakash Sharma at e-mail address: akashsharma21101991@gmail.com.

16. Further, this letter clarifies that since the date of seizure the facts were in the notice of the authorized representative of the appellant as well as the appellant himself but no efforts were taken by the appellant to either advise the importer about the safe and proper delivery of the goods permitted to be warehoused in the warehouse of M/s. All-ways Logistics India Pvt. Ltd. in time nor the violation thereof was brought to the notice of the Customs Department. The concealment of the fact that Shri Aakash Sharma was an associate of the appellant who was involved in the entire incident from the non deposition of seized consignment in the warehouse to diversion/ stealing of the seized good clearly amounts to breach of the duty burdened upon the CHA under 11(d) and 11(f) of CBLR, 2013. There is an apparent delay since December 2017 till April 2018 when appellant for the first time informed the Department vide the aforesaid letter. There is no explanation on the part of the appellant for remaining silent for a period of almost four months which amounts to the failure on his part to discharge his duty as custom agent without any avoidable delay.

17. Now coming to the statement of Shri Aakash Sharma who is acknowledged to be the associate of Shri Chaman Kumar Verma and the person of the Custom Broker, as per Custom Broker himself. We observe the following admissions:

(i) He assisted Shri Chaman Kumar Verma in all proceedings including obtaining the permission from Assistant Commissioner, Import Shed for warehousing.

(ii) On 28.12.2017 he got the gate pass for delivery of said goods and got issued customs seal by seal issuing authority after making entry of seal No. in the register (this gate pass issuance and the delivery stands corroborated from the documents as was given by Commissioner, Import Shed vide letter No. VIII(12) dated 18.04.2018).

(iii) After he was allowed to take the delivery of goods he got loaded 99 packages of the consignment in a truck No. DL1LT2858 and got the truck sealed with the customs seal as was issued to him (This stands corroborated from the statement of Shri Jatin Bakshi, the owner of this truck and its driver, Shri Rajnish Kumar)

(iv) The consignment reached M/s. All-ways Logistics India Pvt. Ltd. at 12am on 28.12.2017 however, the team leader of warehouse Shri Niyaz Khan was contacted at 11:30 am on 29.12.2017 the next day and got the consignment unloaded and deposited to the warehouse but the records of the warehouse had no receipt of any such consignment on 29.12.2017.

18. However, we observe from record that:

(i) Shri Aakash Sharma admitted to have no such document/evidence as may prove that the consignment of impugned Bill of Entry was received by M/s. All-ways Logistics India Pvt. Warehouse. It is apparent from record that even Shri Chaman Kumar Verma could not produce any evidence for getting the goods warehoused despite he assured for producing the same. The factum of goods to have never reached to M/s. All-ways also gets corroborated from the statement of Shri Jatin Bakshi who was the owner of the truck No. DL1LT2858 by which the goods under impugned Bill of Entry were transported from Air Cargo Complex. He had acknowledged that his services were hired by Shri Aakash Sharma from ACC (Import) to M/s. All-ways Logistics warehouse at Dhoosiras. However, the goods were not taken to the warehouse but were diverted to the parking space of transporter itself at Mahipalpur, behind Raddison Hotel. The truck remained parked with the loaded goods from 28.12.2017 to 30.12.2017 on which date the goods were diverted to godown behind Apra Automobiles at Mahipalpur and got unloaded there. The driver of the truck, Shri Rajnish Kumar corroborated the statement of Shri Jatin Bakshi. The statement of Shri Niyaz Khan, team leader of M/s. All-ways Logistic Pvt. Ltd. warehouse further corroborates non-receipt of the impugned goods at the said warehouse. He stated that goods reached the warehouse only on 04.01.2018 at 4:30 pm however, on the basis of doubt qua the seal that he refused to off-load the goods. The goods were again brought to the warehouse on 05.01.2018 at 12:30 pm. On inspection, Shri Niyaz Khan found bricks and stones packed in the cartons. Since he had seen the receipt in respect of the warehousing of the goods as was submitted by the G-Card holder of Custom Broker/appellant, he could identify the another receipt to be forged. Resultantly, he refused to warehouse the fake/bogus consignment.

(ii) Shri Aakash Sharma who was assisting the said G-Card holder of the appellant has acknowledged for the entire transaction, since the seizure of goods till those goods were diverted to a godown at Mahipalpur behind Apra Automobiles owned by Shri Ramu Chhetry who actually was the buyer of the impugned goods as were purchased from Shri Raman Jha a friend of Shri Chaman Kumar Verma.

(iii) Shri Raman Kumar Jha only had taken the IEC No. 0516959310 in the name of M/s. Arun Enterprises and inducted Shri Manohar Kumar Jha his brother-in-law as the fake proprietor of M/s. Arun Enterprises. He only used the services of M/s. Skytrain Services and provided all KYC to the CB/appellant. It is on his instruction only that the goods were diverted to the godown of Shri Ramu Chhetry.
19. Involvement of Shri Ramu Chhetry and Shri Raman Kumar Jha stands corroborated from the documents proving the transfer of Rs.10 Lakhs from the bank account of Shri Ramu Chhetry at Yes Bank to the bank account of Shri Raman Kumar Jha in Axis Bank on 22.05.2018. The said is an amount equivalent to the amount of duties and penalties in respect of current case. Shri Raman Kumar Jha acknowledged Shri Chaman Kumar Verma to be his friend assisting him in getting clearances of the goods. He corroborated that Shri Ramu Chhetry approached him for clearances of goods i.e. mobile accessories purchased by him in China. It is also stated that the entire fact of obtaining the fake IEC in the name of M/s. Arun Enterprises with his brother-in-law as the proprietor thereof, the goods in the consignment to be mis-declared and under-valued and to also have infringed the Intellectual Property Rights were in the notice of Shri Chaman Kumar Verma as well. Mr. Raman Jha also corroborated the factum of goods being diverted from the ACC (Import) to the godown of Shri Ramu Chhetry instead of M/s. All-ways Logistics India Pvt. Ltd. where the mobile accessories were removed from the 99 packages as were sent from the Customs to be warehoused and those packages being re-filled with stones and bricks to be transported to M/s. All-ways Logistics India Pvt. Ltd. and were subsequently being refused to be warehoused by the person in-charge thereof, i.e., Shri Niyaz Khan.

20. From the entire above discussion it stands clear that there is sufficient oral evidence in the form of statements of all concerned, that too in corroboration, about the consignment received vide the impugned Bill of Entry to contain mis-declared and under-valued mobile accessories and to also have the mobile accessories of Samsung brand infringing the Intellectual Property Rights which despite seizure and the permission of being warehoused under Section 49 of Customs Act, 1962 were diverted to the premises of the actual purchaser of the consignment, Mr. Ramu Chettry with the connivance of the G-card holder of the appellant and his associate. The said oral evidence is receiving due corroboration from the documents as well, as were submitted by the Assistant Commissioner, Import Shed. The physical verification of M/s. All-ways Logistics India Pvt. Ltd. reveals that the consignment was not found warehoused in the premises on 16.04.2018. Nexus between Shri Chaman Kumar Verma, Shri Aakash Sharma, Shri Ramu Chhetry and Shri Raman Kumar Jha stands well established upon the record.

21. Admittedly, Shri Chaman Kumar Verma is the G-Card holder of the appellant who was physically and actually involved in the entire series of acts. Apparently and admittedly his activities had never been objected by the appellant nor ever had been questioned nor even been informed to the competent authorities. The appellant is otherwise bound by the act of his G-Card holder. Otherwise also, without the knowledge of the Custom Broker, the goods could not have been diverted. He is equally bound by the act of his authorised representative/agent. Keeping in view the same and the observation of Hon’ble Supreme Court in KM Ganatra & Co. (supra) case about the important duties of the CHA and the amount of due diligence as is required to be observed on their part, we are of the firm opinion that CHA has violated the obligations imposed upon him under CBLR, 2013/2018. The above observations are sufficient to hold that the violation of relevant Regulations is so grave that principle of proportionality is not opined to have been compromised as is impressed upon by the appellant. The failure thereof invites the penalty as that of revocation of license.

22. The facts and circumstances of the case as discussed above are sufficient to reflect the gravity of illegality committed which was not possible had the Custom Broker verified antecedent correctness of IEC Code no., identity of the importer herein and its functioning at the declared address by way of using reliable, independent, authentic documents, data or information. Thus, there is apparent violation of Regulation 11(n) of CBLR, 2013 as well as Regulation 79 of CBLR, 2013 holds the Custom Broker responsible for all acts or omissions of his employee during their employment as he is under the burdened duty to exercise such supervision as may be necessary to ensure the proper conduct of his employees in the transaction of the business. In view thereof, we are of the opinion that the Adjudicating Authority below has committed no error while holding that the Custom Broker Firm/the appellant has failed in compliance to their responsibilities cast upon them as per the Regulations 10(d) (e) (n) and 13 and 12 of CBLR, 2018 and thereby revoking its license forfeiting the security deposit.

23. While arriving at the given conclusion we are further of the opinion that for the illegality committed in the present case though the mensrea was with the G-Card holder of the appellant binding the appellant as well, his friend Shri Aakash Sharma, the actual purchaser of the impugned consignment, Shri Ramu Chhetry but the way goods have been diverted from ACC (Import) Customs Area to the godown of said Shri Ramu Chhetry, the same was not possible without connivance or at least grave negligence of the seizing officer in dealing with the seized goods. We find that whenever the goods are seized for violation of any of the provisions of the Customs Act, ownership of such seized goods temporarily rests with the government and therefore it is sacred duty of the seizing officer to ensure safety and proper storage of seized goods. The Board has issued guidelines for handling and storage of valuable goods that are seized/confiscated by the Department from its F. No. 394/97/2015–CUS(AS) dated 01.12.2015 and on many occasions we find that the officers concerned have behaved in handling such matters in violation of above mentioned institutions. Since the act committed is in sheer violation of Customs Act, 1962 and CBEC guidelines and instructions and is otherwise an act of grave illegality, we hereby order that an inquiry to be conducted by the Department so as to investigate, as to how the seized goods went out of the custody of the department and then to fix the responsibility of the officer/official who were on duty at the time of interception, seizure and clearances of the goods. The officer involved in granting the permission under Section 49 of the Customs Act be also enquired to check the element of connivance, if any, apparent on his part to facilitate the above observed illegal act.

24. The copy of this order to be sent to Chief Commissioner(Customs), concerned, for the purpose with the directions that the enquiry report be placed before us on or before the last day of the third month from the date of this Order.

25. With these findings and directions, as above, we uphold the order under challenge. The Appeal accordingly stands dismissed.

M/s. Silicone Concepts International Pvt. Ltd. (M/s. SCIPL, hereinafter)/the appellants are engaged in import and trading of various products as epoxy, stone cleaner, stone care, polyester, firelight, etc. imported from M/s. Akemi Chemisch Technische Spezialfabrik GMBH, Germany (hereinafter referred as M/s Akemi). The Department got an information about M/s. SCIPL to have mis-declared the value of the imported goods to the Customs and to have misclassified goods to evade payment on MRP/RSP basis and to not to have included the amounts paid to the parent Company terming them as 'Royalty' in connection with import of goods treated by M/s. SCIPL in the assessable value. On the basis of said information, the search of the appellants premises seizing goods/documents/laptops, etc. was conducted on 10.12.2015. Seized goods, however, were given to the Directors of SCIPL namely Shri Vineet Saluja and Shri Pradeep Sharma for safe custody. The statement of Shri Vineet Saluja was recorded on 10.12.2015, 20.07.2016, 19.06.2016 and 15.11.2016. The statement of Shri Pradeep Sharma was recorded on 10.12.2015, 20.07.2016, 19.06.2016 and 15.11.2016. The statement of Shri Pradeep Sharma was recorded on 10.12.2015 and 16.05.2016 accepting that M/s. SCIPL have committed the above mentioned acts. From the entire investigation, Department observed that M/s. SCIPL has colluded with their overseas suppliers and has fabricated documents and created parallel set of documents i.e. invoices to be submitted to Customs with an intention of evading payment of applicable duty and invoices for the purposes of actual payments. While they have made payments on the basis of invoices showing actual transactional value, they have caused duplicate invoices showing lesser value to the Customs Authorities for the purpose of assessment. Both the afore-named Directors were observed to be the mastermind for the entire fraud committed by M/s. SCIPL as they only aided the Company in suppressing the actual value paid for the imports to their suppliers i.e. M/s Akemi. Department also observed that M/s. SCIPL have used the services of M/s. Dadson Global Cargo, New Delhi who facilitated clearance of cargo of M/s. SCIPL through 7 different CHAs. None of those CHAs were observed to have followed the KYC norms nor did they bother to ascertain the credentials of M/s. SCIPL. Resultantly, a show cause notice No. 03/2017 dated 22.02.2017 was served upon M/s. SCIPL, both its Directors, Proprietor of M/s. Dadson Global Cargo and all the CHAs as named in the said show cause notice proposing the re-determination of the assessable value, re-classification of the goods, confiscation of the seized goods which were provisionally released and confiscation of the goods re-determined. Differential Customs duty was proposed to be recovered. Penalties were proposed to be imposed upon both the Directors as well as the Proprietor of M/s. Dadson Global Cargo. The penalties upon all the CHAs were also proposed to be imposed. During adjudication of the said show cause notice, the appellant made a request for cross examination of Shri Vineet Saluja, Shri Pradeep Sharma, Ms. N. Rashmi and Shri Amit Mallik. The said request was turned down vide the Order communicated to the appellant vide letter No. 07/2017 dated 13.02.2019. Being aggrieved of the said denial that the present Appeal has been preferred before this Tribunal.

2. We have heard Shri A.K. Prasad, learned Advocate for the appellant and Shri Rakesh Kumar, learned Authorised Representative for the Department.

3. It is submitted on behalf of the appellant that the show cause notice reveals that the same has been issued relying upon the statements of Shri Vineet Saluja, Shri Pradeep Sharma, Ms. N. Rashmi and Shri Amit Mallik. For the contents of the said statement to be relevant, the person making the statement have to be examined as a witness before the adjudicating authority prior the said statement is admitted in evidence and the person has to be cross examined by the assessee. It is impressed upon that said is the mandate as per the principles of natural justice. Otherwise also Section 9D of Central Excise Act, 1944 which is para materia with Section 138 of Customs Act, 1962 statutorily mandates the same. Learned Counsel has relied upon the Single Member Bench decision of this Tribunal bearing Final Order No. 53409-53411/2016 dated 06.09.2016 wherein it has been held that the statements recorded during investigation are required to be examined in Chief and the right of cross examination cannot be denied merely because the deponents are either co-notictees/employees of the assessee. Learned Counsel has also relied upon the following case laws:

- Elora Tobacco Co. Ltd. Vs. C.C.E., Indore reported in 2017 (347) ELT 614 (Tri.–Del.)
- Agarwal Round Rolling Mills Ltd. Vs. C.C.E. & S.T., Raipur reported in 2015 (317) ELT 145 (Tri.–Del.)
- J&K Cigarettes Ltd. Vs. Collector of Central Excise reported in 2009 (242) ELT 189 (Del.)
- Arya Abhushan Bhandar Vs. Union of India reported in 2002 (143) ELT 25 (S.C.)

4. While rebutting these arguments it is submitted on behalf of the Department that the principles of natural justice do not require that in each and every matter the person who has given information should be examined in presence of the appellant/assessee or should be allowed to be cross examined by the person concerned in support of the statements made before the Customs Authorities. It is submitted that Section 9D as relied upon by the appellant is not applicable to the given circumstances because the person who are prayed to be cross examined are not any other persons but the Directors and the employees of the appellant/ assessee and their statements actually are the confessions on the part of the appellant that too to the Customs officers who are not the police officers, which bind the appellant with no opportunity to the appellant Company to cross examine the person making statement on appellant’s own behalf. Thus, there is no infirmity in the Order under challenge. Learned Authorised Representative for the Department has relied upon Surjeet Singh Chhabra Vs. Union of India reported in 1997 (89) E.L.T. 646 (S.C.) and Kanungo & Co. Vs. Collector of Customs, Calcutta and others reported in 1983 (13) E.L.T. 1486 (S.C.).

5. After hearing both the parties and perusing the record, our considered opinion is as follows:

5.1 The impugned Appeal has been filed against an interlocutory Order passed by the adjudicating authority below while adjudicating the impugned show cause notice vide which the request of cross examination of four persons whose statement were recorded during investigation i.e. prior issuance of the impugned show cause notice was denied. Thus, the issue in controversy in the present Appeal is extremely limited in nature in the terms as to:

Whether denial of cross examination of the impugned witnesses amounts to violation of Section 9D of Central Excise Act, 1944/138 of Customs Act, 1962 and is violative of principles of natural justice.

Section 9D reads as follows:

"Section 9D – Relevancy of statements under certain circumstances.

(1) A statement made and signed by a person before any Central Excise Officer of a gazetted rank during the course of any inquiry or proceeding under this Act shall be relevant, for the purpose of proving, in any prosecution for an offence under this Act, the truth of the facts which it contains,–

(a) when the person who made the statement is dead or cannot be found, or is incapable of giving evidence, or is kept out of the way by the adverse party, or whose presence cannot be obtained without an amount of delay or expense which, under the circumstances of the case, the Court considers unreasonable; or

(b) when the person who made the statement is examined as a witness in the case before the Court and the Court is of opinion that, having regard to the circumstances of the case, the statement should be admitted in evidence in the interests of justice.

(2) The provisions of sub-section (1) shall, so far as may be, apply in relation to any proceedings under this Act, other than a proceeding before a Court, as they apply in relation to a proceeding before a Court."

5.2 This Section deals expressly with the circumstances in which a statement recorded before a Gazette Officer can be treated as relevant for the purposes of proving the truth of contents thereof. What is categorically required by the Section is that the person whose statement was earlier recorded before Gazette Officer has to be examined as witness before the adjudicating authority who thereafter has to arrive at an opinion that having regard to the circumstances of the case the statement should be admitted in evidence in the interest of justice. It is only after both these steps are complied with that the statement would be eligible for being treated as relevant in the proceedings so that the assessee can if it so chooses exercise the option to test the evidence by way of cross examination. The said right is otherwise permitted under Section 138 of the Indian Evidence Act, 1932.

6. The entire case law relied upon by the appellant is based on Section 9D. Thus, it becomes important for us to adjudicate as to: Whether the statements of the persons as are prayed to be cross examined qualify to be called as statement simplicitor.

7. Admittedly Shri Vineet Saluja and Shri Pradeep Sharma are the Directors of the appellant Company. As per Company Act, a Company Director is appointed or elected Member of the Board of Directors of a Company who with other Directors as the responsibility for determining and implementing the Company’s policy. A Company Director neither has to be a stock holder/shareholder nor a employee of the firm. He is the one who acts on the basis of Resolution made at Director’s meeting and derive its power from the corporate legislation and from the Company's Articles of Association. As such, Director of a Company is none but the Company’s agent who can bind the Company for any Act of his conduct. Keeping in view the same, the statement of Shri Vineet Saluja, Shri Pradeep Sharma is opined to not to be a statement simplicitor but a statement as that of the appellant Company and as such these statements are actually the confessions on behalf of the appellant Company. Since these statements were made to the Customs officers, the statements are out of the ambit of Section 24 of Indian Evidence Act and are readily admissible into evidence. As it was held by three judge Bench of Hon’ble Apex Court in the case of State of Punjab Vs. Barkat Ram reported in 1962 (3) SCR 338 where Court has gone to the extent of holding that the confessions made to the Customs officers if voluntarily made, can be the sole basis of the conviction.
8. Though the appellant have taken the plea that both the witnesses were compelled to give the initial statement of acknowledging the guilt but they had subsequently retracted. This controversy was cleared by Supreme Court Bhagwan Singh Vs. State of Punjab reported in AIR 1952 (S.C.) 214 holding that even if it is a retracted confusion, it must first be tested whether confusion is voluntary and trivial inculpating the accused in the Commission of the crime, if affirmative findings, even retracted confusion can be recorded. The Apex Court clarified that to prove that the statement was not voluntary and was obtained by threat or duress the burden lies upon the accused. We observe that there is nothing on record till date to satisfy the adjudicating authorities that the statement/confessions of the Directors of the Company were however made under threat or duress. Therefore, we are of the opinion that statements even if retracted can form the basis of conviction without examination of the persons making confessions in the manner as mentioned under Section 9D of Excise Act/138 of the Indian Evidence Act.

9. It is also an apparent and admitted fact that Shri Vineet Saluja and Shri Pradeep Sharma are not merely the Directors/agents of appellant Company but are the co-noticees as well. Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Haricharan Kurmi and Jogia Vs. State of Bihar reported in 1964 Constitutional Bench of Supreme Court 1184 has considered the controversy as to:

When the confession of co-accused/ co-noticee can be used as evidence under Section 3 of the Evidence Act.

10. The Hon'ble Court held that though the confession of co-accused cannot be treated as substantive evidence but if the Court believed other evidence and felt the necessity of seeking an assurance in respect of its conclusion deducible from the said evidence the confession of the co-accused could be used. Seeing from this angle also, there appears no need for permitting cross-examination at least of Shri Vineet Saluja and Shri Pradeep Sharma.

11. Since the statement of the Directors of the Company are opined to be in the form of confessions, the Directors are none but those who have stepped into the shoes of the accused Company. Otherwise also, they themselves are co-noticees and the imposition of penalty has been proposed against them. To our opinion, the fundamental right as enshrined under Article 20(3) of the Constitution of India which prohibits self incrimination is applicable to both of them. This Tribunal in the case of Mayamahal Industries Vs. Collector of Central Excise, Meerut reported in 1995 (80) E.L.T. 118 has held that it would not be proper to put the co-noticee in a position where he might have to incriminate himself by giving evidence.

12. Coming to the aspect of violation of natural justice, it has way back been listed by Supreme Court in Kanungo & Co. Vs. Collector of Customs, Calcutta and others reported in 1983 (13) E.L.T. 1486 (S.C.) wherein it was held that principles of natural justice do not require that where the show cause notice set out of the material on which the Customs Authorities had relied and it was for the appellant to give a suitable explanation, persons who had given information should be examined in presence of the appellants or should be allowed to be cross-examined by them on the statements made before the Customs Authorities. It was clarified that formal cross-examination was procedural justice and principles of natural justice did not require that there should be a kind of formal cross examination. It was held that natural justice certainly includes that any statement of person before it is accepted against somebody else that the person should have an opportunity of meeting it whether by way of interrogation or by way of comments and assailing as the party charged as a firm and reasonable opportunity to see comment and criticisms. The evidence, statement or recorded on which the charge is being made against him the demands and test of natural justice are satisfied. This Tribunal in the case of Popular Carpet Industries Vs. Commissioner of Customs, Mumbai reported in 1996 (84) E.L.T. 244 has held that where a co-noticee did not agree to be examined he cannot be compelled to come as a witness for cross-examination. The Hon'ble High Court of Calcutta in the case of Tapan Kumar Biswas Vs. Union of India and others reported in 1996 (63) E.C.R. has held that where the proceedee would be entitled to intercept the relevant documents they would not be entitled to cross examine any witness.

13. From the above discussion it becomes clear that the confessional statements are out of the ambit of Section 9D as relied upon by the appellant and as has been considered in the various case laws relied upon by the appellant. The co-noticee, if his statement amounts to confession, cannot be compelled to be cross examined and there would be no violation of principles of natural justice in that case. Though ample opportunity with the proceedee/assessee has to be granted to put forth his defence, however, the assessee cannot be compelled to self-incriminate himself. In view of the said observations we are of the opinion that permission for cross examining Shri Vineet Saluja and Shri Pradeep Sharma has rightly been denied. As far as Ms. N. Rashmi and Shri Amit Mallik are concerned, since their statements as were given during the investigation do not amount to confession, they both can be allowed to cross-examine but not against their wish.

14. As a consequence of entire above discussion, we hereby partly allow the Appeal by way of remand directing adjudicating authority below to seek the consent of Ms. N. Rashmi and Shri Amit Mallik qua their willingness to be cross examined and to accordingly re-decide the issue of cross examination of said two witnesses, afresh. However, non cross examination of Shri Vineet Saluja and Shri Pradeep Sharma is held neither violative of Section 9D nor of principles of natural justice. The Order under challenge till that extent is hereby upheld.

Per: Anil Choudhary:

The issue in this appeal is whether order of rejection of the declared value as regards the import of 'Silicone Weather Proofing Sealant', 'Fast Track Acqua – tech very high bond foamed acrylic tape' imported from China have been rightly rejected and revalued alongwith order of confiscation with option to redeem on payment of fine and further demand of differential duty alongwith penalty under Section 114A of the Act and further penalty of Rs. 50,000/- under Section 114AA on the appellant is correct, as confirmed by the impugned order in appeal.

2. Brief fact of the case are that based on intelligence, the goods imported vide Bill of Entry No. 2140432 dated 04.08.2015 filed by the appellant was subjected to detailed examination by the officer of the Customs Preventive Commissionerate, on the reasonable belief that the same were undervalued. On examination, goods containing (i) Silicone Weather Proofing Sealant (ii) Foamed Acrylic Tape and (iii) Tape were found. The quantity of goods was found as per the declaration, however, the length of the each tape as mentioned at (iii) above was found 8.2 meters as compared to declared length of 6.5 meters in the BoE/Invoice and Packing List. No MRP/ RSP stickers were found affixed on any cartons/ items. As the MRP/ RSP stickers were not affixed on the cartons and goods, it appeared the value has been mis-declared in terms of description viz a viz unit price. Hence, the goods appeared liable for confiscation under Section 111 of the Customs Act, 1962. Accordingly, the same were put under seizure under Section 110 of the Customs Act, 1962 for further enquiry/ investigation in the matter and representative samples of the goods were drawn as per procedure for comparison of value of similar/identical goods as per NIDB data. Statement of Shri Sameer Mittal, Proprietor of the appellant was recorded under Section 108 of the Customs Act, 1962 on various occasions. He inter alia stated that he had been regularly importing silicon adhesives in his own brand name i.e. 'KORNING' and 'BARRBERRY' from supplier namely 'M/s Guandong Olivia Chemical Ind Co. Ltd.'., and 'M/s Kam Yip silicon Sealant HK Co. Limited'. He was shown the NIDB data in respect of silicon adhesives and he signed the same, in token of having seen the same on which the import price of silicon adhesives was given, but did not accept the value of Rs. 24.1/- per piece. On being asked how he declared and justified the declared value of $0.14 for sealant and $0.04 for the adhesive tape and whether he had any purchase order or any proof in support of the declared value, stated that the goods were purchased at the declared value but did not have any proof such as purchase order.

3. The importer vide letter dated 28.08.2015 submitted that there was a minor difference in length of 20 nos. of tapes, the consignment need not be detained. The provisional release of the consignment covered under Bill of Entry No. 2140432 dated 04.08.2015 was allowed by the competent authority under Section 110A of the Customs Act, 1962 with the conditions (i) 100% payment of differential duty amounting to Rs. 2,37,245/- (ii) furnishing of Bond for the entire value of the goods i.e. Rs. 11,58,275/- and (iii) furnishing of Bank Guarantee equal to 25% of the differential duty i.e. Rs.59,311/-. Provisional release was granted to the importer after fulfilling the conditions of the provisional release.

4. Since, Shri Sameer Mittal did not agree with the valuation of the imported goods as per NIDB data, the aspect of undervaluation was also examined by taking further recourse to price available on internet. It was found that minimum price for bulk quantity from China in respect of similar goods were US$0.52/piece. Also retail price of similar product available on net was Rs. 80/- per piece (minimum price). On the assessable value of US$0.52 taken from the net, the MRP worked out to Rs. 75/- per piece which appeared to be in consonance with the retail price of Rs. 80/- prevalent in India.

5. It appeared that the invoice value submitted at the time of clearance of the Bill of Entry No. 2140432 dated 04.08.2015 is liable for rejection under Rule 12 of the Customs Valuation (Determination of Value of Imported Goods), Rule, 2007. The assessable value of the Silicon Sealant imported by the party appeared not be less than US$0.52/pc. which was the minimum rate available for the identical/ similar products as per website. The price appeared in consonance with the retail price of Rs. 80/- per piece. However, in order to follow the principal of natural justice, lowest amount of all value of the identical / similar goods retrieved from NIDB data i.e. Rs. 24.10 per piece was taken for assessment. It was also observed that the importer imported most of their products from M/s Guangdong Oliva Chemical Industry which was giving a minimum rate of US$0.6/pc for the imported goods, as obtained from the internet.

6. Accordingly, the importer firm M/s Burberry International were issued a show cause notice proposing therein for rejection of the declared value; re-determination of assessable value at the lowest price obtained as per NIDB data; demanding differential duty; confiscation of imported goods/ imposition of redemption fine; imposition of penalty under Section 114A and Section 114AA of the Customs Act, 1962.

7. The appellant contested the show cause notice by filing reply and also appeared at the time of personal hearing. The appellant contended that as per para 10 of the show cause notice, admittedly silicon Adhesive is complex and complicated product where percentage change in chemical composition of the ingredients can change the properties of the final product. There is no mention of the chemical composition of the product on the samples resumed during examination. The price also depends on the quality of the adhesive and tape, like curing at room temperature of silicon, length of life etc. It was further urged that declared value can be rejected only upon condition as mentioned in Rule 4(2) or in Rule 10A of the Customs Valuation Rules. Further, stated that the seller/ shipper is not a related person and price is the sole consideration. Further, as required under Section 14(1) of the Customs Act read with the Valuation Rules, transaction value can be rejected only for cogent reasons. Simply casting suspicion on the invoice / transaction value is not sufficient for rejection. It is further contended that the appellant's unit price is Rs.14/- for each 300 ml. bottle of the silicon sealant. Further, as per NIDB data there are other Bills of Entry mentioned therein, wherein the actual unit price per bottle is Rs. 9/- to Rs. 15/-. Reliance is placed upon the price from website of M/s Chander Glass House at Rs. 80/- per bottle and of Silchem Sales for 260 ml bottle Rs. 125/-, clearly shows wide variation in the prices which depend on number of factors. Further, reliance is placed on the price quotation on the website of Alibaba which was minimum rate of GP Silicon Sealant at US$0.52 per piece for bulk quantity manufactured in China. Thus, the Department have not given any basis for fixing the wholesale and retail margin. There is no proper scientific basis. Further, prices also vary as per the brand name. It was further urged that the Revenue adopting pick and choose method from the NIDB data relied upon, as they are ignoring the import price in respect of past Bill of Entry No. 9707166 dated 26.06.2015 and Bill of Entry No. 8648503 where value of 280 ml and 300 ml Silicon Sealant has been accepted at Rs. 24/- per piece. Further, appellant contended that they are regular importers from M/s Olivia chemicals, China which is a ISO 9001 certified company. Thus, rejection of transaction value on the basis of one Sealant from different suppliers is not justified in view of difference in quality, quantity, period of time etc. Further, the appellant is a regular importer under his own brand name which are KORNING and BARRBERRY. The appellant also produced contemporaneous data of import loaded from the website 'ZAUBA' wherein the transaction value is lower than the declared value as per appellant. Thus, as per rules when various import prices are available in respect of contemporaneous import, lowest of such prices is to be taken. Further, contended that the appellant imports directly from the manufacturer on better competitive rates. Vide order-in-original dated 15.03.2017 the Additional Commissioner (Prev.) passed the following order:-

(i) I reject the declared value of Rs. 4,69,906/- in respect of goods imported vide Bill of Entry No. 2140432 dated 04.08.2015 under Rule 12 of the Customs Valuation (Determination of Value of Imported Goods) Rules, 2007 and re-determine the same at Rs.11,58,275/- (Rupees Eleven Lakhs Fifty Eight Thousand Two Hundred and Seventy five only) under Rule 5 of the Rules ibid. (being the value of similar goods) as the actual transaction value of the goods.

(ii) I confiscate the seized goods valued at Rs. 11,58,275/- seized vide panchnama dated 07.08.2015 under Section 111(m) of the Customs Act, 1962. I give an option under Section 125 of the Customs Act, 1962 to the importer to redeem the seized goods, released provisionally, on payment of redemption fine of Rs. 50,000/- (Rupees Fifty Thousand only).

(iii) I confirm demand of differential duty of Rs. 2,37,245/- (Rupees Two Lakhs Thirty Seven Thousand Two Hundred forty Five only) under Section 28 of the Customs Act, 1962 and order recovery of the same from the importer along with interest under Section 28AA of the Act ibid. I appropriate the differential duty amount of Rs.2,37,250/- already deposited by the party vide TR-6 challan No. 70711 dated 04.09.2015 at the time of provisional release of the goods against the above confirmed demand of the differential duty.

(iv) I impose penalty of Rs. 2,37,245/- (Rupees Two Lakhs Thirty Seven Thousand Two Hundred forty Five only) under Section 114A of the Customs Act, 1962 and Rs.50,000/- (Rupees Fifty Thousand only) under Section 114AA of the Customs Act, 1962 on M/s Burberry International, C-9/7, Sector-8, Rohini, Delhi-110087 through its proprietor Shri Sameer Mittal for their wilful acts of omission and commission as discussed in the foregoing paras."

8. Being aggrieved, the appellant preferred the appeal before the learned Commissioner (Appeals) inter alia on the ground that the order in original was passed in a mechanical manner without application of mind. Further, the contention of the appellant were not considered. Further, the Adjudicating Authority failed to follow the Rule of law, as no cogent reason has been given for rejecting of transaction value, save and except suspicions.

9. Learned Commissioner (Appeals) observed that upon examination of the goods under Bill of Entry as required no sticker of MRP/RSP was found fixed. Further, the length of tapes was found to be longer than declared. Thus, it is a case of mis-declaration. Further, on comparison of the declared price with the NIDB price of identical / similar goods, the declared values appear to be very low and accordingly have been rightly rejected. Further, admittedly the price on internet for bulk quantity was found to be US$0.52 per piece and retail price in India was found to be Rs. 80/- per piece. As per the internet quotation the MRP worked out at Rs. 75/- per piece which is in consonance with the retail sale price of Rs. 80/-. Thus, the value as per NIDB data was taken at Rs. 24.10 per piece. The adjudicating authority have compared the price of the product under import ‘Silicon sealant’ is as follows:-

<thead>
<tr>
<th>Description of goods</th>
<th>CIF</th>
<th>Ass. value</th>
<th>Duty cum price</th>
<th>Post importation charges (5%)</th>
<th>Price including importer margin (15%)</th>
<th>Price including wholesaler margin (10%)</th>
<th>Price including retailer margin (30%)</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Silicon sealant Black/Clear</td>
<td>0.52</td>
<td>33.665</td>
<td>44</td>
<td>46</td>
<td>53</td>
<td>58</td>
<td>75</td>
</tr>

Further contemporaneous import price (NIDB data) of silicon adhesives at various ports in India (particularly at ICD, TKD, New Delhi) of same specification, from same place of origin, with almost same level of import and imported during the same period of time was shown to Sh. Sameet Mittal, prop. of M/s Burberry International (also supplied as RUD-3 to SCN dated 04.02.2016) wherein price was given as Rs. 24.1/- per piece."

10. Further, as per the price quoted by the shipper through website they were getting the minimum rate US$ 0.6 per piece for the Silicon Sealant. Thus, the Commissioner (Appeals) found the re-determined value was reasonable and proximate value confirming to the general principles of valuation. It was further observed that the appellant has not produced any documentary evidence in support of their contention, in spite of being a regular importer as admitted by them, particularly documents like purchase agreement or purchase order nor the costing sheet of the shipper for the product under dispute. Accordingly, the appeal was dismissed.

11. Being aggrieved, the appellant is before this Tribunal on the ground which are more or less similar to the ground raised before the Commissioner (Appeals).

12. Learned Counsel Shri M. S. Hasan appearing for the appellant reiterated the grounds as per the appeal memo, which have been already taken notice herein above.

13. Learned Authorised Representative Shri Rakesh Kumar appearing for the Revenue relies on the impugned order.

14. Having considered the rival contentions, we find that the impugned order has been passed in accordance with law. Further, the appellant have failed to bring any cogent evidence on record, even before the Tribunal, in spite of being regular importer importing under their own brand name. Thus, apparently the appellant has not come with clean hands before this Tribunal. Accordingly, agreeing with the findings of the Commissioner (Appeals), we uphold the impugned order in appeal and dismiss the appeal in toto.

Per: Bijay Kumar:
1. The present appeals are filed against the Order dated 30/10/2018, 21/10/2019 and 21/12/2018 by which the order of the Adjudicating Authority has been set aside and has been remanded back for fresh decision.

2. Being aggrieved by the said order the Appellants, M/s CMR Nikkei India Pvt Ltd. and M/s Century Metal Recycling Ltd., filed these appeals on the following grounds;

- That the assessment order have been passed in complete defiance of the provisions of Section 14 of the Customs Act, 1962 and Customs Valuation (Determination of Value of Imported Goods Rules, 2011)

- That as per Section 2(41) of the Customs Act, "value" in relation to any goods means the value thereof determined in accordance with the provisions of sub-Section (1) or sub-Section (2) of Section 14 further as per Section 14 of the Customs Act and Rules 3(1) of Customs Valuation (Determination of value of imported goods) Rules, 2011 which mandates that the ‘value of imported goods shall be the “transaction value” which defined as price actually paid or payable for the goods, when sold for export to India for the delivery at the time and place of importation, where the buyers and sellers of the goods are not related and price is the sole consideration for sale.

- That the assessment orders which are under appeal has not specified as to how the Section 14(1) of Customs Act has not been followed so as to reject the transaction value.

- That the transaction value declared by the Appellant at the time of filing of bills of entry satisfied all the ingredients in Section 14(1) of Customs Act.

- That ld. Commissioner (Appeal) has failed to appreciate that once the ingredients as contemplated in Section 14(1) of the Customs Act are specified the transaction value cannot be discarded.

- That the appellant has paid the duty enhanced value as per assessment order, which was based on the NIDB data and in terms of guidelines issued by the DGOV in Alter Circular No. 14/2005 dated 16/12/2005 is not required to be followed, by the Commissioner (Appeal) being quasi judicial authority.

- That there is no ground to hold that the scrap consignments could be identical or similar because of specification, grade, metal recovery etc. However, Department has failed to appreciate that. Reliance was placed by the Department in case of Atlas Casting and Metals Impregnation [2005(186) ELT 757] cannot be relied upon considering facts and circumstances of the import of consignment.

- That the Rule 9 of the Customs Valuation Rules cannot be invoked placing sole reliance on London Metal exchange price placing reliance on Impex Steel & Bearing Co. vs. CC [2014 (302) ELT 464]. The transaction value can be rejected only subject to Rule 12 of the Valuation Rules adjusted in accordance with the provisions of Rule 10 which has not been followed by the primary adjudicating authority. Reliance place on National Import data Bank (NIDB) data is also not relevant for the determination of price of the subject consignment on the ground that the data contained therein is only for the purpose of reference of price for the goods imported at the various customs stations, but does not indicate as to whether those are enhancement price or actual price declared by the importer.

- That Hon’ble CESTAT Allahabad vide Final Order No. C/A/70132-70137-CUS-DB dated 17/01/2017 has set aside the order passed by the Commissioner (Appeal) affirming the value enhanced in case of Sanjivani Non-Ferrous Trading P. Ltd. [2017 (7) GSTL 82 (Tri-All)]. Also Hon’ble CESTAT vide Final Order NO. C/F/A/70462-70501/2018 dated 05.01.2018 and Final Order NO. C/A/71417-71525-CUS-DB dated 06/07/2018 set aside the various orders passed by the Commissioner (Appeal) in case of Sanjivani Non-Ferrous Trading Pvt Ltd., Century Metal Recycling Pvt Ltd. and CMR Nikkei India Ltd. The last two being the same appellant company and hence the ld. Commissioner (Appeal) was bound to follow the decisions of Hon’ble Tribunal in similar case in respect of the same party. This has not be done in the impugned order.

- That the valuation is not determinable under Rule 12 of the Valuation Rules, 2007 on the ground that neither inquiry was conducted by the Department nor any information was sought from the Appellant, and hence incomplete violation of provisions of Rule 12 of the Valuation Rules. Also that the assessment order is appealable order placing reliance in the case of JM Industries vs. Commissioner of Customs, Jamnagar-2003(156) ELT 977(Tri.), Ashok Leyland Ltd. vs Commissioner of Central Excise, Chennai-[2004(173) ELT 518(Tri.])

- That the reliance placed by Commissioner in case of Jai Shiv Trading Co. and M/s Advance Scan Support Technology vs. CCE, Jodhpur are not relevant in the facts and circumstances of present case.

3. Ld. Advocate on behalf of the appellant reiterated the grounds in the appeal memorandum and also place reliance on the various decisions passed by this Tribunal and also the decision of Hon’ble Supreme Court in case of Commissioner of Central Excise and ST, Noida vs. Sanjivani Non-Ferrous Trading Ltd. which sustained the order of Hon’ble CESTAT in case of Sanjivani Non-Ferrous Trading Ltd. 4. Ld Departmental Representative, however, submitted that Commissioner (Appeal) has not committed any error as the matter is only remitted back to lower Adjudicating authority with a direction to decide the issue afresh considering the relevancy of transaction value arrived by the Department under the provisions of Customs Act and Valuation Rules.

5. We have examined the impugned order and also considered the submissions made by the l d. Advocate on behalf of the Appellant and l d. AR on behalf of the Department.

6. The issue involved in this appeal is regarding determination of assessable value of imported aluminium waste and scrap. The Assessing Officer has rejected the declared price, on the basis of Circular issued by Directorate General Valuation being Circular No. 14/2005 dated 16/12/2005. The appellant had imported various consignments of aluminium waste and scrap such as Twitch, Tread, Trump, Taint/Tabor, Talk, Tale etc., falling under Customs Tariff item 760220010 of the Custom Tariff Act, 1975 (Imported Schedule). The appellant filed Bills of Entry for each consignment along with purchase orders and invoices. The appellant self-assessed these imported goods vide the said Bills of Entry on the basis of transaction value which was rejected by the assessing officer placing reliance on the price indicated in the DGOY Circular. Aggrieved by the said order of assessment the appeals were filed before the l d. Commissioner (Appeal) who as remanded the matter back to l d. Adjudicating authority as mentioned above.

7. It is the contention of l d. Advocate on behalf of the appellant to set aside the impugned order and accept the price declared by the appellant before the original adjudicating authority and pass appropriate order. Having considered the impugned order, we find that the Commissioner (Appeal) has made open remand to the lower Adjudicating authority to decide the valuation depending on the contemporary import price available with the Department within three months from passing of the impugned order. At this stage, we find that large number of cases which has been cited by the ld. Advocate, have been decided by this Tribunal rejecting the transaction value adopted by the Department having contrary to Section 14(1) of Customs Act and the Customs Valuation Rules. This should have been considered by the Commissioner (Appeals) in the impugned order which were agitated before him, however, placing reliance on the decisions of Hon’ble Madras High in case of M/s Sanjivani Non-Ferrous Trading Pvt Ltd. vs Commissioner, Chennai [2005 (328) ELT 10(Mad.)]. The case was remanded back.

8. The order passed by the Hon’ble Supreme Court in case of Sanjivani Non-Ferrous Trading Ltd. in Civil Appeal No. 18300-18305 of 2017 was not available before the Commissioner (Appeals). In the circumstances, we do not find any infirmity in the impugned order. However, we expect that various decisions of this Tribunal and Hon’ble Supreme Court would have duly been considered by the Adjudicating Authority while passing fresh order in terms of remand direction in the impugned order.

9. Accordingly, we do not find any infirmity in the impugned order and sustain the same. Appeals are dismissed accordingly.

Per Bijay Kumar

1. The present appeal arises out of Order-in-Original No. 06-2018-RNS-COMMR-IMP-ICD-TKD dated 28/03/2018, wherein the Ld. Commissioner, as Adjudicating Authority has confirmed the demand raised vide Show Cause Notice dated 21/01/2016. Being aggrieved by the impugned order the appellants are before this Tribunal in appeal.

2. Brief fact of the case is that on the basis of intelligence by the officers of DRI, New Delhi, the consignment of fabrics imported by the main appellant, namely, M/s Subhalakshmi Textile, Ludhiana, from China, vide Bill of Entry No. 2293952 dated 31/05/2013 was asked to be examined in their presence. The consignment, which was being examined by the Customs officer at ICD, TKD, on 04/05/2013, were put on hold for further examination by the DRI. The consignment, which were opened by the Customs Officer at ICD Tuglakabad, New Delhi, contained in container No. TRLU5861009, were re-sealed after initial opening thereof. These consignments were again re-examined on 05/06/2013, by the DRI officer under Punchnama and the samples of the fabrics in the container were drawn for further investigation. The samples drawn were forwarded to Central Revenue Control Laboratory, New Delhi, (CRCL) for testing vide letter dated 06/06/2013. After the receipt of the reports from CRCL, New Delhi, were found as below mentioned against the declared imported goods (fabrics);

3. Thereafter, the statements of Shri Suraj Mahindra Kumar Desai, partner of the appellant company was recorded on various dates, namely, 21/06/2013, 26/06/2013, 23/03/2015 and 08/05/2015 and 8/05/2015 by the officer of the DRI. In the statement Shri Desai agreed to the test report but stated that the order was placed for the import of cotton plain dyed fabrics (width 58 inches, GSM/260+/-10 %) however, he agreed that but for the two samples at Sl. No. B 1 and E 1 of the table above, the others were found to be not made of the cotton plain dyed fabrics but of polyester texturised/viscose texturised yarn fabric. He was shown copy of the test reports from the CRCL, in respect of the these consignments. On being asked, he deposed that he had ordered only for cotton fabrics from various Chinese vendors and they were supposed to sale cotton fabrics only to the appellant and he was aware that there were some per cent of lycra in the fabric for making those fabrics stretchable. However, they were not aware of the fact that some fabrics were mixed with polyester/viscose. He further submitted another packing list, which was the identical to one submitted at the time of filing of BS/E but also contained additional information regarding design number of the fabrics. He was to use this packing list for sorting of the various fabrics. He also agreed that in three cases (A1, C1 and F1), the cotton yarn (56.8 % to 72.66 %) was mixed with Polyester texturised filament yarn (25.52 % to 40.4% ) and also elastomeric yarn and that in one case, D1 contained the viscose spun yarn was in fact more than 66.72 (than cotton yarn 30.58% ). However he has not admitted that description given at the time of filing of Bs/E were incorrect and incomplete, on the bonafide belief that goods contained in the consignment is as per declaration. He also agreed that as per his understanding the items on Sl. NO 1,3 and 6 (A1 C1 & F1) will be classified under heading 52 122 400 and item at Sl No. 4 (D1) will be classified under heading 55 164200 of Customs Tariff Act, 1975, and the differential duty as per changed classification would be around Rs.6.50 lacks and he also volunteered to deposit the same and accordingly the it was deposited by him vide two demand drafts of Rs. 3.50 lakhs and 6.50 lakhs, towards the differential duty as additional of the duty liability.

4. Shri Desai, in spite of repeated demand by the investigating officer, could not produce the manufacturers invoice in respect of imports made by the appellant. This was explained to be on account of the fact the consignments were pooled from different China based exporters who exported their goods through a merchant exporter, as they were small manufacturers based in China. Regarding the inquiry about the past clearance of the similar nature during period from 25/07/2011 to 19/07/2013, the various Bills of Entry were submitted to the investigating officer by him. Considering the above test reports, following chart was prepared as under;

In furtherance of the investigation, the DRI officer, obtained export declaration of past consignments of fabrics imported by the appellant from Chinese exporters through Shri Deepanker Aron, COIN officer, Hong Kong. 5. Even on the repeated inquiries by the Investigating Officer, Shri Desai could not produce the manufacturers invoice of imported goods, bank account statement of the appellant, contacts, details of the foreign supplier, evidence regarding the payment of freight pertaining to the import consignment. Based on these investigations, the Show Cause Notice was issued, to the appellants which culminated into the impugned order.

6. Ld. Advocate on behalf of the appellant would submit that Ld. Adjudicating Authority has not decided the issue based on the various submissions made by the appellant during the personal hearing in reply to the Show Cause Notice and adjudicated the case contrary to the provisions of Customs/Law and procedure.

7. Regarding the first issue in respect to live Bill of Entry No. 2293952, he would submit that the said Bill of Entry was filed declaring the goods as per the invoice having assessable value of Rs. 27,02,398/- and the duty payable thereon, after the self assessment, which was Rs. 7,79,692/-. The goods were examined on 04/06/2013, and the container was re-sealed the due to communication from DRI. No panchanama was drawn at opening of container, although the goods were examined and container was re-sealed and thereafter again re-examined on 05/06/2013 and punchanama was also drawn. The six samples, were drawn from the containers for test, however, samples were not provided to the main appellant. Thereafter, on the basis of the report from CRCL, the goods listed at Sl. No A, C, F (1), (3) and (6) were classified under CTH 52114390 (duty structure BCD 10 % or Rs. 32 per square meter whichever higher) in respect of declared CTH 52093290 (duty structure BCD 10%). Accordingly, the differential duty of the goods listed at Sl. No 1,3,6 of A, C, F were calculated to be Rs. 10,71,400, the goods were provisionally released on execution of a bond for Rs. 27,02,398/- backed by the bank guarantee Rs. 3.50 lakhs, as per Section 17(2) of the Customs Act, 1962. During the investigation, Shri Desai, partner of the firm, informed that the seized goods were collected from several vendors and hence it was not possible for them to produce manufacturer’s invoice in such a situation. He also submitted that CHA informed the classification of goods based on the description of the goods in invoice and packing list. The CHA also agreed that some of the fabrics contained viscose yarn, therefore, the classification would be change to 52093290 of CTA, 1975, although the appellant had declared the description of goods as per declaration of the exporter in Hong Kong.

8. It was also submitted by him that in respect of live consignment, demand was limited only to the mis-declaration of imported goods and consequently mis-declaration of the Tariff Heading (CTH), and rate of duty, but there was no mis-declaration of value by the appellant.

9. It was further submitted by Ld. Advocate that the Ld. Adjudicating Authority observed that the issue in this case of was not of the mis-declaration of the value, but the description of the goods, which will require the re-classification of the goods and hence also payment of differential duty. He also submitted that there was an agreed mis-declaration regarding the nature and composition of goods. After the adjudication, Ld. Adjudicating Authority re-determined the assessable value to be Rs. 8,96,477/- and ordered the appellant to pay the differential duty of Rs. 10,71,414/- in respect of item Sl. No. 1, 3 and 6 of imported consignment vide Bill of Entry No. 229352 dated 31/05/2013 of the table. He also ordered confiscation of the said goods and imposed the redemption fine.

10. Ld. Advocate further submitted that the demand against the liveconsignment (as per Table-1 is based on the CRCL), test report was mentioned that punchanama was not drawn for re-sealing of container at the examining the same by the Customs Officer and also no samples were provided to the appellant after the examination of DRI, and therefore, they were deprived of the right of re-examination of the imported goods with respect to description of goods for the reclassification of goods. It was also argued that the declaration of the Bills of Entry was based on the documents supplied by the exporter which were not doubted and thus there is no scope of invocation of Section 111(m) of the Customs Act, 1962 (for short „Act‟) hence the goods would not be liable for confiscation, relying on the decision of Hon‟ble CESTAT in case of Shri Ganesh International vs. CCE, Jaipur [2004 (174) ELT 171(Tri-Del)], following the decision of Hon‟ble Apex Court in case of Northern Plastics vs. Collector, [1198(101) ELT 549(SC)]. He would further submit that the present Show Cause Notice was issued after the lapse of 6 months from the seizure, the department should have returned the BG and money deposited at the time of provisional assessment as held in case of M/s Jatin Ahuja vs Union of India reported in 2013 (287) ELT 3(Del), by the Hon‟ble Delhi High Court.

11. Regarding the second issue, pertaining to imports made under 18 Bills of Entry for period 2011-13, Ld. Advocate would submit that the consignment were re-assessed based on the report obtained from First Secretary (COIN) by the Department. The Report was based on the information collected from Anti Smuggling Board, General Administration of Chinese Customs. Shri Deepanker Aron, First Secretary (COIN) purportedly compiled the export price of various consignment, provided by the Chinese Customs. The report was provided to the Indian Customs and thereafter DRI and accordingly the inference that the appellant undervalued goods to the extent of Rs. 10.3 crores for their past imports during year 2011-13, was inconclusive and also incomplete filled with contradiction and infirmities. In some of the cases such as at RUDs, the DRI allegedly annexed some „report” received from the overseas Chinese Customs Administration, vide letter UOF/HOL/CUS/CH/08/2014 dated 25/02/2015, whereas, the perusal of the same indicates that it is an internally corresponding between the two DRI Officers, based in Hong Kong and New Delhi, which is perverse and without any basis. The DRI has annexed the letter purportedly issued by the General Administrative of Customs of PR of China with a translation thereof, in English and chart for 12 entries only, however, none of the documents have been signed or authenticated by the Chinese authority. The copy of this report thereof was also not enclosed along with the Show Cause Notice or even provided to the appellant thereafter. The Chinese Customs’ Letter dated 20/10/2014, contained a categorical averment which reads as under;

“Accordingly to the declared import information, you have provided us, we have completed the investigating concerned and trade declared information at export in China including the export BL No, declaration, unit price, total price and other shipment, particulars of the commodity will be emailed to you @cgihk.gov.in,” however, this E-mail was not provided to the appellant with the Show Cause Notice or any time later thereafter, which suggested that the information obtained by the CION office at Hong Kong is not complete and hence not reliable. In fact, in four of the instances, the BL number provided by Chinese Customs were different from the Bill of lading filed with Bills of Entry at the time of import. The declaration made by the Chinese supplier also did not tally with the description of the goods appearing on the Bills of Entry as arrived by the Customs Officer at the time assessment of consignment. It was also submitted these 18 consignments were cleared, after physical examination thereof and in all these cases the proper officer has agreed to the declaration made and gave out of charge order, after their full satisfaction. At the time of examination goods imported were found to be as per declaration.

12. Ld. Advocate, therefore, submitted that the subject letter and report of COIN has no evidentiary value and could not have been relied upon in the process of adjudication. The request of cross-examination of Shri Aron and the Officer of Chinese Customs, who had allegedly issued the report to DRI officer, and also who has prepared the chart annexed with the Show Cause Notice as RUD 12, was denied by the Ld. Adjudicating Authority, as is evident from the impugned order. The law relating to admissibility of evidence collected from foreign country in domestic inquiry is no more re integra, and has been settled by Hon’ble Supreme Court in the matter of

East Punjab Tractors [1198 (089) ELT (11) (SC)] followed by subsequent judgments, including the judgment of No. A/3446/3470/15/CB dated 20/10/2015, rendered by Mumbai Bench of Hon’ble Tribunal in the matter of Ajay export.

13. Ld. AR on behalf of the Revenue contended that in this case the appellant has mis-declared the consignment imported by them, as is obvious from the test report of the samples obtained from the CRCL by the Department, which was also not disputed by the appellant in his statement recorded under Section 108 of Customs Act. In statement appellant, Shri Suraj Mahindra Kumar Desai, has accepted the report of CRCL and also paid the differential duty, and therefore, mis-declaration in respect of live import consignment stands affirmed by the appellants. Regarding the demand for the past consignments, imported during 2005-13, the appellants had imported similar consignments vide the 18 Bills of Entry from time to time. Even though the said Bill of Entry was assessed finally under Section 17 of the Customs Act, but as their alleged was mis-declared, the Department decided to issue the Show Cause Notice invoking the extending period under Section 28 of the Customs Act.

The Department obtained the Report from the 1st Secretary officer (COIN) from Hong Kong from their counterpart from China regarding the export price of the past consignments. The officer (COIN) prepared a chart after the correlating to the details of the various import made by the appellant and accordingly submitted the same information to the DRI which was made available to the appellant and accordingly the demands was confirmed in respect of past consignments by following the due process of law. He therefore argued that the impugned order is correct and legal and thus required to be upheld.
14. Heard Ld. AR and Advocate extensively and also perused the appeal records carefully.

15. The issue involved in this case is two-fold, first the seizure and adjudication of the live consignment imported vide Bill of Entry No 2293952 dated 31.05.2013. This consignment, was detained by the Customs officer on 04/05/2013 without any detention memo. It is not disputed that the Custom officer was in the process of examination of the container on 04.05.2013, after opening the container. Thereafter on receipt of the information that the DRI would be examining the consignment the container was sealed again. We find that for sealing of the container, there is no record. Ld. Advocate strenuously argued that the sealing of the consignment without punchnama was improper this ground itself is a sufficient to hold that there is a complete disregard to Customs Act and the Rules made thereunder. This in itself is a sufficient ground to treat the process of examination to be illegal and not permissible under Customs Act. The seizure has been affected by the DRI on 02.07.2013, which was provisionally released on 16.07.2013 under Section 110 A of Customs Act by execution of the bond on full value of the detained consignment supported by security of 20 % of the value of goods (Rs. 3.50 Lakhs DO/ BG). It is undisputed input in this case. Show Cause Notice has been issued on 21.01.2016, as the seizure was made under Section 110A (2) of the Act and no extension was permitted by the Adjudicating Authority for issuance of Show Cause Notice under the proviso 2 the Section 110 of Customs Act. But as the goods stands provisionally released, the Department is not precluding issuing Show Cause Notice under Section 124(a) of Customs Act, as there is no time period fixed for issuance of such Show Cause Notice reliance is placed as under;

(i) Mohan Lal Devder Lal Choksy vs. M. P. Mandka [1988 (37) ELT 528]

(ii) Harbans Lal vs Collector of Customs and Central Excise [1993(67) ELT 20 (SC)]

16. Accordingly the confiscation of the goods and imposition of penalty as proposed in the Show Cause Notice is patently perverse and illegal as noticee declared the particular in the impugned Bill of Entry on the basis of documents of overseas supplier, the proposed confiscation and imposition of penalty cannot be sustained following the judgment by Hon’ble Tribunal in the matter of Shree Ganesh international [2004 (174) ELT 171 (Tri.-Del)].

Similar conclusions were arrived the Hon’ble Tribunal in the matter of Vaibhav Textile, [2007 (214) ELT 408 (Tri-Kol)] & Kirti Sales Corporation [2008 (232) ELT 151].

17. In these cases the appellant has declared the description of the imported goods and their classification based on the documents supplied by the overseas supplier. The CHA, who was authorised to effect Customs clearance made available those documents, and was asked by the appellant to classify imported goods as per the aforesaid documents considering the nature and description of the goods. Therefore, if cannot be held that there was a deliberate attempt on their behalf to mis-declare the imported consignment. In fact, in past the Customs itself has cleared similar consignments as per the declaration given by the appellant at the strength of the export invoice as per the description of the goods therein. Therefore, Ld. Advocate, was of the view, the appellant has not deliberately mis-declared the consignments but under the bona fide belief that the goods imported by them is cotton textile fabric and not mixed with any other material so as to change the classification. We find that the appellant has submitted another invoice to the DRI officer which contained more or less identical description of the goods, but more detailed one, meant for sorting of the imported consignment. Therefore hold that the appellant have not made any deliberate mis-declaration. In holding so we place reliance on the decision of Shree Ganesh International vs. Commissioner of C. Ex. Jaipur, [ 2004 (174) ELT 171 (Tri-Del)]. The finding is reproduced as under;

7. We have considered the submissions of both the sides. The Revenue has clearly established that polyester fabrics imported by the Appellants does not contain 85% or more by weight of non-texturised polyester filament by getting the test report from CRCL and Textile Committee; that once the non-texturised polyester filament is less than 85% the polyester fabrics imported by the Appellants is not classifiable under sub-heading 5407 61 20. The mere fact that there were wide variations between the test results arrived at by the Textile Committee and CRCL will not make any difference as much as there is nothing on record to show that the impugned goods contain 85% or more by weight of non-texturised polyester filament. The appellants have not brought on record any test report showing that the impugned goods contain non-texturised polyester filament 85% or more by weight. They have only referred to the Test Certificate given by the foreign supplier. The perusal of the said Test Certificate reveals that the supplier has only stated that the goods are non-texturised fabrics without indicating the contents of the texturised polyester filament. In view of this, this Certificate is of no importance. On the other hand, the Revenue has brought on record, the test report given by CRCL. Accordingly, we hold that the impugned polyester fabric is classifiable under sub-heading 5407 69 00 of the Customs Tariff.

8. We, however, agree with the learned Advocate that the impugned goods are not liable for confiscation. It has not been denied by the Revenue that the appellants have made the declaration on the Bills of Entry on the basis of documents received by them from their foreign suppliers. The test report of the foreign supplier is dated 9-8-2003 which clearly mentions that the goods are non-texturised fabrics. They have also claimed that a similar consignment imported by them from the same supplier had earlier been cleared as non-texturised polyester fabrics which gave them the bona fide belief that the present consignment would also be of non-texturised variety. In similar situations, the Supreme Court has held in the case of Northern Plastics Ltd. (supra) that the declaration is in the nature of a claim made on the basis of belief entertained by the Appellants and therefore cannot be said to be misdeclaration under Section 111(m) of the Customs Act. It has also been held by the Tribunal in the case of Jay Kay Exports and Industries (supra) that finalisation of Tariff Heading under which the goods will fall is the ultimate job of the Customs authorities and if the Appellants have claimed wrong classification according to his limited understanding of the Customs Law, mens rea cannot be attributed to him. Accordingly, we hold that in the present matters, it cannot be claimed by the Revenue that the Appellants have deliberately misdeclared the goods with a view to avail the benefit of lesser rate of duty. We, therefore, set aside the confiscation and consequently the redemption fine imposed on them in both the appeals as well as the penalty.

18. Revenue has not been able to prove that the appellant has paid any extra amount to the overseas buyer other than whatever is mentioned in the export invoice through banking channel. Regarding the consignment which has been imported by the appellant in past, it was argued that those imports have been under section 17 of the Customs Act without resorting to any provisional assessment. The Department has also not challenged the assessment order, and which had become final under Section 17 of the Act during the relevant period. Revenue is not permitted to re-agitate the issue of classification and mis-declaration of the value based on the report received from the DRI officer (COIN), regarding export data supplied by him, which was obtained from Chinese Customs Officials, reliance is placed on the decision of Hon’ble Supreme Court in case of CCE, Kanpur vs. Flock (India) Pvt. Ltd.[2000 (120) ELT 285(SC)] & Priya Blue Industries Ltd. vs. CC (Pre.) [2004 (172) ELT 145(SC)]. We also find that the email which is received from the Chinese customs officials indicated that the further information would be supplied to them. However, there is no indication any such report by the
We also find that the appellant has asked the cross-examination of the COIN officer which was not permitted by the Ld. Adjudicating Authority on the ground that the entire facts have been made available to the appellant. Also we find there are certain other evidences which were supposed to come subsequently vide the email which was not provided to the appellant by the DRI. Further, we also find lot of force in the argument of Ld. Advocate that the documents supplied to them are un-authenticated copy of the report received from the Chinese customs. There could be various reasons for declaring the higher value to the Chinese customs, which may itself be a cause of inquiry by the concerned Chinese authority. It has been not shown to us that after having been made aware of the two export invoices, whether any investigation had been carried out by the Chinese authority so as to ascertain as to which one is genuine export invoice. The COIN officer had also not made any attempt to obtain any further Report from the Chinese customs so as to make the information provided to be more reliable and admissible in the adjudication proceeding. Mere simple reliance on those letters without giving the opportunity of cross examination of the concerned COIN officer who has compiled the report, more so would be in complete defiance of principle of natural justice and provisions of Sections 138 B of Customs Act.

19. We also find that the admissibility of report received from the COIN officer has been considered by the Apex Court in case of East Punjab Tractors [1994 (089) ELT 11(SC)] and subsequently followed in the catena of judgments including the judgment in Final Order No. A/3446-3470/2015/CB dated 20/10/2015 rendered by Mumbai Bench, Hon’ble Tribunal in the matter of Ajay Export and others, wherein it held;
On considered by rival contentions and perusal of records, the following position emerges:

(a) The revenue has relied upon copies of export invoices and declaration submitted by the suppliers the exporters before the Turkish authorities. This is evident from the reading of paragraph 9.1.1.1 of the 2nd corrigendum issued and the revenue has relied upon 18(sic 16) bill of entry to charge undervaluation. A perusal of the letter dated 30.10.2009 addressed by first secretary, Moscow to the additional director general of DRI seems to suggest that information regarding 252 consignment in the form of comparative chart were given put of which 48 cases the declared value (at Turkish Port) match with the invoice value and in 204 cases there was significant difference. The letter further states that an exercise of segregation and co-relating such documents would be needed.

It is also seen that the comparative statements set to have been filed awarded is blacked out and most of the entries have been redacted and cannot be read. The revenue has not been able to explain this satisfactorily. It is settled law that in order to be admissible as an evidence, the copies of the foreign documents are required to be tested and signed by the Turkish Customs authorities which they were not. Further it is settled law that the documents must bear the signature of the officers making the enquiries and be certified as true copies. It is to be noted that the originals have not been made available to the Tribunal and unauthenticated and unsigned documents were relied upon, which could not be used, even if they may have been forwarded by ‘authorities’ to the investigating agency through official channels. This law is settled by Apex Court in the case of East Punjab Traders (supra).

19. Further it is also seen from the record submitted by the appellant that the declared transaction value is in range of the value available for identical goods the NIDB/DOV data, which is vindication of appellant’s claim for the declared import price. The Adjudicating Authority had to examine and consider the value indicated in NIDB/DOV, as has been held by Hon’ble Tribunal in the matter of Techtronic India [2006(203) ELT 301] and A M Impex [2013(287) ELT 197(Kol)].

20. Ld. Advocate also submitted that the calculation of the duty itself is not appropriate by the DRI authority as the Report of the COIN is not matching with those of export documents during the relevant period. As in some of the cases the information collected was with container no. only. No invoices were submitted by the Chinese exporter which were complete in all respect through DRI. Accordingly credibility of such data is not accepted for assessment, as held in American Almond vs. CCE Nhava Sheva. [2015(329) ELT 817(Tri-Mum)] as there could be various other reasons for declaration of higher export price domestically for various other reasons including to get higher export benefit.

21. We also find lot of force in the argument of the Ld. Advocate regarding the relevancy of the photo copy of the declaration in the adjudication procedure indicating the violation, relying on the decision of Hon”ble Tribunal in case of M/s Wings Electronic vs. CCE Mumbai [2006 (205) ELT], which was approved by the Hon”ble Apex Court in [2015(323) ELT 450(SC)]. As has been mentioned earlier that the Department could not produce evidence of any realization of extra remittance by the appellant to the supplier. The department did not bother to obtain any evidence regarding the extra remittances, if from their sources. And thus relying on the decision of Hon”ble Supreme Court in case of A.M. Impex (supra), we are of the view that there is no scope of opening of the assessment for the past period merely placing reliance on COIN that too which is not conclusive. The report received from the COIN would have been the starting point of the investigation but not the conclusive proof regarding the alleged mis-declaration resorted by the appellant and also implicating the Director of the appellant company.

22. We thus find that the demand pertaining to past period is not sustainable. We also find that the demand for the past clearance is proposed to be made against finally assessed bills of entry, which is not permissible without the same being reviewed as held by Hon”ble Supreme Court in case of Flock India & Priya Blue overseas. The invocation of Section 28 of Customs Act is not attracted as mis-declaration is not proved in these cases.

23. As far as demand pertaining to live consignment is concerned, the same has been accepted, we without going into further details uphold the same but without any penalty as there is no deliberate mis-declaration as part of the appellant. Reliance is placed on decision of System and Components Pvt. Ltd. [2004(165) ELT 136(SC)].
24. We also do not find any deliberate attempt of mis-declaration on part of Director of the Company and set aside the penalty imposed on them.

25. We accordingly set aside the impugned order but for the demand relating to live consignment (B/E No. 2293952 Dated 31.05.2012) for differential value on account of change in classification of products. Interest and penalty imposed on the two appellants are also set aside.

C.L. MAHAR:

The appellant M/s B.L. Goyal in the First Customs Appeal No. 52274 of 2019 is engaged in import of natural gums of various kinds classifiable under the Customs Heading No. 1301. The appellant imported consignments of natural gum against 23 bills of entries during the period spanning between October 2011 to September 2014. The consignments imported by the appellant were described under bills of entry as natural gum sifting/natural gum reject/natural gum No. 3 reject. In the bills of entry the appellant claimed benefit of Notification No. 96/2008 – Customs dated 13 August 2008 under which basic customs duty is exempted treating it as “Gum Arabic” falling under Customs Tariff Chapter Heading No. 13012000. The appellant also sought exemption from Counter Veiling Duty (CVD), taking shelter of CBEC Circular dated 28 June 2007. At the time of import of the consignments, a representative sample was drawn and sent for chemical examination to the Central Revenue Chemical Laboratory, Vizag for determination of the true nature and description of the import consignment. The chemical examiner in the examination reports dated 24 April 2016 and 28 October 2016 reported that “each of the samples under reference (U/R) does not meet the requirements for Gum Arabic as per standard specification of IS 6795-2007”.

2. Thus, on the basis of the above-mentioned chemical examination reports, two show cause notices came to be issued. The details are given below :-

3. The show cause notices takes note of the fact that the goods imported under 23 bills of entry were described Natural Gum – Others and were classified under Customs Chapter Tariff Heading 13012000. The Department’s contention is that the goods deserve to be classified under Heading 13019019 under the category of „Natural Gum – Others“ and accordingly, the classification of goods claimed as Gum Arabic under Customs Tariff Heading 13012000 was wrong and the appellant was not entitled to the benefit of Notification dated 13 August 2008 or exemption of CVD and SAD as per CBEC Circular dated 28 June 2007.

4. The Appellant M/s B.L. Goyal also filed a Miscellaneous Application for consideration of certain additional import documents. The Miscellaneous Application was allowed and the documents submitted by the appellant have been taken on record.

5. The above-mentioned two show cause notices were adjudicated vide a common order dated 17 October 2018. The learned Adjudicating Authority accepted the contention of the importer - appellant that goods were classifiable under Customs Tariff Heading 13012000 and they were entitled for exemption Notification No. 96/2008 dated 13 August 2008. The impugned order-in-original dated 17 October 2018 was reviewed by the Department as per the provision of sub-Section (2) of Section 129D of the Customs Act, 1962 and an appeal was preferred by the Department against the above order-in-original before the Commissioner (Appeals). The learned Commissioner (Appeals) vide order dated 31 May 2019 allowed the appeal of the Department and the order is reproduced :-

6. The appellants have filed the Appeals against the impugned order-in-appeal dated 31 May 2019. The main contention of the learned Counsel appearing on behalf of importer - appellant is that the import consignments reported were “Gum Arabic” and the Department is wrong in classifying the goods under Chapter Sub-Heading 13019019 on the basis of the examination report submitted by the chemical examiner because the product imported is in natural raw form and no manufacturing process takes place. It is vegetable sap and extracts and its classified plant exudates natural gum and the same satisfies the plant quarantine order 2003. The plant quarantine department had provided no objection in classification of the product under Chapter Tariff Heading 13012000 and they have given no objection certificate for clearance of the import consignment.

7. The Appellant has further stated that the examination report of the chemical examiner of the Central Revenue Chemical Laboratory only states that as per IS 6795-2007, the imported consignments do not comply with food grades – “Gum Arabic”. They have also stated that they have not imported food grade “Gum Arabic”, but this does not disqualify them from availing the benefit of Exemption Notification dated 13 August 2008 since for availing the exemption under the said notification, the consignment need only to be of “Gum Arabic” nature and not necessarily fit for human consumption.

8. It has further been contended that the Commissioner (Appeals) failed to appreciate that during the course of cross-examination, the learned chemical examiner was asked whether the Gum Arabic rejects and Arabic Gum had any defined chemical parameters or any chemical definition in the relevant literature. The examiner replied that though Gum Arabic is not chemically defined but per the definition given under Indian Standards IS 6795-2007, Gum Arabic has been defined as: “the Arabic (Acacia) Gum shall be a dried gummy exudation obtained from the stems and branches of Acacia Senegal (L) Wild, Acacia Syl (L) Wild or of related species of Acacia (Fam Laguminosae). Acacia Gum consists chiefly of a high molecular weight polysaccharides and their calcium, potassium and magnesium salts which hydrolysis yield arabinase, galactase, rhymase and glycuronic acid. Item of commerce may contain extraneous matter like pieces of bark which shall be removed before use in foods.”

9. From the above, an attempt has been made by the learned Counsel to establish that Standards IS 6795-2007 are not applicable in the instant case as the imported goods were Natural Gum Arabic which required various technical and chemical processes for making the same fit for human consumption and to qualify for being classified as food grade under IS 6795-2007 standards.

10. It has further been submitted that the Commissioner (Appeals) failed to appreciate that the goods were of Natural Gum category and the Adjudicating Authority had made clear observations in the Order-in-Original that “During the proceedings of cross-examination dated 24/05/2018, Dr. Mistry, Chemical Examiner, in reply to question No. 5, 8 & 24 has categorically stated that all the samples tested by him were “NATURAL GUM”. He had also stated that the samples were not of food grade; the same were not adulterated and not chemically processed. As the samples were not of food grade; the same were not adulterant and not chemically processed. As the samples drawn from the consignments imported under the 23 Bills of Entry, in question, were not of the food grade, as stated by Dr. M. Mistry, Chemical Examiner, it is found that the same were not subject to test under IS 6795-2007”

11. It was also submitted that the Commissioner (Appeals) has based the order entirely on the chemical report, but, it is clear from the report that the goods were Natural Gum. Hence, the report is of no significance in the absence of any classification about the characteristic and properties of Gum Arabic. However, from the cross examination it is clear that the Chemical Examiner accepted that Gum Arabic reject is not defined anywhere. The Indian Institute, Natural Resins and Gums, Namkum Ranchi was requested to send their report on comprehensive chemical analysis of the goods to arrive at a conclusion whether the same were “GUM ARABIC” or “OTHER NATURAL GUM”. In response, Indian Institute, Natural Resins and Gums, Namkum Ranchi vide their letter dated 10/09/2018 informed that they were unable to ascertain that
12. The learned Counsel, therefore, submitted that it is wrong to conclude that subject goods were not Gum Arabic.

13. The learned Counsel appearing on behalf of the appellant Nos. 2 and 3, namely Anil Kumar Tiwari, Director and M/s Bharti Freight Forwarders Pvt. Ltd., which is a CHA firm, contended that the Commissioner (Appeals) has not gone into the details of the facts and without appreciation has imposed penalty on the clearing agent and its Director without establishing that the appellants were having knowledge or reason to believe about the mis-classification and wrong availment of the exemption notification.

14. It is further been submitted that in the instant case they have been provided with import consignment documentation as invoice, packing list, Bill of landing by the importer and all the import documents were prepared on the basis of such documents. The appellants have not changed or added any false description and/or classification in the matter and they have gone by the description given in the import shipment documents while preparing the Bill of entry and at the time of presentation of same for assessment. It has further been added that the consignment were provisionally assessed, subject to the confirmation of the description and classification from the chemical test of the import consignment. This itself proves that the appellants, namely M/s Bharti Freight Forwarders Pvt. Ltd. – clearing agent and its Director, had no role in wrong classification or wrong availment of exemption notification. In the entire proceedings it has also nowhere been reflected that the appellants did any omission or commission which resulted in evasion of duty conscientiously and therefore the Commissioner (Appeals) has grossly erred in imposing penalty on them under Section 112 (b) (v) of the Customs Act, 1962.

15. We have also heard learned Departmental Representative who has reiterated the findings given in the order-in-appeal.

16. After hearing both the sides and after perusal of the appeal papers in detail, we find that the importer - appellant has filed bills of entry describing the import consignment as Natural Gum/ Natural Gum No. 3/Natural Gum Sifting. The import consignments were classified under CTH 13012000 (which is for “Gum Arabic”) and claimed exemption from payment of customs duty by availing benefit of Notification No. 96/2008 – Customs dated 13 August 2008. The import consignments were allowed clearance after provisional assessment of duty under Section 17 of Customs Act subject to confirmation of description of goods under CTH 13012000 by a test report.

17. Before proceeding further in the matter, it will be relevant to have a look at the scheme of the classification under Chapter 13 as provided under the Customs Tariff Act, 1975. The relevant entries of Chapter 13 are reproduced here below:-

18. A perusal at the above scheme of classification makes it clear that only “Gum Arabic” is classifiable under Chapter sub-heading No. 13012000 and for other natural gums the classification are provided under the Chapter CTH 130190 and its sub-headings. The sub-classification under CTH 13019011 to 13019018 are for specific categories of natural gums such as Asian gum; Asafoetida (Hing), Karaya gum etc. and the other natural gums. Since, natural gum without any specific description is classifiable under 13019019, for which customs duty exemption is not available and accordingly the Department formed a view that since the consignment imported are not of the Gum Arabic but that other natural gums it classified the import consignment under CTH 13019019 and denied the benefit of exemption Notification No. 96/2008 – Customs dated 13 August 2008.

19. With regard to appellant No. (i) i.e. importer - appellant, the only issue before us for decision is whether the imported consignment are Gum Arabic or other Natural Gum. In this regard some of the import documents filed by the appellant with the relevant bills of entry have been perused. We find that the bills of entry alongwith bill of landing and relevant invoice describe the goods as natural gum only. For example, the bill of entry No. 21 dated 15 October 2015 describes the import consignment as Natural Gum/ Natural Gum No. 3 and goods have been classified under the Customs Tariff Heading 13012000 claiming the benefit of Notification No. 96/2008 – Customs dated 13 August 2008. We find that the corresponding bill of landing also describes the goods as Natural Gum. Some of the invoices which are available in the file also give the description of the goods as the Natural Gum No. 3. It can be seen that though all the import documents and the bills of entry described the goods as Natural Gum, except one or two bills of entry, where Gum Arabic has also been mentioned, but, the fact remains that none of the accompanying import documents describe the subject import consignment as „Gum Arabic“ and, therefore, in a way the classification of Natural Gum under CTH 13012000 (which is specific to Gum Arabic) becomes arbitrary.

20. We find that the Department did not reject the claim of the appellant for classifying the subject consignment under the CTH 13012000 straight away at the time of filing of the bills of entry, though there is no document which may indicate that import consignments are Gum Arabic. The goods were assessed provisionally as per the importers claim and sent for chemical examination for determining the true nature of the import goods. The test report given by the chemical examiner is a detailed report and it is reproduced below:

“As per the query raised by you, the detailed study done on the test results of the samples U/R and verified standard technical literature available in the laboratory. The following findings are submitted for your kind perusal.

- Natural Gums are polysaccharides of natural origin, capable of causing a large increase in a solution’s viscosity, even at small concentrations. In the food industry they are used as thickening agents, gelling agents, emulsifying agents, and stabilizers. In other industries, they are also used as adhesives, binding agents, crystal inhibitors, clarifying agents, encapsulating agents, flocculating agents, swelling agents, foam stabilizers, etc. Most often these gums are found in the woody elements of plants or in seed coatings.

- Natural gums can be classified according to their origin. They can also be classified as uncharged or ionic polymers (polyelectrolytes).

- Gum Combretum is Combretum nigrum occurring throughout tropical West Africa, particularly in northern Nigeria, Mali and Niger, is the major source of combretum gum. Gum combretum is selling it under false names like „gum Niger“ or „Dark Nigerian gum arabic No. 2“ or actually mixing it with gum Arabic as a adulterant.

- Gum Arabic is having Bureau of Indian Standards IS 6795- 2007 and International specification published by Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations (FAO, 1990), defines gum Arabic as the “dried exudation obtained from the stems and branches of Acacia Senegal (L) Willdenow or closely related species”.

- Gum Arabic is a Natural Gum but All Natural gums are not Gum Arabic

- Combretum gum is very different from Gum Arabic. Vigilance is necessary to detect such misrepresentations because Combretum gums differ greatly from gum Arabic. (Acacia Senegal (L) Willd). Moreover, because there is no toxicological evidence for their safety in use, Combretum gums are not included in any of the international lists of permitted food additives.

21. It can be seen from the above report that it specifically mentions that Gum Arabic is Natural Gum but all Natural Gums are not Gum Arabic. We take note of the fact that the supplier of the import consignment has only described the import consignment as Natural Gum. We are of opinion that if the importer – appellant had entered into purchase agreement with the foreign supplier for purchase of „Gum Arabic“, then in that case the purchase invoice would be for „Gum Arabic“ and the supplier cannot give a general description to the import consignment while finalizing purchase of specific goods. It is commonsense and prudent trade practice that any purchase agreement has to be for a specific variety/category, quality of goods because such details only determine the nature and value of the import goods. It is an established trade practice that the goods negotiated need to be specifically described in the accompanying import documents such as letter of credit, invoice, Bill of lading and packing list. This is a necessary and legal requirement in case of any dispute that may arise between parties in the course of business. The Natural Gums have several varieties, such as Asafoetida, Benjamin ras, Karaya gum as well as Gum Arabic. It is a common knowledge that market price of all these Natural Gum differ widely and, therefore, the import consignments have to be invoiced as per their actual nomenclature and not by a general name like “Natural Gum”. Thus, we understand that by giving a general description to the import consignments, the importer had not made a true description of the import consignments. We, therefore, find that the appellant is not justified in claiming that consignment pertained to „Gum Arabic“ and accordingly claiming classification under CTH 13012000. The Appellant has also not adduced any evidence to claim that consignment is Gum Arabic. The import documents and the chemical examination report of the consignments establish that consignments were „other Natural Gum“. As the exemption Notification No. 96/2008 – Customs dated 13 August 2008 exempts only Gum Arabic, classifiable under CTH 13012000 from the levy of the customs duty and it is established that the consignments are not Gum Arabic but other Natural Gum, it has to be held that the imported consignment were classifiable under Chapter sub-heading 13019019 and are not entitled for exemption notification benefit under Notification No. 96/2008 – Customs dated 13August 2008. Thus, we find no infirmity in the order of the Commissioner (Appeals) and, accordingly, we uphold the findings made in this regard.

22. Coming to the appeals filed by the Custom House Agentfirm and Anil Kumar Tiwari, the only allegation which has been levelled against the said appellants is that they presented import documents to the custom house which contained incorrect details and declarations regarding the description and classification under CTH 13012000 and thereby they colluded with the appellant – importer in an attempt to evade the customs duty by mis-declaration of the description and chapter heading of the import consignments.

23. We find from a perusal of the records that the custom house agent firm namely M/s Bharti Freight Forwarders Pvt. Ltd. and its Director Anil Kumar Tiwari only described the goods in the bills of entry as provided in the bills of landing and the invoices. It is also a matter of record that in the show cause notice no evidence has been brought forward to indicate that the clearing agent and its Director had conscientiously done anything to evade the customs duty. They have described the goods as given in the bill of landing and in the invoices as is the practice, though the classification was wrongly done under chapter sub-heading 13012000. No malafide can be attached to such a mistake, when the goods were provisionally assessed and samples were drawn from the import consignments to determine the true nature and identity of the import consignments. Thus, we find no substance that the clearing agent did any omission and commission consciously which led to evasion of customs duty.

24. Penalty on the CHA firm and its Director has been imposed Section 112 (b) which reads as follows :-

“Section 112 (b) who acquires possession of or is in any way concerned in carrying, removing, depositing, harbouring, keeping, concealing, selling or purchasing, or in any other manner dealing with any goods which he knows or has reason to believe are liable to confiscation under section 111, shall be liable, -

(i) in the case of goods in respect of which any prohibition is in force under this Act or any other law for the time being in force, to a penalty [not exceeding the value of the goods or five thousand rupees], whichever is the greater;

(ii) in the case of dutiable goods, other than prohibited goods, subject to the provisions of section 114A, to a penalty not exceeding ten per cent. of the duty sought to be evaded or five thousand rupees, whichever is higher:

Provided that where such duty as determined under sub-section (8) of section 28 and the interest payable thereon under section 28AA is paid within thirty days from the date of communication of the order of the proper officer determining such duty, the amount of penalty liable to be paid by such person under this section shall be twenty-five per cent. of the penalty so determined;

(iii) in the case of goods in respect of which the value stated in the entry made under this Act or in the case of baggage, in the declaration made under section 77 (in either case hereafter in this section referred to as the declared value) is higher than the value thereof, to a penalty [not exceeding the difference between the declared value and the value thereof or five thousand rupees], whichever is the greater;

(iv) in the case of goods falling both under clauses (i) and (iii), to a penalty [not exceeding the value of the goods or the difference between the declared value and the value thereof or five thousand rupees], whichever is the highest;

(v) in the case of goods falling both under clauses (ii) and (iii), to a penalty [not exceeding the duty sought to be evaded on such goods or the difference between the declared value and the value thereof or five thousand rupees], whichever is the highest.”

25. From the entire proceedings, we find that none of the requirements provided under Section 112 (b) have been established against the clearing agent. Since the importer - appellant himself has sought benefit of the exemption notification by classifying the goods under chapter sub-heading CTH13012000, which was allowed by provisionally assessing the Bills of entry subject to chemical test by the Department itself, the Department is not justified in alleging any malafide on the part of the CHA firm and its Director. Thus, there is no ground to levy any penalty on the appellant CHA firm – M/s Bharti Freight Forwarders Pvt. Ltd. and its Director – Anil Kumar Tiwari. The penalty which has been imposed by the impugned order-in-appeal is, accordingly, set aside.

26. As a result, there is no merit in the appeal filed by M/s B.L. Goyal and it deserves to be dismissed. However, the Appeals filed by M/s Bharti Freight Forwarders Pvt. Ltd. and its Director Anil Kumar Tiwari, deserve to be allowed.

27. Accordingly, Appeal No. Customs/52274 of 2019 filed by M/s B.L. Goyal is dismissed. Appeal No. Customs/52779 of 2019 filed by Anil Kumar Tiwari and Appeal No. Customs/50065 of 2020 filed by M/s Bharti Freight Forwarders Pvt. Ltd. are allowed and the penalty imposed upon them are set aside.

M/s. A.R. Fabrics

Respondent

APPEARANCE:

Shri Rakesh Kumar, Authorised Representative for the appellant/Department.
Shri Prem Ranjan, Advocate for the respondent.

CORAM:

HON'BLE MR. ANIL CHOUDHARY, MEMBER (JUDICIAL) HON'BLE MR. C.L. MAHAR, MEMBER (TECHNICAL)

ANIL CHOUDHARY:

The respondent filed 19 bills of entries (under Self-Assessment) for clearance of Polyester Knitted Fabrics and other similar goods falling under CTH 60064200 and 54076190 of CTH. Out of 19 bills of entries, 13 bills of entries (all filed during or about April, 2014) were finally assessed at higher value than the declared value. Out of 13 bills of entries, the respondent had made endorsement of acceptance in hand for enhanced values of the 7 bills of entries, being bills of entries having written endorsement of acceptance of enhanced values. Further, the Assessing Authority did not allow the benefit of Notification No.30/2004-CE dated 9.7.2014, which provides exemption from payment of CVD, subject to condition.

2. Being aggrieved, the respondent-importer preferred appeal before the Commissioner (Appeals).

3. The Commissioner (Appeals) observed that in the present case, the issues for discussion and determination were as follows:-

(i) Whether the assessing authority was right in rejecting the declared values and re-assessment of the impugned bills of entries at enhanced values and;

(ii) Whether the assessing authority was right, while rejecting the benefit of Notification No.30/2004-Central Excise dated 09.07.2004 to the appellant, which provides exemption from payment of CVD.

4. The Commissioner (Appeals) had examined the fact that the importer had accepted the value enhanced in respect of 9 bills of entry; that as submitted by the importer, the acceptance of enhanced values was to save demurrages, and that this does not preclude them from challenging the enhancement by way of appeal. The Commissioner (Appeals) found considerable force in this contention of the appellant, observing that it is settled legal proposition that there is no estoppel in taxation matters while relying on the judgement of the Hon’ble Supreme Court in the case of Dunlop India Limited Vs. UOI reported in 1983 (13) ELT 1566 (SC), wherein it was laid down that even assuming that there is an acceptance it does not preclude the assessee from challenging by way of appeal, as there cannot be an estoppel against law. Similar view was held in [2015 (329) ELT 307 (T)] and 2016 (343) ELT 963 (T).

5. The Commissioner (Appeals) allowed the appeal of the respondent by setting aside the re-assessment of the goods covered under the impugned bills of entries and restored the assessment at the declared values.

6. Being aggrieved, the Revenue has filed the present appeal before this Tribunal on the ground, among others, that the respondent had given their consent with respect to enhancement of the assessable value, in respect of the several bills of entries and the Commissioner (Appeals) has erred in holding that still the respondent-importer can challenge the enhancement in appeal. It is provided in Section 17(5) of the Customs Act, 1962 that “importer may accept the assessment made by the Customs Officer by communicating his consent in writing, otherwise the Customs Officer will be obliged to pass a speaking order”.

7. Further, reliance is placed on the ruling of the Apex Court in the case of CCE, Madras Vs. Systems & Components Pvt. Ltd. – 2004 (165) ELT 136 (SC), wherein it has been held that – “it is the basic and settled law that what is admitted need not be proved”. Reliance is also placed on the Final Order No.55379 of 2017 dated 20.07.2017 of this Tribunal in M/s. Jai Shiv Trading Company Vs. CCE, New Delhi, whereby the Tribunal upheld the redetermination of value, as the same was accepted by the assessee. As the assessee accepted the re-determination of the value, he cannot subsequently challenge the same. Reliance is also placed on the ruling of the Coordinate Bench of this Tribunal in M/s. Advanced Scan Support Technologies Vs. CC, Jodhpur - 2015 (326) ELT 185 (Tribunal-Delhi), wherein it was held that,” by consenting to enhancement of value and thereby voluntarily forgoing the need for a show cause notice, the importer made it unnecessary for Revenue to establish the valuation any further, as the consented value in effect becomes transaction value requiring no further investigation or justification to establish the consented value (enhanced suffers from fatal infirmity).

8. Reliance is also placed on the ruling of this Tribunal in Vikas Spinners Vs. CC, Lucknow - 2001 (128) ELT 143 (Tribunal-Delhi), wherein it has been held that --

"Having once accepted the loaded value of the goods and duties paid accordingly thereon without any protest or objection, importer is legally estopped from taking somersault and to deny the correctness of the same. There is nothing on record to suggest that the loaded value was accepted by them only for the purpose of clearance of the goods and that they reserved their right to challenge the same subsequently. They settled their duty liability once for all and paid the duty amount on the loaded value of the goods.”

9. Ld. Authorised Representative further urges that the Ld. Commissioner (Appeals) has erred in allowing the appeal of the respondent-importer by setting aside the re-assessment of the impugned goods and restoring the assessment at declared value in respect of the aforementioned 7 bills of entries.

10. Opposing the appeal, Ld. Advocate, Shri Prem Ranjan for the respondent-importer submits that the issue is no longer res integra under similar facts as per the decision of the Tribunal in the case of M/s. Rainbow Fashion being Final Order No.50658-50659 of 2019 dated 06.05.2019, whereby the issue was decided in favour of the importer.

11. Having considered the rival contentions, we find that judgements relied upon by the Revenue in this appeal, were not placed before the court below. Secondly, the court below has not appreciated the scope of Section 17(5) read with Section 17 (4) of the Customs Act. Importer cannot be allowed to play a cat & mouse game with the Revenue. Accordingly, we allow this appeal by way of remand to the Commissioner (Appeals) for re-appreciation of the facts in accordance with law and also considering the observations of this Tribunal. The Commissioner (Appeals) is expected to pass a denovo order in accordance with law, preferably within a period of 3 months from the date of receipt of the copy of this order. The respondent-assessee is also directed to appear before the Commissioner (Appeals) with a copy of this order and seek hearing. The stay application also stands disposed of.

Application praying for condonation of delay, heard.

2. It is submitted on behalf of the applicant that the order of Commissioner (Appeals) date 12th of June, 2019 was received by the appellant only on 21st June, 2019. It is thereafter that the employee of the applicant who was looking after the impugned matter has left the job. The resignation letter dated 9th July, 2019 is impressed upon in this respect. It is further submitted that in addition the family member of the applicant had passed away during the relevant period. The information in that respect as annexed herewith is also impressed upon. Delay is accordingly, prayed to be condoned. Same is heavily objected on part of the Department on the ground that none of the reason mentioned appears to be sufficient cause for condoning the impugned delay.

3. After hearing the parties and perusing the record, it is observed that the order as has been challenged vide the impugned appeal is acknowledged to have been received by the party within 10 days of the day it was announced. The officer, who is mentioned to have been responsible for the impugned matter, no doubt, had left appellant’s job on 9th July, 2019, but applicant is silent about the date of joining of the person, who succeeded him. Otherwise also after the day the person left there still was sufficient time with the appellant to make necessary arrangements and to avoid the impugned delay. Thus, we are of the opinion that there is absence of due diligence on part of the applicant.
4. The another ground taken about the death in a family is also opined to not to be the sufficient cause for explaining the impugned delay as the death was post expiry of the period of limitation. Admittedly the order was received on 21st June, 2019. The period of limitation to file the impugned appeal, therefore, stands expired on 20th September, 2019. Hence, the same ground is also not opined sufficient cause for the relief sought vide the impugned application. Delay cannot be condoned in the given circumstances.

5. Application, resultantly, stands dismissed. As a consequent thereto, the impugned appeal also stands dismissed.

Dated : 29/04/2019

RACHNA GUPTA :-

None for respondent despite service of notice.

2. The present appeal has been restored to its original number vide the miscellaneous order No. 50070-50071 of 2019 dated 24/01/2019. It is submitted on behalf of the department/appellant that the present case is the case of refund of 4% of Special Additional Duty of Customs (SAD) leviable under Section 3 (5) of Customs Tariff Act, 1975. The said refund claim was filed under Special Refund Mechanism as is provided under the exemption Notification No. 102/2007-Customs dated 14/09/2007 amended by Notification No. 93/2008-Customs dated 01/08/2008 for an amount of Rs. 7,36,824/-. The same was partly allowed vide the order-in-original dated 7 June 2017. An amount of Rs. 5,58,584/- was sanctioned, however, amount of Rs. 1,78,240/- was denied to be refunded being barred by time. An appeal thereof was filed being aggrieved of the said rejection. The same was allowed by Commissioner (Appeals) vide order-in-appeal No. 806 dated 18/04/2008. Thereafter there has been a review order No. 147 dated 2 May 2018 in furtherance wherein the impugned appeal has been preferred.
3. We have heard learned Departmental Representative for the department who has relied upon the final order No. 53157 of 2018 dated 25/10/2018 in an appeal titled as Commissioner of Customs, New Delhi, ICD Tughlakabad (Import) versus J.G. Impex Pvt. Ltd. to impress upon that if the refund has not been filed within one year of SAD payment, the same cannot be sanctioned. Learned Departmental Representative has impressed upon the correctness of the order of original Adjudicating Authority.

4. There is none for the respondent, however, the submissions of respondent are very much the part of the record. After going through and perusing those submissions and after going through the final order, as relied upon by the department and also keeping in view the decision of Hon’ble Apex court in the case of Balaji Steel Re-Rolling Mills versus Commissioner of Central Excise & Customs reported in 2014 (310) E.L.T. 209 (S.C.), we are of the opinion, as follows:-

(5) If the Central Government is satisfied that it is necessary in the public interest to levy on any imported article [whether such article duty is leviable under sub-section (1) or, as the case may be, sub-section (3) or not] such additional duty as would counter-balance the sales tax, value added tax, local tax or any other charges for the time being leviable on a like article on its sale, purchase or transportation in India, it may, by notification in the Official Gazette, direct that such imported article shall, in addition, be liable to an additional duty at a rate not exceeding four per cent of the value of the imported article as specified in that notification.

Explanation – In this sub-section, the expression “sales tax, value added tax, local tax or any other charges for the time being leviable on a like article on its sale, purchase or transportation in India” means the sales tax, value added tax, local tax or other charges for the time being in force, which would be leviable on a like article if sold, purchased or transported in India or, if a like article is not so sold, purchased or transported, which would be leviable on the class or description of articles to which the imported article belongs and where such taxes, or, as the case may be, such charges are leviable at different rates the highest such tax or, as the case may be, such charge.”

It is brought to our notice that the said SAD exemption has been granted vide Notification No. 102/2007 dated 14.09.2007 as issued in accordance of Section 25(1) of the Customs Act which provides power to the Central Government to grant exemption from duty by way of Notification. This Notification exempts the goods falling within the first schedule to the Customs Tariff Act, 1975 when imported into India for subsequent sale, from the whole of the additional duty of Customs leviable thereupon in accordance of the above mentioned Section 3(5) of Customs Tariff Act. However, subject to such conditions as mentioned in the Notification itself in para 2 thereof, the first condition reads as follows:

(a) The importer of the said goods shall pay all duties including the additional duty of Customs leviable thereon, as applicable at the time of importation of goods.

The other relevant condition is:

(c) The importer shall file a claim for refund of said additional duty of Customs paid on the imported goods with the jurisdictional Customs officer.

This Notification stands amended vide Notification No. 93/2008 dated 01.08.2008 vide which a time period of one year from the date of payment for filing of refund claims by an importer under the aforesaid Notification was introduced. Commissioner (Appeals) has held that the amendment since introduced for the first time by a Notification but without a statutory amendment, the same cannot prevail.

6. In view of the above legal provisions, we are of the opinion that the moot question to be adjudicated in the present case is as to whether there is any time limit prescribed by law for filing the refund claim of additional duty of Customs as stands exempted vide the Notification No. 102/2007.

No doubt, the said Notification is silent about any time period for filing the said claim. But the Notification exempts the goods in first schedule of Customs Tariff Act from being leviable to the additional duty of Customs. However, the Notification itself mandates the deposit of the said additional duty at the time of importation of the goods and thereafter to get the refund. From this perusal, one thing becomes abundantly clear that the importer has the knowledge of his entitlement to file the refund of additional duty of Customs at the time of the payment of said duty itself i.e. at the time, the product being in first schedule (under the exempted category) is imported. Resultantly, we are of the opinion that for claiming the refund of additional duty nothing else has to happen or be done by the assessee after the payment of said additional duty of Customs. To our opinion, this particular fact distinguishes the present case from the case of M/s Sony India Pvt. Ltd. (supra).

7. Also, the amending Notification No. 93/2008 is arising out of the statute, i.e. Section 25(2A) of the Customs Act, 1962 hence, the findings of the Commissioner (Appeals) that the amendment introducing one year from the date of payment of additional duty as a time to claim the refund thereof to be without statutory amendment, is not sustainable rather is opined to be legally erroneous. Otherwise also, the said amendment came into force 01.08.2008 that too in accordance of another statutory provision, i.e. Section 25(4) of the Customs Act. The refund in question was filed on 27.03.2017, i.e. much beyond the amended Notification and also the Customs Act itself contains a provision about claim of refund of duty in Section 27 thereof which reads as follows:-

(i) Any person claiming refund of any duty or interest, paid by him or borne by him may make an application in such form and manner as may be prescribed for such refund to the Assistant Commissioner of Customs or Deputy Commissioner of Customs before the expiry of one year from the date of payment of such duty or interest.

8. The words used in the provision makes it clear that statute has not distinguished the nature of duty or interest, the refund whereof is claimed. Hence, even if we do not look into the amended Notification No. 93/2008, the period of limitation as applicable for filing the refund claim under Notification 102/2008 will otherwise be a period of one year in accordance of the aforesaid Section 27 of Customs Act. Thus, we cannot rule out that the Notification No. 93/2008 came into existence to align the statutory provision with the Notification which was silent as far as the period of limitation for the purpose as mentioned therein is concerned. Otherwise also, an examination of relevant provision it appears that the provisions of limitation are excluded, it would nonetheless be still open to the court to examine whether and to what extent the nature of those provisions or the nature of the subject matter and scheme of the special law exclude their operation. This Tribunal in the case of Uttam Sucrotech International Pvt. Ltd. Vs. Union of India 2011 (264) E.L.T. 502 (Delhi) has held that the applicability of the provisions of limitation Act therefore is to be judged not from the terms of limitation Act but by the provisions of the concerned act. The Tribunal has gone to the extent of appreciating that it is the duty of the court to respect the legislative intent and by giving liberal interpretation, limitation cannot be extended by invoking the provisions even of Section 5 of the Limitation Act. The Hon’ble Apex Court in the case Naseeruddin Vs. Sitaram Aggarwal A.I.R. 2003 (S.C.) 1543 has held that in the absence of statutory provisions, no inherent powers of the court exists to condone the delay. It was also held that a statutory right has to be exercised in the mode, manner and limitation specified in the special statute itself. The Hon’ble Apex Court in an earlier decision in the case of Titaghur Papermills Company Ltd. Vs. State of Orissa SCC PP 440-41 para 11 has held:

“11. ...... it is now well recognised that where a right or liability is created by a statute which gives a special remedy for enforcing it, the remedy provided by that statute only must be availed of. This rule was stated with great clarity by Willes, J. in Wolverhampton New Waterworks Co. Vs. Hawkesford in the following passage: (ER p. 495)

 ...... There are three classes of cases in which a liability may be established founded upon a statute. .... But there is a third class viz. where a liability not existing at common law is created by a statute which at the same time gives a special and particular remedy for enforcing it. .... The remedy provided by the statute must be followed, and it is not competent to the party to pursue the course applicable to cases of the second class. The form given by the statute must be adopted and adhered to.”

In still another case titled as Munshiram Vs. Municipal Committee Chheharta SSC page 88 para 23, the Hon’ble Apex Court held that when a Revenue statute provides for a person aggrieved by an assessment thereunder, a particular remedy to be sought in a particular forum, in a particular way, it must be soughtin that forum and in that manner and all other forums and modes of seeking said remedy are excluded. Except in the case where the statutory authority has not acted in accordance with the provisions of the enactment in question or in defiance of the fundamental principles of judicial procedure or has resorted to invoke the provisions which are repealed. Apparently and admittedly none is the fact of the present Appeal. It is also not the case that Notification 93/2008 has been repealed. In absence thereof also, as already discussed above, Section 27 of Customs Act prescribes a period during which refund of any type can be claimed. The Hon’ble Apex Court in a recent decision Commissioner of Customs (Import Mumbai) Vs. M/s Dilip Kumar & Co. 2018 TIOL 302 (S.C.)-Cus-CB has held that an exemption Notification has to be strictly construed, i.e. if the person claiming exemption does not fall strictly within the letter of Notification, he cannot claim the exemption. The Hon’ble Apex Court while relying upon its previous decision in the case District Mining Officer Vs. Tata Iron & Steel Company 2001 (7) SCC 358 had noticed as follows:-

“... A statute is an edict of the Legislature and in construing a statute, it is necessary, to seek the intention of its maker. A statute has to be construed according to the intent of them that make it and the duty of the Court is to act upon the true intention of the Legislature. If a statutory provision is open to more than one interpretation the Court has to choose that interpretation which represents the true intention of the Legislature. This task very often raises the difficulties because of various reasons, inasmuch as the words used may not be scientific symbols having any precise or definite meaning and the language may be an imperfect medium to convey one’s thought or that the assembly of Legislatures consisting of persons of various shades of opinion purport to convey a meaning which may be obscure. It is impossible even for the most imaginative Legislature to forestall exhaustively situations and circumstances

Nonetheless, the function of the Courts is only to expound and not to legislate. Legislation in a modern State is actuated with some policy to curb some public evil or to effectuate some public benefit. The legislation is primarily directed to the problems before the Legislature based on information derived from past and present experience. It may also be designed by use of general words to cover similar problems arising in future. But, from the very nature of things, it is impossible to anticipate fully the varied situations arising in future in which the application of the legislation in hand may be called for, and, words chosen to communicate such indefinite referents are bound to be in many cases lacking in clarity and precision and thus giving rise to controversial questions of construction. The process of construction combines both literal and purposive approaches. In other words the legislative intention i.e., the true or legal meaning of an enactment is derived by considering the meaning of the words used in the enactment in the light of any discernible purpose or object which comprehends the mischief and its remedy to which the enactment is directed...” It was also held that the well settled principle is that when the words in a statute are clear, plain and unambiguous and only one meaning can be inferred, the Courts are bound to give effect to the said meaning irrespective of consequences. If the words in the statute are plain and unambiguous, it becomes necessary to expound those words in their natural and ordinary sense. The words used declare the intention of the Legislature. In Kanai Lal Sur v. Paramnidhi Sadhukhan, AIR 1957 SC 907, it was held that if the words used are capable of one construction only then it would not be open to the Courts to adopt any other hypothetical construction on the ground that such construction is more consistent with the alleged object and policy of the Act.

In view of entire above discussion, we are of the opinion that the refund claim of additional duty due to the exemption flowing out of Notification No. 102/2007 has to be filed within one year in view of the subsequent Notification No. 93/2008-Cus which still holds good and also in view of Section 27 of the Customs Act, 1962. We therefore hold that the Commissioner (Appeals) has committed an error while giving an expanded interpretation qua limitation to favour assessee. We therefore set aside the said Order and allow the present Appeal rejecting the impugned refund claimed for the amount of Rs. 1,78,240/- being barred by time limit of one year as prescribed for the purpose”.

5. The appeal stands allowed.

Per: Rachna Gupta:

Arguments upon application seeking condonation of delay of 110 days heard. Learned Counsel for the appellant/applicant has impressed upon para 3 of the application while submitting a sufficient cause for the aforesaid delay. The said para reads as follows :-

"that since the appellant was put to extra financial burden by the exporter due to their misfeasance, the appellant was pursuing with the exporter to get the appellant compensated in value. The supplier had filed Writ Petition No. 2826/2019 against the said order-in-original No. SKS/COMMR/ACE/04/2019 dated 10/05/2019 before Hon'ble Delhi High Court for re export/re sale of the goods which is still pending and finally the exporter has reached to amicable settlement with the appellant and has agreed to withdraw the said Writ Petition on 16/09/2019, the next date of hearing. The above events has resulted in delay of 110 days in filing the present appeal".

2. The reason mentioned therein is impressed upon to be sufficient cause of the delay. The learned Counsel also explained the extent of financial burden as has rather been caused due to said delay. The same is accordingly prayed to be condoned. Learned Departmental Representative while rebutting the said submission stated that the reason quoted is not at all sufficient to explain the delay of as many as 110 days. It is brought to the notice that the writ-petition which has been taken shelter for the purpose was not even the petition of the appellant nor of any of the co-noticees. The request of condonation of delay based on the said writ-petition is prayed to be rejected. The application is accordingly rejected.

"Admittedly the order which has been challenged in the impugned appeal was announced on 30 January 2019. Admittedly the same was received by the appellant on 10 February 2019. In view of said admission it is apparent that the period to file the impugned appeal stands expired on 11 May 2019. Now coming to the reason quoted as sufficient cause for the delay of 110 days in filing the appeal, we observe that the only reason quoted is pendency of writ-petition No. 2826/2019 being filed before Hon’ble High Court of Delhi. Apparently and admittedly the said writ-petition was filed on 10 May 2019 that is just one day prior the date of expiry of period of limitation available to the present applicant to file the impugned appeal. The subsequent period taken by the writ-petition before the Hon’ble High Court therefore cannot a criteria for holding the said reason to be a sufficient cause. The application is miserably silent about any other reason for huge delay of 110 days.

4. Otherwise also, we observe that the writ-petition was filed by one Shri Stanley Fernandes. The said petitioner though was consignor but apparently he is not appellant nor as is apparently the co-noticee of the appellant in the impugned show cause notice No. 3007 dated 07 February 2018. Also there is no order been passed against him as is apparent from the impugned order dated 30 January 2019. For this reason also the pendency of said writ-petition does not seem to extend any benefit to the present applicant who is none but the importer and the proposed allegation of mis-declaration on his part that too to the extent of importing 43020 pieces of memory card serve 4 GB and 8 GB quantity under the garb of three battery UPS, is not available to him.

5. In the given circumstances and the confirmation of the proposal of confiscation and the imposition of penalty upon the appellant, we are not inclined to accept the reason quoted to be a sufficient cause. More so, for the reason that the order under challenge also given the importer an opportunity for paying redemption fine. The applicant is miserably silent about seeking the said option. Seen from any angle, the reason mentioned by the applicant is held to not to be the sufficient cause to explain the 110 days delay. Accordingly, the Condonation of Delay is declined. Application therefore stand dismissed. Consequent thereto the appeal also stands dismissed.

Per: Rachna Gupta:

None is present for the appellant. At this stage, learned Departmental Representative has mentioned that appellant seems no more interested in pursuing the impugned matter as the matter is adjourned for more than 5 numbers of times and as on date also there is the absence on the part of the appellant with the similar request of adjournment as was on the earlier occasion.

It is also brought to our notice that in fact appeal stands already dismissed vide final order No. 50372 of 2019 dated 5 March 2019 which was dictated in the open court itself. The said final order reveals that after dictating & pronouncing the order in court another decision bearing final order No. 53242 of 2018 in appeal No. C/51178 of 2018 dated 06/11/2018 where the Hon’ble Member (Technical) Shri Bijay Kumar with Hon’ble Member (Judicial) Shri Anil Choudhary had taken a divergent view. Shri Bijay Kumar, who is the Hon’ble Member (Technical) for the present final order as well, with an intent to do away contradiction, if any, in the orders of coordinate bench that the opportunity was given to the parties to submit as to whether the two decisions are so contradictory that a reference need to be made to the Larger Bench.

2. In view of this submission, the record of the appeal is perused. The submissions of learned Departmental Representative are observed as correct. It is further observed that the several effective opportunities have been given to the appellant to submit as to whether there is any apparent contradiction between the decision as was pronounced in this case and the other decision pronounced by the another coordinate bench. But it is observed that the appellant is not marking appearance. Every time a stereo typed written request mentioning “the Counsel of the appellant is out of station” is being repeatedly filed. This bench made an observation vide order dated 21/06/2019, 01/08/2019, 06/08/2019, 30/08/2019, 26/09/2019 and 15/10/2019. Today also a written request for adjournment has been received by this bench from the Counsel of the appellant with the request as follows :

“It is requested to kindly allow adjournment of the above matter which is listed for 08/01/2020 since I have to go out of station for an urgent piece of work. Therefore, I will be unable to appear before the Hon’ble Tribunal in the said matter”.

There is no difference when compared with the earlier requests of adjournment.

3. This perusal is sufficient for us to hold that the appellant is not interested in giving any explanation about contradiction, if any, in the decision of two coordinate benches nor seems aggrieved thereof despite the opportunity was given vide the final order dated 5 March 2019. Thus the absence of the appellant consecutively for almost five times since the impugned final order is sufficient to hold non-prosecution on the part of appellant. In addition, is sufficient to announce the finality of the decision as has already been taken in the aforesaid order in the following words :-

4. Apparently the said order was not only pronounced in open court but was dictated as a whole in the open court. The recording in para 12 of the said decision is inter-se the Members presiding the said bench it is post pronouncement but before signing the said final order and it was in the interest of justice that the opportunity to both the parties was given to put-forth their stand about the acceptance or denial of those observations in para 12 of the impugned final order. Once the appellant opted to not to appear for the purpose, the final order of 5 March 2019 is definitely a judgment as was pronounced in the open court which should have been operated since the day of its pronouncement. Resultantly, we are of the opinion that no further finding is required for the disposal of the appeal which already stands dismissed on the same ground as being discussed in the final order. We draw our support from the decision of Apex court in the case of Surender Singh and others versus The State of Uttar Pradesh [1954] 5 S.C.R. 330, wherein the question of judgment to be a valid one in a situation where it was signed post being delivered in the open court came for consideration it was held by Hon’ble Apex court as follows :-

“In our opinion, a judgment within the meaning of these sections is the final decision of the court intimated to the parties and to the world at large by formal “pronouncement” or “delivery” in the open court. It is a judicial act which must be performed in a judicial way. Small irregularities in the manner of pronouncement or the mode of delivery do not matter but the substance of the thing must be there: that can neither be blurred nor left to inference and conjecture nor can it be vague. All the rest-the manner in which it is to be recorded, the way in which it is to be authenticated the signing and the sealing, all the rules designed to secure certainty about its content and matter - can be cured; but not the hard core, namely the formal intimation of the decision and its content formerly declared in a judicial way in open court. The exact way in which this is done does not matter. In some courts the judgment is delivered orally or read out, in some only the operative portion is pronounced, in pronounced, in some the judgment is merely signed after giving notice to the parties and laying the draft on the table for a given number of days for inspection.”

“An important point, therefore, arises. It is evident that the decision which is so pronounced or intimated must be a declaration of the mind of the court as it is at the time of pronouncement. We lay no stress on the mode or manner of delivery, as that is not of the essence, except to say that it must be done in a judicial way in open court. But, however, it is done, it must be an expression of the mind of the court at the time of delivery. We say this because that is the first judicial act touching the judgment which the court performs after the hearing. Everything else until then is done out of court and is not intended to be the operative act which sets all the consequences which follow on the judgment in motion. Judges may, not often do, discuss the matter among themselves and reach a tentative conclusion. That is not their judgment. They may write and exchange drafts. Those are not the judgment either, however, heavily and often they may have been signed. The final operative act is that which is formally declared in open court with the intention of making it the operative decision of the court. That is what constitutes the judgment…..”

“As soon as the judgment is delivered that becomes the operative pronouncement of the court. The law then provides for the manner in which it is to be authenticated and made certain. The rules regarding this differ but they do not form the essence of the matter and if there is irregularity in carrying them out it is curable. Thus if a judgment happens not to be signed and is inadvertently acted on and executed, the proceedings consequent on it would be valid because the judgment, if it can be shewn to have been validly delivered, would stand good despite defects in the mode of its subsequent authentication”.
“After the judgment has been delivered provision is made for review. One provision is that it can be freely altered or amended or even changed completely without further formality, except notice to the parties and a rehearing on the point of change should that be necessary, provided it has not been signed. Another is that after signature a review properly so-called would lie in civil cases but none in criminal; but the review, when it lies, is only permitted on very narrow grounds……”

5. The Hon’ble Apex court subsequently in another case title as Vinod Kumar Singh versus Banaras Hindu University and others reported as 1988 SCC (1) 80 has led reliance upon the decision of Surender Singh and held as follows :-

“The provisions of Order 20, rule 3 of the Code of Civil Procedure give power to the Court to make alterations/additions in a judgment so long as the judgment has not been signed, but that power should be exercised judicially, sparingly and for adequate reasons. When a judgment is pronounced in the open court, the parties act upon it and conduct their affairs on the basis that it is in judgment of the court and that the signing of the judgment is a formality to follow. A judgment to be operative does not await the signing thereof by the court. If what is pronounced in the court is not acted upon, the litigants would be prejudiced; their confidence in the judicial process would be shaken. A judgment pronounced in the open court should be acted upon unless there be some exceptional feature, like, soon after the judgment is declared in the open court, a feature, not placed for consideration before the court earlier, is brought to its notice by either party to the cause, or the court discovers some new facts from the record or the court notices a feature, which should be taken into account, or a review is asked for, which is granted. In such a situation the court may take up the matter again for further consideration, and it has to give good reasons if the judgment delivered by it is not to be operative.

Since the writ petition of the appellant had first been allowed by pronouncement of the judgment in the open court, and there is nothing on record to justify why it was not acted upon, the appeal succeeds.

6. In view of the above discussion, we reaffirm the findings of the final order No. 50372 of 2019 dated 5 March 2019 which has already pronounced. The impugned appeal has been dismissed. The point of consideration as was subsequently raised accordingly stands disposed of against the appellant.

JUSTICE DILIP GUPTA

It is against the Order passed by the Commissioner of Customs (Appeals) on 28 September, 2018 that this Appeal was filed before the Tribunal on 28 December, 2018 but the appellant did not comply with the requirement of Section 129E of the Customs Act, 1962 (herein after referred to as the Act), as substituted by Finance Act (No. 2) of 2014 w.e.f. 6 August, 2014 regarding deposit of certain percentage of duty demanded or penalty imposed before filing the Appeal.

2. It is for this reason that a communication dated 04 January, 2019 was sent to the appellant to submit proof of deposit by 25 January, 2019 on which date the matter would be listed. In response to the afore said communication, the appellant sent a communication which was received in the Tribunal on 31 January, 2019 stating therein that it would be submitting an application for waiver of pre-deposit. The appellant did file an Application on 31 January, 2019 containing a prayer that the Tribunal may consider granting unconditional waiver of pre-deposit. Paragraphs 5 and 6 of the Application state the reasonas to why the Tribunal may grant an unconditional waiver of pre-deposit and the same are reproduced below:

5. Kind attention is drawn to the Board's Circular No. 984/08/2014-CX dated 16 September, 2014 which clarifies the amendment to the Appeal provisions in Customs, Central Excise and Service Tax made by the Finance Act, 2014. Para 1.2 clearly clarifies —The amended provisions apply to appeal filed after 6 August,2014, Sections 35F of the Central Excise Act, 1944 and Section 129E of the Customs Act, 1962 contain specific saving clause to state that all pending appeals/ stay application filed till the enactment of the Finance Bill shall be governed by the erst while provisions.

6. That Hon’ble High Court of Andhra Pradesh also in the case of M/s K. Rama Mohana Rao & Co. Vs. Union of India Ministry of Finance, New Delhi and 4 Others reported in 2015-TIOL-511-HC-AP-CX[2015 (321) E.L.T. 195 (A.P.)] while dealing with the very same amendment, has held that on the date of initiation of proceedings, the aforesaid amendment was not in force, during pendency of the matter, the amendment was made. Hence, on the date of initiation of proceedings, the right to appeal also accrues on that date. Therefore, the Appeal is continuation of the original proceeding. Therefore, in the present case also the date of issue was much prior to the date of amendment, therefore not liable to pre-deposit.

3. It is vehemently submitted by Shri D.K. Nayyar, learned consultant for the appellant that since the show cause notice was issued to the appellant by the Foreign Trade Development Officer on 6 February, 2013, much prior to 6 August, 2014 when Section 129E of the Act was amended, the unamended provision of Section 129E would be applicable and, therefore, the Tribunal can examine the issue of waiver of pre-deposit as was the position that existed prior to the amendment made in Section 129E of the Act. In support of his contention, learned consultant has placed reliance upon a decision of a learned Judge of the Madras High Court in Fifth Avenue Sourcing Private Limited Vs. Commissioner of Service Tax, Chennai reported in 2015(40) S.T.R.71 (Madras) and submitted that this is the position of law till date.

4. Shri Rakesh Kumar, learned representative for the Department has, however submitted that a plain reading of Section 129E of the Act as amended on 6 August, 2014 would indicate that the amended provisions would apply to all Appeals filed before the Tribunal on or after 6 August,2014 and in support of his submission he has placed reliance upon a decision of the Division Bench of the Allahabad High Court in Ganesh Yadav Vs. Union of India reported in 2015(320) E.L.T. 711 (Allahabad) as also Division Bench decision of the Delhi High Court in Pioneer Corporation Vs. Union of India reported in 2016 (340) E.L.T.63(Del.)

5. We have considered the submissions advanced by learned consultant for the appellant and the learned representative of the Department.

6. In order to appreciate the contentions advanced by the learned consultant for the appellant and the learned representative of the Department, it would be appropriate to reproduce the amended Section 129E of the Act that requires deposit of certain percentage of duty demanded or penalty imposed before filing the Appeal and it is as follows:

129E. Depos to ascertain percentage of duty demanded or penalty imposed before filing appeal. The Tribunal or the Commissioner (Appeals), as the case may be, shall not entertain any appeal,—

(i) under sub-section (1) of section 128, unless the appellant has deposited seven and a half per cent of the duty, in case where duty or duty and penalty are indispute, or penalty, where such penalty is in dispute, in pursuance of a decision or an order passed by an officer of customs lower in rank than the Commissioner of Customs;

(ii) against the decision or order referred to in clause (a) of sub-section (1) of section 129E, unless the appellant has deposited seven and a half percent of the duty, in case where duty or duty and penalty are in dispute, or penalty, where such penalty is in dispute, in pursuance of the decision or order appealed against;

(iii) against the decision or order referred to in clause (b) of sub-section (1) of section 129E, unless the appellant has deposited ten percent of the duty, in case where duty or duty and penalty are in dispute, or penalty, where such penalty is in dispute, in pursuance of the decision or order appealed against:

Provided that the amount required to be deposited under this section shall not exceed rupees ten crores:

Provided further that the provisions of this section shall not apply to the stay applications and appeals pending before any appellate authority prior to the commencement of the Finance (No.2)Act,2014."

7. A bare perusal of Section129 E indicates that the Tribunal shall not entertain any Appeal unless the appellant has deposited 7½% of the duty, in case where duty or duty and penalty are in dispute, in pursuance of a decision or an Order appealed against. The second proviso stipulates that the provisions of this Section shall not apply to the stay Applications and Appeals pending before any Appellate Authority prior to the commencement of the Finance Act, 2014.

8. It needs to be noted that the Finance Act came into forceon6 August, 2014. It also needs to be noted that prior to 6 August, 2014 Section 129E of the Act required a person desirous of appealing, to deposit with the proper officer, the duty and interest demanded or penalty levied, but a discretion was vested with the Tribunal to dispense such deposit subject to such conditions as it may fit deem to impose so as to safe guard the interests of the Revenue if in the opinion of the Tribunal, the deposit of duty demanded or penalty levied would cause undue hardship to the person.

9. It is for this reason that it is sought to be contended by the learned consultant for the appellant that the Tribunal should, in the facts and circumstances of the case, grant complete waiver to the requirement of the pre-deposit as according to the learned consultant, the provisions of Section 129E of the Act as they stood prior to 6 August, 2014 would be applicable. The submission is that since the show cause notice was issued on 6 February, 2013 prior to 6 August, 2014 when the amended provisions of Section 129E came into force, the amended provisions would not be applicable. We express our inability to accept this submission of the appellant.

10. The amended provision of Section 129E of the Act came into force on 6 August, 2014. It provides that Tribunal shall not entertain any Appeal unless the appellant has deposited 7½% of the duty, in case where duty or duty and penalty are in dispute, in pursuance of the decision appealed against. The second proviso makes the position absolutely clear as it provides that the provisions of Section 129E shall not apply to Stay Application and Appeals pending before any Appellant Authority prior to the commencement of the Finance Act 2014. In other words, only those Appeals and stay Application which are pending before the Tribunal before 6 August, 2014 would continue to be governed by the old provisions.

11. This is what was observed by a Division Bench of the Allahabad High Court in Ganesh Yadav in which the requirement of deposit of a certain percentage under the amended provisions of Section 35 of the Central Excise Act, 1944 which came into force w.e.f. 6 August, 2014 and which are para material to Section 129E of the Customs Act came up for interpretation. After upholding the constitutional validity of Section 35F of the Act, the High Court proceeded to examine whether the requirement to pre-deposit would apply to as it situation when the show cause notice was issued on 19 September, 2013, prior to the coming into force of the amended provisions of Section 35F of the Central Excise Act on 6 August, 2014. The High Court referred to the Constitution Bench judgment of Supreme Court in Garikapatti Veeraya Vs. N Subbiah Choudhary reported in AIR 1957 SC 540, wherein it was held that the vested right of an Appeal can be taken away only by a subsequent enactment if it so provided expressly or by necessary intendment but not other wise. It is after consideration of this judgments and other judgments of the Supreme Court that the High Court in paragraph 17 observed that the right of Appeal is a vested right and the right to enter a superior Court accrues to a litigant on and from the date on which the lis commences though it may be actually exercised when the judgment is pronounced. Such a right is governed by the law which prevails on the date of institution of the suit but the vested right of Appeal can be taken away by a subsequent enactment, if it so provides expressly or by necessary intendment and not otherwise. In paragraph 19, the High Court observed that the words in Section 35F of the Act would indicate that on and after the enforcement of the provisions of Section 35F of the Act, amended, w.e.f. 6 August, 2014, an appellant has to deposit a certain percentage of the duty and penalty as stipulated and unless the appellant does so, the Tribunal shall not entertain any Appeal and, therefore, this provision would apply to all Appeals which filed on and from the date of enforcement of the amendment to Section 35F of the Act. The High Court noticed that the intendment of Section 35F of the Act was further clarified by the second proviso to the Section as it stipulates that the provisions of the Section shall not apply to stay Applications and Appeals which were pending before any Appellate Authority prior to the commencement of the Finance Act. Paragraphs 10, 17, 19, 20, 21 and 22 of the judgment of the Allahabad High Court pertaining to this issue are reproduced below:

―10. That leads the Court to the next aspect of the matter as to whether the requirement of pre-deposit would apply in a situation such as the present. The notice to show cause was issued on 19 September 2013. The case of the petitioner is that the amendment to Section 35F of the Act was brought in to force with effect from 6 August 2014 and cannot retrospectively abridge or curtail the right of appeal which vested in the petitioner upon the issuance of a notice to show cause on 19 September 2013. While considering the merits of this submission, the basic principle of law which was laid down in the Constitution Bench Judgment of the Supreme Court in Garikapatti Veeraya vs. N. Subbiah Choudhury would merit reference. Chief Justice Sudhi Ranjan Das speaking for the majority, after considering the law on the subject from the decision of the Privy Council in Colonial Sugar Refining Company Ltd. vs. Irving9 up to Sawaldas Madhavdas vs. Arti Cotton Mills Ltd. 10 deduced the following principles of law:

"(i) That the legal pursuit of a remedy, suit, appeal and second appeal are really but steps in a series of proceedings all connected by an intrinsic unity and are to be regarded as one legal proceeding.

(ii) The right of appeal is not a mere matter of procedure but is a substantive right.

(iii) The institution of the suit carries with it the implication that all rights of appeal then in force are preserved, to the parties thereto till the rest of the career of the suit.

(iv) The right of appeal is a vested right and such a right to enter the superior court accrues to the litigant and exists as on and from the date the lis commences and although it may be actually exercised when the adverse judgment is pronounced such right is to be governed by the law prevailing at the date of the institution of the suit or proceeding and not by the law that prevails at the date of its decision or at the date of the filing of the appeal.

This vested right of appeal can be taken away only by a subsequent enactment, if it so provides expressly or by necessary intendment and not otherwise."

17. Thus, the principle of law which emerges is that the right of appeal is a vested right and the right to enter a superior Court or Tribunal accrues to a litigant as on and from the date on which the lis commences although it may actually be exercised when the adverse judgment is pronounced. Such a right is governed by the law which prevails on the date of institution of the suit or proceeding and not by the law that prevails at the date of the decision or on the date of the filing of an appeal. Moreover, the vested right of an appeal can be taken away only by a subsequent enactment, if it so provides express or by necessary intendment and not otherwise.

19. Parliament while substituting the provisions of Section 35F of the Central Excise Act, 1944 by Finance Act (No.2) of 2014, has laid down that the Tribunal or the Commissioner (Appeals) shall not entertain any appeal unless the appellant has deposited the duty or, as the case may be, a penalty to the stipulated extent. These words in Section 35F of the Act would indicate that on and after the enforcement of the provision of Section 35F of the Act, as amended, an appellant as to deposit the duty and penalty as stipulated and unless the appellant were to do so, the Tribunal shall not entertain any appeal. This provision would, therefore, indicate that it would apply to all appeals which would be filed on and from the date of the enforcement of Section 35F of the Act.

20. The intendment of Section 35F of the Act is further clarified by the second proviso which stipulates that the provisions of the section shall not apply to stay applications and appeals which were pending before any appellate authority prior to the commencement of Finance (No.2) Act 2014. The second proviso is a clear indicator that Parliament has exempted the requirement of complying with the pre-deposit as mandated by Section 35F(1) of the Act as amended only in the case of those stay applications and appeals which were pending before any appellate authority prior to the commencement of Finance (No.2) Act 2014. Consequently, both by virtue of the opening words of Section 35F(1) of the Act as well as by the second proviso to the provision, it is clear that appeals which are filed on and after the enforcement of the amended provision on 6 August 2014 shall be governed by the requirement of pre-deposit as stipulated therein. The only category to which the provision will not apply that would be those where the appeals or, as the case maybe, stay applications were pending before the appellate authority prior to the commencement of Finance (No.2) Act 2014.

21. Our attention has been drawn to a judgment of the learned Single Judge of the Kerala High Court in Muthoot Finance Ltd. vs Union of India 24. The Kerala High Court has referred to an interim order passed by the Andhra Pradesh High Court in K Rama Mohanraovs.Union of India 25. The Kerala High Court while adverting to the interim order referred to these settled law that the institution of a suit carries with it an implication that all rights of appeal then in force are preserved to the parties. With great respect, the judgment of the learned Single Judge of the Kerala High Court has not considered the express language which has been used in the amended provisions of Section 35F(1) of the Act. The order of the Andhra Pradesh High Court which was relied upon in the judgment of the Kerala High Court is only an interim order.

22. For these reasons, we hold that the petitioner would not be justified in urging that the amended provisions of Section 35F(1) of the Act would not apply merely on the ground that the notice to show cause was issued prior to the enforcement of Finance (No.2) Act, 2014. We find no merit in the constitutional challenge. The petition shall accordingly stand dismissed for the aforesaid reasons.

12. The Delhi High Court in Pioneer Corporation relied upon the decision of the Allahabad High Court in Ganesh Yadav, after noticing that the decision of the Allahabad High Court was also followed by the Delhi High Court in Anjani Technoplast Ltd. Vs. Commissioner of Customs reported in 2015(326)E.L.T.472(Del.) and in Suvidha Signs Studios Pvt. Ltd. Vs. Union of India reported in 2016 (336) E.L.T. 274 (Del.) The Delhi High Court noticed that the Appeal was filed before the Tribunal against the Order passed by the Principal Commissioner on 18 May, 2015. After the amendment made in Section 35F of the Central Excise Act and, therefore, would be governed by the amended provision. Paragraphs 3, 4 and 5 of the judgment are reproduced below:

3. Mr. Sachin Datta, learned Senior Counsel appearing for the petitioner, submitted that notwithstanding the decision of the Allahabad High Court in Ganesh Yadav v. Union of India-2015(320) E.L.T. 711 (All.), which has been followed by this Court in the decision dated 21st October, 2015 in Customs Appeal No. 19/2015 (Anjani Technoplast Ltd. v. The Commissioner of Customs)[2015(326)E.L.T.472(Del.)], the order dated 25th April, 2016 in W.P. (C) No.3380/2016 (Suvidha Signs Studios Pvt. Ltd. v. Union of India) [2016 (336) E.L.T. 274 (Del.)] and order dated 10th May, 2016 in W.P. (C) No. 927/2015 (Rajdhani Flora & Infrastructure Developers Pvt. Ltd. v. Union of India), this Court should re-visit the issue of the validity of the above circulars which have been issued pursuant to the changes made in Section 35F of the CE Act with effect from 6th August, 2014.

4. As far as the above pleas are concerned, the Court is not persuaded to reconsider its afore mentioned orders which followed the decision of the Allahabad High Court in Ganesh Yadav (supra). In other words, the Court is not prepared to reopen the question of the validity of Section 35F of the CE Act.

5. In terms of the amended Section 35F of the CE Act the CESTAT can insist on a mandatory pre-deposit of 7.5%/10% of the demand of duty in respect of all appeals pending as on that date. As far as the present case is concerned, although the initial adjudication order was passed on 23rd December, 2010, that order was set aside by the CESTAT on 13th December, 2011 and the matter remanded to the Commissioner of Customs for afresh adjudication. In the second round, a fresh adjudication order was passed by the Principal Commissioner on 18th May, 2015. An appeal was then filed by the petitioner before the CESTAT along with an application for stay/waiver of pre-deposit. The further appeal having been filed after the amendment to Section 35F of CE Act would be governed by the said amended provision.

13. Learned consultant for the appellant has, however placed reliance upon a decision of a learned Judge of the Madras High Court in Fifth Avenue Sourcing Pvt. Ltd. which referred to an interim order passed by the Kerala High Court in Muthoot Finance Ltd. Vs. Union of India and others reported in2015(320)E.L.T.51(Kerala).

14. In fact the submission of learned consultant for the appellant is that the position of law as explained by the Madras High Court in Fifth Avenue Sourcing Pvt. Ltd. is being uniformly applied and therefore the Tribunal should examine as to whether the appellant has made out a case for waiver of pre-deposit.

15. We are disturbed by such a statement having been made by the learned consultant for the appellant as reliance has been placed on a judgment that was reversed in the Appeal filed by the Department. In fact before the Division Bench of the Madras High Court two matters had come up for consideration. The first was the Appeal filed by the Department against the judgment rendered by a learned Judge of the Madras High Court in Fifth Avenue Sourcing Pvt. Ltd. And the second was Writ Petition bearing No. 1424 of 2015 filed by Dream Castle for a declaration that the amended Section 35F of the Central Excise Act, 1944 would apply only to show cause proceedings initiated on or after 6 August, 2014. The Appeal and Writ Petition were decided by a common judgment dated 18 April, 2016 and the judgment is reported in (2016)94VST 158 (Madras) [Dream Castle Vs. Commissioner of Service Tax–1, Anna Nagar, Chennai]. The Division Bench after referring to the judgments of the Supreme Court in N. Subbiah Choudhury and the judgment rendered by a Division Bench of the Allahabad High Court in Ganesh Yadav and certain other decision held that the amended provisions of Section 35F of the Central Excise Act shall be applicable to all Appeals filed on or after 6 August, 2014. Thus, the decision of the learned Judge in Fifth Avenue Sourcing Pvt. Ltd. Was reversed and the Writ Petition was also dismissed. It is not fair on the part of the learned consultant for the appellant to place reliance upon a decision of a learned Judge which had been reversed within ten months.

16. We, therefore, have no hesitation in holding that the requirements set out in Section 129E of the Act as amended on 6 August 2014 have to be satisfied in regard to Appeals filed on or after 6 August, 2014. The contention of the learned consultant for the appellant that the provisions of the amended provisions of Section 129E of the Act would apply to Appeals in which show cause notices were issued on or after 6 August, 2014 cannot, therefore, be accepted.

17. The appellant has not made the requisite pre-deposit and has made a plea that the unamended provision of Section 129E under which there was a discretion with the Tribunal to waive the requirement of pre-deposit on certain conditions, should be made applicable.

18. The Application, therefore, deserves to be rejected and is, accordingly, rejected.

19. At this stage, learned consultant for the appellant states that some time may be given to the appellant to satisfy the requirement of Section 129E of the Act. The Appeal was filed on 28 December, 2018 and therefore we grant two weeks time to the appellant to ensure the compliance of the provisions of Section 129E of the Act, failing which, the Appeal would stand dismissed. The Appeal may be listed on 15 March, 2019 with an office report about compliance of the direction.

Per: Dilip Gupta:

Alok Industries Limited the Appellant filed the appeal in the Registry on 05
December, 2018 to assail the Final Findings dated 25 January, 2018 of the Designated Authority.

2. The appeal has to be filed before the Tribunal within ninety days of the date of order under appeal as provided for in Section 9C of the Customs Tariff Act, 19752 the Act . The period of 90 days expired much earlier than the filing of the appeal on 05 December, 2018. The Appeal was accompanied by an application for condoning the delay in filing the appeal.

3. Subsequently, the Applicant filed another application for condoning the delay on 13 August, 2019. The reasons stated in the application to explain the delay are as follows :

"a. Pursuant to discussion between the constituent of the domestic industry before Respondent No. 1, it was decided to file writ petition before Bombay High Court as no appeal under Section 9C of the Customs Tariff Act is maintainable in case of negative recommendation as held by the Hon'ble CESTAT in the matter of M/s Panasonic Energy India Co. Ltd. & Ors. Vs Union of India (Anti Dumping Appeal
No. 50452-50455 of 2017).

b. Thus, without having an alternate remedy and in bonafide believe one of the constituent of domestic industry i.e. Bombay Dyeing & Mfg. Co. Ltd. decided to file writ petition before Hon'ble Bombay High Court on 20.04.2018."
c. Thereafter having discussion with the other constituent of the domestic industry namely Indo Rama Synthetics (India) Ltd. who were under process to file writ petition before Delhi High Court.

d. The applicant came to know that there is matter pending before the Hon'ble High Court of Delhi on the issue of maintainability of writ against Designated Authority's recommendation not to impose anti-dumping duty.

e. The appellant was advised by their legal counsel to await the decision of the Delhi High Court.

f. On 20.09.2018, Hon'ble High Court of Delhi pronounced its Judgment in the matter of Jindal Polyfilm Ltd. vs Designated Authority wherein has held that statutory appeal under Section 9C of the Customs and Tariff Act is maintainable against the Designated Authority's recommendation not to impose anti-dumping duty/negative recommendation.

g. Thereafter, appellant again approached the legal counsel in first week of October, 2018, the appellant was told that Hon'ble Delhi High Court has already held that appeal is maintainable against negative recommendation. But again the legal counsel advised the applicant to await the decision of the Hon'ble Bombay High Court in the pending writ petition filed by the constituent of the domestic industry against the impugned final finding. Since the writ petition is already pending against the impugned final finding the Hon'ble CESTAT may not hear the appeal arising out of the same impugned Final Findings.

h. The Bombay High Court vide its order dated 02.11.2018 disposed of the writ petition filed by the one of the domestic industries against the impugned Final finding inter-alia stating as follows:

"5. However, we note that the petitioner had moved this Court under Article 226 of the Constitution of India within a period of 90 days from the impugned order on the basis of a bona fide understanding that no appeal is available under the Tariff Act. The time to file an appeal under Section 9C of the Act is 90 days from the date of the impugned order which is sought to be challenged. Therefore, in the above view, it would only be fair that in case the petitioner does file an appeal from the impugned order under Section 9C of the Tariff Act within a period of three weeks from today, then the Tribunal shall entertain the appeal on merits without raising any issue of limitation. This as we have condoning the delay, if the appeal is filed to the Tribunal from the impugned order dated 25th January, 2018 within three weeks from today".

Since the Hon'ble Bombay High Court granted three weeks time to the petitioner to file appeal. The applicant approached the concerned counsel on 15.11.2018 for obtaining their opinion on whether the impugned finding and consequent notification should now be challenged before CESTAT.

i. Thereafter relevant papers were also forwarded to the counsel for drafting the appeal on 17.11.2018.

j. Thereafter the first draft of appeal was received on 26.11.2018.

k. The applicant checked the factual aspect of the appeal on 30.11.2018 and requested the concerned counsel for finalization and filing of the appeal.

l. The Final draft of Appeal was sent on 01.12.2018 to the applicant. The applicant confirmed the same on 01.12.2018 and requested to file the same.

4. The learned Counsel for the Applicant/Appellant submitted that earlier, in view of the decision of this Tribunal in M/s Panasonic Energy India Company Limited & Others vs Union of India 2017 (357) ELT 110, the Appellant was under the impression that no appeal would lie against the negative determination by the Designated Authority. The issue as to whether a Writ Petition or an appeal can be filed against the negative determination by the Designated Authority was the subject matter of a Writ Petition filed by Jindal Polyfilm Ltd. before the Delhi High Court, which, ultimately, on 20 September, 2018 held that a statutory appeal under Section 9C of the Act is maintainable before the Tribunal even against a negative recommendation of the Designated Authority. Learned Counsel also pointed out that the judgment on the maintainability of the Writ Petition in Jindal Polyfilm Limited was reserved by the Delhi High Court on 06 March, 2018 and it was delivered only on 20 September, 2018. The learned Counsel also pointed out that thereafter, one constituent of the domestic industry, namely, M/s Bombay Dyeing & Mfg. Co., filed a Writ Petition before the Bombay High Court which was disposed of on 02 November, 2018 granting liberty to the Petitioner therein to file an appeal before the Tribunal within three weeks from the date of the decision in the Writ Petition. It has, therefore, been submitted that since the Bombay High Court granted three weeks’ time to the Petitioner therein to file an appeal before the Tribunal, the Appellant was also advised to file an appeal within three weeks. Accordingly, the present appeal was filed on 05 December, 2018 which would be beyond 12 days from the time granted by the Bombay High Court in M/s Bombay Dyeing & Mfg. Co. The submission, therefore, is that the delay should be condoned.

5. The learned Counsel appearing for the Respondents have objected to the application and submitted that the delay in filing the appeal is not bonafide as the Appellant deliberately kept quiet for a substantial period of time and it is only when the Bombay High Court granted liberty to the Petitioner therein, M/s Bombay Dyeing & Mfg. Co., to file an appeal before the Tribunal within three weeks, that the Appellant woke up and filed this appeal in the Tribunal. It has, therefore, been submitted that the application should be rejected.

6. We have given our thoughtful consideration to the submissions advanced by the learned Counsel for the Appellant and the learned Counsel for the Respondents.

7. It is true that this Tribunal in Panasonic Energy India Company Limited held that an appeal cannot be filed before the Tribunal against a negative determination by the Designated Authority, but in such a situation when the view of the Tribunal was very clear, nothing prevented the Appellant from filing a Writ Petition before the High Court to challenge the determination by the Designated Authority, if it felt aggrieved. However, the Appellant neither availed the remedy of filing a Writ Petition in the High Court nor did it file an appeal before this Tribunal within the stipulated time. According to the Appellant, it waited for a decision to be given by the Delhi High Court in a Writ Petition filed by Jindal Polyfilm Ltd. to challenge the negative determination by the Designated Authority. Learned Counsel also pointed out that the judgment was reserved by the Delhi High Court on 06 March, 2018 on the maintainability of the Writ Petition and was delivered only on 20 September, 2018. Mere filing of a Writ Petition by another party or its pendency, cannot be said to be a good reason for the Appellant to not to file a Writ Petition before the appropriate High Court or an Appeal before the Tribunal within the time provided for. The Appellant had to itself avail the remedy. There was no reason for the Appellant to await the decision of a Writ Petition filed by some other party and that too not against the determination made by the Designated Authority on 25 January, 2018. If the Appellant was really aggrieved by the negative determination by the Designated Authority, it could have also filed a Writ petition before appropriate High Court.

8. It is also sought to be contended that one of the constituent domestic industry, feeling aggrieved by the negative determination by the Designated Authority, filed a Writ Petition in the Bombay High Court directly without availing the remedy of filing an appeal before the Tribunal and it is only when the Bombay High Court permitted the said Petitioner to file an appeal before the Tribunal, in view of the decision of the Delhi High Court in Jindal Polyfilm Ltd., that the Appellant filed this appeal.

9. This contention of the learned Counsel for the Appellant cannot also be accepted. Bombay Dyeing & Mfg. Co. had filed a Writ Petition in the Bombay High Court in April, 2018. Likewise, the Appellant could also have filed a Writ Petition in the Delhi High Court. Any decision by the Bombay High Court would not have come to the aid of the Appellant for explaining the delay in filing an Appeal subsequently.

10. In any view of the matter, the present appeal was filed beyond 12 days from the time granted by the Bombay High Court in Writ Petition filed by another Domestic Industry.

11. We are, therefore, not satisfied by the explanation offered by the Appellant for condoning the delay. The application deserves to be rejected and is, accordingly, rejected. The appeal also stands dismissed.

FINAL ORDER NO. 51251/2019

Per: Dilip Gupta:

Indo Rama Synthetics (India) Limited the Appellant filed the appeal in the Registry on 22 November, 2018 to assail the Final Findings dated 25 January, 2018 of the Designated Authority.

2. The appeal before the Tribunal has to be filed within ninety days of the date of order under appeal as provided for in Section 9C of the Customs Tariff Act, 1975 the Act. Though the period of 90 days expired much earlier than the filing of the appeal on 22 November, 2018, but the appeal was not accompanied by any application for condoning the delay in filing the appeal. The application for condoning the delay in filing the appeal was, in fact, filed before the Tribunal only on 13 August, 2019.

3. It has been stated in the application that since the last date for filing the appeal before the Tribunal was 25 April, 2018, the appeal was filed with a delay of 211 days. The reasons stated in the application to explain the delay are as follows :

"a. Pursuant to discussion between the constituent of the domestic industry before Respondent No. 1, it was decided to file writ petition before Bombay High Court as no appeal under Section 9C of the Customs Tariff Act is maintainable in case of negative recommendation as held by the Hon’ble CESTAT in the matter of M/s Panasonic Energy India Co. Ltd. & Ors. Vs Union of India (Anti Dumping Appeal No. 50452-50455 of 2017)."
b. Thus, without having an alternate remedy and in bona fide belief one of the constituent of domestic industry i.e. Bombay Dyeing & Mfg. Co. Ltd. decided to file writ petition before Hon'ble Bombay High Court on 20.04.2018.

c. The applicant was also in discussion with their legal representative to file a writ petition before Delhi High Court as Bombay Dyeing & Mfg. Co. Ltd. had already filed writ petition before High Court of Bombay.

d. The applicant was advised that a writ petition is already pending before Hon'ble High Court of Delhi against negative recommendation of Designated Authority, wherein Hon'ble High Court of Delhi has already heard the matter with regard to maintainability of writ petition against negative recommendation of the Designated Authority and reserved the judgment.

e. Applicant was advised to await the decision of the Hon'ble High Court of Delhi.

f. On 20.09.2018, Hon'ble High Court of Delhi pronounced its Judgment in the matter of Jindal Polyfilm Ltd. vs Designated Authority wherein, it has held that statutory appeal under Section 9C of the Customs and Tariff Act is maintainable against the Designated Authority’s recommendation not to impose anti-dumping duty/negative recommendation.

g. Thereafter, appellant again approached the legal counsel in first week of October, 2018, the appellant was told that Hon'ble Delhi High Court has already held that appeal is maintainable against negative recommendation. But again the legal counsel advised the applicant to await the decision of the Hon'ble Bombay High Court in the pending writ petition filed by the constituent of the domestic industry against the impugned final finding. i. Since the Hon'ble Bombay High Court granted three weeks time to the petitioner to file appeal. Appellant was also advised to file appeal within 3 weeks. The applicant on 22.11.2018 immediately filed the present appeal before the Hon'ble Tribunal challenging the same impugned Final Finding.

j. It is humbly submitted that, if the delay of 211 days is not condoned by this Hon'ble Tribunal, it would result in a meritorious matter being thrown out at the very threshold and the cause of justice would be defeated.

k. It is well established that where the delay is only a few days, as in this case, the Courts will not take a narrow and pedantic view in condoning delay especially where good cause is shown as in this case.”

4. The learned Counsel for the Applicant/Appellant submitted that earlier, in view of the decision of this Tribunal in M/s Panasonic Energy India Company Limited & Others vs Union of India 2017 (357) ELT 110, the Appellant was under the impression that no appeal would lie against the negative determination by the Designated Authority. ORDER

Dilip Gupta, J. (President)

1. The Anti Dumping Appeal was filed by the Appellant before the Tribunal on 23 April 2018 to assail the Notification dated 17 February 2017 that was published in the Gazette of India, Extraordinary Part II on 17 February 2017. The appellant also filed an application for condoning the delay as Section 9C (2) of the Customs Tariff Act, 1975 provides that every appeal under Section 9C (1) of the Act shall be filed within 90 days of the date of order under appeal but the Appellate Tribunal may entertain any appeal after the expiry of the said period of 90 days if it is satisfied that the Appellant was prevented by sufficient cause from filing the appeal in time.

2. The averments made in the delay condonation application are as follows:

"1. The Appellant Mita India Pvt. Ltd. has preferred this appeal against the Final Findings Notification No. 14/2/2015-DGAD dated 09/12/2016, issued by the Respondent No. 2, Designated Authority, Directorate General of Anti Dumping and Allied Duties, Department of Commerce, Government of India, as notified by the Respondent No. 1, Ministry of Finance vide Notification No. 7/2017-Customs (ADD) : MANU/CUSA/0007/2017 dated 17/02/2017. The contents of the appeal are not being repeated herein for the same of brevity and the same may be read as part and parcel of the present application also.

2. The Appellant respectfully submits that there has been a delay in filing the appeal, which delay is neither willful nor deliberate. There is sufficient cause for the Appellant not being able to file the appeal on time. The Appellant became aware of the imposition of final duties in the second week of May 2017. Since the Appellant could not participate in the investigation, it was advised that it should first obtain the documents from the Respondent No. 2 to determine whether any case can be made out to challenge the imposition of definitive duties.

3. The Appellant’s counsel contacted the office of the Designated Authority in the third week of May 2017 and requested for inspection of the public file. The office informed the counsel that they would check with the concerned officer and call back. Even the Appellant made a follow-up to the office of the Respondent No. 2.

4. Since the Appellant did not receive any reply from the office of the Respondent No. 2, it counsel formally wrote to them on 27/06/2017 requesting the inspection of the public file, the list of interested parties, and a copy of the disclosure statement.

5. The Additional Director General in the office of the Respondent No. 2, vide letter dated 10/07/2017, wrote to the Appellant's counsel refusing access to the public file. The Respondent chose not to even furnish the list of interested parties, which is necessary for purposes of filing an appeal before this Hon'ble Tribunal.

6. Aggrieved by the order dated 10/07/2017, the Appellant preferred a writ petition (W.P. (C) No. 7887 of 2017) before the Hon'ble High Court of Delhi praying inter alia, for a direction to the Respondent Designated Authority to provide documents and also to permit inspection of the public file. Vide order dated 06/09/2017, the Hon'ble High Court dismissed the writ petition.

7. The Appellant challenged the order dated 06/09/2017 by way of Special Leave Petition (C) No. 7690 of 2018 before the Hon'ble Supreme Court. Vide order dated 19/03/2018, the Hon'ble Supreme Court observed, even while dismissing the SLP, that it was open to the Appellant to approach the Appellate Authority alongwith a condonation of delay application, having spent this period of time before the High Court and Supreme Court.

8. It is in this background that the Appellant is filing this appeal in the month of April 2018 being aggrieved by the Final Findings of the Designated Authority and the anti dumping duties imposed by the Ministry of Finance in the Government of India.

9. It is in these circumstances that there has been a delay in filing the instant appeal. It is in the interest of justice that the present application is allowed. Accordingly, this Hon'ble Tribunal may be pleased to condone the delay to exercise of its powers under Section 9 C (2) of the Customs Tariff Act, 1975 (as amended)".

3. In order to appreciate the submission made by Dr. Karnika Seth, learned Counsel appearing for the Appellant/Applicant, Ms. Reena Khair, learned Counsel appearing for Domestic Industry, Shri Ameet Singh, learned Counsel appearing for Designated Authority and Shri Sunil Kumar, learned Counsel appearing for Union of India, it will be appropriate at this stage to examine certain facts leading to the issuance of the final notification that was published in the Gazette by the Ministry of Finance.

4. The anti dumping investigation concerning imports of seamless tubes, steel pipes and hollow profiles of iron alloy or non-alloy steel (other than cast iron and stainless steel), whether hot finished or cold drawn or cold rolled of an external diameter not exceeding 355.6 mm or 14” OD’ originating in or exported from China PR was initiated by a Notification dated 8 July 2015 that was published in the Gazette of India. The preliminary findings were rendered on 31 March 2016 and on the basis of the preliminary findings, a provisional duty was imposed by Notification dated 17 May, 2016 that was published in the Gazette on the same date i.e. 17 May 2016. The final findings were rendered by the Designated Authority on 9 December 2016 which were also published in the Gazette on 9 December 2016. The decision was thereafter notified by the Ministry of Finance by a Notification dated 17 February 2017 that was published in the Gazette on 17 February 2017.

5. The second paragraph of the delay condonation application mentions that the appellant became aware of the imposition of final duties in the second week of May 2017. However, since the appellant could not participate in the investigation, it was advised to first obtain the documents from the Designated Authority. For this purpose, it has been stated in paragraph 3 of the application that the Counsel of the Appellant contacted the office of the Designated Authority in the third week of May, 2017 and requested for an inspection of the public file. Paragraph 4 mentions that a formal letter was written to the Designated Authority on 27 June, 2017, but this request was denied by the Additional Director General in the office of the Designated Authority on 10 July, 2017. This order dated 10 July 2017 was thereafter assailed by the appellant by filing a writ-petition in the Delhi High Court, being writ-petition No. 7887 of 2017. Paragraph 6 mentions that the prayer that was made before the Delhi High Court was to issue a direction to the Designated Authority to provide all documents and also permit inspection of the public file. Paragraph 6 further mentions that the Delhi High Court dismissed the writ-petition by judgment and order dated 6 September 2017. Subsequently the Appellant challenged the judgment and order dated 6 September 2017 of the Delhi High Court by filing a Special Leave Petition bearing No. 7690 of 2018 in the Supreme Court which Petition was dismissed on 19 March 2018 but it was left open to the Appellant to approach the Tribunal with a delay condonation application. Paragraph 8 mentions that the Appeal was thereafter filed before the Tribunal in the month of April 2018 with a delay condonation application.

6. As noted above, Section 9 C (2) of the Act requires that the Appeal can be filed before the Tribunal to assail an order passed by the Designated Authority within 90 days of the date of the order under appeal. The date of order under appeal would be the date when the notification issued by the Ministry of Finance is published in the Gazette. The records indicate that the notification was published in the Gazette on 17 February 2017. The Appeal, therefore, should have been filed before the Tribunal within 90 days of this date.

7. According to the Appellant, it became aware of the imposition of final duties in the second week of May 2017 only. The plea of the Appellant is that it was not aware of the list of the interested parties or a copy of the disclosures statement. The Appellant, therefore, filed a writ-petition in the Delhi High Court.

8. It would be appropriate at this stage to reproduce the judgment dated 6 September 2017 of the Delhi High Court in the writ-petition filed by the Appellant and the same is as follows:-

"1. The Petitioner seeks a direction to the Designated Authority, Directorate General of Anti Dumping and Allied Duties, Department of Commerce, Ministry of Commerce & Industry ('DA') to permit inspection of the public file pertaining to the anti-dumping investigation concerning imports of "Seamless tubes, pipes and hollow profiles of iron, alloy or non-alloy steel" (other than cast iron and stainless steel) whether hot finished or cold drawn or cold rolled of an external diameter not exceeding 355.6 or 14" OD' from China PR.

2. It appears that the Initiation Notification was issued on 8 July, 2015. Thereafter the Final Finding was issued by the DA on 9 December 2016, followed by the Notification dated 17 February 2017.

3. It is not disputed that, against the Final Findings and Notification, there is remedy available to the Petitioner before the Customs Excise, Service Tax Appellate Tribunal ('CESTAT').

4. On 27 June 2017, the Petitioner addressed a letter to the DA stating that, for the purposes of filing an appeal before the CESTAT, it required the list of interested parties along with their complete addresses and a copy of the disclosure statement. The above request was made more than four months after the Notification dated 17 February 2017.

5. Learned counsel for the Petitioner claims that the Petitioner became aware of the Notification dated 17 February 2017 only in the second week of May, 2017 and therefore could not make the above request earlier. This explanation is not convincing. The Notification, having been Gazetted, is presumed to have been in the knowledge of the Petitioner. Further, the provisional duty during the period of investigation was already in force for more than a year and was to the knowledge of the Petitioner. It appears to the Court that, having missed its opportunity of filing its appeal in the CESTAT within time, the Petitioner was seeking to build an alibi to explain its delay and therefore applied for inspection of the DA's file.

6. Learned counsel for the Petitioner states that, without the address of the interested parties, it cannot file an appeal before the CESTAT. It is noticed that the names of the interested parties are set out in the Final Findings itself. With most of them being companies, it should not have been difficult for the Petitioner to ascertain their addresses. The Court is not satisfied about the bona fides of the Petitioner's request to the DA'.

9. A perusal of the aforesaid judgment of the Delhi High Court clearly shows that the aforesaid prayer of the Appellant that it became aware of the Notification dated 17 February 2017 only in the second week of May, 2017 was also examined by the Delhi High Court. The High Court did not find this explanation to be convincing and the High Court observed that the notification having been Gazetted, it is presumed to have been in the knowledge of the Petitioner. The High Court also noticed that the provisional duty during the period of investigation was already in force for more than a year and was to the knowledge of the Petitioner. The High Court also observed that it appeared that having missed its opportunity of filing an Appeal before the Tribunal within time, the Petitioner was seeking to build an alibi to explain the delay and had, therefore, applied for inspection of the file of the Designated Authority. The plea of the Appellant that it could not file appeal in the absence of the addressee of the interested parties was also not found to be convincing as the High Court observed that most of them were big companies and so it should not have been difficult for the petitioner to ascertain the addresses.

10. This judgment of the Delhi High Court was assailed by the Appellant before the Supreme Court. The Supreme Court did not interfere with the judgment passed by the Delhi High Court and, accordingly, dismissed the Special Leave Petition. However, the Supreme Court observed that it is always open to the petitioner to approach the Appellate Tribunal in accordance with the law with a delay condonation application. The judgment of the Supreme Court is reproduced here below:

"Delay condoned.

We do not see any reason to interfere with the impugned order. The special leave petition is dismissed.

We may, however, observe that it is always open to the petitioner to approach the Appellate Authority in accordance with law with a condonation of delay application, having spent this period of time before the High Court and Supreme Court, in the inappropriate forums.

Pending application (s), if any, stand disposed of".

11. The judgment of the Delhi High Court dated 6 September 2017, therefore, attained finality. The observations of the Supreme Court regarding approaching the Tribunal for filing a delay condonation application is in the context of Section 14 of the Limitation Act, 1963. The Supreme Court observed that the time spent by the Appellant in the inappropriate forum namely High Court and the Supreme Court should be excluded while computing the period of limitation.

12. The Appeal should have been filed by the Appellant within 90 days from the date of the order i.e. within 90 days from 17 February 2017. The only reason given by the Appellant for not filing the Appeal within the stipulated period is that it was not aware of the addresses of the parties nor documents were made available to them. The request of the Appellant was specifically considered and rejected by the Delhi High Court and this order has attained finality on the dismissal of the Special Leave Petition by the Supreme Court. It is, therefore, not open to the Appellant to again raise the same plea before the Tribunal in the application filed for condoning the delay in filing the appeal. Even if the time spent by the Appellant in the Delhi High Court between 31 August 2017 and 6 September 2017 is excluded as also the time spent in the Supreme Court in filing the Special Leave Petition on 6 December 2017 and its dismissal on 19 March 2018 is excluded, only benefit of 103 days can be granted to the Appellant. However, the entire period of limitation expired even before the writ-petition was filed by the Appellant in the Delhi High Court.

13. Further, it needs to be noticed that the Appellant had been paying provisional duty in accordance with the preliminary findings that were published in the Gazette on 17 May 2016. The Appellant was, therefore, aware that the anti dumping duty investigation was in process. This was also observed by the Delhi High Court.

14. Though the Appellant claimed that it was in the second week of May 2017 that it approached the Designated Authority, but what is seen is that the formal application was filed by the Appellant only on 27 June, 2017. The Delhi High Court observed that the Appellant had approached to the Designated Authority for documents only to subsequently explain the delay in filing the Appeal before the Tribunal.

15. We are, therefore, not satisfied that the Appellant was prevented by sufficient cause from preferring the Appeal before the Tribunal within time. The delay application is, accordingly, rejected.

16. As the delay application has been rejected, the Appeal stands dismissed.

17. All other miscellaneous applications stand rejected.

1. The levy of definitive anti dumping duty on the import of "Non-Plasticized Industrial Grade Nitrocellulose excluding Nitrocellulose Damped in Ethanol and Waterwet1 originating in or exported from Brazil, Indonesia and Thailand has led to the filing of these two appeals by the two exporters from Thailand.

2. The Designated Authority, in its final findings dated 31 December, 2018, concluded that Nitrocellulose, which is the product under consideration, has been imported to India from the aforesaid three countries below normal value; the Domestic Industry has suffered material injury on account of its import from subject countries; and material injury has been caused by the dumped imports of subject goods from the subject countries. It, therefore, recommended imposition of definitive anti dumping duty on the import of subject goods in order to remove injury to the domestic industry. The Central Government, after taking into consideration the aforesaid final findings of the Designated Authority, imposed anti dumping duty by a Notification dated 07 February, 2019 that was published in the Gazette of India.

3. Two issues that have been raised by Shri Naresh Thacker, learned Senior Counsel appearing for the Appellant in the two appeals filed by M/s. Nitro Chemical Industry Ltd. and M/s. Nobel NC Co. Ltd. are non-consideration of the submissions advanced on behalf of the Appellants both on normal value and confidentiality.

4. Nitro Chemicals with its subsidiary company is the sole manufacturer of Nitrocellulose in Thailand. This product is a flammable compound produced by the reaction of cellulose and Nitric Acid and is used in the manufacture of paints, nail varnishes, printing inks and lacquers if the content of nitrogen is less than 12.2%.

5. M/s. Nitrex Chemicals India Limited, a producer of subject goods in India, filed an application before the Designated Authority alleging dumping of the product under consideration originating in or exported from Brazil, Indonesia and Thailand. Pursuant to the aforesaid application, the Designated Authority issued a Public Notice by Notification dated 10 April, 2018 initiating investigation in terms of Rule 5 of the Customs Tariff (Identification, Assessment and Collection of Antidumping Duty on Dumped Articles and for Determination of Injury) Rules, 1995. The Appellants filed their response to the exporter's questionnaire on 04 June, 2018. The Designated Authority concluded that there is no dumping of the product under consideration.

6. The present appeals challenge the final findings of the Designated Authority.

7. The Appellant contends that the product under consideration is not manufactured in the subject countries, and the finding of dumping by the Designated Authority is contrary to the material on record.

8. The Designated Authority contends that the findings of dumping are sustainable in law as well as on material on record.

9. The Hon'ble Tribunal, after hearing the counsel for both the parties, is of the opinion that the findings of dumping are sustainable and order the imposition of anti dumping duty.

Decision:
The appeals are allowed. The findings of the Designated Authority are sustained.

Dilip Gupta, J. (President)
Authority held an oral hearing on 06 June, 2018. On behalf of the Domestic Industry, a communication dated 07 August, 2018 was submitted before the Designated Authority pointing out that the responding exporters had resorted to excessive confidentiality claim which had prevented the Domestic Industry from offering comments. It was also stated that none of the exporters had even given an indexed version of their performance indicators, whereas the Domestic Industry had provided indexed figures of each parameter showing the trend of injury parameters. A request was, therefore, made to direct the exporters to sufficiently disclose information in the public version filed by them. All the interested parties filed their Written Submissions post public hearing held on 06 August, 2018. Pursuant to the communication dated 07 August, 2018 sent on behalf of the Domestic Industry, the Designated Authority sent an email to the exporters mentioning therein that at the time of oral hearing an issue was raised by the Domestic Industry regarding alleged excessive claims of confidentiality and that the Domestic Industry had submitted a letter, of which a copy was attached with the email. The exporters were, therefore, advised to either disclose the information adequately or provide sufficient reason as to why no further disclosure of information was feasible. The Appellants sent a communication dated 22 August, 2018 to the Designated Authority giving a response to the claim of confidentiality. The Appellants also sent a communication dated 27 August, 2018 to the Designated Authority questioning the excessive confidentiality claim made by the Domestic Industry. An onsite verification of the exporters' premises was conducted from 10 September, 2018 to 12 September, 2018. Thereafter, a disclosure statement dated 07 December, 2018 was published disclosing all the essential facts under consideration for the anti dumping investigation which would form the basis for final findings. The interested parties were asked to offer their comments, if any, latest by 14 December, 2018. Comments to the disclosure statement were received, whereafter final findings were notified on 31 December, 2018 recommending imposition of anti dumping duty equal to the lesser of the margin of dumping and the margin of injury, so that the injury caused to the Domestic Industry was removed. This was to be effective from the date of the Notification to be issued by the Central Government and would be for a period of five years.

6. Feeling aggrieved, both the Appellants filed Writ Petitions before the Delhi High Court being Writ Petition (Civil) No. 312 of 2019 and Writ Petition (Civil) No. 313 of 2019 for quashing the final findings dated 31 December, 2018 and the disclosure statement dated 07 December, 2018. A further prayer was made to direct the Respondent to refrain from giving effect to and/or take any action in furtherance to the final findings dated 31 December, 2018. The Petitioners had made a complaint that the verification report of the Designated Authority was not a part of the record. This apprehension of the Appellant was found not to be correct by the High Court, as the records produced before the High Court indicated that the verification report was a part of the record of the Designated Authority. Learned Counsel for the Petitioners then submitted that there were other grounds also dealing inter alia with the issue of confidentiality and the failure on the part of the Designated Authority to deal with its submissions and it was stated on their behalf that they would agitate these issues through a representation to the Central Government, so as to seek its intervention and appropriate action. Learned Counsel appearing for the Designated Authority stated that a copy of the verification report would be furnished to the Petitioner. In such circumstances, the High Court observed that a copy of the verification report shall be furnished to the Writ Petitioners with copy of the verification report to the Writ Petitioners within a week and it would be open to the Writ Petitioners to represent to the Central Government in a suitable manner for appropriate directions, in accordance with law. Learned Senior Counsel for the Petitioner, in view of the aforesaid submissions, sought liberty to withdraw the Petitions. The Writ Petitions were, accordingly, dismissed as withdrawn on 6 February, 2019.

7. After the dismissal of the Writ Petitions, the Central Government issued the Notification dated 07 February, 2019 exercising powers conferred by sub-sections (1) and (5) of section 9A of the Customs Tariff Act, 1975 imposing anti dumping duty on Nitrocellulose originating in and exported from Brazil, Indonesia and Thailand for a period of five years.

8. The Designated Authority also provided a copy of the verification report to the Appellants on 08 February, 2019. On 15 February, 2019, the Appellants submitted a response before the Central Government on the verification report. The Central Government forwarded a copy of the aforesaid comments dated 15 February, 2019 to the Designated Authority.

9. The Central Government thereafter sent a letter dated 01 March, 2019 to the Appellants in connection with the comments dated 15 February, 2019 submitted by them. The letter informed the Appellants that after examination of the comments to the verification report, no change was called for in the final findings issued on 31 December, 2018.
10. These two appeals have been filed by the Appellants on 18 March, 2019 to assail the final findings dated 31 December, 2018 as also the Notification dated 07 February, 2019.

11. Shri Naresh Thacker, learned Senior Counsel for the Appellants made the following submissions on two aspects, namely, (a) non-consideration of the Appellants' submission on 'normal value'; and (b) non-consideration of the Appellants' submission on 'confidentiality'.

SUBMISSIONS ON 'NORMAL VALUE'

(i) The Designated Authority failed to consider the submissions advanced by the Appellants on 'normal value'. Elaborating this submission, learned Senior Counsel pointed out that the domestic selling price of the product under consideration in Thailand was distorted because of demand-supply crunch resulting from strict licensing requirements imposed by the Thailand Government and, therefore, the normal value should have been calculated on the basis of sales made by the Appellants to third countries or the cost incurred by the Appellants;

(ii) The export price to India is not comparable with the prices in the domestic market because the product under consideration was subject to domestic regulations enforced by the Defence Industrial Department under the Thailand Army on account of which there was a limited supply within the country leading to an increase in prices. There were also various additional expenses that the Appellants had to incur owing to the nature of the product. Further, additional services were also provided to its customers by the Appellants which were not provided to their customers in India. Thus, the export price was not directly comparable to the domestic sales price;

(iii) The Appellants had also reiterated the submissions of normal value when site verification took place from 10-12 September, 2018;

(iv) The verification report that was submitted was not shared with the Appellants by the Designated Authority;

(v) In the final findings, the Designated Authority failed to consider the submissions advanced on behalf of the Appellants regarding normal value and the Designated Authority merely reproduced what was stated in the disclosure statement, even though comments had been submitted in response to the disclosure statement;

(vi) The final findings have not appreciated the scope of the licensing regulations and it has been held that mere licensing procedure would not mean that domestic selling prices cannot be in the ordinary course of trade. In this connection, reliance has been placed on the decision of the Appellate Body in US - Anti Dumping measures on certain hot-rolled steel products from Japan;

(vii) In terms of the order passed by the Delhi High Court on 06 February, 2019 in the two Writ Petitions filed by the Appellants, the Central Government should have waited for the Appellants to file a representation to the Central Government so that the Central Government could take a decision but the Central Government issued the Notification on the very next date on 07 February, 2019. Thus, not only have the principles of natural justice been violated, but the Notification is also against the spirit of the order dated 06 February, 2019 passed by the Delhi High Court; and (viii) The communication dated 01 March, 2019 sent by the Central Government in response to the comments submitted by the Appellant also does not deal with the submissions made by the Appellants.

SUBMISSIONS ON CONFIDENTIALITY

(i) The 1995 Rules provide that the Designated Authority has to disclose all the evidences provided by any of the parties to the opposing parties. In exceptional cases, if the information is confidential in nature, the interested party has still to submit a non-confidential summary of such information or give reasons why a summary cannot be provided. Pursuant to the letter dated 07 August, 2018 submitted by the Domestic Industry after the oral hearing took place on 06 August, 2018, the Designated Authority by a letter dated 16 August, 2018 directed the Appellants to provide reasons for the confidentiality claim or to provide a summary, which directions were duly complied with by the Appellants by letter dated 23 August, 2018;

(ii) The Appellants also sent a communication dated 27 August, 2018 objecting to the claim of confidentiality of the Domestic Industry as being excessive. The Domestic Industry had also omitted to fill Forms 'A' to 'L' (barring 'G' & 'H') completely, but the Designated Authority did not address this issue;

(iii) Trade Notice dated 09 December, 2013 also provides that any submission made without a meaningful non-confidential version thereof or without a good cause statement on the confidentiality claim should not be taken on record by the Designated Authority;

(iv) Trade Notice dated 01 February, 2018 also provides the format to be submitted by the Domestic Industry;

(v) A conjoint reading of the Trade Notices would indicate that the data, which is non-confidential, should be made available without fail and where the data is confidential, parties must provide a non-confidential version thereof. However, if it is not possible to provide a non-confidential version, the parties must provide a meaningful summary and/or an indexed version of the documents. However, the Designated Authority did not issue directions to the Domestic Industry;

(vi) The Central Government in the communication dated 01 March, 2019, has not appreciated the contention of the Appellants and has merely stated that the issue of confidentiality had been dealt with by the Designated Authority in paragraphs 22 and 23 of the final findings; and

(vii) The Designated Authority has unevenly treated the Appellants and the Domestic Industry.

12. Ms. Reena Khair and Shri Rajesh Sharma, learned Counsel appearing for the Domestic Industry have, however, supported the impugned notification and the final findings. Learned Counsel submitted that the Designated Authority has examined the contentions raised by the Appellants both on 'normal value' and 'confidentiality'.

SUBMISSIONS ON 'NORMAL VALUE'

(i) The submission of the Appellants that since imports are prevented from entering the Thailand market freely, the limited supply has led to distortion in the domestic market price of the subject goods in Thailand and so the normal value should not be fixed based on sale price in the domestic market, but on exports to other countries is not correct. In this connection, learned Counsel submitted that a license has to be obtained both for domestic and import procurement and, therefore, the transactions are at par and there is no distortion of price on account of the regulations;

(ii) The Arms Act is essentially an Act for public safety and law and order and is not a trade measure for restricting the quantum of import or for regulation of price in the market. The considerations for issuance of a license have no connection with the domestic procurement or import. The Act merely seeks to regulate the use of the product in Thailand so as to prevent misuse against public safety as well as law and order. Thus, a user will have to obtain a license irrespective of whether Nitrocellulose is imported or procured domestically. The license also covers production and possession of Nitrocellulose;

(iii) The definition of 'normal value' contained in Explanation (c) to Section 9A(1) of the Tariff Act provides for different methodologies for fixation of normal value which has to be applied sequentially. The 'normal value' is the price for the like article when destined for consumption in the exporting country. In exceptional cases, when there are no sales of the like article in the ordinary course of trade, or when due to a particular market situation or low volume of sale in the domestic market, such sales do not permit a proper comparison, the normal value shall be determined either on the basis of the comparable representative price of the like article, when exported from Thailand to an appropriate third country, or the cost of production of the said article in the country of origin with reasonable addition for administrative, selling and general cost with profit. Thus, the domestic sale price can be rejected only when these two circumstances exist.

Clause (2) of Annexure I to the 1995 Rules provides for circumstances under which sale of the like product may be treated as not being in the ordinary course of trade by reason of price. The contention of the foreign exporter that the sales in the domestic market are not in the ordinary course of trade is fallacious since the regulations have no bearing on the terms and conditions of sales in the domestic Thailand market;

(vi) The verification process is only for verification of the information and is not a proper forum or stage for making any submissions. The final findings adequately deal with this issue;

(vii) After the issuance of the final findings on 31 December, 2018, the Appellants filed Writ Petitions in the Delhi High Court contending that the verification report did not form part of the record of the Designated Authority. The original records were produced before the High Court by the Designated Authority and the High Court found that the records included the verification report. The Designated Authority, however, agreed to provide the verification report to the foreign exporters within a period of one week and only liberty was given to the Writ Petitioners to represent to the Central Government for appropriate directions in accordance with law. No directions were issued to the Central Government not to issue the Notification under Section 9A of the Tariff Act. The final findings recommended imposition of anti dumping duty on imports of the subject good originating in or exported from Brazil, Indonesia and Thailand. Controversy was raised by only two exporters from Thailand. Thus, in the absence of any restraint by the High Court, the Central Government could have issued the Notification and the submission of the Appellants that issuance of the Notification prior to the filing of the representation by the Appellants before the Central Government was prejudicial to the foreign exporters is not correct. In any case, the Central Government was competent to amend the Notification, if so warranted, in terms of Section 9A of the Tariff Act read with Section 21 of the General Clauses Act, 1897.

SUBMISSIONS ON 'CONFIDENTIALITY'

(i) The Domestic Industry had claimed confidentiality in respect of detailed costing information since disclosure would adversely impact the ability of the Domestic Industry to compete with the foreign exporters in Indian and foreign markets. It has been consistently held that the cost of production and related data of Domestic Industry is of confidential nature and commercially sensitive and cannot be made available to others; and

(ii) Domestic Industry furnished complete information in the Forms to the Designated Authority on confidential basis. A meaningful summarization of this information was not possible without disclosure of sensitive information. A summary of the performance parameters was provided in Form 'H' and the Thailand exporters have also not provided meaningful summarization of cost information, except the performance parameters.

13. Shri Ameet Singh, learned Counsel appearing for the Designated Authority has supported the final findings and the Notification issued by the Central Government and made the following submissions:

(i) The investigation team conducted the verification after which it prepared a report for the Designated Authority. All the figures provided by the exporters were accepted by the verification team and as such there was no obligation on the part of the Designated Authority to supply the verification report to the exporters;

(ii) The verification report was a part of the records placed before the Designated Authority and this fact has also been recorded by the High Court in the judgment rendered in the two Writ Petitions filed by the Appellants;

(iii) The disclosure statement took into account all the information verified during verification conducted at the premises of the Appellants. All the figures reported by the exporters were adopted in entirety without any modification.

(iv) The claim regarding confidentiality has been duly considered by the Designated Authority and it is incorrect to assert that the Appellants have been discriminated in any manner; and

(v) The Designated Authority has correctly determined the 'normal value' since the Designated Authority had to first examine whether the domestic sales of the subject goods were representative and viable for permitting the determination of normal value. Both the Appellants had provided domestic sales price of the subject goods. During the period of investigation, Nitro Chemicals sold 4193 MT of the subject goods in the domestic market and all the sales were subjected to ordinary course of trade test. It was found that 99.96% of the sales in the domestic market were profitable.
14. Shri Rakesh Kumar, learned Authorised Representative appearing on behalf of the Central Government has submitted:

i. The Notification was issued by the Central Government after careful examination of the final findings of the Designated Authority; and

ii. While issuing the Notification, the Central Government did not violate any direction contained in the Judgment and Order dated 06 February, 2019 of the Delhi High Court. The two main prayers contained in the Writ Petitions were for quashing the final findings dated 31 December, 2018 and also for a direction refraining the Respondents from giving effect to and/or taking any action in furtherance to the final findings dated 31 December, 2018. These two prayers were not accepted and only an opportunity was given to the Appellants to file a representation to the Central Government, which representation was duly considered by the Central Government and in case the representation submitted by the Appellants had any merit, the Central Government would have made suitable amendments in the Notification.

15. The submissions advanced by the learned Counsel for the Appellants, learned Counsel for the Domestic Industry and the Designated Authority and the learned Authorised Representative appearing for the Central Government have been considered.

16. The Domestic Industry had submitted an application before the Designated Authority alleging dumping of "Non-Plasticized Industrial Grade Nitrocellulose excluding Nitrocellulose Damped in Ethanol and Waterwet", having nitrogen content in the range of 10.7% to 12.2%, originating in or exported from Brazil, Indonesia and Thailand", which article has been referred to as 'Nitrocellulose' in this order. The Designated Authority, after being satisfied from the evidence submitted in the application that it justified initiation of anti dumping investigation, issued a Public Notice by Notification dated 10 April, 2018 in terms of Rule 5 of the 1995 Rules to determine the existence, degree and effect of the alleged dumping on the subject goods. Four exporters/producers, including the two Appellants submitted questionnaire responses. Four importers and users of the subject goods also submitted questionnaire responses. The non-confidential version of the evidence presented by the various interested parties was made available for inspection in the form of a public file. Oral hearing was conducted on 06 August, 2018 and all the parties who presented their views in the oral hearing were requested to file written submissions as also rejoinder thereafter. The period of investigation was from April, 2016 to September, 2017. The examination of trends in the context of injury analysis covered the period from April, 2013 to March 2014, April, 2014 to March, 2015 April, 2015 to March, 2016 and the period of investigation.

17. It has been stated in the final findings that information provided by the interested parties on confidential basis was examined with regard to the sufficiency of the confidentiality claim and on being satisfied, the Authority accepted the confidentiality claims wherever warranted and such information has been considered as confidential and not disclosed to other interested parties. Wherever possible, parties providing information on a confidential basis were directed to provide sufficient non confidential version of the information filed on a confidential basis. The exporters were asked to file a revised non confidential version of the exporter questionnaire response and provide all necessary and relevant information. A revised non confidential version of the questionnaire was filed by the responding exporters.

18. A disclosure statement dated 07 December, 2018, as contemplated under Rule 16 of the 1995 Rules, was then published, informing all interested parties of the essential facts with a request to submit the comments by 14 December, 2018. The final findings were notified on 31 December, 2018 recommending imposition of anti dumping duty. The Central Government issued the Notification dated 07 February, 2019 imposing anti dumping duty on Nitrocellulose originating in or exported from Brazil, Indonesia and Thailand for a period of five years.

19. The export of Nitrocellulose by the two Appellants from Thailand is in issue in these Appeals. Broadly, two submissions have been made by the learned Counsel for the Appellants. They relate to non-consideration of the submissions made by the Appellants on 'Normal Value' and non-consideration of the submissions made by the Appellants on 'Confidentiality'.

20. It would be appropriate, before proceeding to examine the submissions made on behalf of the Appellants and the Respondents, to reproduce the relevant provisions of the Act and the 1995 Rules.
21. Section 9A of the Tariff Act deals with anti dumping duty on dumped articles. Subsection (1) of Section 9A, without the Explanation is as follows:

'SECTION 9A(1). Anti-dumping duty on dumped articles-

(1) Where any article is exported by an exporter or producer from any country or territory (hereinafter in this section referred to as the exporting country or territory) to India at less than its normal value, then, upon the importation of such article into India, the Central Government may, by notification in the Official Gazette, impose an anti-dumping duty not exceeding the margin of dumping in relation to such article.

22. The ‘margin of dumping’ has been defined in Explanation (a) to Section 9A(1) of the Tariff Act to mean the difference between the export price and the normal value.

23. ‘Normal Value’ has been defined in Explanation (c) to Section 9A(1) of the Tariff Act and it is as follows:

“normal value”, in relation to an article, means-

(i) the comparable price, in the ordinary course of trade, for the like article when destined for consumption in the exporting country or territory as determined in accordance with the rules made under sub-section (6);

(ii) when there are no sales of the like article in the ordinary course of trade in the domestic market of the exporting country or territory, or when because of the particular market situation or low volume of the sales in the domestic market of the exporting country or territory, such sales do not permit a proper comparison, the normal value shall be either-

(a) comparable representative price of the like article when exported from the exporting country or territory to an appropriate third country as determined in accordance with the rules made under sub-section (6);

(b) the cost of production of the said article in the country of origin along with reasonable addition for administrative, selling and general costs, and for profits, as determined in accordance with the rules made under sub-section (6):

Provided that in the case of import of the article from a country other than the country of origin and where the article has been merely transhipped through the country of export or such article is not produced in the country of export or there is no comparable price in the country of export, the normal value shall be determined with reference to its price in the country of origin."

24. Annexure I to the 1995 Rules deals with the principles governing the ‘determination of normal value, export price and margin of dumping’. Paragraph 2 of this Annexure deals with circumstances under which sales of the like product are not treated to be in the ordinary course of trade and the said paragraph is reproduced below:

"2. Sales of the like product in the domestic market of the exporting country or sales to a third country at prices below per unit (fixed and variable) costs of production plus administrative, selling and general costs may be treated as not being in the ordinary course of trade by reason of price. The designated authority may disregard these sales, in determining normal value, provided it has determined that-

(i) such sales are made within a reasonable period of time (not less than six months) in substantial quantities, i.e. when the weighted average selling price of the article is below the weighted average per unit costs or when the volume of the sales below per unit costs represents not less than twenty percent of the volume sold in transactions under consideration, and

(ii) such sales are at prices which do not provide for the recovery of all costs within a reasonable period of time. The said prices will be considered to provide for recovery of costs within a reasonable period of time if they are above weighted average per unit costs for the period of investigation, even though they might have been below per unit costs at the time of sale."

25. ‘Designated Authority’ is appointed under Rule 3 of the 1995 Rules and the duties of the Designated Authority have been enumerated in Rule 4. Rule 4(d) provides that it shall be the duty of the Designated Authority to:

"4(d) - to recommend to the Central Government-

(i) the amount of anti-dumping duty equal to the margin of dumping or less, which if levied, would remove the injury to the domestic industry, after considering the principles laid down in the Annexure III to these rules; and

(ii) the date of commencement of such duty;"

26. The investigation is initiated under Rule 5 and the principles governing investigations are contained in Rule 6. Rule 7 deals with 'confidential information' and is as follows:

"7. Confidential information-

(1) Notwithstanding anything contained in sub-rules (2), (3) and (7) of rule 6, sub-rule (2) of rule 12, sub-rule (4) of rule 15 and sub-rule (4) of rule 17, the copies of applications received under sub-rule (1) of rule 5, or any other information provided to the designated authority on a confidential basis by any party in the course of investigation, shall, upon the designated authority being satisfied as to its confidentiality, be treated as such by it and no such information shall be disclosed to any other party without specific authorization of the party providing such information.

(2) The designated authority may require the parties providing information on confidential basis to furnish non-confidential summary thereof and if, in the opinion of a party providing such information, such information is not susceptible of summary, such party may submit to the designated authority a statement of reasons why summarisation is not possible.

(3) Notwithstanding anything contained in sub-rule (2), if the designated authority is satisfied that the request for confidentiality is not warranted or the supplier of the information is either unwilling to make the information public or to authorize its disclosure in a generalized or summary form, it may disregard such information.

27. Rule 10 deals with 'determination of normal value, export price and margin of dumping' and is as follows:

"10. Determination of normal value, export price and margin of dumping. - An article shall be considered as being dumped if it is exported from a country or territory to India at a price less than its normal value and in such circumstances the designated authority shall determine the normal value, export price and the margin of dumping taking into account, inter alia, the principles laid down in Annexure I to these rules."

28. Rule 11 deals with determination of injury'. Rule 16 provides that, the Designated Authority shall, before giving its final findings, inform all interested parties of the essential facts under consideration which form the basis for its decision. Rule 17 deals with 'final findings' and the relevant portion is as follows:

"17. Final findings-

(1) The designated authority shall, within one year from the date of initiation of an investigation, determine as to whether or not the article under investigation is being dumped in India and submit to the Central Government its final finding-

(a) as to,-

(i) the export price, normal value and the margin of dumping of the said article;

(ii) whether import of the said article into India, in the case of imports from specified countries, causes or threatens material injury to any industry established in India or materially retards the establishment of any industry in India;

(iii) a casual link, where applicable, between the dumped imports and injury;

(iv) whether a retrospective levy is called for and if so, the reasons therefor and date of commencement of such retrospective levy:

Provided xxxx

Provided xxxx
(b) Recommending the amount of duty which, if levied, would remove the injury where applicable, to the domestic industry after considering the principles laid down in the Annexure III to rules."

29. Rule 18 deals with 'levy of duty' and the relevant portion is as follows:

"18. Levy of duty-

(1) The Central Government may, within three months of the date of publication of final findings by the designated authority under rule 17, impose by notification in the Official Gazette, upon importation into India of the article covered by the final finding, anti-dumping duty not exceeding the margin of dumping as determined under rule 17."

30. It is keeping in mind the aforesaid factual position and the relevant provisions of the Act and the Rules that the two submissions advanced by the learned Counsel for the Appellants have to be considered.

SUBMISSIONS ON 'NORMAL VALUE'

31. The contention of the learned Senior Counsel for the Appellants is that the price of the product under consideration in the domestic market is distorted because of the strict licensing requirements imposed by the Thailand Government. 'Normal value' should, therefore, have been calculated on the basis of the sales to third countries or the cost of production.

32. To appreciate this contention, the definition of 'normal value' has to be examined. As noticed above, 'normal value' in relation to an article means the comparable price, in the ordinary course of trade, for the article when destined for consumption in the exporting country. It is only when there are no sales of the article, in the ordinary course of trade, in the domestic market of the exporting country or when because of the particular market situation or low volume of the sales in the domestic market of the exporting country that the normal value shall be either a comparable representative price of the like article when exported from the exporting country to an appropriate third country or the cost of production of the said article in the country of origin along with reasonable addition for administrative, selling and general costs, and for profits.

33. The contention of the Appellants is that the export price to India is not comparable with the price in the domestic market because the product under consideration is subject to domestic regulations enforced by Defence Industrial Departments because of which there is a limited supply available within the country leading to an increase in the price.

34. The contention of the Domestic Industry is that the Appellants failed to substantiate that there was any distortion in the domestic selling price and mere existence of license regulations cannot lead to a conclusion that there is a distortion in price. The submission is that a licence has to be obtained, both for domestic and import procurement and, therefore, the transactions are at par and there is no distortion of price on account of the regulations imposed by the Thailand Government.

35. It would, therefore, be necessary to examine the provisions of the Arms Control Act, 1987 enacted by Thailand, which it is stated by the Appellants contains restrictions in obtaining a licence to sell the article, thereby causing distortion in the price. The preamble to the said Act states that it was considered expedient to revise the laws on arms control. Section 3 provides that all laws, rules and other regulations inconsistent with the provisions of the Act shall be replaced by the Act.

36. 'Arms' has been defined in Section 4 of the Arms Act and is as follows:

"Arms- means weapons, weapons accessories, chemical substances, biological substances, radioactive substances or devices or instruments which may be used in combat or warfare as notified by the Minister in the Government Gazette under section 7;"

37. Section 7 of the Arms Act deals with the notification to be used prescribing weapons, weapons accessories, chemical substances, biological substances, radioactive substance or devices or instruments which may be used in combat or warfare to be arms. It is as follows:

"Section 7 - The Minister with approval of the Council of Ministers shall have the power to publish in the Government Gazette the Notification prescribing weapons, weapon accessories, chemical substances, biological substances, radioactive substance or devices or instruments which may be used in combat or warfare to be arms."
38. Sections 15 and 17 of the Arms Act provides as follows:

"Section 15 - No person shall order, import, produce or possess arms without license granted by the Permanent Secretary for Defence. In granting of license under paragraph one, conditions may be imposed therewith. The application for and the grant of license shall be in accordance with the rules, procedure and conditions as prescribed in the Ministerial Regulation.

Section 17 - Licenses are, viz.: (1) order license; (2) import license; (3) produce license; (4) possession license. The order license shall extend to importer of arms under the order license."

39. Section 26 of the Arms Act provides as follows:

"Section 26 - A license issued under this Act shall be valid through the period specified therein, but not exceeding one year as from the date of its issuance or renewal. A licensee who desires to renew license shall apply for the renewal thereof prior to the expiry date specified therein. Upon submission of the application, such licensee may continue his or her business until the Permanent Secretary for Defence refuses to renew license. The application for, and the granting of, the renewal of license shall be in accordance with the rules, procedure and conditions as prescribed in the Ministerial Regulation."

40. In terms of section 7 of the Arms Act, a Notification was issued and with regard to 'Nitrocellulose' it is as follows:

41. It would be seen that the Arms Act merely seeks to regulate the use of the product in Thailand and has been enacted to ensure public safety as well as law and order. Section 15 of the Arms Act provides that no person shall order, import, produce or possess arms without a license granted by the Permanent Secretary for Defence. Section 16 bars issuance of a licence to any person convicted of an offence or to a person not of age or to a person of unsound mind. Thus, the consideration for issuance of a license has no connection with the domestic requirement or import of the article. Section 26 provides that the licence shall be valid through the period specified therein, but not exceeding one year from the date of its issuance or renewal. The restriction is, therefore, on the period and not on the quantity. There is no restriction on the quantity or value of import nor does it contain any mechanism for fixing of a selling price in the domestic market. A user has to obtain a license whether the article is imported or procured from domestic market. The contention of the Appellant that there is a distortion because of the regulations in the domestic market price as a result of which 'normal value' has not been correctly arrived at, cannot, therefore, be accepted.

42. This issue was examined by the Designated Authority in paragraph 101 (ix) of the final findings and it is reproduced below:

"101 (ix) With regard to the contention that the domestic prices of Nobel NC Co., Ltd. and Nitro Chemicals Industry Limited should not be considered for determination of normal value, it is noted that the selling price has been determined on the basis of the records Non-Confidential Page 43 of 46 kept by the producers, maintained as per GAAP in Thailand, and the same is found to be appropriate for evaluating whether the sales in domestic market have been made in the ordinary course of trade. In any case, the exporter themselves have admitted that the Thai Army is regulating only the storage and usage of the product concern and the suppliers are required to obtain license before supplying the product in Thai market. Licensing procedure is common in most of the countries where products is of or can be used for explosives or any other hazardous substance. Mere licensing procedure does not mean that the domestic selling prices cannot be in the ordinary course of trade."

43. It has, however, been submitted on behalf of the Appellant that the sales in the domestic market are not 'in the ordinary course of trade' because of the restrictions.

44. This contention cannot also be accepted. Clause (2) of Annexure 1 of the 1995 Rule provides that sales of the product in the domestic market of the exporting country may be treated as not being in the ordinary course of trade by reason of price and the Designated Authority may disregard these sales in determining the normal value, provided the factors enumerated therein exist. The Appellants have not been able to substantiate that these factors exist. The Designated Authority had, however, conducted the ordinary course of trade test in respect of sales made in Thailand. It found that Nitro Chemicals had sold 4193 MT of the subject goods in the domestic market and 99.96% of the sales were profitable.

45. The relevant portions of the findings of the Designated Authority are contained in '36. Since the above mentioned producers/exporters have filed the questionnaire response, the Authority determines Normal Value and Export Price in respect of cooperative exporters. The general methodology adopted by the Authority for determination of Normal Value for these exporters is to first examine whether the domestic sales of the subject goods by the responding exporters in their home markets were representative and viable for permitting determination of Normal Values on the basis of domestic selling prices and whether the ordinary course of trade test was satisfied as per the data provided by the respondents.

42. The questionnaire response has been filed by Nitro Chemical Industry Limited and Nobel NC Co., Ltd., Thailand. Nitro Chemical Industry Ltd. is a producer of a subject good and is the holding company. Nobel NC Co., Ltd. is also the producer of the subject good and is 100% owned by Nitro Chemical Industries. Both producers/exporters have provided domestic sales price details of the subject goods in Appendix-4 of their response. Nitro Chemical Industry Limited sells the subject goods to customers directly in the domestic market in Thailand. The adjustment of expenses such as inland freight, bank charges, credit cost, and other expenses has been made towards the determination of domestic sales price in the foreign producer’s country. Nobel NC Co., Ltd., sell the subject goods in the domestic market 100% through the holding company Nitro Chemical Industry. The adjustment of expenses such as inland freight, bank charges, credit cost, storage cost, and other expenses have been made towards the determination of domestic sales price in the foreign producer’s country. During the POI Nitro Chemical Industry Limited sold 4193Mt of the subject goods in the domestic market. All these sales were subjected to an ordinary course of trade test. It was found 99.96% of the sales in the domestic market were profitable. Accordingly, the normal value for the above producers/exporters work out on the basis of total sale is  US$ per MT."

46. The alternative methods for determination of the normal value as provided for in Clause (ii) of Explanation to Section 9A(1) of the Tariff Act can be resorted to only when there are no sales of the article in the ordinary course of trade in the domestic market. Thus, when substantial sales have been made by the exporter in the domestic market and in the absence of any good reason for reduction of the domestic sale price, the ‘normal value’ would be the comparable price, in the ordinary course of trade, for the like article when destined for consumption in the exporting country.

47. Learned Senior Counsel for the Appellants has placed reliance upon the decision of Appellate Body in United States - Anti-Dumping Measures on Certain Hot-Rolled Steel Products From Japan. In particular, reliance has been placed on paragraph 145, which is reproduced below:

"145. In our view, the duties of investigating authorities, under Article 2.1 of the Anti-Dumping Agreement, are precisely the same, whether the sales price is higher or lower than the "ordinary course" price, and irrespective of the reason why the transaction is not "in the ordinary course of trade". Investigating authorities must exclude, from the calculation of normal value, all sales which are not made "in the ordinary course of trade". To include such sales in the calculation, whether the price is high or low, would distort what is defined as 'normal value'."

48. The Panel was established to consider a complaint by Japan with respect to anti-dumping measures imposed by the United States on imports of certain hot-rolled flat-rolled carbon-quality steel products ("hot-rolled steel") from Japan. This decision of the US Appellate Body refers to Article 2.1 of the Anti-Dumping Agreement which provides that normal value must be established on the basis of sales made, "in the ordinary course of trade". Thus, sales not made "in the ordinary course of trade" must be excluded from the calculation of normal value. It is in this context that the Appellate Body observed as follows:

"141. We can envisage many reasons for which transactions might not be "in the ordinary course of trade". For instance, where the parties to a transaction have common ownership, although they are legally distinct persons, usual commercial principles might not be respected between them. Instead of a sale between these parties being a transfer of goods between two enterprises which are economically independent, transacted at market prices, the sale effectively involves a transfer of goods within a single economic enterprise. In that situation, there is reason to suppose that the sales price might be fixed according to criteria which are not those of the marketplace. The sales transaction might be used as a vehicle for transferring resources within the single economic enterprise. Thus, the sales price may be lower than the "ordinary course" price, if the purpose is to shift resources to the buyer, who then receives goods worth more than the actual sales price. Or, conversely, the sales price may be higher than the "ordinary course" price, if the purpose is to shift resources to the seller, who receives higher revenues for the sale than would be the case in the marketplace. There are many reasons relating to corporate law and strategy, and to fiscal law, which may lead to resources being allocated, in these ways, within a single economic enterprise.

142. We note that determining whether a sales price is higher or lower than the "ordinary course" price is not simply a question of comparing prices. Price is merely one of the terms and conditions of a transaction. To determine whether the price is high or low, the price must be assessed in light of the other terms and conditions of the transaction. Thus, the volume of the sales transaction will affect whether a price is high or low. Or, the seller may undertake additional liability or responsibilities in some transactions, for instance for transport or insurance. These, and a number of other factors, may be expected to affect an assessment of the price."

49. In the present case, the contention of the Appellants that there was a distortion in the domestic selling price because of the licensing regulations has not been accepted. The Designated Authority had examined the volume of the sales transaction and found as a fact that the Nitro Chemicals sells the subject goods to the customers directly in the Domestic Market and the adjustment of expenses was made towards the determination of the domestic sales price. It also found that Nitro Chemicals had sold 4193 MT of the subject goods in the Domestic Market at profit. It cannot, therefore, be urged that any error was committed by the Designated Authority in determining the 'normal value' on the basis of the comparable price. The decision of the US Appellate Body, therefore, does not help the Appellants.

50. In view of the aforesaid discussion, it is not possible to accept the contention of learned Counsel for the Appellants that "normal value" should not have been fixed in relation to the comparable price for the like article when destined for consumption in the exporting country and should have been the comparable representative price of the like article when exported from the exporting country to an appropriate third country or should have been the cost of production of the said article in the country of origin.

51. Learned Counsel for the Domestic Industry has also made a submission that the licensing regulations for the product under consideration would not be applicable for the reason that it is only when Nitrogen content in 'Nitrocellulose' is above 12.6%, that it would be considered as explosive. The submission is that since the Nitrogen content in the product under consideration is between 10.7% to 12.2%, it would not be included in the definition of 'Arms' contained in section 4 of the Arms Act. Be that as it may, it is not necessary to examine this issue since this issue was not raised by the Domestic Industry before the Designated Authority.

52. The submission of learned Senior Counsel for the Appellants that non-furnishing of the verification report has caused great prejudice to the Appellants also, cannot be accepted. The verification is carried out to verify the factual information given in the exporter questionnaire. In the present case, all the factual information provided by the exporter was accepted by the Designated Authority and, therefore, there was no reason to seek any clarification or supply a copy of the verification report. It is only if there was any doubt at the time of carrying out the inspection or if the data supplied was not in accordance with the inspection, that the Appellants may have been called upon to explain. For the same reason, it is not possible to accept the contention of learned Senior Counsel for the Appellants that the legal submissions made for the exporters during the time of inspection should have been taken into consideration in the verification report.

53. It has also been submitted by learned Senior Counsel appearing for the Appellants that the impugned Notification issued by the Central Government is not only in violation of the principles of natural justice but is also against the spirit of the order passed by the Delhi High Court on 06 February, 2019 in the two Writ Petitions filed by the Appellants. In this connection, it has been submitted that the High Court had directed the Respondent to furnish a copy of the verification report within a week to the learned Counsel appearing for the Writ Petitioners and it would be open to the Petitioners to represent to the Central Government in a suitable manner for appropriate directions in accordance with law, but the impugned Notification was issued by the Central Government immediately on the next day on 07 February, 2019 without even giving an opportunity to the Appellants to make a representation to the Central Government after a copy of the verification report was furnished to it.

54. Learned Counsel appearing for the Central Government has, however, submitted that apart from the fact that the Appellants are two exporters from Thailand only, whereas the impugned Notification covers exporters from Brazil and Indonesia also the impugned Notification cannot be said to violate any of the directions contained in the order of the High Court. In this connection it has been pointed out that a copy of the verification report was supplied to the Appellants and the representation filed by the Appellants to the Central Government was also duly considered.

55. The submissions advanced by the learned Counsel on this aspect as also the records have been examined.

56. The final findings were notified by the Designated Authority on 31 December, 2018. The Appellants had not filed any representation to the Central Government to assail the final findings. Writ Petitions were, however, filed by each of the two Appellants on 14 January, 2019 before the Delhi High Court. The main prayers contained in the Writ Petitions are:

"(i) To quash the final findings dated 31 December, 2018 and the disclosure statement dated 07 December, 2018;
(i) To refrain the Respondents from giving effect to and/or taking any action in furtherance to the final findings dated 31 December, 2018; and
(ii) To decide the matter afresh after taking into account the submissions made by the Petitioners."

57. It clearly transpires from the order dated 06 February, 2019 passed by the Delhi High Court that the main submission advanced by the Petitioners was that the verification report was not a part of the record placed before the Designated Authority when it gave the final findings on 31 December, 2018. It is for this reason that the records placed before the Designated Authority were directed to be produced by the High Court. The High Court found as a fact that the verification report with details of the verification carried out in the premises of the petitioners between 10 to 12 September, 2018 was a part of the records placed before the Designated Authority. The High Court thereafter noted the statement made by the learned Counsel appearing for the Designated Authority that a copy of the verification report shall be furnished to the Petitioners. It is at that stage that learned Senior Counsel appearing for the Petitioners made a submission that there were other grounds dealing with the issue of confidentiality and the failure on the part of the Designated Authority to deal with the submissions, which submissions the Petitioners would agitate through a representation to the Central Government for seeking its intervention and appropriate action. The High Court, therefore, directed the Respondents to furnish a copy of the verification report within a week to the learned Counsel for the Petitioners and left it open to the Petitioners to represent to the Central Government in a suitable manner for appropriate directions in accordance with law. The learned Senior Counsel for the Petitioners, sought liberty to withdraw the Writ Petitions, in the light of the submissions made. The Writ Petitions were ultimately dismissed as withdrawn.

58. A copy of the order dated 06 February, 2019 passed by the Delhi High Court in Writ Petition (C) No. 312/2019 and Writ Petition (C) No. 313/2019 filed by the two Appellants is reproduced below:

"Further to the previous order, the records considered by the Designated Authority (DA) were produced in Court; the records include the Verification Report carried out by the DA.

The petitioners had complained that this verification was not part of the record. The exporter's Verification Report is part of the record along with the details of verification carried out in the premises of the petitioners between 10th and 12th September 2018.

Learned counsel for the DA submits, on instructions, that a copy of the Verification Report will be furnished to the petitioners. Learned senior counsel for the petitioners submits that, besides, there are other grounds (dealing inter alia with the issue of confidentiality and the DA's failure to deal with its submission) which it would agitate through representation to the Central Government, seeking its intervention and appropriate action.

The respondents shall furnish a copy of the Verification Report within a week to the petitioners' counsel. It is open to the petitioners to represent to the Central Government in a suitable manner for appropriate directions in accordance with law.

Learned senior counsel for the petitioners seeks liberty to withdraw these petitions in the light of these submissions. The writ petitions are accordingly dismissed as withdrawn along with the pending applications."

59. The Central Government could have waited for a representation from the two Writ Petitioners (the Appellants in this Appeal) after furnishing a copy of the verification report, but in the facts and circumstances of the case, it cannot be said that the issuance of the Notification by the Central Government on 07 February, 2019 is contrary to the directions issued by the High Court on 06 February, 2019. What needs to be noticed is that anti dumping duty was imposed on the import of Nitrocellulose originating in and exported from Brazil, Indonesia and Thailand. The Appellants are only two exporters from Thailand. The other exporters from Brazil and Indonesia had not assailed the final findings. A specific prayer had also been made in the Writ Petitions for quashing the final findings and to restrain the Respondent from giving effect and/or taking any action in furtherance to the final findings. This relief was not granted to the Writ Petitioners by the Delhi High Court. A submission was made by learned Senior Counsel for the Petitioners, once the main submission regarding the verification report not being a part of the records placed before the Designated Authority was found to be incorrect after examination of the records, that there were other submissions relating to confidentiality and failure on the part of the Designated Authority to deal with this submission, which would be agitated by filing a representation to the Central Government. It is for this reason that the High Court left it open to the Petitioners to file a representation to the Central Government. A verification report was furnished to the Writ Petitioners within a week and the Writ Petitioners had also filed a representation dated 15 February, 2019 before the Designated Authority as also to the Joint Secretary in the Government of India. These representations were received on 18 February, 2019. The Central Government issued an Office Memorandum dated 20 February, 2019 requiring the Designated Authority to take appropriate action. The comments submitted by the Petitioners were examined by the Central Government and a communication dated 01 March, 2019 was sent to the Appellants informing them that there was no change in the final findings issued on 31 December, 2018. The communication is reproduced below:

"Your comments on the verification report are examined and observations are as under:

1. In the Verification Report, an inadvertent error had crept in the Table indicating the quantity and invoice value for invoice number SIE1600450, No. SIE1600854, No. SIE1601105 and No. SIE1600980 but the same was detected and suitably rectified at the time of issuance of Disclosure and Final Findings. In view of that, there is no change in the disclosure statement or in the Final Finding issued dated 31.12.2018.

2. Regarding Normal Value, authority determined Normal Value and issues regarding the Normal Value, these have been addressed in para no. 42 and 43 of the Final Finding issued on 31.12.2018.

3. The issue of confidentiality has been dealt with by the Authority in para no. 22 and 23 of the Final Finding issued on 31.12.2018.

In view of the above, there is no change in the Final Finding issued on 31.12.2018.

This issues with the approval of the Authority.'

60. It is not the case of the Central Government that the comments dated 15 February, 2019 submitted by the two Writ Petitioners were not considered because a Notification had earlier been issued on 07 February, 2019. On the other hand, the comments were duly examined by the Central Government.

61. Thus, the Appellants are not justified in asserting that the principles of natural justice have been violated or that the impugned Notification dated 07 February, 2019 issued by the Central Government has violated the order dated 06 February, 2019 passed by the Delhi High Court.

62. The fixation of ‘normal value’ in the final findings of the Designated Authority, therefore, does not suffer from any error.

63. The issue as to whether the submissions raised by the Appellants about ‘confidentiality’ have been correctly appreciated by the Central Government would be seen while dealing with the submissions relating to ‘confidentiality’ made by learned Senior Counsel for the Appellants.

CONFIDENTIALITY

64. The contention of the learned Senior Counsel for the Appellants is that the Designated Authority is required to make available all the evidences presented to it by one party to the other interested parties participating in the investigation, except in cases when information is considered confidential in nature, but even in such a case the interested party should submit a non-confidential summary of such information or give adequate reasons as to why even a summary cannot be provided.

65. It has been pointed out that the Appellants had sent a communication dated 27 August, 2018 to the Designated Authority questioning the excessive confidentiality claimed by the Domestic Industry and also the fact that it had even omitted the formats A to L (barring G & H) completely, which it was required to submit, but this issue raised by the Appellants has not been addressed by the Designated Authority. It has been submitted that the information claimed as confidential by the Domestic Industry was critical for the determination of injury and in the absence of the said information, a meaningful analysis could not be made by the interested parties. To support this connection, reliance has been placed on the decisions of the Supreme Court in Reliance Industries Ltd. vs Designated Authority and Others MANU/SC/4106/2006 : 2006 (202)ELT 23 (SC) and Union of India and Another Vs Meghmani Organics Limited and Others MANU/SC/1283/2016 : 2016 (34) ELT 449 (SC) and the two Trade Notices dated 09 December, 2013 and 01 February, 2018. The submission in short is that the issue of confidentiality has not been properly appreciated either by the Designated Authority or by the Central Government.

66. Learned Counsel appearing for the Domestic Industry has, however, refuted the submissions advanced by learned Senior Counsel for the Appellants. It has been submitted that confidentiality was claimed by the Domestic Industry on the cost of production, which is commercially sensitive and a disclosure would adversely impact the interest of the Domestic Industry. It has also been submitted that the information was also not capable of summarization and wherever possible, a summary was provided. The Domestic Industry had given a non-confidential summary of performance parameters, which contained the relevant parameters for analysis on injury. Learned Counsel also pointed out that the issue of confidentiality has been properly appreciated by the Designated Authority in paragraphs 100(xii) and 101 (viii) of the final findings. In this connection, reliance has been placed upon a Division Bench decision of the Principal Bench at Delhi in Anwar Jute Spinning Mills Ltd. vs Union of India MANU/CE/0787/2017 : 2018 (363) ELT 724 (Tri.-Del). It has also been submitted that complete information in the Format was submitted by the Domestic Industry on confidential basis and that even the Appellants had not provided a meaningful summarization of cost production and had only provided the performance parameters.

67. Learned Authorized Representative of the Department appearing for the Central Government and the learned Counsel appearing for the Designated Authority have also submitted that the objections to the claim of confidentiality of the Domestic Industry have been properly appreciated, both by the Designated Authority and the Central Government.

68. Rule 7 of the 1995 Rules deals with confidential information. It provides that notwithstanding anything contained in sub-rules (2), (3) and (7) of Rule 6 or sub-rule (2) of Rule 12 or sub-rule (4) of Rule 15 or sub-rule (4) of Rule 17, the copies of applications received under sub-rule (1) of Rule 5, or any other information provided to the Designated Authority on a confidential basis by any party in the course of investigation, shall, upon the Designated Authority being satisfied as to its confidentiality, be treated as such by it and no such information shall be disclosed to any other party without specific authorization of the party providing such information. Sub-rule (2) of Rule 7 provides that the Designated Authority may require the parties providing information on confidential basis to furnish non-confidential summary thereof and if, in the opinion of a party providing such information, such information is not susceptible of summary, such party may submit to the Designated Authority a statement of reasons why summarization is not possible. Sub-rule (3) of Rule 7 provides that notwithstanding anything contained in sub-rule (2) of Rule 7, if the Designated Authority is satisfied that the request for confidentiality is not warranted or the supplier of the information is either unwilling to make the information public or to authorize its disclosure in a generalized or summary form, it may disregard such information.

69. The issue relating to confidentiality was noted by the Designated Authority in paragraphs 20, 21, 22 and 23 of the final findings. After reproducing Rule 7 of the 1995 Rules in paragraph 22 of the findings, the Designated Authority made the following observations in paragraph 23:

"23. Submissions made by the interested parties with regard to confidentiality and considered relevant by the Authority are examined and addressed accordingly. Information provided by the interested parties on confidential basis was examined with regard to the sufficiency of the confidentiality claim. The Authority notes that any information which is available in the public domain cannot be treated as confidential. The Authority directed the exporters to file a revised non-confidential version of questionnaire response and provide a meaningful response. The responding exporters filed a revised response. On being satisfied, the Authority has accepted the confidentiality claims, wherever warranted and such information has been considered confidential and not disclosed to other interested parties. The Authority made available the non-confidential version of the evidence submitted by various interested parties in the form of a public file."

70. In the communication dated 01 March, 2019 sent by the Central Government to the Appellants in regard to the letter dated 15 February, 2019, it has been noted that the issue of confidentiality had been dealt with by the Designated Authority in paragraphs 22 and 23 of the final findings notified on 31 December, 2018.

71. As noted above, paragraph 22 of the final findings reproduces Rule 7 of the 1995 Rules and paragraph 23 states that on being satisfied the Authority has accepted the confidentiality claims, wherever warranted and such information has been considered confidential and not disclosed to the other parties. It also mentions that the Authority made available the non-confidential version of the evidence submitted by the various interested parties in the form of a public file.

72. Emphasis of learned Senior Counsel for the Appellants is on the observations made in paragraph 21 of the final findings that no submissions regarding confidentiality were made by the opposing interested parties and it has been submitted that the Designated Authority had not even cared to examine the submissions made by the opposing interested parties on the confidentiality claim.

73. The statement made in paragraph 21 of the final findings is apparently not correct since the exporters had made submissions, which submissions were noted by the Designated Authority in paragraph 100 (xii). These submissions have been considered in paragraph 100 (viii) of the final findings. Thus, the mistake that crept in paragraph 21 of the final findings has not caused any prejudice to the Appellants.

74. On merits, it has been submitted that the Domestic Industry omitted formats A to L (barring G & H) completely, which they were required to submit.

75. It is not possible to accept the contention of the learned Senior Counsel for the Appellants. The formats said to have been omitted contain the following information:

76. The Domestic Industry asserts that complete information in connection with these formats was submitted to the Designated Authority on a confidential basis and a meaningful summarization of this information was not possible without disclosure of sensitive information and information relating to cost of production and related data. The information relating to cost of production and related data of the Domestic Industry and exporters has always been treated as confidential. This is what was observed by the Tribunal in paragraph 25 of the decision rendered in Anwar Jute Spinning Mills Ltd. The same is reproduced below:

"25. The appellants also questioned the claim of confidentiality in respect of DGCIS data. It is claimed that the data should have been disclosed under Rule 7 of AD Rules. We note that the DA had placed the DGCIS data in the public file and there was adequate opportunity for the appellants to examine and provide their comments. The cost of production and related data of the DI are necessarily of confidential nature and commercially sensitive. The same cannot be made available to others."

77. It has also been stated on behalf of the Domestic Industry that a summary of the performance parameters was provided in format ‘H’ of the petition filed by the Domestic Industry before the Designated Authority and this contained the salient details for injury analysis and even the two Appellants had not provided a meaningful summarization of cost information except the performance parameters.

78. It is thus not possible to accept the contention of learned Senior Counsel for the Appellants that the Domestic Industry had wrongly claimed confidentiality with regard to the information required to be furnished in the aforesaid formats or that the Domestic Industry was not justified in not providing even a summarization of the information. The Appellants are, therefore, not justified in asserting that they have been unevenly treated by the Designated Authority.

79. Learned Senior Counsel for the Appellants has placed reliance on the judgment of the Supreme Court in Reliance Industries Ltd. The Supreme Court examined whether Rule 7 of the 1995 Rules contemplates any right in the Designated Authority to claim confidentiality and the observation is as follows:

"43. In our opinion, Rule 7 does not contemplate any right in the DA to claim confidentiality. Rule 7 specifically provides that the right of confidentiality is restricted to the party who has supplied the information, and that party has also to satisfy the DA that the matter is really confidential. Nowhere in the rule has it been provided that the DA has the right to claim confidentiality, particularly regarding information which pertains to the party which has supplied the same. In the present case, the DA failed to provide the detailed costing information to the appellant on the basis of which it computed NIP, even though the appellant was the sole producer of the product under consideration, in the country. In our opinion this was clearly illegal, and not contemplated by Rule 7."

80. The aforesaid decision in Reliance Industries deals with a case where the Designated Authority had claimed confidentiality. The Court held that the Rules do not provide that the Designated Authority has a right to claim confidentiality, particularly regarding information which pertains to a party which has supplied the information.

81. The decision of the Supreme Court in Reliance Industries has placed reliance upon the decision of the Supreme Court in Sterlite Industries (India) Ltd. vs Designated Authority MANU/SC/1105/2003 : 2003 (158) ELT 673 (SC). It would, therefore, be appropriate to reproduce paragraph 3 of this judgment, which is as follows:

"3. In our view, it is not necessary for us to go into the merits of this matter as we propose to send the matter back to CEGAT after laying down certain guidelines. From what has been argued before us, it appears that in pursuance of Rule 7 of the Customs Tariff (Identification, Assessment and Collection of Anti-Dumping Duty on Dumped Articles and for Determination of Injury) Rules, 1995 the Designated Authority is treating all material submitted to it as confidential merely on a party asking that it be treated confidential. In our view, that is not the purport of Rule 7. Under Rule 7, the Designated Authority has to be satisfied as to the confidentiality of that material. Even if the material is confidential the Designated Authority has to ask the parties providing information, on confidential basis, to furnish a non-confidential summary thereof. If such a statement is not being furnished then that party should submit to the Designated Authority a statement of reasons why summarization is not possible. In any event, under Rule 7(3) the Designated Authority can come to the conclusion that confidentiality is not warranted and it may, in certain cases, disregard that information. It must be remembered that not making relevant material available to the other side affects the other side, as they get handicapped in filing an effective appeal. Therefore, confidentiality under Rule 7 is not something, which must be automatically assumed. Of course, in such cases there is need for confidentiality, as otherwise trade competitors would obtain confidential information, which they cannot otherwise get. But whether information supplied is required to be kept confidential has to be considered on a case-to-case basis. It is for the Designated Authority to decide whether a particular material is required to be kept confidential. Even where confidentiality is required, it will always be open for the appellate authority, namely, CEGAT to look into the relevant files".

82. The Supreme Court in the aforesaid decision in Sterlite Industries, which has been referred to in Reliance Industries, held that the Designated Authority has to satisfy itself about the confidentiality and even if the material is confidential, the Designated Authority has to ask the parties providing information on a confidential basis, to furnish a non-confidential summary thereof. If such statement has not been furnished, then the party should submit to the Designated Authority a statement of reasons why summarization was not possible. The Supreme Court also observed that there was a need for confidentiality, as otherwise trade competitors would obtain confidential information which they cannot otherwise get and that the Designated Authority has to consider, on a case to case basis, whether a particular material is required to be kept confidential.

83. In Meghmani Organics Limited, the Supreme Court also examined the provisions of Rule 7 of 1997 Rules relating to confidentiality and observed as follows:

"30. We may only explain here that while dealing with objections or the case of the concerned parties, the DA must not disclose the information which are already held by him to be confidential by duly accepting such a claim of any of the parties providing the information. While taking precautions not to disclose the sensitive confidential informations, the DA can, by adopting a sensible approach indicate reasons on major issues so that parties may in general terms have the knowledge as to why their case or objection has not been accepted in preference to a rival claim. But in the garb of unclaimed confidentiality, the DA cannot shirk from its responsibility to act fairly in its quasi-judicial role and refuse to indicate reasons for its findings. The DA will do well to remember not to treat any information as confidential unless a claim of confidentiality has been made by any of the parties supplying the information. In cases where it is not possible to accept a claim of confidentiality, Rule 7 hardly leaves any option with the DA but to ignore such confidential information if it is of the view that the information is really not confidential and still the concerned party does not agree to its being made public. In such a situation the information cannot be made public but has to be simply ignored and treated as non est.”

84. Learned Senior Counsel for the Appellants has also placed reliance upon the Trade Notice No. 1/2013 dated 09 December, 2013. The relevant portion on which reliance has been placed is reproduced below:

"2. In pursuance to the provision of Rule 7 of the above Rules, all interested parties to anti-dumping investigation are advised to comply with the following requirements while submitting “confidential information” before the Designated Authority in an anti-dumping investigation:

i. The parties making any submission (including Appendixes/Annexures attached thereto) before the authority including questionnaire response, are required to file the same in two separate sets, in case ‘confidentiality’ is claimed on any part thereof:

(a) One set marked as Confidential (with title, number of pages, index, etc.) and

Any submission made without such marking shall be deemed as non-confidential. Soft copy of both the versions will also be required to be submitted, along with the hard copies, to the authority.

ii. The Confidential version shall contain all information which are by nature confidential and/or other information which the supplier of such information claims as confidential. For information which are claimed to be confidential by nature or the information of which confidentiality is claimed because of other reasons, the supplier of the information is required to provide a good cause statement along with the supplied information as to why such information cannot be disclosed.

iii. The non-confidential version is required to be a replica of the confidential version with the confidential information indexed or blanked out (in case indexation is not feasible) and summarized depending upon the information on which confidentiality is claimed. The non-confidential summary must be in sufficient detail to permit a reasonable understanding of the substance of the information furnished on confidential basis. However, in exceptional circumstances, party submitting the confidential information may indicate that such information is not susceptible of summary, a statement of reasons why summarization is not possible, must be provided to the satisfaction of the Designated Authority."

85. Annexure I to the aforesaid Trade Notice deals with guidelines on confidentiality on information/data contained in the petition, response, questionnaire or other submissions and paragraphs 2, 3 and 4(i) are reproduced below:

"2. The claim of confidentiality on any information/data should be submitted in the following format as a forwarding letter of the NCV:

3. The reason/justification should be on the basis of criteria laid down in Article 6.5 of the Anti-Dumping Agreement. The reason/justification should be specific clearly demonstrating/establishing that disadvantage would occur by disclosure of information.

4. The confidentiality claims and decision thereon are case-specific. Therefore, precedence of any previous cases would not be considered as justification for claiming confidentiality. In this regard attention is invited to the following:

(i) The following are examples of information which may be treated as confidential:

(a) Information of significant competitive advantage to a competitor, production costs, distribution costs, upstream and downstream pricing data, profit and loss margins, certain conditions of sale, research/investigation data, technical designs, business or trade secrets concerning the nature of a product or production process, specification of components, performance/profitability data, details of margin of dumping and adjustments claimed by the party etc. are some examples of such type of information. List is not exhaustive.
(b) Information, the disclosure of which would have a significant adverse effect upon the party who submitted the information or the party from whom the information was acquired by the party who submitted the information. Some examples are - customer and supplier lists, letters from buyers on price negotiations, details of technical collaboration."

86. A perusal of the aforesaid Annexure does indicate that the claims of confidentiality have to be decided on a case to case basis and examples have also been given as to when information can be treated as confidential. The records indicate that the Domestic Industry had filed the claim of confidentiality in the format provided above.

87. Learned Senior Counsel for the Appellants has also placed reliance upon the Trade Notice No. 02/2018 dated 01 February, 2018 relating to streamlining of the Anti Dumping Investigation Process. It provides that the Domestic Industry, in order to avoid delay, should submit information in the formats A to L. The relevant portion is reproduced below:

"Attention of Trade and Industry is invited to the existing domestic industry's questionnaire and to state that the following revised formats should be submitted by the domestic industry while filing the petition to avoid delays caused by subsequent requests for additional information:

88. This Trade Notice does not mention that information supplied in the aforesaid formats has to be disclosed and cannot be claimed as confidential. A party can claim confidentiality, which of course has to be examined by the Designated Authority.

89. Thus, what has to be seen is, whether the satisfaction of the Designated Authority regarding confidentiality was proper and whether the Domestic Industry was justified in not providing summarization under Rule 7 of the 1995 Rules. The Designated Authority, in the present case, on being satisfied about the claims of confidentiality made by the Domestic Industry, did not call upon the Domestic Industry to make any further disclosure. It has been found in the preceding paragraphs of this order that the claim of confidentiality made by the Domestic Industry was justified.

90. The finding of the Designated Authority in regard to 'confidentiality', therefore, does not suffer from any infirmity so as to call for any interference in this appeal.

91. Thus, for all the reasons stated above, there is no merit in the appeals. They are, accordingly, dismissed.

FINAL ORDER NO. 51151/2019

Per: Rachna Gupta:

None is present for the Appellant. It is brought to the notice by learned Departmental Representative (Shri Rakesh Kumar) that:
1. The matter has been adjourned for more than eight numbers of times.
2. In fact, the issue involved herein stands already settled.
3. Present is the case of smuggling red sanders along with the consignment clearance whereof was got facilitated by the present Appellant as custom broker.
4. Penalty under Section 114(a) of Customs Act, 1962 as was imposed upon the appellant by the adjudicating authorities below stands confirmed even by this Tribunal vide the final order Nos. 56122 and 56127 of 2017 dated 22.08.2017.

It is finally impressed upon that due to the aforesaid reasons there remains no merits in this case. As a result, the appellant is just gaining time by seeking adjournments in the matter.

Keeping in view the said submissions and perusing the same as correct from the record, we are of the opinion that pendency of appeal cannot be allowed to be a ground for the appellant to avoid the illegality already noticed against him.
Simultaneous absence of the Appellant for the day is sufficient for us to hold that he is not interested in pursuing the matter and is rather gaining time and the benefit of avoiding penalty already impressed upon him by keeping the appeal pending.

As a result, we hereby dismiss the impugned appeal for intentional non-prosecution and also for the reason that appeal otherwise has no merits issue being already settled against assessee.

[COURT NO. I]

R.N. METAL (INDIA) PVT. LIMITED

COMMR. OF C. EX. & GST, JAIPUR

REPRESENTED BY :Ms. Nupur Maheshwari, Advocate, for the Appellant.

Shri Rakesh Kumar, AR, for the Respondent.

2. The appellant imported certain goods and filed two Bills of Entry declaring the import of ‘Alloy Steel Melting Scrap’ falling under Tariff Item 7204 29 90 of the Customs Tariff. The Customs authorities opened and examined all the ten containers covered under the two Bills of Entries and found that seven containers were stuffed with the declared item but in respect of three containers the goods were found to be ‘Grinding Media Balls’ which appear to be new and unused and in perfect safe and size. Out of the total goods imported such goods were separated and proposed for classification as ‘grinding media balls’ under Customs Tariff Item 7325 91 00/7326 11 00 which attracted the higher rate of duty.

3. The Customs Department proceeded to investigate a case of alleged misdeclaration. Three samples were drawn of the goods said to be ‘Grinding Media Balls’ and the opinion of following experts were taken by Customs.

(i) Sh. P.C. Sanghi, Chartered Engineer.

(ii) Sh. Virendra Kumar Gupta, Production Manager M/s. Vaibhav Meta Cast Pvt. Ltd.

(iii) Sh. B.K. Sharma, Associate General Manager M/s. Hindustan Zinc Limited.

The experts opined that the samples were of ‘Grinding Media Balls’ - new and unused.

4. Examination of the samples by Chemical Examiner, CRCL, Government of India resulted in the opinion that the fact whether such goods were used or not cannot be ascertained by chemical test. Sample of the goods sent to National Test House, Government of India begot the opinion that the grinding balls imported were not as per IS Standard in terms of hardness and chemical composition.

5. Opinion of Shri I.P.S. Arora, Chemical Engineer was also obtained at the instance of the appellant who stated that the grinding media balls were found with deep cuts and varying dimensions.

6. In the above scenario, show cause notice dated 8-5-2014 was issued by the Customs Department which resulted in the Order-in-Original, dated 10-11-2014 in which the charge of misdeclaration was upheld; the ‘Grinding Media Balls’ were ordered for reclassification and differential duty was charged. Imported offending goods were ordered for confiscation and allowed for redemption. Penalties were also imposed on the appellant as well as Sh. R.N. Sharma, Managing Director.
7. When the issue was challenged by the appellant before the Commissioner (Appeals) he set aside the order of the Original Authority vide his order dated 18-2-2015, against which Revenue filed an appeal before this Tribunal, which was decided by this Tribunal vide Final Order No. 51995/2017, dated 28-2-2017 in which the issue was remanded to the Commissioner (Appeals) for de novo decision after allowing the cross-examination of the experts on whose reports Revenue was relying. The present impugned order was passed by the Commissioner (Appeals) in the de novo proceedings in which the Order-in-Original was restored. Aggrieved by the impugned order, the present appeals have been filed.

8. With the above background, we heard Ms. Nupur Maheshwari, Ld. Advocate for the appellant and Sh. Rakesh Kumar, Ld. AR representing Revenue.

9. The arguments advanced on behalf of the appellant are summarized below:

(i) The imported consignment was accompanied by Pre-inspection Report by an agency at the port of origin in which it stands certified that the imported goods are alloy steel melting scrap. Since the inspecting agency is approved by the DGFT, such certificate is to be accepted.

(ii) The report issued by the CRCL has stated that the fact whether the imported goods were new or old cannot be ascertained by chemical analysis but the test report from National Test House, which is a Government agency, has opined that the samples tested were of grinding balls but which did not satisfy the IS standards.

(iii) The certificate issued by the Chartered Engineer Sh. I.P.S. Arora has categorically stated that the grinding balls were found with deep cuts indicating that such goods were old and hence scrap.

In view of the above evidences in support of the appellant, the charge of misdeclaration cannot be sustained.

(iv) The appellant has also requested for allowing clearance of the goods after mutilation. This will ensure that the goods cannot be utilised for any purpose other than as scrap for melting but such request has been denied by the Department.

10. Ld. AR appearing for the Revenue justified the impugned order. He argues that the Commissioner (Appeals) has revised his order after allowing cross-examination of the various experts. He also argued that the expert Sh. I.P.S. Arora who has examined the goods at the instance of the appellant has also retracted his original statement and his cross-examination has confirmed that the samples were new and unused grinding balls.

11. Ld. AR further argued that the new grinding balls were concealed within the consignment of melting scrap. This evidently substantiates the charge of misdeclaration. Further, keeping in view the fact that the importer is also engaged in the manufacture of grinding balls, he argued that the impugned goods were new and meant to be sold in India.

12. We have heard both sides at length and carefully gone through the appeal record.

13. The allegation in the present case is that the appellant has declared the imported goods as ‘Alloy Steel Melting Scrap’. But amidst the declared melting scrap, the examination by Customs Officers revealed that ‘Grinding Media Balls’ were found which were new and unused. Such balls can also be considered as scrap only if they were new and [not] old.

14. The proceedings before the lower authorities have taken twists and turns with contrary opinions expressed by different experts. The opinion given by CRCL as well as National Test House has been of little help in deciding the controversy one way or other. The three experts whose opinion was taken by the Customs Department took the view that the impugned goods were ‘Grinding Media Balls’ which were new and unused. During the cross-examination of these experts before the Commissioner (Appeals), they have stood by their opinion but the other expert Sh. I.P.S. Arora, Chartered Engineer who has originally given the opinion that there were deep cuts and were of varying dimensions retracted his original view during cross-examination.

15. It has been emphasised again and again before us on behalf of the appellant that the Pre-inspection Certificate obtained at the load port has certified the goods as scrap. But we are of the view that for purposes of assessment of imported goods, the examination of goods at the port in India is more relevant. Hence, we are inclined to give more credence to the opinion of the experts obtained locally. The three experts commissioned by Customs has unanimously opined that the impugned goods were new ‘Grinding Media Balls’. Sh. I.P.S. Arora, Chartered Engineer who has originally given a contrary opinion, has during cross-examination, retracted his original view. In the above scenario, we are of the view that the order passed by the lower authority, who has gone by the majority of the opinions, merits no interference. His views are quoted below with our approval.

“In light of the facts as mentioned above available on records as discussed in point Nos. (A) to (H) above I find that for classifying the goods under above heading there is no pre-condition of fulfilment of condition of specification as per IS standard. As well as in all the report of experts, every expert including National Test House, CRCL, independent expert, chartered engineer have accepted that goods in questions are Grinding Media Balls. As regards whether the imported grinding media balls are new or old one, in my opinion the same can be verified by visual inspection of all the three experts Sh. B.K. Sharma, Sh. P.C. Sanghi and Sh. V.K. Sanghi have opined that the goods imported were Grinding Media Balls. As regards National Test House reports it is provided that goods examined by them are grinding media balls having size as per packing slip and ball diameter within specified value, but not confirming to the IS specification in respect of hardness and chemical composition. Sh. Rakesh Saini, Scientist Incharge of National Test House in his statement has stated that as their test house is not technically equipped to test and make comments in respect of the condition of the Grinding Media Balls samples i.e. whether New or Old forwarded by appellant to their office. In the Customs Tariff Act, [1975], for classification of the goods under Chapter Headings 7325 and 7326, there is no pre-condition of fulfilment of condition of IS specification, end use of the goods, etc. In the panchnama dated 20-11-2013 it is also described that old and used grinding media balls which cannot be used as Grinding Media Balls already not included in the quality of seized goods. I therefore, uphold the findings of the Adjudicating Authority regarding classification of goods in question.

16. The appellant has declared the goods in their documents submitted to the department at the time of importation classified the same as Alloy Melting Scrap falling under Chapter 7204 29 90 of the Customs Tariff Act, 1975. As discussed in the previous para it is clear that the classification of the goods i.e. Grinding Media Balls 53.240 MT falling under Chapter 7325 of the Customs Tariff Act, 1975 as determined by the department after investigation of the case. Therefore, after investigation, the fact of the misdeclaration of classification of goods in question was detected. Once, the misdeclaration of classification of goods was sustained, the value declared by the appellant would automatically be required to be redetermined. Thus, the view taken by the Adjudicating Authority in the matter is correct, accordingly I uphold the same.”

17. In view of the above discussions, we uphold the impugned order and reject the appeals.

Per: Bijay Kumar:

These appeals are filed against the common adjudication order No. 12/2017 dated 27.10.2017 passed by the Commissioner, Customs, New Customs House, New Delhi. Vide the impugned order, the appellant No. 1 - M/s HLPL was imposed a penalty of Rs. 10 lakhs and appellant No. 2 – Shri Ashok Sharma was imposed penalty of Rs. 5 lakhs under the provisions of Section 114AA of Customs Act, 1962 (Act, for short).

2. The brief facts of the case are that the appellant, a CHA firm had been appointed by the importer viz. Newtex Exim Pvt. Ltd., 1077, Gandhi Gali, Fatehpuri, Delhi-110006 for clearance of their cargo. The appellant is a company having its Director Mr. Ashok Sharma and engaged in the business of Custom House Agent service for which licence has been issued to them by Commissioner (Import & General), New Delhi, under Regulation 9(1) of CHALR, 2004 Licensing Regulation having its validity till 9.10.2022. The appellant was engaged by importer M/s Newtex Exim Pvt. Ltd. for the clearance of their consignment of rough diamond. The appellant has taken the necessary documents required for the purpose of Customs clearance and KYC norms such as IEC certificate, address proof, identity proof, (PAN Card, Voter ID or passport), bank statement, bank attested signature of the proprietor/company of the importer firm. The appellant, after verifying and satisfying themselves all these documents, have filed the Bill of Entry No. 4314276 dated 10.1.2004 for clearance of rough diamond imported on behalf of their client, M/s Neotex Exim Pvt. Ltd. However, the consignment was detained by the Commissioner of Customs for the alleged undervaluation and subsequently the valuation of the imported consignment was determined by the jewellery appraiser on 10.2.2010. It was found, on examination, that the declared value of imported item i.e. rough diamond was highly inflated in the said Bill of Entry filed for the clearance of the goods. As per the jewellery appraiser, the actual value of the consignment was to the extent of USD 14,297 instead of the declared value of USD 88,641.40. After having a preliminary scrutiny of the documents, the case was transferred by the Commissionerate, to Department of Revenue, Intelligence (DRI), New Delhi for further investigation. During the course of enquiry by the DRI, it was alleged that the CHA company also was involved in the case of overvaluation of the import consignment, which was on the basis of report received from the Jewellery Expert. It was alleged that the CHA/Director failed to verify the KYC norms under the CHALR, 2004 and therefore, a Show Cause Notice bearing No.
33A/XI/32/2013-CI(NEO)/428 dated 29.1.2015 was issued to them asking as to why penalty should not be imposed on them under Section 112(a) & (b), (iii) and
(iv) and under Section 114AA of the Customs Act. The case was adjudicated by the impugned adjudication order and the appellants were imposed a penalty of Rs. 10 lakhs in case of the appellant No. 1 (HLPL) under Section 114AA of the Act and Rs. 5 lakhs on Appellant No. 2 (Shri Ashok Sharma) under the provisions of Section 114AA of the Act.

3. Ld. Advocate on behalf of the appellants submit that appellant No. 1 (M/s HLPL) was granted the permission to work as a Custom House Agent, vide Licence No. R-49/DEL/Cus/2012 on 10.10.2012 by the respondent Commissioner under Regulation 9(1) of CHALR, 2004 which was in vogue till 9.10.2022 and the appellant No. 1 was doing the work of customs clearance at different ports all over India by getting a requisite permission from the competent authority.

- That during the normal business activity in the beginning of 2014, some of the importer approached the appellant No. 1 for the clearance of their import consignment of rough diamond. Before the job of clearing was undertaking by the appellant NO. 1, they requested them to supply KYC norms from the importer such as IEC certificate, address proof, identity proof (PAN card, Voter ID or passport etc.) bank statement, bank attested signature of the proprietor/partners/Director of the company.

- That after getting the copy of all the document, the appellants cross checked the same with the original copy of the import document and thereafter verified the IEC code from the DGFT website. After getting satisfied with the relevant record provided for KYC norm, appellant accepted the import documents and filed the relevant bills of entry.

- That the appellant filed the Bill of entry for clearance of rough diamond on behalf of their client, Neotex Exim Pvt. Ltd. However, the said consignment was detained by the Commissioner of Customs and later on the valuation had been done by the Jewellery Appraiser on 10.2.2014, where he concluded that the declared value of the imported rough diamond, was much more than prevalent market price/import price. As per the Jewellery Appraiser report, the actual value of the consignment was arrived at USD 14,297 instead of declared value of USD 88,641/-.

- That, after the preliminary investigation the case was transferred to the DRI by New Custom House. That, in the course of enquiry that the statement of G card holder of the appellant company has been recorded on 17.6.2014 and thereafter the statement of appellant No. 2 - Shri Ashok Sharma, Director of the appellant company (Appellant No. 2) was recorded on 2.7.2014 where inter alia, stated that :

(i) That Shri Uday Bhagat has approached them in the first week of the January, 2014 for clearance of the aforesaid consignment and after verification of KYC documents they prepared the check list on the basis of documents supplied by the importer, which led to the filing of Bill of Entry. The Bill of entry was filed on the first check basis.

- That during the investigation it was found by the DRI that the import was routed through Axis Bank, who vide their letter dated 11.7.2014 informed the DRI that the amount has not been remitted to the foreign supplier and that the account was opened by one Shri Uday Bhagat. Thereafter, the consignment was seized by the DRI, on the reasonable belief that the goods imported are liable for confiscation under the provisions of Custom Act for the alleged violation as stated above.

- That during the course of enquiry, it was found by the DRI that the building which was declared in the KYC norm i.e. premises No. 1079-80, Gandhi Gali, Fatehpuri, New Delhi, was found locked. The statement of Shri Vivek Sharma, was recorded under Section 108 of the Customs Act who stated that:

(a) He had gone to collect some import documents from Shri Uday Bhagat from his office premises at 1077, Gandhi Gali, Fatehpuri, Delhi and he had his mobile number Shri Uday Bhagat.

(b) That after not getting their address conveniently he talked to Shri Uday Bhagat, who described the address, and then he went inside a building where Shri Uday Bhagat was present, although there was no sign board of any office.
After getting the show cause notice, the appellants vide their letter dated 4.1.2016 has raised the two objections before the adjudicating authority which is as under:

(i) As the CHALR, 2004 was superseded vide Notification dated 21.6.2013 and new Regulation called CBLR, 2013 hence alleging contravention of CHALR, 2004 is illegal and penalty cannot be imposed on them under the provision of old Act.

(ii) The show cause notice dated 29.1.2015 has been issued under Section 110(2) of the Customs Act, 1962 and, therefore, penalty should not be imposed unless the show cause notice is issued under Section 124 of the Customs Act, 1962.

- That the appellant vide letter dated 8.8.2016, addressed to the Assistant Commissioner of Customs (Adj.) informed that the allegation that the appellant has not filed the reply of show cause notice is incorrect as the appellant vide their letter dated 2.1.2016 has raised their objection on two grounds, first the alleged violation of CHALR, 2004 is not applicable in their case due to superseding the same by CBLR, 2013 and secondly the show cause notice has not been issued under Section 124 of the Act. It was also stated by the appellant that it is an established Rule that physical verification of premises or personal meeting the importer is not required for the verification of KYC norms as per CBLR Regulation 2013.

- That the appellant only came to know about the alleged mis-declaration of the imported goods after examination by Jewellery Appraiser and further by the government registered valuer. Thus, the value declared at the time of filing of Bill of Entry, they could not have known about the alleged mis-declaration by the importer. Finally, it was also argued for contravention of provisions of CBLR, 2013, penalty cannot be imposed under Section 112(a) (b) of the Customs Act, 1962 and proposed action under Section 114AA has not been explained/mentioned in the show cause notice. Considering the above submission it was argued that the show cause notice deserves to be dropped.

4. On the other hand, the ld. DR supported the impugned order and reiterated the grounds contained therein. He has thus argued that impugned order is not suffering from any infirmities and required to be upheld.

5. We have heard rival contentions and perused the case record. The issue before us is to decide as to whether the appellants has any role in the deliberate overvaluation of the imported goods by the importer and also whether they have failed to verify the KYC norm as per the CBLR, 2013. We find that the show cause notice has been issued under Section 110(2) of the Act and not under the Section 124 of the Customs Act. For the better appreciation of the fact, we hereby reproduce the provisions of Section 110 of the Act:

110. Seizure of goods, documents and things.—

(1) If the proper officer has reason to believe that any goods are liable to confiscation under this Act, he may seize such goods: Provided that where it is not practicable to seize any such goods, the proper officer may serve on the owner of the goods an order that he shall not remove, part with, or otherwise deal with the goods except with the previous permission of such officer. 1[(1A) The Central Government may, having regard to the perishable or hazardous nature of any goods, depreciation in the value of the goods with the passage of time, constraints of storage space for the goods or any other relevant considerations, by notification in the Official Gazette, specify the goods or class of goods which shall, as soon as may be after its seizure under sub-section (1), be disposed of by the proper officer in such manner as the Central Government may, from time to time, determine after following the procedure hereinafter specified.

(1B) Where any goods, being goods specified under sub-section (1A), have been seized by a proper officer under sub-section (1), he shall prepare an inventory of such goods containing such details relating to their description, quality, quantity, mark, numbers, country of origin and other particulars as the proper officer may consider relevant to the identity of the goods in any proceeding under this Act and shall make an application to a Magistrate for the purpose of—

(a) certifying the correctness of the inventory so prepared; or

(b) taking, in the presence of the Magistrate, photographs of such goods, and certifying such photographs as true; or
(c) allowing to draw representative samples of such goods, in the presence of the Magistrate, and certifying the correctness of any list of samples so drawn.

(1C) Where an application is made under sub-section (1B), the Magistrate shall, as soon as may be, allow the application.

(2) Where any goods are seized under sub-section (1) and no notice in respect thereof is given under clause (a) of section 124 within six months of the seizure of the goods, the goods shall be returned to the person from whose possession they were seized: Provided that the aforesaid period of six months may, on sufficient cause being shown, be extended by the 2[Commissioner of Customs] for a period not exceeding six months.”

Section 110(2) of the Act deals with extension of time period for issuance of show cause notice within prescribed period of six months of the seizure of the goods”.

6. It is obvious from the show cause notice that the same has not invoked the provisions of Section 124 of Customs Act in this case. The adjudicating authority has dealt with the above issue in the order at para 27.19 of the Act, wherein it is mentioned as under :

“27.19 I find that importer; its director and the CHA have submitted in their written submissions as well as during the course of PH that impugned Show Cause Notice has been issued under Section 110(2) of the Customs Act, 1962. In this regard they submitted that unless the SCN was issued under Section 124 of the Customs Act, 1962, penalty could not be imposed on the noticees. They relied upon the Karnataka High Court Judgement in Commissioner Vs. Kesar Marble & Granites as reported in 2012 (278) ELT 42 (Kar.). I find that the ratio of this case is not applicable in the present case in hand. In Kesar Marbles & Granites the SCN was mistakenly issued under Section 124 of the Customs Act, 1962 demanding duty of Rs. 1,43,45,371/- and proposing penalties. The assessee appeared and contended that the provisions of the Customs Act were not applicable to the present case. Realising the said mistake the revenue issued a letter dated 12.12.2000 for demand of duty under the provisions of the Central Excise Act, 1944. The circumstances of the present case are totally different. The goods under dispute were seized under Section 110 of the Customs Act, 1962 and SCN was rightly issued under Section 110(2) of the Customs Act, 1962 read with Section 124 ibid. Further the noticee had relied upon the CBEC Circular 65/2000-Cus. dated 27.7.2000. I find that prior to issue of the current SCN a Show Cause Notice DRI F. No. 33A/XI/32/2013-CI(NT) dated 7.7.2014 read with Addendum dated 10.7.2014, was issued for extension of time limit in respect of goods imported vide Bill of Entry No. 4314276 dated 10.1.2014. The Commissioner of Customs (I&G), New Customs House, New Delhi vide Order-in-Original No. 50/NLB/Commr./I&G/2014 dated 25.7.2014 extended the time limit for issue of Show Cause Notice under Section 124 of the Customs Act, 1962 in respect of the detained goods imported vide Bill of Entry No. 4314276 dated 10.1.2014 by six months i.e. up to 29.1.2015, under the proviso to sub section (2) of Section 110 of Customs Act, 1962. Consequently, SCN dated 29.1.2015 was issued under proviso to Section 110(2) of the Customs Act, 1962 read with Section 124 ibid.”

7. From the aforesaid discussion of ld. Adjudicating authority, it is evident that the another show cause notice has been issued by the DRI dated 7.7.2014 (supra) read with Addendum dated 10.7.2014 and the Commissioner (I&G), New Customs House has extended the time limit for issue of show cause notice under Section 124 of the Customs Act in respect of detained goods vide Bill of Entry No. 4314276 dated 10.1.2014 by six months i.e. up to 29.1.2019 under the provisions of sub-section (2) of Section 110 of the Customs Act. From the above, it has been held that the present show cause notice is issued in continuation to the earlier show cause notice issued by the DRI where the provisions of Section 124 of the Act has been invoked. The appellant has not provided the copies of these orders before us so as to arrive at the conclusion as to whether the impugned show cause notice and adjudication order is the extension of the previous show cause notices along with addendum which has been clearly spelt out with adjudicating authority. Therefore, we have no option but to hold that the present show cause notice in effect has to be treated as having been issued under Section 124 of the Customs Act in effect has to be treated as proviso under 110(2) of the Act.

8. Regarding the following of the KYC norms by the appellant, we find that the statement of Shri Vivek Sharma letter dated 21.1.2015, the employee of M/s
HLPL, has stated that when he went to collect the documents, Shri Uday Bhagat asked him to come in a street at Fatehpuri, wherein he was standing before a building which did not have any sign board or bear a number. It is seen from the adjudication order that the declared residential premises of Shri Uday Bhagat and Shri Sunder Prakash Sharma, the Directors of M/s Neotex Exim Pvt. Ltd. that they were not residing at the declared premises. The adjudicating authority also found that the IEC of the importer revealed that no firm/business enterprises in the name of M/s Neotex Exim Pvt. Ltd. existed at the given address and the enquiries conducted at the declared residential premises revealed that the said address was incomplete or fictitious. Under the circumstances, we are in agreement with the finding of the Id. Adjudicating authority that CHA helps not properly verified the functioning of the client from at the declared address by using reliable independent and authenticate documents. This was a serious lapse on part of the CHA in verifying the KYC before taking up the Custom clearance of consignment of rough diamond imported by M/s Neotex Exim Pvt. Ltd. The appellants, considering the nature of the imported goods i.e. rough diamond, would have exercised more vigilant approach before taking up the consignment for Customs clearance after verification of KYC norms of the importer, which has not been done in this case. It is stated by the ld. Advocate that the order of the adjudicating authority has failed to discuss the various case law and their relevance in the case at hand. We find that the adjudicating authority has dealt with each and every case law cited by them at length and concluded that those are not relevant in the fact and circumstances of present case.

9. In view of above, we do not want to discuss the same again for sake of brevity in our order. In view of above, we hold that the impugned order is correct, legal and proper under the provisions of Customs Act and merits no interfere. Accordingly, we reject the appeals filed by the appellants.

Per: C L Mahar:

Briefly stated facts are that the appellant is holder of a Customs Broker Licence No. R-57/DEUCUS/2006 (PAN No. AAHCM8516H) valid upto 14/05/2022 issued by the Commissioner of Customs (I&G), New Delhi.
2. Officers of Directorate of Revenue Intelligence (Hqrs.), New Delhi vide Panchnama dated 28.02.2017/01.03.2017 drawn at the Air Cargo (Import-Shed), Delhi examined the Bill of Entry no. 8710782 dated 28/02/2017 and 8710323 dated 28/02/2017. One Shri Surender Kumar, Director of M/s K. R. Express Pvt. Ltd., claimed himself to be representative of the appellant. During examination, huge quantities of branded cosmetics; Kingston makes Pen Drives; Sandisk Flash drive; Panasonic High Definition Video Cameras; Phantom 4 pro DJI Drone; branded Wrist watches; Sony HDR CX405 Handy Cam/4K Handy Cam FDR; Samsung Galaxy S5/S6/Note 4/J-7; I-Phone 6/6S/ 6Plus/5s; 360 degree panoramic intelligent camera; branded 320 GB Internal Hard Disc; Branded Sports Shoes and Glass Chattons etc. were found, which were not declared before the Customs authorities at the time of clearance. Two more consignments covered under Bills of Entry No. 8709104 and 8707042, both dated 28/02/2017, imported by M/s Logitrade Impex Solutions Pvt. Ltd. and cleared by the appellants were presented by Shri Surender on 01/03/2017 on examination and on comparison of declared weight and the weight found during examination by DRI there was a difference of 268 Kgs. (in respect of 187 Pkts.) and 60 Kgs. (in respect of 115 Pkts.). In the case of 187 Pkts., comparison of marking present on said pkts., revealed non existence of certain packets which were not present in the Packing List. That the packing list for 115 Pkts. was not produced by the CB despite being demanded by the officers. On the basis of an enquiry conducted against the CB his CB licence has been revoked and his security deposit of Rs. 75,000/- has been forfeited vide the impugned order against which the appellant has filed the present appeal. On the basis of an enquiry conducted against the CB it has been held that the CB has violated the provisions of Regulations 11(a), 11(b), 11(d), 11(n) & 11(j) of the Custom Broker Licensing Regulations, 2013. Though the enquiry officer has found violations of Regulations 11(a), 11(b) and 11(n) and not of Regulations 11(d) and 11(j) but the Competent Authority in a disagreement note to the findings of the enquiry officer found that the appellant had violated the provisions of Regulation 11(d) and 11(j) also. The adjudicating authority upheld the charge of violation of all these regulation i.e. Regulations 11(a), 11(b), 11(d), 11(n) & 11(j) of the Custom Broker Licensing Regulations, 2013. The relevant regulations read as:

Regulation 11(a): "A Custom Broker shall obtain an authorization from each of the companies, firms or individuals by whom he is for the time being employed as a Customs Broker and produce such authorization whenever required by the Deputy Commissioner of Customs or Assistant Commissioner of Customs, as the case may be;"

Regulation 11(b): "A Customs Broker shall transact business in the Customs Station either personally or through an employee duly approved by the Deputy Commissioner of Customs or Assistant Commissioner of Customs, as the case may be."

Regulation 11(d): "A Custom Broker shall advise his client to comply with the provisions of the Act and in case of non-compliance, shall bring the matter to the notice of the Deputy Commissioner of Customs or Assistant Commissioner of Customs, as the case may be;"

Regulation 11(j): "A Customs Broker shall not refuse access to, conceal, remove or destroy the whole or any part of any book, paper or other record, relating to his transactions as a Customs Broker which is sought or may be sought by the Commissioner of Customs."

Regulation 11(n): "A Custom Broker shall verify antecedent, correctness of Importer Exporter Code (IEC) number, identity of his client and functioning of his client at the declared address by using reliable, independent, authentic documents, data or information."

3. The learned Commissioner while upholding the charge of failure by the appellant to comply with the above requirements of law has observed that the appellant had filed Bills of Entry for imports made by M/s Excel Enterprises, M/s S.G. International, M/s Logitrade Impex Solutions Pvt. Ltd and Other importers through Delhi Air Cargo (Import). From various statements of IEC holders, it appeared that they (M/s Excel Enterprises, M/s S.G. International, M/s Logitrade Impex Solutions Pvt. Ltd and other importers) did not engage the appellant for Customs clearance related work and the appellant and their representatives failed to produce such authorization at the time of examination. The IEC holder of the other two import firms M/s Excel Enterprises and M/s S.G. International had even denied to be aware of these imports and admitted that their IECs were being misused by some other person i.e. Shri Amardeep by paying some monetary consideration to them. Further, during the search of the declared office premises i.e. L-74/284, Street No. 7, Pandit Jagannath Complex, Mahipalpur, Delhi-37, on 28/02/2017 (the office premises declared by Shri Surender Kumar claiming to authorized representative of the appellant), no relevant documents like KYC documents and file of earlier imports clearance made by the appellant were found. The adjudicating authority has further observed that the KYC documents of the importers not produced before the investigating agencies till 09/03/2017 despite having undertaken by Shri Surender Kumar to do so but same were produced belatedly before the Licence Issuing Authority only. Further, no authorized representative or 'G' or 'H' card holder of the appellant firms were found present at the time of examination of the seized consignments. Only Shri Surender Kumar and Shri Narender said to be representatives of Multi-Wings were present at the time of examination, but both failed to produce any document in support of their claim of being authorized representatives of the appellant. It was also observed that Shri Surender Singh and Shri Narender were neither any F card not ‘G’ card nor ‘H’ card holders of the appellant firm. Although the appellant has a G card holder Sh. Ajesh Kumar on its rolls, but he was not present at the time of verification and examination of the cargo. That it was Shri Surender only, who was using the appellant's licence for clearing of the import consignments and was dealing with the importers for said imports. That the high value goods suspected to be concealed/mis-declared had been removed from the original consignments and the same had been replaced by Shri Surender which is evident from the fact that description of goods declared at the time of import and goods found during panchanama proceedings were different and there is also mis-matching of markings on the packets versus markings present in Packing list presented before the Customs. That the necessary documents such as KYC, Authorizations and even packing list was not produced promptly to aid the DRI investigation. Submission of the requisite documents at later stage will not serve any purpose and that too to License Issuing Authority who has nothing to do with this packing list. Accordingly, the adjudicating authority in exercise of his powers under Regulation 18 and Regulation 20(7) of CBLR, 2013 passed the impugned order revoking the appellants Customs Broker Licence and also forfeited security deposit of Rs. 75,000/- furnished by the CB which is present matter of appeal before us.

4. The learned advocate appearing on behalf of the appellant has vehemently opposed the charges made in the impugned order. Refuting the charge of violation under Regulation 11(a) that the Appellant undertook the work relating to clearance of the impugned consignments without obtaining any authorization from the importers and that the director of the Appellant did not present himself before the investigation agency as well as did not submit the required authorization and KYC documents of the importers he argued that no authorization and KYC were demanded by DRI from Appellant at the time of investigation of the case. That as and when the appellant was asked to join investigation proceedings, he dutifully appeared before Investigating Team and tendered his true statement. That That on 08/03/2017, DRI informed the authorized person Shri Surinder Singh to remain present in his office at Mahipalpur with authorizations and KYC of importers concerned but DRI Officers neither visited the office premises of the authorized person nor ordered to submit the authorization and KYC documents to the respective office of DRI. They also did not visit the office of Appellant. That the allegation that the Appellant had not obtained any authorization from importers is not sustainable in the eyes of law as the authorizations and KYC documents were with the Appellant. Refuting the charge of violation under Regulation 11(d), argued that the goods covered under Bill of Entry Nos. 8710782 dated and 8710323, both dated 28/02/2017 were examined in the presence of one Sh. Surender, Director of M/s K.R. Express Pvt. Ltd.(itself a CB) who claimed himself to be a representative of the Appellant without having any G-Card / F-Card and without having any authority to do so in terms of regulation 11(b) of CBLR is not sustainable because the appellant filed the above mentioned bills of entry on the basis of documents supplied by the respective importer. That after filing the bills of entry, the representative of appellant Sh. Ajesh Kumar (G-Card holder) was present in Air Cargo Complex (Import) for examination and assessment of imported goods but he was ordered by the Shed Officer to move to the group in New Custom House regarding some paperwork and when he came back, the Officers of DRI closed the main gate and did not allow anyone to enter in the complex including Sh. Ajesh Kumar (G-Card holder). That when the Officers of Customs started examination of the goods, under the aforesaid bills of entry, no representative of the appellant was present in Cargo Complex except Shri Surender, Director of M/s K.R. Express Pvt. Ltd. (a Customs Broker) who was known to the appellant and was allowed to represent him in cargo complex. Further, refuting the charge of violation of Regulation 11(d), he argued that the goods were declared as per import documents furnished by the importers and there is no way to ascertain the veracity or correctness of contents of these consignments without examination. That there is no evidence or allegation that the Appellant CB had any prior knowledge about the actual contents of the consignments. Hence, no mis-declaration is imputable to the Appellant CB. With regard to consignments imported through Bill of Entry Nos. 8700104 and 8707042, both dated 28/02/2017, he stated that no discrepancy was found with respect to number of packets and there was only difference in declared weight. He argued that the declared weight was on estimates only as the goods were assessable with respect to number only. He vehemently opposed the finding that there was any replacement of goods and argued that there was no evidence of any replacement Further refuting the charge of violation under Regulation 11(j) he again re-iterated his argument that no KYC was demanded by the DRI and not even a single packet was found short when examined by the DRI with respect to goods covered Bill of Entry Nos. 8700104 and 8707042 and that the Customs Duty assessed is on the basis of numbers and not weight. Further refuting the charge of violation of Regulation 11(n) that the Appellant failed to present KYC documents to the investigating agency; and that the Appellant has not verified that antecedents, correctness of IEC Number, identity of his client and functioning’ of his client at the declared address by using reliable, independent, authentic documents, data or information he argued that the findings are against facts as before filing respective bill of entry, the Appellant verified the documents supplied by the importers such as IEC, Pan Card, Voter Card, Vat Registration and obtained the authority letter from importers and being completely satisfied with the documents filed the bills of entry in question, that the Appellant verified the documents from the website of DGFT and other Departments and then only filed the concerned bills of entry and that it is also wrong to say that the companies were existing on paper only because Officers of DRI had investigated the office premises of the importers for whom the Appellant filed the Bills of Entry and no such companies were found existing on the given address, contrary to such claim, the fact is that all the three importers presented themselves before DRI as and when called upon to do so and have tendered their statements under section 108 of the Customs Act. They have also deposited certain amounts as desired by DRI. He relied upon the case law in G.N.D. Cargo Movers vs. CC (General), New Delhi [2017 (357) E.L.T. 1184 (Tri-Del)] wherein it has been held that charge of violation of Regulation 11(n) regarding failure to verify the antecedents, correctness of the IEC number, and identity of the client does not sustain when IEC number is found to be correct as also the address of the importer. Further all the importers have joined the investigations He further argued that there is no allegation of any pecuniary benefit to the Appellant nor there is any evidence that the Appellant had wrongly advised the importers. He cited certain case laws which suggested that the CHA cannot be penalized for the wrong declarations made by the importers. He lastly argued that the revocation of Licence is likely to affect the livelihood of many persons and hence the impugned order should not be allowed to sustain. On the other hand the Learned DR has reiterated the findings in the impugned order and has argued that the revocation and forfeiture of security deposit be sustained.

5. We have carefully gone through the facts of the case and arguments made by the Learned Advocate of the Appellant and the Learned DR. We find that the required KYC were produced by the Appellant to the Department at a later stage to the Licence Issuing Authority and not to the investigating Agency. This suggests that the necessary KYC documents were actually not present with the appellant when the investigating agency visited and asked them to produce the KYC documents of the importer firm. This very facts prove that the appellant had indeed not negotiated the clearance of the impugned consignments and have allowed his licence to be misused by other persons and have thus violated the provisions of Regulation 11 (a) of CBLR, 2013. We further find that the charge of replacement of goods against Bills of Entry no. 8700104 and 8707042 is also got substantiated as the investigation has proved that the high value goods suspected to be concealed/misdeclared were removed clandestinely from the import consignments however the complicity or direct involvement of the CB or his representative does not get substantiated. We also find that there is nothing on record to suggest that any mis-declaration with respect to the consignments examined under Bill of Entry no. 8710782 dated 28/02/2017 and 8710323 dated 28/02/2017 was in the knowledge of the CB or his authorized representative Mr. Ajesh Kumar, the G Card Holder or even Mr. Surender Kumar who represented before the Investigating Authorities on behalf of the CB. Thus the charge of failure to advise the client to comply with Regulation 11(d) or the charge of concealment of any document etc. as per regulation 11(j) does not hold good as these charges are not substantiated by any positive evidence with respect to knowledge of the CB or circumstantial evidence like extra pecuniary gain etc. However, we find that the learned advocate has failed to give any plausible explanation with respect to authorizing of Shri Surender Kumar who was not his employee and neither a G Card Holder or H card Holder to represent on him on his behalf or conduct a business through him. This facts establishes that the appellant has allowed some other persons to use his CB licence in violation of CBLR 2013.

6. There is nothing on record to also show that appellant was too prevented from being present personally or through his authorized G Card or H Card representative when called by the investigating agency for participating in the examination of impugned import consignments, the arguments adduced by them in their support are without valid evidences and thus we find that the appellant has violated the provisions of Regulation 11(b).
7. In view of above, we hold that the appellant has not complied with the provisions to regulations CBLR 2013 as discussed in the preceding paragraphs. Thus, we feel no need to interfere with the order-in-original dated 15/11/2017 and accordingly the appeal is dismissed.

(Order pronounced in open court on 18.04.2019)
The appeal is against Order-in-Appeal No.CC(A)CUS/D-II/EXPORT/TDD/1041/17 dated 12.10.2017. The appellant imported certain chemicals described as "Melamine" and filed bill of entry and enclosed certain DFIA licences and prayed for clearance of the goods with the benefit of DFIA licences. Both the authorities below took the view that such DFIA licences covered only chemicals described as "SYNTAN". The Customs Department disallowed the benefit of DFIA licences for "Melamine" for the reason that the goods specifically mentioned and allowed for import under such DFIA licences was "SYNTAN", which was different from the imported goods. The investigation was undertaken by the Department was for the purpose of ascertaining whether the goods imported and described as "Melamine" will be covered by the description "SYNTAN" appearing in the DFIA licences. In this connection, Customs Department obtained the opinion of the Central Leather Research Institute (CLRI), Chennai and on the said basis, it was concluded that the benefit of DFIA licences for import of "SYNTAN" cannot be extended to the goods imported i.e. "Melamine". Accordingly, the authorities below demanded the customs duty payable by denying the benefit of DFIA licence.

2. Aggrieved by the decision, the present appeal has been filed.

3. With the above background, we heard S/ Shri Jai Kumar/Kartik Jindal/Ajinkaya Tiwari, Advocates and Shri Rakesh Kumar, ld. Departmental Representative for the Department.

4. The submission of the ld. Advocates are summarized as below:-

(i) The chemical "Syntan" is utilized in the Leather Processing Industry for tanning of such goods. He argued that the imported goods i.e. "Melamine" can be considered as "Syntan" and the appellant will be entitled to the benefit of DFIA licences. He specifically relied on the decision of the Tribunal in the case of Commissioner of Customs, Nhava Sheva Vs. Dimple Overseas Ltd. – 2002 (147) ELT 1164 (Tribunal-Mumbai) in which the similar question came up before the Tribunal and it was held that 'Melamine' has been generally understood as a tanning agent and the benefit of the Advance licence which permitted import of Syntan agent was extended to the Melamine. He submitted that by following the said decision of the Tribunal, the appellant will get the benefit of DFIA licence, which has been issued for clearance of the Melamine.

5. Ld. DR supported the impugned order. His arguments are summarized below:-
(i) In the opinion of CLRI, which was obtained by the Customs Department, the two items – Melamine and Syntan are chemically different. These items are covered by different HS Codes. Melamine is covered under HS 29336.00, whereas Syntan is covered under HS Code 32021000.

(ii) He further submitted that the decision in the case of Dimple Overseas (supra) relied upon by the appellant is not applicable to the present case because that case dealt with import under Value Based Advance Licence issued under Notification No.203/12 and in respect of such Value Based Advance Licences, the specific items allowed for import were not mentioned. Accordingly, he submitted that the benefit of the DFIA licence, which was issued for Syntan cannot be extended for the import of Melamine.

6. In the counter, ld. Advocate submitted that DFIA licences cover Syntan. He also relied on the ratio of the Tribunal's decision to the extent that Melamine has generally been understood to be a tanning agent. On the basis of such ratio, the benefit is to be extended to them even in the present import. He also argued that the Anti-dumping duty leviable on Melamine is applicable only for import from certain countries and cannot be used to justify denying the benefit of the DFIA licences.

7. Heard both sides and perused the appeal records.

8. After hearing both the sides and on perusal of the records, we note that the issue is whether the goods imported can be given the benefit of DFIA licences and allowed duty free clearances. The goods imported have been declared as 'Melamine' but the DFIA licences produced for clearance of such goods cover the items "Syntan". It is the claim of the appellant that the item "Syntan" refers to synthetic tanning agent and will cover the goods imported since the said goods are capable of being used as synthetic tanning agent.

9. The Customs Department sent samples of the imported goods to Central Leather Research Institute (CLRI), Chennai for their opinion. CLRI gave its opinion vide letter dated 20.02.2014 as follows:-

"Melamine cannot be used as such in leather processing as "SYNTAN". It is a monomer, which is processed further to produce polymeric melamine SYNTANS."

10. From the opinion expressed by the expert body, CLRI, it is easy to see that "Melamine" is different from Syntan. It is further seen that the HSN Code for Melamine as well as Syntan are different. Melamine is covered under HS Code 29336100 as organic chemical, whereas Syntan is covered under 3202 as Syntan Organic Tanning substance. HS codes clearly tell us that the two chemicals are entirely different and this fact has also been endorsed by the CLRI. From the opinion of the CLRI, it is evident that Melamine cannot be used as such, in leather processing as Syntan leading us to the inescapable conclusion that the benefit allowable under DFIA licence to Syntan cannot be extended to Melamine, which is imported by the appellant.

11. Ld. DR has contended that in the application for DFIA licence, the applicant is required to give the details of items sought to be imported duty free under the authorization along with the HS Codes. Only on the basis of such application, DFIA is issued giving the details of the goods allowed to be imported. Since HS Codes for Syntan and Melamine are different, it is evident that the benefit is to be extended only to Syntan as per the DFIA is produced.

12. The appellant has relied on the ratio of the Tribunal's decision in the case of Dimple Overseas (supra). In the said decision, the Tribunal has observed that Melamine has been generally understood to be a tanning agent. In the light of the above observation, we are of the view that the benefit of the said Tribunal's decision cannot be extended to the imports in the present case, since that decision was delivered in the context of Value Based Advance Licence issued under the then Notification No.203/92, whereas in the present case, we are dealing with the DFIA licence and the terms of issue of both licenses are entirely different.
13. In view of the above discussions, we find no reason to interfere with the impugned order, which is sustained for the reasons mentioned therein. In the result, the appeal is rejected.

1. The present appeal is filed against the Order-in-Original No. 79/2017 dated 29/11/2017.

2. Originally, the appellant, CHA was involved in the clearance of goods imported from China by M/s Sanco Industries Pvt. Ltd. through M/s Sky Park India, a logistic service provider. Necessary papers were given to the CHA and goods were cleared immediately. After that, it was found that there was mis-declaration of the goods. It was declared as “Calcium Carbonate” in the bill of entry relating to the consignment but inside the consignment, it were found “Fire Crackers and Telescopic Channels” in all the four containers. Finally, the authorities have revoked the appellant’s CHA license along with forfeiture of the security amount.
3. the same was assailed before the Tribunal. The Tribunal vide its Final Order No. 56109/2017 dated 10/08/2017 remanded the matter to the Licensing Authority to levy maximum punishment other than the revocation of license. In compliance, the authority has restored the license of the CHA but imposed the penalty of Rs.50,000/- and also forfeited the security amount of Rs.75,000/-. Not being satisfied, the appellant has filed the preset appeal before the Tribunal.

4. With this background Shri Mohd. Faraz, Ld. Advocate for the appellant submits that the Regulation has not been mentioned in the impugned order. At the same time, Shri Rakesh Kumar, Ld. DR for the Revenue submits that in the order Regulation 22 read with CBLR, 2013 has already been mentioned.

5. By considering the totality of the facts, for the reasons mentioned in our earlier order (supra) we find no reasons to interfere with the impugned order. The present appeal is nothing but misuse of the judicial process.

6. In the result, appeal filed by the appellant is dismissed. The penalty and forfeited amount are hereby sustained.

Per: C L Mahar:

The present appeal is filed by the Appellants against the Order-in-Appeal No. CC(A)CUS/D-II/ICD/TKD/Export/221/2018 dated 15.02.2018 passed by the Commissioner of Customs (Appeals) New Delhi.

2. The brief facts of the case are that, the Appellants imported 57 numbers of electrical tricycle without battery in CKD condition along with spare parts. They filed Bill of Entry on 27.12.2013 claiming classification under CTH No. 87039010 of the Customs Tariff Act, 1975. The assessing authority held that the said goods cannot be allowed to be cleared as importation is in violation of Import Export Policy applicable at relevant time. More specifically, it is held that new vehicle imported is not meeting the requirement of Centre Motor Vehicle Rules (CMVR), 1989. Type approval certificate is required to be used in India for any vehicle, which is a mandatory requirement which is not fulfilled in this case. Accordingly, the original authority ordered confiscation of the imported goods under section 111(d) of the Customs Act, 1962 and imposed penalty of Rs. 5 lakh on the Appellants under Section 112 (a) of the Customs Act, 1962. On appeal, the said order was upheld by the impugned order. Being aggrieved, the Appellants have filed the present appeal.

3. The learned Counsel appearing for the Appellants submitted that for customs purpose, the imported goods were declared as motor vehicle. This is because the consignment is in CKD condition which when assembled in India can make a functional motor vehicle. However, such classification of imported goods as 'motor vehicle' is not applicable to the Policy provisions. He drew our attention to the license notes under Chapter 87. Note 2 states that new motor vehicle for the purpose of said Chapter shall mean a vehicle that is not being manufactured/assembled in India. He submitted that in the present case, the components in CKD condition are to be assembled in India and as such, the import consignment are not new vehicles. As such, the provisions of Centre Motor Vehicle Rules are not violated and no violation of any other provision has been committed by the Appellants.

4. Shri Rakesh Kumar, learned DR for the Revenue, strongly contested the appeal. He submitted that vehicle(s) imported is considered as new vehicle under Rule 2(a) of 'General Rules for the Interpretation' for customs classification. This position has been admitted. However, the Appellants had tried to make a distinction in Policy stating that the imported goods are not new vehicles. He submitted that such dual approach is not permissible.
It is the case of the Revenue that vehicle which is imported in CKD condition is necessarily to be used in India only after registration with competent Motor Vehicle Authority. For such registration, requirement of CMVR are to be fulfilled. The assessing authority cannot ignore the policy condition and Motor Vehicle Regulations which are allied Act, provisions, which the Customs authorities are bound to enforce. Even if, the goods were allowed to be cleared now, the same cannot be registered, as admittedly, requirement of CMVR are not fulfilled.

5. We have heard both the sides and perused the material available on record. The only point of dispute is, whether the impugned goods under consideration were imported in violation of policy. There is no dispute of Customs duty liability. Considering the policy, as mentioned in licensing Notes under Chapter 87, we note that the new imported vehicle is defined as not manufactured or assembled in India.

6. View of the Appellants is that, present products will be assembled in India to make a vehicle. We find such narrow view of the issue will not lead to proper appreciation of the licensing condition. Admittedly, the goods imported are motor vehicle brought in CKD condition, for the ease of import and transport. Necessarily, these items are to be used as motor vehicle in India and are governed by Motor Vehicle Rules. There is no dispute on this aspect. When the Appellants intended to import 'motor vehicle', the requirement of Motor Vehicle Rules are to be complied. The Policy stipulations clearly make out that various conditions including Type Approval Certificate by the competent authority is a mandatory requirement for any vehicle imported into India. We also note that the present vehicle (in CKD condition) was imported having electric capacity of more than 250 watt which as per mandatory requirement is to be registered with the Motor Vehicle Authority.

7. Considering these stipulations of Policy and the conditions of CMVR, we are of the considered view that the imported goods are in violation of Import Policy Notes, applicable during the relevant time. Accordingly, we find no reason to interfere with the impugned order.

8. We note that counsel pleaded for consideration of reduction of penalty as goods have been completely confiscated by the Department. Considering the plea of the Appellants, we find it fit and proper to reduce the penalty from Rs. 5,00,000/- to Rs.1,00,000/- (Rupees One lakh only). Except for this modification of penalty, the impugned order is upheld.

9. In the result, the appeal filed by the Appellants is partly allowed.

Date of Hearing/Order: 3.8.2018

The present is an appeal against the Order-in-Appeal No. 95/2018 dated 22.3.2018 of Commissioner (Appeals).

2. The appellant was allowed to import various goods under EPCG licence dated 30.4.2002 under Custom Notification No. 49/2000-Cus. dated 27.4.2000 at the concessional rate of 5% of Custom duty subject to the condition of the notification. The department alleged that the appellant failed to submit the requisite documents regarding export obligation as well as the requisite certificate as required under said notification within the prescribed time limit. Resultantly, a show cause Notice dated 19.11.2010 was served upon the appellant demanding the differential duty. The demand is confirmed along with the imposition of penalty vide the order of original adjudicating authority dated 11th March 2014. Being aggrieved, the appeal was filed before Commissioner (Appeals) who vide the order under challenged has dismissed the appeal on the sole ground of it being time barred. Being aggrieved thereof, the appellant has filed the present appeal.

3. We have heard Shri Avneet Singh, ld. Advocate for the appellant and Shri Rakesh Kumar, ld. AR for the department.

4. It is submitted on behalf of the appellant that they had never received the copy of order in original. For the purpose they also moved an RTI, the information is still awaited. Adjournment is initially requested. The same is heavily objected on the part of the department submitting that the date of communication has already been mentioned by the appellant itself in the appeal memo. Otherwise also the appeal before Commissioner (Appeals) was filed after a delay of almost two years. The adjudication of Hon’ble apex Court in the case of Singh Enterprises Vs. CCE, Jamshedpur - 2008 (221) ELT 163 is impressed upon. With the objection qua adjournment the appeal is rather prayed to be dismissed based on the submissions.

5. While rebutting, it is submitted by ld. Advocate for the appellant that date of communication of order, as apparent from appeal memo in 11.3.2014 which is the date of the O-I-O itself. It is impressed upon that there is no evidence on record about service of the said order by the department to the appellant. The order under challenge is therefore, prayed to be set aside.

6. After hearing both the parties and perusing the record, we are of the opinion that as per the appellant’s own appeal before Commissioner (Appeals), the date of communication of order is mentioned. No doubt the date is the same as the date of O-I-A and apparently there is no document proving the service of the communication of said order but appellant did not raise this ground before the Commissioner (Appeals) nor pleaded the same as inadvertent mistake as is pleaded before us. There is no evidence on record as to when the said RTI, as impressed upon was filed. Thus, the reason cited doesn’t appear to be the sufficient justifiable cause. There is an apparent delay in filing the appeal before Commissioner (Appeals) of two years. Law of limitation is settled that where there is no express time has been fixed for any purpose, ‘Reasonable Time Principle’ has to be looked into. As per Section 128 of Customs Act, there is prescribed time limit of two months to file an appeal and the Commissioner (Appeals) has been vested with discretion to condone the delay for another a month only.

7. Keeping in view the said factual as well as the legal aspect, we are of the opinion that Commissioner (Appeals) has committed no error while dismissing the appeal on the ground of limitation for want of any sufficient cause or explanation thereto. We draw support from the decision in the case of Singh Enterprises (supra) wherein it has been held as under:

“10. Sufficient cause is an expression which is found in various statutes. It essentially means as adequate or enough. There cannot be any straitjacket formula for accepting or rejecting the explanation furnished for delay caused in taking steps.”

It was also observed as:

“6. At this juncture, it is relevant to take note of Section 35 of the Act which reads as follows:

Appeals to “35. Commissioner (Appeals). - Any person aggrieved by any decision or order (1) passed under this Act by a Central Excise Officer, lower in rank than a Commissioner of Central Excise, may appeal to the Commissioner of Central Excise (Appeals) [hereafter in this Chapter referred to as the Commissioner (Appeals)] within sixty days from the date of the communication to him of such decision or order:

Provided that the Commissioner (Appeals) may, if he is satisfied that the appellant was prevented by sufficient cause from presenting the appeal within the aforesaid period of sixty days, allow it to be presented within a further period of thirty days.”

8. We follow the same ratio and hereby dismiss the appeal.

(Bijay Kumar)                     (Rachna Gupta)

The present appeal is filed against the order-in-original No. 68/KB/Revocation/ Policy/2017 dated 10.11.2017 passed by the Commissioner of Customs, New Delhi where the licence of the appellant, being CHA, has been revoked. Being aggrieved, the present appeal is filed by the appellant.

2. With this background, we heard Sh. Vaibhav Singh, ld. Advocate for the appellant who submits that the appellant is holding CHA licence at Delhi. According to the appellant M/s Ecolite Exim International Pvt. Ltd. had imported the goods vide Bill of Entry dated 20.01.2017 through the appellant. In the bill of entry the item was declared as “Vinyl coated paper clip (made of Iron)”. But the goods were imported found to be Measuring Tape of “Zebra” brand. For measuring tape, the permission from Bureau of Indian Standards (BIS) is required which affects the measuring standard of India. The importer has not obtained the permission from the BIS and for filing the wrong declaration necessary action was taken. Ld. Counsel also submits that the PAN card, VAT registration, KYC of the importer were provided to him by Smt. Rambha Gupta who is also a freight forwarder. It is the submission of the appellant is that the appellant is innocent and prayed that the impugned order may be set aside.

3. On the other hand, Sh. Rakesh Kumar, ld. AR for the Revenue justified the impugned order. He submits that the imported items are Measuring Tape of “Zebra” brand is subjected to Anti-Dumping duty. The appellant being a CHA has failed to verify the genuineness of the goods. Hence, he made a request not to interfere with the impugned order.

4. It is seen from the record that the appellant had filed Bill of Entry dated 20.01.2017 declaring the goods as “Vinyl coated paper clip (Made of Iron)” but the same was found to be Measuring Tape of „Zebra” brand. The adjudicating authority has held that the appellant is guilty of violations of Regulation 11(a), (b) and (d) of the CBLR. From the record, we find that the appellant had filed import documents with the Custom Department without carrying out the verification of KYC, but on the basis of the documents obtained from Smt. Rambha Gupta who was not the importer of the said consignment. It is further seen that he has allowed the imported consignment to be cleared not by authorised agent but Smt. Rambha Gupta herself. He has also failed to advice his client about proper knowledge of customs act including the BIS certification import of the items i.e. Measuring Tape of „Zebra” brand. Custom department has found serious mis-declaration on the part of the importer and the appellant has also facilitated such mis-declaration and attempted to clear the goods which has violated the provisions of the Customs Act, Foreign Trade Regulation Act and also the provision of Legal Metrology Act, 2009.

5. In the facts and circumstances of the case, we are of the view that for violation of CBLR, 2013 which stands established during the enquiry proceedings, the revocation of the Customs Broker Licence is too harsh a punishment and hence, revocation is set aside. We uphold the forfeiture of the security deposit as well as penalty of Rs. 50,000/- imposed by the adjudicating authority on Sh. Sadanand Chaudhary.

6. In the result, the impugned order is modified and appeal is partially allowed.

(Dictated and pronounced in the open Court).

FINAL ORDER NO. 51292/2019

Per: Rachna Gupta:

The appellant, M/s. Leo Cargo Services Pvt. Ltd. is holding CB Licence and Shri Sanjeev Maggu is its Director. Department got an information about Shri Ramesh Wadhera and Shri Sanjeev Maggu both residents of Sushant Lok, Phase - I, Gurugram, Haryana to have been engaged in evasion of Customs duty by way of diverting the goods stored in Custom Bonded Warehouses into domestic market. For the purpose, they were forging/fabricating the documents to show the re-export of warehoused goods and following fictitious firms and IECs No. were used by both of them:

(i) M/s. Accturists Overseas (OPC) Pvt. Ltd. (IEC - 0517503581)
(ii) M/s. Sparx Exports (IEC - 0516517803)
(iii) M/s. Shree Shyam Enterprises (IEC - 0516966839)
(iv) M/s. Horrens Exim (IEC - 0516516299)

It was also noticed that though Shri Sanjeev Maggu himself was a Customs Broker but was utilising the services of other Customs Brokers namely M/s. D.S. Cargo Agency and M/s. R.P. Cargo Handling Services as the front Brokers for his clandestine operations. The input categorically stated that said Shri Ramesh Wadhera was the financer and Shri Sanjeev Maggu was the master mind behind the said activity of diverting the warehoused goods from public bonded warehouses M/s. Rider India & M/s. Prime Time Exports into the domestic markets without payment of Customs duty and creating forged/fabricated documents evidencing the re-export of warehoused goods.

Based on the said information, searches were conducted by the DRI officers on 14.07.2017 in the residential premises of both the above named people and also in their various official premises as well as in the premises of associated importing firms and the cargo agencies. Statements of all concerned were also recorded. It is thereafter that the show cause notice No. 16729 dated 10.08.2013 was served upon the appellants proposing that the appellant has contravened Regulations 10 (d) (g) and (q) of CBLR, 2013. The revocation of CB Licence, forfeiture of the amount of security (Rs. 75,000/-), submitted at the time of issue of the licence, was proposed alongwith the imposition of penalty. The said show cause notice for the sake of preparing the offence report was considered by Dy. Commissioner of Customs, Air Cargo and Import (NCH), Delhi who submitted the enquiry report No. VIII/12 dated 06.12.2018 holding that Custom Broker/ the appellant has failed to fulfil his obligations as cast upon him in terms of the Regulations of CBLR, 2018 read with CBLR, 2013. It is against the said enquiry report that the appellant preferred an Appeal before Commissioner of Customs, Airport and General who vide its Order No. 05 dated 04.02.2019 had confirmed the findings of the enquiry report and thus revoked the CB Licence of the appellant ordering forfeiture of the entire amount of security deposit of Rs.75,000/. Penalty of Rs.50,000/- was also imposed upon the appellant. Aggrieved of the said Order, the appellant is before this Tribunal.

2. We have heard Shri A.K. Maggu, learned advocate on behalf of the appellant and Shri Rakesh Kumar, learned Authorised Representative on behalf of the Department.

3. It is submitted that the grounds of defence of the appellant have not been considered by the adjudicating authorities below. It is impressed upon that the findings about violation of Regulations of CBLR 2018/2013 on the part of the appellant are liable to be set aside on the ground of limitation alone as the enquiry report was submitted after expiry of 90 days of the issuance of show cause notice and the same was not submitted as per the provisions carried out under Regulations 20(5) of CBLR, 2013. However, the said ground has not been considered by Commissioner. Thus, the Order is liable to be set aside on this score only.

With respect to merits, it is submitted that there is no evidence on record except mere statements of various people without any corroboration thereto. Those statement makers were never allowed to be cross-examined by the respondent. Hence, on merits also, the Order under challenge is liable to be set aside. Learned Counsel has relied upon the decision of the Hon’ble Supreme Court in the case of Harish Charan Kurmi Vs. State of Bihar reported in 1964 (6) SCR 623 and also on the decision of CESTAT, Mumbai reported in 2017 (357) E.L.T. 1017. The decision of CESTAT, Delhi in the case of Ambika Enterprises Vs. Commissioner of Customs, New Delhi reported in 2016 (343) E.L.T. 1022 (Tri.-Del.) has also been cited, praying for Appeal to be allowed.

4. Per contra, it is submitted on behalf of the Department that after receiving the information from Additional Directorate, DRI Headquarters, vide letter dated 10.05.2018, that a meticulous investigation in the form of conducting searches at various premises, in the form of recording of the statements of various people who were found the IEC Holders of the fictitious Companies as allegedly created by Shri Ramesh Wadhera and Shri Sanjeev Maggu, the Director of the appellant Company was called. It is impressed upon that the Director of the appellant was the master mind of diverting the warehoused goods to the domestic market. The statements being given to the Customs officers under Section 108 of the Customs Act are well admissible into evidence. Thus, there is sufficient evidence on record as a proof for the alleged illegal act on the part of the appellant. Hence, there is no infirmity in the Order under challenge.

It is impressed upon that the impugned show cause notice cannot even be held to be barred by time as alleged. It is impressed upon that the time limit under Regulation 20(S) of CBLR, 2013 is mere directory and not mandatory in nature. Learned AR has relied upon decision of Hon’ble Apex Court in the case of Commissioner of Customs Vs. Candid Enterprises reported in 2001 (130) E.L.T. 404 (S.C.) to emphasise that even if there is delay on the part of the public authorities the same is condonable when the element of fraud is involved. Learned AR has also impressed upon Section 17 of the Limitation Act, 1963. Appeal is accordingly prayed to be dismissed.

5. After hearing both the parties and perusing the entire record of the Appeal we are of the opinion as follows:
5.1 The appellant has objected the impugned order for no findings of Adjudicating Authority below on the limitation issue i.e. the proceedings against appellant are liable to be vitiated as the offence report was not submitted within 90 days of issuance of show cause notice. We observe that Commissioner in the Order under challenge has considered the plea of limitation in view of the observation that Mr. Sanjeev Maggu was deliberately buying time to disable the Directorate to unearth the modus operandi and to recover the Customs duty. Hence, the allegation that there is no finding on the issue of limitation are not sustainable. However, since the findings have been challenged on both grounds, merits as well as limitation, before touching the merits, we prefer to first adjudicate the legal issue of limitation.

For the purpose, Regulation 18-22 of CBLR 2013 are relevant as those talk about revocation of licence/ imposition of penalty (Regulation 18), Suspension of license (Regulation 19), Procedure for revoking licence/ imposition of penalty (Regulation 20) Sub- clause 5 of Regulation 20 [20(5)] talks about the time period the violation whereof is the grievance of the appellant. It reads as follows:

"At the conclusion of the inquiry, the Dy. Commissioner of Customs or Assistant Commissioner of Customs, as the case may be, shall prepare a report of the inquiry and after recording his findings thereon submit the report within a period of ninety days from the date of issue of a notice under sub-regulation(1)."

6. Apparently, show cause notice was issued on 10.08.2013 and the offence report was got prepared on 06.12.2013. Thus, the issue involved at this stage is:

6.1 Whether the time frame prescribed in Regulation 20(5) is mandatory or directory i.e., whether the time therein be so strictly construed so as to result in declaring initiation of action itself invalid, if that is not adhered to.

7. CBLR Regulations aim at securing interest of the customs house agent and also of the revenue. The urgency and expediency of the action permits the authority to step in immediately or with promptitude. A balancing of interests is achieved by ensuring prompt action and avoiding undue delay in taking it to its logical conclusion. Though word used in Regulation 20(5) is "shall" but in view of above observed aim of CBLR, we are of the opinion that the question as framed above would depend on the intention of the legislature and not necessarily merely by looking at the language in which it is clothed with. We opine that it is mandatory for the Court to look into the nature of the statute and the consequences which would follow from construing it in one way or the other, the ambit of the other provisions, the necessity of compliance of the provisions in question. Above all, whether the object of the enactment is defeated by holding it to be directory and whether the object would be achieved by construing it to be mandatory has to be considered. We draw our support from a decision of Hon’ble Apex Court in the case of Govindlal Chhaganlal Vs. Agriculture Produce Market Committee reported in AIR 1976 SC 263, where Hon’ble Supreme Court has approvingly quoted the following passage from Crawford on statutory construction.

"The question as to whether the statute is mandatory or directory depends upon the intent of the legislature and not upon the language in which it is clothed. The meaning and the intention of the legislature must govern and this is to be ascertained not only from the phraseology of the provision, but by considering its nature, design and the consequences of which would follows from construing it one way or other."

The Hon’ble Apex Court further observed:

"thus the governing factor is the manner and intent of the legislature which should be gathered not merely from the words used by legislature but from a variety of other circumstances in consideration. The circumstances that the legislature has used a language of compulsive force is always of great relevance in the absence of anything contrary in the context indicating that a permissive interpretation is permissible, the statute ought to be construed as peremptory. One of the fundamental rules of interpretation is that if the words of the statute are themselves precise and unambiguous, nothing more is necessary than to expound those words in their natural and ordinary sense, the words themselves in such case best declare the intention of the legislature”

8. For the object of time limit in Regulation 20 of CBLR, 2019/2018 we opine that said time limit is evolved so that the inquiry and proceedings are not delayed indefinitely as it hampers the brokerages of the customs broker. At the same time, the time limit should not be so strictly adhered to, even in cases of serious lapse on the part of the customs broker and where the inquiry involves certain complicated facts. Hon’ble Apex Court in T.V. Usman Vs. Food Inspector, Tellicherry reported in 1994 (1) S.C. 260 held that if the performance of a public duty is required to be discharged within a specific time which also confers a right on a person, the provision as to time limit will still have to be held as directory unless it is shown that a person on whom the right is conferred is prejudiced because of non performance of the duty within a specific time. Thus, cannot be permissible that the customs house agent is entitled to take benefit of his own wrong, on the ground that the process is not completed within the stipulated period. In such circumstances, if the provision is construed in such a rigid form and no flexibility is allowed, though it results into declaration of the entire action of the revenue as illegal, it would not ensure justice rather shall defeat it? Merely because the inquiry was not completed within a stipulated period, the customs broker may not be allowed to walk free, as his suspension cannot be continued beyond the period prescribed in the Regulation and his licences need not be restored. The Hon’ble Apex Court in the case of Delhi Air take Services Pvt. Ltd. and another Vs. State of West Bengal and another reported in 2011(a) SCC page 354 has clarified the above position by quoting an example of criminal law. It observed:

“where a statute imposes a public duty and proceeds to lay down the manner and time frame within which the duty shall be performed. The injustice or inconvenience resulting from a rigid adherence to the statutory prescriptions may not be relevant factor in holding such prescription to be only directory. For e.g., when dealing with provision relating to criminal law, legislative purpose is to be borne in mind for its proper interpretation. It is said that the purpose of criminal law is to permit everyone to go about the daily lives without fear of harm to person or property and it is in the interest of everyone that serious crime be effectively investigated and prosecuted. There must be fairness to all sides. In a criminal case, the Court is required to consider the triangulation of interests taking into consideration the position of the accused, the victim and his or her family or the public.”

9. The circumstance for grant of license to Customs Broker is that the customs house agent has a direct access to the port, the revenue intended that there should be a regime of discipline governing such customs house agent and only a person who is qualified and in know-how of the business relating to the customs clearance would be entitled to be conferred with a licence to act as a customs house agent.

In order to continue the regime of discipline, the Commissioner of Customs is empowered to revoke a licence of the customs house agent and order forfeiture of his security if the customs house agent fails to comply with any of the conditions of the bond executed by him and he fails to comply with the provisions of the Regulation or indulge into an act which would amount to "misconduct".

Thus, we reaffirm that the purpose of prescription of the time limit by the CBLR Regulation, 2013 is to cast a duty on the Revenue Authorities to act within the time frame so that there remains no discretion to the revenue to continue the said action of suspension of licence for an indefinite period depriving and adversely affecting the interest of the licensee and simultaneously the purpose is that the licensee should not be permitted to take an advantage of some delay at the instance of the Revenue, which is beyond its control since the revenue administration needs to be granted certain concessions which may be on account of administrative exigencies, and the department working at different levels through different persons.

10. The principles of fairness and equity demands a balancing situation that when there is deviation from the time schedule prescribed in the Regulation, on part of Revenue, the Revenue need to enumerate the reasons and attribute them to an officer dealing with it and also should account for every stage at which the delay occurs. Every endeavour should be made to adhere to the time schedule. In exceptional circumstances also, which are beyond the control of the revenue if the time schedule is not adhered to, an accountability be fastened on the Revenue, to cite reasons why the time schedule was not adhered to, and then if the explanation offered is reasonable and is not reflecting the casual attitude on behalf of the Revenue rather there is apparent malafide on part of the CB, in that case the time line has to be considered directory only. Thus, the non compliance thereof cannot be the ground to vitiate the show cause notice. We draw our support from the decision in the case of Union of India Vs. R.S. Saini reported in 1999 (2) SCC 151 wherein Supreme Court held that the office memorandum fixing the time limit for completion of disciplinary proceedings is only a mid-line, non compliance of such office memorandum will not invalidate the punishment. The customs house agent, who is in a position of the delinquent and facing an inquiry is somehow similar to an inquiry in disciplinary proceedings on one hand and the revenue in the capacity of the administration on the other hand. CESTAT West Zonal Bench Mumbai also in Unison Clearing Pvt. Ltd. Vs. Commissioner of Customs (Tribunal Mumbai) held that if the time limits are construed as mandatory and the matter is put to an end, the purpose of Regulation would be defeated and so would be defeated the intention of legislature behind framing such a regulation. On the other hand, if there is no consequence stated in the regulation for non-adherence of time period for conducting the inquiry, the time line cannot be proved to be fatal to the outcome of the inquiry. Based on these observations the Tribunal had held that the Regulation is directory in nature.

11. Hon’ble Apex Court in Topline Shoes Ltd. Vs. Corporation Bank reported in 2002 (6) SCC 33 held as follows:

The provision contained in a statute which is procedural in nature using the word "shall" be held to be mandatory, if it did not cause any prejudice else not. The emphasis, therefore, should not be upon the language employed in the provision, but the Court will have to examine whether the provision is intended to specify certain procedure or whether it confers certain rights in the individual and casts a corresponding duty on the officer concerned. The Court will have to examine as to what is the effect of such a provision and whether its non compliance would invalidate or render the proceedings void ab initio or it would result into imposition of lesser penalty or in issuance of directions to protect the individual against the action of the State. The language of the statute, the intention of the legislature would determine the impact of non compliance in facts and circumstance of a given case, before the Court construes a provision to be directory or mandatory.

In view of above discussed case law, we are of the opinion that the judgments on which reliance had been placed by the appellant taking a view that the revocation of a CHA license is bad in law since the time limit for completion of inquiry in terms of Regulation 20(5)/22(5) of CBLR, 2013/2018 has not been adhered to, are not applicable to the facts of the present case as most of these cases have dealt with the extraordinary delay caused at the instance of the revenue in conducting inquiry against the custom house agent, depriving them of their means of livelihood and it was observed that the purpose of prescribed time limit was to safeguard the interest of the custom broker and smooth import and export of goods. Whereas, present is the case of alleged fraud on part of the appellant. Adjudicating Authority has clearly observed the delaying strategy of the appellant’s Director. Section 17 of Limitation Act while talking about effect of fraud or mistake lays that the fraud vitiates the limitation prescribed.
Thus, those are not applicable to the present case.

12. In the light of the entire above discussion, when facts of this case are looked into, we observe that after the show cause notice was served upon the appellant tried to delay investigation by not joining the investigation. It is also observed that vide his letter dated 30.10.2017, Shri Sanjeev Maggu had stated that no firm in the name of M/s. Leo Cargo Services ever existed at the address on which the hearing notices were served. Thus, the malafide intentions to not to enable the DRI officials to unearth the modus operandi of committing the alleged illegal act were very much apparent on the record.
These reasons are sufficient to hold that the inquiry officer could not maintain the time line of 90 days for submitting the report. Accordingly, we are of opinion that the customs house agent cannot be permitted to take benefit of his own wrong, on the ground that the process is not completed within the stipulated period. In such circumstances, if the provision is construed in such a rigid form and no flexibility is allowed, though it results into declaration of the entire action of the revenue as illegal, it would not ensure justice rather shall defeat it? Thus, we answer the question framed, as above, as follows:

In view of the above noticed intention of CB to not to enable the Department to adhere to the impugned time limit despite that the illegal act of diverting the warehoused goods to domestic market was alleged against the said CB, the time line of Regulation 20(5) CBLR, 2013 is mere directory in nature and the non compliance thereof shall not vitiate the action taken against the defaulting CB.

13. Now coming to the merits of the case based on the documents/ loose papers as got recovered during the search of the residence of Shri Sanjeev Magggu and that of office premises of M/s. Riders India, M/s. Prime Time Exports, the public bonded warehouses, as were also got searched. The statements of Shri Sanjay Gaholt, warehouse keeper of M/s. Prime Time, statement of various others from the CHA Companies and the other companies/firms which were informed to be used by the appellants for committing the alleged act were recorded. All of them in corroboration have deposed that Shri Sanjeev Maggu despite himself being a Custom Broker but concealed his identity while dealing with the various companies and projecting himself as the owner of the fictitious companies to get the goods transferred from the customs warehouses to the domestic markets and that he only was providing all the documents relevant for the transfer of the goods without even submitting any re-warehousing certificates. The statement of the officers of Department were also recorded to the fact that during their visit to M/s. Rider India, Shri Sanjeev Maggu was found present. There has been admissions on record as is apparent from the statement of Raja Bhanskar alias Raja Bansal, proprietor of IEC Holder of M/s. Shree Shyam Enterprises that it was on Shri Sanjeev Maggu’s instruction that he signed in a fake name as a witness for triple duty bond of a different firm M/s. Sparks Exports. Similarly, Shri Suresh Aggarwal, Chartered Accountant admitted that on the instruction of Shri Sanjeev Magggu and Shri Ramesh Wadhera that he got opened few firms based on the forged documents in the names of petty employees just for the purpose evasion of Customs duty. There are many such admissions apparent on record. The statements recorded under Section 108 of the Customs Act are the statements given to the Customs officers who are not the police officers.
Hence, the immunity against admissibility of these statements into evidence is not available to these statements. There is no apparent retraction by any of the witnesses for these statements nor there is any other document apparently on record produced by the appellant which may even prima facie rebut the said oral evidence and the said admissions on record. Thus, we are of the opinion that the adjudicating authorities have committed no error while denying the opportunity to cross-examine these witnesses and in holding the appellant to have hatched the alleged conspiracy for clandestine removal of warehoused goods from public bonded warehouses to domestic market without payment of customs duty by floating fictitious importer firms. The Director of the appellant had committed forgery of documents for the purpose. Therefore, legal ground of the objection thereof is not sustainable due to the noticed mis-representation and fraud/ forgery. Hon'ble High Court of Punjab & Haryana in the case of Shiv Shakti Steel Tube Vs. Comm. Reported as 2008(221)E.L.T. 166 has held that equity and compassion cannot be allowed to bend the arms of law in a case where the individual requires a status by practising fraud.

14. In view of above discussion, we are of opinion that there is no infirmity in the Order under challenge confirming the violation of the Regulation 10 (d) (g) and (q) of CBLR 2018/ Regulation 11 (d) (g) and (o) of CBLR, 2013 on part of the appellant. The cancellation of appellants licence with the forfeiture of the security deposit and the imposition of penalty upon the appellant is therefore, held to be sustainable. Appeal accordingly stands dismissed.

Per: Bijay Kumar:

The appellants herein are the importers involved in the import of electronic items. They imported a consignment under Bill of Entry No. 9454459 dated 04.06.2015. The Department on the basis of indication by the officers of SIIB, ACC(Import) NCH, New Delhi for a 100% examination after they observed a substantial difference between the IGM and the said Bill of Entry filed by the notice, examined the goods. An envelope was found in the package showing the value of goods amounting to USD 6,890 which was the value as found mentioned in IGM as well. However, the declared value of the said consignment by the appellant was USD 890. On further examination of goods it was observed that the goods imported were five sets of standard transition as against one set declared in the Bill of Entry. During investigation, the statement of the proprietor of appellant along with that of all concerned including the CHA, M/s. Milap Logistics Pvt. Ltd. were recorded and the documents were collected from the airlines/carriers/banks, etc. On the basis thereof, the Department alleged under valuation as well as mis-declaration of the consignment under Bill of Entry No. 9454459 dated 04.06.2015. Resultantly, a show cause notice No. 92/2015 dated 20.08.2015 was served upon the appellant proposing the demand and recovery of differential customs duty amounting to Rs. 1,64,50,604/- along with the interest. The amount of Rs. 75Lakhs as already deposited by the appellant was proposed to be appropriated. The imposition of penalty under Section 114A and 114AA was also proposed. The said show cause notice was adjudicated vide the Order-in-Original No. 16/2017-18 dated 30.03.2018 confirming the aforesaid proposal with imposition of same amount of penalty as that of the aforesaid demand under both the Sections respectively. Being aggrieved, the appellant is before this Tribunal.

2. We have heard Shri Somesh Arora, Advocate for the Appellant and Shri Rakesh Kumar, Authorised Representative for the Respondent.

3. It is submitted on behalf of the appellant that the Order is liable to be set aside on the sole ground of violation of principles of natural justice as no opportunity was afforded to the appellant to either present the case or to be heard in the matter and the decision is as good as an ex-parte decision. It is submitted that a request for keeping the adjudication in abeyance was made by the appellant seeking time to file an application in the Settlement Commission and also for Department to calculate the interest. It is submitted that personal hearing notices were never received by the appellant who was abroad from 13.01.2018 to 24.06.2018. Order is accordingly prayed to be set aside with the request for the opportunity of personal hearing being afforded to the appellant.

3.1 Learned Counsel has relied upon the case of Surjit Singh and others Vs. State of Punjab reported at 1984 (18) E.L.T. 241 (S.C.) impressing upon that the penalty cannot be imposed upon/enhanced without giving an opportunity of being heard. The decision of Reji Kurian Vs. State Tax Officer, Goods & Services Tax, Mattancherry reported at 2018 (13) G.S.T.L. 260 (Ker.) is also relied upon. It has been submitted that appellant was chronically sick who has been donated kidney by both of his parents and required treatment abroad for long intervals but, still in all its sincerity, the appellant has already paid duty and part interest. This fact was also brought to the notice of the Commissioner during the hearing dated 07.10.2016 and even prior to that the request was made to the Department to work out the figure of interest so that it could be deposited but there was no response to either of the requests of the appellant rather he confirmed the demand against him vide the Order under challenge, without appellant being heard.

3.2 It is also submitted that in the given circumstances, the Department was not even entitled to invoke extended period of limitation. The imposition of penalty under both the Sections i.e. 114A and 114AA of the Customs Act, 1962 has also been objected as both deal with the mis-declaration. It is submitted that penalty could be imposed under either of the said Sections to the discretion of the adjudicating authority but imposition of penalty under both these Section amounts to double jeopardy. With these submissions, the Order under challenge is prayed to be set aside and Appeal is prayed to be allowed.

4. While rebutting these arguments, learned Departmental Representative has submitted that it s not only the impugned Bill of Entry No. 9454459 dated 04.06.2015 but there has been as many as 190 Bill of Entries with respect to the prior imports by the appellant, as have been checked by the Department. In almost 98 cases, thereof the changes in invoices have been noticed. The noticed forgery has duly been acknowledged by the Proprietor of the appellant. His admission stands corroborated from the other respective documents as that of airways and even those as were received from banks. The appellant was intentionally under-valuating and mis-declaring his goods with the sole intention to evade the payment of Customs duty. The Department has committed no error while invoking the extended period of limitation. The observed guilt of the appellant stands well proved from the documents on record. Adjudicating Authority has committed no error while confirming the demand.

4.1 It is further submitted that scope of both the Sections i.e. 114A and 114AA of the Customs Act is different. There is no error when the penalty under both of them has been proposed and confirmed. Finally, submitted that the case laws as relied upon by the appellant is not applicable to the given facts and circumstances. The Appeal is prayed to be dismissed.

5. After hearing both the parties, we are of the opinion as follows:

5.1 The main ground praying for setting aside of the impugned Order-in-Original is the violation of principles of natural justice. But from the Order-in-Original we observe that the adjudicating authority below had afforded the personal hearing in the matter on 07.10.2016. The hearing was attended by the father of the Proprietor of the appellant. On the said date Shri KL Jawa had paid customs duty of Rs.1.64Cr. and revealed the desire to file an application in the Settlement Commission with the prayer to keep in abeyance the adjudication proceedings. Subsequent thereto several other opportunities of personal hearing were granted to the appellant. It is observed that the adjudicating authority issued notices on 24.11.2017, 28.11.2017, 05.12.2017, 12.01.2017 and 31.01.2018 but neither there was an appearance on behalf of the appellant nor any proof was filed with respect of filing an application in the Settlement Commission as was mentioned on 07.10.2016 with the request for keeping the adjudication proceedings at abeyance. In the absence of the subsequent presence as well as the requested documents that too for a period of almost 11/2 Years the adjudicating authority below proceeded ahead with the Order under challenge. This perusal is sufficient for us to hold that the Order is not an ex-parte Order and it has been wrongly so alleged by the appellant. Sufficient opportunity seems to have been granted to the appellant by the Adjudicating Authority. Also, the absence of appellant from 13.01.2018 to 24.06.2018 due to being abroad for medical treatment for chronic illness is also not opined sufficient to explain as to what prevented his father who appeared on 07.10.2016 on his behalf, to further appear or to at least tender the requisite document. The appellant had otherwise been corresponding with the Department.

6. We observe that till date the appellant has not produced anything to show that they ever approached the Settlement Commission nor there is any other effort post 07.10.2016, the date of personal hearing when father of the appellant attended the same that any reminder for continued abeyance for calculation of interest was ever given to the Department. There is nothing on record to show as to why the interest could not have been calculated and deposited in full by the appellant. Also, there is nothing on record to show that the notices as issued post 07.10.2016 were given to the appellant at the wrong addresses. In the given circumstances, especially when the appellant had knowledge of pendency of proceedings before the adjudicating authority and had appeared once through his father but instead of submitting on merits had prayed abeyance of adjudication in view of the desire to appear before the Settlement Commission it was utmost required on the part of appellant to be diligent about the impugned adjudication. Absence of requisite due diligence on the part of the appellant cannot be a ground to extend any benefit in his favour. The ground of medical sickness of the Proprietor of appellant is already opined not relevant as the appellant had already marked his presence through the father of the Proprietor thereof. With these observations, we are of the firm opinion that neither the Order under challenge is an ex-parte Order as alleged nor there is violation of principles of natural justice as alleged. Rather sufficient efforts are apparent on the part of the adjudicating authority to serve repeated reminders to the appellant to appear and submit on merits. The appellant wilfully opted to not to avail the said opportunity. The Order under challenge cannot be set aside on the grounds of violation of principles of natural justice.

7. Coming to the merits of the case, we observe that Department after obtaining the documents from the respective banks of the importer and various airlines/carriers had observed that the appellant importer has systematically and with malafide intentions procured duplicate invoices or under-valued the consignment with express purpose of defrauding the Government Exchequer not only for the impugned Bill of Entry but also for the imports made during the period w.e.f. June 2010 to June, 2015. We observe that thrice the statements of Proprietor of appellant were recorded as on 11.06.2015, 25.06.2015 and 22.07.2015 under Section 108 of the Customs Act, 1962. There is the sufficient admission of the Proprietor of the appellant about the invoice dated 26.05.2015 issued by M/s. Patricia Hubbard Bomco Ind. Gloucester, USA retrieved from the consignment and also a copy obtained by the customs officers from the carrier M/s. UPS Jet Air Express showing the value of shipment covered under Bill of Entry No. 9454459 dated 04.06.2015 as USD 6890. It is also admitted that however, the total value thereof was declared at USD 890 FOB with the further admission that the said change in the value of the imported consignment was made keeping in view the cut throat competition in the market and in order to make some reasonable profits. The original invoices of value USD 6890 have been admitted to be intentionally replaced with the invoice having lesser value of USD890 to save the custom duty payable thereon which was done by the appellant by making a scanned copy thereof and by making the amendment therein. This admission is sufficient admission for alleged forgery on the part of the appellant to under-value the imported consignment with a clear intent to evade the customs duty.

8. Further, perusal of statement of Mr. Arvind Jawa (Proprietor of appellant) makes it clear that on earlier occasions also the appellant had similarly replaced the invoices showing the actual and higher value with the invoices showing lesser value and have thus repeatedly evaded the actual customs duty payable thereon. It is further observed that during the investigation the meticulous exercise with respect to comparing prior 192 Bills of Entry viz.-a-viz. the value reflected in the copy of 192 invoices, bills obtained from carrier/airlines and the bank statements of the appellant was done. The Department summarised that the appellant has resorted to similar replacement in as good as 130 cases thereof. Those were summarised in Annexure A to the show cause notice reflecting the short payment of customs duty amounting to Rs.1,23,05,963/- during the period w.e.f. August, 2010 to June, 2015. In 17 other cases for the period July and August, 2015 the differential customs duty has been observed as Rs.41,44,641/- where after the impugned demand of Rs.1,64,50,604/- being an evasion of customs duty has been proposed and has been confirmed vide the Order under challenge.

9. There is nothing on record produced by the appellant to contradict the said documents based whereupon the differential duty has been calculated and confirmed by the Department. Above all, there is no retraction of the statement of the Proprietor of appellant acknowledging the alleged guilt. Law has been settled by Hon’ble High Court of Punjab and Haryana in the case Shiv Shakti Steel Tube Vs. Commissioner reported at 2008 (221) E.L.T. 166 (P&H) wherein it was held that all statements made under Section 114 of Central Excise Act, 1944 by a witness or a party are ex facie admissible in evidence to sustain penalty. Section 14 of Central Excise Act, 1944 is para materia to Section 108 of Customs Act, 1962. We further draw our support from the decision of Hon’ble Apex Court in the case of R.Vishwanatha Pillai Vs. State of Kerala reported at 2004 (2) SCC (105) wherein it was held that equity or compassion cannot be allowed to bend the arms of law in a case where an individual acquires the status by practising fraud.

9.1 The fraud in the form of forgery is very much apparent in the present case not only from the non retracted confession of the Proprietor of appellant but stands corroborated from the various documents recovered during investigation pointing towards the alleged under valuation, as discussed above. We, therefore, hold that under valuation of goods has rightly been held by the adjudicating authority below. The demand of differential customs duty is, therefore, upheld.

10. Now coming to the issue of mis-declaration, we observe that admittedly, five sets of the impugned mechanical instruments were found in the impugned consignment at the time of examination, i.e. with respect to Bill of Entry No. 9454459 dated 04.06.2015 whereas the Bill of Entry was mentioning only one set. Apparently, there is the difference in description of the imported goods as mentioned in the invoices issued by the exporter to the one annexed with the Bill of Entry. Even the Bill of Entry mentions the import of one set only. There is no evidence to support that five sets is actually equal to one set. We, therefore, are of the opinion that the adjudicating authority has committed no error while confirming the proposed mis-declaration of the goods imported by the appellant.

11. Coming to the aspect of imposition of penalty under both the provisions i.e. 114A and 114AA of Customs Act, 1944 –

11.1 Section 114A prescribes penalty in case of short levy or non levy of duty, i.e. in a case where the duty or interest as determined under Sub-section 8 of Section 28 of the Act and the interest payable thereon under Section 28AA of the Act has not been paid by the importer. Whereas, Section 114AA prescribes penalty for the use of false and incorrect material. No doubt, in case of use of false and incorrect material there would also be the short paid duty or interest but all cases of short paid duty or interest may not be the cases of use of false and incorrect material. Hence, the scope of both the Sections is out rightly distinct. We find no infirmity in the Order where, in the given facts and circumstances of admitted forgery duly corroborated by the documentary evidence, penalty under both the Sections have been imposed. The case law as relied upon by the appellant is not applicable to the facts because in the present case there is sufficient evidence about use of false and incorrect material.

12. The non calculation of interest (as alleged), if any, on the part of the adjudicating authority is also not relevant for extending any benefit to the appellant, in view of the fact that appellant out of his own volition has deposited the entire differential customs duty and even the part interest thereof that too beyond the period of 30 days from the date of the show cause notice.

13. In view of entire above discussion we are of the opinion that there is no infirmity noticed in the Order under challenge, same is hereby upheld and the Appeal is accordingly dismissed.

The present appeal is filed by the assessee-Apellants against the Order-in-Appeal No. 07/2017 dated 05.12.2017 passed by the Commissioner of Customs, Jaipur.

2. The brief facts of the case are that, the assessee-Apellants were appointed custodian of Inland Container Depot, Jodhpur, under Section 45(1) of the Customs Act, 1962 vide Public Notice dated 27.06.2001. It was expected that they have to fulfil the target of 7200 TEUs (20 meters length containers) and if there is a shortage in the target, then the assessee-Apellants will have to pay the Cost Recovery Charges as the Officers were appointed by the Department with them. It is the submission of the learned counsel for the assessee-Appellants that, prior to 2009-10 the Cost Recovery Charges were waived, but in the year 2009-10, Rs. 96,00,000/- were paid by the assessee-Appellants to the Department. Since then, the recovery charges were raised and assessee-Appellants will have to pay. The same was assailed by the assessee-Appellants before this Tribunal and the Tribunal vide its Final Order No. 50679/2017 dated 08.02.2017 has remanded the matter to the competent authority to consider the exemption from the Cost Recovery Charges with the consent of the Board. The Board vide its letter dated 12.04.2017 has rejected the application for waiver of Cost Recovery Charges filed by the assessee-Appellants. So, the Cost Recovery Charges have been demanded. Being aggrieved, the assessee-Appellants have filed the present appeal.

3. With this background, we have heard Sh. B.K. Singh, learned counsel for the assessee-Appellants and Sh. Sanjay Jain, learned DR for the Revenue.

4. After hearing both sides at length and on perusal of the material available on record, it appears that as per the agreement, the assessee-Appellants will have to pay the Cost Recovery Charges of Customs Officers posted at ICD if failed to meet the target. In the past (2009-10), the assessee-Appellants have paid an amount of Rs. 96,00,000/- as Cost Recovery Charges. For waiver, the Board has rejected the application of the assessee-Appellants vide order dated 12.04.2017.

5. In the second round of litigation before the Tribunal, no new facts have emerged, as mentioned above. It is for the Department/Board either to waive or recover the Cost Recovery Charges. This is the discretion of the Department. It makes no difference if the Officers posted were from the cadre or out sourced by the Department.
6. In view of the above discussion and by considering the totality of the facts and circumstances of the case, we find no reason to interfere with the impugned order and the same is hereby sustained along with the reasons mentioned therein.

7. However, the assessee-Appellants may be at liberty to approach the Board to re-consider its decision, if advice so.

8. In the result, the appeal filed by the assessee-Appellants is dismissed.

Present is an Appeal against the Order of Commissioner of Customs (Appeals) bearing No. 180/17 dated 24.04.2018 as filed by the Department.

Ltd. herein had filed a refund claim under special refund mechanism as provided for under the exemption Notification No. 102/2007-Cus dated 14.09.2007 (herein referred to as the said Notification) for an amount of Rs. 3,48,624. The claim is with respect to special additional duty of Customs (SAD) leviable under sub-section 5 of Section 3 of Custom Tariff Act, 1975 (herein referred to as the Act) the details of refund are as follows:

The Assistant Commissioner vide order No. 5230 dated 08.09.2016 has rejected the said claim on the ground that the same has been filed after the prescribed time limit of one year from the date of payment and as such is rejected as being barred by time. Being aggrieved, the assessee approached the first appellate authority, i.e. the Commissioner of Customs (Appeals). He, vide the Order under challenge has held that upholding the limitation period starting from the date of payment of duty as prescribed in amended Notification No. 93/2008-Cus would amount to allowing commencement of limitation period for refund claimed before the right of refund has even accrued and that no period of limitation is prescribed under Section 3(5) of the Customs Tariff Act. Accordingly, the Appeal of assessee was allowed accepting the refund claimed. Department being aggrieved is in Appeal before us.
3. We have heard Shri Sunil Kumar, Ld. DR for the Department/appellant. However none is present for the respondent. He therefore hereby proceed to decide the Appeal ex-parte considering defendant.

4. It is submitted that the Commissioner(Appeals) has based his Order on the decision of Hon'ble High Court of Delhi in the matter of M/s Sony India Pvt. Ltd. Vs. Commissioner of Customs, New Delhi 2014 (304) ELT 660 (Del.) and though the Appeal whereof even before Hon'ble Supreme Court has been dismissed but Hon'ble Apex Court has dismissed the Appeal only on the ground of limitation hence the question of law involved herein is still kept open. It is impressed upon that Notification No. 93/2008-Cus dated 01.08.2008 is the Notification amending the Notification No. 102/2007 vide which a time period of one year from the date of payment for the filing of refund claims by an importer has been introduced. Thus, the period for filing the impugned refund claim is clearly of one year. Since the refund claim in question was not filed within the said one year, the original Adjudicating Authority had rightly dismissed the same and the Commissioner(Appeals) has committed an error while allowing the assessee's claim. Order is accordingly prayed to be set aside and Appeal is prayed to be allowed.

5. After hearing, we are of the opinion as follows:

(1) ------- (2) -------
(5) If the Central Government is satisfied that it is necessary in the public interest to levy on any imported article [whether on such article duty is leviable under sub-section (1) or, as the case may be, sub-section (3) or not] such additional duty as would counter-balance the sales tax, value added tax, local tax or any other charges for the time being leviable on a like article on its sale, purchase or transportation in India, it may, by notification in the Official Gazette, direct that such imported article shall, in addition, be liable to an additional duty at a rate not exceeding four per cent of the value of the imported article as specified in that notification.

Explanation - In this sub-section, the expression "sales tax, value added tax, local tax or any other charges for the time being leviable on a like article on its sale, purchase or transportation in India" means the sales tax, value added tax, local tax or other charges for the time being in force, which would be leviable on a like article if sold, purchased or transported in India or, if a like article is not so sold, purchased or transported, which would be leviable on the class or description of articles to which the imported article belongs and where such taxes, or, as the case may be, such charges are leviable at different rates the highest such tax or, as the case may be, such charge."

It is brought to our notice that the said SAD exemption has been granted vide Notification No. 102/2007 dated 14.09.2007 as issued in accordance of Section 25(1) of the Customs Act which provides power to the Central Government to grant exemption from duty by way of Notification. This Notification exempts the goods falling within the first schedule to the Customs Tariff Act, 1975 when imported into India for subsequent sale, from the whole of the additional duty of Customs leviable thereupon in accordance of the above mentioned Section 3(5) of Customs Tariff Act. However, subject to such conditions as mentioned in the Notification itself in para 2 thereof, the first condition reads as follows:

(a) The importer of the said goods shall pay all duties including the additional duty of Customs leviable thereon, as applicable at the time of importation of goods.

The other relevant condition is:

(c) The importer shall file a claim for refund of said additional duty of Customs paid on the imported goods with the jurisdictional Customs officer. This Notification stands amended vide Notification No. 93/2008 dated 01.08.2008 vide which a time period of one year from the date of payment for filing of refund claims by an importer under the aforesaid Notification was introduced.

C/Stay/50824/2018 in C/52393/2018 [DB] Commissioner (Appeals) has held that the amendment since introduced for the first time by a Notification but without a statutory amendment, the same cannot prevail.

6. In view of the above discussion, we are of the opinion that the moot question to be adjudicated in the present case is as to whether there is any time limit prescribed by law for filing the refund claim of additional duty of Customs as stands exempted vide the Notification No. 102/2007.

No doubt, the said Notification is silent about any time period for filing the said claim. But the Notification exempts the goods in first schedule of Customs Tariff Act from being leviable to the additional duty of Customs. However, the Notification itself mandates the deposit of the said additional duty at the time of importation of the goods and thereafter to get the refund. From this perusal, one thing becomes abundantly clear that the importer has the knowledge of his entitlement to file the refund of additional duty of Customs at the time of the payment of said duty itself i.e. at the time, the product being in first schedule (under the exempted category) is imported. Resultantly, we are of the opinion that for claiming the refund of additional duty nothing else has to happen or to be done by the assessee after the payment of said additional duty of C/Stay/50824/2018 in C/52393/2018 [DB] Customs. To our opinion, this particular fact distinguishes the present case from the case of M/s Sony India Pvt. Ltd. (supra).

7. Also, the amending Notification No. 93/2008 is arising out of the statute, i.e. Section 25(2A) of the Customs Act, 1962 hence, the findings of the Commissioner (Appeals) that the amendment introducing one year from the date of payment of additional duty as a time to claim the refund thereof is without statutory amendment, is not sustainable rather is opined to be legally erroneous. Otherwise also, the said amendment came into force w.e.f. 01.08.2008 that too in accordance of another statutory provision, i.e. Section 25(4) of the Customs Act. The refund in question was filed on 27.03.2017, i.e. much beyond the amended Notification and also the Customs Act itself contains a provision about claim of refund of duty in Section 27 thereof which reads as follows:-

(i) Any person claiming refund of any duty or interest, paid by him or borne by him may make an application in such form and manner as may be prescribed for such refund to the Assistant Commissioner of Customs or Deputy Commissioner of Customs before the expiry of one year from the date of payment of such duty or interest.

C/Stay/50824/2018 in C/52393/2018 [DB]

8. The words used in the provision makes it clear that statute has not distinguished the nature of duty or interest, the refund whereof is claimed. Hence, even if we do not look into the amended Notification No. 93/2008, the period of limitation as applicable for filing the refund claim under Notification 102/2008 will otherwise be a period of one year in accordance of the aforesaid Section 27 of Customs Act. Thus, we cannot rule out that the Notification No. 93/2008 came into existence to align the statutory provision with the Notification which was silent as far as the period of limitation for the purpose as mentioned therein is concerned. Otherwise also, on examination of relevant provision it appears that the provisions of limitation are excluded, it would nonetheless be still open to the court to examine whether and to what extent the nature of those provisions or the nature of the subject matter and scheme of the special law exclude their operation. This Tribunal in the case of Uttam Sucrotech International Pvt. Ltd. Vs. Union of India 2011 (264) E.L.T. 502 (Delhi) has held that the applicability of the provisions of limitation Act therefore is to be judged not from the terms of limitation Act but by the provisions of the concerned act. The Tribunal has gone to the extent of appreciating that it is the duty of the court to respect the legislative intent and by giving liberal interpretation, limitation cannot be extended by invoking the provisions even of Section 5 of the Limitation Act. The Hon'ble Apex Court in the case Naseeruddin Vs. Sitaram Aggarwal C/Stay/50824/2018 in C/52393/2018 [DB] A.I.R. 2003 (S.C.)1543 has held that in the absence of statutory provisions, no inherent powers of the court exists to condone the delay. It was also held that a statutory right has to be exercised in the mode, manner and limitation specified in the special statute itself. The Hon'ble Apex Court in an earlier decision in the case of Titaghur Papermills Company Ltd. Vs. State of Orissa SCC PP 440-41 para 11 has held:

In still another case titled as Munshiram Vs. Municipal Committee Chheharta SSC page 88 para 23, the Hon'ble Apex Court held that when a Revenue statute provides for a person aggrieved by an assessment thereunder, a particular remedy to be sought in a particular forum in a particular way it must be sought in that forum C/Stay/50824/2018 in C/52393/2018 [DB] and in that manner and all other forums and modes of seeking said remedy are excluded. Except in the case where the statutory authority has not acted in accordance with the provisions of the enactment in question or in defiance of the fundamental principles of judicial procedure or has resorted to invoke the provisions which are repealed. Apparently and admittedly none is the fact of the present Appeal. It is also not the case that Notification 93/2008 has been repealed. In absence thereof also, as already discussed above, Section 27 of Customs Act prescribes a period during which refund of any type can be claimed. The Hon'ble Apex Court in a recent decision Commissioner of Customs (Import Mumbai) Vs. M/s Dilip Kumar & Co. 2018 TIOL 302 (S.C.)-Cus-CB has held that an exemption Notification has to be strictly construed, i.e. if the person claiming exemption does not fall strictly within the letter of Notification, he cannot claim the exemption. The Hon'ble Apex Court while relying upon its previous decision in the case District Mining Officer Vs. Tata Iron & Steel Company 2001 (7) SCC 358 had noticed as follows:-

"... A statute is an edict of the Legislature and in construing a statute, it is necessary, to seek the intention of its maker. A statute has to be construed according to the intent of them that make it and the duty of the Court is to act upon the true intention of the Legislature. If a statutory provision is open to more than one interpretation the Court has to choose that C/Stay/50824/2018 in C/52393/2018 [DB] interpretation which represents the true intention of the Legislature. This task very often raises the difficulties because of various reasons, inasmuch as the words used may not be scientific symbols having any precise or definite meaning and the language may be an imperfect medium to convey one's thought or that the assembly of Legislatures consisting of persons of various shades of opinion purport to convey a meaning which may be obscure. It is impossible even for the most imaginative Legislature to forestall exhaustively situations and circumstances that may emerge after enacting a statute where its application may be called for.

Nonetheless, the function of the Courts is only to expound and not to legislate. Legislation in a modern State is actuated with some policy to curb some public evil or to effectuate some public benefit. The legislation is primarily directed to the problems before the Legislature based on information derived from past and present experience. It may also be designed by use of general words to cover similar problems arising in future. But, from the very nature of things, it is impossible to anticipate fully the varied situations arising in future in which the application of the legislation in hand may be called for, and, words chosen to communicate such indefinite referents are bound to be in many cases lacking in clarity and precision and thus giving rise to controversial questions of construction. The process of construction combines both literal and purposive approaches. In other words the legislative intention i.e., the true or legal meaning of an enactment is derived by considering the meaning of the words used in the enactment in the light of any discernible purpose or object which comprehends the mischief and its remedy to which the enactment is directed."

It was also held that the well settled principle is that when the words in a statute are clear, C/Stay/50824/2018 in C/52393/2018 [DB] plain and unambiguous and only one meaning can be inferred, the Courts are bound to give effect to the said meaning irrespective of consequences. If the words in the statute are plain and unambiguous, it becomes necessary to expound those words in their natural and ordinary sense. The words used declare the intention of the Legislature. In Kanai Lal Sur v. Paramnidhi Sadhukhan, AIR 1957 SC 907, it was held that if the words used are capable of one construction only then it would not be open to the Courts to adopt any other hypothetical construction on the ground that such construction is more consistent with the alleged object and policy of the Act.

In view of entire above discussion, we are of the opinion that the refund claim of additional duty due to the exemption flowing out of Notification No. 102/2007 has to be filed within one year in view of the subsequent Notification No. 93/2008-Cus which still holds good and also in view of Section 27 of the Customs Act, 1962. We therefore hold that the Commissioner(Appeals) has committed an error while giving an expanded interpretation qua limitation to favour assessee. We therefore set aside the said Order and allow the present Appeal rejecting the impugned refund claimed.

The Assistant Commissioner vide order No. 5230 dated 08.09.2016 has rejected the said claim on the ground that the same has been filed after the prescribed time limit of one year from the date of payment and as such is rejected as being barred by time. Being aggrieved, the assessee approached the first appellate authority, i.e. the Commissioner of Customs (Appeals).
He, vide the Order under challenge has held that upholding the limitation period starting from the date of payment of duty as prescribed in amended Notification No. 93/2008-Cus would amount to allowing commencement of limitation period for refund claimed before the right of refund has even accrued and that no period of limitation is prescribed under Section 3(5) of the Customs Tariff Act. Accordingly, the Appeal of asssesee was allowed accepting the refund claimed. Department being aggrieved is in Appeal before us.

3. We have heard Shri Rakesh Kumar, Ld. DR for the Department/appellant. However none is present for the respondent. He therefore hereby proceed to decide the Appeal ex-parte considering defendant.

4. It is submitted that the Commissioner(Appellate) has based his Order on the decision of Hon'ble High Court of Delhi in the matter of M/s Sony India Pvt. Ltd. Vs. Commissioner of Customs, New Delhi 2014 (304) ELT 660 (Del.) and though the Appeal whereof even before Hon'ble Supreme Court has been dismissed but Hon'ble Apex Court has dismissed the Appeal only on the ground of limitation hence the question of law involved herein is still kept open. It is impressed upon that Notification No. 93/2008-Cus dated 01.08.2008 is the Notification amending the Notification No. 102/2007 vide which a time period of one year from the date of payment for the filing of refund claims by an importer has been introduced. Thus, the period for filing the impugned refund claim is clearly of one year. Since the refund claim in question was not filed within the said one year, the original Adjudicating Authority had rightly dismissed the same and the Commissioner(Appellate) has committed an error while allowing the assessee’s claim. Order is accordingly prayed to be set aside and Appeal is prayed to be allowed.

5. After hearing, we are of the opinion as follows:-

The claim herein is with respect to special additional duty of Customs as leviable under Section 3(5) of Customs Tariff Act, 1975. It is important to look into the said provision which reads as follows:

'Section 3 Levy of additional duty equal to excise duty, sales tax, local taxes and other charges–

(1) -------

(2) -------

(5) If the Central Government is satisfied that it is necessary in the public interest to levy on any imported article [whether on such article duty is leviable under sub-section (1) or, as the case may be, sub-section (3) or not] such additional duty as would counter-balance the sales tax, value added tax, local tax or any other charges for the time being leviable on a like article on its sale, purchase or transportation in India, it may, by notification in the Official Gazette, direct that such imported article shall, in addition, be liable to an additional duty at a rate not exceeding four per cent of the value of the imported article as specified in that notification.

Explanation – In this sub-section, the expression "sale tax, value added tax, local tax or any other charges for the time being leviable on a like article on its sale, purchase or transportation in India" means the sales tax, value added tax, local tax or other charges for the time being in force, which would be leviable on a like article if sold, purchased or transported in India or, if a like article is not so sold, purchased or transported, which would be leviable on the class or description of articles to which the imported article belongs and where such taxes, or, as the case may be, such charges are leviable at different rates the highest such tax or, as the case may be, such charge."

It is brought to our notice that the said SAD exemption has been granted vide Notification No. 102/2007 dated 14.09.2007 as issued in accordance of Section 25(1) of the Customs Act which provides power to the Central Government to grant exemption from duty by way of Notification. This Notification exempts the goods falling within the first schedule to the Customs Tariff Act, 1975 when imported into India for subsequent sale, from the whole of the additional duty of Customs leviable thereupon in accordance of the above mentioned Section 3(5) of Customs Tariff Act. However, subject to such conditions as mentioned in the Notification itself in para 2 thereof, the first condition reads as follows:

(a) The importer of the said goods shall pay all duties including the additional duty of Customs leviable thereon, as applicable at the time of importation of goods.

The other relevant condition is:

(c) The importer shall file a claim for refund of said additional duty of Customs paid on the imported goods with the jurisdictional Customs officer.

This Notification stands amended vide Notification No. 93/2008 dated 01.08.2008 vide which a time period of one year from the date of payment for filing of refund claims by an importer under the aforesaid Notification was introduced. Commissioner (Appeals) has held that the amendment since introduced for the first time by a Notification but without a statutory amendment, the same cannot prevail.

6. In view of the above discussion, we are of the opinion that the moot question to be adjudicated in the present case is as to whether there is any time limit prescribed by law for filing the refund claim of additional duty of Customs as stands exempted vide the Notification No. 102/2007.

No doubt, the said Notification is silent about any time period for filing the said claim. But the Notification exempts the goods in first schedule of Customs Tariff Act from being leviable to the additional duty of Customs. However, the Notification itself mandates the deposit of the said additional duty at the time of importation of the goods and thereafter to get the refund. From this perusal, one thing becomes abundantly clear that the importer has the knowledge of his entitlement to file the refund of additional duty of Customs at the time of the payment of said duty itself i.e. at the time, the product being in first schedule (under the exempted category) is imported. Resultantly, we are of the opinion that for claiming the refund of additional duty nothing else has to happen or to be done by the assesse after the payment of said additional duty of Customs. To our opinion, this particular fact distinguishes the present case from the case of M/s Sony India Pvt. Ltd. (supra).

7. Also, the amending Notification No. 93/2008 is arising out of the statute, i.e. Section 25(2A) of the Customs Act, 1962 hence, the findings of the Commissioner(Appeals) that the amendment introducing one year from the date of payment of additional duty as a time to claim the refund thereof is without statutory amendment, is not sustainable rather is opined to be legally erroneous. Otherwise also, the said amendment came into force w.e.f. 01.08.2008 that too in accordance of another statutory provision, i.e. Section 25(4) of the Customs Act. The refund in question was filed on 08.03.2016, i.e. much beyond the amended Notification and also the Customs Act itself contains a provision about claim of refund of duty in Section 27 thereof which reads as follows:-

(i) Any person claiming refund of any duty or interest, paid by him or borne by him may make an application in such form and manner as may be prescribed for such refund to the Assistant Commissioner of Customs or Deputy Commissioner of Customs before the expiry of one year from the date of payment of such duty or interest.

8. The words used in the provision makes it clear that statute has not distinguished the nature of duty or interest, the refund whereof is claimed. Hence, even if we do not look into the amended Notification No. 93/2008, the period of limitation as applicable for filing the refund claim under Notification 102/2008 will otherwise be a period of one year in accordance of the aforesaid Section 27 of Customs Act. Thus, we cannot rule out that the Notification No. 93/2008 came into existence to align the statutory provision with the Notification which was silent as far as the period of limitation for the purpose as mentioned therein is concerned. Otherwise also, on examination of relevant provision it appears that the provisions of limitation are excluded, it would nonetheless be still open to the court to examine whether and to what extent the nature of those provisions or the nature of the subject matter and scheme of the special law exclude their operation. This Tribunal in the case of Uttam Sucrotech International Pvt. Ltd. Vs. Union of India 2011 (264) E.L.T. 502 (Delhi) has held that the applicability of the provisions of limitation Act therefore is to be judged not from the terms of limitation Act but by the provisions of the concerned act. The Tribunal has gone to the extent of appreciating that it is the duty of the court to respect the legislative intent and by giving liberal interpretation, limitation cannot be extended by invoking the provisions even of Section 5 of the Limitation Act. The Hon’ble Apex Court in the case Naseeruddin Vs. Sitaram Aggarwal A.I.R. 2003 (S.C.) 1543 has held that in the absence of statutory provisions, no inherent powers of the court exists to condone the delay. It was also held that a statutory right has to be exercised in the mode, manner and limitation specified in the special statute itself. The Hon’ble Apex Court in an earlier decision in the case of Titaghur Papermills Company Ltd. Vs. State of Orissa SCC PP 440-41 para 11 has held:

"11. ...... it is now well recognised that where a right or liability is created by a statute which gives a special remedy for enforcing it, the remedy provided by that statute only must be availed of. This rule was stated with great clarity by Willes, J. in Wolverhampton New Waterworks Co. Vs. Hawkesford in the following passage: (ER p. 495)

...... There are three classes of cases in which a liability may be established founded upon a statute. ..... But there is a third class viz. where a liability not existing at common law is created by a statute which at the same time gives a special and particular remedy for enforcing it. ..... The remedy provided by the statute must be followed, and it is not competent to the party to pursue the course applicable to cases of the second class. The form given by the statute must be adopted and adhered to."

In still another case titled as Munshiram Vs. Municipal Committee Chheharta SSC page 88 para 23, the Hon’ble Apex Court held that when a Revenue statute provides for a person aggrieved by an assessment thereunder, a particular remedy to be sought in a particular forum, in a particular way, it must be sought in that forum and in that manner and all other forums and modes of seeking said remedy are excluded. Except in the case where the statutory authority has not acted in accordance with the provisions of the enactment in question or in defiance of the fundamental principles of judicial procedure or has resorted to invoke the provisions which are repealed. Apparently and admittedly none is the fact of the present Appeal. It is also not the case that Notification 93/2008 has been repealed. In absence thereof also, as already discussed above, Section 27 of Customs Act prescribes a period during which refund of any type can be claimed. The Hon’ble Apex Court in a recent decision Commissioner of Customs (Import Mumbai) Vs. M/s Dilip Kumar & Co. has held that an exemption Notification has to be strictly construed, i.e. if the person claiming exemption does not fall strictly within the letter of Notification, he cannot claim the exemption. The Hon’ble Apex Court while relying upon its previous decision in the case District Mining Officer Vs. Tata Iron & Steel Company 2001 (7) SCC 358 had noticed as follows:-

"... A statute is an edict of the Legislature and in construing a statute, it is necessary, to seek the intention of its maker. A statute has to be construed according to the intent of them that make it and the duty of the Court is to act upon the true intention of the Legislature. If a statutory provision is open to more than one interpretation the Court has to choose that interpretation which represents the true intention of the Legislature. This task very often raises the difficulties because of various reasons, inasmuch as the words used may not be scientific symbols having any precise or definite meaning and the language may be an imperfect medium to convey one’s thought or that the assembly of Legislatures consisting of persons of various shades of opinion purport to convey a meaning which may be obscure. It is impossible even for the most imaginative Legislature to forestall exhaustively situations and circumstances that may emerge after enacting a statute where its application may be called for.

Nonetheless, the function of the Courts is only to expound and not to legislate. Legislation in a modern State is actuated with some policy to curb some public evil or to effectuate some public benefit. The legislation is primarily directed to the problems before the Legislature based on information derived from past and present experience. It may also be designed by use of general words to cover similar problems arising in future. But, from the very nature of things, it is impossible to anticipate fully the varied situations arising in future in which the application of the legislation in hand may be called for, and, words chosen to communicate such indefinite referents are bound to be in many cases lacking in clarity and precision and thus giving rise to controversial questions of construction. The process of construction combines both literal and purposive approaches. In other words the legislative intention i.e., the true or legal meaning of an enactment is derived by considering the meaning of the words used in the enactment in the light of any discernible purpose or object which comprehends the mischief and its remedy to which the enactment is directed...” It was also held that the well settled principle is that when the words in a statute are clear, plain and unambiguous and only one meaning can be inferred, the Courts are bound to give effect to the said meaning irrespective of consequences. If the words in the statute are plain and unambiguous, it becomes necessary to expound those words in their natural and ordinary sense. The words used declare the intention of the Legislature. In Kanai Lal Sur v. Paramnidhi Sadhukhan, AIR 1957 SC 907, it was held that if the words used are capable of one construction only then it would not be open to the Courts to adopt any other hypothetical construction on the ground that such construction is more consistent with the alleged object and policy of the Act.

In view of entire above discussion, we are of the opinion that the refund claim of additional duty due to the exemption flowing out of Notification No. 102/2007 has to be filed within one year in view of the subsequent Notification No. 93/2008-Cus which still holds good and also in view of Section 27 of the Customs Act, 1962. We therefore hold that the Commissioner(Appeals) has committed an error while giving an expanded interpretation qua limitation to favour assessee. We therefore set aside the said Order and allow the present Appeal rejecting the impugned refund claimed.

The Assistant Commissioner vide order No. 5230 dated 08.09.2016 has rejected the said claim on the ground that the same has been filed after the prescribed time limit of one year from the date of payment and as such is rejected as being barred by time. Being aggrieved, the assessee approached the first appellate authority, i.e. the Commissioner of Customs (Appeals). He, vide the Order under challenge has held that upholding the limitation period starting from the date of payment of duty as prescribed in amended Notification No. 93/2008-Cus would amount to allowing commencement of limitation period for refund claimed before the right of refund has even accrued and that no period of limitation is prescribed under Section 3(5) of the Customs Tariff Act. Accordingly, the C/Stay/50851/2018 in C/52434/2018[DB] Appeal of assessee was allowed accepting the refund claimed. Department being aggrieved is in Appeal before us.

3. We have heard Shri Rakesh Kumar, Ld. DR for the Department/appellant. However none is present for the respondent. He therefore hereby proceed to decide the Appeal ex-parte considering defendant.

4. It is submitted that the Commissioner(Appeals) has based his Order on the decision of Hon'ble High Court of Delhi in the matter of M/s Sony India Pvt. Ltd. Vs. Commissioner of Customs, New Delhi 2014 (304) ELT 660 (Del.) and though the Appeal whereof even before Hon'ble Supreme Court has been dismissed but Hon'ble Apex Court has dismissed the Appeal only on the ground of limitation hence the question of law involved herein is still kept open. It is impressed upon that Notification No. 93/2008-Cus dated 01.08.2008 is the Notification amending the Notification No. 102/2007 vide which a time period of one year from the date of payment for the filing of refund claims by an importer has been introduced. Thus, the period for filing the impugned refund claim is clearly of one year. Since the refund claim in question was not filed within the said one year, the original Adjudicating Authority had rightly dismissed the same and the Commissioner(Appeals) has committed an error while allowing the assessee's claim. Order is accordingly prayed to be set aside and Appeal is prayed to be allowed.

5. After hearing, we are of the opinion as follows:-

The claim herein is with respect to special additional duty of Customs as leviable under Section 3(5) of Customs Tariff Act, 1975. It is important to look into the said provision which reads as follows:

"Section 3 Levy of additional duty equal to excise duty, sales tax, local taxes and other charges-

(1) ------- (2) -------
(5) If the Central Government is satisfied that it is necessary in the public interest to levy on any imported article [whether on such article duty is leviable under sub-section (1) or, as the case may be, sub-section (3) or not] such additional duty as would counter-balance the sales tax, value added tax, local tax or any other charges for the time being leviable on a like article on its sale, purchase or transportation in India, it may, by notification in the Official Gazette, direct that such imported article shall, in addition, be liable to an additional duty at a rate not exceeding four per cent of the value of the imported article as specified in that notification.

Explanation - In this sub-section, the expression "sales tax, value added tax, local tax or any other charges for the time being leviable on a like article on its sale, purchase or transportation in India" means the sales tax, value added tax, local tax or other charges for the time being in force, which would be leviable on a like article if sold, purchased or transported in India or, if a like article is not so sold, purchased or transported, which would be leviable on the class or description of articles to which the imported article belongs and where C/Stay/50851/2018 in such taxes, or, as the case may be, such charges are leviable at different rates the highest such tax or, as the case may be, such charge."

It is brought to our notice that the said SAD exemption has been granted vide Notification No. 102/2007 dated 14.09.2007 as issued in accordance of Section 25(1) of the Customs Act which provides power to the Central Government to grant exemption from duty by way of Notification. This Notification exempts the goods falling within the first schedule to the Customs Tariff Act, 1975 when imported into India for subsequent sale, from the whole of the additional duty of Customs leviable thereupon in accordance of the above mentioned Section 3(5) of Customs Tariff Act. However, subject to such conditions as mentioned in the Notification itself in para 2 thereof, the first condition reads as follows:

(a) The importer of the said goods shall pay all duties including the additional duty of Customs leviable thereon, as applicable at the time of importation of goods.

The other relevant condition is:

(c) The importer shall file a claim for refund of said additional duty of Customs paid on the imported goods with the jurisdictional Customs officer. This Notification stands amended vide Notification No. 93/2008 dated 01.08.2008 vide which a time period of one year from the date of payment for filing of refund claims by C/Stay/50851/2018 in C/52434/2018[DB] an importer under the aforesaid Notification was introduced. Commissioner (Appeals) has held that the amendment since introduced for the first time by a Notification but without a statutory amendment, the same cannot prevail.

6. In view of the above discussion, we are of the opinion that the moot question to be adjudicated in the present case is as to whether there is any time limit prescribed by law for filing the refund claim of additional duty of Customs as stands exempted vide the Notification No. 102/2007.

No doubt, the said Notification is silent about any time period for filing the said claim. But the Notification exempts the goods in first schedule of Customs Tariff Act from being leviable to the additional duty of Customs. However, the Notification itself mandates the deposit of the said additional duty at the time of importation of the goods and thereafter to get the refund. From this perusal, one thing becomes abundantly clear that the importer has the knowledge of his entitlement to file the refund of additional duty of Customs at the time of the payment of said duty itself i.e. at the time, the product being in first schedule (under the exempted category) is imported. Resultantly, we are of the opinion that for claiming the refund of additional duty nothing else has to happen or to be done by the asseesse after the payment of said additional duty of C/Stay/50851/2018 in C/52434/2018[DB] Customs. To our opinion, this particular fact distinguishes the present case from the case of M/s Sony India Pvt. Ltd. (supra).

7. Also, the amending Notification No. 93/2008 is arising out of the statute, i.e. Section 25(2A) of the Customs Act, 1962 hence, the findings of the Commissioner(Appeals) that the amendment introducing one year from the date of payment of additional duty as a time to claim the refund thereof is without statutory amendment, is not sustainable rather is opined to be legally erroneous. Otherwise also, the said amendment came into force w.e.f. 01.08.2008 that too in accordance of another statutory provision, i.e. Section 25(4) of the Customs Act. The refund in question was filed on 29.02.2016, i.e. much beyond the amended Notification and also the Customs Act itself contains a provision about claim of refund of duty in Sections 27 thereof which reads as follows:-

(i) Any person claiming refund of any duty or interest, paid by him or borne by him may make an application in such form and manner as may be prescribed for such refund to the Assistant Commissioner of Customs or Deputy Commissioner of Customs before the expiry of one year from the date of payment of such duty or
8. The words used in the provision makes it clear that statute has not distinguished the nature of duty or interest, the refund whereof is claimed. Hence, even if we do not look into the amended Notification No. 93/2008, the period of limitation as applicable for filing the refund claim under Notification 102/2008 will otherwise be a period of one year in accordance of the aforesaid Section 27 of Customs Act. Thus, we cannot rule out that the Notification No. 93/2008 came into existence to align the statutory provision with the Notification which was silent as far as the period of limitation for the purpose as mentioned therein is concerned. Otherwise also, on examination of relevant provision it appears that the provisions of limitation are excluded, it would nonetheless be still open to the court to examine whether and to what extent the nature of those provisions or the nature of the subject matter and scheme of the special law exclude their operation. This Tribunal in the case of Uttam Sucrotech International Pvt. Ltd. Vs. Union of India 2011 (264) E.L.T. 502 (Delhi) has held that the applicability of the provisions of limitation Act therefore is to be judged not from the terms of limitation Act but by the provisions of the concerned act. The Tribunal has gone to the extent of appreciating that it is the duty of the court to respect the legislative intent and by giving liberal interpretation, limitation cannot be extended by invoking the provisions even of Section 5 of the Limitation Act. The Hon’ble Apex Court in the case Naseeruddin Vs. Sitaram Aggarwal C/Stay/50851/2018 in C/52434/2018[DB] A.I.R. 2003 (S.C.)1543 has held that in the absence of statutory provisions, no inherent powers of the court exists to condone the delay. It was also held that a statutory right has to be exercised in the mode, manner and limitation specified in the special statute itself. The Hon’ble Apex Court in an earlier decision in the case of Titaghur Papermills Company Ltd. Vs. State of Orissa SCC PP 440-41 para 11 has held:

"11. ...... it is now well recognised that where a right or liability is created by a statute which gives a special remedy for enforcing it, the remedy provided by that statute only must be availed of. This rule was stated with great clarity by Willes, J. in Wolverhampton New Waterworks Co. Vs. Hawkesford in the following passage: (ER p. 495) ...... There are three classes of cases in which a liability may be established founded upon a statute. .... But there is a third class viz. where a liability not existing at common law is created by a statute which at the same time gives a special and particular remedy for enforcing it. ..... The remedy provided by the statute must be followed, and it is not competent to the party to pursue the course applicable to cases of the second class. The form given by the statute must be adopted and adhered to."

In still another case titled as Munshiram Vs. Municipal Committee Chhehartta SSC page 88 para 23, the Hon’ble Apex Court held that when a Revenue statute provides for a person aggrieved by an assessment thereunder, a particular remedy to be sought in a particular forum, in a particular way, it must be sought in that forum and in that manner and all other forums and modes of C/Stay/50851/2018 in C/52434/2018[DB] seeking said remedy are excluded. Except in the case where the statutory authority has not acted in accordance with the provisions of the enactment in question or in defiance of the fundamental principles of judicial procedure or has resorted to invoke the provisions which are repealed. Apparently and admittedly none is the fact of the present Appeal. It is also not the case that Notification 93/2008 has been repealed. In absence thereof also, as already discussed above, Section 27 of Customs Act prescribes a period during which refund of any type can be claimed. The Hon’ble Apex Court in a recent decision Commissioner of Customs (Import Mumbai) Vs. M/s Dilip Kumar & Co. 2018 TIOL 302 (S.C.).-Cus-CB has held that an exemption Notification has to be strictly construed, i.e. if the person claiming exemption does not fall strictly within the letter of Notification, he cannot claim the exemption. The Hon’ble Apex Court while relying upon its previous decision in the case District Mining Officer Vs. Tata Iron & Steel Company 2001 (7) SCC 358 had noticed as follows:-
"... A statute is an edict of the Legislature and in construing a statute, it is necessary, to seek the intention of its maker. A statute has to be construed according to the intent of them that make it and the duty of the Court is to act upon the true intention of the Legislature. If a statutory provision is open to more than one interpretation the Court has to choose that interpretation which represents the true intention of the C/Stay/50851/2018 in C/52434/2018[DB] Legislature. This task very often raises the difficulties because of various reasons, inasmuch as the words used may not be scientific symbols having any precise or definite meaning and the language may be an imperfect medium to convey one’s thought or that the assembly of Legislatures consisting of persons of various shades of opinion purport to convey a meaning which may be obscure. It is impossible even for the most imaginative Legislature to forestall exhaustively situations and circumstances that may emerge after enacting a statute where its application may be called for.

In other words the legislative intention i.e., the true or legal meaning of an enactment is derived by considering the meaning of the words used in the enactment in the light of any discernible purpose or object which comprehends the mischief and its remedy to which the enactment is directed...” It was also held that the well settled principle is that when the words in a statute are clear, plain and unambiguous and only one meaning can be C/Stay/50851/2018 in C/52434/2018[DB] inferred, the Courts are bound to give effect to the said meaning irrespective of consequences. In view of entire above discussion, we are of the opinion that the refund claim of additional duty due to the exemption flowing out of Notification No. 102/2007 has to be filed within one year in view of the subsequent Notification No. 93/2008-Cus which still holds good and also in view of Section 27 of the Customs Act, 1962. We therefore hold that the Commissioner(Appeals) has committed an error while giving an expanded interpretation qua limitation to favour assessees. We therefore set aside the said Order and allow the present Appeal rejecting the impugned refund claimed.

The Assistant Commissioner vide order No. 5230 dated 08.09.2016 has rejected the said claim on the ground that the same has been filed after the prescribed time limit of one year from the date of payment and as such is rejected as being barred by time. Being aggrieved, the assessee approached the first appellate authority, i.e. the Commissioner of Customs (Appeals). He, vide the Order under challenge has held that upholding the limitation period starting from the date of payment of duty as prescribed in amended Notification No. 93/2008-Cus would amount to allowing commencement of limitation period for refund claimed before the right of refund has even accrued and that no period of limitation is prescribed under Section 3(5) of the Customs Tariff Act. Accordingly, the Appeal of asseesse was allowed.
accepting the refund claimed. Department being aggrieved is in Appeal before us.

3. We have heard Shri Rakesh Kumar, Ld. DR for the Department/appellant. However none is present for the respondent. He therefore hereby proceed to decide the Appeal ex-parte considering defendant.

4. It is submitted that the Commissioner(Appeals) has based his Order on the decision of Hon’ble High Court of Delhi in the matter of M/s Sony India Pvt. Ltd. Vs. Commissioner of Customs, New Delhi 2014 (304) ELT 660 (Del.) and though the Appeal whereof even before Hon’ble Supreme Court has been dismissed but Hon’ble Apex Court has dismissed the Appeal only on the ground of limitation hence the question of law involved herein is still kept open. It is impressed upon that Notification No. 93/2008-Cus dated 01.08.2008 is the Notification amending the Notification No. 102/2007 vide which a time period of one year from the date of payment for the filing of refund claims by an importer has been introduced. Thus, the period for filing the impugned refund claim is clearly of one year. Since the refund claim in question was not filed within the said one year, the original Adjudicating Authority had rightly dismissed the same and the Commissioner(Appeals) has committed an error while allowing the assessee’s claim. Order is accordingly prayed to be set aside and Appeal is prayed to be allowed.

5. After hearing, we are of the opinion as follows:-

The claim herein is with respect to special additional duty of Customs as leviable under Section 3(5) of Customs Tariff Act, 1975. It is important to look into the said provision which reads as follows:

(1) ________

(2) ________

(5) If the Central Government is satisfied that it is necessary in the public interest to levy on any imported article [whether on such article duty is leviable under sub-section (1) or, as the case may be, sub-section (3) or not] such additional duty as would counter-balance the sales tax, value added tax, local tax or any other charges for the time being leviable on a like article on its sale, purchase or transportation in India, it may, by notification in the Official Gazette, direct that such imported article shall, in addition, be liable to an additional duty at a rate not exceeding four per cent of the value of the imported article as specified in that notification.

Explanation – In this sub-section, the expression “sales tax, value added tax, local tax or any other charges for the time being leviable on a like article on its sale, purchase or transportation in India” means the sales tax, value added tax, local tax or other charges for the time being in force, which would be leviable on a like article if sold, purchased or transported in India or, if a like article is not so sold, purchased or transported, which would be leviable on the class or description of articles to which the imported article belongs and where such taxes, or, as the case may be, such charges are leviable at different rates the highest such tax or, as the case may be, such charge.”

It is brought to our notice that the said SAD exemption has been granted vide Notification No. 102/2007 dated 14.09.2007 as issued in accordance of Section 25(1) of the Customs Act which provides power to the Central Government to grant exemption from duty by way of Notification. This Notification exempts the goods falling within the first schedule to the Customs Tariff Act, 1975 when imported into India for subsequent sale, from the whole of the additional duty of Customs leviable thereupon in accordance of the above mentioned Section 3(5) of Customs Tariff Act.
However, subject to such conditions as mentioned in the Notification itself in para 2 thereof, the first condition reads as follows:

(a) The importer of the said goods shall pay all duties including the additional duty of Customs leviable thereon, as applicable at the time of importation of goods.

The other relevant condition is:

(c) The importer shall file a claim for refund of said additional duty of Customs paid on the imported goods with the jurisdictional Customs officer.

This Notification stands amended vide Notification No. 93/2008 dated 01.08.2008 vide which a time period of one year from the date of payment for filing of refund claims by an importer under the aforesaid Notification was introduced. Commissioner (Appeals) has held that the amendment since introduced for the first time by a Notification but without a statutory amendment, the same cannot prevail.

6. In view of the above discussion, we are of the opinion that the moot question to be adjudicated in the present case is as to whether there is any time limit prescribed by law for filing the refund claim of additional duty of Customs as stands exempted vide the Notification No. 102/2007.

No doubt, the said Notification is silent about any time period for filing the said claim. But the Notification exempts the goods in first schedule of Customs Tariff Act from being leviable to the additional duty of Customs. However, the Notification itself mandates the deposit of the said additional duty at the time of importation of the goods and thereafter to get the refund. From this perusal, one thing becomes abundantly clear that the importer has the knowledge of his entitlement to file the refund of additional duty of Customs at the time of payment of said duty itself i.e. at the time, the product being in first schedule (under the exempted category) is imported. Resultantly, we are of the opinion that for claiming the refund of additional duty nothing else has to happen or to be done by the assessee after the payment of said additional duty of Customs. To our opinion, this particular fact distinguishes the present case from the case of M/s Sony India Pvt. Ltd. (supra).

7. Also, the amending Notification No. 93/2008 is arising out of the statute, i.e. Section 25(2A) of the Customs Act, 1962 hence, the findings of the Commissioner(Appeals) that the amendment introducing one year from the date of payment of additional duty as a time to claim the refund thereof is without statutory amendment, is not sustainable rather is opined to be legally erroneous. Otherwise also, the said amendment came into force w.e.f. 01.08.2008 that too in accordance of another statutory provision, i.e. Section 25(4) of the Customs Act. The refund in question was filed on 31.03.2017, i.e. much beyond the amended Notification and also the Customs Act itself contains a provision about claim of refund of duty in Section 27 thereof which reads as follows:-

(i) Any person claiming refund of any duty or interest, paid by him or borne by him may make an application in such form and manner as may be prescribed for such refund to the Assistant Commissioner of Customs or Deputy Commissioner of Customs before the expiry of one year from the date of payment of such duty or interest.

8. The words used in the provision makes it clear that statute has not distinguished the nature of duty or interest, the refund whereof is claimed. Hence, even if we do not look into the amended Notification No. 93/2008, the period of limitation as applicable for filing the refund claim under Notification 102/2008 will otherwise be a period of one year in accordance of the aforesaid Section 27 of Customs Act. Thus, we cannot rule out that the Notification No. 93/2008 came into existence to align the statutory provision with the Notification which was silent as far as the period of limitation for the purpose as mentioned therein is concerned. Otherwise also, on examination of relevant provision it appears that the provisions of limitation are excluded, it would nonetheless be still open to the court to examine whether and to what extent the nature of those provisions or the nature of the subject matter and scheme of the special law exclude their operation. This Tribunal in the case of Uttam Sucrotech International Pvt. Ltd. Vs. Union of India 2011 (264) E.L.T. 502 (Delhi) has held that the applicability of the provisions of limitation Act therefore is to be judged not from the terms of limitation Act but by the provisions of the concerned act. The Tribunal has gone to the extent of appreciating that it is the duty of the court to respect the legislative intent and by giving liberal interpretation, limitation cannot be extended by invoking the provisions even of Section 5 of the Limitation Act. The Hon'ble Apex Court in the case Naseeruddin Vs. Sitaram Aggarwal A.I.R. 2003 (S.C.)1543 has held that in the absence of statutory provisions, no inherent powers of the court exists to condone the delay. It was also held that a statutory right has to be exercised in the mode, manner and limitation specified in the special statute itself. The Hon'ble Apex Court in an earlier decision in the case of Titaghur Papermills Company Ltd. Vs. State of Orissa SCC PP 440-41 para 11 has held:

"11. .... it is now well recognised that where a right or liability is created by a statute which gives a special remedy for enforcing it, the remedy provided by that statute only must be availed of. This rule was stated with great clarity by Willes, J. in Wolverhampton New Waterworks Co. Vs. Hawkesford in the following passage: (ER p. 495)

...... There are three classes of cases in which a liability may be established founded upon a statute. .... But there is a third class viz. where a liability not existing at common law is created by a statute which at the same time gives a special and particular remedy for enforcing it. .... The remedy provided by the statute must be followed, and it is not competent to the party to pursue the course applicable to cases of the second class. The form given by the statute must be adopted and adhered to."

In still another case titled as Munshiram Vs. Municipal Committee Chheharta SSC page 88 para 23, the Hon’ble Apex Court held that when a Revenue statute provides for a person aggrieved by an assessment thereunder, a particular remedy to be sought in a particular forum, in a particular way, it must be sought in that forum and in that manner and all other forums and modes of seeking said remedy are excluded. Except in the case where the statutory authority has not acted in accordance with the provisions of the enactment in question or in defiance of the fundamental principles of judicial procedure or has resorted to invoke the provisions which are repealed. Apparently and admittedly none is the fact of the present Appeal. It is also not the case that Notification 93/2008 has been repealed. In absence thereof also, as already discussed above, Section 27 of Customs Act prescribes a period during which refund of any type can be claimed. The Hon’ble Apex Court in a recent decision Commissioner of Customs (Import Mumbai) Vs. M/s Dilip Kumar & Co. has held that an exemption Notification has to be strictly construed, i.e. if the person claiming exemption does not fall strictly within the letter of Notification, he cannot claim the exemption. The Hon’ble Apex Court while relying upon its previous decision in the case District Mining Officer Vs. Tata Iron & Steel Company 2001 (7) SCC 358 had noticed as follows:-

"... A statute is an edict of the Legislature and in construing a statute, it is necessary, to seek the intention of its maker. A statute has to be construed according to the intent of them that make it and the duty of the Court is to act upon the true intention of the Legislature. If a statutory provision is open to more than one interpretation the Court has to choose that interpretation which represents the true intention of the Legislature. This task very often raises the difficulties because of various reasons, inasmuch as the words used may not be scientific symbols having any precise or definite meaning and the language may be an imperfect medium to convey one’s thought or that the assembly of Legislatures consisting of persons of various shades of opinion purport to convey a meaning which may be obscure. It is impossible even for the most imaginative Legislature to forestall exhaustively situations and circumstances that may emerge after enacting a statute where its application may be called for.

It was also held that the well settled principle is that when the words in a statute are clear, plain and unambiguous and only one meaning can be inferred, the Courts are bound to give effect to the said meaning irrespective of consequences. If the words in the statute are plain and unambiguous, it becomes necessary to expound those words in their natural and ordinary sense. The words used declare the intention of the Legislature. In Kanai Lal Sur v. Paramnidhi Sadhukhan, AIR 1957 SC 907, it was held that if the words used are capable of one construction only then it would not be open to the Courts to adopt any other hypothetical construction on the ground that such construction is more consistent with the alleged object and policy of the Act. In view of entire above discussion, we are of the opinion that the refund claim of additional duty due to the exemption flowing out of Notification No. 102/2007 has to be filed within one year in view of the subsequent Notification No. 93/2008-Cus which still holds good and also in view of Section 27 of the Customs Act, 1962. We therefore hold that the Commissioner(Appals) has committed an error while giving an expanded interpretation qua limitation to favour assessee. We therefore set aside the said Order and allow the present Appeal rejecting the impugned refund claimed.

therefore hereby proceed to decide the Appeal ex-parte considering defendant.

4. It is submitted that the Commissioner(Appeals) has based his Order on the decision of Hon’ble High Court of Delhi in the matter of M/s Sony India Pvt. Ltd. Vs. Commissioner of Customs, New Delhi 2014 (304) ELT 660 (Del.) and though the Appeal whereof even before Hon’ble Supreme Court has been dismissed but Hon’ble Apex Court has dismissed the Appeal only on the ground of limitation hence the question of law involved herein is still kept open. It is impressed upon that Notification No. 93/2008-Cus dated 01.08.2008 is the Notification amending the Notification No. 102/2007 vide which a time period of one year from the date of payment for the filing of refund claims by an importer has been introduced. 5. After hearing, we are of the opinion as follows:-

The claim herein is with respect to special additional duty of Customs as leviable under Section 3(5) of Customs Tariff Act, 1975. It is important to look into the said provision which reads as follows:

(5) If the Central Government is satisfied that it is necessary in the public interest to levy on any imported article [whether or such article duty is leviable under sub-section (1) or, as the case may be, sub-section (3) or not] such additional duty as would counter-balance the sales tax, value added tax, local tax or any other charges for the time being leviable on a like article on its sale, purchase or transportation in India, it may, by notification in the Official Gazette, direct that such imported article shall, in addition, be liable to an additional duty at a rate not exceeding four per cent of the value of the imported article as specified in that notification.

Explanation – In this sub-section, the expression "sales tax, value added tax, local tax or any other charges for the time being leviable on a like article on its sale, purchase or transportation in India" means the sales tax, value added tax, local tax or other charges for the time being in force, which would be leviable on a like article if sold, purchased or transported in India or, if a like article is not so sold, purchased or transported, which would be leviable on the class or description of articles to which the imported article belongs and where such taxes, or, as the case may be, such charges are leviable at different rates the highest such tax or, as the case may be, such charge."

It is brought to our notice that the said SAD exemption has been granted vide Notification No. 102/2007 dated 14.09.2007 as issued in accordance of Section 25(1) of the Customs Act which provides power to the Central Government to grant exemption from duty by way of Notification. This Notification exempts the goods falling within the first schedule to the Customs Tariff Act, 1975 when imported into India for subsequent sale, from the whole of the additional duty of Customs leviable thereupon in accordance of the above mentioned Section 3(5) of Customs Tariff Act. However, subject to such conditions as mentioned in the Notification itself in para 2 thereof, the first condition reads as follows:

The other relevant condition is:

(c) The importer shall file a claim for refund of said additional duty of Customs paid on the imported goods with the jurisdictional Customs officer.

This Notification stands amended vide Notification No. 93/2008 dated 01.08.2008 vide which a time period of one year from the date of payment for filing of refund claims by an importer under the aforesaid Notification was introduced. Commissioner (Appeals) has held that the amendment since introduced for the first time by a Notification but without a statutory amendment, the same cannot prevail.

6. In view of the above discussion, we are of the opinion that the moot question to be adjudicated in the present case is as to whether there is any time limit prescribed by law for filing the refund claim of additional duty of Customs as stands exempted vide the Notification No. 102/2007.

7. Also, the amending Notification No. 93/2008 is arising out of the statute, i.e. Section 25(2A) of the Customs Act, 1962 hence, the findings of the Commissioner(Appeals) that the amendment introducing one year from the date of payment of additional duty as a time to claim the refund thereof is without statutory amendment, is not sustainable rather is opined to be legally erroneous. Versus

COMMISSIONER OF CUSTOMS, NEW DELHI

REPRESENTED BY : Ms. Prabjyot K. Chadha, Advocate, for the Appellant.

Shri Rakesh Kumar, DR, for the Respondent.

[Order per : V. Padmanabhan, Member (T)]. - The present appeal is against the Order-in-Original No. 8/2018, dated 6-2-2018. The appellant is a Customs Broker licensed by the Commissioner, Customs, New Delhi. It was noticed by the Customs Department that the appellant had filed several bills of entry for the importer M/s. Pax Technology Private Limited. M/s. Pax Technology Private Limited had been importing Point of Sale Devices and Mobile Point of Sale Devices (MPOS). For clearance of such import goods, the importer was obligated to produce the Equipment Type Approval (ETA) from Wireless Planning and Coordination (WPC) cell and import licences from respective licensing officers. The investigation undertaken by the Special Intelligence and Investigation Branch at Air Cargo Complex, New Delhi indicated that M/s. Pax Technology, in their bills of entry filed through the appellant, were found to have misdeclared goods in terms of description as well as undervaluation. Further, investigation into such import consignments revealed that the appellant had played a significant role in engineering the misdeclaration and undervaluation. Accordingly, after carrying out an enquiry against the appellant and issuance of show cause notice, the adjudicating authority has upheld the contravention of several Regulations of the Customs Broking Licensing Regulations, 2013. Finally, she has revoked the C.B. licence issued to the appellant. Further, the forfeiture of the whole amount of security deposit of Rs. 10,000 has been ordered along with blacklisting Shri Rajendra Prasad who was an employee of the appellant holding ‘G-card’. Aggrieved by the impugned order, the present appeal has been filed.

2. With the above background, we heard Ms. Prabjyot K. Chadha and Shri Rakesh Kumar, DR.

3. Arguments advanced by the Learned Counsel for the appellant is summarized below:

(i) On behalf of M/s. Pax Technology, the bills of entry for 12 disputed consignments were filed by five different CHAS, but only 4 bills of entry were filed by the employee of the appellant.

(ii) The bills of entry have been filed by Shri Rajendra Singh (‘G-card’ holder) in the name of the appellant but there is no evidence on record regarding the involvement of the appellant in the import of the goods in question.

(iii) The appellant cannot be held responsible for the misdeclaration and undervaluation since the employee of the appellant had filed the bills of entry on the basis of the import documents given to them. There is no evidence available on record to prove the forgery against Shri Rajendra, alias Raju.
4. The Learned DR justified the impugned order. He submitted that Shri Rajendra, alias Raju, who was a ‘G-card’ holder, had filed the bills of entry in the name of the appellant on the basis of invoices which were forged by him using his own computer. Such forgery stands admitted by him in his statement. Further such forgery has resulted in misdeclaration of value and the nature of the import goods. The goods imported by M/s. Pax Technology required clearance from Wireless Planning and Coordination Wing, which they did not possess. But the appellant has facilitated such imports by forging the import documents with a view of getting the goods cleared without Customs examination under RMS.

5. We have heard both sides at length and gone through the appeal.

6. The appellant had filed several bills of entry on behalf of the importer M/s. Pax Technology. The investigation undertaken by SIIB into such imports has revealed that the goods in many cases were misdeclared and undervalued. The bills of entry have been filed by Shri Rajendra Prasad, alias Raju (‘G-card’ holder) by collecting documents from one Shri Randheer Singh. During the interrogation of Shri Rajendra, alias Raju, it stands admitted in the statements that he had carried out forgery of the import invoices using his computer and using such forged invoices, misdeclared the import goods in the bills of entry filed in terms of both valuation as well as description. It further stands admitted that such forgery was done to hoodwink the requirement of import licence from the Wireless Planning and Coordination Wing, and also to escape from the rigors of customs examination, so as to get the goods cleared under the Risk Management Scheme (RMS).

7. It stands established on record that neither Rajendra Prasad, alias Raju (‘G-card’ holder), nor Shri Kishan Singh (‘F-card’ holder) proprietor of the appellant, have bothered to properly guide the importer about the statutory obligations regarding import license. For monetary benefits, Shri Rajendra has acted to secure clearance of the goods without scrutiny by Customs by resorting to preparation forged copies of the invoices, thereby declaring lesser value and changing the description of the goods to “Paper-Rolls”. All the above acts clearly establish the contravention of various Regulations under CBLR, 2013.

8. It has been submitted on behalf of the appellant that the appellant cannot be held liable for the errant behavior of one of their employees. In this connection, we are of the view that it was imperative for the Customs Broker to keep control and supervision over the conduct of their employees. The appellant cannot escape the vicarious liability for the action of their employees.

9. The detailed investigation undertaken by the SIIB into the affairs of the appellant leading to misdeclaration and undervaluation of Customs duty has established beyond doubt the contravention of various requirements under the CBLR, 2013. The Customs Broker is expected to function as an extended arm of the Customs Department and is required to act in such a manner that the provisions of Customs Act and enacted rules and regulations are implemented efficiently. For the acts of omission and commission which stand established against the appellant, we are of the view that the appellant is liable for penal consequences under the CBLR, 2013.

10. In the facts and circumstances of the present case, we find that the impugned order passed by the adjudicating authority is fully justified and is upheld. Consequently, the appeal filed is rejected.

PER: RACHNA GUPTA

Appellant’s Application praying for Condonation of Delay heard. Ld. Counsel for the applicant has mentioned that the export-import manager of the appellant was sick, therefore, the Appeal could not have been filed within time. It is impressed upon that there is a delay of merely 15 days, medical certificate as annexed with the Appeal is also impressed upon. Application is prayed to be allowed.

2. While rebutting these arguments, it is submitted by the Ld. DR that the reason quoted for the delay is neither convincing nor sufficient. Application therefore deserves dismissal.

3. After hearing both the parties, we observe that the present is an Appeal under the Customs Act. Involvement of export-import manager of the Company is opined important and relevant. It is mentioned by the applicant that the said manager had fallen sick which has caused delay. Medical document is also placed on record in this respect. Keeping in view that the delay is merely of 15 days, the reason so mentioned supported by the document is opined adequate, sufficiently explaining delay of said 15 days. Otherwise also, it is the intention of law that the technicalities of law should be hand made for justice and should not be used to avoid decision on merits. Finally, keeping in view that no injustice shall be caused to the Department in case the Appeal in hand is disposed on merits, we hereby condone the delay of 15 days and accept the delay.

4. At this stage, both the parties reflected their consent for Appeal to be disposed of finally. Arguments heard. It is submitted on behalf of the appellant that the Ld. Commissioner has failed to appreciate the merits of Appeal in favour of the appellant rather has opted to dismiss his Appeal intilimini on the sole ground of limitation. The Order is therefore alleged to be wrong, accordingly, the same is prayed to be set aside and Appeal is prayed to be allowed.

5. While rebutting these arguments, Ld. DR has relied upon the decision of Hon’ble Supreme Court in the case Singh Enterprises Vs. C.C.E., Jamshedpur 2008 (221) E.L.T. 163 (S.C.).

6. After hearing both the parties and after perusing the said decision we are of the opinion that Appeals to Commissioner (Appeals) can be filed under Section 35 of Central Excise Act that too within 60 days from the date of communication of the decision/Order to the appellant. The provision gives a discretion to Commissioner (Appeals) for allowing the Appeal to be presented within a further period of 30 days provided a sufficient cause for not presenting the Appeal within the aforesaid period of 60 days is shown. In the present case, the Order-in-Original was announced on 11.03.2014. The Appeal was filed on 23.12.2015. It becomes clear that Appeal before Commissioner (Appeals) was filed after the delay of one year nine months (approx.). Hon’ble Apex Court in Singh Enterprises (supra) as held as follows:

“The language used makes the position clear that the legislature intended the appellate authority to entertain the Appeal by condoning delay only upto 30 days after the expiry of 60 days which is the normal period for preferring Appeal. Therefore, there is complete exclusion of Section 5 of the Limitation Act. The Commissioner and the High Court were therefore justified in holding that there was no power to condone the delay after the expiry of 30 days period.

Relying upon the said decision, we find no infirmity in the Order of Commissioner (Appeals) irrespective of the appellant’s pleading that he received the impugned order on 17.12.2015. Otherwise also, the appellant was apparently appearing in person before the original Adjudicating Authority. Plea of no knowledge is irrelevant specially when there is evidence on record that the Order-in-Origin was sent to the appellant through registered post.

7. In view of this discussion and the case law above, we are of the opinion that the Commissioner (Appeals) has committed no error while dismissing the Appeal on the sole ground of limitation. He otherwise was statutorily bound. Order is accordingly upheld and Appeal is hereby dismissed.

Per V.P. Admanabhan:

The present appeal is against the Order-in-Original No. 8/2018 dated 06.02.2018. The appellant is a customs broker licensed by the Commissioner, Customs, New Delhi. It was noticed by the Customs Department that the appellant had filed several bills of entry for the importer M/s Pax Technology Private Limited. M/s Pax Technology Private Limited had been importing Point of Sale Devices and Mobile Point of Sale Devices (MPOS). For clearance of such import goods, the importer was obligated to produce the Equipment Type Approval (ETA) from Wireless Planning and Coordination (WPC) cell and import licences from respective licensing officers. The investigation undertaken by the Special Intelligence and Investigation Branch at Air Cargo Complex, New Delhi indicated that M/s Pax Technology, in their bills of entry filed through the appellant, were found to have misdeclared goods in terms of description as well as undervaluation. FINAL ORDER NO. 51403/2019

JUSTICE DILIP GUPTA

The appeal was filed on 30 July 2018 and as there was a delay, it was accompanied by an application seeking condonation of delay of 12 days. The application was last heard on 30 September, 2019 on which date, it was adjourned to 20 October, 2019 on a request made by learned Counsel for the appellant. The Anti-Dumping Bench has specially assembled to hear the Delay Condonation Application and even though, the matter called out, no one has appeared to press the Delay Condonation Application. The hearing of the application was temporarily passed over, but even on the revised call, learned Counsel for the appellant has not appeared.

2. We have also perused the application, in the absence of learned Counsel of the appellant, and find that no good ground has been made out to condone the delay. This apart, even the interested parties have not been served, though all the addresses were supplied by Shri Ameet Singh, learned Counsel appearing for the Designated Authority to the learned Counsel for the appellant.

3. Thus, for all the reasons stated above, the Delay Condonation Application is rejected.

4. As the application filed for Condonation of delay has been rejected, the Appeal and Miscellaneous (Stay) Application stand rejected.

FINAL ORDER No. 50446 /2019

Per Rachna Gupta:

The present appeal has been preferred against Order No. 19-17-18 dated 27 November, 2017. The adjudication arose out of show cause notice No. 105/2012/1491 dated 03 September, 2012 issued to the appellant who are engaged in the manufacture of stone studded gold jewellery and silver jewellery and are availing the benefit of notification No. 53/1997-Customs dated 03 June 1997 and 52/2003- Cus dated 31 March 2003 as amended on re-import / import of goods. The department denying the availability of exemption provided under the said notification has alleged the appellant to have evaded payment of customs duty amounting to Rs.6,12,18,245/- which has been proposed to be recovered by the aforesaid show cause notice along with interest at the appropriate rate and the proportionate penalties.

2. We have heard Ms Rinky Arora, learned advocate appearing for the appellant and Shri Rakesh Kumar, learned Representative for the Department.

3. It is submitted on behalf of the appellant that this is third round of litigation before this Tribunal. Earlier vide Final Order No. C/A/52252-52254/2017 dated 09 March 2017, denovo adjudication was directed. Thereafter, the order under challenge has been passed still confirming the demand. It is submitted that all the requisite documents confirming the demand of Rs. 8.55 lakh were submitted. It is submitted that requisite documents along with bank realisation certificate and the verification thereof were produced before the adjudicating authority, but all have been ignored. These documents are sufficient for doing away the said demand. Said demand ordered accordingly, is prayed to be waived.

4. Learned DR has also placed on record, the verification report of 4 bank realisation certificates mentioning all four of them to be verified and found to be in order. It is submitted that the duty amounting to Rs. 3,05,011/- is chargeable on re-imported jewellery not being under notification No. 158/1995, as rightly been confirmed. No infirmity is impressed upon in the order to said extent which otherwise has been considered by the assessee. Appeal is therefore, prayed to be dismissed.

5. After hearing both the parties and perusing the record, we observe and held as follows:

6. That the show cause notice of the year 2012 was initially adjudicated vide order No. 154/13-14 confirming the total proposed demand of Rs.6,12,18,245/- along with recovery of duty foregone of Rs. 30,08,337/- along with redemption fine and other penalties as mentioned in said order. The order was challenged before this Tribunal. The appeal was decided by Final Order No. C/A/54489-54491/2014 dated 18.11.2014 remanding the case with the observations as under:

‘Accordingly, we waive the requirement of pre-deposit and remand the case for de-novo adjudication with the direction that the adjudicating authority shall adjudicate the case de-novo after taking into account the additional documents allowed to be taken on record by Tribunal which the appellants will submit to the adjudicating authority within 2 weeks from the date of issue of this order. The appellants shall be given an opportunity of being heard before the de-novo adjudicating.’

7. The matter was re-adjudicated vide Order-in-Original No. 07-15-16 dated 30 April, 2015 based on the documents submitted by the appellant wherein duty of Rs 14,07,610/- was confirmed along with interest and penalty as mentioned therein. Confiscation of goods amounting to Rs. 94,65,943/- was also ordered.

8. Being aggrieved, the said order was again challenged before this Tribunal. The appeal was decided vide Final Order No. C/A/52252-52254/2017 dated 09 March, 2017 wherein it was held that since the appellant could not produce the export documents in respect of four consignments, the demands of duty of Rs. 8,55,087/-, Rs.6,897/-, Rs.3,248/- and Rs.2,263/- were remanded for verification of the documents. The demand in respect of excess wastage of Rs. 2,35,104/- was set aside. However, the demand of Rs. 3,05,011/- in respect of re-import of jewellery was confirmed. The impugned order has been passed after verification as was directed by the aforesaid Final Order of this Tribunal. Common Redemption fine imposed in respect of all demands, was set aside and the penalties were also set aside.

9. The Commissioner in the order under challenge has still not considered the Bank realisation certificate for these being merely photocopies and the demand was again confirmed for Rs. 14,07,610/- itself.

10. Today, the documents produced by the appellant are bank realisation certificates from Punjab National Bank. Though the certificates are again the photocopies. However, the Department has also placed on record the verification report confirming all the requisite 4 certificates to be in order. Keeping in view the same and that earlier Final Order dated 09 March, 2017 which had dropped the entire demand except for confirming the demand of customs duty of Rs.3,05,011/-. However, remaining demand was made subject to verification with direction to the Commissioner to fix the redemption fine and penalty proportionate to the said demand after such verification. But the Commissioner is observed to have ignored the documents, the bank realisation certificates to arrive at proper verification. Said verifying documents are now also placed on record and are acknowledged to have been verified as correct by the department also. Hence the demand of Rs.8,55,087/-, Rs.6897/- Rs. 3248/- and Rs. 2263 also stands set aside. Thus, we hold that the order under challenge has not complied the directions of remand properly.

11. The only demand stands confirmed against the appellant is that of Rs.3,05,011/- as the recovery of Customs duty forgone amount. The same has already been conceded by the appellant. The proportionate value of Redemption Fine is therefore, reduced to Rupee Three lakh and the proportionate penalty accordingly is reduced to Rupees One lakh only. As a result thereof, the present appeal stand partly allowed.

Per: C L Mahar:
The brief facts of the matter are that the condonation of delay applications have been filed for condoning the delay of 227 days in appeal No. 53528 of 2018 and that of 195 days in appeal No. 53571 of 2018 in filing the appeal before this Tribunal. It is an admitted fact that a common order of Commissioner, Customs, Central Excise & Service Tax, Indore No. IND-EXCUS-000-APP-386-387-17-18 dated 31st November, 2017 was received by the appellant on 11th December, 2017 and as per the provisions of Central Excise Act, the appeal should have been filed before this Tribunal on or before 10th March, 2018, however, the appeal in this case had been filed on 25/10/2018 and the appellant are before us for condonation of delay in filing appeal.

2. It is seen that the matter has been posted for hearing on two occasions earlier and nobody has appeared for hearing.

3. We have also perused the COD application and find that the application for condonation of delay is very vague and no concrete reason has been given for not filing the appeal within the prescribed time limit. The only explanation which has been given by the appellant is that the clerk of the Advocate who was handling the matter has left the job and, therefore, appeal could not be filed in time. We find that no details of as to who was the clerk who was actually handling the job of filing the appeal, when did he left the job of the Advocate and whether the Advocate did not have any other person to handle the urgent appeal matters. We find that the reason given by the appellant is no cogent explanation for condonation of delay of 227 days. We are not convinced with the explanation given by the appellant and thus find that the prayer of condonation lacks merit and same deserves to be rejected.

4. Accordingly, the COD applications are dismissed. Resultantly both appeals stand dismissed.

The Appellant in the present case is the holder of Customs Broker License, as was issued under Customs Brokers Licensing Regulations (CBLR), 2013 on 31 March 2016 and is valid upto 18.12.2025. The Appellant had filed three bills of entry under the aforesaid license for clearance of toys imported from China. The details whereof are as follows:

<thead>
<tr>
<th>S. No.</th>
<th>Name of the Importer</th>
<th>Bill of Entry No. &amp; Date</th>
<th>Bill of lading No. &amp; Date</th>
</tr>
</thead>

2. On examination, department observed that Bill of lading dated 31.08.2017 was actually of 06.09.2017 (as per EDI system) and 06.09.2017 date also got confirmed from shipping line OOCL. Opining the change of date as forgery that the proprietor of the Appellant CB, namely, Shri Yogesh Kumar Pandey was interrogated where he acknowledged the aforesaid change about the date of Bill of lading to have been done with the intention to avoid requirement of BIC certificate made applicable from 01.09.2017 by of DGFT notification no. 26/2017 dated 1st September, 2017. Statement of an employee of Appellant, namely, Shri Praveen Kumar was also got recorded on 17.10.2017 itself acknowledging the aforesaid intention. It is thereafter that the incident report of Deputy Commissioner SIIB Import, ICD, Tughlakabad, New Delhi was forwarded alleging the noticed forgery in the Bill of lading and proposing an action under Regulation 18 read with Regulation 20 and 22 of the CBLR, 2013, including revocation of licence, forfeiture, security and imposition of penalty. The licence of the Appellant was suspended by the Commissioner of Customs (General), New Custom House, New Delhi vide Order no. 67 dated 27/10/2017, in view of Regulation 19(1) of CBLR, 2013 which was later confirmed vide Order-in-Original No. 74 dated 17/11/2017 passed by Commissioner of Customs (General), New Delhi. It is thereafter that a show cause notice No. 02 dated 17/01/2018 was served upon the Appellant alleging the failure of custom broker to comply with Regulations 11(d), 11(g) and 79 of CBLR, 2013.

3. The said proposal has been confirmed vide the Order-in-Original No. 34 dated 06/07/2018 being aggrieved whereof the Appellant is before this Tribunal.

4. We have heard Shri M. S. Arora, learned Advocate for the Appellant, Shri Rakesh Kumar and Sunil Kumar, Authorised Representatives for the Department.

5. It is submitted on behalf of the Appellant that order is liable to be set aside on the sole ground of limitation as the show cause notice as envisaged under Regulation 20(1) of CBLR, 2013 was not issued within 90 days of receipt of the offence report. It is impressed upon that though the show cause notice was signed on 17/01/2018 but was dispatched on 01/02/2018 and was received by the Appellant on 07/02/2018 as such was issued beyond the stipulated time of 90 days. It is impressed upon that the order is liable to be set aside on this ground itself without even looking into the merits of the case. The order is accordingly prayed to be set aside and appeal is prayed to be allowed.

6. Learned D.R on the other hand has submitted that the appellant was observed to have forged the documents so as to circumvent the provisions of Foreign Trade Policy in respect of import of toys. Since the impugned order has held that Appellant/CB has contravened provisions of the CBLR, 2013, hence, have rendered themselves liable for revocation of licence, there is no infirmity in the order. The plea of limitation as taken by the Appellant has also been vehemently denied with the submissions that the offence report is admittedly dated 27/10/2017, 90 days whereof for issuing a show cause notice expired on 25/01/2018. The show cause notice was issued on 17/01/2018, hence was issued within the said period of 90 days. The argument of the Appellant that the same was posted on 01/02/2018 is being denied. The learned Departmental Representative has relied upon the extract of the dispatch register maintained in regular course of business by the department showing that the show cause notice to Appellant was dispatched on 17/01/2018 itself.

7. It is also impressed upon that the word "Issue" used in Regulation 21 of CBLR, 2013 does not mean "served". Justifying upon the order, learned Departmental Representative has prayed for the dismissal of the appeal.

8. After hearing both the Parties, we observe as follows:

The only line of argument on behalf of Appellant to set aside the impugned order is the ground of limitation that the impugned show cause notice is not issued by Commissioner of Customs within 90 days of the date of the receipt offence report as it was put in post after the expiry of 90 days irrespective it was signed by the issuing authorities during the period of limitation itself.

9. In view thereof, we confined our findings to the issue of limitation. For the purpose Regulation 20 (1) CBLR 2013 is perused. It reads as follows:

20. Procedure for revoking licence or imposing penalty:

(1) The Commissioner of Customs "shall issue" a notice in writing to the Customs Broker within a period of ninety days from the date of receipt of an offence report, stating the grounds on which it is proposed to revoke the licence or impose penalty requiring the said Customs Broker to submit within thirty days to the Deputy Commissioner of Customs or Assistant Commissioner of Customs nominated by him, a written statement of defense and also to specify in the said statement whether the Customs Broker desires to be heard in Date of Order 06-02-2018 W.P.No.15866/2016 M/s. Cargomar Vs. Union of India & Anr. person by the said Deputy Commissioner of Customs or Assistant Commissioner of Customs.

10. Admittedly, the incidence report was received by the Commissioner of Customs on 27/10/2017. Admittedly, show cause notice bears 17/01/2018 as the date, period of 90 days as required in the above provision expires on 27/01/2018. As per the department the show cause notice of 17/01/2018 was dispatched on 17/01/2018 itself whereas as per Appellant it was put to Speed Post on 01/02/2018 that is after the expiry of the said period of 90 days.
11. It is now to be adjudicated as to whether in view the aforementioned admitted as well as the disputed facts, the impugned show cause notice stands issued within the period of 90 days or not. Accordingly, the core issue that arises for consideration is as to when can the notice under Regulation 20 (1) of CBLR, 2013 is said to have been issued.

12. In this context, it would be necessary to examine the true import of the expression "shall issue" as employed in the said Regulation.

(15.1) In P. Ramanathan Aiyer’s Law Lexicon the word "issue" has been defined as follows:

"Issue. As a noun, the act of sending or causing to go forth; a moving out of any enclosed place; egress; the act of passing out; exit; egress or passage out (Worcester Dict.); the ultimate result or end. As a verb, "To issue" means to send out, to send out officially; to send forth; to put forth; to deliver, for use, or unauthoritatively: to put into circulation; to emit; to go out (Burrill); to go forth as a authoritative or binding, to proceed or arise from; to proceed as from a source (Century Dict.)

Issue of Process. Going out of the hands of the clerk, expressed or implied, to be delivered to the Sheriff for service. A writ or notice is issued when it is put in proper form and placed in an officer's hands for service, at the time it becomes a perfected process.

13. In the case of Kanubhai M Patel HUF vs Hiren Bhatt OR His Successors to Office & 4 in SCA Nos. 5295 to 5297, decided on 13.07.2010, the word "shall be issued" as used in Section 149 of the Income Tax Act were defined as follows:

"Any process may be considered “issued” if made out and placed in the hands of a person authorised to serve it, and with a bona fide intent to have it served.”

16. “Thus, the expression to issue in the context of issuance of notices, writs and process, has been attributed the meaning, to send out; to place in the hands of the proper officer for service. The expression “shall be issued” as used in section 149 would therefore have to be read in the aforesaid context. In the present case, the impugned notices have been signed on 31.03.2010 whereas the same were sent to the speed post centre for booking only on 07.04.2010. Considering the definition of the word issue, it is apparent that merely signing the notices cannot be equated with issuance of notice as contemplated under section 149 of the Act. The date of issue would be the date on which the same were handed over for service to the proper officer.”

14. Thus, any notice is set to be issued when it is put in proper form and placed in the hands of a person authorised to serve it and with the bona fide intent to have it served.

15. In the present case, there is no dispute that the show cause notice was signed by Commissioner on 17/01/2018 i.e before the expiry of period of 90 days from the date of receipt of inquest report. No doubt, considering the above definition of word "issue" mere signing of notice cannot be equated with issuance of notice. As contemplated in the impugned regulation, the date relevant for issue would be the date on which the notice was handed over for service to the proper officer.

16. In the present case, the Appellant’s submission is thereof the show cause notice of 17/01/2018 was received by them on 07/02/2018 after having been dispatched on 01/02/2018, the receipt of Speed Post is impressed upon as the evidence.

17. We are of the opinion that irrespective the Speed Post receipt has a date of 01/02/2018. The impugned notice shall be deemed to have been issued by the Commissioner Customs if after signing the same he has put it in the process of dispatch in such a way that it was out of its control on such date which falls within the stipulated period of limitation, such SCN cannot be held to be barred by limitation.

18. We observe that department has placed on record the copy of dispatch register maintained by the office of the Commissioner Customs in their regular course of business. Perusal thereof shows that the show cause notice of 17/01/2018 was dispatched for being put in process of post on 17/01/2018 itself. Once the notice was sent out of the office of issuing authority, it was definitely out of the control of the said authority. Hence, the obligation of said authority for issuing the same stands discharged with the said dispatch.

19. In view of these observations, the case law as relied upon by the Appellant is held not applicable to the given facts and circumstances because in the present case it was on 17/01/2018 when Commissioner ceased to have any authority to alter/modify/re-sign or whatever the said show cause notice i.e. on 17/01/2018 itself, Commissioner ceased to have any locus paetentiae. Date of dispatch from the domain of Commissioner is held to be the date of issue of notice. The said date, therefore, is 17/01/2018. Since the same is within the period of 90 days of receipt of inquest report by the Commissioner, the impugned show cause notice cannot be held to be barred by limitations.

20. The fact that date of service of the show cause notice upon the Appellant that is 07/02/2018 is absolutely not relevant for the impugned controversy, as the same is confined to issuance of notice. Event of issuance has to precede the event of service of notice. Hence the service of notice cannot be covered under the word "shall issue".

21. In view of the entire above discussion, we are not convinced with the arguments put forth on behalf of Appellant about the impugned show cause notice to have been barred by in time.

22. We draw our support from the decision of Hon’ble High court of Gujarat at Ahmedabad in the case of Kanubhai M. Patel HUF (Supra) wherein issuance of notice is though held to be different from signing of notice but has no-where been equated to the service there.

23. As a result of entire above discussion, we don’t find any infirmity in the order under challenge as far as the aspect of limitation is concered.

24. With respect to the merits of the case though learned Counsel for the Appellant not impressed thereupon, however, from the perusal of record, it is observed that the Appellant has been found to have forged the import documents so as to avoid the mandatory requirement of BIS certificate. The adjudicating authority below has relied upon the statement of proprietor of Appellant itself which is duly corroborated by an employee of the Appellant company. There is no retraction to the said statements. The alleged forgery i.e. the change in date of Bill of lading also stands confirmed from EDI system and also from shipping line OOCL. Otherwise also the notification for making BIS certificate mandatory is of 01/09/2017. The alleged forgery is the change in date from 06/09/2017 to 31/08/2017 which again corroborates the statement of Yogesh Kumar Pandey, proprietor of the Appellant as has been relied upon by the authority. Seen from that angle also, we do not find any infirmity in the order. Finally, relying upon the decision of Hon’ble Supreme court in the case of R. Vishwanatha Pillai vs. State of Kerala & Ors. Pillai vs State of Kerala and other reported in 2004 (2) SCC 105, the following findings;

"We are of the view that equity or compassion cannot be allowed to bend the arms of law in a case where an individual acquires a status by practising fraud".

25. We hereby uphold the order under challenge. As a result thereof the appeal stands dismissed.

ORDER

P.V. Subba Rao, Member (T)

1. Customs appeal No. C/52121 of 2019-CUS has been filed by Shri Ashwini Kumar alias Amanullah and Customs appeal No. C/52084 of 2019 has been filed by the Revenue assailing the same impugned order-in-original No. SKS/COMMR/ACE/06/2019 dated 10/05/2019. Hence both these appeals are being disposed of together.

2. Heard both sides and perused the records.

3. The facts of the case after filtering out unnecessary details are that a consignment was imported by Shri Ashwini Kumar alias Amanullah under Airway Bill no. 811609150526 through FedEx Courier at IGI Airport. As per the information provided by him a Courier bill of entry was filed by M/s. FedEx declaring the imported goods as uninterrupted power supply systems (UPS) for computers. The consignment was opened and examined by customs officers and they found six gold bars weighing 6 kg concealed in the UPS. Another consignment was also imported by Shri Ashwini Kumar alias Amanullah through the same courier under Airway bill no. 811609150515 declaring the goods as UPS which on opening was found to contain another 6 bars of gold weighing 6 kg. In all, 12 kg of gold was recovered from the UPS in the two consignments both of which were seized by the officers after following due procedures. The consignment was imported in the name of Shri Ashwini Kumar which was a pseudonym of Shri Amanullah as it came to light during investigation.

4. It is undisputed that as per the Foreign Trade Policy applicable during the period, gold was not freely importable and it could be imported only by the banks authorised by the RBI or by others authorised by DGFT and to some extent by passengers. Gold cannot be imported through courier at all as per Regulation 2(2) (iv) of Courier Imports and Exports (Clearance) Regulations, 1998. Thus, the undisputed facts are that the gold was imported improperly:

   1. Through courier which is not permissible;
   2. By Shri Amanullah who had no authorisation to import gold;
   3. Concealing it in UPS and without declaring that it was being imported; and
   4. Under a false name.

5. After recording statements and completing the investigations, a show cause notice was issued on 07/02/2018 by the Commissioner of Customs to Shri Amanullah as well as to the courier company M/s. FedEx. Shri Amanullah was called upon to explain as to why:

a) the impugned seized Gold Bars weighing 12000 gms valued at Rs. 3,56,64,000/- (Three Crore Fifty Six Lakh Sixty Four Thousand only) found to be concealed in the consignments covered under AWB no. 811609150526 and 811609150515 imported by Shri Amanullah alias Ashwini Kumar, 30B, 70/02, Shan-e-ilahi Apartment, Zakir Nagar (Jamia Nagar), New Friends Colony, New Delhi - 110 025 should not be confiscated under Section 111 of the Customs Act, 1962.

b) the eight UPS and the packing material used to conceal the Gold Bars weighing 12000 grams should not be confiscated under Section 118 and Section 119 of the Customs Act, 1962.

c) penalty should not be imposed on the importer Shri Amanullah alias Ashwini Kumar under Section 112(a), 114A and Section 114AA of the Customs Act, 1962."

6. M/s. FedEx, the courier, was asked as to why penalty should not be imposed upon them under Section 117 of the Customs Act for their negligence.

7. Paragraph 25 of this show cause notice indicated that it was being issued under Section 28 and Section 124 of the Customs Act, 1962 without prejudice to any other action that may be taken against any person whether mentioned therein or not under the provisions of the Customs Act, 1962 or any other law for the time being in force. Section 28 of the Customs Act is the provision for demanding duty which was has not been levied or not paid or short paid or short levied or erroneously refunded. Although Section 28 was invoked, the amount of duty was not quantified in the show cause notice. Section 124 of the Customs Act mandates that a show cause notice must be issued before ordering confiscation of any goods or imposing any penalty on any person. Thus, the show cause notice viewed the case as one not only of import in violation of law requiring confiscation of the goods but also one of evasion of duty.

8. Section 114A prescribes penalty for non-levy, short levy, non payment, short payment or erroneous refund arising out of a fraud, collusion, willful misstatement or suppression of facts. Section 114AA provides for penalty for use of incorrect or false information in connection with the business under the Act.

9. Section 111 provides for confiscation of goods which have been improperly imported under various clauses. Section 112 provides for penalty for improper importation of goods which rendered them liable for confiscation under section 111. Section 125 of the Act provides for redemption of the confiscated goods on payment of fine.

10. Penalties under Section 114A (for non levy short levy, nonpayment, short payment of duty due to certain reasons) and under Section 112 (for doing acts which render the goods liable to confiscation) are mutually exclusive. If a penalty is imposed under Section 114A, a penalty cannot also be imposed simultaneously under Section 112. Thus, if the importer mis-declared the goods resulting in short payment of duty, for instance, he will be liable for penalty under Section 114A. The goods so imported will also be liable for confiscation under Section 111 which will render the importer liable to penalty under Section 112. However, if a penalty is imposed under Section 114A, no penalty can also be imposed under Section 112.

11. The Commissioner, in the impugned order, held as follows:

"(i) I confiscate the impugned mis-declared goods namely "12000 gms. of gold" seized vide Panchnama dated 09-10/08/2017 covered under AWB No. 811609150526 and 811609150515 having the market value of Rs. 3,56,64,000/- under the provisions of Section 111 (i), (l) & (m) of the Customs Act, 1962. I order redemption of the impugned goods on payment of Rs. 50 lakhs (Rupees Fifty Lakhs only).

(ii) I order confiscation of the computer UPS and the packing material used to conceal the "12000 gms. of gold" under Section 118 and Section 119 of the Customs Act, 1962, however, I give an option to the importer Shri Ashwini Kumar Alias Amanullah to redeem the said confiscated goods i.e. eight UPS and the packing material on payment of redemption fine of Rs. 50,000/- (Rupees Fifty Thousand only) under Section 125 of the Customs Act, 1962, alongwith payment of appropriate Customs duty under Section 28 of the Customs Act, 1962 as well as applicable interest under Section 28AA of the Customs Act, 1962.

(iii) I do not impose a penalty on Shri Amanullah alias Ashwini Kumar, 3-B, 70/02, Shan-e-ilahi Apartment, Zakir Nagar (Jamia Nagar), New Friends Colony, New Delhi - 110 025 under Section 112(a) of the Customs Act, 1962.
I impose a penalty of Rs. 1,35,70,152/- (Rupees One Crore Thirty Five Lakhs and Seventy Thousand One Hundred Fifty Two only) upon Shri Ashwini Kumar alias Amanullah, 3-B, 70/02, Shan-e-ilahi Apartment, Zakir Nagar (Jamia Nagar), New Friends Colony, New Delhi - 110 025 under Section 114A of the Customs Act, 1962 for the reasons, discussed supra.

I impose a penalty of Rs. 1,00,00,000/- (Rupees One Crore only) upon Shri Amanullah alias Ashwini Kumar, 3-B, 70/02, Shan-e-ilahi Apartment, Zakir Nagar (Jamia Nagar), New Friends Colony, New Delhi - 110 025 under Section 114AA of the Customs Act, 1962 considering the facts obtaining in the case.

I do not impose any penalty upon M/s. FedEx under Section 117 of the Customs Act, 1962 for the reasons, discussed supra.”

Neither side is aggrieved by the fact that the Commissioner has not imposed any penalty on the courier M/s. FedEx under Section 117 of the Customs Act. Revenue is aggrieved by the fact that the Commissioner has confiscated the goods only under Section 111 (i), (l) & (m) and he should also have confiscated the goods under Section 111(d). Revenue is also aggrieved that the Commissioner allowed redemption of the gold under Section 125 after confiscation. It is their case that redemption should not have been allowed since gold is a prohibited good, it should have been absolutely confiscated. It is also the case of the Revenue that the Commissioner has not determined the duty payable under Section 28 and applicable interest in the impugned order and therefore the condition precedent for imposing a penalty under Section 114A has not been fulfilled. Therefore, he has wrongly imposed penalty under Section 114A. He should have instead imposed penalty under Section 112 of the Customs Act for improperly importing goods into India which rendered them liable for confiscation under Section 111. Thus, Revenue’s prayer is for absolute confiscation of the gold (without an option of redemption) invoking an additional clause of section 111(d) and setting aside the penalty under Section 114A of the Customs Act on Shri Amanullah and imposition of penalty on him under Section 112.

In Shri Amanullah’s appeal, the following prayers have been made:

(a) hold that the impugned goods are classifiable under Customs Tariff Heading 7108120071 and applicable duty on the goods payable is Rs. 48,53,514/-

(b) hold that the penalty payable under Section 114A is Rs. 48,53,514/- which is equal to duty.

(c) hold that once penalty is imposed under Section 114A no penalty should be imposed under Section 114AA

(d) allow him to exercise the option of payment of fine and penalty under Section 28(5) and 28(6) of the Act.

(e) alternatively quash the impugned order and remand the matter for re-adjudication including determination of the duty payable and penalty imposable.

Shri Amanullah had also filed Writ Petition (C) 8149/2019 in the Hon’ble High Court of Delhi mainly on the ground that the amount of Customs duty has not been prescribed in the impugned order-in-original and therefore no penalty can be imposed under Section 114A. The Hon’ble High Court was pleased to dispose of this writ petition on 29/07/2017 as follows:

“We have perused of order-in-original dated 10/05/2017 passed by the Commissioner of Customs (Air Cargo Custom, New Delhi). We see no reason to entertain this writ-petition mainly with the following reasons:

(a) the value of the goods narrated on more than one occasion in the order-in-original and the rate of duty is ad valorem. Hence, the customs duty can be arrived at without going into, any more details;

(b) the order-in-original is an appealable order

As efficacious alternative remedy is available to the petitioner, we find no reason to entertain this writ-petition. Hence, the same is hereby dismissed.”

Learned Departmental Representative vehemently argued that gold is a prohibited good in terms of Section 2(33) of the Customs Act, 1962 and therefore it should have been absolutely confiscated without giving an option of redemption under Section 125 of the Act. He relies on the following case laws to assert that the gold bars which were imported in violation of the restrictions on import are prohibited goods in terms of section 2(33) of the Customs Act, 1962.

(a) Bhargavraj Ramesh Kumar Mehta [MANU/GJ/0093/2018 : 2018 (361) ELT (260) Guj]
(b) Om Prakash Bhatiya [MANU/SC/0454/2003 : 2003 (155) ELT 423 (SC)]
(c) Sheikh Mod Omer [MANU/SC/0216/1970 : 1983(13) ELT 1439 (SC)]

16. The relevant sections read as follows:

Section 2(33)

"prohibited goods" means any goods the import or export of which is subject to any prohibition under this Act or any other law for the time being in force but does not include any such goods in respect of which the conditions subject to which the goods are permitted to be imported or exported have been complied with"

Section 125

Option to pay fine in lieu of confiscation (1) Whenever confiscation of any goods is authorised by this Act, the officer adjudging it may, in the case of any goods, the importation or exportation whereof is prohibited under this Act or under any other law for the time being in force, and shall, in the case of any other goods, give to the owner of the goods or, where such owner is not known, the person from whose possession or custody such goods have been seized, an option to pay in lieu of confiscation such fine as the said officer thinks fit:

Provided that where the proceedings are deemed to be concluded under the proviso to sub-section (2) of section 28 or under clause (i) of sub-section (6) of that section in respect of the goods which are not prohibited or restricted, the provisions of this section shall not apply:

Provided further that, without prejudice to the provisions of the proviso to sub-section (2) of section 115, such fine shall not exceed the market price of the goods confiscated, less in the case of imported goods the duty chargeable thereon.

(2) Where any fine in lieu of confiscation of goods is imposed under sub-section (1), the owner of such goods or the person referred to in sub-section (1), shall, in addition, be liable to any duty and charges payable in respect of such goods.

(3) Where the fine imposed under sub-section (1) is not paid within a period of one hundred and twenty days from the date of option given thereunder, such option shall become void, unless an appeal against such order is pending.

17. Learned Departmental Representative argued that since import of gold is prohibited under the Foreign Trade (Development and Regulation) Act, 1992 except by banks authorized by Reserve Bank of India or those organization who have been permitted by DGFT and Shri Amanullah is neither a bank nor has been permitted by DGFT to import gold, the imported gold squarely falls under the category of prohibited goods. Learned Departmental Representative further argued that the mode of import of gold was also clearly improper. Courier Imports and Exports (Clearance) Regulations, 1998 expressly prohibit import of gold through couriers. Had he declared the imported goods as gold, the courier agency could not have filed a bill of entry at all. Shri Amanullah concealed the gold bars in UPS and declared to the courier company that he was importing UPS. Accordingly, the courier filed the bill of entry based on his wrong declaration. Further, he concealed his real identity and filed the papers in fictitious name of Ashwini Kumar. Only detailed investigation with cooperation from the courier agency revealed the identity of Shri Amanullah is the person who had clandestinely imported gold bars without declaring them as such. None of these facts are in dispute. Therefore, the Commissioner should have also confiscated the goods under Section 111(d) also as the gold was imported contrary to the prohibition imposed under Foreign Trade Development and Regulation Act. He should have also imposed penalty under Section 112 of the Customs Act. He submits that the penalties under Section 112 and 114A are mutually exclusive by virtue of the fifth proviso to Section 114A which reads as follows:-

"Provided also that where any penalty has been levied under this Section, no penalty shall be levied under Section 112 or Section 114".

18. Learned Commissioner has imposed a penalty under Section 114A instead of imposing a penalty under Section 112. He submits that an essential condition for imposing a penalty under Section 114A is the determination of duty under Section 28 which has not been done in this case. He also argued that although Section 125 of the Customs Act empowers the officer adjudicating the case to give an option to the owner to pay fine in lieu of confiscation, this was not the fit case to invoke the clause because gold is a prohibited good under Section 2(33). He also argued that the decision of the adjudicating authority to allow redemption of confiscated goods on payment of fine was incorrect as Shri Amanullah had not claimed ownership of the gold and confiscated goods can be released on redemption only to the owner.

19. Having considered the rival submissions, we find that the following issues need to be decided:

i. whether the Commissioner has erred in not confiscating the gold bars under Section 111(d) also in addition to Section 111 (i) (l) and (m) as asserted by the Revenue;

ii. whether the Commissioner has erred in not imposing penalty under Section 112 as asserted by the Revenue;

iii. whether the Commissioner has erred in imposing penalty under Section 114A without determining the amount of duty payable under Section 28 as asserted by both sides;

iv. whether the Commissioner has committed an error in allowing the redemption of the confiscated gold under Section 125 on payment of redemption fine and applicable duty since gold is a prohibited item for import as per Section 2(33);

v. whether the Commissioner has erred in allowing redemption of gold to Shri Amanullah in the absence of a claim of ownership as alleged by the Department;

vi. Whether Shri Amanullah is entitled to the benefit of Section 28 (5) and 28 (6) as claimed by him; and

vii. whether commissioner has erred in imposing penalty under both Section 114A and 114AA as asserted by Shri Amanulla.

20. Section 111(d) provides for confiscation of any goods which are imported or attempted to be imported or are brought within the Indian customs waters for the purpose of being imported, contrary to any prohibition imposed by or under this Act or any other law for the time being in force. "Import", with its grammatical variations and cognate expressions, means bringing into India from a place outside India [Section 2(23)]. Thus, bringing any goods into India is an import whether through legal channels or by smuggling. "Prohibited goods" means any goods the import or export of which is subject to any prohibition under this Act or any other law for the time being in force but does not include any such goods in respect of which the conditions subject to which the goods are permitted to be imported or exported, have been complied with [Section 2(33)]. Thus, it includes not only goods whose import is absolutely prohibited but also those whose import is 'restricted' subject to some conditions being fulfilled if such conditions are not fulfilled. It is undisputed that as per the Foreign Trade (Development and Regulation) Act, 1992 and the Foreign Trade Policy applicable during the period, only banks authorized by RBI, international passengers to a limited extent in baggage and others authorised by DGFT could have imported gold. Shri Amanullah did not fall under any of these categories and import of gold by him was prohibited and therefore the gold bars were prohibited goods in terms of section 2(33). Improperly imported goods are liable for confiscation under Section 111 which reads as follows:

SECTION 111. Confiscation of improperly imported goods, etc. - The following goods brought from a place outside India shall be liable to confiscation:-

(a) any goods imported by sea or air which are unloaded or attempted to be unloaded at any place other than a customs port or customs airport appointed under clause (a) of section 7 for the unloading of such goods;

(b) any goods imported by land or inland water through any route other than a route specified in a notification issued under clause (c) of section 7 for the import of such goods;

(c) any dutiable or prohibited goods brought into any bay, gulf, creek or tidal river for the purpose of being landed at a place other than a customs port;

(d) any goods which are imported or attempted to be imported or are brought within the Indian customs waters for the purpose of being imported, contrary to any prohibition imposed by or under this Act or any other law for the time being in force;

(e) any dutiable or prohibited goods found concealed in any manner in any conveyance;
(f) any dutiable or prohibited goods required to be mentioned under the regulations in an [arrival manifest or import manifest] or import report which are not so mentioned;

(g) any dutiable or prohibited goods which are unloaded from a conveyance in contravention of the provisions of section 32, other than goods inadvertently unloaded but included in the record kept under sub-section (2) of section 45;

(h) any dutiable or prohibited goods unloaded or attempted to be unloaded in contravention of the provisions of section 33 or section 34;

(i) any dutiable or prohibited goods found concealed in any manner in any package either before or after the unloading thereof;

(j) any dutiable or prohibited goods removed or attempted to be removed from a customs area or a warehouse without the permission of the proper officer or contrary to the terms of such permission;

(k) any dutiable or prohibited goods imported by land in respect of which the order permitting clearance of the goods required to be produced under section 109 is not produced or which do not correspond in any material particular with the specification contained therein;

(l) any dutiable or prohibited goods which are not included or are in excess of those included in the entry made under this Act, or in the case of baggage in the declaration made under section 77;

(m) any goods which do not correspond in respect of value or in any other particular with the entry made under this Act or in the case of baggage with the declaration made under section 77 in respect thereof, or in the case of goods under transshipment, with the declaration for transshipment referred to in the proviso to sub-section (1) of section 54;

(n) any dutiable or prohibited goods transited with or without transshipment or attempted to be so transited in contravention of the provisions of Chapter VIII;

(o) any goods exempted, subject to any condition, from duty or any prohibition in respect of the import thereof under this Act or any other law for the time being in force, in respect of which the condition is not observed unless the non-observance of the condition was sanctioned by the proper officer;

(p) any notified goods in relation to which any provisions of Chapter IVA or of any rule made under this Act for carrying out the purposes of that Chapter have been contravened.

21. Therefore, gold which is a restricted item for import but which was imported without fulfilling the conditions for import is a prohibited good in terms of Section 2(33) and hence it was also liable for confiscation under Section 111(d) of the Customs Act as asserted by the Revenue. It is undisputed that Section 111 (i) (l) and (m) are also applicable in this case as the gold was found concealed in the package and it was not included in the declaration and the goods which were declared namely UPS do not correspond to goods which were imported namely UPS with gold bars inside them. Therefore, the smuggled gold bars are liable for confiscation under Section 111 (d) also although it will not make material difference because the gold was anyway confiscated under a same section invoking three other clauses.

22. Therefore, a penalty could have been imposed on Shri Amaanullah under Section 112. This section reads as follows:

112. Penalty for improper importation of goods, etc. -Any person,-

(a) who, in relation to any goods, does or omits to do any act which act or omission would render such goods liable to confiscation under section 111, or abets the doing or omission of such an act, or

(b) who acquires possession of or is in any way concerned in carrying, removing, depositing, harbouring, keeping, concealing, selling or purchasing, or in any other manner dealing with any goods which he knows or has reason to believe are liable to confiscation under section 111, shall be liable,-

(i) in the case of goods in respect of which any prohibition is in force under this Act or any other law for the time being in force, to a penalty not exceeding the value of the goods or five thousand rupees, whichever is the greater;
(ii) in the case of dutiable goods, other than prohibited goods, to a penalty not exceeding the duty sought to be evaded on such goods or five thousand rupees, whichever is the greater;

(iii) in the case of goods in respect of which the value stated in the entry made under this Act or in the case of baggage, in the declaration made under section 77 (in either case hereafter in this section referred to as the declared value) is higher than the value thereof, to a penalty not exceeding the difference between the declared value and the value thereof or five thousand rupees, whichever is the greater;

(iv) in the case of goods falling both under clauses (i) and (iii), to a penalty not exceeding the value of the goods or the difference between the declared value and the value thereof or five thousand rupees, whichever is the highest;

(v) in the case of goods falling both under clauses (ii) and (iii), to a penalty not exceeding the duty sought to be evaded on such goods or the difference between the declared value and the value thereof or five thousand rupees, whichever is the highest.

23. A penalty has been imposed in the impugned order under Section 114A which reads as follows:

114A. Penalty for short-levy or non-levy of duty in certain cases. - Where the duty has not been levied or has not been short-levied or the interest has not been charged or paid or has been part paid or the duty or interest has been erroneously refunded by reason of collusion or any willful mis-statement or suppression of facts, the person who is liable to pay the duty or interest, as the case may be, as determined under sub-section (2) of section 28 shall, also be liable to pay a penalty equal to the duty or interest so determined:

Provided that where such duty or interest, as the case may be, as determined under sub-section (2) of section 28, and the interest payable thereon under section 28AB, is paid within thirty days from the date of the communication of the order of the proper officer determining such duty, the amount of penalty liable to be paid by such person under this section shall be twenty-five per cent of the duty or interest, as the case may be, so determined

Provided further that the benefit of reduced penalty under the first proviso shall be available subject to the condition that the amount of duty so determined has also been paid within the period of thirty days referred to in that proviso:

Provided also that where the duty or interest determined to be payable is reduced or increased by the Commissioner (Appeals), the Appellate Tribunal or, as the case may be, the court, then, for the purposes of this section, the duty or interest as reduced or increased, as the case may be, shall be taken into account:

Provided also that where the duty or interest determined to be payable is increased by the Commissioner (Appeals), the Appellate Tribunal or, as the case may be, the court, then, the benefit of reduced penalty under the first proviso shall be available if the amount of the duty or the interest so increased, along with the interest payable thereon under section 28AB, and twenty-five per cent of the consequential increase in penalty have also been paid within thirty days of the communication of the order by which such increase in the duty or interest takes effect:

Provided also that where any penalty has been levied under this section, no penalty shall be levied under section 112 or section 114.

24. Thus, a penalty under Section 112 cannot be imposed if a penalty is imposed under Section 114A. Both sides argued that section 114A cannot be applied without determining the amount of duty payable under Section 28. Section 114A provides for penalty or short levy or non-levy of duty in certain cases under Section 28. Section 28, which is section for demand of duty has been invoked in para 25 of the show cause notice but the amount of duty has not been quantified in it. The Show Cause Notice invoked both Section 114A and section 112. The argument of both the sides is that the amount of duty also should have been determined and specified in the order in original which without which no penalty could have been imposed under Section 114A. This was the exact argument taken by Shri Amanullah in the Writ Petition before the Hon'ble High Court of Delhi in this very case. The Hon'ble High Court of Delhi has dismissed the writ petition holding that the value of goods has been mentioned more than once in the order and the duty being on ad valorem basis it can easily be calculated. In view of the decision of the Hon'ble High Court of Delhi, we find that not calculating the amount of duty payable in this case cannot vitiate the penalty under section 114A imposed by the Commissioner in the impugned order. Therefore, the penalty imposed under Section 114A is correct and calls for no interference. Consequently by virtue of the fifth proviso to Section 114A, no penalty can be imposed under Section 112. The Commissioner has correctly imposed penalty under Section 114A and consequently not imposed a penalty under section 112.

25. As far as redemption of the goods allowed by the Commissioner in the impugned order is concerned, Section 125 of the Act reads as follows:

"SECTION 125. Option to pay fine in lieu of confiscation. - (1) Whenever confiscation of any goods is authorised by this Act, the officer adjudging it may, in the case of any goods, the importation or exportation whereof is prohibited under this Act or under any other law for the time being in force, and shall, in the case of any other goods, give to the owner of the goods [or, where such owner is not known, the person from whose possession or custody such goods have been seized,] an option to pay in lieu of confiscation such fine as the said officer thinks fit:

Provided that where the proceedings are deemed to be concluded under the proviso to sub-section (2) of section 28 or under clause (i) of sub-section (6) of that section in respect of the goods which are not prohibited or restricted, no such fine shall be imposed:

Provided further that, without prejudice to the provisions of the proviso to sub-section (2) of section 115, such fine shall not exceed the market price of the goods confiscated, less in the case of imported goods the duty chargeable thereon.

(2) Where any fine in lieu of confiscation of goods is imposed under sub-section (1), the owner of such goods or the person referred to in sub-section (1), shall, in addition, be liable to any duty and charges payable in respect of such goods.

(3) Where the fine imposed under sub-section (1) is not paid within a period of one hundred and twenty days from the date of option given thereunder, such option shall become void, unless an appeal against such order is pending.

Explanation. - For removal of doubts, it is hereby declared that in cases where an order under sub-section (1) has been passed before the date on which the Finance Bill, 2018 receives the assent of the President and no appeal is pending against such order as on that date, the option under said sub-section may be exercised within a period of one hundred and twenty days from the date on which such assent is received".

26. A plain reading of the above section shows that the Adjudicating Authority has no discretion in respect of goods which are not prohibited goods and he is bound to give an option of redemption. In case of prohibited goods, such as, the gold in this case, the Adjudicating Authority may allow redemption or may not allow redemption. There is no bar on the Adjudicating Authority allowing redemption of prohibited goods. The reason for such discretion left to the adjudicating authority is evident. In case of prohibited goods, the nature of the goods and the nature of the prohibition vary and cases have to be dealt with exercising discretion. For instance, spurious drugs, arms, ammunition, food which does not meet the food safety standards, etc. are harmful to the society if released to the owner and they find their way into the market. On the other hand, there could be goods which, though prohibited, may not be harmful and releasing them to the owner on payment of fine may be an option. There is absolutely no bar in section 125 on the adjudicating authority releasing any goods whatsoever, which are prohibited or restricted on payment of redemption fine. The adjudicating authority can allow redemption under section 125 of any goods which are prohibited either under the Customs Act or any other law on payment of fine but he is not bound to so release the goods.

27. CBIC’s instructions to departmental officers in para 9.4 of Chapter 30 of the Customs Manual 2018 also confirms this legal position. It reads as follows:

9. Adjudication of confiscations and penalties:

9.4 Section 125 of the Customs Act, 1962 provides for option to pay fine in lieu of confiscation. The proviso to section 125 states that redemption fine shall not exceed the market price of the goods confiscated. This is the maximum penalty which can be levied. As per section 126 of the Customs Act, 1962 when any goods are confiscated, such goods shall thereupon vest in the Central Government. The officer adjudging confiscation shall take and hold possession of the confiscated goods.

Whenever the confiscation of goods is authorized as per the sub-section (1) of section 125, of the Customs Act, 1962, the adjudicating authority MAY in the case of any goods where the importation or exportation is prohibited under this Act or under any other law for the time being in force, and SHALL, in the case any other goods, give to the owner of the goods (or from whose possession or custody such goods have been seized), an option to pay in lieu of confiscation such fine as the said officer/authority thinks fit.

28. Learned Departmental Representative argues that this was not a fit case for allowing redemption and the Learned Commissioner should not have exercised his discretion under section 125 to allow redemption even though there is no bar on he exercising this right. He relies on the following case laws in support:

(a) Abdul Razak [MANU/KE/2039/2011 : 2012 (275) ELT 300 (Ker)] affirmed in [2017
(350) ELT A 173 SC]

(b) Samaynathan Murugesan [2009 (247) ELT 21 (Mad)] affirmed in [2010 (254) ELT A15
(SC)]

29. Countering these submissions, Learned Counsel for Shri Amanullah relies on the following case laws.

(b) Atul Automations Pvt. Ltd. [MANU/SC/0067/2019 : 2019 (365) ELT 46 (SC)]

30. We have examined all these case laws. In the case of Abdul Razak (supra), the appellant claimed that he has a right to redemption of the seized gold whose import was subject to restrictions which he did not fulfil. Hon'ble High Court of Kerala held that the appellant had no such right and this position was upheld by the Hon'ble Supreme Court.
Relevant paragraphs of the judgment are as follows:

5. Before us learned counsel for the appellant contended that Sect ion 125 does not provide for confiscation of goods other than prohibited goods, and according to him, importers' conduct has no significance for considering whether the option exercised by importers to release the goods on payment of redemption fine and duty should be allowed or not. While the learned counsel for the appellant relied on the provisions of the Foreign Trade (Development and Regulation) Act, 1992, and Foreign Trade (Exemption from Application of Rules in Certain Cases) Order, 1993 to contend that gold is not a prohibited goods which can be released on payment of redemption fine and duty, learned Standing Counsel appearing for the Department relied on the judgment of the Supreme Court in Om Prakash Bhatia v. Commissioner of Customs, Delhi reported in MANU/SC/0454/2003 : 2003 (155) E.L.T. 423, and contended that when import is permissible on satisfaction of certain conditions, the violation of the same will make the goods imported as prohibited goods within the meaning of Section 2(33) of the Act, which reads as follows:-

"2(33) 'Prohibited goods' means any goods the import or export of which is subject to any prohibition under this Act or any other law for the time being in force but does not include any such goods in respect of which the conditions subject to which the goods are permitted to be imported or exported have been complied with."

6. After hearing both sides and after considering the statutory provisions, we do not think the appellant, as a matter of right, can claim release of the goods on payment of redemption fine and duty. Even though gold as such is not a prohibited item and can be imported, such import is subject to lot of restrictions including the necessity to declare the goods on arrival at the Customs Station and make payment of duty at the rate prescribed. There is no need for us in this case to consider the conditions on which import is permissible and whether the conditions are satisfied because the appellant attempted to smuggle out the goods by concealing the same in emergency light, mixi, grinder and car horns etc. and hence the goods so brought is prohibitory goods as there is clear violation of the statutory provisions for the normal import of gold. Further, as per the statement given by the appellant under Section 108 of the Act, he is only a carrier i.e. professional smuggler smuggling goods on behalf of others for consideration. We, therefore, do not find any merit in the appellant's case that he has the right to get the confiscated gold released on payment of redemption fine and duty under Section 125 of the Act.

7. This Writ Appeal is therefore dismissed.

31. In the case of Samyanathan Murugesan (supra), the passenger imported gold in violation of the conditions and the gold was absolutely confiscated by the Additional Commissioner which decision was upheld by the Commissioner (Appeals). On appeal, CESTAT remanded the matter directing a reasonable opportunity be given to the passenger for redemption. This order of the CESTAT was challenged by the Revenue in the Hon'ble High Court of Madras who allowed Revenue's appeal and set aside the order of the CESTAT. The judgment of the Hon'ble High Court of Madras was upheld by the
32. In the case of Ashok Kumar Verma (supra) relied upon by the Learned Counsel, the issue pertained to baggage decided in a Revision Application by the Additional Secretary, Department of Revenue. Matters pertaining to personal baggage, rebate on exports and drawback do not fall in the purview of CESTAT [by proviso to section 129A (1) of the Customs Act] and no appeal against the order of Commissioner (Appeals) in such cases lies with the CESTAT. Instead, a revision application can be filed before the Government of India to decide such an application. The passenger in this case had not only not declared the gold but had ingeniously concealed the gold by converting it into a wire and stuffing it in the beading of the stroller bag. The gold was absolutely confiscated by the Commissioner (Appeals). Holding that the unusual method of concealment of the gold does not make a difference, GOI set aside the absolute confiscation of gold and allowed its redemption. Relevant portion of this order is as follows:

3. From the revision application it is evident that the applicant does not dispute the Commissioner (Appeals)’s order regarding confiscation of the goods which were brought by him illegally from Dubai in violation of Customs Act and the Foreign Trade (Development and Regulation) Act, 1992 and his request is limited to a point that the confiscated gold may be released on payment of redemption fine and reasonable penalty.

4. Government has examined the matter and it is found that there is no dispute regarding the fact that the applicant had violated Section 77 of Customs Act, 1962 by not declaring gold bars to the Customs authorities on his arrival at Airport from Dubai. Accordingly, Commissioner (Appeals) has rightly upheld the Order-in-Original to the extent of confiscating the gold bars which were brought from Dubai with the intention to evade customs duty. However, the Commissioner (Appeals) has upheld Additional Commissioner’s order of absolute confiscation of gold on the premise that the gold brought by the applicant had become prohibited when it was sought to be smuggled in by changing the form of gold into wire and by concealing the same in beading of his stroller bag. But he has not cited any legal provision under which the import of gold is expressly prohibited and has only stated that the applicant was not an eligible passenger to bring any quantity of gold as per Notification No. 12/2012-Cus. (N.T.) : MANU/EXNT/0018/2012, dated 17-3-2012 and thus an option for redemption of confiscated gold could not be given. But Government finds that the said notification is only a general exemption notification for several goods and gold is also one of many goods in respect of which concessional rate of duty is provided on fulfillment of condition Number 35. Thus, under this notification eligibility of the passenger is relevant only for determining the admissibility of concessional rate of duty and not for deciding the eligibility to import or not to import gold. The exemption from customs duty was never the issue in this case and it could not be given because the applicant did not declare the importation of gold at all and rather changed the form of gold into wire and by concealing the same in beading of his stroller bag with clear intention to evade customs duty. While the Government is fully convinced that unusual method of concealment of gold is a very relevant factor for determining the quantum of fine and penalty, it does not agree with the Commissioner (Appeals) that the gold had become prohibited only because of its unusual method of smuggling by changing the form of gold into wire and concealing the same in beading of his stroller bag even when the gold is not notified as prohibited goods under Section 11 of the Customs Act, 1962 or any other law. Prohibited goods is a distinct class of goods which can be notified by the Central Government only and the goods cannot be called as prohibited goods simply because it was brought by any person in violation of any legal provision with the intention to evade payment of customs duty. There is a clear difference between the prohibited goods and general regulatory restrictions imposed under the Customs Act or any other law with regard to importation of goods. While prohibited goods are to be notified with reference to specified goods only which are either not allowed at all or allowed to be imported on specified conditions only, regulatory restrictions with regard to importation of goods is generally applicable irrespective of the individual case like goods will not be imported without declaration to the Customs and without payment of duty leviable thereof, etc. Such restriction is clearly a general restriction/regulation, but it cannot be stated that the imported goods become prohibited goods if brought in contravention of such restriction. Apparently because such goods when imported in violation of specified legal provisions are also liable for confiscation under Section 111 of the Customs Act, 1962, the Apex Court in the case of Om Prakash Bhattia v. Commissioner of Customs, Delhi, MANU/SC/0454/2003 : 2003 (155) E.L.T. 423 (S.C.) has held that importation of such goods became prohibited in the event of contravention of legal provisions or conditions as such goods are also liable for confiscation under Section 111 of the Customs Act, 1962. If all the goods brought in India in contravention of any legal provision are also termed as prohibited goods, as envisaged in Section 11, Section 111(i) and Section 125 of Customs Act, then all such goods will become prohibited and other category of non-prohibited goods for which option of redemption is to be provided compulsorily under Section 125 of the Act will become redundant. Thus while any goods imported without payment of duty and in violation of any provision of the Customs Act is also certainly liable for confiscation under Section 111 of the Customs Act, but confiscated goods is not necessarily to be always prohibited goods. While there is no dispute in this case that the gold brought by the applicant from Dubai is liable for confiscation because he did not follow the proper procedure for import thereof in India and attempted to smuggle it without payment of customs duties, it is beyond any doubt that the gold is not a prohibited item under Customs Act. The Hon'ble Madras High Court in its decision in the case of T. Elavarasan v. CC (Airport), Chennai, MANU/TN/1037/2011 : 2011 (266) E.L.T. 167 (Mad.), has held that gold is not a prohibited goods and a mandatory option is available to the owner of the goods to redeem the confiscated gold on payment of fine under Section 125 of Customs Act, 1962. Even the Hon'ble High Court of Andhra Pradesh in the case of Shaikh Jamal Basha v. GOI, 1997 (91) E.L.T. 1277 (A.P.), has also held that as per Rule 9 of Baggage Rules, 1979 read with Appendix-B, gold in any form other than ornament could be imported on payment of customs duty only and if the same was imported unauthorisedly the option to owner of the gold is to be given for redemption of the confiscated gold on payment of fine. In fact the Commissioner (Appeals), Delhi and the Government of India have consistently held the same view in a large number of cases that gold is not prohibited goods as it is not specifically notified by the Government. For example, the Commissioner (Appeals) in his Order-in-Appeal No. CC(A)Cus/D-I/Air/629/2016, dated 4-7-2016 in the case of Mohd. Khalid Siddique has clearly held that gold is not prohibited as it is not notified by the Government as prohibited goods. Therefore, the Commissioner (Appeals) has taken a totally different stand by upholding absolute confiscation of gold in this case. Accordingly the Commissioner (Appeals) should have provide an option to the applicant under Section 125 of the Customs Act, 1962 to redeem the confiscated goods on payment of customs duties, redeemed fine and penalty and because it was not done so earlier, the Government now allows the applicant to redeem the confiscated gold within 30 days from the date of issuance of this order on payment of customs duty, fine of Rs. 4,50,000/- and penalty of Rs. 1,75,000/- already imposed by the Additional Commissioner of Customs and upheld by the Commissioner (Appeals).

5. Accordingly, the revision application is disposed of and the Commissioner (Appeals)’s order is modified in above terms.

33. The Hon’ble Supreme Court in the case of Autul Automations Pvt. Ltd. (supra) while deciding on the question of allowing redemption of imported used Multi-Functional Digital Copiers, drew a distinction between goods whose import is completely prohibited and those whose import is restricted and the restrictions are not met and allowed redemption of MFDS. Relevant paragraphs of this judgment are as follows:

2. The respondents during October-November, 2016 imported certain consignments of Multi-Function Devices (Digital Photocopierns and Printers) (hereinafter referred to as “MFDS”). The Commissioner of Customs held that the imports were in violation of the Foreign Trade Policy framed under the Foreign Trade (Development and Regulation) Act, 1992 (hereinafter referred to as the “Foreign Trade Act”) and Rule 15(1)(2) of the Hazardous and Other Wastes (Management and Transboundary Movement) Rules, 2016 (hereinafter referred to as “Waste Management Rules”). Redemption fine was imposed under Section 125 of the Customs Act, 1962 and the consignment released for re-export only. Penalty was also imposed under Section 112(a) along with penalty under Section 114AA of the Customs Act as also penalty was imposed on the Directors.

3. In appeal before the Tribunal, the respondents did not contest that the import was in violation of the Foreign Trade Policy having been made without the necessary prior authorisation. The Tribunal held that the MFDS did not constitute “waste” under Rule 3(1)(23) of the Waste Management Rules and had a utility life of 5 to 7 years, as certified by the Chartered Engineer. Release of the consignment was directed under Section 125 of the Customs Act as the respondents were held to have substantially complied with the requirements of Rule 13 of the Waste Management Rules read with Schedule VIII Entry 4(j) except for the country of origin certificate. The Tribunal further noticed that earlier also, similar consignments of the respondent and others had been released at the Calcutta, Chennai and Cochin ports upon payment of redemption fine. The redemption fine was reduced as also the penalty under Section 112(a) of the Customs Act was reduced including that on the Director also. The penalty under Section 114AA was done away with.

4. In the appeal preferred by the Revenue, the High Court held that the MFDS correctly fell in the category of “other wastes” under Rule 3(1)(23) of the Waste Management Rules read with Part B and Part D of Schedule III Item B1110 dealing with used Multi-Function Printer and Copying Machines. Adverting to the provisions of the Foreign Trade Act and the Foreign Trade Policy framed thereunder, it was held that the MFDS were not prohibited but restricted items for import. Section 11(8) and (9) of the Foreign Trade Act provided for confiscation and redemption of goods imported without authorisation upon payment of market value. The order for release of the goods was upheld subject to execution of a simple bond without sureties for 90% of the enhanced assessed value, with further liberty to the Director General of Foreign Trade (hereinafter referred to as "the DGFT"), along with directions.

5. Shri Maninder Singh, Learned Senior Counsel appearing for the appellant submitted that import of the MFDs without authorisation permit and in violation of the Foreign Trade Policy is not in dispute. The imported MFDs having been held to be "other wastes", documentation being incomplete under Part D of Schedule III of the Waste Management Rules, re-export was rightly ordered under Rule 15 of the Waste Management Rules while imposing redemption fine. Section 125 of the Customs Act could not have been relied upon, in the facts of the case, to hold that fine in lieu of confiscation would suffice for purpose of redemption permitting import. Even if the MFDs were a restricted and not prohibited item, absence of the necessary authorisation under the Foreign Trade Policy would give it the character of a prohibited item. The respondents had been habitual in the illegal import of similar consignments. Merely because on earlier occasions, similar consignments imported in violation of the law may have been released on payment of redemption fine, it did not vest a legal right in the respondent to claim similar relief always. The Customs authorities, in the facts of the case, cannot be said to have detained the consignment without justification.

6. Shri Mukul Rohatgi, Learned Senior Counsel appearing for the respondent submitted that MFDs were imported in October-November, 2016. The requirement of extended producer responsibility under the E-waste (Management) Rules, 2016 was deferred till 30-4-2017 by the Technical Committee under the Ministry of Environment and Forest. In any event, the respondent has obtained the same before release of the consignment. The question for disposal of the imported machine at this stage is premature as it has a utility life of 5 to 7 years. The consignment was not a prohibited but restricted item. Section 125 of the Customs Act vests discretion in the authority to levy fine in lieu of confiscation. The discretionary power has to be tempered with reason and has to be read along with the Foreign Trade Act and the policy framed under the same. The Customs Department has consistently in the past been permitting the release of MFDs on levy of redemption fine. The discriminatory treatment with regard to the present consignment is unjustified. The DGFT had declined to issue authorization certificate. There was substantial compliance with the requirements of Rule 13 of the Waste Management Rules read with Schedule VIII Entry 4(j).

7. We have considered the submissions on behalf of the parties. The MFDs were imported in October-November, 2016. They were detained by the customs authorities opining that the imports had been made in violation of the Foreign Trade Policy, 2015-2020 framed under Sections 3 and 5 of the Foreign Trade Act and the Wastes Management Rules.

8. Clause 2.01 of the Foreign Trade Policy provides for prohibition and restriction of imports and exports. The export or import of restricted goods can be made under Clause 2.08 only in accordance with an authorisation/permission to be obtained under Clause 2.11. Photocopier machines/Digital multifunction Print and Copying Machines are restricted items importable against authorisation under Clause 2.31. Indisputably, the respondents did not possess the necessary authorisation for their import. The Customs authorities therefore, prima facie cannot be said to be unjustified in detaining the consignment. Merely because earlier on more than one occasion, similar consignments of the respondent or others may have been cleared by the Customs authorities at the Calcutta, Chennai or Cochin ports on payment of redemption fine, cannot be a justification simpliciter to demand parity of treatment for the present consignment also. The defence that the DGFT had declined to issue such authorisation does not appeal to the Court.

9. Unfortunately, both the Commissioner and the Tribunal did not advert to the provisions of the Foreign Trade Act. The High Court dealing with the same has aptly noticed that Section 11(8) and (9) read with Rule 17(2) of the Foreign Trade (Regulation) Rules, 1993 provides for confiscation of goods in the event of contravention of the Act, Rules or Orders but which may be released on payment of redemption charges equivalent to the market value of the goods. Section 3(3) of the Foreign Trade Act provides that any order of prohibition made under the Act shall apply mutatis mutandis as deemed to have been made under Section 11 of the Customs Act also. Section 18A of the Foreign Trade Act reads that it is in addition to and not in derogation of other laws. Section 125 of the Customs Act vests discretion in the authority to levy fine in lieu of confiscation. The MFDs were not prohibited but restricted items for import. A harmonious reading of the statutory provisions of the Foreign Trade Act and Section 125 of the Customs Act will therefore not detract from the redemption of such restricted goods imported without authorisation upon payment of the market value. There will exist a fundamental distinction between what is prohibited and what is restricted. We therefore, find no error with the conclusion of the Tribunal affirmed by the High Court that the respondent was entitled to redemption of the consignment on payment of the market price at the reassessed value by the
10. The Central Government had permitted the import of used MFDs with utility for at least five years keeping in mind that they were not being manufactured in the country. The Chartered Engineer commissioned by the Customs authorities had certified that the MFDs were capable of utility for the next 5 to 7 years without any major repairs. Considering that at import they had utility, the High Court rightly classified them as "other wastes" under Rule 3(1)(23) of the Waste Management Rules, which reads as follows:

"Other wastes means wastes specified in Part B and Part D of Schedule III for import or export and includes all such waste generated indigenously within the country."

11. Rule 13(2) provides the procedure for import of other wastes listed in Part D Schedule III. Item B1110 of the Schedule mentions used Multifunction Print and Copying Machines (MFDs). Entry 4(j) lists out five documents required for import of used MFDs. The respondents have been found to be substantially compliant in this regard and the requirement for the country of origin certificate has been found to be vague by the High Court. Form 6 has rightly been held to be not applicable to the subject goods.

12. Rule 15 of the Waste Management Rules dealing with illegal traffic, provides that import of "other wastes" shall be deemed illegal if it is without permission from the Central Government under the Rules and is required to be re-exported. Significantly, the Customs Act does not provide for re-export. The Central Government under the Foreign Trade Policy has not prohibited but restricted the import subject to authorisation. The High Court, therefore, rightly held that the MFDs having a utility period, the Extended Producer Responsibility would arise only after the utility period was over. In any event, the E-waste Rules, 2016 certificate had since been issued to the respondents by the Central Pollution Control Board before the goods have been cleared.

13. We therefore find no reason to interfere with the impugned orders. In the statutory scheme of the Foreign Trade Act as discussed, we further find no error in the penultimate direction to the respondents for deposit of bond without sureties for 90% of the enhanced valuation of the goods leaving it to the DGFT to decide whether confiscation needs to be ordered or release be granted on redemption at the market value, in which event the respondents shall be entitled to set off.

14. The appeals are dismissed.

34. From Section 125, the Customs Manual, 2018 of the department and various case laws cited by both sides and discussed above, the following position is clear:

(a) Allowing redemption of goods which are not prohibited is mandatory and the adjudicating authority has to allow it under Section 125.

(b) Allowing redemption of goods whose import is prohibited is discretionary and the adjudicating authority may or may not allow it.

(c) Import of gold is not absolutely prohibited but is restricted.

(d) The owner or the person from who the goods are seized cannot claim as a matter of right that the prohibited goods must be allowed to be redeemed as held by Hon’ble High Court of Madras in the case of Samyanathan Murugesan and by Hon’ble High Court of Kerala in case of Abdul Razak. Both these judgments were upheld by the Hon’ble Supreme Court.

(e) Although, as per Section 2(33) of the Customs Act, 'prohibited goods' includes restricted goods in respect of which the conditions have not been fulfilled, a distinction was drawn by the Government of India in the case of Ashok Kumar Verma (supra) and redemption was allowed of the gold which was smuggled by the appellant passenger ingeniously concealing it in the stroller of the bag. It has also been indicated in this order that Government of India has consistently held the view in many cases that gold is not prohibited but restricted and allowed redemption of confiscated gold.

(f) The Apex Court has also drawn a distinction between goods whose import is absolutely prohibited and those whose import is restricted under the Foreign Trade (D&R) Act and redemption was allowed in the case of restricted goods.

(g) Thus, while Section 125 allows the adjudicating authority the discretion to allow or not to allow redemption of prohibited goods. As far as gold, which is smuggled, is concerned, there appears to have been a gradual change in the approach of the Government. In the case of Ashok Kumar, Government of India allowed redemption of gold that was not only...
NOT Declared but ingeniously concealed in strolley bags. It has also been declared in this Revision order that GOI had consistently held the view that smuggled gold can be redeemed.

35. The amount of redemption fine under section 125 cannot be higher than the market value of the goods but no minimum amount is prescribed. In this case market value of the goods is Rs. 3,56,64,000/- and a redemption fine of Rs. 50 lakhs has been imposed in the impugned order.

36. Thus, we find that not only can the gold which is concealed in the consignment and not declared be allowed redemption under Section 125, the Government of India has now been consistently taking such a view allowing redemption of even gold which is concealed. We find that the impugned order of the Commissioner is consistent with the stand of the Government of India. We also find the amount of redemption fine imposed is reasonable and the Commissioner has not exceeded his mandate in allowing redemption of the gold.

37. An argument has also been made by the Revenue that redemption can be allowed only to the owner of the goods and Shri Amanullah has not claimed ownership. This argument is untenable being contrary to the assertions of the Department in the show cause notice. If Shri Amanullah was not the owner of the goods and Shri Ashwini Kumar is a fictitious identity, the gold should have been confiscated as unclaimed gold. No penalty could have been imposed on Shri Amanullah. Investigation by the Department with the help from the courier agency has shown that Shri Amanullah was the importer of the gold and therefore the show cause notice was issued to him asking why the gold should not be confiscated. Therefore, we find no infirmity in allowing redemption of the gold to Shri Amanullah.

38. In Shri Amanullah's appeal, a prayer has been that this Tribunal shall determine the amount of duty payable. This is not necessary. The Hon'ble High Court of Delhi has already decided that the value of the goods has been mentioned in the impugned order more than once and the rate of duty is ad valorem and the amount of duty can easily be calculated which can be done by the officers as it is a simple case of arithmetic calculation. An appeal has also been made to allow the appellant benefit of the provisions of Section 28(5) and 28(6). On a specific query from the bench whether they had paid duty within the time mentioned under Section 28(5) and 28(6), learned Counsel answered in the negative. Therefore, we find no reason to pass any order on this count.

39. The last contention of Shri Amanullah in his appeal is that since penalty has been imposed under Section 114A, no penalty should be imposed under Section 114AA also upon them. We find that the ingredients of Section 114A and Section 114AA are different. Section 114A provides for non-levy of duty or short levy of duty due to certain reasons. There is no dispute that no duty was levied or paid on the imported gold concealed in the UPS by mis-declaring the nature of goods. Therefore, Section 114A has been correctly invoked in this case and a penalty has been imposed.

40. The penalty under Section 114AA is for use of false or incorrect materials in the transaction of any business for the purposes of the Act. The name of the importer as well as the nature of goods were misdeclared by Shri Amanullah based on which the courier company FedEX filed the Bill of Entry. Shri Amanullah also used false identity documents in the name of Shri Ashwini Kumar. All these are matters of record and not disputed.

41. Learned Counsel argued that they had not made any declaration directly before the customs officers but had only submitted wrong information to the courier agency who, in turn, have filed a wrong declaration before the customs officers in the form of an incorrect courier bill of entry. Therefore, they are not covered by section 114AA.

42. We do not find any force in this argument. The penalty is for knowingly or intentionally making signing, using or causing to be made signed or used any declaration statement or document in the assessment of any business for the purposes of the Act. The section does not say that it has to be made directly before the customs officers. In this case, the courier agency has no means of declaring the nature of goods or the name of the importer except on the basis of information and material provided by the importer. Shri Amanullah provided wrong information in the course of business under the Act. Therefore, his action is squarely covered by Section 114AA. The penalty imposed under Section 114AA and the penalty imposed under Section 114A are not mutually exclusive and penalty cannot be imposed simultaneously under both these sections.

43. In view of the above, we find:

i. the gold bars should have been confiscated under Section 111(d) also in addition to Section 111 (i) (l) and (m) and we order so;
ii. the Commissioner has correctly not imposed a penalty under Section 112 since he imposed a penalty under Section 114A and the two penalties are mutually exclusive;

iii. the Commissioner has not erred in imposing penalty under Section 114A without determining the amount of duty payable under Section 28 as this issue has already been decided by the Hon'ble High Court of Delhi;

iv. the Commissioner has allowed redemption of the confiscated gold under Section 125 on payment of redemption fine and applicable duty which is not only permissible under Section 125 but is consistent with the current stand of the Government of India regarding smuggled gold;

v. there is no force in the argument of the revenue that the gold should not have been released to Shri Amanullah in the absence of a claim of ownership because the show cause notice itself arises from the premise that Shri Amanullah is the importer and penalties have also been imposed on him;

vi. Shri Amanullah is not entitled to the benefit of Section 28 (5) and 28 (6) as claimed by him because there is no evidence that he fulfilled the conditions for these sub-sections;

vii. the commissioner has not erred in imposing penalty under both Section 114A and 114AA as both sections are independent of each other;

44. The impugned order is, accordingly, upheld except that confiscation of the imported goods should also be under Section 111 (d) in addition to Section 111 (i) (l) and (m). The appeal filed by the Revenue is allowed to this extent and rest of the prayers are rejected. The appeal filed by Shri Amanullah is rejected.

Per: Dilip Gupta:

This Appeal has been filed by the Commissioner of Customs (Preventive), Lucknow the Appellant, to assail the order dated June 10, 2020 that was passed by the Commissioner (Appeals), Customs, GST & Central Excise, Lucknow the Commissioner (Appeals). The said order of the Commissioner (Appeals) sets aside the order dated June 03, 2020 passed by the Superintendent, Customs, ICD, Panki, Kanpur the Superintendent, seizing the goods under section 110(1) of the Customs Act, 1962 the Customs Act.

2. The Appeal was filed before a Bench of the Appellate Tribunal at Allahabad on June 22, 2020. It has been transferred to the Principal Bench of the Tribunal at Delhi by judgment and order dated October 15, 2020 of the Supreme Court. The operative portion of the judgment of the Supreme Court is reproduced below:

"The appeal which has been filed by the Chief Commissioner Customs [Appeal Diary No 70226/2020] is pending before the CESTAT, Prayagraj. Mr N Venkataraman, learned Additional Solicitor General appearing with Ms Nisha Bagchi, learned counsel on behalf of the respondents apprised the Court of the fact that presently the Bench of the Tribunal at Prayagraj is not functional due to the existence of vacancies.

2. There is a need for an early resolution of the appeal or, in any event, the application for stay that has been filed by the Customs Department. Hence, the ends of justice would be served if the appeal is transferred to the Principal Bench of the Tribunal at New Delhi so that the appeal or, as the case may be, the application for stay can be taken up expeditiously. Mr Vishwajit Singh, learned counsel appearing on behalf of the petitioners has no objection to this course of action to facilitate an early resolution of the dispute.

3. We accordingly transfer Appeal Diary No 70226/2020 from the CESTAT, Prayagraj to the Principal Bench at New Delhi. We request the Chairperson of the CESTAT to take up the appeal upon transfer to New Delhi expeditiously and, in the event that it is not possible to dispose of the appeal in its entirety, to take up the application for stay on an expeditious basis. The Tribunal would endeavor to dispose of at least the application for stay within a period of two weeks of the receipt of the papers on transfer.

4. The Special Leave Petition is disposed of. Liberty is granted to the learned counsel appearing on behalf of the contesting parties to move this Court for further directions, should it become necessary.

5. Pending applications, if any, stand disposed of."
3. The papers of the Appeal were received at the Principal Bench of the Tribunal at Delhi on October 23, 2020 and after due intimation to the parties, the Appeal was listed on October 26, 2020. However, as learned Counsel for the Respondent stated that the Appeal may be listed after four days so as to enable the Respondent to file a reply, the Appeal was directed to be listed for final hearing on November 04, 2020.

4. The records indicate that the export cargo presented by M/s Bushrah Export House the export house through two shipping bills bearing numbers 2807972 and 2808169 dated May 23, 2020 were examined by the Officers of Customs at Kanpur on June 1, 2020 and on examination of the goods, it was noticed that there was a mis-match in the quantity declared in the invoice and the quantity actually found in the shipping bill bearing no. 2808169. Samples were also drawn for a market opinion regarding the value of the export goods and a panchnama was prepared on June 01, 2020.

5. On record is also a panchnama recovery memo dated June 03, 2020. It states that the panchas were called on June 03, 2020 at Indian Container Depot (ICD), Panki, Kanpur, to witness further proceedings required to be undertaken under the provisions of the Customs Act pursuant to the panchnama proceedings dated June 01, 2020. Shri Jai Prakash Yadav, 'H' Card Holder, was present as an authorised representative of the Appellant in the proceedings connected with the shipping bills. Thereafter, the panchas along with the Officers of the Customs and Shri Jai Prakash Yadav reached the Customs Bonded Warehouse, where the cargo covered by the two shipping bills was kept. The panchnama gives details of the two shipping bills. It mentions the product description, the number of pieces, the prevailing market value and the drawback percentage. The panchnama also mentions that the two shipping bills had been filed claiming the benefit of drawback (DBK), Rebate of State Levies (RoSL) and Merchandise Exports from India Scheme (MEIS). The DBK and RoSL involved in the two shipping bills has been stated to be as follows:

6. The panchnama records that there is a short quantity of 1872 pieces in the cargo covered by one shipping bill. It also records that the export cargo was grossly over-valued 8 to 9 times for claiming undue export benefits and excess duty drawback, otherwise not admissible. This statement was based on a local market enquiry from traders/dealers of such type of garments.

7. The panchnama further mentions that the officers formed a reasonable belief that the goods were liable to confiscation under section 113(i) of the Customs Act since the export consignment was deficient in quantity and grossly overvalued. Accordingly, the Officers seized the impugned goods under section 110(1) of the Customs Act and placed them in the Customs Bonded Warehouse of Customs ICD, Panki.

The goods mentioned at serial no.1 & 2 of above table have been recovered during panchnama proceedings dated 03/06/2020 are deficient in quantity by 1872 pieces in respect of export invoice number BEH/06/2020 and both the consignments appears to be grossly overvalued rendering the goods liable for confiscation under Section 113(i) of Customs Act, 1962 for contravention of Sec.50(2), Sec.75 read with Rule 3 of Customs, Central Excise Drawback Rules, 2017 and Sec.14 of Customs Act, 1962 are seized under Sec.110 of the Customs Act, 1962."

9. It is against this aforesaid seizure memo dated June 03, 2020 issued by the Superintendent of Customs that the Respondent-M/s Bushrah Export House, Lucknow, filed an appeal before the Commissioner (Appeals) on June 08, 2020 and made a request that the Appeal should be decided on merits without personal hearing. The Commissioner (Appeals), by order dated June 10, 2020, set aside the seizure memo and allowed the Appeal. The relevant portion of the order passed by the Commissioner (Appeals) is reproduced below:

"5. I have gone through the case record. The consignment was seized was seized on the ground of alleged shortage of 1872 pcs of the goods and overvaluation. Regarding shortage, it is found that initially one cartoon was reported missing vide Panchnama dated 30.5.2020. However, when the appellant confronted and protested against the alleged shortage vide their letter dated 31.5.2020, the missing carton reappeared vide Panchnama dated 01.6.2020. It is also evident from record that the impugned consignment was partly examined on 30.5.2020 and partly on 01.6.2020. Thus, the impugned goods remained in the Customs warehouse in the intervening period and there is no affirmation in the Panchnama that proper arrangements were made to prevent unauthorized access to the said goods. In these circumstances the alleged shortage of 1872 pcs itself is questionable. However, even if the said shortage is accepted, the quantum of shortage is so meagre (1.33%) that it would be ridiculous to believe that the same was intentionally done by the appellant. In such situations, the CBEC's Customs Manual, vide Para 25 of Chapter 3, provides for amendment of Shipping Bill. The Assistant/Deputy Commissioner of the ICD was competent to permit such amendment.

6. (i) Regarding allegation of overvaluation, it is found that the declared FOB price was straightway compared with the local trade opinion which is grossly illegal. As per section 14 of the said Act, the value of the export goods shall be the transaction value of such goods i.e. the price actually paid or payable for the goods when sold for export from India for delivery at the time and place of exportation. Thus, the export price is negotiated/determined in the course of international trade and the same cannot be directly compared with local trade opinion of Kanpur. Rule 3(1) of the Customs Valuation (Determination of Value of Export Goods) Rules, 2007 also provides that the value of export goods shall be the transaction value. Further, the transaction value can only be challenged in terms of the said Valuation Rules. It is apparent from the record that the declared transaction value has not been challenged in terms of the said Valuation Rules.

(ii) Further, the appellant claims to have purchased the impugned goods under proper GST Invoice where the declared price of goods are in the range of Rs 620/= to Rs 950/= per piece. This value has also been disregarded without any reason.

(iii) Hence, in presence of unchallenged transaction value and unchallenged GST paid purchase invoice value, rushing to the town for the so called "local market opinion" is arbitrary and unreasonable.

7. Hon'ble CESTAT in the case of KANAK METAL INDUSTRIES, reported at 2012 (275) ELT 115 (Tri.-Del) has clearly held that the exporter is not bound to fix FOB value at present market value. This view has been confirmed by Hon'ble Supreme Court, reported at 2013 (293) ELT A25 (SC).

8. Section 110 of the said Act, requires reasonable belief of confiscability, for seizure of any consignment. From the facts and circumstances of the case, the reasonable belief is not formable. Therefore, the impugned order of seizure is not legally sustainable and the same is set aside. The appeal is allowed."

(emphasis supplied)
10. Shri Sunil Kumar, learned Authorized Representative of the Department, made the following submissions to assail the order passed by the Commissioner (Appeals):

(i) The Commissioner (Appeals) committed an illegality in setting aside the seizure memo dated June 03, 2020;

(ii) The proper officer had reason to believe that the goods were liable to confiscation under section 113(i) of the Customs Act and, therefore, the seizure of goods under section 110(1) of the Customs Act was justified;

(iii) The Superintendent of Customs had noted in the seizure memo dated June 03, 2020 that the goods recovered were deficient in quantity by 1872 pieces and both the consignments appeared to be grossly over-valued so as to render them liable for confiscation under section 113(i) of the Customs Act for contravention of sections 50(2), 75 and rule 3 of Customs, and Central Excise Drawback Rules, 2017 and section 14 of the Customs Act;

(iv) When any goods are seized under section 110(1) of the Customs Act, proceedings can be initiated by issuance of a show cause notice under section 124 of the Customs Act before the goods are confiscated. In the instant case, before such an exercise could be undertaken, the Respondent filed an Appeal before the Commissioner (Appeals) on June 08, 2020, which Appeal was allowed on June 10, 2020, without even giving any opportunity to the Department;

(v) The goods became prohibited goods as a wrong declaration was made by the Respondent. In support of this contention, reliance has been placed upon the decision of the Supreme Court in Om Prakash Bhatia vs Commissioner of Customs, Delhi 2003 (155) ELT 423 (SC); and

(vi) The Commissioner (Appeals) completely misdirected himself in examining, at the stage of seizure, whether the value of the export goods would be the transaction value and whether the provisions of the Customs Valuation (Determination of Value of Export Goods) Rules, 2007 the Export Valuation Rules were required to be followed.

11. Shri Vishwajit Singh, learned Counsel appearing for the Respondent supported the order passed by the Commissioner (Appeals) and made the following submissions:

(i) The exercise of power under section 110(1) of the Customs Act was not justified in the present case as the Customs Officers have not been able to prima facie establish that the proper officer had reason to believe that the goods were liable to confiscation under the Customs Act. "Reason to believe" has to be based on the material available on record and cannot be arbitrary, capricious or whimsical. In support of this submission, reliance has been placed on certain decisions, to which reference shall be made at the appropriate stage;

(ii) The allegation that the consignment appeared to be grossly over-valued, rendering the goods liable to confiscation is not correct. The Respondent had purchased the goods through proper GST invoice, where the declared price of the goods is between Rs. 620/- to Rs. 950/- and the declared price in the shipping bill is between Rs. 700/- to Rs. 1150/-. It cannot, therefore, be said that the consignment was grossly over-valued. The Customs officers have not challenged the transaction value of the goods nor made any effort to verify the GST invoices;

(iii) The Customs Officers should have accepted the value of the export goods as the transaction value of such goods, as is contemplated under section 14(1) of the Customs Act and the value declared by the Respondent could not have been rejected, except in accordance with the procedure prescribed under section 14 of the Customs Act and the Export Valuation Rules;

(iv) In any view of the matter, the determination of the transaction value through a local market survey could have been adopted only as a last resort when the value of the export goods could not be determined under rules 4 and 5 of the Export Valuation Rules;

(v) The decision of the Supreme Court in Om Prakash Bhatia would not be applicable as it was in connection with the interpretation of section 14 of the Customs Act as it stood prior to its amendment on October 10, 2007; and

(vi) Initially, the Department came out with a case that one carton of the export goods was missing, but later on they came out with a case that 1872 items were missing. Actually, there was no shortage of any items and even assuming without admitting that there was a minor shortage of 1.6%, the exporter could have amended the shipping bills and the remaining items could have been cleared.

12. The submissions advanced by the learned Authorized Representative of the Department and the learned Counsel appearing for the Respondent have been considered.

13. The seizure memo dated June 03, 2020 mentions that in respect of one consignment the goods are deficient by 1872 pieces and that both the consignments appear to be grossly overvalued. The two shipping bills had been filed claiming the benefit of drawback, RoSL and MEIS, which are entirely dependent on the market price of the goods. It is for this reason that the seizure mentions that the goods have been seized under section 110(1) of the Customs Act as they were liable to confiscation under section 113(i) of the Customs Act for contravention of sections 50(2) and 75 of the Customs Act read with rule 3 of the Customs and Central Excise Duties Drawback Rules, 2017 Drawback Rules and section 14 of the Customs Act.

14. Section 110 of the Customs Act deals with seizure of goods, documents and things. Sub-sections (1) and (2) of section 110, which are relevant for the purposes of this appeal, are reproduced below:

"110. Seizure of goods, documents and things –

(1) If the proper officer has reason to believe that any goods are liable to confiscation under this Act, he may seize such goods:

PROVIDED that where it is not practicable to seize any such goods, the proper officer may serve on the owner of the goods an order that he shall not remove, part with, or otherwise deal with the goods except with the previous permission of such officer.

(1A) xxx xxx xxx

(2) Where any goods are seized under sub-section (1) and no notice in respect thereof is given under clause (a) of section 124 within six months of the seizure of the goods, the goods shall be returned to the person from whose possession they were seized:

PROVIDED that the Principal Commissioner of Customs or Commissioner of Customs may, for reasons to be recorded in writing, extend such period to a further period not exceeding six months and inform the person from whom such goods were seized before the expiry of the period so specified:

PROVIDED FURTHER that where any order for provisional release of the seized goods has been passed under section 110A, the specified period of six months shall not apply."

15. A perusal of sub-section (1) of section 110 of the Customs Act reveals that if the proper officer has reason to believe that any goods are liable to confiscation under the Customs Act, he may seize such goods.

16. Section 113 of the Customs Act deals with confiscation of goods attempted to be improperly exported. Section 113(i), which is relevant, is reproduced below:

"113. Confiscation of goods attempted to be improperly exported, etc:
The following export goods shall be liable to confiscation:

(a) to (h) xxxx xxxx xxxx

(i) any goods entered for exportation which do not correspond in respect of value or in any material particular with the entry made under this Act or in the case of baggage with the declaration made under section 77;"

17. The clearance of exported goods is dealt with in sections 50 and 51 of the Customs Act and the relevant portions are reproduced below:

"50. Entry of goods for exportation —

(1) The exporter of any goods shall make entry thereof by presenting electronically on the customs automated system to the proper officer in the case of goods to be exported in a vessel or aircraft, a shipping bill, and in the case of goods to be exported by land, a bill of export in such form and manner as may be prescribed:
Provided that the Principal Commissioner of Customs or Commissioner of Customs may, in cases where it is not feasible to make entry by presenting electronically on the customs automated system, allow an entry to be presented in any other manner.

(2) The exporter of any goods, while presenting a shipping bill or bill of export, shall make and subscribe to a declaration as to the truth of its contents.

(3) The exporter who presents a shipping bill or bill of export under this section shall ensure the following, namely:

(a) the accuracy and completeness of the information given therein;

(b) the authenticity and validity of any document supporting it; and

(c) compliance with the restriction or prohibition, if any, relating to the goods under this Act or under any other law for the time being in force.

51. Clearance of goods for exportation—

(1) Where the proper officer is satisfied that any goods entered for export are not prohibited goods and the exporter has paid the duty, if any, assessed thereon and any charges payable under this Act in respect of the same, the proper officer may make an order permitting clearance and loading of the goods for exportation:

Provided xxx xxxxxx xxx

Provided further xxxxxx xxx

(2) xxx xxxxxx xxx "

18. It would, therefore, be seen from the aforesaid provisions of the Customs Act that the exporter of any goods shall make entry thereof by presenting electronically on the customs automated system to the proper officer a shipping bill and while presenting the shipping bill, the exporter has to make and subscribe to a declaration as to the truth of its contents. The exporter has also to ensure that the information given therein is accurate and complete. The exporter has also to ensure about the authenticity and validity of any document supporting it and compliance with the restriction or prohibition, if any, relating to the goods under the Customs Act or under any other law for the time being in force. It is only where the proper officer is satisfied that the goods entered for export are not prohibited goods and the exporter has paid duty, that the proper officer may make an order permitting clearance and loading of the goods for exportation. Section 110(1) of the Customs Act provides that if the proper officer has reason to believe that any goods are liable to confiscation under the Customs Act, he may seize such goods. It is section 113 of the Customs Act that deals with confiscation of goods attempted to be improperly exported. Amongst others, it provides that any goods entered for exportation which do not correspond in respect of value or in any material particular with the entry made under the Customs Act, shall be liable to confiscation.

19. In the present case, the proper officer seized the goods as he had reason to believe that the goods were liable to confiscation under the provisions of the Customs Act for the reason that the goods entered for exportation did not correspond with what was mentioned in the shipping bills. These facts have been stated in the seizure memo dated June 3, 2020. The case of the Department is that the goods had been over-valued as the two shipping bills had been filed claiming the benefit of drawback, ROSL and MEIS. The drawback involved in the two shipping bills, as is clear from the panchnama dated June 3, 2016, is Rs. 29,57,636/- while ROSL involved in the two shipping bills is to the extent of Rs. 41,07,217/-. Further, according to the Department, the goods were deficient in quantity by 1872 pieces and both the consignments appeared to have been grossly overvalued because the value declared by the appellant was in the range of Rs. 749 to Rs.1123 per piece, while the average price arrived at on the basis of opinion of the local dealers ranged from Rs. 32 to Rs. 87 per piece.

20. The Commissioner (Appeals) has set aside the seizure memo dated June 3, 2020 for the following reasons:

i. The alleged shortage of 1872 pieces is questionable and even if the said shortage is accepted, "the quantum of shortage is so meagre’ (1.33%) that it would be ridiculous to believe that the same was intentionally done by the Appellant";
ii. As regards the allegation of overvaluation, the declared price was straightway compared with the local trade opinion, which is contrary to the provisions of section 14(1) of the Customs Act and rule 3(1) of the Export Valuation Rules;

iii. The transaction value can only be challenged in terms of the Export Valuation Rules. The Department has disregarded the price of the goods purchased under proper GST invoice; and

iv. The facts and circumstances of the case indicate that 'reasonable belief is not formable'.

21. The contention of learned Authorized Representative of the Department appearing for the appellant is that the facts and circumstances of the case clearly demonstrate that the proper officer had reason to believe that the goods were liable to confiscation and, therefore, the goods were seized. Elaborating this contention learned counsel pointed out that the goods could be confiscated under section 113(i) of the Customs Act as the export goods did not correspond in respect of the value or number with the entry made in the shipping bills. The phrase 'reason to believe' does not mean that confiscation would definitely result under section 113(i) of the Customs Act for that would be determined only when proceedings are initiated under section 124 of the Customs Act after issuance of a show cause notice and a proper opportunity is given to the exporter of making a representation in writing and of being heard in the matter, but the Commissioner (Appeals) completely misunderstood the provisions of section 110(1) of the Customs Act and proceeded to examine the seizure as if it was an order of confiscation under section 113(i) of the Customs Act.

22. Learned Counsel appearing for the respondent, however, submitted that the Department has not shown that a prima facie case existed for exercise of powers under section 110(1) of the Customs Act. The phrase 'reason to believe' means that even though formation of opinion may be subjective, but it must be based on materials on record and it cannot be arbitrary, capricious or whimsical. Learned Counsel also submitted that the Supreme Court has time and again explained the meaning of the phrase "reason to believe".

23. In Sheo Nath Singh v/s CIT (1972) 3 SCC 234, the Supreme Court observed that the belief must be that of an honest and reasonable person based upon reasonable grounds and the officer should act on direct or circumstantial evidence and not on mere suspicion, gossip or rumour. The relevant paragraph is reproduced below –

"10…. There can be no manner of doubt that the words 'reason to believe' suggest that the belief must be that of an honest and reasonable person based upon reasonable grounds and that the Income Tax Officer may act on direct or circumstantial evidence but not on mere suspicion, gossip or rumour. The Income Tax Officer would be acting without jurisdiction if the reason for his belief that the conditions are satisfied does not exist or is not material or relevant to the belief required by the section. The Court can always examine this aspect though the declaration of sufficiency of the reasons for the belief cannot be investigated by the Court."

24. In Tata Chemicals Ltd. v/s Commissioner of Customs (Preventive), Jamnagar (2015) 11 SCC 628, the Supreme Court observed as follows:-

"15. Statutes often use expressions such as “deems it necessary”, reason to believe”, etc. Sufficient it to say that these expressions have been held not to mean the subjective satisfaction of the officer concerned. Such power given to the officer concerned is not an arbitrary power and has to be exercised in accordance with the restraints imposed by law.”

"23. The power of seizure under Section 110 of the Act has to obviously be exercised for valid reasons. The proper officer has to record his reasons to believe that the goods that he proposes to seize are liable to confiscation. The said reasons for exercise of the power have to be recorded prior to the seizure. In the present case, as already noticed, apart from the panchanama, there is no separate order passed under Section 110(1) of the Act by the proper officer recording the reasons to believe that the goods are liable for confiscation. Since till date no other order exists and no such order has been communicated to the Petitioner, it is not possible to accept the plea of Mr. Agarwala, learned counsel for the DRI, that the ‘detention’ of the goods by the DRI was with the authority of law and in any event should be treated as a seizure in terms of Section 110(1) of the Act.”

26. The Delhi High Court, in the above mentioned decision, referred to the decision of the Punjab and Haryana High Court rendered in M/s Om Udyog v/s Union of India and Others 2010 (254) ELT 547 (Punjab and Haryana High Court). The Punjab and Haryana High Court observed as follows:-

"10. We called upon learned counsel for the respondents to show the provision of law under which the goods were detained. It is not the case of the respondents in the reply or otherwise that power of seizure had been invoked as formation of satisfaction under Section 110 of the Act, which is condition precedent for exercise of such power, has not been shown. As held in Maplsa Tapes, exercise of power of seizure requires recording of reasons before exercise of such power. Only question is whether detention could be justified pending clearance under Chapter VII of the Act. Section 47 of the Act provides for clearance of goods on payment of duty, unless goods are prohibited goods. It is not the case of the respondents that goods are prohibited goods. It is also not their case that duty assessed under section 17 or 18 has not been paid. In such a situation, non clearance of goods may be justified for minimum period required for assessment. In no case, non clearance of goods for months can be justified. Non clearance seriously affects rights of lawful importer and fair procedure being constitutional mandate, no authority can plead unlimited power of non clearance for its own incompetence as a justification beyond reasonable period. Learned counsel for the respondents submitted that the petitioners could get the goods released on furnishing requisite bond under Section 110A of the Act. This contention is misconceived as Section 110A applies only when seizure is effected under Section 110.

11. We are of the view that while officers of Custom Department may have justification to verify whether goods were prohibited or were otherwise liable to confiscation or to assess and recover duty, they are not immune from accountability against abuse of power by detaining goods for indefinite period on the ground that they were in the process of checking the value or nature of goods. They are under legal obligation to do so promptly and if by reason of their incompetence they are unable to do so, detention of goods beyond reasonable time cannot be allowed."

27. None of these decisions, which have been relied upon by the learned counsel for the Respondent, advance the case of the Respondent.

28. The power of seizure, as was held in Tata Chemicals, has to be exercised in accordance with the restraints imposed by the law and as held in Sheo Nath Singh, it can be exercised on the basis of direct or circumstantial evidence and not on mere suspicion. In Worldline Trade, the Delhi High Court found that apart from the panchnrama there was no separate order passed under section 110(1) of the Customs Act by the proper officer recording a reason that the goods were liable to confiscation. The contention of the Department that mere ‘detention’ of goods should be treated as the seizure in terms of 110(1) of the Customs Act was not accepted by the High Court. In Om Udyog, the Punjab and Haryana High Court found that it was not the case of the Department that the goods were prohibited goods and so non-clearance of the goods may be justified for a minimum period required for assessment. The High Court, therefore, held that while the officers of the Customs Department may be justified in verifying whether goods were prohibited or not or were otherwise liable to confiscation, but they are not immune from accountability against abuse of powers by detaining the goods for an indefinite period on the ground that they were in the process of checking the value or nature of the goods.

29. In the instant case, as noted above, the shipping bills are dated May 23, 2020. The panchnrama recovery memo dated June 3, 2020 refers to the earlier panchnrama proceedings June 1, 2020, wherein a shortage of 1872 pieces was detected and samples of the export product were also taken for conducting a market enquiry and obtaining opinion of traders/ dealers of such type of garments. There is no illegality in conducting a local market survey to gather the valuation of the goods for the purpose of exercising power under section 110(1) of the Customs Act. The panchrama proceedings dated June 3, 2020 record that there was a shortage of 1872 pieces and the export goods were also grossly overvalued. The value declared and the average price arrived at on the basis of the opinion of the three dealers were also indicated in the panchrama. There is on record a separate inventory cum seizure memo dated June 3, 2020 bearing case number 01/2020-21, which contains the inventory of the goods seized and also gives reasons for seizure of the goods.

30. Once the officer had detected shortage of export goods and the market survey revealed that the goods were grossly overvalued, it cannot be said that the proper officer did not have 'reason to believe' that the goods were liable to confiscation under the provisions of section 113(l) of the Customs Act. Whether they are actually confiscated or not is a matter that can be determined only in accordance with the procedure prescribed under section 124 of the Customs Act by issuing a show cause notice to the exporter and also giving him a reasonable opportunity of making a representation in writing. All that was required to be considered for exercising power under section 110 (1) of the Customs Act was whether there was a reason to believe that the goods are liable to confiscation.

31. Learned counsel for the Respondent submitted that the allegation in the seizure memo about overvaluation of the goods in the shipping bills is not correct. In this connection learned counsel referred to the provisions of section 14 of the Customs Act as also the Export Valuation Rules. According to the learned counsel, the value of the export goods should have been treated as the transaction value since the export price is negotiated /determined in the course of international trade and the same cannot be compared with the local trade opinion of the market. Learned Counsel pointed out that the seizure memo records that the consignment appeared to be grossly overvalued but this is merely on the basis of the market value of the goods in the local market. This inference is not correct, more particularly when the goods were purchased by the exporter under proper GST invoice. In this connection, the provisions of rule 3(1) of the Export Valuation Rules have also been referred to.

32. The Commissioner (Appeals) had also concluded that the proper officer straightway compared the declared price with the local trade opinion, which was illegal. The Commissioner (Appeals) also observed that the transaction value can be challenged only in accordance with the Export Valuation Rules but the procedure prescribed therein had not been followed.

33. The issue that arises for consideration is at what stage the provisions of section 14 of the Customs Act and the provisions of rule 3 of the Export Valuation Rules have to be applied. Section 110(1) of the Customs Act empowers the proper officer to seize the goods if he has reason to believe that goods are liable to confiscation. As noticed above, the goods attempted to be improperly exported are confiscated under section 113 of the Customs Act after providing an opportunity as contemplated under section 124 of the Customs Act. It is at that stage that it is determined whether the goods entered for exportation actually correspond in respect of value or in any material particular with the entry made in the shipping bill. The Commissioner (Appeals) completely failed to appreciate the provisions of section 110(1) of the Customs Act and proceeded to examine the matter as if he was examining an order of confiscation under section 113(i) of the Customs Act and not an order of seizure of goods under section 110(1) of the Customs Act, where the proper officer should only have reason to believe that the goods are liable to confiscation.

34. Thus, for both the issues relating to the valuation of the goods or shortage of 1872 pieces mentioned in the seizure memo, the exporter will get ample opportunity to put forth his case when proceedings are initiated under section 124 of the Customs Act and it is neither possible nor permissible at the stage of seizure to determine this issue.

35. The Commissioner (Appeals) therefore, committed an error in setting aside the seizure memo as a result of which the Appeal filed by the exporter was allowed.

36. It also needs to be noticed that the Appeal was filed by the exporter before the Commissioner (Appeals) on June 08, 2010 and the Appeal was allowed by the Commissioner (Appeals) on June 10, 2010. The issue as to whether the Department was required to be heard when an Appeal is filed by any person aggrieved by any decision or order passed under the Customs Act by an officer of Customs lower in rank than a Principal Commissioner or Commissioner of Customs has not been addressed in this decision for the reason that both the parties made elaborate arguments on merits. The issue as to whether an Appeal could have been filed under section 128 of the Customs Act when there was a remedy available to the exporter for provisional release of goods under 110(A) of the Customs Act has also not been examined.

37. Thus, for all the reasons stated above, the order dated June 10, 2020 passed by the Commissioner (Appeals) is set aside and the Appeal is allowed.

FINAL ORDER NO. 51607/2019

Per: C L Mahar:
All the four appeals, as mentioned above, arise from the same impugned order-in-original No. 32/2018 dated 23 October 2018.

2. The brief facts of the matter are that working on a specific intelligence the officers of the Department detained 4 containers having nos. BLJU 2750023, BLJU 2750050, BLJU 2751267 and BLJU 2751288 imported vide bill of entry No.
3132662 dated 2 November 2015 which was filed by M/s Samco Industries Ltd. for clearance of 104 M.T. of calcium carbonate. The officers of DRI examined all the 4 containers and it was detected that the item of import namely calcium carbonate was only used for concealment of other prohibited and undeclared items like firework and telescopic channels. The contents of all the 4 containers as found after examination are given here below :-

2. It can be seen from the above-mentioned table that imported cargo was misdeclared and an attempt was made to clandestinely import and clear firework, telescopic channels.

3. The Directorate of Revenue Intelligence has undertaken investigation into the matter and from the investigations it has revealed that a conspiracy was hatched by Shri Bhupesh Tyagi (one of the appellant) Proprietor of M/s Swastic Trading Company and Director of M/s Royal Décor India Pvt. Ltd. with Shri Sanjeev Singh Yadav for monetary benefits to illegally import and smuggle into the country restricted items namely firework from China by concealing the same in the container carrying calcium carbonate. For execution of their plan for smuggling of firework and other undeclared items they have approached and roped in Shri Sanjay Gupta, Director of M/s Sanco Industries Ltd. who is a regularly purchaser of calcium carbonate. As per design, the consignment of calcium carbonate alongwith firework and telescopic channels was ordered and imported by Shri Bhupesh Tyagi from China in the name of his firm namely M/s Swastic Trading Company, when the import consignments was on their way to India, a high sea sale agreement has been entered by these persons with Shri Sanjay Gupta, Director of M/s Sanco Industries Ltd. who is a bonafide user of calcium carbonate in manufacture of PVC compound, PVC pipes etc. The only purpose of entering into the high sea sale agreement with M/s Sanco Industries Ltd. by Shri Bhupesh Tyagi and Shri Sanjeev Singh Yadav was that since M/s Sanco Industries Ltd. being actual user of the calcium carbonate, they were entitled for high level of facilitation and thus there were lower chances of examination of the cargo by virtue of the importer being an actual user of the declared cargo namely calcium carbonate. In the modus-operandi planned by Shri Bhupesh Tyagi and Shri Sanjeev Singh Yadav, Shri Sunil Kumar of the CHA firm namely M/s Mouli Worldwide Logistics was also involved as he has to undertake clearance of the mis-declared cargo. During the course of investigation it has also been noticed that Shri Bhupesh Tyagi has also imported three more consignments which were covered under the bill of lading No. QSA 6004442 dated 25 October 2015, SHZAD 1510371 dated 27 October 2015 and OOLU 2565964890 dated 20 October 2015 these goods were also to be cleared following the above-mentioned modus operandi, however, since no bill of entry was filed for clearance of same they remained pending for clearance. The examination of the cargo covered by these bills of lading also resulted in detection of mis-declaration by Shri Tyagi and his firms M/s Royal Décor India Pvt. Ltd. in as much as that though as per import general manifest the consignment has been declared to be of calcium carbonate however in two containers it was detected to container fireworks and telescopic channels (drawer sliders) and in third container spectacles (Roy Ban), buffing pads etc. were found.

4. After investigation, a detailed show cause notice dated 3 May 2016 was issued to all the appellants which was adjudicated by the Commissioner vide his order-in-original No. 32/2018 dated 23 October 2018 whereunder after examination of the role of all the individual appellants the learned Commissioner has passed the following order:

(1) (a) I hereby reject the declared assessable value of Rs. 6,85,829/- of the goods and re-determine the assessable value of Telescopic Channel and Calcium Carbonate in terms of Rule 5 of CVR, 2007 at Rs. 18,63,208/- (as mentioned in chart - A) and the assessable value of fireworks in terms of Rule 9 of CVR, 2007 at Rs. 2,88,96,000/- imported under Bill of Entry No. 3132662 dated 02/11/2015.

(b) I also determine the actual assessable value at Rs. 11,99,184/- (as mentioned in chart-B) and Rs. 20,21,102/- (as mentioned in chart - C) in terms of Rule 5 of CVR, 2007 for the goods excluding Fireworks and Rs. 2,71,55,200/- in terms of Rule 9 of CVR, 2007 for the Fireworks for which bill of entry was not filed.

(2) The seized goods, i.e. Chinese made Fireworks (26.488 M.T. in 1204 cartons) seized from eight containers numbers BLJU 2750023, BLJU 2750050, BLJU 2751267, BLJU 2751288, and Containers No. HDMU 2619280, TRHU 2250224, SSTU 9002172, SSTU 9002188 which were not declared in the Bill of Entry No.

5. The learned Advocate appearing on behalf of Shri Bhupesh Tyagi (the appellant) has submitted that the Adjudicating Authority has erred in relying upon the statements of Shri Bhupesh Tyagi which has been retracted by him as same were taken by the Investigating officers under duress. It has further been contended that the Adjudicating Authority should not have taken cognizance of the statement given by Shri Sanjeev Singh Yadav and Sunil Kumar as same are contradictory to each other. The learned Advocate has pleaded that Shri Bhupesh Tyagi was made a scape-goat by Shri Sanjay Gupta of M/s Sanco Industries and Shri Sanjeev Yadav who were involved in bringing into India fireworks and other items by mis-declaring the same. It has further been contended that since M/s Sanco Industries on their own has deposited an amount of Rs. 5 lakhs towards the customs duty and therefore it becomes apparent that Shri Sanjay Gupta of M/s Sanco Industries was involved in the mis-declaration of the consignment.

6. The learned Advocate appearing for Shri Sanjeev Singh Yadav has also contended that the appellant Shri Sanjeev Singh Yadav was not involved into the mis-declaration of the goods as neither he is the owner of import consignments nor or of the mis-declared goods. It has further been added that Shri Yadav came to know about the mis-declaration of the import cargo from Shri Sunil Kumar - CHA after the import consignment was put for examination by the officers of DRI. It has further been added that it is wrong on the part of Shri Tyagi to allege that Shri Sanjeev Yadav had introduced Shri R.K. Agarwal (China based supplier of fireworks) to Shri Bhupesh Tyagi rather it was Shri Tyagi who introduced Shri
R.K. Agarwal (exporter of fireworks) to him. It has thus been impressed upon that neither prior to commission of offence nor at the time of the commission of the offence on 2 November 2015 Shri Sanjeev Yadav had any knowledge of the mis-declaration of the import cargo. It has further been added that the amount of Rs. 5 lakhs received from Shri Bhupesh Tyagi was for payment of customs duty/penalty liability and same was deposited to the custom authorities vide TR-6 challan No. 33998 dated 18 November 2015. It has further been added that Shri Sanjeev Singh Yadav is in nowhere concerned with mis-declaration made by M/s Royal Décör India Pvt. Ltd., wherein the consignment was found to contain spectacles fireworks, telescopic channels, shoes etc. because he has neither arranged for clearance of the same nor filed any bill of entry with regard to these consignments.

7. The learned Advocate appearing for Shri Sunil Kumar - Clearing Agent working with M/s Mouli Worldwide Logistics submitted that Shri Sunil Kumar came in contact with Shri Sanjeev Singh Yadav in the normal course of business and it was Shri Sanjeev Singh Yadav who has engaged him for clearance for import consignment which is the subject matter of this appeal. All the relevant documents pertaining to the bill of entry No. 3132662 dated 2 November 2015, such as, invoice, bill of lading, packing list etc. were handed over by Shri Sanjeev Singh Yadav for clearance of the calcium carbonate to him. When the officers have asked for physical examination of the import consignment covered by afore-said mentioned bill of entry he has informed Shri Sanjeev Singh Yadav who gave him the import documents. He has also added that Shri Bhupesh Tyagi has also informed that Department is going to undertake detailed examination of the cargo as Shri Bhupesh Tyagi was high sea sale seller of the import consignment. It has been the contention of the appellant Shri Sunil Kumar that he has not informed of the custom officers about the presence of the crackers as Shri Rashtra Bandu of the Department is present at the time of the opening of the containers and he has informed Shri Bhupesh Tyagi and Shri Sanjeev Singh Yadav that the consignment of the calcium carbonate is also containing certain prohibited items, such as, fireworks and telescopic channels. It has been impressed that the appellant Shri Sunil Kumar has taken necessary precautions and due diligence with regard to import consignment.

8. We have heard both the sides and have perused the record of the appeal in detail. It's a matter of record that the import consignment covered by bill of entry No. 3132662 dated 2 November 2015 was filed for clearance of calcium carbonate and on physical examination of the cargo it was found to have fireworks and telescopic channels (of various sizes). It is also a matter of record that in all the above-mentioned appeals, the physical recovery of prohibited and mis-declared goods have not been denied. It is also a matter of record that originally the import consignment of both bill of entry No. 3132662 dated 2 November 2015 as well as the containers which were lying in the internal container depot for which no bill of entry was filed consignments were detected to have branded counterfeit spectacles and some other goods were imported by Shri Bhupesh Tyagi of M/s Swastic Trading Company and Director of M/s Royal Décör India Pvt. Ltd. He has been helped in this work by one Shri Sanjeev Singh Yadav and the work relating to clearance of the cargo was undertaken by CHA namely Shri Sunil Kumar of M/s Mouli Worldwide Logistics.

9. It's also a matter of record that appellant Shri Bhupesh Tyagi and M/s Royal Décör India Pvt. Ltd. (a company having Shri Bhupesh Tyagi as one of the Director) did not participate in the adjudication proceedings in spite of the fact that more than a ten opportunities of personal hearing were accorded to them. We find that Shri Bhupesh Tyagi has confessed that he has hatch a conspiracy to illegally import fireworks by mis-declaring the same and by concealing the same in the consignment of calcium carbonate. It is also apparent from the proceedings and investigations that the consignment which were imported in the name of M/s Royal Décör India Pvt. Ltd. were lying pending for clearance in the Inland Container Depot were also containing the mis-declared cargo of fire crackers, telescopic channels, spectacles of various brands shoes etc. During investigation Shri Bhupesh Tyagi has failed to produce any authority for legitimate import of fireworks. We also find that he has devised a well thought and meticulous planed modus operandi to smuggle fireworks and other mis-declared goods into the country with a only motive of earning monetary benefits. We find that in this activity Shri Sanjeev Singh Yadav was also part and parcel of the whole conspiracy. We find that it was Shri Sanjeev Singh Yadav who has made arrangements for clearance of the mis-declared import cargo and handed over invoice, packing list, bill of lading, delivery order etc. to the clearing agent Shri Sunil Kumar of M/s Mouli Worldwide Logistics. We also find that it was Shri Sanjeev Singh Yadav who has arranged for a meeting between Shri Bhupesh Tyagi and Shri R.K. Agarwal (China based supplier of fireworks). Shri Sanjeev Singh Yadav since very beginning was involved in this conspiracy as he was also responsible in getting the high sea sale arranged between M/s Swastic Trading Company and M/s Sanco Industries Ltd. He was also monitoring and overseeing the work of clearance of the mis-declared import cargo alongwith Shri Sunil Kumar - Custom House Agent. It also appears that Shri Sanjeev Singh Yadav and Shri Sunil Kumar also adopted illegally means for getting the clearance of mis-declared import cargo. We find that Shri Sunil Kumar - CHA Proprietor of M/s Mouli Worldwide Logistics (CHA), has not shown due diligence while accepting the clearance work of the import consignment as he has accepted the relevant import documents, such as, invoice, packing list, bill of lading etc. from a third party rather than meeting the importer himself. It appears from the record that Shri Sunil Kumar has never interacted with the high sea sale buyers of the goods namely Shri Sanjay Gupta - Director of M/s Sanco Industries Ltd. We find that when the consignment was undertaken for examination and it was detected that the import consignment has been mis-declared and contains prohibited items, such as, fireworks etc. he has informed Shri Sanjeev Singh Yadav and also spoke to Shri Bhupesh Tyagi, however, he did not inform the customs authorities regarding the mis-declaration of the cargo. We also find that all the above appellants in their various statements have confessed to their involvement or have confessed to their misdoings which is also corroborated with the facts of the case.

10. We find that Hon’ble Supreme Court in case of Naresh J. Sukhawani versus Union of India reported under 1996 (83) E.L.T. 258 (S.C.) has held as follows :-

"4. It must be remembered that the statement made before the Customs officials is not a statement recorded under Section 161 of the Criminal Procedure Code, 1973. Therefore it is a material piece of evidence collected by Customs officials under Section 108 of the Customs Act. That material incriminates the petitioner inculpating him in the contravention of the provisions of the Customs Act. The material can certainly be used to connect the petitioner in the contravention inasmuch as Mr. Dudani’s statement clearly inculpates not only himself but also the petitioner. It can, therefore, be used as substantive evidence connecting the petitioner with the contravention by exporting foreign currency out of India. Therefore we do not think that there is any illegality in the order of confiscation of foreign currency and imposition of penalty. There is no ground warranting reduction of fine".

11. Similarly the Apex court again in case of Commissioner of Central Excise, Madras versus Systems & Components Pvt. Ltd. reported under 2004 (165) E.L.T. 136 (S.C.) has held that:-

"5. …… Once it is an admitted position by the party itself, that these are parts of a Chilling Plant and the concerned party does not even dispute that they have no independent use there is no need for the Department to prove the same. It is a basic and settled law that what is admitted need not be proved".

12. In this case we find that all the statements of the relevant persons get corroborated by the statements of co-accused persons and with the physical facts as detected by the investigations.

13. In view of above, we find that no new facts or evidences have been adduced before us to impress that the amount of penalties imposed upon the above-mentioned appellants have been imposed in disproportionate to their role in attempted smuggling of prohibited and mis-declared goods into the country.

14. In view of above, we feel that we do not find any infirmity in the impugned order-in-original under challenge. We uphold the same and all the appeals are accordingly dismissed.

2. These orders have arisen out of the alleged use of false and fabricated Telegraphic Release Advice (TRA) by the importers to clear the good imported by them duty free under various export promotion schemes such as Duty Exemption Passbook (DEPB), Focus Product Scheme, (FPS) Vishesh Krishi and Gram Udyog Yojna (UKGY) and Duty Free Import Authorization (DFIA) under Foreign Trade Policy. The exporters have undertaken the export through one of the Land Custom Station (LCS) namely, Ghodadanga which is under the jurisdiction of West Bengal Preventive Commissionerate. Also one of such exporter in this batch of appeal namely, M/s S.J. Patel (Appeal No. 52668/2018), the proprietor of M/s B.N.S. Export who it is alleged to have caused huge loss of customs revenue. Various penalties have been imposed on the importers, exporters and Prabir Ghosh which have been stated in the table above.

3. In view of common investigation and issue involved, all these appeals were heard together and are being disposed of by this common order.

4. At the outset, it is desirable to enumerate the various export promotion schemes and TRA procedure, which are involved in these appeals. The Duty Entitlement Passbook (DEPB) and Telegraphic Release Advice (TRA), Duty Free Entitlement etc. are the schemes formulated by the Director General of Foreign Trade and mentioned under paragraph 4.3 of the Foreign Trade Policy (FTP) 2009-2014 and Handbook of Procedure, (HBP) Vol.I (Para 4.37). The Export Import Policy (EXIM) Policy 2009-2014, and paragraph 4.37 of Handbook of Procedure have been formulated by the Government of India under Section 5 of the Foreign Trade (Development and Regulation) Act, 1992 in order to facilitate and augment foreign trade by the genuine importer/exporter. The neutralisation of the various duties suffered at the time of import are provided by way of grant of duty credit against the export products.

4.1 Duty Entitlement Passbook Scheme - Under DEPB scheme, the exporter can apply for duty credit from the office of the jurisdictional Director General of Foreign Trade (DGFT), for a particular port of export. The duty credit is available for exports at specified rate for raw material, intermediates, components, parts and packing material etc. In terms of the Policy, DEPB scrips/license are freely transferrable and such scrips are permitted to be utilised for duty free import at the specified port, which is the port of export. If the DEPB scrips are required to be utilised at other ports than the port of export, it is allowed under Telegraphic Release Advise (TRA) facility as per the Notification No. 97/2009-Cus. dated 11 September, 2009 as amended. In this scheme, the importers are entitled to discharge the duty liability through debits against the DEPB scrips, under the notification as referred above.

4.2 Focus Product Scheme (FPS): This scheme, in terms of Chapter 3.15.1 of FTP, 2009-2015, has been framed with an objective of promoting the export products which have high export intensity/employment potential. The scheme is contained at paragraph 3.15.2 of the EXIM policy for export products listed in Table (1) of Appendix-37D of Handbook of Procedures, Vol.I to all countries including Special Economic Zone units, who shall be entitled for duty credit scrip equivalent to 2% or 5% of FOB value of the export in free foreign exchange for export made from 27.8.2009 onwards, unless a specific date of exports/period is specified by a public notification.

4.3 In case of certain Focus Product(s), listed in Appendix-37D the benefit is granted by way of additional duty credit scrip equivalent to 2% of FOB value of exports. In terms of Handbook of Procedure, Vol.I, as per paragraph 3.11.3, the port of registration is specified for such import or export. The two conditions which govern such scheme are enumerated in para 3.11.3 of Handbook of Procedure, which are as under:

(a) Duty scrip including (splits) is issued with single port of registration which is port of export. After the issue of the duty scrip but before the registration with Customs, the applicant can request for change of port of registration from Regional Authority concerned.

(b) The applicant, however, may use such duty credit scrip for import from any other ports including ICD/LCS after obtaining Transfer Release Advice (TRA) from the Custom authorities at port of registration. But this procedure for issuance to TRA is restricted to Electronic Data Interchange (EDI) enabled ports. In the case of export through non-EDI port, the port of registration shall be port of export.

4.4 Vishesh Krishi and Gram Udyog Yojna (VKGUY): (Special Agricultural and Village Industry Scheme This scheme is contained in paragraph 3.8.1 of the FTP 2009-2014 and has been framed with an objective of compensating high transport cost and other costs for promoting export of the following products:

(a) Agricultural produce and their value at product;

(b) Minor neutralised produce and their value at variants;

(c) Gram Udyog Product

(d) Neutralised based product; and

(e) Other products as notified from time to time.

4.5 The entitlement of VKGUY in terms of paragraph 3.13.2 of the policy FTP is as under:

(a) Products listed in Appendix 37A of Handbook of Procedure, Vol-I shall be entitled for duty credit scrip equivalent to 5% of Foot on Board (FOB) value of export in free foreign exchange for exports made from 27.8.2009 for some agriculture products and fruits as listed in table of Appendix-37A of the HPB and shall be entitled to additional duty credit scrip equivalent to 2% of FOB value of export; over and above the 5% or 3% reduced rate of VKGUY entitlement as per para 3.13.3;

(b) DGFT has issued Trade Notice No. 8/AM-12 dated 27.3.2012 for operationalisation of para 3.11.3 of HPB, Vol-I, 2009-2014 which is as under:

"Duty credit scrip including a split shall be issued with a single port of registration which shall be port of export. After the issue of duty credit scrip but before registration with customs, the applicant can change the port of registration from RA (Regional Authority) concerned. Before registration, authorities shall verify the genuineness of duty credit script from the RA concerned only EDI system of message exchange put in place".

4.6 However, an applicant may use duty credit scrip for imports from other ports including ICD/LCS etc. after obtaining Transfer Release Advise (TRA) from the authorities at the port of registration. The above procedure pertaining to change of registration is applicable only in respect of EDI enabled ports. In case of export through non-EDI ports, port of registration cannot be changed and shall be the port of export only. The RA/licensing authorities can only entertain a request for port for change import in terms of para 3.11.3 of HPB procedures, subject to following conditions:

(i) The scrips should have been issued against shipment from EDI ports

(ii) The duty credit scrips under Chapter 3 of FTP, 2009-2014 should not have been registered with Custom authorities before making request to RA/licensing authorities for changing the port of registration.

Telegraphic Release Advice

4.7 The license/scrip holders, if after registering their licence/scrip at a particular sea port, Inland Container Depot (ICD), Container Freight Station (CFS) etc. desire to import goods at ports other than the port of registration, are required to obtain release advice from the port of registration. The application is received by the licensing section of the Custom House/Group etc. There is a prescribed procedure for issue of the release advice in Customs Appraising Manual, (Volume-II). The Central Board of Excise and Customs has issued various circulars governing the issue of Telegraphic Release Advice for import under various export promotion schemes. These are; Circulars No. 12/1995-Cus. dated 20.2.1995, 51/1995-Cus. dated 24.5.1995, 117/1995-Cus. dated 17.11.1995, 28/1997-Cus. dated 29.7.1997, 5/1009-Cus. dated 23.1.1998, 19/1998-Cus. dated 23.3.1998, 16/1999-Cus. dated 7.4.1999, 38/1999-Cus. Dated 25.6.1999, 66/2001 - Cus. dated 6.11.2001, 67/2003-Cus. dated 28.7.2003 and 11/2007-Cus. dated 13.2.2007. They prescribe the guidelines and procedure to be followed in case of issuance of Transfer Release Advice. The purpose of these circulars is to expedite the process of release of the goods under the applicable scrips expeditiously without compromising the revenue interest. It is emphasised in these circulars that the port of registration, which issues Transfer Release Advice (TRA) against which goods are permitted to be imported at the ports other than port of registration, should indicate the details of description, value and quantity of goods, DEPB Serial Number, date and issue and the extent the duty entitlement in DEPB book/scrip shown, so as to facilitate the relevant DEPB scrips. The Custom House/Custom ICD/Custom Station which issues the TRA in respect of the DEPB scrip are also required to maintain a record of such TRAs issued for the purpose of monitoring and keeping check of the total imports being affected under the over all value limit of such license/scrip.

4.8 As far as the facility of issuing the TRA in respect of EDI enabled ports is concerned, it is computerised and through system controlled message exchange between the port of export and port of import. In case of non-EDI ports, TRA is issued manually as per the procedure prescribed in the various circulars referred to above. The holder of the DEPB scrip or other entitled scrips, is required to make an application before the competent authority at port of registration (which is the port of export) that is required to follow the guidelines for issue of the TRA to other Customs Stations/Ports/Airports. The TRA is required to be produced by the importer before the Assistant Commissioner/Deputy Commissioner of the Customs station/port etc who after verification and confirmation permits the utilisation of such scrip/licenses for duty free import.

4.9 The department of Revenue issued a Notification No. 97/2009-Cus. dated 11 September, 2009 to operationalise the duty free entitlement passbook scheme.
The notification has specified, at clause-IV, places of port of registration (port of export) in which Ghojadanga is also mentioned. The Notification authorises the Commissioner of Customs to permit export from other than the ports mentioned at Sr. No. (IV) of the notification, within his jurisdiction in case of exigency in order to facilitate the export. Similarly, Notification No. 95/2009-Cus. dated 11 September, 2009 has been issued by the Finance Ministry (Department of Revenue) to give effect of import under VKGUY scheme, similarly, Notification No. 92/2009-Cus. dated 11 September, 2009 has been issued by the Ministry of Finance, (Department of Revenue) to operationalise the import against duty credit scrip under Focus Product Scheme (FPS). The conditions mentioned in all these notifications are that the import is only through the port of export. The DEPB, FPS, KGUY are freely transferrable. However, the TRA facility is not applicable to the FPS scrip and KGUY scrip. The utilization of VKGUY/FPS credit for imports is as per following conditions:

1. Para 3.17.7 of the FTP provides TRA facility in respect of Duty Credit Scrips including VKGUY and FPS Scrips. In terms of this para, Utilization of Duty Credit Scrip for imports from a port other than port of registration shall be allowed under Telegraphic Release Advice (TRA) facility as per DoR notification.

2. Para 3.11.3 of the Handbook of Procedure Vol. 1 (HBP) for the relevant Period (2009-2014) deals with Port of Registration of Duty Credit Scrips including VKGUY and FPS scrips. The said para provides that,
   a. Duty Credit scrip (including splits) shall be issued with a single port of registration which shall be the port of export. After issue of Duty Credit Scrip, but before registration with Customs, the Applicant can change the port of registration from RA concerned. Before registration, authorities shall verify genuineness of Duty Credit scrip, from RA concerned, until EDI system of message exchange is put in place.
   b. However, applicant may use Duty Credit Scrip for imports from any other port (that includes ICD/LCS) after obtaining TRA from authorities at port of registration. The above procedure shall be applicable only in respect of EDI enabled ports. In case of exports through non-EDI ports, the port of registration shall be the port of exports.

3. DGFT, Mumbai vide Trade Notice No. 8/AM12 dated 27.03.2012 has issued clarification with regard to change of port of registration of Duty Credit Scrip. The DOR has also issued Customs Notification No. 95/2009 (duty exemption under VKGUY) and 92/2009 (duty exemption under FPS) both dated 11.09.2009 to that effect.

5. The Directorate of Revenue Intelligence, Kolkata, Zonal Unit (hereinafter referred to as "DRI KZU") received information about a syndicate of unscrupulous persons based in West Bengal who in association with some exporters/brokers of licenses/scrips from other parts of the country were involved in preparing fake export documents on the basis which they were getting various duty credit licenses, such as, DEPB/FPS/DFIA/VKGUY etc. from different offices of Director General of Foreign Trade (DGFT). The intelligence further indicated that in such fake export documents, exports were being shown through one of the non-EDI Land Customs Stations (LCS) namely, Ghojadanga LCS under the jurisdiction of the Commissionerate of Customs (Preventive), West Bengal, which was without the facility of Electronic Data Transfer (EDI) and followed manual customs processes. As per intelligence, two persons namely, Paresh Datary of Kolkata and Jyoti Biswas of Maslandpur (a place near Ghojadanga LCS) were the mastermind of these fraudulent exports and had illegally obtained duty credit licenses for various exporters involving customs duty exemptions amounting to over Rs. 20 crores. It was also gathered that these fraudulently obtained duty credit licenses were subsequently utilised for discharging customs duty on imported goods at the time of their clearance at various ports in different parts of the country.

6. The three persons named above, in association with other persons who are also appellants, not only forged export documents but also TRA in connivance with certain officials of the Telephone Department. The TRA verifications were forged by diverting the receipt of such TRAs and thereafter sending confirmation through a parallel fax line of the official fax number of the Customs department at some place near Ghojadana LCS. During the search of the office of Paresh Daftary, it was gathered that he operated the business through a shop namely, Zenith Shoppe, at Radha Bazar Street, Kolkata. A search was also conducted at the “Zenith Shoppe” on 22.9.2011, wherein some electronic storage devices, other documents and forged rubber stamps of Customs officers were recovered and seized. The searches were also conducted at the residential premises of Jyoti Biswas, at Maslandpur, where other computer storage devices were recovered. During investigation relevant documents like shipping bills, invoices, packing lists, bank realisation certificates etc, which were submitted by the alleged exporters to different offices of DGFT for getting duty free licenses, were collected from concerned offices of DGFT. The DRI also obtained the 'DEPB Tendering Registers' from the office of Deputy Commissioner of Customs, Barasat Division, Kolkata for verification of the entries relating to DEPB shipping bills of various exporters. The DRI also collected documents from the Superintendent Ghojadanga, LCS, including registers pertaining to exports effected under schemes like DFIA, DEPB etc. for verification of physical exports made through the LCS. The verification revealed that none of these export documents had been ever tendered or registered at Barasat Custom Division, which indicated that all these documents, on the strength of which export had been stated to be made while obtaining the duty free license, were forged and fabricated.

7. Enquiry from the various banks also revealed that in nine out of ten cases, the BRCs were fake and fabricated. The BRC particulars in respect of export under other two licenses were not available and the foreign remittance was received only in one such export indicating the possibility of export proceed realisation through non-banking channel as no exports had actually taken place. These licenses, which were procured on fake and forged export documents, were utilised at various ports for the clearance of duty free import by the various importers. But in most of these cases the imports were made after availing the TRA facility, which were also forged as it emerged from the investigations by the DRI. In cases where TRA was not required, the port of export was got changed by the office of DGFT contrary to the Foreign Trade Policy and procedure.

8. The DRI also took up the matter with the concerned DGFT for cancellation of fraudulently obtained licenses. The licenses have been cancelled by the DGFT in most of the cases, ab initio, as per the documents filed by the learned Departmental Representative, copies of which were made available to the learned Advocates appearing on behalf of the parties.

9. Paresh K. Daftary in his statement dated 16.1.2012 stated that:

(i) He was aware of the search on 22.9.2011 conducted at his shop 'Zenith Shoppe' and had also seen the copy of the seizure list which was received from through his elder brother Rajendra K. Daftary. He stated further that he deliberately did not attend the search proceedings;

(ii) All the four pen drives seized on 22.9.2011 belonged to him and were used by him. They contained files/folders pertaining to exports like shipping bills/bills of export, invoice, packing list, copy of the TRA confirmation letter, debit note, copy of licenses etc.

(iii) He was in direct contact with exporters/importers and utilised the name of Khodiar Exim (proprietor being one Hitendra Damani, a person known to him) for issuance of bill, debit notes, etc. at the time of sale and purchase of the licenses. The sale proceed of the licenses were deposited by the purchaser of the licenses in the bank account of Khodiar Exim in Dhanlaxmi bank, Sarat Bose Road Branch, Kolkata whose account number ended with ‘4740’. As per instruction of the exporter i.e. the license holder, the money was sent to them in their other accounts also. However, the trading of the licenses was done under his instruction and he was in actual control of account of Khodiar Exim September, 2010;

(iv) That he had used the bank account of Hitendra Damani as he did not want to disclose his name and identity so as to avoid detection for transferring of license, which he started from May, 2010.

Annexure to DEPB scrips, authorisation forwarding letters etc from one Tushar Kothari of Mumbai;

(vi) That he knew Deshraj Gulati of Delhi as both of them dealt with trading of licenses. He was associated with Gulati and he arranged fake document including RA and TRA for exporters namely Satyam Overseas, Kabir Impex and Sai International under instructions of Kothari;

(vii) That he associated himself with illegal activities of arranging fake export documents for monetary gains. After arranging the fake export documents, he used to forward the same to various exporters/persons including D.R. Gulati through one Tushar Umarshi Kothari who used to obtain import licenses from DGFT on the basis of such fake export documents provided by him. Tushar Kothari was aware of the fact that such licenses were fraudulently obtained from DGFT on the basis of fake export documents through Md. Fahim Zada;

(viii) That he arranged the fake export document through his agent at Ghjojadanga LCS/Petrapole LCS through Jyoti Biswas, who used to prepare fake export documents including invoices, packing lists, bills of export etc and got them fraudulently stamped and signed as if by the Customs Officers of the Ghjojadanga LCS. Thereafter, to use forged license verification/ endorsement and also release advices, he used to send these documents to Tushar Kothari, who arranged for the registration of the said licenses at the port of importation mostly Nhava Sheva, and Patparganj ICS. The letter for confirmation of TRA was being issued to Petropole LCS and then sent by Fax along with the confirmation copy of TRA. The confirmation letter of TRA Verification used to be prepared by Jyoti Biswas in fraudulent manner in the name of Customs Officer by using fake seal and signature and then sent to the port of import by Fax from STD booth. On being asked as how the Fax meant for Petrapole LCS has not been received by the Customs authority, he explained that telephone exchange authority assistance was taken to divert the Fax messages at the location other than the Customs Office at Petrapole LCS. Jyoti Biswas has arranged the diversion of Fax and delivery thereof with the local telephone exchange authority. He was not aware of the identity of such persons from the telephone exchange, but connived with Jyoti Biswas in some illegal activities. He also stated that the said Fax connection of Petrapole LCS was diverted not permanently but for a specific duration from time to time only when the required documents i.e. TRA for confirmation would be sent to Petrapole LCS from port of import.

10. During the examination of Paresh K. Daftary on 17.1.2012 under Section 108 of the Customs Act, 1962, it appeared that he has used the import export codes of various exporters as detailed below:

11. Paresh Daftary admitted that he had fraudulently prepared about 125 shipping bills which were used for obtaining approximately 62 DEPB license and 14 DFIA license and also a few other licenses. The estimated value of these fraudulently obtained duty free licenses was approximately Rs. 20 crores and he received Rs. 1 crore as his share from the profit so earned of this and he paid Rs. 60 lakhs to Jyoti Biswas.

12. Des Raj Gulati, in his statement dated 4.7.2013, accepted that he was known to Paresh Daftary since the last 15 years and used to facilitate his illegal activity of export/import through Ghojadanga/Petrapole LCS. He also accepted that he had dealt with various types of licenses, namely DEPB/DFIA etc. and also arranged exports of M/s Satyam Overseas (prop. Kamal Sharma), M/s Kabir Impex, (Prop Rajeev Moolchand Sharma) and M/s Sai international (prop. Devendra Sharma) and Paresh Daftary used to process the export document through his associates who also knew firm Khodiar Exim, which according to him, was raised by Paresh Daftary.

13. In his statement, Prabir Bhaduri, Authorised Signatory of CHA firm M/s KCPJ International Agency accepted that he used to handle the export documents on behalf of the various exporters at the Land Customs Stations in West Bengal and had handled the export related activity of M/s Kabir Impex also.

14. Thus, it was clear from the above narration that Paresh Daftary and Jyoti Biswas used to facilitate fraudulent export at Ghojdanga LCS so as to obtain licenses from the various offices of DGFT and traded the same which were utilised by the various importers as indicated above.

15. Against this backdrop, various show cause notices were issued to the importers and other persons including exporters and the representative of Custom House Agent under the provisions of Customs Act for contraventions, as mentioned in the respective show cause notice.

16. All the learned Counsel on behalf of the various appellants have submitted identical submissions which were led by Shri Rachit Jain and Shri Ashwani Bhatia, learned Counsel in Appeal No. C/52747/2018.

17. Learned Counsel made the following submissions:

(i) The DEPB scrips were valid on the date of import and were not cancelled by the DGFT even on reference being made by the DRI seeking ab initio cancellation of scripts.

(ii) The appellant purchased these scrips for a valuable consideration in a good faith which was sold on prevailing market price;

(iii) The brokers took all responsibilities against the actions, proceedings, claims, demands, monies, damages, liabilities and costs relating to the DEPB scrips purchased under the indemnity bond;

(iv) No evidence has been produced by the Department in the Show Cause Notice regarding the collusion of the appellants with the exporter, operator, brokers;

(v) Duty cannot be demanded from the appellants, who imported the goods under valid licence. Reliance has been on the following decisions:

(a) East India Commercial Co. Ltd. Vs. CC - 1983 (13) ELT 1342 (SC);

(b) Union of India Vs. Sampat Raj Dugar - 1992 (58) ELT 163 (SC)

(c) Collector of Customs, Bombay Vs. Sneha Sales Corporation - 2000 (121) ELT 577 (SC)

Commissioner of Customs, Amritsar, Vs. Ajay Kumar & Co. - 2009 (238) ELT 387 (SC)

Sumit Woollen Processors

Commissioner of Customs (Import) Vs. Coromandal Fertilizers Ltd. - 2018 (12) TMI 734-Bombay High Court

TVS Motor Company Ltd. Vs. CC, Chennai - 2018 (1) TMI 775-CESTAT-Chennai

CC, Visakhapatnam Vs. Acalmar Oils & Fats Ltd. - 2018 (8) TMI 1533;

Unique Trading Company Vs. CC

It is held by the Supreme Court/High Court/Tribunal that once the licence is validly issued by the DGFT, then the import cannot be rendered illegal even if the license has been subsequently cancelled, if there is no fraud or collusion on the part of the buyer of the license.

Duty cannot be demanded from the importers, even if the DEPB scrips are forged as that will not make entire transaction void ab initio as at best it would be voidable. The decision of Punjab & Haryana High Court in Friends Trading Company Vs. Commissioner of Customs, Amritsar - 2006 (202) ELT 611 (Tri.-Del.) would not be applicable to the facts and circumstances of the case. On the other hand, reliance was placed on the decision in Pee Jay International Vs. Commissioner of Customs and M/s Khaas Textiles Pvt. Ltd. Vs. Additional Director General (Adj.), DRI, New Delhi - 2019-VIL-290-CESTAT-DEL-CUS. Reliance was also placed on the decision in Commissioner of Customs, Amritsar Vs. Pattala Casting Pvt. Ltd. - 2012 (283) ELT 269 (Tri.-Del) and Commissioner of Customs, Amritsar, Vs. Gopi Chand Krishan Kumar Bhatia - 2013 (295) ELT 739 (Tri.-Del.)

The Foreign Trade Policy under which the DEPB scrips/license were issued allows importers to purchase license from open market and use them for importing the goods duty free. In order to prevent fraud and to ensure that the benefits arising from the purchase of DEPB scrips were given only on actual export performance, the custom authorities are supposed to verify and endorse such scripts before import is allowed. Therefore, the authenticity and genuineness of the DEPB scrips evidently flows from the verification and endorsement by the Customs authorities. Therefore, the appellants cannot be liable. For these reasons duty demands are liable to be discharged against the appellant. As the TRAs were accepted by the Customs authorities after due verification by them, it is not open for the Department to now contend now that DEPB has been obtained fraudulently;

Even in spite of letter from DRI, the DGFT has not cancelled the licenses, and hence the impugned orders are not sustainable and liable to be set aside on this ground alone. Reliance to this effect was placed on the following decisions:

Marmo Classic Vs. Commissioner of Customs - 2002 (143) ELT 153 (Tri.-Mumbai) maintained by the Hon'ble Supreme Court in 2003 (152) ELT A85 (SC);

Honda Cars India Ltd. Vs. CC, ICD, PPG, Delhi - 2017 (12) TMI 245-CESTAT-New Delhi

Blue Water Foods & Exports Ltd. Vs. Commissioner of Customs (Cochin) - 2010 (251) ELT 305 (Tri.-Bang.).

Section 29 of the Sales of Goods Act, 1933 provides that the DEPB license/scrips are 'goods' and subject to Sales Tax when brought and sold. The Supreme Court has held that REP and import licenses are transferable and have to be treated as 'goods' in Vikas Sales Corportion Vs. CCT - 1996 (4) SCC 433.

Accordingly, the appellant importers have attained a good title to the scrips/license and the same would not be invalid in the hands of the importers who would be bona fide purchasers of the goods.
(xi) The appellants have received Telegraphic Release Advice (TRA) on a bona fide belief that they were genuine and they had not played any active role in procuring TRAs which was the responsibility of their brokers;

(xii) In Mercedes Benz Appeal the broker, SJ Impex was supposed to arrange for TRAs from the port of export in terms of the sales contract. Both the DEPB scrips and TRA were validly procured and handed over to them by the broker.

(xiii) The appellants, therefore had no reason to indulge in forgery of TRA as the DEPB scrips sold to them were valid and purchased on payment of valid consideration. Therefore, the appellants have not committed any forgery in purchasing the scrips on a belief that they had been issued by the DGFT. Further, TRAs were merely a procedural formality and the benefit of duty free import cannot be withdrawn by the DGFT or Customs Department. As per settled law, no substantive benefit can be denied failure to follow the procedural guidelines. Reliance was placed on the decision in Mangalore Chemicals & Fertilisers Ltd. Vs. Deputy Commissioner - 1991 (55) ELT 437 (SC). The appellants who had purchased the DEPB license/ scrips were validly procured and handed over to them by the exporter/broker of the license. There is no finding in the impugned order against the appellant to that effect. The appellant fulfilled the conditions for availing the benefit of DEPB scrips as per Notification No. 97/2009-Cus. dated 11.9.2009. The requirement of TRA is not there as per the Notification No. 97/2009 and therefore, non-observance of such requirement cannot be made a ground for denial of substantive benefit of the notification;

(xiv) The demand is barred by limitation on account of the fact that there was no suppression, mis-representation, collusion or fraud involved in the transaction. The suppression or mis-representation, which has been done by certain other persons cannot be a sufficient ground for extending the larger period of limitation. The appellants have not paid any active role in procuring DEPB scrips/TRA and have purchased the same through brokers. Reliance was placed on the following decision for the aforesaid submission:

(i) Indian Acrylics Ltd. Vs. Commissioner of Customs, Kandla - 2015 (325) ELT 753 (Tri-Ahmd) affirmed by Commissioner of Customs, Kandla Vs. Indian Acrylics Ltd. - 2016 (336) ELT 474 (Guj.);

(ii) Commissioner of Customs, Amritsar Vs. Vallabh Design Products - 2007 (219) ELT 73 (P&H) affirmed by Commissioner Vs. Vallabh Design Products - 2016 (341) ELT A222 (SC)

(iii) Balarpur Industries Ltd. Vs. Commissioner of Central Excise (Adj.), New Delhi - 2012 (275) ELT 88 (Tri.-Del.)

(iv) CC, Kandla Vs. Mantora Agro Industries - 2018 (7) TMI 926-CESTAT-AHMEDABAD.

(xv) DRI officer is not a proper officer and does not have the jurisdiction to issue show cause notice under Section 28 of the Customs Act. Reliance was placed on M/s Mangali Impex Ltd. Vs. Union of India - 2016 (335) ELT 605 (Del). Though, the said decision has been stayed, but it continues to be a binding precedent unless and until the order is reversed or set aside by the appropriate forum, for which the reliance has been placed on the following judgements;

(i) Niranjan Chatterjee and Ors. Vs. State of West Bengal and Ors.- 2007 (3) CHN 683;

(ii) Abdul Rahiman Vs. The District Collector, Malappuram & Another - 2009 SCC Online Ker 4358.

(xvi) As the duty demand is contested to be not sustainable, there is no question of levy of interest and imposition of penalty in view of decision of Supreme Court in Prathibha Processors Vs. Union of India - 1996 (86) ELT 12 (SC);

(xvii) The penalty under Section 114A of the Act can be imposed in cases where duty has not been paid or short paid by reason of collusion or wilful mis-statement or suppression of fact, which is not the case in the present proceedings. Therefore, the demand against the appellant is not sustainable. This apart they were bona fide purchaser and had not indulged in any activity of manipulation of port of export/import.
18. Learned Departmental Representative on the other hand, has supported the impugned order on the basis of finding contained therein. In addition, the following decisions were relied upon in support of the impugned order:

(1) Eastern Silk Indus. Ltd. Vs. CC - 2016 (336) ELT 141 (Tri.-Kolkata)
(2) Friends Trading Co. Vs. Union of India - 2011 (267) ELT 33 (P&H);

19. In addition, learned Departmental Representative also submitted that in these cases, the exports have been made through non EDI port and licenses were made transferrable by the DGFT Control Trade Notice No. 8/AM/12 dated 27.3.2012, which restricts transferability of port of registration in the licenses to non EDI ports wherein the port of registration is only port of exports. It is, accordingly, impressed upon that the licenses, which have been transferred by the DGFT, are contrary to the Circular dated 27.3.2012.

20. These transferees of licenses have also knowingly circumvented the provisions of issue of Transfer Release Advise (TRA) in case of DEPB cases in terms of the various circulars issued by the Department and Prabir Ghosh has not only forged the export documents but had also forged TRA by forging the signatures of Custom officers posted at Ghojadanga LCS.
21. Reliance placed by learned Counsel for the appellants on M/s Khaas Textile Pvt. Ltd. (supra) is not correct as in the licenses which were utilized in that case were under the FPS, wherein there is no need of issuance TRA.

22. Learned Departmental Representative also submitted copy of letter dated 24.12.2019 addressed to Registrar, CESTAT, R.K. Puram, wherein it has been stated that out of 216 licenses involved in these cases, 201 have been cancelled by the various offices of DGFT and the remaining are in the process of being cancelled. As the licenses have been cancelled ab initio, the entire clearance effected on such licenses become void and, therefore, the appellant is required to pay the customs duty while clearing these consignments along with interest and penalty.

23. With regard to the Departmental Appeals, the contention of the learned Departmental Representative is that the adjudicating authority has erroneously held the TRA were involved in import clearance in those cases but factually the issue was regarding utilisation of FPS scheme, for which port of registration was changed by the DGFT.

23.1 We have considered the various submissions made by the parties.

24. The issue to be determined in these appeals is as to whether the appellants had validly imported the consignments duty free on the strength of the licenses involved in these appeals. It is not disputed by the appellant that these licenses were obtained in a fraudulent manner by the exporters or the importers/manipulators, but their contention is that they have purchased these licenses through various brokers on payment of consideration through banking channels and, therefore, they cannot be held responsible for any manipulation by the transferor of these licenses. As the transferee, they have taken enough precaution before purchasing these scrips from open market by verifying on the DGFT website. They have also made payment to the brokers of license through banking channel/account payee cheques. Regarding obtaining of TRA with the transfer license, the appellants admitted that the TRAs were also made available to them with the transfer licenses but they were not aware that these TRAs were also manipulated. In such circumstances, they pleaded that being bona fide purchasers of the licenses, they should not be penalized for any lapse committed by the exporter. On the other hand, it is contention of the Department that the entire activities of export and TRA has been manipulated by the exporters. As these licenses have been cancelled or are in the process of cancellation, the license are void ab initio and the duty liability with interest and penalty has been rightly imposed.

25. The bona fide of imports which were made under the various export promotion schemes under Chapter 3 and 4 of the Exim Policy has to be examined. The schemes have already been discussed in the preceding paragraphs. The importers purchased these licenses, which were transferrable from the license brokers. After the purchase of license, the importers did not apply for the issue to Telegraphic Release Advice (TRA) from the port of Registration (POR) as was required to be obtained the TRAs from the brokers. Not only that, they also failed to ascertain the veracity of such TRAs from the Port of Registration. Thus, the due diligent that was required to be exhibited by the importer was not carried out.

26. The entire racket has been carefully planned and executed by Paresh Daftary, Prabir Ghosh and Jyoti Biswas. These three persons circumvented all the laws, be it Customs, Foreign Trade or Exim Policy. They attempted to hoodwink all the government agencies and committed a fraud, which could only be detected, subsequently, in the investigation by the DRI. The appellants have not asserted that the exports had not been effect for they only contend that they were not a party to the fraudulent activities. The Adjudicating Authority has taken great pains to evaluate the entire sequence of events. We have very carefully examined the findings. They are based on evidence produced. We see no good reason to take a different view.

27. It is, therefore, necessary to examine the cases which have been advanced by the learned Counsel on behalf of the appellants.

28. In East India Commercial Co. Ltd., the Supreme Court noticed that the goods were imported under a valid license and, therefore, it was not possible to hold that the goods imported were prohibited or restricted under Customs Act. This case pertained to Sea Customs Act, 1872, while the present case is under the Customs Act, 1962. The relevant paragraph of the judgement is reproduced as under:

"35. Nor is there any legal basis for the contention that licence obtained by misrepresentation makes the licence non est, with the result that the goods should be deemed to have been imported without licence in contravention of the order issued under Section 3 of the Act so as to bring the case within Clause. (8) of Section 167 of the Sea Customs Act. Assuming that the principles of law of contract apply to the issue of a licence under the Act, a licence obtained by fraud is only voidable: it is good till avoided in the manner prescribed by law. On May 1, 1948, the Central Government issued an order in exercise of the power conferred on it by Section 3 of the Act to provide for licences obtained by misrepresentation, among others, and it reads:

"The authorities mentioned in the Schedule hereto annexed may under one or other of the following circumstances cancel licences issued by any officer authorised to do so under clauses (viii) to (xvi) of the notification of the Government of India in the late Department of Commerce, No. 23-ITC/43, dated July 1, 1943, or take such action as is considered necessary to ensure that the same is made ineffective, namely:"

(i) When it is found subsequent to the issue of a licence that (i) the same had been issued inadvertently, irregularly or contrary to rules, fraudulently or through misleading statement on the part of the importer concerned; or

(ii) when it is found that the licensee has not complied with any (ii) one or more of the conditions subject to which the licence may have been issued.

(iv) This order, therefore, authorised the Government of India or the Chief Controller of Imports to cancel such licences and make them ineffective. The specified authority has not cancelled the licence issued in this case on the ground that the condition has been infringed. We need not consider the question whether the Chief Controller of Imports or the Government of India, as the case may be, can cancel a licence after the term of the licence has expired, for no such cancellation has been made in this case. In the circumstances, we must hold that when the goods were imported, they were imported under a valid licence and therefore it is not possible to say that the goods imported were those prohibited or restricted by or under Chapter IV of the Act within the meaning of Clause (8) of Section 167 of the Sea Customs Act.

36. It follows that on the assumption that the allegations made in the notice are true, the tribunal has no jurisdiction to proceed with the inquiry under Section 167(8) of the Sea Customs Act.

29. It is manifestly clear that the case at hand is distinguishable since there was no issue of TRA and the involvement of transferee had not been brought on record in the investigation. Thus, this case would not help the appellants.

30. In Sneha Sales Corporation, the matter was remanded to the Tribunal to decide whether the goods were liable for confiscation under Section 111(m) of the Act. Paragraph 7 of the judgement that is reproduced as under:

"7. Shri Choudhary has also urged that although the Collector had also ordered confiscation of the goods under Section 111(p) of the Act for the reason that there was violation of the provisions of Section 11C of the Act, the Tribunal, while allowing the appeal and setting aside the order of the Collector, has not dealt with the part of the order of the Collector. This submission finds support from the order of the Tribunal because the Tribunal while setting aside the order passed by the Collector has not dealt with the question whether the goods were liable to be confiscated under Section 111(p) on account of contravention of the requirement of Section 11C of the Act. In these circumstances, we are of the view that the matter is required to be remitted to the Tribunal for consideration of the question whether the goods are liable to be confiscated under Sections 111(m) on the ground of misdeclaration of the value of bobbins and under Section 111(p) on the ground of contravention of the provisions of Section 11C of the Act. The appeal is accordingly allowed, the impugned judgment of the Tribunal is set aside and the matter is remitted to the Tribunal for consideration of the question whether the goods are liable to be confiscated under Sections 111(m) and (p) of the Act.
31. This is also a case where the purchaser had not indulged in any activity of manipulation of port of export/import and there was no case of issue of forged TRA.
32. In Taparia Overseas (P) Ltd., the original license was obtained by the transferee fraudulently which were subsequently transferred to the transferee. It was held that since the goods had been imported under a valid license, the duty liability would not accrue on the transferee. Paragraph 36 and 37 of the judgement are reproduced as under:

"36. It is true that legal fraud vitiates everything even judgments and orders of the Court, but the question is: as to what extent this concept can be imported in commercial transactions, where question of transfer of properties is life and soul of trade. In a mercantile transactions, as well as in those connected with real properties, the general rule undoubtedly is, that a person cannot transfer to another a right which he does not himself possesses. The rule of caveat emptor spells out two exceptions to the rule, one in cases for encouragement of commerce such as sales in market overt, and other to the transfer of negotiable instruments. Take for example, if the seller has endorsed and delivered to the buyer the Bill of Leading or any other documents of title to the goods and the buyer has endorsed and delivered it to his sub buyer, then the sub buyer, provided he has taken the document in good faith, as well as for valuable consideration, is entitled to the goods free from any right in the original seller to stop them, and thus his position is better than that of the original buyer, same is a position of sales in market-overt.

Without attempting to enumerate the various rights which are assignable, either by the express act of the parties, or by the operation of law, we may observe, physically, the maxim assignatus utitur jure auctoris, i.e. an assignee is clothed with the rights of his assignor is subject to many restrictions, shortly enumerated hereinbelow. (See Broom's Legal Maxims, tenth Edition, p. 302)

Assignatus utitur jure auctoris (Hal. Max, p.14) - An Assignee is clothed with the rights of his assignor.

"This maxim applies generally to all property, real and personal, and refers to assigns by act of parties, as where the assignment is by deed; and to assigns by operation of law, as in the case of an executor. All rights of the assignor in the thing assigned must pass from him to the assignee by virtue of the assignment, for duo non possunt in solido unam rem possidere. It should be observed, also that the thing assigned takes with it all the liabilities attached to it in the hands of the assignor at the time of the assignment, except in cases for the encouragement of commerce, such as sales in market overt, negotiation of promissory notes, bills of exchange, etc., and, in the case of equities, where the assignee is a bona fide purchaser for value without notice."

[Emphasis supplied]
It is thus no doubt true that as a general rule, if a transaction has been originally founded on fraud, the original vice will continue to taint it, and not only is the person who has committed fraud is precluded from deriving any benefit under it, but an innocent person is so likewise, unless there has been some consideration moving from himself. In the cases at hand, it is not in dispute that all the petitioners had obtained licences for valuable consideration without any notice of the fraud alleged to have been committed by the original licence holders while obtaining licences. If that be so, the concept that fraud vitiates everything would not be applicable to the cases where the transaction of transfer of licence is for value without notice arising out of mercantile transactions, governed by common law and not by provisions of any statute.

In this behalf, we are reminded of the observation of Kings Bench in the case of Buller, J. while dealing with the case arising out of contract:

"I hold that in this case there is no fraud either express or implied: and that, as the plaintiffs have proved that they gave a valuable consideration for the bill, and that it was endorsed to them by those through whose hands it passed, their case is open to no objection whatever."
But I will suppose for a moment, though the case does not warrant it, that Wilkinson and Cooke did mean a fraud; still I am of the opinion that would not affect the case between the plaintiffs and the defendants. It is a common saying in our law books, that fraud vitiates everything. I do not quarrel with the phrase, or mean in the smallest degree to impeach the various cases which have been founded on the proof of fraud. But still we must recollect that the principle which I have mentioned is always applied ad hominem.

He who is guilty of fraud shall never be permitted to avail himself of it; and if a contract founded in fraud be questioned between the parties to that contract. I agree that as against the person who has committed the fraud, and who endeavours to avail himself of it, the contract shall be considered as null and void. But there is no case in which a fraud intended by one man shall overturn a fair and bona fide contract between two others. Even as between the parties themselves we must not forget figurative language of Lord Chief Justice Wilmot, who said that “that statute law is like a tyrant; where he comes he makes all void; but a common law is like a nursing father, and makes void only that part where the fault is, and preserves the rest.”

On the above canvas, having examined the well settled, established and well recognised concept of law that the effect of fraud is not to render the transaction void ab initio but renders it voidable at the instance of the party defrauded and transaction continues valid until the party defrauded has decided to avoid it.

37. Alternatively, let us consider it from another angle assuming that licence comes to an end upon its suspension and/or cancellation, in catena of cases, it is laid down that the date of import of goods would be the date on which the Bill of Entry was presented under section 46. This legal position is clear from the decision of the Apex Court as laid down in Union of India v. Apar Ltd. 1999 (112) E.L.T. 3 (S.C.) and Garden Silk Mills v. Union of India - 1999 (113) E.L.T. 358 (S.C.). The same is the view taken by the Apex Court in Sampat Raj Durgar case (cited supra).

In the circumstances, we hold that in all cases at hand, the goods were imported, under valid licences. The goods imported were neither prohibited nor restricted by or under the Customs Act, as such, it was not open for the Customs Authorities to withhold clearance thereof.”

33. As the issue of forged TRA was not the issue before the Court, the case would have no application.

34. In Leader Valves Ltd., the issue was identical as the DEPB was issued by the DGFT on the basis of forged document, bank realization certificate. The appellant was not a party to the fraud and had purchased DEPB from open market under a bona fide belief that it was genuine. The appellant paid full prices and availed the benefit. Merely because at a later stage the DEPB has been found to be fabricated, the assessee could not have been deprived of the benefit. The relevant portion of the order is as under:

"9. After hearing learned Counsel for the parties, we are of the considered view that this appeal is devoid of any merit. The assessee-respondent admittedly is not a party to the fraud. There are categorical finding that they had purchased DEPB from the open market in the bona fide belief of its being genuine. They had paid full price and accordingly have availed the benefit. Merely because at a later stage the DEPB has been found to be fabricated and fake on the basis of BCER the assessee-respondent could not be deprived of the benefits which were legitimately available to them. It is also worth noticing that the assessee-respondent was never issued any show cause notice before cancelling the DEPB which was obtained by M/s. Parker Industries and obviously the notice was also to be issued to them alone. We are further of the view that notice under Section 28 of the Customs Act could not be issued to the assessee-respondent because a period of six months stipulated by Section 28 of the Customs Act stood already expired and the rights of the parties had been crystallized. The revenue cannot avail the extended period because the assesssee-respondent could not be accused of mis-representation, collusion or suppression of facts within the meaning of proviso postulated by Section 28 of the Customs Act. Therefore, there is no merit in this appeal.”

35. All other judgments which have been cited by the learned Counsel are on the issue that the transferee of the license will not be responsible for the payment of duty, if they had purchased the license on bonafide belief that they were genuine. The issue of forged TRA was not examined by the Court. These cases would not help the appellants.

36. In Sumit Wool Processors & others, the Tribunal held that as the appellants had bonafide purchased the concept of this fraud vitiates everything would not be applicable. The authority themselves had not checked the fraud committed at the time of export in cases where licenses/scrips were transferred to the importer who had no knowledge of the mis-representation by the exporters in obtaining Bill of Entries which were filed. Accordingly, it was held that the goods cannot be subjected to Customs duty in terms of paragraph 9 of the order which is as under:

"9. In view of the above, the confiscation of goods imported by the appellants who are transferees of the licenses/scrips does not arise. The demands of duty against them and penalties are set aside,"

37. Regarding the transfer of utilisation of FPS licenses by a few importers at the port other than port of export i.e Ghojadanga, it was submitted that office of DGFT has made these licenses transferrable and, therefore, they have rightly utilised these licenses for payment of Customs duty while importing the goods. Reliance was placed on the decision of this Tribunal in Khaas Textile. Learned Counsel also submitted that in these cases licenses have not been cancelled and, therefore, the customs cannot object to the utilisation of these licenses placing reliance on the decision in Marmo Classic Vs. Commissioner of Customs - 2002 (143) ELT 153 (Tri.-Mumbai), which was maintained by the Supreme Court in 2003 (152) ELT A85(SC), Blue Water Foods & Exports Pvt. Ltd. Vs. Commissioner of Customs - 2010 (251) ELT 305 (Tri.-Bang.) and Honda Cars India Ltd. Vs. CC, ICD, PPG, Delhi - 2017 (12) TMI 245-CESTAT, New Delhi.

38. In this regard, we find that learned Departmental Representative has submitted a letter received from DRI that most of these licenses except, a few, have been cancelled by various offices of the DGFT and, therefore the submission made by the learned Counsel by placing reliance on these decisions is no help. Further, it is apparent from the Exim Policy and also HBP, that these FPS cannot be utilized at other ports in case where the exports have been made through Non-EDI port. The change of port of Registration (Export-port) is thus contrary to the Exim Policy and HB of procedure by the DGFT office.

39. The Representative of the Department has relied upon in Eastern Silk Industries, wherein it was held that the State cannot be deprived of its share of duty if the same is claimed by fraudulent act of exports. The relevant paragraph of the order is reproduced as under:

"8. The ratio laid by the Apex Court in the above case law is squarely applicable to the facts involved in the present proceedings in as much as the conditions contained in exemption Notification No. 40/2006-Cus., dated 1-5-2006 have to be fulfilled to the satisfaction of the Customs authorities and if these conditions are not satisfied then action can be taken by the Customs authority for demanding duty even if Licensing authority has not taken any action with respect to DFIA Licenses. One of the conditions of the exemption Notification No. 40/2006-Cus., dated 1-5-2006, read with EXIM Policy, is that duty free yarn import is permissible only for those goods what were exported by the appellants. As the said exports were not 100% mulberry natural silk yarn, as prescribed under SION J-123, but Noll yarn and that too along with cotton, therefore, the import of goods other than the material exported cannot be held to be proper and action for demanding Customs duty against the appellants is justified even if no action is taken by DGFT for cancellation of impugned DFIA Licenses.

9. Appellants who imported the goods against transferable DFIA Licenses have also taken an argument that they have purchased the DFIA Licenses under a bonafide belief that the same were genuine. It is thus their case that they cannot be held as party to the fraud and extended period cannot be made applicable for demanding duty. Transferee appellants have relied upon an order dated 31-8-2015 passed by the co-ordination bench, Mumbai in the case of Incos ABS (India) Ltd. & Others v. C.C., Kandla. In this order it has been held by CESTAT, Mumbai that transferees cannot be held responsible for duty and that extended period is not applicable while demanding duty. With due respect we differ with the view expressed orders passed by CESTAT, Mumbai as several case laws, including some recently decided by the Apex Court, were not brought to the notice of CESTAT, Mumbai. On this issue Delhi CESTAT in the case of C.C., Amritsar v. Sona Castings [2010 (259) E.L.T. 693 (Tri.-Del.)] held that fraud vitiates everything and transferee is also responsible to pay duty against such scripts obtained fraudulently. This conclusion drawn is based on several quoted case laws of Apex Court and High Courts of Kolkata & Punjab & Haryana. The ratio laid down by Calcutta High Court in the case of ICI India Ltd. v. C.C. (Port), Calcutta [2005 (184) E.L.T. 334] is squarely applicable to the facts of the present appeal. This order of the Calcutta High Court has also been affirmed by Apex Court as reported at 2005 (187) E.L.T. A31 (S.C.) where invocation of extended period was also justified. Jurisdictional Calcutta High Court in the case of ICI India Ltd. v. CC (Port), Calcutta (supra) held as follows:

"2. Relying on the judgment of the learned CEGAT in Appeal No. C/358/2000-NB(D), dated 26th September, 2002 [2003 (151) E.L.T. 336 (T)] Dr. Pal contends that there is a finding that there was no collusion on the part of the appellant. Therefore, according to him, if no fraud or collusion is found on the part of the appellant, in that event, the appellant would be entitled to the benefit of the DEPB licences/scrips. Relying on the decision in United India Insurance Company v. Lehru, (2003) 3 SCC 338, Dr. Pal contends that it is just not possible for the appellant to verify the DEPB licenses/scrips which is otherwise saleable, negotiable and available in the market and which the appellant had purchased bona fide for valuable consideration and utilized it for availing of the credit against its own import, stands in the same footing as a driving licence of the driver of the vehicle as it stood in the said case. Therefore, this is an important question of law that whether in the absence of any proof of collusion or fraud or absence of bona fide on the part of the appellant, the appellant could be deprived of the credit of the DEPB licences/scrips purchased by him bona fide for valuable consideration since found to be forged.

4. The DEPB licence/scrip is admittedly a negotiable one and is available in the market. Anyone can purchase it from the market and avail of the credit out of it. This was so done by the appellant. But ultimately it was found that the said DEPB licence/scrips were forged. These facts are not in dispute as we find from the finding of the learned CEGAT. The only question that has been put forward, on the basis of the finding of the facts without challenging the same, is about the effect of absence of collusion on the part of the appellant, as pointed out earlier, in relation to the availability of the credit under the forged DEPB scrips. But in the decision in United India Insurance (supra), the forgery related to the driving licence of the driver engaged by the insured, but the Insurance Policy was not found to be forged. The question would be different if the document itself, on the strength whereof credit is claimed is forged. In that event, the same cannot be equated with merely an irregularity in the licence of the driver driving the vehicle in relation to the liability of the insurer in relation to a valid insurance policy under the Motor Vehicles Act providing for compulsory insurance to secure third party interest. In this case, the document itself having been found to be forged whether there was collusion or fraud on the part of the appellant in the issue of the DEPB licences/scrips becomes absolutely immaterial and irrelevant since no credit can be derived from a forged DEPB. The credit is made available on the strength of a valid DEPB. If the DEPB is forged, then the same is non est and therefore, there is no valid DEPB. As such no credit can be derived thereunder. In such circumstances, one may defend his case that one may not be liable for collusion or fraud and exposed to other penalties therefor, but still then one would be liable to pay the duty and interest and for other statutory consequences which one cannot avoid."

9.1 A script obtained from the Licensing authority fraudulently cannot give licence to any transferee to avail any Customs duty exemption. Fraud in common parlance means dishonest dealing, deceit or cheating etc. It makes no difference whether fraud is committed by outrightly forging of documents or by willful misdeclaration/misrepresentation. A fraud is a fraud and there are no categories of mild frauds and severe frauds in taxation matters. Further in a recent case of Tata Iron & Steel Co. Ltd. v. C.C., Mumbai [2015 (319) E.L.T. 546 (S.C.)] on the issue of applicability of extended period in such cases it has been held by Apex Court as follows:
"[Order] - The only question in the present appeals is as to whether the customs authorities could invoke the provisions of proviso to Section 28 of the Customs Act, 1962, to avail the benefit of extended period of limitation.

2. In the facts of the present case we find that the original licence holder, namely, Indian Card, Clothings Company Limited had deliberately suppressed the fact of having availed Modvat credit under Rule 57A of the Central Excise Rules, 1944, and made willfully wrong declaration to the licensing authority to obtain the endorsement of transferability of the same while transferring the licenses to the appellant herein. In view thereof, the extended period of limitation would be available to the authorities for the purpose of claiming the duty even against the appellant herein, who is the transferee of the licence in question.”

9.2 In view of the above observations and settled proposition of law, it is held that demands against the appellants are not time barred.

10. So far as the argument of Shri S.K. Mehta (Advocate), with respect to on Section 28AAA(1) of the Customs Act is concerned, it is relevant to reproduce this Section as follows:

"Section 28AAA. Recovery of duties in certain cases. - (1) Where an instrument issued to a person has been obtained by him by means of -

(a) Collusion; or
(b) Willful misstatement; or
(c) Suppression of facts,
For the purposes of this Act or the Foreign Trade (Development and Regulation) Act, 1992 (22 of 1992), by such person or his agent or employee and such instrument is utilized under the provisions of this Act or the rules made or notifications issued thereunder, by a person other than the person to whom the instrument was issued, the duty relatable to such utilization of instrument shall be deemed never to have been exempted or debited and such duty shall be recovered from the person to whom the said instrument was issued.

Provided that the action relating to recovery of duty under this section against the person to whom the instrument was issued shall be without prejudice to an action against the importer under Section 28."

10.1 It is the argument of Learned Advocate that duty if any can only be demanded from the person in whose name DFIA Licenses were obtained fraudulently. It is observed that Section 28AAA of the Customs Act, 1962 has been made effective from 28-5-2012 and cannot be made applicable to the present proceedings for the periods prior to 28-5-2012. This provision has been made to give the department a tool also to recover Customs duty even from a person other than the importer of the goods. It is also observed that proviso to Section 28AAA(1) does not absolve the actual importer from payment of duty. Further Hon’ble Apex Court in the case of Tata Iron & Steel Co. Ltd. v. C.C., Mumbai (supra) has held that extended period is available to the Revenue for demanding duty from the transferees also. State cannot be deprived of its share of duty if the same is claimed exemption by fraudulent acts of the exporters in the present proceedings.

11. In view of the above observations duty demands and interest have been correctly confirmed by the Adjudicating authority against all the appellants. However, we are of the considered opinion that penalties are not imposable upon the transferee appellants as they have no knowledge of the nature of goods used and exported by the manufacturers/exporters. Accordingly, penalties imposed upon the transferee appellants are set aside."

40. Further, reliance was placed on Friends Trading Co., wherein it was held that where DEPB was fraudulently procured by the predecessor of appellant, the duty demand from the appellant cannot be withdrawn, as the importers who utilised these licenses had placed before seller forged document and they cannot be allowed to retain the benefit that were obtained illegally. The order contained in paragraphs 2, 4 and 9 are reproduced as under:

"2. The appellant imported goods and filed Bill of Entry dated 24-11-2000. It availed exemption from payment of Customs Duty under notification dated 7-4-1997 under Section 25 of the Customs Act, 1962 against DEPB Scrip dated 14-11-2000. Finding that the said Scrip was procured fraudulently by the predecessor of the appellant, Scrip obtained by the appellant was held to be void ab initio. Accordingly, demand of duty was raised against the appellant vide Order-in-Original dated 4-10-
2005. The said order was affirmed in appeal and has been further affirmed on second appeal by the Tribunal. The Tribunal rejected the contention that on the date of cancellation of DEPB Scrip i.e. 2-1-2003, the appellant having already taken the benefit, the same could not be withdrawn. Further contention that limitation for taking action under Section 28 of the Act had expired and the extended limitation under the proviso could not be invoked in absence of misstatement or suppression being attributed to the appellant was also rejected. The Tribunal followed the judgment of this Court in the case of the assessee itself in respect of different DEPB Scrips in Friends Trading Co. and Another v. Union of India - 2010 (254) E.L.T. 652, which in turn refers to earlier judgment of this Court dated 1-9-2007 in CUSAP No. 27 of 2008 M/s. Munjal Showa Limited v. Commissioner of Customs and Central Excise (Delhi (IV), Faridabad [2009 (246) E.L.T. 18 (P & H)]

4. With reference to proposed questions of law A to E, it was submitted that benefit taken on the basis of fabricated document, which is cancelled subsequently, could not be withdrawn since benefit was taken prior to the date of such cancellation. For this proposition, reliance has been placed on following judgments of the Hon’ble Supreme Court:

(ii) Collector of Customs, Bombay v. Sneha Sales Corporation, 2000 (121) E.L.T. 577 (S.C.) and

9. We are unable to accept the submission. Finding recorded by the Tribunal, reproduced above, shows that action of the petitioner was not bona fide. In any case, the proviso is not limited to action of an importer who comes forward to take advantage on the basis of fraudulently obtained or forged DEPB, it also covers action of the predecessor of the importer. Importer who steps into the shoes of seller of forged document does not stand on better footing and cannot be allowed to retain benefit illegally obtained. Taint attaching to the document on the basis of which benefit is taken is not washed of. Fraud or suppression continues if document is not genuine. Any other interpretation will defeat the intendment of the proviso to Section 28 and will enable fraud to be perpetuated without any remedy. Even if case of criminal liability or penalty may stand on different footing, purchaser or successor of fraudulently obtained DEPB stands in the same position as his predecessor. If the extended period of limitation could be invoked against the original holder of fraudulent or forged DEPB, the same could be invoked against successor or purchaser. The judgments relied upon on behalf of the petitioner are distinguishable. The matter is covered by view taken by this Court earlier which has been followed by the Tribunal. Thus, we are unable to hold that any substantial question of law arises.”

(emphasis supplied)

41. Similar observations were made by the Supreme Court in Aafloat Textiles (I) Pvt. Ltd. and it was held as under:

"26. No one ought in ignorance to buy that which is the right of another. The buyer according to the maxim has to be cautious, as the risk is his and not that of the seller.

27. Whether the buyer had made any enquiry as to the genuineness of the license within his special knowledge. He has to establish that he made enquiry and took requisite precautions to find out about the genuineness of the SIL which he was purchasing. If he has not done that consequences have to follow. These aspects do not appear to have been considered by the CESTAT in coming to the abrupt conclusion that even if one or all the respondents had knowledge that the SIL was forged or fake that was not sufficient to hold that there was no omission of commission on his part so as to render silver or gold liable for confiscation.

28. As noted above, SILs were not genuine documents and were forged. Since fraud was involved, in the eye of law such documents had no existence. Since the documents have been established to be forged or fake, obviously fraud was involved and that was sufficient to extend the period of limitation."

42. The Supreme Court also held that in case forged license is purchased from the market, the burden of proof remains with the purchaser of the license following the principle of buyers be aware as observed in Friends Trading.
43. It is seen that an identical issue where not only DEPB scrips were forged but also the Telegraphic Release Advice for use of this DEPB scrips on port other than port of export was considered extensively in K.I. International. It was held that importer transferee would be liable to compensate the customs duty and also would be liable to penal provision and interest. The relevant portion of the order as contained in paragraphs 10.1, 10.2, 10.3, 10.4, 14.5 is reproduced as under:

"10.1 Evidence gathered by Revenue unambiguously and succinctly proved that the TRAs used by the importer appellants were fake, false, forged and fabricated for discharge of customs duty and caused prejudice to Revenue. Similarly, the traders, brokers and sub-brokers supplying such instruments were conduit and instrumentality in commitment of offence of causing loss to Revenue consciously and deliberately having intimate connection to each other. Neither the importer appellants nor the conduits could demolish the evidence gathered by Revenue making enquiry from DGFT Authority. Their ill-design was unearthed by investigation.

10.2 It is established principle of law that fraud and justice do not dwell together. An assessee acting in defiance of law has no right to claim innocence when he fails to exercise due care and diligence. Failing to cause enquiry with the issuing authority of DEPB scrips/TRAs crippled the importer appellants to claim bona fide. Findings of the learned Adjudicating Authority do not appear to have been made suspiciously or under surmise but seems to have been based on cogent evidence.

10.3 When the importer appellants acquired DEPB scrips from market without being acquired from original acquirer, as an abundant caution, to avoid evil consequence of fraudulently obtained scrips, could have safeguarded their interest causing enquiry from JDGFT as to genuineness of the scrips. But that was not done. Such appellants failed to acquire title over the scrips but became beneficiary of ill got scrips. Notificational benefit was availed at the cost of public exchequer which is required to be surrendered for the undue gain made. Bona fides were not established by the appellants for which they submitted themselves to the loss of duty caused to Revenue by their act of use of DEPB scrips not acquired legitimately.

10.4 The observations of the former Lord Chief Justice of England, Sir Edward Coke, more than three centuries ago, that "fraud avoids all judicial acts, ecclesiastical or temporal", noticed by the Supreme Court in S.P. Chengalvaraya Naidu v. Jagannath, AIR 1994 SC 853, are apt for the instant case. The Apex Court has also observed that an act of deliberate deception with the design of securing something by taking unfair advantage of another is a "fraud". "Fraud" is a cheating intended to get an advantage. A person whose case is based on falsehood has no right to seek relief in equity. In Commissioner of Customs v. Essar Oil Ltd., (2004) 11 SCC 364 = 2004 (172) E.L.T. 433 (S.C.) their Lordships of the Supreme Court have observed that it is a fraud in law if a party makes representations, which he knows to be false, and injury ensues therefrom although the motive from which the representations proceeded may not have been bad. Being the ultimate beneficiaries of the fake TRAs, the importer Appellants were not innocent. Claim at the threshold was based on fake TRAs. Therefore, Revenue has rightly invoked extended period under Section 28 of the Customs Act, 1962 to adjudicate the matter.

10.5 It has been held in ICI India Limited v. CC (Port), Calcutta - 2005 (184) E.L.T. 339 (Cal.) that the DEPB licence/scrip is admittedly a negotiable one and is available in the market. Anyone can purchase it from the market and avail of the credit out of it. But, ultimately if it is found that the said DEPB scrips were not acquired lawfully nor transferred by original owners thereof credit cannot be derived from forged TRA. The decision of Hon'ble Calcutta High Court was affirmed by Apex Court in appeal by ICI India Ltd. as reported in 2005 (187) E.L.T. A31 (S.C.). Thus invoking of extended period for adjudication was justified and importer appellants were liable to consequence under Customs law."

44. It would also be appropriate to refer to M/s Dow Agro Sciences India Pvt. Ltd. Vs. Commissioner of Customs, Mumbai - 2012 (283) ELT 524 (Tri.-Mumbai), which also dealt with a situation pertaining to fraudulently obtained DEPB and TRA’s. The Tribunal held that in such a case, demand would be sustainable against the transferee under the Customs Act along with interest and penalty. The relevant paragraphs of the order are reproduced as under:

"9. Issue No. I : Whether, on account of ab initio cancellation of the DEPBs by the licensing authority, the appellant is liable to be deprived of the benefit of Notification
No. 34/97-Cus., dated 7-4-1997 and consequently to pay customs duty on the goods in question:

9.1 It is not in dispute that all the DEPBs in question were cancelled ab initio by the licensing authority on the ground that the documents (SBs and BCERs) on the basis of which the DEPBs had been issued were forged and fake. One of the contentions raised by De-Nocil is to the effect that as the cancellation of DEPB licences was without notice to them, it cannot affect their right qua bona fide purchaser. But they have not shown us any provision of law which obligates the licensing authority to put transferees of DEPB licence also to notice of a proposal for cancellation of the licence, nor has their counsel argued that the rule of natural justice requires the transferees also to be heard before cancellation of the licence. In any case, the fact remains that De-Nocil, who learnt at least from SCN dated 5-10-2001 that the DEPB licences had been cancelled ab initio by the licensing authority did not choose to challenge that authority's order.

9.2 We have also examined the evidence gathered by DRI, which includes (i) statements (recorded under Section 108 of the Customs Act) of the persons who played various roles in forging SBs and BCERs and obtaining DEPB licences mostly in the name of non-existent firms from DGFT's office on the basis of the forged documents, (ii) documents such as DEPBs, SBs, BCERs and application forms for DEPBs collected from DGFT's office, (iii) customs verification reports regarding SBs and banks' verification reports regarding BCERs, (iv) statements (under Section 108 ibid) of customs officers who disowned the signatures appearing purportedly as theirs on the SBs, (v) statement (under Section 108 ibid) of the Export Manager of M/s. APL India Pvt. Ltd. who stated that they had not handled the cargo mentioned in the SBs, and (vi) orders of the Deputy DGFT, Mumbai cancelling the DEPB licences ab initio. It is significant to note that the appellant has not assailed the above evidence. The appellant has virtually acquiesced in the factual position that the DEPB licences used for duty-free clearance of the goods imported by them had been obtained by the original licensees by producing forged and fake SBs and BCERs without export of any goods and that the licences were cancelled ab initio by the licensing authority later. Their only contention is that, as bona fide purchasers of the DEPBs with no notice of the tainted character of the licences, they cannot be adversely affected by the post-import cancellation of the licences. Their argument is that the DEPBs were valid when used for duty-free clearance of the goods imported by them and that the subsequent cancellation of the DEPBs by the DGFT cannot be any ground for the department to demand the duty from them. Per contra, the respondent has invoked the caveat emptor rule to argue that it was for the importer, before using the DEPBs for duty-free clearance of the imported goods, to ensure that the DEPBs were perfectly valid and did not suffer from any sort of taint or other infirmity. The DEPBs were obtained on the basis of forged documents and were, therefore, vitiated by fraud. On this ground, they were cancelled ab initio by the licensing authority. In the circumstances, according to the learned JCDR, it cannot be said that the appellant used valid DEPBs for clearing the goods duty-free. Numerous judgments have been cited before us in support of the rival arguments, which we shall proceed to discuss.

Case Law Cited on behalf of the appellant

9.24 All the DEPBs in question were issued, utilized and cancelled during the period of the Export & Import Policy (1-4-1997 to 31-3-2002) issued under the Foreign Trade (Development & Regulation) Act, 1992. Para 7.25 in Chapter 7 of the Policy described the DEPB scheme as follows:-

"The objective of Duty Entitlement Pass Book Scheme is to neutralize the incidence of basic customs duty on the import content of the export product. The neutralization shall be provided by way of grant of duty credit against the export product. The duty credit under the scheme shall be calculated by taking into account the deemed import content of the said export product as per Standard Input Output Norms and determine basic customs duty payable on such deemed imports. The value addition achieved by export of such product shall also be taken into account while determining the rate of duty credit under the scheme.

Under the Duty Entitlement Pass Book (DEPB) scheme, an exporter shall be eligible to claim credit as a specified percentage of f.o.b. value of exports made in freely convertible currency. The credit shall be available against such export products and at such rate as may be specified by the Director General of Foreign Trade by a Public Notice issued in this behalf."
Any item except those appearing in the Negative List of Imports shall be allowed for import without payment of basic customs duty, special duty of customs as well as additional duty of customs, against the credit under a Duty Entitlement Pass Book (DEPB). The holder of Duty Entitlement Pass Book (DEPB) shall have the option to pay additional customs duty, if any, in cash as well."

Para 7.29 provided that "DEPB may be issued on (a) post-export basis and (b) pre-export basis". Para 7.30 explained that "DEPB on post-export basis shall be granted against exports already made". Para 7.32 provided as follows:-

"The DEPB on post-export basis and/or the items imported against it are freely transferable. The transfer of DEPB shall, however, be for import at the port specified in the DEPB which shall be the port from where exports have been made".

In the present case, "DEPBs on post-export basis" were obtained from the licensing authority under the FT (D&R) Act by racketeers (mostly in the name of non-existent and fictitious firms) by producing forged and fake Shipping Bills (SBs) without exporting any goods. "Transferability" was got endorsed on the DEPBs by the licensing authority, on the basis of forged and fake Bank Certificates of Export & Realisation (BCERs). These facts are not in dispute. In the absence of exports and realization of export proceeds, no credit of duty accrued "as a specified percentage of f.o.b. value of exports" to the allottees of the DEPBs and nothing rendered the DEPBs "transferable" in the eye of law. The DEPBs did not have any intrinsic value in the form of transferable credit of duty. The DEPBs and the transferability endorsed thereon ever stood vitiated by fraud. If the principle that no one can claim any benefit under a forged document is applicable to the original allottees, it should be held that they did not earn any credit of duty on the basis of the forged & fake SBs and BCERs. If that be so, when they transferred the tainted DEPBs to the appellant, no benefit in the form of credit of duty could have passed on to the latter.

9.25 The REP licences considered by the Hon'ble High Court in Taparia Overseas case did not require the licensing authority's endorsement for transferability under the Import & Export Policy (April 1985 - March 1988) issued under the FT (D&R) Act. We have perused Chapter XIV ("Import Policy for Registered Exporters") of the Policy; para 223 provided a scheme for duty-free import of raw materials against REP licences issued against exports of specified products, and also stated that REP licences issued under the scheme would be freely transferable and would not be subject to "actual user" condition. It was laid down in para 225 that, except for certain specified cases, a licence-holder could transfer the licence in full or part in favour of any other person. Para 226 provided as under:

"The transfer of the licence will not require any endorsement or permission from the licensing authority i.e., it will be governed by the ordinary law. Accordingly, clearance of the goods covered by an REP licence issued under this policy, will be allowed by the customs authorities on production, by the transferee, of only the document of transfer of the licence concerned in his name. Whenever an REP licence is transferred, the transferor should give a formal letter to the transferee, giving full particulars regarding number, date and value of the licence transferred and the name and address of the transferee, and complete description of the import items for which the licence is transferred ..........."

Now the relevant ruling of the Hon'ble High Court in Taparia Overseas is reproduced below:

"........the concept that fraud vitiates everything would not be applicable to the cases where the transaction of transfer of licence is for value without notice arising out of mercantile transactions governed by common law and not by provisions of any statute".

The transfer of REP licences in the case of Taparia Overseas was governed by common law as observed by the Hon'ble High Court and by ordinary law as per para 226 of the Import & Export Policy ibid. Indisputably, there is total harmony between the Policy provision and the court's ruling. A closer look at para 226 of the Policy would reveal as to why the transfer of REP licence was said to be "governed by the ordinary law" - the licence was freely transferable as in an ordinary mercantile transaction without any endorsement or permission from the licensing authority. As per the Hon'ble High Court's ruling as we comprehend it, the concept of fraud vitiating everything is not applicable to such a transaction. But the concept is applicable where a transaction of transfer of licence is governed by provisions of any statute. This view, which is clearly discernible from the Hon’ble High Court’s ruling, is applicable to the present case wherein admittedly the DEPBs were not transferable without the licensing authority’s endorsement of transferability under the relevant provisions of the EXIM Policy (1997-2002) issued under the FT (D&R) Act, 1992. Where such endorsement was statutorily required to make the DEPB scrips/licences transferable, it could only be said that the transaction of transfer of the scrips was governed by provisions of the statute viz. the FT (D&R) Act and the EXIM Policy issued thereunder. The concept of fraud vitiating everything must, then, be applicable to such transaction. This concept was not applicable to the transfer of REP licences in the case of Taparia Overseas. The case of Sneha Sales Corporation is also similarly distinguishable.

9.28 The learned JCDR has argued that, as the SBs referred to in the Annexures to the DEPBs were forged, the DEPBs themselves were liable to be treated as forged. But there was no such allegation in the show-cause notices. The allegation was that the DEPBs were obtained by the original allottees by producing forged SBs and BCERs. Therefore, the Revenue cannot be heard to say that the DEPBs per se were forged. Whether a DEPB is forged is not a pure question of law to be allowed to be raised for the first time at this stage. This situation, however, cannot be decisive for the appellant. The learned counsel has contended that a DEPB issued on the basis of forged documents cannot be void ab initio but only voidable at the instance of the affected party and the same is valid till it is cancelled by the authority which issued it. He has also relied on case law on the point. But the question before us is significantly of a different hue and the same is whether any credit of duty can be said to have ever accrued to, or to have been earned by, the allottee of such DEPB which was obtained by producing forged SBs and BCERs. We repeat - there was no export, no f.o.b. value, no realization of proceeds in the present case; hence no credit of any duty had accrued to the allottees of the DEPBs. Even if it is assumed that the DEPBs, though issued without actual accrual of duty credit to the allottees, vested the benefit in them artificially, the appellant cannot legitimately claim the benefit after its retrospective cancellation by the licensing authority which, as per the High Court’s ruling in Golden Tools International, has the power under Section 9(4) of the FT (D&R) Act to cancel DEPB “credit” already “utilized”. In our view, the distinction drawn by the learned counsel between a forged DEPB and a DEPB issued on the basis of forged documents is of no significance where the DEPB of the latter category is cancelled with retrospective effect by the authority which issued it. Both are incapable of vesting any credit of duty in the DEPB-holder so as to be used for purposes of Notification No. 34/97-Cus.

9.31 The cases of Hico Enterprises and Ajay Kumar & Co. decided by the Supreme Court are also distinguishable. The relevant paragraphs of the two judgments are quoted below:

Hico Enterprises:

"It is seen that in view of the fact that in the show cause notice issued on 4-3-1999, there was no reference to the alleged infraction of M/s. Amar Taran Exports, the transferor of the licence in question, the judgment of the CESTAT does not suffer from any infirmity to warrant interference. The appeal is dismissed."

Ajay Kumar & Co:-

"It is seen that in view of the fact in the show cause notices, there was no reference to the alleged infraction of M/s. Parker Industries, the transferor of the licence in question. The judgments of the CESTAT and the High Court do not suffer from any infirmity to warrant interference. It is to be noted that in Commissioner of Customs (Import), Bombay v. M/s. HICO Enterprises [2008 (11) SCC 720] similar view was taken. The appeal is dismissed.”

[underlining supplied]

In De-Nocil’s case, the show-cause dated 5-10-2001 clearly brought out the fraud committed by the transferors of DEPBs. It was clearly alleged in the show-cause notice that the Shipping Bills and Bank Certificates of Export & Realisation on the basis of which the DEPBs had been issued by Dy. DGFT, Mumbai were all forged. It was also alleged that most of the DEPBs had been obtained by the racketeers in the name of non-existent/fictitious firms. Even the transfer letters were also allegedly fabricated. These and allied allegations were raised against the transferors of the DEPBs. The appellant would only say that they were bona fide transferees of the DEPBs without notice of the above fraud committed by the transferors. Therefore, in our view, the appellant cannot claim support from the above judgments of the Apex Court.

14.2 After considering the submissions, we have found no justification for the penalty imposed on the appellant. The show-cause notice dated 5-10-2001 had inter alia proposed a penalty on De-Nocil under Section 114A/Section 112 of the Customs Act. The adjudicating authority imposed penalty on them under Section 114A of the Act, which we have set aside. The fifth proviso to Section 114A reads thus: “provided also that where any penalty has been levied under this section, no penalty shall be levied under Section 112 or Section 114”. Now that the penalty under Section 114A stands vacated, the question might arise as to whether Section 112 could be invoked against De-Nocil. In this connection, we must have a closer look at the relevant proposal in the show-cause notice dated 5-10-2001. The proposal was to impose a “suitable penalty on De-Nocil under Section 112 of the Customs Act in lieu of confiscation” as “the goods imported by De-Nocil were not available for confiscation”. A penalty under Section 112 of the Customs Act in lieu of confiscation is unheard of in law though such penalty could be imposed on an importer who is found to have rendered the goods imported by him liable to confiscation under Section 111 of the Act. This is the reason why we refrain from imposing alternative penalty under Section 112 of the Customs Act on De-Nocil.

14.3 Where any penalty under Section 112 of the Customs Act is not imposed on De-Nocil regarded as the main offender by the department in this case, there can be no penalty under the same provision of law on P. K. Srinivas on the ground of abetment. In the result, the penalty on P.K. Srinivas is vacated and his appeal is allowed.

45. In Munjal Showa Ltd. Vs. Commissioner of Customs & Central Excise (Delhi-IV), Faridabad - 2009 (246) ELT 18 P&H also decided an issue regarding the liabilities of transferee towards Customs duty. Paragraphs 18, 19 and 21 are reproduced as under:

"18. Coming to the admitted facts of the present case, the appellant availed exemption from duty in May-June, 2003. Within three months, the appellant was informed about the forgery and the fact that the appellant was not entitled to the benefit of exemption. Even as per scheme of exemption, exemption was subject to export proceedings being realised within six months, which in the present case, were never realised. The appellant paid the duty under protest and has never denied that the documents were forged. Having come to know that the documents were forged and having been confronted with that fact, the appellant was under an obligation to disclose the true facts and by not doing so, the appellant was guilty of willful suppression of facts within the meaning of proviso to Section 28 and thus, extended period of limitation could certainly be availed in the present case.

19. It is settled principle of common law that a purchaser steps into the shoes of the seller and does not acquire better title than the seller. This principle has also been recognized under Section 27 of the Sales of Goods Act, 1932.

21. Even though the word 'fraud' and "with intent to evade payment of duty" are absent in Section 28(1) of the Act, willful suppression or misstatement do find mention in proviso to Section 28 of the Act, which is clearly attracted to the present case."

46. The appeals filed by Prabir Ghosh have also been examined. Learned Counsel had submitted that the appellant was H Card holder of CHA firm, M/s IMA and may have abetted Jyoti Biswas in his fraudulent activities contrary to CHA Licensing Regulation, 2004 but the appellant only allowed his bank account to be used by Jyoti Biswas for some duty payment as he was not having a local account. The appellant has voluntarily disclosed this fact about use of his bank account during January to April where an amount of Rs. 25 lakhs had been deposited through RTGS. This amount has been withdrawn immediately.

47. No good explanation has been offered that the amount was for the purpose of duty payment by other importers. The statement is without any proof and cannot be accepted.

48. In such circumstances, there is no reason to disagree with the findings of the adjudicating authority regarding the role played by him. The appellant Ghosh has been found to be indulging in nefarious activities of manipulating the forged export as ‘G’ card holder of CHA firm on the basis of detailed investigation carried out by the DRI-KZU.

49. As far as the six appeals filed by the Department are concerned, it is seen that the adjudicating authority, in the impugned order, has wrongly held that the appellants have utilized forged TRA, although the issue pertained to the utilization of FPS licenses. Thus, the appeals filed by the department are allowed and they are remanded to the adjudicating authority for a fresh decision after granting a hearing to the appellants.

50. Accordingly, the appeals of the importers/exporters and Prabir Ghosh are dismissed. The impugned orders are upheld. The appeals filed by the Revenue are allowed by way of remand. Cross objection filed by the Revenue also stand disposed of.

2. As all the appeals arose from the same impugned order, the appeals were heard together with the consent of all the appellants and are being disposed of by this common order.

3. The brief facts of the matter are that the Appellant - Importer namely M/s Pax Technologies were engaged in import of goods namely Point of Sale Devices (POS) and Mobile Point of Sale Devices (MPOS). Based on an intelligence that the goods were being imported by suppressing actual value of goods, the department...
intercepted the consignments imported against two Bills of Entry Nos. 3851878 dated 08/01/2016 and 3851698 dated 08/01/2016. On examination, it was found that the goods were not only undervalued, but were mis-classified and imported in violation of relevant Foreign Trade Policy (FTP) provisions too. The scope of investigations was expanded to the previous consignments cleared by M/s Pax Technologies Pvt. Ltd. and it was detected by the Department that:

(a) The correct import price of the hardware was not declared in respect of various import consignments;

(b) The amount paid or payable to the overseas supplier on account of Licence Fee for use of software was not included in the assessable value in the Bills of Entry filed with the Customs resulting in evasion of Customs Duty;

(c) The point of sale Terminals/ mobile point of sale Terminals i.e. the hardware imported by Appellant importer were Bluetooth/wi-fi/GPRS enabled and hence their import required no objection certificate from WPC Wing of Department of telecommunication, ETA Type Approval Certificate and also BIS certification, but no compliance in respect of these policy provisions were made.

(d) The imported consignments were grossly mis-declared with regard to description and were also mis-classified under different Customs Tariff Heading. The importer - Appellant wrongly described the 'dummy' or 'parts of debit/credit device' with intent to undervalue the goods and to avoid BIS certification and ETA from WPC.

4. The Bill of Entry-wise violations i.e. undervaluation, non-inclusion of transfer/licence fee and non-submission of BIS and ETA/WPC licence in respect of all the 14 Bill of Entry are summarized in the table below:

5. The investigation has brought forth a fact that though the goods were supplied by a supplier namely M/s Pax Technology Ltd., Hong Kong but to circumvent the registration of import in Special Valuation Branch (SVB) and examination by SVB branch of whether the buyer and supplier were 'related', and if so, whether the relationship influenced the transaction value, the appellant - importer mis-declared the facts. It has also been indicated that Ms Latha Priyadarshini, Director of the Importer-Appellant firm actively connived with Shri Kuldeep Singh, Director of the Freight Forwarder firm M/s VSG Shipping and Logistics Pvt. Ltd., Shri Rajinder Madhok, Consultant and CHA M/s Rubal Logistics Pvt. Ltd. in resorting to mis-declaration of value and description as well as other facts of the imports.

6. The Department has alleged that importer appellant indulged in duty evasion by fraud and forgery. Syndicate of S/Shri Randhir Singh, Sanjay Kataria, Sushil Kumar Mishra and Rajendar alias Raju has un-authorizely handled import documents and in the process has indulged in using/preparing forged/fake documents based on which goods were cleared without payment of appropriate duty.

7. The authorized CHAs (firms and their representatives) failed to verify the genuineness of the importer, correctness of the documents on the basis of which clearances were sought and also to guide the importer about the statutory requirements especially certification from BIS and WPC (in this case). In order to get more business of clearance of import consignments they undermined the provisions of law. Some of the CHAs and their representatives deposited assessed customs duty from their own account and charged the same amount or more from the importer. In some of the cases it has been found by the Department that the CHAs were aware that the fake/forged documents were submitted for clearance of import consignment and thus as per department they became party to the violation of customs procedures as well as duty evasion.

8. After detailed investigation, the Department issued a show cause notice dated 12 July 2016 to all the appellants which got adjudicated by impugned order-in-original No. 3/2017-18/V.S./COMMR./IMPORT dated 28 June 2018 which was subsequently modified by issuing a corrigendum dated 20 July, 2018. The summary of confirmation of the duty and imposition of penalty under various sections which has already been summarized in the preceding para of this order.

9. The arguments submitted by various Advocates appearing on behalf of the appellants are summarized here below:

(A) Appellant- Importer, namely M/s Pax Technologies Pvt. Ltd.

(i) Mis-declaration of description of goods: That mis-declaration of description of goods could not be attributed to them as they provided all the documents as received from the oversea supplier to the syndicate comprising Shri Sanjay Kataria and associates; that the manipulations in the import documents and Bill of Entry were handiwork of the syndicate; that they were not party to the mis-declaration which was perpetrated by Sanjay Kataria, Sushil Kumar Mishra and Rajendar alias Raju, and in fact they became victim of nefarious designs of the aforesaid persons. It has further been added that had they been a party to the mis-declaration they would not have filed criminal complaints against Sanjay Kataria and others in police station.

(ii) Undervaluation of goods: That they were not a 'Related Party' to the supplier M/s Pax Technologies Ltd. Hongkong but dealt with the supplier on Principal to Principal basis in as much as they did not ever considered themselves as 'Related Parties' and hence SVB registration and provisional assessment was not required in their case; that in the Master Distributor Agreement with the Supplier it is nowhere prescribed that purchase of software was a condition of sale of the hardware; that goods covered by initial three consignments only were in operating condition loaded with software and hence the per piece value was declared @ USD 60 and duty was discharged accordingly; that goods covered by subsequent consignments were not loaded with software; that clients were supposed to download the software depending on the operative window they were using for their computers; that except first three consignment, goods imported were hardware only and the value after volume discount was declared as transaction value in the invoice for duty payment; that Sanjay Kataria and his associates mis-declared the transaction value lesser than the invoice value without any knowledge or approval of the Appellants; and finally that they remitted the price at the values indicated in the respective invoices issued by overseas supplier and paid duty to Sanjay Kataria and associates calculated at the actual invoice value.
(iii) Mis-classification of goods: That though the classification entered in the Bills of Entry by the respective CHAs was also not applicable to the goods, the Learned Commissioner also erred in confirming classification of subject goods under CTH 8471 holding the devices are Automatic Data Processing Machines and that classification adopted by the Learned Commissioner was not in conformity with the classification adopted by other customs formations in respect of identical goods; and finally that the impugned goods are classifiable under CTH 84705010 as cash register for which they relied upon the catalogue of D180 MPOS which was submitted during hearing.

(iv) Confiscation and Penalty: That the impugned goods do not require ETA and WPC Certificates for clearance and hence interpretation adopted by the Learned Commissioner for holding that the goods in absence of production of aforesaid certificates were liable to confiscation under Section 111(d) is misconceived; that the finding of the Learned Commissioner is also contrary to uniform practice prevalent at all custom houses of clearance of identical goods without insisting upon BIS, ETA or WPC; that finding of the Learned Commissioner that the goods are liable for confiscation under Section 111(m) for non-submission of SVB orders is incorrect in so far as though supplier and Appellants have identical names, they cannot be construed as related party in terms of provisions of Rule 2 (2) of Customs Valuation Rules (CVR) 2007; that the goods cannot be held liable for confiscation under Section 111(m) of the Customs Act for mis-declaration in the Bills of entry as the description of the goods in Bills of entry was wrongly depicted by the CHAs without their knowledge. Thus, they are not liable for penalty under Section 114A and 114AA as the fraud was perpetrated not by them but by other persons/noticees; that in absence of collusion, willful mis-statement or suppression of facts on their behalf, imposition of penalty under Section 114A was contrary to the language of the provision; that in the facts and circumstances of the instant case imposition of penalty was contrary to settled law that penalty being quasi-criminal is attracted only in cases of contumacious conduct or willful infringement of the statutory provisions which are conspicuously absent on their part; that they rely on the judgment in cases of Hindustan Steel [1978 (2) E.L.T. (J 159) (S.C.)], Prashray Overseas [2009 (237) E.L.T. 720 (Tri. Chennai)], Suryakiran International [2010 (259) E.L.T. 745 (Tri. B'lore)] and Vaz Forwarding [2011 (266) E.L.T. 39 (Guj.)]; and finally that the penalty imposed was highly excessive and does not commensurate with the gravity of offence, if any.

(B) Appellant- CHA against imposition of penalty: That the impugned goods having been assessed by the proper officer under Section 17 after rejecting self-assessment and therefore same cannot be adjudicated/assessed again without filing appeal; that there is no evidence on record to establish that the Appellants had prior knowledge that the impugned goods were mis-declared/undervalued; that the true declaration with regard to description and value of the imported goods has to be given by the importer and not by the CHA; that the bills of entry were prepared and filed by them based on the documents supplied by the importers; that there was no positive evidence on record to show any mala fide intention on the part of them or that they were an accomplice or abettor in the offence of mis-declaration, mis-classification and under invoicing of the goods with an intent to evade customs duty; that in the instant case there is not any evidence to indicate that they had any prior knowledge about the violation of any provisions of the law, which would have rendered the goods liable to confiscation; that the importer did not implicate them in statement; that they scrupulously followed the KYC norms and other requirements as expected of them; Invocation of Section 112, 114A or 114AA is not legally sustainable; that no separate penalty is imposable on them when penalty has already been imposed on the proprietor; that they have already faced proceedings under CBLR 2013; and finally that they rely upon plethora of judgments holding that CHA cannot be penalized for wrongdoings of importers in absence of mens rea on behalf of CHA. (No one appeared and no oral submissions made in respect to Appeal filed by Shri Rajender Prasad figuring at serial no. 5 in table above).

(C) Appellant- Shri Sushit Kumar Mishra against imposition of penalty: The investigations have indicated that Shri Mishra was working as one of the members of the syndicate manipulating the import documents and forging certain documents for obtaining the clearance of import consignments. It is contended on his behalf that he was not physically involved in forging/faking of import documents, no penalty can be imposed on him. He relied upon certain judgments... to impress that no penalty can be imposed on Middle man/Facilitator/Coordinator invoking Sections 112, 114A or 114AA.

(D) Appellant- Shri Kuldeep Singh - a Freight Forwarder against imposition of penalty: That the Appellant had a very limited role of moving the goods from the Air Cargo Area to the importer’s place for a limited period as an authorized representative of the importer; that he didn’t have authority either to verify genuineness of the import documents or competency to deal with customs procedure; that he acted on the declaration, information and documents provided by the importer; that he didn’t receive any consideration except agency fee; that neither he was involved in any manipulations of the documents nor defaulted in forwarding a revised invoice to the CHA for clearance of impugned goods; that no mens rea has been proved against him for invoking Section 112 and 114AA of the Customs Act; and finally that he seeks support from judgments in the case of Sneha Sales Corporation [2000(121) E.L.T. 577 (S.C.) ], Sampat Raj Dugar, Taparia Overseas, K. Utamal to advance his cause.

(E) Appellant- Shri Rajinder Madhok - a Consultant against imposition of penalty: That the Appellant did not commit/omit that led to confiscation of impugned goods; that only importer can be penalized for rendering goods liable for confiscation; that he cannot be penalized for wrongdoings of importers in absence of mens rea on his behalf; that he tendered only his opinion in capacity of a consultant; that no positive evidence was adduced against him by the Department on the issue of abetment/collusion; and finally that no penalty can be imposed on Middle man/Facilitator/ Coordinator invoking Sections 112, 114A or 114AA.

10. Summary of arguments on behalf of the Revenue: The Departmental Representative (DR), at the outset, contended that this is a case wherein forgery/fraud has been perpetrated on revenue by the importer, its executive, clearing agents and some other persons with an intent to evade customs duty. The learned Departmental Representative impressed upon as follows :-

(i) It is contended that it is a fraud in law if a party makes a presentation, which he knows to be false, and injury ensues therefrom although the motive from which the representations proceeded may not have been bad. It is also well settled that misrepresentation itself amounts to fraud. A fraudulent misrepresentation is called deceit and consists in leading a man into damage by wilfully or recklessly causing him to believe and act on falsehood. Of course, innocent misrepresentation may give reason to claim relief against fraud.

(ii) An act of fraud on Revenue is always viewed seriously. "Fraud" and collusion vitiate even the most solemn proceedings in any civilized system of jurisprudence. It is a concept descriptive of human conduct either by letter or words, which includes the other person or authority to take a definite determinative stand as a response to the conduct of the former either by words or letter.

(iii) It has been held by Apex Court in the case of Commissioner of Customs, Kandla v. Essar Oil Ltd. - 2004 (172) E.L.T. 433 (S.C.) that by "fraud" is meant an intention to deceive; whether it is from any expectation of advantage to the party himself or from the ill-will towards the other is immaterial. The expression "fraud" involves two elements, deceit and injury to the deceived. Undue advantage obtained by the deceiver will almost always cause loss or detriment to the deceived. Similarly a "fraud" is an act of deliberate deception with the design of securing something by taking unfair advantage of another. It is a deception in order to gain by another’s loss. It is a cheating intended to get an advantage as held in S.P. Chengalvaraya Naidu v. Jagannath [1994 (1) SCC 1].

(iv) In a leading English case i.e. Derry and Ors. v. Peek (1886-90) All ER-1 what constitutes "fraud" was described thus : (All ER p. 22 B-C) "fraud" is proved when it is shown that a false representation has been made (i) knowingly, or (ii) without belief in its truth, or (iii) recklessly, carelessly whether it be true or false". This aspect of the matter has been considered by Apex Court in Roshan Deen v. Preeti Lal [(2002) 1 SCC 100], Ram Preeti Yadav v. U.P. Board of High School and Intermediate Education [(2003) 8 SCC 311], Ram Chandra Singh’s case (supra) and Ashok Leyland Ltd. v. State of T.N. and Another [(2004) 3 SCC 1] . Suppression of a material document would also amount to a fraud on the court, as held in Gowrishankar v. Joshi Amha Shankar Family Trust, [(1996) 3 SCC 310] and S.P. Chengalvaraya Naidu’s case (AIR 1994 SC 853). No judgment of a Court can be allowed to stand if it has been obtained by fraud. Fraud unravels everything and fraud vitiates all transactions known to the law of however high a degree of solemnity.

11. Thus it has been contended by learned Departmental Representative that all the appeals in this case merit dismissal in view of the proven fact that all the relevant persons/firms mis-declared the description and value of the goods with an intention to evade customs duty and to circumvent the provisions of import-export policy of India and therefore the impugned order-in-original does not deserve any interference. The learned Departmental Representative has made following submission on the individual role played by various persons/firms.

(A) On the Appellant- Importer

(i) Mis-declaration of description of goods: The goods covered by 2 live Bill of Entry were attempted to be cleared on the strength of forged invoices shown to be issued by M/s Wang Technologies Limited, whereas the two consignments were shipped by M/s Pax Technology Limited, Hong Kong; that mis-declaration about supplier of the goods was resorted to circumvent registration of import in Special Valuation Branch (SVB) and avoid verification to the effect whether the buyer and supplier were ‘related’ party, and if so, whether the relationship influenced the transaction value; that the impugned goods were Point of Sale (POS) Terminals/devices and required certification from BIS for their clearance and this fact was in the knowledge of the importer, however, to circumvent this requirement, the impugned goods in some of the Bills of entry were mis-declared as ‘Paper Rolls’, ‘Paper for printing in payment Debit/Credit Device’, Dummy and ‘D 180 Terminal (Part of Payment Debit/Credit Device)’; that during the examination of goods covered by live Bills of entry, they had also tried to deceive the investigating officers by purposefully stating that the two shipments containing D-180 Terminal did not have necessary software as well as GPRS and that those were not operatable on wi-fi/GPRS/Bluetooth, that D-180 Terminal could be connected via USB cable to Laptop/Desktop and hence neither NOC from WPC was required nor any ETA type approval certificate was required for the two consignments. It is a matter of record that when the goods were put to test by the investigating officers that bluetooth was installed in the goods and those goods were bluetooth enabled, then only the appellant-Importer accepted that the device D-180 was Bluetooth enabled, the import of which required NOC from WPC and ETA Type Approval Certificate. This fact establishes an attempt of wilful mis-declaration of description of goods and mens rea on behalf of appellants to evade duty and circumvent Foreign Trade Policy provisions applicable to impugned goods. It is also a matter of fact that even the Master Distribution Agreement mentioned ‘transfer prices offered by the Company to the Master Distributor for the main POS models. Inbuilt contactless is included on models where available’, despite this the appellant chose not to declare this fact and rather attempted to suppress the actual description for obvious reasons.

(ii) Undervaluation of goods: That the Master Distribution Agreement prescribed that the appellant-importer was required to pay an amount of USD 15 towards Transfer Price of Hardware (D 180) per unit plus USD 45 per unit on account of Licence Fee; that similarly in respect to terminals S-90, SP-30 and D 200 terminals, the importer was required to pay an amount of USD 39, USD 75 and USD 25 respectively towards Transfer Price of Hardware per unit plus USD 60 for S Series and USD 45 for D Series respectively on account of Licence Fee; that the director of the appellant firm categorically admitted that the Software Licence was an integral part of these devices without which POS machines could not be operated; that she had also agreed that she paid the Licence Fee to M/s PAX, Hongkong once the customer/bank injected the licence key into the device and that that the value of those devices was a total of the value of devices plus the value of software licence fee; that it was also admitted fact that the Software Licence was an integral part of the devices, without which the MPOS machines could not be operated; that according to Agreement the software was not present at the time of import of goods and the key was injected by the end customer/banks but the Appellant were paying the licence fee to M/s Pax Technology Ltd., Hongkong once the customer/bank injected the licence key into the device; the licence fee was required to be paid to the overseas supplier to have Euro Master Visa encryption so as to make the hardware under import operational and that the licence fee was required to be paid to the overseas supplier only and not to any other person or entity; that hence the payment of licence fee to M/s Pax Technology Ltd., Hongkong was an essential element of the hardware under import and also the condition of sale of the hardware as per Master Distribution Agreement and hence the element of licence fee paid or payable to the overseas supplier was required to be included in the assessable value of the import of hardware for the purpose of determination of true assessable value of the goods under import and payment of duty of Customs thereon in terms of provisions of Rule 10(1)(c) of the Customs Valuation (Determination of Price of Imported Goods) Rules, 2007 for the imports made by the Appellant-Importer.

(iii) Mis-classification of goods: That MPOS specially D-180 is undisputably a wireless Automatic Data Processing Machines (ADPM) which facilitate payments and hence the same merit classification under Chapter Heading No. 84713090; that even the catalogue of D180 MPOS produced during the argument mentions in the specifications that that machine incorporates, inter alia, Memory, Processor, Display, Keypad, Magnetic Card reader and Smart Card reader; that Memory and, Processor forms Central Processing Unit( CPU), Display forms the Output device and Keypad/Magnetic Card reader/Smart Card reader forms the input device and hence the Machine has the configuration of a full fledged ADPM; that the principle function of the device is automatic data processing and hence despite having some other alternative/complimentary functions like facilitating payments, the goods merit classification under Customs Tariff Heading 84713090 as ADPM in terms of Note 3 of Section XVI of Schedule I appended to Customs Tariff Act 1975; that the identical goods have been classified under Customs Tariff Heading 8471 holding the devices as Automatic Data Processing Machine in US Ruling NY E81686 dated 10.05.1999 an internet downloaded copy of which was submitted; that the said Ruling has persuasive value in view of the fact that India and USA are signatory to WTO and both countries follow HSN for Tariff classification.

(iv) Confiscation and Penalty: That the goods in question were Mobile Point of Sale Devices (MPOS), and the clearance of which was subject to production of Registration Certificate from the Bureau of Indian Standards (BIS) and Equipment Type Approval (ETA) from Wireless Planning & Coordination (WPC), which the Appellant-Importer neither submitted at the time of filing Bill of Entry, nor have applied to the same with the concerned Departments and did not possess the same at the time of Import. That as per evidences placed on record, it is proven that the Appellants were well aware about the mandatory requirements of WPC and BIS certification as early as in July, 2014 when one consignment covered under Bill of Entry No. 6221058 dated 24.07.2014 pertaining to M/s Pax Technologies Pvt. Ltd. was not allowed clearance by the Deputy Commissioner for want of WPC and SVB order; That rather than obtaining the mandatory statutory certification from WPC and BIS, the Appellants indulged themselves to seek clearance of consignments through unscrupulous persons, who not only forged the documents but also resorted to mis-declaration before Customs to secure clearance of the goods; Though the Appellants pleaded wrong supply of goods on behalf of supplier, they failed to provide any written communication from the supplier on this aspect and only argued that they went to China and gave verbal directions for the modifications to be made in the devices; that Shri Randhir Singh in his statements has categorically admitted that the Appellant - importer themselves handed over to him the documents for filing Bills of Entry Nos. 3851878 and 3851698, both dated 08.01.2016, in respect of which the invoices submitted were issued by M/s Wang Technologies Limited, whereas the fact remained that the said two live consignments were shipped by M/s Pax Technology Limited, Hong Kong, because, they knew that filing of the said Bills of Entry on the basis of invoices issued by M/s Pax Technology Limited, Hong Kong would have attracted special valuation provisions; that consignment covered under Bill of Entry No. 6221058 dated 24.07.2014 was also stopped clearance for want of WPC and SVB Order; That the Appellant-Importers were not in possession of any such ETA from WPC at the time of filing the said two Bills of Entry and hence the imports were in contravention of the provisions of EXIM Policy to this effect; that as provisioned under Para 2.2 of the Foreign Trade Policy, all imported goods were also be subject to domestic laws, acts, rules, orders, regulations, technical specifications, environmental and safety norms as applicable to domestically produced goods; that according to General Notes to the Import Policy, the import of Point of Sale devices were subject to BIS certification, however, the Appellant-importers did not have the mandatory BIS certification for the goods imported; that the BIS subsequently produced were not relevant for the goods; that their various acts of omission and commission rendered the impugned goods liable for confiscation under Sections 111(d) and 111(m) of the Customs Act, 1962 and they rendered themselves liable to penalty under Section 112(a)/114A of the Customs Act, 1962; that, though the Deputy Commissioner, Import Shed instructed them to produce the catalogue, clarification and evidence to prove that the product declared as Dummy devices were indeed so and not Point of Sale devices, the appellants brought the catalogue and informed the Deputy Commissioner, Import Shed that the goods were meant for exhibition purpose only and also gave an undertaking on Rs. 50 Indian Non-Judicial stamp paper duly notarized that the same would be re-exported within thirty days and a sample each of D-200 and SP-30 would be submitted for BIS & WPC for certification/ type approval, however, afterwards the clearance of this consignment covered under Bill of Entry No. 7817932 dated 26.12.2014 was secured by mis-representing the facts as during the course of investigation the Appellants did not submit anything to the effect that the goods cleared under Bill of Entry No. 7817932 dated 26.12.2014 had been re-exported or that BIS & WPC certification for the imported goods were obtained by them; that this way the Appellants also violated the undertaking executed by them; that the goods covered by many Bills of Entry were allowed clearance by the EDI System under RMS where the consignments were neither subjected to assessment nor any examination thereof was conducted by the Customs; that the Appellants had also rendered themselves liable to penalty under Section 114AA of the Customs Act, 1962 to the extent that they did not pay appropriate Customs duty and they knowingly and consciously made and used incorrect and fabricated invoices, declarations and other documents/records before the concerned customs authorities in order to secure the clearance of the impugned goods; that the Appellant Ms. Latha Priyadarshini failed to establish that she was unaware of the unlawful activities being carried out on her behest; that it is established that she was the architect of the mis-declaration of value as well as the description of the goods under import in as much as she in her statement dated 18.01.2016 categorically admitted that she and her mother-in-law were the two Directors of M/s Pax Technologies Pvt. Ltd. but she was the one who was managing the operations and all other activities of the company and her mother-in-law Ms. Dhanamma was a sleeping Director holding only 10% shares; that from the records, it is clearly evident that she had mis-led the investigations and to hoodwink her role in the whole conspiracy and hence she was the brain behind the conspiracy and therefore, was liable for penal action under Sections 112, 114A and 114AA of the Customs Act, 1962.

(B) Appellant- CHAs : It is mandated on the part of the CHAs to verify the genuineness of the importer, correctness of the documents on the basis of which clearances were sought and also to guide the importer about the statutory requirements especially certification from BIS and WPC; that they filed the Bills of Entry on the basis of documents handed over not by importer but by an unauthorised person Shri Randhir Singh; that they did not take the catalogue from the importer and filed the Bills of Entry on the basis of information provided by Shri Randhir Singh classifying the goods under wrong classification; In case of live Bills of Entry the Appellant-CHA stated that they received the documents from Shri Randhir Singh and filed the documents on the basis of invoice submitted by him and regarding the chapter heading 39269099 under which the goods had been classified in two live Bills of Entry, they stated that they had done it by mistake as they thought that the goods were plastic parts of the device; that in case of the two live Bill of Entry item description was declared as 'Paper for printing in payment Debit/Credit Device’and’D-180 MPOS Terminal (Part of payment Debit/Credit Device)' whereas the actual goods under import in these two consignments were complete D 180 Terminals; that they didn’t guide/advise the importer about the mandatory requirement for importation of the impugned goods of which name and description could have alerted them to seek more information for the purpose of classification, importability and duty incidence; that the documentary description of impugned goods itself suggested to be operable on GPRS, they could have asked the details/specification of the goods and in case of any difficulty, they had option to bring about the matter to the knowledge of department; they chose otherwise and secured clearance of the subject consignment without BIS and WPC certification; that they were supposed to be well aware about the statutory obligations required to be fulfilled for the imported goods; that in respect of some consignment the Appellant-CHA were well aware about the fact and had admitted during the investigations that the original invoice of the consignment showed that the supplier was M/s Pax Technology Ltd., Hongkong and buyer was M/s Pax Technologies Pvt. Ltd. whereas the Bills of Entry were filed against the revised invoice on the basis of High Sea Sale agreement to circumvent the related party issue in consultation with Shri Rajinder Madhok; that in respect of one consignment the CHA along with importer had undertaken before the Deputy Commissioner, Import Shed that the goods were not Dummy and were imported for exhibition purpose only, they further undertook that the impugned goods would be re-exported within 30 days and a sample of each of D-200 and SP-30 would be submitted for BIS & WPC Certification and on the basis of the undertaking/declaration made by them, goods under import in the Bill of Entry No. 7817932 dated 26.12.2014 were got cleared, however, they failed to produce any evidence to prove that the said goods got the required certification or that they were re-exported.; that in case of impugned Bill of Entry No. 3239991 dated 13.11.2015 for the goods declared as D-180 Terminal MPOS, the CHA filed the Bill of Entry on the basis of documents from Shri Kuldeep Singh, Director of M/s VSG Shipping and Logistics Pvt. Ltd.; that they filed Bill of Entry without going through the veracity of the documents and statutory requirement for importation of goods. Thus they acted upon the advice of Shri Kuldeep Singh (Who was working on the direction of Ms. Latha Priyadarshini) without applying their mind and mandatory obligation required for CHA/CB; that it was imperative on their part to guide the importer about the statutory obligation, however, instead of fulfilling the statutory certification for the goods handled by them, they secured clearance thereof; that they acted to help the importer to secure clearance of the impugned goods without statutory WPC and BIS certification for monetary benefits; that by their above-mentioned act of omission and commission, the Appellants-CHAs have rendered the impugned goods liable for confiscation under Sections 111(d) & (m) of the Customs Act, 1962 and thereby they have rendered themselves liable to penalty under Sections 112 and Section 114AA of the Customs Act, 1962; that all the Appellant-CHAs instead of handling the documents/goods/duty payment themselves have knowingly allowed unauthorized persons namely Shri Randhir Singh, Shri Sanjay Kataria, Shri Sushil Kumar Mishra and Shri Rajender alias Raju to deal with consignments for monetary benefit; that such being the fact, the case is squarely covered by the decision of Hon'ble Madras High Court in the case of K.V.Prabhakaran 2019 (365) E.L.T. 877 (Mad.) wherein the penalty imposed on CHA in similar circumstances was upheld. Further, DR placed reliance on the decision in Noble Agency v. Commissioner of Customs, Mumbai [2002 (142) E.L.T. 84 (Tri. -Mumbai)] wherein a Division Bench of the CEGAT, West Zonal Bench, and Mumbai has observed:-

"The CHA occupies a very important position in the Customs House. The Customs procedures are complicated. The importers have to deal with a multiplicity of agencies viz. carriers, custodians like BPT as well as the Customs. The importer would find it impossible to clear his goods through these agencies without wasting valuable energy and time. The CHA is supposed to safeguard the interests of both the importers and the Customs. A lot of trust is kept in CHA by the importers/exporters as well as by the Government Agencies. To ensure appropriate discharge of such trust, the relevant regulations are framed. Regulation 14 of the CHA Licensing Regulations lists out obligations of the CHA. Any contravention of such obligations even without intent would be sufficient to invite upon the CHA the punishment listed in the Regulations...."

It would be pertinent to mention that the aforesaid observations of the CEGAT, West Zonal Bench, Mumbai was approved by Hon’ble Apex Court in the case of K.M. Ganatra & Co [2016(332) E.L.T. 15 (S.C.)] and it was held that misconduct on behalf of CHA had to be viewed seriously.

(C) Appellant- Individual: that the Appellant Shri Sushil Kumar Mishra actively participated with Shri Sanjay kataria and Shri Rajender alias Raju in forging/faking of import documents for monetary gain; that though he pleaded that he himself was not involved in forging/faking documents, he admittedly played active role in the clearance of goods of M/s Pax in co-ordination with different people viz. Sanjay Kataria, Rajender alias Raju or Randhir and also one
Shri Sandeep for pecuniary gains; that he not only associated himself in creation of forged invoices and other documents for the erroneous import of the impugned goods on the behest of the director of the import firm, but also personally concerned himself in the clearance of the said goods; that the Appellants’ working partner Shri Rajinder admitted of having generated the forged copies of invoices where he not only lowered the value of the goods under import but also changed the description of the goods in as much as ‘Paper Rolls’ were added as description in Bills of Entry No. 3526607 dated 09.12.2015, 3346966 dated 23.11.2015, 3141261 dated 03.11.2015, 2763917 dated 30.09.2015, 2121203 dated 03.08.2015 and 2094937 dated 31.07.2015, with an intention that the EDI System would facilitate clearance of the consignments under RMS, where no assessment or examination is generally required by Customs; that the Appellant was aware that even though lesser duty was paid to be paid/and to deposited with the Department, he with his accomplice-partners charged normal duty amount from the importer by creating forged documents and the extra money earned was distributed by the three - the Appellant, Shri Sanjay Kataria and Shri Rajender alias Raju; that he intentionally and maliciously associated himself with the impugned goods, which he knew were liable for confiscation under Section 111 of the Customs Act, 1962; that he was very much aware about the act of forging the invoices and other documents. He aggressively assisted the director of import firm to secure clearance of the impugned goods dodging inspection/examination of the said consignments by the Department. There are enough evidences to establish that the Appellant was intentionally and purposely associated himself with the impugned goods in the greed of financial benefits, which he knew were liable for confiscation under Section 111 of the Customs Act, 1962; that by his above-mentioned act of omission and commission, the Appellant have rendered the impugned goods liable for confiscation under Sections 111(d) & (m) of the Customs Act, 1962 and also rendered himself liable to penalty under Sections 112 and Section 114AA of the Customs Act, 1962.

(D) Appellant- Freight Forwarder: That the Appellant Shri Kuldeep Singh was a freight forwarder and he took the work related to consignment covered under Bill of Entry No. 3239991 dated 13.11.2015 on turnkey basis and assigned the work of the customs clearance to the CHA firm M/s Rubal Logistics on the basis of the documents provided by the appellant - importer; that the Appellant forwarded all the documents related to the import of the goods viz. D 180 Terminals to the CHA firm M/s Rubal Logistic Pvt. Ltd. as per the direction of Ms. Latha without going through the veracity and genuineness of the import documents on the basis of which clearance was sought; that the said documents were sent through e-mail to the said firm as received from Ms. Latha; that he came across two invoices bearing same reference ‘IN15-10857 dated 04.11.2015’ and duplicacy of the invoice was very much evident, he did not bring this fact to the notice of the customs authorities; that not only he forwarded the revised invoice (wherein the name of foreign supplier was manipulated as M/s Wang Technology to circumvent SVB investigation) to the CHA firm for clearance of goods, but he also toed the line of unscrupulous importer that the previous invoice (which mentioned correct name of foreign supplier M/s Pax Technology, Hongkong) was sent by mistake and thus, the Appellant played the role of facilitator between the importing firm and the CHA firm M/s Rubal Logistics Pvt. Ltd. and secured clearance of the goods which were grossly undervalued, mis-declared to its description and circumvented the mandatory certification from BIS and WPC; that by his above-mentioned act of omission and commission, Appellant Shri Kuldeep Singh rendered the impugned goods liable for confiscation under Sections 111(d) & (m) of the Customs Act, 1962 and rendered himself liable to penalty under Sections 112 and Section 114AA of the Customs Act, 1962.

(E) Appellant- Consultant: That the Appellant Shri Rajinder Madhok is a consultant by his experience in the field and he advises the importer/exporter on the issue of related party transaction and SVB matters; that he facilitated the clearance of goods imported vide Bill of Entry No. 7817932 dated 26.12.2014 wherein the goods were mis-declared as ‘dummy units’. He admitted that he guided Ms. Latha Priyadarshini to circumvent the issue of ‘related party’ transactions and SVB registration by suggesting her to show imports on High Sea Sale basis and as he had large cliental, he offered to arrange High Sea Sale of the aforesaid goods; that the importer had agreed to pay Rs. 34,000/- for his services in respect of advising her on executing a High Sea Sale agreement with an Indian Firm, however, Ms. Latha did not pay the said amount till date because she approached Shri Sanjay Kataria for clearance of the impugned goods imported by the said Bill of Entry. It has been established categorically that Appellant played a vital role by advising Ms. Latha Priyadarshini to circumvent related party transaction valuation of the impugned goods imported vide Bill of Entry No. 7817932 dated 26.12.2014. The consignment was thus mis-declared to its value, and the requirement BIS and WPC certification. He used his expertise to circumvent the provisions related to assessment and clearance of imported goods; that by his above-mentioned act of omission and commission, the Appellant rendered the impugned goods liable for confiscation under Sections 111(d) & (m) of the Customs Act, 1962 and rendered himself liable to penalty under Section 112 and Section 114AA of the Customs Act, 1962.

12. We have considered rival submissions in detail as well as the record of the appeal. It is a matter of record that the appellant namely M/s Pax Technologies Pvt. Ltd. has imported consignments of Mobile Point of Sale (MPOS) Devices under various Bills of entry, the detail of 12 Bills of Entries are given below :-

Apart from these 12 Bills of entry the appellant has imported two more consignments covered by Bill of Entry No. 3851878 dated 8 January 2016 and Bill of Entry No. 3851698 also dated 08 January 2016.

13. It is also a matter of record that two Bills of Entry both dated 8 January 2016 are live Bills of Entry which are pending for clearance. It is an admitted fact that M/s Pax Technologies Pvt. Ltd. appellant - importer has been appointed sole distributors of MPOS (Mobile Point of Sale) devices and POS (Point of Sale) devices by Pax Technology Ltd., Hongkong in India. Ms. Latha Priyadarshini one of the appellant in these appeals, is an active director of M/s Pax Technologies India and looks after the entire work of importation, marketing of the imported products, etc. It has come out very categorically from the investigations conducted by the Department that Ms. Latha Priyadarshini was fully aware about the nature of the goods being imported by her in the name of her company. She was also well aware as to how much was the value of the hardware of the machine and how much was the value of the software required for the purpose of successful operation and functioning of these machines. She was also aware that the type of the equipments imported by their company required ETA (Equipment Type Approval) from Wireless Planning and Coordination Wing of Ministry of Communication and Information Technology’s as per the prevailing Import Export Policy. These machines/equipments also needed approval and registration from Bureau of Indian Standards (BIS). The appellant namely Ms. Latha Priyadarshini was also aware that since the imports are being made from their related company based in Hongkong, the imports needed registration/clearance from Special Valuation Branch of Customs Department for their legitimate importation. Ms. Latha Priyadarshini with the help of certain other persons made plan to circumvent the provisions of Import Export Policy requirements as well as scrutiny from Special Valuation Branch of the Customs by resorting to mis-declaration of the import consignment of MPOS/POS in connivance of the various persons. These persons are also appellant before us in this matter. We have taken note of the fact that Shri Rajinder Madhok in his statement has categorically mentioned that Ms. Latha Priyadarshini alongwith Shri Sanjeev Sharma has met him and made certain enquiries with regard to formalities pertaining to Special Valuation Branch and in the discussion she has also asked as to how the provisions of Special Valuation Branch can be by-passed. Thereafter with connivance of several other persons she has mis-declared the basic details of the import consignments including the description of the import consignments.

14. A glance at the table mentioned in the preceding para No. 11 reveals that the MPOS machines were mis-declared as paper rolls/bar code reader and in some of the Bills of Entry the description of import consignment has been given as “S-90 model and paper with printing and payment debit/credit device”. We find that a Master Distributor Agreement has been signed between M/s Pax Technologies, Hongkong and M/s Pax Technologies, India which makes the Indian arm a sole master distributor of Hongkong based companies products namely various models of ’Mobile Point of Sale/Point of Sale devices’. The master distributor agreement has an Appendix I which provides the transfer prices of various models of MPOS alongwith the prices of software, which is essential component for functioning of the MPOS devices. When the prices as given in the Appendix A to the master distributor agreement are compared with the declared import prices of the import consignments, we find that the declared prices of imported consignments of the various models of MPOS/POS have drastically been mis-declared. The only defence which has been taken by the appellant - importer and its director Ms. Latha Priyadarshini is that they have been cheated by various Customs House Agents and for which a First Information Report (FIR) has been lodged by the importing company in a Police Station. We do not find any leg to this defence as it has come out very categorically that she was fully aware about the statutory requirements of the Customs Act, Import Export Policy for legitimate import of MPOS consignments as well as the price structure (various models of the MPOS/POS). She was aware about the correct prices of MPOS/POS imported by her and her company as the agreement of distribution between the company and the foreign supplier has been signed by her. We find that the appellant - importer has given varied description for the import item namely Mobile Point of Sale (MPOS)/Point of Sale (POS). The descriptions of the import goods which we find in the Bills of Entry are actually in utter disregard to the provisions of Customs Act and indicate that the import consignments were being described to the whim and fancy as well as convenience of the appellant - importer, its active Director and clearing agents. It can be seen from the table given in the preceding para that in some of the Bills of Entry the consignment has been described as "S-90 GPRS + ID BAR CODE TERMINAL" classified under 84709010 of the Customs Tariff Act, 1975; in two Bills of Entry the consignment has been described as D-200 Terminal (Mobile payment terminal - Dummy sample) classified under Customs Tariff Heading 90230050; in one Bills of Entry No. 2094937 dated 31/07/2015 goods have been described only as "S-90" and classified under Customs Tariff Heading 48237090 (which pertains to articles of paper). In the other Bills of Entry also goods have similarly been mis-declared as "paper for printing in payment debit/credit device, paper rolls, parts of plastic (the description given in the live Bills of Entry).

15. The appellant - importer and its Executive Director Ms. Latha Priyadarshini cannot pretend ignorance of such a blatant wrong description of the import consignments of MPOS/POS. We find that the consignments of MPOS were not described correctly even in a single Bill of Entry filed by this importer. Of course the wrong description was adopted as a modus operandi to by-pass the provisions of the Customs Act, 1962 read with import-export policy of relevant time which required that consignment of MPOS/POS a No Objection Certificate in the form of ETA (Equipment Type Approval) from the WPC Wing of Department of Telecommunication and registration with Bureau of Indian Standards (BIS) and above all to evade customs duty.

16. Now, we undertake to analyze the findings given in the impugned order-in-original regarding mis-classification of import consignment under the Customs Tariff Act 1975 with an intend to evade the customs duty. We find that the import consignments of MPOS/POS have been classified as follows:

In 3 Bills of Entry having No. 5994463 dated 02/07/2014, 5994464 dated 04/07/2014 and 6221058 dated 24/07/2014, the import consignments of MPOS have been described and classified as follows:

"S-90 GPRS + ID BAR CODE TERMINAL CTH 84709010" We find that Customs Tariff Heading 8470 primarily covers goods such as calculating machines and pocket size data recording device, cash registers etc., while the classification of the subject MPOS machines have been confirmed by the Adjudicating Authority under Customs Tariff Heading 84713090. The Customs Tariff Heading 8471 primarily covers the products such as "Portable Automatic Data processing machines, weighing not more than 10 kg, consisting of at least a central processing unit, a keyboard and display". The impugned goods namely MPOS are admittedly Automatic Data processing machines which facilitate payments. We have perused the catalogue of D-180 Model of MPOS and find that it had Memory, CPU, display, keypad, magnetic card reader and smart card reader. It is a matter of fact that the device has a Central Processing Unit (CPU), display serum as an output device and keypad/card reader constitute as input device, hence we can safely conclude that the device is a full fledged ADPM (Automatic Data Processing Machine). Thus, we hold that the import consignments of MPOS/POS merit classification under Customs Tariff Heading 84713090. We also find that US Ruling NY3 81686 dated 10/05/1999, a downloaded copy of which was placed on record by the Departmental Representative, also supports classification of subject goods under Chapter Heading 84713090.

17. We find that the consignments of MPOS/POS in the other Bills of Entry had been mis-classified as follows:

(i) In two Bills of Entry Customs Tariff Heading 90230090 which pertains to instruments; apparatus and Models etc. for demonstrational purpose;

(ii) In the six Bills of Entry under Customs Tariff Heading 48237090 which pertains to "other paper, paper board cellulose wadding etc."

18. We find that the appellant - importer and its Executive Director Ms. Latha Priyadarshini cannot pretend ignorance of such a blatant wrong description of the import consignments of MPOS/POS. We find that the consignments of MPOS were not described correctly even in a single Bill of Entry filed by this importer. Of course the wrong description was adopted as a modus operandi to by-pass the provisions of the Customs Act, 1962 read with import-export policy of relevant time which required that consignment of MPOS/POS a No Objection Certificate in the form of ETA (Equipment Type Approval) from the WPC Wing of Department of Telecommunication and registration with Bureau of Indian Standards (BIS) and above all to evade customs duty.
Other live Bills of Entry have been classified under Customs Tariff Heading 39269099 which pertains to "other articles of plastic".

Thus, we find that the importer/appellant and its Executive Director Ms. Latha Priyadarshini were mis-classifying MPOS/POS consignments in utter disregard to the provisions of Customs Tariff Act and at their own free will and thus they have certainly resorted to mis-declaration and mis-classification of the import consignments with an intent to evade duty and to avoid compliance of other allied Acts as mentioned in preceding paras and thereby making all the import consignments liable for confiscation on this count under Section 111 of the Customs Act, 1962.

With regard to the valuation of the import consignments of MPOS/POS, the per unit price declared under various Bills of Entry have varied between U.S. $ 97 per unit to as low as U.S. $ 1.45 per unit for D-180 Model of MPOS. It has been established by the investigations that a 'Master Distribution Agreement' has been signed by the appellant - importer and its Executive Director Ms. Latha Priyadarshini with Pax Technology Ltd. Hongkong on 1 November 2014. Some of the relevant paras of agreement read as follow:

"Appendix A shows current transfer prices agreed between the company and the master distributor of the company main products. The transfer prices may change with time in line with specific business deals or due to situation of the competitive nature. The commission due to the master distributor is defined as the % specified in Appendix A, calculated on the difference between the price paid to the company by the customers and the transfer price applied by the company to the master distributor."

On perusal of Appendix A of the master distributor agreement it reflects that the price of hardware of various models of the MPOS and POS have been provided by the Hongkong based company and it has very specially been provided that apart from the hardware price the licence fee for software for D series equipments of MPOS will be U.S. $ 45 per unit, for S series the licence fee was fixed at U.S. $ 60 per unit and for R series it was fixed at U.S. $ 40 per unit. This very fact indicates that the importing firm and its Executive Director were fully aware about the import value of the imported equipments. However, in a blatant violation of the customs provisions and with sole motive of evading customs duty they chose to mis-declare the import price of the consignment of MPOS which sometimes was as low as U.S. $ 0.25 per unit. We are in agreement with the finding in the impugned order-in-original that since the import prices declared by the importer are not the actual transaction value of the import consignments and the value declared in the Bills of Entry was on the basis of forged/fake invoices, the same needed to be rejected as per the provisions of Rule 12 readwith Rule 4 of the Customs Valuation (Determination of Value of Imported Goods) Rules, 2007 and readwith Section 14 of the Customs Act, 1962. It is also an admitted fact that the Mobile Point of Sale (MPOS) device and Point of Sale (POS) device imported by the importer - appellant needed a certification from the Bureau of Indian Standards. They also needed a No Objection Certificate from the WP&C Wing of Department of Tele-communication for their legitimate importation. These requirements have been circumvented by the importing company and its Executive Director by hatching a conspiracy with various other persons and therefore have violated the provisions of Customs Act, 1962 as well as provisions of Import Export Policy prevalent at the relevant time. The arguments advanced by Ms. Latha Priyadarshini and the company are not acceptable in the facts and circumstances as well as legally as per the provision of Section 46 of the Customs Act, 1962 of sub-Section (iv) the importer presenting the Bill of Entry is required to subscribe to a declaration as to the truth and contents of Bills of Entry. Since the declarations made by the importer - appellant and its director have been found grossly mis-declared on the counts of description, classification and value of the consignments. Ms. Latha Priyadarshini in her statement dated 19/01/2016 and other statement has admitted the facts of mis-declaration.

Thus, we do not find any illegality in the conclusions reached in the impugned order-in-original regarding confiscation of the import consignments, confiscation of customs duty and with regard to imposition of penalty under various Sections of the Customs Act on the appellant importer and its Director Mrs. Latha Priyadarshini.
22. Coming to the role of various Customs House Clearing Agents, we find it appropriate to mention before analyzing the role of individual CHA firms and persons, that every Customs House Agent plays a crucial role in ensuring compliance of provisions of Customs Act as well as various other allied laws of the country with regard to import/export of goods. They are also required to advice and assist the importers and exporters so that correct compliance of the provisions of statutes as well as correct payment of customs duty is ensured. In the present case, we find that the customs house agents (clearing agents) have not done their work in the spirit in which they have been appointed to work as the Customs House Agents. We find that appellants M/s Chinta Haran Ojha - Customs House Agent and Shri Rakesh Kumar - G Card Holder of same firm have filed two Bills of Entries having No. 5994463 and 5994464 both dated 2 July 2014 and Bill of Entry No. 6221058 dated 24/07/2014 where the consignments of Mobile Point of Sale (MPOS) equipments of S-90 model have been mis-declared as GPRS + ID Bard Code Terminal. We also find that the consignment have also been mis-classified (as discussed in preceding para) and by resorting to mis-declaration and mis-classification of impugned goods, the provision pertaining registration and certification requirements from the Bureau of Indian Standards as well as the ETA from the WPC Wing of Department of Telecommunication have been bye-passed. We find that it is the duty of the Customs House Agents that wherever it is found that the description given in the invoice does not explain and facilitate the correct classification of the import consignment, Custom House Agent should ask for the product catalogue/treatment literature for reaching at the right classification of the import goods and also to ensure the compliance of provisions of other allied statutes such as Import Export Policy, Bureau of Indian Standards Act etc. We find a complacency on the part of the CHA to have made classification of the import consignment without getting the veracity of the nature of the import goods verified from the technical literature etc. and to resort to a classification which resulted in evasion of the customs duty and violation of other provisions regarding compliance of Bureau of Indian Standards and WPC Wing of the Department of tele-communication as was the requirement under Import Export Policy and therefore we agree with the findings of the Adjudicating Authority with regard to their role in rendering the import goods liable for confiscation and thereby attracting the penal provisions of Section 112 and Section 114AA of the Customs Act, 1962.

23. With regard to the appellant Shri Rajesh Kumar Maikhuri - Managing Director of M/s R.U. Imports Exports Pvt. Ltd. and M/s R.U. Imports Exports Pvt. Ltd., a Customs House Agent (CB firm), it is a matter of record that they have filed one Bill of Entry No. 7817932 dated 26 December 2014 wherein the description of the goods was given as D-200 Terminal (Mobile payment terminal dummy), sample and SP-30 terminal (Mobile payment terminal dummy). The classification of the goods have been done under Chapter 902300 which covers instruments, apparatus and model designated for demonstration purposes or exhibition, education purpose and unsuitable for its other uses. It is matter of record that during course of examination of subject consignment, the goods were found as not dummy or samples but the same were fully functional MPOS. It is therefore clear that goods were classified by Shri Maikhuri and the importing firm without going into detail about their true nature by referring to the relevant catalogue or product literature and without any documentary evidences. The CHA classified the goods as of dummy nature for exhibition/demonstration purpose to evade customs duty and other provisions of import-export policy. It has also come out from the investigations that the CHA firm and its Director have not interacted with the importer while taking the work of clearance work of the import consignment but all the documents such as invoice, airway bill etc. were taken from Shri Rajinder Madhok and thus have not shown due diligence in undertaking the work of clearance and have become part of the conspiracy to get the MPOS devices cleared without following the due requirements of Customs Act and Import-export policy. The investigation has also revealed that the clearing agent has filed the bill of entry showing the name of supplier as M/s VXCESS Solutions on the basis of some high-sea sale agreement though the invoice covering the import consignment was from M/s Pax Technology Ltd., Hongkong to M/s Pax Technology Pvt. Ltd., India and no local invoice was presented to him after entering into the high-sea sale agreement between Pax Technologies Pvt. Ltd., India and M/s VXCESS Solutions. It has also emerged that when certain objections were raised by the customs officer at the time of clearance of the goods, the importer - appellant has given an undertaking to export back the goods after demonstration however the undertaking was never honoured and CHA was fully aware that the undertaking was being given only to get the clearance of the import consignment these omissions and commissions on the part of the CHA and its Director convince us that no due diligence has been exercised while classifying the goods and entering other details at the time of the import of the consignment. In view of these facts, we agree with the findings of the Original Adjudicating Authority and refrain from interfering with the same.

24. Coming to the appeals filed by the appellant Shri Kishan Singh Dhapa, Shri Rajender Prasad and M/s Exim Cargo Services - Customs House Agent (Customs broker), the records indicate that Shri Kishan Singh Dhapa is working as a Proprietor of CHA firm namely M/s Exim Cargo Services having F Card No. 169/96 issued by the Customs House and Shri Rajender Prasad has been working as a G Card Holder for this CHA firm namely M/s Exim Cargo Services. The CHA firm and its Executive namely Shri Kishan Singh Dhapa and Shri Rajender Prasad has filed following 4 Bills of Entries for clearance of MPOS on behalf of the main appellant namely M/s Pax Technologies Pvt. Ltd. The details of the description of the import consignment, their classification and per unit price, as declared in the respective Bills of Entries are given here below:-

25. A glance at the details given above, makes a revelation of the extent of the mis-declaration which have been resorted to by the importer and its clearing agent M/s Exim Cargo. We are at pains to note that a sophisticated electronic equipments such as Mobile Point of Sale (MPOS) are being described only as S-90, paper rolls, D-180 (parts of payment debit/credit device), bar code reader etc. and has been classified under Customs Tariff Heading 48237090 which pertains to “other paper/paper board” cellulose wedding and webs of cellulose fibers, cut to size for sale, other articles of paper pulp, paper, paper board etc.” It appears from the description given for clearance of consignment of the MPOS equipments declaring them as the products of the paper by the importer, its Executive Director, and especially the clearing agent namely M/s Exim Cargo Services and its Executive Shri Kishan Singh Dhapa and Shri Rajender Prasad that they have blatantly made mockery of customs provisions. As stated in the preceding paras
that it is a sacred duty of clearing agent to ensure compliance of the provisions of customs law and advice the importer for correct compliance of Customs Act as well as other Allied Acts and their provisions while undertaking clearance of the import cargo. However here we find that in utter disregard to the provisions of the relevant statues the description, classification thereof and valuation has been done as per their own whims and fancies. For example for the Bill of Entry No. 209437 dated 31 July 2015, the only description of the goods in the Bill of Entry has been given as S-90 classifying the same under Chapter sub-Heading 48237090 of the Customs Tariff Act, 1986. It is beyond our imagination that any prudent person can decide the classification of an imported item only on the description as "S-90". This clearly indicates that the clearing firm and its proprietor Shri Kishan Singh Dhapa and G Card Holder Shri Rajender Prasad have acted with ulterior motives and have misclassified the sophisticated electronic equipments, such as, MPOS under the product classification of the paper and paper products and the value of such sophisticated items has surprisingly been mis-declared as low as U.S. $ 0.25 per unit under Bill of Entry No. 2121203 dated 03/08/2015. This could not have been done without CHA firms and its workers being part of a conspiracy to evade the customs duty but also to circumvent the provisions of the Export Import Policy which included the BIS and WP&C certification.

26. We are in full agreement with the findings of the Original Adjudicating Authority and, therefore, uphold the imposition of penalty under various sections of the Customs Act on CHA firm M/s Exim Cargo services, Shri Kishan Singh Dhapa and Rajindra Prasad. We also recommend to the Commissioner of Customs (Licencing Authority) to take appropriate action against all the three above-mentioned appellants under the Customs Broker Licence Regulations.

27. Coming to the appellants Shri Rajiv Kumar Sharma, Shri Hari Kishan, Shri Kamal Nath Roy and M/s Rubal Logistics Pvt. Ltd. - Customs House Agent (Customs broker), it is a matter of record that M/s Rubal Logistics Pvt. Ltd. has filed a Bill of Entry No. 3239991 dated 13 November 2015 wherein the description of the goods has been declared as D-180 (D-180 pinpad is used to connect with the laptop to do the transaction via USB port only). The value of the goods has been declared as U.S. $ 15 per unit. The investigations revealed that under the Bill of Entry No. 3239991 dated 13 November 2015 a consignment of D-180 MPOS was imported by the importer - appellant and the description of the same has been mis-declared as 'pinpad used to connect with the laptop' via USB port and the transaction value has also been suppressed to a large extent. Here also, we find that the clearing agent had not taken any pain in verifying the true nature of the import item by asking for any catalogue or technical literature. The goods have been mis-classified under Chapter 84702900 in utter disregard to the provisions of the Customs Tariff Act. In the clearance of this particular consignment we find that the clearing agent never interacted directly with the importer, but accepted the import document from one freight forwarder namely Shri Kuldeep Singh of M/s VSG Shipping and Logistics Pvt. Ltd. Here also we find that the clearing agent and his executives/workers, namely G Card Holder has not bothered to see the catalogue of the imported goods for reaching at the correct classification and to determine whether the requirement of BIS and WPC were needed or not. They have just gone and filed the Bill of Entry on the basis of documents provided by Shri Kuldeep Singh which had resulted in mis-declaring, misclassifying the description and value and thereby becoming instrumental in evasion of customs duty and in circumventing the provisions of the Import Export Policy with regard to requirement of the BIS and WPC certification. We find that the order-in-original has brought out their role very specifically and the conclusion reached by the Adjudicating Authority does not suffer from illegality. Therefore, it is not necessary to interfere with the findings of the Authority.

28. Now, coming to the appellant namely Shri Kamal Kumar Sukhramani and M/s Prompt Air & Sea Cargo Pvt. Ltd. a Customs House Agent (Customs broker), we find that following two Bills of Entries have been filed by appellant M/s Prompt Air & Sea Cargo Pvt. Ltd. :-

<thead>
<tr>
<th>S. No.</th>
<th>B/E No.</th>
<th>B/E Date</th>
<th>% of exam prescribed</th>

<th>Name of CHA/ CB (M/s)</th>

29. A perusal of the above-mentioned details makes an interesting revelation that the D-180 Model of Mobile Point of Sale (MPOS) equipment has been classified as a product of paper by classifying the same under sub-heading 48237090 of the Customs Tariff Act and declaring the value as U.S. $ 1.5 per unit and U.S. $ 1.45 per unit. We are of the opinion that this has been done deliberately for ulterior motives. The facts here are also same that the Customs House Agent and its Executive Shri Kamal Kumar Sukhramani had filed the Bills of Entry without referring to the necessary product catalogue and technical literature. It has also been admitted by Shri Kamal Kumar Sukhramani, a P Card Holder of Customs Clearing firm M/s Prompt Air & Sea Cargo Pvt. Ltd., in his statement dated 26 February 2016 that he has not referred to any catalogue or produced literature and he never met the importer and filed the Bill of Entry on the basis of documents handed over to him by Shri Randhir Singh. We find that the classification and valuation of the products have been mis-declared blatantly by the importer in connivance with the CHA firm namely M/s Prompt Air & Sea Cargo Pvt. Ltd. and its Executive Shri Kamal Kumar Sukhramani. It pains to note that sophisticated electronic goods namely MPOS equipment have been declared as a product of paper and the value declared is low as U.S. $ 1.5 per unit with utter disregard to the provisions of the Customs law. We are not impressed with the arguments advanced for taking a lenient view in this matter. We feel that CHA and its executive Shri K.K. Sukhramani knowingly have connived with the importer and its Director for resorting to such mis-declaration of description and value of the import consignments of MPOS and have thus evaded customs duty and violated the provisions of Allied Acts. Here also, we are in agreement with the findings of the learned Adjudicating Authority and refrain from interfering with the same.

30. Now coming to appeals filed by Shri Rajinder Madhok - Consultant, Shri Kuldeep Singh and Shri Sushil Kumar Mishra, it is an admitted fact that Shri Rajinder Madhok worked as a consultant on the issues pertaining to special valuation branch. He was fully aware that the goods were being imported by the importer - appellant from their related firm based in Hongkong and only for the monetary gains he had advised Ms. Latha Priyadarshini as to how to circumvent the provisions of Customs and Allied Acts with regard to Bill of Entry No. 7817932 dated 26/12/2014. He played a crucial role in mis-declaring the goods as the dummy equipments just to by-pass the provisions of certification required under BIS and WPC. Thus here also, we do not find any legal infirmity in the findings of the Adjudicating Authority. So far as the appellant Shri Kuldeep Singh Director of M/s VSG Shipping and Logistics Pvt. Ltd. with regard to Bill of Entry No. 3239991 dated 13 November 2015, he arranged clearance of the consignment through CHA M/s Rubal Logistics Pvt. Ltd. and Shri Rajeev Sharma where he was instrumental in providing two sets of invoices for the same consignment to the clearing agent and ensured the clearances of the consignment on behalf of importer - appellant by mis-declaring the value and without submitting the certification from BIS and
31. So far as the role of Shri Sushil Kumar Mishra is concerned, it is an admitted fact that he associated himself in creation of forged documents, such as, invoices etc. and was involved in arranging the clearance of the goods on the basis of the mis-declared facts. Shri Sushil Kumar Mishra in his statement dated 16 January 2016 has admitted that he was fully aware about lot of manipulations with regard to clearance of consignment of M/s Pax Technologies as generally the customs clearance agency charges are in the range of 2000 to 2500 per consignment, however, in case of M/s Pax Technology an amount of Rs. 60,000/- to Rs. 70,000/- was being paid to them. He was working in connivance with Shri Sanjay Kataria and one Shri Raju and all of them were forging invoice and other documents. The investigations have brought out the categorical role played by Shri Sushil Kumar Mishra that he was aware and participated in mis-declaration of description as well as the value of import consignment for and on behalf of the importer - appellant. We do not find any ground to take a lenient view so far as imposition of penalty on him under the provisions of Customs Act is concerned.

32. We have also considered the case laws cited by learned Counsels. We find that the case laws relied by the appellants may be having some relevance in normal cases of mis-declaration where either the importer has made an inadvertent mistake in providing description and classification of the product under import or where the clearing agent in such mis-declarations in not found involved. In the facts and circumstances of the case at hand, as it has come out in the preceding paras, that the importer - appellant and various clearing agent - appellants and persons were consciously part of the entire conspiracy of willful mis-declarations of the import consignments. These decisions would not help the appellant.

33. In view of the entire above discussions, we also find it appropriate to ask the Chief Commissioner of Customs to enquire about the systemic failure with regard to clearances of Mobile Point of Sale equipments under various Bills of Entry, as mentioned in the preceding paras. We find that the clearing agents were aware as to the description that was to be given to a consignment to avoid examination of the cargo from the Risk Management Module (RMS). We are also surprised to note that in some of the Bills of Entry, the Risk Management Module (RMS) gave examination of the package of the cargo, but still in these cases also the consignment were cleared in spite of the huge mis-declaration with regard to its description, classification as well as the value of imported items. This indicate that there exist a deep malaise in the system of examination and clearance of the cargo. We advice the Chief Commissioner to revisit the standard operating procedure in this regard to ensure that the system is enabled to take care of the instances where a blatant mis-declaration is avoided by the importers to bye-pass the Risk Management Module. We also direct the Chief Commissioner of Customs to consider whether it should be necessary to cause a vigilance enquiry to determine how the consignments were cleared when there were so many mis-declaration in description as well as classification of the imported Mobile Point of Sale equipments.

34. In view of the entire above discussions, there is no infirmity in the order-in-original. Accordingly, all the appeals are dismissed.

[COURT NO. IV]
S/Shri Ashok Jindal, Member (J) and C.L. Mahar, Member (T)

INGRAM MICRO INDIA P. LTD.

Versus
C.C., AIR CARGO COMPLEX (I), NEW DELHI

REPRESENTED BY : Shri Amit Jain, Advocate, for the Appellant.
Shri Sunil Kumar, Authorized Representative (DR), for the Respondent.

[Order per : C.L. Mahar, Member (T)]. - Briefly stated facts are that the appellant had filed a Bill of Entry No. 4780276, dated 4-4-2016 in the Customs, Air Cargo (Imports), New Delhi for clearance of wireless fitness watch/wireless fitness tracker having declared as Fitbit Alta having model number FB-406, ETA-730/2015/ERLO through their Customs broker M/s. Express Global Logistics Private Limited. The goods were of Chinese origin and imported from M/s. Fitbit International Limited, China. As the goods were wireless in nature, the importer was asked to produce the Equipment Type Approval (ETA) certificates in terms of Notification No. GSR. 45(E), dated 28-1-2005 of WPC Wing, Department of Telecom, Ministry of Communications and Information Technology as this product operates in the licence free band width ranges between 2400-2483.5 MHz. The importer submitted ETA No. 730/ERLO, dated 1-12-2015 purportedly issued by Joint Wireless Advisor to the Government of India, Head of Office, Department of Telecommunications, Regional Licensing Office (East), Kolkata. It was observed that ETA certificate was issued for the goods manufactured in USA whereas the imported goods were manufactured in China. Suspecting that the goods were not genuine, investigations were initiated by SIIB against the importer. During the course of proceedings, it was noticed that 12 ETA were for the import of Fitbit fitness tracker/smart fitness watch/body motion pattern measuring tracker of different models under 30 bills of entry. In a search conducted at the Delhi warehouse of the importer on 20-7-2016, 3294 pieces of the subject goods were seized all of which were manufactured in China whereas the ETAs were for the USA manufacture. In a clarification issued to the importer, by the Department of Telecommunications, New Delhi. It was made clear that if the manufacturer and the supplier were different, fresh ETA was required to be issued. Further, in an enquiry made from the Department of Telecommunication, Regional Licensing Office (East), New Delhi for verification of the ETA produced by the importer for bill of Entry Number 4780276, dated 4-4-2016, they vide their letter dated 18-5-2016 informed that the said ETA was not issued from their office. Accordingly, 2250 pieces of the goods covered in the bill of Entry Number 4780276, dated 4-4-2016 were seized vide panchnama dated 4-8-2016 under Section 110 of the Customs Act. Thus in total 5544 pieces of Fitbit wireless devices having a cumulative assessable value of Rs. 3,15,45,401/- were seized. On the request of the appellant, the seized goods were permitted to be shifted to bonded warehouse under Section 49 of the Customs Act, 1962. The importer vide their letter dated 28-9-2017, requested for permission to re-export the seized goods and prayed for waiver of show cause notice. A personal hearing was granted on 28-2-2018 by the Commissioner on the request of the appellant. During the course of personal hearing and vide their letter dated 1-3-2018, the appellant explained to the Commissioner that the responsibility of arranging the ETA was on Fitbit Inc. USA which availed the services of M/s. T.P.C., a third party consultant. They pleaded that the third party consultant had provided them the forged ETAs for which they initiated legal action against them. The appellant again requested for re-export of the seized goods vide their letters dated 5-4-2018 and 5-10-2018, the Commissioner vide impugned order dated 25-10-2018, imposed a penalty of Rs. 31,54,540/- under Section 112(a) of the Customs Act, 1962 holding that the goods were liable to confiscation under Section 111(d) of the Act as the appellant had filed fake/invalid ETA as a part of import documents. He allowed re-export of the seized goods as requested by the appellant.

2. Vide corrigendum dated 26-10-2018 to the impugned order dated 25-10-2018, the Commissioner further imposed a penalty of Rs. 9,00,000/- under Section 114AA of the...
3. The Learned Counsel appearing on behalf of the appellant has vehemently argued that there is no requirement under the IT Act for declaring the place of manufacture/country of origin when applying for ETA. He has argued that it did not matter whether the goods were manufactured in USA or in China, so long as the wireless devices operate in the frequency band 2400-2483.5 MHz, the ETA is valid. That the place of manufacture/country of origin is not a parameter on the basis of which ETA is granted. That for all intents and purposes, it is Fitbit Inc. USA, the owner of the brand ‘Fitbit’ that was the manufacturer and there was no misdeclaration in the ETAs. It is further argued that is fresh ETA certificate in favour of import was not required as long as the goods satisfy the technical specifications mentioned in the ETA. He further argued that no ETA was required in respect of accessories amounting to Rs. 7,11,137/- and hence the impugned order to the extent imposes penalty on accessories of Fitbit devices is not sustainable. Further argued that the appellant is in no way responsible or involved with the procurement of fake ETAs and as soon as the appellant came to know that the ETAs procured by the consultant of Fitbit Inc. USA were not genuine, they immediately requested Fitbit USA to obtain fresh ETAs which were duly obtained and submitted by the appellant before the Department and the Learned Commissioner after considering fresh ETAs has held that the goods were not liable to confiscation under Section 111(d) of the Customs Act as those were not imported contrary to any prohibition imposed under the Customs Act or any other law for the time being in force insomuch as it is procured by the appellant from WPC authorities are valid and since there exists no requirement to obtain different ETAs for identical goods manufactured in different countries under the same brand name. It has further been argued that there was no mens rea as it was a third party fault and they were under the bona fide belief that the ETAs given to them on behalf of supplier were genuine. He further argued that corrigendum has attempted to review its own impugned order and thus additional penalty imposed on the appellant under Section 114AA of the Customs Act, 1962 is liable to be set aside. The appellant has further contested the imposition of penalty under Section 114AA of the Customs Act as they had not knowingly or intentionally used any document, which were false or materially incorrect. They were under the bona fide belief that the ETA obtained by the third party was valid and true.

4. On the other hand the Learned DR has argued that the goods were liable to confiscation, after the ETA certificates have been found to be fake and element of mens rea is not an essential ingredient for confiscation and imposition of penalty for contravention of provisions of a civil act. He also argued that as per Foreign Trade Policy 2015-2020 para 2.03, all the domestic Laws/Rules/Orders/Regulations/Technical specifications/environmental/safety and health norms applicable to domestically produced goods shall apply, mutatis mutandis, to imports unless specifically exempt. It is argued that the corrigendum was validly issued as the Adjudicating Authority had only rectified the unintended mistake by imposing penalty under Section 114AA of the Customs Act, as the appellants could not have escaped wrath of penal action under Section 114AA having produced fake/forged ETA. He relied upon the case law in Sanjay Bahadur v. Commissioner of Central Excise, Belapur reported in 2009 (240) E.L.T. 282 (Tri. - Mumbai).

5. Having heard both sides and on perusal of appeal record, we find that it is an admitted fact that ETAs produced by the importer were found to be fake on verification. Once the ETAs is found fake, the argument put forth by the Learned Counsel of the appellants that country of manufacture was not relevant and not required to be mentioned on ETA holds no ground. The argument could have some validity only when the ETA had been genuine and there was only dispute of country of manufacture or origin. Here country of manufacture is not in the dispute but there is a violation of relevant notification issued by the Ministry of Telecommunication No. GSR 45(E), dated 28-1-2005 which requires the importer to produce a valid ETA issued by the Ministry of Telecommunications. Once it is on record that the ETA was not issued by the Ministry of Telecommunications and was fake, all other arguments that country of origin was not required on ETA, etc., become meaningless.

6. The other argument advanced by the Learned Counsel is that they were not personally involved in the forgery of the ETAs and it was the third party who had given them fake ETAs and thus no mens rea was involved on their part and hence they had not violated the provisions of Section 111(d) of Customs Act with respect to imports. In this regard we find that in view of the fact that the Hon’ble Apex Court has held in a number of cases that mens rea is not necessary for contravention of a civil act. The Hon’ble High Court of Madras in the case of Commissioner of Customs (Export), Chennai v. Bansal Industries reported in 2007 (207) E.L.T. 346 (Mad.) has upheld an imposition of penalty under Section 112 of the Customs Act without involving any mens rea in the case by placing reliance upon the Hon’ble Apex Court’s decision in Chairman, SEBI v. Shriram Mutual Fund - [(2006) 5 SCC 361] where it has been held as under :

“In our opinion, mens rea is not an essential ingredient for contravention of the provisions of a civil act. In our view, the penalty is attracted as soon as contravention of the statutory obligations as contemplated by the Act is established and, therefore, the intention of the parties committing such violation becomes immaterial. In other words, the breach of a civil obligation which attracts penalty under the provisions of an Act would immediately attract the levy of penalty irrespective of the fact whether the contravention was made by the defaulter with any guilty intention or not”.

7. Once the ETA was found to be fake, the importer could not escape the liability to contravention of Section 111(d) which states that goods imported in contravention of the Customs Act or any other law for the time being in force would be liable to confiscation. We also find that the compliance of statutory requirements with regard to valid importation of the goods, was primary responsibility of the appellant being importer and therefore he cannot escape from this responsibility and thus become liable for penalty under Section 112(a) of the Customs Act, 1962.

8. However, we are of the considered view that the corrigendum issued for imposing of penalty under Section 114AA of the Customs Act, 1962 which had no reference in the original order is not sustainable as it amounts to review of the original order. There is no reference that the original order had considered imposition of any penalty under Section 114AA of the Customs Act. We are in agreement with the Learned Counsel of the appellants that once the order is passed by the Adjudicating Authority, he becomes a functus officio and he cannot reopen the case. Only clerical mistakes, which are apparent on record can be rectified by a corrigendum. We find that case law in Sanjay Bahadur v. Commissioner of Central Excise, Belapur reported in 2009 (240) E.L.T. 282 (Tri. - Mumbai) is distinguishable because in that case penalty under Section 11AC of the Central Excise Act was imposed but only the quantum was not mentioned. As penalty under Section 11AC is mandatory penalty such mistake could be rectified. Further, penalty was proposed on the director in the show cause notice but no order was passed in the original order with respect to penalty either for vacating or imposing the penalty. Thus mistake was apparent on record which was rectified by the corrigendum. In this case no show cause [notice] having been issued and no penalty in the impugned original order been imposed, we cannot consider that the original order envisaged any imposition of penalty under Section 114AA. Even on merits we find that penalty under Section 114AA involves mens rea on the part of the person who is held liable to penalty under section ibid as the section is applicable to persons who “knowingly or intentionally” makes use of the false document. The appellants have always taken this stand that the procurement of valid ETA was the responsibility of Fitbit Inc. USA and they had only produced ETAs procured by Fitbit Inc. USA through a third person. There is nothing on record that the appellant had knowingly or intentionally produced the false ETAs. Hence penalty under Section 114AA is not sustainable. We also hold that the accessories valued Rs. 7,11,137/- are also not liable to confiscation as those did not attract the requirement notified under Ministry of Telecommunications letter dated 28-1-2005 mentioned above.

9. In view of the above discussions penalty of Rs. 9,00,000/- imposed under Section 114AA of the Customs Act, 1962 is set aside.

10. In view of above discussions, we feel that the appellant are liable to penalty under Section 112(a)(ii) of the Customs Act, 1962 and thus we find no infirmity in the order-in-original on this count, however, considering all the facts and circumstances of the matter the quantum of penalty under Section 112(a) is reduced to Rs. 10,00,000/- (Rupees ten lakhs only).

11. The appeal is partly allowed in above terms.

DATE OF HEARING/DECISION: 21.08.2019

RACHNA GUPTA

None is present for the appellant. Perusal of file shows that the appellant is repeatedly seeking adjournments since September, 2018. It is also observed that vide Order dated 03.07.2019 appellant was directed to provide the legible copies of the documents particularly Order-in-Original. But the appellant failed even to provide the said legible copies on the adjourned date i.e.25.07.2019. Rather had again sought an adjournment. It becomes clear that more than a dozen adjournments have been sought by the appellant in the present case. The said conduct of the appellant is sufficient for us to form an opinion that the appellant is not interested in pursuing the impugned matter.

2. Perusal of Order of adjudicating authority below reveals that the Department observed mis-declaration as far as the number of cartons/packages imported and the weight thereof is concerned, as were imported by the appellant vide Bill of Entry No. 8472911 dated 03.03.2015. Department also observed the under-valuation of the consignments. Based upon the acknowledgment of the partner of appellant Shri Umesh Mittal as in his statement dated 11.03.2015 and 20.03.2015 as were recorded under Section 108 of the Customs Act, 1962 that the differential duty of Rs.3,57,973/- was confirmed. We also observe that the same stands deposited vide TR6 Challan No. 22082 dated 20.03.2015. Thus, seeing from the merits as well we do not find any justification in the impugned Appeal.
As a result of entire above discussion, the Appeal in hand is dismissed not only for want of the compliance and non-prosecution on part of the appellant but also for his absence as on date and for no merits in this Appeal to his favour.

Per: Rachna Gupta:

Present is an appeal preferred against the Order-in-Original No.04/KB/2018 dated 05.02.2018 vide which penalty of Rs.40,000/- has been imposed upon the appellant M/s. Rubal Logistics Pvt. Ltd. under the provisions of Regulations 22 of CBLR, 2013.

2. The relevant factual matrix to adjudicate the same is that M/s.Pax Technologies Pvt. Ltd., the importer, was engaged in importing Point of Sale Devices (POS) and Mobile Point of Sale Devices (MPOS) from China. Pursuant to an intelligence as developed by Special Intelligence and Investigation Branch (SIIB) Air Cargo Complex (ACC), Import, New Customs House, New Delhi against said M/s. Pax Technologies, it was observed that the importer has already got cleared one consignment under Bill of Entry No.3650483 dated 19.12.2016 for 4600 Units of D-180 Terminals with the declared transaction value at the rate of 1.5 USD per piece (total value USD 6900). However, the invoice for the said consignments as was procured from M/s. DHL, the Carrier suggested that the actual value of said consignment was USD 69000 i.e USD 15 per Unit. Resultantly, a watch was kept on the subsequent consignments of the importer. Two consignments with respect to bill of entry No.3851878 dated 08.01.2016 and 3851698 dated 08.01.2016 for 4700 and 4649 pieces respectively of D-180 Terminals were intercepted. Preventive check was applied by SIIB on the said shipments and the goods were examined in presence of representative of CHA and the Director of the importer Ms. Latha Priyadarshini. The goods were found to be misdeclared. Accordingly, were seized under Section 110 of the Customs Act, 1962 vide Panchnamas dated 13.01.2016. These investigations culminated into the show cause notice No.11558 dated 28.08.2017 proposing the revocation of Customs Broker License of the appellant alongwith the forfeiture of the security submitted and the appropriate penalty was proposed to be imposed upon the CHA, the appellant herein. The said show cause notice was adjudicated vide the above mentioned order under challenge vide which proposal as far as the revocation of the license and the forfeiture of the security amount was rejected. However, the proposal of imposition of penalty under Regulation 22 of CBLR was accepted and a penalty of Rs.40,000/- was imposed upon CHA. Being aggrieved of the said order, the appellant is before this Tribunal.

3. We have heard Ms. Vibha Narang, ld. Counsel for the appellant and Shri. Sunil Kumar, ld. D. R. for the Department.
4. It is submitted on behalf of the appellant that the appellant CHA had no role in facilitation of the alleged import. His role was limited to the filing of the documents, complying with the paper work, producing the goods for examination, resolving the queries of Customs Authorities so raised and then upon satisfaction of the doubts of Customs Authorities, getting the assessment completed upon the payment of Customs Duty facilitating the goods for clearance from the Customs area. All these duties have fully been complied with by the CHA, appellant herein. However, the knowledge of CHA as far as valuation and quality of goods is concerned was very very limited, who has otherwise fulfilled all KYC norms and had also satisfied that importer was having valid IECE No. it is alleged that the accused has wrongly been imposed wrongly alleging violation of provisions of Regulations 11 (d), (e) and (m) of CBLR, 2013. Order under challenge is prayed to be set aside. Appeal is prayed to be allowed.

5. While rebutting these arguments, it is submitted that the adjudicating authority below has in detailed considered role of importer as well as that of the CHA while adjudicating the alleged evasion of Customs duty and mis-declaration of goods under import and the contraventions, if any, committed by them. Statements of all concerned have been discussed in details. Thereafter the adjudicating authority has held that irrespective the CHA got a mail from the Director of importer itself about WPC to not to be required on these items to have the bonafide belief, however, CHA has failed to observe his mandatory duty of Regulation 11. The Adjudicating Authority has been reasonable while rejecting the revocation of appellant’s license. There is no infirmity as far as the imposition of penalty upon the Customs Broker is concerned. Appeal is prayed to be dismissed.

6. After hearing both the parties and perusing the entire record, we are of the opinion as follows:-

Present is apparently a case of misdeclaration, misclassification and under valuation of import of wireless Point of Sale Devices (POS) and Mobile Point of Sale Device (MPOS). Department is of the opinion that the product (MPOS) has been imported by M/s. Pax Technology India Pvt. Ltd. and cleared through the Customs broker, M/s. Rubal Logistics Pvt. Ltd. i.e. the present appellant, who initially filed the Bill of Entry on the basis of invoices raised by M/s. Wang Technologies Ltd. by replacing earlier invoice raised by M/s. Pax Technology Ltd., Hong Kong to M/s. Pax Technology India Pvt. Ltd. itself. From the Order in Original, it is observed that the adjudicating authority has gone into the details of the statements of all concerned recorded at the stage of investigation. Not only this, the authority has perused the Master Distribution Agreement of M/s. Pax Technology India Pvt. Ltd. and has observed that the soft-ware license was an integral part of the devices without which the impugned devices could not be operated and that the value of software license fee has to be included in the total value of the devices. Based on these observations that the impugned goods were held to be misclassified and misvalued/ misdeclared. However, as far as the role of the appellant is concerned, it is observed by the adjudicating authority that he bonafidely believed about the changed invoice to be the correct one. The CHA is rather observed to have complied with the formalities as that of KYC documentation. It is in view whereof that his license has not been revoked. However, the penalty has been imposed under 11 (d), (e) & (m) of CBLR, 2013. These read as follows:-

31.4.1 Whereas Regulation 11 (d) of CBLR, 2013 states that:

"A Custom broker shall advise his client to comply with the provisions of the Act and in case of non-compliance, shall bring the matter to the notice of the Deputy Commissioner of Customs of Assistant Commissioner of Customs, as the case may be"

31.4.2 Whereas, Regulation: 11(e) prescribes that:

"A Customs Broker shall exercise due diligence to ascertain the correctness of any information which he imparts to a client with reference to any work related to clearance of cargo or baggage"

31.4.3 Whereas Regulation 11(m) of CBLR

"A Customs Broker shall discharge his duties as a Customs Broker with utmost speed and efficiency and without any delay"

6.1 These provisions require the Customs Broker to exercise due diligence to ascertain the correctness of any information and to advice the client accordingly. Though the CHA was accepted as having no mensrea of the noticed mis-declaration /under-valuation or mis-quantification but from his own statement acknowledging the negligence on his part to properly ensure the same, we are of the opinion that CH definitely has committed violation of the above mentioned Regulations. These Regulations caused a mandatory duty upon the CHA, who is an important link between the Customs Authorities and the importer/exporter. Any dereliction/lack of due diligence since has caused the Exchequer loss in terms of evasion of Customs Duty, the original adjudicating authority has rightly imposed the penalty upon the appellant herein.

7. As a result, we do not find any infirmity in the order under challenge, same is hereby upheld. Appeal stands dismissed.

ANIL CHOUDHARY:

This appeal is filed by Revenue against the impugned order-in-original dated 22.10.2018.

2. As notice could not be served on the respondent in the ordinary course, upon direction of this Tribunal dated 04.07.2019. Notice has been served by affixing vide panchnama dated 18.09.2019 at the known address of the respondent, as per the report received from the Deputy Director (CI), DRI, New Delhi. Attempt was also made to serve notice by e-mail dated 09.09.2019 by Revenue to the address on record of the respondent. However, due to some error in the address, the e-mail could not be delivered. The substituted notice has been served, but the respondent has failed to appear, hence the appeal is taken up for hearing with the assistance of learned Authorised Representative for the Revenue.

3. Heard the learned Authorised Representative for the Revenue and perused the records.

4. On the basis of intelligence received by Revenue, Container No. MSKU
9987950 being goods imported by respondent under Bill of Entry No. 2404237 dated 13.06.2013 was put on hold for examination. The said container was examined on 21.06.2013 and confirmed to be containing fabrics. Three representative samples measuring 1.5 meter (approx) of white and off white wrapping was drawn on random basis for analysis/ testing purpose, due to fading light, complete examination could not be completed and examination was continued on the next day on 24.06.2013. During examination, the number and rolls and meterage were found as per detailed packing list. However, the width of the rolls in respect of items mentioned in the packing list marked as D-1 was found to be 44 inches, whereas, as per the Bill of Entry width was declared as 58 inches. The DRI officers selected 15 (fifteen) numbers of representative rolls and from each roll, three samples were drawn and marked as A1, A2, A3 and B1, B2 and B3 respectively to 01, 02 and 03. Since the goods appeared to be different from the declared description, the goods were detained for further investigation.

On representative samples each wash and edover to Shri Jitendra Purohit, Importer. As per the test report received from CRCL and the invoice submitted by Shri Chhagan Raj Purohit revealed that several rolls of fabrics were made entirely of polyester and viscose yarns, which indicated mis-declaration in description of the goods that the declared in the bill of entry.

5. Statement of Shri Chhagan Raj Purohit, de facto importer was recorded on 25.06.2013, who interalia admitted the possibility of the mis-declaration. The actual commercial invoice No. 232013A dated 10.06.2013 issued in the name of M/s Saraswati Impex pertaining to bill of entry No.2404237 was submitted by Shri Chhagan Raj Purohit as per which quantity of different type of fabric was 69358.9 meters and actual value at USD 90266.90 FOB, as against the declared quantity and value of 43713.3 meters and USD30599.31 CIF respectively. As the goods were found to be mis-declared, the same were put under seizure under Section 110 of the Act vide seizure memo dated 16.07.2013.

6. For ascertaining the actual value of the goods, assistance of Overseas Customs Authority, to conduct necessary enquiry at their end and to furnish export declaration etc. filed by the shipper/supplier. In response to which export declarations filed at the port of shipment, wherein information like Bill of Lading No., booking No., container No., quantity, description & quantity of the goods relating to six consignments imported by M/s Saraswati Impex and 13 consignments imported by M/s Rajhans Export were received from the Overseas
Customs Administration. On comparison of import value declared by M/s Saraswati Impex and M/s Rajhans Export in the bill of entry before Indian Customs and the actual value as per the export declaration, it was found that lower value were declared by the respondent—importers for evading customs duty. Shri Chhagan Raj Purohit was the Prop. of M/s Rajhans Export and defacto Prop. of M/s Saraswati Impex. Shri Jitender Purohit was Prop. of M/s Saraswati Impex as per records.

7. Pursuant to the facts from investigation and the statement recorded, It appeared that—

(i) M/s Saraswati Impex and M/s Rajhans Export mis-declared the description as well as value imported by them from China, which is evident on the basis of panchnama, test report and also the evidences received from Overseas Customs Administration.

(ii) M/s Saraswati Impex deposited differential amount of Rs. 35 lakhs voluntarily as regards mis-declaration found in the bill of entry No.2404237, Container No.MSKU9987950.

(iii) Inspite of ample opportunities the respondent did not submit supporting documents like manufacturing invoice, contract, indicating dubious nature of declaration made.

(iv) Shri Ashok Sharma, Director of CHA company M/s HLPL Global Logistics Pvt. Ltd., stated that they have filed the bill of entry as per the documents provided by the importer. It also appeared that the respondent were importing the fabrics in their own name and selling them without issuing any invoices. Further, it appeared that the respondent was remitting the differential value through other non banking channels in illicit manner.

(v) Accordingly, the declared value appeared to be fit to be rejected in accordance with the Customs Valuation Rules, 2007. Further, the goods appeared to be liable for confiscation.

8. The respondent M/s Saraswati Impex was required to show cause vide show cause notice dated 14.01.2016 as to why the goods mentioned in table 5 to the show cause notice imported vide Bill of Entry No.2404237 benotr—classified under CTH55151190, 54077300, 52083290, 52084290, 520931990, 58013720 and 53110013 instead of CTH 52093190. It was further proposed to reject the declared value of the goods amounting to Rs.52,77,989/-with proposal to confiscate the goods under Section 111(m) of the Act with further proposal to
9. It was also proposed to reject the declared value with respect to other bill, of entry as detailed in chart ‘A’(of show cause notice) in terms of Rule 12 of the CVR, 2007. The declared value of Rs.1,15,35,086/-be not rejected and re-assessed at Rs.6,17,92,567/- under Rule 9 of CVR, 2007 with further proposal to confiscate the goods and demand differential duty of Rs. 1,53,15,706/- with further proposal to impose penalty. There was also proposal to appropriate the amount of Rs.35 lakhs deposited during investigation along with proposal to appropriate the Bank Guarantee of Rs. 5 lakhs submitted for provisional release.

10. Similarly, M/s Rajhans Export were required to show cause as to why not the assessable value of Rs.2,90,85,000/- in respect of 13 import consignments as detailed in chart ‘B’ of the show cause notice, be not rejected and re-valued at Rs. 11,12,20,815/- under Rule 9 of CVR, 2007 with proposal for confiscation and demand of differential duty of Rs.2,54,30,137/-,with proposal to impose penalty under Section 114A of the Customs Act, 1962. Personal penalty was also proposed under Section 114AA of the Act on Shri Chhagan Raj Purohit and Shri Jitender Purohit-proprietor and penalty was also proposed on shipping line - M/s Maersk Line India Pvt. Limited, under Section117 of the Customs Act, 1962.

11. Only the shipping line M/s Maersk Line India Pvt. Limited filed reply to show cause notice being written submission dated 15.02.2016, where in the inter-alia stated that the shipper has booked the full container. In respect of full container load, it is the Universal Shipping Practice that such containers are taken by the shipper from the container line in empty goods condition to their warehouse, where the export car go loaded/stored by shipper them selves under supervision of the customs authority and are closed and sealed by the Customs authority. Thus, the shipping line has got no role with respect to stuffing of the container, preparation of export documents and filing of declaration by the shipper.

12. With respect to the consignment in Container No. MSKU9987950 stated to contain textile piece goods, was loaded stowed and stuffed inside factory by the shipper at China namely -M/s Shaoxing County Roxton Import & Export Co. Limited. The container was sealed with Seal No.CN6178482, thus the shipping line has no occasion to know the goods, only they deal like bill of lading and other particulars furnished by the shipper. There is no case against the shipping line of the Customs seal having been tempered during transit. It is further urged that neither any provision of the act is violated, nor there is any case of abetment made out against them. Accordingly, they prayed for dropping the show cause notice.

13. Shri Chhagan Raj Purohit, the owner of M/s Rajhans Export and defacto owner of M/s Saraswati Impex vide letter dated 08.02.2016 and 29.03.2016 requested for supply of RUDs through speed post. The documents were dispatched by Revenue vide speed post vide letter dated 23.01.2018. Opportunity of personal hearing was fixed on 15.03.2018 and 16.04.2018 but no one appeared.
It is further observed in para 33.2 of the impugned order that the notices for personal hearing were received back undelivered with the postal remark 'not known and left'. All the notices for personal hearing was also pasted on the notice board in the office of the adjudicating authority.

14. Accordingly, vide impugned ex-parte order against the respondent, proposals in show cause notice was confirmed along with order of confiscation.
Redemption fine was imposed amounting to Rs. 5 lakhs and for goods imported under Bill of Entry No. 2404237, differential custom duty was confirmed along with equal amount of penalty under Section 114A. Further, order for appropriation of the amount of Rs. 35 lakhs deposited during investigation.
Similarly, the proposal in respect of M/s Rajhans Exports was also confirmed along with penalty of equal amount. Further, personal penalty of Rs.1 crore and Rs. 10 lakhs on Shri Chhagan Raj Purohit and Shri Jitender Purohit was imposed respectively under Section 114AA of the Customs Act, 1962, and penalty of Rs. 1 lakhs imposed on M/s Maersk Line India Pvt. Limited under Section 117 of the Customs Act, 1962.

15. Revenue has filed the present appeal. Being aggrieved due to non imposition of penalty on respondent M/s Saraswati Impex under Section 114A in relation to import vide Bill of Entry No. 2404237.

16. Learned Authorised Representative Shri Sunil Kumar appearing for the Revenue states that learned Commissioner has erred by not imposing penalty under Section 114A inspite of clear finding of mis-declaration on with respect to quantity and value, and under the facts and circumstances, he prayed that it is a fit case for imposition of penalty.
17. Having considered the submissions made by learned AR for the Revenue and on perusal of record, we find that there is error in the impugned order, so far as penalty not imposed under Section 114A with respect to good simport under Bill of Entry No. 2404237. Accordingly, we impose the penalty of Rs. 30,24,833/- under Section 114A of the Customs Act with respect to goods imported under Bill of Entry No.2404237.

18. Accordingly, this appeal is allowed and impugned order stands modified to the above extent.

(Operative part of order pronounced in open Court).
IN THE CESTAT, PRINCIPAL BENCH, NEW DELHI

[COURT NO. IV]

Shri C.L. Mahar, Member (T) and Ms. Rachna Gupta, Member (J)

SRIAANSHU LOGISTICS

Versus

COMMISSIONER OF CUSTOMS, NEW DELHI

REPRESENTED BY :Shri G.S. Arora, Advocate, for the Appellant.

Shri Sunil Kumar, DR, for the Respondent.

[Order per : Rachna Gupta, Member (J)]. - The appellant herein is a holder of CB License valid up to 30-4-2020 issued by Commissioner of Customs (I & G), New Delhi. Directorate of Revenue Intelligence received information about silver jewellery being smuggled into India in the guise of Mobile Phones and accessories in the consignments landed at Air Cargo, Delhi from Hong Kong on 18th & 19th September, 2016. Accordingly, an alert dated 19-9-2016 was issued by DRI to stop clearances of the consignments declared to contain mobile phones and accessories. Resultantly, two consignments were examined by DRI Officers. One is with respect to bill of entry No. 6767709, dated 19-9-2016 pertaining to M/s. Yogi Enterprises, New Delhi and another under Bill of Entry No. 6768517, dated 19-9-2016 pertaining to M/s. DSK Enterprises, New Delhi declared to contain Mobile phones and accessories. The consignments pertaining to M/s. Yogi Enterprises was filed through CB M/s. Sriaanshu Logistic New Delhi that is the appellant and was cleared on 21-9-2016. However, M/s. Yogi Enterprises vide their letter dated 3rd February, 2017 submitted the revised commercial invoice dated 16-9-2016 declaring assessable value of undeclared goods of Rs. 1,92,93,300/-. Similarly on physical examination of consignment covered under the later bill pertaining to M/s. DSK Enterprises, it was found to contain silver jewellery along with PCB for DTH Mobile phones and accessories, etc.

2. The CB i.e. the appellant on being examined, accepted that he was not in touch with the importer and had allowed Shri Narender Narula and Shri Rupan Barua to use his CB license for clearance of consignment of the said importers. It was accordingly alleged by the Department that present case is related to mis-declaration of imported goods with intent to evade duty and appellant has failed to advise his clients to comply with the provisions of the Act and has failed to bring the matter to the notice of the Department. Thus, has contravened his duties under Regulations 10, 11(a)(b)(d)(e) & 11(m) of CBLR, 2013. Resultantly, an offence report was received in the office of DRI based whereupon the appellant was called to explain as to why his CB License may not be revoked and whole of security amount of Rs. 75,000/- may not be forfeited, in terms of Regulation 18 read with Regulation 20 of CBLR, 2013 with the imposition of penalty. The said proposal has been confirmed vide the impugned order No. 80, dated 4th December, 2017. Being aggrieved the appeal is before this Tribunal.

3. It is submitted on behalf of appellant that all the allegations of Department are based on presumptions and surmises. There is sufficient evidence and also the statement of the proprietor of appellant to the effect that all the KYC documents of importers were duly E-mailed to the Customs Broker Shri Sanjeev Saxena thereby evidencing that the CB only who was exercising control over the operation of verifying/facilitating the import documents of the intended importers. These evidences are sufficient to falsifying the allegations of the Department that appellant was not ensuring compliance of the customs law. The adjudicating authority below has outrightly ignored the said evidence. It is also impressed upon that appellant was rather coerced by DRI to admit that he has lent his licence to Shri Narula and Shri Barua. No evidence at all could be produced by the Department to prove the said allegation of transfer of CB licence of appellant or sale thereof by him to Mr. Narender Narula or Mr. Rupen Burua. The order under challenge is alleged as against the evidence. The appellant has relied upon Dakor Clearing and Shipping Pvt. Ltd. - 2015 (326) E.LT. 178 (Tri. - Mumbai). Accordingly the order is prayed to be set aside. Appeal is prayed to be allowed.

4. Ld. DR while rebutting these arguments has submitted that the adjudicating authority below has meticulously examined the entire evidence available on record including the statements recorded during the investigation and the documents recovered during the search of the premises of the appellant. The order is reasonably a speaking order and hence is liable to sustain. Appeal is accordingly prayed to be dismissed.

5. After hearing both the parties, we are of the opinion as follows:-

The customs broker license of the appellant has been revoked conforming the contravention on his part of Regulations 10, 11(a)(b)(d)(e) & 11(m) of CBLR, 2013. In accordance of these regulations customs broker is duty bound to -

(1) Ensure that his license shall not be sold or otherwise transferred (Regulation 10)

(2) Obtain an authorization from each of the companies, firm or individuals by whom he is for the time being employed as customs broker [Regulation 11(a)]

(3) Transact business in customs station either personally or through an employee duly approved [Regulation 11(b)]

(4) Advise his client to comply with the provisions of the Act and in case of non-compliance shall bring the matter to the notice of competent authority [Regulation 11(d)]

(5) Exercise due diligence to ascertain the correctness of any information being imparted to a client [Regulation 11(e)]

(6) Verify antecedence, correctness of importer-exporter code No., identity of its client and functioning of its client at the declared address by using reliable independent authentic documents, data or information [Regulation 11(n) of CBLR, 2013]

6. It is apparent that statement of proprietor of appellant i.e. Shri Sanjeev Saxena has been recorded on several dates. Perusal of all those statements shows that there is an apparent admission that he filed the bill of entry in respect of both the impugned consignments but had never met the IEC Holder/proprietor/Director/owner of these importing firms. In his statement dated 26-9-2016 he has admitted that both these firms where the clients of Shri Narula and Shri Rupan Burua. It is also the acknowledgement on part of Shri Sanjeev Saxena that he had sub-let the work of clearance of import consignment to both of them. This acknowledgement is very much against the Regulation 10 of CBLR, 2013. He has gone to the extent of admitting that the import documents for clearance of the impugned goods were received by said Shri Narula and all the documents provided to the appellant were digitally signed by his employee and holder of G Card Shri Rajveer Singh Patel for the clearance of the imported goods. He had not obtained any authorization in respect of these companies, they being the clients of Mr. Nrula and Mr. Burua to whom the appellant had sub-let his licence against the commission charges. Resultantly, they both only were concerned with the actual clearance work of the said companies. This acknowledgement on behalf of appellant is sufficient evidence to hold violation of Regulation 11(b).

7. Mr. Saxena has admitted that because of him being not in touch with both these importers, he had no knowledge of the consignment declaring mobile phones and accessories to also contain silver jewellery. Once he had no such knowledge and he was not actually processing the papers, but had just received the KYC on E-mail, the possibility of said E-mail to be a mere formality cannot be ruled out and it became apparent on record that there was no connection between the appellant and both the impugned importing firms to be advised by the appellant thereby resulting into violation of Regulation 11(d). Nor there arises any occasion for the appellant in the given circumstances to exercise due diligence for ascertaining the correctness of any information. Thereby confirming the violation of Regulation 11(e) on part of the appellant.

8. Mr. Sanjeev Saxena has specifically stated that Shri Narula or Shri Barua used to log in into ICEGTA Website using log in ID and Password given by him and it were they who fed the particulars on the basis of invoice available with them and they only used the digital signature of Shri Ranveer Singh Patel, his ‘G’ Card holder to upload the data and that they presented themselves on behalf of the appellant/CB. The question of any verification by the appellant as required under Regulation 11(n) does not at all arise.

9. Though it is the appellant’s case that his entire statement is the result of coercive exercises upon him by DRI officials at the stage of investigation but apparently and admittedly there is no retraction to the said statement. There is nothing on record that the appellant ever expressed his grievance before the senior authorities of the alleged coercion. In absence thereof and in absence of any evidence proving the statement to be incorrect, it stands established that the appellant had failed to observe his duties as custom broker as he was burdened with statutorily. The appellant has relied upon Dakor Clearing and Shipping Pvt.
Ltd. (supra), but to our opinion that decision is not applicable to the facts and circumstances of the present case. In that case there was an enquiry report holding that the charges against the CHA are not proved. It is not the fact for the present case. Also there was no evidence of any illegal sale or transfer of CHA licence for monitory benefit.

10. Per contra, in the present case, it is appellant’s own admission that he had allowed Mr. Narula and Mr. Barua to use his licence for their own clients against monthly commission to be paid to the appellant. As already mentioned above, the appellant has not produced any evidence contrary to the said statement. The only emphasis about KYC documents being mailed to him by Mr. Narula is not sufficient to satisfy that appellant was otherwise observing his statutory duties.
The Hon’ble Apex Court in the case of Commissioner of Customs v. K.M. Ganatra and Co. - 2016-TIOL-13-S.C. = 2016 (332) E.L.T. 15 (S.C.) has held that CHA occupies a very important position in custom house. The customs procedures are complicated. The importers have to deal with a multiplicity of agencies i.e. carriers, custodians like BPT as well as the customs. The importer would find it impossible to clear his goods through these agencies without wasting valuable energy and time. The CHA is therefore, supported to safeguard the interest of both the importers and the customs. A lot of trust is pose in CHA by the importers/exporters as well as by the Govt. Agencies. To ensure appropriate discharge of such trust the relevant regulations are found. The Hon’ble Apex Court has clarified that any contravention of such obligations even without intent would be sufficient to invite upon the CHA the punishment listed in the regulation. Delegation of its function by CHA has been held as a ground for CHA to be responsible for fraudulent activity of the third parties as was also clarified by the High Court of Madras in the case of Kamakshy Agency v. Commissioner of Customs, Madras - 2001 (129) E.L.T. 29 (Mad.).

11. In view of the entire above discussion, we find no infirmity in the order under challenge. The same is hereby upheld. Appeal stands dismissed.

(Pronounced in the open Court on 17-12-2018)
The Department has filed applications for raising an additional ground in the aforesaid two Appeals filed by the Department to assail the common order dated 14 June 2019 passed by the Commissioner of Customs (Appeals) The Commissioner(Appeals) by which the two appeals filed by M/s. Vivo Mobile India Pvt Ltd Vivo Mobile have been allowed and the two orders, both dated 23 January 2017, passed by the Deputy Commissioner (Refund) Deputy Commissioner have been set aside. The Commissioner (Appeals) has further allowed the two Applications filed by Vivo Mobile under section 27 of the Customs Act 1962 Customs Act for refund of Additional Customs Duty Additional Duty and has directed that Vivo Mobile would be entitled to a refund of Rs.3,01,49,633/- and Rs.2,92,96,394/- respectively. It needs to be noted that though the Deputy Commissioner had by said order dated 23 January, 2017 sanctioned the aforesaid refund amount but a direction was given that this amount should be credited to the Consumer Welfare Fund in terms of section 27(2) of the Customs Act.

2. To appreciate the reasons as to why applications have been filed by the Department to add a ground in the Appeals to the effect that the refund claims could not have been entertained unless the Assessment Orders were modified in accordance with law, it would be necessary to state the relevant facts.

3. Vivo Mobile, which is a respondent in both the appeals, was during the relevant period engaged in import and distribution of mobile phones and its accessories in India. It paid the Additional Duty of Customs at the rate of 6% up to February 2015 and thereafter, at the rate of 12.5% under section 3(1) of the Customs Tariff Act 1975 Tariff Act on the 12 bills of entry. However, in terms of a notification dated 17 March 2012, the Additional Duty was leviable at 1% under the entry at serial 263A for importing mobile phones provided condition no. 16 was satisfied. Condition no. 16 provides that for an assessee to claim lesser 1% Additional Duty, it should not have taken credit under rule 3 or rule 13 of the CENVAT Credit Rules 2004 CENVAT Rules in respect of the inputs or capital goods used in the manufacturer of these goods.

4. The Supreme Court, in the context of the import of Nylon Filament Yarn of 210 deniers, examined a similar condition no. 20 in SRF Ltd. vs Commissioner of Customs, Chennai 2015(318) ELT 607(SC). The Appellant had claimed nil rate of Additional Duty by relying upon a notification dated 1 March 2002. The Deputy Commissioner of Customs held that SRF Ltd. would not be entitled to exemption from payment of Additional Duty since it did not fulfill condition no. 20 of the said notification, which is to the effect that the importer should not have availed credit under rule 3 or rule 11 of the CENVAT Rules in respect of the capital goods used for the manufacture of these goods. The admitted position was that such CENVAT Credit was not availed by SRF Ltd. The Tribunal held that when the credit under CENVAT Rules was not admissible, the question of fulfilling the aforesaid condition did not arise and, therefore, as condition no. 20 was not satisfied SRF Ltd could not claim nil rate of Additional Duty. This reasoning of the Tribunal was found to be not correct by the Supreme Court in view of the judgments of the Supreme Court, wherein it was held that for the purpose of attracting Additional Duty of customs under section 3 of the Customs Tariff Act on the import of a manufactured or produced article, the actual manufacture or production of a like article in India was not necessary and that for quantification of Additional Duty in such a case, it has to be imagined that the article imported was manufactured or produced in India and then to see what amount of excise duty was leviable thereon. SRF Ltd was, therefore, held entitled to exemption from payment of Additional Duty.

5. Vivo Mobile, on the same reasoning, claimed that it would have to pay the reduced Additional Duty at the rate of 1% in terms of condition no. 16 of the notification dated 17 March 2012, which is identical to condition no. 20 of the notification dated 1 March 2002 that was examined by the Supreme Court in SRF Ltd. It had, however, paid Additional Duty at the rate of 6% up to February 2015 and at the rate of 12.5% thereafter and, therefore, filed applications for refund of the excess Additional Duty of customs that was paid by it.

6. On scrutiny of the documents submitted by Vivo Mobile with the refund claims, it was found by the Department that various documents, including re-assessment of bills of entry in respect of the aforesaid refund amount had not been filed. Accordingly, a deficiency memorandum dated 28 January 2016 was issued to clarify the position. Vivo Mobile responded to the deficiency memo and pointed out that the refund applications filed by it be considered as a request for re-assessment of the bills of entry since “the filing of the refund application ipso facto means and implies that they are seeking re-assessment of all the impugned bills of entry”. It was further stated that when the goods were allowed to be cleared, the valuation aspect was examined by the proper officer and the officer competent to decide the refund application has a concurrent jurisdiction. Thus, it was pleaded that the refund claim itself should be treated as a request for re-assessment of the bills of entry, in view of the decision of the Supreme Court in Karnataka Power Ltd vs Commissioner of Customs (Appeals) 2002 (142) ELT 482 (SC).

7. The Deputy Commissioner framed two questions to be decided and they are as follows:

i) Whether the importer was eligible for the benefit of notification dated 17 March 2012 in terms of condition no. 16 in the light of judgement passed by the Supreme Court in SRF; and

ii) Whether the importer was eligible for refund claim, if the answer to the aforesaid question is in the affirmative.

8. The Deputy Commissioner, in view of the decision of the Supreme Court in SRF Ltd, held that Vivo Mobile in terms of condition no. 16 of the notification dated 17 March 2012, would be required to pay Additional Duty at the reduced rate of 1%. The Deputy Commissioner then examined whether it was necessary for Vivo Mobile to get re-assessment of the bills of entry and for this purpose examined the decision of the Delhi High Court in M/s. Micromax Informatics Ltd. vs. Union of India 2016 (335) ELT 446 (Del.) that had been placed by Vivo Mobile to contend that it was not necessary to seek re-assessment of the bills of entry. The Delhi High Court had held that an authority would not be justified in refusing to entertain an application for refund only because no appeal was filed against the assessment order, even if there was one. The Deputy Commissioner, accordingly, held that there was no necessity of seeking modification in the Bills of Entry. The relevant portion of the order is reproduced below:

"In any event, after 8th April, 2011, as noticed hereinbefore, as long as customs duty or interest has been paid or borne by a person, a claim for refund made by such person under section 27(1) of the Act as it now stands, will have to be entertained and an order passed thereon by the authority concerned even where an order of assessment may not have reviewed or modified in appeal. Hence, again, following judicial discipline, the refund claim of the claimants, needs to been entertained on the basis of their self-assessed Bills of Entry, though there is no modifying order for those Bills of Entry"

9. After having so held, the Deputy Commissioner examined whether the refund claim was barred by limitation and whether the incidence of Additional Duty had not been passed on to the buyer, in which event it would be a case of unjust enrichment. The Deputy Commissioner found that though the refund Application had been filed in time, but the claimant had failed to prove that the claim was not hit by unjust enrichment. Accordingly, even though the refund claim was sanctioned, the Deputy Commissioner directed that the amount be credited in the account of the Consumer Welfare Fund in terms of section 27(2) of the Customs Act.

10. Feeling aggrieved, Vivo Mobile filed two appeals before the Commissioner (Appeals) against that part of the orders of the Deputy Commissioner that held that since it was a case of unjust enrichment, the sanctioned amount would not be payable to Vivo Mobile and would be required to be deposited in the Consumer Welfare Fund. The appeals filed by Vivo Mobile were allowed by the Commissioner (Appeals) for the reason that the incidence of Additional Duty had not been passed on to the buyers. The Commissioner (Appeals), therefore, directed that the amount be refunded to Vivo Mobile. The observations are as follows:

"5.4 The period for which the impugned refund claim was filed pertains to the period of 15.12.2014 to 05.06.2015. I find that in respect of a similar case of M/s YU Televentures Pvt. Ltd., wherein refund claim was filed for the period January, 2015 to February, 2015, while disposing of Writ Petition No. W.P. (c) 6750/2016, the Hon'ble Court of Delhi vide Order dated 03.08.2016 set aside the OIO dated 07.06.2016 passed by the Adjudicating authority, wherein the refund claim was rejected by the Adjudicating authority on the similar grounds. The relevant portion of the said Hon'ble High Court Order is re-produced below:

"16. With the Petitioner having already placed all the relevant documents on record and with the only reason for rejection of the refund application being the untenable ground of alleged failure by the Petitioner to submit reassessed B/Es, the Court sees no reason why the Respondents should be permitted to deny the Petitioner the grant of refund any longer.

17. Accordingly, the refund claim filed by the Petitioner on 28th December 2015 is allowed. The Respondents will now pay to the Petitioner the amount of refund as claimed together with interest due thereon up to the date of refund not later than two weeks from today."

5.5. I also find from the records, submitted by the Appellant that in respect of the Appellant's own similar cases, refund claims of Rs. 8,05,06,281/- covering the period 15.06.2015 to 14.07.2015 have been sanctioned to the Appellant by the same Adjudicating Authority vide Order-in-Original No. 381/AT/2018 dated 28.05.2018, holding that the appellant was entitled to get the refund and the said amount was refunded to the Appellant.

5.6. Similarly, I find that the Respondent Commissionerate itself has sanctioned various refund claims to another importers of similar goods, post SRF Ltd. judgement, viz. Order-in-Original No. 2828/VKJ/2016 dated 23.01.2017 etc.

In view of the above discussions and findings, practices adopted in different Customs Houses while sanctioning refund to the importer on identical matter and strongly relying upon the ratio of the judgements passed by Hon'ble High Court of Delhi, Madras and Bombay, supra, I find that the impugned orders of the Adjudicating authority to credit the refund amounts of Rs. 3,01,49,636/- and Rs. 2,92,96,394/- to the Consumer Welfare Fund in terms of Section 27(2) read with Section 28D of the Customs Act, 1962 is not legally sustainable and accordingly set aside."

11. It is against the orders of the Commissioner (Appeals) that the present appeals were filed by the Department on 30 September 2019 in view of the directions issued by the Committee of Commissioners under section 129A(2) of the Customs Act. The Committee of Commissioners had observed that the Commissioner (Appeals) was not justified in placing reliance upon the decision of the Delhi High Court in M/s. YU Televentures Pvt. Ltd. vs. Union of India 2016 (340) ELT 88 (Del.) since in that case the issue involved was whether refund could be granted without re-assessment of the bills of entry, whereas in the present case the issue involved was whether there was unjust enrichment and the issue relating to re-assessment of bills of entry was not involved. The Committee of Commissioners also observed that the Commissioner (Appeals) had not dealt with the reasons given by the Deputy Commissioner relating to unjust enrichment. The grounds taken in the Appeals that were filed on 30 September 2019 are reproduction of the grounds indicated by the Committee of Commissioners for filing the appeal and they are reproduced below:

"B. It is also observed that the case of M/s YU Televentures Pvt. Ltd. [2016(340) ELT 88(Del.)] relied upon by the Commissioner (Appeals) to apply it to the present case is erroneous one as much as in the case of M/s YU Televentures Pvt. Ltd. the issue involved was whether refund can be granted without re-assessment of the B/Es. The relevant para no- 15 to 17 are reproduced below:

"15. The impugned order dated 07th June 2016 passed by the respondent No-04 rejecting the petitioner's refund claim is accordingly set aside.

16. With the petitioner having already placed all the relevant documents on record and with the only reason for rejection of the refund application being the untenable ground of alleged failure by the petitioner to submit re-assessed B/Es. the Court sees no reason why the respondents should be permitted to deny the petitioner the grant of refund any longer.

17. Accordingly, the refund claim filed by the petitioner on 28th December, 2015 is allowed.2. The respondents will now pay to the petitioner the amount of refund as claimed together with interest due thereon up to the date of refund not letter than two weeks from today"

 Whereas, in the present case the issue involved is whether or not the refund claimant has passed the test of unjust enrichment and not grant of refund without re-assessment of the B/Es. Thus it appears that the Commissioner (Appeals) has incorrectly applied the order of the Hon’ble High Court of Delhi.

C. Further, going on the merits of the case the first appellate authority has also not touched upon the reason given by the Adjudicating authority to decide that why the claim is hit by unjust enrichment."

12. It transpires that against various orders passed by the High Courts and the Tribunal at Kolkata, Civil Appeals came to be decided by the Supreme Court on 18 September 2019. The leading matter is ITC Ltd. Vs Commissioner of Customs Kolkata-IV. The issue involved in all the Civil Appeals was whether, in the absence of any challenge to the order of assessment in appeal, any refund application against the assessed duty can be entertained. The Bench of the Tribunal at Kolkata had opined that unless the order of assessment is appealed, no refund application against the assessed duty can be entertained. The Bench of the Tribunal at Kolkata had opined that when there is no lis, a speaking order is not required to be passed in "across the counter affair". The Supreme Court then examined the provisions of sections 17 and 27 of the Customs Act, both prior to the amendments made by Finance Act 2011 and after the amendments, and observed that there is no difference even after the amendments as self-assessment is also an assessment. The observations of the Supreme Court are as follows:

"38. No doubt about it that the expression which was earlier used in Section 27(1)(i) that "in pursuance of an order of assessment" has been deleted from the amended provision of Section 27 due to introduction of provision as to self-assessment. However, as self-assessment is nonetheless an order of assessment, no difference is made by deletion of aforesaid expression as no separate reasoned assessment order is required to be passed in the case of self-assessment as observed by this Court in Escorts Ltd. v. Union of India & Ors.

13. It needs to be noted that in Escort Ltd., the issue that had arisen for consideration before the Supreme Court was regarding the bills of entry classifying the imported goods under a particular tariff item and payment of duty thereon. The Supreme Court held that in such a case signing the bills of entry itself amounted to passing an order of assessment and, therefore, an application seeking refund on the ground that the imported goods fell under a different tariff item attracting lower rate of duty, should be filed within six months after the payment of duty. The Supreme Court, therefore, held that the signature made in the bills of entry was an order of assessment of the assessing officer.

14. The Supreme Court, thereafter, observed that the provisions relating to refund were more or less in the nature of execution proceedings and it would not be open to an authority, while processing a refund application, to make a fresh assessment on merits and to correct any assessment on the basis of a mistake or otherwise. The relevant portions of the judgment of the Supreme Court are reproduced below:

"44. The provisions under section 27 cannot be invoked in the absence of amendment or modification having been made in the bill of entry on the basis of which self-assessment has been made. In other words, the order of self-assessment is required to be followed unless modified before the claim for refund is entertained under Section 27. The refund proceedings are in the nature of execution for refunding amount. It is not assessment or re-assessment proceedings at all. Apart from that, there are other conditions which are to be satisfied for claiming exemption, as provided in the exemption notification. Existence of those exigencies is also to be proved which cannot be adjudicated within the scope of provisions as to refund. While processing a refund application, re-assessment is not permitted nor conditions of exemption can be adjudicated. Re-assessment is permitted only under Section 17(3)(4) and (5) of the amended provisions. Similar was the position prior to the amendment. It will virtually amount to an order of assessment or re-assessment in case the Assistant Commissioner or Deputy Commissioner of Customs while dealing with refund application is permitted to adjudicate upon the entire issue which cannot be done in the ken of the refund provisions under Section 27.

47. When we consider the overall effect of the provisions prior to amendment and post amendment under Finance Act, 2011, we are of the opinion that the claim for refund cannot be entertained unless the order of assessment or self assessment is modified in accordance with law by taking recourse to the appropriate proceedings and it would not be within the ken of section 27 to set aside the order of self assessment and reassess the duty for making refund; and in case any person is aggrieved by any order which would include self assessment, he has to get the order modified under section 128 or under other relevant provisions of the Act.

48. Resultantly, we find that the order(s) passed by the Customs, Excise and Service Tax Appellate Tribunal is to be upheld and that passed by the High Courts of Delhi and Madras to the contrary, deserves to be and are hereby set aside. We order accordingly. We hold that the application for refund were not maintainable. The appeals are accordingly disposed of. Parties to bear their own costs as incurred.

15. The applications that have been filed by the Department on 8 November 2019 for raising an additional ground contain five paragraph and they are reproduced below:
1. The aforementioned appeal is pending for disposal and listed for hearing on 27.01.2019.

2. Revenue would like to raise Additional Legal Ground in the light of ratio of laid down in the case of ITC Ltd. Vs CCE Kolkata IV & Others/ 2019(368) ELT-246-SC.

3. Hon’ble Supreme Court, in the aforementioned case has ruled that the claim for refund cannot be entertained unless the Assessment Order or Self assessment gets modified in accordance with law.

4. The observation of Hon’ble Supreme Court in Para 47 and 48 of the judgment is as follows:-

xxxx xxxx xxxx

5. Revenue would like to humbly submit that aforesaid ratio laid down by Hon’ble Supreme court may be considered by Hon’ble Tribunal and adverted to before the disposal of appeal.

16. Shri Sunil Kumar learned Authorised Representative of the Department has contended that the application filed by the Department should be allowed and the Appellant should be permitted to raise an additional ground in the two appeals. For this purpose, learned Authorised Representative has placed reliance upon rule 10 of the Customs, Excise and Service Tax Appellate Tribunal (procedure) Rules 1982 1982 Rules which deals with grounds which may be taken in appeal as also a decision of this Tribunal in M/s. Gannon Dunkerley & Co. Ltd. Vs Commissioner of Central Excise and Service Tax (ADJ), New Delhi ST/MISC/50035/2020 in ST/55125/2014 decided on 27.01.2020.

17. Shri Tarun Gulati, learned Senior Counsel appearing for the respondent in the two appeals has, however, contended that the additional ground taken in the miscellaneous applications is not only contrary to the grounds taken in the appeal but even the finding recorded by the Deputy Commissioner quantifying and sanctioning the refund claim has attended finality as the Department did not file any appeal or cross objection against the order passed by the Deputy Commissioner.

18. The submissions advanced by learned Authorised representative of the Department and the learned Senior Counsel appearing for the Appellant have been considered.

19. In order to appreciate the contention, it is necessary to examine the relevant provisions of the Customs Act and the 1982 Rules.

20. Section 129 of the Customs Act deals with ‘Appellate Tribunal’ and section 129A deals with ‘Appeals to the Appellate Tribunal’. Sub-section (1) of section 129A provides that any person aggrieved by any of the orders enumerated in the sub-section may appeal to the Appellate Tribunal against such order.

21. Sub-sections (4) and (5) of section 129A which deal with cross-objections are reproduced below:

"(4) On receipt of notice that an appeal has been preferred under this section, the party against whom the appeal has been preferred may, notwithstanding that he may not have appealed against such order or any part thereof, file, within forty-five days of the receipt of the notice, a memorandum of cross-objections verified in such manner as may be specified by rules made in this behalf against any part of the order appealed against and such memorandum shall be disposed of by the Appellate Tribunal as if it were an appeal presented within the time specified in sub-section (3).

(5) The Appellate Tribunal may admit an appeal or permit the filing of a memorandum of cross-objections after the expiry of the relevant period referred to in sub-section (3) or sub-section (4), if it is satisfied that there was sufficient cause for not presenting it within that period."

22. Sub-section (6) of section 129A provides that an Appeal to the Appellate Tribunal shall be in such form and shall be verified in such manner as may be specified by the rules made in his behalf.

23. It will also appropriate to reproduce section 129B of the Customs Act which deals with ‘Orders of the Appellate Tribunal’ and it is as follows:

"SECTION 129B- Orders of Appellate Tribunal"
(1) The Appellate Tribunal may, after giving the parties to the appeal, an opportunity of being heard, pass such orders thereon as it thinks fit, confirming, modifying or annulling the decision or order appealed against or may refer the case back to the authority which passed such decision or order with such directions as the Appellate Tribunal may think fit, for a fresh adjudication or decision, as the case may be, after taking additional evidence, if necessary.

24. Section 129C of the Customs Act deals with ‘Procedure of Appellate Tribunal’. Sub-section (6) of section 129C, which deals with the power of the Appellate Tribunal to regulate its own procedure, is reproduced below:

"SECTION 129C. Procedure of Appellate Tribunal. —

(1) xxxxxxx
(2) xxxxxxx
(3) xxxxxxx
(4) xxxxxxx
(5) xxxxxxx
(6) Subject to the provisions of this Act, the Appellate Tribunal shall have power to regulate its own procedure and the procedure of the Benches thereof in all matters arising out of the exercise of its powers or of the discharge of its functions, including the places at which the Benches shall hold their sittings.
(7) xxxxxxx
(8) xxxxxxx"

25. The 1982 Rules have been framed in exercise of the powers conferred by sub-section (6) of section 129C of the Customs Act read with the provisions of section 35D of the Excise Act. Rule 10 deals with the grounds which may be taken in the appeal and it is reproduced below:

"Rule 10. Grounds which may be taken in appeal. –

The appellant shall not, except by leave of the Tribunal urge or be heard in support of any grounds not set forth in the memorandum of appeal, but the Tribunal, in deciding the appeal, shall not be confined to the grounds set forth in the memorandum of appeal or those taken by leave of the Tribunal under these rules:

Provided that the Tribunal shall not rest its decision on any other grounds unless the party who may be affected thereby has had a sufficient opportunity of being heard on that ground.

26. It would be seen that under rule 10 of the 1982 Rules, the appellant shall not, except by leave of the Tribunal, urge or be heard in support of any ground not set forth in the memorandum of appeal, but the Tribunal in deciding the appeal, shall not be confined to the grounds set forth in the memorandum of appeal or those taken by leave of the Tribunal under these rules. However, the proviso, however, stipulates that the Tribunal shall not rest its decision on any other ground, unless the party who may be affected thereby has had sufficient opportunity of being heard on that ground.

27. It, therefore, follows that if the appellant has to urge any ground that has not been set forth in the memorandum of appeal, the appellant has to take leave of the Tribunal to urge or be heard on such additional ground. However, the Tribunal in deciding the appeal shall not be confined to the grounds set forth in the memorandum of appeal or those taken by leave of the Tribunal but it would be necessary for the Tribunal, in such a situation, to afford an opportunity to the party who may be affected, to be heard on that ground.

28. As noted above, Vivo Mobile had filed applications for refund of the excess additional duty paid by it. An issue was raised by the Department in the deficiency memo that Vivo Mobile had not filed any document showing reassessment of bills of entry in respect of the refund amount claimed by it. Vivo Mobile pointed out that in view of the decisions of the Delhi High Court in Micromax Informatics Ltd., it was not necessary for it to seek reassessment of the bills of entry. The Deputy Commissioner, in view of the aforesaid decision of the Delhi High Court held that there was no necessity of seeking modification in the bills of entry. Earlier, the Deputy Commissioner had examined and found that the Vivo Mobile was entitled to refund of excess additional duty paid by it in view of the decision of the Supreme Court in SRF Ltd. It is only on account of unjust enrichment that the Deputy Commissioner, even though he had sanctioned the refund claim filed by Vivo Mobile, directed that it should be deposited in the Consumer Welfare Fund under section 27(2) of the Customs Act. Vivo Mobile then filed two appeals before the Commissioner (Appeals) to assail that part of the order of the Deputy Commissioner that directed that the sanctioned amount of refund should be credited to the Consumer Welfare Fund instead of being paid to Vivo Mobile. The Commissioner (Appeals) accepted the contentions raised on behalf of Vivo Mobile that it was not a case of unjust enrichment and therefore, directed for refund of the Additional Duty of customs to Vivo Mobile instead of the said amount being deposited in the Consumer Welfare Fund.

29. The contention of the learned Senior Counsel appearing for Vivo Mobile is that neither an appeal or cross-objections were filed by the Department before the Commissioner (Appeals) to assail that part of the order of the Deputy Commissioner that sanctioned the refund amount and, therefore, once this part of the order of the Deputy Commissioner had attended finality, it is not open to the Department to raise this issue in this Appeal before the Tribunal, and that too subsequently by moving an application seeking permission to add a ground to the grounds already taken in the memorandum of appeal.

30. The issue, therefore, that arises for consideration is whether the Department could have filed any appeal or cross-objections before the Commissioner (Appeals) against that part of the order of the Deputy Commissioner that sanctioned the refund amount. For this purpose, it would be necessary to examine the provisions of the Customs Act dealing with Appeals before the Commissioner (Appeals).

31. Section 128 of the Customs Act deals with Appeal to Commissioner (Appeals) and is as follows:

"SECTION 128. Appeal to Commissioner (Appeals).

(1) Any person aggrieved by any decision or order passed under this Act by an officer of customs lower in rank than a Principal Commissioner of Customs or Commissioner of Customs may appeal to the Commissioner (Appeals) within sixty days from the date of the communication to him of such decision or order:

Provided that the Commissioner (Appeals) may, if he is satisfied that the appellant was prevented by sufficient cause from presenting the appeal within the aforesaid period of sixty days, allow it to be presented within a further period of thirty days.

(1A) The Commissioner (Appeals) may, if sufficient cause is shown at any stage of hearing of an appeal, grant time to the parties or any of them and adjourn the hearing of the appeal for reasons to be recorded in writing:

Provided that no such adjournment shall be granted more than three times to a party during hearing of the appeal.

(2) Every appeal under this section, shall be in such form and shall be verified in such manner as may be specified by rules made in this behalf."

32. Section 128A of the Customs Act deals with "Procedure in Appeal" before the Commissioner (Appeals) and is as follows:

"SECTION 128A. Procedure in appeal.

(1) The Commissioner (Appeals) shall give an opportunity to the appellant to be heard if he so desires.

(2) The Commissioner (Appeals) may, at the hearing of an appeal, allow the appellant to go into any ground of appeal not specified in the grounds of appeal, if the Commissioner (Appeals) is satisfied that the omission of that ground from the grounds of appeal was not willful or unreasonable.

(3) The Commissioner (Appeals) shall, after making such further inquiry as may be necessary, pass such order, as he thinks just and proper, confirming, modifying or annulling the decision or order appealed against:

Provided that an order enhancing any penalty or fine in lieu of confiscation or confiscating goods of greater value or reducing the amount of refund shall not be passed unless the appellant has been given a reasonable opportunity of showing cause against the proposed order:

Provided further that where the Commissioner (Appeals) is of opinion that any duty has not been levied or has been short-levied or erroneously refunded, no order requiring the appellant to pay any duty not levied, short-levied or erroneously refunded shall be passed unless the appellant is given notice within the time-limit specified in section 28 to show cause against the proposed order.

(4) The order of the Commissioner (Appeals) disposing of the appeal shall be in writing and shall state the points for determination, the decision thereon and the reasons for the decision.

(4A) The Commissioner (Appeals) shall, where it is possible to do so, hear and decide every appeal within a period of six months from the date on which it is filed.

(5) On the disposal of the appeal, the Commissioner (Appeals) shall communicate the order passed by him to the appellant, the adjudicating authority, the Principal Chief Commissioner of Customs or Chief Commissioner of Customs and the Principal Commissioner of Customs or Commissioner of Customs.”

33. A perusal of section 128 of the Customs Act shows that any person aggrieved by any decision or order passed under the Act by an officer of customs lower in rank than a Principal Commissioner or Commissioner may appeal to the Commissioner (Appeals). This section does not provide for filing of cross-objections, unlike sub-section of (4) of section 129A of the Customs Act which, in regard to Appeals to the Appellate Tribunal, provides for filing a memorandum of cross-objections against any part of the order appealed against and also provides that such memorandum shall be disposed of by the Appellate Tribunal as if it were an appeal presented within the time specified.

34. A bare reading of section 128 of the Customs Act leaves no manner of doubt that whereas an appeal to the Commissioner (Appeals) can be filed by any person aggrieved by any decision or order passed under the Act by an officer of customs lower in rank than a Principal Commissioner or Commissioner may appeal to the Commissioner (Appeals). This section does not provide for filing of cross-objections, unlike sub-section of (4) of section 129A of the Customs Act which, in regard to Appeals to the Appellate Tribunal, provides for filing a memorandum of cross-objections against any part of the order appealed against and also provides that such memorandum shall be disposed of by the Appellate Tribunal as if it were an appeal presented within the time specified.

35. At this stage, it will also be appropriate to reproduce Order 41 Rule 22 of the Code of Civil Procedure 1908 which deals with cross-objection and it is reproduced below:

"Rule 22. Upon hearing, respondent may object to decree as if he had preferred a separate appeal.- (1) Any respondent, though he may not have appealed from any part of the decree, may not only support the decree but may also state that the finding against him in the Court below in respect of any issue ought to have been in his favour; and may also take any cross-objection to the decree which he could have taken by way of appeal:

Provided he has filed such objection in the Appellant Court within one month from the date of service on him or his pleader of notice of the day fixed for hearing the appeal, or within such further time as the Appellate Court may see fit to allow.

Explanation.- A respondent aggrieved by a finding of the Court in the Judgment on which the decree appealed against is based may, under this rule, file cross-objection in respect of the decree in so far as it is based on that finding, notwithstanding that by reason of the decision of the Court on any other finding which is sufficient for the decision of the suit the decree, is, wholly or in part, in favour of that respondent.

Form of objection and provisions applicable thereto.- (2) Form of objection and provisions applicable thereto- Such cross-objection shall be in the form of a memorandum, and The provisions of rule 1, so far as they relate to the form and contents of the memorandum of appeal, shall apply thereto.

(3) xxxx xxxx xxxx

4) Where, in any case in which any respondent has under this rule filed a memorandum of objection, the original appeal is withdrawn or is dismissed for default, the objection so filed may nevertheless be heard and determined after such notice to the other parties as the Court thinks fit.

(5) The provisions relating to appeals by indigent persons shall, so far as they can be made applicable, apply to an objection under this rule."

36. It is also pertinent to refer to the Customs (Appeals) Rule 1982. Chapter-II deals with 'Appeals to Commissioner (Appeals)', while Chapter-III deals with 'Appeals to Appellate Tribunal'. Rule 3 contained in Chapter-II deals with Form of Appeal to Commissioner (Appeals), while rule 4 deals with Form of Application to the Commissioner (Appeals). Rule 5 deals with production of additional evidence before the Commissioner (Appeals). Rule 6 contained in Chapter-III deals with Form of Appeal to Appellate Tribunal as also memorandum of cross-objections to the Appellate Tribunal under section 129A(4) of the Customs Act. Form Number 82 relates to Appeal before the Commissioner (Appeals) under section 128 of the Customs Act, while Form Number 84 relates to Appeal before Appellate Tribunal under section 129A of the Customs Act. While there is no Form prescribed for filing cross-objection before Commissioner (Appeals), form No. 85 prescribes for filing memorandum of cross-objection to the Appellate Tribunal under sub-section (4) of Section 129A of the Customs Act. This also supports the view that cross-objections cannot be filed before the Commissioner (Appeals).

37. It also needs to be noted that the 1982 Rules deal with the procedure to be followed before the Appellate Tribunal. Rule 15 deals with filing of memorandum of cross-objection and is reproduced below:

"RULE 15. Filing of memorandum of cross-objections, applications or replies to appeals/applications. — Every memorandum of cross-objections filed, and every application made, under the provisions of the Acts, shall be registered and numbered, and the provisions of these rules, relating to appeals shall, so far as may be, apply to such memorandum or application."

38. It is, therefore, more than apparent that the Department could neither have filed an appeal before the Commissioner (Appeals) against a part of the order passed by the Deputy Commissioner nor it could have filed cross-objections in the appeal filed by the Vivo Mobile before the Commissioner (Appeals) against that part of the order sanctioning the refund amount since the right to file cross-objections has not been conferred under section 128 of the Customs Act, which deals with appeal to the Commissioner (Appeals).

39. The decisions relied upon by learned Senior counsel for Vivo Mobile in connection with the non-filing of cross-objections by the Department in the appeal filed by Vivo Mobile, therefore, have no relevance in the present case.

40. In Gannon Dunkerley, this Bench of the Tribunal had examined at length the relevant statutory provisions to determine whether an additional ground can be taken up under rule 10 of the 1982 Rules in an Appeal before the Tribunal. Though it is correct, as has been contended by learned Senior Counsel appearing for Vivo Mobile, that the ground that is sought to be added is contrary to a ground already taken in the Appeal since initially a ground was taken in the Appeal that the decision relied upon by the Deputy Commissioner was in connection with re-assessment of bills of entry and not unjust enrichment, but still in view of the decision of the Supreme Court in ITC limited, it is considered appropriate, in the facts and circumstances of the case, to permit the Appellant to raise an additional ground in the two Appeals in view of the principles of law laid down by this Bench in Gannon Dunkerley. The judgment of the Delhi High Court in Micromax Informatics, that was relied upon by the Deputy Commissioner, has been reversed by the Supreme Court in ITC Ltd and it is in view of the aforesaid judgment of the Supreme Court that the additional ground is sought to be added.
41. The leave sought by the Appellant to add an additional ground in the memo of the two appeals is granted. However, this would not mean that the issue raised in the additional ground has been decided in favour of the Appellant. This issue would be decided on merits at the time of hearing of the appeal and it will be open to the parties to make submissions. At this stage, only the applications filed by the Department for addition of an additional ground have been considered and allowed.

42. The appeals may now be listed for hearing on 06 July, 2020.

JAI SHIV TRADING CO.

Versus

COMMISSIONER OF CUSTOMS, NEW DELHI

REPRESENTED BY :Shri Priyanshu Uppadhyaya, Advocate, for the Appellant.

Shri Sunil Kumar, AR, for the Respondent.

[Order per : Justice Dilip Gupta, President]. - This appeal has been filed to assail that part of the order dated 27 December 2016 passed by Commissioner of Customs (Appeals) by which the request made by the appellant to re-export parts of calculators found in Semi-Knocked Down (herein after referred to as SKD) condition was rejected.

2. It transpires from the records that appellant had imported consignment of goods including calculators, regzine cover for calculators, button for calculators, plastic body for calculators, mounted PCB, paper box for calculators through Bill of Entry dated 11 January, 2016 and declared the value of the goods in the invoice to be USD 12386.19. The declared assessable value was Rs. 13,38,318.75 and duty assessed on the goods was mentioned as Rs. 11,57,672/- including the Anti-Dumping Duty on 9800 pieces of calculators mentioned in the Bill of Entry.

3. The goods were initially detained and subsequently examined on 13 January, 2016. On examination by SIIB, the goods were found to be packed in 921 cartons and woven bags containing parts of calculators of two models. These parts included front and back side plastic cover, rubberized key pad, mounted PCB with display and battery, packing material like polythene cover, paper boxes, tin boxes, rexine cover of wrist watches and calculators. A panchnama of the seized goods was prepared and the goods were stored in Bonded Warehouse.

4. On a market enquiry having been conducted, the valuation cum duty calculation chart was prepared by the Department on the basis of which the revised assessable value of the consignment was worked out to be Rs. 61,75,750/- against the declared value of Rs. 13,38,319/- and the revised Customs duty at the rate of 29.44 % was worked out to Rs.18,18,202/- against the declared Customs duty of Rs. 3,51,240/-. It was found that parts of calculators/calculators in SKD condition were also imported and on a simple assembly of these parts in the presence of the importer, 54000 pieces of functional calculators came into existence, which attracted Anti-Dumping Duty of Rs. 44,43,606/- at the rate of 1.22 USD per piece. The valuation of the parts of calculators was done on the basis of best judgment. It needs to be noted that in the Bill of Entry, the appellant had declared 9800 pieces of complete calculators and paid Anti-Dumping Duty of Rs. 8,06,432/- but on physical examination, only 8100 pieces of calculators were found attracting Anti-Dumping Duty of Rs. 6,66,541/-. Thus, the actual amount of Anti-dumping Duty, that was required to be paid by the appellant was worked out to be Rs. 43,03,715/-.

5. The appellant, by a letter dated 22 February, 2016 informed the department that it was not in a position to pay Anti-Dumping Duty on calculators in SKD conditions because if it was paid, the cost of the product would be higher than the sale price of the said product. It therefore, made a request to release the balance consignment except the calculator parts in SKD condition and stated that it was ready to pay the differential duty on the enhanced value and any redemption fine or personal penalty. The proprietor of the appellant firm also gave a statement under Section 108 of the Customs Act, 1962 that he did not desire that any show cause notice be issued or personal hearing to be granted and insisted that the case may be decided at the earliest.

6. The appellant on 13 April, 2016 requested the department for re-export of the calculators in SKD condition as it was not in a position to pay the Anti-Dumping Duty. The Adjudicating Authority rejected the request of the appellant for re-export for the reason that there was clear and deliberate mis-declaration of description, value and quantity of goods imported. The Adjudicating Authority observed that the appellants were well aware that calculators attracted Anti-Dumping Duty since it had declared some quantity of calculators for which it assessed Anti-Dumping Duty. The Adjudicating Authority found that the appellant had brought huge quantity of calculators by splitting them in parts with a view to evade payment of duty since a simple assembling of the parts resulted in a fully functional calculator without the use of any tool/equipment. The Adjudicating Authority also noted that the parts were assembled in the presence of the proprietor appellant and he admitted that fully functional calculators came into existence. The Adjudicating Authority also noticed that the identity of the supplier was suspect since no remittance was made though a period of six months period had elapsed from the date of shipment. The Adjudicating Authority also noticed that the appellant in his voluntary statement suppressed the fact that one more consignment was lying in ICD Tughlakabad Delhi in which the false statement stands established. It is for this reason that the Adjudicating Authority had preferred to reject the request made by the appellant for re-export of goods. The reasons for rejecting the re-export of the goods is contained in paragraphs 14 and 15 of the Order-in-Original passed on 10 June, 2016 and the same are reproduced below:

"14 For the sake of brevity, I will not repeat the facts of the case which have already been detailed in the preceding paras. The misdeclaration in the description and quantity of goods stand accepted by the importer in his various statements. It is also an admitted fact that the Importer had imported 54000 pcs of calculators in SKD condition by declaring them as parts of calculators with a view to evade anti-dumping Duty. The undervaluation of goods under import is also an admitted fact. Since only generic description of items was found in the NIDB data which could not be directly related to goods under import, recourse to market inquiry was made. In fact, the importer himself requested for market enquiry for ascertaining the true value of the goods under import. He himself associated in the market enquiries. The assessable value derived on the basis of market enquiries was accepted by him. The differential duty worked out on the basis of revised assessable values as well anti-dumping duty also stands accepted by the importer. It has also emerged that the importer had not stated that his other import consignment in his voluntary statement dated 21-1-2016. He had a container of similar items lying in ICD, Tughlakabad, Delhi for which he subsequently filed Bill of Entry Number No. 4432821 dated 2-3-2016 for which he had furnished two sets of invoices to DZU, DRI, Delhi. No remittance for the imports mentioned in the invoices was paid although more than six months have elapsed from the date of shipment of consignment. The importer is essentially a small time watch maker as could be made out from his Income Tax Return which shows an Income of Rs. 2.50 lakhs per annum in the past. It is incomprehensible that a man of meager means could import a consignment worth Rs. 67 lakh having market value of over 1.50 crores that too on credit basis. Further, there is no urgency from the supplier for his dues, which raises doubts about the bona fides of the importer and consignments imported by him. In view of foregoing discussions, I find that the value declared in the Bill of Entry filed for Home Consumption does not represent the correct value of the imported goods and the same is thus, liable to be rejected under Rule 12 of the Customs Valuation (Determination of Value of Imported Goods) Rules, 2007 and the same is required to be re-determined as per Rule 7 of the Rules ibid. I also find that the declaration of quantity and description of goods in the Bill of Entry No. 3871379 dated 11-1-2016 was not correct. The quantity of some goods found in excess in comparison to the declared quantity and some goods are also not declared in the Bill of Entry. Therefore, all the goods contained in Container No. NYKU0798672 covered under Bill of Entry No. 3871379 dated 11-1-2016 are liable to confiscation under Section 111(l) and (m) of the Customs Act, 1962. I also find that the goods i.e. calculator parts imported under the subject consignment, on simple assembling functioned as complete calculator and therefore, are covered by Notification No. 24/2015-Cus. (ADD), dated 29-5-2015 and attract anti-dumping duty. I find that the actual value and its respective duty and the anti-dumping duty of goods covered under the Bill of Entry is as under :

The Reasons for rejecting the request of the appellant for re-export of the goods is contained in paragraphs 14 and 15 of the Order-in-Original passed on 10 June, 2016 and the same are reproduced below:

"14 For the sake of brevity, I will not repeat the facts of the case which have already been detailed in the preceding paras. I also find that the goods i.e. calculator parts imported under the subject consignment, on simple assembling functioned as complete calculator and therefore, are covered by Notification No. 24/2015-Cus. (ADD), dated 29-5-2015 and attract anti-dumping duty. I find that the actual value and its respective duty and the anti-dumping duty of goods covered under the Bill of Entry is as under :
15. I find that the importer vide his various statements given from time to time have agreed with the content of the examination report and have also agreed to pay the differential duty, fine and penalty as may be imposed upon them under the provisions of Customs Act, 1962. There is no retraction of any of the statement of the importer. The guilt of the importer is admitted and established in view of foregoing discussions and findings. It would, thus, not be fair and proper to allow selective clearance of goods and permit re-export of goods attracting antidumping which the importer is now finding difficult to pay.”

7. Accordingly, the following order was passed by the Adjudicating Authority:

“17(i) I reject the declared value amounting to Rs. 13,38,318.75/- of the goods covered under Bill of Entry No. 3871379 dated 11-1-2016 under Rule 12 of the CVR, 2007 read with Section 14 of Customs Act, 1962.

(ii) I order for re-assessment of the goods covered under Bill of Entry No. 3871379 dated 11-1-2016 on re-determined assessable value as Rs. 61,75,750/- by sequential application under the provisions of Rule 7 of CVR, 2007, read with Section 14 of the Customs Act, 1962. I confirm the duty of Rs. 18,18,202/- on re-determined assessable value of Rs. 61,75,750/-. Thus, the duty amounting to Rs. 3,51,240/- already paid against the above said Bill of Entry is adjusted against the said demanded amount and the differential amount of Rs. 14,66,962/- is required to be paid forthwith under Section 28(1) of the Customs Act, 1962 along with interest at the appropriate rate before clearance of the goods.

(iii) I also confirm the demand of differential anti-dumping duty of Rs. 43,03,715/- on the calculators imported as calculator parts under the subject consignment in accordance with the Notification No. 24/2015-Cus. (ADD) dated 29-5-2015.

(iv) I also order for confiscation of the goods totally valued at Rs. 61,75,750/- under Section 111 of the Customs Act, 1962, however, I give an option to the importer to redeem the goods on payment of appropriate customs duty Redemption Fine of Rs. 12 lakhs (Rupees Twelve lakhs only) under Section 125(f) of the Customs Act, 1962.

(v) I impose a penalty of Rs. 4 lakh (Rupees Four lakh only) on the importer M/s. Jai Shiv Trading Co. under Section 112(a) and a penalty of Rs. 4 lakh (Rupees Four lakh only) under 114AA of the Customs Act, 1962 for its various acts of omission and which have rendered the goods liable to confiscation. I refrain from imposing penalty separately on Shri Jai Prakash Sharma as Jai Shiv Trading Company is a Proprietorship firm.

8. It is against this order dated 10 June 2016 that the appellant filed an appeal before Commissioner of Customs (Appeals). The Commissioner of Customs (Appeals) accepted the contention of the appellant that there was no valid reason for enhancement of the value of the goods but did not accept the plea of the appellant for re-export of the calculator in SKD condition. Regarding the issue as to whether the calculators in SKD condition can be said to be functional as calculators attracting Anti-Dumping Duty, the Commissioner found that the appellant had actually imported functional calculators in the garb of calculators in SKD condition and the relevant paragraphs are given below:

“8. As regards the calculator parts/calculator in SKD condition, imported by the Appellant, I find that the proprietor of the Appellant firm, in his referred statements recorded under Section 108 of the Customs Act, 1962, has categorically admitted to the fact that parts of calculator declared in the Bill of Entry i.e. button for calculator plastic button for calculator, mounted PCB with display screen and battery, rexine cover, paper boxes for calculator, etc. when assembled together, formed a complete functional calculator, which was made in front of him only during the course of examination/investigations. Further, he has also accepted that such complete calculator and calculators in SKD form, attract payment of Anti-dumping duty.

8.1 Hence, from the abovesaid statements of the proprietor of the Appellant firm, which have remained unrebutted in the entirety of the present case and have not been retracted at any juncture, it is evident that they had actually imported functional calculators in the garb of parts.
8.3 Hence, applying the ratio of the above-said judgment to the facts and circumstances of the instant case as well as on the basis of unimpeachable evidences on record, I find that the calculator parts imported by the Appellant, which could be assembled as 54000 Pcs. Of calculators, are nothing but a functional calculator in itself. In the matter of anti-dumping duty on parts of CFL imported from China and Hongkong Board vide Circular No. 43/2010-Cus., dated 6-12-2010 from F.No. 528/83/2007-Cus (TU) clarified that “.........Thus, when any article such as CFL is imported in CKD/SKD condition, its classification for purpose of assessment would be done as complete or finished article in terms of Rule 2(a) of the General Interpretation Rules. Accordingly, when anti-dumping duty is attracted on any article then it is also to be levied if the said article is imported in CKD/SKD condition either together in one lot or part shipments. All pending assessments, if any, may be finalized accordingly.

Board’s Circular is squarely applicable to the impugned case of import of parts of calculators which when assembled together, make a complete, functional calculator. Thus parts of calculators imported in CKD/SKD conditions will be treated as a complete, finished article for the purpose of assessment as per Rule 2(a) ibid. Accordingly, the same attracts the levy of anti-dumping duty @ 1.22 USD per piece as per Notification No. 24/2015-Cus. (ADD), dated 29-5-2015, which works out to Rs. 51,10,147/- and after adjusting the amount already paid of Rs. 8,06,432/-, the differential ADD is now worked out to Rs. 43,03,715/-. Since the levy of ADD is per piece, the issue of valuation on the basis of best judgment for the levy of ADD is legally correct and proper.”

9. It is for this reason that the Commissioner of Customs (Appeals) directed the Adjudicating Authority to split out the value of parts of calculators in SKD condition and that of the remaining goods and rework the Customs duty leviable on each category to enable the appellant to exercise his option for redemption fine under Section 125 of the Act. The relevant paragraphs are reproduced:

“9.9 Thus, from the factual position already noted, it is clear that there is no valid reason for enhancement of value in the present case. It is well-settled that the imported goods are required to be assessed at the transaction value unless the transaction value is required to be rejected for the reasons mentioned in Rule 4. When there is no evidence of contemporaneous imports at a higher price the invoice price is liable to be accepted. Under the given circumstances, I find that the increase in value is more of arbitrary rather than on the legal provisions. Since it is materially evident that the reason for enhancement is not substantiated in any manner, such enhancement of the declared value is set aside and I further hold that the declared value is to be treated as appropriate value under Section 14 of the Act ibid for assessment and for the payment of appropriate Customs duty accordingly. In view of the above said discussions, the learned Adjudicating authority is directed to separate out the “value of parts of calculators in SKD condition” and that of “the remaining goods” and re-work the Customs duty liability on each category for enabling the appellant to exercise his option for redemption under Section 125 of the Act ibid.

10. I further find that the Appellant had sought re-export of parts of calculators, found in SKD condition. In this context, I find that Para 11 and para 14 of the impugned appeal file particularly prove the aforesaid reason to why such request for re-export is rejected. On analyzing the same, I am of the view that the said request has been rightly rejected, hence, needs no further interference.

11. Having regard to the totality of the facts and circumstances as discussed above, I am inclined to reduce the redemption fine to Rs. 3 lakh (Rupees Three lakhs only) and reduce the penalty to Rs. 1 Lakh (Rs. One Lakh only) under each Section 112(a) & Section 114AA of the Customs Act, 1962 separately.

12. Further, the Appellant herein shall be given release of the said confiscated goods to the extent of option being given subject to the payment of tax and dues along with Redemption Fine and penalty as held above.

13. It is against this order dated 27 December 2016 that both the appellant and the Department filed appeals before this Tribunal. The appeal filed by the Department insofar as it related to the value of the goods, was dismissed by the Tribunal by order dated 4 September, 2017.

14. Learned Counsel for the appellant submitted that there was no good reason as to why the request of the appellant for re-export of the calculators in SKD condition should have been rejected by the Adjudicating Authority. It is his submission that if the appellant is not permitted to re-export the goods, the cost of the calculators would be more than the market price, and the appellant would suffer enormous loss. It is his submission that in the facts and circumstances of the case, the Adjudicating Authority should have exercised its discretion in favour of the appellant. In support of his contention, learned Counsel has relied upon certain judgments to which we shall refer to.
15. Learned representative of the Department has, however, supported the impugned order and has submitted that the appellant was well aware that Anti-Dumping Duty was required to be paid on calculators that were imported and that is why in addition to the calculators that he had imported, he also imported calculators in SKD condition and when they were assembled, even according to the appellant, they resulted in a functional calculator. His submission is that it was the intention of the appellant to import computers in SKD condition with a view to evade payment of Anti-Dumping Duty and since this fact came to the knowledge of the Department, he has now made a request for re-export of the calculators in SKD condition.

16. We have considered the submissions advanced by the learned Counsel for the appellant and the learned representative of the Department.

17. It is not in dispute that the appellant had imported calculators in SKD condition of two models with other materials, including calculators. It is also not in dispute that the appellant had paid Anti-Dumping Duty on the calculators that were imported. The issue is only about the calculators in SKD condition as according to the Department, on assembling, they resulted in fully functional calculators. The calculators in SKD condition were assembled in the presence of the Proprietor of the appellant and it was admitted by him that after assembly fully functional calculators came into existence. It is, therefore, clear that the appellant had imported calculators in SKD condition with a view to evade Anti-Dumping Duty since Anti-Dumping Duty is levied on finished calculators. However, when this fact was detected by the Department, the Appellant made a request for re-export of the goods. This request was rejected by the Adjudicating Authority and the Appellate Authority and in our considered view for good and valid reasons.

18. The decisions relied upon by the learned Counsel of the appellants do not come to his aid.

19. In Mahi Enterprises v. CC, Chennai III reported in [2018 (360) E.L.T. 443 (Mad)] the Madras High Court disposed of the writ petition by merely directing the appellant to seek re-export of the items. In Commissioner of Customs (Sea-Import) Chennai v. Haunt Sales Corporation reported in [2015 (327) E.L.T. 300 (Tri.-Chennai)], a Bench of this Tribunal at Chennai allowed the re-export of the impugned goods for the reason that there was a doubt as to whether the goods originated from Malaysia or China. In Cosmos Trading Co. v. Commissioner of Customs, Kandla reported in [2006 (205) E.L.T. 234 (Tri.-Mumbai)], the request made by the appellant for re-export of the goods was accepted by the Mumbai Bench of the Tribunal for the reason that the goods had not been correctly supplied. In Commissioner of Customs Chennai v. Sharda Impex reported in [2006 (195) E.L.T. 85 (Tri.-Del)], the Principal Bench dismissed the appeal filed by the Department against the directions that had been issued for re-export of the goods for the reason that the respondent therein had placed an order for supply of lamps of Malaysian origin but the goods that were supplied were of Chinese origin.

20. The factual position in the present case is entirely different. As noted above, the Appellant had imported calculators in SKD condition with a view to assemble them as fully functional calculators to avoid Anti-Dumping Duty. It cannot, therefore, be permitted to re-export the calculators in SKD condition when the Department detained the goods and after examination concluded that after assembly, fully functional calculators came into existence.

21. There is, therefore, no error in the order passed by the Commissioner of Customs. The Appeal is, therefore, liable to be dismissed and is, accordingly, dismissed.

Per: Dilip Gupta:

Nevinomyssky Azot The appellant has filed an application for condonation of delay in filing this Anti-Dumping Appeal that has been filed under section 9C of the Customs Tariff Act 1975 Tariff Act. Sub-section (1) of section 9C of the Tariff Act provides that an appeal against the order of determination regarding the existence, degree and effect of any subsidy or dumping in relation to import of any article shall lie to the Tribunal. Sub-section (2) provides that every appeal under this section shall be filed within 90 days of the date of order under appeal, but the Appellate Tribunal may entertain any appeal after the expiry of the said period of 90 days, if it is satisfied that the appellant was prevented by sufficient cause from filing the appeal in time.

2. This appeal was filed in the office on December 01, 2020 with the following principle reliefs:

"a) Hold that the Respondent No. 1 (The Designated Authority) incorrectly did not include the appellant in the duty table and did not recommend 'NIL' rate of duty thereof and declare the impugned corrigendum dated April 25, 2018 issued by Respondent No, 1 as issued contrary to the applicable law and well-established principles of natural justice and fairness;

b) Issue an order or direction to call for, examine the records in relation to and quash the impugned corrigendum dated April 25, 2018 issued by Respondent No. 1 to the extent it affects the Appellant; and"
c) Issue an order or directions, directing the Respondent No. 2 (The Union of India) to issue customs notification giving effect to or acting upon the first corrigendum dated December 19, 2017 issued by Respondent No. 1.

3. To appreciate the aforesaid reliefs claimed in the appeal, it would be necessary to state certain relevant facts. It is on the basis of the recommendations made in the final findings by the Designated Authority that the Central Government issued a Customs Notification dated September 12, 2017 imposing anti-dumping duties and so far as the appellant is concerned, it was subjected to a residual rate of duty. In the first corrigendum dated December 19, 2017 issued by Designated Authority, the duty for the appellant was specified as 'NIL', but this corrigendum was withdrawn by the second corrigendum dated April 25, 2018 issued by the Designated Authority. The second corrigendum was notified by the Central Government by a Notification dated May 25, 2018 but this was not in connection with the duty specified for the appellant.

4. It would be seen from the aforesaid reliefs that have been claimed by the appellant in the appeal that no reliefs have been claimed for setting aside the Customs Notification dated September 12, 2017 issued by the Central Government or the final findings dated August 1, 2017 issued by the Designated Authority. The reliefs that have been sought are for quashing the second corrigendum dated April 25, 2018 and for issuance of a Customs Notification to give effect to the first corrigendum dated December 19, 2017.

5. Thus, if the period of limitation is counted from September 12, 2017, which is the date when the Central Government issued the Customs Notification imposing anti-dumping duty, there would be a delay of about three years in filing the appeal since the appeal has to be filed, as contemplated under section 9C of the Tariff Act, within 90 days of the date of the order and the appeal was actually filed on December 1, 2020. However, if the limitation is to be calculated in terms of the third relief claimed by the appellant which is for acting on the first corrigendum dated December 19, 2017, then there would be a delay of about two years and nine months. If the limitation is to be calculated from the second relief, namely for quashing the second corrigendum dated April 25, 2018, then the delay would be of about two years and five months.

6. To explain the delay, the appellant has stated the following facts in the delay condonation application:

"4.  Meanwhile the recommended anti-dumping duty in the final findings was given effect to by the Respondent No. 2 vide Notification No. 44/2017-Customs (ADD) dt. 12.09.2017. Pursuant to the representations made to the Respondent No. 1, first corrigendum notification dt. 19.12.2017 was issued by the Respondent No. 1 including the Applicant in the duty table and providing 'NIL rate of anti-dumping duty.

5. However, the Respondent No. 2 did not give effect to the first corrigendum notification dt. 19. 12.2017; and on 25.04.2018, the Respondent No. 1 issued the impugned (second) corrigendum notification withdrawing the first corrigendum notification dated 19.12.2017, amongst other amendments to the final findings, without providing any reason. This impugned corrigendum was given effect to vide Notification No. 29/2018-Customs (ADD) dt. 25.04.2018 (should be 25.05.2018) issued by the Respondent No. 2. Thus, the Applicant continued being subjected to the residual rate of anti-dumping duty.

6. That pursuant to the issuance of customs notification giving effect to the second corrigendum notification, the Applicant’s parent group, EuroChem Group AG on 26.06.2018 approached the Trade Representative of Russian Federation in India to obtain comments from the Respondent No. 1, with respect to the reasons for withdrawal of the first corrigendum notification dt. 19.12.2017 which provided the relief sought by the Applicant. The Respondent No. 1 replied to the letter from the Trade Representative of Russian Federation in India on 10.07.2018. However, it did not address the concern regarding such withdrawal. Instead, the Respondent No. 1 simply mentioned that the same has been addressed in the final findings dt. 01.08.2017. The last dated of filing an appeal before this Hon’ble Tribunal under Section 9C of the Customs Tariff Act, 1975 was 23.08.2020. (should, be 23.08.2018 if the limitation is calculated from the date of issue of second corrigendum on 25.5.2018.)
7. As the reply from the Respondent No. 1 was received not long before the expiry of the statutory time period of filing the appeal pursuant to which the Applicant internally assessed its options, the same had resulted in the lapse of the statutory period for filing an appeal under Section 9C of the Act.

8. That after a year of refusal of EuroChem Group AG's request to provide single dumping margin to the Applicant and NAK Azot and several internal deliberations, the fact that the Applicant maintains its plans to export the PUC to India; the Applicant pursued this issue again with the Respondent No. 1 vide its letter dt. 07.11.2019 (filed on 11.11.2019) which highlighted that the non-issuance of a single dumping margin for NAK Azot and Nevinka- the Applicant, is inconsistent with the India's obligations provided under the WTO Agreement on Anti-Dumping ("ADA"), the Indian Anti-dumping laws, the Respondent No.1's Manual of Operating practices for Trade Remedy Investigations as well as the established past practices.

9. The Applicant filed another letter with the Respondent No. 1 dt. 20.01.2020, a reminder letter dt. 28.02.2020 and two reminder emails dt. 24.04.2020 and 10.07.2020 seeking a response to the request filed by the Applicant through its parent group on 11.11.2019. However, the no response has been received from the Respondent No. 1 till date.

10. That since the Applicant has not received any response from the Respondent No. 1 to the repeated requests filed by its parent group with respect to granting single dumping margin and individual rate of anti-dumping duty for the Applicant or the reasons for not granting such request, the Applicant has preferred the instant appeal with a delay of 2 years. Such delay was caused as the Applicant believed that its requests will be heard appropriately and responded by the Respondent No. 1 adequately; and the same was purely bona fide and in good faith."

(emphasis supplied)

7. In short, the applicant has stated that after the issue of the Customs Notification dated September 12, 2017 specifying residual duty for the appellant, a representation was submitted by the appellant which resulted in the issue of the first corrigendum dated December 19, 2017 by the Designated Authority specifying that the appellant would be subjected to 'Nil' rate of duty. However, the Central Government did not issue any Customs Notification to give effect to the said recommendation made by the Designated Authority and in fact by a second corrigendum dated April 25, 2018, the Designated Authority withdrew the first corrigendum. This resulted in the filing of another representation before the Designated Authority but the Designated Authority, by letter dated July 10, 2018, informed the appellant that the issue raised that it should be granted the same treatment as the related producer had been addressed in the final findings of the Designated Authority. Various representations were again submitted for the same relief but since no decision was taken, the appellant preferred this appeal.

8. To be able to appreciate the grounds taken in the delay condonation applications, it would be necessary to narrate the relevant facts.

9. The records indicate that the Domestic Industry, which has been impleaded as Respondents in this appeal, had jointly filed an application before the Designated Authority for initiation of anti-dumping investigation concerning imports of "Ammonium Nitrate" originating in or exported from Russia, Indonesia, Georgia and Iran. The investigation was initiated by a Notification dated August 05, 2016 and the final findings of the Designated Authority were notified by a Notification dated August 01, 2017. Residual duty was specified for the appellant. The request made by the appellant for determination of individual dumping margin was not accepted for the reason that it had not exported the product under consideration during the period of investigation as a result of which individual dumping margin could not be assessed in the absence of export price. It needs to be said that the appellant had made a request that it should have the same dumping margin (Nil) as was assessed for the related producer namely Novomoskovskovkaya (NakAzot).

10. The recommendation made by the Designated Authority for imposition of definitive anti-dumping duty on the imports of subject goods was considered by the Central Government and a Customs Notification dated September 12, 2017 was issued imposing anti-dumping duty at the rate specified in the corresponding entry in Column No. 8. The portion of the Notification relevant for the purpose of this appeal is reproduced below:

11. The appellant made a representation before the Designated Authority that the appellant should not have been subjected to a residual rate of duty and 'NIL' rate of anti-dumping duty, as was fixed for its related producer, should have been specified for the appellant.

12. On record is a corrigendum dated December 19, 2017 issued by the Designated Authority including the appellant in the duty table and specifying 'NIL' rate of duty for the appellant. The relevant portion of the said corrigendum dated December 19, 2017 is reproduced below:

13. There is nothing on record to indicate that this corrigendum was considered by the Central Government since Customs Notification was not issued by the Central Government in the Official Gazette imposing 'NIL' rate of duty for the Appellant.

14. At this stage it needs to be noted that four appeals were filed before the Tribunal against the Customs Notification dated September 12, 2017 issued by the Central Government and the final findings dated August 01, 2017 of the Designated Authority. Three appeals were filed by the partners/user of the subject goods, while the fourth appeal was filed by the exporter of such goods. All the four appeals were dismissed by the Tribunal by order dated March 16, 2018. The Special Leave to Appeal against the order of the Tribunal was also dismissed by the Supreme Court.

15. It also transpires from the record that the Designated Authority issued a second corrigendum dated April 25, 2018 withdrawing the first corrigendum dated December 19, 2017 and also correcting certain typographical errors in the final findings. The Central Government, being satisfied that it was necessary in the public interest to do so, made an amendment in the Customs Notification dated September 12, 2017 to the following effect:-

“In the said notification, in the TABLE, against serial number 1, in column (7), the entry “Euro Chem Trading GMBH through Rawfert Offshore Sal, Lebanon” shall be substituted.”

16. Thus, the appellant continued to be subjected to the residual rate of anti-dumping duty. It is stated that the parent group of the Appellant, namely Euro Chem Group, thereafter approached the Trade Representative of the Russian Federation in India. After pointing out the aforesaid facts, it was stated in the aforesaid letter that Euro Chem would be forced to approach Courts to eliminate the imposition of anti-dumping duty and to seek reason from the Designated Authority for cancellation of the first corrigendum dated December 19, 2017. The Trade Representative of the Russian Federation in India, accordingly, sent a letter dated July 02, 2018 to the Designated Authority. In response to the said letter, the Designated Authority sent a communication dated July 10, 2018 to the Trade Representative of the Russian Federation in India informing them that based on the final findings dated August 01, 2017, the Central Government had issued the Customs Notification dated September 12, 2017 and the issue raised had been addressed in the final findings dated August 01, 2017.

17. The appellant claims that thereafter further representations were sent by Euro Chem on November 07, 2019, January 20, 2020, February 20, 2020, and April 24, 2020. The relief claimed in all these representations was for re-issuance of corrigendum dated December 19, 2017 and to provide a single dumping margin for the appellant as was for its related producer but as no decision was taken, this appeal was filed under section 9C of the Tariff Act on December 1, 2020 with a prayer that it should be held that the Designated Authority should have recommended 'NIL' rate of duty for the appellant and the second corrigendum dated April 25, 2018 issued by the Designated Authority to the extent it affects the appellant should be set aside. A further prayer was made that a direction should be issued to the Union of India to issue a Customs Notification "giving effect to or acting upon the first corrigendum dated 19/12/2017" issued by the Designated Authority.

18. The relevant facts have been stated and so the submissions advanced on behalf of the parties can be now considered.

19. Shri Sandeep Sethi, learned Counsel for the Appellant made the following submissions:-

(i) The Designated Authority had realised its mistake in not including the appellant in the duty table with its related company for imposition of 'NIL' rate of duty and, therefore, issued the first corrigendum dated December 19, 2017, but without issuing any notice to the appellant it withdrew the first corrigendum by a second corrigendum dated April 25, 2018. The second corrigendum had, therefore, been issued in violation of principles of natural justice as no opportunity was provided to the appellant;
(ii) The parent company of the appellant had represented against the issue of second corrigendum but the Designated Authority informed the parent company, by letter dated July 10, 2018, that the issues raised by the Trade Representatives of the Russian Federation had already been addressed in the final finding dated August 01, 2017. Thereafter, various representations were submitted on behalf of the appellant before the Designated Authority for re-issue of the first corrigendum and for acting upon it. The delay in filing this appeal has occurred because the appellant genuinely believed that the prayer made in the representations would be accepted and a corrigendum would be issued by the Designated Authority, followed by a Customs Notification by the Central Government. In such circumstances the delay is not deliberate and deserves to be condoned; and

(iii) The appellant has a good case on merits and if the delay is not condoned, great prejudice would be caused to the appellant as it would have to pay the residual duty as against ‘NIL’ duty. In support of this submission learned counsel placed reliance upon a decision of the Tribunal in M/s Greenply Industries Ltd. v/s Union of India and others Anti-Dumping Appeal No. 52357 of 2016 decided on September 15, 2016.

20. Mrs. Reena Khair, learned Counsel for the Domestic Industry opposed the Delay Condonation Application and made the following submissions:

(i) The only course open to the appellant was to have assailed the Customs Notification dated September 12, 2017 issued by the Central Government after considering the final findings dated August 01, 2017 of the Designated Authority and so this appeal has been filed with inordinate delay of more than three years as the time prescribed for filing an appeal under section 9C of the Tariff Act is only 90 days. In support of this contention learned counsel placed reliance upon a decision of the Supreme Court in Balwant Singh v/s Jagdish Singh and Others (2010) 8 Supreme Court Cases 685;

(ii) In fact four appeals were filed to assail the Notification dated September 12, 2017 and the final findings dated August 01, 2017 in which the appellant was also impleaded as a respondent. All these appeals were dismissed by the Tribunal and the Special Leave to Appeal (Civil Appeal No. 19899 of 2018) filed to assail the order passed by the Tribunal was also dismissed by the Supreme Court; and

(iii) No satisfactory explanation has been offered by the appellant for the inordinate delay in filing the appeal.

21. Shri Ameet Singh, learned counsel appearing for the Designated Authority also submitted that the appellant has failed to furnish any satisfactory explanation for the inordinate delay in filing the appeal. Learned counsel submitted that the appellant was well aware of the remedies available to it for challenging the Customs Notification dated September 12, 2017 and the final findings dated August 01, 2017 of the Designated Authority but still it waited for over three years to file this appeal.

22. Shri Sunil Kumar, learned Authorized Representative appearing for the Department also urged that the Delay Condonation Application should be dismissed as it has been filed with inordinate delay. Reliance has been placed upon a decision of Supreme Court in Esha Bhattacharjee v/s Managing Committee of Raghunathpur Nafar Academy and Ors. (2013) 12 SCC 649

23. The submissions advanced by learned counsel for the parties and the learned Authorized Representative of the Department have been considered.

24. The appellant is actually aggrieved by the Customs Notification dated September 12, 2017 as the appellant was subjected to a residual rate of duty even though according to the appellant it should have been subjected to ‘NIL’ rate of anti-dumping duty like its related producer. The appellant clearly had a remedy available under section 9C of the Tariff Act of filing an appeal within a period of 90 days from the date of the Customs Notification. The appellant did not file the appeal within the aforesaid period of 90 days even though four appeals were filed before the Tribunal by different parties against the aforesaid final findings and the Customs Notification. It needs to be noted that the appellant was impleaded as a Respondent in the appeals. All the four appeals were ultimately dismissed by the Tribunal on March 16, 2018 and the Special Leave to Appeal was dismissed by the Supreme Court.

25. The appellant has concealed essential material facts in this application filed for condonation of delay in as much as no statement has been made that four appeals were filed by other interested parties before the Tribunal to challenge the Customs Notification dated September 12, 2017 issued by the Central Government imposing anti-dumping duty on the basis of the recommendation dated August 01, 2017 made by the Designated Authority, particularly when the appellant was impleaded as a Respondent in the said appeals. This fact alone disentitles the appellant to seek any discretion in a matter where there is a delay of about three years in filing the appeal. The fact regarding filing of four appeals was brought to the notice of the Bench only by the learned counsel appearing for the Domestic Industry.

26. The appellant did pursue the matter with the Designated Authority and a corrigendum dated December 19, 2017 was issued by the Designated Authority modifying the duty table in the final findings by specifying individual rate for the appellant, namely 'NIL' rate of duty which was the rate of duty specified for the related producer.

27. It is doubtful whether the Designated Authority could have modified the duty for the appellant specified in its final findings, because it was not a typographical mistake as a categorical finding had been recorded by the Designated Authority in the final findings that the request made by the appellant for determination of individual dumping margin could not be accepted for the reason that it had not exported the product under consideration during the period of investigation as a result of which the export price could not be assessed. The Designated Authority also held that it was not desirable to consider the request of the appellant that the same dumping margin should be specified as was assessed for the related producer. Even otherwise, the Central Government did not issue a Customs Notification in the Official Gazette accepting the recommendations of the Designated Authority. Thus, for all the practical purposes, the first corrigendum issued by the Designated Authority did not result in any benefit to the appellant, and it should have continued to pay the residual duty that was notified in the Customs Notification dated September 09, 2017 issued by the Central Government.

28. The appellant, however, still kept quiet and did not, at the appropriate time, take recourse to proceedings contemplated in law for either setting aside the Customs Notification dated September 12, 2017 or for implementation of the recommendation made by the Designated Authority in the first corrigendum by issuance of a Customs Notification by the Central Government. It is only in this appeal filed on December 1, 2020 that a prayer has now been made that the Central Government may issue such a Customs Notification.

29. The Designated Authority ultimately, withdrew the first corrigendum dated December 19, 2017 by a subsequent corrigendum dated April 25, 2018.

30. On behalf of the appellant a representation was thereafter made to the Designated Authority for specifying an individual rate for the appellant but the Designated Authority made it clear to the appellant, by a letter dated July 10, 2018, that such a request cannot be accepted for the reason that this issue had already been addressed by the Designated Authority in the final findings.

31. Though, as stated above, the cause of action actually arose when the Central Government issued the Customs Notification dated September 12, 2017 specifying the duty on the basis of the final findings recommended by the Designated Authority and even if it is assumed that the appellant believed that its grievance would be addressed by the Central Government when the first corrigendum dated December 19, 2017 was issued by the Designated Authority, but still the appellant could not have waited endlessly and should have immediately taken recourse to legal proceeding when the recommendations made by the Designated Authority in the first corrigendum were not considered by the Central Government nor any Customs Notification was issued by the Central Government for accepting such a recommendation made by the Designated Authority.

32. However, the appellant did not approach the Tribunal or took recourse to any other proceedings and continued to make several representations, even though the Designated Authority had specifically informed the appellant that it would not consider the issue raised on behalf of the appellant since it had been decided in the final findings of the Designated Authority. These representations, therefore, cannot enure to the benefit of the appellant for explaining this long delay in filing the appeal on December 01, 2020.
33. Learned Counsel for the appellant has placed reliance upon a decision of this Tribunal in Greenply Industries Ltd., which is also in connection with anti-dumping appeal. The Bench noted that though the grounds mentioned for explaining the delay were not substantial, but considering the larger issue on the merits of the case, if any, the delay was condoned. This cannot mean that in all cases where merit is to be considered, the delay should be condoned. Each case has to be examined on its own facts. In fact the Bench itself was conscious of this fact and treated the views to have been expressed by it ‘as a special case’.

34. Learned counsel for the Domestic Industry has, however, placed reliance on a decision of the Supreme Court in Balwant Singh. While examining the provisions of order 22 rule 9(2) and (3) of the Code of Civil Procedure 1908 in a case when there was a delay of 778 days in filing an application for bringing on record the legal representative of the deceased appellant, the Supreme Court observed:-

25. We may state that even if the term ‘sufficient cause’ has to receive liberal construction, it must squarely fall within the concept of reasonable time and proper conduct of the concerned party. The purpose of introducing liberal construction normally is to introduce the concept of ‘reasonableness’ as it is understood in its general connotation.

26. The law of limitation is a substantive law and has definite consequences on the right and obligation of a party to arise. These principles should be adhered to and applied appropriately depending on the facts and circumstances of a given case. Once a valuable right, has accrued in favour of one party as a result of the failure of the other party to explain the delay by showing sufficient cause and its own conduct, it will be unreasonable to take away that right on the mere asking of the applicant, particularly when the delay is directly a result of negligence, default or inaction of that party. Justice must be done to both parties equally. Then alone the ends of justice can be achieved. If a party has been thoroughly negligent in implementing its rights and remedies, it will be equally unfair to deprive the other party of a valuable right that has accrued to it in law as a result of his acting vigilantly.

27. The application filed by the applicants lack in details. Even the averments made are not correct and ex-facie lack bona fide. The explanation has to be reasonable or plausable, so as to persuade the Court to believe that the explanation rendered is not only true, but is worthy of exercising judicial discretion in favour of the applicant. If it does not specify any of the enunciated ingredients of judicial pronouncements, then the application should be dismissed. On the other hand, if the application is bona fide and based upon true and plausible explanations, as well as reflect normal behaviour of a common prudent person on the part of the applicant, the Court would normally tilt the judicial discretion in favour of such an applicant. Liberal construction cannot be equated with doing injustice to the other party.

35. The expression ‘sufficient cause’ implies the presence of legal and adequate reasons. The word ‘sufficient’ means adequate enough, as much as may be necessary to answer the purpose intended. It embraces no more than that which provides a plentitude which, when done, suffices to accomplish the purpose intended in the light of existing circumstances and when viewed from the reasonable standard of practical and cautious men. The sufficient cause should be such as it would persuade the Court, in exercise of its judicial discretion, to treat the delay as an excusable one. These provisions give the Courts enough power and discretion to apply a law in a meaningful manner, while assuring that the purpose of enacting such a law does not stand frustrated.

38. Above are the principles which should control the exercise of judicial discretion vested in the Court under these provisions. The explained delay should be clearly understood in contradistinction to inordinate unexplained delay. Delay is just one of the ingredients which has to be considered by the Court. In addition to this, the Court must also take into account the conduct of the parties, bona fide reasons for condonation of delay and whether such delay could easily be avoided by the applicant acting with normal care and caution. The statutory provisions mandate that applications for condonation of delay and applications belatedly filed beyond the prescribed period of limitation for bringing the legal representatives on record, should be rejected unless sufficient cause is shown for condonation of delay. The larger benches as well as equi-benches of this Court have consistently followed these principles and have either allowed or declined to condone the delay in filing such applications. Thus, it is the requirement of law that these applications cannot be allowed as a matter of right and even in a routine manner. An applicant must essentially satisfy the above stated ingredients; then alone the Court would be inclined to condone the delay in the filing of such applications."

35. It would also be necessary to refer to the decision of the Supreme Court in Ramlal v. Rewa Coalfields Ltd. AIR 1962 SC 361 The observation are as follows:-

"7. In construing Section 5 it is relevant to bear in mind two important considerations. The first consideration is that the expiration of the period of limitation prescribed for making an appeal gives rise to a right in favour of the decree holder to treat the decree as binding between the parties. In other words, when the period of limitation prescribed has expired the decree-holder has obtained a benefit under the law of limitation to treat the decree as beyond challenge, and this legal right which has accrued to the decree holder by lapse of time should not be light heartedly disturbed. The other consideration which cannot be ignored is that if sufficient cause for excusing delay is shown discretion is given to the Court to condone delay and admit the appeal. This discretion has been deliberately conferred on the Court in order that judicial power and discretion in that behalf should be exercised to advance substantial justice. As has been observed by the Madras High Court in Krishna v. Chathappan, ILR 13 Mad 269.

12. It is, however, necessary to emphasize that even after sufficient cause has been shown a party is not entitled to the condonation of delay in question as a matter of right. The proof of a sufficient cause is a condition precedent for the exercise of the discretionary jurisdiction vested in the court by Section 5. If sufficient cause is not proved nothing further has to be done; the application for condoning delay has to be dismissed on that ground alone. If sufficient cause is shown then the Court has to enquire whether in its discretion it should condone the delay. This aspect of the matter naturally introduces the consideration of all relevant facts and it is at this stage that diligence of the party or its bona fides may fall for consideration;"

36. In Esha Bhattacharjee, which decision has been relied upon by the learned Authorized Representative of the Department, reference has been made to the decision of the Supreme Court in Balwant Singh. The Supreme court culled out the following principles:-

"From the aforesaid authorities the principles that can broadly be culled out are:

i) There should be a liberal, pragmatic, justice-oriented, non-pedantic approach while dealing with an application for condonation of delay, for the courts are not supposed to legalise injustice but are obliged to remove injustice.

ii) The terms “sufficient cause” should be understood in their proper spirit, philosophy and purpose regard being had to the fact that these terms are basically elastic and are to be applied in proper perspective to the obtaining fact- situation.

iii) Substantial justice being paramount and pivotal the technical considerations should not be given undue and uncalled for emphasis.

iv) No presumption can be attached to deliberate causation of delay but, gross negligence on the part of the counsel or litigant is to be taken note of.

v) Lack of bona fides imputable to a party seeking condonation of delay is a significant and relevant fact.

vi) It is to be kept in mind that adherence to strict proof should not affect public justice and cause public mischief because the courts are required to be vigilant so that in the ultimate eventuate there is no real failure of justice.

vii) The concept of liberal approach has to encapsulate the conception of reasonableness and it cannot be allowed a totally unfettered free play.

viii) There is a distinction between inordinate delay and a delay of short duration or few days, for to the former doctrine of prejudice is attracted whereas to the latter it may not be attracted. That apart, the first one warrants strict approach whereas the second calls for a liberal delineation.

ix) The conduct, behavior and attitude of a party relating to its inaction or negligence are relevant factors to be taken into consideration. It is so as the fundamental principle is that the courts are required to weigh the scale of balance of justice in respect of both parties and the said principle cannot be given a total go by in the name of liberal approach.

x) If the explanation offered is concocted or the grounds urged in the application are fanciful, the courts should be vigilant not to expose the other side unnecessarily to face such a litigation.

xi) It is to be borne in mind that no one gets away with fraud, misrepresentation or interpolation by taking recourse to the technicalities of law of limitation.

xii) The entire gamut of facts are to be carefully scrutinized and the approach should be based on the paradigm of judicial discretion which is founded on objective reasoning and not on individual perception.

xiii) The State or a public body or an entity representing a collective cause should be given some acceptable latitude.

(emphasis supplied)

37. The following principles follow from the aforesaid decisions of the Supreme Court:-

(i) The law of limitation is a substantive law and once a valuable right has accrued to a party as a result of the failure of the other party to explain the delay by showing sufficient cause and its own conduct, it will be unreasonable to take away this right on the mere asking of the applicant, particularly when the delay is directly as a result of negligence, default or inaction of that party;

(ii) The explanation has to be reasonable or plausible so as to persuade the Court to believe that the explanation rendered is not only true but is worthy of exercising judicial discretion in favour of the applicant;

(iii) If the explanation is bona fide and also reflects the normal behaviour of a common prudent person, the judicial discretion would tilt in the favour of such an applicant;

(iv) The explained delay should be clearly understood in contradistinction to inordinate unexplained delay;

(v) Substantial justice being paramount and pivotal, the technical consideration should not be given undue and uncalled for emphasis; and

(vi) The conduct, behaviour and attitude of a party relating to its inaction or negligence are relevant factors to be taken into consideration.

38. The factual position has been narrated above. It clearly demonstrates that the appellant, for no justifiable reason, did not challenge the Customs Notification dated September 12, 2017 within the time stipulated in section 9C of the Tariff Act nor did the appellant take immediate steps for implementation for the first corrigendum issued by the Designated Authority on December 19, 2017. This does not reflect the normal behaviour of a person having all the resources to take recourse to legal proceedings. In fact, Euro Chem group, which is the parent group of the appellant, in beginning of 2018 had threatened going to Court for elimination of the anti-dumping duty, but still for a long period of two years, the appellant kept quiet. The appellant has been thoroughly negligent and there is no good reason as to why the delay should be condoned on the mere asking the appellant. It needs to be noted that even after having been informed by the Designated Authority that the representation filed on behalf of the appellant for specifying 'Nil' rate of duty could be accepted for the reason that the final findings had dealt with the issue, the appellant repeatedly filed representations. These representations were for the same relief which had been denied to the appellant by the Designated Authority and, therefore, the said explanation offered for the delay cannot be accepted. Above all, the appellant concealed material relevant facts from the Tribunal since the appellant has not stated that four Anti-Dumping Appeals had been filed to assail the Customs Notification. The appellant was impleaded as a respondent and these appeals had been dismissed by the Tribunal and the Special Leave to Appeal filed before the Supreme Court was also dismissed.
39. The facts stated above leave no manner of doubt that the appellant has not been able to satisfy the Tribunal that the appellant was prevented by sufficient cause from filing the appeal in time. The Delay Condonation Application, therefore, deserves to be rejected and is rejected.

40. As the delay condonation application has been rejected, the appeal stands dismissed.

FINAL ORDER NO. A/11131/2019

Per: Raju:

This appeal has been filed by M/s Chintan Aluminum Pvt. Ltd. against order of Commissioner (Appeals) upholding revision of assessable value and consequent demand of Customs duty against appellant.

2. Ld. Counsel pointed out that the appellant had imported Aluminum foil scrap as per ISRI Specification three bill of entry No. 105345 dated 15.05.2006, 105750 dated 31.05.2006 and 105752 dated 31.05.2006 declaring assessable value on the strength of bill of entry no. 106096 dated 15.06.2006. the appellant challenged the said enhancement of value before the Commissioner (Appeals) who dismissed their appeal for failure to make the pre-deposit as directed by Commissioner (Appeals). However when the appellant approached the Tribunal, the matter was remanded back to the Commissioner (Appeals) for order on merits vide Tribunal order No. A/1128/WZB/AHD/2008 dated 28.05.2008. In remand proceedings, Commissioner (Appeals) confirmed the order in original and hence this appeal.

2.1 Ld. Counsel pointed out that none of the exceptions laid down in Rule 4(2) of the Customs Valuation Rules, 1988 exist in the facts and circumstances of the case and hence the transaction value cannot be rejected. He argued that rejection of transaction value of relying on guidelines and LME prices are without authority. He further pointed out that the order in original has enhanced the value beyond the value earlier enhanced at the time of assessment of bill of entry. He pointed out that while assessment was done,

</tr>
<tr>
<td>105752 dated 31.05.2006</td>
<td>700 PMT</td>

</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

After in the final order the value for the bill of entry 105345 dated 15.05.2006 has been further enhanced from USD 1500 PMT to USD 1780 PMT.

2.2 Ld. Counsel pointed out that no SCN was issued in the instant case.

3. Ld. AR relied on the impugned order.

4. We have gone through rival submissions. We find that that the appellant had declared the price of imported Aluminum foil scrap of 'TESTY' grade at 600
PMT/700 PMT. Order in original pointed out that during some period there were contemporaneous imports made at following rates.

<thead>
<tr>
<th>Sr. No</th>

<td>2045</td>
</tr>

4.1 It is seen that the value declared by the appellant is to the range of 30% to the value of the contemporaneous import. It is seen that sub-rule 2 of rule 4 clearly prescribes the exception when the sale involves any abnormal discount or revision from ordinary competitive price. In the instant case it is seen that the sale involves almost 70% discount from the ordinary competitive price of contemporaneous imports. In view of above, we find that the there was a jurisdiction in rejection of the declared invoice value.

5. We however found that the original assessment in the case of bill of entry no. 105345 dated 15.05.2006 was done at USD 1500 PMT but after issuance of SCN the same was revised upwards to USD 1780 PMT. Both these orders were passed by the Deputy Commissioner of Customs. We do not find that permissible. In view of above, the value in bill of entry No. 105345 dated 15.05.2006 is fixed at 1500 USD PMT as was done in the original assessment. We find that Revenue has produced contemporaneous import data. Revenue has chosen to rely on value of the contemporaneous import and thus fixing of the assessable value at 1780 PMT in respect of bill of entry no. 105750 and 105752. Revision of value in these cases is upheld. Appeal is partly allowed in above terms.

COMMISSIONER OF CUSTOMS, KANDLA

REPRESENTED BY : Shri Amal Dave, Advocate, for the Appellant.

Shri G. Jha, Authorised Representative, for the Respondent.

[Order]. - The appellant’s refund claim was rejected on the ground of unjust-enrichment by the adjudicating authority, the said rejection was upheld by the Commissioner. It was observed by the lower authorities that though the appellant had submitted CA certificate but the books of account were not submitted. Against the impugned order passed by the Commissioner (Appeals) the appellant filed the present appeal.

2. Sh. Amal Dave, Ld. Counsel appearing on behalf of the appellant submits that they have submitted the CA certificate wherein it was certified that the incidence of the duty for which the appellant is seeking refund has not been passed on to any other person. He submits that even though the books of account could not be submitted but on the basis of CA certificate it is established that there is no unjust-enrichment on the part of the appellant. Accordingly, refund should not been rejected on the ground of unjust-enrichment. In support, he placed reliance on the following judgments :-

- Mangal Textile Mills Pvt. Ltd. - 2004 (171) E.L.T. 160 (Guj.)
- Birla Corporation Ltd. - 2008 (231) E.L.T. 482 (Tri. - Mumbai)
- Shyam Textile Mills. - 2015 (328) E.L.T. 390 (Tri. - Ahmd.)
- Eastern Shipping Agency - 2013 (32) S.T.R. 630 (Tri. - Ahmd.)
- Supreme Industries Ltd. - 2017 (358) E.L.T. 877 (Tri. - Mumbai)
- Shrinathji DYG - 2011 (24) S.T.R. 108 (Tri. - Ahmd.)

3. Sh. G. Jha, Ld. Superintendent (AR) appearing on behalf of the Revenue reiterates the finding of the impugned order. He submits that merely on the basis of CA certificate, it cannot be established that incidence was not passed on. Since, the CA certificate is based on the books of account, the said books of account should be submitted by the appellant. Even after giving an opportunity the appellant is not able to submit any books of accounts. He placed reliance on the following judgments :-
4. I have carefully considered the submission made by both the sides and perused the records. I find that the limited issue to be decided by me is whether the refund of the appellant is hit by unjust-enrichment or otherwise. It is observed from the records and also from both the orders of the lower authorities that the appellant have already submitted CA certificate, however, at no point of time they have submitted the books of account. Even the CA certificates are also one dated 13-8-2010 and another one is 19-1-2004. The unjust-enrichment has to be examined only at the time of release of the refund even as on today it is to be ascertained that whether the incidence of duty has been passed on and otherwise. The appellant is not able to submit any books of account from which it cannot be ascertained that the amount for which the refund has been shown as receivable which can establish that the incidence of duty has not been passed on.

5. As regards, the CA certificate is not a concluding document that shows the incidence was not passed on but it is based on the books of account. In absence of any books of account for the current period, the CA certificate cannot alone help the appellant to overcome the aspect of unjust-enrichment. Therefore, in absence of providing books of account by the appellant, the aspect of unjust-enrichment is not established. Accordingly, I am of the view that both the orders passed by the lower authorities are correct and legal which do not require any interference. As regards, the judgments submitted by the appellant even though the CA certificate can be taken support for establishing unjust-enrichment but in the present case both the CA certificates are of very old period and for the purpose of unjust-enrichment the present position is relevant for which neither any CA certificate was produced nor any books of account. Therefore, the judgments relied by the Ld. Counsel is not helpful for the case.

6. Accordingly, I uphold the impugned order and dismiss the appeal.

FINAL ORDER NOS. A/11783-11785/2019

Per: Raju:
These appeals have been filed M/s. Ajanta Limited against the confirmation of demand of duty, confiscation and imposition of redemption fine and penalties imposed on authorized representative of the appellant CHA.

2. Ld. Counsel for the appellant argued that they are manufacturers electric fans. They imported goods namely rotors, stator, down case, top case and down rod of motor and classified the same under tariff Chapter heading 8503 00 90 as parts of electric motor. The Commissioner vide impugned order changed the classification of the said goods under Chapter heading 8414 90 30 as parts of electric fan. The Revenue relied on the examination report which showed that the packing material as well as individual packs containing aforesaid items clearly mentioned the description as “parts of electric fans”. The statement of Shri Manoj Kumar, Authorised Representative was also recorded wherein he submitted that the said imported goods were intended for use in the ceiling fan but he also submitted that as they are parts of the ceiling fan motor classification under heading 8503 was adopted by them. However, vide his letter dated 14.03.2009, he agreed to the liability and to pay duty. In his further statement dated 19.03.2009, Shri Manoj Kumar stated that they had imported the same goods earlier also and had filed bills of entry for rotor and stator under CTH 8503 and for the remaining items under 8414 but the Revenue changed the classification of all the goods under heading 8414. The statement of Shri Surojit Chakraborty, representative of CHA was also recorded wherein he submits that appellant were earlier also importing the parts of ceiling fan and classifying under heading 8414 however, in the present consignment only five parts of electric motor have been imported therefore, the goods did not merit classification under heading 8414.

2.1 Ld. Counsel pointed out that goods in the instant case merits classification under 8503 and not under heading 8414. He argued that the imported items were to be used for assembly of electric motor which can be used in the manufacture of ceiling fans. He argued that the classification has to be determined according to the terms of the headings. He pointed out that heading 8501 covers electric motors and generators excluding generating sets and heading 8503 covers parts suitable for use solely and principally with the machines of heading 8501 and 8502. He argued that since the items imported are to be solely and principally to be used in electric motor, they merits classification under heading 8501. He relied on the HSN explanatory notes of Chapter heading 8503 which reads as under :

"85.03 - Parts suitable for use solely or principally with the machines of heading 85.01 or 85.02.

Subject to the general provisions regarding the classification of parts (see the General Explanatory Note to Section XVI) this heading covers parts of the machines of the two preceding headings. The very wide range of parts classified here includes:

(1) Shells and cases, stators, rotors, collector rings, collectors, brushholders, excitation coils.

(2) Electrical sheets and plates in shapes other than square or rectangular."

He pointed out that stator and rotor are specifically covered in the said explanatory notes as part of motors. He relied on the decision of Hon’ble Apex Court in the case of Collector of Central Excise vs. Wood Craft Products Limited – (1995) 3 SCC 454 wherein it has been held that a specific heading has to be preferred over the general heading. He also relied on the decision of the Tribunal in the case of CCE vs. Jyoti Electricals Motor Limited – 2003 (162) ELT 1117 (Tri.) wherein it has been held that rotor and stators before being used in mono block pump, classifiable as parts of electric motors as parts of mono block pump and the products being marketable commodity, to be classified under heading 8503 and not under heading 8413. Ld. Counsel also relied on the decision in the case of CCE vs. Chitra Industries – 1997 (92) ELT 571 (Tri.) wherein relying on the decision in the case of Jyoti Electricals Motor Limited (supra) it was held that parts namely rotors and stators used in the manufacture of monoblock power driven pumps classifiable under heading 85.03.

2.2 Ld. Counsel further submits that the classification has to be made on the basis of the condition of the goods at the time of import and not based on subsequent use. He relied on the decision of Hon’ble Apex Court in the case of Commissioner of Customs, New Delhi vs. Sonly India Limited – 2008 (231) ELT 385 (SC). Ld. Counsel further argued that specific heading should prevail over the general heading and he relied on the decision of Hon’ble Apex Court in the case of Speedway Rubber Company vs. CCE, Chandigarh – 2002 (143) ELT 8 (SC). He also relied on Rule 3(a) of General Rules for the interpretation of Import Tariff wherein it is stated that most specific description shall be preferred to headings providing a more general description. Rule 3(b) provides that mixtures, composite goods consisting of different materials and goods put up in sets, cannot be classified by reference to Rule 3(a), should be classified as if they consisted to the material which gives them their essential character. He submits that Rule 3(c) provides that when goods cannot be classified by reference to (a) or (b), they shall be classified under the heading which occurs last in numerical order.

2.3 He further argued that the imported goods are not liable to confiscation under Section 111(m) of the Customs Act. He relied on the decision of the Tribunal in the case of Universal Chemical (India) vs. Collector of CCE, Bombay – 1999 (105) ELT 379 (Tri.) wherein the Tribunal observed that claiming classification of the goods under a particular heading is a matter of belief and not amounting to mis-declaration in terms of Section 111(m) of Customs Act.

3. Ld. AR relies on the impugned or der. He pointed out that the CHA had, earlier also filed checklists for rotors and stators classifying the same under heading 8414 as parts of electric fans. The check lists suggesting the classification under heading 8414 but the importer directed them to file bills of entry under heading 8503. He pointed out that earlier also they had filed bills of entry for import of these items under heading 8503 however, the final assessment in that case was made under heading 8414. He pointed out that the appellants were aware that the correct classification of the items is under heading 8414 and not under heading 8503. He pointed out that in the present case, they had filed bills of entry under heading 8503 for some items while the boxes in which the said goods were imported were of the goods as of the same parts.

4. We have gone through the rival submissions. We find that the present case relates to classification of imported goods namely rotors, stator, down case, top case and down rod etc. imported together. The appellant is seeking the classification under heading 85.03 whereas the Revenue seeks to classify the items under tariff heading 84.14. The earlier imports of similar goods were assessed by the Revenue under heading 84.14 whereas the appellant had sought classification under 85.03. Revenue argued that the items imported by them are fans in unassembled condition. While Revenue has relied on the Rule 2(a) of the General Rules for the interpretation of the schedule of the Customs Tariff states that:-

"2. (a) Any reference in a heading to an article shall be taken to include a reference to that article incomplete or unfinished, provided that, as presented, the incomplete or unfinished article has the essential character of the complete or finished article. It shall also be taken to include a reference to that article complete or finished (or falling to be classified as complete or finished by virtue of this Rule), presented unassembled or disassembled."

The appellants are relying on HSN explanatory notes wherein the rotors and stators specifically mentioned as part of electric motor. However, the said HSN explanatory notes are classified by word "subject to general provisions regarding classification of parts (see the General Explanatory Note to Section XVI). Thus the said explanatory notes, in conjunction with General Provisions regarding classification of parts appearing in Section XVI.

5. Section XVI, Note-2 reads as follows:-

"2. Subject to Note 1 to this Section, Note 1 to Chapter 84 and to Note 1 to Chapter 85, parts of machines (not being parts of the articles of headings 8484, 8544, 8545, 8546 or 8547) are to be classified according to the following rules:

(a) parts which are goods included in any of the headings of Chapter 84 or 85 (other than headings 8409, 8431, 8448, 8466, 8473, 8487, 8503, 8522, 8529, 8538 and 8548) are in all cases to be classified in their respective headings;

(b) other parts, if suitable for use solely or principally with a particular kind of machine, or with a number of machines of the same heading (including a machine of heading 8479 or 8543) are to be classified with the machines of that kind or in heading 8409, 8431, 8448, 8466, 8473, 8503, 8522, 8529 or 8538 as appropriate. However, parts which are equally suitable for use principally with the goods of headings 8517 and 8525 to 8528 are to be classified in heading 8517;"
(c) all other parts are to be classified in heading 8409, 8431, 8448, 8466, 8473, 8503, 8522, 8529 or 8538 as appropriate or, failing that, in heading 8487 or 8548."

Rule 2(a) of the Section XVI applies to parts which are included or taken to include under heading 84 or 85. It is seen that no heading under Chapter 84 or 85 specifically covers the items like down case, upper case, down rod, stators and rotors in the heading. The Chapter Note 2(b) covers parts which are suitable solely and principally with the machines of heading 8501 and 8502 and the said parts are to be classified in the same heading as the machine. The order-in-original describes the examination report as under:-

The markings on the corrugated boxes are as follows:-

"ORPAT CEILING FAN MODEL: AIR QUEEN CEILING FAN ITEM: FAN MOTOR QTY.: 6PCS N.W.: 15KG G.W. : 17.3 KG"

"ORPAT CEILING FAN MODEL: AIR MASTER CEILING FAN ITEM: FAN MOTOR QTY.: 6PCS N.W.: 17.65 KG G.W: 19.95KG"

The markings in smaller boxes contained in corrugated boxes are as under:

From the above, it is seen that whatever was imported by the appellant was specifically designed for ceiling fan. The marking on the corrugated box in which the said goods were imported is "Orpat Ceiling Fan" with "Air Queen Model" also mentioned. In this regard the Rules of interpretation of schedule are relevant. Rule 2 and 3 of the said Rules are as follows:-

"2. (a) Any reference in a heading to an article shall be taken to include a reference to that article incomplete or unfinished, provided that, as presented, the incomplete or unfinished article has the essential character of the complete or finished article. It shall also be taken to include a reference to that article complete or finished (or falling to be classified as complete or finished by virtue of this Rule), presented unassembled or disassembled.

(b) Any reference in a heading to a material or substance shall be taken to include a reference to mixtures or combinations of that material or substance with other materials or substances. Any reference to goods of a given material or substance shall be taken to include a reference to goods consisting wholly or partly of such material or substance. The classification of goods consisting of more than one material or substance shall be according to the principles of Rule 3.

3. When by application of Rule 2 (b) or for any other reason, goods are, prima facie, classifiable under two or more headings, classification shall be effected as follows:

(a) The heading which provides the most specific description shall be preferred to headings providing a more general description. However, when two or more headings each refer to part only of the materials or substances contained in mixed or composite goods or to part only of the items in a set put up for retail sale, those headings are to be regarded as equally specific in relation to those goods, even if one of them gives a more complete or precise description of the goods.

(b) Mixtures, composite goods consisting of different materials or made up of different components, and goods put up in sets for retail sale, which cannot be classified by reference to 3 (a), shall be classified as if they consisted of the material or component which gives them their essential character, insofar as this criterion is applicable.
(c) When goods cannot be classified by reference to 3 (a) or 3 (b), they shall be classified under the heading which occurs last in numerical order among those which equally merit consideration."

It is seen that Customs tariff headings include within purview the items incomplete, unfinished where presented unassembled or disassembled, if the said have the essential character of finished goods. In the instant case, from the observations given by the original adjudicating authority, it is seen that all parts of the fan except the fan blades as a set. The packing also describes the goods as electric fan. The rotors and stators, down case, top case and down rod of motor are also designed specifically to be a part of the fan. In these circumstances, following Rule 2(a), the goods are classifiable under heading 84.14 as unassembled, incomplete fan.

5. The appellant relied on the decision in the case of Jyoti Electricals Motor Limited (supra). It is seen that the said decision relates to product namely ‘monoblock pump’. The monoblock pump consists of a block on which a motor and a pump, separately manufactured, are fixed and combined. In monoblock pump, motor need not be specifically designed and only motor with same diameter can be used. The motor comes into existence as a separate entity fixed at the block with mechanical pump. In the instant case, there is no separate motor which comes into existence. An unassembled and incomplete fan with a rod, top case, down case and rotating part comes into existence. It is an incomplete fan as only a fan blade needs to be fixed to make a complete fan.

6. Ld. Counsel also relied on the case of Chitra Industries (supra) relating to monoblock pump sets which are different from this specifically designed parts of fan. In view of the above, we find that correct classification of the product would be under tariff heading 84.14 and not under heading 85.03. duty demand on this count is upheld.

7. As regards the imposition of penalty, redemption fine and confiscation, we find merits in the argument of the appellant. The appellant had earlier sought classification under heading 85.03 and the matter can be a subject matter of opinion and therefore, in these circumstances, imposition of penalty and confiscation is not justified as held by Tribunal in the case of Universal Chemical (India) vs. Collector of Central Excise, Bombay (supra). The confiscation and redemption fine are therefore, set-aside and penalties are also set-aside.

8. Appeals are partly allowed in the above terms.

(Order pronounced in the open court on 18.09.2019)
The brief facts of the case are that the appellants vide Bill of entry no. 005122 dated 12/10/2010 had imported a catalyst called “Petromax-MD” for use in the production of other final product manufactured in FCC unit of its refinery. They claimed benefit of concessional rate of duty available in Sr. No. 228 of notification 21/02-Cus dated 01/03/2002, available to all goods specified in entry no. 45 of List 17. The Adjudicating Authority denied the exemption on the ground that as per the entry of the notification, the goods specified in list 17 required for setting up of Crude Petroleum Refinery is only exempted, whereas the goods in question is a catalyst and the same is not required for setting up of petroleum refinery and the exemption notification is not applicable.

2. Shri Vipin Jain, Ld. Counsel appearing on behalf of the appellant, submits that during the relevant period its production capacity has enhanced from 10MMTPA to 16MMTPA and thereafter 220MMTPA. He submits that as law laid down by this Tribunal in the case of MRPL vs CC 2005 (187) ELT 466 (Tribunal) the benefit of Sno. 228 of notification 21/2000-Cus would be available even during the phase where additional units were being installed in an existing refinery. The ration laid down in the said judgment applies in all fours to the facts of the present case, as imports in the present case have been made while their refinery was installing units so as to increase its capacity from 10MMTPA to 16MMTPA and thereafter 220MMTPA. He further submits that as per notification 21/02 list no. 17, which contains various entries from Sno. 1-45, wherein the goods covered under S. no. 1-43 are required to set up for a crude oil refinery and item S. no. 44-45 and those which are required for running, repair and maintenance, both during and after the completion of setting up of the refinery. He submits that the goods imported by them is covered under Sno. 45. He submits that it is a settled law laid down in a catena of decisions that a notification should be read as a whole and the provisions of notifications must be harmonized in a way that no provision is rendered absurd or redundant. In this regard he placed reliance on the following decisions:

(i) British Airways v/s Union of India 2002 (139) ELT 6 (SC)
(ii) Raymond Ltd. v/s Union of India 2009 (240) ELT 180 (Bom.)
(iii) Sultana Begum v/s Prem Chand (1977) 1 SCC 737.
He also placed reliance on the Board’s circular no. 354/34/2008-TRU dated 14/03/2008 which interprets the expression "required for setting up" as not confined to initial setting up, but also to cover pipes required for replacement of worn out/damaged pipes. He submits that identical entry of the notification has been considered by this Tribunal in the case of Reliance Industries v/s Commissioner of Customs 2012 (285) ELT 562 (Tri. - Ahd.) He submits that with this decision of the Tribunal the entire issue came to rest and now it is no more res integra. Further on the above, he submits that the catalysts namely “Petromax-HD”, imported by the appellant was required for use in its crude oil refinery and is covered by S.no. 45 of List 17 of notification 21/02-Cus dated 01.03.2002 as the imported catalyst is consumable. He also placed reliance on the decision of this Tribunal in the case of Lanco Industries ltd. vs Central Excise, Tirupathi 2010 (253) E.L.T 70 (Tri.- Bang).

3. Shri K.J. Kinariwala, Ld. Asst. Commr. (AR) appearing on behalf of the Revenue, reiterates the findings of the impugned order. He further submits that the entry no. 45 of list 17 of S.no. 228 of notification no. 21/2002-Cus is unambiguous, according to which, only those goods are exempted which are used for setting up of "Crude Petroleum Refinery”. It is beyond doubt that catalyst which is used for production of final products is not used for setting up of refinery. He further submits that even under the entry no. 45 only those goods which are used for running, repair or maintenance of the plant are covered. The catalyst imported by the appellant is not used either for running, repair or maintenance of the plant. Therefore, on both the counts, the goods are not covered under the notification.

4. We have considered submissions made by both the sides and perused the records. We find that the appellant have claimed the exemptions under exemption of goods falling under entry no. 45 of List 17 of S.no. 228 of Notification no. 21/2002-Cus. dated 01.03.2002 which is reproduced below:

List 17 (See S. no. 228 of the Table)

45. Sub-assemblies, tools, accessories, protective coating/paint materials, stores, spares, materials, supplies, consumables for running, repairing or maintenance of the goods specified in this List.

4.1 As per the plain reading of the above exemption entries, we find that there are criteria for the goods to be covered under this exemption notification:

(1) The product should be used for setting up petroleum refinery.

(2) The goods should be used for running, repair and maintenance of plant.

The goods imported is Petromax-HD which is a catalyst and the same is used in the manufacture of final product during the production process. Therefore, it is clear that the said good is not used for setting up of oil refinery. Ld. Counsel had heavily relied upon the case of Reliance Industries v/s CCE(supra). On going through the said judgment, we find that the case involved in the same case is mobile crawler cranes. From the nature of this goods, it is absolutely clear that mobile crawler cranes is used for carrying out Fluidized Catalytic Cracking Unit (FCC)in their refinery. However, in the said judgment, it was held that even if imported goods used after setting up of refinery, the same will be covered by the exemption notification under entry no. 45 of List 17 or S.no. 228 of notification no. 21/2002-Cus. In this judgment, decision was drawn from Board’s circular no. 354/34/2008-TRU dated 14/03/2008. Wherein it was clarified that with reference to exemption granted to the goods used for setting of water treatment plant, even if the pipes are replaced after wear and tear, the same will also be exempted under the notification wherein the term "setting up" was used. As regard the issue that whether the goods are used for setting up of the refinery or thereafter, it was settled in the case of Reliance Industries (supra). However, now it is to be examined that whether the goods are covered under entry no 45 of List 17 in the notification. By reading of the entry, we find that it is a case of the appellant that the goods is used as consumable for running, repair or maintenance of the goods specified in list. We are of the view that the use of goods for running, repair or maintenance of the goods specified in the list denotes that the same should be used in the setting up for crude petroleum refinery whereas the product in question, i.e. “Petromax-MD” is not used for running, repair and maintenance of the plant. But it is used as input consumable in the production of final product. Therefore, in our view, the goods in question is not covered under entry no. 45 of List 17 of S. no. 228 of notification no. 21/2002-Cus. dated 01/03/2002. We are therefore, of the view that the lower authority has rightly denied the exemption. Hence, the impugned order is upheld. Appeal is dismissed.

Per: Raju:

This appeal has been filed by M/s. Asia Motor Works against demand of Customs Duty, imposition of penalty and denial of Notification No. 97/2004- Customs. The Revenue has also filed appeal against the order for failing to confiscate the goods and failure to impose the redemption fine. M/s. Asia Motor Works has filed Cross Objections against said appeal filed by the Revenue.

2. Ld. Counsel for Asia Motor works (AMW) pointed out that they had imported certain capital goods under EPCG Scheme claiming Notification No. 97/2004- Customs claiming concessional rate of @ 5% duty. He pointed out that the appellant had purchased a Paint-Shop from the Foreign Party. In terms of the agreement with the seller the Asia Motor Work was required to do as follows:

"2.4 Cost of freight for shipment, loading of the ship and the shipment to Indian harbor will be paid for by the Purchaser. Port of discharge will be Kandla of Mundra.

2.5 The purchaser shall be responsible for all costs and actions subsequent thereto which will include payment of all local Indian taxes and/or import duties, etc.

2.6 All shipping, insurance and customs costs to be incurred, as well as risk of damage and loss to the Assets during transportation shall be borne by the Purchaser."
Consequently AMW appointed a freight forwarder namely Pro Logistics (I) Limited (PLIL) offered following terms for the said transport of goods from Argentina to India.

2.1 Ld. Counsel pointed out that AMW filed 15 Bills of Entry. Out of 15 Bills of Entries, in case of 10 B/E the freight charges were claimed to have been included on actual basis and in 5 B/E the freight charges were included @ 20% of the FOB Value in terms of Proviso to rule 9 of the Custom Valuation Rules. He argued that the rule 9 of the Custom Valuation Rule, 1998 prescribes as follows.

"(2) For the purposes of sub-section (1) and sub-section (1A) of Section 14 of the Customs Act, 1962 (52 of 1962) and these rules, the value of the imported goods shall be the value of such goods, for delivery at the time and place of importation and shall include -

(a) the cost of transport of the imported goods to the place of importation;

(b) loading, unloading and handling charges associated with the delivery of the imported goods at the place of importation; and

(c) the cost of insurance :

Provided that -

(i) where the cost of transport referred to in clause (a) is not ascertainable, such cost shall be twenty per cent of the free on board value of the goods;

(ii) the charges referred to in clause (b) shall be one per cent of the free on board value of the goods plus the cost of transport referred to in clause (a) plus the cost of insurance referred to in clause (c);

(iii) where the cost referred to in clause (c) is not ascertainable, such cost shall be 1.125% of free on board value of the goods;

Provided further that in the case of goods imported by air, where the cost referred to in clause (a) is ascertainable, such cost shall not exceed twenty per cent of free on board value of the goods:

Provided also that where the free on board value of the goods is not ascertainable, the costs referred to in clause (a) shall be twenty per cent of the free on board value of the goods plus cost of insurance for clause (i) above and the cost referred to in clause (c) shall be 1.125% of the free on board value of the goods plus cost of transport for clause (iii) above."
He argued that at the time of filing of Bill of Entry the Freight element was not known to the appellant in respect of 5 Bills of Entries and therefore, in terms of aforesaid proviso to rule 9(2) of the Custom Valuation Rules, Freight @ 20% of FOB Value was included for the purpose of Assessment. He argued that the computation of freight depended on the CAF & BAF which are variable cost depending on the exchange rates. He pointed out that since these amounts were not available at the time of the assessment benefit of the proviso to rule 9 (2) of Custom Valuation rules was availed.

2.2 He argued that even if the argument of revenue that the extra freight paid by them to the freight forwarder is to be included in the assessable value, then also they are entitled to benefit of Notification No. 97/2004-Customs, as they had significant amount of value was available in the said license. He argued that even if the assessable value is revised by including the extra freight paid by them to the freight forwarder, they are entitled to benefit of Notification No. 97/2004-Customs to the extent of the amount available in their EPCG license for concessional rate of duty of 5%. He further argued that the demand is barred by limitation. He pointed out that both these kind of bills of entry, i.e one with freight bills as well as others were 20% of the FOB value was taken for assessment and Rule 9(2) of the CVR was considered. He argued that in these circumstances extended period of limitation cannot be invoked. He relied on the decision of Tribunal in case of Dr. Reddy's Laboratories Ltd. V. CC, 2012 (284) ELT 545 (T).

2.3 Ld. Counsel for AMW also argued that the Revenue has not challenged the assessment done in case of this 15 bill of entries and therefore no demand under section 28 can be raised.

2.4 Ld. Counsel for AMW argued that the Show Cause Notice did not propose confiscation but only propose why the said goods should not be held as liable to confiscation. He argued that the adjudicating authority cannot traverse beyond the SCN. He further argued that since the goods have already been cleared and are unavailable for confiscation and were never seized no confiscation can be ordered. He relied on the decision of Hon'ble High Court of Punjab and Hariyana in case of Raja Impex-2009 (229) ELT 185 (P & H) and the decision of larger bench of Tribunal in case of shivkrupa Ispat Pvt.Ltd. 2009 (235) ELT 623 (LB). He argued that the decision of Apex court in case of Weston Components Ltd. is applicable only when goods are seized and subsequently allowed to be cleared to the assessee on execution of bond. He argued that the bond in the instant case is not the kind of bond referred in the decision of Hon'ble Apex Court in case of Western Components (Supra).

3. The Ld. AR relied on the impugned order. He pointed out that the Rs. 4,50,15,398/- was demanded by the Freight forwarder from the AMW and Rs. 4,32,98,915/- was actually paid by the AMW to the freight forwarder. They had included only an amount of Rs. 1,60,69,376/- in the assessable value of all 15 bills of entry. He pointed out that in first 10 bill of entries they had included freight, on the basis of some documents, an amount that they claimed was the actual cost of transport and in balance five B/E, they had claimed benefit of proviso to Rule 9 (2) of CVR 1988. He pointed out that the bills of entries were filed over a period from 10.05.2007 to 29.06.2007 a period of almost 50 days. While in case of bill of entries filed from 10.05.2007 to 12.06.2007 actual transport freight was claimed to be available with the AMW and claimed to have been included in the assessable value, but in respect of bill of entries filed from 12.06.2007 to 29.06.2007 the freight amount was not known to them at the time of filing bill of entry. He pointed out that out of total amount of Rs. 4,32,98,915/-, the appellant have included only Rs. 1,60,69,376/- in the assessable value. They have failed to include an amount of Rs. 2,92,35,480/- in the assessable value and consequently, they have undervalued the goods.

3.1 Ld. AR pointed out that under valuation of goods amounts to an offence under section 111 (m) of the customs Act, 1962 and consequently the goods imported by them become liable to confiscation under section 111 (m) of the Customs Act. He argued that the impugned order fails to order confiscation of goods on the grounds that the same are not available for confiscation. He argued that the goods imported by the appellant were released on bond subject to the condition for import prescribed in notification No. 97/2004- Customs Act, which prescribes execution of bond as follow.

"(2) That the importer executes a bond in such form and for such sum and with such surety or security as may be specified by the Deputy Commissioner of Customs or Assistant Commissioner of Customs binding himself to fulfill export obligation on FOB basis equivalent to eight times the duty saved on the goods imported as may be specified on the licence, or for such higher sum as may be fixed by the Licensing Authority, within a period of eight years from the date of issue of licence, in the following proportions, namely:

<td>50%</td>

<tr>
<td>2.</td>

</tr>
</tbody>

3.2 He relied on the decision of Hon’ble Supreme Court in case of Weston Components Ltd. Vs. CC 2000 (115) ELT 278 (SC) wherein Hon’ble Court has observed as follows:

"It is contended by the learned Counsel for the appellant that redemption fine could not be imposed because the goods were no longer in the custody of the respondent authority. It is an admitted fact that the goods were released to the appellant on an application made by it and on the appellant executing a bond. Under these circumstances if subsequently it is found that the import was not valid or that there was any other irregularity which would entitle the customs authorities to confiscate the said goods, then the mere fact that the goods were released on the bond being executed, would not take away the power of the customs authorities to levy redemption fine.”

He argued that in the instant case the clearance has been made against a bond. He argued that in these circumstances the impugned order should have ordered confiscation of goods and imposed redemption fine.

3.3 Ld. AR pointed out that the demand under section 28 can be raised even if the assessment is not revised or challenged in view of the decision of Hon'ble supreme court in case of Jain Shudh Vanaspati Ltd., 1996 (86) ELT 460 (SC).

4. We have gone through rival submissions. We find that AMW had purchased a paint shop in Argentina. The obligation of seller was just to dismantle the plant and thereafter it was the responsibility of AMW to bring the said goods from Argentina to India. AMW engaged freight forwarder namely Prologestics I Ltd. (PLIL) who offered them their services on the following terms.

4.1 The Paint shop was imported in 15 different consignments. The AMW paid the Freight forwarder an amount of Rs. 4,32,98,915/- where as in the 15 Bills of entries they included freight amounting to Rs. 1,60,69,376/- only. As a result an amount of Rs. 2,92,35,480/- escaped inclusion in the assessable value. The reason given by AMW is that at the time of filing bill of entry in first 10 cases they were aware of the actual freight charged by the freight forwarder whereas in last 5 Bills of entries they were not aware of the actual freight payable to the freight forwarder. The reason cited was that the variable cost based on CAF/BAF was not known. The method of calculating freight agreed by AMW with PLIL was very clear as can be seen from the terms in para 4 above.

It can be seen that the only variable in the cost is the currency adjustments which simply converts all cost payable in US Dollar terms into Rupees. Thus it won't be correct for AMW to say that the cost of transport was not immediately available to them. The currency price are available directly on minute to minute basis every day. More over it is seen that out of total cost of Rs. 4.32 Crores paid to the freight forwarder. The appellant had included only Rs. 1.6 crores, in 15 consignments. Even if the actual freight of first 10 consignments was known on actual basis it could not have been its 40% of the total freight for 66% of the total consignments. The documents on the basis of which they had included freight on actual basis were however not available with AMW.

4.2 Rule 9 (2) of the Custom valuation rules reads as follows.

"(2) For the purposes of sub-section (1) and sub-section (1A) of Section 14 of the Customs Act, 1962 (52 of 1962) and these rules, the value of the imported goods shall be the value of such goods, for delivery at the time and place of importation and shall include -

(a) the cost of transport of the imported goods to the place of importation;

(b) loading, unloading and handling charges associated with the delivery of the imported goods at the place of importation; and

(c) the cost of insurance:

[Provided that -

(i) where the cost of transport referred to in clause (a) is not ascertainable, such cost shall be twenty per cent of the free on board value of the goods;

(ii) the charges referred to in clause (b) shall be one per cent of the free on board value of the goods plus the cost of transport referred to in clause (a) plus the cost of insurance referred to in clause (c);

(iii) where the cost referred to in clause (c) is not ascertainable, such cost shall be 1.125% of free on board value of the goods;

Provided further that in the case of goods imported by air, where the cost referred to in clause (a) is ascertainable, such cost shall not exceed twenty per cent of free on board value of the goods:

Provided also that where the free on board value of the goods is not ascertainable, the costs referred to in clause (a) shall be twenty per cent of the free on board value of the goods plus cost of insurance for clause (i) above and the cost referred to in clause (c) shall be 1.125% of the free on board value of the goods plus cost of transport for clause (iii) above.

[Provided also that in case of goods imported by sea stuffed in a container for clearance at an Inland Container Depot or Container Freight Station, the cost of freight incurred in the movement of container from the port of entry to the Inland Container Depot or Container freight Station shall not be included in the cost of transport referred to in clause (a)]."

It is seen that the proviso can only be invoked where the cost is not ‘ascertainable’. The proviso cannot be invoked just because the importer has not received the actual freight element at the time of filling bill of entry. In the instant case, the cost very much ascertainable and the importer have also claimed that they have ascertained the cost in respect of 10 out of 15 bills of entry at the time of import. The intention to evade becomes obvious as AMW has avoided inclusion of amounts of Rs. 2.92 Crores of Freight element, actually paid by them, in the assessable value by adopting this modus operandi.

5. Ld. Counsel for the AMW has claimed that the benefit of EPCG Scheme cannot be denied on the enhanced value of the imports. The impugned order denies the benefit of the EPCG scheme on the ground that the Chapter 5 of the Foreign Trade Policy requires the importer to produce license for debit by the proper officer of customs at the time of clearance. It has been argued in the impugned order that since the said amount was not declared at the time of import the benefit of scheme cannot be extended to the appellant. We do not find any merit in this argument. It is a fact that the appellant have EPCG License containing a specific amount. Therefore, if the value is enhanced then AMW is entitled for benefit to the extent the enhanced value is covered in the EPCG License.

6. It has been argued by the Ld. Counsel for AMW that since the assessment has not been challenged, demand under section 28 cannot be raised. In this regard Ld. AR had relied on decision of Ld. Apex Court in case of Jain Shudh Vanaspati Ltd. (Supra) wherein it has been held that the demand can be raised under section 28 even if challenging assessment. Consequently this argument of Ld. Counsel for AMW is rejected.

7. The next issue relates to invocation of extended period of limitation. We find that the appellant have paid significantly higher amount to the freight forwarder as freight. However, in 15 Bills of entry filed by AMW only 40% of the freight has been included in the assessable value. When the agreement and terms of payment are crystal clear the actions of importer are clearly intended to evade taxes. When documents on actual freight paid were demanded, Ld. Counsel failed to produce the same. In these circumstances, we find that it was a specific modus operandi devised by AMW to defraud the Government and therefore, extended period of limitation is rightly invoked in the instant case.

8. The next issue relates to confiscation of the goods already cleared by the AMW. The impugned order does not order confiscation and does not impose any redemption fine. Revenue has filed appeal against the said order for failure to confiscation the goods, AMW has also filed cross objection. Both sides relied on the decision of Hon’ble Apex Court in case of Weston Components Ltd. 2000 (115) ELT 278 (SC). In the said case the goods were released against a bond and therefore, the Hon’ble Apex Court held that confiscation can be ordered. In the instant case the goods have been cleared in regular course. The bond executed by the AMW is not for production of goods but for fulfillment of export obligation and to pay duty in case of failure to fulfill export obligation. Therefore, the ratio of decision in case of Weston Components Ltd. (Supra) is not applicable to the instant case. The goods cannot be confiscated, even if, the same are liable for confiscation.

9. The appeal of AMW is partly allowed in above terms. The appeal of Revenue is rejected. Cross objections filed by AMW are disposed of.

Per: Ramesh Nair:

The present appeals have been filed against Order-in-Original No. 21-22/MP/2010 dt. 31.03.2011 passed by the Commissioner, Customs & Central Excise, Surat - I by M/s Laurel Apparels and other co-appellants as well as by the revenue. In terms of said order demand of Customs and Central excise duty pertaining to two show cause notices dt. 28.02.2005 and 24.10.2007 were confirmed against Appellant M/s Laurel Apparels Pvt. Ltd. Also penalties were imposed upon M/s Laurel Apparels and Co-appellants. The revenue has also filed two appeals being aggrieved to the extent that while imposing the penalty u/s 112/114A, the adjudicating authority has erroneously given the option to pay reduced penalty of the first proviso of Section 114A of the Customs Act, 1962 to the assessee without any authority of statute.

1.1 The brief facts of the case are that the show cause notices dt. 28.02.2005 and 24.10.07 issued on the allegation that the Appellant Unit has illegally diverted duty free imported and indigenous raw materials i.e. Transfer Print paper, Grey Fabrics and Knitted Fabrics etc. as such which was procured by them subject to condition of use of same in manufacture and export of finished goods. That the raw materials were shown to have been received on papers only. Also the finished goods were shown to have supplied to M/s Al-Amin Exports and M/s Sunshine Exports both 100 % EOU's who were showing procurement of goods i.e Dyed fabrics/Transfer Print Fabrics from Appellant assessee Unit under the cover of invoices/AR-3s against CT -3 Certificate issued to them. However the consignee EOU Units instead did not receive any finished goods of M/s Laurel but were showing manufacturing activities so as to fulfil the export obligations and were exporting cheaper quality bought out items like scarves, dupattas etc. procured from the domestic market through Shri Bilal Latif Memon, proprietor of M/s Lazio Exports. It was found that no goods were received by Sunshine Overseas, Navsari and M/s Al-Amin Exports but they were receiving premium of Rs. 4 - 5 per meter from Shri Mahendra Sancheti, executive director of Laurel Apparel on account of showing receipt of processed goods from M/s Laurel. It was alleged in show cause notice that raw materials procured against CT-3s from EOUs and DTA/imported against Annexures under the EOU Scheme by the Unit was infact diverted into local market for sale in cash by resorting to manipulation of records by showing the production of Transfer Print Fabrics and clearance thereof to Al-Amin and Sunshine during the period 27.02.2003 to 07.06.2003. It was therefore proposed to demand customs duty amounting to Rs. 13,68,930 foregone on 581222.21 Mtrs of imported heat Transfer Print Paper and Customs duty amounting to 56,41,484/- foregone on 377502.21 Mtrs of Imported Polyester Knitted/Woven Fabrics u/s 72 readwith proviso to Section 28 of the Customs Act, 1962 alongwith interest from M/s Laurel Apparel Pvt. Ltd.; to enforce the Bond furnished by them towards the duty liability; to impose penalty u/s 112/114A of the Customs Act. It was also proposed to confiscate the duty free raw material which was not available for confiscation in terms of Section 111 (d), 111 (j) and 111 (o) of Customs Act, 1962. In respect of indigenous raw materials, it was proposed to demand central excise duty of Rs. 20,94,717/- on 203720 mtrs of indigenously procured knitted/woven Grey Fabrics in terms of proviso to section 11A (1) of Central Excise Act alongwith interest and to confiscate the goods so procured ; to impose penalty u/r 25 of the Central Excise Rules, 2002 and to enforce the B17 bond and to appropriate the security towards the duty liability. Penalty was also proposed on M/s Al-Amin Exports and M/s Sunshine Overseas u/s 112 of the Customs Act readwith Rule 25 of the Central Excise Rules, 2002; penalty was proposed on Shri Mahendra Kumar Sancheti and Shri Ravindra Arya, directors of M/s Laurel Apparel, M/s Bindal Silk Mills Pvt. Ltd., Shri Haroon R Chhaya, Shri Irfan Rasool Saiyed, Partners of M/s Al-Amin Exports and defacto owners of M/s Sunshine Overseas and Shri Rashid R Saiyed, Partner of M/s Sunshine Overseas u/s 112 of the Customs ACT, 1962 read with Rule 26 of the Central Excise Rules, 2002.

1.2 Another show cause notice dt. 24.10.2007 for the period July' 2001 to February' 2003 based upon same investigation was issued proposing to demand of customs duty amounting to Rs. 80,80,985/- foregone on 1453175 Mtrs of imported heat Transfer Print Paper and Customs duty amounting to 1,27,50,177/- foregone on 722130.52 Mtrs of Imported Polyester Knitted/Woven Fabrics u/s 72 read with proviso to Section 28 of the Customs Act, 1962 along with interest from M/s Laurel Apparel Pvt. Ltd.; to impose penalty u/s 112/114A of the Customs Act. It was also proposed to confiscate the duty free raw material which was not available for confiscation in terms of Section 111 (d), 111 (j) and 111 (o) of Customs Act, 1962. In respect of indigenous raw materials, it was proposed to demand central excise duty of Rs. 2,35,49,645/- on 1494194.50 mtrs. of indigenously procured knitted/woven Grey Fabrics in terms of proviso to section 11A (1) of Central Excise Act along with interest and to confiscate the goods so procured ; to impose penalty u/r 25 of the Central Excise Rules, 2002, Penalty was also proposed on M/s Al-Amin Exports and M/s Sunshine Overseas u/s 112 of the Customs Act, 1962 read with Rule 25 of Central Excise Rules, 2002 on ground that they have shown receipt of polyester printed fabrics, transfer print fabrics and embroidered fabrics from M/s Laurel Apparel without actual receipt. It was also proposed to impose penalty on Shri Mahendra Kumar Sancheti, Shri Ravindra Arya, director of Laurel Apparel u/s 112 of Customs Act read with Rule 26 of Central Excise Rules, 2002.

1.3 The demands and penalties as proposed in show cause notices were confirmed by the adjudicating authority. In respect of show cause notice No. v (Ch.54) 3-26/Dem/2007 dt. 24.10.2007 the Order-in-Original No.
1521/Dem/2008 dt. 29.02.2008 was passed which was remanded back by the Tribunal vide Order No. A/1250-1261/WZB/AHD/2009 dt. 22.06.2009 with a direction to furnish the relevant documents and annexures to show cause notice and then to pass fresh adjudication order. In reference to Show Cause Notice No. DRI/SRU/INV-9/2003 dt. 28.02.2005, the Order-in-Original No. 05/MP/2006 dt. 31.03.2006 was passed which was remanded back by the tribunal vide Order No. A/349-358/WZB/2010 DT. 22.04.2010 with the observation that the ld. Commissioner had not done what was required as per Tribunal precedent judgment in case of Defiance Clothing Co. 2008 (87) RLT 743 (Cestat) wherein it was held that the Commissioner must first refer the matter to the Development Commissioner before adjudication. That the ld. Commissioner has made cryptic remark about applicability of extended time limit.

1.4 Vide impugned orders, the demands and penalties as proposed were confirmed against M/s Laurel and co-appellants.

1.5 Aggrieved, the present appeals have been filed by the Appellant assessee and co-appellants. The revenue has also filed two appeals being aggrieved to the extent that while imposing the penalty u/s 112/114A, the adjudicating authority has erroneously given the option to pay reduced penalty of the first proviso of Section 114A of the Customs Act, 1962 to the assessee without any authority of statute.

2. Ld. Counsel Shri W. Christian appearing for the assessee Appellants submits that the impugned order has been wrongly passed. The adjudicating authority has placed reliance upon the statements of the Appellant's Partners and other outside persons on the one hand and on the other hand denied cross examination of the witnesses without justification. It was necessary to allow cross examination. He relies upon the judgments in case of J & K Cigarettes Ltd. 2009 (242) ELT 189 (DEL). He submits that the adjudicating authority has also disobeyed the direction of the Tribunal directing him to undertake the adjudication of the SCNs after obtaining consent of the Development Commissioner under whose jurisdiction of EOUs fall. He also submits that even after filing of ROM application the Tribunal while disposing of the same has again given direction that the adjudicating authority is bound by the decision of the tribunal or other judicial forums. In spite of the specific order of the tribunal and accepting the applicability of its precedent judgment- in case of Defiance clothing Co. 2008 (87) RLT 743, the adjudicating authority has unjustly entered into discussion and by relying upon some other judgment and inapplicable circular of the Board and has held that there is no need to have prior approval from the Development Commissioner. That the re-warehousing certificates were received by the Appellant duly countersigned by the Range Superintendents having jurisdiction over the receiving EOUs and when the SCN & Adjudication order are issued to the 100% EOUs on the basis of receipt of the finished goods manufactured and cleared by the Appellant, the revenue cannot push aside the strong and statutory evidence. The Circular No. 579/16/2001-CX dt. 26.06.2001 specifies the particular procedure and fulfillment of same cannot be wished away without cogent reason. He relies upon order in case of National Impex Vs. CCE 2007 (213) ELT 429 (Tri). He takes us through the Invoices, CT-3, ARE-1s, D-3s etc annexed as documentary evidence of genuineness of clearance of goods. He submits that no reliance can be placed upon the statements since no cross examination was granted. The same should have been granted when the Appellant has brought on record the retraction affidavits. He further submits that adjudicating authority has erred in considering the recorded statements as more authentic than the various show cause notice/Orders-in-Original issued to various consignee EOUs wherein they were alleged to have received the goods from the Appellant but the same were allegedly diverted by them. Most of these SCNs/Order-in-Original has emanated from Surat Commissionerate only. Thus on the one hand the Appellants are alleged to have not supplied goods to consignee EOUs and on the other hand the consignee EOUs are alleged to have diverted the goods consigned by the Appellant. Thus the relied upon statements are at the most one piece of evidence subject to scrutiny by the quasi judicial or judicial authorities but the SCNs/adjudication order are the statutory documents and they are result of several piece of evidence of different nature, hence the single piece of evidence is not reliable when pitted against such SCNs/Order. He cites following orders passed against EOUs which show that the goods of Appellant EOU were received by different consignee EOUs:

(i) Order No. 10/MP/Daman/2006 dt. 20.11.2006 passed by CCE, Daman against M/s Sunshine Overseas & Othrs.
Order No. 09/MP/Daman/2006 dt. 20.11.2006 passed by CCE, Daman in case of M/s Al-Amin Exports & Othrs.

SCN F. No. V (CH.54)3-22/Dem/2003 dt. 01.05.2003 issued by CCE, Surat- I to Pooja Tex Prints Pvt. Ltd. On goods supplied by Appellant and later sold by M/s Pooja in DTA.

OIO No. ANK-1/TK/07/OA/Shiv Shakti/07-07 dt. 22.06.2007 issued by Assistant Commissioner, Central Excise-Ankleshwar whereby it is proved that goods supplied by the Appellant were undoubtedly Inbonded in their factory premises as found during the visit of the Central Excise officer on 4/5 Dec’ 2002.

OIO No. 10/04/Adj./JPR/2003/3722 DT. 29.03.04 issued by CCE, Jaipur in case of M/s Pink line Exim Pvt. Ltd.

OIO No. 02/Commr/SU/08/Cus dt. 18.01.2008 and SCN No. V (Prev.) Misc/Enq./6/2002 dt. 06.06.2006 issued by CCE, Rohtak to M/s Singh Overseas 2.1 He submits that the buyers/brokers have categorically deposed that they had purchased the goods from Shri Mahendrakumar Sancheti. Their contention is not supported by any evidence that the material in fact were supplied by M/s Bindal as claimed by them. The adjudicating authority did not consider that from the recorded statements of buyers it is apparent that none of them has stated that they have purchased goods from Appellant Company. They gave the name of Shri Mahendra Bhai Sancheti who is also the director in M/s Bindal who was the seller and who acted through its director Shri Mahendra bhai. This fact was supported by the evidence of sales invoice, goods inventory and payment details etc. in records of M/s Bindal. The adjudicating authority has erred by rejecting the Appellant's submission that out of 20 vehicles, only two vehicles were reported to be incapable of carrying the load and that even the two impugned vehicles were alleged to be incapable because of some writing error with regard to registration number of these two vehicles. The adjudicating authority has held that Unit did not have bleaching facility which is required for manufacture of transfer print fabric. He failed to appreciate that the goods were got bleached on jobwork basis from M/s Bindal Silk Mills P. Ltd. who has sufficient plant and machinery. That in affidavits dt. 29.06.2003, 24.12.2003 of Shri Mahendra Kumar Sancheti, Director and affidavit dt. 29.06.2003 of Shri Ravindra Arya Director and affidavit dt. 02.07.2003 of Shri Bhoopsingh Beniwal, authorised signatory, the said persons denied their statements. The buyers have accepted that they have purchased goods from Shri Mahendra Sancheti. He also submits that the demands are time barred as show cause notice dt. 28.02.2005 was covering the period Feb to June’ 03 and SCN dt. 24.10.2007 covered the period July’ 2001 to Feb’ 2003 since there is no suppression and wilful statement. The demands based on confessional statements without any documentary evidence is not sustainable. He also submits that the duty demand should have been calculated by considering the prices as cum-duty. That since the goods were manufactured hence the demand of customs duty is not sustainable nor the central excise duty at the customs tariff rate is sustainable. He thus prays to set aside the impugned order.

3. Per Contra Shri Sameer Chitkara, Learned Authorized Representative appearing for the revenue supports the impugned order.

4. We have heard both the sides and gone through the case records. We find that pursuant to investigation undertaken by the revenue, it was found that the Appellant Unit had been showing the receipt of raw material i.e. transfer print paper, fabric etc in their factory and its use in manufacture of export goods which was shown to have been cleared to M/s Sunshine and Al-Amin Exports. The investigation at M/s Al-Amin and Sunshine showed that fact that they did not receive any goods from the Appellant Unit but received a premium of Rs. 4 to 5 from Shri Mahendra Sancheti, director of Appellant Unit in whose favour the CT-3 certificates were issued. Shri Rashid Sayyed, the partner of M/s Al-Amin in his statement stated that one Shri Bilal Latif Memon used to supply readymade cheap goods after purchasing from open market to M/s Sunshine and M/s Al- Amin through the tempos of Shri Akbar Tempowala. No goods were received from M/s Laurel. The EOUs used to do minor jobs of sewing and packing and export the goods. It was found that all the goods were brought by these firms from market. During visit to the factory of M/s Al-Amin it was found that the machines were not capable of being run except one sewing machine and one pleating machine.
and 65000 pcs of dyed and printed scarf were supplied by Shri Bilal Latif Memon after purchasing from open market. No legal document was found to show the purchase of such goods. Shri Rashid Sayyed, Partner of M/s Sunshine also stated that entire operation of M/s Sunshine was looked after by Shri Irfan Rasul Gulam and Haroon Razak Chhaya. In factory there was small stock of chindis and cut-pieces sent by Shri Bilal Latif Memon which had no relation with CT-3 issued by them. Shri Rashid in his statement dt. 21.06.2003 also stated that fabrics were purchased by them from Surat and after cutting and stitching the dupattas and scarves were exported. Shri Kaushik Majumdar, authorised signatory of M/s Sunshine in his statement dt. 21.06.2003 stated that the partners of unit were for name sake and the work was looked after by Shri Irfan Rasul Sayyed and Shri Haroon Razaak Chhaya. Shri Irfan Rasul Sayyed and Shri Haroon Razaak Chhaya in their statement dt. 21.06.2003 stated that no raw materials was received against CT-3 from EOUs and they were paid premium of Rs. 4.50 to 5.00 per meter as a premium from the units to whom CT-3 were issued. They have never received any sale proceeds except the premium amount. They were regularly exporting the goods for which the raw material was received from Shri Bilal Latif Memon who used to arrange tempo for same. The search conducted at M/s Laurel revealed that all the machines in factory were non operational since long time. Shri Mahendra Sancheti, the executive director in his statement dt. 28.06.2003 stated that the clearances to M/s Al-Amin and Sunshine was on paper only and no goods were physically removed; that they had shown clearance of transfer print fabrics on paper only to the said units; they had sold the imported fabric in market and paid premium of Rs. 4 to Shri Haroon R Chhaya, owner of the said two units; the number of vehicles written on deemed export invoices were taken from M/s Ravi transport and were never used for transportation. During the search at office premises of Laurel Apparels situated at Bindal House, the computer printouts in presence of Shri Ravindra Arya, director was obtained which showed paper transactions. Though Shri Rashid Sayyed and Shri Majumdar had retracted their statements but the DRI sent them letters rebutting the retractions. Shri Mahendra Kumar Sancheti in his statement dt. 28.06.03 again stated that no goods were supplied physically to M/s Al-Amin and Sunshine and it was only paper transaction. Shri Ravindra Arya, director of Unit in his statement dt. 29.06.2003 also stated that he agreed with the statements of Shri Mahendra Sancheti, Executive Director. He also agreed to pay duty in respect of unauthorised removal of goods from M/s Laurel. In respect of clearance of grey fabrics to M/s Bindal Silk Mills Pvt. Ltd. on jobwork challans for bleaching, Shri Bhoop Singh Beniwal, authorised signatory of M/s Bindal in his statement dt. 30.06.2003 stated that no fabric was received for bleaching and only challans were prepared. Statement of Shri Satish R. Desai, Manager cum authorised signatory of M/s Ravi Transport was recorded on 28.06.2003 who stated that the vehicles mentioned in invoices showing clearance of goods to M/s Al-Amin and M/s Sunshine from M/s Laurel did not belong to his firm and he never sent any vehicle to M/s Laurel. Statement of Shri Latif Memon of Lazio Export was also recorded wherein he stated that he had given export orders for M/s Al-Amin and M/s Sunshine and bought made ups and readymade garments for them for enabling third party exports. The statement of tempo driver who transported goods from Surat godown of Shri Latif to factory of M/s M/s Al-Amin and M/s Sunshine was recorded wherein he stated that he has transported goods three times during the month of June, 2003. Shri Rashid Ahmed Sayyed, Partner of M/s Sunshine Overseas in his statement dt. 30.07.2003 also stated that the contents of his and Kaushik Majumdar retraction affidavits were wrong and were filed on direction of Shri Haroon Razak Chhaya and Shri Irfan R. Saiyed. Shri Haroon Razak Chhaya in his statement dt. 30.07.2003 also stated that the retraction affidavits were wrongly filed and were false. In his statement dt. 20.08.2003, Shri Bilal Latif Memon stated that the goods seized from M/s Al-Amin were 65000 pcs of printed scarves were supplied by him and he was supplying such goods earlier also. The goods contained in the said container were made out of cheaper quality of fabrics namely cut pieces and were not of uniform sizes; that these goods were not made out of regular fabrics but were purchased as cut piece lots which were end cuts of fabrics lot i.e saris and dress materials.; the value of goods in container were highly inflated; he sold these goods to M/s Al-Amin and M/s Sunshine at the rates ranging between Rs. 17/- and Rs. 25/-. The goods were scarves of .90 to 1.85 mtr and were wrongly described as dupattas in documents by M/s Al-Amin and M/s Sunshine. The payments were received by him in cash. We find that statements on various occasions of the above persons has been recorded and the fact revealed that no goods were received by the consignee units which were shown to have been consigned by M/s Laurel to M/s Sunshine and M/s Al-Amin or other EOU units but instead cheap quality fabrics purchased from M/s Bilal Latif Memon were cleared by M/s Al-Amin and M/s Sunshine after undertaking minor work showing the same to have been manufactured from fabric received from M/s Laurel. Shri Mahendra Sancheti in his statement dt. 17.01.2005 also stated that the goods procured by them were sold in open market without being used in manufacture of export goods. The visit to factory of M/s Sunshine and M/s Al-Amin clearly showed that they did not have set up to manufacture the export goods. The visit to the factory of M/s Laurel clearly showed that one Paper Print Machine was in rusted condition. 30 sewing machines and 4 interlocking machines were lying on which no manufacturing activity took place for long time. No embroidery machine installed or uninsured was found. No dyeing and printing facilities were available. Shri Mahendra Kumar Sancheti, the executive director who was present also stated that no manufacturing activity took place. He also stated that they never made any embroidered fabric, scarves, sarees etc in factory. He admitted that the bleaching of fabric, the one of precondition for manufacture of transfer fabric shown to have been carried out at sister concern namely M/s Bindal Silk Mills on jobwork was mere paper transaction. This fact was confirmed by authorised signatory of Shri Bindal Silk, Shri Bhoop Singh. Further the brokers viz. Shri Keshrichand Bachhawal of M/s Raj Tex, Shri Rajendra Prasad Kabra, Shri Jethmal and Shri Ramdev Choudhary in their statements admitted selling imported grey fabrics and knitted fabrics and heat transfer print of M/s LAPL on brokerage basis. No physical evidence of transportation of finished goods could be shown by M/s Laurel. This clearly shows that M/s Laurel instead of use of duty free raw material in manufacture of finished goods to be exported, has sold the raw material in open market.

5. As regard the contention of the Appellant that the adjudication proceedings should have been initiated only after receiving clearance from the Development Commissioner as per the earlier Tribunal remand Order based upon judgment in case of Defiance Clothing Co. 2008 (87) RLT 743 (CESTAT), we find that the adjudicating authority has elaborately dealt with the above aspect. We are in agreement with his view that the reference to the Development Commissioner is required to be made only where any interpretation of policy/procedure is required. However the present case pertains to illegal diversion of duty free imported and indigenously procured goods which has got no concern with the Development Commissioner. Hence in such case the impugned order passed by the adjudicating authority is absolutely correct.

6. The Appellant has challenged the impugned order also on ground that no cross examination of panch witnesses and other witnesses was provided. We find that the repeated statements of the concerned persons clearly shows that the raw material was cleared by the Unit in open market and false receipt of goods was shown by the consignee unit. Even the goods seized from consignee M/s Al-Amin could not have been manufactured from goods supplied by M/s Laurel as the same were different in GSM and Denier. It leaves no doubt that M/s Laurel did not use the duty free raw material in manufacture of export goods and instead cleared the same in open market. The Appellant has also pleaded that the factory was under control and supervision of the Central Excise officers. However we find that the case against the Appellant unit is based upon documentary evidence and not only statements and hence the cross examination cannot be made sole criteria for setting aside the demands. The contention of the Appellant that the demands are time barred is also not sustainable in the light of fact that the present cases are not on subject of technical breach of policy/procedure or interpretation but wilful evasion of duty which was unearthed by the revenue after detailed investigation and recording of statements of various persons. Hence in such case the extended period of limitation is clearly applicable. There has been continuous confessional statements of director which clearly shows the extent of evasion by diverting the duty free raw material. Further each of the co-appellant who are in appeal before us has played important role in falsifying the records and evasion of duty as apparent from their statements. Their acts have been amply recorded in the show cause notice and the impugned order. Hence in such case we are of the view that the impugned order deserves no interference and the appeals filed by M/s Laurel and other co-appellants are required to be dismissed and we hold so. As regard appeal filed by the revenue that the adjudicating authority has wrongly given option to pay reduced penalty under Section 114A, we consider it appropriate to send the matter back to the adjudicating authority to look into the contentions raise by the revenue and to decide the quantum of penalty.

7. All the appeals are disposed off as above.

FINAL ORDER NOS. A/12330-12331/2019

Per: Raju:

These appeals have been filed by M/s. Mulchand M. Zaveri (hereinafter referred to as M/s. MMZ) and its partner Shri Sanjay kumar Mulchandbhai Patel (hereinafter referred to as Shri Sanjay Patel) against confirmation of demand of Customs duty, imposition of penalty and confiscation of goods.

The appellants had imported certain goods declaring the same as 'Natural Gold Ore Concentrate'. The appellants have been importing goods with the said description of 'natural gold ore concentrate' for some time. After fifteen consignments (one imported through Mumbai and not subject matter of this notice) of the said product having been cleared by Customs, the 16th consignment was stopped. The bill of entry No. 4434128 for the 16th consignment was submitted to Ahmedabad Customs for assessment. The goods were sought to be classified under Customs Tariff Heading 26169010 claiming basic Customs duty (BCD) at the rate 2.5% and nil CVD by virtue of Notification No. 12/2012-CE dated 17 March 2012 (Serial No. 56). All import documents like purchase orders, Dubai customs clearance declaration, packing list, testing report etc. were submitted with bill of entry. The said consignment was seized by Directorate of Revenue Intelligence (DRI) on the basis of intelligence to the effect that the appellants were importing by mis-declaring the goods as 'Natural Gold Ore Concentrate' and wrongly claiming the benefit of notification. The goods were examined under Panchanama. Thereafter, statements of Shri Rohit Harishrao Jadav, Senior Executive of M/s. C.N. Gandevia Clearing and Forwarding Agent was recorded. M/s. MMZ were declaring the imported goods as Gold Ore Concentrate since December, 2013. Shri Rohit Harishrao Jadav in his statement dated 24 January, 2014 stated that the imports made earlier were similar to the one imported vide bill of entry No. 4434128 dated 23 January, 2014 and examined under Panchanama dated 24 January, 2014. Regarding the physical appearance of the earlier consignments, he stated that the same were ‘reddish coloured lumps of mud containing yellow coloured metal particles. During investigations certain WhatsApp messages were recovered from the mobile phone of Shri Sanjay Patel. Certain other incriminating documents were also recovered from the premises of appellant. Statement of Sh Sanjay Patel was also recorded. Statement of Shri Mohanlal S. Jadia, whose shop was used to process the material imported by the appellant, was also recorded. Based on these evidences a SCN was issued alleging that the appellants had not imported the ‘Natural Gold Ore Concentrate’ but had artificially mixed gold and various materials like mud, cement etc to artificially create something that could be camouflaged as ‘Natural Gold Ore Concentrate’. The demand of duty, confiscation and penalties were confirmed against the appellants. Aggrieved by the said order the appellants are before the Tribunal.

2.1 Learned Counsel pointed out that during January 2014 to July 2014, statement of various persons including that of Shri Sanjay Mulchandbhai Patel was recorded by DRI authorities. A sample of the product was examined by an expert from IIT Mumbai. Learned counsel pointed out that a show cause notice was issued by ADG, DRI, Ahmedabad alleging that the goods covered under bill of entry 4434128 were not ‘Gold Ore/ Gold Ore Concentrate’ classifiable under CTH 26169010 but the goods were “Gold” classifiable under CTH 71081300 and hence not eligible for exemption and also liable for confiscation. The same allegations were made in respect of imports made in the past, under different 14 consignments made during July 2013 to January 2014. Duty in respect of previous consignments imported through Ahmedabad Customs was also demanded. In the notice, Revenue also relied on the role of Shri Mohanlal S. Jadia whose shop was used to process the material imported by the appellant. Learned counsel pointed out that Shri Shailesh Kumar H Patel, Director of CHA firm and clarified that he had never seen the goods imported earlier. However, Shri Rohit Harishrao Jadav, Senior Executive of CHA, during cross-examination confirmed that he had seen the goods in the past; that Customs officers used to permit to opening of package for the purpose of control of samples for valuation by the government approved valuer. Shri Rohit Harishrao Jadav also stated that his observation that past imports were similar to the current import was based on physical appearance only and he cannot be 100 per cent certain in this regard.

2.2 Learned Counsel pointed that Revenue had relied on the report of Dr. George Mathew, Associate Professor at Indian Institute of Technology (IIT for short), Bombay. He pointed out that there were a lot of error in the report made by the Professor and for that purpose he relied on the record of the cross-examination of Dr. George Mathew. Learned Counsel pointed out that the demand, penalties and confiscation was upheld by the Commissioner despite the fact that they had pointed out various lacunas’ in the report of the Professor of IIT, Mumbai. In this background of facts, learned Counsel argued that the report of Dr Mathew that the sample tested by them was ‘not naturally occurring’, is incorrect and cannot be relied on. He pointed out that while the report of IIT Professor stated that in native gold, the gold content should be 90 per cent and during cross-examination, he stated that gold content in the native gold varied from 70 per cent to 90 per cent. Learned Counsel pointed out that in the sample tested by IIT Bombay, the gold content found to 79 per cent which falls within the range of the native gold i.e. 70 per cent to 90 per cent. Learned Counsel pointed out that the report of IIT Bombay extracts the meaning of ‘Natural Gold Nuggets’ from Wikipedia. He argued that report of IIT Bombay does not rely on an authentic material or literature. Learned Counsel further pointed out that while the impugned order suggests that

(i) Natural Gold Nuggets had a wax like yellow colour,

(ii) that the sample of gold metal in question did not show pits or cavities/ craters and had smooth surface, but had failed to cite any authentic literature in support of this observation.

2.3 Learned Counsel further pointed out that Dr. Mathew had given his observation about the ‘wax like yellow color’ merely an eye examination observation. No equipment/ machinery was used to arrive at this observation regarding the testing of the samples.

2.4 He further pointed out that the report of IIT Bombay was inconclusive about presence of cement in the sample. The report stated that while presence of the cement was not detected, use of some form of cement was not ruled out. He pointed out that the nature of report creates doubt that when no cement was present still the Professor observed the use of cement cannot be ruled out.

2.4 Learned Counsel pointed that while Revenue has taken sample of the import made vide bill of entry No. 4434128, the same cannot be applied to past imports made by the appellant. Learned Counsel clarified the present demand relates to only 14 bills of entry as one import was made through Mumbai. Learned Counsel argued that Revenue had earlier taken samples in the past and therefore, it is not open to Revenue to rely on the report received on the basis of sample taken in the consignment which was seized. He argued that the report of Professor IIT at best can be applied to bill of entry No. 4434128 only. He argued that in this background, attempt to reclassify the goods, covered in the past imports is illegal and without jurisdiction.

2.5 Learned Counsel pointed out that Revenue has heavily relied on WhatsApp messages recovered from the mobile phone of Shri Sanjay Patel. He argued that the said messages are not admissible as evidence and the messages do not establish that the partner of the appellant firm had instructed any person to prepare the goods for import in such a manner that they appeared like Natural Gold Ore Concentrates. Learned Counsel argued that there is no evidence showing that the instructions, advice appearing in the WhatsApp message were for the goods imported by the appellant and covered under bills of entry listed at Annexure-A to the show cause notice. He further argued that there is no evidence on record that advice and instructions allegedly given by Shri Sanjay Patel to Shri Sachin, the supplier abroad were actually carried out or implemented. He argued that mere presence of Whatsapp messages does not prove that supplier had actually carried out all the activities mentioned in the Whatsapp. Learned Counsel argued that while Whatsapp messages indicate that Shri Sachin was required to mix silver, zinc, cadmium, copper etc. but cadmium and zinc were not found in the metal portion of the sample tested by IIT, Bombay. He argued that alleged instructions were not followed.

2.6 Learned Counsel further pointed out that demand of differential duty is barred by limitation. He argued that the past consignments were assessed as "Natural Gold Ore Concentrate" and concessional rate of Customs duty, by classifying under CTH 26169020 was allowed by proper officer. They had submitted all requisite documents like purchase invoices, packing lists/air way bills, certificate of country of origin etc. and the goods were available before the customs officers and they could have ascertain the composition of the goods. He argued that samples were also taken by the Customs Officers. Learned Counsel submitted that classification and admissibility of exemption are questions of law involving interpretation therefore, no malafide can be attributed to the assessee in such case.

2.7 Learned Counsel argued that earlier a similar issue was raised before the Customs and the Commissioner (Appeals) decided in appellant's favour in the said consignment, the goods were classified under CTH 26169010 and full exemption from CVD was granted by virtue of Serial No. 5 of Notification No. 4/2006-CE. He argued that the said order-in-appeal has bearing on issues like the bonafide nature of our imports, assessment of consignments of gold ore concentrate by proper Customs Officers upon proper scrutiny and verification, irrelevance of Whatsapp messages and thus, wrong invocation of longer period of limitation in these proceedings.

2.8 Learned Counsel pointed out that CTH 26129010 covers "Gold Ores and Concentrates". He pointed out that, for Ores of tariff heading 2601 to 2617 are eligible for the benefit of reduced rate of CVD by virtue of Notification No.
He pointed out that term "Ores" is statutorily defined under Note No.2 of Chapter 26 to mean - "Minerals of mineralogical species actually used in the metallurgical industry for the extraction of mercury, of the metals of Heading 2844 or of the metals of Section XIV or XV, even if they are intended for non-metallurgical purposes." He argued that this definition indicates that any mineralogical specie actually used for extraction of metals including gold, is "Ore" as defined by the Parliament even though such goods were intended for non-metallurgical purposes. He pointed out that the goods in question have been imported for extracting gold there from and therefore, they are 'Ore' as per Note 2 of Chapter 26 of the Customs Tariff.

2.9 He further pointed out that there is no violation of any nature committed by the appellant and there is no question of imposition of penalty. He also argued that penalty has been imposed on the firm as well as on the partner. He relied on the decision of Hon'ble Gujarat High Court in the case of Jaiprakash Motwani - 2010 (258) ELT 204 (Guj.). He further argued that no penalty can be imposed on the firm as there was no malafide. Learned Counsel further argued that the penalty imposed is very high. He also argued that redemption fine of Rs. 60 Lakhs is too high as the duty involved is only Rs. 18 Lakhs.

3. Learned Authorised Representative for the Department relied upon the impugned order. He took us through the show cause notice where the product imported by the appellant and the evidence in support of revenue claim is described. He further relied on the statements of partner Shri Sanjay Patel. He pointed out that everything was admitted and the statement was never retracted. He further relied on the documents at page 31 and 33 of [relied upon document No.12] contained in the file seized from the appellant’s premises under Panchanama dated 24 January 2014 which showed detailed calculation of the cost and material involved in production of goods in Dubai. Learned Authorised Representative also relied on the decision of Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of UOI vs. Jain Shudh Vanaspati Limited - 1996 (86) ELT 460 (SC) to assert that no reassessment is needed to demand duty in respect of past clearances.

4. We have gone through the rival submissions. We find that the dispute essentially relates to admissibility of benefit of Notification No. 12/2012-CE dated 17 March 2012. The said notification exempts the excisable goods of the description specified in column (3) of the Table below read with relevant list appended hereto and falling within the Chapter heading or sub-heading or tariff item of the First Schedule to the Central Excise Tariff Act, 1985 (5 of 1986). Serial No. 56 of the tariff, notification reads as follows:

<thead>
<tr>
<th>Sl. No.</th>
<th>Chapter or heading or sub-heading or tariff item of the First Schedule</th>
<th>Description of excisable goods</th>
<th>Rate</th>
<th>Condition No.</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>1</td>
<td>2 to 55</td>
<td>3</td>
<td>4</td>
<td>5</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>56</td>
<td>2601 to 2617</td>
<td>Ores</td>
<td>Nil</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

It is seen that the above notification exempts from Central Excise duty "Ores" falling under Chapter 2601 to 2617 from whole of excise duty.

4.1 Examination of Definition of Ore in HSN, chapter notes and other dictionaries Note 2 to Chapter 26 of the Tariff reads as follows:-

"2. For the purposes of headings 2601 to 2617, the term "ores" means minerals of mineralogical species actually used in the metallurgical industry for the extraction of mercury, of the metals of heading 2844 or of the metals of Section XIV or XV, even if they are intended for non-metallurgical purposes. Headings 2601 to 2617 do not, however, include minerals which have been submitted to processes not normal to the metallurgical industry."

From the above facts, it is seen that the appellants are claiming benefit of Notification No. 12/2012-CE and the notification exempts 'Ores' falling under heading 2601 to 2617 from Central Excise duty. Note-2 of the Chapter 26 defines the scope of the term 'ore' for the purpose of this chapter. This definition of 'ore' as applicable to Chapter heading 2601 to 2617 is elaborated in the HSN notes in following words:-

"Headings 26.01 to 26.17 are limited to metallic ores and concentrates which:
(A) Are of mineralogical species actually used in the metallurgical industry for the extraction of the metals of Section XIV or XV, of mercury or of the metals of heading 28.44, even if they are intended for non-metallurgical purposes, and

(B) Have not been submitted to processes not normal to the metallurgical industry.

The term "ores" applies to metalliferous minerals associated with the substances in which they occur and with which they are extracted from the mine; it also applies to native metals in their gangue (e.g., metalliferous sands).

Ores are seldom marketed before "preparation "for subsequent metallurgical operations. The most important preparatory processes are those aimed at concentrating the ores.

For the purposes of headings 26.01 to 26.17, the term "concentrates" applies to ores which have had part or all of the foreign matter removed by special treatments, either because such foreign matter might hamper subsequent metallurgical operations or with a view to economical transport.

Processes to which products of headings 26.01 to 26.17 may have been submitted include physical, physico-chemical or chemical operations, provided they are normal to the preparation of the ores for the extraction of metal. With the exception of changes resulting from calcination, roasting or firing (with or without agglomeration), such operations must not alter the chemical composition of the basic compound which furnishes the desired metal.

The physical or physico-chemical operations include crushing, grinding, magnetic separation, gravimetric separation, flotation, screening, grading, agglomeration of powders (e.g., by sintening or pelleting) into grains, balls or briquettes (whether or not with the addition of small quantities of binders), drying, calcination, roasting to oxidise, reduce or magnetise the ore, etc. (but not roasting for purposes of sulphating, chloridating, etc.).

The chemical processes are aimed at eliminating the unwanted matter (e.g., dissolution).

Concentrates of ores obtained by treatments, other than calcining or roasting, which alter the chemical composition or crystallographic structure of the basic ore are excluded (generally Chapter 28). Also excluded are more or less pure products obtained by repeated physical changes (fractional crystallisation, sublimation, etc.), even if there has been no change in the chemical composition of the basic ore."

4.1 From the above it is seen that as per HSN the term 'ore' applies only to 'metalliferous minerals' which are 'extracted from mines' or to 'native metals in their gangue (e.g. metalliferous sands)'. The website http://kolibri.teacherinabox.org.au/ describes 'native metal' as follows

"Any metal that is found in its metallic form, either pure or as an alloy, in nature." Website https://www.azomining.com/ describes 'native metal' as

"Native metal is the uncombined form of metal that occurs in nature. It is the pure, metallic form that does not occur in combination with other elements. Native metals are either found as native deposits singly or as alloys."

Dictionary.com defines 'Gangue' as "rock or mineral matter of no value occurring with the metallic ore in a vein or deposit." Merriam Webster dictionary defines 'Gangue' as

"the worthless rock or vein matter in which valuable metals or minerals occur" As per the definition, to be an ore the material has to qualify to the description 'minerals of mineralogical species'. The term "mineral" has been defined in Wikipedia is

"A mineral is, broadly speaking, a solid chemical compound that occurs naturally in pure form."

Then, the Encyclopedia Britanica defines 'mineral' as follow:-

1. Formed by a natural process (anthropogenic compounds are excluded).

2. Stable or metastable at room temperature (25 °C). In the simplest sense, this means the mineral must be solid. Classical examples of exceptions to this rule include native mercury, which crystallizes at ~39 °C, and water ice, which is solid only below 0 °C; because these two minerals were described before 1959, they were grandfathered by the International Mineralogical Association (IMA). Modern advances have included extensive study of liquid crystals, which also extensively involve mineralogy.”

Collins’ Dictionary defines the ‘mineral’ as under:

“A mineral is a substance such as tin, salt, or sulphur that is formed naturally in rocks and in the earth. Minerals are also found in small quantities in food and drink.”

In Cambridge Dictionary the term ‘mineralogical’ is defined as follows relating to mineralogy (= the scientific study of minerals):

From the above reading of definition of "Ores" appearing in Note-2 of Chapter 26 and definition of the term 'minerals' in various dictionaries appearing above, it is seen that only Naturally occurring substances are termed as 'minerals' and therefore "Ores". Like HSN, Encyclopedia Britannica excludes 'anthropogenic compounds' from the term 'Ore'. ‘Anthropogenic’ is defined as follows in Merriam Webster Dictionary

't, relating to, or resulting from the influence of human beings on nature'

'caused by humans or their activities:'

4.2 Furthermore the HSN clarifies that the term 'ore' applies only to goods that are not subjected to processes which are 'not normal to Metallurgical Industry'. Thus goods which are produced by subjecting pure gold, sand and other materials to various processes to appear like ore cannot by any stretch of imagination be called ore as these processes, of mixing gold with sand and other substances to create an ore like product, are not normal to Metallurgical Industry. Moreover it is not normal Metallurgical Industry Process to convert Pure metal (like Gold ornaments/biscuits) into Impure gold mixture with sand with some physical/chemical characteristics of 'ore'.

4.3 Thus as per chapter notes and HSN only the naturally occurring material can qualify as 'ore'. The artificially made substances cannot therefore be called as "Ore" in terms of the definition of the term 'Ore' appearing in the Chapter notes and explanations in HSN.

4.4 Goods do not answer to the term Concentrate The goods imported by the appellant were produced in a workshop by mixing sand and gold and various materials cannot be called concentrate. As per HSN explanatory notes the term ‘concentrate’ applies only to ‘ores which have had part or all of the foreign matter removed……..’. Thus only goods derived from ‘ores’ can be called concentrate. It is seen that Revenue is seeking classification of the product under chapter 71 therefore is the correct classification of the product. In any case the goods do not fall under chapter heading 2601 to 2617 even under description of 'Concentrate'.

5 Benefit of Notification The heading 26169010 covers both Gold Ore and Concentrates. Thus it is seen that the tariff distinguishes between Ores and Concentrates. While the notification grants exemption to ‘Ores’ falling under heading 2601 to 2617, it does not grant any exemption to ‘Concentrates’ falling in the same headings. Thus, to claim the benefit of exemption notification, the appellants are required to establish that the goods imported by the appellant are only 'Ores'. In the instant case, the appellants are claiming benefit of Notification No. 12/2012-CE and the notification exempts ‘Ores’ falling in the specified headings. Since appellants are claiming the benefit of the notification the onus to establish that they are entitled to the benefit of the notification is on the appellants. Revenue has placed on record sufficient evidence, discussed in following paras, to suggest that the goods are not of natural origin and therefore not 'Ores'.

5.1 The basic question that needs to be answered at the outset is if the benefit of exemption to 'ores' be extended to anything that has been artificially produced to resemble naturally occurring 'ores'. In other words, if it is established that the goods imported by the appellants were produced in by them in a workshop, and are not naturally occurring substances extracted from Mines or sand, can they be called 'ores' even if they resemble naturally occurring 'ores' in certain physical/chemical parameters? The answer is no. Only the naturally occurring materials can qualify as ore and artificially produced material cannot qualify as ores even if they correspond to the the physical/chemical parameters of 'ores'.
5.2 The evidence with the revenue is in the shape of:

(i) Test report of the professor at IIT Mumbai

(ii) Whatsapp messages recovered from the mobile phone of the Shri Sanjay Patel

(iii) Statements of other persons recorded during investigation

(iv) Documents recovered from the premises of appellant

5.3 Investigations have revealed that there were frequent exchange of messages between the appellant’s partner Shri Sanjay Patel and foreign supplier Shri Sachin. The print-outs of WhatsApp messages were taken under Panchanama from the mobile phone recovered of Shri Sanjay Patel. During investigation, mobile phone of Shri Sanjay Patel was seized under Panchanama and the printout of WhatsApp messages exchanged between Shri Sanjay Patel and Shri Sachin, No. 971-52727299 of M/s. Gstar Jewellers, Dubai, UAE were taken. The said WhatsApp messages indicated that Shri Sanjay Patel was directing Shri Sachin to mix gold with various substances and create a product roughly answering to the physical/chemical description of "Ore". The messages exchanged during 13 November 2013 to 14 November 2014 shows that Shri Sanjay Patel giving minute by minute instructions to Shri Sachin to prepare fake gold ore concentrate. The messages and the implications of the Messages were specifically admitted by Shri Sanjay Patel. No cross examination of Shri Sanjay Patel was sought nor was his statement retracted. During this period the appellants approached Hon High Court for cross examination of a few witnesses. But the statement of Sanjay Patel was not retracted except in the reply filed after the cross examination of all witnesses. The WhatsApp messages were recovered under a Panchanama from a mobile recovered under a Panchnama. The recovery of phone or messages was not challenged as the Panchanama was not challenged. Furthermore the WhatsApp messages are corroborated by the recovery of cost sheet from appellants premises as well as the action/documentation (as detailed in following paras) pursuant to the said messages as detailed in OIO.

5.4 The Show Cause notice gives the summary of the messages in following words:

"38.2 The printouts of the Whatsapp messages relevant to the investigation, contained in the Mobile phone of Shri Sanjay Patel were taken under Panchanama. The messages exchanged between Shri Sanjay Patel and one Shri Sachin No. 971-527247299 of M/s. GStar Jewellers LLC, Dubai, UAE clearly bring out the modus operandi of melting the gold of 999 purity mixed with silver, cadmium, zinc, copper etc., preparing grains/flakes of the mixture of these metals, preparing a wet base of red soil, mixing the metal with the wet soil base and thereafter heating and drying of the composite mixture. The resultant preparation in the form of lumps of red soil containing grains/flakes of gold were imported into India by declaring the same as natural gold ore concentrate. The Whatsapp messages from PK No.6585 to 7264 clearly establish the above fact. These messages pertain to first consignment of gold imported by Ms. MMZ from M/s. Gstar-Jewellers LLC, Dubai in the guise of fake gold ore concentrate. In these series of messages during 13/11/2013 to 14/11/2013 Shri Sanjay Patel is giving minute by minute instructions to Shri Sachin for preparing the fake gold ore concentrate. At PK No. 6586 and 6587 Shri Sanjay Patel is asking Shri Sachin whether he is preparing grains/flakes or preparing dough of Red Geru (red Indian soil). In response Shri Sachin at PK No. 6588 informs Shri Sanjay Patel that he is preparing grains/flake At PK No. 6593 Shri Sachin asks about the size of the grains/flakes and in response Shri Sanjay Patel informs at PK No.6596, 6598 and 6599 that it should be above 3mm but below 11mm and at the most it should not be more than 12-13mm. At PK No. 6611 and 6612 Shri Sachin informs that the metals are being melted and that he would send a photo after preparing grains/flakes. Shri Sanjay asks about the temperature at PK No. 6613 to which Shri Sachin informs that it is at 856 and at PK No. 6616 to 6618 he informs that he has added zinc and copper, he would add cadmium before 900, add silver at 900 and thereafter add gold at 1000.

38.3 In the messages at PK No. 6874 to 7002 Shri Sanjay Patel gives instructions for preparing the soil base. He asks Shri Sachin to use 50 gms liquid Sodium Silicate, 400gms of geru (red Indian soil) and half a litre of water, mix them and heat (stir) properly to make them smooth. He also instructs Shri Sachin simultaneously to boil 3.2 kgs of fine sand in 1 litre of water and add water as is needed. At PK No. 6892 Shri Sanjay Patel advises Shri Sachin to use 100gms..."
Caustic Soda if Sodium Silicate is not available. At PK No. 6900 to 6903 Shri Sanjay informs that the preparation would be very good and a Perfect Duplicate of the African original. At PK No.7006 to 7025 Shri Sanjay Patel instructs Shri Sachin to add slowly the grains/flakes and water (prepared as above at Para 39.2) to the wet soil base and keep stirring the same. At PK No.7230 Shri Sanjay informs the detailed break-up of the costing of the above preparation and its CIF value at Ahmedabad. As per this the above preparation containing 1 Kg gold of 995 purity has a CIF Ahmedabad value 26,98,317/. - Shri Sachin of M/s. Gstar Jewellers LLC, Dubai informs Shri Sanjay Patel at PK No. 7475 that Customs (Dubai) would apply only (HS) Code 71081100. The said consignment was imported by M/s. MMZ through ACC, Ahmedabad by filing bill of entry No.3820322 dated 16/11/2013 wherein the goods were declared to be Natural Gold Ore Concentrate and claiming classification under CTH 26169010. The import under the said bill of Entry No.3820322 dated 16/11/ 2013 is communicated by Shri Sanjay Patel to Shri Sachin at PK No.8139.

38.4 For the subsequent consignments Shri Sanjay Patel advises use of Cement and Geru (red Indian soil). These communications are at PK No.7944 to 9007. Shri Sachin informs Shri Sanjay Patel at PK No. 9017 and 9018 that using geru would be expensive and for 2 kg geru of 400 Dirhams would be used. In response Shri Sanjay Patel informs him at PK No. 9019 to 9023 that he would send 100kg Geru. Shri Sanjay Patel subsequently informs him at PK No.9090 to 9099 that he is sending Geru and asks Shri Sachin for the name and address of the consignee. Shri Sachin at PK No.9106 and 9110 communicates the consignee name and address as - No.+ 971 52247299, To- Jasmine Patel, Gallops Trading LLC, Khalid bin-al -walid Road, Opp. Askot Hotel, Bur Dubai, Dubai, UAE. At PK No.9213 and 9215 Shri Sanjay Patel informs Shri Sachin that they have to do another shipment of 2200gms immediately.

38.5 The conversations from PK No.11619 to 12491 between Shri Sanjay Patel and his Dubai based counterpart pertain to the preparation of the fake gold ore concentrate for importing 2.2 kgs of pure gold -995 purity, its cost in Dubai, the ingredients and the proportion in which they are to be used and preparation of the documents for export from Dubai to India. These communication messages clearly indicate that Shri Sanjay Patel is giving instructions to his Dubai based counterpart on every aspect from preparation of the fake gold ore concentrate as well as preparation of the documents for export from Dubai. The weight of the said consignment arrived was 6.2 kgs and the same was mentioned in the Invoice and Packing List and declared before Customs, Air Cargo Complex, Ahmedabad at the time import for which bill of entry No.3986187 dtd.04/12/2013 was filed by declaring the goods as Natural Gold Ore Concentrate.

38.6 The instances narrated above leading to the import of pure gold of 995 purity in the guise of the fake natural gold ore concentrate are pertaining to the first two consignments imported at ACC, Ahmedabad vide bill of entry No. 3820322 dated 16/11/2013 and 3986187 dated 04/12/2013. Similar modus was adopted for import of the other consignments of pure gold of 995 purity through ACC, Ahmedabad under bills of entry as detailed in Annexure-A to this notice.

38.7 That the declared country of origin is also fake is evidenced from the message of Shri Sanjay Patel at PK No, 10439 and 10440 wherein he informs his Dubai counterpart that editing of Ghana, West Africa is remaining in the documents and that they mention Ethiopia.”

5.5 After examining the messages the impugned order gives following findings on the issue of corroboration :-

i) In the messages exchanged on 09.11.13 (PK 5806 onwards) it appears that some proforma invoice was sent by Sachin to Sanjay Patel for his approval. Certain corrections were suggested by him such as writing some details in capital words and keep proper space above name for signature on the proforma invoice.

ii) It also appears that images of some material were forwarded by Sachin to Sanjay Patel and he in turn tells that the finish of the material was too smooth and it should be of natural form (matt finish).

iii) On 10.11.2013 the messages (PK 5816 to 6016) are relating to fixing the price of the gold Sanjay Patel asks about fixing of the gold price to which Sachin replies that it will cost 1300 with premium Sanjay Patel asks Sachin whether the rate is per ounce or what He then again asks about the price in grams Sachin replies that it will cost 1300 with premium He further tells that if it is fixed at 1300 them cost in USD will be 41.80 per gram.

iv) That proforma invoice as approved by Sachin and an amount of 80,000 AED was transferred by Sanjay Patel to Sachin for this purpose.

v) From one stage onwards the messages are relating to actual preparation of mixture by Sachin at Dubai under the guidance of Sanjay Patel from Ahmedabad. During the course of this exchange Sanjay Patel has asks Sachin whether he is ready to prepare the mixture and he replies that he is already on the point. Sanjay Patel has explained to Sachin various activities which are required to be done.

vi) WhatsApp message dated 13.11.2013 between Sanjay Patel and Sachin are relating to preparation of mixture containing gold and other metals, soil and chemicals. During the course of these messages method of preparation, the material to be used and the quantity used, temperature to be maintained, etc. have been explained. In addition, there is also an exchange regarding documents to be prepared and payment to be made etc. These are explained below separately.

21.1 This consignment is mentioned at Sl. No.3 of Annexure ‘A’ to the SCN. (hereinafter it is referred to as the 3rd consignment). The relevant messages are from PK 5806 onwards (dated 09.11.2013) exchanged between Sanjay and Sachin. The messages are with regard to:

21.2

i) Melting of gold of 995 purity with silver, cadmium, zinc, copper etc.

ii) Preparing grains/flakes of the mixture of these metals.

iii) Preparing of wet base of red soil.

iv) Mixing the metal with wet soil.

v) Heating and drying of the composite mixture.

21.3 In these messages, first they start with preparing the gold flakes (chilkas). Sachin informs that he has procured 1 kg of pure gold having size 11 to 12 mm. Sanjay Patel informs him that the size should be around 12 to 13 mm. Further he informs him to take various materials Zinc, Copper, Silver, Cadmium. He asks for the preparation of the mixture.

21.4 At one stage Sachin informs that the temperature is 856 and that he has already mixed Zinc and Copper with the gold (PK 6616) that he will mix cadmium before 900 and thereafter silver after 990 and at 1000 gold.

21.5 Sanjay Patel informs Sachin to keep the kilater ready and gives him directions regarding safety measure to be taken for pouring this mixture in the water. Sachin informs that the size of the final mixture is about the size of gram (chana). He sends image of the gold flakes. To get an idea of real size Sanjay asks Sachin to put a scale, pencil or pen and send image back to him, which he does. (PK 6709 to 6727) Further Sanjay informs that small and medium size flakes will be acceptable. The larger size being very small in quantity, they should be able to manage at this time. (PK 6736)

Preparation of soil mixture. (message No. PK 6802)

21.6 Sachin informs Sanjay Patel that the soil with him is little bit sandy and slips out of hand. Then he tells that he will use the finest sieve which will be as fine as to sieve Maida floor. Sachin asks him and say that the soil is very fine and it will automatically get sticky. He also advises him to mix Geru with it.

21.7 Sanjay Patel guides Sachin how to prepare soil mixture. He asks Sachin to get 50 grams of sodium silicate + 400 grams of Geroo + ½ liter of water, mix all these materials in ½ liter of water and stir it till it gets sticky. In addition, he asks to get 3.2 kg of fine sand + 1 liter of water and boil it. Meanwhile Sanjay asks about the availability of water glass (sodium silicate). He suggests that if the same is not readily available, caustic soda can also be used (PK 6874 to 6892).

Preparation of soil mixture with gold 21.8 At one stage, while sand mixture is being prepared Sanjay Patel asks Sachin to keep gold flakes ready by the side. He inquires whether the color of sand mixture has changed from red to brown because of the effect of the caustic soda. At this stage, Sanjay Patel asks him to mix gold flakes in the sand mixture and put water in the same. He has also advised to lower the temperature. After seeing the image, Sanjay Patel comments that the sand is very sticky. During the course of preparation, Sachin informs that he has used 200 grams of caustic soda, to which Sanjay informs that the total weight of the mixture will be 5100 grams and asks him to remove 200 grams of mixture from this 200 grams of mixture was separated, gold flakes are again removed and mixed with the main mixture. At repeated intervals, he enquires about the color of the mixture and on number of occasions the photos are sent by Sachin to Sanjay Patel of various materials so that he can check as to whether the process is going in right direction. According to WhatsApp messages, the process is completed at 1.00 o’clock at night. (IST).

Money transactions:

21.9 During the course of this exchange of messages, Sanjay Patel informs Sachin about the transfers to the latter’s account by Swift Transfer an amount of 21750 USD.(message no. PK 6231) Sanjay Patel also forwards to Sachin the message which he received from his bank “Your CD A/c23035 is debited by Rs. 13,88,231/- on 12.11.2013 by Transfer = US$21,750/” (message no. PK 6450)

KALOTI (PK 6837 TO 6842):

21.10 During this period, there is also an exchange regarding sending the gold flakes for Kaloti certification. Sanjay Patel, on the basis of his own calculations informs Sachin that the purity of this gold flakes would be 74.5%.

Documentation.

21.11 Another set of message exchanged is regarding the origin to be mentioned on the invoice pertaining to the consignment to be imported. Sanjay Patel suggests that it should be either Ethiopian or African origin to which Sachin informs that he will write “Ethiopia”. Yet another set of WhatsApp message reveal that Sanjay Patel directs Sachin to mention CTH 2616.90. Then he tells Sachin that duty under this heading is lower as compared to CTH 70 and 71081, which is 10%. (message no. PK 6445 onwards) Besides, Shri Sanjay has also explained that the import under CTH 7108 was regulated by RBI and that they wanted to clear the goods @ 2.5% and the same ‘can happen only if this one proves to be 26169010’. (PK 6562 to 6572)

Calculation Sheet:

21.12 Sanjay Patel has also forwarded the calculation sheet of the total expense of preparing this mixture which includes elements towards expense on gold, forwarding through Trans Guard Express, insurance and Kaloti test report. (PK 7230). A similar calculation sheet appears to be made for consignment No. 5 which was recovered from his premises during the search and being relied upon in the SCN (para no. 13.4 of SCN). The material was sent via Emirates Airlines through Transguard Express. At this stage, Sachin again forwards images of the mixture, which is found satisfactory by Sanjay Patel. After inquiring the gross weight of the mixture, Sanjay prepares the commercial invoice and sends to Sachin. Sachin indicates the gross weight of the consignment and net weight.

21.13 In message nos. P1K 7313 to 7365 Sanjay Patel asks Sachin to check the invoice and further asks him to prepare covering letter, packing list, commercial invoice on his letterhead, stamp and sign it and after scanning it send all three documents to him.

21.14 According to WhatsApp messages, the consignment is submitted to the Dubai Customs. Next day on 15th evening, Sanjay Patel confirms arrival of consignment at Air Cargo, Ahmedabad. Next day on 16th Sanjay Patel informs that he has filed BE No. 3820322 dated 16.11.2013.

21.15 In messages exchanged on 22.11.2013, he informs Sachin that the goods have been cleared from the Customs and he is already in the process of cleaning the mixture of gold.

Relevance of WhatsApp message
21.16 From the above discussion, I find that the aforesaid exchange through WhatsApp messages corroborates with the import consignment mentioned at sl. no. 3 of Annexure 'A' to the SCN, i.e. B/E No. 3820322 dated 16.11.2013 filed by M/s MMZ owing to the following reasons:

i) Bill of Entry filed by M/s MM Zaveri and appearing at Sl.No.3 of the Annexure 'A' to the SCN is the same which was conveyed through WhatsApp messages PK 8139, 9119 & 9120;

ii) M/s GStar Jewellers LLC, Dubai had issued invoice dated 14.11.2013 for USD 42,300 towards supply of 5.00 kgs of Natural Gold Ore Concentrates unrefined Gold, wherein advance payment $ 21,750/- is mentioned and balance amount of $ 20,550/- was to be paid within 7 working days (messages at PK 6231,6371,6450, 7230 & 11090 also indicate the same)

iii) the quantity mentioned in the aforesaid invoice of M/s GStar and in the B/E was 5 Kgs. which were also found in the messages more particularly at P1K 6949, 7068, 7076, 7083, 7089, 7101, 7230, etc.

iv) In the messages at PK 6857, 6860 it was insisted that country of origin to be written as 'Ethiopia'. In the invoice and aforesaid B/E the country of origin is also 'Ethiopia'

v) the goods were described as Natural Gold Ore ras under CTH 26159010 in the B/E. I find the same as very much in line with the messages at PK 6445, 6541, 6546, 6550, 6560, 6566, 6572,ec. whereby Shri Sanjay Patel had insisted to Shri Sachin to mention so;

vi) The purity of goods as per Kaloti report conveyed through the message PK 6823 and 6826 was 74.5% whereas in the packing list dated 14.11.2013 of M/s GStar and furnished alongwith the aforesaid BE the purity mentioned was 74.51% and subsequently Shri Kartikey Vasanthbhaj Soni in his report dated 20.11.2013 had also confirmed the purity as 17.9 Kt. (74.9%);

vii) the said consignment was shipped via Emirates Airlines through M/s Transguard and the same were mentioned in the messages at PK 6124, 6296, 6205,6497,6798, 7230, etc.

21.17 Therefore, it is clearly established that the aforesaid messages were exchanged between Shri Sanjay Patel and Shri Sachin of GStar, Dubai; that goods were prepared by him as per the instruction of Shri Sanjay Patel through these WhatsApp messages and imported by M/s MMZ vide B/E No. 3820322 and all these descriptions are matching with each other in messages as well as B/ E. It is also clearly established beyond doubt that the aforesaid consignment of fake ‘gold ore concentrate’ was sent by M/s Gstar, Dubai. The reasons for preparing the ‘gold ore concentrate’ was clarified by Shri Sanjay Patel vide PK 6541 to 6572 i.e. the misdeclaration was done with intent not only to circumvent the RBI regulations but also to evade payment of appropriate customs duty. Therefore, I find that there is no basis to ‘disown’ these messages and the same is overwhelmingly corroborated.

21.18 Therefore, I hold that the consignment no. 3 imported vide B/E No. 3820322 dated 16.11.2013 is not naturally occurring “Gold Ore Concentrate” but ‘man made gold nuggets’ mixed with other metals, soil, cement, etc. classifiable under CTH 7108.

22.1 This Bill of Entry is mentioned at sl. No. 4 of Annexure-A to the SCN. (hereinafter referred to as consignment no. 4)

22.2 Relevant messages are from PK 7941 dated 16 11 2013 onwards Regarding an enquiry by Shri Sachin, Sanjay Patel informed that the same was discussed over phone earlier but again repeated the formula viz, ‘Gem + Red Cement + water + gold = gold ore concentrates’ and for drying the same very low heat is required. Shri Sanjay Patel vide subsequent messages advised Shri Sachin to meticulously follow his instructions regarding selection of ingredients, its ratio and asked for trial of very small quantities so as to avoid last moment nervousness that would end up in derailment of entire plan, which ultimately may invite doubts’ in the minds of Customs. He further cautioned that if they leave any weak point, they might be caught at any moment and would lose two three years to solve a problem with Customs and hence it was advised to make perfectly the same kind of material at all times. Shri Sachin had informed that his friend had gone for collecting red colour cement and if the same was received, he would prepare demo by next day (17.11.2013). I find that Shri Sanjay Patel had repeatedly reminded not to waste time that would delay next shipment and further instructed the method of mixing geru+cement+water and its ratio and also to ensure that the gold purity is fixed at 75% approximately, so that the gold value would also be fixed; that thereafter he could steadily increase the quantity and could solve the problems on his own without calling Shri Sanjay Patel again and again (PK 8385 to 8390).

22.3 While referring to messages dated 17.11.2013 onwards, I find that Shri Sachin had started the ‘preparation’ of goods for next consignment; that upon seeing the images, Shri Sanjay Patel asked him to pour 25 ml water more in the small vessel and prepare the paste and also advised him to follow the instructions strictly. In between they had exchanged certain images as well. For evaporation, he had given option of different method viz., focus bulb of 100-200V, fan, keeping outside if it is sunny day or use of vacuum. To a suggestion, Shri Sanjay Patel told that since the hair drier was instantly available, it could be tried and he appreciated for giving such idea (PK 8926). Further, while observing the images, Shri Sanjay Patel had advised to observe the changes after giving mild heat through gas burner (PK 9998 to 9004). Since the aforesaid experiment appeared to be satisfactory, Shri Sachin informed that next day he would continue with the same test and for that purpose, he would gather all the required materials viz., night lamp, big hair dryer, 3-4 big steel bowl, steel bucket, geru, etc. (PK 9013 to 9016). Regarding proposal to obtain geru from Kerala (PK 9016), Shri Sanjay Patel replied that he would arrange the same and accordingly sent 100 kg. geru (PK 9110). Subsequently, on 19.11.2013 Shri Sachin had sent the images and informed that the goods were ready and its weight was 500 gms.

22.4 Shri Sanjay Patel on 20.11.2013 had asked Shri Sachin to immediately make another shipment of 2200 gms. (PK 9213 onwards) Subsequently, they had shared the information/documents required for submission in Bank for preparations of advance payment towards next consignment. On 26.11.2013, Shri Sachin asked to check the mail as he had already sent the proforma in letter pad and after making certain modifications Shri Sanjay Patel sent it back and further asked him to write Ethiopia as country of origin instead of Ghana, West Africa. On 29.11.2013, it was informed that an amount of Rs. 29,17,593 i.e. USD 46,500/- had been debited from the account. On 30.11.2013 Shri Sachin had sent an image and subsequently mentioned the ratio of different ingredients viz., Zinc 100gm, Copper 200gm, cadmium 5 gm, silver 30 gm. per kg. gold, for which Shri Sanjay Patel suggested to reduce the silver 1mg and instead advised to put palladium 1mg. I find he has repeated the final ratio once again; that for 2.2 kgs it was advised to calculate the ratio accordingly. Subsequently, certain images/messages were exchanged and advised to reduce copper, to which Shri Sachin replied in positive. On 01.12.2013, Shri Sanjay Patel suggested to add ‘gold Ore Concentrate Grains’ and in the bottom ‘Alloy’ in the Kaloti Certificate. In between they had again exchanged images of ‘grains’ and in order to gauge the size, he was asked to keep a pen beside to it and click the photo. Subsequently, after seeing the photo, Shri Sanjay Patel opined that it would have been better if little bigger size is available, however advised him to act fast and start working. It was further reminded that the goods required to be prepared were of 2200 gms and not of 2 kgs. and the bill should be prepared as per the material content, otherwise difficulties would arise at Customs. It was further informed that they should keep the total weight at 6200gms. instead of 6.250 kgs. but purity would remain 75.94% i.e. 18.23 Kt. Subsequently, they had exchanged the images of packing list, export covering letter, commercial invoice, etc. Shri Sachin had further informed that total metal weight was 2620 gms. Therefore, upon calculating the same, Shri Sanjay Patel informed that total purity would become 7.68kt. On 03.12.2013, Shri Sanjay Patel informed that he had mailed the documents and the import file was getting ready at. CHA’s Office and was waiting for airway bill. In the midnight of 03/04.12.2013, it was confirmed that the goods have been cleared by Dubai Customs and the Transguard would deliver Airway Bill in the morning. On 06.12.2013 it was informed that the goods have been released and the same reached Indore.

Corroboration of consignment No.4 with above WhatsApp messages:

22.5 At this juncture, I would like to refer the Bill of Entry No 3986187 dated 04.12.2013 appearing at SL No 4 of Annexure to the SCN and find that the description mentioned therein is matching with the same description mentioned in the WhatsApp messages. For brevity, the same are discussed hereinafter:
i) the quantity mentioned in the aforesaid Bill of Entry is the same which was conveyed through WhatsApp messages PK 9213 & 9215 whereby it was informed that he should prepare goods weighing 2200mg;

ii) In the invoice dated 02.12.2013 country of origin is mentioned as Ethiopia and advance payment received as US$ 46,500 and balance US $ 35030 to be paid within 7 working days which is matching with the messages Vide PK 11251 whereby it was informed that an amount of Rs. 29,17,593 i.e. USD 46,500/- was debited. Further vide PK 15168, it was confirmed that balance amount of US$35030 received.

iii) The total weight mentioned in the invoice was 6200gms. which is matching with the message at PK 12334 to 12337

iv) Similarly, purity was mentioned in the Kaloti report 75.94% i.e. 18.23 Kt. which is matching with the messages at PK 12340, 12342

v) BE was filed on 04.12.2013 which is matching with messages at PK 12504, 12561, etc.

vi) The said goods were sent via Emirates Airline, through Transguard which is matching with many messages at PK 12606, 12617, 12655, 12701, 12763

22.6 In view thereof, it is established by way of corroborative evidences like in the case of consignment No. 3 that the goods prepared by M/s GStar as per the instruction of Shri Sanjay Patel through these WhatsApp messages and imported by M/s MM Zaveri vide B/E No. 3986187 dated 04.12.2013 were the same and all these descriptions are perfectly matching to each other.

22.7 I, therefore, hold that the goods in question are man made gold nuggets and not the gold ore concentrates as declared by the importer.

23.1 These Bills of Entry are mentioned at sl. No. 1 and 2 of Annexure-A to the SCN. (hereinafter referred to as consignment nos. 1 & 2).

23.2 Further, I find that at WhatsApp messages PK 6539 & 6540 dated 12.11.2013 Shri Sanjay Patel had mentioned that he had cleared last three shipments in the same manner and a total 14 consignments during 2008 to 2013. More particularly, at message PK 6544 he has informed that the last consignment of 2500 gms. was cleared by him declaring it under OTH 26169010. While referring to the Annexure A Sl.No.2 of SCN, I find that M/s MMZ had cleared a consignment of 2500 gms. of 'Gold Ore Concentrate' vide Bill of Entry No.3330689 dated 20.09.2013 through Air Cargo Complex, Ahmedabad. The same was corroborated with the admission of different witnesses in their respective statements. It is pertinent to mention here that none of them retracted their statements and therefore, the same can be corroborated with each other and accordingly substantiate the allegations made in the SCN. Therefore, it is established beyond doubt that M/s MMZ had misdeclared the aforesaid consignment of 2500 gms gold appearing at sl. No. 2 of the Annexure to the SCN and evaded payment of higher rate of duty and also violated the RBI regulations. Similar in the case of consignment appearing at sl. No. 1 covered under Bill of Entry No. 2723043 dated 16.07.2013. Besides, Shri Sanjay Patel in his statement dated 28/29.01.2014 had also specifically stated the import of two consignments in the months of July, 2013 and September, 2013 from Shri Hardik Patel of M/s. Shreeman Diamond and Jewellery P/E at Dubai by declaring it as Gold ore concentrate. Therefore, it is clearly established that these two consignments were pre' by M/s Shreeman Diamond and Jewellery FZE Dubai and exported to M/s. MMZ.

23.3 Therefore, I hold that the goods imported vide B/E No. 2723043 dated 16.07.2013 and B/E No. 3330689 and 20.09.2013 were also man-made gold nuggets mixed with other metals and soil, cement, etc. and not the gold ore concentrates.

Other consignments

24.1 The noticees have argued that the WhatsApp messages pertaining to consignment no. 3 and 4 even if considered true, cannot be made applicable to consignment at sl. no. 5 to 15.
24.2 The WhatsApp messages pertaining to consignment no. 3 and 4, as discussed above, clearly indicate that the goods imported were not gold ore concentrate but an artificial mixture of gold with other metals in soil, sand etc. The process of preparing such artificial mixture has already been elaborated and discussed in above paras. The subsequent WhatsApp messages therefore, do not cover the process of manufacture elaborately again and again. However, in the subsequent messages there are clear indications that the same process has been used to prepare subsequent consignments. I may mention that next 11 consignments have been imported into India during a short span of roughly about 40 days (from 14.12.13 to 23.01.14). Some of relevant messages are mentioned below:

Consignment No. 5 - B/E No. 4080363 dated 14.12.2013

24.3 The messages exchanged from 4.12.2013 onwards indicate that draft purchase order and draft proforma invoice is sent by Sanjay Patel to Sachin. On 7.12.13 Sachin informs that he has 2500 grns. of pure gold of 82.5 touch and Sanjay Patel advises him to prepare gold mixture of 75% purity. (PK 13429 to 13433) After exchanging further messages, on 12.12.13 Sanjay Patel informs Sachin that he has sent some money through Swift on 12.12.2013. These details match with the consignment no. 5 covered by BE No.4080363 dated 14.12.2013. The corresponding invoice dated 10.12.2013 indicates an advance remittance of USD 75,000. This matches with the message dated 10.12.13, where there is mention about some amount being sent through Swift as advance. The fact that it was clearly mentioned that the goods of 75% purity are to be prepared and that some quantity of gold was available with Sachin, clearly indicates that this consignment was also prepared in similar fashion as consignment no. 3 and 4.

Consignment no. 6 - B/E No. 4137896 dated 20.12.2013

24.4 In messages dated 15.12.2013, it is mentioned that for getting 4 kgs. of pure gold, the consignment should be of about 11 to 12 kgs.(PK 14299 to 14302). Further an amount of USD 75,000 was transferred to Sachin on 16.12.13, which is duly acknowledged by him. Sanjay Patel also asks Sachin to confirm to the bank that he was to get USD161144 towards the export business and show the swift copy so that bank would release the payment. Certain documents are approved by Sanjay Patel after making changes on 18.12.13. On 18.12.13, In WhatsApp message PK 14776, Sachin informs Sanjay Patel that process on material is still going on. These details match with consignment no. 6, covered by B/E No. 4137896 dated 20.12.2013. This B/E has been filed on 20.12.13 and quantity declared is 11.875 kgs., which is between 11 to 12 kgs. as mentioned in the messages. Further, corresponding invoice no. MMZ/GSJ/CI-04 dated 18.12.2013 clearly indicates receipt of an advance payment of USD 75,000 against the total amount of USD 161144 for a quantity of 11.875 kgs.

We agree with the above arguments specifically corroborating the WhatsApp messages with these imports. The impugned order corroborates the said messages with other evidence and documents. The grounds of appeal do not challenge the detailed, almost message wise, corroboration reached by the impugned order. The challenge is very general. The appeal memorandum claimed that there were no such messages or there is no evidence that the said messages were acted upon. We find that the appellants have not challenged the recovery of cell phone under a panchnam and the recovery of messages under panchnana. Even otherwise the statement of Sanjay Patel also supports it. The appellants have not sought cross examination of Sanjay Patel. Cross examination of all persons whom they wanted to cross examine was granted under directions of Hon High Court. We find that the whatsapp messages are sufficiently corroborated and therefore relevant and admissible. The analysis of the messages shows that the messages were not only exchanged but the instructions were also executed.

5.6 The messages are further corroborated by the recovery of a cost sheet during search of the appellant's premises. The said cost sheet contains details as follows:

<thead>
<tr>
<th>Sr. No.</th>
<th>Detail</th>
<th>Amount</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>1</td>
<td>Pure gold Bar (995) 1237 $ = $ 126619/FOR 0.995 KG 3.200 PURE GOLD</td>
<td>126619</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2</td>
<td>Transguard $ 430 (SKGS) + 1 (over weight 5kg) $490</td>
<td>490</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3</td>
<td>Kaloti Test Report $18</td>
<td>18</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>4</td>
<td>Silver Metal [for mixing] = $28</td>
<td>28</td>
</tr>
The said cost sheet shows the various materials that go into preparation of the fake gold ore. It was recovered from the appellants premises. This sheet clearly shows that fake gold ore was being manufactured. Thus the said cost sheet also corroborates the facts detailed in the WhatsApp messages.

5.7 Even before the Hon’ble High Court the appellants did not seek cross examination of Shri Sanjay Patel. After the directions of Hon High Court to cross examine the persons they wanted to cross examine, Shri Sanjay Patel denied the statement and the messages. No argument or evidence or reason was given in support of denial of statement or WhatsApp messages. It is not denied that the mobile phone and the whatsapp messages were recovered under a Panchnama. The appellants have not challenged the Panchnama at any stage nor have sought any cross examination of Panch witnesses. In these circumstances their challenge to the recovery of mobile phone and the WhatsApp messages is dismissed.

6. Revenue has placed reliance on the report of the Professor of IIT, Bombay. The appellants have sought to discredit the said report during cross examination of the author of the report. We find that the comparison of the parameters of the imported material with the parameters of ‘ores’ do not influence the outcome of the case in any significant manner. Even if the goods imported by appellants answer to all physical/chemical parameters of ‘ore’ can they still be called ‘Ore’. From the discussion above it is apparent that if the goods are not extracted from mines but are produced artificially the same cannot be classified or described as ‘ores’.

6.1 The Principal Commissioner has relied on the test report. It needs to be noted that even if the test report showed that the samples answered to all the physical and chemical parameters of the ‘ore’, the sample cannot be called ‘Ore’ if it is not of natural origin. The report reads as follows:-

I) Chemical Analysis of Gold Metal

(a) A real gold nugget has a wax like yellow color, however, the present samples do not show waxy luster and show brighter yellow with pale pinkish shade.

(b) Real gold nugget usually possesses pitted surface and signs of abrasive polishing. If the nugget is man-made from melted scrap gold pits and larger craters are usually not seen and the surface would appear smooth with no pits/crater. The present sample of gold metal do not show pits or cavities/craters and have smooth surface.

(c) Natural gold nuggets passes a regular shape rather than highly irregular or varied shapes ranging from pear, round, elongated, flat and dendritic etc. Careful observation of the plate-1 of the present sample reveal that gold metals are mostly bulbled, tear drop or highly irregular very sharp edged, or elongated needle shaped features. The tear and bulbled shaped nuggets clearly show sharp pointed features indicating extracting out from melted concentrate, as high specific gravity of gold develops into tear drop with sharp pointed end on opposite side. Sharp pointed features are never observed in Natural Gold Nuggets.

II) Soil Analysis

(A) The soil along with gold metals seems to be bind together using some cement. The type of cement used is not very clear at present.

(B) The chemical analysis and X-ray diffraction do not show presence of sulphide or arsenic minerals or oxide of these elements as they are commonly associated with gold.
Surprising the present soil sample show absence of any clay minerals less that a dspacing. The soil seemed to have been partially heated or baked. During the cross-examination of Shri George Mathew, certain facts emerged. Learned Counsel for the appellant particularly relied on the question Nos. - 5, 12, 21, 24, 29, 30, 33 and 34 of the cross-examination, as follows:-

"q.5. Are you doing research in regard to gold, or about other metals and minerals?

Ans. I do research on minerals, but not on gold.

q.12. Did you conduct all required tests and analysis personally, or any other persons were also involved in this work?

Ans. The chemical analysis and X-ray diffraction is done by the technical superintendent. The interpretation is done by me.

q.21 In this para-1 on page 1, you have reported that native gold usually contains more than 90% Au. But in the book titled "The Chemistry of gold extraction" by John O. Marsden and C. Iain House and also in a paper published by SGS Minerals, it is reported that Au in native gold is more than 75%. So, therefore, is it correct to state that native gold must contain more than 90% Au.

Ans. The Au in native gold varies from 70% to 90%.

q.24. You have referred to LOI values and error percentage in "Chemical Analysis". Are these standards specified in any literature?

Ans. No LOI value is detected, and the error associated with trace elements is plus or minus 5%, and 2% in the case major elements.

q.29. All the five metal elements are usually found in naturally occurring gold ore or gold concentrate?

Ans. Not always all these elements may or may not be present.

q.30. In "soil sample" various chemicals and compounds have been mentioned. Are these chemicals/compounds found in the soil associated with the gold ore/concentrate?

Ans. The chemicals/compounds found in a soil depend upon the source from where the soil is derived.

q.33 In this case, Au is reported as 79.73. If we apply the above formula then it would be 19.135 carat. Is this right?

Ans. Yes.

q.34 On page-5 of your report in para-2 contain observations about colour of gold nugget are recorded. Did you conduct any test like Spectrophotometer, and did you use an equipment like spectrometer for colour?

Ans. No. It is only physical observation."

6.2 Learned Counsel argued that the report of Shri George Mathew cannot be relied on as Shri Mathew is not expert of gold. He relied on question No. 5 of the cross-examination which indicates that Shri Mathew has research in minerals and not in gold. We do not find any merit in the argument of the learned counsel as the term 'Mineral' covers gold ores also. Gold is a metal and gold ore is a mineral.

6.3 Learned Counsel also seeks to draw support from the fact that chemical examination was not done personally by the Professor but by the technical Superintendent. It is not necessary for the Professor to do the actual lab work by himself. He is only required to interpret the result of the tests done in the labs. Thus, we do not find merit in the argument of the learned Counsel to do lab test personally and discredit the report in any manner.

6.4 Learned counsel has produced evidence before the Professor which indicate that gold content in native gold is 70% to 90% to which the professor has agreed. This would indicate that the report of the Professor that "Native gold usually contains more than 90% Au" is discredited. In the cross-examination he has agreed that Au content in the native gold varies from 70% to 90%. The chemical analysis of the sample showed gold content 79.93% thus, it falls within the range in which the gold ore also falls. However, just because the sample contains gold in 70% to 90% it does not become "ore". If the same is produced in a workshop the same cannot be called an ‘Ore’ in terms of the HSN. Learned Counsel also relied on to the question Nos. 24, 29 and 30 to the cross-examination but they are not of much significance.

6.5 From the above, it is apparent that there is no minimum or maximum percentage specified for gold content in gold ore. Different literature may suggest different values, however, this fact has no significance in the present proceedings as term ‘Ore’ is defined in the tariff itself. The said definition does not contain any maximum or minimum value of metal or nonmetal. Learned Counsel further raised the issue regarding use of word ‘usually’ at various places in the report of Professor at IIT, Bombay. It needs to be appreciated that ‘Ore’ is naturally occurring substance and therefore cannot be any specific parameter for ‘Ore’. The composition of ore and contents of various materials in gold ore may vary from place to place and content to content. Therefore, the term ‘usually’ appearing in the report of the Professor of IIT is not incorrect and we need to appreciate that variation in the proportions of contents is noticed in naturally occurring minerals from place to place. The quality of composition of Ores cannot be standardized as they are naturally occurring substances. Moreover the tariff/HSN does not prescribe any minimum or maximum limit in the definition of ‘Ore’.

6.6 Learned Counsel has also relied on the fact that observations regarding general appearance of colour of the sample was not made on the basis of any equipment but just by physical observation. Learned Counsel has sought to discredit the observations on that basis. It needs to be appreciated that Professor at IIT is the expert in minerals and can be expected to know the characteristics by which the minerals are generally described.

6.7 The impugned order relies on the observations regarding the absence of pits or cavities/craters and have smooth surface of the gold metal found in the sample. It is seen that in the cross-examination the said observations regarding presence or absence of cavities/pits and regarding the smoothness of surface has not been challenged. Learned Counsel has pointed out the use of word usually in the report and it would indicate that such smoothness of surface can be found in the naturally obtained substance also. The report/result of report is as follows:-

1. Chemical Analysis of Gold Metal:

The chemical analysis as shown in the table indicates that the gold metal contains 79 % Au, 17% CU and 0.11% Ag. This composition of the gold alloy indicates it to be 18 carat gold variety. About 1.6 wt% are non-soluble residues.

2. Gold metal morphology

- A real gold nugget has a wax-like yellow color, however, the present samples do not show waxy luster and show brighter yellow with pale pinkish shade (plate 1).

- Natural gold nuggets typically contain plenty of quartz and other mineral and dirt trapped within. Real gold nugget usually posses pitted surface and signs of abrasive polishing. If the nugget is man-made from melted scrap gold pits and larger craters are usually not seen and the surface would appear smooth with no pits/craters. The present sample of gold metal do not show pits or cavities/craters and have a smooth surface. Since it does not have pits and cavities that usually natural gold nuggets posses, also do not contain other minerals trapped in it. SEM image at high resolution (plate 3) indicates absence of trapped minerals and show regular spiked (plate 4) features that are usually absent natural gold nuggets, as abrasion removes it.

Natural gold nuggets posses a regular shape rather than highly irregular or varied shapes ranging from pear, round, elongated, flat and dendritic etc. As the highly malleable gold in the nature during the process of erosion after removal from the host rock gets tumbled along with hard minerals. This makes the surface pitted and looses all its shape angularity. Careful observation of the Plate-I of the present sample reveal that gold metals are mostly bulbed, tear drop or highly irregular very sharp edged, or elongated needle shaped features. The tear and bulbed shaped nuggets clearly show sharp pointed loam arcs indicating extracted out from melted concentrate, as high specific gravity of gold develops into tear drop with sharp pointed end on opposite side. Sharp pointed features are never observed in Natural Gold Nuggets.

4. Soil Analysis
Chemical analysis of the soil as shown in the above table indicates that the soil is dominantly quartz bearing. The colour of the soil is largely due to iron. The soil is a silty (0.05—0.002 mm) variety of equal grain, size and less clayey. Seem to have been derived due to weathering of old crystalline rocks in the areas of low rainfall. The soil along with gold metals seems to be bind together using some cement. The type of cement used is not very clear at present.

The chemical analysis and X-ray diffraction do not show presence of sulphide or arsenic minerals or oxide of these elements as they are commonly associated with gold. Erosion of the gold source area usually brings these minerals and elements enriched in the soil too.

The powder X-ray diffraction indicates the soil contain kaolinite clay together with quartz and dolomite (MgCO3). Minor amount of hematite is also observed. Surprising the present soil sample show absence of any clay minerals less than 10 A d-spacing. The soil seemed to have been partially heated or baked.

Based on above results and observation the sample given for analysis is not NATURALLY OCCURING. It contains man-made 18 carat GOLD NUGGETS mixed in red soil in the form of lumps. Presence of the cement variety is not detected. However, the use of some form of cement is not ruled out.

The soil is reddish brown coloured soil, however, it cannot be concluded whether it is the Red-Indian soil (GERU).

Natural native gold nuggets usually have > 90 wt% Au. Presence of ~18% Cu in the sample seems to have been added or 18 carat gold or gold jewellery has been melted produce gold nuggets to show it as gold ore placer deposits. It is seen that in the above report of IIT Professor clearly states that Sharp pointed features are never observed in Natural Gold Nuggets. He has also pointed out that gold metal are bulbed, tear drop or highly irregular very sharp edged, or elongated needle shaped features. He also observed that the tear and bulbed shaped nuggets clearly shows sharp pointed features indicating extracted out from melted concentrate as high specific gravity of gold develops into tear drop with sharp pointed end on opposite side. This observation of the IIT Professor has not been challenged in the crossexamination by any question. It is seen that there is no use of word usually in the said observation and the word used is ‘never’. This in fact corroborates the allegation that the goods were not of natural origin.

Moreover even if the goods imported correspond to all the defined physical/chemical parameters of ‘Ores’, the same cannot be called ‘ore’ if they are not naturally occurring material but are produced in a workshop.

The next issue relates to the Confiscation and imposition of Redemption fine. The confiscation has been ordered under section 111(d) and (m) of the Customs Act 1962. We uphold the confiscation. We find that Redemption fine of Rs 60 lakhs has been imposed on the goods of declared value of Rs 1.32 Crores. Considering the facts and circumstances of the case and the fact that duty evaded in this consignment is approximately 18 lakhs, we reduce the said fine to Rs 15 lakhs. The penalty of Rs 10 lakhs, imposed under 112(a) in respect of the confiscated consignment is also upheld.

It has been argued that demand of differential duty is barred by limitation. He argued that the past consignments were assessed as “Natural Gold Ore Concentrate” and concessional rate of Customs duty, by classifying under CTH 26169020 was allowed by proper officer. They had submitted all requisite documents like purchase invoices, packing lists/air way bills, certificate of country of origin etc. and the goods were available before the customs officers and they could have ascertain the composition of the goods. He argued that samples were also taken by the Customs Officers. Learned Counsel submitted that classification and admissibility of exemption are questions of law involving interpretation therefore, no malafide can be attributed to the assessee in such case. It was also argued that earlier a similar issue was raised before the Customs and the Commissioner (Appeals) decided in appellant’s favour in the said consignment, the goods were classified under CTH 26169010 and full exemption from CVD was granted by virtue of Serial No. 5 of Notification No. 4/2006-CE. He argued that the said order-in-appeal has bearing on issues like the bonafide nature of our imports, assessment of consignments of gold ore concentrate by 8.1 We find that the WhatsApp messages clearly show that the previous consignments were produced in the workshop. It has been corroborated by the detailed analysis in the impugned order. It has also been corroborated by the recovery of document from appellants premises and also from the sample tested. The appellants had contended that the assessment of previous consignments was done after drawl of sample and therefore the assessment cannot be reopened by issue of this notice. While there is no clear evidence of drawl of samples in earlier consignments, we find that the same will not have any impact on the present proceedings. Samples may be drawn for testing or valuation. The actual composition of the sample has no relevance to the facts of the present case. Even if the samples answered to all physical and chemical parameter of 'Ore', the same does not qualify to be 'ore' for the purpose of the Tariff or the notification. As provided in HSN/Chapter notes and as discussed in Para 5 above, unless the material is of natural origin, and not subjected to any processes not normal to metallurgical industry the same cannot be called 'ore'. Taking of samples of previous consignment, if any, for chemical/physical testing or valuation purposes, does not help the case of the appellant, if the fact that the said goods were produced in a workshop by mixing gold, sand and other materials is suppressed. Thus the fact that samples were taken of earlier consignments or not, does not affect the outcome of this case. Even if those samples were taken and tested it might not have been possible to detect that the same were produced in a workshop and were not of natural origin. In view of the fact that an elaborate mechanism for hoodwinking Customs was devised by the appellant the intention to evade the customs duty cannot be doubted. Moreover we find that the issue in the said order of Commissioner (Appeals) referred in Para 8 above is very different and only technical in nature. It has no bearing on this case. This is a case involving fraudulent intentions and actions. In view of above the demand of duty and interest on past consignments is also upheld. The penalty under section 114A, of the Customs Act 1962, in respect of past consignments is also upheld.

9. A separate penalty of Rs 50 lakhs under section 114A, of the Customs Act 1962, has been imposed on Shri Sanjay Patel. Hon’ble High Court of Gujarat, in the case of Jai Prakash Motwani - 2010(258) ELT 204 (Guj), has held that when penalty has been imposed on the firm, separate penalty on partner cannot be imposed. Respectfully following the decision of Hon’ble High Court, the appeal of Shri Sanjay Patel is allowed.

10. The appeal of M/s Mulchand M Zaveri is partly allowed. The appeal of Sanjay Patel is allowed.

FINAL ORDER NO. A/10245/2020

Per: Raju:

This appeal has been filed by M/s. Flexi Tuff International Ltd., numerous opportunities of hearing were given on 13.5.2019, 27.06.2019, 23.09.2019, 15.10.2019, 07.11.2019, 29.11.2019 & 12.12.2019 but no one appeared therefore the appeal is being taken up for decision without hearing the appellant and on the basis of the grounds of appeal.

2. The dispute in the instant case relates to demand of Additional duty of Customs (High Speed Diesel Oil) under section 116 of the Finance Act, 1999 with effect from 1.3.1999. The said duty was demanded from the appellant vide Show Cause Notice dated 07.10.2004 and the same was confirmed vide Order-In-Original dated 17.3.2010. The said Order-In-Original were upheld by the Commissioner (Appeals) Order No. 36/2011/COMMR-A-/KDL.

3. The appellants are engaged in manufacture of HDPE/PP Woven Sack. The appellants claimed that Notification 43/2002-Cus dated 19.04.02 which exempts material imported into India against the Advance license issued in terms of Para 4.1.1 of EXIM policy. It has been argued that the said notification also exempts the appellant from Additional Duty of Customs (High Speed Diesel Oil) leviable under section 116 of the Finance Act, 1999.

4. Learned Authorized Representative pointed out that the issue is squarely covered by the decision of tribunal in case of S J L T Textiles P Ltd Vs. CC, 2013 (297) ELT 144 (Tri-Bang) wherein it has been held that notification no. 43/2002 does not grant exemption from levy under section 116 of the Finance Act, 1999.

5. We find that the issue is squarely covered by decision of coordinate bench in case of S J L T Textiles P Ltd in Para 2 & 3 following decision has been stated :

"2. The appellant claimed the benefit of Notification No. 43/2002-Cus., dated 19-4-2002 while clearing the said consignments for home consumption. The said Notification which was issued under the DEEC Scheme exempted an importer of the above goods from payment of Basic Customs Duty (BCD), additional duty of Customs leviable under Section 3 of the Customs Tariff Act as also safeguard duty and anti-dumping duty leviable, respectively, under Sections 8 and 9A of the Custom Tariff Act, subject to certain conditions. The original and appellate authorities refused to extend the benefit of exemption to additional duty of Customs imposed under Section 116 of the Finance Act, 1999 in respect of the above consignments of HSD oil. Hence the present appeal of the assessee.
3. On a perusal of Notification No. 43/2002-Cus., we find that it did not grant exemption from payment of additional duty of Customs leviable under the Finance Act, 1999 as rightly held by the authorities below. As an exemption notification has to be strictly construed, the grounds raised in this appeal are untenable. The appeal is dismissed.”

6. Relying on the said decision, We dismiss the appeal.

2.4. Learned Counsel pointed out that, on 08 January 2019 the Appellant's Director went to DRI Ahmedabad office at 15:50 hours to request for NOC for releasing goods detained by DRI Ahmedabad at Mundra and TKD Port. He pointed out that although the summons issued to the Appellant for appearance on 11 January 2019, at around 16:30 hours DRI started taking statement and continued till 7:00 AM and the Appellant was not allowed to sleep the whole night. That the Appellant was completely under stress mentally and physically and further appellant's signatures were taken on various papers. Shreyansh Marble Tiles Pvt. Limited. That on 12 January 2019 by seizure memo cum no objection for provisional release, the SIO, DRI, Ahmedabad Zonal Unit seized the goods which were detained by Panchnana on various dates. That SIIB vide letter dated 23.01.2019 had accorded permission of provisional release of the said goods pertaining to bill of entry No.9244913 dated 13.12.2018, 3772283 dated 27.10.2017 and 4282641 dated 06.12.2017 on submitting bond of re-determined value of goods of Rs.33,84,917/-, bank guarantee equal to differential duty of Rs.2,98,917/- and additional bank guarantee of Rs. 1 Lac. 2.26 That by letter dated 28 January 2019 SIO, DRI, Ahmedabad Zonal Unit had rebutted the allegations made by the Appellant's Director on 13 January 2019. That by communication dated 13 May 2019 the Appellant's company was informed that goods imported by him pertaining to bill of entry No.7756415 date 08.12.2016 filed with Customs House, Gujarat, Port Limited, Pipavav, which was detained vide seizure memo dated 09 December 2018 and seized vide seizure memo dated 12 January 2019 which was actually valued at Rs.61,188/- instead of Rs.50,478/- as declared in the bill of entry thereby evading differential duty of "Rs. 3,153/-." That the Commissioner of Customs (Preventive), Jamnagar, in exercise of powers vested with him under first proviso of Section 110(2) of the Customs Act, 1962 has extended the time limit for issuance of Show Cause Notice for goods.

3 Being aggrieved by the impugned order dated 13 May 2019, the Appellant preferred the present appeal mainly on the following grounds:

(a) That the impugned order/communication has been passed without issuing the Show cause notice and giving opportunity to be heard to the appellant before extending the time limit for issuance of Show cause notice under the provisions of Section 110(2) of the Customs Act, 1962;

(b) That even the amendment to the provisions of Section 110(2) of the Customs Act, 1962 by Finance Act, 2018 will not alter the situation as for grant of personal hearing the extension of Show cause notice;

(c) That the amendment to the provisions of Section 110(2) of the Customs Act, 1962 by Finance Act, 2018 will not alter the situation as for grant of personal hearing before extending the time limit for issuance of Show cause notice;
(d) That the Commissioner has totally ignored the law laid down by the Hon'ble Supreme Court of India in the case of I.J. Rao, Assistant Collector of Customs vs. Bibhuti Bhushan Bagh - 1989 (42) ELT 338 (SC) wherein it has been held that extension of six months period for issuance of Show Cause Notice cannot be done by the Commissioner without hearing the appellants;

(e) That the Apex Court had also in the case of Harbans Lal vs. Collector of Customs reported as 1993 (67) ELT 20 (SC) has held that by extending the time limit under Section 110(2) of the Customs Act, 1962 owner of seized goods is entitled to notice because the seized goods on the expiry of six months are required to be returned to him and if that period was to be extended, he has vested right to be heard;

4. Learned Authorised Representative relies on the impugned order. He pointed out that after the amendment to Section 110 of the Customs Act, 1962 the law is substantially changed. He pointed out that the said provisions, after amendment, have been examined by the Hon'ble Rajasthan High Court in their judgment in the case of CC (Preventive) Jodhpur vs. Swees Gems and Jewellery – 2019 (368) ELT 455 (Raj.). He pointed out that the decision of Ahmedabad bench in the case of M/s. Gastrade International (Order No. A/10956/2019 dated 03 June 2019) passed by relying on the decision of Delhi Bench in the case of Swees Gems & Jewellery vide Final Order No. 50283-50284/2019, has been set-aside by the Hon'ble Rajasthan High Court and therefore, no reliance can be placed on the decision of Ahmedabad Bench in the case of Gastrade International (supra).

5. We have gone through the rival submissions. We find that the primary issue is if the Commissioner of Customs can exercise powers granted to him under Section 110(2) of the Customs Act, 1962 without issuance of show cause notice and without granting hearing to the appellant. The appellants have essentially relied upon the decision of the Tribunal in the case of Swees Gems and Jewellery which in turn relied on various decisions of High Courts and Supreme Court. It is seen that those decisions of High Courts and Supreme Court which have been relied on by the Tribunal in the case of Swees Gems and Jewellery pertains to unamended Section 110(2). We find that the said decision of Tribunal in the case of Swees Gems and Jewellery has been set-aside by the Hon'ble Rajasthan High Court with following observations:-

11. Before proceeding to analyze the parties' rival submissions, it would be useful to extract the pre-amended law, and the provision of Section 110(2) after the amendment. They are set out, in a tabular manner, as follows:

<thead>
<tr>
<th>Provisions prior to amendment of proviso to Section 110(2)</th>
<th>Provisions subsequent to amendment of proviso to Section 110(2)</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>(2) Where any goods are seized under sub-section (1) and no notice in respect sub-section (1) and no notice in respect thereof is given under clause (a) of Section 124 within six months of the seizure of the goods, the goods shall be returned to the person from whose possession they were seized.</td>
<td>(2) Where any goods are seized under sub-section (1) and no notice in respect sub-section (1) and no notice in respect thereof is given under clause (a) of Section 124 within six months of the seizure of the goods, the goods shall be returned to the person from whose possession they were seized.</td>

of six months may, on sufficient cause being shown, be extended by the Principal Commissioner of Customs or Commissioner of Customs for a period not exceeding six months.

Commissioner of Customs or Commissioner of Customs may, for reasons to be recorded in writing, extend such period to a further period not exceeding six months and inform the person from whom such goods were seized before the expiry of the period so specified: Provided further that where any order for provisional release of the seized goods has been passed under Section 110A, the specified period of six months shall not apply”.

12. The Supreme Court in the Asstt. Collector of Customs and Ors. v. Charan Das Malhotra, AIR 1972 SC 689 1983 (13) E.L.T. 1477 (S.C.) considered the interplay between Sections 110 and 124 of the Customs Act and held as follows:-

“Section 124 provides that no order confiscating any goods or imposing any penalty on any person shall be made under this Chapter unless the owner of the goods or such person is given a notice in writing informing him of the grounds on which it is proposed to confiscate the goods or to impose a penalty. The Section does not lay down any period within which the notice required by it has to be given. The period laid down in Section 110(2) affects only the seizure of the goods and not the validity of the notice.”

13. This view was again applied and followed in J.K. Bardolia Mills v. Dy. Collector and Ors., 1994 (5) SCC 332 = 1994 (72) E.L.T. 813 (S.C.). Thus, there is no time limit for issuing a show cause notice, under Section 124 of the Customs Act. However, in case a show cause notice is not issued, for some reason, Section 110 would operate. Section 110(2) states that goods cannot be detained for more than six months, unless a show cause notice (i.e. under Section 124) is issued; the proviso clothes the Revenue with the power of extending the period by another six months. Under the pre-amended law, the power under the proviso could be exercised, “for sufficient cause”. This was the subject of interpretation in I.J. Rao (supra). The Supreme Court, held, in that decision, that:

“There is no doubt that the words “on sufficient cause being shown” in the proviso to Section 110(2) of the Act indicates that the Collector of Customs must apply his mind to the point whether a case for extending the period of six months is made out. What is envisaged is an objective consideration of the case and a decision to be rendered after considering the material placed before him to justify the request for extension. The Customs Officer concerned who seeks the extension must show good reason for seeking the extension, and in this behalf he would probably want to establish that the investigation is not complete and it cannot yet be said whether a final order confiscating the goods should be made or not. As more time is required for investigation, he applies for extension of time. The Collector must be satisfied that the investigation is being pursued seriously and that there is need for more time for taking it to its conclusion. The question is whether the person claiming restoration of goods is entitled to notice before time is extended. The right to notice flows not from the mere circumstance that there is a proceeding of a judicial nature, but indeed it goes beyond to the basic reason which gives to the proceeding its character, and that reason is that a right of a person may be effected and there may be prejudice to that right if he is not accorded an opportunity to put forward his case in the proceeding. In the other words, the issue is whether there is a right in a person from whose possession goods are seized and which right may be prejudiced or placed in jeopardy unless he is heard in the matter. It cannot be disputed that Section 110 sub-section (2) contemplates either notice (within six months from the date of seizure) to the person from whose possession the goods have been seized in order to determine whether the goods should be confiscated or the restoration of the goods to such person on the expiry of that period. If the notice is not issued in the confiscation proceedings within six months from the date of seizure the person from whose possession the goods have been seized becomes immediately entitled to the return of the goods. It is that right to the immediate restoration of the goods upon the expiry of six months from the date of seizure that is defeated by the extension of time under the proviso to Section 110(2). When we speak of the right of the person being prejudiced or placed in jeopardy we necessarily envisage some damage or injury or hardship to that right and it becomes necessary to inquire into the nature of such damage or injury or hardship for any case to be set up by such person must indicate the damage or injury or hardship apprehended by such person.

In the present case, one possibility is that the person from whose possession the goods have been seized may want to establish the need for immediate possession, having regard to the nature of the goods and the critical conditions then prevailing in the market or that the goods are such as are required urgently to meet an emergency in relation to a vocational or private need, and that any delay in restoration would cause material damage or injury or hardship either by reason of some circumstance special to the person or of market conditions or of any particular quality of requirement for the preservation of the goods. But it will not be open to him to question whether the stage of the investigation, and the need for further investigation, call for an extension of time. It is impossible to conceive that a person from whose possession the goods have been seized with a view to confiscation should be entitled to know and to monitor, how the investigation against him is proceeding, the material collected against him at that stage, and what is the utility of pursuing the investigation further. These are matters of a confidential nature, knowledge of which such person is entitled to only upon the investigation being completed and a decision being taken to issue notice to show cause why the goods should not be confiscated. There can be no right in any person to be informed midway, during an investigation, of the material collected in the case against him. Consequently, while notice may be necessary to such person to show why time should not be extended he is not entitled to information as to the investigation which is in process. In such circumstances, the right of a person, from whose possession the goods have been seized, to notice of the proposed extension must be conceded, but the opportunity open to him on such notice cannot extend to information concerning the nature and course of the investigation. In that sense, the opportunity which the law can contemplate upon notice to him of the application for extension must be limited by the pragmatic necessities of the case. If these considerations are kept in mind, we have no doubt that notice must issue to the person from whose possession the goods have been seized of the proposal to extend the period of six months. In the normal course, notice must go to such person before the expiry of the original period of six months.

It is true that the further period of six months contemplated as the maximum period of extension is a short period, but Parliament has contemplated an original period of six months only and when it has fixed upon such period it must be assumed to have taken into consideration that the further detention of the goods can produce damage or injury or hardship to the person from whose possession the goods are seized. We have said that notice must go to the person, from whose possession the goods have been seized, before the expiry of the original period of six months. It is possible that while notice is issued before the expiry of that period, service of such notice may not be affected on the person concerned in sufficient time to enable the Collector to make the order of extension before that period expires. Service of the notice may be postponed or delayed or rendered ineffective by reason of the person sought to be served attempting to avoid service of notice or for any other reason beyond the control of the Customs authorities. In that event, it would be open to the Collector, if he finds that sufficient cause has been made out before him in that behalf to extend the time beyond the original period of six months, and thereafter, after notice has been served on the person concerned, to afford a post decisional hearing to him in order to determine whether the order of extension should be cancelled or not. Having regard to the seriousness and the magnitude of injury to the public interest in the case of the illicit importation of goods, and having regard to considerations of the damage to economic policy underlying the formulation of import and export planning, it seems necessary to reconcile the need to afford an opportunity to the person effected with the larger considerations of public interest."

14. The reasoning of the Supreme Court was primarily based on the fact that issuance of a show cause notice (i.e. under Section 124) is part of a quasi-judicial or judicial act and consequently, the delay in its issue can at times, be prejudicial to the interests of the party or importer, who has an interest in the goods. The observations of the Court are pointed, with respect to the nature of the goods and the information about their condition, which the party likely to be affected might possess. This Court is also alive to the fact that Section 110 confers a general power of detention of goods: thus, all classes of articles, including perishables, such as foodstuffs, pharmaceuticals and other goods having limited shelf life can be implicated. Yet, the Court has to also be alive to the fact that I.J. Rao (supra) was premised upon the phraseology of Section 110(2), and the power of extension being conditioned "on sufficient cause being shown" which was the subject matter of the Court's discussion. Now, the amendment has done away with that expression; the power to extend (the period of detention) after amendment states that, "if the Commissioner of Customs may, for reasons to be recorded in writing, extend such period to a further period not exceeding six months and inform the person from whom such goods were seized before the expiry of the period so specified."

15. The change in the statute, in the opinion of this Court, is a significant one. The previous provision required the Commissioner to show sufficient cause, which meant that such cause had to be based on objective considerations. However, the amended provision merely requires the Commissioner to record the reasons in writing and "inform the person from whom such goods were seized before the expiry of the period so specified". In this Court's considered view, the amended provision deliberately sought to overbear the previous view that a notice before extension was necessary. Now two conditions are to be satisfied: one, the Commissioner has to record his reasons in writing, why the extension is necessary, and two, inform the person from whom such goods were seized before the expiry of the period so specified. The latter condition is equally important, in the opinion of this court, because it is a pre-requisite for the exercise of the power of extension. The pre-amended provision was silent on this aspect.

16. There are other reasons for this Court to hold that the amendment brought about a radical change in the law. Parliament had knowledge - or is deemed to have knowledge of the existing state of law, which required notice, before extension. Therefore, the change of terminology is significant; the amendment has resulted in only two conditions, being insisted upon-primarily that the Commissioner should record his reasons, before the expiry of the period of limitation and should inform those reasons to the party concerned.

17. Besides, this Court also notices that Parliament, aware of difficulties that might be faced by importers of goods, which might be seized, also provided, through an amendment in 2006, the facility of provisional release. Section 110A, enacted for this purpose, reads as follows:

"110A. Provisional release of goods, documents and things seized pending adjudication. - Any goods, documents or things seized under section 110, may, pending the order of the adjudicating authority, be released to the owner on taking a bond from him in the proper form with such security and conditions as the adjudicating authority may require."

18. These developments, in the opinion of the Court, resulted in a complete change of law, on the aspect. Section 110(2) too has not remained unaffected; a second proviso has been added, which states that:
Provided further that where any order for provisional release of the seized goods has been passed under Section 110A, the specified period of six months shall not apply.

19. The effect of these amendments, is that the rigour of unamended Section 110(2) has been softened. Now, a person, whose goods are detained, can claim provisional release. At the time when I.J. Rao was decided, that facility was not available. Seen in the context of these facts, it is apparent that a textual reading of Section 110(2) would lead one to conclude that no separate notice is necessary, before extending the period of limitation by a further six months (for issuance of show cause notice); the authority has to record reasons in writing, which of course, should be based on materials and inform the concerned party about the extension before the expiry of the first period of six months. At this stage, it is necessary to also notice that even in I.J. Rao (supra) the Court recognized that not all reasons can be disclosed, because investigative processes and information gathering can be confidential.

20. In view of the foregoing discussion, this Court is of opinion that the impugned order cannot be sustained. The answer to the question of law framed, is in the affirmative; the impugned order of CESTAT is hereby set aside and the appeals are allowed. All pending applications are disposed of.

6. We find that all the arguments raised by the appellant have been considered by the Hon’ble Rajasthan High Court and duly answered in the observations above. Therefore, we find no merit in the arguments of the appellants.

7. It is also seen that the decision of Ahmedabad Bench in the case of Gastrade International (supra) was essentially based on the Delhi Bench of Tribunal decision in the case of Swees Gems and Jewellery (supra) which has been upset by the Hon’ble Rajasthan High Court. Thus, the decision of the Tribunal in the case of Gastrade International (Customs Appeal No. 10497 of 2019) is no longer a valid precedence on this issue.

8. In view of the above discussion, relying on the decision of Hon’ble Rajasthan High Court in the case of Swees Gems and Jewellery (supra), the appeal is dismissed.

FINAL ORDER NO. A/11112/2020

Per: Ramesh Nair:

The brief facts of the case are that the appellant Shri. Batra Jay is an Indian Citizen is holding Passport No. 9766015 and had arrived from Dubai at Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel International Airport (SVP airport) at Ahmedabad on 19.03.2015 by Spice Jet Flight No. SG-16. The appellant was carrying two gold bars which were purchased by him from M/s. Lakhoo Jewellery Trading Company L.L.C by paying the amount of DHS, 32,330. The appellant strapped the gold bars under the socks with tape. He was also carrying purchase invoice of the said Gold Bars. The appellant on arrival crossed the green channel, thereafter, the Customs Officer apprehended some suspicion and checked the appellant. Thus, the gold bars concealed by strapping at his left leg were found, thereafter, the Customs Officers recorded his statement on 20.03.2015 and further the panchanama was drawn on 20.03.2015. The Gold Bars weighing 233.028 grams valued at Rs. 5,49,374/- (Tariff Value) and Rs. 6,13,526/- (Local markets price) was subsequently seized by the Custom Officers. A show cause notice dated 29.07.2015 was issued by the Additional Commissioner of Customs, Ahmedabad whereby the appellant was called upon to show cause as to why the two gold bars weighing 233.280 grams having purity of 999% which were alleged to be duly concealed by the appellant in his sock should not be confiscated under Sections 111 (d), 111 (l) 111(m) of the Customs Act, 1962 and as to why penalties should not be imposed on the appellant under Section 112 and Rs. 1,00,000/- under Section 112 and Rs. 50,000/- under Section 114AA of the Act. The Said show cause notice was adjudicated vide Order-In-Original No. 19/ADCAK/ SVPIA/O&A/2016 dated 27.04.2016 by the Additional Commissioner of Customs wherein it was held that two gold bars has acquired nature of "prohibited goods" because of the manner in which it was attempted to be conveyed by the appellant.

2. Accordingly, it was ordered for absolute confiscation of two gold bars under Section 111(b), 111(l), 111(m), of the act and imposed penalty of Rs. 1,00,000/- under Section 112 and Rs. 50,000/- under Section 114AA of the Act on the appellant. Being aggrieved with the Order-In-Original dated 27.04.2016 appellant preferred an appeal before the Learned Commissioner (Appeals) of Customs, Ahmedabad. The Learned Commissioner (Appeals) vide Order-In-Appeals No. AHM-CUSTM-000-APP-109-16/17 dated 22.03.2017 rejected the appeal on the ground of time bar. The appellant preferred an appeal before this Tribunal, the Tribunal remanded the matter to Commissioner (Appeal) by order dated 13.10.2017 for deciding the matter on merit up to following the principles of Natural Justice. Thereafter, the Learned Commissioner (Appeals) passed the impugned order whereby the appeal was rejected and Order-In-Original as a whole was upheld. Therefore, the present appeal.

3. Shri. Hardik Modh, Learned Counsel appearing on behalf of the appellant submits that the Learned Commissioner (Appeals) fail to appreciate that the gold bars were confiscated on the premise that the gold bars are “prohibited goods” not on the account of definition of “prohibited goods” provided under Customs Act but due to the manner in which it was attempted to be cleared by the appellant with the intention to evade payment of Customs duty. He submits that as per definition of “prohibited goods” under Section 2 (33) of the Customs Act that the nature by which of goods attains the status of “prohibited goods” is not due to the manner of clearing of the goods but by the inclusion of goods under the list of “prohibited items” under custom law or any other law in force. In the present case, the gold bars is bearing manufactures or refiners engraved Serial No and weight given in metric unit imposes of Custom duty on 10% the Customs duty @ 10% as per Serial No 323 of Notification No. 12/2012-Cus dated 17.02.2012. Hence, gold bars is not a “prohibited” goods as per the definition provided under Customs law. He further submits that the Order-In-Original dated 27.04.2016 has been passed beyond the scope of show cause notice. The show cause notice alleged that two gold bars were prohibited on account of violation of provisions of Section 7 of the Foreign Trade (Development and Regulation) Act, 1992. Whereas, Learned Additional Commissioner of Customs in the Order-In-Original dated 27.04.2016 held that the gold bars of the prohibited goods on account of the manner in which it was imported.

4. Thus, the Commissioner (Appeals) have not considered the fact that the show cause notice referred to Section 7 of the Foreign Trade (Development and Regulation) Act, 1992 and has not given any finding in regard to the allegation under Section 7, therefore, the impugned order is required to be quashed. He submits that Section 7 of Foreign Trade (Development and Regulation) Act, 1992 is not attracted as the appellant brought gold bars for his own personal use. He submits that as per para 2.07 of Hand Book procedure prescribe exemption categories for which import or export can be made without IEC. One of the exemption categories under para 2.07 is for a person who imports or exports goods for his personal use. In the present case, the appellant brought two gold bars for his personal use for making jewellery for himself and his family members and therefore, the action of the Revenue to hold goods in dispute as “Prohibited goods” is contrary to policy of Foreign Trade Policy. He submits that the appellant imported 233 grams of gold bars for his own use. The same cannot be decided that such a small quantity has been procured for commercial purpose. He also submits that the statement of the appellant was recorded under coercion and duress to look of the case smuggling. The appellant retracted his statement subsequently. Therefore, the basis of retracted statement the appellant cannot be punished without corroborative independent evidence. The said retracted statement cannot be considered to be a substantial piece of evidence when it has been pointed out that the statement was taken under coercion and duress. He further submits that the appellant had no intention to evade the customs duty. In fact the appellant crossed the green channel, since, there was no one present at the customs desk at the SVIP Airport at the Ahmedabad. One of the persons standing near the desk told the appellant that the appellant can make any inquiry in relation to the declaration from or taxability of the gold bars from the Customs Officers who were standing at the other side of green channel gate, therefore, the appellant crossed the green channels to make adequate inquiry and filing the proper declaration but without listening to the reasoning of the appellant the Customs Officers seized the gold and alleged that he was smuggling the gold into India. More over the appellant had shown the invoice of the purchase of the gold bars to the Customs Officer thereby showing the valuation of the gold. Therefore, from the course of event it can be seen that there was no intention for misdeclaration of valuation of the gold bars and the gold bars are not liable to for confiscation. The intention of the appellant was to inquire about the process how to declare the gold in the disembarkment slip and not to conceal the same but such opportunity for explanation was not provided to the appellant, therefore, there was no actual misdeclaration of a dutiable goods which was not prohibited and further there was no intention of the appellant for such evasion of Customs duty. He submits that the Learned Commissioner (Appeals) failed to appreciate the appellant produced the purchase receipts of the gold bars. In this support, he place reliance on the judgment in the case of Nand Kishore Somani Vs. CST reported in 2016 (33) ELT 448.

5. He further submits that the appellant imported gold bars which are not prohibited goods. As the gold bars can be imported into Indian on payment of Customs duty which the appellant intended to pay duty before he was wrongly accused of smuggling by the Customs Officer. He further submits that since the goods i.e. gold bars correspond in respect of value or in any other particular with the entry made under the Customs Act or in the case of baggage with the declaration made under Section 77 of the Customs Act the goods cannot be confiscated. Without prejudice he submits that the request of the appellant to release the confiscated gold bars on payment of redemption fine as per the provision of Section 125 of Customs Act,1962 ought to have been allowed on the ground that restrictions have been imposed under section 10 (4) and 11 (1) of Foreign Exchange Management Act (FEMA), 1999 and instructions/circulars issued by the Reserved Bank of India from time to time but import of gold is not prohibited. He submits that the Learned Commissioner has erred in invoking provisions of section 10 (4), section 11 (1) FEMA Act, the instruction provided in such that is appealable. In relation to gold imported for commercial purpose but in the present case it has already been shown that gold imported of small quantity and for personal use i.e. in making jewellery for the appellant and his mother, therefore, application of RBI circular of FEMA is not applicable. He place reliance on following judgments:-

- Karnil Singh Vs. CCE, Amritsar
- Rajaram Bohra Versus Union of India 2015 (322) E.L.T. 337 (Cal)

6. He further submits that the penalty is not liable to impose under section 112 of the Customs Act as the show cause notice does not mention the details as to why the penalty is imposable under clause (a) (b) of section 112 Customs Act, 1962. He relied upon the judgment of P.P. Dutta Wing CDR (RETD) v. CCE, 2013 (293) ELT 127 (Tri.-Del.). He further submits that the penalty under Section 112 (a) of the Customs Act, 1962 cannot be imposed. In the present case it has been shown that the appellant followed all the rules and gold is not liable for confiscation, therefore, above provision is not applicable and no penalty ought to have been imposed. The penalty under section 112 of Customs Act also cannot be imposed. The appellant did not mis-declare the facts in the disembarkment slip and had crossed the green channel with the intention to enquire from the Customs Officer in regards to the gold bars which were purchased by the appellant from Dubai for personal use. Since there was no misdeclaration of fact and the goods were not liable for confiscation, therefore, the provision to section 112 (b) is not applicable. As regard the penalty imposed under section 114 (AA), he submits that since the appellant has not signed or used any false documents, therefore, the penalty under section 114 (AA) cannot be imposed.

7. Without prejudice he further submits that when the goods are not liable to be confiscated, no penalty can be imposed under section 114AA of the Customs Act. He placed reliance on the judgment in the case of Deekay Shipping Services Vs. Commissioner of Customs, Mumbai-2011 (264) ELT 269. Without prejudice he further submits that there is no mala fide on the part of the appellant. He submitted that mens rea is an essential requirement for imposing penalty under section 114AA of Customs Act. He placed reliance on the following judgment:-

- Suryakiran International Limited Vs C.C, Hyderabad-2010 (259) ELT 745 (Tri-Bag)
  - In support of this above submissions, he placed reliance on the following judgments:-
    - D. Jewel Vs. Commissioner Of Customs, Surat-2019 (366) ELT 106 (Guj.)
    - Commissioner of Central Excise Customs and Service tax, Surat-II V/s. Dharmesh Pansuriya-2018 (363) ELT 555 (Tri-Ahmd)

8. On the other hand, the R B Bhasker Learned Superintendent (AR) appearing on behalf of the Revenue reiterates the finding of the impugned order. He placed reliance on the following judgments:

- 2003 (155) ELT 423 (S.C). Om Prakash Bhatia Vs. CC, Delhi
- 2014 (309) ELT 671 (Ker.) V.s K.P. Abdul Majeed Vs. CC
- 1997 (89) ELT 646 (S.C.) -Surjeet Singh Chabra Vs. Union O India
- 2009 (247) ELT 21 (Mad)-CC (AIR), Chennai-I Vs. Samy Nathan Murugesan

9. I have carefully considered the submissions made by both the sides and perused the record. There is no dispute about the fact that the appellant concealed gold bars in his sock arriving from the Dubai at Airport. Though the appellant has made the submission that the appellant was about to declare the gold carried by him but as per the facts the appellant without informing to the Customs Officer crossed the Green channel. Only those persons who do not carry any goods which is supposed to be declared before the customs can pass through Green channel. The appellant firstly concealed the gold bars in his Socks and also not declared to the Customs. This clearly shows the intention of the appellant to avoid declaration as well as evasion of duty. There is no evidence to show that the appellant had bona-fide belief and intend to declare the gold bars and pay the Customs duty. In this circumstances the gold bars brought by him from Dubai is clearly liable for confiscation.

10. As regard the submission of the appellant that the statement was retracted and the appellant was about to declare the gold bars. I find that even if the statement recorded under 108 is not considered the fact of smuggling of gold by the intercepting by the Customs Officer is not in dispute, therefore, the act of smuggling of gold is not in doubt. As per the Indian Customs Declaration Form enclosed as per Annexure: C in the appeal, the appellant has made wrong declaration that he has not bringing prohibited Articles gold, Gold jewellery (over Free Allowance), Gold Bullion despite concealing the gold bars. The appellant had made wrong declaration, therefore, it is clear that the appellant had a malafide intention to escape with the smuggled gold without payment of duty. Considering the entire circumstances, I am of the view that the adjudicating authority has rightly exercised his discretion to absolute confiscate gold bars. The judgments relied upon by the rival need not to be gone into details. In the case of misdeclaration of imported goods the fact various from case to case. Therefore, in view of the event and circumstances of illegal import of gold bars, I am of the view that absolute confiscation of gold bars ordered by the adjudicating authority is proper and legal. For the same reason, the penalty imposed by the adjudicating authority needs no interference.

11. Accordingly, I uphold the Order-In-Original and dismiss the appeal.

1. Brief Facts of the case is that the appellants are manufacturers of fruit concentrates/coconut water concentrates etc.; the appellants obtained an EPCG license, 2134281 dated 24.05.1995, for the export of fruit concentrates as per which the appellant was entitled to import a Fruit Dehydration Plant (Spray Evaporation Machine - SPV 10) from Germany at a concessional rate of duty @15% (Under Notification No. 110/95 Cus : MANU/CUST/0005/1995 dated 05.06.1995) subject to the condition that it achieved an export obligation of Rs. 7,37,34,784 (US$ 21,34,960) within a period of five years from 1996; export obligation and the duty concession were calculated on the basis of that the CIF value of the machine imported was Rs. 1,84,33,696/- (US$ 5,31,330); Bill of entry 2169 dated 6.5.1996 was filed by the appellants, on the basis of the above referred Invoice Rs. 1,82,51,186; Total Concessional Duty Paid was Rs. 27,65,055 and a Bank Guarantee for Rs. 41,47,582 was submitted.

2. The Assistant Commissioner of Customs, Cochin, by letters dated 20.11.1998 and 14.12.1998 sought evidence from the appellant to establish the fulfillment by the appellant of the pro-rata export obligation for the 2nd and 3rd Year; the Assistant Commissioner vide, 010 No. : EPCG 4/96 GR VII dated 3.5.1999 confirmed the demand to the extent of Rs. 1,84,33,696/- (US$ 5,31,330); Bill of entry 2169 dated 6.5.1996 was filed by the appellants, on the basis of the above referred Invoice Rs. 1,82,51,186; Total Concessional Duty Paid was Rs. 27,65,055 and a Bank Guarantee for Rs. 41,47,582 was submitted.

2.1. The original authority, without following the directions of the Appellate Commissioner, vide OIO No. : 1/2007 dated 25.1.2007, rejected the claim of re-determination stating that no re-determination could be done as goods are given out of charge by Customs; the order was challenged before the Appellate Commissioner, who, vide Order in appeal No. : 132/08 dated 31.03.2008, confirmed the order of the original authority. Hence, the present appeal is filed.

2.2. The Assistant Commissioner of Customs issued SCN dated 16.7.2001 for Rs. 29,03,307 for the rest of the Pro-rata EO pertaining to 3rd and 4th years to the importer, the issue is pending with Comr. (A); while the appeal was pending before the appellate Commissioner, appellants filed application before Settlement Commission against the above referred OIO: EPCG 4/96 GR VII dated 3.5.1999 and the above referred 2nd SCN dated 16.7.2001 by claiming that the initial Assessment was Provisional Assessment. Settlement Commission rejected the application vide Order No. : 6/02-Cus dated 26.4.2002, stating that the initial Assessment was not provisional. Commission observed that the initial application as well as the petition filed before the admission hearing, did not exhibit disclosure of additional duty liability which had not been disclosed in the B/E filed at the time of clearance of the impugned goods; the duty liability disclosed even under the concessional Customs Notification No. 110/95 : MANU/CUST/0005/1995 on the B/E was Rs. 27,65,055, whereas the duty disclosed in the present application even on merit rate (37.5%) was only Rs. 20,14,647, which was revised in the petition before the hearing to Rs. 25,80,717, by seeking re-determination of Assessable Value; during the hearing, the applicant sought for Bench's permission to seek further re-determination of assessable value and consequential duty liability and has accordingly filed a Petition dated 12.4.2002 admitting a liability of Rs. 32,25,896; by seeking re-determination of Assessable Value, during the hearing, the applicant sought Bench's permission to seek further re-determination of assessable value and consequential duty liability and has accordingly filed a Petition dated 12.4.2002 admitting a liability of Rs. 32,25,896; it is very clear from the manner of revision of assessable value and duty liability repeatedly just to get their application admitted, that the bona fide of their very acceptance/admission of additional duty liability of Rs. 32,25,896 is questionable and hence the very basis of "full and true disclosure "claimed to have been made by the applicant becomes doubtful (Para 10)

3. The learned counsel for the appellant claims that they paid only US $ 4,31,330 to the German Supplier; the appellant imported the machine in 1996 and paid an amount of Rs. 27,65,055 towards duty (@ 15%) and submitted a Bank Guarantee for Rs. 41,47,582 (total duty liability Rs. 69,12,637); it was subsequently learned by the appellant that the machine was not worth so much as it did not achieve even 50% of the assured capacity; the matter was taken up with the manufacturers of the machine at Germany - M/s. Winter Umwelttechnik, Germany; who were convinced of the fraud played by the supplier of the machine and paid compensation to the appellant to the tune of Rs. 21,27,922; as per the agreement with the said manufacturer (approved by the Government of India) they supplied the appellant an identical machine for the correct value of US$ 1,70,244 (Rs. 53,72,392); the appellant paid an amount of Rs. 55,55,330; the appellant offered shares for the value of Rs. 88,00,000 to M/s. Winter Umwelttechnik, Germany; the appellants arrived at the value of Rs. 21,27,922, by considering the total of the amounts received from M/s. Winter Umwelttechnik, Germany and the value of the machinery supplied free and deducting the value of the shares offered to the said company.

3.1. The learned counsel for the appellant states that it is the case of the appellant that once the value of the imported machine is reckoned on the basis of the value actually paid by the appellant to the foreign supplied (US$ 4,31,330) as reduced by the amount received by the appellant from the German manufacturer (Rs. 21,27,722) then it becomes clear that the appellant had to pay only about Rs. 48 Lakhs towards duty liability, at the full rate under the Customs Tariff; against this, the appellant has paid an amount of Rs. 69,12,637 (by cash + Bank Guarantee); appellant, therefore, paid duty on the machine imported, more than the full rate of duty that would have been payable had the value been correctly taken; consequently, the appellant cannot be said to be a person who has availed the benefit of concessional rate of duty applicable for EPCG License holders and hence, it is not required to fulfill any export obligation as per the provisions of the EXIM Policy, 1992-97.

3.2. The learned counsel for the appellants contends that the Assistant Commissioner confirmed a duty demand on the assumption that the appellant had availed of a concessional rate of duty while clearing the goods at the time of their import in 1996; this assumption is factually wrong as the appellant got back a part of the amount paid for the machine that was imported; considering the reduced value of the machine, the appellant has already paid more amounts than the applicable duty at the tariff rate; it follows that the appellant had not availed of the benefit of the concessional rate of duty applicable to EPCG license holders; corresponding requirement of fulfilling an export obligation too did not apply and hence there was no basis for confirming a differential duty;

3.3. The learned counsel for the appellants contends that they produced before the Department the entire set of documents which would establish that the payment made by it towards the import of the machinery in question is only an amount of Rs. 1,26,88,264; The tariff rate of duty applicable to the imported machine at the relevant point of time was 37.5% ad valorem; Thus the duty payable at the tariff rate was Rs. 47,58,099; as against this the appellant has already paid an amount of Rs. 69,12,637-00 towards duty (Rs. 27,65,055/- + Bank Guarantee for Rs. 41,47,582.00); on payment of this amount the appellant must be deemed to be a person who has not availed the benefit of the EPCG Scheme and hence there cannot be any further insistence on fulfillment of any export obligation by the appellant.

3.4. The learned counsel for the appellants further contends that the Appellate Commissioner vide order dated 18.06.2004 directed redetermination of the value of the imported goods based on the subsequent events; the said direction had become final as the revenue did not challenge the direction as regards redetermination of value; even the limited challenge before Tribunal on the aspect of the power of the Appellate Commissioner to remand was dismissed; therefore, it was not open for the original authority and the Appellate Commissioner not to comply with the order of the Appellate Commissioner to re-value the goods; duty of customs is on the value of goods actually imported and it being not disputed that the value of goods imported was less than what was actually assessed, no duty could be demanded based on the wrong valuation.

3.5. The learned counsel for the appellants contends that the directions of commissioner appeals on revaluation of goods having become final, judicial propriety mandates that it is followed and was binding on the original authority; refusal for revaluation by the Original Authority and reiterating the communication dated 15.03.2001 of the Jurisdictional Commissioner is judicial impropriety; Appellate Commissioner remanded the case and so order-in-original demanding duty and interest got set-aside; Order-in-original passed after the remand by the Appellate Commissioner, did not raise any demand of duty or interest on the appellant; therefore, there is no valid demand for invocation of the bank guarantee of Rs. 41,47,582/- which is kept alive by the appellant pursuant to the order dated 21.12.2009 of this Hon'ble Tribunal need to be released. He relies upon the decision rendered in the case of Reiter India Pvt. Ltd. vs. CC (Import), Nhava Sheva: MANU/CM/0252/2014 : 2014 (309) ELT 277 (Tri.-Mum.).

4. Learned AR for the Department, submits a detailed written submission made Commissioner (AR), per contra submits that the original subject matter of the issue is relating to Recovery Action by issuing SCN on the failure of prescribed Export Obligation in time; the impugned Assessable Value has already been accepted by the EPCG Committee and DGFT after perusal of the declaration and documents submitted by the importer and accordingly the Export Obligation has been fixed; hence, the Assessable value and consequential Export obligation is to be revised by the EPCG Committee after due examination of the plea and supportive documents produced by the importer; in the instant issue, the EPCG Committee/DGFT has rejected the request & grounds raised by the importer on 5.2.2001 after due scrutiny of the records; under the background, the importer should not be allowed to revise the AV on his own disregarding the background to the issuance of an EPCG Licence and its decision by the Committee consisting of a team of experts and experienced persons in the field. Hon'ble High Court of Bombay, in the case of Bhilwara Spinners Ltd. MANU/MH/0352/2011 : 2011 (267) ELT 49 (Bom) observed that Since the decision to convert the Licence was taken by the DGFT with the approval of the EPCG Committee (which includes customs authorities), the Commissioner of Customs/Commissioner of Central Excise were bound by the decision of the EPCG committee and could not have challenged the decision; CBEC Circular: 46/2004 : MANU/CUCR/0048/2004 dated 26.07.2004 also instructed the Customs Authorities not to take unilateral action on the matter of Valuation pertaining to EPCG; in the instant case, as the EPCG Committee has consciously rejected the request of the appellant for revision of the Assessable Value, Customs Authorities cannot take different stand on the same facts & circumstances.
4.1. Learned AR further submits that there is no legal provisions for reassessment after five years of issuing ‘Out Of Charge’ under Customs Act, 1962; the initial assessment of the Bill of Entry was made on 6.5.1996, which is an appealable quasi-judicial order; the assessable Value was not challenged at all within the stipulated time limit; the importer has come up with the request for re-determination of assessable Value and re-assessment after a lapse of 5 years from the date of assessment of Bill of Entry; initial assessment was not made under provisional assessment and the importer has not paid the duty for the initial assessment under protest; appellant’s claim of provisional assessment was rejected by Settlement Commission. He relies upon the following cases. (i). CCE, Kanpur Vs. Flock (India) Pvt. Ltd. [MANU/SC/0484/2000 : 2000 (120) ELT (285)] (ii). Priya Blue Industries Ltd. Vs. C (P) MANU/SC/0767/2004 : 2004 (172) ELT 145 (SC). (iii). UOI Vs. kirkoskar Pneumatic Co. MANU/SC/0881/1996 : 1996 (84) ELT 401 (it was held that writ cannot be invoked for directing the authorities to act contrary to law.

4.2. Learned AR, further submits that the SCNs have been issued to the Appellant based on the contravention of the conditions of the EPCG Notification No. 110/95 : MANU/CUST/0005/1995 dated 05.06.1995 and the terms and conditions are documented in the form of Bond specifying the terms and conditions for both the parties; therefore, the subject matter is nothing but the subject of Contract; the appellant having entered into a contract, cannot be allowed to wriggle out of his promise made voluntarily, in the absence of any statutory illegality committed by the other party to the contract. The Hon'ble Supreme Court, in the case of State of M.P. v. M.V. Vyavaya & Co. MANU/SC/2146/1996 : AIR 1997 SC 993, ruled that a person who solemnly enters into a contract cannot be allowed to wriggle out of it by resorting to Article 226; in the case of Bareilly Development Authority Vs. Ajai Pal Singh MANU/SC/0058/1989 : 1989 AIR 1076, the Hon’ble SC ruled that there is a line of decisions where the contract entered into between the State and the persons aggrieved is non-statutory and purely contractual rights are governed only by the terms of the contract, not writ or order can be issued under Article 226 of the Constitution of India so as to compel the authorities to remedy breach of contract pure and simple. He also relies on: (i). Radhakrishna Agarwal & Others Vs. State of Bihar & Others MANU/SC/0053/1977 : 1977 3 SCR 249 (ii). Premji Bhai Parmar & Others etc Vs. Delhi Development Authority & Others MANU/SC/0422/1979 : 1980 2 SCR 704 (iii). DFO Vs. Biswanath Tea Company Ltd. MANU/SC/0045/1981 : 1981 3 SCR 662.

4.3. Learned AR, also submits that when the subject matter is exclusively dealing with Recovery Action on the failure of the Export obligation, the subject of re-assessment which was not at all dealt in the recovery action Notice is beyond the scope of SCN and no to be entertained; Hon'ble Supreme Court, in the case of Hindustan Polymers Co. Ltd. 1999 (106) ELT 12 (SC), held that the Tribunal should not, in this case, have passed an order which proceeded upon a basis that is altogether different from that of the demand made upon the appellants.

4.4. Learned AR, submits that the case law cited by the appellants is irrelevant; case of RBF RIG Corporation, Mumbai MANU/SC/0099/2011 : (2011) SCC 573 is not applicable, as in the referred case, the importer is entitled to get ‘Essentiality Certificates’ from the DGH (Director General of Hydrocarbons) on the basis of the ‘Recommendatory letters’ of ONGC that the impugned import goods are required for the Petroleum Operations; as both the DGH and ONGC delayed to issue the due Certificates and letters, the Importer paid full Customs Duty and approached HC; HC vide Interim order directed ONGC AND DGH to issue the due Certificates on 30.7.2002; both the authorities issued the due certificates/letters; subsequently HC in the Final Order directed the Customs Authorities to dispose of the Refund claim of the Importer by considering the "Essentiality Certificates" issued by the DGH; thus, after analyzing the merit of the issue (Delay on the part of DGH & ONGC in issuing Certificate/Letter in the absence of any fault on the part of importer), there was a Specific Direction from HC to consider the ‘essentiality certificates’ while disposing the refund claim, in the instant case on hand, the importer failed to fulfill to fulfill EO, and reasons put forth for non-fulfilment of EO & revising the AV also have not been considered by DGFT; hence, the High Court of Kerala has not issued any direction to the DGFT to issue EODC or to revise Assessable Value; instead, directions have been issued to Customs Authorities to consider the plea of additional grounds on Valuation; at the same time, the HC categorically made it clear that it has not considered the merits of the contentions taken by the respective parties in the Original Petition; under the circumstances, the direction of "Consideration" cannot be equated with "Positive consideration"; consideration of the direction definitely is subject to concerned statutory provisions; Commissioner (A) also referred the matter to Original adjudicating authority, who is the proper officer to dealt with Assessment, for appropriate legal decision "if necessary"; therefore, the question of Judicial indiscipline does not arise at all.

4.5. Learned AR, moreover, submits that various Authorities have decided as follows on the request of the appellant:

(i). High Court of Ernakulum did not consider the merit of the contentions of the parties concerned.

(ii). Settlement Commission held that the bona fide of the Appellants' disclosure is Questionable, Doubtful & under Cloud (iii). EPCG Committee of DGFT rejected the request of revising the Assessable Value declared by the importer for the capital goods.

(iv). Secretary, Ministry of Commerce, on an Appeal filed against the decision of EPCG, did not consider the request of revising the Value of the impugned machinery.

(v). Commissioner (A) dated 18.6.2004 referred the valuation matter to the Proper officer for redetermination of AV with remarks "if necessary".

(vi). Adjudicating Authority and the Appellate Authority, vide impugned order, rejected the submission of the importer for revising the Assessable Value.

He submits lastly that the Revenue has taken a stand as per Law and in consonance with various departments; under the facts and circumstances and taking into account of the legal position on the issue, the Appeal preferred by the importer is liable for rejection in the absence of any merits.

5. Heard both sides and perused the records of the case.

6. The main arguments of the appellant are that:

(i) The value of the machines imported by them under EPCG should be valuated as per the actual value of the machine imported again and not the original machine.

(ii) Learned Commissioner (A)'s order was remanded to the original authority for reconsideration of the value and as the department has not appealed against this issue, the order attains finality.

(iii) once the value of the machine is redetermined the amount already paid by them is more than the normal applicable duty payable on the impugned goods even if the concessional under EPCG Scheme is not availed and therefore, the import should be treated as having not availed the benefit of concessional rate of duty under EPCG scheme.

7. We find that learned AR forcefully rebutted all the claims of appellants on the following grounds.

(i) There is no provision under law to consider the appellant's claim for redetermination or reassessment of the Bill of Entry after a considerable period of more than 5 years. More so, due to the fact that the assessment was not provisional.

(ii) In the scheme of EPCG, customs alone cannot revise the value of the impugned goods and thus, the export obligation. The EPCG Committee which also contains a Member from Customs has gone into the request of the appellant and concluded that the appellant has not made any case for reconsider the value. The appeal filed by the appellant, against the decision of EPCG Committee, before the Joint Secretary was also rejected.

(iii) The appellant’s contention that Hon’ble High Court at Ernakulam, vide Order in Writ Petition No. 20897/1999, has directed the authorities that they shall consider the request of revaluation by the appellants. The appellant’s contention that the Commissioner (A), in his order No. 121/2004 dated 18.6.2004, has only referred to the lower authority for redetermining the value and for reassessment of goods. The lower authority again passes an order No. 1/2007 dated 25.1.2007 after considering the submissions of the appellant and rejecting the claim of determination of assessable value for assessment. The same was upheld by Commissioner (A) vide Order-in-Appeal No. 132/2008.

(iv) The appellants meanwhile approached the Settlement Commission in respect of subsequent show-cause notice dated 16.7.2001 and the Settlement Commission have not only rejected the application but also passed remarks that the appellants have not established the bona fides of the claims.

7.1. We find that the appellants have failed to fulfill the export obligation and accordingly, Customs Department has issued a show-cause notice to recover the applicable duty on the imported goods. We find that the representation of the appellants could not succeed before the EPCG Committee and the appellate authority. This being the fact of the case, we find that Customs Authorities, as submitted by the Commissioner (AR), cannot take an independent decision. We further find that the Bill of Entry is dated 6.5.1996 and the appellants sought to revalue the goods and approached the Commissioner with a request dated 18.1.2001 and 9.2.2001 for re-assessment of the Bill of Entry. Commissioner has rejected the request vide letter dated 15.3.2001. We find that the appellants sought to rely on the case of Reiter India Pvt. Ltd. (supra). We find that the facts of the case discussed therein are quite different from those in the instant case. In the case of M/s. Reiter India Pvt. Ltd. (supra), the import was on 25.5.2011 and refund was filed in September 2011 i.e., within a period of six months. In the instant case, it is beyond 5 years. Moreover, in the case of Reiter India Pvt. Ltd. (supra), the imports were not under EPCG as is in the present case. We find merit in the argument of the Commissioner (AR) that the Bill of Entry was not provisionally assessed and the appellants have not appealed against the Bill of Entry. We find that on this count the legal position on reassessment is enunciated in the cases of CCE Kanpur vs. Flock India Pvt. Ltd. (supra) and Priya Blue Industries Ltd. (supra). We find that Hon’ble Apex Court of India has recently enunciated the same principle in the case of ITC Ltd. in Civil Appeal No. 293-294/2009. The Hon’ble Apex Court observed that:

“47. When we consider the overall effect of the provisions prior to amendment and post-amendment under Finance Act, 2011, we are of the opinion that the claim for refund cannot be entertained unless the order of assessment or self-assessment is modified in accordance with law by taking recourse to the appropriate proceedings and it would not be within the Ken of Section 27 to set aside the order of self-assessment and reassess the duty for making refund; and in case any person is aggrieved by any order which would include self-assessment, he has to get the order modified under Section 128 or under other relevant provisions of the Act.”

7.2. We also find that the appellants have submitted a Bond at the time of import binding themselves to the conditions envisaged in the Notification No. 110/95 : MANU/CUST/0005/1995 dated 5.6.1995. We find that the Department was within its rights to impose the conditions of the Bond for violation of the provisions therein. We find that the impugned show-cause notice is about the recovery of duty foregone in terms of the conditions of the Notification. The appellants having not appealed against the assessment of the Bill of Entry and having not requested for provisional assessment, cannot demand the same while replying to the show-cause notice. Such a request, is beyond the scope of the provisions of Customs Act. We find that nothing could have stopped the appellants from appealing against the Bill of Entry within the limitation. Moreover, the appellants have also lost the case with the EPCG Committee. Once a machine is imported in terms of the EPCG license wherein certain export obligation has been fixed by the DGFT authorities and particularly, in the case when the EPCG Committee has rejected the appeal made by the appellant, Customs cannot revalue the goods and reduce the export obligation accordingly. We find that the appellants have shown no case for redetermination of the value of the imported goods in terms of the provisions of Customs Act either. On either count, the appellants submissions are weak.

7.3. Further, we find that the appellants have submitted that Hon’ble High Court at Ernakulam has directed that the valuation as requested by the appellants may be considered. However, we find that the Hon’ble High Court has given a clear finding that they were not going into the merit of the issue. In such circumstances, the direction of the Hon’ble High Court has to be read to mean that such consideration by the competent authority shall be subject to the provisions of law. Moreover, a direction given for consideration does not necessarily mean that the request of the appellant should be accepted. A direction is only to the extent that the request shall be considered as far as the law permits for the same. Therefore, we do not find any infirmity in the lower authorities coming to a conclusion that the redetermination, of the value because of the reasons discussed above, was not possible in the facts and circumstances of the case and under the provisions of law.

8. In view of the above, we find that the appeal is devoid of any merit and is liable to be rejected.

ORDER

S.S. Garg, Member (J)

1. The present appeal is directed against the impugned order dated 30/05/2018 passed by the Commissioner of Customs (Appeals) whereby the Commissioner has rejected the appeal of the appellant and upheld the Order-in-Original.

2. Briefly the facts of the present case are that DRI, Bangalore gathered specific intelligence that a huge quantity of unaccounted cash in demonetized currency and some 'foreign' marked smuggled gold were secreted by a person, viz: Shri. Ravi Kumar R.M. a private real estate financier and partner of M/s. Aishwarya Investments in his office/residential premises situated at #54, Kogilu Road, Maruthinagar, Yelahanka, Bangalore - 560 064. Officers of DRI, Bangalore along with officers of DGIT (Income Tax Investigation) conducted search at the said premises and unearthed and unaccounted cash in demonetized currency to the tune of Rs. 3.5 Crores and 17 gold biscuits weighing 1578.35 grams (inclusive of 15 gold biscuits with foreign markings) valued at Rs. 47 lakhs. The unaccounted cash and gold biscuits were seized as per the provisions of Income Tax Act, 1961.

2.1. Shri. Ravi Kumar R.M. in his statement recorded on 22/11/2016 under the provisions of Section 108 of Customs Act, 1962 stated that he and his father Shri. Mallikarjunappa were partners of the said firm, which was into the business of lending money on short term basis to landlords, farmers, small business people and small contractors. Further, he agreed with the seizure of unaccounted cash in demonetized currency and 17 gold biscuits and that he was neither in possession of any valid purchase invoice/documents nor of any customs duty paid challan for the 15 gold biscuits with foreign markings. He also stated that the said foreign marked gold biscuits were purchased from a person referred by M/s. Davanam Jeweller's to convert the huge demonetized cash available with them. Hence, a show-cause notice dated 11/05/2017 was issued to Shri. Ravi Kumar R.M. as to why, the 17 gold biscuit seized from his possession should not be confiscated under Section 111(d) of Customs Act, 1962 and penalty should not be imposed on him under Section 112 of Customs Act, 1962. Shri. Ravi Kumar R.M. in the reply to the show-cause notice has stated that the allegations are contrary to the facts and denied the same as baseless and the proposals to confiscate the seized gold and impose penalty as not sustainable and that he and his family members had purchased the said gold biscuits and he had purchased bills in respect of 15 gold biscuits weighing 1500 grams. He has also stated that he was coerced into giving the statements which were not voluntary and that he has retracted the same by executing a sworn affidavit.
2.2. After following the due process, the adjudicating authority passed Order-in-Original dated 30/11/2017 whereby the gold biscuits of foreign markings totally weighing 1028.35 grams valued at Rs. 30.62 lakhs were confiscated under Section 111(d) of the Customs Act, 1962 and imposed a penalty of Rs. 9,00,000/- (Rupees Nine Lakhs only) under Section 112(a) of the Customs Act, 1962 on Shri. Ravi Kumar R.M. Aggrieved by the said order, appellant filed appeal before the Commissioner by raising various grounds against the Order-in-Original and the Commissioner after considering the submissions of the appellants, rejected the appeal. Hence, the present appeal.

3. Heard both the parties and perused the records.

4. Learned counsel for the appellant submitted that the impugned order is not sustainable in law as the same has been passed without properly appreciating the facts and the law. He further submitted that in the present case Income Tax officers carried out search of the appellant's residential premises on 15/11/2016, found unaccounted cash in demonetized currency to the tune of Rs. 3.5 Crores and 17 gold biscuits weighing 1578.35 grams valued at about 47 lakhs. The Income Tax officers seized the cash and gold biscuits under Section 132 of the Income Tax Act, 1961 and the same continued to be in their custody as confirmed in para 8 of the impugned show-cause notice. He further submitted that the appellant's statement recorded by the Customs Officer on 22/11/2016 and 15/12/2016 were retracted by the appellant through Sworn Affidavit executed on 16/12/2016 and submitted the same along with reply to the show-cause notice. He further submitted that the appellant has also submitted purchase invoices in respect of 15 gold biscuits from Sl. No. 1 to 15 of the Annexure ‘A’ to the show-cause notice. The copies of invoices issued by M/s. Adya Jewellers and Sai Thirumala Jewellers, Bangalore have also been enclosed to the reply to the show-cause notice submitted to the adjudicating authority. He also submitted that the remaining 2 gold biscuits listed under Sl. No. 16 & 17 in Annexure ‘A’ to the show-cause notice were procured from (i) HDFC Bank 50 grams Fine Gold, and (ii) Credit Suisse One Ounce Fine Gold. The appellant has submitted that these two gold biscuits were purchased by the appellant's father more than 8 years ago and the relevant invoices could not be traced. He also submitted that the Jewellers who have sold 15 gold biscuits have issued valid tax invoices in the name of the appellant and on payment of applicable VAT on the sale of the gold. Accordingly, the appellants have proved licit purchase of gold from the gold jewellers by producing purchase invoices. Further the said jewellers have furnished certificate dated 11/01/2018 and 20/01/2018 respectively confirming the details of sale of gold biscuits to the appellant and copies of those certificates have also been placed in the memorandum of appeal. He further argued that neither the appellant nor his family members have brought gold from abroad or procured the same from any other source other than the jewellers who are local authorized dealers and they have issued the certificate regarding the sale. He further submitted that the Additional Commissioner in the Order-in-Original has held that 6 gold biscuits having markings of MMTC, PAMP and HDFC bearing Indian Markings are not liable for confiscation and ordered release of the same subject to any action that the Income Tax authorities may take and the balance 11 gold biscuits totally weighing 1028.35 grams approximately valued at 30.62 lakhs were confiscated under Section 111(d) of the Customs Act. He further submitted that both the authorities have wrongly invoked Section 123 of the Customs Act, for the proposition that burden of proof that the gold biscuits seized under Section 132 of the Income Tax Act on 16/1/2016 were not smuggled goods, they were imported and Customs Duty has been paid on them, in on the appellant. He referred to the provision of Section 123 providing burden of proof and submitted that Section 123 of the Customs Act applies only to the goods seized under the Customs Act, 1962 whereas in the present case the goods have been seized under Section 132 of the Income Tax Act, 1961 and therefore Section 123 of the Customs Act is not applicable in the present case. Moreover, the appellant has produced VAT invoices issued by M/s. Adya Jewellers and Sai Thirumala Jewellers and their certificates confirming the sale/purchase of seized biscuits within the country and therefore the licit transaction of sale of gold biscuits within the country have been clearly established. He also submitted that it is a settled legal position that when the goods are not seized under the Customs Act, 1962, the provisions of Section 123 of the Customs Act, 1962 are not attracted. The burden of proof of licit import cannot be shifted to the person from whose possession the goods were seized. The burden of proof that the goods were smuggled goods and the Customs duty has not been paid on them lies on the Department. For this submission, he relied upon the following decisions:

e. Mahesh B Mali Vs. Commr. of Central Excise, Pune - MANU/CB/0157/2012 : 2012 (286) E.L.T. 375 (T)

g. Ram Lubhaya Vs. Commr. of Customs, New Delhi - 2002 (147) E.L.T. 807 (T)

i. Manoj Kumar Vs. Commr. of Customs - 2004 (176) E.L.T. 811 (T)

4.1. It is his further submission that once the appellants have submitted the copies of purchase invoices for purchase of gold biscuits from the local jewellers and also furnished certificate confirming the sale of gold biscuits on payment of VAT, then there cannot be any doubt or dispute with regard to bona fide transaction of purchase of gold from the authorized dealers. For this submission, he relied upon the following decisions:

5. On the other hand, learned AR defended the impugned order and submitted that in the present case gold was seized under joint operation by the Income Tax Investigation Wing and the Directorate of Revenue Intelligence. The gold was seized under the Income Tax Act along with demonetized currency. The Income Tax authorities had officially communicated the seizure of the gold to the DRI for further necessary action and thereafter the statement of the person from whose possession the gold was seized was recorded under Section 108 of the Customs Act, 1962 and after following the due process under the Customs Act only the show-cause notice was issued. He further submitted that in the case-laws relied upon by the appellant, the gold was seized by the Police under the State Government and handed over to the Customs under the Central Government and therefore the decisions relied upon by the appellant are not applicable in the present case. He relied upon the decision in the case of Gopaldas Udhavadas Ahuja Vs. Union of India reported in MANU/SC/0530/2004 : 2004 (176) E.L.T. 3 (S.C.) wherein the Apex Court has distinguished the case of Gian Chand and others relied upon by the appellant and has held that invocation of Section 123 of the Customs Act is valid. The second contention of the learned AR is that the invoices for purchase of gold biscuits produced by the appellant along with the reply to the show-cause notice are not valid invoices and the same were never produced during investigation and they are an afterthought. Moreover, the bills are not correlating with the gold seized as there are no identifying marks in the bills relating to the gold seized. He further submitted that the seized gold bearing foreign markings cannot be established as not smuggled. For this submission, he relied upon the decision in the case of ASA Kabeer Vs. CC, Chennai - 2001 (137) E.L.T. 55 (Mad.) wherein the Hon’ble High Court in para 12 to 14 has observed as under:

"12. It is the duty of the person, who is importing the duty payable goods to see to it that the correct description of the goods is entered into the receipt for the payment of custom duty and the same is very much wanting in this case and in the absence of the same, we find it difficult to accept the case of the Petitioner that the gold, that has been imported by Shamsudeen and the gold seized from the Petitioner were one and the same. Hence, we reject the contention of the Petitioner.

13. With regard to the Silver bars seized, it has been well established that the total weights noted in the three baggage receipts do not tally with the ingots and on that score alone, the contention of the Petitioner that the silver bars were duly imported and duty paid cannot be accepted. The Petitioner has failed to discharge the burden cast upon him and the argument advanced on behalf of the Petitioner that the silver bars were duly imported and duty paid cannot be accepted.

14. From the abovesaid discussions, we hold that the petitioner is disentitled to sustain his claim and the petitioner has not given a proper account of his possession of the gold bars and silver and the receipt produced do not relate to the goods seized and the petitioner has failed to prove the licit import of gold and silver and all these aspects were taken note of by the authorities concerned and hence, we answer both the questions in favour of the Revenue and against the Petitioner.

5.1. He also relied upon the decision of the Tribunal in the case of Raj a ram Johra Vs. CC (Airport & Cargo), Chennai - 2016 (5) TMI 554 - CESTAT Chennai wherein said Chennai CESTAT has observed as under:

"11.2. The gold as stated above were found to be contraband goods and Customs believed that to be smuggled one when that carried foreign marking and no evidence of lawful import thereof was adduced before investigation, adjudicating authority as well as the Trial court. Appellant along with the accomplices miserably failed before the Trial Court to succeed and their trial ended in conviction with no return of the gold to them. The MO-1, 2 & 3 in that case which were the offending gold in the present appeal were ordered by the Magistrate to be returned to Customs. When cogent and credible evidence came to the surface demonstrating that the appellant was in possession of the contraband gold with foreign marking thereon and such goods were not lawfully imported, there is no scope at all for him to go out of the purview of Section 123 of the Customs Act, 1962. Therefore, all the 12 gold bars and 10 gold biscuits were lawfully seized by Customs and were liable to absolute confiscation."

5.2. He also relied upon the decision of this Tribunal in the case of Baburaya Narayan Nayak Vs. CC, Bangalore - MANU/CB/0005/2018 : 2018 (364) E.L.T. 811 (Tri.-Bang.). He further submitted that in all the three case-laws cited, it has been held that the person possessing the gold with foreign markings shall prove its licit possession through proper documents whereas in the present case, the appellant could not produce any proof of the licit possession through proper documents and the documents sought to be produced were produced during adjudication and not during investigation.

6. The appellant has also filed rejoinder to the argument raised by the AR wherein he has reiterated the earlier submissions.

7. After considering the submissions of both the parties and perusal of the material on record, I find that during the joint search operation by DRI and Income Tax official at the residence of the appellant, 17 gold biscuits were seized and out of 17 gold biscuits, 6 biscuits have markings of MMTC, PAMP and HDFC Bank on them. As per the RBI guidelines, the said organizations are authorized to import and sell gold. Therefore, the adjudicating authority has rightly held that the 6 gold biscuits were legally possessed and has not confiscated the same. As far as remaining gold biscuits are concerned, they have the foreign markings and the appellant while making statement to the DRI officer under Section 108 of the Customs Act has stated that they have purchased the said biscuits from M/s. Davanam Jewellers but the same has been refuted by the Davanam Jewellers when the Department made enquiry from them. Further I find that in his statement made twice before the DRI officer, he has not stated anything regarding the purchase of these biscuits from M/s. Sai Thirumala Jewellers and M/s. Adya Jewellers. He has not even named the jewellers in his statement at all. The invoices issued by these jewellers were brought on record for the first time while replying to the show-cause notice and therefore the Department could not investigate from the said jewellers regarding the authenticity of these invoices. Further I find that the retraction of the statement by a Sworn Affidavit is not valid because the said alleged affidavit was not produced before any authority and it was only executed before a Notary. Further I find that Hon'ble Kerala High Court in the case of Commr. of Customs, Cochin Vs. Om Prakash Khatri reported in MANU/KE/0670/2019 : 2019 (366) E.L.T. 402 (Ker.) has considered the scope of Section 123 of the Customs act and has held in para 18 as under:

"18. We have considered the decisions relied on by both sides and are of the opinion that in case of seizure of gold, even without markings, the burden is upon the person, who has custody of the gold, under Section 123 of the Act, to prove that the gold was legally acquired. The statement recorded under Section 108 of the Act could be safely relied upon in the proceedings against respondents. In K.I. Pavunny v. Assistant Collector, MANU/SC/2070/1997 : (1997) 3 SCC 721 : 1997 (90) E.L.T. 241 (S.C.) the Hon'ble Supreme Court has held that a person summoned under Section 108 of the Act is “not the person accused of an offence” for the purpose of Section 24 of the Evidence Act. The primary question for consideration in that case was whether the retracted confession statement of the appellant is inadmissible in evidence under Section 24 of the Evidence Act. It is observed that even though the Customs officers have been invested with many of the powers, which an officer-in-charge of a police station exercises, while investigating a cognizable offence, they do not, thereby become police officers within the meaning of Section 25 of the Evidence Act and so the confessional statement by the admissible in evidence against them and it was ultimately held by the Hon'ble Supreme Court that the prosecution has proved the case based on the confession of the appellant given in Ext. P4 under Section 108 of the Evidence Act."

7.1. Further I find that the case-laws relied upon by the appellant are not applicable in the facts and circumstances of this case because the appellant has stated in his statement that he has purchased the said gold biscuits from M/s. Davanam Jewellers and the said Jewellers has refuted the said statement. The purchase invoices from the local jewellers were not produced during the investigation. Therefore, the Department could not verify the authenticity of those invoices.

8. By taking into consideration the facts and circumstances and the various decisions relied upon by both the parties, I am of the considered view that there is no infirmity in the impugned order which I upheld by dismissing the appeal of the appellant.

FINAL ORDER NOS. 20343-20345/2020

Per: P Anjani Kumar:
Briefly stated the facts of the case are that M/s 3M India Ltd, the appellants, a subsidiary of 3M, USA, are engaged in the import of more than 1000 types of adhesive products including Surgical Tape Rolls since 1992, from their parent company and its associates/subsidiaries. The Surgical Tape Rolls with brand names viz., Micropore, Transpore and Tegaderm Wound Dressings were cleared as ‘skin barriers micropore surgical tapes’ availing benefit of exemption under Sl.No.22 of List 37 as mentioned in Sl.No.363A of Notification No.21/2002-Cus dated 01.03.2002. The Directorate of Revenue Intelligence, initiated investigations into the imports by the Appellant and statements of Shri M.S. Swaminathan, Authorised Signatory of the Appellant and Shri Kulveen Singh Bali, Head, Regulatory Affairs and Quality Assurance of the Appellants were recorded. A Show Cause Notice dated 30.09.2011, demanding differential duty of Rs. 9,33,25,582, on imported Micropore, Transpore and Tegaderm, cleared during the period from October 2006 to February 2010. It was alleged that 'Hypoallergenic Surgical Adhesive Tapes' (under the brand name micropore, Transpore and Tegaderm), sold as general purpose medical adhesive tapes, are not ‘ostomy appliances’ for managing the four types of ostomy; in terms of the exemption Notification concessional rate of 5% BCD and Nil rate of CVD are available only for ‘Skin barrier micropore surgical tapes’ used as an Ostomy product (appliance) for managing Colostomy, Ileostomy, Ureterostomy, Heal Conduit Urostomy Stoma cases. Learned Commissioner passed the impugned Order-in-Original, 10/2012 dated 14.12.2012, confirming duty of Rs. 9,33,25,582 on the appellants along with equal penalty under Section 114A of Customs Act, 1962; imposing penalties of Rs 55,00,000 on Shri M.S. Swaminathan and Rs 40,00,000 on Shri Kulveen Singh Bali; Hence, the present appeals C/25625/2013, C/25676/2013 & C/25677/2013.

2. Shri Shivdass, Senior Counsel, appearing for the appellants, traces the history of the exemption for surgical tapes and submits that the Appellants earlier claimed exemption under Sl. No. 22B of Heading B of Notification No. 208/1981-Cus dated 22.09.1981, on the strength of certificates dated 15.9.1992 by the Directorate General of Health Services to the effect that they were Lifesaving items covered under Sl.No.22B of Part B of Customs Notification No.208/1981; after rescission of Notification No. 208/1981-Cus, the Ostomy products (Appliances) for managing Colostomy, Ileostomy, Ureterostomy, Ileal Conduit Urostomy Stoma, including skin barriers micropore surgical tapes continued to be exempted under various Notifications; the Notifications also exempted from duty other medical equipment certified by the Director General of Health Services to be lifesaving equipment; the Appellants continued to claim concessional rate of duty in respect of the imported Micropore, Transpore and Tegaderm, under Sl. No. 363 of Notification No. 21/2002 dated 01.03.2002, as mentioned at Sl. No. 22 of List 37 of the Notification; the Notification also provided, at Sl. No. 365, exemption to Life Saving Equipment subject to production of a certificate from DGHS to the effect that the imported goods are a lifesaving medical equipment; vide Notification No.21/2010-Cus dated 27.02.2010, Sl.No.363 in Notification No.21/2002-Cus along with List 37, was omitted; subsequently, Notification No.41/2010-Cus dated 1.4.2010 inserted, Sl.No.357A and S.No.35713, providing concessional rate of duty of 5% for Goods required for medical, surgical, dental or veterinary use falling under Ch.9018, 9019, 9020, 9021 or 9022 and for parts /accessories of the above goods falling under 90 or any other Chapter respectively; vide Notification No.54/2010-Cus dated 29.4.2010 exemption to Ostomy products (Appliances), accessories thereof and parts required for the manufacture of the Ostomy products was reintroduced. However, from the inclusive list of the products, ‘skin barriers micropore surgical tapes’ was removed; Appellant is not availing exemption under Notification No.21/2002-Cus from 27.02.2010.

3. Learned senior Counsel submits that the issue is settled by the tribunal by the decision in the case of Sutures India Pvt Ltd2019-VIL-221-CHE-CU; Tribunal examined the issue whether “Micropore surgical tape”, classifiable under CTH 3005 90 60,are entitled to exemption Sl 363(A) of Notification No. 21/2002 dated 01.03.2002; Tribunal held that the Notification apart from covering specific Ostomy products also covers the general purpose products; therefore, the impugned order is liable to be set aside.

4. Learned senior counsel further submits that surgical tapes imported by the appellants are an appliance used in managing ostomy cases and hence the exemption has been rightly claimed; Sl. No. 363(A) of Notification No.21/2002-Cus dated 1.3.2002 as amended from time to time, exempted goods specified in List 37 therein from so much of the duty of customs leviable thereon under the First Schedule to the Customs Tariff Act as is in excess of the amount calculated at the rate specified in the corresponding entry in column (4) of the Table; correspondingly, Sl.No.61 of Notification No.6/2006-CE exempted goods covered under Sl.No.363 of Notification No.21/2002-Cus and mentioned in List 37 of the Customs Notification from the whole of excise duty leviable thereon; Medical Equipment and other goods, specified in List 37 and their accessories were thus subjected to effective rate of Basic Customs Duty of 5% and wholly exempted from additional duty of customs leviable under Sec.3(1) of the Customs Tariff Act. List 37 of the Customs Notification No.21/2002 had 111 entries out of which Sl.No.22 reads as under:

"Ostomy products (Appliances) for managing Colostomy, Ileostomy, Ureterostomy, Ileal Conduit Urostomy Stoma crises such as bags, belts, adhesives seals or discs or rolls adhesive remover, skin barriers micropore surgical tapes, bag closing clamps karaya seals paste or powder, irrigation sets, plastic or rubber faceplates, flanges, male or female Urinary incontinence sets, skin gels in parts or sets"
Sl.No.22 of List 37 may be broken up as under:

- Ostomy products (appliances)
  - Such as bags, belts, adhesives seal or discs or rolls adhesive remover, skin barriers micropore surgical tapes, bag closing clamps karaya seals paste or powder, irrigation sets, plastic or rubber faceplates, flanges, male or female urinary incontinence sets, skin gels, in parts or sets.
- for managing
- Colostomy, Ileostomy, Urostomy and Ureterostomy stoma cases

5. Learned senior Counsel further submits that their products namely 'surgical tapes' qualify as 'ostomy products (appliances) being products used in ostomy care and is therefore exempted vide Sl.No.363 of Notification No.21/2202-Cus. The normal procedure for fixing/changing the pouching system may be explained as under:

- Cleaning the peristomal area with wet paper towel;
- Drying the peristomal skin;
- Tracing the stoma shape and size;
- Making a template of the stoma;
- Tracing the template on the base plate;
- Cutting out the stoma pattern and smoothen the edges in the plate;
- Applying strip paste around the stoma;
- Applying powder if necessary;
- Applying base plate on patient (after removing the backing) maintaining pressure for a few seconds;
- Fixing the bag on the flange and locking the bag;
- Fixing belt for extra support around the abdomen and
- Fixing the adhesive tape as a picture frame to hold the entire system securely to the patient.

6. Learned senior Counsel submits that the above procedure shows that the tapes are used for securing the ostomy pouches to the abdomen as a window frame and act as an additional support to the whole pouching system; the efficacy of the pouching system, both in collecting the body waste as well as in protecting the peristomal skin by preventing leakages depends heavily on its secure adherence to the body of the ostomate; thus, the impugned imported tapes are actually used as an appliance for ostomy management and care; the appellants have produced the following documents evidencing use of imported goods for the purposes of ostomy

(i). Copies of the letters issued by the hospitals and letter from Ostomy Association of India certifying the use of Micropore tapes for managing ostomy cases.

(ii). Illustrative copies of purchase orders placed by various hospitals for purchase of Micropore tapes, the dealers’ invoice evidencing sale of Micropore tapes and the certificates issued by the Max Super Speciality Hospital, New Delhi and HCG Cancer Centre, Ahmedabad certifying the use of Micropore tapes in ostomy care.

(iii). Certificates dated 15.9.1992 issued by the Directorate General of Health Services to the effect that Transpore and also Tegaderm is a ‘Skin Barriers Micropore Surgical Tape and are Lifesaving items covered under Sl.No.22B of Part B of - Customs Notification No.208/1981.

(iv). Extracts of literature wherein use of 3M tapes in managing ostomy is discussed.

(v). Copy of purchase orders, sale invoices and certificates from the hospitals and the letter from Ostomy Association of India.

B.10 it can be seen there from that the products have in fact been used for managing ostomy cases and therefore, the products qualify as ‘ostomy products (appliances)’ eligible for exemption.

7. Learned senior Counsel submits that without prejudice to the above submission that the imported tapes are actually used for ostomy care, the Notification provides exemption to all ‘Ostomy products (appliances) for managing stoma cases’ and nothing can be read into it to grant exemption only on proving that the products have actually been used for managing stoma; the expression ‘ostomy products for managing ostomy’ is to be interpreted as an item intended for use or capable for use as an ostomy appliance and the exemption would be extended. Once it is established that the products are ‘Ostomy appliances’ capable of being used in managing the stoma cases (including the four types mentioned), there is no requirement to show that the goods have been actually used for such purpose; he places reliance on the following wherein the expression "for use" was interpreted as an item intended for use or capable for use as an ostomy appliance.

(i). State of Haryana Vs Dalmia Dadri Cement Ltd reported in 2004 (178) ELT 13 (SC)

(ii). Ramsons Garments Fishing Equipment Pvt Ltd v CCE, Ban galore reported in 2007 (211) ELT44 (Ti.Bang)

(iii). West Dinajpur Spinning Mills Ltd. v. CCE reported in 2006 (203) EL T 474 (Tri-Kolkata)

(iv). Board Circular No. 1/2005 dated 11.01.2005 which clarified that Notification No. 21/2002 allows the import of general-purpose machinery also so long as they are capable of use in textile industry.

8. Learned senior Counsel submits that the expression for use’ contained in Sl. No. 22of List 37 shall be read as ‘capable of use’ and the exemption shall be extended as the imported goods are capable of being used and have been used for managing ostomy cases; appellants have produced several documents evidencing use of imported goods for the purposes of ostomy; department has not produced any evidence to establish that the impugned goods imported by the Appellant is not necessary in ostomy procedure.

(i). Special Court for Economic Offences held, vide order dated 11.02.2019, that based on the literature and patents downloaded from the website, it cannot be held that the imported surgical tape is not usable in ostomy procedure;

(ii). Shri K.K Ghosh, SIO, DRI admitted during Cross- Examination that the relied upon document does not state that the tape is not used for Ostomy purpose.

9. He submits that the use of the impugned goods for ostomy is undisputed and the impugned goods are therefore entitled to exemption. ‘Skin barrier’ and ‘micropore surgical tapes’ are two distinct products and there is no product corresponding to the description ‘Skin barrier micropore surgical tapes’ as averred in the impugned order; certain products in List 37 have not been separated by appropriate commas; list mentions bag closing clamps karaya seals paste or powder; a plain reading of the sentence would indicate that it is one product, whereas the actual usage as described above, would show that the bag closing clamps have an entirely different function and the karaya seal has its own distinct function; there can be no product called as -bag closing clamps karaya seal paste or powder’; It makes sense only if the expression is read as bag closing clamps’, ‘karaya seal, paste or powder; similar is the case of ‘skin barriers’ and ‘micropore surgical tapes. Literal meaning of a ‘skin barrier’ is that the product acts as a ‘barrier’ to the skin i.e. it does not allow anything to come in contact with the skin; whereas, ‘micropore’ means having pores; surgical tapes are manufactured with minute pores so that the skin can breathe through it; thus, the entry should aptly read as ‘skin barriers’ and ‘micropore surgical tapes; in the product description of 1- IOL- 3722 the words ‘skin barrier’ and ‘porous paper tape’ are separated by a comma; this evidences that there is no product answering to the description ‘skin barrier micropore surgical tape’; this further supports the claim of the Appellants that the expression skin barrier micropore surgical tape used in the Notification ought to be separated by a comma and exemption should be granted to both ‘skin barrier’ and ‘micropore tapes’; further, the document for the product I-IOL- 3722 is dated 25.11.2008 whereas the expression for ‘skin barrier micropore surgical tapes’ was available in the Notification from 22.09.1981 itself; if the observation of the Commissioner that the exemption is applicable only to products such as HOL-3722 implies that the Notification was issued with a foresight that such a product would be developed; alternately, it could also mean that the product was developed based on the entry in the Notification; both the above views would lead to absurdity.

9.1. Learned senior Counsel submits that as explained elsewhere, skin barriers and microporous tapes are normally different; though the notification has mentioned the same as a single entry; in fact in the Customs Tariff, a specific heading is available for micropores surgical tapes’; Tariff had not used the expression ‘skin barrier’; in 2007, Heading 30069100 was inserted in the Tariff with the description ‘Appliances identifiable for ostomy use’; clause (k) under Note 4 in Chapter 30 states heading 3006 applies to ‘appliances identifiable for ostomy use, that is, colostomy, ileostomy and urostomy pouches cut to shape and their adhesive wafers or faceplates’; thus, even after amendment in 2007, the Tariff does not describe the product as ‘skin barrier micropores surgical tapes’ but as adhesive wafers of ‘pouches’; therefore it is submitted that if the expression ‘skin barriers micropore surgical tapes’ in S1.No.22 of List 37 is taken to denote a single product, read with the description in the Tariff, it can only apply to the ‘surgical tapes’ as imported by the Appellants; he places reliance on the decision of the Tribunal in the case of Equipment Sales Corporation reported in 1989 (39) 421 wherein the benefit of erstwhile Notification No. 208/81-Cus, dated 22.09.1981 was extended to Micropore Surgical Tapes.

10. Learned senior Counsel submits that alternatively, the imported goods are entitled to exemption under Sl.No. 363(B) of the Notification. It is submitted that Sl.No.363 in the Notification exempts (i) Medical Equipment and other goods and (B) Accessories of medical equipment mentioned in (A); the tapes imported by the Appellants are used as an accessory to the pouch inasmuch as it is used to secure the pouch and other goods securely to the body of the patient; therefore the Appellant would anyway be entitled to the exemption under Sl.No.363 (B); as held in the impugned Order, the impugned tapes are used to additionally secure the ostomy appliances such as bags, clamps etc. in place; thus the impugned tapes are accessories to various appliances listed in List 37; being accessory to medical equipment mentioned in Sl. No. 363(A) are entitled to exemption under Sl.No. 363(B). Learned Counsel submits that alternatively, Sl. No. 365 of the Notification No. 21/2002 provides exemption to ‘Life saving medical equipment including accessories or spare parts or both of such equipment’ subject to production of certificate from the DGHS that the products imported are ‘Lifesaving goods’; DGHS have given necessary certificates to the appellants; it is settled law that the benefit of exemption can be claimed at any stage as held in Share Medical Care Vs UOI 2007 (209) ELT 321 (SC).

11. Learned senior Counsel submits that extended period is not invocable in the case; Show Cause Notice is issued on 30.09.2011 demanding duty for the period October 2006 to February 2010; packing material of the products clearly shows the various applications to which the products can be put to use. The packing material describes the material not only as meant for general purpose/use but also as meant for securing ostomy pouches/devices/appliances etc; over the past several years the consignments have been subjected to physical examination by officers of the customs department before allowing clearances of the same; no objection whatsoever had been raised the claim of subject exemption under Notification No.21/2002-Cus at any time in the past; the fact that Hon’ble Tribunal in the case of Sutures India Pvt Ltd (supra) has extended exemption under Sl.No. 363(A) of Notification No. 21/2002 dated 01.03.2002 to similar products proves that the Appellant was justified in entertaining a bona fide belief that the impugned goods are entitled to exemption; in any case claiming incorrect classification and exemption Notification does not amount to mis-declaration warranting invocation of longer period and imposition of penalty; appellants have neither suppressed the facts nor had any intention to evade payment of duty and therefore penalty is not imposable under Section 114A of the Customs Act.

12. Dr. J. Harish, Joint Commissioner, Authorised Representative, appearing for the department reiterated the findings of OIO and submitted written submissions. He submitted inter alia that the appellant claimed exemption Notification 21/2002-Cus; Sl. No 363 A (List 37, Sl. No 22) under the category of Ostomy Products; appellants sought clearance of the products under the category of ‘micropore surgical tapes’ claiming that the items have microporous properties and are used in Ostomy procedures though they are being commonly used for other purposes also like fixing IV Cannulas, Bandage fixation and to hold tubes and other general purpose applications; the stated application in Ostomy cases is for giving Additional support/for affixing the Ostomy Bags or pouches; the claim is based on the premise that the said entry was also available under the earlier Customs Notification 208/1981-Cus under which also these products had been cleared as lifesaving equipment based on the DGHS certification as was required under the conditions of the notification.

13. He submits that the claim under the present entry is to be read as for “Skin barriers micropore surgical tapes” and not only as ‘micropore tapes’ as is sought by the appellant; the sine-qua-non for the item to be considered under this category is as to whether these goods are having the prerequisite characteristics of a Skin barrier along with the microporous properties, as the primary objective of the products brought under the category of Ostomy appliances are products which are used to create the OSTOMY POUCH or for the special Care of the Skin around the Ostomy area; skin care in such surgeries is of utmost importance as the fecal and urinary content that empty into the pouches are to be prevented from affecting the skin around the pouches or Ostomy area so as to not cause any irritation or excoriation; skin Barriers are essentially coverings which have the property of not allowing Microbes or External agents from reaching the Skin and by way of this characteristic would not allow the Ostomy exudates to reach the skin surrounding the Ostomy area and thus maintain the integrity and quality of the skin as explained by OIO at Para 5.1.

13.1. He further submits that while Micropore Tapes might have been developed by the Appellant, their primary use or application is to act as adhesive tapes, but being hypoallergenic (less prone for allergic reactions) and without causing the painful peeling off sensation like the earlier cloth-based tapes; thus the products as marketed and as being practically being used are for these purposes i.e to hold bandages/ dressings and tubes or even the colostomy bags as an additional reinforcement or affixation aid; micropore is a paper based tape, whereas Transpore is a Polymer based tape with micro porous properties which allows the tape to breathe, but do not act as Skin Barriers; it is only when combined with Skin Barriers that such tapes would fall within the ambit of the entry in the Exemption Notification.

13.2. The appellant has placed his reliance on the decision of the Chennai Bench of the Hon’ble Tribunal in the case of M/s Sutures India Pvt Ltd (supra); it is noteworthy to point out that the said decision has been rendered after the 3rd Member reference on the premise that the said goods and other items like adhesive seals, adhesive remover, skin gels are items used for general purposes but find use also in ostomy procedures; there is no end use condition/exclusive use condition that such products need to be used only for ostomy applications and it is enough if they are used in relation to ostomy procedure and that the department has not been able to show any product which fits into the category of surgical tapes meant for Ostomy only. He submits that the said decisions have been taken by the bench without taking note of the fact that the item eligible for the benefit is a combination product of Skin Barrier Micropore Surgical Tape which combines the dual properties of preventing the seepage of the ostomy discharge onto the surrounding skin thus preventing harm to the skin as well as having the microporous breathing characteristics; the bench has not been made aware of the existence of such products and hence the bench has arrived at the conclusion that such products are not available.

13.3. He submits that however, in the impugned order the Commissioner and the investigating authority have shown that there are products which fit into the category as envisaged in the entry; such a product, HOL-3722 from MEDEX SUPPLY (Para 5.1) and the product Literature of the said product is placed as RUD; the said product is described as “Cut to fit Flex wear Flat Skin barrier, Porous paper tape 1-3/4”; also products known as "Coloplast" one piece – 5600 (at Page 398)and "Coloplast one piece -5801" which also are described as "flexible skin barrier and tear proof microporous tape for double security " are mentioned; it is such products which have the aforesaid properties of "Skin Barrier Micropore Surgical Tape" and the same were not brought to the notice of the Chennai Bench; It is these tapes and such similar products which have a primary application in the management of Ostomy that can be considered for the exemption; the usage of such products elsewhere also should not hamper the eligibility and to this extent the view of the Chennai bench would be correct, but when the products under consideration are merely micropore tapes without the skin barrier property they would fall outside the purview of the exemption; the products viz Micropore and Transpore under consideration cannot even prevent water from soaking them and can come off the skin easily if exposed to water whereas the essential characteristic of all the Ostomy products in the list are products which have the special property of absorbing or soaking up the water or discharge of the ostomy contents; this is evident from the explanation of items such as Adhesive seals in the Product information(at Para 5.1 of the OIO) wherein the said product is described as "Many ostomy bags in current use make use of hydrocolloid adhesives; one form of hydrocolloid adhesive comprises powdered gelatin, pectin and cellulose in a polyisobutylene (PIE) matrix; the powdered gelatin, pectin and cellulose absorb moisture and gel within the matrix; an adhesive flange of this type can be formed by mixing together PIB and powder components for a period of 45 mins at 60 to 75 C and then extruding the mixture for further processing; Hydrocolloid adhesives have proved to be very effective for use with colostomy patients; the hydrocolloid forms a good bond to the skin for the period over which the colostomy bag is in place, and is very skin friendly, causing negligible adverse skin reactions; the product information goes on to further explain as to how by increasing the thickness of such hydrocolloid layer ostomies like ileostomy and urostomy which have a predominant liquid discharge the seals can be made efficient to handle the extra outflow; even the Skin Gels are not of regular application quality and ought to have Hydrocolloid properties for ensuring the skin care; products like Karaya paste, powder are also products which have these water absorbent properties and are used specially for Ostomy purposes; thus the conclusion by the bench that some of the products in the entry at Sl. No 22 of the Notification are General purpose products is factually incorrect; the whole entry is to be seen as genre of products from the perspective of being Ostomy Products and special skin care products and not products which are being used incidentally to just support/affix the ostomy pouches or tubing (as discussed in Paras 8.2.4; 8.2.5 and 8.2.6 of the OIO).

14. He submits that 3M Brochures themselves describe as follows.

(i). Micropore Surgical Tape to be a non-woven rayon backed medical adhesive tape; this "paper tape" is latex free, hypoallergenic and gentle to the skin; thus, Micropore is an all-purpose tape for general use;

(ii). 3M Transpore Surgical Tape to be a transparent, perforated, medical adhesive tape; the plastic tape is latex free and hypoallergenic; thus Transpore is an all-purpose tape with strong adhesion, for general use.

(iii). Tegaderm is a waterproof, absorbent dressing with the following applications.

-Post surgical dressing- protects closed, clean surgical wounds and donor sites

-Lacerations, abrasions and burns, small incisions and excision especially in areas are difficult to dress

-Superficial and partial thickness wounds

-Light to moderate draining wounds

-Catheter site cover

Though the said product has absorbent properties and protective properties, it is submitted that the benefit is denied due to nonmention of the application for ostomy purposes in the product; thus it can be seen that the first two products do not have any skin barrier or absorbent properties and cannot definitely fall within the entry claimed as "Skin Barrier Micropore Surgical Tapes" but are only porous tapes; M/S 3M, USA principals of the appellants described the products as Non-Sterile Adhesive Tapes and not as Skin barriers as declared in the Form 40 for obtaining the clearance for import; it was so certified by the Drug Controller General of India (DCGI).

15. He submits that the certificates from DGHS submitted by the appellant in support of their claim are certificates issued under Notification 208/81 and as lifesaving items and would have no relevance to the Notification 21/2002-Cus Sl. No 363 A and the claim has to be considered only as per the current notification; also, the alternative plea for eligibility under Sl. No. 365 of Notification 21/2002 is without any basis as the requisite certification by DGHS under the current Notification is not produced; the appellant has chosen not to press for the issue of jurisdiction and has sought for the case to be decided based on merits and as per the decision of the Chennai Bench.
16. On the contention raised that the SCN issued on 30-09-2011 for the period October 2006 to February 2010 is beyond the normal time period, Learned Authorised Representative submits that the goods have mostly been cleared under the Self-Assessment procedure and as recorded by the adjudicating authority (Paras 50 to 54 of the OIO), the extended period would be invokeable; the said demand is justified and the consequential proceedings of Confiscation, Redemption fines and penalties are liable to be upheld.

17. Heard both sides and perused the records of the case. The brief issue involved in this case is as to whether Micropore, Transpore and Tegaderm imported by the appellants are eligible for exemption contained in notification No. 21/2002-Customs dated 01/03/2002 as amended from time to time. The contention of the appellants is that their products are rightfully eligible for the exemption contained in the notification under the description "Skin Barriers Micropore Surgical Tapes"; otherwise also they are covered under Ostomy Products (appliances) for managing Colostomy, Ileostomy, Ureterostomy, Ileal Conduit Urostomy Stoma cases such as bags, belts, adhesives seals or discs or rolls adhesive remover; alternatively they claimed that they are eligible for exemption as per Sl.No. 365 which provides exemption to lifesaving medical equipment subject to the condition that the importer at the time of import produces the certificate to the effect that the imported goods are a lifesaving medical equipment; there is no product which suits the description "Skin Barriers Micropore Surgical Tapes" and that there should have been a comma after skin barriers. On per contra the Department contends that there exists a product which suits the description "Skin Barriers Micropore Surgical Tapes" and the notification should not be read as per convenience.

18. For a proper appreciation of the issue in question, we find it is useful to have a look at the notification No. 21/2002 dated 01/03/2002. The relevant headings of the notification are as follows:

| Sl. No. 363A | 90 or any Chapter | The following goods
(excluding Foley Balloon Catheters) and other goods, specified in List 37. |
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th></th>

<td>Ostomy products (Appliances) for managing Colostomy, Ileostomy, Ureterostomy, Ileal Conduit Urostomy Stoma cases such as bags, belts, adhesives seals or discs or rolls adhesive remover, 'Skin Barriers Micropore Surgical Tapes', bag closing clamps karaya seals paste or powder, irrigation sets, plastic or rubber faceplates, flanges, male or female urinary incontinence sets, skin gels, in parts or sets.</td>
<td></td>

On going to the above notification it is seen that "Skin Barriers Micropore Surgical Tapes" is mentioned as a single heading whereas, the appellants would like to read it as "Skin Barriers", "Micropore Surgical Tapes" holding that there is no product known as "Skin Barriers Micropore Surgical Tapes"; the expression was similar in the earlier forms of the notification; another heading "bag closing clamps karaya seals paste or powder", is also mentioned in notification as a single entry and there are no such products known in the market; therefore "Skin Barriers Micropore Surgical Tapes" should be read as "Skin Barriers", "Micropore Surgical Tapes".

19. We find that the OIO has dealt this issue at length to establish the existence of products known as "Skin Barriers Micropore Surgical Tapes". Relevant paras of the OIO are as follows.

"27. From the facts of the case above, it is undisputed that the noticee claimed the benefit of exemption in respect of three types of Surgical Tapes imported by them known under the brand names Micropore, Transpore and Tegaderm, as "Skin Barriers Micropore Surgical Tapes". It is alleged that the goods imported are not skin barrier micropore surgical tapes but are all purpose 'surgical adhesive tapes', Noticee does not deny this fact. But the averment is that these can be used as ostomy appliances. In fact the noticee has gone one step ahead. The contention is that there is no medical item..." which is "Skin Barriers Micropore Surgical Tape" and that comma is missing in the description in the notification and that the said entry should be read as two different items, namely, 'skin barriers' and 'micropore surgical tape'. It is averred that the items imported by them are 'micropore surgical tape'. It is also the case of the noticee that it is enough if the goods are capable of being used as Ostomy Products/Appliances to claim the benefit of notification and that there is no condition that the imported goods are to be used as ostomy appliances only.

28. DRI, on the other hand, has shown that there is a product which is called "Skin Barriers Micropore Surgical Tapes" as shown in RUD No.12 which refers to Medex Supply product "HOL-3723 Cut-to-fit Flex wear Flat Skin Barrier, Porous Paper Tape, 2-1/4"", manufactured by M/s. Hollister. It is also seen that M/s. Coloplast also make another similar product, the details of which are given in RUD 13 "Brand/Description: “Closed Cut-to-fit – Non Convex, Transparent 5/8-2 3/8” (15-60MM) w/Curagard Barrier 8 long 600 ml latex free. Flexible Skin Barrier and tear-proof microporous tape for double security w/filter for odor control, soft backing for comfort, order proof film". Further, it is observed from various patents detailed in the SCH that medical requirement of protecting the peristomal region from right around the stoma to the nearby surrounding skin from stomal exudates has been addressed by the products with pre-attached adhesive microporous tapes with the pouches/bags. In response, the noticee has contended that the new invention which is claimed by the manufacturer as capable of acting both as skin barrier and as porous paper tape and the claim that it protects peristomal skin does not mean that the adhesive tapes need not be used for securing the pouch. They have also stated that there is no evidence that whole world of ostomates have stopped using other products or that the earlier products have lost their relevance and use. I find that there is a contradiction inherent in the submission of the noticee-tape' and on the other hand it is their contention that even if it is a new invention, it does not mean that the earlier products have lost their usage/relevance. Further, the patent applied for the so called new product dates back to 1997 and was, therefore, in existence for about 10 years before the imports in question. In view of this, I am unable to agree with the noticee that the description in notification is a typographical error and that the notification is, therefore, available to 'skin barriers' and 'surgical tapes' as two distinct goods.

20. We find that the SCN establishes the existence of a product known as "Skin Barriers Micropore Surgical Tapes". The learned authorised representative has demonstrated both the items and presented the pictorial representations of the same. He avers that MICROPORE is a paper based tape, whereas Transpore is a Polymer based tape with micro porous properties which allows the tape to breathe; but do not act as Skin Barriers; it is only when combined with Skin Barriers that such tapes would fall within the ambit of the entry in the Exemption Notification. He also submits that while Micropore Tapes might have been developed by the Appellant, their primary use or application is to act as adhesive tapes; being hypoallergenic (less prone for allergic reactions) and causing no painful peeling off sensation like the earlier cloth based tapes, the products are marketed and are being practically used for these purposes of holding bandages/dressings and tubes or even the colostomy bags as an additional reinforcement or affixation aid. He submits that the tapes which are imported by appellants can easily come off and cannot act as skin barriers. We find that there is visible and perceptible difference between the items as shown below.

(i). Items imported by the appellants are as follows.
(ii). the items demonstrated by AR are as follows

Skin Barrier- Micropore Tapes

21. We find that the department has established that a product named and known as “Skin Barriers Micropore Surgical Tapes” exists. We find that evidence of the same has been supplied as RUD to the appellants. Under such circumstances, we find that the appellants contention that no product known as “Skin Barriers Micropore Surgical Tapes” exists and there should have been a comma (,) in between doesn’t hold water. When such products are sold and used as such, it cannot be inferred that the notification was wrongly worded and therefore, it is to be interpreted to mean Skin Barriers, Micropore Surgical Tapes is not acceptable.

22. We find that the impugned order has discussed the issue. Learned Commissioner observes that

29. I find that even if there were to be a comma missing in the description “Skin Barriers Micropore Surgical Tapes”, it is not open to me to supply the same. In the case of The Commissioner of Sales Tax, Uttar Pradesh Vs. M/s. Parson Tools and Plants, Kanpur [(1975) 4 SCC 22], the Hon’ble Supreme Court has held as under:

"Even if there is a casus omissus in a statute, the language of which is otherwise plain and unambiguous, the Court is not competent to supply the omission by engrafting on it or introducing in it..."

In this regard, the judgement of Hon’ble High Court of Guwahati in the case of Sankar Tea Co. Ltd. and Others Vs. Collector of Central Excise, Shillong and others [1985 (21) ELT 679 (Guwahati)] also provides useful guidance. In the said case, the Hon’ble Court was dealing with the issue of rate of Central Excise duty chargeable on the tea produced in District of Dibrugarh in the State of Assam. Briefly stated, the Central Government by a notification dated 1.5.1970 divided the tea growing areas into Zones and fixed the rate of duty on tea produced in the said areas. At the relevant time, Dibrugarh was a sub-division in the District of Lakhimpur in Zone V. As per notification dated 22.9.1971, the Assam Government made the sub-division of Dibrugarh as a separate district with effect from 2.10.1971. Subsequently, the Central Government by superseding the earlier notification of 1970, made several zones in place of 5 Zones by a notification dated 5.11.1981 but the District of Dibrugarh was not shown separately. This was done subsequently by a notification dated 28.01.1982. The issue before the Hon’ble High Court was whether the duty should be charged on the Tea produced in District of Dibrugarh during 5.11.1981 to 28.1.1982, as per rated applicable in the Zone V, viz., District of Lakhimpur or residuary Zone VII. In this contest, the Hon’ble Court examined the issue whether there was an omission to include the word Dibrugarh in the Central Government notification of 5.11.1981 and whether the omission could be supplied. The Hon’ble High Court held as under:

"The basic rule is that the Court should not take upon itself to supply the omission as this is to assume the function of legislature. This is not a case, where the Court is entitled to rewrite the notification. The language of Notification being plain and unambiguous, it is not open to read into it a word which is not there based on a prior reasoning as to the probable intention of the notification. In a Court of Law, what is unexpressed has the same value as which is unintended. This is a Rule of construction. It is the duty of the Court to give without engrafting, adding or implying anything which is not congenial to or consistent with such express intent of the law giver. More so, it a Statute is a taxing Statute. It must be assumed that the Rule making authorities do no commit mistake or make any omission. (Emphasis supplied). Therefore, the contention of the Respondent to supply the word 'Dibrugarh' in the Notification of 1981 is not permissible."

In the present case, as already held, there is no omission in the notification as the products corresponding to generic description "Skin Barriers Micropore Surgical Tapes" exist. Even if it were to be so, such omission could not have been supplied in accordance with the law settled as above".

23. We find that in view of the above, there is no ambiguity in the notification and there is no need to interpret the notification by supplying what is assumed to be missing in the notification. We find that Hon’ble Apex Court has held in Dilip Kumar & Company 2018 (361) ELT 577 (SC) that

22. At the outset, we must clarify the position of 'plain meaning rule or clear and unambiguous rule' with respect of tax law. The plain meaning rule suggests that when the language in the statute is plain and unambiguous, the Court has to read and understand the plain language as such and there is no scope for any interpretation. This salutary maxim flows from the phrase "cum inverbisnullaambiguitasest, non debetadmittivoluntatisquaestio". Following such maxim, the Courts sometimes have made strict interpretation subordinate to the plain meaning rule [Mangalore Chemicals case (Infra para 37).], though strict interpretation is used in the precise sense. To say that strict interpretation involves plain reading of the statute and to say that one has to utilize strict interpretation in the event of ambiguity is self-contradictory. In view of the above, we find that the impugned order is correct as far as it holds that the items imported by the appellants are not eligible for the exemption contained in the notification No.21/2002-Cus dated 01.03.2002. The appellants argue that another part of the notification mentions 'bag closing clamps karaya seals paste or powder' whereas no such products are available and therefore, it need to be understood that notification misses out on certain symbols like(,). We find that as the items described therein are not under discussion, we need not turn our attention to the same.

24. The appellants have argued that alternatively, the impugned items are eligible for exemption as they are covered by the other part of the list under ‘Ostomy products (Appliances) for managing Colostomy, Ileostomy, Ureterostomy, Ileal Conduit Urostomy Stoma cases such as bags, belts, adhesives seals or discs or rolls adhesive remover; we find that the impugned goods cannot be called appliances by any stretch of imagination. We will go in to find the meaning of appliance. Merriam Webster dictionary defines appliance as (https://www.merriam-webster.com/dictionary/appliance)

1: an act of applying
2. a: a piece of equipment for adapting a tool or machine to a special purpose: attachment b: an instrument or device designed for a particular use or function an orthodontic appliance specifically: a household or office device (such as a stove, fan, or refrigerator) operated by gas or electric current c: British: fire engine
d: an artificial part or mask that is worn as part of an actor’s makeup or costume … more grown-ups are shelling out for scary facial appliances—wounds, snouts and horns—to create the creepy characters they’ve dreamed up on their own.—Dana Coffield
A growing number of companies are coming up with ways [in 2000] to turn ordinary phones into Internet appliances.— Sharon Cleary Cambridge dictionary defines appliances as follows (https://dictionary.cambridge.org/dictionary/english/appliance) a device, machine, or piece of equipment, especially an electrical one that is used in the house, such as a cooker or washing machine: Going by the above definition or any other definition one can find that the meaning attached with an appliance is closer to equipment. Therefore, we are not inclined to accept the contention of the appellants. The impugned goods at best can be held to be disposables used in surgery or other medical procedures.

25. Learned counsel for the appellants also argued that the Notification also provided, at SI. No. Sl. No. 363 A, exemption to Life Saving Equipment subject to production of a certificate from DGHS to the effect that the imported goods are lifesaving medical equipment; he submitted that the appellants have produced such certificates and have a right to claim the same even though the same was not claimed at the time of filing bills of entry. We find that per contra the learned Authorised Representative submits that the certificates from DGHS submitted by the appellant in support of their claim, are certificates which have been issued under Notification 208/81 and would have no relevance to the Notification 21/2002-Cus Sl. No. 363 A and the claim has to be considered only as per the current notification as the requisite certification by DGHS under the current Notification is not produced. We find that the certificates are issued in 1990s and have no mention of the impugned imports.

26. The appellants have relied upon the decision of coordinate bench, at Chennai in the case of Sutures India Pvt Ltd (Supra), stating that the tribunal has gone into the imports of similar products and decided that the applicability of notification has been decided in appellants favour. Per contra, the Learned Authorised Representative submits that the coordinate Bench has arrived at the said decision on the premise that the said goods and other items like adhesive seals, adhesive remover, skin gels are items used for general purposes but find use also in ostomy procedures; there is no end use condition/exclusive use condition that such products need to be used only for ostomy applications; it is enough if the impugned goods are capable of being used in relation to ostomy procedure; department has not been able to show any product which fits into the category of surgical tapes meant for Ostomy only. He further distinguishes the decision of the coordinate Bench stating that the Bench did not consider the fact that the item eligible for the benefit is a combination product of Skin Barrier Micropore Surgical Tape which combines the dual properties of preventing the seepage of the ostomy discharge onto the surrounding skin thus preventing harm to the skin as well as having the microporous breathing characteristics; it was not convincingly demonstrated before the Chennai bench that a product having dual use and fitting the description as mentioned in the Notification exists and thus, the Bench arrived at the conclusion that such product known as 'Skin Barrier Micropore Surgical Tape' do not exist. On the basis of the facts and circumstances of the present case and as demonstrated before us, we find that products known as 'Skin Barrier Micropore Surgical Tape' exist and that the impugned goods do not match the description given in the notification so as to be eligible for the exemption. While we are in agreement with the coordinate bench that there is no specific mention in the Notification that Skin Barrier Micropore Surgical Tapes have to be exclusively used for ostomy procedures and it is enough if they are capable of being used, we find that to be eligible for exemption the impugned goods need to match the description as given in the notification and only then the question of their actual use or capability of being used would come into play. We also find in the instant case that the department could produce evidence to show that products known as "Skin Barriers Micropore Surgical Tapes" exist. We find in our considered opinion that the real issue is whether the impugned goods can be categorised as "Skin Barriers Micropore Surgical Tapes" to be eligible to the exemption. As per our discussion above, the distinction between the impugned products and the items eligible for exemption has been clearly established. It was also established that products which can be described as "Skin Barriers Micropore Surgical Tapes" exist. Therefore, having considered the facts of the case, we find that the department could satisfactorily demonstrate the twin points that the impugned goods do not satisfy the description given in the Notification and that the products mentioned in the Notification exist in reality. We find that there is no ambiguity as far as the description of the items in the notification and that the impugned goods do not satisfy such description so as to be eligible for exemption. As the wordings of the notification give meaning which is not ambiguous, we find that the Apex Court’s judgment in Dilip Kumar case (supra) is binding and needs to be followed.

27. We also find that Apex Court in the case of Srikumar Agencies Civil Appeal Nos. 4872-4892 of 2000, decided on 27-11-2008 observed that

5. Circumstantial flexibility, one additional or different fact may make a world of difference between conclusions in two cases. Disposal of cases by blindly placing reliance on a decision is not proper.

The following words of Lord Denning in the matter of applying precedents have become locus classicus:

"Each case depends on its own facts and a close similarity between one case and another is not enough because even a single significant detail may alter the entire aspect, in deciding such cases, one should avoid the temptation to decide cases (as said by Cordozo) by matching the colour of one case against the colour of another. To decide therefore, on which side of the line a case falls, the broad resemblance to another case is not at all decisive."

*** *** ***

"Precedent should be followed only so far as it marks the path of justice, but you must cut the dead wood and trim off the side branches else you will find yourself lost in thickets and branches. My plea is to keep the path to justice clear of obstructions which could impede it."

28. We also find that Hon’ble Apex Court has held, in the case of Swaraj Mazda Ltd 1995 (77) ELT 505 (SC) that the Tribunal is not precluded from deciding the question on merits because of its earlier decision regarding the earlier period. This judgment was followed by coordinate bench in the case of A.B. Mauri India Pvt Ltd 2010 (260) ELT 424 (T).

29. Coming to the issue of limitation, we find that learned counsel for the appellants submits that Show Cause Notice is issued on 30.09.2011 demanding duty for the period October 2006 to February 2010; they have described the products clearly showing various applications for general purpose and for securing ostomy pouches/devices/appliances etc; over the past several years the consignments have been subjected to physical examination by officers of the customs department before allowing clearances of the same; no objection whatsoever had been raised the claim of subject exemption under Notification No.21/2002-Cus at any time in the past. On the other hand learned Authorised Representative submits that the goods have mostly been cleared under the Self-Assessment procedure. We find merit in the contention of the learned Counsel. The fact that the appellants are importing from a long period is not disputed. It is not the case of the department that all the consignments were cleared under self-assessment procedure. It is not the contention of the Revenue that the impugned products were not subjected to examination or assessment any time. Moreover, the decision in the case of Sutures India Pvt Ltd (Supra) is sufficient to believe that the appellants had a bona fide belief about the availability of exemption. Therefore, we are of the considered opinion that the extended period is not invokable and penalties are not imposable.
30. In the result, appeal C/25625/2013 is partly allowed confirming demand of duty for normal period only and by setting aside penalties. Appeal Nos. C/25676/2013 & C/25677/2013 are allowed.

Per: P Anjani Kumar:

Brief facts of the case are that the appellants imported Squalene 80% under Advance Authorisation on 6-3-2018, with a pre-condition to Export Squalene 99% within a period of 18 months. Appellants claim that Squalene is used for manufacturing medicines especially in cancer treatment as a supplementary drug for increasing the efficiency of the Chemotherapy drug and to reduce the side effects and toxicity of the Chemo drugs. On a reference made by Customs as to whether the goods fall under the Category of Fats & Oils, Central Institute of Fisheries Technology (CIFT), vide their Test Certificate dated 6/4/2018, opined that the Consignment has to be classified under HS code 15042090, as against declared classification of 29012990. The consignment was seized by Customs and original Show Cause Notice was issued and confirmed by the Commissioner vide OIO dated 24-7-2018, where in the impugned goods were confiscated for violation of conditions of Exim Policy. On an appeal preferred by the appellants, CESTAT, vide Final Order No.21933-21934/2018 dated 27/12/2018, remanded the issue back to the adjudicating authority for getting the goods retested at an institution having expertise in oceanography. However, on a similar order passed in respect of similarly placed importer i.e., M/s. Asha Biochem, department has filed a ROM in appeal No. C/21347/2018-DB. This Bench vide Final Order No.21933-21934/201 dated 27/12/2018 has accepted the ROM and modified the order to get the test undertaken at such institution that has expertise. As no institute was available for testing the goods, as per oceanographic parameters, the samples were again sent to CIFT who re-confirmed the test results indicated by them earlier. Customs Department in order to re-confirm the findings, of CIFT, sent the samples to Customs House Laboratory, an NABL accredited laboratory, who also confirmed the findings of the CIFT. Consequently, Commissioner passed the OIO 09/2019-20 dated 23/7/2019, in de novo confirming the classification of imported goods under CTH 1504 2090. Hence, this appeal No. 20876/2019.
2. Learned counsel for the appellants submits that Squalene is Hydro Carbon, an Organic Compound, containing carbon and Hydrogen only. The chemical definition is C301450 with CAS No. 111-02-04. It belongs to a class of Organic Compounds called acyclic unsaturated hydrocarbons as per Journal of Squalene. Classifying Goods under Chapter 29, 14S Code 29012990, the following test needs to be satisfied

a. It has to be an Organic Compound

b. It must require a separate chemical definition whether or not containing impurities.

c. It has to be a Hydro Carbon

d. It has to be Acyclic

e. It has to be unsaturated Being an Organic Compound, across the world, Squalene is traded under tariff HS code 29012990. He produced Exim data of Squalene and Tariff Classification by US national Commodity.

3. Learned counsel submits that HS code 15042090, deals with Fats and Oils (Journal on Fats & Oils) and their fractions, of fish other than liver oils. This HS code exclusively deals with crude Fats and Oils, which means the percentage of Fat, would be more than 90% and Oil must be in crude nature. On a perusal of HS code 2901 2990, it can be noticed that it deals with separate chemically defined acyclic hydrocarbon unsaturated. So to classify under HS Code 29012990 the Cargo needs to be a Hydro Carbon having high purity.

4. Learned counsel also submits that CESTAT vide order dated 24-7-2018, observed that the classification claimed by the Appellant is not contradicted so far and therefore the onus of disproving the same is on the Customs; Customs conceded that there is no dispute over the applicability of the claimed heading to the goods emerging for export; as per Advance authorization, the Appellant is required to Export is Squalene 99% and for the same Customs conceded that the required classification is 29012990; dominance of “Squalene” in the cargo imported is found beyond doubt; Department failed to prove conclusively the coverage under the heading they proposed; Since the Department failed to substantiate their claim, the heading/chapter proposed by the Importer/Appellant has to be allowed; Since the expiry date of the Cargo has not elapsed, the Department is allowed to have an analysis to find out whether the cargo is sourced from the marine origin; Appellant is at liberty to obtain a clarification from the licensing authorities of the eligibility to import Squalene oil even if of marine origin.

5. Learned counsel also submits that Customs issued a letter dated 15-3-2019 stating that they are unable to find any Institutions to do the required analysis. Container Freight Station (CFS) where the Customs detained the Cargo, vide letter dated 8-4-2019, reported that they were going to close down the unit and therefore the Appellant was directed to remove the Cargo without further delay. Customs notified the appellant on 28-5-2019 that they had conducted the analysis. In the said report, it is clearly indicated that the unsaponifiable matter in the impugned goods is 85.82%; Bureau of Indian Standards stipulates that for fish oil the Saponification value has to be in between 185-200 and the percentage of unsaponifiable matter percentage has to be 4%. From this, it is revealed that the Cargo is not Marine oil and it does not have the characteristics of the same.

6. Learned counsel also submits that the Appellant preferred Writ Petition No. 16986/2019 for compliance of Hon’ble Tribunal Order. Hon’ble High Court, vide interim order dated 15-7-2019, directed the Customs to pass an order within 3 days. Commissioner passed the impugned order on 23-7-2019. Commissioner passed the very same order which was already been interfered with by this Tribunal. High Court, vide order 1-8-2019, disposed of the Writ Petition, directing the DGFT to pass an order on the Application submitted by the Appellant and relegated the Appellant to approach this Tribunal challenging the Order of the Commissioner. DGFT passed an order on 5-9-2019, specifying that Squalene Oil derived from any source needs to be classified under HS Code 2901.

7. Learned counsel further submits that Chapter 15 deals with Animal or Vegetable Fats and Oils and their Cleavage Products. Squalene being a Hydro Carbon cannot be classified under the said chapter. The Cargo imported is 82% Squalene which means the predominant elements available are only carbon and Hydrogen; therefore it cannot be classified under the heads of Oils and fats. As per the present analysis, it is reconfirmed that the Cargo is not oil and the parameters do not match with the requirements of oil and are matching with that of Squalene only. It can also be revealed by Indian Standards for fish oil the percentage of unsaponifiable has to be only 4% whereas in the present analysis it can be noticed that the same is 85.82% which itself categorically confirmed that the same is not Oil. Learned counsel submits that in view of the above, the impugned order may be set aside.

8. Learned Authorised Representative, appearing for the revenue, reiterates the findings of OIO and submits that the Letter, from DGFT dated 5/9/2019, submitted by the appellants during hearing, was addressed to M/s Asha Biochem (not the appellant). DGFT clarification about the HS code of Squalene is not supported with any technical or legal grounds. Further, it contradicts appellant’s claim that the imported item is not “oil”, as the said letter itself mentions the item as “Squalene oil”. The classification arrived by Customs department is based on the physical examination of the product at the time of import and subsequent test report issued by a Government approved accredite laboratory viz. CIFT (Central Institute of Fisheries Technology), Cochin.

9. Learned Authorised Representative submits that the importer has declared the goods as “Acyclic Hydrocarbon Unsaturated Squalene 80%” and classified the same under CTH 2901 29 90 while filing import documents (under Advance Authorisation License); when the goods were examined by officers of Customs, in the presence of Customs brokers, it was observed that the content is light yellow liquid, of bad fishy smell packed in metal drums; samples were drawn from the consignment and sent to the CIFT (Central Institute of Fisheries Technology), Cochin, who vide Certificate dated 6/4/2018, stated that the oil received for inspection falls under the category of “Fats and Oil and their fractions, of fish or marine mammals, whether or not refined, but not chemically modified”; based on the said test report, the goods under import were held to be classifiable under CTH 1504 20 90; However, when the importer did not agree with the said test report, a reference was made again to CIFT, who vide letter dated 4/5/2018, clarified that the sample analysis was done using Perkin Elmer Gas chromatograph FID equipped with a column specific for the analysis of fatty acids and hydrocarbons present in oils.

10. Learned Authorised Representative submits that consequent to CESTAT, vide final Order, No.21933-21934/2018 dated 27/12/2018, directed for re-testing the item in an institution having expertise in oceanography; as no institute was available for testing the goods as per oceanographic parameters, the samples were sent again to CIFT, who confirmed the test results indicated by them earlier; the said report was reconfirmed by Customs laboratory; Consequently, the impugned order was passed classifying the of imported goods under CTH 1504 2090; Commissioner gave valid reasons for the same at Paras 25 and 26.

11. Learned Authorised Representative submits that in terms of ITC (HS), 2017 SCHEDULE 1 – Import Policy the goods falling under Exim Code (corresponding to CTH) 1504 20 90 are categorised under “prohibited” goods for import. Notes to ITC (HS), 2017 Schedule -1, Import policy, in respect of Chapter 29 (Organic chemicals), at para 2 (a) specify that the Chapter does not cover Goods of heading 1504 or crude glycerol of heading 1520; Therefore, under Heading 29, there is a specific exclusion of goods covered under heading 1504; hence it appears that the appellant’s attempt to classify the goods of heading 1504 under chapter 2 is just to avoid the prohibition clause specified in the import policy. As per Para 4.18 of Foreign Trade Policy 2015-20, no export or import of an item shall be allowed under Advance Authorisation / DFIA if the item is prohibited for exports or imports respectively. DGFT, vide Policy Circular No. 22 (RE-2008)/2004-2009 dated 18th July'2008, clarified to the effect that the ITC HS code indicated in DGFT license or any correspondence is always subject to the outcome of the examination of cargo/shipping documents by the proper officers of Customs department. Hence, Customs department is the final authority to decide on the classification of imported goods.

12. Learned Authorised Representative submits that since the CIFT and Customs Laboratory, which are an accredited lab recognised by Government, confirmed the reports, the report will have to form the basis for determination of classification of imported goods as held in

(i) CCE vs. BHEL reported vide 2018(10) GSTL 3 (SC)

(ii) SKOL Breweries Ltd vs. CCE, Mumbai-II: 2017 (7) GSTL 102 (Tri-Mumbai)

13. Heard both sides and perused the records of the case. The dispute that requires to be resolved in the instant case is the classification of squalene imported by the appellants whether under CTSH 15042090 (as claimed by the Department) or CTSH 29012990 (as claimed by the appellants). A look at the competing headings would throw some light on the issue. Chapter 15 of the Customs Tariff deals with animal or vegetable fats and oils and their cleavage products; prepared edible fats; animal or vegetable waxes. Heading 150420 is as follows:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>1504</th>
<th>FATS AND OILS AND THEIR FRACTIONS, OF FIST OR MARINE MAMMALS, WHETHER OR NOT REFINED, BUT NOT CHEMICALLY MODIFIED</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>1504 10</td>
<td>- Fish liver oils and their fractions</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1504 10 10</td>
<td>--- Cod liver oil --- Other</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1504 10 91</td>
<td>--- Squid liver oil</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1504 10 99</td>
<td>--- Other</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1504 20</td>
<td>- Fats and oils and their fractions of fish, other than liver oils</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1504 20 10</td>
<td>--- Fish body oil</td>

<tr>
<td>1504 20 20</td>
<td>--- Fish lipid oil</td>

<tr>

<td>--- Other</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1504 30 00</td>
<td>- Fats and oils and their fractions, of marine mammals</td>
</tr>
</tbody>

As per ITC (HS), 2017 SCHEDULE 1 – IMPORT POLICY the goods falling under Exim Code (corresponding to CTH) 1504 20 90 are categorised under “prohibited” goods for import.

13.1. Chapter 29 of Customs Tariff covers organic chemicals; Note 1 (a) to the Chapter envisages that except where the context otherwise requires, the headings of this chapter applies only to (a) separate chemically refined organic compounds, whether or not containing impurities. Heading 2901 covers goods as follows:

<thead>
<tr>
<th>2901</th>
<th>I.-HYDROCARBONS AND THEIR HALOGENATED, SULPHONATED, NITRATED OR NITROSATED DERIVATIVES</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>2901 10 00</td>
<td>- saturated</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>- Unsaturated</td>
</tr>
</table>
As per Chapter Note 2 (a) goods of heading 1504 or crude glycerol of heading 1520 is not covered in this chapter. Ongoing through the relevant Notes under Chapter 29, it appears that Chapter covers organic chemicals. The appellants claimed classification under 29012990 as applicable to acyclic hydrocarbons.

14. Regarding the claim of the appellants that CESTAT vide Orders cited above has observed as follows:

"8. It cannot but be noticed that the classification claimed by the appellants under the heading of 'unsaturated acyclic hydrocarbon other than ethylene, propylene, butylene, butadiene, acetylene or heptene', is of too broad a spectrum to gain approval without reference to the General Interpretative Rules. It appears to have stemmed from the chapter title, molecular composition and the principle of dominating constituent. It is clear from rule 1 of General Interpretative Rules, which discards titles as irrelevant to classification that every organic chemical need not necessarily find placement in the said chapter unless in conformity with the appropriate heading and sub-heading. As the specific descriptions within the heading 'acyclic hydrocarbon', admittedly, do not find direct fitment for the imported goods, the dominance principle is resorted to by Learned Counsel for appellants. The dominance principle in rule of General Interpretative Rules applies appropriately to classification of mixtures and, in the light of assertion of Learned Counsel that the content, other than 'squalene', in the imported goods are impurities, the claim for application thereof is self-defeating. Even if the claim of the composition is to be considered on its own, the scheme of the First Schedule will have to be examined.

9. Other than with reference to specified headings or descriptions in note 1(e), which need not necessarily be chemically defined, and goods specifically excluded, the headings in chapter 29 of First Schedule to Customs Tariff Act, 1975 are intended for 'separately defined organic compounds', whether or not containing impurities. Correspondingly, there are contra exclusions of 'separately defined organic compounds' in other chapters implying that conflict of choice between a specific heading in another chapter and in this chapter, the goods are, inevitably, to be classified in chapter 29. On the other hand, notes in chapter 15 of First Schedule to Customs Tariff Act, 1975, which Revenue considers to be more apt, is devoid of such a restrictive condition. Hence, a conflict between a specific heading in chapter 15 and chapter 29 would be resolved by classifying under the more specific heading of the two. Therein lies the dilemma for the claim of the appellant for coverage is under a residual entry that is handicapped thus”

15. Going by the above order of CESTAT, the conflict between a specific heading in Chapter 15 and Chapter 29 would be resolved by classifying the same under more specific heading of the two. We find that Learned AR for the Revenue contends that in view of the specific exclusion of goods under heading 1504, the goods cannot be classified under Chapter 29. To arrive at a proper classification of the goods, one needs to consider the characteristics of the product; technical literature available with the product and the test reports.

15.1 Learned Commissioner has observed in his OIO that the Product Data Sheet available in the Importer’s website i.e. arbeefishoil.com shows that the importers were pioneer in the business of fish oil; squalene is one of their products and that the source of squalene was deep sea Shark liver oil. The chemical reports issued by CIFT and Customs Laboratory indicated the impugned product to be of marine origin. It is also confirmed by CIFT that the sample analysis was done using Perkin Elmer Gas Chromatograph FID equipped with a column specific for the analysis of fatty acids and hydrocarbons in oils. Therefore, it was confirmed that the sample was of marine origin and rich in Squalene. We find that whereas heading 1504 covers fats and oils of fish or marine mammals 2901 covers acyclic hydrocarbons. We find that 2901 refers to saturated and unsaturated acyclic hydrocarbons like ethylene, propene, butene, acetylene, heptane etc. which are organic compounds. Going by the literature available and the chemical reports, the impugned products is of marine origin and therefore can appropriately be classified under 1504 rather than 2901.

15.2 The appellants have taken a plea that their product contains unsaponifiable matter in the range of 85% and therefore, it cannot be classified under 1504 as oil. The Learned Adjudicating Authority observed that the dispute is about the classification and origin of goods that are imported and not export goods. CIFT reported that the impugned goods fish oil rich in Squalene and therefore, goods cannot be considered as Squalene. We find that there is no reference to the percentage of unsaponifiable matter with respect to the classification under heading 1504. Even going by the principles of ‘ejusdem generis’ or ‘Noscitur a sociis’, the impugned goods being of animal origin are rightly classifiable under Chapter 1504.

16. It has been also pointed out that the classification of the goods should not be based on the test reports. Though, we accept this in principle, we find that the test reports give a fair idea of the nature and characteristics of the product. In the instant case, CIFT and Customs Laboratories have reported that the impugned product is fish oil. Therefore, we find that it cannot be classified under Chapter 2901 as saturated or unsaturated acyclic hydrocarbons along with ethylene, propene, butene, acetylene, heptene etc. It is of a great common sense that any organic matter would contain hydrocarbons and for that very reason, it cannot be classified under the heading applicable to hydrocarbons. If such an approach is taken entire Customs Tariff as far as it deals with living beings, goods or plant or animal origin would become redundant. Moreover, there is no reason as to why a report given by a professional institute such as CIFT and accredited laboratory such as Customs Laboratory. We find that the learned Adjudicating Authority has relied upon the case of SKOL Breweries Ltd. 2017 (7) GSTL 102 (Tri. Mum) wherein it was held that expert opinion of independent body regarding the nature of the goods cannot be ignored. Therefore, we find that the report given by CIFT and Customs Laboratory cannot be ignored. The importers, on the other hand, did not produce any test report in their favour.

17. The importers argued that DGFT vide Letter dated 05.09.2019 addressed to M/s. Asha Biochem have clarified that the matter has been examined and it is informed that Squalene oil derived from any origin falls under HS Code 2901. The Learned Authorized Representative argues that DGFT vide Policy Circular No. 22(RE-2008)/2004-2009 dated 18th July 2008 clarified that during examination of cargo/shipping documents, Customs can determine the correct ITC (HS) code number of the items of the import and allow clearance of assessment or ask the importer to get the ITS (HS) code number corrected from the concerned regional authority of DGFT. We find that classification of imported goods is the prerogative of the assessing officer or say Customs who are duty-bound to arrive at the correct classification of the goods depending on the Customs Tariff Act and the HSN. The same has been held in Phoenix International Ltd. vs. CC, Nhava Sheva: 1999 (114) ELT 500 (Tribunal). Tribunal observed that "In the matters of classification, it should not be doubted that the last word is with the Customs. This preposition is well set out in the Delhi High Court judgment in the case of Export Apparels Products Ltd. vs. UOI: 1997 (91) ELT 307." We find that in the case of Exports Apparel Group Ltd. vs. UOI: 1997 (91) ELT 307 (Del.), the Tribunal held that "After examining all these provisions, we are of the view that the stand taken by the repondents is correct. It is for the Customs Authorities to examine if the goods had been imported in terms of the licence, and what duty of Customs, if any, is leviable thereon. If aggrieved, the petitioner has remedy under the Act by way of appeal. In this view of the matter also, we do not wish to go into the merit of the controversy as any observation made by us may prejudice the case of either of the parties. We will, therefore, dismiss the petition." In view of the above, we find that the clarification issued by DGFT is of no consequence. Moreover, in the present issue, the clarification is not even issued in the case of the appellants.

18. We also find that the appellants have taken the plea that they have been importing the impugned products over the years and the classification of the same was being accepted by the Customs authorities.
We find that there is no estoppel in revenue matters and Customs are not bound by any contradiction taken in the past owing to different set of circumstances and facts of the case. More so, as observed by this Tribunal in the order referred to above, it behooves the administration of India, as a responsible constituent of the polity of nations comprising of responsible humanity, not to be a willing accessory in the reprehensible slaughter of endangered species. In the context of this prohibition, the geographical origin, or the ultimate destination, of the goods is not relevant; irrespective of the source and consumption, the taint of inhumanity, and so promulgated by law, should not be allowed stain the public record of the country. Neither can the precedence of the past justify the continuance of a statutorily criminalized deed. We find, however, that based on the submissions of established practice penalty cannot be imposed just because Customs authorities have taken steps to correct the classification.
During the course of arguments, learned counsel for the appellants, have requested that in case it is held that the goods are not permissible to be imported, the same may be allowed to be re-exported. We find that such a request needs to be made before the proper authority who will take a decision in accordance with law and facts of the case.

19. In view of the above, the appeal is allowed to the extent of setting aside the penalty. The impugned order is upheld in all other respects.

FINAL ORDER NOS. 20969-20972/2019

Per: P Anjani Kumar:

DGFT vide Notification No 39 (RE-2007) /2004-2009 dated 16-10-2007 imposed a condition to the effect that import of palm oil and its fractions, whether or not refined, but not chemically modified, would not be imported at the port of Cochin. The appellants challenged the constitutional validity of the Notification before Hon’ble High Court of Kerala; vide Writ Petition No 31397/2007. Hon’ble High Court vide interim order dated 25-10-2007 stayed the operation of the Notification; vide order dated 20-11-2007, permitted the discharge of one consignment of appellant at Cochin Port. And vide order dated 01-12-2007 ordered that the benefit of order 25-10-2007 would be available to all vessels from which cargo was being discharged on or before 20-11-2007. Hon’ble High Court However, dismissed the writ petition vide order dated 15-2-2008. Meanwhile, one of the appellants, M/s Parisons Agrotech imported 2999.804 MT of RBD palmolein, which house warehoused under 3 bills of entry and cleared provisionally later under various ex-bond bills of entry. The other appellant M/s Parisons Foods P Ltd imported 1000 MT of BD Palmolein and 2969.522 MT of crude palm oil, warehoused the same and later cleared provisionally under various ex-bond bills of entry. The appellants were issued Show Cause Notices dated 17-12-2008 and 6-11-2008 respectively seeking to confiscate the imported cargo under section 111(d) of the Customs Act, 1962 and seeking to impose penalty under Section 112(a) ibid. Commissioner of Customs, Cochin vide order No 41/2009 dated 27-03-2009 and 42/2009 dated 3.4.2009. Commissioner has imposed a penalty of Rs 1.40 Cr and 1.75 Cr respectively on the appellants. However, the Commissioner has not imposed any fine in lieu of confiscation on the grounds that the goods were not physically available for confiscation. M/s Parisons Agrotech, vide appeal C/452/2007 and M/s Parisons Foods P Ltd, vide appeal C/453/2007, are against the imposition of penalty under Section 112(a) of Customs Act, 1962. Revenue are in appeal, vide appeals C/446/2007 and C/447/2007, against non-imposition of fine in lieu of confiscation.

2. The learned counsel for appellants submits that the imports were effected when the stay granted by Hon’ble High Court of Kerala was in operation; the Notification was not in force; further the High Court has specifically permitted the appellants to discharge cargo; as long as the stay was in operation it cannot be deemed the appellants have imported in contravention of any prohibition; penalty should be used for deterrence but not for retribution. He submits that the appellants have entered into agreements with buyers prior to the coming in force of the prohibition. The goods were originally procured by the sister concerns like M/s Parisons Roller Flour Mills Pvt Ltd, M/s Parisons Exports Inc and M/s Parisons Estates and Industries Pvt Ltd. Before sale of goods to the appellants, the sale of goods was an issue between their sister concerns and M/s Intercontinental Oils & Fats Ltd and M/s Adani Wilmar Trading Pvt Ltd. All the contacts being in transition period before the prohibition came into effect; the appellants cannot be accused of contravention of any provisions. As per Exim Policy, Paragraph 1.5, import of goods which are ‘free’ is subsequently changed to ‘Prohibited’ or ‘Restricted’, the cases where the import has already commenced would be considered to be ‘free’; evidence of commencement would be ascertained by evidence such as opening of irrevocable letter of credit. In the instant case, facts go on to suggest that the import had already commenced and thus consignments are saved by the provisions of Para 1.5 of FTP. Learned Counsel submits that the bona fide conduct of the importer needs to be considered before imposing penalty under Section 112 of the Customs Act; when goods are freely importable no confiscation and penalty are justified. He relies upon the following cases.

(i). the order of Kerala High Court in WP 31397/2007 filed by the appellants and affirmation of the same by Apex Court (2015) 9 SCC 657
(ii). M/s Beopar Sahayak (P) Ltd Vs Vishwanath & Others (1987) 3 SCC 693
(iii). O.T.Enasu Vs UOI 2012(27) STR 206 (Ker)
(iii). 1990 (47) ELT 213 (SC)
(iv). Akbar Badruddin Jiwani Vs CC 1990(47) ELT 161 (SC)

3. Learned Commissioner AR, appearing on behalf of Revenue presented a detailed argument and submitted that under the legal background, the impugned goods were provisionally cleared through Cochin Port with the support of Bond executed by the Appellants. As the Hon’ble High Court dismissed the Writ petition of the Appellants on 15.02.2008, Department initiated action to confiscate the impugned goods and Adjudicating Authority imposed penalties on the importers after observing the Principles of Natural justice. The claim of the appellants is that Hon’ble High Court of Kerala issued Interim Stay Order (with modification & clarification) dated 25.10.2007, 20.11.2007 & 01.12.2007 and as such the Notification would be deemed to be not in operation during the relevant period and that when the Stay was in force, it cannot be stated that the imports made by them were contrary to the prohibition imposed under Customs Act, 1962. He submits that in case the Hon’ble High Court quashed the DGFT Notification, Appellants can very well claim that the DGFT Notification is not in force; when the impugned Notification is Stayed by issuing “Interim Stay Order”, it only meant that “due actions to be taken”, under Sections 111(d), 125, 112(a) under Customs Act, 1962, are only suspended/withheld temporarily till the core issue in the Writ is decided on merit. He submits that stay of operation of any Notification does not wipe out the very existence such statutory Notification; Hon’ble Supreme Court in the case of Shree Chamundi Mopeds Ltd Vs Church of South India Trust Association, Madras 1992 (3) S.C.C.1, held that

"While considering the effect of an interim order staying the operation of the order under challenge, a distinction has to be made between quashing of an order and stay of operation of an order. Quashing of an order results in the restoration of the position as it stood on the date of the passing of the order which has been quashed. The stay of operation of an order does not, however, lead to such a result. It only means that the order which has been stayed would not be operative from the date of the passing of the stay order and it does not mean that the said order has been wiped out from existence."

3.1. He further submits that Hon’ble Apex Court, in the case of Indian Council for Enviro-Legal Action V UOI (2011) 8 SCC 161, summarised (in para 223) the legal position on undeserved advantage by observing that "The other aspect which has been dealt with in great details is to neutralize any unjust enrichment and undeserved gain made by the litigants. While adjudicating, the courts must keep the following principles in view.

1. It is the bounden duty and obligation of the court to neutralize any unjust enrichment and undeserved gain made by any party by invoking the jurisdiction of the court.

2. When a party applies and gets a stay or injunction from the court, it is always at the risk and responsibility of the party applying. An order of stay cannot be presumed to be conferment of additional right upon the litigating party."

3.2. He also submits that Hon’ble Apex Court in the case of Kalabharati Advertising Vs Hemant Vimalnath Narichania & others (2010) 9 SCC 437, observed (Para 15) as under:

"No litigant can derive any benefit from the mere pendency of a case in a court of law, as the interim order always merges into the final order to be passed in the case and if the case is ultimately dismissed, the interim order stands nullified automatically. A party cannot be allowed to take any benefit of his own wrongs by getting an interim order and thereafter blame the court. The fact that the case is found, ultimately, devoid of any merit, or the party withdrew the writ petition, shows that a frivolous writ petition had been filed. The maxim actus curiae neminem gravabit, which means that the act of the court shall prejudice no one, becomes applicable in such a case. In such a situation the court is under an obligation to undo the wrong done to a party by the act of the court. Thus, any undeserved or unfair advantage gained by a party invoking the jurisdiction of the court must be neutralised, as the institution of litigation cannot be permitted to confer any advantage on a party by the delayed action of the court."

He submits that by applying the ratio of the above judgement the instant Interim Stay Order was merged with the final Writ Order and thereby the Interim Order was nullified. Consequently, the impugned “Interim Stay Order” was non est in the eyes of law by applying the 'Doctrine of Merger' Principle.
3.3. Learned Commissioner, AR further submits that in case of M/s Kanoria Chemicals Vs U.P. State Electricity Board (1997) 5 SCC 772, Hon’ble Apex Court observed that

“It is equally well settled that an order of stay granted pending disposal of a writ petition/suit or other proceeding, comes to an end with the dismissal of the substantive proceeding and that it is the duty of the court in such a case to put the parties in the same position they would have been but for the interim order of the court. Any other view would result in the act or order of the court prejudicing a party [Board in this case] for no fault of its and would also mean rewarding a writ petitioner in spite of his failure.”

Learned Commissioner, AR, submits that when the Interim Stay was in operation, no SCNs or OIOs have been issued to the Appellant referring the “Port Prohibition” on the impugned import; the due action has been initiated only after the final disposal of the subject Writ Petition; therefore, the claim of the Appellant that the impugned DGFT Notification cannot be enforced on the subject import is legally not sustainable.

3.4. Placing reliance on the Principle of Estoppel, Learned AR submits that in the instant case, during the stay impugned imported goods are provisionally cleared on the basis of the undertaking of the Appellant, to produce the judgement of HC in their Writ and the consequent compliance. Under the circumstances, the ‘principle of estoppel’ also prevents the appellant to contest the legal action taken by the Customs Department subsequent to the final disposal of their Writ Petition. The appellant has taken contradictory Stand in as much as on the one hand they argue that the interim Stay Order was in operation and on the other they have cleared the goods provisionally by furnishing a Bond. The appellants executed Bonds for suitable value and agreed for provisional assessment pending production of final Orders from Hon’ble High Court and to pay any Penalty and fine that may be adjudged in lieu of confiscation of the said goods. As per the Doctrine of Promissory Estoppel, once a party, by his words or conduct makes a legally binding promise to another party, if the other party has acted upon these words or conduct, the one who made the promise or gave assurance cannot revert back to his previous position. Hon’ble Supreme Court in the case of Rajasthan State Industrial Development and Investment Corporation & Anr Vs Diamond and Gem Development Corporation Ltd & Anr., AIR 2013 SC 1241 observed that a party cannot be permitted to “blow hot and cold”, “fast and loose” or “approbate and reprobate”. Where one knowingly accepts the benefits of a contract or conveyance or an order, is estopped to deny the validity or binding effect on him of such contract or conveyance or order. He submits that in this background of provisional clearance of the impugned "palm oil" under bond and the ratio of cases cited above, the plea of non-existence of the impugned Notification is liable for dismissal.

3.5. Learned Commissioner, AR submits that in the instant case, the impugned Palm Oil were imported by the importer through the prohibited PORT against the DGFT Notification and thus it is established that the impugned Palm Oil were liable for confiscation. Hence, the plea of the importer that penalty should be confined only to willful acts of omission and commission in contravention of the provisions of an enactment cannot be accepted. Penalty must be imposed on a person who acts in conscious disregard of statutory obligations and suppresses material facts. Though existence of "mens rea" is essential with reference to penal provisions of Section 112(b) (knows or reason to believe), 114A (willful misstatement) & 114AA (knowingly or intentionally) of the Customs Act, 1962, there is no such requirement of the element of "Mens Rea" / "Mala fide" for imposition of penalty under Section 112(a) of the Customs Act, 1962. Penalty can be imposed, only when it is established that the goods imported are "liable to confiscation" under Section 111 of Customs Act, 1962. He relies upon

(i) M/s Oceanic Shipping Agency P Ltd Vs CC 1996 (82) ELT 57 (Para.10)

(ii) M/s Panorama V CC 2001 (130) ELT 877 (Para 5)
3.6. Learned Commissioner, AR submits further that the Adjudicating Authority has taken a stand that the impugned goods were 'not available' and hence could not be confiscated, though they are liable to confiscation. This stand is totally against the legal position laid by Hon'ble Supreme Court, High Courts and Tribunal; the impugned goods were cleared under bond and therefore, can be confiscated even in the absence their physical availability. He relies upon the following cases.

(i). Weston Components Ltd Vs CC 2000(115) ELT 278(SC)
(ii). CCE Vs Raja Impex 2009 (229) ELT 185 (HC-DB, P&J)
(v). CCE Vs Shilpa Trading Company 2014 (309) ELT 641 (HC-DB, Kar) (it was held that redemption fine was imposable even if Bond/ BG not in force).
(vi). CCE Vs Kay Bee Tax Spin Ltd 2017 (349) ELT 451 (HC-DB, Guj)
(vii). Jain Exports Ltd Vs UOI 1993(66) ELT 537 (SC)
(it was held that no waiver of RF even importer acted in good faith).

3.7. With regards to the claim of the appellants that the agreements/contracts for sale or High sea sale were entered in to before the prohibition came in to force, the learned Commissioner, AR submits that As per FTP 1.5 , and DGFT Circular, Irrevocable Commercial Letter of Credit is the evidence to avail the Transitional Arrangements; DGFT Notification and circular 20/RE-2007)/2004-2009 dated 13th August 2007 and DGFT Policy Circular No:4(RE-2007)/2004-2009 dated 16th August 2007 to confirm the greater sanctity and assurance regarding the contract and to avoid back dated contracted documents under Transitional Arrangements. He further submits that there are discrepancies and infirmities in the contracts/ letters submitted by them as under.
- Port was mentioned Cochin / Beyapore
- There were no signatures of either of the parties
- The referred HSS Contract dt 7.6.2004 between MMTC & M/s Parisons Foods for the import of 1, 20,000 Tonnes of RBD was valid for One year (Extended up to 6th June 2007). This cannot be relied upon. "Indent for Import" containing Quantity, Delivery Schedule, Port of Discharge etc of Parisons not produced before the Adjudicating Authority
- Concluding Part of "Sales Contract" ..."Please confirm that this sales contract correctly set forth the terms of the agreement by returning an executed copy by facsimile".... Indicates that "Sales contract are not concluded at this stage, in the absence of any further documentary proof
- They are not in the nature of sales contract.
- Addressee is mentioned as M/s Parisons Exports Inc, India, Indonesia
- SI No.7 of HSS : Open General License under Import Export Policy 1997-2002 (Non-Existing Policy) It should be FTP : 2004-2009 considering B/L date 2.11.2007; Date of Purchase of Stamp Paper is not available in the Copy produced
- As per this Sales Terms of Annex J, the Shipment is to be effected during 1st October to 31st October 2007. Whereas, the impugned Bill of Lading referred in the HSS is dated 2.11.2007
- As per condition 8 of Sl. No. 18 of Annex J, the Discharge Port is actually meant for Beyapore Port (10 km from Calicut, 195 km from Kochi), where no ban is imposed by the DGFT Notification during the material period.

(*Different discrepancies in different documents; summarised for ease of reference)
He submits that in view of the submissions and legal position, the appeals of the appellants are liable to be rejected and the appeals filed by Revenue are liable to be allowed.

4. Heard both sides and perused the records of the case. The brief issue that requires consideration in this case is as to whether the appellants have violated the prohibition imposed by DGFT Notification No. 39/RE2007 dated 06.10.2007; as to whether, they are liable for penalty and as to whether the Commissioner should have imposed redemption fine on the goods imported by them and cleared provisionally. Brief facts of the case are given in detail as above. Therefore, we are not repeating the same. The main contention of the appellants is two-fold. The appellants contended that in view of the Stay granted, by the Hon'ble High Court of Kerala, on the operation of Notification cited above, they have not violated any prohibition and that the agreements for sale of RBD Palm Oil or Palmolein have taken place when the prohibition was not even notified and therefore, in terms of Para 1.5 of the provisions of Foreign Trade Policy, they have not violated any prohibition imposed on the import of impugned goods. The defence of Department is that the Final Order of the Hon'ble High Court of Kerala dismissed the Writ Petition filed by the appellants thereby the position existing before the grant of Stay stands and thus it should be held that the appellants have imported impugned goods contrary to the prohibition in place. The Department also contends that the appellants have not submitted any concrete proof that the conditions of Para 1.5 of the FTP have been satisfied so as to be eligible for the imports despite the prohibitions.

5. We find that that the appellants filed a Writ Petition before the Hon'ble High Court of Kerala challenging the constitutional validity of the Notification No. 39(RE-2007)/2004-2009 Dated 16.10.2007. Hon'ble High Court was pleased to grant an Interim Stay vide Order dated 25.10.2007. Later vide dated 20.11.2017. Hon'ble High Court was pleased to modify the Interim Order and to permit one consignment of the appellants to be discharged at Kochi Port. Hon'ble High Court further ordered vide Order dated 01.12.2007 that the benefit of the order dated 25.10.2007 will be applicable to all vessels from which the goods were being discharged on or before 20.11.2017. Finally, the Hon'ble High Court of Kerala dismissed the Writ Petition filed by the appellants vide its Order dated 15.02.2008. Meanwhile, M/s Parisons Foods Pvt. Ltd. have imported RBD Palmolein and crude Palm oil totally valued at Rs.13.41 crore (Tariff Value Rs.7.41 crores) and M/s Parison Agrotech imported RBD Palmolein valued at Rs.10.43 crores (Tariff Value Rs.5.78 crores).

6. Learned Commissioner AR submits that the appellants have misconceived the legal position on Interim Stay Order; Hon'ble High Court of Kerala has only stayed the operation but have not set aside the Notification. That means that Hon'ble High Court has stayed only the due action to be taken by the Department in respect of the impugned goods. Relying on Hon'ble Supreme Court decision in the case of Sh. Chamundi Mopeds (Supra). He submits that quashing of an order results in the restoration of position as it stood on the date of the passing of the order which has been quashed; the stay of operation of an order does not, however lead to such a result; it only means that the order which has been stayed would not be operative from the date of the passing of the Stay Order and it does mean that the said order has been wiped out from existence. He also submits that Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of Indian Counsel for Enviro Legal Action (Supra) observed that when a party applies and gets a stay or injunction from the Court, it is always at the risk and responsibility of the party applying. Learned Commissioner arguing on the principle of merger and unjust enrichment submits threat the case is ultimately dismissed, the Interim Order stands nullified automatically; a Party cannot be allowed to take any benefit of his wrongs by getting an Interim Order and later blame it on the Court.
7. We find that Hon’ble Apex Court in the case of M/s Kanoria Chemicals (Supra) observed that:

“It is equally well settled that an Order of Stay granted pending disposal of a Writ Petition of Suit or other proceeding, comes to an end with the dismissal of the substantive proceeding and it is the duty of the Court in such a case to put the parties in the same position they would have been put but for the Interim Order of the Court.”

We find that the Hon’ble Apex Court has made the position very clear in the matter. With the Hon’ble Court of Kerala quashing the Writ Petition vide Order dated 15.02.2008, the position that was existing before the Interim Order dated 25.10.2007 prevails. That means to say that the prohibition imposed vide Notification cited above exists. Therefore, we have to hold that the appellants have imported the impugned goods contrary to the DGFT Notification thereby rendered the goods liable for confiscation. We also find that the appellants have submitted a bond at the time of provisional release inter alia stating that the proper officer has agreed to allow clearance of the goods subject to the importer production within 6 months from the date hereof a valid license to cover the import of the goods mentioned in the Schedule and the Final Orders from the Hon’ble High Court of Kerala regarding importability of the item through Cochin Port. This being the position the appellants cannot claim that the imports have taken place during the period when prohibition was not in place, in view of the Interim Order. We find that as submitted by the Learned Commissioner AR, bond executed by the appellants at the time of provisional release provides for payment of any penalty and fine in lieu of the confiscation. Having bound themselves in such a manner, the appellants cannot take shelter under the High Court’s Interim Order, where the Hon’ble High Court has dismissed the Writ Petition.

8. The second contention of the appellants was that the consignments were contracted before the imposition of prohibition and in terms of Para 1.5 of the Foreign Trade Policy the impugned imports are excluded by the restriction imposed by the Notification cited supra. We find that Para 1.5 of Foreign Trade Policy reads as under:

“1.5 In case an export or import that is permitted freely under this Policy is subsequently subjected to any restriction or regulation, such export or import will ordinarily be permitted notwithstanding such restriction or regulation, unless otherwise stipulated, provided that the shipment of the export or import is made within the original validity of an irrevocable letter of credit established before the date of imposition of such restriction.”

Ongoing through the records of the case, we find that the appellants have submitted a few disconnected documents which look like sale deeds, contracts, agreements etc., however as pointed out by the Learned Commissioner AR, the documents are full of inadequacies making the authenticity of the documents subject to doubt. It is also not coming forth as to which of these documents pertain to the impugned imports. Moreover, we do not find any conclusive agreements indicating that an irrevocable letter of credit has been opened or has been enforced at the time of shipment. We find that Learned Commissioner has also observed in the impugned OIO that the appellants failed to produce the relevant letters of credit and that the transitional arrangements under Para 1.5 of Foreign Trade Policy 2004-09 will be applicable only if the irrevocable letters of credit are established before the date of issue of Notification imposing restrictions. Therefore, we find that the appellant’s argument fails on both counts and we find that they have imported the impugned goods in violation of the prohibition imposed by DGFT Notification cited supra and thus, they have rendered the impugned goods liable for confiscation and rendered themselves liable for penalty.

9. The appellants pleaded that they have imported the impugned goods during the operation of Stay in view of the Hon’ble High Court of Kerala and therefore no mens rea can be imputed and consequently, no penalty can be imposed on them. We find that the Revenue has successfully demonstrated that unlike penalty under Sections 112(b), 114A and 114AA of Customs Act, 1962, mens rea is not essential criteria for imposing penalty under Section 112(a) of the Customs Act. We find that the appellants have not only imported the impugned goods in violation of the prohibition imposed but also have attempted to misuse the legal provisions available under the Writ jurisdiction of Hon’ble High Court. With the dismissal of the Writ Petition, the Hon’ble High Court has restored the position which was existed before. Moreover, in view of the bond submitted by the appellants as the time of provisional release, they have bound themselves to produce a proper order from the Hon’ble High Court failing which they have bound themselves to pay fine and penalties as applicable. In view of the above, we find that the imposition of penalties in the impugned order is legal, proper and justified. Therefore, the appeals of the appellants do not survive and are liable for rejection.

10. Coming to the departmental appeals, the appeals are made for imposition of redemption fine. As per our discussion above, the goods are liable for confiscation under Section 111(d) of the Customs Act, 1962. The goods were released on a bond provisionally. Therefore, Learned Commissioner cannot opine that the goods are not available for confiscation. Going by the ratio of the case laws submitted by the Learned AR, we find that Learned Commissioner has erred in not imposing redemption fine. Accordingly, we find that the appeals filed by Revenue are maintainable and suitable redemption fine in lieu of confiscation is imposable on the appellants. Looking into the circumstances of the case and the long litigation undergone by the appellants, we find that redemption fine could be limited to around 10% of the Tariff Value of the imports.

11. In the result, we dismiss the appeals No. C/452/2009 & C/453/2009 filed by the appellants. We allow the appeals of Revenue and impose redemption fine of Rs.70 Lakhs on M/s Parison Foods Pvt. Ltd. and Rs.50 Lakhs on M/s Parison Agrotech.

[COURT NO. I]
Shri S.S. Garg, Member (J) and P. Anjani Kumar, Member (T)

LIBERTY OIL MILLS LTD.

Versus
COMMISSIONER OF CUSTOMS, COCHIN

REPRESENTED BY : Shri Jitendra Motwani, Advocate, for the Appellant.

Shri S. Chandramohan, Commissioner (AR), for the Respondent.

[Order per : P. Anjani Kumar, Member (T)]. - M/s. Liberty Oils Ltd., Thane have imported about 2000 MTs of RBD Palmolein and filed various Bills of Entry at the Port of Cochin. In terms of Notification No. 39(RE-2007)/2004-09, dated 16th October, 2007 import of Palm oil and its fractions was not permitted through Kochi Port. Hon’ble High Court of Kerala in Writ Petition No. 32705/2007 stayed the operation of the said Notification vide Order dated 5-11-2007. The Hon’ble High Court, however, vide judgment dated 15-2-2008 dismissed the writ petition. During the interregnum, Bills of Entry were provisionally assessed and the imported Palm oil was cleared for home consumption. A SCN was issued to M/s. Liberty Oils Ltd. seeking to confiscate 1999.695 MTs of RBD Palmolein and to impose penalty under Section 112 of Customs Act, 1962. The SCN was adjudicated wherein, vide Order dated 12-2-2009, Commissioner imposed a penalty of Rs 80 Lakhs and however, refrained from imposing redemption fine as the goods were already released. M/s. Liberty Oil filed Appeal No. C/362/2009 against the imposing of penalty and Revenue filed an Appeal C/392/2009 against non-imposition of redemption fine.

2. Learned Counsel for M/s. Liberty Oils Ltd. submits that a firm contract was established on 29-9-2007 whereas the import restriction was placed on 16-10-2007 and therefore, provisions relating to transition period are applicable and penalty cannot be imposed on them. He relies upon the following cases:

- Shri Shakti Iron & Steel Berolling Mill v. CC, Kandla, 2014 (304) E.L.T. 279 (Tri.-Ahmd.).

3. Commissioner, Authorized Representative argued at length touching several issues involved in the case. He argues that the observation, of the High Court in the Viraj Impex case that irrevocable letter of credit was not established by the petitioners but that by itself cannot be a ground to say that concluded contract which was entered into by the petitioners was not a genuine contract, is not ratio decidendi as there is a statutory requirement by the Notification and the Notification was not set aside. He relies upon the observation of Hon’ble Supreme Court, in the case of Oriental Insurance Company, Civil Appeal No. 5209/2007, on the issue of applicability of precedent. The Apex Court observed as follows:

13. ...... There is always peril in treating the words of a speech or judgment as though they are words in a legislative enactment, and it is to be remembered that judicial utterances made in the setting of the facts of a particular case.

14. Circumstantial flexibility, one additional or different fact may make a world of difference between conclusions in two cases.
Disposal of cases by blindly placing reliance on a decision is not proper.

15. The following words of Lord Denning in the matter of applying precedents have become locus classicus:

3.1 He submits that in the case of Viraz Impex, the contract was entered on 26-11-1998 and the restriction Notification No. 34 was issued on 10-12-1998 regarding the floor price of defective/secondary HR coils; the importer has requested the supplier on 15-12-1998 to cancel the contract, however, the supplier insisted the performance as they have in turn placed an order for purchase with another firm and went to the extent of threatening the importer with damages. Therefore, the force majure of circumstances imports were affected. The facts of the case are different in the instant case and as per the contract; the importer could cancel the contract or move the contract to any other Port. Factually also, the very same importer was importing from other Ports like Goa, JNPT, Mumbai and Kandla. Therefore, Learned Commissioner argues that the ratio of the Hon’ble High Court decision in Viraz Impex is not applicable. Moreover, the instant case is after the pronouncement of the case under a different Notification and different set of circumstances. He submits that the law should be purposively and strictly construed as held by the Apex Court in the following cases:

  (178) E.L.T. 55 (S.C.)
- Kedarnath Jute Manufacturing Co. v. CTO, Calcutta, (1965) 3
  SCR 626.

He submits that as there is no confusion in Notification No. 39 (RE-2007)/2004-09, dated 16-10-2007 and as the importer did not open an irrevocable commercial letter of credit, the import cannot be permitted.

4. Learned Commissioner further submits that with the pronouncement of Final Order by the Hon’ble High Court of Kerala in the subject writ petition, the Interim Stay granted by the Hon’ble Court is rendered non est. Moreover, Hon’ble High Court did not quash the Notification. Relying on the Apex Court decision in the case of Shri Chamundi Moped Ltd. v. Church of South India Trust Association, Madras, (1992) 3 SCC 1, he submits that a distinction has to be made between quashing of an order and stay of operation of an order. Quashing of an order results in restoration of the position as its stood on the date of passing of the order which has been quashed.
The stay operation of an order does not, however, lead to such a result. It only means that the order which has been stayed would not operate from the date of the passing of the stay order and it does not mean that the said order has been wiped out from existence. Learned Commissioner has also touched upon the principles of doctrine of merger and unjust enrichment and submits that with the issuance of Final Order by High Court, the stay is automatically vacated and the position before the issuance of the stay order is restored. Relying on the principle of promissory estoppel, he submits that the importer is bound by the conditions of the bond, he submitted a provisional release. One such condition was that Clause (C) that the importer pays to the President penalty and fine that may be adjusted in lieu of the confiscation of said goods mentioned in the Schedule for importation of goods. Relying upon the following case laws, Learned Commissioner submits that the adjudicating authority erred in finding that as the goods were not physically available, no redemption fine could be levied:

- Weston Components Ltd. v. CC, 2000 (115) E.L.T. 278 (S.C.)
- CCE v. Raja Impex, 2008 (229) E.L.T. 185
- Shiv Kripa Ispat P. Ltd. v. CCE, 2009 (235) E.L.T. 623 (T-LB)
- CCE v. Mithran, 2017 (347) E.L.T. 603 (HC-DB, Madras)

5. On hearing rival contentions, we find that the facts of the case are certainly different from the case referred by the importer. We find that the importer has not made out any case to show the compelling circumstances under which they could not either cancel the Contract or alter the Port of discharge. The Hon’ble High Court of Kerala has restored the position existing as on the date of import by quashing the writ petition. Therefore, we find that the importer was required to comply with the Notification dated 16-10-2007, inasmuch as they could not produce an irrevocable commercial letter of credit as required by the Notification. Therefore, we find that the impugned goods are liable for confiscation in terms of Section 111(d) of Customs Act, 1962. However, looking into the long legal process undergone by the appellants and looking into the circumstances of the case, we are inclined to reduce the penalty to Rs. 38 Lakhs from Rs. 80 Lakhs. Appeal No. C/362/2009 is disposed of accordingly. In respect of Departmental Appeal No. C/392/2009, we find that there is force in the argument of the department. Accordingly, we find that Learned Commissioner erred in holding that no redemption fine could be levied as the goods were not physically available. We find that the goods were provisionally released in terms of a bond submitted by the importers. Therefore, in view of the Apex Court decision in the case of Weston Components Ltd., we find that redemption fine is liable to be imposed. Accordingly, we modify the OIO to that extent and impose redemption fine of Rs. 5 Lakhs.

6. Accordingly, the impugned order is modified to the extent of reducing penalty from Rs. 80,00,000/- to Rs. 38,00,000/- (Rupees Thirty Eight Lakhs Only). Accordingly, Appeal No. C/362/2009 is disposed. Appeal No. C/392/2009 is allowed and redemption fine of Rs. 5,00,000/- (Rupees Five Lakh Only) is imposed.

FINAL ORDER NO. 21055/2019

Per: S S Garg:

The present appeal is directed against the impugned order dt. 15/12/2017 passed by the Commissioner(Appeals) whereby the Commissioner(Appeals) has rejected the appeal of the appellant and upheld the Order-in-Original.

2. Briefly the facts of the present case are that the appellant, an Indian citizen holding passport bearing No.K6695721, while arriving into India at Mangalore International Airport from Dubai (Air India Express flight No.IX814) on 03/02/2016 was found to be in possession of two small chains, one big chain and two bangles, all secreted in her person inside clothes worn by the appellant. All the impugned goods were yellow metal in colour and in crude form. They were confirmed as Gold of 24 carat totally weighing 583.180 grams and totally valued at Rs.15,74,586/- (at the market rate). The said Gold was undeclared and was attempted to be smuggled into India by the appellant for her unjust and illicit gain. The impugned Gold was seized under Section 110 of Customs Act, 1962 (the Act, for short) after being approved by approved Gold appraiser/valuer, under a report dated 03/02/2016 read with statement of the appellant also dt. 03/02/2016 wherein the appellant admitted the guilt and factum of concealment. The appellant has admitted that she smuggled such Gold for her elder brother's daughter as a wedding gift. The original authority culminated the proceeding vide OIO No.02/2017 – ADC dt. 08/02/2017 wherein the smuggled gold valued at Rs.15,74,586/- was absolutely confiscated under Section 111(d), 111(i), 111(l) and 111(m) of the Act and imposed a penalty of Rs.4,50,000/- under Section 112(a) and Rs.2,00,000/- under Section 114AA of the Act on the appellant for contravention of Section 2(33), Section 2(39), Section 77, Section 123 and Section 123(2) of the Act and Notification No.12/2012-Cus dt. 16/03/2012 read with Notification No.26/2012 dt. 18/04/2012 and Board Circular No.06/2014 dt. 06/02/2014, Para 3(3) of the Foreign Trade (Development of Regulations) Act, 1992 coupled with Foreign Trade (Regulation) Rules, 1993. Aggrieved by the Order-in-Original, appellant filed appeal before the Commissioner(Appeals) who rejected the same. Hence the present appeal. The Revenue has also filed Cross-objections before this Tribunal.

3. Heard both sides and perused the records.
4. Learned counsel for the appellant submitted that the impugned order is not sustainable in law as the same has been passed without properly appreciating the facts and the law and the binding judicial precedent. He further submitted that the only objection raised by the respondent in their Cross-objections is that the appeal is not maintainable under Section 129(A) of the Act because the confiscated goods have been recovered from the baggage of passenger. It is further the contention of the respondent that the remedy available to the appellant is not under Section 129(Aj)(1) but under Section 129DD by way of revision. He further submitted that this objection of the Revenue is not sustainable in law in view of the fact recorded by the original authority that the appellant was not in possession of no checked-in baggage but was found to be carrying a brown coloured hand bag and one duty free polythene cover as accompanied baggage. Further on examination of said baggage, it was found to contain nothing objectionable but only personal effects. Therefore, the contention raised by the respondent that the confiscated goods are recovered as baggage is factually incorrect. In support of his submission, he relied upon the decision of Kerala High Court in the case of Vigneswaran Sethuraman Vs. UOI & another [2014(2) KHC 448] wherein the Hon'ble High Court has held that gold ornaments worn by a person is not a baggage and it does not require declaration under Section 77 of the Act. He further submitted that as per Section 77, the owner of any baggage shall for the purpose of clearing it make a declaration of its contents to the proper officer. He further submitted that it was the duty of the Customs to make aware of the public regarding the prohibitions for bringing the gold and human body cannot be considered as a baggage. He further submitted that the appellant was wearing gold ornaments inside her burka and as per their religious customs and belief, the appellant does not believe in showing of the ornaments to the public. He also submitted that appellant has already paid the amount of Rs.2,25,000/- and thereafter the passport of the appellant was released.

5. On the other hand, the learned AR defended the impugned order and submitted that the appellant was wearing the gold and the same was not declared and on her personal search, it was found that she was wearing (a) two numbers of small chain shaped gold objects in crude unfinished form – 117.530 grams; (b) two numbers of bangle shaped gold objects in crude unfinished form – 115.730 grams; and (c) one number of big chain shaped gold object in crude unfinished form – 349.920 grams. He further submitted that she tried to pass through the Green Channel and on her personal search, it was detected and the same was valued at Rs.15,74,586/-. He further submitted that the appellant did not produce any documents evidencing the purchase of the aforesaid gold ornaments of the shape of crude chains and bangle in unfinished form recovered from her possession. He further submitted that in her statement made under Section 108 of the Act, she admitted that the gold objects purchased by her did not have any sign or mark. She also admitted that she did not possess any document justifying the purchasing of the said ornaments which is of 24 carat purity. She also admitted that she had concealed the said gold ornaments on her person underneath the burka worn by her with intention to evade duty. The learned AR further submitted that the case of the appellant is not covered by the Notification No.12/2012-Cus. dt. 17/03/2012. He further submitted that the gold objects were smuggled into India by the appellant by way of concealment on her person which clearly proves the non-bona fide nature of her baggage. He further submitted that the goods are smuggled as per Section 2(39) of the Act and it is prohibited in terms of Section 2(33) of the Act and the original authority had discussed in detail the entire evidence and the circumstances leading to the detention of the gold ornaments. He also relied upon the following decisions:-

i. Om Prakash Bhatia Vs. CC, Delhi [2003(155) ELT 423 (SC)]
ii. Sheikh Mohd. Omer Vs. Collector of Customs, Calcutta & others [1983(13) ELT 1439 (SC)]
6.1. After considering the submissions of both the parties and perusal of the material on record, I find that the appellant was wearing two numbers of small chain and 2 bangles of gold and one big chain totally weighing 583.180 grams valued at Rs.15,74,586/- of 24 carat purity gold which she did not declare on arrival at Mangalore Airport. On suspicion, she was searched and then it was found that she was wearing these gold chains and bangles concealed under the burka which she was wearing. In her statement, she has confessed that she was not aware that she was supposed to declare the gold and the ornaments. Further I find that the original authority has discussed in detail the facts of the case and has arrived at a finding that the appellant has indulged in smuggling and has confiscated the unfinished gold, totally weighing 583.18 grams seized from the possession of the appellant under 111(d), 111(i), 111(l) and 111(m) of the Act and also imposed penalty of Rs.4,50,000/- on the appellant under Section 112(a) of the Act for her omission and acts rendering the goods liable for confiscation under Section 111 of the Act and also imposed penalty of Rs.2 lakhs in terms of Section 114AA for having made false declaration under Section 77 of the Act. Further I find that the Commissioner(Appeals) has also discussed the defence of the appellant and upheld the Order-in-Original. It is pertinent to reproduce para 9 and 12 of the impugned order, which are as under:-

9. Further, it is seen that the appellant has not retracted her statement. By looking into the overall facts and proceedings deliberate upon, it is fully established without an iota of doubt that the appellant attempted to smuggle the impugned gold without declaring it to the Customs authorities, which is of 24 carat and in form of small and big chains and bangles transacted for illicit gain by way of ingenious concealment. The appellant's intention to defraud the exchequer and evade payment of duty for her illegitimate gain is explicit and the same could not have surfaced but for Departmental intervention. The defense of ignorance of law or quantum has no bearing in mitigating the offence committed by the appellant. Further, the impugned goods attempted to be smuggled into India is liable for confiscation under Sections 111(d), 111(i), 111(l) and 111(m) of the Customs Act, 1962 read with Section 3(3) of Foreign Trade (Development and Regulation) Act, 1992 and rules made there under. The appellant has also rendered herself to penal action under Section 112 and Section 114AA of the Act for his illicit act of omission and commission. The defense made by the appellant is an afterthought and untrue.

12. I find that in view of overall circumstances of the case and considering the nature of concealment, purity of gold, status/antecedent of appellant, mode of carriage etc., her culpable statement admitting the guilt. The intent to smuggle gold to defraud the exchequer from its legitimate claim is clearly established and appellant is liable for the penal consequences along with absolute confiscation of gold for alleged contravention of Customs Act, 1962, Foreign Trade (Development and Regulation) Act, 1992. The defense put forth by appellant now is an afterthought without any basis.

6.2. As far as imposition of penalty under Section 112 and Section 114AA of the Act, I find that imposition of penalty under Section 77 is not sustainable in law because Section 77 is applicable only when passenger fails to declare in his baggage any goods which is liable to confiscation whereas in the present case, it is on record that nothing objectionable was found in her baggage and it is only on a person gold ornaments were secreted. Therefore I set aside the penalty imposed under Section 114AA. As far as penalty under Section 112(a) of the Act is concerned, I uphold the penalty but reduce the same to Rs.2,25,000/-.

7. In view of my discussion above, I find no infirmity in the impugned order regarding the absolute confiscation of the smuggled goods but reduce the penalty to Rs.2,25,000/- (Rupees two lakhs and twenty five thousand only) under Section 112(a) of the Customs Act 1962 and drop the penalty of Rs.2,00,000/- under Section 77 of the Act. Appeal is accordingly disposed of. Cross-objections also get disposed of.

FINAL ORDER No. 60530-60531/2019

Date of Hearing: 17.05.2019
Date of Decision: 17.05.2019

Per: Mr. Ashok Jindal
The appellants are in appeals against the impugned order seeking leniency for the quantum of penalty imposed on them under Section 114 and 114AA of the Customs Act, 1962.

2. The facts of the case are that the appellants declared nut and bolts to be exported while filing the shipping bill. On examination of the container, the goods were found Muriate of Potash (MOP) which is restricted/prohibited item. Therefore, the goods were held liable for confiscation and penalty on both the appellants were imposed under Section 114 and 114AA of the Act. Against the said order, the appellants are before me seeking reduction in the penalty imposed on them on the ground that the value of the consignment is Rs. 30Lakhs.

3. Heard the parties.

4. Considering the fact that it is a case of the clear cut misdeclaration of goods and in the guise of nut and bolts, the appellant sought to export MOP for which licence is required and it was also found that during the investigation, all the documents were fake. In these circumstances, I hold that the goods were rightly held liable for confiscation.

5. Now, coming to the penalty imposed on the appellants, I find that Shri Rajnish Kansal is the main person who fabricated the documents and misdeclared the goods, therefore, the penalty of Shri Rajnish Kansal is rightly imposed and no leniency is required.

6. With regard to Shri Rinku Kansal who is the employee of Shri Rajnish Kansal and is not going to get any benefit from the act of Shri Rajnish Kansal, in that circumstances, the leniency is required for imposition of penalty under Section 114 of the Customs Act, 1962. Therefore, the penalty of Rs.1,50,000/-is reduced to Rs.50,000/-.

7. In these terms, the appeals are disposed.

FINAL ORDER NO. 60141 of 2020

DATE OF HEARING: 22.01.2020
DATE OF DECISION: 22.01.2020

PER ASHOK JINDAL:

None appeared on behalf of the appellant nor any request for adjournment has been received. Records have been perused.

2. On perusal of the records, we find that the matter has come up for several times for the hearing, but all the occasions none appeared on behalf of the appellant. Therefore, it is concluded that the appellant has nothing to say in defense of their appeal.
3. The facts of the case are that the appellant imported consignment of mixed goods i.e. branded, unbranded, mis-declared, Excess, branded counterfeit. The goods were examined. On examination, it was found that some of the goods were branded goods which are restricted, therefore confiscated absolutely. The appellant in their appeal itself has stated that they donot want to clear the absolutely confiscated goods but sought clearance of the remaining consignment.

4. Heard the Ld.AR and perused the record.

5. On perusal of the record, we find that as the appellant has mis-declared the goods and the same have been absolutely confiscated as the goods found to be branded goods and mis-declared. In these circumstances, we donot find any merit in the appeal filed by the appellant, therefore, the appeal filed by the appellant is dismissed.

(Dictated and pronounced in the open court)
This appeal is directed against Order-in-Appeal No. 89/CUS/APPL/DLH-IV/2012 dated 09.08.2012 of Commissioner of Central Excise (Appeals) Delhi-IV, Faridabad. By the impugned order, the Commissioner (Appeals) upheld the Order-in-Original No. 557/DC/ICD/MS/2011 dated 11.02.2011 holding as follows:

“I order the goods be assessed to duty by classifying the same under Customs Tariff heading 49119990.”

2.1 The appellant had filed Bill of Entry No. 4921487 dated 14.10.2011 for clearance of goods by describing them as "Educational Charts" and classification under Custom Tariff Heading 49059990 and attracting duty at "Nil" rate. They declared the value of the goods as Rs. 32,89,200/-. The goods were subjected to 1st Check examination. The shed recorded the following examination report:

"O/E 100% of the goods in the presence of representative of CHA and found to contain Educational Charts as per Invoice, P/L and B/L. Description and Quantity checked. As far as nature of goods is concerned, Historical and Elementary Educational charts were found during the examination. Samples put up to group for perusal …”

2.3 After considering the written submissions made by the appellant vide his letter dated 04.11.2011, the Deputy Commissioner adjudicated the matter as per order referred in para 1, supra.

2.4 Aggrieved the appellant filed the appeal before the Commissioner (Appeals), which has been dismissed by the Commissioner (Appeals) as per the impugned order.

2.5 Aggrieved the appellant have filed this appeal before CESTAT.

3.1 In their appeal, the appellant has assailed the orders of the lower authorities stating as follows:

- The goods imported are educational charts as they impart knowledge in respect of elementary learning such as language, grammar, numerals, mathematical tables, basic hygiene etc. They are in form of single sheet with colour printing on plastic bearing the name of publisher. Thus these are printed material for educational purposes. Examination report recorded by the shed also says so.

- Since the goods are in form of chart containing "Educational Material" in printed form the same as per their understanding merits classification under heading 49059990. The classification made by the lower authorities under Heading 49119990 a is not correct as heading 4911 is residuary heading.

- Alternatively the goods imported by them merit classification as 'Printed Books’ under CTH 4901 and exempt from payment of duty under Notification No 21/2002-Cus dated 01.03.2002 (SI No 160), since they contain valuable information and material for children in printed form having publisher's name and satisfy the essential attributes of "printed book" such as (i) these are available to public at large; (ii) sold at book stores; (iii) recognized internationally as Book and assigned ISBN (International Standard Book Number)

- The decision of Wilco International [1992 (61) ELT 713 (T)] is squarely holding that the goods imported are nothing but Books.

4.1 Matter was listed for hearing on 18.02.2020. Appellant’s advocates "Piyush Kumar & Associates" have vide their letter dated 17.02.2020 received in the Registry on 17.02.2020, submitted as follows:

"In this regard it is respectfully submitted that the above mentioned Appellant is hereby submitting written brief of arguments for kind perusal of the Hon'ble Tribunal and therefore prays Your Honour for disposal of the matter on the basis of Memorandum of Appeal as well as brief of arguments, for which act of kindness, the appellant shall ever be indebted."

4.2 Thus on we have heard Shri Amandeep Kumar, Authorized Representative for the Revenue in the matter. We have also examined the sample of the goods imported by the appellant which were produced by the Authorized Representative.

4.3 In the written arguments filed by the Advocates for the appellant, they have reiterated the same grounds as have been stated by them in the Appeal Memorandum.

4.4 Learned Authorized Representative while reiterating the findings recorded by the lower authorities submitted that:-

- The classification of the goods as per the Custom Tariff is to be determined as per the terms of the heading. He referred to the terms of headings, 4901, 4905 & 4911 to argue that the goods are appropriately classifiable under heading 4911 as has been held by the authorities below;

- He also referred to HSN Explanatory Notes for Chapter Heading 4905 and 4911 and argued that as per the HSN explanatory notes for these chapters the goods have been held to be appropriately classifiable under CTH 4911. He relied on the decision of the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Wood Craft Products Ltd [1995 (77) ELT 23 (SC)] and the decision of the Mumbai Bench of CESTAT in case of Camlin Ltd [2002 (144) ELT 638 (T-Mum)] to establish that reliance placed by him on the HSN Explanatory Notes, for the determination of the classification of goods under Custom Tariff is justified.

- The exemption claimed by the Appellant under Notification No 21/2002-Cus is not admissible to them as the goods do not satisfy to the basic criteria to be called as goods. The decision of tribunal in case of Wilco referred by the Appellant in their appeal and submissions is distinguishable and not applicable. In case of Wilco the goods imported were in fact the books as is evident from para 4 and 5 of the said decision.

- In case of Dilip Kumar & Co [2018 (361) ELT 577 (SC)], Hon’ble Supreme Court (Five Member Bench) has clearly laid down that the fiscal statue need to be interpreted strictly as per the words used in the statue and there is no room for purposive or other manner of construction of statue.
- He thus submits that appeal filed merits rejection.

5.1 We have considered the impugned order along with the submissions made in the appeal, written submissions filed, and the arguments advanced by the Authorized Representative at the time of hearing of the appeal.

5.2 The competitive tariff entries under which the Classification has been claimed by the appellant and determined by the Revenue are reproduced below:

5.3 The appellant while filing the Bill of Entry have claimed the classification of the goods under heading 4905 99 90. From the terms of the entry, it is very clear that heading 4905 is in respect of the maps and globes and not in respect of the educational charts of any other type. This is further very clear from the HSN Explanatory Notes for the heading 4905 which reads as under:

"This heading covers all printed globes (for example, terrestrial, lunar or celestial), maps, charts and plans designed to represent the natural or artificial features of countries, town seas, the heavens, etc., conventional signs being used to indicate contours etc. Maps and charts incorporating advertising matter remain classified in this heading. This heading includes, inter alia: Geographical maps (including sectors for globes), road maps, wall maps, atlases, hydrographic, geographical and astronomical charts, geological surveys, topographical plans (e.g. plans of town or districts). It also covers printed globes with internal lighting, provided they are not merely toys”

5.4 It is very clear from the examination report and the sample charts produced before us that these charts are not in nature of maps or depicting the terrestrial features. Even appellant on the Bill of Entry have not claimed that these goods are maps of any kind. When it is not even the case of the importers that the imported goods are maps, then they are definitely not justified in claiming the classification under heading 4905. Hence their claim for classification under heading 4905 99 90 has been rightly rejected by the lower authorities. While rejecting the claim of classification under 4905 99 90, the Commissioner (Appeals) in para 8 of the impugned order observed as follows:

“8. I find that it is an admitted fact on record that the impugned imported goods were educational charts which imparted knowledge in respect of elementary learning such as language, grammar, mathematical, botanical, zoological, basic hygiene etc., and the said charts were printed single sheets and were not in bound form or with a binder. So far as appellants plea for classification of the above educational charts under Custom Tariff Heading 4905 (Sub-Heading 4905 99 90), is concerned, I find that Customs Tariff Heading 4905 covers maps and hydrographic or similar charts of all kinds, including atlases wall maps, topographical plans and globes, printed and as per HSN Explanatory Notes, Chapter Heading 4905 covers all printed globes (for example, terrestrial, lunar or celestial), maps, charts and plans designed to represent the natural or artificial features of countries, town seas, the heavens, etc. conventional signs being used to indicate contours etc., therefore the basic purpose of maps, chart, plans as covered under above Chapter 4905, is to represent the natural or artificial feature of countries, town seas, the heavens etc., and I agree with the Adjudicating Authority that the classification of the impugned educational charts under Customs Chapter Heading 4905 Heading is not proper.”

5.5 The alternative claim of the appellant that the goods in question should be classified under heading 4901 as printed books and the benefit of exemption at S No 160 of Notification No. 21/2002-Cus dated 01.03.2002 should be allowed to them has been rejected by the Commissioner (Appeals) stating as follows:

“9. So far as classification of the impugned educational charts under Customs Tariff Heading 4901 as “Printed Books” as claimed by the Appellants, is concerned, I find that as per HSN Explanatory Notes, Chapter Heading 4901 cover Books and Booklets consisting essentially of textual matter of any kind, and printed in any language or characters, including, Braille or shorthand but in the instant case the subject goods printed educational charts contained pictures etc being the main material instead of text. Further the benefit of Notification No 21/2002-Cus dated 01.03.2002 as amended, is available to the printed books and printed manuals in bound form or in loose leaf form with a binder and I agree with the Adjudicating authority that the benefit of above Notification No 21/2002-Cus dated 01.03.2002 is not available to the impugned goods as the said goods were simply printed single sheets and were not in bound form or with a binder. Therefore the classification of the impugned goods as "printed Books" is not at all justified as rightly held in the impugned Order in Original. The judgement of the Hon'ble CESTAT in the case of Wilco International reported as 1992 (61) ELT 713 (T) as relied upon by the appellants has already been discussed by in the impugned Order in Original and I agree with the Adjudicating Authority that the above judgement is not applicable to the present case.”

The decision of the Tribunal in case of Wilco International - 1992 (61) ELT 713 (Tribunal) is not an authority where the classification of the goods under Custom Tariff was the issue. In the said case, the goods imported were actually in the form of Books as is evident from para 3, 4 and 5 of the said decision reproduced below:
3. Shri J C Patel, the Ld. Advocate on behalf of appellants, at the outset, indicated that he is not challenging the order passed by the Additional Collector with regard to the classification under Customs Tariff Act for the purpose of assessment of duty. He is only challenging that part of the order holding that the goods imported are toys and is a consumer item hit by Serial No. 172 of Appendix 2B. In other words he stated that his challenge in the appeal is only against the order of confiscation for ITC violation and imposition of penalty. He also stated that he would seek for permission only to re-ship the goods without fine an penalty.

4. Thereupon he argued on the merit of the appeal with regard to the ITC angle. His arguments can be summed up as below:

5. The item imported is Robert Dunken’s Jungle Book which contains board pages of “press out models” which are to be taken out as per the instructions contained in the books. They are to be assembled into the models by the children. He showed us the sample of the disputed item”

It is settled authority that any decision passed by the statutory authority, is limited to the issue considered and decided by us. When the issue of classification of the goods in dispute was not an issue before the bench then this decision cannot be an authority on the subject.

5.6 Hon’ble Supreme Court in case of Dilip Kumar & Company – 2018 (361) ELT 577 (S.C.) has laid down the principles of interpretation of fiscal statues and notifications issued under these statues as follows:

"25. We are not suggesting that literal rule de hors the strict interpretation nor one should ignore to ascertain the interplay between 'strict interpretation' and 'literal interpretation'. We may reiterate at the cost of repetition that strict interpretation of a statute certainly involves literal or plain meaning test. The other tools of interpretation, namely contextual or purposive interpretation cannot be applied nor any resort be made to look to other supporting material, especially in taxation statutes. Indeed, it is well settled that in a taxation statute, there is no room for any intendment; that regard must be had to the clear meaning of the words and that the matter should be governed wholly by the language of the notification. Equity has no place in interpretation of a tax statute. Strictly one has to look to the language used; there is no room for searching intendment nor drawing any presumption. Furthermore, nothing has to be read into nor should anything be implied other than essential inferences while considering a taxation statute.

52. To sum up, we answer the reference holding as under-

(1) Exemption notification should be interpreted strictly; the burden of proving applicability would be on the assessee to show that his case comes within the parameters of the exemption clause or exemption notification.

(2) When there is ambiguity in exemption notification which is subject to strict interpretation, the benefit of such ambiguity cannot be claimed by the subject/assessee and it must be interpreted in favour of the revenue.

(3) The ratio in Sun Export case (supra) is not correct and all the decisions which took similar view as in Sun Export Case (supra) stands overruled.”

By applying the principles of interpretation laid down by the Hon’ble Apex Court as stated above, we are not in position to uphold the contention of the appellant in respect of admissibility of exemption under Notification No. 21/2002-Cus dated 01.03.2002.

5.7 While upholding the classification of the impugned goods under Heading 4911 99 90, the Commissioner (Appeals) in para 10 of her order has observed as follows:

"10. So far as classification of the impugned goods under Customs Tariff Heading 4911 as ordered in the impugned Order in Original is concerned, I find that Chapter Heading 4911 covers "other printed matter, including printed pictures and photographs”” and as per HSN explanatory Notes, Chapter 4911 covers Anatomical, Botanical etc, instrumental charts and diagrams. In the instant case also the impugned educational charts contained pictures for imparting knowledge in respect of elementary learning such as language, Grammar, mathematical botanical, zoological, basic hygiene etc. and hence the said goods are rightly classifiable under Chapter Heading 4911 99 90 as ordered in the impugned Order in Original. Conclusively, I do not see any legal infirmity in the impugned Order in Original which I legally sustainable and does not call to any interference."

5.8 We do not find any infirmity in the impugned order determining the classification of the impugned goods under Heading 4911 99 90, which is based on the terms of headings in Customs Tariff and HSN Explanatory Notes for the said heading. However to determine the practice of assessment elsewhere a bit of research undertaken by us made us lay hand on the import data available in respect of the same goods at "zuaba.com" which were cleared from the ICD Tughlakabad and Nhava Sheva Port classifying the said goods in same manner. 5.9 Hence we do not find merits in the appeal filed by the appellants.

6.1 The appeal is dismissed.

(Order pronounced in the court on 20.02.2020)
PER ASHOK JINDAL

We have perused the records.

2. On perusal of the records, we find that the date of hearing was fixed for 18.9.2013 with the direction to appear before this Tribunal to argue the matter. Since then, no one appear in this case to argue the matter.

3. We find that it is a case of import of machinery to set up computer software under STP scheme. The appellant imported machinery without payment of Customs duty and the same was remained without discharging export obligation and without intimating to the department without paying duty thereof. Therefore, a case was booked against them and customs duty was demanded from them and penalty was also imposed on them.

4. As the appellant has failed to produce any evidence for discharging export obligation, the demand of customs duty and the penalty was rightly imposed. In that circumstance, we find no merits in the appeal, therefore the same is dismissed.

Per: P Anjani Kumar:

The appellants M/s.Zymonutrients Pvt.Ltd. and M/s Zeus Biotech Ltd. had imported "inactive dried yeast - animal feed supplement" and classified the same under CTH 23099020 claiming the same to be "preparations of a kind used in animal feeding". However, the department reclassified the same under CTH 21022000. The appellants have paid the duty under protest and cleared under test bond. Test report confirmed the goods are either not fit for human consumption or to be "inactive dried yeast". The department has subsequently finalized the Bills of Entry rejecting the classification claimed by the appellant. The appellants have appealed against this orders before the Ld. Commissioner (Appeals) contending that though provision assessment was made order under Section 17 (5) of Customs Act, 1962 was not issued and therefore all the appeal were filed in time. Commissioner (Appeals) has dismissed the appeal of the appellant on merits and though holding that it was mandatory for the department under Section 17 (5) of Customs Act, 1962 to issue its speaking order, rejecting some appeals, stating that they are time-barred being filed beyond the condonable period from the date of Bill of Entry. Hence, these appeals.

2. Learned Counsel for the appellants submits that the lower adjudicating authority has not applied his mind and arrived at an erroneous decision based on a circular issued by the Ministry of Finance which is not condonable under law; the material purchased and used by the appellants for poultry feed supplement; they have rightly classified under CTH 23, They relied upon the following cases:
(i) Sun Export Corporation Vs CC 1997 (93) ELT 641 (SC) wherein it was held that supplements of animal feeds which are generally added to the animal feed were also covered by the generic term ‘animal feed’.

(ii) CCE Vs Surendra Cotton Oil Mills & Fert. Co. - 2001 (127) ELT 3 (SC) wherein it was held that animal feed includes animal supplements also.

(iii) Tetrogon Chemie (P) Ltd. Vs CCE - 2001 (138) ELT 414 (Tri.-LB) wherein it was held that vitamin sued for mixing in animal feed will be classified under chapter 23 of CET.

(iv) CC Vs Lal Chand Bhimraj 2007 (220) ELT 189 (Tri.-Chennai) wherein it was held that vitamins mixed with dilutants which are used as an additives to the main feed for livestock are to be considered under Chapter 23.

(v) CCE Vs 2002 (142) ELT 18 (SC) wherein it was held that HSN Explanatory Notes are not only persuasive but are entitled for greater consideration in the classification of the goods.

3. Appellants further contended that Ld. Commissioner (Appeals) though accepted that the issue of speaking order vide Section 17 (5) of the Customs Act, 1962 was mandatory, held some appeals to be barred by time. They relied upon the following cases:

(i) Woods struck Furniture Pvt. Ltd. Vs UOI - 2011 (269) ELT 327 (SC)

(ii) HMT Ltd Vs CC Chennai 2009 (239) ELT 239 (Kar.)

(iii) HDFC Bank Ltd. Vs UOI 2011 (271) ELT 175 (Kar.)

4.1 Learned AR, for the department, reiterates the issues considered while finalizing the provisional assessment and submits that as per general rules of interpretation, when the goods are prima facie classifiable under two or more headings, classification has to be done according to the heading which provides the most specific description than to headings providing a more general description. The case of Tetrogon Chemie (supra) does not refer to yeast and other cases referred by the appellants are not relevant to the present facts of the case. She relies upon the following cases to support that classification of the goods is correct under 2102000:

(i) Kastri Foods and Chemicals Vs CCE 1995 (77) ELT 584 (Tri.-Del.)

(ii) Kasturi Foods and Chemicals Vs CCE 1995 (80) ELT 169 (T)

(iii) Marco India Vs CC Maras 1994 (74) ELT 5 (SC)

4.2 Ld. A.R submits that as per the appellants, the goods cannot be consumed by human beings and merit classification under preparations of a kind used for animal feed and the appellant dependent on the letter issued dt.12.7.2011 by the Central Food Laboratory; the test reports received in the instant case, from CRCL, described the product to be inactive yeast; appellants cannot rely on rejection of sample by CFL stating that the same was not fit for human consumption. She further submits that as in the present case provisional assessment was in terms of Section 18 (1) (b) of Customs Act, 962 and thus, speaking order in terms of Section 17 (5) of Customs Act, 1962 is not required to be issued; further, in terms of Section 128 (1) of Customs Act, 1962 any decision or order passed by officers of Customs can be appealed before the Commissioner (Appeals).

5. Heard both sides and perused the records of the case.

6. The issues that require consideration in this case are (i) Whether in the facts and circumstances of the case, the lower adjudicating authority was required to issue a speaking order in terms of Section 17 (5) of the Customs Act, 1962

(ii) in the absence of such speaking order what could be the relevant date for appeal in terms of Section 128 of Customs Act, 1962

(iii) what is the correct classification of the impugned goods whether under Chapter 21 as contended by the department or under Chapter 23 as contended by the appellant.

7. Coming to the issue of speaking order under Section 17 (5) of the Customs Act, 1962, we find that initial classification claimed by the appellants was rejected by the department and the appellants have also protested the payment of duty. We find that in terms of Section 17 (5) where any reassessment done under sub-section (4) is contrary to the self-assessment done by the importer or exporter regarding valuation of goods, classification, exemption or concessions of duty availed consequent to any notification issued therefor under this Act and in cases other than those where the importer or exporter, as the case may be, confirms his acceptance of the said re-assessment in writing, the proper officer shall pass a speaking order on the re-assessment, within fifteen days from the date of re-assessment of the bill of entry or the shipping bill, as the case may be.

8. On perusal of this provision, it is crystal clear that in cases where the reassessment is done contrary to the assessment done by the importer and where the assessee does not accept such reassessment in writing, the proper officer shall pass a speaking order under reassessment; in the instant case, the appellants have claimed classification under CTH 23099090 whereas the department has assessed under CTH 21022000; therefore, it is evident that the assessment has been done contrary to the claim of the appellant; the appellants have registered protest also; it is not the case of the department that the appellants have accepted the reassessment in writing; therefore, in terms of Section 17 (5) of Customs Act, 1962, the department was under obligation to issue a speaking order. To this extent, we find that the appellant's submissions are sustainable. We also find that Ld. Commissioner (Appeals) has also accepted in principle that the order under Section 17 (5) of the Customs Act, 1962 was mandatory. Therefore, we find that the Ld. Commissioner was not correct in rejecting some of the appeals on the basis of time bar. However, a question arises, under the circumstances, as to what should be the relevant date for the purpose of filing an appeal under Section 128 (1) of Customs Act, 1962, in cases where bills of entry assessments have been finalized contrary to the claims of the appellant and without issue of a speaking order. It could not be the intention of the legislature that the aggrieved party wait indefinitely for such order to be issued before proceeding to appeal. In such cases, the provision of Section 128 (1) themselves take care and by virtue of the provisions, the mere finalization of a Bill of Entry itself becomes an order or communication of the order. Therefore, the appeals are required to be filed in such circumstances within a time period from the date of such reassessment / finalization.

9. Coming to the issue of classification of Enzymes imported by the appellant as to whether the same would be merited classification under heading 21 or under heading 23. We find that headings 2102 and 2309 read as follows:

<thead>
<tr>
<th>Tariff Item</th>
<th>Description of goods</th>
<th>Unit</th>
<th>Rate of duty(%)</th>
<th>Standard Areas</th>
<th>Preferential Areas</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>2102</td>
<td>Yeasts (active or inactive); other single cell micro-organisms, dead (but not including vaccines if heading 3002); prepared baking powders</td>
<td>kg.</td>
<td>30%</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2102 10</td>
<td>Active yeasts:</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>

</tr>
<tr>

<td></td>

</tr>
<tr>

<tr>

<tr>
<td>2102 30</td>

</tr>
<tr>
<td>2102 00</td>
<td>--- Inactive yeasts, other single-cell micro-Organisms, dead</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
On going through the above classification, we find that CTH 2102 covers yeasts (active or inactive); other single cell micro organisms, dead (but not including vaccines of Heading 3002); prepared baking powders and under 8 digit heading 21022000 inactive yeasts, other single-cell micro-organisms dead.

10. Going by the test reports of CRCL, impugned goods are inactive yeast; in view of the explanatory notes to chapter 21 dried yeast is also known as inactive yeast and for that reason inactive yeast is to be considered as dried yeast. We find that appellants have tried to argue that the impugned goods are not fit for human consumption on the basis of CFTRI report and hence do not fall under 2102. However, we find that under chapter sub heading 2102, there is no condition stating that it should be fit for human consumption. Either under 2102 or 21022000, one single dash covers yeasts; other single micro-organisms, dead; prepared baking powders; inactive yeast, other single cell micro organisms, dead. We find that there is no exclusion for yeast which are declared not to fit for human consumption. On the contrary, we find that heading 23.09 has got only two single dashes. One single dash contains dog or cat food, put up for retail sale and the second single dash contains "others" and the various foods and concentrates for animals are listed subsequently. It is clear that the entire heading 2309 talks of preparations of a kind used in animal feeding. By no stretch of imagination the impugned products imported by the appellants are preparations of a kind animal feeding. At the best, they may be used for preparation of animal feeds that is to say that they are raw material used for preparation of animal feed. Therefore, they cannot be classified along with animal feed merely by virtue of the inclusive definition given in the explanatory notes for the heading 2309 CETA.

11. The appellants have greatly relied upon the decision of the Larger Bench in the case of Tetrogone Chemie (supra) wherein the vitamins used for mixing in the animal feed was held to be classified under chapter 23 of CETA. However, we find that this judgment is in respect of Central Excise Tariff Act, 1985; the issue before the Bench was the assessments of Vitamins manufactured by the manufacturers of Animal feed/ supplements; it was rendered in the context of Tariff existing at that time. The present case is about the imports which are to be classified under Customs Tariff Act. Therefore no inference can be drawn from the case cited above. Moreover, we find that note to chapter 23 specifically says that ‘heading 2309 includes products of a kind used in animal feed, not elsewhere specified or included, obtained by processing vegetable or animal materials to such extent that they have lost the essential characteristics of the original material, other than vegetable waste, vegetable residues and by-products of such processing’. Therefore, it is clear that the chapter 23 shall include products of a kind used in animal feed. However, the emphasis that they are not elsewhere included. As submitted by the Ld. A.R and as held by the Commissioner (Appeals) heading 21022000 specifically mentions yeast active or inactive. Therefore, when yeast has a specific mention under heading 2102, that cannot be classified under any other heading under chapter 23 in view of the chapter note mentioned above. Therefore, we find that the classification arrived by the department and upheld by the Ld. Commissioner (Appeals) is consistent with the relevant chapter heading and notes and also general interpretative rules for classification wherein it is specified under rule 3 (a) of Interpretative Rules that the heading which provides most specific description shall be preferred to heading providing a more general description. We find that issue of import of Vitamin "E" 40% to 50% and claimed to be animal feed came before the Tribunal for discussion and that Tribunal in the case of CC Vs Sonam International - 2012 (275) ELT 326 (All.) has come to the conclusion that vitamins imported by the appellants therein are to be classified under 293600 and not under 2302 as 'animal feed supplement' as claimed by the appellants. We further find that in the above case of Sonam International Tribunal has discussed and distinguished the case of Tetragon Chemie (supra) and moreover, it is the later judgment on the issue and directly on the subject of import of similar items. In view of the above, we uphold the classification of impugned goods under CTH 21022000 as assessed by the department and as upheld by the Commissioner (Appeals).

12. In view of the above, we find that to extent of classification of the impugned goods is concerned; the order of the Ld. Commissioner (Appeals) does not require to be interfered with. In the result, we uphold the impugned order in so far as the classification of the impugned goods is concerned. We hold that classification of impugned goods i.e. yeast is correctly arrived by the Revenue under CTH 21022000. Under such circumstances, the appellant’s submissions on the issue of time bar lose relevance in the instant case.

13. In the result the appeals are dismissed in terms of the above discussion.

FINAL ORDER NO. 40071/2020

Per: P Dinesha:

Brief facts are that the appellant filed a Bill-of-Entry No. 6280158 dated 07.05.2018 for the clearance of ‘Closed Circuit Television (CCTV) Cameras’ and since the goods were of Korean origin, the appellant, under the self-assessment scheme, assessed the same at ‘Nil’ rate of Basic Customs Duty (BCD) in terms of Notification No. 152/2009-Cus. (Sl. No. 833) dated 31.12.2009.

1.2 The Assistant Commissioner of Customs/Adjudicating Authority did not accept the nil rate of BCD and hence, charged BCD at the rate of 15% vide Speaking Order issued in F.No.S.Misc.506/2018-Gr.5A- ACC dated 29.06.2018, against which the appellant preferred an appeal before the Commissioner of Customs (Appeals), Chennai and who vide impugned Order-in-Appeal AIR C.Cus I No. 83/2019 dated 26.03.2019 having rejected the appeal, the present appeal has been filed against the same before this forum.

2. When the matter was taken up for hearing, Shri. Hari Radhakrishnan, Learned Advocate, appeared for the assessee-appellant and Ms. Sridevi Taritla, Learned Departmental Representative, appeared for the Revenue-respondent.

3.1 Learned Advocate for the appellant, taking us through the statement of facts, grounds-of-appeal and also documents like the impugned Bill-of-Entry placed in the appeal folder, would inter alia submit that the Adjudicating Authority should have accepted the classification of the CCTV under CTH 8525 8010 itself without re-classifying the same under CTH 8525 8090; that similar goods, imported by another importer under Bill-of-Entry No. 6450438 dated 19.05.2018, were classified under CTH 8525 8010 by the Customs at New Delhi; that the Republic of Korea followed a Harmonized Commodity Description and coding system and the supplier issued the certificate of origin classifying the imported goods under CTH 8525 8010 only, etc.

3.2 Learned Advocate would inter alia further submit that CTH 8525 specifically covered transmission apparatus for radio broadcasting or television, including television camera, digital camera and video camera recorder; that CCTV cameras are neither transmission apparatus nor digital cameras nor video camera recorders and hence, the only item remaining and covered by the tariff heading being television cameras, the impugned CCTV cameras are required to be classified as television cameras only; that there is nothing in the Customs tariff or even the HSN classifying CCTV cameras; that as settled by various decisions cited before the Commissioner (Appeals), the burden of proof was always on the taxing authorities and a mere assertion was of no use, etc.

3.3 Learned Advocate concluded his arguments by submitting that as long as there was no denial that the goods in question was television cameras, either open circuit or closed circuit, it remains as television camera and hence, even the CCTV cameras are required to be classified as television cameras only; and hence, the appellant rightly claimed the classification under CTH 8525 8010 which is a specific entry for television camera, which was also supported by the certificate of country of origin and also a similar classification by the Delhi Customs.

4. Per contra, Learned Departmental Representative appearing for the Revenue supported the findings of the lower authorities. She also submitted that the basic functionality of a CCTV camera is for the purposes of surveillance whereas a television camera is used as a transmission apparatus for radio broadcasting or television; that subject to the typical functioning of each apparatus, classification has been provided and that CCTV cameras not figuring anywhere in the specific categories, has been rightly brought under “Other” under CTH 8525 8090.

5. We have heard both sides, perused the impugned Bill-of-Entry No. 6280158 dated 07.05.2018 placed on record and have also gone through the relevant HSN Explanatory Note and Notification No. 152/2009-Cus. (supra). During the hearing, Learned Advocate for the appellant also placed on record the certificate of origin issued by the exporter which is dated 19.11.2019.

6.1 The impugned Bill-of-Entry No. 6280158 dated 07.05.2018 filed by the appellant itself contains the CTH as 8525 8090. The appellant has also placed on record various other Bills-of-Entry like Bill-of-Entry No. 6450438 dated 19.05.2018 which were classified under CTH 8525 8010. The descriptions of the goods given under Bill-of-Entry No. 6280158 are “KAP-CCTV CAMERA-CCTV SYSTEM EQUIPMENTS”, “KAP-NETWORK VIDEO RECORDER-CCTV SYSTEM EQUIPMENTS”, “AJ-CCTV CAMERA-CCTV SYSTEM EQUIPMENTS” and “AJ-DIGITAL VIDEO RECORDER-CCTV SYSTEM EQUIPMENTS” and the descriptions of the goods under Bill-of-Entry No. 6450438 are “KAP-CCTV CAMERA-(CCTV SYSTEM EQUIPMENTS)”, “AJ DIGITAL RECORDER-(CCTV SYSTEM EQUIPMENTS)”, “AJ DIGITAL VIDEO RECORDER-(CCTV SYSTEM EQUIPMENTS)”, “AJ CCTV CAMERA-(CCTV SYSTEM EQUIPMENTS)”, “KAP NETWORK VIDEO RECORDER-(CCTV SYSTEM EQUIPMENTS)”, “KAP NETWORK VIDEO RECORDER-(CCTV SYSTEM EQUIPMENTS)”. The appellant has also placed on record the Bills-of-Entry of the other importer viz. M/s. Honeywell International India Pvt. Ltd. at pages 39 to 46 of the Appeal Memorandum and the descriptions of the goods are “AJ (CCTV CAMERA) (WIRED)”, “AJ (DIGITAL VIDEO RECORDER) (VIDEO DUPLICATING SYSTEM WITH MASTER AND SLAVE CONTROL)” and “AJ (DIGITAL VIDEO RECORDER) (NETWORK DUPLICATING SYSTEM WITH MASTER AND SLAVE CONTROL)”

6.2 A close look at the above Bills-of-Entry reveals that there are differences as regards the descriptions of the imported goods are concerned. In any case, there is no dispute that the appellant itself had classified under CTH 8525 8090 in its Bill-of-Entry under dispute and thereby effectively prevented the Revenue from questioning further.

7. From the HSN Note read with the Customs Tariff Heading 8525, we find that there is no entry specifically for CCTV cameras and it is nowhere even hinted that CCTV cameras, which according to the appellant are neither digital cameras nor video camera recorders, would fall under the category of television cameras itself and hence, this argument of the assessee cannot be accepted. For these reasons, they cannot be classified under television camera, but rightly under "Others" for the period in dispute, since we cannot add or substitute our views/opinions, to negate Revenue’s classification, just to go with appellant’s claim which is based only on arguments.
8. Therefore, we do not see any merit in the appeal and hence the same is rejected.

2. The appellants herein had imported goods and paid Special Additional Duty @ 4% as applicable to the goods. In terms of Notification No.102/2007-Cus. dt. 14.09.2007 read with Notification No.93/2008 dt. 01.08.2008, the assessee are entitled to refund of Special Additional Duty (SAD) paid if the imported goods are thereafter sold by them on payment of VAT subject to the conditions mentioned in the notification. One of the conditions mentioned in the notification as applicable during the relevant time was that the refund claim must be filed within one year. Undisputedly, the appellants have filed all these refund claims after the period of one year. Therefore, all the refund claims were rejected by the original authorities and such rejections were upheld by the first appellate authority vide the impugned orders. Hence these appeals.

3. It is the case of the appellants that once the they are entitled to benefit of refund of SAD, they should not be denied the same on the ground that they have filed the refund claim after the period of one year indicated in the exemption notification. They rely upon the judgement of the Hon’ble High Court of Delhi in the case of Sony India Pvt. Ltd. Vs CC reported in 2014 (304) ELT 660 (Del.) in which the Hon’ble High Court has held that the limitation of one year should not apply in case of SAD refunds. The same ratio was followed by the Hon’ble High Court of Delhi in 2017 in the case of Gulati Sales Corporation reported in 2018.
4. Per contra, the Ld. D.R reiterates the findings of the lower authorities and asserts that if the exemption is claimed, all the conditions therein must apply in full force and therefore if the application is filed after one year, the appellants are not entitled to refund. Therefore, there is no force in the appeals and therefore they may be rejected. Ld. D.R relies on the judgment of Hon’ble High Court of Bombay with respect to SAD refunds in W.P. No.388 of 2016 in the case of CMS INFO Systems Ltd. Vs Union of India - 2017 (349) ELT 236 (Bom.) in which the Hon’ble High Court of Bombay has held that the importer has no vested right of refund and it flows only from the exemption notification and therefore all conditions of the exemption notification apply. Hence a refund claim filed after the period of one year is not admissible.

5. Both sides fairly submit that there is no decision of the jurisdictional High Court of this Bench. Both the aforesaid judgments have been appealed against before the Supreme Court. Revenue challenged the judgment of the High Court of Delhi in the case of Sony India Pvt. Ltd. (supra) and the Hon’ble Supreme Court has dismissed the appeal on grounds of delay leaving the question of law open. The importer appealed against the judgment of the Hon’ble High Court of Bombay in the case of CMS INFO Systems Ltd. (supra) which has been admitted by the Hon’ble Apex Court but not stayed.

6. Before proceeding to decide the matter, it would be profitable to examine the relevant legal provisions. Duties of Customs are levied under Section 12 of the Customs Act, 1962 at such rates as may be specified under the Customs Tariff Act, 1975 on the goods imported into or exported from India. Such levy can be based on quantity of the goods (specific rate of duty) or their value (advalorem) as indicated in the tariff. The Customs Tariff Act, 1975 itself provides for levy of various types of customs duties such as Basic Customs Duty, Additional Duty of Customs, Countervailing Duty as well as Special Additional Duty which is the duty in dispute. The duty so leviable under the Customs Tariff must be read along with any exemption notifications which are issued under Section 25 of the Customs Act, 1962. This section empowers the Central Government to grant exemption notifications either fully or partially and either conditionally or unconditionally. Thus, if goods are imported into India or exported from it, Customs duties are leviable as per the Schedules to the Customs Tariff Act, 1975 read with any applicable exemption notifications.

7. Exemption notifications, either full or partial, will apply to all imports/exports, if they are unconditional. If the exemption notification is conditional it applies to such imports/exports where the conditions for exemptions are fulfilled and not otherwise. Usually, the fulfillment of conditions of the exemption notification can be ascertained at the time of imports itself. There are other notifications where the conditions may have to be fulfilled post-importation. Wherever the conditions have to be fulfilled post-importation, some mechanism is laid down in the notification itself to ensure that the conditions are fulfilled such as execution of a bond, production of end-user certificates, verification by the Central Excise officers, etc. In this particular exemption notification No.102/97 (as amended), the mechanism which has been laid down is that after importing the goods on payment of applicable duties including the Special Additional Duty of Customs, if the importer sells the goods after paying appropriate amount of VAT to the State Government, they are entitled to refund of SAD. For the period 14.09.2007 upto 01.08.2008 no time limit within which an application for refund can be filed was prescribed. An amendment was made vide Notification 93/2008 dt. 1.8.2008 introducing a time limit of one year from the payment of Special Additional Duty of Customs to file refund claims. The relevant exemption notifications before and after this period are as below:

(Notification No. 102/2007-Cus., dated 14-9-2007)

"Exemption from special CVD to all goods imported for subsequent sale when VAT/Sales Tax paid by importer. - In exercise of the powers conferred by sub-section (1) of section 25 of the Customs Act, 1962 (52 of 1962), the Central Government, on being satisfied that it is necessary in the public interest so to do, hereby exempts the goods falling within the First Schedule to the Customs Tariff Act, 1975 (51 of 1975) when imported into India for subsequent sale, from the whole of the additional duty of customs leviable thereon under sub-section (5) of section 3 of the said Customs Tariff Act (hereinafter referred to as the said additional duty).

2. The exemption contained in this notification shall be given effect if the following conditions are fulfilled:

(a) the importer of the said goods shall pay all duties, including the said additional duty of customs leviable thereon, as applicable, at the time of importation of the goods.

(b) the importer, while issuing the invoice for sale of the said goods, shall specifically indicate in the invoice that in respect of the goods covered therein, no credit of the additional duty of customs levied under sub-section (5) of section 3 of the Customs Tariff Act, 1975 shall be admissible;

(c) the importer shall file a claim for refund of the said additional duty of customs paid on the imported goods with the jurisdictional customs officer;

(d) the importer shall pay on sale of the said goods, appropriate sales tax or value added tax, as the case may be;

(e) the importer shall, inter alia, provide copies of the following documents along with the refund claim:

   - (i) document evidencing payment of the said additional duty;

   - (ii) invoices of sale of the imported goods in respect of which refund of the said additional duty is claimed;

   - (iii) documents evidencing payment of appropriate sales tax or value added tax, as the case may be, by the importer, on sale of such imported goods.

3. The jurisdictional customs officer shall sanction the refund on satisfying himself that the conditions referred to in para 2 above, are fulfilled.

(Notification No. 102/2007-Cus., dated 14-9-2007)

"Exemption from special CVD to all goods imported for subsequent sale when VAT/Sales Tax paid by importer. - In exercise of the powers conferred by sub-section (1) of section 25 of the Customs Act, 1962 (52 of 1962), the Central Government, on being satisfied that it is necessary in the public interest so to do, hereby exempts the goods falling within the First Schedule to the Customs Tariff Act, 1975 (51 of 1975) when imported into India for subsequent sale, from the whole of the additional duty of customs leviable thereon under sub-section (5) of section 3 of the said Customs Tariff Act (hereinafter referred to as the said additional duty).

2. The exemption contained in this notification shall be given effect if the following conditions are fulfilled:

(a) the importer of the said goods shall pay all duties, including the said additional duty of customs leviable thereon, as applicable, at the time of importation of the goods;

(b) the importer, while issuing the invoice for sale of the said goods, shall specifically indicate in the invoice that in respect of the goods covered therein, no credit of the additional duty of customs levied under sub-section (5) of section 3 of the Customs Tariff Act, 1975 shall be admissible;

(c) the importer shall file a claim for refund of the said additional duty of customs paid on the imported goods with the jurisdictional customs officer before the expiry of one year from the date of payment of the said additional duty of customs;

(d) the importer shall pay on sale of the said goods, appropriate sales tax or value added tax, as the case may be;
(e) the importer shall, inter alia, provide copies of the following documents along with the refund claim:

- (i) document evidencing payment of the said additional duty;
- (ii) invoices of sale of the imported goods in respect of which refund of the said additional duty is claimed;
- (iii) documents evidencing payment of appropriate sales tax or value added tax, as the case may be, by the importer, on sale of such imported goods.

3. The jurisdictional customs officer shall sanction the refund on satisfying himself that the conditions referred to in para 2 above, are fulfilled.

8. The Customs Act, 1962 itself also provides for a mechanism for refund of Customs duties paid in excess. Any person who claims refund of duty of customs will have to follow the procedure prescribed under Section 27 of the Customs Act, 1962 which also has a time limit of one year for claiming refund of customs duties.

9. In the case of Sony India Pvt. Ltd. (supra), the Hon’ble High Court of Delhi framed the question of law as follows:

“The question of law that arises for determination in this appeal is can the period of limitation for preferring refund claims specified in the amending notification No.93/2008-Cus. be made applicable with retrospective effect, in absence of a limitation period in the original Notification No.102/2007-Cus. in respect of the goods imported prior to the issue of the amending notification”.

10. After examining the question of law framed the Hon’ble High Court of Delhi answered it in favour of the assessee and against the Revenue and allowed the appeal. Though the question of law framed was only with respect to such consignments which were imported prior to the amending Notification No.93/2008-Cus. and sold after that date and refund claims filed, the Hon’ble High Court of Delhi has also held that provisions of Section 27 (including limitation therein) of the Customs Act, in relation to refund do not apply to SAD cases. Further, the Hon’ble High Court of Delhi has also observed that w.e.f. 1.8.2008, the amending notification has introduced a time limit for claiming refund and that limitation cannot be inserted through a subordinate legislation because it is question of substantive rights of the importer and a statutory amendment is required for that purpose.

11. The Hon’ble High Court of Bombay in the case of CMS INFO Systems Ltd. (supra) considered the above judgment of the Hon’ble High Court of Delhi and differed from it. The Hon’ble High Court of Bombay observed that in terms of Section 3 (5) of the Customs Tariff Act, the provisions of Customs Act and the rules and mechanisms for refund apply to any claim of refund of SAD. Therefore, Section 27 of the Customs Act, 1962 including the time limit of one year applies. Further, the amended notification has also introduced a limitation for seeking refund. Particularly, the Hon’ble Bombay High Court also held that this is an exemption granted and it is conditional. The exemption being conditional, it is not permissible to pick and choose the convenient conditions of the exemption notification and leave out those which are onerous and excessive. The Hon’ble High Court further held that but for the exemption notification, there is no right of refund vested with the importer. Para-33 of this judgment is reproduced below:

“33. It is submitted that the Hon’ble High Court of Delhi has clearly opined and held that the provisions of the Customs Act on the rules and mechanism for refund are incorporated by reference in Section 3(5) of the CTA only “so far as may be” applicable. Since SADC is levied under Section 3(5) and that is refundable only on subsequent sale, then, no limitation period can possibly be imposed for advancing a refund claim. We have carefully perused the above observations and in the light of the analysis of the statutory provisions and the scheme of refund by us, with greatest respect, we are unable to agree with the High Court of Delhi on this point. The Rules and Regulations under the provisions of the Customs Act, 1962, including those relating to drawback, refund and exemption shall so far as may be applied and this reveals that for the purposes of making an application seeking refund, its consideration, that Customs Act and its provisions are made applicable even to the Tariff Act and the duties mentioned thereunder. Therefore, a provision for drawback, refund and exemption from such duties can be made by relying on the Customs Act, 1962. The power to refund is to be found in Section 27 of the Customs Act, 1962, and that was always there. The amendment to the notification introducing a limitation for seeking refund apart, Section 27 with its condition of a limitation period was throughout on the statute book. That is the only provision enabling granting refund of any duty is undisputed. The notification granting exemption and under consideration in the case, enables claiming a refund of duty (SAD) but the power to grant it is in the substantive law. Precisely, that is the case herein. Further, we find that there is an exemption granted and which is conditional. The exemption being conditional, it is not permissible to pick and choose convenient conditions of the exemption notification and leave out those which to parties like the petitioners, appear to be onerous and excessive. We do not see how in the teeth of a clear provision in the exemption notification can the assessee/petitioners before us contend that the exemption notification is valid for everything else but when it comes to period of limitation therein, that is excessive or unfair, unjust and arbitrary. Once the exemption is conditional, then, all the conditions therein have to be complied with. If that provides for refund, but the application in that behalf is to be made within a specified period, then, that cannot be said to be excessive and arbitrary, far from being unfair, unjust and unreasonable. It cannot be termed illegal as well for the simple reason that subsection (1) of Section 27 of the Customs Act, 1962, which enables claiming of refund by making an application itself speaks of one year outer limit. That is never challenged, including in the present proceedings. That the period of one year commences from the payment of the duty. If that is how Section 27 is worded and every duty is included in its ambit and scope, then, an application seeking refund of the same has to abide by it, including the bar of limitation contained therein. That is how consistent with that provision even the special exemption notification carries the same stipulation or condition. We do not see how insistence on complying with it can be said to be imposing an unreasonable, unfair and unjust restriction. Once the nature of the right is considered, then, all the more we are unable to agree with Mr. Patil. There is no vested, much less absolute right in the petitioners to seek refund. Even a refund must be within the framework of the statute and admissible on the terms thereof. We are not inclined to agree with him that compliance with this period is calling upon the petitioner to do or perform something which is impossible. The exemption notification does not impose any new condition as has been read into it. It grants the exemption from payment of duty conditionally. The exemption can be availed of provided the goods which are imported are subject to payment of duties which include all the duties that are referred to in both the enactment and the notification. If the import is for subsequent sale, then, that invoice must carry a stipulation that no credit for the additional duty of customs shall be admissible. The importer thereafter can file a claim for refund of the additional duty of customs paid on the imported goods before the expiry of one year from the date of payment of additional duty of customs.”

At this stage, it may also be pointed that the Hon’ble High Court of Bombay was dealing in the aforesaid case with imports post-amendment vide Notification No.93/2008-Cus. as opposed to the case of Sony India dealt with by Hon’ble High Court of Delhi in which imports were made prior to the amendment.

12. In view of the above legal position and factual matrix, Ld. Counsel for the appellants submits that the position of law enunciated by the Hon’ble High Court of Delhi in the case of Sony India Pvt. Ltd. (supra) is correct and proper and must be applied and therefore they are entitled to refund of SAD paid by them even though they filed the refund claims after limitation period of one year and all these cases pertain to post-amendment to the notification. He asserts that the legal position enunciated by the Hon’ble High Court of Bombay is not correct. He also points out that in the case of Gulati Sales Corporation [2018 (360) ELT 277 (Del.)], the Hon’ble High Court of Delhi dealt with a case of importation post amendment of Notification No.102/2007-Cus. and still held that the limitation of time of one year for filing the refunds does not apply.
13. Per contra, Ld. D.R asserts that an exemption notification must be read as it has been drafted with no intendments or modifications. He further submits that in the case of Sony India (supra), the Hon'ble High Court of Delhi was dealing with a case, as may be seen from the question of law framed, whether the goods were imported prior to introduction of the limitation for refund but the refund claim was filed after introduction of the limitations. The present cases are similar to the cases dealt with by the Hon'ble High Court of Bombay in CMS INFO Systems Ltd. (supra) as all imports were done after the introduction of the limitation period. He further asserts that even if the limitation of one year under the amended notification is read down as held by the Hon'ble High Court of Delhi then in terms of Section 3 (5) of the Customs Tariff Act, 1975 all provisions of Customs Act will apply including provisions of refund under Section 27. Therefore, no refund can be sanctioned beyond the period of one year. Lastly, he argued that the entire question is one of interpretation and application of the exemption notification with respect to the imported goods. In this particular exemption notification, the exemption is made available by way of refund after ensuring that the required conditions are met. Hence it is one of interpreting the exemption notification. The Hon'ble High Court of Delhi has taken a more liberal, purposive interpretation of the exemption notification and held that its benefit cannot be denied simply because the importer is not able to complete his subsequent sale and avail the exemption notification within the time period prescribed. On the other hand, the Hon'ble High Court of Bombay has constructed the exemption notification strictly and held that a conditional exemption notification must be viewed along with all the conditions therein and it is not open for the importer to pick and choose which conditions they would fulfill and which they would not. So the root of the case is one of interpretation of an exemption notification.

14. He fairly submits that a large number of decisions by various judicial fora including the Hon'ble Apex Court taking both liberal and strict interpretation in different judgments. In view of the conflicting judgments, the matter was referred to a Five-Judge Constitutional Bench of the Supreme Court in the case of Commissioner of Customs (Import) Mumbai Vs Dilip Kumar & Company reported in 2018 (361) ELT 577 (SC). Para 52 & 53 of the this judgement were as follows :

"52. To sum up, we answer the reference holding as under -

(1) Exemption notification should be interpreted strictly; the burden of proving applicability would be on the assessee to show that his case comes within the parameters of the exemption clause or exemption notification.

(2) When there is ambiguity in exemption notification which is subject to strict interpretation, the benefit of such ambiguity cannot be claimed by the subject/assessee and it must be interpreted in favour of the revenue.

(3) The ratio in Sun Export case (supra) is not correct and all the decisions which took similar view as in Sun Export case (supra) stands overruled.

53. The instant civil appeal may now be placed before appropriate Bench for considering the case on merits after obtaining orders from the Hon'ble Chief Justice of India."

15. He would assert that the Hon'ble Apex Court has finally put to rest the question of interpretation of exemption notification. It is now the law of the land that exemption notifications should be interpreted strictly and the burden of proving applicability would be on the assessee to show that his goods comes within the parameters of the exemption notification and in case of any ambiguity, the matter must be decided in favour of the Revenue and against the assessee. He would further draw the attention of the Bench that the judgment of Hon'ble High Court of Delhi in the case of Sony India Pvt. Ltd. (supra) was delivered on 16.04.2014 while the judgment of Hon'ble High Court of Mumbai was delivered on 19.12.2016. The judgment of the Constitutional Bench of the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Dilip Kumar & Company (supra) finally laying down the law was passed on 30.07.2018. Therefore, this judgment prevails over earlier decisions of the Hon'ble High Court of Delhi.

16. We have considered the arguments on both sides and perused the records. The provisions for refund of Customs duty available under the Customs Act is... under Section 27. The Hon'ble High Court of Delhi in the case of Sony India Pvt. Ltd. (supra) held that this section should not apply to refund of SAD because the refund is as per the Notification. The Hon'ble High Court of Delhi was dealing with a situation where there was no limitation in the exemption notifications for filing the refund claim at the time of import but which was introduced by the time refund claim was filed. The Hon'ble High Court of Bombay, on the other hand, was dealing with a case such as the present one, where the imports have taken place after the amending notification. The Hon'ble High Court of Bombay also held that the limitation under Section 27 also applies. We find that the Hon'ble High Court of Delhi framed the question of law only with respect to retrospective application of the amendment but also held that the amending notification must be read down to the extent it imposes a time limit for filing the refund claim. Evidently, if an importer resells the goods and files the refund claim within the period, they will be put to loss as he will be bearing both the burden of SAD and the VAT which he would pay while selling the goods. The Hon'ble High Court of Bombay on the other hand held that it is not open for the importer to pick and choose parts of the exemption notification that suits while ignoring those that don't. The Hon'ble High Court of Bombay also held that Special Additional Duty of Customs is also in the nature of customs duty and it is not a duty on sale of goods. It further held that the importer does not have any vested, let alone absolute right, for refund of the SAD. We also note that the Hon'ble High Court of Bombay has considered the judgment of the Hon'ble Delhi High Court in the case of Sony India Pvt. Ltd. (supra) and differed from it. Further, in the case of Gulati Sales Corporation [2018 (360) ELT 277 (Del.)] decided by the Hon'ble High Court of Delhi on 07.11.2017, the ratio of Sony India (supra) was followed even when the imports were made after amendment to the notification. Nevertheless the undisputed position is that this is a case of a refund arising out of a conditional notification.

17. To sum up, we find that the Hon'ble High Court of Delhi has taken a liberal view on interpreting the exemption notification and held that since the purpose of availing the SAD is to provide level playing field between the imported goods and the domestic goods, when the imported goods are resold on payment of VAT to the State Government, the exemption notification provides for refund of SAD. It may or may not be always possible for the importer to resell the goods and file the refund claim within time depending on his market conditions. Taking a liberal view, the Hon'ble High Court held that refund is available without the limitation of one year indicated in the exemption Notification 102/97 after amendment. On the other hand, the Hon'ble Bombay High Court has constructed the exemption notification strictly and held that all conditions including the time limit within which the refund claim has to be filed must be fulfilled. We also find that there is no order of the jurisdictional High Court of Madras. However, the question of strict versus liberal interpretations of the exemption notifications has now finally been settled by the judgment of the Constitutional Bench of the Hon'ble Apex Court on 30th July 2018 in the case of Dilip Kumar & Company (supra), any exemption notification must be strictly interpreted and any benefit of doubt must go in favour of the Revenue and against the assessee. Contrary decisions such as those in the case of Sun Export Corporation VS Collector [1997 (93) ELT 641 (SC)] have been overruled by the aforesaid Five-Judge Constitutional Bench. Judicial discipline requires us to follow the judgment of the Apex Court and interpret the exemption notification strictly as it has been drafted including the time limit within which refund applications have to be filed. We find that the judgment of the Hon'ble High Court of Bombay in the case of CMS INFO System (supra) is consistent and appropriate, syncs well with the ratio of Dilip Kumar's case (supra), which is required to be followed.

18. Consequently, the refund applications of the importer beyond the time limit have been correctly rejected by the lower authorities. The impugned orders rejecting such refund claims are correct in law and call for no interference. The appeals are rejected and impugned orders are upheld.

(Order pronounced in open court on 26.09.2019)
Brief facts are that based on intelligence, the officers of Customs Preventive Unit, Salem intercepted one load Auto near railway station, Salem and found to carry five parcels packed in plastic sacks amidst other parcels. Consignment name was mentioned as "VENKATESH SLM with the Phone Number". On suspicion, the parcel along with the vehicle was brought to the office of Customs Preventive Unit, Salem. The driver of the auto Shri Rajasekaran stated that the parcels were meant to be delivered to Shri Venkatesh of Salem. The said Venkatesh, courier agent, was asked to appear before the officers. He appeared with four other persons to whom the parcels were intended to be delivered, namely, S/Shri Indarchand, K. Srinivasan, Hariganesan and Mahendran. These 5 parcels were opened in the presence of independent witnesses and found to contain 101.36 kgs. of silver granules/bars/leg chains etc., along with airway bills of M/s. Green Dart Courier, Chennai. Out of 101.36 kgs of silver found in the parcels, 60 kgs. was in the nature of silver granules and intended to be delivered to Shri M. Mahendran. The present dispute is confined to the said 60 kgs. of silver granules only relating to airway bill no.323030/26.06.2013 on which sender s name is shown as ‘PJ’ and recipient address as Mahendran.

1.1 The parcel consigned to Mahendran had three boxes. These three boxes had two carton boxes in each box. Hence there were totally six carton boxes which contained silver granules had markings with serial numbers as Made in Korea ‘999.9’,along with lot numbers .Each carton box was found to contain 10 kg of silver granules and thus there was total quantity of 60 kg of silver granules. The description is as under:

1.2 The purity of the silver granules was assayed and found to be 99.8/99.7. The officers on belief that the silver granules were of foreign origin and as there was no documents to support the payment of duty or legal import, detained the silver granules and initiated investigations. The appellant herein Sri Gaurav Agarwal, claimed the ownership of the silver granules and stated that he sent the silver granules to Shri Mahendran, who is the Proprietor of M/s. Vignesh Payal, Salem for making leg chains. Though, the appellant Shri Gaurav Agarwal furnished documents and also gave statement claiming the silver, the department was of the view that the silver being foreign origin and that the appellant not been able to establish the duty paid on the said silver or legal import, is smuggled in nature. Show-cause notice was issued to the appellant proposing confiscation of the silver as well as for imposing penalties under various provisions of the Customs Act, 1962. After due process of law, the original authority confirmed the confiscation and imposed penalty of Rs.5 lakhs on the appellant under section 112(a) of the Customs Act, 1962. In appeal, Commissioner (Appeals) upheld the same. Hence this appeal.

2.0 On behalf of the appellant, the learned counsel Shri B. Satish Sundar appeared and argued the matter. He explained the facts of the case and furnished chart giving the dates and narration of incidents as under:

9.12.2015 Appeal filed before the appellate authority

23.6.2016 The appellate authority namely the Commissioner of Customs (Appeals), Trichy rejects the appeal.

29.9.2016 Appellant deposits balance 2.5% of the penalty amount and prefers appeal to this Hon'ble Tribunal.

2.1 Contentions :-
1. The consistent stand of the appellant is that the silver under seizure are not of foreign origin, which is reflected in his first statement dated 17.8.2013. Further, on assayment, the purity of the silver is shown to be 99.80 and 99.77. Therefore, even on the face of the records, there is no material to show that the silver bars / granules under seizure were smuggled so as to warrant absolute confiscation.

2. The only finding of the original authority as confirmed by the appellate authority is that the packings had markings "made in Korea" with lot numbers and appear to be company packed having high purity and uniform dimension besides shiny finish. The original authority further finds that L.S.NIKKO is a reputed manufacturer of silver bullion. So on the basis of these materials which are merely in the nature of suspicion, the authorities below without making any inquiry finds that the silver seized is of foreign origin and therefore smuggled.

3. The aforesaid findings are presumptive and on mere assumption and presumptions. The authorities below have not given any credence to the accounts books like ledgers, vouchers, sales bills besides confirmation from the sellers produced by the appellant and also his initial statement to the effect that the silver seized were stock in trade which was sent from Mathura to Salem for making silver leg chains. In light of the extensive defence and materials produced by the appellant to show that the silver in question was part of stock in trade which was sent for job work, the burden if any under section 123 stands discharged, and cannot be invoked. Therefore, the findings of the original authority as confirmed by the appellate authority that original packings had foreign markings, silver granules and prohibited goods and no evidence has been produced to show it is not smuggled, differing stands and books of accounts which cannot be correlated require to be rejected at the hands of this Hon'ble Tribunal for the reason that burden under section 123 is rebuttable and enough and more materials have been placed by the appellant to show that the silver granules under seizure were part of stock in trade which has been acquired in his business and sent for job work.

4. The larger question which arises is whether the authorities below are right in invoking section 123 of the Customs Act, 1962. This issue which relates to silver bullion of quantities less than 100 kgs. having no foreign markings and not in the form of 30 Kgs. bar has been considered by the CBEC vide Circular dated 11.6.1990 in which if seizure is of silver bullion, meets the above criteria, then section 123 should not be invoked. Admittedly, in the present case, the seized quantity is only 60 kgs. and the silver bars do not have any foreign markings and are not of 30 kgs bars and therefore the burden cannot be cast on the appellant in terms of section 123. The very same issue has come up for consideration before this Hon'ble Tribunal in a number of cases of which the following is relied:-

a. 2001 (131) ELT 198 (Tri. Chennai)
b. 2001 (132) ELT 192 (Tri. Chennai) affirmed in 2009 (238) ELT A 166 (SC)
c. 2005 (191) ELT 1103 (Tri. Kol.)
d. 2005 (179) ELT 110 (Tri. Chennai)
e. 2009 (239) ELT 427 (Tri. All.)
f. 2009 (243) ELT 74 (Tri. Chennai)
g. 2001 (133) ELT 668 (Tri. Kol.) affirmed in 2014 (312) ELT 17 (SC)
h. 2017 (354) ELT 666 (Tri. Chennai)

5. Mere lustre and markings on the packings cannot be a criteria to hold that the seized silver is of foreign origin and smuggled. The appellant relies on judgment of the Hon'ble Tribunal in 2015 (324) ELT 162 (Tri.). Thus, in light of the aforesaid facts and the contentions raised by the appellant, including the ratio of the case laws cited above, it has to be held that the seized silver bars are not confiscable.

6. The appellant therefore prays that this Hon'ble Tribunal may be pleased to accept the appeal by allowing the same setting aside the order of confiscation.
7. The main argument put forth by the learned counsel is that the seizure of the silver is against the Board Circular, dated 11.06.1990. According to him, on 08.06.1990 silver was notified under section 123 of the Customs Act, 1962. The Board has issued circular stating that the seizure cannot be effected of silver which is less than 100 kgs. So also, only such silver, which has foreign markings, when the said quantity is of 30kgs in nature of bar. The present silver seized by the department is in the nature of granules, which is less than 100 kgs. It does not bear any foreign markings. The markings seen on the packings/cartons has been explained by the appellant Shri Gaurav Agarwal. He had purchased the said cartons/packings from street in Chennai and used the same for packing and sending the silver for job work. The silver granules was purchased by the appellant from various silver dealers in Mathura. The bills showing the purchase from the said silver dealers have also been produced. The books of accounts of the appellants show the purchases, which was also shown before the authorities. None of the documents was given any weightage by the department.

2.2 The learned counsel relied upon various judgments as discussed below:

(1) N.S. Allaudeen Vs Commissioner of Customs, Trichy reported in 2001 (13a) E.L.T.198 (Tri.-Chennai).

The learned counsel submitted that the fact of the case is that the silver seized was in the nature of bars and though had foreign markings weighing less than 30 kgs. The Tribunal had applied the Board’s Circular and held that confiscation and seizure cannot sustain.

(2) K.N. Easwaran Vs Commissioner of Customs, Trichy reported in 2001 (132) E.L.T.192 (Tri.-Chennai)

This case was relied upon by the learned counsel to argue that when seizure of silver was 69 kgs. and in the nature of bars, which did not have foreign markings, the Tribunal held Board’s Circular would apply and confiscation set aside. The said decision was accepted by the Hon’ble High Court of Madras and the appeal filed by the department was withdrawn.

(3) Ganesh Prosad Vs Commissioner of Customs, Patna reported in 2009 (191) E.L.T.1103 (Tri.-Kolkata).

The learned counsel relied upon the above decision to argue that the circular was given effect to when the seizure of the silver was less than 100 kgs. without foreign markings.

(4) Murarilal Agarwal Vs Commissioner of Central Excise, Trichy reported in 2005 (179) E.L.T.110 (Tri.-Chennai).

The learned counsel relied upon the decision of the Larger Bench of the Tribunal wherein the applicability of the Board’s circular was also discussed. The said order was affirmed by the Hon’ble High Court of Allahabad as reported in 2009 (239) E.L.T. 427 (All.).

(5) Naqsood Alam Vs Commissioner of Customs, Lucknow reported in 2015 (324) E.L.T.162 (Tri.-Del.)

The learned counsel stressed that even though the cartons /packing has foreign markings this cannot be the criteria to decide whether the goods inside the cartons are of foreign origin.

3.0 The learned Authorized Representative for the Revenue Ms. T. Ushadevi, DC (AR) appeared and argued on behalf of the department. She first referred to the circular relied upon by the learned counsel for the appellant. It is submitted by her that in the said circular, it is mentioned that if the silver bullion is found to be in the form of bar weighting 30 kgs and bears foreign markings, the same can be subject to seizure by officers. In the present case, the silver granules packed in cartons had foreign markings and, therefore, the circular does not apply to the appellant. She submitted that the circular does not say that it should be a single bar weighing 30 kgs with foreign markings. Seizure can be affected if it weighs 30 kgs. and also if bullion is with foreign markings. In the present case, the silver was not in the nature of bars but it was in the nature of bullion. Further, packing materials also showed that the silver was manufactured in Korea. She referred to the scanned copy of the packings/carton boxes, to point out that the name of manufacturer, date of the manufacture, the lot nos. as well as the purity is mentioned on the packing boxes. Further, the boxes were factory sealed. The appellant states that he has purchased the boxes from roadside at Chennai and had handed over the boxes for packing to M/s. Green Dart Courier. This is false and unbelievable. Further, Shri Raju, Proprietor of M/s. Green Dart Courier stated that the sender is Shri. Muralidhran, M/s. BBT and M/s. PJ and the goods in parcels were declared as automobile spare parts. The sender or the consignee is not the appellant herein. The parcel was addressed to Shri Venkatesh and therefore the claim of the appellant that he send the silver for job work cannot be true. The statement of Shri Raju read along with the fact that the cartons were bearing foreign markings along with seal and details of the manufacture would establish that the silver is of foreign origin. Apart from this, the assayer has certified that it has 99.8/99.7 % purity. The purity noted on the packings is 99.9%. The minor difference of 0.1-0.2% per carat is of no consequence. The quantity mentioned on the carton boxes is 10 Kgs., and the very same quantity of silver was found in polythene bags, kept inside these carton boxes.

3.1 The foreign company mentioned on these carton boxes is a manufacturer of silver bullion including granules. She adverted to para 30 of the show-cause notice, wherein, the department has referred to another case, of which the facts show that, on 02.02.2013, the officers of CPU had intercepted vehicle carrying 15 kgs. Silver of granules each weighing 10 Kgs. The said silver granules were of identical brand, Country of Origin and weighing 10 Kgs. In the said case, the purchaser Shri. Shiv Sahai of Salem produced the documents including airway bill in support of the imported silver granules. This would go to show that the said manufacturer in Korea is engaged in manufacturing and dealing of silver granules which are imported to India. The packing/carton boxes seized in the present case, should therefore be considered as foreign markings of the silver granules. The circular, therefore, does not apply.

3.2 Further the appellants have not been able to show that they have obtained the silver by legitimate import. Though they have produced invoices of several silver dealers, the department had obtained letters from such silver dealers, wherein, it was stated that they have not supplied granules but sold only silver bars. The said letters are part of the relied upon documents. The judgments relied by learned counsel are not applicable to the facts of the present case. The decision of Maqsood Alam (supra) will not apply to the facts of the case since the goods involved there in is betel nuts and not notified goods under the Customs Act. The department has established that the goods seized are illegally imported and not subject to Customs duty and, therefore, the confiscation and penalty imposed are legal and proper.

4.0 Heard both sides.

5.0 The learned counsel for the appellant has placed the arguments mainly relying upon the Circular of the Board dated 11.06.1990. For better appreciation, the said Circular is reproduced as under:

"Silver bullion (excluding silver coins, jewelry and utensils) have since been notified under section 123 of the Customs Act, 1962 vide Notification No. 28 (Customs), dated 08.06.1990 thereby shifting the burden of proving whether the seized silver is smuggled or not, by the persons from whom silver bullion is seized. In order to prevent the possibility of undue harassment to law abiding persons possessing small quantities of silver bullion of Indian origin, it has been decided that normally the provisions of the section 123 of Custom s Act, 1962 should not be invoked against persons, who are found to be in possession of silver bullion of less than hundred kilograms. However, if the silver bullion is found to be the form of bars weighting 30 kilograms (approx.), which are being smuggled into the country and also where silver bullion is found to bear foreign markings, the question of seizure may be considered even when the quantity is less than hundred kilograms by an officer not lower in rank that than of an Assistant Collector of Customs. Also keeping in view that now there is no incentive for the illegal export of silver bullion and coins, Notification No. 29 (customs), dated 8th June, 1990 has been issued removing silver bullion and coins from the purview of Chapter IV-B or the Customs Act, 1962. Detailed instructions are being issued separately."

From the above circular, it is seen that the Govt. has made clear that the provisions of section 123 of Customs Act, 1962 should not be invoked, when persons are found possession of silver bullion less than 100 kgs. Further that when silver bullion is in the form of bars of 30 kgs. each and also silver bullion which bear foreign markings even though less than 100 kgs. can be subject to seizure for which proceedings can be initiated.

6.0 In the present case, the silver is not in the nature of bars or coins. It is in the form silver granules. As per the circular, when silver bullion is found in possession with foreign markings the same can be subject to seizure, if it is less than 100 kgs. In the present case, the quantity of silver bullion is 60 kgs. Then the question arises, whether silver granules would fall within the definition of silver bullion. The Commissioner (Appeals) in para 8 of his order has explained the meaning of bullion as seen in Wikipedia. Ordinary meaning of bullion given as per the dictionary is "Platinum, Gold or Silver, which is in bulk quantities". The meaning of bullion thus does not take away platinum, gold or silver in the form of grains/granules. Thus, granules also fall within the definition of bullion. This would lead to the consequence that if the silver granules has foreign markings even though less than 100 kgs. would not be covered by the above Board circular. The next question then is whether silver granules in the present case has foreign markings. Needless to say that marking cannot be endorsed on silver granules as in case of silver coins or silver bars. The only practical way to endorse a marking on silver in the form of granules is to mention the markings on the packing/boxes which holds the silver granules. In the present case, the silver granules were found in carton boxes on which there was specific mention of the name of foreign manufacturer, lot nos., the date of manufacture etc. The scanned copy of the markings on the boxes has been placed as part of the record, which is reproduced under and would help for better appreciation.

Thus, it can be seen that the markings on the boxes clearly indicated the silver granules was of foreign origin. Then the burden shifts on to the appellant to show how the markings do not relate to the silver contained inside the boxes.

6.1 The appellant Shri Gaurav Agarwal has explained that he came to Chennai on 20.06.2013 and purchased plywood boxes and carton boxes from the roadside shop at Sowcarpet, Chennai and handed over the same to M/s Green Dart Courier Ltd., who has packed the silver in the boxes and sealed it. This explanation seems to be unbelievable and acceptable. The boxes contained the exact quantity of silver granules mentioned on them. How is it possible for the appellant to purchase 6 carton boxes exactly mentioning 10 kgs of silver granules from roadside shop in Sowcarpet. Further, the boxes also show the date of manufacture, purity as also lots nos. The details given by department in another case(silver granules imported by Sh. Shiv Sahni) establishes that the manufacturer mentioned on the carton boxes is a manufacturer/supplier of silver granules. These facts would sufficiently prove that the case set up by the appellant that the carton boxes were purchased from roadside to be false and unacceptable. From the discussions made above, I am of the view that the foreign markings on the carton boxes/packings relate to the silver granules contained in them and, therefore, the circular dated 11.06.1990 cannot apply.

6.2 The appellant also relies upon ledger extracts/accounts to tentend that silver was purchased by him. Shri Gaurav Agarwal has deposed that he had purchased silver granules vide eight transactions from M/s. S.B. Ornaments Pvt. Ltd., Agra, M/s. Nishant Silver Handicraft, Mathura and M/s. Prasanth Silver Handicraft, Mathura. Appellant has produced some invoices and accounts to support this. However all these sellers have issued letters to department stating that the silver sold by them was in the nature of bar, and not granules. Learned counsel has made a frail effort to counter this by stating that though bars might have been supplied by the silver dealers, the appellant could have processed the same into silver granules and then sent for job work to M/s. Vignesh Payals. There is no evidence substantiate that processing charges were paid for converting the bar into granules which is a bulk quantity of 60 kgs. The statement of Shri Gaurav Agarwal is totally silent on this aspect. At the cost of repetition it has to be mentioned that the carton boxes which contained the silver granules correctly mentioned the quantity in each box to be 10kgs, the name of manufacturer, the lot no. year of manufacture, purity etc. Further, it is a question to be answered by the appellant as to whether the silver granules after being processed out of a bar by the appellant retain such high purity. Thue the documents/accounts produced by appellant do not help the appellant to establish that the goods are not of smuggled nature.

7.0 The decisions relied upon by the learned counsel for the appellant are cases in which there were no foreign markings and, therefore, distinguishable. The decision in M/s. Murarilal Agarwal (supra) relied upon by the learned counsel, is a case of silver bars of foreign origin weighing less than 46.7 kgs and therefore is of no assistance to appellant. The appellant therein had produced bills of entry to show that the silver bars were licitly imported. The appellant here, has not been able to establish that the goods were licitly imported into India. In the case of M/s. Shambunath (supra) the Larger Bench was dealing with silver which was not in the form of granules. The said case relates to 101 slabs silver which varied in weight and purity, and entirely on different set of facts.

7.1 From the foregoing, I am of the view that the appellant has not been able to establish that the silver was legally imported and suffered Customs duty. In such circumstances, I find the confiscation of goods and penalties imposed are legal and proper. The impugned order requires no interference. The appeal filed by the appellant is, dismissed.

(Dictated and pronounced in the open court)
This appeal is filed against OIA No. C.Cus.No.1352/2012 dt. 29.11.2012.

2. The facts of the case are that the appellant exported leather vide Shipping Bill No.3921088 dated 22.7.2009 describing it as “Sheep Nubuck (Snuffed) Finished Leather”. The officers of customs doubted the description of the goods. However, the export was allowed without waiting for the test report based on an undertaking given by the exporter. Sample of the export consignment was sent by Customs officers to Central Leather Research Institute (CLRI) for testing who confirmed that the consignment does not conform to the description. Export of leather is restricted unless it conforms to the Public Notice No.92-97 dt. 27.5.1992 issued by DGFT. Accordingly, the original authority vide his order dt. 09.09.2009 held that the goods are liable for confiscation under Section 113 (i) & (ii) of the Customs Act, 1962 and imposed a redemption fine under Section 125 of Rs.10,000/- as the goods have already been exported. He further imposed a penalty of Rs.5000/- upon the exporter under Section 114 (ii) of the Customs Act, 1962 and demanded export duty applicable to the goods of Rs.1,56,457/-. He further ordered that the export to repay drawback, if any, availed with applicable rate of interest to the department. Aggrieved, the appellant appealed before the first appellate authority. An interim order dt. 19.5.2010 was passed by the first appellate authority observing as follows:

"On a perusal of the case, it is seen that CLRI has certified that the sample does not conform to the norms and conditions lay down in the said Public notice. The lower authority has passed the impugned order on the strength of the said certificate. But on the other hand, the appellants vehemently argues that the said entry in the PN does not cover goods made from sheep leather. The appellants sought to retest of the sample. Accordingly, I direct the lower authority to send the second sample that is available with the department to CLRI for retest and submit report before this forum. Thereafter, the issue will be decided on merits. The impugned order is stayed until then."

Accordingly, the department has sent the sample for retesting to check if the goods matched description. The second test report described the goods as follows:
3. With reference to the above, we give below our technical opinion on the leather sample submitted on 27.07.09 by you and retested the same as follows.

"The leather sample which was submitted by you through your Letter No:S.Misc.50/2009-Exp.Exam dated 27.07.2009 (declared as Sheep Nubuck (Snuffed) finished leather) was tested as per the public notice that was in force that time 3-ETC-PN (1992-97) dated 27.05.1992 and the certificate issued as not a finished leather under the category of sheep nubuck leather (as per declaration) due the absence of snuffing to produce velvety nap. Since there was no nubuck leather listed under the sheep skin leathers, the leather was assessed as (VI) (L) which is the cow nubuck leather. Irrespective of the substrate, the snuffing to produce velvety nap is the critical norm for deciding if a given leather is nubuck leather or not. No if the exporter feels it is not a nubuck leather but a finished leather under some other category, kindly arrange to declare the finished leather clearly to enable us to assess the same and give out certificate".

Thereafter, the appeal of the appellant was taken up by the first appellate authority and rejected. Hence the present appeal.

3. Ld. counsel for the appellant would submit that in the first round, the sample was tested for "Nubuck Leather of Cows" whose description was given in Public Notice No.3.ETC/27.05.1992 issued under EXIM Policy 1992-97 at Sl.No.1 (L). He would submit that their Nubuck Leather was made from goat/sheep skins and hence is not covered specifically by the public notice. Therefore, its export is not specifically permitted without a licence. However, he would draw the attention of the Bench to the public notice reads as follows:

"Any new type of finished leather not covered above may be permitted for export, subject to testing and certificate by the Central leather Research Institute."

He would therefore argue that any leather even if it is not covered by public notice can still be exported subject to testing by CLRI which was done in their case. Therefore, there is no restriction on export of the goods which they exported. In view of the above, the order of the first appellate authority upholding the order of the lower authority is incorrect and needs to be set aside.

4. Ld. A.R reiterates the findings of the lower authorities and asserts that the impugned order is correct and calls for no interference.

5. We have considered the arguments on both sides and perused the records. As is evident from the second test report of CLRI dt. 27.12.2010 reproduced above, the sample was tested by CLRI to see if it matches the description in the shipping bill. In the first test report, it was tested on the specifications for "Nubuck Leather of cows or buffaloes" while the description of the goods by the appellant was "Sheep Nubuck leather". The second sample was ordered to be tested which was tested and it was again confirmed that it is not Nubuck Leather at all as the process of snuffing essential for making nubuck leather has not been undertaken. From the above, it is clear that there was misdeclaration of the goods in the shipping bill by the appellant. The confiscation of the goods for improper export is provided for on various grounds under Section 113 of the Customs Act. Clause (d) of Section 113 provides for confiscation of any goods attempted to be exported or brought within the limits of any customs area for the purpose of being exported, contrary to any prohibition imposed by or under this Act or any other law for the time being in force. Confiscation of goods where the description does not match with the declaration is provided for under Section 113 (i) and (ii). These are reproduced below:

"(i) any goods entered for exportation which do not correspond in respect of value or in any material particular with the entry made under this Act or in the case of baggage with the declaration made under Section 77;

(ii)any goods entered for exportation under claim for drawback which do not correspond in any material particular with any information furnished by the exporter or manufacturer under this Act in relation to the fixation of rate of drawback under section 75;"

6. In this case, as per the usual practice, the exports were not held up but were allowed after taking an undertaking from the appellant. After the testing, it was found that the nature of the goods exported did not match with the description given in the shipping bill. Therefore, they have been confiscated under Section
113 (i) and (ii) of the Customs Act, 1962. We also find that there is no confiscation under Section 113 (d) for export or attempted export in violation of the prohibitions under Foreign Trade Policy or any other law. We, therefore, find that the argument of the Ld. counsel that their goods were not prohibited from export under Foreign Trade Policy and the Public Notice issued therein does not come to their rescue because there is no confiscation on this count at all. The only confiscation was on the ground that the appellant has described the goods wrongly. We find that the second test report confirms that the goods were not which were described in the shipping bill. For this reason, we find that confiscation of the goods under Section 113 and imposition of redemption fine of Rs.10,000/- under Section 125 in lieu of confiscation (as the goods have already been exported after the appellant gave an undertaking) calls for no interference. Consequently, we also find that the imposition of penalty of Rs.5000/- under Section 114 is liable to be upheld and we do so. The applicable export duty and recovery of drawback, if any, availed also call for no interference.

7. In view of the above, we find that the appeal is liable to rejected and we do so. The appeal is rejected and impugned order is upheld.

FINAL ORDER NO. 40083/2020

Per: P Dinesha:

This appeal is filed by the assessee against the Order-in-Appeal Airport C.Cus.I. No. 168/2017 dated 11.09.2017 passed by the Commissioner of Customs (Appeals-I), Chennai, and the only grievance of the appellant is against the levy of penalty under Section 112 (a) of the Customs Act, 1962.

2. When the matter was taken up for hearing, Mr. Hari Radhakrishnan, Learned Advocate, appeared for the assessee-appellant and Ms. K. Komathi, Learned Joint Commissioner (Authorized Representative), appeared for the Revenue-respondent.

3.1 The submissions of the Learned Advocate for the appellant are summarized as below:

- The only allegation against the appellant is that he, along with other co-noticees namely, M/s. Solai Exports & Importers (Represented by its proprietor Mr. V.S. Mathiarasu), Mr. Khaja Mohideen, Mr. Shahul Hameed, Mr. K. Francis and Mr. P. Karunanithi, was involved in the act of smuggling of gold bars;

- The Revenue has relied on the statements of co-noticees/co-accused namely, Mr. Francis and Mr. Karunanithi and the affidavit of Mr. Mathiarasu and that the denial by Mr. R.S. Sridhar and Mr. R. Vijayakumar has not at all been considered;

- The other evidences like the forensic analysis of mobile phones, etc., do not lead to any wrongdoing by this appellant;

- The co-accused namely, Mr. Francis and Mr. Karunanithi have at the first available opportunity, on being produced before the Hon'ble Magistrate, clearly stated that their statements were obtained under coercion;

- The statement of IEC holder i.e., Mr. Mathiarasu, does not implicate this appellant and that by itself does not suggest any active role of the appellant in abatement of illegal export;

- The call records only indicate the calls made/received, which by itself do not lead to any inference as to the appellant’s culpability;
- The Revenue has neither apprehended the so-called mastermind i.e., Mr. Khaja nor have they taken any steps in this regard and nor has the Revenue placed any evidence on record to suggest that the mobile number 8056898851 was belonging to Mr. Khaja;

- The Letter issued by the service provider i.e., M/s. Airtel is only a covering letter giving the list of calls made and is not a certificate issued under Section 138C of the Customs Act, 1962 to be relied upon;

- In the Order-in-Original, the Adjudicating Authority has traversed beyond the Show Cause Notice by relying upon additional documents which were not at all part of the Show Cause Notice;

- The so-called forensic analysis does not lead to any conclusion as to the involvement of the appellant since the appellant's mobile phone was not at all subjected to the forensic analysis, etc.

3.2 Learned Advocate would conclude his submissions by contending that the confiscated gold biscuits were lying in the cold storage of the Air Cargo Complex and none of the employees of the appellant's security agency were anywhere near it; that one Mr. Karunanithi who, according to the DRI, was clandestinely removing the gold biscuits, was not at all on duty on that particular day. He relied on the following decisions:

(i) D.V. Kishore v. C.C. (Seaports-Imports), Chennai [2017 (350) E.L.T. 527 (Mad.)]
(ii) DRI v. Mahendra Kumar Singhal [2016 (333) E.L.T. 250 (Del.)]
(iii) Shafeek P.K. v. C.C., Cochin [2015 (325) E.L.T. 199 (Tri. - Bang.)]
(iv) Anil Gadodia v. C.C., Mundra [2016 (343) E.L.T. 983 (Tri. - Ahmd.);
(v) S.M. Agrotech v. C.C., New Delhi [2018 (361) E.L.T. 761 (Tri. - Del.)]

4.1 Per contra, Learned Authorized Representative for the Revenue while supporting the findings of the lower authorities, also vehemently contended that the Adjudicating Authority has placed on record the threadbare analysis of the entire modus operandi and the involvement of the noticees/accused and therefore, it is a fit case for confirming the penalty imposed for an anti-national activity.

4.2 She would further submit, from the call records, that there have been calls to and from the appellant's mobile phone from 4:18 a.m. on the eventful day i.e., 10.04.2015 from Mr. Francis, who was apprehended at the Air Cargo Complex and it was this Francis who was in touch with the main accused i.e., Mr. Shahul Hameed and Mr. Khaja Mohideen; that Mr. Karunanithi and Mr. Francis worked for the security agency run by the appellant and it is their statements that the appellant knew about the gold being brought in which was to be illegally exported.

5.1 In rejoinder, Learned Advocate for the appellant would submit that the penalty has been levied solely based on the statements of the co-accused and that those very statements were later on retracted. Moreover, when the appellant’s statement was recorded, the appellant has categorically denied as to his involvement in any way by stating that he was not aware of any gold smuggling and that he had not given any instructions in this regard to either Mr. Francis or Mr. Karunanithi.

5.2 He further contended that, according to the DRI, the main persons involved in the smuggling were Mr. Thameen of Singapore, Mr. Khajabhai and Mr. Shahul Hameed, who were never apprehended, who alone perhaps could have spoken about the involvement or otherwise of the appellant; that in the absence of their statements, the levy of penalty is not correct.

6. Heard both sides, perused the documents placed on record and also the decisions submitted during the course of arguments. From the documents filed/placed on record, we do not have the benefit of the statements of Mr. Francis, Mr. Karunanithi, Mr. Shahul Hameed, etc., recorded by the authorities. Further, the so-called retracted statement is also not there on record, but for the mention of coercion before the Hon'ble Magistrate.
7. The seizure at the Air Cargo Complex happened on 10.04.2015 followed by a search operation in the residence of this appellant and thereafter, the Show Cause Notice dated 07.10.2015 came to be issued accusing all the accused including the appellant herein, proposing confiscation under Sections 111 (d), 111 (i) and 111 (l) of the gold bars of foreign origin seized, apart from imposition of penalties under Section 112 and Section 114AA, separately, of the Customs Act, 1962. From the reply furnished by this appellant vide letter dated 02.12.2015, the appellant has inter alia explained that he was not involved in any way in any of the activities of the other accused in smuggling the gold biscuits.

8. The Revenue has fastened the appellant with penalty based on the statements of the co-accused and the call records. This appellant has explained that there are more than 120 employees in his firm and that, as the head of the firm, he used to get calls even during odd hours informing about the security scenario and manpower deployment at the Air Cargo Complex and that he would also make calls in turn, to ascertain further details. From this, it is perhaps routine that the appellant would get or make calls even during odd hours and hence, the calls recorded may not be significant enough to point out that the appellant was actively involved, as an abettor, in the conspiracy unless the recordings are in the form of conversations, which is not the case here. But a close look at the call records which speak otherwise, requires a lot of explanation.

9. Further, evidence in the form of statements of the co-accused namely, Mr. Francis, Mr. Karunanithi and Mr. Shahul Hameed, are not available before us and therefore, in the absence, we are unable to judge as to its contents, veracity and its incriminatory nature. All the accused including the appellant were produced before the Learned Magistrate along with remand application on 13.04.2015 before whom the accused have stated that their statements were obtained by threat and coercion. The relevant portion of the recording of the Learned Magistrate reads as under:

“A1 to A4 - are produced before me at my residence. Grounds of arrest is revealed to the Ad. Ad. have stated that their statements are obtained by threat and coercion…”

Though there is mention about threat and coercion, there is no specific denial as to their involvement since the Learned Magistrate has categorically recorded as to the revealing of the grounds of arrest which would only mean and which is relevant for our limited purposes, is that only the statements were obtained by using threat and coercion.

10. In the Order-in-Original, the Adjudicating Authority has, no doubt, explained very succinctly the modus operandi of the main accused and the involvement to some extent of Mr. Francis and Mr. Karunanithi, from where the role of the appellant kicks in, and as the Adjudicating Authority has extracted, both appear to have stated that the appellant knew about the gold smuggling. Their statements assume relevance since both of them have inter alia stated that they are working in the appellant’s service agency which fact has not been denied.

11.1 Now, the appellant's explanation regarding the call records coupled with the extracts of statements of persons apprehended on the early hours of the eventful day lead us to understand that considering the gravity and nature of the offence/activity alleged, the explanation offered in the form of reply is not at all sufficient to conclude as to the innocence of this appellant, as pleaded. This assumes relevance in this case because the accused/appellant is a retired military personnel who has served the nation and has pleaded that he was not even aware of what his own employees were doing, while working for him.

11.2 Further, a close look at the call records inter se the appellant, Mr. Khaja and Mr. Mathiarasu reveals that right from the beginning of March 2015 all these persons were in touch. There has been call records of Mr. Khaja and the appellant on 04.03.2015 for about 93 seconds, again on 09.03.2015 for about 65 seconds with Mr. Khaja, also simultaneously with Mr. Mathiarasu. There have been further calls between the appellant and Mr. Khaja with a duration of 302 seconds on 11.03.2015, again on 10.03.2015 for about 4803 seconds and 32533 seconds at 11:13 a.m. and 12:59 p.m. and further calls again at 16:30 p.m. and 16:35 p.m. for 9812 seconds and 55441 seconds, for which there is no explanation. Considering these calls on record, the appellant cannot wash off his responsibility with a total denial that he did not know Mr. Khaja at all and that there was only a wrong call for about 6 seconds, etc. There has been some calls as well on 10.03.2015 between Mr. Khaja and the appellant, the appellant and Mr. Mathiarasu and again, the appellant and Mr. Khaja, which clearly leads to suspicion for which the appellant could only answer.

12. On an overall analysis, we are of the prima facie view that the Revenue has made out a case by linking the chain of events, phone calls, etc., towards the scheme planned well in advance for executing anti-national activity by defrauding the Revenue, as brought on record very succinctly by the Adjudicating Authority in the form of unchallenged statements and the call records and for these reasons, we do not see any reason to interfere with the impugned order.

13. Accordingly, the appeal stands dismissed.

FINAL ORDER NO. 40545/2020

Per: Sulekha Beevi:

The above application for condonation of delay is filed by the appellant seeking to condone the delay of 764 days in filing the appeal.

2. The ld. counsel for appellant Shri N. Viswanathan appeared for the appellant. That proceedings were initiated against the applicant/appellant who is a Customs Broker alleging violation of Regulation 11(a) and (n) of CBLR, 2013. The proceedings culminated in passing Order-in-Original dated 12.10.2017, whereby penalty of Rs.50,000/- was imposed. The appellant then opted to pay the penalty and not to take up the matter in appeal. However, later the appellant wanted to extend his business to other ports. He apprehended that he would not receive a no objection certificate due to the penalty imposed. On obtaining legal advice, the appellant has thereafter preferred the present appeal. It is argued by the learned counsel that no penalty can be imposed when the inquiry report is in favour of the Customs Broker. That the issue as to whether penalty can be imposed when the inquiry report is in favour of the Customs Broker is decided by the Hon’ble High Court of Delhi in the case of HM Logistics Pvt. Ltd. Vs. Commissioner of Customs (General) - 2016 (334) ELT 262 (Del.). It is submitted by him that in the present case as the inquiry report is in favour of the appellant, the penalty ought not to have been imposed. That appellant has a good case on merits. Therefore, the appellant ought to be given a chance to contest the case.

3. The ld. counsel relied upon the decision of the Hon’ble Supreme Court in the case of N. Balakrishnan Vs. M. Krishnamurthy - 2008 (228) ELT 162 (SC) to argue that the length of delay is immaterial and if the applicant has given plausible explanation for the delay, the same has to be accepted. It is also emphasized by the counsel that when there is no deliberate act on the part of applicant for not availing the remedy of appeal, the delay ought to be condoned. In the present case, the delay was not caused due to any dilatory tactics on the part of the appellant. He prayed that a liberal view may be taken so as to condone the delay. It is also prayed that the application may be considered by imposing cost on the appellant.

4. The ld. AR Ms. T. Usha Devi opposed the application. She submitted that the appellant has not opted to file the appeal during the period prescribed as per the statute for filing appeal. The delay caused can be condoned only if sufficient cause is made out. In the present case, no sufficient cause is established by the appellant. The decision of the Hon’ble Supreme Court in the case of N. Balakrishnan Vs. M. Krishnamurthy (supra) cannot be relied upon in the present case since the facts in the said appeal are different. The delay occurred as counsel failed to appear and to inform the party. In the present case, appellant has opted not to file the appeal and paid the penalty. He cannot then contend that there is delay to file appeal.

5. It is also argued by her that it cannot be said that the livelihood of the appellant is affected by the imposition of penalty. The appellant has not adduced any evidence to show that any request for extending business to other ports were made or has been rejected. Even if such request is rejected, the appellant has remedy by way of filing appeal to the higher authorities. The appellant has not availed the remedy of filing appeal during the prescribed time limit and admittedly opted not to avail the remedy, there is no cause made out to condone such huge delay. She prayed that the COD application may be dismissed.

6. Heard both sides.

7. The appellant has filed this application seeking condonation of 764 days in filing the appeal. The impugned order is passed on 12.10.2017 imposing penalty of Rs.50,000/- on the appellant. The finding made in the order is that the appellant violated Regulation 11(a) and (n) of CBLR, 2013. It is submitted by the counsel that the appellant initially had opted to to file appeal since he did not want to pursue the matter in litigation. Later, when he intended to expand his business to other ports, he apprehends that he would not be able to get no objection certificate for obtaining extension of license to other ports. Though it is sated that the appellant apprehends that he would not be able to obtain NOC, there is no evidence brought forth before me that he made any request and the same was rejected. It is merely his apprehension. He is still working as a Customs Broker. Further, as rightly pointed out by ld. AR, that if any order is passed rejecting the request for extension of license, the appellant has a remedy to file an appeal against such order. This ground raised by the appellant does not find favour with me.

8. The main contention put forward by the learned counsel is that the decision of the Hon’ble High Court of Delhi in the case of HM Logistics Pvt. Ltd. (supra) is in favour of the Customs Broker and would be applicable to the impugned order and for this reason the penalty imposed is not sustainable. It is settled position of law that merely because a decision which is in favour come to the notice, it cannot be a ground to seek condonation of delay. The appellant has failed to promptly avail the appeal remedy. Though law of limitation is not meant to destroy the right of parties, it cannot favour those who are sleeping. In the present case, the appellant has deliberately opted not to file appeal initially. Thereafter, this appeal is filed only on the advice given that the penalty can be set aside as per the decision of the Hon’ble High Court of Delhi. As discussed earlier, there is no evidence to show that the livelihood of appellant is affected or his intention to expand business is interrupted.

9. I find that the appellant has not been able to put forward sufficient cause to condone the delay. Further, the delay is more than two years. I find that the application for condonation of delay is without merits. The same is dismissed. Consequently, the appeal also gets dismissed.

(Dictated and pronounced in open court)
The appellant has by this appeal questioned the rejection of his first appeal vide impugned order-in-Appeal No. 192/2019 dated 06.09.2019, whereby learned Commissioner of Customs (Appeals-I) has upheld the absolute confiscation of six gold bars.

2. When the matter was called out, Shri K.P. Padmanabhan, Learned Advocate appeared for the appellant and reiterated the grounds urged before the lower authorities. He also contended that the so-called voluntary statement of the appellant relied upon by the Revenue was under threat; that the appellant was the only bread winner who had saved some money out of his salary and purchased gold bars in question and that all the supporting bills were produced before the authorities.

3. Per contra, Shri M. Jagan Babu, Assistant Commissioner (AR) appearing for the Revenue supported the findings of the lower authorities. He would also contend that at least two of the invoices issued by GMT Jewellers Pvt. Ltd, Singapore, carried different dates i.e., 29/11/2017 and 7/12/2017, which would indicate that two gold bards of 300 gms were purchased after a gap of about 8/9 days. But most interestingly, the invoice numbers are 2017-0122 and 2017-00123 and by this it is very difficult to believe that the seller did not make any sales between 29/11/2017 and 7/12/2017, which fact has not at all been explained anywhere. He would also submit that the appellant upon landing in Chennai Airport, himself opted for green channel and on suspicion he was questioned/searched, which resulted in the detection of smuggled gold bars and the appellant explained that he was carrying the above goods for somebody else. On a later date, the appellant explained that the above explanation was given out of fear and ignorance and that he had purchased the above gold for the members of his family. By this, the appellant has kept on changing his stand and that too, without any supporting evidence, and hence the orders of the Lower Authorities may be upheld.

4. I have heard both sides and have also carefully considered the rival contentions and documents placed on record.

5. There is no dispute that the appellant tried to smuggle the gold, i.e., he tried to bring the above gold bars from Singapore into India without payment of applicable duties and without even declaring the same when he was duty bound to do so. The purchase of the same and the final destination/usage may not be of any significance when such an act of smuggling is carried out, since what is important is primarily the declaration, followed by the payment of applicable duties/taxes. Even though the appellant has pleaded ignorance and cooperation, the same would at best be a mitigating factor which ipso facto would not take away the guilt of trying to bring in the goods without payment of duty. Further, the appellant has also pleaded that he was a law abiding citizen but when the law mandates a minimum declaration which has not been complied with here in the case on hand, the above plea of the appellant would also not going to help the appellant. Moreover, the serious dispute as to the dates on invoices with consecutive numbers is alone an incriminating factor not at all explained by the appellant.

6. In view of the above, I do not find any merit in the appeal and therefore, the appeal is rejected being devoid of merits.

FINAL ORDER NOS. 40028-40029/2020

Per: P Dinesha:

These appeals are filed against the common order of the Commissioner of Customs and Central Excise (Appeals-II), Tiruchirappalli dated 19.04.2016 in Orders-in-Appeal No. 50 & 51/2016.

2. It is the case of the Department that based on the specific intelligence that persons travelling in a black colour ‘PULSE’ car bearing Registration No. TN18 M 8059 were attempting to smuggle ‘Red Sanders Logs’ out of India and on enquiry after interception of the said car, persons travelling in the car identified themselves as S/Shri S. Karuppiah @ Manoharan, Ravi K. Sadanand, M.J. Girish, D. Seena and P. Ravi. The interception resulted in unearthing transportation of the contraband i.e., red Sanders logs worth Rs. 4,33,35,000/- (9.63 MTs), which were loaded in a lorry/truck bearing Registration No. TN 63 AB 7825 along with bags of cabbage worth Rs. 10,000/-. There was no document for transportation of the entire goods nor was there any claim as to the ownership of either the lorry or the goods and therefore, the lorry/truck was seized along with the goods. The Revenue got the goods examined by the Forest Range Officer, Thoothukudi Range, who certified that the same was red Sanders logs which is a prohibited item for export. All the seized goods i.e., the truck, the red sanders logs and the cabbage bags were handed over to the Customs House, Tuticorin on 10.10.2013.

3. The Senior Intelligence Officer, Directorate of Revenue Intelligence, Tuticorin, summoned all the five above persons, who were travelling in the car at the time of interception and their statements were recorded under Section 108 of the Customs Act, 1962. It appears that Revenue tried to ascertain the ownership of the aforesaid truck, with the Registration No. TN 63 AB 7825, which carried the contraband, but the Adjudicating Authority in the Order-in-Original has given a clear finding that it was a fake registration number fitted on the seized lorry/truck to avoid detection and thereby mislead the investigators. Based on the information thus gathered as also the statements of various persons, the Revenue issued a Show Cause Notice to the appellants as to why:-

i) the seized 9.63 MTs of Red sanders, valued at Rs.4,33,35,000/- should not be confiscated under Section 113 (d) of the Customs Act, 1962.

ii) the seized 2.910 MT of Cabbage, valued at Rs.10,000/- should not be confiscated under Section 119 of the Customs Act, 1962.

iii) the said 2.910 MT of cabbage found to be rotten and unfit for consumption which was destroyed, should not be held as properly disposed off; and

iv) penalty should not be imposed on them under Section 114 of the Customs Act, 1962.

4. After due process of law, the Adjudicating Authority vide Order-in-Original No. 60/2015 dated 29.05.2015, after considering the statements, Mahazars, reply to the Show Cause Notice and arguments during the personal hearing, has :-

i) Ordered confiscation of 9.63 MT of red sanders valued at Rs.4,33,35,000/- under Section 113 (d) of the Customs Act, 1962;

ii) Ordered confiscation of 2.910 MT of Cabbage, valued at Rs.10,000/- used for concealing red sanders, under Section 119 of the Customs Act, 1962;

iii) Held that the said 2.910 MT of cabbage found to be rotten and unfit for consumption which was destroyed, as properly disposed off;

iv) Ordered confiscation of Ashok Leyland Truck bearing fake registration No. TN 63 AB 6825 (actual registration no. being AP 03 U 7977), valued at Rs. 6,40,000/-, under Section 115(2) of the Customs Act, 1962;

v) Imposed penalty on the following persons including appellants herein, under Section 114 of the Act ibid as follows:-

5. Aggrieved by the said Order-in-Original, the present appellants filed appeal before the Commissioner of Central Excise (Appeals-II), Tiruchirappalli, contending inter alia that the order imposing penalty under Section 114 of the Customs Act was bad. The Commissioner (Appeals), however, vide the impugned Order-in-Appeal dated 19.04.2016 rejected the appeals thereby upholding the order of the Adjudicating Authority. Seriously aggrieved by the Order-in-Appeal of the Commissioner (Appeals), the present appellants viz., Shri. Karuppijah @ Manoharan and Shri. Ravi. K. Sadanand are before this forum by these appeals.
6. Heard Shri. A. Thiyagarajan, Learned Senior Advocate appearing for the appellants and Shri. M. Jagan Babu, Learned Assistant Commissioner (Authorized Representative) appearing for the Revenue and perused the documents placed in the appeal paper book and also gone through the documents referred to by both the parties, during the course of hearing.

7. The only issue to be decided is whether the Revenue was justified in levying penalty on the appellants under Section 114 of the Customs Act, 1962.

8. During the course of hearing, the Ld. Sr. Advocate appearing for the appellants submitted that primarily the penalty has been levied based solely on the inculpatory statements. The other submissions of the Ld. Advocate could be summarized as under:-

(i) The appellants never claimed themselves to be the owner of the goods that was seized;
(ii) The appellants are not the owners of the truck/lorry seized or even the landed property where the truck was stranded;
(iii) One of the appellants namely Shri. Karuppiah was not present during the seizure;
(iv) The appellants had no financial capacity or having no means to arrange for transportation of the goods worth over Rs. 4.5 crores;
(v) The inculpatory statements alone is not sufficient without there being any corroboratory evidence;
(vi) The penalty being quasi-criminal in nature, the burden is on the Department;
(vii) The seller or the purchaser of the contraband were not known even to the Department nor were they identified, etc.

9. Per contra, Ld. Authorized Representative for the Revenue argued that the weight of the contraband article found in the truck tallied with the voluntary statements given by the appellant. His further submissions can be summarized as under:-

(i) They have not denied their presence at the time and spot on the eventful day;
(ii) The appellant Shri. Karuppiah @ Manoharan was the mastermind behind the operation since he had purchased the red sanders logs on earlier occasions also, illegally;
(iii) That the appellants jointly contributed to the attempted export of 1.6MTs of red sanders by illicit means;
(iv) The entire scheme/modus operandi has been very succinctly recorded at paragraphs 31, 32, 33, 34 and 36 of the Order-in-Original as also at paragraphs 7 and 8 of the Order-in-Appeal which have not at all been questioned;
(v) Voluntary statements of all the persons stand against them so also the chain of events narrated by each of them speaks of the scheme to smuggle contraband in which they almost succeeded but for timely interception, which would have resulted in the revenue loss to the Nation;
(vi) Irrespective of whether the appellants are the buyers or sellers, they having abetted in the commission of the offence of attempting to smuggle the contraband, penalty has rightly been imposed.
(vii) Statements are not retracted and therefore, there was no chance for the Revenue to suspect their motive; He therefore pleads that the appeals are required to be dismissed.

10.1 I have considered the rival contentions and have also meticulously gone through the record. The statement of the appellant Shri. Karuppiah recorded on 09.10.2013 under Section 108 of the Customs Act reveals the modus operandi and this appellant has very clearly explained not only the whole transaction but also named various persons involved, in the smuggling activity and has also clearly identified the destination i.e., foreign buyer M/s. Haiphong Petro Trading
10.2 Shri Karuppiah, the second appellant, also explains the involvement of one Shri. Subba Reddy, one of the brokers, one Shri. Saleem of Tirunelveli whose mobile Nos. were 7299508440 & 9786860485, who arranged the overseas buyer for a commission of Rs. 3,00,000/- per MT; Mr. Ravi of Bangalore, who was into the red sanders business, who according to the appellant, had agreed to store 8 MTs of red sanders in Bangalore; Shri. Senthil Ram of Chennai, Lorry broker who was to transport red sanders logs to Bangalore, who also sent lorry bearing Registration No. TN 63 7825 to Bangalore, etc. Further, this appellant has also explained that Shri. Ravi having loaded the logs of red sanders in the lorry was called by Shri. Saleem to get the logs of red sanders near the District Collector's office in Virudhunagar etc.

10.3 The above statement of this appellant matches with that of the first appellant Shri Ravi Sadanand and their statements lead to a plausible conclusion that it was a pre-planned move to smuggle red sander logs out of India. For this, I completely rely on the findings of the Original Authority who has very succinctly extracted the whole scheme of the attempt to smuggle red sanders by the appellant in connivance, though in a small way, with the other occupants of the car. These findings have not at all been challenged. There is also nothing on record to even suggest that the statements of the appellants have been retracted and nor is there any attempt to deny their presence at the eventual spot on the eventful day.

10.5 The Adjudicating Authority has also traced the owner of the truck/lorry that was carrying the contraband and arrived at the conclusion that the same was with a fake registration number to mislead the investigation. This also stands unchallenged.

10.6 The appellants having accepted in their voluntary statements about their involvements, have not brought anything on record to doubt the veracity of the findings or conclusions drawn by the Adjudicating Authority. Even though it has all along been argued that they did not claim ownership of either the truck or the contraband that was seized, they have not submitted any documentary evidence about their role/activity at the time, date and place when the interception took place. Having accepted in their voluntary statements as to their role, they prevented further investigations into the issue and therefore, on a much later date they cannot turn around to say that their statements were not voluntary. Moreover, it is not a case where the penalty was levied based only on their statements; Revenue has linked each and every chain in the whole loop of the master plan to smuggle the contraband by identifying the involvement and role of each and every person whereas nothing is brought on record by the appellants to dislodge even a small link in the above chain. Their contention that they did not claim ownership nor did they have wherewithal, etc., would not help them since in an activity of the nature involved in the present case, the recipient/buyer would be least interested in knowing this. Because, otherwise, the buyer would have right royally bought from the open market after paying all necessary/applicable duties rather than choosing a shortcut of smuggling.

10.7 I, therefore, do not see any reasons to interfere with the meticulous findings of the Original Authority as upheld vide impugned Order-in-Appeal by the Commissioner of Central Excise (Appeals-II), Tiruchirappalli. In this connection, I find that the decision of the Hon'ble High Court of Madras in the case of CC, Trichy Vs. S. Janarthanan [2015 (325) E.L.T. 510 (Mad.)] is useful in this regard, wherein it has been held as under:

"12. Admittedly, the goods attempted to be exported are prohibited under the Customs Act, the Foreign Trade (D&R) Act and the EXIM Policy 1997-02. Since Sandalwood was attempted to be exported in the guise of roofing tiles, the provisions made under Section 113 of the Customs Act gets attracted. Similarly, the goods entered for exportation did not correspond in respect of value or in any material particulars with the entry made under the Act. On this admitted fact, the only question arises for consideration is whether the respondent is liable for penalty under Section 114 of the Customs Act."
13. The wording in Section 114 of the Customs Act is clear that any person who, in relation to any goods does or omits to do any act which act or omission would render the goods liable for confiscation under Section 113, or abets the doing or commission of such an act shall be liable for penalty. For better clarity, it is apposite to refer Section 114 of the Customs Act, which reads as follows:

"SECTION 114. Penalty for attempt to export goods improperly, etc. - Any person who, in relation to any goods, does or omits to do any act which act or omission would render such goods liable to confiscation under section 113, or abets the doing or omission of such an act, shall be liable, -

(i) in the case of goods in respect of which any prohibition is in force under this Act or any other law for the time being in force, to a penalty not exceeding three times the value of the goods as declared by the exporter or the value as determined under this Act, whichever is the greater;

(ii) in the case of dutiable goods, other than prohibited goods, to a penalty not exceeding the duty sought to be evaded or five thousand rupees, whichever is the greater;

(iii) in the case of any other goods, to a penalty not exceeding the value of the goods, as declared by the exporter or the value as determined under this Act, whichever is the greater."

14. In this case, the evidence on record and the statements of various persons clearly goes to show the complicity of the respondent in the act, which render the goods liable for confiscation under Section 113 of the Customs Act. He also abetted in doing such acts, which render the goods liable for confiscation. That finding of the Commissioner is not in dispute. The Tribunal on an erroneous interpretation of Section 113 read with 114 of the Customs Act has come to hold that no penalty is leviable.

15. Here is a case where the findings of the Commissioner, on fact, supported by documents and the statement of individuals, clearly established the act of the respondent, which render the goods liable for confiscation under Section 113. The respondent is one among the culprits, who attempted to export sandalwood in the guise of roofing tiles. Since the respondent had knowledge about the sandalwood being part of the consignment of roofing tiles, but did not intimate the same to the Customs Authorities, he is liable for penalty.

16. On a reading of the evidence and the findings of the Commissioner, we find that the Tribunal has come to the erroneous conclusion that the act of the respondent in not disclosing the information is not liable for confiscation. Accordingly, the issue is answered in favour of the Department and against the assessee. The order of the Tribunal stands set aside and the adjudication order restored. This Civil Miscellaneous Appeal stands allowed. No costs. Consequently, M.P. No. 1 of 2009 is closed."

11. In the result, both the appeals are dismissed being devoid of any merit.

ORDER

P. Venkata Subba Rao, Member (T)

1. This appeal is filed against Order-in-Appeal No. VIZ-CUSTM-000-APP-088-18-19 dated 13.03.2019.

2. The appellant herein filed four bills of entry for import of Magnesia Carbon Brick between May 2017 and June 2017 classifying them under 6902 10 40 in the Bills of Entry and claiming the benefit of exemption Notification No. 12/2012-Cus : MANU/CUST/0068/2012 dated 17.03.2012 (Sl. No. 304). The bills of entry were assessed by the Revenue re-classifying the goods under 6815 99 90 which attracts a higher rate of customs duty. The appellant paid customs duty at the higher rate as assessed by the Revenue and thereafter filed letters requesting for speaking orders giving justification for revision of the classification and denial of the benefit of their exemption notification sought by them. The revenue has not issued any speaking order in respect of any of the bills of entry. The appellant had not filed any appeal against the assessed bills of entry. Thereafter, they filed refund claims seeking refund of the differential duty under section 27 of the Customs Act, 1962. These claims were rejected by the Lower Authority and on appeal such rejection was upheld by the First Appellate Authority by the impugned order. Hence this appeal. The First Appellate Authority relied on the case law of Priya Blue Industries Vs. Commissioner of Customs, Ahmedabad [MANU/SC/0767/2004 : 2004 (172) ELT 145 (SC)] in which it was held as follows:

6. ....Once an Order of Assessment is passed the duty would be payable as per that order. Unless that order of assessment has been reviewed under Section 28 and/or modified in an Appeal that Order stands. So long as the Order of Assessment stands the duty would be payable as per that Order of Assessment. A refund claim is not an Appeal proceeding. The Officer considering a refund claim cannot sit in Appeal over an assessment made by a competent Officer. The Officer considering the refund claim cannot also review an assessment order...

8. The words “in pursuance of an Order of Assessment” only indicate the party/person who can make a claim for refund. In other words, they enable a person who has paid duty in pursuance of an Order of Assessment to claim refund. These words do not lead to the conclusion that without the Order of Assessment having been modified in Appeal or reviewed a claim for refund can be maintained.

Similar decision was also taken by the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Flock India [MANU/SC/0484/2000 : 2000 (120) ELT 285 (SC)]. Learned Counsel for the appellant submits that there was a difference between section 27 prior to 08.04.2011 and post 08.04.2011. Prior to 08.04.2011 Section 27 read as follows:

27. Claim for Refund of Duty.-
Any person claiming refund of any duty and interest, if any, paid on such duty -

(a) paid by him in pursuance of an order of assessment; or

(b) borne by him,

may make an application for refund of such duty and interest, if any, paid on such duty to the Assistant Commissioner of Customs

(a) in the case of any import made by any individual for his personal use or by Government or by any educational, research or charitable institution or hospital, before the expiry of one year;

(b) in any other case, before the expiry of six months,

After 08.04.2011 only the assessment procedure has been changed under section 17 and self assessment procedure has been introduced, the words “in pursuance of an order of assessment” in section 27(1)(a) have been deleted. He would therefore, submit that their case pertains post 08.04.2011 and they were entitled to file a claim for refund without challenging the order of assessment. He relied on the case law of Aman Medical Products [MANU/DE/2578/2009 : 2010 (250) ELT 30 (DEL)] and Micromax Informatics Ltd., [MANU/DE/0452/2016 : 2016 (335) ELT 466 (DEL)] in which it was held that where there is no order of assessment, refund claim can be filed without challenging the assessment. He fairly submits that the aforesaid two judgments of the Hon'ble High Court of Delhi were also under challenge before the Larger Bench of the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of ITC Ltd., in civil appeal No. 293-294/2019. It has been held by the Hon'ble Apex Court that even in a case where a refund is filed after self-assessment such refund cannot be sanctioned unless the self-assessment itself has been appealed against and modified. In other words, even in case of self assessment post 08.04.2011, if the person who has made an assessment feels that he made a mistake, he must appeal to the Commissioner (Appeals) to get his own self assessment modified before he can file a refund claim. The officer processing the refund claims cannot, by sanctioning refund, sit in judgment over the assessment done by the officer who assessed the bills of entry in the first place.

3. However, he submits that justice has been denied to them because they have not been given speaking orders when they actually requested for them. Therefore, they are still not aware of the reasons as to why their bills of entries were re-assessed and therefore they are unable to appeal before the First Appellate Authority. He also relied upon the judgment of High Court of Andhra Pradesh in the case of Fairway Trading Company [MANU/CB/0256/2013 : 2014 (304) ELT 286 (Tri-Bang)] upheld by the Andhra Pradesh High Court as reported in [2015 (319) ELT A243 (AP)].

4. Learned DR submits that the issue is now settled by the Larger Bench of the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of ITC Ltd., (supra) which judgment is binding on all courts in the country including this Bench and no refund can be sanctioned unless the underlying assessment (including self assessment) has been appealed against and therefore there is no infirmity in the impugned order of the First Appellate Authority passed relying on the cases of Priya Blue Industries (supra) and Flock India (supra).

5. I have considered the arguments on both sides and perused the records. The issue of refund has been under examination at various judicial fora. In the case of Priya Blue Industries (supra) and Flock India (supra) the Hon'ble Apex Court had held that where a refund raises out of an order of assessment such refund cannot be sanctioned unless the underlying order of assessment itself has been appealed against and modified by the appellate forum. The reason for this is the officer sanctioning refund cannot sit in judgment over the officer who has done the assessment. Subsequently, in the case of Aman Medical Products Ltd. (supra), the Hon'ble High Court of Delhi has distinguished the claim for refund in that case from the case of Priya Blue Industries (supra). This case pertained to a period when although Section 17 of the Customs Act (as unamended) required the officer to do the assessment, the computer system of the customs EDI cleared the goods automatically based on the declarations made by the importer. Therefore, the officer had no chance of assessing the bills of entries at all. The question which arose was whether, in such cases, where there was no assessment order at all, the bills of entries needs to be challenged or can a refund be claimed directly. The Hon'ble High Court of Delhi held in a case where there is no order of assessment at all there is nothing to be challenged therefore, refund claim can be claimed and the same can be sanctioned. Subsequently, the case of Micromax Informatics Ltd., (supra) came up before the High court of Delhi. This pertained to the period when the Section 17 was amended introducing the concept of self assessment by the importers. In this case the Hon'ble High Court has held that in the case of self assessment since there is no assessment order by the officer the refund can be challenged without assessment by the officer. Both these cases as well as other cases before the Larger Bench of Hon’ble Apex Court in the case of ITC Ltd., (supra). It is now settled by the Hon’ble Apex Court that the refund cannot be sanctioned in any case including in case of self assessment unless the assessment is itself is challenged.

31. It is apparent from the aforesaid discussion that the endorsement made on the bill of entry is an order of assessment. It cannot be said that there is no order of assessment passed in such a case. When there is no lis, speaking order is not required to be passed in “across the counter affair”.

38. No doubt about it that the expression which was earlier used in Section 27(1)(i) that “in pursuance of an order of assessment” has been deleted from the amended provision of Section 27 due to introduction of provision as to self assessment. However, as self-assessment is nonetheless an order of assessment, no difference is made by deletion of aforesaid expression as no separate reasoned assessment order is required to be passed in the case of self assessment as observed by this Court in Escorts Ltd. v. Union of India & Ors. (supra).

47. When we consider the overall effect of the provisions prior to amendment and post-amendment under Finance Act, 2011, we are of the opinion that the claim for refund cannot be entertained unless the order of assessment or self-assessment is modified in accordance with law by taking recourse to the appropriate proceedings and it would not be within the ken of Section 27 to set aside the order of self-assessment and reassess the duty for making refund; and in case any person is aggrieved by any order which would include self assessment, he has to get the order modified under Section 128 or under other relevant provisions of the Act.

48. Resultantly, we find that the order(s) passed by Customs, Excise, and Service Tax Appellate Tribunal is to be upheld and that passed by the High Courts of Delhi and Madras to the contrary, deserves to be and are hereby set aside. We order accordingly. We hold that the applications for refund were not maintainable. The appeals are accordingly disposed of. Parties to bear their own costs as incurred.

As the present appeal is only against the rejection of refund claim by the Commissioner (Appeals) on the ground that the bills of entries has not been challenged, I find that in view of the ratio of the judgment of Hon’ble Larger Bench of the Apex Court in the case of ITC Ltd., the appeal is liable to be rejected and the impugned order is liable to be upheld and I do so. If the appellant’s bills of entries have been reassessed and they sought speaking orders which have not been issued to them or the request for issue of speaking orders is rejected by the lower authority that itself becomes a decision by the lower authority which can be appealed against to the Commissioner before the Commissioner (Appeals). However, by not issuing the speaking orders or giving any reply to their requests for speaking order, the officer has denied the appellant their legitimate right to challenge the reassessments. In the interest of justice, I find this a fit case to exercise my powers under Rule 41 of the CESTAT (Procedure) Rules, 1982 and direct the assessing officer to issue speaking orders as sought by the appellant in cases where the Bills of Entry were re-assessed. This will enable the appellants to understand the reasons for re-assessment and if aggrieved, challenge such re-assessments.

6. In view of the above, impugned order is upheld and the appeal is rejected. The assessing officer who re-assessed the bills of entry must issue speaking orders within four weeks from the date on which he receives a copy of this order from the appellant or from the Registry.

Coram: HON’BLE Mr.P.V.SUBBARAO,MEMBER(TECHNICAL)

FINAL ORDER No.A/30797-30800/2019

Date of Hearing:16.10.2019
Date of Decision:16.10.2019

[Order per:P.V.SUBBARAO]

1. All these appeals are filed by the appellant on the same issue and hence are being disposed of together. The appellant is a manufacturer of fertilisers and imports inputs in bulk for manufacture of fertilisers. If they clear the goods within time and thereby not making the ship wait for too long they get a discount from their overseas suppliers called as “dispatch earnings”. The amount of dispatch earnings is not known when they file the bill of entry because the goods are not yet cleared and the ship released. They come to know of this discount much later. The appellant has paid customs duty as applicable on their entire value at the time of clearance of the goods. Subsequently, when they earned the “dispatch earnings” from their overseas suppliers for clearing the goods well in time and thereby freeing vessel, they filed refund applications seeking the refund of the differential customs duty by revising the transaction value reckoning the dispatch earnings.

2. Their applications for refund were rejected by the original authority and such rejection was upheld by the First Appellate Authority on the ground that once BoE has been assessed and such assessment has not been challenged before the First Appellate Authority no application for refund can be filed as held by the Hon’ble apex court in the case of Priya Blue Industries Ltd., [2004 (172) ELT 145 – SC]. Aggrieved by these orders, the present appeals have been filed on the following grounds:

a) The impugned order is unfair and unjust and erroneous

b) under self assessment for refund no appeal can be filed as there is no order of assessment to be appealed against.

c) under section 17 of the Customs Act, 1962 (as amended) assessment is done by the assessee themselves under the self assessment scheme and there is no mechanism to challenge such self assessment before the Commissioner (Appeals). Therefore the ratio of the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Priya Blue Industries (supra) which was passed in the context of the earlier legal position where an assessment had to be done by the officer does not hold good in their case. They relied on the judgments of the Hon'ble High Court of Delhi in the case of Aman Medical Products Vs Commissioner[2010(250)ELT30] and Micromax Informatics Ltd.[2016(375)ELT446-Del] in which the Hon'ble High Court distinguished the judgment of the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Priya Blue Industries(supra) in view of the revised legal provision for assessment. Learned Counsel also submits that this Bench, in the case of Hindustan Petroleum Corporation Ltd., in customs appeal no. 30274/2019 decided vide Final Order no. A/30740/2019 held that the judgments of the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Priya Blue Industries(supra) and Flock India Pvt Ltd.[2000(120) ELT 285 (SC)] do not apply in the light of the amendments to the customs act and the judgments of the Hon'ble High Court of Delhi in the case of Aman Medical Products(supra) and Micromax Industries Ltd.(supra) prevail.

3. Learned DR reiterates the findings of the lower authorities. He also submits that in the case of ITC Ltd., as reported in [2019-TIOL-418-SC-CUS], the Larger Bench of the Supreme Court has held that an assessment under Section 17 of the Customs Act or under the Central Excise Act must be challenged before a refund application must be filed without which no refund can be sanctioned. The Hon'ble Larger Bench of the Supreme Court has upheld the judgments of Priya Blue (supra) and Flock India (supra) even after self assessment has been introduced under Section 17. It has been held that the self assessment order is also an assessment order and can be appealed against before the Commissioner (Appeals) and in the absence of any such appeal no refund application can be entertained. Paras 43, 47 and 48 of this judgment are reproduced below:

43. As the order of self-assessment is nonetheless an assessment order passed under the Act, obviously it would be appealable by any person aggrieved thereby. The expression 'Any person' is of wider amplitude. The revenue, as well as the assessee, can also prefer an appeal aggrieved by an order of assessment. It is not only the order of re-assessment which is appealable but the provisions of Section 128 make appealable any decision or order under the Act including that of self-assessment. The order of self-assessment is an order of assessment as per section 2(2), as such, it is appealable in case any person is aggrieved by it. There is a specific provision made in Section 17 to pass a reasoned/speaking order in the situation in case on verification, self-assessment is not found to be satisfactory, an order of re-assessment has to be passed under section 17(4). Section 128 has not provided for an appeal against a speaking order but against “any order” which is of wide amplitude. The reasoning employed by the High Court is that since there is no lis, no speaking order is passed, as such an appeal would not lie, is not sustainable in law, is contrary to what has been held by this Court in Escorts (supra).

47. When we consider the overall effect of the provisions prior to amendment and post-amendment under Finance Act, 2011, we are of the opinion that the claim for refund cannot be entertained unless the order of assessment or self-assessment is modified in accordance with law by taking recourse to the appropriate proceedings and it would not be within the ken of Section 27 to set aside the order of self-assessment and reassess the duty for making refund; and in case any person is aggrieved by any order which would include self-assessment, he has to get the order modified under Section 128 or under other relevant provisions of the Act.

48. Resultantly, we find that the order(s) passed by Customs, Excise, and Service Tax Appellate Tribunal is to be upheld and that passed by the High Courts of Delhi and Madras to the contrary, deserves to be and are here by set aside. We order accordingly. We hold that the applications for refund were not maintainable. The appeals are accordingly disposed of. Parties to bear their own costs as incurred.

4. I have considered the arguments from both sides and perused the records. As it is now settled by the Larger Bench of the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of ITC Ltd., (supra) that no refund can be sanctioned without challenging the assessment order whether such assessment is done prior to the amendment to Section 17 of the Customs Act where the assessment had to be done by the officers post such amendment where the assessment is done under self-assessment scheme, I have no option but to hold that the appeals are not sustainable and need to be rejected.

5. The impugned orders are upheld and the appeals are rejected.

(Order dictated and pronounced in open court)
1. This appeal is filed against Order-in-Appeal No. 32/2007 (H-II) CUS, dated 12.07.2007 by the Revenue.

2. None appeared on behalf of respondent despite notice. Heard Learned DR and perused the records.

3. The facts of the case in brief are that the respondent herein imported ‘Computer Radiography System’ and filed Bill of Entry No. 135166 dated 03.01.2006 classifying the product under 90189099. After assessment, the respondent were allowed clearance of goods for home consumption under Section 47 after payment of custom duty of Rs. 3,12,337/-. Later, it was noticed by the Assistant Commissioner that identical goods were being imported at other customs stations after classifying them under Customs Tariff Heading 90229099. A show cause notice was issued to the respondent on 14.02.2006 seeking to reclassify the goods under 90229099 and demand differential duty of Rs. 1,20,201/-. The respondent filed replies and attended personal hearing requesting the demand be dropped. After examination of the submissions of the respondent, Assistant Commissioner held that the goods in question deserve to be classified under custom tariff heading 90229090 and consequently they were not eligible for exemption under Notification No. 10/2003-CE and confirmed the demand of differential duty of Rs. 1,20,201/- along with interest.

4. Aggrieved, the appellant appealed before the First Appellate Authority who, on merits, agreed with the department's classification of the subject goods. He however, held that the assessment order in the subject bill of entry was not challenged by the department before the appropriate forum and therefore no demand under Section 28 of the Customs Act, 1962 is maintainable. He relied on the judgment of the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Flock India Ltd., [2000 (120) ELT 285 SC] and Priya Blue [2004 (172) ELT 145 SC]. Relying on these two judgments he held that the order of the lower authority is not sustainable and set his order aside.

5. Revenue is aggrieved by the impugned order of the First Appellate Authority and submits that the demand for short levy was raised under Section 28 of Customs Act, 1962 which is the provision to raise a demand after notice to the party. After issue of the notice and following due process of law the Deputy Commissioner had confirmed the demand. The Commissioner (Appeals) had not disagreed with the re-classification by the Deputy Commissioner and has only set aside his order relying upon the judgment of the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Flock India Ltd., (supra) and Priya Blue (supra). Both these cases pertain to the issues of refund and not the issue of demand under Section 28 and therefore the ratio of these case laws does not apply at all and the First Appellate Authority was wrong in relying on these cases. Learned DR would further submit that in the case of Karnataka Power Corporation [2002 (143) ELT 482 SC] the Hon'ble Apex Court remanded the matter of re-classification back to the Assistant Collector to decide the matter afresh and therefore it is not incorrect for Assistant Commissioner to decide the issue of classification while deciding a demand under Section 28. Learned Departmental Representative submits that the case of Jain Shudh Vanaspati Ltd., [1996 (86) ELT 460 (S.C.)] is on identical issue. The question before the Hon'ble Apex Court was whether a demand can be raised under Section 28 of the Customs Act for demanding differential duty subsequent to the passing of the order of clearance of goods under Section 47 of the Customs Act. Clearance under Section 47 subsumes classification, valuation, payment of duty and other issues. The Hon'ble Apex Court held that the demand can be raised under Section 28 after issue of order of clearance under Section 47. The provisions for demand under Section 28 of the customs act and for refund under Section 27 are quite different and the procedure to be followed with respect to each is also different. The case laws of Priya Blue (supra) and Flock India (supra) apply to refunds under Section 27 while the case law of Jain Shudh Vanaspati Ltd., (supra) applies to demand under Section 28. He would further submit that the order of the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Jain Shudh Vanaspati Ltd., has been followed in a series of judgments by the Tribunals and Courts and it is a well settled matter that a demand can be raised for not levied, not paid, short levied or short paid duty under Section 28 after clearance of the goods under Section 47 (which also means issues of classification, valuation, payment of duty have been completed).

6. We have considered the arguments by Learned DR and perused the records. The short point to be decided is whether the First Appellate Authority was correct in holding that the lower authority cannot raise a demand under Section 28 of the Customs Act without first challenging the assessment done in the bill of entry relying on the judgment of Priya Blue (supra) and Flock India (supra). We find that the judgment of Priya Blue and Flock India of the Hon'ble Apex Court are on the point of refund claim by the assessee without challenging the assessment order in the bill of entry. The present case is different. It is a case where after assessment and clearance of the goods is completed by issue of order under Section 47 of the Customs Act, 1962, within the normal period of limitation, the Deputy Commissioner has raised a demand under Section 28. While raising the demand he issued a show cause notice proposing re-classification of the imported goods and gave an opportunity to the respondent to present their case and considered their submissions. Thereafter, he confirmed the demand. The First Appellate Authority also agrees with the re-classification done by the Deputy Commissioner on merits. He, however, held that the Deputy Commissioner again raised the demand without first challenging or asking the Commissioner to review his own assessment of the bill of entry. This is not the ratio laid down by the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Priya Blue (supra) or Flock India (supra). Cases pertaining to issue of demand under Section 28 after clearance of the case under Section 47 are covered by the judgment of the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Jain Shudh Vanaspati Ltd., (supra) which clearly held that a demand can be raised under Section 28 even after clearance of the case under Section 47. Accordingly, we find that the impugned order is not correct and deserves to be set aside and we do so. The appeal is allowed and the impugned order is set aside.

REPRESENTED BY :Shri S. Guha, Authorised Representative, for the Appellant.

Shri B.N. Pal, Advocate, for the Respondent.

[Order per : P. Venkata Subba Rao, Member (T)]. - This appeal is filed by the Revenue against Order-in-Appeal No. Kol/Cus(Port)/AM/054/2015, dated 18-8-2015 passed by Commr. (Appeals) of Customs, Kolkata.

2. Heard both sides and perused the records.

3. The respondent herein had filed Bills of Entry Nos. 5690325 & 5690326 both dated 3-6-2014 and self-assessed them under Section 17 of the Customs Act, 1962, declaring the goods, which they have imported as Rotary Tillers. The Bills of Entry were cleared by Customs Risk Management System. No assessment was done by the Officer. When the goods were examined, it was found that what was imported, were Power Tillers and not Rotary Tillers. The respondent had claimed the benefit of Notification No. 12/2012-Cus., dated 17-3-2012 under Sl. No. 399(A) which is available to Rotary Tiller/Weeder. As the examining Officer affirmed what was imported were Power Tiller and not Rotary Tiller as discussed in the Bills of Entry, the Bills of Entry were reassessed denying the benefit of exemption Notification No. 12/2012-Cus. Further, the goods were held to be liable for confiscation under Section 111(m) of the Customs Act, 1962. It was also held that the importer (respondent) was also liable for penalty under Section 112(a) and 114A of the Customs Act, 1962. Thus concluding, the Joint Commissioner of Customs, confiscated the goods under Section 111(m) of the Customs Act, 1962, and also imposed a penalty upon the importer under Section 114A of the Customs Act, 1962, amounting to Rs. 8,56,380/-.

4. Aggrieved, the respondent appealed to the first appellate authority, who, by the impugned order, allowed the appeal giving benefit of the exemption Notification to the imported goods holding that they are eligible for exemption under Sl. No. 399(A) of the exemption Notification No. 12/2012-Cus., dated 17-3-2012. He also set aside the order of confiscation, imposition of fine and penalty under the Customs Act, 1962.

5. Aggrieved by this order, the Revenue has filed the present appeal on the following grounds:

(i) That the Learned Commissioner of Customs (Appeals), Kolkata grossly erred in his observation and ignoring the fact that “Power Tillers” are pedestrian driven machine having wheels which used mainly for agricultural purpose where they can be used for tilling of farms with the help of implements like Rotary Tiller, Weeder, disc plough, disc horrows, ridger, etc. These ‘Power Tiller’ can also be used for carrying fodder goods, etc. from one place to another by way attaching a cart behind them. Whereas, ‘Rotary Tiller’ are implements and are used in the field/farm for tilling of soil or breaking up of soil having blades. Power Tillers has ‘driven’ feature by an engine but Rotary Tiller has ‘rotate’ feature of tiller. A tiller may rotary or non-rotary depends on ‘rotation’ or ‘straight’ movement. On the other hand, a tiller may be driven by a bullock or horse or poer. A Rotary Tiller may be driven with power and without power and a power tiller may with rotary tiller or without rotary feature tiller and therefore in terms of customs Notification No. 12/2012-Cus., dated 17-3-2012 under Sl. No. 399(A), the item ‘Rotary Tiller’ has been specifically given the benefit under the notification, and not ‘Power Tiller’.

(ii) That the Commissioner of Customs (Appeals), Kolkata has failed to appreciate the fact that Power Tillers and Rotary Tillers are two different items. Rotary Tiller is appliance/implement which can be used manually with the help of Bullock or Horses, etc. or with any power driven machines like tractors, Power Tillers, etc. Therefore it cannot be said that both items are same.

(iii) That the Learned Commissioner of Customs (Appeals), Kolkata grossly erred in his observation at para 6(iii) that the onus to deny the benefit lies with the Department and as such, the benefit of doubt goes in favour of the appellant. The goods are found to be ‘Power Tiller’ and hence not covered under Sl. No. 399A of the Customs Notification No. 12/2012-Cus., dated 17-3-2012. It is for importer, to satisfy the condition and not for the department to prove it otherwise.

(iv) That the Central Board of Excise & Customs vide their Circular No. 45/2001-Cus., dated 7-8-2001 has clarified that “Rotary Tillers/cultivators are reported to be an implement/attachment with blades or tines mounted on a power driven shaft. These equipments classifiable under CTH 84.32 are fitted as an attachment to tractor. Power Tillers are on the other hand, prime movers in which the direction of travel and control for field operations is performed by the operator walking behind it. Hence, it is clear that power tillers/pedestrian controlled tractors/walking tractors are different from rotary tillers.

(v) That in an identical issue Commissioner of Customs (Appeals), Custom House, Kolkata in his Order-in-Appeal No. 416-422/Cus(Apprg)/KOL(P)/2014 dated 11-9-2014 has held that “Power Tillers” and “Rotary Tillers” are two different items and by any stretch of imagination both cannot be understood as same. A tiller may rotary or non-rotary depend on ‘rotation’ or ‘straight’ movement. On the other hand, a tiller may be driven by a bullock or horse or power. A Rotary Tiller may be driven with power and without power and a power tiller may with rotary tiller or without rotary feature tiller. The Customs Notification No. 12/2012-Cus., dated 17-3-2012 [Sl. No. 399(A)] grants concessional rate of duty benefit to the item ‘Rotary Tiller’ and not ‘Power Tiller’.

(vi) That the Learned Commissioner of Customs (Appeals), Kolkata has miserably failed in not appreciating the fact that the Bills of Entry were facilitated by the RMS of the EDI System and under the ‘Self-Assessment Rules, 2011’, it is the sole responsibility of the importer to declare correct declaration/entry or claim of any duty exemption benefit in the Bill of Entry under Section 46 of the Customs Act, 1962. In the instant case, the provision of Self-Assessment Rules, 2011 has been violated by way of misdeclaration in declaring their goods as ‘Rotary Tiller’, whereas the declared goods actually, were found to be “Power Tillers”. Further, the Customs Notification No. 12/2012-Cus., dated 17-3-2012 [Sl. No. 399(A)] grants concessional rate of duty benefit to the item ‘Rotary Tiller’ and not ‘Power Tiller’. Once misdeclaration is established, it attracts provision of Section 111(m) and Section 112(a) of Customs Act, 1962. Hence, the finding of Ld. Commissioner of Customs (Appeals), Kolkata, is subjective and needs to be retarded.

6. When this matter was heard, the Ld. Counsel for the respondent, had, at the outset, pointed out that the duty involved in this case is less than Rs. 10 lakhs and therefore, the Revenue’s appeal is governed by National Litigation Policy and, therefore, needs to be rejected on this ground itself without going into the merits of the case. He submitted that this Bench in the case of Sunrise International in Customs Appeal Nos. C/76455076457 of 2018, had, by the order dated 25-11-2019, dismissed the similar appeals under Litigation Policy without examining the merits of the case.

7. Ld. DR for the Revenue, submits that the National Litigation Policy sets a monetary limit of Rs. 10 lakhs insofar as the Customs Appeals are concerned. However, this limit is subject to some conditions. Issues involving classification, valuation and having substantive question of law, do not get covered. This appeal is one of those exceptions as the question of classification of the imported goods as well as the benefit of exemption notification are involved in this case, even though the amount of duty involved is less than Rs. 10 lakhs. Therefore, the Department does not wish to withdraw this appeal as the case is not covered by the Litigation Policy and insists that an order may be passed. As the Revenue is not withdrawing the appeal and asserts that is not covered by the Litigation Policy, we proceed to examine and decide the matter on merits.

8. Since times immemorial men learned that the soil needs to be loosened in order to grow crops. This has been done using a variety of implements and machines starting with spades, bullock drawn ploughs, tractor drawn ploughs and other instruments. There are basically three types of instruments, which loosen soils. Ploughs, which loosen the soil, harrows and hoes, which pulverize the soil breaking large clods of soil into finer particles and rotary tillers, which rotate and plough the soil. Tractor is a vehicle constructed essentially for hauling or pushing another vehicle, appliance/implement, whether or not with subsidiary provision for transport. There are tractors, which are used mainly for lifting and handling goods in warehouse, factory, railway platform, etc. There are also other tractors, which are primarily used for agriculture and related works. Tractors used for agriculture, can be either pedestrian controlled tractors, which move with the load but are controlled by the operator walking behind it or tractors in which the driver is seated on it. In both types, the tractor by itself does not plough the soil or loosen it. These activities are done by attachment to the tractor. The tractor itself can be put to many uses depending upon, which attachment is used. The pedestrian controlled tractors are also known as Power Tillers or walking tractors.

In the Bills of Entry in this case, the description of goods is Rotary Tiller. On examination, however, the goods were found to be Power Tillers. Since the Power Tillers, which are also known as pedestrian controlled tractors are different from Rotary tillers, the original authority denied the benefit of exemption notification to the respondent. He also ordered confiscation of the goods and imposed fine and penalty upon the respondents. The First Appellate Authority observed that no expert opinion was sought by the Department regarding nature of the goods. He also relied upon a “clarification” issued by Ministry of Agriculture, Department of Agriculture & Cooperation vide F. No. 9-I/2014-M&T (I & P), dated 27th October, 2014, to conclude that the benefit of exemption Notification was available to the power tillers as well. Relying upon this so-called clarification, he held that the benefit of exemption notification, is available and accordingly, set aside the order of the lower authorities.

10. The Ld. DR for the Revenue, submits that the first appellate authority has erred relying upon the so-called clarification, which is nothing but a letter/memo from the Deputy Commissioner (M&T) of the Department of Agriculture & Cooperation to the Under Secretary (Policy) of the same Department essentially dealing with the representations of different associations and requesting that the Under Secretary to examine the matter and take up the matter with the Finance Ministry to extend the benefit of concessional rate of duty to Power Tiller.

11. The Ld. Counsel for the respondent, supports the impugned order.

12. We have considered the arguments of both sides and the issue to be decided:

(a) the benefit of exemption Notification 12/2012-Cus., dated 17-3-2012, Sl. No. 399(A) available to Rotary Tiller/Weeder is also available to Power Tiller, which were imported by the respondent.

(b) whether the imported goods were liable for confiscation under Section 111(m) of the Customs Act, 1962 and the fine and penalty are liable to be upheld.

13. In so far as the first point of law is concerned, it has been discussed at length about the distinction between the Power Tiller, which in the form of pedestrian controlled tractor, and the Rotary Tiller, which are equipment to till the soil. Tractors including pedestrian controlled tractors or power tiller are classifiable under Customs Tariff Heading 8701. Rotary tillers are classifiable under Chapter Heading 84 as agriculture equipment. The Rotary tiller is specifically covered under Customs Tariff Heading 8432. As there was a confusion among the some field formations, this matter was discussed at length in C.B.E. & C.’s Circular. No. 45/2001-Customs dated 7th August, 2001, in which, it was clarified as follows:

"F. No. 528/4/2001-CUS(TU)"
Subject: Classification of pedestrian controlled tractors/power tillers as rotary tillers under Heading 84.32 - Regarding.

I am directed to refer to the subject mentioned above and to say that a representation has been received in Board’s office stating that pedestrian controlled tractors/power tillers classifiable under CTH 87.01 are being cleared as rotary tillers under CTH 84.32 and that the incorrect classification has adversely affected the interests of the domestic industry.

2. The matter has been examined. In this connection, comments on classification and assessment practice followed were called for. The Custom Houses were also requested to forward copies of brochure/technical literature of the equipment in question. From the reports received, it appears that the customs House are following the decision of the Conference of Commissioners of Customs on Tariff and Allied Matters held at Cochin (Oct. 95) wherein it had been decided that few models of power tillers would merit classification under CTH 84.32 as agricultural machinery for soil preparation or soil cultivation.

3. HS Explanatory Notes to Heading 87.01 state that the heading covers tractors of various types. Such tractors may also be equipped with a tool box, with a provision for raising and lowering agricultural implements, with coupling devices for trailers or semi-trailers or with a power take off for driving machines such as threshers and circular saws. It is further stated that this heading also covers ‘pedestrian controlled tractors’ or ‘Walking tractors’. These tractors are small agricultural tractors equipped with a single driving axle carried on one or two wheels, and like normal tractors, they are designed for use with interchangeable implements which they may operate by means of a general purpose power take off. Such tractors are not usually fitted with a seat and the steering is effected by means of two handles.

4. Rotary tillers/cultivators are reported to be an implement/attachment with blades or tines mounted on a power driven shaft. These equipment classifiable under CTH 84.32 are fitted as an attachment to tractor, Power tillers are, on the other hand, prime movers in which the direction of travel and control for field operations is performed by the operator walking behind it. Hence, it is clear that power tillers/pedestrian controlled tractors/walking tractors are different from rotary tillers.

5. The Explanatory Notes make it clear that ‘pedestrian tractors’ are to be classified under CTH 87.01 as tractors and not as ‘rotary tillers’ under Heading 84.31. The Custom House may, therefore, kindly ensure that ‘pedestrian controlled tractors’ or walking tractors are not cleared in the guise of rotary tillers. Difficulties, if any, faced in the implementation of above instructions may be brought to the notice of the Board.

Please acknowledge receipt of this circular.

14. We have gone through the letter/memo of the Ministry of Agriculture relied upon by the first appellate authority in the impugned order. This only mentions that the benefit of Notification No. 12/2012-Cus. (supra) available to Rotary Tiller, may also be extended to power tiller and requested the Under Secretary of their own Department, to take up the matter with the Finance Ministry in regard to eligibility of exemption notification or classification. We also note that the Ministry of Agriculture is not expert in classification of goods under the Customs Act, valuation, determination of duty or availability of benefit of exemption notification. They have rightly applied their mind from their point of view and felt that the exemption notification must be available to power tiller also. This view of the Ministry of Agriculture, cannot determine the eligibility or otherwise of the exemption notification to power tiller. It must be determined solely based on the way exemption notification as it is drafted. A bare perusal of the exemption notification, shows that it is available, inter alia, to rotary tiller/weeder. It does not suggest directly or indirectly that it is available to power tillers also. Therefore, in our considered view, the benefit of exemption notification is not available to the power tillers imported by the appellant.

15. However, considering that the importers could have entertained the wrong belief that the exemption Notification is available to them and made an ineligible claim, we do not find sufficient grounds to uphold the confiscation of the goods under Section 111(m) or imposition of penalty, fine upon the respondent.

16. In view of the above, the impugned order is modified to the extent of setting aside the benefit of exemption Notification No. 12/2012-Cus. (supra) extended by it, but upholding the setting aside of fine and penalty.

17. The appeal filed by the Revenue is partly allowed as above.

Heard both sides and perused the records.

2. The appellants in these cases are importers of readymade garments from Bangladesh. After importing, they have filed Bills of Entry with the Customs authorities at the Petrapol Land Customs Station. The Bills of Entry were assessed and during examination it was found that the appellants had imported goods in excess of what were declared in the Bills of Entry and other documents. The goods imported from Bangladesh are exempted from payment of duty as per the South Asia Free Trade Agreement (SAFTA) by Notification No.99/2011-CUS dated 09.11.2011. The details of the goods which were declared and actually found in respect of M/s. Bishal Exports are as follows:-

7. However, the learned adjudicating authority has ordered confiscation of the entire consignment including those goods which have been correctly declared in their Bills of Entry. Further, he has demanded and confirmed Customs duty on the entire consignment completely denying the benefit of exemption even with respect to those goods which are covered by the SAFTA certificate which they have produced.

8. He would submit that these facts are not in dispute. In fact, these are recorded in the impugned orders themselves. He would therefore argue that if at all any action has to be taken it can be taken only in respect of the excess goods. On the remaining goods which conformed to the SAFTA certificate, they are entitled to the benefit of exemption Notification. Such goods which are covered by their declarations are also not liable for confiscation and no redemption fine can be imposed on those goods. Similarly penalties, if any imposed have to be reckoned only on such quantity of goods as are in excess.

9. He would further argue that the excess quantity which has been discovered during examination by the Customs is a small fraction of the total quantity imported amounting for less than 10% in terms of the total number of pieces. As the excess quantity is very small, the same may also be condoned and the entire confiscation proceedings as well as confirmation of demands may be set aside.

10. In view of the above, he would pray for setting aside the impugned order and allowing their appeals.

11. Per contra, learned Authorized Representative for the department supports the impugned order.

12. We have considered the arguments of both sides and perused the records.

13. It is not in dispute and is evident from the records as well as the impugned order that the appellant had mis-declared the quantity of goods and had imported goods in excess of what was declared in the Bills of Entry and the other documents. Country of origin certificate from Bangladesh (SAFTA certificate) which would entitle them to import goods under an exemption also covered such quantity of the goods as was declared in their Bills of Entry. What is in violation of the Customs Act is only the excess quantity of the goods which have been imported by them without declaring in any of the documents. These goods are also not covered by the SAFTA certificate. As per section 111 of the Customs Act, 1962 several types of goods brought in the place outside India are liable for confiscation. Clause (l) of this section reads as follows:-

"Any dutiable or prohibited goods which are not included or are in excess of those included in the entry made under this act, or in the case of baggage in the declaration made under section 77."

Clause (e) of section 111 reads as follows:-

"Any dutiable or prohibited goods found concealed in any manner in any conveyance."

14. Learned adjudicating authority has found that the goods in question do not conform to the declarations made in the entry made under the Customs Act, i.e. the Bill of Entry and hence held the goods liable for confiscation under section 111(e) and under section 111(l) of the Customs Act, 1962.

15. A plain reading of section 111 (e) and (l) shows that these apply to such goods only which have been concealed and have not been declared and not the entire quantity of goods. In fact section 111(l) is very categorical that it applies to goods found in excess of what have been declared. Therefore, we find that excess goods are liable for confiscation and not the entire consignment imported by the appellant. We therefore find that only the following goods are liable for confiscation:-

16. We find that the confiscation of the remaining goods is not supported by law and accordingly needs to be set aside and we do so.

17. We also find that the denial of the exemption Notification for the entire quantity of goods when the bulk of the goods are already covered by the SAFTA certificate is not supported by any legal provision. Therefore, the demands need to be set aside to that extent and we do so. The amount of redemption fine imposed by the impugned order as well as the penalties imposed upon the appellants need to be proportionately reduced.

18. In view of the above, we allow the appeals partly upholding the confiscation of the excess quantity of goods found in the consignment over and above what was declared and duty on such quantity of pieces. The remaining part of the demand and the confiscation of the remaining goods is set aside. Consequently the redemption fine as well as penalty upon the appellants needs to be reduced in proportion to the value of the excess goods to the total value of goods.

Appeals are partly allowed and the matters are remanded to the original authority for the limited purpose of calculation of the amount of duty, fine and penalty as above.

MISCELLANEOUS ORDER NOS. 77597-77600/2019
FINAL ORDER NOS. 76702-76705/2019

Per: P V Subba Rao:

The learned Advocate appearing on behalf of the Appellant has filed an affidavit signed by the Joint General Manager (F & A) of the appellant company stating the reasons for the inordinate delay in filing the appeals. It has been further submitted that they have a strong case on merits and the delay is unintentional. They have also relied upon the judgement of the Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of Land Acquisition Anantnag and Another vs. M.S.T. Katiji & Others [1987 (28) ELT 185 (SC)

2. In view of the submissions as made by the learned Advocate and the reasons as explained in the affidavit and the Miscellaneous Applications, the prayer for condoning the delay in filing the appeal before the Tribunal is allowed.

3. With the consent of both the sides, appeals itself are taken up for disposal.

4. In these cases appellant had filed refund claim with respect to fertilizers which have been imported on which they have paid excess Customs duty taking the wrong value for the purpose of calculation. Initially, the assessments were done provisionally and subsequently they were finalized by the Assistant Commissioner of Customs. Thereafter, the appellant filed a refund claim which was rejected by the lower authority and such rejection was upheld by the first appellate authority by the impugned orders on the ground that the assessments which were done by the adjudicating authority were not challenged by the assessee. He relied on the case law - Flock (I) Pvt.Ltd. [2000 (120) E.L.T. 285 (SC)] and Priya Blue Industries Ltd. [2004 (172) ELT 145(SC)] to reject the refund applications.

5. Aggrieved by this rejection by the first appellate authority, present appeals have been filed.

6. Learned Authorized Representative for the Revenue points out that the issue is now settled by the larger of the Supreme Court in the case of ITC Ltd. v. Commissioner of Central Excise, Kolkata-IV (Civil Appeal No.293294 of 2009) as reported in It is now settled by this judgement that no refund claim can be allowed arising out of an assessment unless the assessment itself has been challenged.

7. Learned Counsel for the Appellant submits that they were also denied the principles of natural justice while finalizing the assessment inasmuch as they were not given a personal hearing before finalizing the assessment.

8. We have considered the arguments of both the sides and perused the records. The short question which falls for consideration in these appeals is whether the first appellate authority was correct in rejecting the appeals of the appellant and upholding the rejection of their refund claims by the lower authority; merely on the ground that they have not challenged the assessment orders from which such refund arises.

9. We find that this issue has gone through several judicial decisions. In the case of Priya Blue Industries (supra) and Flock India Ltd.(supra), the Hon'ble Apex Court had held that where a refund arises out of the assessment such refund cannot be sanctioned unless the assessment itself has been challenged and modified. The reason for this is officers sanctioning the refund cannot sit in judgement over the assessment which in itself is an adjudication process. Therefore the assessment must be challenged before the Commissioner(Appels) before refund claim can be filed. Sanction of refund is mere a mechanical process which arises out of such re-assessment or modification of assessment at the appellate stage. Subsequently, in the case of Aman Medical Products Limited and Micromax Informatics Ltd the Hon'ble High Court of Delhi has distinguished the cases of Priya Blue Industries and Flock India Ltd. and held that where there is no assessment order itself there is nothing for the assessee to challenge and in such cases the refund can be sanctioned without challenging the assessment. The case of Aman Medical Products pertained to a Customs case where the department introduced a system of Risk Management System(RMS). Although section 17 of Customs Act required the assessing officer to assess the Bills of Entry, the officer had no way of carrying out the assessment as the RMS used to automatically clear the goods based on the declarations filed by the assessee. The question was whether in such a case, the assessment of Bill of Entry done by the RMS based on the declaration by the importer has to be challenged before seeking a refund. The case of Micromax Informatics Ltd. (supra) pertained to the period when self-assessment procedure has been introduced under section 17 of the Customs Act, 1962. In this case, assessee had self-assessed duty at the higher rate and thereafter sought refund. The Hon'ble High Court had held that it being a self-assessment there is no order by any officer and hence nothing to be challenged and refund can be processed and sanctioned accordingly.

10. Both these cases and many similar appeals have come up before the Hon'ble Supreme Court in the case of I.T.C. Ltd. (supra). The Hon'ble Apex Court has held that in all cases including cases of selfassessment, the assessment must be challenged before refund can be sanctioned. Paras 44-48 of this judgement are reproduced below:-

"44. The provisions under Section 27 cannot be invoked in the absence of amendment or modification having been made in the bill of entry on the basis of which self-assessment has been made. In other words, the order of self-assessment is required to be followed unless modified before the claim for refund is entertained under Section 27. The refund proceedings are in the nature of execution for refunding amount. It is not assessment or re-assessment proceedings at all. Apart from that, there are other conditions which are to be satisfied for claiming exemption, as provided in the exemption notification. Existence of those exigencies is also to be proved which cannot be adjudicated within the scope of provisions as to refund. While processing a refund application, re-assessment is not permitted nor conditions of exemption can be adjudicated. Re-assessment is permitted only under Section 17(3)(4) and (5) of the amended provisions. Similar was the position prior to the amendment. It will virtually amount to an order of assessment or re-assessment in case the Assistant Commissioner or Deputy Commissioner of Customs while dealing with refund application is permitted to adjudicate upon the entire issue which cannot be done in the ken of the refund provisions under Section 27. In Hero Cycles Ltd. v. Union of India - 2009 (240) E.L.T. 490 (Bom.) though the High Court interfered to direct the entertainment of refund application of the duty paid under the mistake of law. However, it was observed that amendment to the original order of assessment is necessary as the relief for a refund of claim is not available as held by this Court in Priya Blue Industries Ltd. (supra).

45. Reliance was also placed on a decision of Rajasthan High Court with respect to service tax in Central Office Mewar Palace Org. v. Union of India - 2008 (12) S.T.R. 545 (Raj.). In view of the aforesaid discussion, we are not inclined to accept the reasoning adopted by the High Court, that too is also not under the provisions of the Customs Act.

46. The decision in Intex Technologies (India) Ltd. v. Union of India has followed Micromax (supra). The reasoning employed by the High Courts of Delhi and Madras does not appear to be sound. The scope of the provisions of refund under Section 27 cannot be enlarged. It has to be read with the provisions of Sections 17, 18, 28 and 128.

47. When we consider the overall effect of the provisions prior to amendment and post-amendment under Finance Act, 2011, we are of the opinion that the claim for refund cannot be entertained unless the order of assessment or self-assessment is modified in accordance with law by taking recourse to the appropriate proceedings and it would not be within the ken of Section 27 to set aside the order of self-assessment and reassess the duty for making refund; and in case any person is aggrieved by any order which would include self-assessment, he has to get the order modified under Section 128 or under other relevant provisions of the Act.

48. Resultantly, we find that the order (s) passed by Customs, Excise, and Service Tax Appellate Tribunal is to be upheld and that passed by the High Courts of Delhi and Madras to the contrary, deserves to be and are hereby set aside. We order accordingly. We hold that the applications for refund were not maintainable. The appeals are accordingly disposed of. Parties to bear their own costs as incurred.

11. As the issue has now been settled by the larger Bench of the Hon’ble Apex Court, we hold that the appellant was not entitled to the refund without having first challenged the assessment order itself and therefore the impugned order denying such refund is correct.

12. We have considered the arguments of the learned Counsel for the appellant that they were not given an opportunity of being heard before finalizing the assessment. Nevertheless, the fact remains that such assessment has not been challenged at all by the appellant. This appeal is not with respect to finalization of provisional assessment but with respect to refund. Respectfully following the ratio of the decision of the larger Bench of the Hon'ble Supreme Court, we find that the rejection of the refund by the impugned orders of the first appellate authority are correct and call for no interference.

The impugned orders are upheld and the appeals are rejected.

FINAL ORDER NO. 76159/2019

Per: P Anjani Kumar:

The appellants have imported two consignments of ready-made garments and filed Bills of Entry No.868/08 dated 21.07.2008 and 836/08 dated 09.07.2008. The consignments were intercepted by the Officer of Head Quarters P & I Branch; it was found that there was mis-declaration, in the consignments consisting 229 bales, to the extent of 81 bales;81 bales were found to contain full pants and trousers in place of declared pajamas. Accordingly, the Department has seized the materials and issued a show-cause notice to the appellant proposing confiscation and imposition of penalties. Showcause notice was adjudicated by the Commissioner vide Order-in- Original No.08/Cus/CC(P)/WB/2009 dated 06.03.2009, vide which, Commissioner confiscated the goods totally revaluated Rs.38,09,430 and allowed redemption on payment of fine of Rs.45,00,000; imposed penalty of Rs.41,86,625/- on Shri Bikash Kumar Saha, Proprietor of the Appellant Company under Section 112(b)(ii) of the Customs Act, 1962 and penalty of Rs.1,00,000 On Shri Bimal Roy, Authorized Employee of CHA Firm.

2. The Learned Counsel for the appellant submits that the importer was not aware of any misdeclaration and has submitted a Fax Message received from their foreign supplier stating that it was a mistake on their part in loading the goods, which was not indented by the Indian Importer. The Learned Counsel submits that the Department has not accepted their submissions and proceeded with the confiscation of the goods and imposition of penalties; Commissioner has attempted to revalue the goods on the basis of report, by the Chairman, Chamber of Textile, Trade & Industry, Kolkata, given at the behest of the Department. Counsel also alleges that the sample sent for testing to CRCL was too small and not at all representative. The Learned Counsel further submits that as there was no misdeclaration on their part, no penalty can be levied on them; the revised value of the goods was arrived in an arbitrary manner and the same should be set aside. Learned Counsel submits that they are willing to take the consignment released at the value declared by them.

3. The Learned Authorised Representative, for the Department, reiterates the findings of the Order-in-Original and submits that the Commissioner has given the detailed reasoning for adopting differential value by passing the impugned order.

4. Heard both sides and perused the records.

5. We find that the appellants have imported 229 bales of Pajamas, Shorts and Head Gears. However, 81 bales consisted of full pants in place of Pajamas. The Learned Counsel has submitted a letter purported to have been sent by Fax from M/s Chandra Export, Kalampur, Bangladesh. The said letter dated 22.07.2008 mentions that due to electricity shut off, the goods were loaded under candle light and by mistake, some old and used garments have loaded. It does not mention that pants were loaded in place of pajamas. After perusing this letter, we find that the reason put forth by the Learned Counsel for the appellant, for importing full pants in place of indented pajamas, is not at all forthcoming from the said letter. The said letter does give any reason for the misdeclaration of 81 bales of cargo. Therefore, it is difficult to believe the submissions of the appellant that they had no Knowledge of the misdeclaration of the cargo. We find that the Learned Commissioner has found that the goods are misdeclared; the appellants having filed bill of entry have misdeclared the goods. We find that mens rea is not an essential ingredient either for the purposes of confiscation under Section 111 or for levy of penalty under 112(a) of the Customs Act, 1962. Therefore, we hold that the fact or otherwise of the appellant having intention or knowledge has no bearing on confiscation of the goods. To that extent, we find that the impugned order is acceptable. We therefore, uphold that confiscation. We however, hold that the redemption fine should be commensurate with the extent of misdeclaration and the margin of profit.

6. However, we find that the valuation adopted in the impugned order is arbitrary. The Learned Commissioner has not recorded any reason for rejecting the declared value in respect of 148 bales. He proceeded to redetermine the value of all the goods when the misdeclaration was only in respect of 81 bales. Commissioner proceeded to redetermine the entire quantity of goods without giving any reasons for rejecting the value of the goods. The impugned order does not refer to any Valuation Rules and it does not make it clear if the CVR, 2007 have been followed sequentially. Under the circumstances, we find that it is difficult to sustain such un-reasoned order to the extent of value of 148 bales declared by the appellant. We find that the valuation declared by the appellant is to be accepted. However, it is required to redetermine the value of 81 bales in dispute, which were misdeclared. We find that the issue needs to go back to the adjudicating authority for proper appreciation of the Customs Valuation Rules and to redetermine the value accordingly. We find that the Learned Commissioner has imposed penalty on the appellant keeping in view the revised value of the entire goods, which are partly misdeclared. Such imposition of penalty has no basis of law. Therefore, we are inclined to reduce the penalty, imposable on the appellant, to be equivalent to the applicable duty payable on such redetermination of the value of 81 bales in question. Accordingly, we set aside the impugned order and remand back the same to the adjudicating authority with a direction to accept the declared value in respect of 148 bales and redetermine the value of 81 bales in accordance with law. The penalty imposable on the appellant will be equal to the duty that may be applicable on the 81 bales of garments misdeclared, subject to condition laid down in Section 112 (b) of the Customs Act, 1962. Looking in to the fact that the goods were lying with customs for a long time and have lost substantial value, we restrict the fine, in lieu of confiscation, to Rs.10, 000 (Rupees ten thousand only). We direct that so far as practicable, the Learned Commissioner shall pass a suitable order within 12 weeks from the date of receipt of this order.

7. The appeal is disposed off in the above terms.

FINAL ORDER NO. A/86982/2019

Per: Sanjiv Srivastava:

This appeal is directed against order in appeal No 253/MCH/AC/Gr-VB/2012 dated 20.04.2012 of the Commissioner Customs (Appeals), Mumbai Zone I. By the impugned order, the Commissioner (Appeals) has upheld the order of Assistant Commissioner of Customs (Import), Gr VB NCH Mumbai holdings as follows:

"I hold that the said vessel, M V majesty, is classifiable under chapter sub heading 89039990 and not under Chapter 89011010. I further order that importer is liable to pay the applicable duty leviable under CTH 89039990 and accordingly, I order that amount of Rs 22994015/- paid by the importer be appropriated towards applicable duty.

This order is issued without prejudice to any other action that may be taken in respect of the goods in question and/or against the person concerned under the provisions of the Customs Act, 196 and/or any law for the time being in force in the Republic of India"

2.1 Appellants imported second hand/used Casino Ship M V Majesty vide Bill of Entry 886357 dated 17.05.2009. The declared assessable value of the Ship was TRs 7.99 crores and classification claimed was under 8901. The B/E was order for examination on first check basis.

2.2 The ship was examined on first check basis. As per the examination report the value of the vessel excluding game equipments was proposed in the range of US$ 1,125,000 to US$ 1,400,000 by the docks. The value of game equipment was proposed around US$ 117,500 and the value of chair and stool around US$ 15,430. It was also suggested vessel would more appropriately be classifiable under heading 8903 as against 8901 claimed by the importer. It was also stated that casino games/chairs/stools are old and used and fitted in the vessel may be classified separately under Chapter 94/95 and may also attract ITC violation.

2.3 B/E was assessed under CTH 89039990 as the vessel imported was a complete 'casino vessel' and it was to be used exclusively for gaming and the same was not a passenger vessel absolutely for any excursion as the vessel did not had any regular seating plan, and the chairs in the vessel were around the gaming table and not for any excursion trips. The value as suggested by the docks on the basis of Chartered Engineer Certificate (produced by the importer) was adopted for assessment. No ITC violation was found as the casino games/chairs/stools though old and used were fitted with the vessel and could not have been treated differently. Importer paid the duty assessed vide TR 6 Challan No 20639109 dated 18.05.2009.

2.4 Against the assessment order they filed writ in High Court of Bombay and subsequently withdrew it. They filed the appeal before Commissioner (Appeal) which was allowed (Order in Appeal No 279/2009/MCH/AC/Gr VB/2009 dated 27.10.2009) and Assistant Commissioner directed to pass a speaking order under Section 17(5) of the Customs Act, 1962.

2.5 As directed by the Commissioner (Appeals), Assistant Commissioner has vide his order in original No 668/AC/Gr VB/RCC/2010 dated 10.03.2010 decided the issue by a speaking order. Appellants filed the appeal against this order before Commissioner (Appeals).

2.6 Commissioner (Appeals) has vide the impugned order referred in para 1, supra dismissed the appeal filed by the appellants.

2.7 Aggrieved by the impugned order, appellants have filed this appeal.

3.1 We have heard Shri Chirag Shetty, Advocate for the Appellants and Shri R K Dwivedi, Additional Commissioner, Authorized Representative for the revenue.

3.2 Arguing for the appellant, learned counsel submitted that-

- Impugned order admits that the vessel was designed as passenger ship and was subsequently modified to be casino ship. In terms of decision in case of Urmila & Co Pvt Ltd [1998 (104) ELT 97 (T)] subsequent modifications cannot have impacted the classification.

- In case of Vipul Shipyard [1996 (88) ELT 640 (SC)] Supreme Court negatived the contention that classification is to be based on end use. Hence the end use of vessel is irrelevant factor for determining classification.

- The vessel was manufactured in 1997 with a passenger including crew carrying capacity of 475. The vessel was subsequently modified as casino vessel. Just by placing casino games on board the vessel will not cease to be cruise ship or an excursion vessel.

- The terms used in the tariff should have been interpreted as per the definitions incorporated in other relevant statues and there judicial exposition. Certificate of survey dated 21.05.2009 granted by the Ship Survey cum Deputy DH (Tech) of the Mercantile Marine Department under Section 27 of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1958 also describes the vessel as a Passenger Vessel. It is therefore abundantly clear from the aforesaid provisions as well as the aforesaid certificates and the Final certificate of the Indian Registry that the vessel has to be considered as a passenger vessel.

- Reliance placed by the Commissioner on the decision of tribunal in case of Waterways Shipyard Pvt Ltd is irrelevant as the said ship was built as casino ship.

- The issue is squarely covered by the decision of tribunal in case of Ashok Khetrapal [2014 (304) ELT 408 (T-Ahd)]

3.3 Arguing for the revenue learned authorized representative while re-iterating the findings recorded in the impugned order submitted that-

- It is clear that both the sub heading 801 and 8903 covers the vessels but of different types-

- Heading 8901 is for Cruise ships, excursion boats and similar vessels principally designed for the transport of persons; ferry boats of all kinds;

- Heading 8903 is for yachts and other vessels for pleasure or sports, rowing Boats and canoes;

- The difference between the two headings is that while the heading 8901 is applicable to vessels that are principally designed for the transport of persons, heading 8903 is for the vessels meant for pleasure.

- The dock examination report specifically gives the salient features of the vessel and states that the subject vessel is having several casino pleasure games like slot machines/table games etc. The entire layout of all the three decks is occupied by these casino games. The chairs are laid to these games. These games are exclusively meant for pleasure.

- The old certificate of inspection dated 22.05.2000 describing the vessel as passenger vessel cannot be accepted for the present controversy as the vessel has been suitably modified subsequently to incorporate various pleasure games on all the three decks and throughout the decks.
- The decision of Commissioner (Order in original No 3/Commr Goa/CX/2003 dated 27.02.2003) relied upon by the appellants has already been set aside, by the Tribunal as reported at Waterways Shipyard Pvt Ltd [2013 (297) ELT 77 (T-Mum)],

- Since the vessel in the form which it has been imported is exclusively meant for use as casino/pleasure vessel it is appropriately classifiable under heading 8903 and not under 8901 as claimed by the appellants.

4.1 We have considered the impugned order along with the submissions made in appeal and during the course of arguments of appeal.

4.2 It is settled law that imported goods are to be assessed in the form and manner in which they are imported and presented for assessment/clearance to the Customs authority at the port of importation for the clearance. Reference in this regards is made to the following para of decision of the Hon’ble Apex Court in case of Sony India wherein it has been held that-

11. Again the meaning of terms "as presented" in Rule 2(a) would clearly imply that the same refers to presentation of the incomplete or unfinished or unassembled or dis-assembled articles to the customs for assessment and classification purpose. It is also a settled position in law that the goods would have to be assessed in the form in which they are imported and presented to the customs and not on the basis of the finished goods manufactured after subjecting them to some process after the import is made. In the reported decision in Vareli Weaves Pvt. Ltd. v. Union of India [1996 (83) E.L.T. 255 (S.C.)] the question was as to whether the countervailing duty was liable to be left on the imports made by the assessee at a stage they would reach subsequent to their import after undergoing a process. It was contended that such goods could be subjected to duty only in the State in which they were imported. It was held that the countervailing duty must be levied on goods in the State in which they are when they are imported. This was on the basis of Section 3 of the Customs Tariff Act. Though there is no reference to Rule 2(a), in our opinion, the same Rule should apply subject of course to the applicability of the Rule. We have already held that the Rule is not applicable. Similar view was taken in Dunlop India and Madras Rubber Factory Ltd. v. UOI [1983 (13) E.L.T. 1566 (S.C.)]. Hence the classification of the imported goods needs to be determined in accordance with the form in which they were presented for assessment to the customs authority, and not in the form they were designed and in the form they earlier existed.

4.3 Undisputedly the goods were examined by the Customs on first check basis. The text of examination report as recorded by the Assistant Commissioner in his order is reproduced below:

"1. Inspected the vessel. Examined 100% under DC (Docks) Supervision. Checked description and quantity wrt import document, C E Certificates issued by International Bluewater Marine Service Inc dated 29.10.2008 and by Dhiraj Offshore Surveyors & Adjusters Pvt dated 30.03.2009. Verified old and used YOM as per CE Certificate.

2. vessel is having several casino pleasure games like slot machines/table games as per attached list. Annexure. Layout of main deck, second deck and third deck is occupied by these casino games. Chairs are laid to play these casino (table games, slot machines) games. These games are exclusively for the purpose of pleasure and games of chance which may attract other statutory regulation. On the basis of condition of the vessel and examination thereof at the time and place of importation, the vessel is appropriately classifiable under CTH 89039990 as "other vessel for pleasure." The declared CTH8901 is not correct as vessel is not be classified passenger/cruise types based on the fixtures (i.e. casino games) occupying the whole area of decks at the time and place of importation. Subsequent intended modifications cannot be considered for the purpose of classification and duty liability. Old Certificate of Inspection dated 22.05.2000 describing vessel as passenger for the purpose of sea voyage cannot be accepted at present for the classification purpose, when the imported vessel is tailor made for pleasure activity, classifiable under 89039990.

3. As per CE dated 29.10.2008, value of vessel excluding gaming equipment lies in the range of US$ 1,125,000 and US$ 1,400,000.

4 As per CE dtd 30.03.2009, value of total gaming equipments is US$ 33,950 and chairs & stools at US$ 2,980. Value of total gaming equipment is low and fair value on the basis of condition seems to be US$ 117,500. Similar Fair Value of Chairs & Stools seems to be US$ 10,430
5. Since casino games/chairs/stools are old and used and fitted in the vessel, these are separately classifiable under respective Chapter 95/94. These attract ITC violation. The matter may be decided by the appropriate adjudicating authority."

4.4 From the examination report reproduced above it is quite evident that casino games have been fitted on all the three decks of the vessel, and the layout of the decks including those of chairs and stools on the deck was to facilitate the playing of those casino games. Once the vessel is fitted with such casino games across the entire three decks with no regular seating plan etc., the same cannot be called a passenger ship. It is also not case of appellant that there is a fare charged by the appellant for the voyages that can be undertaken on the vessel imported. In the above background we need to examine the decisions referred to by both the sides during the course of argument of appeal.

4.5 After taking the note of above entries in the HSN and also the definition of "Pleasure Vessel" in Merchant Shipping Act, Mumbai Bench of Tribunal has in case of Waterways Shipyards Pvt Ltd [2013 (297) ELT 77 (TMum)] held as follows:

12. In the show cause notice Revenue relying on the Supreme Court judgment in the case of C.C.E., Shillong v. Wood Craft Products Ltd. contends that the HSN can be relied upon for the purpose of classification under the Central Excise Tariff. Therefore, the Revenue submits that the Entry 8901 of the HSN covers the vessels, which are principally designed for the transport of persons or to the transport of the goods. Since, the vessel M/s. M.V. Caravela is not principally designed and manufactured for the purpose of transport of persons or goods it cannot be classified under Heading 8901. We find that Entry 8901 of the HSN is as under :-

8901 Cruise Ships Excursion Boats, Ferry Boats, Cargo Ships and Similar Vessels for transport of Person or Goods.

8901.10 Cruise ships, excursion boats and similar vessels principally designed for the transport of persons; ferry-boats of all kinds

8901.20 Tanker

8901.30 Refrigerated vessels, other than those of subheading No 8901.20

8901.90 Other vessels for the transport of goods and other vessels for the transport of both persons and goods.

The heading covers all vessels for the transport of persons or goods, other than vessels of heading 8903 and life boats (other than rowing boats), troop ships and hospital ships (heading 8906); they may be for sea navigation or inland navigation (eg on lakes, rivers, estuaries)

The heading includes

1. Cruise Ships and excursion boats
2. Ferry boats of all kinds, including train ferries, car ferries and small river ferries.
3. ...
4. ..
5. ....
7. ....

From the entry in HSN it is noticed that Heading 8901.10 covers Cruise ships, excursion boats and similar vessels principally designed for the transport of persons and the Entry 8901.90 covers other vessels for the transport of goods or both persons and goods. Since present vessel is not used and manufactured for the purpose of transport of goods it will not be qualifying for its classification under Heading 8901.90. Only sub-Heading where the vessel can be classified under Heading 8901 is 8901.10 where the Cruise ships, excursion boats and similar vessels principally designed for the transport of persons are classifiable. Therefore, it is an important to know whether the vessel was principally designed for transport of persons or the vessel falls under the category of cruise ships or excursion boats. After going through the advertising material published, we find that vessel is shown as advertised cruise ship which forms the India first gaming casino. Cruise is defined in New Shorter Oxford Dictionary as :
"Cruise - A voyage in which a ship sails to and fro over a particular region, esp. for the protection of shipping or for pleasure; a sail for pleasure making for no particular place or calling at a series of place."

The vessel as a cruise ship is classifiable under Heading 8901 of Central Excise Tariff.

13. It is also noticed from the explanation below the subheading 8901 as HSN Explanatory Notes states that "this Heading covers all vessels for the transport of persons or goods, other than vessels of Heading 89.03......" From this explanation it is also inferred that some vessels of transport of persons or goods are also classifiable under Heading 8903 because of the use of the words "other than vessels of Heading 8903" in this explanation. Entry 8903 of the HSN reads as under :-

8903 Yatch and Other Vessels for Pleasure or Sports; Rowing Boats and Canoes 8031 Inflatable Other
890391 Sailboats, with or without auxiliary motor 890392 Moto boats, other than outboard motorboats
890399 Other
This heading covers all vessels for pleasure or sport and all rowing boat and canoes
This heading includes yachts, marine jets and other sailboats and motorboats, Dinglies, kayaks, sculls, skiffs, pedals (a type of pedal-operated float), sports fishing vessels, inflatable craft and boats which can be folded or disassembled.
The Heading also covers lifeboats propelled by cars (other lifeboats fall in Heading 89.06).

Heading 8903 is meant for yachts and other vessels for pleasure or sports and rowing boats and canoes. As per HSN explanation under the Heading, this Heading covers all vessels for pleasure or sports and all rowing boats and canoes, which means that all vessels which are used for pleasure or sports are to be classified under Heading 8903 and similarly all rowing boats and canoes are to be classified under Heading 8903. The use of word all before 'vessels' in the 'all vessels for pleasure or sports' means that all vessels which are used for pleasure or sports are to be classified under Heading 8903 even if these vessels are used for transport of persons or goods in view of their exclusion from 8901 as per HSN explanation under Heading 8901.

14. Under the Merchant Shipping Act, 1958 'passenger' and the 'passenger ships' have defined under Section 3(24) & 3(25) which are as under:-

3(24) "passenger" means any person carried on board a ship except -
(a) a person employed or engaged in any capacity on board the ship on this business of the ship;
(b) a person on board the ship either in pursuance of the obligations laid upon the master to carry shipwrecked, distressed or other persons or by reason of any circumstances which neither the master nor the character, if any, could have prevented or forestalled;
(c) a child under one year of age;
3(25) "passenger ship" means a ship carrying more than twelve passengers;

Similarly, 'special trade', 'special trade passenger' and 'special trade passenger ship' have been defined under Section 3(47A) (47B) & (47C). The ship in question has been categorized by the Mercantile Marine Department as 'a special trade passenger ship'. Special trade means the conveyance of large number of passengers by sea within prescribed sea areas. Special trade passenger ship has been specifically defined as to mean a mechanically propelled ship carrying more than thirty special trade passengers. This is a fact that of the vessel M/s. M. V. Caravela carries more than thirty passengers and this vessel can go to a limited area in the sea. Therefore, this special trade passenger ship is defined under Section 3(47C) is different from the normal passenger ship as defined under Section 3(25).

15. Now we have to see whether this special trade passenger ship can be classified under Heading 8901 in the category of the vessel used for transport of passengers. The passenger and special trade passenger have been separately defined under the Merchant Shipping Act. The special trade passenger ship can be taken a vessel meant for transport of the passenger as the special trade ship are meant for special trade as defined under Section 3(47A) of the Act and by virtue of words ‘other than the vessels under Heading 8903’ in HSN Explanatory Notes of Heading 8901 [this Heading covers all vessels for transport of persons or goods other than vessels of Heading 8903] it is classifiable under Heading 8903.

16. The contention of the respondent is that their vessel cannot be categorized as a vessel meant for pleasure or sports as internationally known vessels of pleasure or sports as defined in U.K., Australia and Canada are only those vessels which are owned privately by the owners or body corporate for their personal use or use for their family and the employees of the body corporate. Since the vessel does not fall under this category this cannot be classified as vessel for pleasure or sports. We find that definition of the vessel for pleasure or sports has not been incorporated in the Indian Merchant Shipping Act, which governs the registration and movement of the vessels in India. On the other hand, the Merchant Shipping Act especially defines Special Trade Passenger Ship and present vessel in question has been categorized as special trade passenger ship. The present vessel is used for casino games for people who are transported by the ferry to the vessel by the owner/lessee of the vessel. These activities fall under the category of special trade as defined under the Indian Merchant Shipping Act and would therefore be taken as a activities for the purpose of casino games, which are meant for pleasure of the people. Therefore, this would bring the vessel more appropriately under the Heading 8903 of the Central Excise Tariff.

17. Another argument taken by the respondent is that on the basis of noscitur a sociis the Commissioner has rightly held classification under Heading 8901 as articles in the Heading 8903 have to be identified by the company they keep and only small sports vessels appear to qualify for classification under Heading 8903. We find that the first explanation in the Heading 8903 clearly states that this Heading covers all vessels for pleasure or sports. The word all is sufficient enough to cover the vessels for pleasure whether small or big. Therefore, the principle of noscitur a sociis will apply only to the second explanation and not to the first explanation.

18. In the case of Urmila & Co. Pvt. Ltd. v. Collector of Customs, Bombay reported in 1998 (104) E.L.T. 97 (Tribunal) it was held by the Tribunal that it is the basic design of the vessel that determines its classification. The para 18 of the said decision is reproduced as under:

"We have already referred to above that the vessel in question was designed and registered as a vessel for pleasure. Its fittings, fixtures and equipment indicated that it was usable not for carrying cargoes or passengers for commercial purposes but was for vacation, enjoyment etc. The items for survey which were not part of the basic design of the vessel could not change the character and classification of the vessel."

In the instant case the vessel M/s. M.V. Caravela is designed for the purpose of casino games therefore by applying the ratio of the said decision it should more appropriately be classifiable under Heading 8903 as vessel for pleasure or sports.

19. It is seen from the above that the vessel in question on one hand Is classifiable as a cruise ship under Heading 8901 and on the other hand it is classifiable as a vessel for pleasure under Heading 8903. In such a situation the Rules for interpretation of the classification come into play Rule 1, 2 & 3 of the Rule for Interpretation of the Schedule are reproduced as under:

1. The titles of Sections and Chapters are provided for case of reference only; for legal purposes, classification shall be determined according to the terms of the Headings and any relative Section or Chapter Notes and provided such Headings or Notes do not otherwise require, according to the provisions hereinafter contained.

2. (a) Any reference in a Heading to goods shall be taken to include a reference to those goods incomplete or unfinished, provided that the incomplete or unfinished goods have the essential character of the complete or finished goods. It shall also be taken to include a reference to those goods complete or finished (or failing to be classified as completed or finished by virtue of this rule), removed unassembled or disassembled.

(b) Any reference in a Heading to a material or substance shall be taken to include a reference to mixtures or combinations of that material or substance with other materials or substances. Any reference to goods of a given material or substance shall be taken to include a reference to goods consisting wholly or partially of such material or substance. The classification of goods consisting of more than one material or substance shall be according to the principles contained in Rule 3.
3. When by application of sub-rule (b) or Rule 2 or for any other reason, goods are, prima facie, classifiable under two or more Headings, classification shall be effected as follows:

(a) The Heading which provides the most specific description shall be preferred to Headings providing a more general description. However, when two or more Headings each refer to part only of the materials or substances contained in mixed or composite goods or to part only of the items in a set, those Headings are to be regarded as equally specific in relation to those goods, even if one of them gives a more complete or precise description of the goods.

(b) Mixtures, composite goods consisting of different materials or made up of different components, and goods put up in sets, which cannot be classified by reference to (a), shall be classified as if any consisted of the material or component which gives them their essential character, in so far as this criterion is applicable.

(c) When goods cannot be classified by reference to (a) or (b), they shall be classified under the Heading which occurs last in the numerical order among those which equally merit consideration.

Since the Rule 1, 2, & 3-(a) or (b) are not applicable in the present situation, we find that under Rule 3(c) when the goods cannot be classified by reference to Rule 3(a) & (b) they shall be classified under Heading which occurs last in the numerical order among those which equally merit consideration. Therefore, following this Rule of Interpretation the vessel in question is more appropriately classifiable under Heading 8903 of the Central Excise Tariff. We hold accordingly.

4.6 Appellants have relied upon the decision of Tribunal Ahmedabad bench in the case of Ashok Khetrapal [2014 (304) ELT 408 (T-Ahd)] wherein it has been held as follows:

"5.1 On the issue of classification of the vessel POG, the adjudicating authority has mainly relied upon the fact that the vessel is a Casino vessel and is intended to be made stationary for use as a casino even if it is capable of making voyages in the open sea. On the other hand, importer has come out with the argument that the end use of the vessel should not be made as the basis for classifying a vessel under the Customs Tariff Act. This issue, whether end use of imported goods should be made the basis of classification was decided by Hon'ble Apex Court in the case of UOI v. V.M. Salegaoncar a Brs (P) Ltd. (supra). In that case, appellants imported transhippers which were vessels used for carrying cargo loaded from the harbour and carry the same for unloading cargo into the large vessels. The issue before the Apex Court was whether such transhippers should be considered as ocean going vessels when they were not actually meant to be going to high seas/oceans. While holding the transhippers to be ocean going vessels and eligible to exemption under Customs Notification dated 11-10-1958, the following observations were made by the Apex Court in Para 20 :-

"20. We do not think that, in the present case, the question whether a transshipping vessel is an ocean going vessel, can solely rest on the test of its dominant use to which their owners put them at times. Use may vary from season to season, port to port and also managers to managers. So, in this area of understanding use of article stands down staged, and the Court must look at to know what actually the commodity is."

5.2 In the light of above law laid down by Apex Court and the conflicting judgment of CESTAT Mumbai in the case of CCE v. Waterways Shipyard Pvt. Ltd. (supra), CGU Logistics Ltd. v. CC (I), Mumbai (supra) and Hal Offshore Ltd v. CC, Mumbai (supra), it has to be seen as to what is the nature of vessel POG. Whether it is a ‘Passenger Ship’ or a ‘Pleasure vessel’. The words ‘Passenger’, ‘Passenger Ship’ and ‘Pleasure Vessel’ have neither been defined under the Customs Tariff Act nor in the HSN explanatory notes. The words ‘Passenger’ and ‘Passenger Ship’ ‘Special Trade Passenger’ and ‘Special Trade Passenger Ship’ have been defined under Section 3(24) and 3(25), 3(47B) and 3(47C) of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1958 as follows :-

"3. Definitions. - In this Act, unless the context otherwise requires, -

(24) "Passenger" means any person carried on board a ship except -

(a) a person employed or engaged in any capacity on board the ship on the business of the ship;

(b) a person on board the ship either in pursuance of the obligations laid upon the master to carry shipwrecked, distressed or other persons or by reason of any circumstances which neither the master nor the character, if any, could have prevented or forestalled;

(c) a child under one year of age;

(25) "Passenger ship" means a ship carrying more than twelve passengers;"

(47B) "Special trade passenger" means a passenger carried in special trade passenger ship in spaces on the weather deck or upper deck or between decks which accommodate more than eight passengers and includes a pilgrim or a person accompanying a pilgrim;

(47C) "Special trade passenger ship" means a mechanically propelled ship carrying more than thirty special trade passengers."

From the above definitions, it is not necessary, as contended by the Revenue that a passenger has to be carried from one place to another in a ship in order to hold that a vessel is a "passenger ship". A person taken on board a vessel will also be considered as a passenger as per the above definitions. Various certificates issued by the competent authorities in favour of POG, as per Section 3(38) of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1958, also convey that POG is a passenger ship. It is observed from Para 3 of the order passed by CESTAT Mumbai in the case of CGU Logistics Ltd v. CC (I), Mumbai [2011 (274) E.L.T. 75 (Tri- Mum)] that similar certificates were considered for classifying a vessel as cargo ship of CTH 8901 when special equipments were fitting on it for doing special tasks and Revenue was claiming the classification under CTH 8905.

5.3 It is further observed from the HSN explanatory notes under Heading 89.03 that the notes talk of all vessels for pleasure or sport. However, while specifying the inclusions mainly the notes talk of small boats like rowing boats, canoes, sail boats, motor boats, dinghies, sports fishing vessels, inflatable craft and boats, lifeboats propelled by oars, Yachts, etc. At the same time, neither the Customs Tariff Act nor the HSN Explanatory Notes say that all Casino vessels are vessels for pleasure or sport.

5.4 A definition of ‘Pleasure vessel’ appears in The Merchant Shipping (Vessels in Commercial Use for Sports or Pleasure) Regulations, 1988, issued as per the Agreement on the European Economic Area signed at Oporto on 2nd May 1992 as adjusted by the Protocol signed at Brussels on 17-5-1993. As per these Regulations, "Pleasure Vessel" means -

(a) any vessel which at the time it is being used is :

(i) (aa) in the case of a vessel wholly owned by an individual or individuals; used only for the sport or pleasure of the owner or the immediate family or friends of the owner; or

(bb) in the case of a vessel owned by a body corporate, used only for sport or pleasure and on which the persons on board are employees or officers of the body corporate, or their immediate family or friends; and

(ii) on a voyage or excursion which is one for which the ‘owner does not receive money for or in connection with operating the vessel or carrying any person, other than as a contribution to the direct expenses of the operation of the vessel incurred during the voyage or excursion; or

(b) any vessel wholly owned by or on behalf of a members’ club formed for the purpose of sport or pleasure which, at the time it is being used, it used only for the sport or pleasure of members of that club or their immediate family, and for the use of which any charges levied are paid into club funds and applied for the general use of the club; and

(c) in the case of any vessel referred to in paragraphs

(a) or (b) above no other payments are made by or on behalf of users of the vessel, other than by the owner.”

5.5 Above definition of a pleasure vessel gives support to the argument made by the Advocate of the importer that a vessel for pleasure or sport should be meant for personal consumption/use of the person/owner of a vessel. It is evident from the facts on record that the vessel POG imported by the importer is not used for personal use of the owner for pleasure or sport but is used for commercial purposes as a ‘Casino vessel’. There is thus force in the argument of the importer that when the appropriate authorities under Section 3(38) of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1958, by issuing required certificates, have opined POG to be a passenger ship or Special
Trade Passenger Ship then there is no ground for the adjudicating authority to hold that POG is not a passenger ship designed to carry passengers when no contrary opinion of another competent authority is brought on record saying that POG is a vessel for pleasure or sport.

5.6 Temporary use of POG in a stationary position will not change the classification of POG when the same is capable of moving across the seas/oceans but has to be mostly made stationary due to the restrictions imposed by the local laws. It will be a strange situation to classify a vessel under CTH 8901 if used for making trips to open sea, with a night halt arrangement in the sea, but classify the same vessel under CTH 8903 if used in a predominantly stationary position. In view of the above observations, we are of the opinion that Casino vessel POG imported by the importer is principally designed to carry passengers and has been correctly assessed under CTH 8901.

4.7 The Mumbai bench has again in case of Drishti Adventures Pvt Ltd [2017 (357 ELT 877 (T-Mum)] stated the law as follows:

7. We have considered the competing entries and find that the said chapter headings are as under:-

It can be seen from the above reproduced headings, it is the appellant’s claim that boats fall in the category of Heading 8901 as excursion boats, ferry boats by virtue of the various applications made by them to the Government of Goa for granting them permission for ferrying the passengers and tourists between two places in the river. We find that the claim of the appellant is unacceptable as the declaration of conformity filed by the manufacturer of the boats before the authorities in United States indicates that the boats which are imported by the appellant, are recreational craft. This particular declaration is annexed at Page 24 of the appeal memoranda. The said declaration of conformity also states that the craft is powerboat. In addition to that, we find that the certificate of registration as issued by the Port officer, Government of Goa, specifically registered these boats as “motor boats - mars, mercury” etc. and relies upon the declaration filed by the manufacturer i.e. Regal Marine Industries, Florida, though the description of the boat has been stated as excursion boats. We find that the adjudicating authority in order-inoriginal has reproduced the photographs of the boats which are imported. On casual perusal of the said reproduction of the photographs, we find that the boats which are imported by the appellant would merit classification only under Heading 8903 as motor boats, other than outboard motor boats which is a specific entry indicated in the Customs Tariff Act.

8. Again, we find that the HSN Explanatory Notes to Chapter 8901 specifically excludes the vessels of Heading 8903. It would mean that Heading 8901 would exclude vessels which are specifically listed in the said Heading of 8903. In 8903, motor boat is mentioned as specific vessel under specific heading. In view of this, we have to hold that the impugned order is correct.

4.8 In case of Kingsway Travel Agencies Pvt Ltd [2018 (366) ELT 360 (T-Bang)], Bangalore bench stated as follows:

7. We find that the impugned boat imported by the respondents is equipped with modern amenities like swiveling helm seat, Stove, Stainless steel sink, microwave, fridge, coffeemaker and solid surface counter tops; it also contains arrangement for shower, sleep and relaxation; it is no important as to the manner in which the impugned boat is used, it is rather important as to how the boat is built which should be a guideline for determining the classification of boat; in fact, we find that the catalogue describes the impugned boat as “Bayliner 325 Cruiser” and the Bayliner have claimed themselves to be manufacturers and marketers of recreation boats and Cruisers; there is a prima facie evidence that the boat is intended for the luxury uses; we find that the case of Urmila & Company Pvt. Ltd. cited supra is similar to the impugned case; we find that Heading 8901 covers the vessels for transport of persons or goods that vessels design primarily for the conveyance of persons or goods are covered by this Heading; it is not the case of the respondents that it was for the conveyance of persons or goods and looking into the fittings available in the boat and the amenities it offers, there is no doubt to believe that the boat is intended to a “pleasure boat”. Therefore, whatever be the actual use of the said boat, it is required to classify as per the making of the vessel; it is seen that the impugned boat is not principally designed and manufactured for the purpose of transport of persons and goods, it cannot be classify under Heading 8901; we find considerable force in the argument of the Learned AR and find relevance in the ratio of the cases cited by them.

7.1 Regarding the refund application, the Learned advocate for the respondents has claimed that the refund claim filed by their CHA is valid as per the ratio of Jayant B. Shah v. Collector of Customs, Bombay - 1996 (81) E.L.T. 669; the Learned AR submitted that as per the ratio of Hon’ble Supreme Court in the case of Collector of Customs, Cochin v. Trivandrum Rubber Works Limited, 1999 (106) E.L.T. 9 (S.C.) clearing agent’s dues under Customs Act ordinarily come to an end with the clearance of imported goods and delivery to the importer/owner and therefore, we find claim filed by M/s. National Trading Agency, Cochin; the CHA for M/s. Kingsway Travel Agency is not a proper refund claim.

7.2 We find that we have decided the classification of the impugned boat under Heading 8903 of CTH, the refund claim does not sustain on merits. Therefore, there is no need to go into the other aspects of the refund claim.

This decision of Tribunal has been affirmed by the Hon’ble Apex Court as reported at [2019 (367) ELT A14 (SC)]. In this decision, the Tribunal has held that the fitments made to vessel are determinant of classification.

4.9 It is settled law that classification of goods under the Customs tariff is to be determined by the Custom Authorities and for determining the classification the Custom Authorities are bound by the Terms of Entries in the Tariff, Rules of Interpretation and decisions rendered by the competent courts in relation to the interpretation of tariff. The view taken by other authorities acting under other Acts and Legislation may have persuasive value for determining the classification under the Customs Tariff but cannot be termed as in any case binding on the Customs Authority for determining the classification. In case of Atul Glass Industries [1986 (25) ELT 0473 (SC)], Hon’ble Supreme Court held as follows:

"10. Our attention has been drawn on behalf of the Revenue to the circumstance that glass mirrors have been classified as 'glass and glassware' in Chapter 70 of the Brussels Tariff Nomenclature. It seems to us that this circumstance can hardly advance the case of the Revenue, because the First Schedule to the Central Excises and Salt Act does not appear to have been modelled on the Brussels Tariff Nomenclature. There is nothing to show that the Tariff Items were classified in the Schedule on the basis of the Brussels Tariff Nomenclature. It was when the Customs Tariff Act, 1975 was enacted that the First Schedule to that Act was framed in accordance with the Brussels Tariff Nomenclature, evidently because the progress made in industrial growth and economic development, and the substantial changes in the composition and pattern of India’s external trade called for the need to modernise and rationalise the nomenclature of India’s Tariff in line with contemporary conditions (introductory comments on the Customs Tariff Act, 1975). The glass mirrors were still not specifically mentioned under the Customs Tariff Act, 1975. They are now being brought in as such by the Customs Tariff Bill, 1985."

Thus the decision of Ahmedabad Bench which solely applied the meaning as assigned to "Pleasure Vessel" in The Merchant Shipping (Vessels in Commercial Use for Sports or Pleasure) Regulations, 1988, for determining the classification under the Customs Tariff, is contrary to the principles of law as laid down by the Apex Court in this case.

4.11 Hon’ble Supreme Court has clearly stated in case of Wood Polymers Ltd [1998 (97) ELT 193 (SC)] as follows:

"11. We are unable to accept the said contention of the learned Counsel. In view of the rules regarding Interpretation which are contained in the New Tariff the matter of classification has to be considered in the light of the said rules. As indicated earlier, Rule 3 of the said rules contains the principles to be applied for classification of goods which are prima facie classifiable under two or more headings. Since decorative laminates are composite goods made from different components, namely, paper and chemical solutions with which it is impregnated, the classification of decorative laminates has to be determined in the light of Rule 3(b). ……"

Applying the above ratio, Mumbai bench has in case of Waterways determined the classification by applying the Rule 3 of Rules of Interpretation.

4.11 Hon'ble Supreme Court applied the usage test to be good guide for determining the classification of the goods under the Customs Tariff. In case of Deena Jee Sansthan [2019 (365) ELT 353 (SC)]

"4. In the present case, the finding of fact recorded by the Commissioner in its order dated 27-11-1997, after evaluating the material on record was that the product in
8. In their defence reply, M/s. DJS had contended that all the ingredients of the product manufactured by them appear in the authorities books on ayurveda listed in the first schedule of Drugs and Cosmetic Act. However, I am not inclined to accept the party’s plea that since ingredients are listed in the medicine should be considered as a whole and not only on the basis of its ingredients, however important they may be moreover, I find that some of the ingredients like amla, ritha, shikakai, etc. are not understood as ‘medicines’ in common parlance though they might have been mentioned in the ayurvedic reference books. Even if such products are being sold/advertised as ayurvedic medicines, it is not sufficient to establish that the product is noticed party have failed to produce any evidence, document or otherwise that the product shampoo being sold by them is known as ayurvedic medicine in common parlance and not as a toilet preparation. In interpreting tariff hearing of a commodity, resort should not be made to the scientific and technical meaning of the terms and expression used but to their popular meaning in medical practitioner for a specific disease. Further, I find in his statement dated 16-9-96 recorded under sec. 14 of the Central Excise Act, 1944, Shri Ajay Kumar Gupta, Manager referred to their product as "shampoo" thereby indicating its actual identity as known in common trade parlance. Consequently, I find no reason to agree with views of the defence that their product is ayurvedic medicine and not shampoo as understood in common trade parlance.”

4.12 Further elaborating the above principle Hon’ble Apex Court has in case G S Auto International Ltd [2003 (152) ELT 3 (SC)] held as follows:

"15. The question that needs to be adverted to is: whether the goods in question can appropriately be classified under Tariff Item 52 or not having been specified elsewhere, they fall under Tariff Item 68. In construing these items, what is the proper test to be applied? Is it the functional test or is it commercial identity test which would determine the issue. It seems to us that this question is no longer res integra. It fell for consideration of this Court earlier and it was laid down that the true test for classification was the test of commercial identity and not the functional test. It needs to be ascertained as to how the goods in question are referred to in the market by those who deal with them, be it for the purposes of selling, purchasing or otherwise.”

4.13 We are of opinion the relevant question in terms of the said decision for determining the classification of the imported vessel will be as to what would be the usage of such vessel. If this question is put to the person who goes to the vessel and his response is that he visits the vessel for playing casino games and not for cruise/voyage then the vessel is definitely a pleasure vessel for the purpose of classification under Custom Tariff. In the present case examination report clearly suggests that on all the three decks of vessel are fitted casino games and the entire layout was to facilitate the playing of such games without any regular arrangement/seating plan for carriage of passengers.

From the scheme of Chapter 89 of the Customs Tariff it is clearly evident that the Chapter has been totally aligned with HSN upto six digit level. The HSN explanatory notes along with the relevant tariff have been analyzed by the bench of tribunal in case of Waterways Shipyard Pvt Ltd, and the classification determined by application of Rules of Interpretation under heading 8903. Tribunal has in the said decision determined classification in line with the principles of classifications as enunciated by the Apex Court in the above referred decisions. Following the decision of tribunal in case of Waterways Shipyard Pvt Ltd we hold the classification of imported vessel under heading 8903 as determined by the impugned order.

5.1 In view of discussions as above, the appeal is dismissed.

2. Whether the process of roasting of ores into concentrate should be considered as manufacture activity under Chapter Note 4 of Chapter 26 of the Central Excise Tariff Act, 1985 is the subject matter of present dispute. The issue arising out of the present case is no more res integra in view of the judgment of the Hon’ble Supreme Court in the case of the respondent itself, reported in 2015 (324) ELT 656 (SC). The Hon’ble Apex Court have held that in view of Chapter Note 4 appended to Chapter 26 of the Tariff Act, the process of roasting of ores into concentrate shall be considered as manufacture and thus, the benefit of duty exemption provided under Notification No.4/2006-C.E. should not be available. The relevant paragraphs in the said judgment are extracted herein below:

"26. Before we discuss these arguments and arrive at a particular conclusion, we would like to recapitulate the salient features of the case about which there is no dispute:

(a) The assessee is seeking benefit of Notification No. 4/2006-C.E. and relies upon Sl. No. 4 thereof which totally exempts goods described therein from payment of excise duty. The goods which are otherwise excisable are, thus, exempted from payment of duty. Description of these goods in Sl. No. 4 is ‘Ores’.

(b) The goods imported by the assessee fall in Chapter 26 of Central Excise Tariff Act. Particular Tariff Item is 2613 against which the description of goods given under the said Tariff Item is ‘Molybdenum Ores and Concentrate’.

(c) The goods imported by the assessee were not Molybdenum Ores in original form as mined. They had admittedly undergone the process of roasting and after the roasting, they are known as ‘concentrates’. Even the assessee has described these goods as ‘Roasted Molybdenum Ore Concentrate.’

(d) Chapter Note 4 treats the aforesaid process of roasting Ores into Concentrate as ‘manufacture’.

27. On the aforesaid facts, case of the assessee was that since ores include concentrates, assessee had claimed exemption from payment of CVD under Notification No. 4/2006-C.E. In support of this claim that even after roasting, concentrates remain ores only on the plea that ores is genus and concentrates is specie thereof, the assessee refer to literature on chemical technology and also its earlier judgment in M/s. Hindustan Gas and Industries Ltd. case which, in turn, relied upon the judgment of this Court in MMTC case. We have already analysed the decision in M/s. Hindustan Gas and Industries Ltd. case. The entire decision proceeds on the basis that roasting of an ore to obtain concentrate does not amount to manufacture specially when roasting is a process by which impurities in the ore are removed and the recoverable content of metal oxide is enhanced. In support, reference was made to Kirk-Othmer’s Encyclopedia of Chemical Technology. Likewise, in MMTC case as well, which was relied upon by the Tribunal, this Court had held that Wolfram Concentrate which was having minimum 65% Tungsten Oxide was still an ore and classifiable under Item 26. Thus, the decision in Hindustan Gas primarily rested on the reasoning that roasting of an ore to obtain concentrate would not amount to manufacture and ore and concentrate are one and the same inasmuch as concentrate remains ore and only impurities are removed therefrom. On this premise, it was held that ore is genus and concentrate is a specie there of.

28. According to us, it is very clear from the reading of the judgment in Hindustan Gas case that basic and the common thread which runs throughout the decision is that subjecting ore to the process of roasting does not amount to manufacture. This very basis gets knocked off with the amendment carried out in the year 2011 with the insertion of Note 4. Note 4 now categorically mentions that the process of converting ores into concentrates would amount to ‘manufacture’. Therefore, it cannot now be argued that roasting of ores and converting the same into concentrates would not be manufacture. For the same reason, the judgment in MMTC becomes inapplicable and reliance upon Kirk-Othmer’s Encyclopedia becomes irrelevant. With the addition of Note 4, a legal friction is created treating the process of converting ores into concentrates as manufacture. Once this is treated as manufacture, all the consequences thereof, as intended for creating such a legal friction, would automatically follow. Following shall be the inevitable implications :

(a) It is to be treated that Molybdenum Ore is different from concentrate. That is inherent in treating the process as ‘manufacture’ inasmuch as manufacture results in a different commodity from the earlier one. Section 2(f) defines this term as under :

“manufacture” includes any process, -

(i) incidental or ancillary to the completion of a manufactured product;

(ii) which is specified in relation to any goods in the Section or Chapter notes of the First Schedule to the Central Excise Tariff Act, 1985 (5 of 1986) as amounting to manufacture; or

(iii) which, in relation to the goods specified in the Third Schedule, involves packing or repacking of such goods in a unit container or labelling or re-labelling of containers including the declaration or alteration of retail sale price on it or adoption of any other treatment on the goods to render the product marketable to the consumer.”

(b) The purpose of treating concentrate as manufactured product out of ores is to make concentrates as liable for excise duty. Otherwise, there was no reason to deem the process of converting ores into concentrates as manufacture.

29. Once the aforesaid legal repercussions are taken note of, as a fortiori, it becomes obvious that Notification No. 4/2006-C.E. which exempts only ores would not include within itself ‘concentrates’ also because of the reason that after the insertion of Note 4, concentrate is to be treated as a different product than ores, in law for the purposes of products of Chapter 26.

30. This brings us to the effect of Chapter Note 2 which is retained even after insertion of Chapter Note 4. No doubt, as per Chapter Note 2, ‘ores’ means minerals of mineralogical species actually used in the metallurgical industry for the extraction of mercury, of the metals of Heading 2844 or of the metals of Section XIV or XV, even if they are intended for nonmetallurgical purposes. As per this note, metals of Section XV would be included in the term ‘ores’. However, after the insertion of Chapter Note 4, these two Notes, namely, Note 2 and Note 4 have to be read harmoniously. If we accept the submission of the learned counsel for the assessee predicated on Note 2, then Note 4 even after its conscious inclusion, would be rendered otiose which cannot be countenanced. Therefore, Note 2, when seen along with Note 4, has to govern itself in limited territory. On the basis of deeming fiction created by Note 4, once we arrive at the conclusion that process of roasting of Ore amounts to manufacture and it creates a different product known as Concentrate, for the purpose of exemption notification, which exempts only ‘Ores’ it is not possible to hold that Concentrate will still be covered by the exemption notification. Therefore, harmonious construction of Note 2 and Note 4 would lead us to hold that in those cases when Note 4 applies and Ores becomes a different product, it ceases to be Ores.
31. We, thus, are of the opinion that in the impugned judgment, the Tribunal has rightly arrived at the conclusion that by virtue of Note 4, concentrate has to be necessarily treated as different from ores which is deemed as manufactured product after Molybdenum Ores underwent the process of roasting. Once we keep in mind that conversion of ores into concentrate is considered as manufacture and, therefore, becomes liable for central excise levy, exemption Notification No. 4/2006-C.E. is to be interpreted in this light as the Legislature has intended to treat ores and concentrates as two distinct items and Notification No. 4/2006-C.E. exempts only ores, concentrates automatically falls outside the purview of said notification. It is rightly argued by the learned senior counsel for the Revenue that exemption notifications are to be construed strictly and even if there is some doubt, benefit thereof shall not enure to the assessee but would be given to the Revenue. This principle of strict construction of exemption notification is now deeply ingrained in various judgments of this Court taking this view consistently.

3. In view of the above settled position of law, we do not find any merits in the impugned order passed by the learned Commissioner (Appeals). Accordingly, the appeal filed by Revenue is allowed.

FINAL ORDER NO. A/86983/2019

Per: Sanjiv Srivastava:

This appeal is directed against order n appeal No 944/MCH/ADC/VIIB/ 2012 dated 27.11.2012 of the Commissioner Customs (Appeal)Mumbai Zone –I. By the impugned order Commissioner has upheld the assessment order of the Bill of Entry No 9566214 dated 06.07.2010.

2.1 Appellants have filed Bill Of Entry No 956214 dated 06.07.2010 for the clearance of goods described by them as “Electronic Sensor Paver Vogel Model 1800-2 with AB 600-2-TV for laying bituminous pavement upto 9 meters along with multiplex big SKJ and its accessories”, and declared value was Euro 3,60,000/- (Rs 2,11,25,160/-). They claimed classification under CTH 84306100 and benefit of exemption under notification No 621/2002 -Cus dated 01.03.2002 as amended (Sr No 230, Item Sr No of List 18 & condition 40)

2.2 Assessing/ Adjudicating Authority denied the benefit of exemption claimed for the reason as follows:

- Appellant name being the subcontractor, did not figure in the main contract between GHVPL and NHAI.
- Goods imported by the appellant is Electronic Paver (with Sensor device) for laying bituminous pavement upto 9 mtr whereas the exemption was in respect of Electronic Paver Finisher (with sensor device) for laying Bituminous pavement 7 mtr size and above.

2.3 Aggrieved by the assessment order appellants filed the appeal before the Commissioner (Appeal). By the impugned order referred in para 1, supra Commissioner (Appeal) has dismissed the appeal.

2.4 Aggrieved by the impugned order appellant have preferred this appeal.

3.1 We have heard Shri Nand Kishore, Advocate for the Appellants and Shri Bhushan Kamble, Assistant Commissioner, Authorized Representative for the revenue.

3.1 Arguing for the Appellant learned Counsel, submitted that-

- Joint Secretary (Tax Research Unit), has vide his D O F No 334/15/2014-TRU dated 10th July, 2014 clarified the issue in respect of admissibility of the exemption to sub contractors as follows:

"A doubt has been raised as to whether road construction machinery imported under Notification No 12/2012-Customs dated 17.03.2012 (Sr No 368) can be sold within 5 years of importation on payment of custom duty on depreciated value and whether individual constituent of the consortium whose names appear in the contract may import goods under the notification. It is reiterated that the road construction machinery imported duty free can be sold within 5 years of importation subject to payment of customs duty on depreciated value subject to the conditions specified therein and that individual constituent of consortium whose names appear in the contract can import goods under the said notification.”

- Taking note of the said clarification issued, Tribunal has in their own case vide order No A/85813/2018 dated 03.05.2019 held that they were eligible to the benefit of exemption notification.

- Since the issue is squarely covered by the said decision of the tribunal appeal needs to be allowed.

3.3 Arguing for the revenue learned authorized representative submitted that:

- The finding of the assessing authority and the appellate authority to the effect that the name of appellant do not figure in the main contract, is not in dispute.
- The issue in respect of the same exemption notification and the condition, has been settled by the Apex Court in case of Gammon India Ltd [2011 (269) ELT 289 (SC)];
- The clarification referred to by the advocate, has been issued by JS (TRU) in respect of subsequent notification and not in respect of the same notification.
- The decision of the tribunal in appellants own case relying on the clarification issued subsequently cannot be said to be good law, for the reason that Apex Court has in case of Ratan Melting & Wires Industries [2008 (231) ELT 22 (SC)] has clearly held to the contrary.

- In view of the decisions of the Hon’ble Apex Court in case of Gammon India Ltd, the appeal filed needs to be dismissed.

4.1 We have considered the impugned order along with the submissions made in appeal and during the course of arguments-

4.2 The issue in the present case is squarely covered by the decision of the Hon’ble Apex Court in case of Gammon India Ltd referred to by the authorized representative. In that decision Hon’ble Apex Court has clearly laid down the law as follows:

"12. The short question for determination is whether import of the specified machine by Gammon can be considered to be an import “by a person who has been awarded a contract for construction of the roads in India”, so as to fulfill Condition No. 38, laid down in Exemption Notification No. 17/2001-Cus., dated 1st March, 2001 ?

13. In order to appreciate the contentions advanced on behalf of the parties on the question in issue, it would be expedient and useful to once again notice the salient features of agreement dated 18th September, 2000 entered between Gammon and Atlanta.

14. Agreement dated 18th September, 2000 provided that: financial responsibilities of each of the parties to be shared equally in the form of guarantees, securities, etc. of the joint venture would be 50% of the project value; the Management of the joint venture would be subject to the overall control of the Management Board, consisting of a Chairman, to be nominated by Gammon, a Joint Chairman to be nominated by Atlanta and one Director each to be appointed by both of them; joint venture bank account would be operated under joint signatures of the authorized representatives of Gammon and Atlanta and neither party would be entitled to borrow for or on behalf of the joint venture or to acknowledge any liability without express prior consent in writing of the other party except to the extent of its share of work; Gammon being most experienced party would be the lead partner of the joint venture for the performance of the contract; the partner-in-charge would be authorized to incur liabilities and to receive instructions for and on behalf of the partners of the joint venture, whether jointly or severally, and entire execution of the contract including receiving payment would be carried out exclusively through the partner-in-charge but any financial commitment required by the lead partner, on behalf of the joint venture, would always be previously discussed and agreed upon by the parties. As stated above, though under agreement dated 18th September, 2000, Gammon was notified as the lead partner but agreement dated 20th December, 2000 executed between NHAI as the "employer" and Gammon- Atlanta JV as "contractor" was signed by the representatives of both the companies viz. Gammon and Atlanta, meaning thereby that so far as NHAI was concerned, for them the contractor was Gammon-Atlanta JV and not Gammon or Atlanta individually.

15. According to the adjudicating authority, it was clear from both of the said agreements that the contract of construction of roads in India was awarded to the joint venture and, therefore, Gammon was not entitled to avail of the benefit of the Exemption Notification as an independent entity. On the contrary, the Commissioner (Appeals) allowed the benefit of the Exemption Notification to the appellant on the ground that the Exemption Notification should be given a liberal interpretation and that the revenue should not try to take advantage of ignorance of law and procedure on the part of Gammon. It is the Tribunal which has dealt with the issue in detail by taking into consideration certain factual aspects pertaining to the import of machine like placement of the supply orders by Gammon and not by the joint venture and its payment by Gammon from its own account and not from the joint venture account provided for in the joint venture agreement. Rejecting the plea of the appellant that in light of the decision of this Court in New Horizons (supra) wherein it has been held that a joint venture is a legal entity in the nature of a partnership, the import of the machinery by Gammon is to be considered as having been done on behalf of the joint venture, the Tribunal has allowed revenue's appeal.

16. Since the stand of the appellant is that the issue arising in the present appeal stands concluded in their favour by the decision of this Court in New Horizons (supra) and a subsequent decision of this Court as also of the Tribunal, in which the said decision has been relied upon, it would be necessary to discern the ratio of the decision in New Horizons (supra).

17. In New Horizons (supra), a joint venture company, consisting of a few Indian companies (with 60% share capital) and a Singapore based company (with 40% share capital), had participated in tender proceedings floated by the Department of Telecommunications for printing and binding of telephone directories of Delhi and Bombay. The tender submitted by New Horizons Ltd.; (for short “NHL”) was not accepted by the tender evaluation committee, apparently, on the basis of the fact that the successful party had more technical experience than any one of the constituent companies of NHL. Aggrieved by the said decision, NHL filed a writ petition in the Delhi High Court against the decision of the Department of Telecommunications. The said writ petition was dismissed rejecting the plea of the NHL that the technical experience of the constituents of the joint venture was liable to be treated as that of the joint venture. NHL brought the matter to this Court. Explaining the concept of joint venture in detail, it was held that a joint venture is a legal entity in the nature of a partnership engaged in the joint undertaking of a particular transaction for mutual profit or an association of persons or companies jointly undertaking some commercial enterprise wherein all contributed assets and shared risks. It was observed that a joint venture could take the form of a Corporation wherein two or more persons or companies might join together. Accordingly, the appeal of NHL was allowed and it was held that it was a joint venture company in the nature of a partnership between the Indian group of companies and Singapore based company which had jointly undertaken the commercial venture by contributing assets and sharing risks. Applying the principle of “lifting the corporate veil”, it was held that the joint venture companies’ technical experience could only be the experience of the partnering companies and the technical experience of all constituents of NHL was liable to be cumulatively reckoned in the tender proceedings and any one of the constituents was competent to act on behalf of the joint venture company. Highlighting the concept of joint venture, the Court observed thus:

"24. The expression “joint venture” is more frequently used in the United States. It connotes a legal entity in the nature of a partnership engaged in the joint undertaking of a particular transaction for mutual profit or an association of persons or companies jointly undertaking some commercial enterprise wherein all contribute assets and share risks. It requires a community of interest in the performance of the subject-matter, a right to direct and govern the policy in connection therewith, and duty, which may be altered by agreement, to share both in profit and losses. (Black’s Law Dictionary, 6th Edn., p. 839) According to Words and Phrases, Permanent Edn., a joint venture is an association of two or more persons to carry out a single business enterprise for profit (p. 117, Vol. 23). A joint venture can take the form of a corporation wherein two or more persons or companies may join together. A joint venture corporation has been defined as a corporation which has joined with other individuals or corporations within the corporate framework in some specific undertaking commonly found in oil, chemicals, electronic, atomic fields. (Black’s Law Dictionary, 6th Edn., p. 342) "
18. In short, New Horizons (supra) recognises a joint venture to be a legal entity in the nature of a partnership of the constituent companies. Thus, the necessary corollary flowing from the decision in New Horizons (supra), wherein the partnership concept in relation to a joint venture has been accepted, would be that M/s. Gammon-Atlanta JV, the joint venture could be treated as a 'legal entity', with the character of a partnership in which Gammon was one of the constituents. In that view of the matter, the next question for consideration is whether being a legal entity i.e. a juridical person, the joint venture is a 'person' as contemplated in the Exemption Notification, stipulating that the goods should be imported by 'a person' who had been awarded a contract for construction of goods in India by NHAI?

19. In support of his submission that the joint venture is a "person" as contemplated in the Exemption notification, learned counsel for Gammon had relied on the definition of the word "person" as given in para 3.37 of the Export and Import Policy for the year 1997-2002. It reads thus:

"3.37 - "Person" includes an individual, firm, society, company, corporation or any other legal person".

20. The argument was that since a joint venture has been declared to be a legal entity in New Horizons (supra), it squarely falls within the ambit of the said definition of the word "person". We are of the opinion that even if the stated stand on behalf of the appellant is accepted, mercifully, on stark facts at hand, it does not carry their case any further. Neither was it the case of the appellant either before the Adjudicating Authority or before the Appellate Authority or before us, nor is it suggested by the documents viz. the supply order or the bill of entry, that the import of the machine was by or on behalf of the joint venture. On the contrary, the Tribunal has recorded in its order that when questioned, learned counsel for the appellant clarified that correspondence with the supplier of goods and placement of order had been done by Gammon and not by the joint venture or on their behalf. He also admitted that payment for the machine had not been made from the joint venture account, which had been provided for the contract but from the funds of Gammon.

21. Thus, the inevitable conclusion is that import of "Concrete batching plant 56 cum/hr" by Gammon cannot be considered as an import by M/s. Gammon-Atlanta JV, "a person" who had been awarded contract for construction of the roads in India and therefore, neither Gammon Atlanta JV nor Gammon fulfill the requisite requirement stipulated in Condition No. 38 of the Exemption Notification No. 17/2001-Cus., dated 1st March, 2001.

22. As regards the plea of the appellant that the Exemption Notification should receive a liberal construction to further the object underlying it, it is well settled that a provision providing for an exemption has to be construed strictly. In Novopan India Ltd. (supra), dealing with the same issue in relation to an exemption notification, a three-Judge Bench of this Court, stated the principle as follows:

"16. We are, however, of the opinion that, on principle, the decision of this Court in Mangalore Chemicals — and in Union of India v. Wood Papers referred to therein — represents the correct view of law. The principle that in case of ambiguity, a taxing statute should be construed in favour of the assessee — assuming that the said principle is good and sound - does not apply to the construction of an exception or an exempting provision; they have to be construed strictly. A person invoking an exception or an exemption provision to relieve him of the tax liability must establish clearly that he is covered by the said provision. In case of doubt or ambiguity, benefit of it must go to the State. This is for the reason explained in Mangalore Chemicals and other decisions, viz., each such exception/exemption increases the tax burden on other members of the community correspondingly. Once, of course, the provision is found applicable to him, full effect must be given to it. As observed by a Constitution Bench of this Court in Hansraj Gordhandas v. H.H. Dave that such a notification has to be interpreted in the light of the words employed by it and not on any other basis. This was so held in the context of the principle that in a taxing statute, there is no room for any intendment, that regard must be had to the clear meaning of the words and that the matter should be governed wholly by the language of the notification, i.e., by the plain terms of the exemption."

4.3 We also find that the principle of strict construction of notification and also that in case of ambiguity, ambiguity has to be construed in favour of the revenue has been reiterated and stated by the five member Bench of the Apex Court in the case of Dilip Kumar & Co [2018 (361) ELT 577 (SC)]

"52. To sum up, we answer the reference holding as under -
(1) Exemption notification should be interpreted strictly; the burden of proving applicability would be on the assessee to show that his case comes within the parameters of the exemption clause or exemption notification.

(2) When there is ambiguity in exemption notification which is subject to strict interpretation, the benefit of such ambiguity cannot be claimed by the subject/assessee and it must be interpreted in favour of the revenue.

(3) The ratio in Sun Export case (supra) is not correct and all the decisions which took similar view as in Sun Export case (supra) stands overruled.

4.4 In view of the decisions as above we are of the view that issue is squarely covered against the appellants. However appellants do not dispute the same but have relied upon subsequent clarification issued by the Joint Secretary (TRU) clarifying that benefit of similar exemption notification would be admissible to the constituents of the consortium. It is their case that on the basis of the said clarification tribunal has vide order dated 03.05.2019 extended the benefit of exemption notification to them stating as follows:

"The first order of the Tribunal in re Gammon India Ltd that was ultimately decided by the Hon'ble Supreme Court, and the subsequent decision of the Tribunal re Gammon India Ltd, referred to by the Learned Authorised Representative, predates the clarification issued by the Central Government on 10th July 2014. The clarification is unambiguously clear: award of eligible works is preceded by shortlisting of the eligible bidders to be furthered on award by formalising the relationship of two or more of bid-partners as a joint venture. The procedure following the award in the impugned project required establishment of 'a special purpose vehicle' and it is that 'special purpose vehicle' which takes the bid process to its logical conclusion by entering into an agreement with the awarding agency. Restricting the eligibility to the subsequently created artificial person, emerging from the contractual compulsion to fulfil a structuring requirement, would incapacitate the execution of the work and the original intent of the extent of the notification was thus amplified, and articulated, in the referred clarification. The adjudicating authority who authored impugned order did not have the benefit of this clarification. The earlier decisions were rendered in the absence of such declaration of intent and the intent, having been declared subsequently despite contrary judicial decision, would have to be acknowledged in the implementation; disregard of that intent, as declared, would be tantamount to foray into policy formulation."

4.5 We cannot agree with the submissions made. Hon'ble Supreme Court (five member bench) has clearly in the case of Ratan Wire & Melting, referred by the Authorized Representative clearly laid down the law in respect of applicability of circulars/ clarification as follows:

"5. Learned counsel for the assessee on the other hand submitted that once the circular has been issued it is binding on the revenue authorities and even if it runs counter to the decision of this Court, the revenue authorities cannot say that they are not bound by it. The circulars issued by the Board are not binding on the assessee but are binding on revenue authorities. It was submitted that once the Board issues a circular, the revenue authorities cannot take advantage of a decision of the Supreme Court. The consequences of issuing a circular are that the authorities cannot act contrary to the circular. Once the circular is brought to the notice of the Court, the challenge by the revenue should be turned out and the revenue cannot lodge an appeal taking the ground which is contrary to the circular.

6. Circulars and instructions issued by the Board are no doubt binding in law on the authorities under the respective statutes, but when the Supreme Court or the High Court declares the law on the question arising for consideration, it would not be appropriate for the Court to direct that the circular should be given effect to and not the view expressed in a decision of this Court or the High Court. So far as the clarifications/circulars issued by the Central Government and of the State Government are concerned they represent merely their understanding of the statutory provisions. They are not binding upon the court. It is for the Court to declare what the particular provision of statute says and it is not for the Executive. Looked at from another angle, a circular which is contrary to the statutory provisions has really no existence in law.

7. As noted in the order of reference the correct position vis-a-vis the observations in para 11 of Dhiren Chemical's case (supra) has been stated in Kalyani's case (supra). If the submissions of learned counsel for the assessee are accepted, it would mean that there is no scope for filing an appeal. In that case, there is no question of a decision of this Court on the point being rendered. Obviously, the assessee will not file an appeal questioning the view expressed vis-a-vis the circular. It has to be the revenue authority who has to question that. To lay content with the circular would mean that the valuable right of challenge would be denied to him and there would be no scope for adjudication by the High Court or the Supreme Court. That would be against very concept of majesty of law declared by this Court and the binding effect in terms of Article 141 of the Constitution."

4.6 In view of the decision of Apex Court referred above we are not in position to agree with decision of the coordinate bench on the issue, which is per-incuriam, and could not be binding precedent.

5.1 In view of the discussions as above the appeal is dismissed.

FINAL ORDER NO. A/85651/2020

Per: D M Misra:

This is an appeal filed against the Order-in-Appeal No. GOA.CUS/BBP/29/2006 dated 29.09.2006 passed by the Commissioner of Central Excise & Customs (Appeals), Goa.

2. Briefly stated the facts of the case are that the appellants are importer of Liquefied Petroleum Gas (LPG). During the period September, 2004 to April, 2005, the appellant had imported commercial butane (Liquefied Petroleum Gas) and cleared the same on payment of normal customs duty total amounting to Rs.11,60,61,990/-. The Notification No. 37/05-Cus dated 2.5.2005 was issued exempting Liquefied Petroleum Gases for supply to household domestic consumers at subsidized prices from whole of customs duty. Consequently, the appellant had filed a refund claim on 18.4.2005 seeking refund of Rs.11,60,61,990/- paid during the aforesaid period. Since the refund claim was not maintainable, the appellant was issued with a letter on 11.10.2005 directing them to file written reply and clarification on the issue. In the written submissions dated 21.10.2005, the appellant submitted that the basic customs duty on the Liquefied Petroleum Gas under the Customs Tariff Heading 2711.19 was reduced to Nil vide Notification No. 11/05- Cus dated 1.3.2005. Since the oil companies are not importing Liquefied Petroleum Gas per se and instead such imports are only in the form of commercial butane (Customs Tariff Heading 2711.13) or propane (Customs Tariff Heading 2711.12), they made representation to the Ministry of Petroleum and as a consequence Notification No. 35/05-Cus dated 2.5.2005 was issued. Therefore, they claimed that the duty paid on import of commercial butane during the said period amounting to Rs.11,60,61,990/- is refundable to them. On adjudication, the said refund claim was rejected observing that Notification No. 37/05-Cus dated 2.5.2005 cannot be assumed to have retrospective effect and as a result various representations made. Aggrieved by the said rejection of the refund claim, the appellant filed an appeal before the learned Commissioner (Appeals), who in turn, rejected the appeal. Hence, the present appeal.

3. Learned Advocate Shri M.H. Patil for the appellant has submitted that during the relevant period i.e. Sept, 04 to April, 2005, the appellant had imported commercial butane (Liquefied Petroleum Gas) falling under Chapter Tariff heading 2711.1300. The appellant cleared the said commercial butane (Liquefied Petroleum Gas) on payment of normal customs duty of 10% instead of concessional rate of duty applicable to them under Notification No. 82/04-Cus dated 18.8.2004 and 11/05-Cus dated 1.3.2005. It is his contention that since the concessional rate exemption was available to the said commercial butane (Liquefied Petroleum Gas), the appellant filed refund claim of Rs.11,60,61,990/-. He has submitted that heading 2711 covers petroleum gases and other gaseous hydrocarbons. The said heading has been divided by two parts. The first part covers Liquefied Petroleum Gas and the second part petroleum gas in gaseous stream. First part i.e. LPG has been divided in five parts – Natural Gas, Propane, Butanes, Ethylene, propylene, butylenes and butadiene and residual nature, which is not covered in any of the precedent entry. Therefore, it is clear from the above entries, the same are covers Liquefied Petroleum Gas only in different states and kind. Therefore, the disputed item i.e. commercial butane (CHS 2711.1300) is also covers Liquefied Petroleum Gas. He has submitted that heading 2711 used the expression ‘petroleum gases’ and not ‘petroleum gas’; therefore, the said heading covers various petroleum gases. Referring to Indian Standard Specification – IS 4576:1999, he has submitted that commercial butane is also mentioned as one of the covers Liquefied Petroleum Gas. Also referring to the Book ‘Modern petroleum Refining Processes’ by Shri Bhaskara Rao, Dept. of Chemical Engineering, IIT, the learned Advocate submitted that inter alia pre-dominantly butane as well as butane –propane mixtures, is considered as LPG. Further, referring to the judgment of this Tribunal in the case of Commissioner of Customs Vs. Aegis Logistics – 2014 (308) ELT 135 (T), the learned Advocate submitted that in para 9 to 15 of the said judgment, it is held that butane, propane, butane-propane mixture are kinds of the Liquefied Petroleum Gases only. The said judgment was followed by this Tribunal subsequently in the case of Reliance Industries Ltd. Vs. Commissioner of Customs, wherein also it is held that commercial propane classified under Tariff Item 2711.1200 would be eligible for concessional rate and Department’s claim that exemption was available only to the goods ‘Liquefied Petroleum Gases’, which is a mixture of hydrocarbon gases i.e. propane, propylene, butane, butylenes and isobutene was not accepted. Further, he has submitted that in the Order-in-Appeal, it has been mentioned that the imported product is a mixture of butane and propane (98% butane and 2% propane), therefore, the same be considered as classifiable under Tariff Item 2711.1900 and eligible for exemption under the aforesaid Notifications. Further, he has submitted that similar dispute was decided in their favour vide Order-in-Original dated 26.09.2006. It is his contention that commercial butane or commercial propane or mixtures of both are known internationally as Liquefied Petroleum Gas. He has further submitted that the entry 75E substituted w.e.f. 2.5.2005 would have retrospective effect and in support he has referred to the judgment of the Hon’ble Supreme Court in the case of –

(ii) Zile Singh – (2004) 8 SCC 1

4. Learned AR for the Revenue has submitted that the present issue relates to admissibility of refund relating to the exemption Notification, which was not claimed at the time of import of goods. It is his contention that M/s HPCL imported butane and propane classifying the same under Customs Tariff Heading 2711.1200 and 2711.1300 respectively. The Bills of Entry were assessed and accordingly duties were paid by the appellant. No appeals have been filed by the appellant against the said assessed Bills of Entry. The exemption subsequently claimed by the appellant relates to goods namely, Liquefied Petroleum Gas covered under Customs Tariff heading 2711.1900 and not applicable to “propane and butane” per se. Referring to the judgment of constitutional Bench of the Hon’ble Supreme Court in the case of Commissioner of Customs (Import), Mumbai Vs. Dilip Kumar & Co. – 2018 (361) ELT 577 (SC), submitted that the exemption is to be strictly interpreted and in case of ambiguity, benefit of such ambiguity cannot be claimed by the assessee and it must be interpreted in favour of the Revenue.

5. Further, he has submitted that in view of the ratio laid down, in the judgment of Hon’ble Supreme Court in the case of Priya Blue Industries Ltd. Vs. Commissioner of Central Excise – 2004 (1q72) ELT 145 (SC) and Commissioner of Customs Vs. BPL Telecom Ltd. – 2015 (325) ELT 467 (SC), held that there can be no claim of refund of duty paid unless importer successfully challenges the assessment of the Bill of Entry under which duties were paid. The said principles has not been reaffirmed in the recent judgment of ITC Ltd. Vs. Commissioner of Central Excise, Kolkata – 2019 (368) ELT 216 (SC). Further, he has submitted that in the case of CEAT Ltd. Vs. Commissioner of Customs – 2016 (335) ELT 693 (T), this Tribunal has relied upon the decision of Hon’ble Supreme Court in Priya Blue’s case and held that the Bills of Entry presented by the importer and signed by the assessing officer is itself an order of assessment. Unless such assessment is successfully challenged, there can be no refund of duty paid.
6. The learned AR for the Revenue further submitted that after insertion of sub-section (2A) and (4) in Section 25, cannot be given retrospective effect unless such a specific explanation is inserted in the notification. Referring to the Larger Bench's decision of CESTAT in Arvind Products Ltd. – 2014 (310) ELT 515 (Tri-LB), the notification cannot be have retrospective effect unless it is specifically mentioned in the said notification. Further, referring to clause (b) and (c) of Section 159A of the Customs Act, 1962, he has submitted that amendment to a notification shall not affect the previous operation of the un amended notification or anything duly done or suffered thereunder and that such amendment shall not affect any obligation or liability incurred under the un-amended notification. Therefore, the notification No. 37/05-Cus cannot operate retrospectively. The liability incurred to pay duty on imported butane and propane before 2.5.2005 cannot be undone by giving such retrospective effect.

7. Heard both sides and perused the records.

8. The short issue involved for determination in the present appeal is whether the appellants are entitled to refund the customs duty of Rs.11,60,61,990/- paid during September, 2004 to April, 2005. The undisputed facts are that the appellants had imported commercial butane (Liquefied Petroleum Gases) classifying it under Chapter heading 2711.1300 of Customs Tariff Act, 1975 on payment of applicable Basic Customs Duty (BCD) of 10%. Two amended notifications of the basic notification No. 21/02-Cus dated 1.3.2002 were in force during the period namely, Notification No. 82/04-Cus dated 18.8.2004 and 11/05-Cus dated 1.3.2005. The said notifications are reproduced below:-

[Notification No. 11/2005-Cus., dated 1-3-2005]

9. Under Notification No. 82/04-Cus dated 18.8.2004, Liquefied Petroleum Gases (LPG) falling under Chapter subheading 2711 1900 attracted concessional duty @ 5%, whereas the amending notification No. 11/05-Cus prescribed exemption to Liquefied Petroleum Gases for supply to household domestic customs falling under the same chapter heading 2711.1900. It is the contention of the appellant that after the issuance of first amending notification No. 82/04-Cus dated 18.8.2004, they have represented to the Government that oil marketing company did not import Liquefied Petroleum Gases as such, but commercial butane or propane of mixture of commercial butane and propane. It is their argument that taking into note the objections of the oil marketing company alternatively the Notification No. 37/05-Cus dated 2.5.2005 was issued whereby the exemption extended to Liquefied Petroleum Gases was streamlined. For ease of reference, the said notification is reproduced below:-

10. It is the argument that under the Notification No. 37/05- Cus dated 2.5.2005, commercial liquefied butane and liquefied propane mixture had been mentioned in the said notification along with Liquefied Petroleum Gases. Thus, it is their contention that the same notification was issued consequent to their representation, hence the duty paid during the September, 2004 to 02.05.2005 without availing exemption is refundable to them. Further, it is the contention that even though in the respective Bills of Entry, it is mentioned as commercial butane (LPG), but in fact the import said Liquefied Petroleum Gas was in mixture of butane (98%) and propane (2%), hence satisfied the criteria of Liquefied Petroleum Gases. In explaining the mentioning of Liquefied Petroleum Gases, the appellant had referred to the Bureau of Indian Standards and also the literature on the subject.

11. The Revenue’s contention, on the other hand, is that the exemption Notification No. 37/05-Cus dated 2.5.2005 cannot be given retrospective effect as no such notification is provided in the amending notification. They have argued vehemently that the exemption notification has to be construed strictly and in support referred to the judgment of the Hon’ble Supreme Court in Dilip Kumar’s case (supra). Also, they have submitted that the appellant vehemently discharged duty classifying the commercial duty under Customs Tariff sub-heading 2711.1300 and at no point of time the classification was contested. In the notification, the exemption was specifically allowed to Liquefied Petroleum Gases falling under Chapter sub-heading 2711.1900. Therefore, in absence of change of classification by filing necessary appeal against the assessment order, benefit of exemption notification cannot be extended to commercial butane (Liquefied Petroleum Gases).

12. We find force in the Revenue’s contention inasmuch as principles governing interpretation notification as has been laid down by the Constitutional Bench of the Hon’ble Supreme Court in the case of Dilip Kumar & Co. (supra). Their Lordships analyzing the principles laid down earlier held that exemption notification should be interpreted strictly; the burden to prove applicability would be on the assessee to show that his case comes within the parameter of exemption clause or exemption notification. The relevant para 52 is reproduced as under:

"52. To sum up, we answer the reference holding as under -

(1) Exemption notification should be interpreted strictly; the burden of proving applicability would be on the assessee to show that his case comes within the parameters of the exemption clause or exemption notification.

(2) When there is ambiguity in exemption notification which is subject to strict interpretation, the benefit of such ambiguity cannot be claimed by the subject/assessee and it must be interpreted in favour of the revenue.

(3) The ratio in Sun Export case (supra) is not correct and all the decisions which took similar view as in Sun Export case (supra) stands overruled."
13. In the present case, in both amending exemption notifications No. 82/04-Cus and 11/05-Cus, concessional rate of duty + Nil rate of duty as the case may be the prescribed to be applicable only to Liquefied Petroleum Gases falling under Chapter 2811.1900. There was no mention of Chapter heading 2711.1300 as declared by the appellant while importing commercial butane (Liquefied Petroleum Gas). Applying the principles of strict interpretation, the exemption notification cannot be made applicable to the clearances of commercial butane (Liquefied Petroleum Gas) during the said period. Besides, we also agree with the contention of the learned AR for the Revenue that in absence of successfully challenging the assessment order, correcting the classification of commercial butane to that of Liquefied Petroleum Gases by filing necessary appeal before higher forum, the methodology followed by filing the refund claim is contrary to the principles of law laid down by the Hon‘ble Supreme Court in Priya Blue Industries’ case (supra), which has been recently upheld in the ITC case.

14. Learned Advocate for the appellant has heavily relied upon the judgment of this Tribunal in the case of Aegis Logistics Ltd. (supra), in support of his contention that exemption to Commercial Butane (LPG) is admissible under relevant Notifications are admissible. In our considered opinion, the said judgment is not applicable to the facts of the present case inasmuch as the issue before the Tribunal was whether concessional rate of 8% under Entry 27 of Notification No. 4/2006-CE dated 1.3.2006 is applicable to commercial propane imported by the assessee. The Tribunal examining the relevant tariff entries under Chapter 2711 and analyzing the scope of serial no. 27 of the said notification which specifies Tariff subheadings 27111200, 27111300 and 27111900 the description of the goods as Liquefied Petroleum Gases held that the imported commercial propane also could also be called as LPG hence eligible to exemption being covered under the scope of the said sr. no 27 of the Notification No. 4/2006-CE dated 1.3.2006. In the present case, we are concerned with the period prior to 2.5.2005 where under the notifications did not contain all the three chapter sub-headings like Entry No. 75E of Notification 37/2005Cus. dated 02.5.2005, both notifications 82/2004 Cus and 11/2005 Cus. mentioned the Chapter sub-heading 27111900 only and the description of goods as Liquefied Petroleum Gas only. Besides, the principle of interpretation of an exemption notification is now well settled by the Hon‘ble Supreme Court in Dilip Kumar & Company’s case (supra); it needs to be construed strictly. In these circumstances, we do not find relevance of the said judgment of the Tribunal in deciding the present dispute.

15. In the result, the impugned order rejecting the refund claim is sustained and the appeal being devoid of merit, accordingly rejected.

Heard both sides.

2. The Miscellaneous Application has been filed seeking change of cause title from "M/s Honda Siel Cars India Ltd." to "M/s Honda Cars India Ltd." pursuant to the fresh certificate of incorporation issued by the Registrar of Companies, Delhi & Haryana. Revenue has no objection. Consequently, the cause title is allowed to be changed and will read as: "M/s Honda Cars India Ltd.". MA allowed.

3. The appeal is filed against Order-in-Appeal No.153/MCH/DC/Refund(Exp.)/2011, dt.22.07.2011, passed by the CC (Appeals), Mumbai Zone-I.

4. Briefly stated the facts of the case are that the Appellants had imported cars (CBU i.e. Completely Built Units) and cleared the same on payment of duty by way of debiting the duty under DEPB scheme. At the time of import, they had paid 4% SAD through TR-6 challan dt.25.10.2007. Subsequently, on sale of the imported cars, they have filed refund of the said 4% SAD amount on 05.11.2008, in accordance with the Notification No.102/07-Cus, dt.14.09.2007. On adjudication, the refund claim was rejected by the Adjudicating authority, observing that the demand, inter alia, barred by limitation. Aggrieved by the said order, they filed appeal before the learned Commissioner (Appeals), who in turn, rejected their appeal, hence, the present appeal.

5. The learned Advocate for the Appellant Shri T. Viswanathan submitted that they have imported 197 nos. CBU Cars against Bill of Entry No.801128, dt.25.10.2007. They have paid the applicable duty including 4% SAD leviable in terms of Section 3(5) of Customs Tariff Act, 1975. It is his contention that as on the date of importation of the said goods, in the relevant Bills of Entry Notification No.102/07-Cus, was applied to effect SAD payment. This notification allows exemption from SAD by way of refund of the same. At the time of import and making payment of SAD, the said Notification did not prescribe any time limit for filing of refund claim. It is his contention that the said notification No.102/07-Cus was amended subsequently vide Notification No.93/2008-Cus, dt.01.08.2008. By virtue of the said amendment as per Condition (c), it introduced a time limit of one year for filing of refund of 4% SAD paid by the importer at the time of importation of the goods. In the present case, the date of payment of duty was 25.10.2007 and the refund claim to the tune of Rs.1,02,32,335/- was filed on 05.11.2008.
6. He has submitted that it is an established principle of law that the imports are subject to conditions of a notification existing as on the date of importation. In the present case, when the goods in question were imported, there was no time limit prescribed in the Notification No.102/07-Cus for claiming refund. Thus, amendment to the said notification, after importation cannot be applied. In support, they have placed reliance on the Judgment in the case of CC Bangalore Vs Spice Telecom – 2006 (203) ELT 538 (SC). Further, the Ld. Advocate referring to the judgment of Hon'ble Delhi High Court in the case of Sony India Pvt. Ltd VS CC – 2014 (304) ELT 660 (Del.), submitted that in the said case it has been held that the amending Notification No.93/08-Cus, cannot be made applicable retrospectively to the imports made earlier. He has submitted that SLP filed by the Department before Hon'ble Supreme Court against the said decision of Hon'ble Delhi High Court was dismissed on the ground of limitation. He has further submitted that the said judgment has been followed by the Tribunal subsequently in series of judgments. It is his contention that the time limit of one year cannot be made applicable to the imports made to un-amended Notification No. 102/2007 Cus. is also evident from the Circular No.6/2008 dt.28.04.2008 issued by the Board. It is his contention that imposition of a condition by way of a circular cannot whittle down the benefit of Notification in view of the principle of law laid down the Hon’ble Supreme Court in the case of Tata Teleservices Ltd Vs CC- 2006 (194) ELT 11 (SC). Further, he has submitted that the Notification No.102/07-Cus, issued under Section 25 of Customs Act, 1962, prescribed effective rate of duty. In terms of Section 15(1)(a) the condition to be applied to the imported goods is as had been prevailing at the time of importation. It is his contention that any amendment to such notification after import, cannot be applied prior to the amendment. Further, he has submitted that the judgment of Bombay High Court in the case of CMS Info Systems Pvt. Ltd Vs Vol – 2017 (349) ELT 236 will not be applicable to the present case. He has submitted that in the said case, the Writ Petition was filed challenging the vires of the amending Notification No.93/08-Cus. In that context, the Hon'ble High Court held that the amendment was valid and disposed the Writ Petition accordingly.

7. Per contra, the learned A.R. for the Revenue has submitted that Hon'ble Bombay High Court in CMS Info Systems Pvt. Ltd’s case, expressing an opinion different from that of Hon’ble Delhi High Court in the Sony India Pvt. Ltd’s case, referring to Section 27 of Customs Act, 1962, observed that the period of one year prescribed under Section 27(1) of Customs Act, 1962 cannot be made applicable to all refund claims arising out of and under the Act. It is his contention that in case of conflicting view of different High Courts the judgment of jurisdictional High Court is binding on the Bench in view of the principle of law laid down by the Larger Bench of Tribunal in the case of J.K. Tyre & Industries Ltd Vs Asstt. Commr, of C.E, Mysore – 2016 (340) ELT 193 (Tri-LB). It is his further contention that the said judgment was later followed by another Division Bench of Bombay High Court in the case of CC, NS-III Vs DSM Sinochem Pharmaceuticals (I) Pvt. Ltd – 2018 (359) ELT 509 (Bom.) 8. Heard both sides and perused the records.

9. The short issue involved in the present appeal for determination is: whether refund of 4% SAD paid at the time of import of CBU cars on 25.10.2007 is barred by limitation when the refund claim was filed on 05.11.2008 under Notification No.102/2007Cus. Dt.14.9.2007. It is not in dispute that prior to the amending Notification No.93/2008-Cus dt.01.08.2008, no time limit has been stipulated under the base of Notification No.102/07-Cus. dt.14.9.2007 for filing of refund claim of 4% SAD paid at the time of import. It is the contention of the Appellant that since at the time of import, there is no condition in the notification specifying time limit to file refund claim, accordingly, the period of one year introduced subsequently by Notification No.93/08-Cus, dt.01.08.2008 cannot be made applicable to the refund claim filed on 05.11.2008. The contention of the Revenue, on the other hand, is that the period of limitation for refund of Customs duty has been present under the statute at Sec. 27 of CA,1962 all along and also when the refund of 4% SAD paid at the time of import was filed on 05.11.2008, the amending Notification No.93/08-Cus, dt.01.08.2008 has been in force. The Revenue, strenuously relied upon the principle of law laid down by jurisdictional Bombay High Court in the case of CMS Info Systems Pvt Ltd’s case (Supra).

10. The Hon’ble Bombay High Court, while dealing with the vires of amending Notification No.93/08-Cus, dt.01.08.2008, and differing with the observation of Hon’ble Delhi High Court in Sony India Pvt. Ltd case on the issue of applicability of period of limitation to the un-amended Notification No.102/07-Cus. dt.14.9.2007, observed as follows:-
"30. The very argument which was canvassed before us, namely, that the original exemption notification neither stipulated a time period within which the refund was to be claimed, nor it makes Section 27 of the Customs Act applicable to such claims. Secondly, since imports and payments of relevant customs duty were made when the original notification was in force and the amended notification had no retrospective effect, the appellant before the High Court of Delhi was entitled to refund of special additional customs duty.

31. It is in dealing with the first argument that the observations in Paras 10, 11, 12, 13 and 14 have been relied upon. Then in Para 17, the said High Court holds thus:-

"17. Plainly, therefore, Section 27 was understood as not applying to SAD cases, even though it was in the statute book for many years. Yet, with the introduction of the circular and then the notification (No. 93), the Customs authorities started insisting that such limitation period which was prescribed with effect from 1-8-2008 (by notification) became applicable. There is a body of law that essential legislative policy aspects (period of limitation being one such aspect) cannot be formulated or prescribed by subordinate legislation. Khemka and Co. (Agencies) Private Ltd. v. State of Maharashtra, (1975) 35 STC 571 and other decisions are authority on the question that in matters which deal with substantive rights, such as imposition of penalties and other provisions that adversely affect statutory rights, the parent enactment must clearly impose such obligations; subordinate legislation or rules cannot prevail or be made, in such cases. The imposition of a period of limitation for the first time, without statutory amendment, through a notification, therefore could not prevail."

32. On a perusal of these observations, it is apparent that the intent of the additional duties is to counter-balance the local taxes or other charges leviable on a like article. Then comes the aspect of exemption in relation to which the Hon'ble High Court observes that the intent is to allow a refund of the special additional customs duty because the importer has suffered the incidence of SADC on import. That was meant to counter-balance the sales tax/VAT leviable on a like article in India. These very articles have been sold and the importer then has to bear the burden even of the sales tax/VAT on sale of these goods.

33. It is submitted that the Hon'ble High Court of Delhi has clearly opined and held that the provisions of the Customs Act on the rules and mechanism for refund are incorporated by reference in Section 3(5) of the CTA only "so far as may be" applicable. Since SADC is levied under Section 3(5) and that is refundable only on subsequent sale, then, no limitation period can possibly be imposed for advancing a refund claim. We have carefully perused the above observations and in the light of the analysis of the statutory provisions and the scheme of refund by us, with greatest respect, we are unable to agree with the High Court of Delhi on this point. The Rules and Regulations under the provisions of the Customs Act, 1962, including those relating to drawback, refund and exemption shall so far as may be applied and this reveals that for the purposes of making an application seeking refund, its consideration, that Customs Act and its provisions are made applicable even to the Tariff Act and the duties mentioned thereunder. Therefore, a provision for drawback, refund and exemption from such duties can be made by relying on the Customs Act, 1962. The power to refund is to be found in Section 27 of the Customs Act, 1962, and that was always there. The amendment to the notification introducing a limitation for seeking refund apart, Section 27 with its condition of a limitation period was throughout on the statute book. That is the only provision enabling granting refund of any duty is undisputed. The notification granting exemption and under consideration in the case, enables claiming a refund of duty (SADC) but the power to grant it is in the substantive law. Precisely, that is the case herein. Further, we find that there is an exemption granted and which is conditional. The exemption being conditional, it is not permissible to pick and choose convenient conditions of the exemption notification and leave out those which to parties like the petitioners, appear to be onerous and excessive. We do not see how in the teeth of a clear proviso in the exemption notification can the assessee/petitioners before us contend that the exemption notification is valid for everything else but when it comes to period of limitation therein, that is excessive or unfair, unjust and arbitrary. Once the exemption is conditional, then, all the conditions therein have to be complied with. If that provides for refund, but the application in that behalf is to be made within a specified period, then, that cannot be said to be excessive and arbitrary, far from being unfair, unjust and unreasonable. It cannot be termed illegal as well for the simple reason that subsection (1) of Section 27 of the Customs Act, 1962, which enables claiming of refund by making an application itself speaks of one year outer limit. That is never challenged, including in the present proceedings. That the period of one year commences from the payment of the duty. If that is how Section 27 is worded and every duty is included in its ambit and scope, then, an application seeking refund of the same has to abide by it, including the bar of limitation contained therein. That is how consistent with that provision even the special exemption notification carries the same stipulation or condition. We do not see how insistence on complying with it can be said to be imposing an unreasonable, unfair and unjust restriction. Once the nature of the right is considered, then, all the more we are unable to agree with Mr. Patil. There is no vested, much less absolute right in the petitioners to seek refund. Even a refund must be within the framework of the statute and admissible on the terms thereof. We are not inclined to agree with him that compliance with this period is calling upon the petitioner to do or perform something which is impossible. The exemption notification does not impose any new condition as has been read into it. It grants the exemption from payment of duty conditionally. The exemption can be availed of provided the goods which are imported are subject to payment of duties which include all the duties that are referred to in both the enactment and the notification. If the import is for subsequent sale, then, that invoice must carry a stipulation that no credit for the additional duty of customs shall be admissible. The importer thereafter can file a claim for refund of the additional duty of customs paid on the imported goods before the expiry of one year from the date of payment of additional duty of customs."

11. A simple reading of the aforesaid ratio makes it crystal clear that the period of limitation even if specifically not mentioned under the Notification No.102/07-Cus. dt.14.9.2007, before its amendment by the amending Notification No.93/08-Cus, dt.01.08.2008, all refund of customs duty being governed by Sec:27 of Customs Act, 1962, therefore, the time limit of one year from the date of payment of 4% SAD would be applicable. In the present case, since the refund claim filed by the Appellant on 05.11.2008 i.e. after one year from the payment of 4% SAD on 25.10.2007, is barred by limitation. We do not find merit in the contention of the learned Advocate for the Appellant that the principle of law laid down by Hon’ble Bombay High Court would not be applicable to the facts of the present case as the same was in the context of testing vires of the notification. The principle laid down by Hon’ble Bombay High Court and subsequently followed in DSM Sinochem Pharmaceuticals (I) Pvt. Ltd.’s case is squarely applicable to the facts of the present case and being the jurisdictional High Court, binding on the Tribunal situated in Mumbai, in view of the principle of law laid down by the Larger Bench of the Tribunal in the case of J.K. Tyre & Industries Ltd Vs Asst. Commr of C.E, Mysore – 2016 (340) ELT 193 (Tri-LB) . Since we have held that the refund is barred by limitation and hence not admissible, consequently other issues raised became academic and hence not considered.

12. In the result, the impugned order is upheld and the appeal is dismissed. (Order pronounced in the open court on 24.10.2019)

FINAL ORDER NOS. A/85065-85066/2020

Per: Suvendu Kumar Pati:

Imposition of penalty under Section 112(a) of the Customs Act on appellants M/s. Sevile Product and Ms. Prerna Singh, CEO, both based in Dubai, by the Ld. Commissioner of Customs (Import-II), Mumbai is assailed in both the appeals.

2. Facts of the appellants case, in a nut-shell, is that DRI Mumbai Zonal Unit through investigation found appellants and three others were resorting to large scale under invoicing and consequently by mis-declaring transaction value as well as retail sales price (RSP) of confectionary items like wafers, cookies and toffees etc. they were evading Customs duty during importation of these goods. Statement of Prerna Sing (CEO) was recorded after she was summoned from Dubai who admitted about issuing of two different invoices with different price structures to the importer on regular basis for production of invoices having lesser price before the Customs authority to avoid payment of tax and the other one with proper price for business transactions. Statement of other connected persons including importer named Prakesh Menon i.e. Indian representative of Appellant company were also recorded during investigation and ultimately they were issued with show cause notices.
Three of them settled the matter before the settlement Commissioner and both the appellants challenged the application of Indian Customs Act to impose penalty on overseas company and person unsuccessfully before the Commissioner Customs (Import-II) who confirmed penalty of Rs. 2,50,000/- on the appellant company and penalty of Rs. 50,000/- on Prerna Singh, its CEO under Section 112(a) of the Customs Act. Both the Appellants are before this Tribunal challenging legality of the said order passed by the Commissioner (Customs).

3. In the memo of appeal and during the course of hearing of appeal, Learned Counsel Mr. Akhilesh Kangsia for the appellant argued that prior to amendment to the Customs Act 1962 introduced on 29-03-2018, the same was extended only to the whole of India and not beyond India for which operation of the Act beyond the territory of India cannot be made applicable to the overseas suppliers of Dubai, UAE and its NRI CEO and subject them to penalty under Section 112(a) of the Customs Act. With reference to the Hon’ble Supreme Court’s decision in British India Steam Navigation Co. Ltd. Vs. Shanmughavilas Cashew Indus – 1990 (3) SCC 481 he argued that Indian statute are ineffective against foreign property and foreigners. Further, with reference to the decision reported in 2017 (348) E.L.T. 168 (Tri. Mumbai) in the case of Narendra Lodaya v. Commissioner of Customs, Nhava Sheva H. Lingos Co. Vs Collector of Customs decision delivered on 20th September 1993 and decision of Customs Appeal no. 70148 of 2019 in the case of M/s. Shakti Jewellers Pvt. Ltd. v. Commissioner of Customs, he also argued that appellants, being company and NRI based in Dubai having no permanent establishment in India and having no place of business in India, cannot be penalised under the provision of Customs Act which extends to the whole of the Indian territory and not all over the world beyond India and responsibility as well as obligation of the importer commences with filing of declaration under section 46 of Customs Act for which incident occurred prior to that cannot be brought into the purview of the Customs Act. Placing reliance in the case law reported in 2015 (325) ELT 199 (Tri. Bang) in the case of Shafeek P. K Vs. CC, Cochin, Learned Counsel for the Appellants argued that in Foreign Exchange Regulation Act, 1973 and in IPC under Section 3 as well as 4, specific provision exists for trial of citizens of India residing outside India and branches of company or agencies located outside India but no such provision exists in Customs Act and therefore in the absence of an identical provision in the Customs Act, the same cannot be invoked against resident of foreign country even though he/she was an Indian for which he prays to set aside the order passed by the Commissioner of Customs.

4. In response to such submissions, Learned Authorised Representative for the respondent department Mr Manoj Kumar argued in support of the reasoning and rationality found in the order passed by the Commissioner of Customs but conceded that the Commissioner had not dealt with the jurisdictional issue while confirming penalties under section 112 of the Customs Act on the appellants.

5. I had heard the arguments at length on the other day and perused the case record.

6. The issue of jurisdiction of Customs Act and its application to the appellant is primarily challenged in the present appeal, besides the legality of the Order of the Commissioner. Though the issue appears to be small it has wide ramifications. No Municipal law can ever be extended beyond the territorial boundaries of a country including its continental self and exclusive economic zone, whether or not there is express provision in the Act or statute to stretch the same beyond the country’s territory since the same would amount to encroachment upon the territorial authority of other State. It is therefore, defined in the Statute of the country that the said Act has its application within the territorial limits of the country. Likewise in case of penal statute, it is clearly defined that the "act or its violation" should have its effect and consequence within the territorial limit of the said country. If violation of provision of statute is committed within the said country, then the consequence in conformity to the legal provision of the country would ensue, no matter the violator is a resident of the country or an alien. It is, therefore, necessary to determine if the "act or its omission" committed is in violation of law and accordingly to punish the violator and not to determine if such violation has been committed by a legal person based in the Country or not.

7. Sovereign country asserts extra territorial jurisdiction in criminal laws though the principal basis of jurisdiction over crime is the territorial principle which permits a State in control of its territory to prescribe, adjudicate and enforce its law in the territory. The crime is said to be committed even partly in a state’s territory when any essential constituent element itself is consummated there. Therefore, when an offence’s adverse effect endangers a State’s security or Government’s function, extra territorial jurisdiction is enforced. Customs law from an international Criminal law prospective requires a consideration of the classification between Crime law and administrative law and the same is required to be placed under the administrative penal law though in a legal sense it is not penal but nevertheless retributive (Gist has been borrowed from the article titled ‘Criminal and Quasi-Criminal Customs Enforcement among the U.S., Canada and Mexico’ written by Bruce Zagaris and David R. Stepp.)

8. In a nut-shell, the discussion above would reflect the principle that whether violation of an act has an adverse effect to the State’s interest, the same violation is to be dealt by the State itself and the violator is to be penalised irrespective of his/her nationality or place of residence. It is in this prospective, the jurisdiction of sovereign State is to be understood though the general understanding of jurisdiction is based on the nationality of the perpetrator since nationals of a State remained under the sovereignty and owe their allegiance to it even though they are free to travel and reside outside its territory. It is in this contest that Foreign Exchange Regulation Act 1973 prescribing application of it to all citizens of India residing outside India and its branches, agencies situated outside India is to be understood and also application of section 4 of IPC in the cited judgements of the above referred case laws. However, a comparison is required to be made between Section 3 & Section 4 of the Indian Penal Code concerning its application beyond the territorial jurisdiction of sovereign India. While Section 4 deals with application of IPC to extra territorial offences, Section 3 provides judicial power of punishment to any person for violation of any Indian law. Such primary distinction is not noticeable in the judgement of Shafeek P.K. v. CC, Cochin-2015 (325)ELT 199 cited Supra.

9. It has also been argued by Learned Counsel for the appellant that judgement of the Tribunal in the Hi Lingos Co. v. Collector of Customs case has been confirmed by Hon’ble Supreme Court (reported at 1997 (95) E.L.T. A147 (SC) and it was the first decision on the jurisdiction issue apart from C.K Kunhammed V. Collector of Central Excise & Customs – 1992 (62) E.L.T. 146 judgement which had dealt with application of Private International law on foreign nationals. However, going by the findings in Hi Lingos’ case, it can be noticed that penalty under Section 112 was set aside not on the ground of jurisdiction and there was a specific finding made by one of the members in the said judgement at Para 4 (8) that such mis-declaration of description of goods was within the mischief of Section 112 Customs Act even though the importers were in foreign country. Hon’ble Supreme Court had not dealt with any of the aspects on merit, since the appeal was dismissed for non-prosecution. Moreover no finding is forthcoming from the judgement reported in 2017 (348) E.L.T. 168 (Tri – Mumbai) in the case of Narendra Lodaya v. Commissioner of Customs, Nhava Sheva as to why settlement Commissioner had not dealt with the cases of foreign nationals therein to make the said judgement a binding precedent for the subsequent decisions of the Tribunal, besides the fact that stage from which Customs Act is applicable was determined therein.

10. In the instant case appellants have subjected themselves to the jurisdiction of Customs Act upon notice sent to them under Section 108 of the said Act which would have otherwise ensured through extra diction process Appellant Prerna Singh had also confessed during regarding of her statement as CEO of her company that appellant Seville Products Ltd. used to raise two invoices for same import having law value and high value recorded in those invoices which were despatched through a computer of third party named Prakesh Menon for presentation of the invoices having lower value before the Customs for payment of customs duty and clearance and that the commercial invoice against which payment was received was not shown to the customs. Meaning of word abetment is ’to help someone in wrong doing’. In the instant case such wrong doing had its effect in the Mumbai Customs jurisdiction and appellants had aided the importer in such wrong doing. Therefore, penalty under Section 112 was rightly involved. Further Appellant Prerna had never rescinded from her statement and in view of Section 56 of the Indian Evidence Act, such admission needs no further proof to hold appellants guilty of violation of the Section 112(a) of Customs Act. Hence the order.

ORDER

11. Both the appeals are dismissed and order no. 11/2018-19 dated 23-8-2018 of the Commissioner of Customs (Import-II), Mumbai is hereby confirmed.

of section 18 of the Customs Act, 1962."

2.1 Appellants had imported Molybdenum Ore Concentrate declaring the same as Molybdenum Ore and claiming exemption from Countervailing Duty (CVD) as per notification No 04/2006-CE dated 01.03.2006 on seven Bill of Entries as detailed in table below:
2.2 In view of the investigations undertaken by the Director General Revenue Intelligence, it was found that item imported was not Molybdenum Ore but was Molybdenum Ore Concentrate, and hence the exemption from CVD claimed by the Appellants was not admissible to them.

2.3 A Show cause notice dated 12.03.2012 was issued to them asking them to show cause as to why:

- Goods imported vide the seven Bill of Entries be not confiscated under Section 111(d) & (m) of the Customs Act, 1962. Since the goods are not available for confiscation, why redemption fine be not imposed;
- Differential Customs Duty amounting to Rs 1,86,16,220/- in respect of the seven B/E be not demanded and recovered from them in terms of proviso to Section 28(1) ibid;
- Interest should not be demanded and recovered under Section 28AA ibid;
- Penalties should not be imposed on them under Section 112(a) and Section 114A ibid.

2.4 Show cause notice has been adjudicated by the Commissioner as per the impugned order referred in para 1, supra.

2.5 Aggrieved appellants have filed this appeal.

2.6 Revenue has also filed cross objections in the matter

3.1 We have heard Shri H K Hirani, Consultant for the Appellant and Shri A P Kothari, Additional Commissioner, Authorized Representative for the Revenue.

3.2 Arguing for the Appellants, learned Consultant submitted that:

- Since the Bill of Entries have been verified, examined and assessed by the proper officer before the clearance of the goods they cannot be guilty for misdeclaration with intention to evade payment of duty, hence extended period could not have been invoked.
- There was confusion with regards to applicability Chapter Note 4 to Chapter 26 in Excise Tariff, (as admitted by the Circular of 2012). It is settled position in law that laying claim to some exemption, whether admissible or not is a matter of belief and not amount to mis-declaration;
- In view of the decision of the Apex Court in case of Star Industries relied upon by the revenue, the goods could not have been held liable for confiscation;
- Denial of exemption in respect of the Bill of Entries filed prior to date of receipt of Presidential Assent for Finance Act, 2011 is completely unsustainable. It would only after the publication of the Finance Act, 2011, that the amendments made in Tariff will become applicable as has been held by the Apex Court in case of Param Industries [2015 (321) ELT 192 (SC)]
- The imported goods are ores and not ore concentrate and hence the benefit of exemption claimed will be admissible to them.
- For the goods to be liable for confiscation under Section 111, mis-declaration is required to be proved and, if there is no case of mis-declaration, confiscation cannot be madeo

  - Northern Plastics [1998 (101) ELT 549 (SC)]
  - No interest can be demanded when demand itself is not payable
  - Pratibha Processors [1996 (88) ELT 12 (SC)]
  - Jayathi Krishna & Co [2000 (119) ELT 4 (SC)]
  - No penalty should have been imposed as has been held in the following cases.

  - Poly nova Chemical Industries [2005 (179) ELT 173 (T-Mum)]
  - Jupiter Exports [2002 (145) ELT 608 (T-Chennai)]
  - Pawan Goel [2001 (135) ELT 1425 (T-Del)]

3.3 Arguing for the revenue learned Authorized Representative while reiterating the findings in the impugned order submitted that-
- Issue involved in present case is squarely covered by the decision of the Apex Court in case of Star Industries [2015 (324) ELT 656 (SC)]
- The issue raised by the Appellant in respect of the applicability of the amendments made by Finance Act, 2011 to the imports made prior to the Presidential Assent to the Act, and it publication are irrelevant in view of the Specific declaration made in terms of Provisional Collection of Tax Act, 1931 in Finance Bill, 2011 making these amendments applicable from the date of introduction of the Bill.
- As per the amended Section 28, vide Finance Act, 2011 the normal period for making the demand of the duty short paid was one year from the relevant date. Since in this case the show cause notice has been issued on 12.03.2012 in respect of the bill of entries filed during the period 22.03.2011 to 18.09.2011, the arguments made by the Appellant in respect of mis-declaration etc are irrelevant as the show cause notice has been issued within period of one year, i.e. normal period of limitation and hence the for making the demand the issue of misdeclaration will become irrelevant.
- However it is fact that appellants have misdeclared the goods imported by them by declaring them as Molybdenum Ore instead of Molybdenum Ore Concentrate to avail the benefit of exemption from CVD under Notification No 4/2006-CE, and hence the goods have been rightly held to be confiscable under Section 111(d) and (m) of the Customs Act, 1962.However since the goods were not available for confiscation, Commissioner has not confiscated nor imposed any redemption fine;
- Appellants have short paid the duty at the time of clearance of goods, and hence the demand of interest under Section 28AA is justified;
- For the act of mis-declaration Commissioner has imposed penalty under Section112(a) which is neither excessive nor unjustified looking into the quantum of duty sought to be evaded.

4.1 We have considered the impugned order along with the submissions made in appeal and during the course of arguments.

4.2 The issue on merits has been settled by the Hon'ble Apex Court in case of Star Industries [2015 (324) ELT 656 (SC)] holding as follows:
26. Before we discuss these arguments and arrive at a particular conclusion, we would like to recapitulate the salient features of the case about which there is no dispute:

(a) The assessee is seeking benefit of Notification No. 4/2006-C.E. and relies upon Sl. No. 4 thereof which totally exempts goods described therein from payment of excise duty. The goods which are otherwise excisable are, thus, exempted from payment of duty. Description of these goods in Sl. No. 4 is ‘Ores’.

(b) The goods imported by the assessee fall in Chapter 26 of Central Excise Tariff Act. Particular Tariff Item is 2613 against which the description of goods given under the said Tariff Item is ‘Molybdenum Ores and Concentrate’.

(c) The goods imported by the assessee were not Molybdenum Ores in original form as mined. They had admittedly undergone the process of roasting and after the roasting, they are known as ‘concentrates’. Even the assessee has described these goods as ‘Roasted Molybdenum Ore Concentrate.’

(d) Chapter Note 4 treats the aforesaid process of roasting Ores into Concentrate as ‘manufacture’.

27. On the aforesaid facts, case of the assessee was that since ores include concentrates, assessee had claimed exemption from payment of CVD under Notification No. 4/2006-C.E. In support of this claim that even after roasting, concentrates remain ore only on the plea that ores is genus and concentrates is specie thereof, the assessee refer to literature on chemical technology and also its earlier judgment in M/s. Hindustan Gas and Industries Ltd. case which, in turn, relied upon the judgment of this Court in MMTC case. We have already analysed the decision in M/s. Hindustan Gas and Industries Ltd. case. The entire decision proceeds on the basis that roasting of an ore to obtain concentrate does not amount to manufacture specially when roasting is a process by which impurities in the ore are removed and the recoverable content of metal oxide is enhanced. In support, reference was made to Kirk-Othmer’s Encyclopedia of Chemical Technology. Likewise, in MMTC case as well, which was relied upon by the Tribunal, this Court had held that Wolfram Concentrate which was having minimum 65% Tungsten Oxide was still an ore and classifiable under Item 26. Thus, the decision in Hindustan Gas primarily rested on the reasoning that roasting of an ore to obtain concentrate would not amount to manufacture and ore and concentrate are one and the same inasmuch as concentrate remains ore and only impurities are removed therefrom. On this premise, it was held that ore is genus and concentrate is a specie thereof.

28. According to us, it is very clear from the reading of the judgment in Hindustan Gas case that basic and the common thread which runs throughout the decision is that subjecting ore to the process of roasting does not amount to manufacture. This very basis gets knocked off with the amendment carried out in the year 2011 with the insertion of Note 4. Note 4 now categorically mentions that the process of converting ores into concentrates would amount to ‘manufacture’. Therefore, it cannot now be argued that roasting of ores and converting the same into concentrates would not be manufacture. For the same reason, the judgment in MMTC becomes inapplicable and reliance upon Kirk-Othmer’s Encyclopedia becomes irrelevant. With the addition of Note 4, a legal friction is created treating the process of converting ores into concentrates as manufacture. Once this is treated as manufacture, all the consequences thereof, as intended for creating such a legal friction, would automatically follow. Following shall be the inevitable implications:

(a) It is to be treated that Molybdenum Ore is different from concentrate. That is inherent in treating the process as ‘manufacture’ inasmuch as manufacture results in a different commodity from the earlier one. Section 2(f) defines this term as under:

"manufacture" includes any process,-

(i) incidental or ancillary to the completion of a manufactured product;

(ii) which is specified in relation to any goods in the Section or Chapter notes of the First Schedule to the Central Excise Tariff Act, 1985 (5 of 1986) as amounting to manufacture; or

(iii) which, in relation to the goods specified in the Third Schedule, involves packing or repacking of such goods in a unit container or labelling or re-labelling of containers including the declaration or alteration of retail sale price on it or adoption of any other treatment on the goods to render the product marketable to the consumer."
(b) The purpose of treating concentrate as manufactured product out of ores is to make concentrates as liable for excise duty. Otherwise, there was no reason to deem the process of converting ores into concentrates as manufacture.

29. Once the aforesaid legal repercussions are taken note of, as a fortiori, it becomes obvious that Notification No. 4/2006-C.E. which exempts only ores would not include within itself 'concentrates' also because of the reason that after the insertion of Note 4, concentrate is to be treated as a different product than ores, in law for the purposes of products of Chapter 26.

30. This brings us to the effect of Chapter Note 2 which is retained even after insertion of Chapter Note 4. No doubt, as per Chapter Note 2, 'ores' means minerals of mineralogical species actually used in the metallurgical industry for the extraction of mercury, of the metals of Heading 2844 or of the metals of Section XIV or XV, even if they are intended for non-metallurgical purposes. As per this note, metals of Section XV would be included in the term 'ores'. However, after the insertion of Chapter Note 4, these two Notes, namely, Note 2 and Note 4 have to be read harmoniously. If we accept the submission of the learned counsel for the assessee predicated on Note 2, then Note 4 even after its conscious inclusion, would be rendered otiose which cannot be countenanced. Therefore, Note 2, when seen along with Note 4, has to govern itself in limited territory. On the basis of deeming fiction created by Note 4, once we arrive at the conclusion that process of roasting of Ore amounts to manufacture and it creates a different product known as Concentrate, for the purpose of exemption notification, which exempts only 'Ores' it is not possible to hold that Concentrate will still be covered by the exemption notification. Therefore, harmonious construction of Note 2 and Note 4 would lead us to hold that in those cases when Note 4 applies and Ores becomes a different product, it ceases to be Ores.

31. We, thus, are of the opinion that in the impugned judgment, the Tribunal has rightly arrived at the conclusion that by virtue of Note 4, concentrate has to be necessarily treated as different from ores which is deemed as manufactured product after Molybdenum Ores underwent the process of roasting. Once we keep in mind that conversion of ores into concentrate is considered as manufacture and, therefore, becomes liable for central excise levy, exemption Notification No. 4/2006-C.E. is to be interpreted in this light as the Legislature has intended to treat ores and concentrates as two distinct items and Notification No. 4/2006-C.E. exempts only 'ores', concentrates automatically falls outside the purview of said notification. It is rightly argued by the learned senior counsel for the Revenue that exemption notifications are to be construed strictly and even if there is some doubt, benefit thereof shall not ensure to the assessee but would be given to the Revenue. This principle of strict construction of exemption notification is now deeply ingrained in various judgments of this Court taking this view consistently."

4.3 The arguments made by the Appellant with regards to applicability of the Chapter Note 4 inserted vide Finance Act, 2011, in respect of the import made prior to the date of assent and publication of the Finance Act, 2011 have been rejected by the Hon'ble Apex Court in case of Bengal Shrachi Housing Development Limited [2017 (6) GSTT 356 (SC)]

"20. In Chhotabhai Jethabhai Patel and Co. v. The Union of India and Anr., 1962 Supp. (2) SCR 1 at 20-21 = 1999 (110) E.L.T. 118 (S.C.), this Court was faced with the challenge of the levy of a retrospective excise duty. One of the arguments made against the levy of such duty is that excise duty being indirect, which is that it is ultimately to be passed on to the consumer, a retrospective levy would be ultra vires the legislative competence of Parliament as it could not possibly be passed on. This argument was repelled in the following terms:

"There is no doubt that excise duties have been referred to by the economists and in the judgments of the Privy Council as well as in the Australian decisions as an instance of an "indirect tax", but in construing the expression "duty of Excise" as it occurs in Entry 84 we are not concerned so much with whether the tax is "direct" or "indirect" as upon the transaction or activity on which it is imposed. In this context one has to bear in mind the fact that the challenge to the legislative competence of the tax - levy is not directed to the imposition as a whole but to a very limited and restricted part of it. This challenge is confined (a) to the operation of the tax between the period March 1, 1951, and April 28, 1951, and (b) even in regard to this limited period, it is restricted to the imposition of the additional duty of six annas per lb. which was levied, beyond the eight annas per lb. collected from the appellants by virtue of the Finance Bill under the provisions of the Provisional Collection of Taxes Act, 1931. It would seem to be rather a strange result to achieve that the tax imposed satisfies every requirement of a "duty of Excise" in so far as the tax operates from and after April 28, 1951, but is not a "duty of Excise" for the duration of two months before that date.

Learned Counsel conceded, as he had to, that even on the decision relied upon by him, the fact that owing to the operation of economic forces it was not possible for the taxpayer to pass on the burden of the tax, did not alter the nature of the imposition and detract from its being a "duty of Excise". For instance, the state of the market might be such that the duty imposed upon and collected from the producer or manufacture might not be capable of being passed on to buyers from him. Learned Counsel urged that this would not matter, as one had to have regard to "the general tendency of the tax" and "the expectation of the taxing authority" and to the possibility of its being passed on and not to the facts of any particular case which impeded the operation of natural economic forces.

The impediment to the duty being passed on might be due not merely to private bargains between the parties or abnormal economic situations such as the market for a commodity being a buyers' market. Such impediments may be brought about by the operation of other laws which Parliament might enact, such as control over prices. If in such a situation where the price which the producer might charge his buyer is fixed by the statute, say under the Essential Supplies Act, and a "duty of Excise" is later imposed on the manufacturer, it could not be said that the duty imposed would not answer the description of an "excise duty". Learned Counsel had really no answer to the situation created by such a control of economy except to say that it would be an abnormal economic situation. It could hardly be open to argument that a tax levied on a manufacturer could be stated not to be a "duty of Excise", merely because by reason of the operation of other laws the taxpayer was not permitted to pass on the tax-levy. The retrospective levy of a tax would be one further instance of such inability to pass on, which does not alter the real nature or true character of the duty.

4.4 Section 28 of the Customs Act, 1962 was amended by the Finance Act, 2011 to prescribe normal period of limitation as one year from the relevant date. The relevant provisions of amended section are reproduced below:

"SECTION 28. Recovery of duties not levied or not paid or short-levied or short-paid or erroneously refunded. –

(1) Where any duty has not been levied or has been short-levied or short-paid or erroneously refunded, or any interest payable has not been paid, part-paid or erroneously refunded, for any reason other than the reasons of collusion or any wilful mis-statement or suppression of facts,-

(a) the proper officer shall, within one year from the relevant date, serve notice on the person chargeable with the duty or interest which has not been so levied or paid or which has been shortlevied or short-paid or to whom the refund has erroneously been made, requiring him to show cause why he should not pay the amount specified in the notice;

(b) ……

Explanation 1:- For the purpose of this section, “relevant date” means –

(a) in a case where duty is not levied, or interest is not charged, the date on which the proper officer makes an order for the clearance of goods;

(b) in a case where duty is provisionally assessed under Section 18, the date of adjustment of duty after final assessment thereof or re-assessment as the case may be;

(c) in a case where duty or interest has been erroneously refunded the date of refund;

(d) in any other case, the date of payment of duty or interest.”

In our view show cause notice issued within one year from the date of filing of Bill of Entry, is definitely within the normal period of limitation and demand made therein cannot be held to be hit by limitation under Section 28 of the Customs Act, 1962. Rejecting arguments similar to those advanced by advanced the appellants in respect of erstwhile Section 28, Hon'ble Apex Court has in case of Jain Shuddh Vanaspati [1996 (86) ELT 460 (SC)] held as follows:

"5. It is patent that a show cause notice under the provisions of Section 28 for payment of Customs duties not levied or short-levied or erroneously refunded can be issued only subsequent to the clearance under Section 47 of the concerned goods. Further, Section 28 provides time limits for the issuance of the show cause notice thereunder commencing from the "relevant date"; "relevant date" is defined by subsection (3) of Section 28 for the purpose of Section 28 to be the date on which the order for clearance of the goods has been made in a case where duty has not been levied; which is to say that the date upon which the permissible period begins to run is the date of the order under Section 47. The High Court was, therefore, in error in coming to the conclusion that no show cause notice under Section 28 could have been issued until and unless the order under Section 47 had been first revised under Section 130.”

4.5 It is a fact that the goods imported are nothing but Molybdenum Concentrate and appellants have declare the same as Molybdenum Ore on the Bill of Entries and the documents relating to import clearance. In view of the mis-declaration made the goods have been held liable for confiscation under Section 111(m) of the Customs Act, 1962, but not confiscated as they were not available for confiscation. Commissioner has also not imposed any redemption fine on the appellant hence we do not discuss this aspect any further as this issue of confiscation has become irrelevant. However for the acts of omission and commission leading to misdeclaration of the goods for which they had become liable for confiscation under Section 111, Commissioner has imposed penalty under Section 112(a) and we uphold the same.

4.6 The reliance placed by the Appellants on the Hon’ble Apex Court in case of Pratibha Processors and Jayathi Krishna & Co is not of any significance as we are upholding the demand of duty hence demand for interest will be sustained. For upholding the demand of interest we rely upon the following decisions.

i. P V Vikhe Patil SSK [2007 (215) ELT 23 (Bom)]
ii. Kanhai Ram Thakedar [2005 (185) ELT 3 (SC)]
iii. TCP Limited [2006 (1) STR 134 (T-Ahld)]
iv. Pepsi Cola Marketing Co [2007 (8) STR 246 (T-Ahld)]
v. Ballarpur Industries Limited [2007 (5) STR 197 (TMum)]

4.7 Since cross objections are only in support of the impugned order, they are not being considered further.

5.1 In view of discussions as above, appeal is dismissed and cross objections disposed off accordingly.

FINAL ORDER NO. A/86702/2019

Per: Sanjiv Srivastava:

This appeal is directed against order in original No 16/2017-18/Commr/ NS-V/CAC/JNCH dated 06.06.2017, of Commissioner Customs (NS-V) Nhava Sheva. By the impugned order, Commissioner has held as follow:

"(i) I hold that the value of the goods imported by: (a) M/s United Traders (as detailed in Annexure A1), (b) M/s Blue Bird Sales (as detailed in Annexure A2), (c) M/s R S Enterprises (as detailed in Annexure A3), and (d) M/s Simplex Enterprises (as detailed in Annexure A4) are liable for rejection and re-determination as per the provisions of Customs ct, 1962 and Customs Valuation Rules, 2007. However, since the goods have already been re-exported, I do not proceed to re-determine the values. I do however, hold that for the said mis declaration of value, the impugned goods are liable for confiscation under Section 111(m) of the Customs Act, 1962.

(ii) The imported impugned goods by: (a) M/s United Traders (as detailed in Annexure A1), (b) M/s Blue Bird Sales (as detailed in Annexure A2), (c) M/s R S Enterprises (as detailed in Annexure A3), and (d) M/s Simplex Enterprises (as detailed in Annexure A4) are also held liable for confiscation under Section 111(d) on the ground that they were attempted to be imported in violation of the provisions of the Electronics & Information Technology Goods (requirement for compulsory registration) Order, 2012.

(iii) The goods, other than those held liable for confiscation under Section 111(d) and 111(m) as mentioned above, and imported in the said four containers and by the aforesaid four firms, are held liable for confiscation under Section 119 of the Customs Act, 1962, which provides that any goods used for concealing smuggled goods shall also be liable for confiscation.

(iv) Since the goods held liable for confiscation have been released provisionally for re-export and are not available for confiscation per se, I order imposition of the following fine in lieu of confiscation under Section 125 to be appropriated from voluntary deposits made during investigation or at the time of provisional release.

(a) M/s United Traders: Rs 10,00,000/- (Rs Ten Lakh Only)
(b) M/s Blue Bird Sales: Rs 10,00,000/- (Rs Ten Lakh Only)
(c) M/s R S Enterprises: Rs 8,00,000/- (Rs Eight Lakh Only)
(d) M/s Simplex Enterprises: Rs 12,00,000/- (Rs Twelve Lakh Only)

The aforesaid redemption fine amount has been decided broadly keeping in mind the declared assessable value/ revised assessable value of the impugned goods sought to be illegally brought into India.
(vi) I order imposition of following penalty on the four firms under Section 112(a) of Customs Act, 1962:

(a) M/s United Traders: Rs 5,00,000/- (Rs Five Lakh Only)
(b) M/s Blue Bird Sales: Rs 5,00,000/- (Rs Five Lakh Only)
(c) M/s R S Enterprises: Rs 4,00,000/- (Rs Four Lakh Only)
(d) M/s Simplex Enterprises: Rs 6,00,000/- (Rs Six Lakh Only)

The aforesaid penalty amount has been decided broadly keeping in mind the declared assessable value/ revised assessable value of the impugned goods sought to be illegally brought into India.

(vii) I order imposition of penalty under Section 114AA of Customs Act, 1962 for use of false and incorrect material on the said four importers:

(a) M/s United Traders: Rs 2,00,000/- (Rs Two Lakh Only)
(b) M/s Blue Bird Sales: Rs 2,00,000/- (Rs Two Lakh Only)
(c) M/s R S Enterprises: Rs 2,00,000/- (Rs Two Lakh Only)
(d) M/s Simplex Enterprises: Rs 2,00,000/- (Rs Two Lakh Only)

(viii) I do not impose any penalty either under Section 112(a) or 114AA on Shri Abhishek Jain, Shri Mukesh Indora, Shri Rahul Sharma and Shri Raja Ram Sahu, the proprietors of the aforesaid four importing firms on which I have already impose penalty under Section 112(a) and 114AA of Customs Act, 1962.

(ix) I impose penalty on the following persons under Section 112(a) for their specific acts as discussed above which have rendered the impugned goods liable for confiscation under Section 111(d) & 111(m) of the Customs Act 1962:

(a) Shri Jitendra Aggarwal: Rs 30,00,000/- (Rs Thirty Lakh Only)
(b) Shri Rajeev Singh: Rs 10,00,000/- (Rs Ten Lakh Only)
(c) Shri Vijay Goel: Rs 10,00,000/- (Rs Ten Lakh Only)

(ix) I impose penalty on the following persons under Section 114AA for their specific acts as discussed above relating to misuse of BIS certificate No R67000086 issued to Samsung India for import of impugned goods which was evidently not permissible, which have rendered the impugned goods liable for confiscation under Section 111(d) & 111(m) of the Customs Act 1962:

(a) Shri Jitendra Aggarwal: Rs 10,00,000/- (Rs Ten Lakh Only)
(b) Shri Rajeev Singh: Rs 2,00,000/- (Rs Two Lakh Only)
(c) Shri Vijay Goel: Rs 2,00,000/- (Rs Two Lakh Only)

(x) I drop the proceedings in respect of M/s Sai Dutta Shipping Agency (P) Ltd and M/s Winstar Shipping Services in so far as they relate to imposition of penalty under Section 112(a), 1122(b) and 114AA of the Customs Act, 1962. However, I direct that the copy of the Show Cause Notice and this Order in Original be forwarded to the Competent Authority for action as deemed appropriate under CHALR, 2004. I drop the proceedings against Shri L Satish Mudaliar and Shri Raju Chandrakant Zinjad."

1.2 Out of the number of persons/ parties impacted by the impugned order at present we are concerned with the appeal filed by M/s United Traders through its proprietor Mr Abhishek Jain. Appellant had filed application for early hearing on the medical grounds, which has been allowed and matter was listed for out of turn hearing for the present appellant.

2.1 We have heard Shri Vikas Sareen, Advocate and Shri A P Kothari, Additional Commissioner, Authorized Representative for the revenue.

2.2 arguing for the appellant, learned counsel submitted that-

- He was not at all involved in any of the alleged activity and it was Shri Jitender Aggarwal who had mis used their firm while keeping them under the belief and impression that genuine imports were being made. For this reason they fell into trap and invested money and allowed his firm for the purpose of import of goods.
- He was not in position to follow up with the imports made due to precarious medical condition of his father who in fact expired on 18.12.2016.
- There was no illegality attached with the imported goods. There has been true and correct declaration made in respect of the description, quantity, quality and value.
This fact is supported by the custom authority wherein it has been stated that goods were examined and found to be as per the declaration in the Bill of Entry.

- The dispute in the matter was only in respect of BIS Certificate, which allegedly did not accompany the imported goods and rather some other BIS Certificate relating to some other goods was submitted. It was for this reason that goods have been held liable for confiscation. In fact they were not aware of the requirement of production of BIS Certificate. It was Shri Jitender Aggarwal who was handling the imports and was also in touch with the foreign supplier.

- The role of the appellants in the imports was limited to that of financier and it was Jitender Aggarwal who had to see the import of goods. Jitender Aggarwal has in his statement admitted that BIS Certificate was misused by him and there has been no role of the present appellants. The appellants were themselves kept in dark about this requirement and they had acted on bonafide belief that genuine imports are being made and the profit out of the import shall be duly share with them. It came to their knowledge subsequently that Jitender Aggarwal had cheated them of their lawful money.

- During the relevant time i.e. the time of import there was confusion amongst the importers in respect of the requirement of production of BIS Certificate at the time of import. Thus the strict action by way of imposition of redemption fine and penalties is uncalled for.

- They would like to rely on the following decisions in their support

  - HBL Power Systems Ltd [2018 (362) ELT 856 (THyd)]
  - Orion Enterprises [2019 (21) GSTL 397 (TChennai)]
  - Kothari Foods & Fragrances Pvt Ltd [2018 (364) ELT 368 9T-Del]
  - Varalakshmi Exports [2014 (314) ELT 257 (TChennai)]

- On account of the acts of Shri Jitender Aggarwal, they had suffered huge losses and so much so the goods imported had to be re-exported;

- At the instance of Jitender Aggarwal they had deposited the following amounts with the custom authorities:

  - Duty deposited against B/E No 4155971 date 23.12.2013 of Rs 12,47,176/-
  - Demand Draft No 4729 dated 04.03.2014 for Rs 34,00,000/-. 
  - Demand Draft No 2321 dated 07.03.2014 for Rs 31,00,000/-. 

- As the demand drafts were deposited through Jitender Aggarwal, the amounts so deposited by them have not been clarified to be deposited by them but have been shown to be deposited by Jitender Aggarwal.

- They had approached the custom authority seeking the refund of the amount deposited by them through Jitender Aggarwal, but the same has been denied stating that the appeal is pending before tribunal and any action will be taken as per the order of Tribunal.

- They had filed the bank accounts statement in support of their contention and also the certificate issued by the bank issuing the demand drafts, wherein it has been specifically stated that “the above mentioned Demand Drafts are made from the Account of United Traders in IDBI Bank”. (Certificate dated 06.07.2019)

- In case the appeal is found sustainable on merits tribunal should in terms of Rule 40 and 41 of CESTAT Procedure Rules direct the Customs Authority for returning the amounts so deposited by them through Jitender Aggarwal as a consequential relief.

2.3 Learned Authorized Representative reiterated the findings in the impugned order.

3.1 We have considered impugned order along with the submissions made in appeal along with submissions made during the course of argument of appeal and in written submissions filed.

3.2 Undisputedly in the name of Appellants having IEC No 0513006800, Bill of Entry No 4155971 dated 23.12.2013 was filed for clearance of goods imported in Container No CRXU3427669. The goods were examined 30.12.2013 in the presence of independent witnesses and representative of importer and proper panchnama drawn. The undisputed fact is that the goods declared by the appellants were undervalued. Table below gives the details of the goods and the value declared.

The importer and the CHA representative were unable to produce the BIS Certificate in respect of the said goods. Instead of producing the certificate appellants tried to manipulate the certificate and produced some other certificate, to cover up the imports. All the irregularities in the imports were accepted by Shri Abhishek Jain, Proprietor of M/s United Traders (Appellant).

3.3 Appellants have neither in the appeal or during the course of argument contested in respect of the irregularities noticed in the imports made. They have specifically stated that they were not personally responsible for irregularities. These irregularities were caused and committed by one Shri Jitender Aggarwal. They were simply the innocent victims of the misdeeds of Shri Jitender Aggarwal and have suffered huge losses on that account. Once the fact that the goods were imported contrary to provisions of Customs Act, 1962, they become liable for confiscation under the provisions of Section 111 of the Customs Act, 1962 and the person importing such goods is liable to penalty under Section 112 of the Custom Act, 1962. Tribunal has in case HBL Power Systems Ltd [2018 (362) ELT 856 (T-Hyd)] laid down the law in case were goods are imported without proper BIS Certification as follows:

"4. Considered arguments on both sides and perused the records. It is not disputed that the steel wires which were imported did not have the BIS certification required as per the Steel and Steel Products (Quality Control) Order, 2016. It is also not in dispute that in view of the general Note 2(a) of Schedule-I of the import policy framed under Foreign Trade and Development Regulations Act, 1992, mandatory BIS standards prescribed for products manufactured in India also apply to imported goods. In other words, goods which do not meet the mandatory BIS requirements cannot be imported into India. Therefore, imported goods are liable for confiscation. As per Section 125 of the Customs Act, whenever goods are confiscated the adjudicating authority has to give an option of redemption to the importer in all cases except in respect of prohibited goods where the adjudicating authority may or may not give the option of redemption. In this case, the adjudicating authority has given the option of redemption with an additional condition that the goods after redemption should be re-exported. Now the question which arises is whether after giving option of redemption, the adjudicating authority can also add an extra condition that the goods should be re-exported. It is argued on behalf of the appellant that no such condition can be imposed, while respondent argued that such condition can be imposed as per the existing case laws. The appellant relied on the case of Amba Lal v. Union of India to support his case. The relevant para no. 12 of this judgment is reproduced as follows:

"12. It is then contended that the Collector of Central Excise had no jurisdiction to impose conditions for the release of the confiscated goods. The Collector of Central Excise in his order says, "In addition the import duty leviable on all these items together with other charges, if any payable, should be paid and necessary formalities gone through before the goods can be passed out of Customs Control." In Shewpujanrai Indrasanrai Ltd. v. Collector of Customs, 1959 SCR 821, a similar question arose for consideration of this Court. There by an impugned order the Collector of Customs imposed two conditions for the release of the confiscated goods, namely, (1) the production of a permit from the Reserve Bank of India in respect of the gold within four months from the date of despatch of the impugned order, and (2) the payment of proper customs duties and other charges leviable in respect of the gold within the same period of four months. This Court held, agreeing with the High Court, that the Collector of Customs had no jurisdiction to impose the said two conditions. The learned Additional Solicitor General concedes that the said decision applies to the present case. We do not, therefore, express any view whether that decision can be distinguished in its application to the facts of the present case. On the basis of the “Concession we hold that the conditions extracted above, being severable from the rest of the other, should be deleted from the said order of the Collector of Central Excise.”

3.4 The decisions relied upon by the appellants do not advance their case. In the present case the goods were seized and then provisionally released. After provisional release of the goods they have been re-exported. In such a situation the goods are liable for confiscation as has been held by the Apex Court in case of Weston Components Ltd [2000 (115) ELT 278 (SC)] wherein following law laid down:

“It is contended by the learned Counsel for the appellant that redemption fine could not be imposed because the goods were no longer in the custody of the respondent authority. It is an admitted fact that the goods were released to the appellant on an application made by it and on the appellant executing a bond. Under these circumstances if subsequently it is found that the import was not valid or that there was any other irregularity which would entitle the customs authorities to confiscate the said goods, then the mere fact that the goods were released on the bond being executed, would not take away the power of the customs authorities to levy redemption fine.”

3.5 Appellants have in their appeal and submissions contended that they have made certain deposits during the course of investigation of the case through Shri Jitender Aggarwal. They have claimed that department should be directed to refund the amount deposited by them. We are not in position to pass any order on this request by the appellants, as the issue sought to be raised by the appellant is not the issue decided by the impugned order. Secondly it is for the appellants to establish their claim to the money deposited and subsequent refunds if any due before the Custom authorities and seek refund from them.

4.1 In view of discussions as above, appeal filed by the appellants is dismissed.

FINAL ORDER NO. A/85689/2020

Per: S K Mohanty:

Briefly stated, the facts of the case are that the appellant had filed the Bill of Entry No. 4693153 dated 20.09.2011 for clearance of “Aluminium Scrap Tread” under CTH 76020010. The value declared for the subject goods was Rs.27,20,834/- and duty leviable was assessed to be Rs.4,09,033/-. The said Bill of Entry was ordered for 2nd check basis appraisement and during physical examination, the department found that 50% of the goods (weighing 13.5 MT) were aluminium pipes (old and used) of 6 feet length and were serviceable. The said pipes fall under the restricted category of goods provided under para 2.17 of FTP, 2009, which requires Special Import License (SIL). Admittedly, the appellant did not submit such license at the time of importation of the goods. The matter was adjudicated vide order dated 24.10.2011, wherein the impugned goods were ordered to be confiscated under Section 111 (m) of the Customs Act, 1962 and option to redeem the same was provided on payment of redemption fine of Rs.4,50,000/-. Besides, the said order also imposed penalty of Rs.1,00,000/- on the appellant under Section 112 (a) ibid. Differential duty amount of Rs.2,05,207/- was also demanded from the importer/appellant. On appeal, the learned Commissioner (Appeals) vide the impugned order dated 31.01.2013 has upheld the assessment order and rejected the appeal filed by the appellant. Feeling aggrieved with the impugned order, the appellant has preferred this appeal before the Tribunal.

2. Heard both sides and perused the records.

3. The case of the department is that the declaration made in respect of the goods as per the Bill of Entry was different than the goods actually imported by the appellant inasmuch as, out of the total quantity of goods imported by the appellant, goods weighing 13.5 MT were found to be old and used pipes, classifiable under CTH 7608 with 10% BCD. Since, correct information was not furnished in the import documents, the transaction value was appropriately rejected under Rule 12 of the Customs Valuation Rules, 2007 and the value was redetermined considering the same as serviceable goods. We find that the appellant had not submitted any plausible evidence either before the authorities below or the Tribunal that the goods in question were corresponding to the declaration made in the Bill of Entry. Thus, we are of the considered view that the appellant is exposed to the consequences provided under the statute for payment of differential duty, fine and penalty.

4. In the result, the appeal is allowed.
Therefore, the orders passed by the authorities below are sustainable and cannot be interfered with at this juncture.

4. In view of above, we do not find any merits in the appeal filed by the appellant. Accordingly, same is dismissed.

FINAL ORDER NOS. 50155-50157/2020

Per: Rachna Gupta:

1. This order disposes off three appeals, order under challenge being commo. The present appeal was earlier disposed of as rejected vide final order no. 52153-52155/2018 dated 5.6.2018. An application praying for restoration of appeal as filed by the appellant was also dismissed vide order of this Tribunal dated 21 February 2019. However, Hon’ble High Court of Delhi vide order dated 22.5.2019, has set aside both the said orders restoring the impugned appeal and directing this Tribunal for a fresh decision in accordance with law. The appeal is accordingly heard.
2. Relevant factual matrix for the disposal of the appeal is as follows:

That the appellant herein is involved in import of Crude Palm Oil (hereinafter called as CPO) at concessional rate of Customs Duty while availing the benefit of Sl. No. 30 of Notification no. 21/2002-Cus dated 1.3.2002 as amended by notification no. 20/2004-Cus dated 16.1.2004. The said notification extends the concessional rate of customs duty of 20% ad valorem provided the imported CPO is meant for use in manufacture of soap. The Department, however, gathered an intelligence that M/s. Pioneer Soap and Chemicals are misusing the exemption extended vide the said notification by violating the condition thereof as they are diverting the CPO to the open market instead of using the same for the given purpose. During investigation, Department observed that the appellant obtained the Central Excise Registration on 28.12.2004 and thereafter under six BOEs imported 1371.878 MTs of CPO from January 2005 to August 2005 against concessional rate of duty of 20% ad valorem availing thereby total exemption of customs duty of Rs. 1,27,72,140/-. However, the said imported CPO was never used by them for manufacturing soaps as was prescribed under the said notification but was sold in the open market. Thus alleging the evasion of the aforesaid amount of customs duty that a show cause notice no. 1061/24 dated 24.4.2007 was served upon the appellant firm i.e. M/s. Pioneer Soap & Chemical, proposing the recovery of the aforesaid amount of duty along with interest at appropriate rate and the proportionate penalty. The show cause notice was also served upon the proprietor of aforesaid firm, Sh. Lalit Goyal, alleging that he has fabricated various other documents by making false entries therein. Those fabricated documents are alleged to have been submitted to the Assistant Commissioner for obtaining the order of release of imported CPO. Alleging that the order of release after furnishing bonds and security as obtained by way of fraud, suppression and wilful misstatement that the penalty was proposed upon Mr. Lalit Goyal. The show cause notice was also served upon M/s. Genex Consultant Pvt. Ltd., M/s. A V Agro Products Pvt. Ltd. and M/s. HG Oil Carriers for knowingly and willingly dealing with imported CPO in violation of the condition of the impugned notification thereby causing the evasion of the impugned customs duty. The show cause notice also proposed the entire amount of imported CPO to be confiscated. The said proposal was confirmed vide the order in original no. 10/D-I/2010 dated 30.4.2010. Being aggrieved thereof that the impugned appeal has been filed.

3. Learned counsel for the appellant made following submissions:

i. The allegations against the main assessee i.e. Pioneer Soap & Chemicals was that it had imported CPO and paid concessional rate of duty of 20% ad valorem as per Notification no. 21/2002-Cus dated 1.3.2002 as amended by Notification no. 20/2004-Cus dated 16.1.2004 and that the goods had been diverted for manufacture of soaps, detergents etc. instead of edible oil by Shri Lalit Goyal due to which he was called upon to pay differential duty on the imported CPO. Shri Lalit Goyal was arrested and was forced to pay the differential duty of Rs. 1,27,72,140/- after which he approached the Settlement Commission and got the case settled by the Settlement Commission Principle Bench, New Delhi vide a final order No. F-829/830/Cus/09/SC(PB) dt. 24.2.2009. The Settlement Commission also imposed a penalty of Rs. 8 lacs on Shri Lali Goyal and Rs. 10,000/- each on Shri Mahesh Kumar, Shri Sunil Goyal, Shri Brij Mohan, H.G. Oil Carriers, Shri Harjinder Singh and Lokpriya Traders and closed the case. Therefore, the question of the Commissioner of Excise in Delhi conducting parallel or other proceedings in regard to the same case which is already settled by the Settlement Commission does not arise as he has no jurisdiction whatsoever against A.V. Agro Products in Kanpur and Genex Foods Pvt. Ltd. in Ghaziabad and Shri Rohit Agarwal, Director of Genex Foods Pvt. Ltd. in Ghaziabad. The excise Commissioner Delhi is denied to be proper officer in terms of Section 2(34) of Customs Act and as such is denied to have any jurisdiction to issue the show cause notice. The impugned show cause notice is therefore prayed to be barred by jurisdiction. Learned counsel has laid emphasis upon the decision of the Supreme Court in case of CC Vs. Sayed Ali 2011 (265) ELT 17 (SC) which was subsequently followed by this Tribunal in the case of Teracom Ltd. Vs. CCE (2016) 339 ELT 272 (Del)

ii. The law is well settled that when once the case of the main assessee is settled by the Settlement Commission or other competent authority under the KVSS, the co-noticees do not even have to make an application and the case of every co-noticee stands automatically closed as held by the Supreme Court in Union of India Vs. Omkar S. Kanwar (2002) 145 ELT 266 (SC) and further emphasised by the Delhi
iii. While submitting on merits it is mentioned that there are no statements given by three of the appellants and they have been proceeded against only on the basis of alleged statements of driver/transporter of the CPO that too were taken under coercion. It is further submitted that owner of Pioneer soap & Chemicals had not stated that he had supplied quoted goods to the appellant nor there is any other evidence on record. These witnesses were prayed to be cross examined but the request of the appellant was not considered. It is submitted that failure to grant cross examination to the appellants has resulted in denial of natural justice to the appellants and the alleged statements of the driver/transporter/the proprietor of the main noticee cannot be relied upon to draw the adverse inference against the appellant. Above all, there is no compliance of section 9D of the Central Excise Act and section 138B of the Customs Act. Following case laws has been relied upon:

d. Swadeshi Polytex Ltd. Vs. Collector (2000) 122 ELT 641 (SC);

iv. The learned counsel has further justified the stand on merits by submitting that the appellant have not in any manner dealt with alleged offending goods nor had done anything as importer or exporter or buyer or seller of offending goods so as to attract section 112 (B) of the Customs Act. The decision in the case of Him Logistics Pvt. Ltd. Vs. Principal Commissioner (2016) 336 ELT 15 (Del.) of this Tribunal has been impressed upon. With these submissions the order under challenge is alleged to have ignored the submissions and the fact that there is no evidence to proceed against the appellants. Order is accordingly prayed to be set aside and appeals are prayed to be allowed.

4. While rebutting the respective arguments the Department has submitted as follows:

i. As far as jurisdiction of Excise Commissioner as has been objected, learned DR has submitted that when imported goods are not used as per the Certificate of Registration given under Rule 3(2) of Customs (Import of Goods at Concessional Rate of Duty for Manufacture of Excisable Goods) Rules 1996, Assistant Commissioner having jurisdiction over the factory shall have jurisdiction to issue notice for recovery of differential duty under Rule 8 ibid and not the Assistant Commissioner of Customs at the port of importers under Rule 5 ibid. Decision of this Tribunal in the case of Samtel Colour Ltd. Vs. Collector of Central Excise reported in 2000 (126) ELT 1256 (Tri) has been impressed upon with the mention that the said judgment has been upheld by the Hon'ble Supreme Court of India vide its judgement in the case of Samtel Colour Ltd. Vs. Collector 2006 (196) ELT A 145 (SC). The said decision has subsequently been reaffirmed in the case of Cosmo Ferrites Ltd. Vs. Commissioner of Central Excise reported in 2015 (318) ELT A157 (SC).

ii. The proceedings against the co-noticees who do not prefer any application before Hon'ble Settlement Commission cannot come to a suo moto halt. The immunity which got available to the applicant before Settlement Commissioner including the main noticee cannot be extended to the appellants herein. The learned DR has relied upon the decision in the case of Mamta Garg Vs. CCE Noida 2018 (359) ELT 77 (Tri-Del) and on another decision in the case of Shri Naklank Ltd. Vs. CESTAT Ahmedabad 2019 (365) ELT 407 (Guj.) this sole argument of automatic immunity in their favour due to the decision of Settlement Commission in favour of main noticee and seven other co-noticees. Despite that the Settlement Commission, itself has given liberty to the Department to proceed against the remaining co-noticees.

iii. The allegation of no opportunity of being heard, as raised by the appellants and that the denial of cross examination of the witness is denied to be the violative of principles of natural justice, as is alleged. It is submitted that many opportunities of hearing were given to the appellants. They were duly informed about the impugned evidence documentary as well as oral as obtained against them but they did not opt to avail the said opportunity. The argument of any such opportunity being denied is therefore not sustainable. With respect to the grievance about any opportunity not being given for cross examination, the decision in the case of Silicone Concepts International Pvt. Ltd. Vs. Principle Commissioner ICD TKD New Delhi vide final order no. 50963/2019-CESTAT, New Delhi has been relied upon. With respect to the scope of Section 9 D it is submitted that it has already been settled that confessional statements are out of the ambit of section 9D. Otherwise also when noticee's statement amounts to confessions, he cannot be compelled to be cross examined and thus no violation of principle of natural justice can be alleged. It is submitted by the Department that there has been ample evidence against the appellant to have sufficient knowledge about no washing soap to ever being manufactured from this imported CPO by M/s. Pioneer Soap & Chemicals, nor there has been any purchase by the present appellant of the soap. All documents of transport have been proved to be forged. Hence, the penalties have rightly been imposed upon the appellants. Justifying the order under challenge the appeal in hand is prayed to be dismissed.

5. After hearing parties and perusal of entire records my opinion to the respective arguments is as follows:

A. Immunity to the appellants due to the order of Settlement Commissioner in favour of the main noticee:

Show cause notice bearing No.15.10.50 1062 dated 24th April, 2007 was issued to 13 Noticees alleging the misuse of the exemption extended vide Sl. No.30 of Notification No.21/2002-CU by importing the crude palm oil at concessional rate at Customs duty and diverting the same to open market instead of using the same for the given purpose.

The main beneficiary was the first applicant M/s. Pioneer Soap & Chemicals. No doubt vide order dated 24.02.2009 the application of Noticee. Sl.No.1,6,5,8,10 & 13 of the show cause notice under Section 127 B of the Customs Act, 1962 was disposed of thereby imposing penalty upon 6 of the said applicants to the extent as mentioned in the said order. The argument put forth by the Revenue with respect to para 14 of the said order is perused as correct. A perusal of that order dated 24th February, 2009 shows that penalty was imposed upon six of the applicants and the Settlement Commission has given liberty to the Revenue to take action as deemed fit in respect of the other co-Noticees of the impugned show cause notice. Further, perusal also shows that Noticees No.7, 9, 11 & 12 of the show cause notice were also found to be fake persons existing in the fake documents prepared at the instance of the main Noticee. The remaining three Noticees i.e. at Sl.No.2, 3 and 4 are the appellant herein. It is observed that three of them have not merely been found the a better or conspirator for the illegal act adjudicated against the other Noticees but they were found committing the offence of unauthorized transportation of the impugned crude oil with the sole intention of getting illegal benefit of Sl.No.30 of Notification No. 21/2002-CU.

No doubt the case law relied upon by the appellants holds good that once the immunity from penalty has been issued against the main Noticee by the Settlement Commission, the co-noticees enjoy the blanket immunity if the matter is settled under KVS Scheme. But this is also a settled principle of jurisprudence that merits of the case against the co-Noticees have to be examined separately and if and only if the co-Noticees are found to commit the same offence as that committed by the main Noticee, the Settlement mechanism provides for settlement of entire case as a whole. Tribunal, Delhi has clarified the situation further in Mamta Garg (Supra) case that where the act of Noticees is separately and distinctly liable for penal consequences, the co-Noticee are not to automatically get penalty set aside on the ground that the case of main Noticee has been settled by the Settlement Commission.

As already observed above, the act committed by three of the present appellants is an act in addition to that as were committed by the remaining Noticees the appellants cannot be entitled for the blanket immunity. Otherwise also the immunity from prosecution has not been granted even to Mr. Lalit Goyal, the Proprietor of main Noticee M/s. Pioneer Soap and Chemicals. The penalty has simultaneously been imposed upon the remaining Noticees/ applicants of 127 B Customs Act. In addition, the Settlement Commissioner has granted liberty to the Revenue to take the appropriate action against the remaining Noticees i.e. the appellants herein. Hence, the benefit of KVS Scheme cannot suo moto be extended to the appellants. I draw my support from the decision of Hon'ble High Court of Gujarat in the case of Shri Naklank Ltd. (Supra). It was held that it is the assessee who applies for settlement alone whose application would be considered and either granted or rejected in the terms of settlement, fulfilment of such terms by the applicant and the resultant grant of immunity would be only in relation to assessee, who applied for the settlement. There is no warrant under the statutory provision that upon one assessee applying for settlement, such settlement being granted and terms of settlement being fulfilled. Any other assessee even if he hopes to be co-noticee can avoid further adjudication of this case. It was clarified that Department can still proceed against co-noticee who was facing only notice on penalty.

B. Jurisdiction of Central Commissioner:

The basic allegation of the Department is that the importer of crude palm oil at concessional rate of customs duty of 20% ad valorem has misused the exemption extended vide Sl. No. 30 of notification no. 20/2004-Cus as amended vide 20/2004-Cus dated 16.1.2004 by diverting the same to open market instead of using the same for the purpose mentioned in the notification i.e. for manufacturing soap. This allocation clarifies that the verification of the compliance of the impugned notification involves customs as well as the excise, as it is the case of import as well as diversion of the imported goods in the local market. Samtel Colour Ltd. (Supra) has already clarified the impugned situation by holding that imported goods or not use as per certificate of registration under Rule 3(2) of Customs (Import of Goods at Concessional Rate of Duty for Manufacture of Excisable Goods) Rules 1996, Assistant Commissioner having jurisdiction over his factory shall have jurisdiction to issue notice for recovery of differential duty and the Assistant Commissioner of Customs at port of importation shall have no role at the import stage. In the present case also under Rule 3 of Customs Rule, the importer intending to avail Cenvat Credit Rule and duty was required to have acquired registration from Assistant Commissioner/Department Commissioner Central Excise having jurisdiction over his factory. All details indicated the quantity of goods to be imported the applicable notification the port of importation and giving an undertaking have to be furnished along with application before the Assistant Commissioner/Deputy Commissioner of excise only as is required under Rule 4 of Customs Rule. It is thereafter that the Assistant Commissioner or Deputy Commissioner of Customs can allow the benefit of exemption notification on the basis of the Certificate to be given by Assistant Commissioner/Deputy Commissioner Excise as stand clarified from Rule 5 of Customs Rule. Rule 7 thereof in addition require the importer to maintain the simple account of imported goods and consumption thereof for the information purpose for use as and when required by the officer of Central Excise. These Rules makes it abundantly clear that Commissioner Central Excise is a competent officer to issue invoices.

C. Personal hearing/cross examination:

It is apparent from the order under challenge that personal hearing was given to these appellants initially on 23.04.2007. However, none of these appellants appeared. It is on 28.05.2008 that appellant Sh. Rohit Aggarwal and M/s. Genex Food Pvt. Ltd. that too vide their letter dated 27.5.2008 made their submissions denying the allegations of the show cause notice and requesting for the relied upon documents as well as the cross examination of the witnesses. By that time i.e. on 27.5.2008 M/s. HG Oil Carriers noticee no. 5 (there were 13 noticees in the present case and 7 noticee of them i.e. main noticee along with no. 5, 6, 8, 10, 12 & 13 have already applied to the settlement commission, penalty against noticee no. 7, 9 & 11 was already dropped observing them to be fictitious firms).

M/s. Genex Consultant Pvt. Ltd. & Sh. Rohit Agarwal, Director thereof, were being duly heard by the Adjudicating authority below on 26.10.2009 and appellant M/s. A V Agro Products chose to put forth the defence vide their letter dated 20.10.2009. It is quite apparent from the order under challenge that despite ample effective opportunities of personal hearing being given, the appellants have not properly put forth their defence. They had rather adopted a strategy of seeking adjournments and therefore were noticed absolutely non cooperative by the adjudicating authority below. It is thereafter that the matter was decided based on the facts on record and the written reply received by the respective noticee. These observations are sufficient to hold that there is no denial of opportunity of being heard. The grievance of violation of principle of natural justice on this account is therefore not sustainable. As far as the plea of denial for cross examining the witnesses is concerned as already observed there was rather non cooperation on part of the appellant. Irrespective that cross examination is the key for fair trial so as to dug out the actual truth but the same cannot be claimed as a matter of right or as a statutory mandate specifically when appellant were not even keen to submit their defence. Hence, their grievance on this aspect is also hereby rejected.
As far as applicability of section 9D of Excise Act/138B of Customs Act as rightly observed by the adjudicating authority that the statement recorded were more in the nature of confession. The same cannot be the scope applicability of section 9D. I draw support from Silicone concept (supra) as is emphasised by the Department.

D. Merits of the present case:
Lastly, coming to the merits, I observe from the record, that there were reports proving that M/s. Pioneer Soap and Chemicals, the main noticee/noticee no. 1 have issued fake invoices in the name of fictitious firms, such as M/s. Ashtuosh Traders, noticee no. 7, M/s. Kamakhya, noticee no. 9, M/s. N.K. Enterprises, noticee no. 11 showing manufacture and clearances of the soap from CPO imported by them illegally for taking exemption under impugned notification and diverting the impugned CPO to noticee no. 2 to 4 without using the said imported goods in manufacture of soap i.e. for the declared intended use. Otherwise also the said main noticee has already acknowledged the guilt by approaching before the Settlement Commission. Statement of Shri Harinder Singh, Partner of M/s. HG Oil and carriers, (noticee no. 5) has extended sufficient corroboration to the evidence against the present appellants as was deposed by the main noticee and as is apparent from the various documents recovered during the investigation as follows:

i. That, out of 53 tankers used in all, 25-26 tankers were diverted to M/s. Genex Consultant Pvt. Ltd. of Ghaziabad 7-8 tankers were off loaded in the factory of the noticee no. 1 and the CPO from the remaining tankers was shifted by the noticee No. 1 to other tankers of lesser capacity as he declined the request of the noticee to transport the CPO of those tankers to Punjab since his tankers did not have the road permit for Punjab;

ii. That, for transporting the CPO to Ghaziabad and Kanpur, the noticee's employer usually came with Form ST-31, a Bill of some concern and mis-describing the CPO as "Rice Bran Oil" and GR of some other concern. The said employer used to travel in the tanker and facilitate the Sale Tax clearance at the UP Border;

iii. On the basis of registration numbers of tankers used for transporting the CPO from the ports of importation and the date of arrival thereof reflected by the noticee no. 1 in their receipt register, copies of Forms ST31 issued by M/s. Genex Consultant Pvt. Ltd. were collected from the Sales Tax Authorities of Ghaziabad. A scrutiny of Forms ST-31 so collected and the Noticee's CPO receipt register. This evidence proves that the various tankers which arrived at the factory of noticee no. 1 at different dates during the relevant period had transported some or the other quantity of CPO under respective GRs and form ST 31 of M/s. Genex Foods. This receipts and ST 3 returns are corroborating the statement of Shr. Harjinder Singh of M/s. H.G. Oil Carries against 3 of the appeals. Despite this evidence, the Director of M/s. Genex Foods Pvt. Ltd., Sh. Rohit Agarwal (one of the appellant) opted to not to appear for rebutting the said evidence but to send a simple letter alleging the show cause notice to be illegal. The statements on record are in due corroboration of the documents which sufficiently establishes that appellants were knowingly dealing with CPO imported by M/s. Pioneer Soap and Chemicals in a clandestine and illegal manner, thereby making the said imported CPO liable for confiscation. As far as M/s. A.V. Agro Products (noticee no. 4 of one of the appellant herein) is concerned, they also opted to reply vide letter dated 11.7.2007 instead of joining the personal hearing. The tankers containing CPO as were diverted to M/s. Genex Food Ltd. similarly were diverted to M/s. A V Agro. The receipt register along with respective ST 31 form are available highlighting the involvement of M/s. A V Agro as well as in similar manner as that of M/s. Genex Food Ltd.

It was observed that for transporting CPO to Delhi the bills of M/s. Venkuth Sales Corporation, Trinagar Delhi as well as of GRs of M/s. Jaspreet Road Lines of Punjabi Bagh, New Delhi were used and that of M/s. NC Traders, Mayur Vihar, Delhi were used. The investigation revealed that no such firm was found existing at the given address. Except that address of M/s. Jaspreet Road Lines were found to be that of M/s. HG Oil carriers. This finding again when read in light of Sh. Harinder Singh that GR 3 were handed over to him by Sh. Lalit Goyal, proprietor of M/s. Pioneer Soap and Chemical establishes the clear nexus between all the co-noticees for the alleged violation of the impugned notification including the appellant herein.

6. In view of the entire above discussion, I do not find any infirmity in the order under challenge when a penalty has been imposed upon three of the appellants herein under section 112 B of the Customs Act. The order under challenge is therefore upheld. Three of the appeals accordingly stand dismissed.

Per: B Ravichandran:

The Revenue is in appeal against order dated 09/04/2014 of Commissioner (Appeals), New Custom House, New Delhi. The dispute in the present case is regarding correct classification of bulk Reishi Gano Powder, bulk Ganocelium Powder imported by the respondent. The claim of the respondent is to classify the product as Ayurvedic Proprietary Medicine under heading 30039011 claiming the benefit of Notification 53/2011 (Sl. No. 363). The Revenue did not agree with the same and intended to classify the product as food supplement under CTH 21069099. The Original Authority held against the respondent. On appeal, by the impugned order, the Commissioner (Appeals) held that the classification will be as claimed by the respondent under Heading 30039011. Aggrieved by this, the Revenue is in appeal.

2. The learned AR elaborating the grounds of appeal submitted that the very same products now in dispute were examined for classification by the Tribunal, Chennai in the case of DXN Manufacturing (India) Pvt. Ltd. The Tribunal held that the product should be classified as miscellaneous food supplement under heading 2108 of the Central Excise Tariff, as it was existing during the relevant time. The assessee took the matter to the Hon'ble Supreme Court. The Apex court vide order dated 07/08/2015 in CA No. 1215 of 2006 directed the Tribunal to examine the matter afresh. A direction was given for fresh examination after considering all the evidences that are to be submitted by the assessee. Thereafter, the Tribunal again decided the matter issuing a final order No. 42811-42821 of 2017 dated 08/11/2017. All the evidences and submissions made by both the sides have been examined in detail and it was concluded that the products, which are identical to the one now in dispute in Delhi, were to be classifiable under CETH 2108.99. This is a miscellaneous heading under edible preparation, not elsewhere specified or included. The learned AR drew our attention to specific finding and the ratio adopted by the Tribunal in the said order with reference to identical product of Ganoderma, Reishi Gano, Ganocelium. He further submitted that the Tribunal followed the principles laid down by the Hon'ble Apex Court dealing with dispute of classification between competing entries of either Ayurvedic Proprietary Medicine or food supplement. A detailed examination as made by the Tribunal, Chennai is squarely applicable to the present dispute. He further submitted that the recognition of the respondent/assessee for the product now in question by the Ayush Authorities and Drugs and Cosmetics Authorities by itself will not be the guiding principle by classifying under Custom Tariff. He submitted that the classification under Custom Tariff should be guided by the statutory entries and the explanatory notes including HSN notes. The parameters as laid down in other legal authority can be persuasive value only.

3. The learned Counsel appearing for the respondent strongly contested the appeal by the Revenue. He submitted that though the products examined by the Tribunal, Chennai are identical to the one now under dispute, certain crucial supporting evidence have not been submitted/examined before arriving at the said decision. He strongly pleaded that they have the evidences to make the distinction from the findings recorded by the Tribunal, Chennai on the similar product. It is his submission that the product under import are recognised by the State Authorities/ Ayush Authorities and were duly licenced for manufacture and distribution. Further the ingredients of the product under import were indicated in the authoritative text/granth as explained by the Drug Authorities. Further he relied on the HSN Note 16 which he submitted has not been fully reproduced by the Tribunal in Chennai. In other words, it is the submission of the learned Counsel for the respondent that in para 13.2 of the order of the Chennai Tribunal, the full HSN note has not been reproduced. It is submitted that the crucial aspect is that “similar preparations, however, intended for prevention or treatment of diseases or ailments are excluded (Heading 30.30 or 30.04)”. He submits the products under import are for prevention of identified disease and are accordingly labelled. These products are in the market as Ayurvedic medicaments and as such the impugned order is correct in classification as Ayurvedic Medicaments. He also submitted that case laws relied upon by the Tribunal, Chennai did not fully support the case of the Revenue. In fact, the principle that the product as identified in the market should form basis for classification is not fully appreciated by the Revenue.

4. The learned Counsel further submitted that they have the product certified as drug after due clinical trial. The learned Counsel for the respondent pleaded that the ratio of the order of Chennai Tribunal should not be applied to them.

5. We have heard both the sides and perused the appeal record. The first point both the sides agree, the products under examination before us are the same as before the Tribunal, Chennai. As per direction of Hon’ble Apex Court such detailed order has been issued on 08/11/2017. Now the only serious contention of the respondent is that the ratio of the decision by the Tribunal, Chennai will have no application to the present case. Towards this end, the learned Counsel for the respondent submitted various points narrated above. We have carefully considered the appeal records as well as the decision of the Tribunal in DXN Manufacturing (India) Pvt. Ltd. (supra). The relevant portions of the order of the Tribunal is reproduced below for better appreciation:

"9.4 Accordingly, on the lines directed by Hon’ble Apex Court, we intend to analyze issues relating to these appeals. The main thrust of the appellant’s contention is that the product Reishi Gano (referred to as RG) and Ganocelium (referred to as GL) are Ayurvedic Medicaments as accepted by Drug Controller and that they satisfy the twin tests laid down in the decision of Richardson Hindustan Ltd. Vs CCE Hyderabad - 1988 (35) ELT 424 (Tribunal) (maintained by Hon’ble Supreme Court in 1989 (42) ELT A100 (SC), namely, (1) product should be known as medicament in the common parlance (2) ingredients should be mentioned in Ayurvedic text books. Various documents have been submitted by appellant to justify their stand that the impugned goods are classifiable as Ayurvedic medicaments and Ayurvedic text books mention mushrooms in generic category of Bhuchatra. According to appellants, these documents would establish that the products are Ayurvedic medicaments which merit classification under Chapter 3003.39.

10. The twin test laid down by the Hon’ble Apex Court in the Richardson Hindustan case judgment cited by the Ld. Advocate for the appellant has indeed laid down the following tests to justify classification as product under Ayurvedic Medicament under Chapter Heading 3003:

(i) that the product should be known as medicament in the common parlance and,

(ii) the ingredients should be mentioned in Ayurvedic text books.

We therefore intend to subject the impugned products to these two tests. Whether the product is known as APM, a medicament or for that matter, in any common parlance.

11.1 Though strong arguments and reliance on above discussed documents are advanced by the Learned Counsel to contend that the products are Ayurvedic Proprietary Medicines, on perusal of the label of the product we cannot find anything suggesting so. Bottles of the products GL were placed before us by Ld. Sr. Advocate. For ready reference, a scanned copy of the bottle label is reproduced below:

This space is purposely put blank.

The label indicates the product to be an Ayurvedic Proprietary Medicine. It is shown that each capsule contains Chatrakh and Shiitake. The dosage is mentioned as one capsule three times daily. The label however does not indicate that it would care any particular disease. The label also does not indicate that the capsule is to be taken for any particular symptom. Label on a product is the basis which has to satisfy the first test of common parlance, since, it is the label which conveys to the customer the disease that can be cured using the medicament.
Merely by mentioning it as APM or by stating that the product contains some quantities of Chatrakh & Shiitake the appellant cannot contend that it is a medicament. The only inference that can be drawn from the indications in the label is that the product is only meant for general well being. As stated earlier, it is also a fact that the products were originally sold as food supplements. Though the Learned Sr. Counsel Sh. Lakshmi Kumaran took assistance of various literature, reports of clinical studies and other documents, which we have analyzed herein above, to canvass the argument that these products cure many an ailment and has therapeutic properties, however on the labels there is nothing to indicate that they cure any specific disease. Even the pamphlets accompanying the product does not claim to cure any disease, but in fact suggests that prevention is better than cure. The Learned Sr.Counsel has laid much thrust on the factum that dosage is indicated, and therefore the product would have therapeutic value. Nonetheless what are the diseases the products intend to cure by taking such measured doses, is not conveyed through the label or the pamphlet to satisfy the common parlance test. What is important is how the consumer looks at the product, and what is his perception in respect of the product.

11.2 The goods which were imported earlier from Malaysia were marketed as "food supplements". In fact, from the record it emerges that they were then called as "The Miraculous King of Herbs".

11.3 While marketing the said products, appellant had issued a advisory "What all DXN distributors should know", which made the following caution:

"Do not make any claims. Herbal food supplements are strictly classified as foods and regulated as such. Extra care must be taken to avoid making specific claim about what the products can do to the body. Any food may be categorized as a drug, if it is claimed that the product is for treatment, cure prevention and mitigation of a disease. The important word is disease. When a product is offered as a specific treatment for a disease, it becomes a drug.... It is very important to bear in mind that you are recommending a food supplement and that you do not intend to be misconstrued as a recommending a drug."

From the investigations conducted with distributors and stockists, it is seen that a number of stockists / distributors from whom statements were taken categorically stated that the RG and GL are not used to prevent any specific diseases but are only used to improve general health; that the company had informed them to promote the product as food supplement only; that these capsules basically are used as food supplement and are non-prescription drugs; that RG and GL capsules which had come as food supplement till December 2001, had started to market as APMs only from 2002; that however there is no change in composition or quality of RG and GL.

11.4 Earlier, while marketing the said products, the accompanying pamphlets for both RG & GL highlighted a common tag line An ounce prevention is better than a pound of cure. In respect of RG, the claim was made that the commodity contains more than 200 active elements divided into three categories consisting 30% water soluble elements, 65% organic soluble elements and 5% volatile elements. The contents were indicated as Polysaccharides, Organic germanium, Adenosine, Triterpenoids, Ganoderic Essence, Protein, Fibre. Nowhere in these pamphlets was a claim made that they were ayurvedic medicines, or for that matter that they had any ayurvedic preparations. The pamphlets also do not make any claim that the items are Ayurvedic preparations. On the other hand, it was only claimed that in respect of RG the contents were Ganoderma Lucidum harvested exactly the 100th day of growth and in case of GL that the product was Mycelium of Ganoderma Lucidum harvested after 21 days of growth. Scanned copies of these relevant pamphlets are reproduced below:

This space is purposely put blank.

12.1 No doubt, the appellants have claimed that the ingredients in respect of RG are Ganoderma (Chatrakh) and Shiitake (Bhuchatra) and in respect of GL also, ingredient Shiitake (Bhuchatra) has been shown and another ingredient Ganomycecellum has also been indicated as Chatrakh. To counter this, Revenue have obtained a statement from Dr. D.Athisayaraj, Head of Section of Siddha/Auraaveda, Aringnar Anna Hospital of Indian Medicine who has deposed that Bhuchatra does not mean Shiitake and he does not know botanical name for Ganoderma Lucidum and Ganoderma Mycelium. In cross examination, Dr. Athisayaraj stated he has read the original text of Ayurvedic medicine and the name of Chatrakh and Bhuchatra are available in olden times as well as modern times. Although the appellants have produced an articulation on the issue by Dr. K.S.Viswanath Sharma as already found herein above, that write up do not categorically state that the impugned products are Ayurvedic medicines.
12.2 It is also not disputed that Dr. D. Athisaya Raj, Head of Siddha, Ayurvedic Department, Arignar Anna Hospitals of Indian Medicine who had earlier recommended classification of RG and GL capsules as ayurvedic proprietary medicines but later had admitted that his recommendation was incorrect since it was based on bogus clinical reports. It further appears that Dr. D. Athisaya Raj was cross examined before the adjudicating authority, on which occasion also, he deposed that he did not consider ‘Ganoderma’ and ‘Shiitake’ as ayurvedic medicines. It also emerges that in response to a letter from the Director of Drugs Control, Tamil Nadu, the said HOD, Ayurveda had opined as under:

“These items (Chatraka & Buchatra) are basically food supplements may be used to give therapeutic value with some other drug to be given for identified diseases and that these items cannot be used independently to cure any disease”

12.10 The Drug Licence by itself cannot be the basis for classification. The classification for the purpose of collection of revenue is to be on the basis of Excise / Customs legislations. The primary object of Excise Act being to raise revenue, the classification of the product so as to determine the rate of duty has to be considered independent from the Drugs and Cosmetics Act, 1940 and like legislations. The Hon ble Apex Court in the case of Shree Baidyanath Ayurved Bhawan Ltd. (supra) opined in para 41 as under:

“41. True it is that Section 3(a) of the Drugs and Cosmetics Act, 1940 defines Ayurvedic, Sidha or Unani Drug but that definition is not necessary to be imported in New Tariff Act. The definition of one statute having different object, purpose and scheme cannot be applied mechanically to another statute. As stated above, the object of Excise Act is to raise revenue for which various products are differently classified in New Tariff Act.” Based on the discussions herein above, we are therefore of the considered opinion that the impugned goods in question cannot be claimed to be Ayurvedic Proprietary Medicines for the purpose of classification in the Central Excise Tariff Act”

6. We have given close consideration to the submissions of the learned Counsel for the respondent for a distinction to be made from the ratio of the above decision of the Tribunal, Chennai. We note that the whole thrust is on the recognition of the product by the Drug Control Authorities. This aspect has been dealt with by the Tribunal, Chennai. It was categorically recorded that a drug licence by itself cannot be the basis for classification. The second important aspect emphasised by the learned Counsel for the respondent is that the product ingredient has been recognised and listed in the authoritative granth by Ayurvedic. This aspect also has been examined by the Tribunal, Chennai. We note that the product is based on specific species of mushroom. The text relied by the respondent is for mushroom in general. It is a common understanding that mention of mushroom in general will not make all of them as ayurvedic medicine. This aspect has also been considered by the Tribunal, Chennai in detail.

7. On careful consideration of the impugned order, we note that impugned order distinguished the decision of the Tribunal, Chennai passed in the first round of litigation. We note that based on the direction of the Apex Court, the Tribunal, Chennai went into the dispute in much more elaborate manner with all the evidences placed before them and we have no reason to differ from the ratio and finding arrived by the Tribunal, Chennai. Accordingly, following the same, we hold that the impugned order has erred in classifying the product as Ayurvedic medicine and it should have been correctly classified as food supplement as pleaded by the Revenue. Accordingly, impugned order is set aside. Appeal by the Revenue is allowed.

IN THE CESTAT, WEST ZONAL BENCH, MUMBAI
[COURT NO. I]

S/Shri M.V. Ravindran, Member (J) and Raju, Member (T)

M/S WARNER BROS. (F.E.) INC.

Versus

COMMISSIONER OF CUSTOMS (I), MUMBAI

REPRESENTED BY : S/Shri M.I. Sethna, Sr. Advocate with Advait M. Sethna, Ms. Ruju R. Thakkar and Kayomars K. Kerawalla, Advocates, for the Appellant.

Shri M.K. Sarangi, Jt. Commissioner (AR), for the Respondent.

[Order per : Raju, Member (T)]. - The appellants, Warner Bros. (F.E.) Inc. Paramount Films of India Ltd. and Twentieth Century Fox India Inc., imported cineprints and were appointed as sole distributor with exclusive license to distribute, exploit and exhibit motion pictures and trailers throughout the assigned territory including India. The said imports are made under franchise agreement with an entity abroad. The impugned order deals with the specific facts of the agreement and transaction between Warner Bros. (F.E.) and Warner Bros. Pictures International Corporation (WPIL) and applies the same ratio to others on the ground that the agreements and transactions among other two are same except for the ratio in which the revenue is shared. There has been no objection to this finding and therefore we also deal with this agreement and apply the same ratio to other appellants. Warner Bros. (F.E.) (The appellant) is appointed by WPIL as the sole distributor for territory of India. The declared value of the imports made by the appellant was challenged by the Revenue. The appellants sought valuation under Rule 8 as per earlier orders dated 12-12-80 and 6-1-88, whereas the Revenue sought to apply the Customs Valuation Rules and loaded the declared value furnished by the appellants. Aggrieved by the said order of the lower authorities, the appellants are before the Tribunal.

2 Learned . Counsel for the appellants explained the provisions of license and the franchise agreement. It categorically grants exclusive license to the appellant for exploitation, exhibition and distribution of the motion pictures in a specified territory including India. There is no sale involved under the said agreement. He argued that the appellants are approved by the Reserve Bank of India and imports of such cineprints, free of charge. He argued that the ownership of such films rest always with the foreign suppliers and there is no sale taking place under the agreement or otherwise. The appellants sought reliance on clause 1(b) and clause 2(b) of the said agreement to support the proposition that there is no sale of such films in India. Clauses 1(b) and 2(b) read as follows :-

Such additional feature motion pictures, “1(b), the trailers in connection with each thereof and such short subjects as International may designate and for which International shall control the sole and exclusive rights or distribution, exploitation and exhibition for the said territory.

The term of license with respect to each 2(b), motion picture delivered from and after the date hereof, shall be three (3) years from the date or delivery of the negative or first positive print of each motion picture, subject, however, to the provisions of this agreement.”

2.1 Clause 3 of the said agreement sets out the consideration for the rights granted to the appellants. In terms of the said clause, the appellants were required to remit 65% of the gross proceeds collected from the distribution, exploitation and exhibition of the motion pictures in India to the foreign supplier. He argued that this does not amount to sale. Clause 3 of the agreement reads as follows :-
As consideration for the rights herein granted to Distributor, Distributor shall pay to International in the manner hereinafter specified, the following:

Sixty-five per cent (65%) of all gross proceeds derived and collected from the distribution, exploitation and exhibition in the territory of the feature motion pictures, trailers and short subject during each yearly period of the term hereof commencing August 30, 1959.

The percentages or shares of the gross proceeds shall be paid by Distributor to International at the expiration of each and every week throughout the term of this agreement at such place or places and in such manner as International shall, from time to time, in writing direct.

2.2 Clause 7 of the said agreement to assert that there is no transfer of beneficial ownership from the foreign supplier to the appellants and therefore it does not amount to sale. He further pointed out that clause 7 of the said agreement requires the appellants to return or destroy the films. The said clause reads as under:

Legal title to all negatives and positive prints delivered or manufactured hereunder shall at all times remain in International or in the party or parties designated by the contracts, pursuant to which International has obtained the rights herein granted with respect to said motion pictures.

Distributor agrees that upon the expiration or sooner termination of this agreement or the license herein granted with respect to any motion picture, the prints delivered or manufactured hereunder, shall at International’s option, be returned, at Distributor’s expense, to International at its office in New York City, or destroyed, in which latter event, Distributor shall deliver to International affidavits setting forth the facts and circumstances of such destruction.

All prints shall be distributed and exhibited in their original continuity without change, interpolation or elimination except insofar as necessary to conform to the laws and customs of said territory and no changes shall be made without the consent of International and if made shall be solely at the distributor’s expense. Distributor agrees to disclose to International immediately upon demand, the whereabouts of each and every print delivered or manufactured hereunder.

2.3 Clause 11 of the said agreement to assert that the copyright in respect of the motion pictures, negatives and positive prints furnished viz in the name of the producer or the foreign supplier. He pointed out that as per clause 11 of the said agreement, the appellants had no right to sell the said motion pictures in India. The said clause reads as follows:

Distributor agrees to pay any and all fees necessary or required to obtain and keep in force licenses from copyright and patent proprietors or any society of authors, composers or publishers, to permit the motion pictures licensed hereunder to be publicly performed.

Distributor shall protect the motion pictures, negatives and positive prints furnished it hereunder by copyright in the said territory, such copyright to be taken in the name of the producer thereof, or International, or Distributor, as International shall determine. Distributor shall promptly notify International of any infringement of any such copyright or of any trade mark of the producer or International in the territory and shall take any and all proceedings in the name of Distributor or International or such other person at the option of International to prevent and restrain any such infringement.

2.4 The said agreement prohibits the appellant from selling, assigning or subletting the appellants’ interest in the motion pictures or negatives or positive prints without the prior consent of the foreign supplier. He referred to Clause 18 of the said agreement which reads as follows:

Distributor shall not sell, assign or sublet in its entirety Distributor's interest in this agreement or in any one or all of the motion pictures or negatives and positive prints, without the prior written consent of International, but nothing contained herein shall prevent International from assigning or otherwise dealing with this agreement without the consent of Distributor.
2.5 The rights of the appellant are restricted only to distribution and do not extend to the sale of the imported motion pictures/prints/trailers in India.

2.6 Clause 19 of the said agreement clearly mandates that the said agreement does not constitute a partnership between the foreign supplier and the appellants. He pointed out that the said clause clearly prescribes that distributor is not the representative or the agent of the foreign supplier.

2.7 Learned Counsel pointed out that the appellants, through the branch office in India, are importing the cineprints supplied by the foreign principal free of charge, he argued that the intrinsic value of the cineprints is actually the cost incurred to make the same. He pointed out that such cost varies from US 6 cents to US 13 cents as has been held by the earlier orders of revenue.

2.8 He argued that vide Circular dated 11-12-1980, the Special Valuation Branch of Mumbai Customs, had clarified as follows :-

“The Indian Firm, Warner Bros., is a fully owned subsidiary of the foreign principals viz. Warner Bros. International U.S.A. The Indian firm imports exposed cine films from the said foreign principals. All positive exposed cine films are supplied free of charge. The ownership of the film rests with the suppliers. In terms of the agreement the Indian firm shall pay a fixed percentage of the gross receipts which the distributors (Indian firm) derive by exploitation/exhibition of the cine films.

The intrinsic value of the exposed cinemfilms is actually the cost incurred by the laboratories which process the films, and the same includes the cost of materials, processing charges etc. The cost varies from country to country and on the number of prints ordered. The rejuvenating charges of old negatives, out of which the prints are processed, also add to the cost of the prints. At present the cost varies from U.S. Cents 6 to U.S. Cents 13 per foot.

On the basis of the documents/information furnished by the party, it has been decided to accept the invoice value of the exposed cine films imported from the said suppliers under Rule 8 after usual check and scrutiny. The pending P.D. assessments may be accordingly finalized.”

He argued that the Revenue had accordingly accepted the invoice value and the films imported by them vide order dated 12-12-1980. He pointed out that the manner of valuation was reviewed again in 1988 and vide letter dated 6-1-1988, the Special Valuation Branch had decided to continue with the earlier decision dated 12-12-1980.

2.9 The CBEC issued Circular No. 11/2001-Cus., dated 23-2-2001 and reviewed the instructions regarding cases handled by Special Valuation Branch. He argued that their case of valuation was reopened as a result of this amendment. He pointed out that item No. 2 of the said circular prescribes as follows :-

Apart from investigation of special “2. relationship case, SVB will also handle more complicated cases of additions to declared transaction value as stipulated under Rule 9 of the Valuation Rules. No reference to SVB would be necessary where any additions are sought to be made under Clauses (a) and (b) of Rule 9(1). Where, however, the additions sought to be made are considered to be in the nature of ‘royalty and licence fee’ under Rule 9(1)(c), or where the value of any part of proceeds of any subsequent resale, disposal or use of imported goods accrues to the seller [i.e. Rule 9(1)(d)] or where any other payments are made or are contemplated to be made in future by buyer to seller as a condition of sale of imported goods etc. [i.e. Rule 9(1)(e)], the case may be referred to the SVB after following the provisional assessment procedure.”

Learned Counsel argued that the said provision did not apply to the appellants under the present facts and circumstances, and for the period prior to issue of this circular. Learned Counsel pointed out that despite the above, the GATT Valuation Cell vide letter dated 2-8-2001 asked the appellants to file written submissions as per Board's Circular No. 11/2001-Cus., dated 23-2-2001 and Public Notice No. 52/2001-Cus., dated 12-4-2001. Learned Counsel argued that the said public notice does not apply to the facts and circumstances of the case as Rule 9(1)(c) and Rule 9(1)(d) do not apply to the facts and circumstances of these cases at all. By their reply to the said notice, the appellants had clearly stated that there is no element of sale involved and therefore they were not covered by the said circular. However, the Deputy Commissioner of Customs, Special Valuation Cell, passed an adjudication order dated 11-3-2002. Vide the said order, he declined to accept the value furnished by the appellants and applied Rule 7 and ordered to load the declared value. The matter was agitated by the appellant before the Commissioner (Appeals). However, the Commissioner (Appeals) upheld the impugned order and rejected the appeals. Aggrieved by the said order, the appellants are before the Tribunal.

2.10 Learned Counsel argued that the impugned order has wrongly relied on CBEC Circular No. 86/2002, dated 12-12-2002 as the same does not apply to the appellants’ case as no royalty/license fee is payable as a condition of sale.

2.11 Learned Counsel argued that Notification No. 205/77-Cus., dated 24-9-1977 exempted Customs duty leviable on cinematographic film, exposed, falling under Heading 37.06 when imported into India from so much of duty as is leviable on that part of value which does not include the cost of the printing of the cinematographic film and the freight and insurance charge in respect of the said print. The said Notification 205/77-Cus. was rescinded vide Notification 47/96, dated 23-7-1996. He further pointed out that vide Notification 33/2003-Cus., dated 1-3-2003, exemption was granted from basic custom duty, additional custom duty and special additional duty to the said goods from so much of duties as is in excess, which would be leviable if the value of the said goods was equal to the cost of the prints and the cinematographic film and the freight and insurance charges incurred in respect of such prints. Learned Counsel pointed out that in effect, the status as it existed prior to 23-7-1996 when Notification 205/77, dated 24-9-1977 was restored. Learned Counsel argued that these changes in notification cannot have an overriding effect on the CBEC circular which is limited in application so far as the revenue is concerned. He pointed out that the Board Circular of 2002 cannot be made retrospectively applicable to the period in dispute which is 1-4-1997 to 31-3-2000. Learned Counsel argued that there is no reason to depart from the value approved when the Notification 205/77 was in vogue, after the same is rescinded. He argued that the method adopted then was the method of valuation furnished by the appellants under Rule 8 of the Valuation Rules and there was no material for the department to resort to the valuation under Rule 7.

2.12 Learned Counsel argued that the Interpretative Notes to Rule 4(c) and Rule 4(3) indicate that there is no basis to reject the value furnished by the appellants as there was no sale involved. Learned Counsel pointed out that there are no grounds to reject the value furnished by the appellants in terms of Rule 4(2) of the Customs Valuation Rules, 1988. He pointed out that the appellants and the foreign supplier are not related in terms of Rule 4(3) of the Customs Valuation Rules. Learned Counsel pointed out that Rule 7 will apply only in the case of goods sold in the greatest aggregate quantity. In the instant case as there is no sale, Rule 7 will not apply. He particularly highlighted the Interpretative Note to Rule 9(1)(c) which reads as follows :-

The royalties and licence fees referred to “1. in rule 9(1)(c) may include among other things, payments in respect to patents, trademarks and copyrights. However, the charges for the right to reproduce the imported goods in the country of importation shall not be added to the price actually paid or payable for the imported goods in determining the customs value.

Payments made by the buyer for the right to 2. distribute or resell the imported goods shall not be added to the price actually paid or payable for the imported goods if such payments are not a condition of the sale for export to the country of importation of the imported goods.”

2.13 Learned Counsel further argued that the Revenue has chosen not to apply Rule 4 nor has given any justification for application of Rule 5 or 6 of the Valuation Rules. He further argued that the Revenue has wrongly applied Rule 7 which applies only to a case of sale.

2.14 Learned Counsel relied on the following decisions :-

(i) Hoerbiger v. CC, 2003(156) E.L.T. 62

(ii) CC v. Ferredo India Pvt. Ltd.
Two written submissions, both dated 12-10-2016, were also submitted.

3. Learned AR relies on the impugned order.

4. We have gone through the rival submissions. The appellants seek to apply Rule 8 of the Customs Valuation Rules, 1988. Rule 8 of the said Rules reads as follows :-

"8. Residual method. - (1) Subject to the provisions of Rule 3 of these rules, where the value of imported goods cannot be determined under the provisions of any of the preceding rules, the value shall be determined using reasonable means consistent with the principles and general provisions of these rules and sub-section (1) of Section 14 of the Customs Act, 1962 (52 of 1962) and on the basis of data available in India.

(2) No value shall be determined under the provisions of this rule on the basis of -

(i) the selling price in India of the goods produced in India;

(ii) a system which provides for the acceptance for customs purposes of the highest of the two alternative values;

(iii) the price of the goods on the domestic market of the country of exportation;

(iiiia) the cost of production other than computed values which have been determined for identical or similar goods in accordance with the provisions of rule 7A.

(iv) the price of the goods for the export to a country other than India;

(v) minimum customs values; or

(vi) arbitrary or fictitious values."

The fact that the appellants seek to apply Rule 8 of the Customs Valuation Rules implies that they agree that there is no transaction value or sale value available in terms of Section 14 of the Customs Act and Rule 4 to 7A of the Customs Valuation Rules, 1988 are not applicable to the facts of the said case. The impugned order holds that even if the argument of the appellant that Rule 8 needs to be applied is accepted, under Rule 8, in exercise of the best judgment method Rule 7 (with suitable modifications) can be applied in exercise of application of Rule 8.

4.1 The appellants are seeking assessment of the goods imported by them on the value as determined by the order dated 12-12-1980 which was issued following the order dated 11-12-1980. In both these orders, the following was held :-

"The Indian Firm, Warner Bros., is a fully owned subsidiary of the foreign principals viz. Warner Bros. International U.S.A. The Indian firm imports exposed cine films from the said foreign principals. All positive exposed cine films are supplied free of charge. The ownership of the film rests with the suppliers. In terms of the agreement the Indian firm shall pay a fixed percentage of the gross receipts which the distributors (Indian firm) derive by exploitation/exhibition of the cine films.

The intrinsic value of the exposed cinefilms is actually the cost incurred by the laboratories which process the films, and the same includes the cost of materials, processing charges etc. The cost varies from country to country and on the number of prints ordered. The rejuvenating charges of old negatives, out of which the prints are processed, also add to the cost of the prints. At present the cost varies from U.S. Cents 6 to U.S. Cents 13 per foot.
On the basis of the documents/information furnished by the party, it has been decided to accept the invoice value of the exposed cine films imported from the said suppliers under Rule 8 after usual check and scrutiny. The pending P.D. assessments may be accordingly finalized.

The manner of assessment was reaffirmed by Revenue vide its order dated 6-1-1988. It is seen that both these orders dated 12-12-80 and 6-1-88 have been issued during the currency of the Notification 205/77 which granted exemption by way of a special manner of valuation. The said notification exempted

“every cinematograph film, exposed, falling under Heading 37.06 of the First Schedule to the Customs Tariff Act, 1975 (51 of 1975), when imported into India, from so much of the duties of customs leviable thereon as is equal to such duties leviable on that part of the value thereof which does not include

(a) the cost of the print of the cinematograph film; and

(b) the freight and insurance charges incurred in respect of the print of such cinematograph film.”

It is seen that for the purpose of charging duty, the relevant value as per the notification was the cost of the print of the cinematograph film and the freight and insurance charges incurred in respect of such prints. The orders dated 12-12-1980 and 6-1-1988 have been issued during the currency of this notification and both of them held the value of such films to be the cost incurred by the laboratories which process the films which consists of cost of material, processing charges, etc. It is seen that while both these orders do not record that the valuation has been done with reference to the Notification 205/77, it is apparent that the valuation has been done to arrive at the value chargeable to duty in terms of the said notification. The said notification restricts the value for the purpose of assessment to be sum total of

(a) the cost of the print of the cinematograph film; and

(b) the freight and insurance charges incurred in respect of the print of such cinematograph film.

The valuation was therefore done under Rule 8 to arrive at this value, under the residuary rule. It is obvious that other rules do not apply to the case as the value for the purpose of assessment was based on special provisions built in the notification. Thus the appellants’ reliance on the order of 1980 and 1988 does not hold much weight and is rejected. Notification 205/77 was withdrawn on 23-7-1996 vide Notification 47/96. Prior to the said date the valuation was done to arrive at the value for assessment to be determined in terms of the notification. It is apparent that for the period after the notification was rescinded, the valuation needs to be done in terms of Section 14 of the Customs Act read with the Rules.

5 It is clear from the agreement that the appellants are receiving the said goods just on payment of ‘Transportation, insurance and other related costs (excluding cost of print materials)’ in terms of clause 3(a) of the agreement. They do not become the owners of the goods by virtue of this payment as the imports are conditional, not only with reference to the use the imported goods can be put to, but also the manner they have to be disposed of after use. As a condition of import the appellants are also required to pay the foreign entity amounts as specified in Clause 3 thereof. It is apparent from the Clause 3 of the agreement that the appellants are obliged to pay the foreign entity, as follows :-

As consideration for the rights herein “3. granted to Distributor, Distributor shall pay to International in the manner hereinafter specified, the following :

Sixty-five per cent (65%) of all gross proceeds derived and collected from the distribution, exploitation and exhibition in the territory of the feature motion pictures, trailers and short subject during each yearly period of the term hereof commencing August 30, 1959.

The percentages or shares of the gross proceeds shall be paid by Distributor to International at the expiration of each and every week throughout the term of this Clause 7 of the agreement reproduced above in para 2.2 clearly shows that legal title to all negatives and positive prints delivered or manufactured hereunder shall at all times remain with the foreign entity. Clause 18 of the said agreement prohibits them from selling, assigning or subletting in its entirety, the appellant’s interest. In these circumstances it is apparent that though an amount is paid at the time of import, it is not the sale price of imports. The amount paid by the appellant at the time of import excludes from it the entire ‘cost of print material’s. The price paid by the appellant does not constitute the transaction or sale value. Since sale value is not available, to qualify as assessable value under Section 14(1) of the Customs Act, the value has to be arrived at in terms of the Customs Valuation Rules, 1988 (CVR).

6. To arrive at the transaction value it is needed to calculate the cost of print materials which has been excluded from the price paid at the time of the import of the film. In the context of this transaction and the terms of the agreement, the term ‘cost of print materials’ would not mean the cost making of print materials (i.e. the cost of producing the film), but the cost of the print material to the appellant. The cost that the appellants are required to pay, at the time of import or otherwise. The film is distributed internationally to various countries/territories and the revenue is generated from the licensees in all the territories. The revenue of the principal from each territory will be the cost to the licensee in that territory. The total revenue of the principal worldwide from all the territories would be measured against the total cost of making the film. The excess of revenue over cost or otherwise will yield profit or loss to the principal. Thus the term ‘cost of print materials’ in the context of the agreement only means the cost of print materials to the appellant, and not the cost of producing the film. In this context we examine the terms of the contract between the appellants and the foreign supplier. It is seen that the agreement has been entered into between the two parties located abroad viz. Warner Bros. Pictures International Corporation, New York (first party) and Warner Bros. (F.E.) International Pictures, Inc., Delaware (second party). The first party grants the sole and exclusive license to distribute and to license theatres to exhibit for the terms and conditions specified in the contract, in the territory of India, Nepal, Ceylon and Afghanistan (referred to as ‘Territory’). It can be seen that the agreement is between the two foreign entities wherein one entity grants the other entity the sole and exclusive right to distribute license theatres to exhibit throughout the territory consisting of 4 countries. From the said clause of the agreement, it is obvious that the said rights are granted subject to the terms of the agreement. In other words, if the terms of the agreement are not agreed and adhered to, the said imports cannot be made or the said rights cannot be exercised. The Hon High Court of Madras in the case of Indo Overseas Films, 2007 (210) E.L.T. 348 has observed as under :-

The value of the imported goods for the “5. purposes of determination of the duty has to be arrived at in terms of Section 14 of the Customs Act, which in turn provides for determination of value in terms of the Customs Valuation (Determination of Price of Imported Goods) Rules, 1988. Rule 3 of the 1988 Rules provides for (i) the value of the imported goods shall be the transaction value; (ii) if the value cannot be determined under the provisions of clause (i) above, the value shall be determined by proceeding sequentially through Rules 5 to 8 of these Rules. Rule 4 provides that the transaction value of imported goods shall be the price actually paid or payable for the goods when sold for export to India, adjusted in accordance with the provisions of Rule 9 of these Rules. Rule 9 refers to the charges incurred for various types of services and stipulates addition in respect of the same whether actually paid or not. Rule 9(1)(c) provides that in determining the transaction value, there shall be added to the price actually paid or payable for the imported goods, - royalties and licence fees related to the imported goods that the buyer is required to pay, directly or indirectly, as a condition of the sale of the goods being valued, to the extent that such royalties and fees are not included in the price actually paid or payable. Rules have interpretative note and the interpretative note to Rule 9(1) is to the effect that royalties and licence fees referred to in Rule 9(1)(c) may include among other things, payments in respect to patents, trademarks and copyrights. However, the charges for the right to reproduce the imported goods in the country of importation shall not be added to the price actually paid or payable for the imported goods in determining the customs value. It further provides that payments made by the buyer for the right to distribute or resell the imported goods shall not be added to the price actually paid or payable for the imported goods if such payments are not a condition of the sale for export to the country of importation of the imported goods.

It could be seen from the invoice made available at page No. 3 of the typed set of papers that the petitioner has imported the feature film - “Web of Silence - AIDS”. The cost of the materials, i.e., one 35 mm (2569 meters length) is valued at 1000 US $ and in 35 mm of trailer (35 mm length) of the said film is 20 US $. So, the value of the imported goods, i.e., feature film is 1020 US $. Apart from that royalty including one new print and one trailer with the right of reproduction and distribution of public performance for the territories of India had been valued at 12500 US $. The payment of 1020 US $ for the print and trailer and 12500 US $ towards royalty for exploitation of the film is condition precedent in the importation. Though the value has been splitted out as royalty and the cost of materials, as per the agreement, the petitioner imported the feature film for exploitation only and without exploitation there is no purpose for importing the feature film. On the other hand, the purpose of importation of the film is only for exploitation. For the purpose of exploitation the charges is stated to 12500 US $. As per Rule 9(1)(c) the royalty and licence fee relating to the imported goods that the buyer is required to pay, directly or indirectly, as a condition of the sale of the goods being valued, to the extent that such royalties and fees are not included in the price actually paid or payable.

In the case on hand, the petitioner had to pay not only the cost of movie materials, but also the royalty and the rights specified in the distribution agreement as a condition of sale, as without the right of exploitation the print or trailer could not be of any use to the petitioner to enjoy theatrical or video right conferred on the petitioner. In the light of the statutory provisions and peculiar facts and circumstances of the present case and in the light of the reasoning above stated, I do not find any substance in the argument of the Learned Counsel to the effect that 12500 US $ referable to as royalty cannot be included in the valuation of the imported goods.”

In view of above, the said amounts remitted to foreign supplier are includible in the assessable value.

7. The following provisions of law need to be kept in sight while applying the residuary Rule 8 to the instant case.

(i) Rule 9(1)(c) of the CVR
(ii) Proviso (a) to Rule 4(2) of the CVR
(iii) Proviso (c) to Rule 4(2) of the CVR

The said rules provide the context for the application of the Rule 8 of the valuation rules in the facts of this case of valuation of imports. Residuary rule can draw strength from these provisions to decide the inclusion or exclusion of any value/consideration. Each of these provisions are examined below individually

7.1 Rule 9(1)(c ) prescribes as follows :-

Cost and services. - “9. In determining the transaction value, there shall be added to the (1) price actually paid or payable for the imported goods, - (c) royalties and licence fees related to the imported goods that the buyer is required to pay, directly or indirectly, as a condition of the sale of the goods being valued, to the extent that such royalties and fees are not included in the price actually paid or payable.”

It is seen that any amount of royalty or license fee paid during a transaction of sale, as a condition of such sale, would be includible in the transaction value. In the instant case there is no sale involved. The cine prints are imported for a nominal consideration, however as a condition of such import, the appellants are required to pay a percentage of the gross revenue earned by them by use of such cine prints. If the same is considered as the license fee then the same needs to form part of the assessable value, as the same is paid as a condition of import.

7.2 Proviso (a) to Rule 4(2) of the CVR reads as follows :
The transaction value of imported goods under sub-rule (1) above shall be accepted:

Provided

(a) there are no restrictions as to the disposition or use of the goods by the buyer other than restrictions which:

(i) are imposed or required by law or by the public authorities in India;

or

(ii) limit the geographical area in which the goods may be resold; or

(iii) do not substantially affect the value of the goods;"

It prescribes that any import where there are restrictions on use of goods the price paid cannot be the assessable value. In the instant case there are restrictions on the use of goods which travel beyond the exclusions provided in the proviso. For instance the appellants cannot continue to use the goods after a certain period. The appellants cannot dispose of the goods in the manner they want. The appellants cannot use the goods in any medium other than cine theatres, like television etc. they cannot sell, assign or sublet their rights in respect of these goods.

7.3 Proviso (c) (later renumbered as (g)) to Rule 4(2) of the CVR reads as follows:

The transaction value of imported goods “(2) under sub-rule (1) above shall be accepted:

Provided

no part of the proceeds of any subsequent resale, disposal or use of the goods by the buyer will accrue directly or indirectly to the seller, unless an appropriate adjustment can be made in accordance with the provisions of Rule 9 of these rules;"

It clearly shows that if the goods are imported with the condition that any part of the proceeds of the subsequent use of the imported goods goes to the seller the said transaction value needs to be rejected. In this regard the Section 14 also prescribes that the assessable value would include the ‘price paid or payable’ for the goods. In the instant case the amounts paid as license fee though not paid at the time of import, is clearly known at the time of import, to be payable at the latter date in terms of the agreement, and the same is the condition of import.

7.4 Applying Rule 8 with guidance from the aforesaid rules makes it logical to include the said amounts remitted to foreign supplier in the Assessable value.

8 The appellants had argued that the valuation needs to be done under Rule 8 of CVR, before the original adjudicating authority. The matter was argued by the appellants seeking assessment under Rule 8 as done in earlier orders dated 12-12-80 and 6-1-88. The dispute before the original adjudicating authority was if the amount of license fee remitted by the appellant to the supplier of cine prints needs to be included in the Assessable Value. The Original adjudicating authority has included in the Assessable Value the amount of license fee remitted by the appellant to the supplier of cine prints. For the purpose of determining assessable value the original adjudicating authority has adopted Rule 7 of CVR, rejecting the contention of the appellant that Rule 8 of CVR should be applied.

8.1 The dispute before the Commissioner (Appeals) was if the amount of license fee remitted by the appellant to the supplier of cine prints needs to be included in the Assessable Value. The original adjudicating authority has included in the Assessable Value the amount of license fee remitted by the appellant to the supplier of cine prints. The Commissioner (Appeals) applied Rule 8 and thereafter under the best judgment rule, he upheld the method adopted by the original adjudicating authority applying Rule 7 in the modified manner.

8.2 Thus in both the stages the sole dispute has been if the amount of license fee remitted by the appellant to the supplier of cine prints needs to be included in the Assessable Value. The Original adjudicating authority as well as the Commissioner (Appeals) both included in the Assessable Value the amount of license fee remitted by the appellant to the supplier of cine prints. In doing so one relied on Rule 7 of CVR while other relied on Rule 7 read with Rule 8 of CVR. The revenue has relied on the decision of Hon’ble Apex Court in the case of Pradyumna Steel Ltd. [1996 (82) E.L.T. 441 (S.C.)] to assert that mere mention of wrong rule does not vitiate the proceedings. Hon’ble Apex Court in the said case has observed as follows :-

It is settled that mere mention of a wrong “3. provision of law when the power exercised is available even though under a different provision, is by itself not sufficient to invalidate the exercise of that power. Thus, there is a clear error apparent on the face of the Tribunal’s order dated 23-6-1987. Rejection of the application for rectification by the Tribunal was, therefore, contrary to law.

It is apparent that the sole dispute in all these cases is if the amounts paid by appellants in connection with imports made by them are includible in the assessable value or not in terms of the CVR. The nature of dispute was known to the appellants and the amounts sought to be included and the grounds were known to the appellants. The fact is that in terms of Rule 8 the said amounts need to be included in the assessable value as discussed in Paras 6 and 7 above. In these circumstances quoting Rule 7 or 8 by the lower authorities has not compromised the defense of the appellants or vitiated the proceedings in any way.

9 The appellants have relied on the following case law :-

(i) J.D. Orgochem, 2008 (226) E.L.T. 9 (S.C.) for the assertion that declared value cannot be rejected arbitrarily. We find that the declared value in the instant case is admittedly not the transaction or sale value. Furthermore as is apparent from the Clauses 3, 7 and 18, and numerous other clauses of the agreement the import are subjected to a lot of restrictions. Thus the declared value has been rightly rejected and the facts are different from the cited case.

(ii)  Hoerbiger India Pvt. Ltd., 2003 (156) E.L.T. 62, Ferodo India Ltd., Syngenta India Ltd., 2014 (314) E.L.T. 473 and Maruti Udyog v. CC, Mumbai, 2013 (295) E.L.T. 628. The basic fact is different in these cases. In all these cases it was held that the payment of royalty is not a condition of import of goods. In the instant case it is otherwise.

(iii)  Multiscreen Media Pvt. Ltd., 2015 (317) E.L.T. 770. The facts in the said case are different. Moreover the decision of Hon’ble HC of Madras in the case of Indo Overseas Ltd. (supra) was not cited before Tribunal in the said case.

(iv)  Peri India Pvt. Ltd. v. CC, Mumbai, 2014 (314) E.L.T. 316 and Mahindra and Mahindra Ltd., 2016 (334) E.L.T. 193 are on a different issue and not relevant.

In view of above the appeals are dismissed.

The Assistant Commissioner vide order No. 5230 dated 08.09.2016 has rejected the said claim on the ground that the same has been filed after the prescribed time limit of one year from the date of payment and as such is rejected as being barred by time. Being aggrieved, the assessee approached the first appellate authority, i.e. the Commissioner of Customs (Appeals). He, vide the Order under challenge has held that upholding the limitation period starting from the date of payment of duty as prescribed in amended Notification No. 93/2008-Cus would amount to allowing commencement of limitation period for refund claimed before the right of refund has even accrued and that no period of limitation is prescribed under Section 3(5) of the Customs Tariff Act. Accordingly, the Appeal of assessee was allowed accepting the refund claimed. Department being aggrieved is in Appeal before us.

3. We have heard Shri Rakesh Kumar, Ld. DR for the Department/appellant. However none is present for the respondent. He therefore hereby proceed to decide the Appeal ex-parte considering defendant.

4. It is submitted that the Commissioner(Appeals) has based his Order on the decision of Hon’ble High Court of Delhi in the matter of M/s Sony India Pvt. Ltd.Vs. Commissioner of Customs, New Delhi 2014 (304) ELT 660 (Del.) and though the Appeal whereof even before Hon’ble Supreme Court has been dismissed but Hon’ble Apex Court has dismissed the Appeal only on the ground of limitation hence the question of law involved herein is still kept open. It is impressed upon that Notification No. 93/2008-Cus dated 01.08.2008 is the Notification amending the Notification No. 102/2007 vide which a time period of one year from the date of payment for the filing of refund claims by an importer has been introduced. Thus, the period for filing the impugned refund claim is clearly of one year. Since the refund claim in question was not filed within the said one year, the original Adjudicating Authority had rightly dismissed the same and the Commissioner (Appeals) has committed an error while allowing the assessee’s claim. Order is accordingly prayed to be set aside and Appeal is prayed to be allowed.

5. After hearing, we are of the opinion as follows:-

The claim herein is with respect to special additional duty of Customs as leviable under Section 3(5) of Customs Tariff Act, 1975. It is important to look into the said provision which reads as follows:

"Section 3 Levy of additional duty equal to excise duty, sales tax, local taxes and other charges–

(1) -------
(2) ------- (3) -------
(5) If the Central Government is satisfied that it is necessary in the public interest to levy on any imported article whether on such article duty is leviable under sub-section (1) or, as the case may be, sub-section (3) or not such additional duty as would counter-balance the sales tax, value added tax, local tax or any other charges for the time being leviable on a like article on its sale, purchase or transportation in India, it may, by notification in the Official Gazette, direct that such imported article shall, in addition, be liable to an additional duty at a rate not exceeding four per cent of the value of the imported article as specified in that notification.

Explanation – In this sub-section, the expression "sales tax, value added tax, local tax or any other charges for the time being leviable on a like article on its sale, purchase or transportation in India" means the sales tax, value added tax, local tax or other charges for the time being in force, which would be leviable on a like article if sold, purchased or transported in India or, if a like article is not so sold, purchased or transported, which would be leviable on the class or description of articles to which the imported article belongs and where such taxes, or, as the case may be, such charges are leviable at different rates the highest such tax or, as the case may be, such charge."

It is brought to our notice that the said SAD exemption has been granted vide Notification No. 102/2007 dated 14.09.2007 as issued in accordance of Section 25(1) of the Customs Act which provides power to the Central Government to grant exemption from duty by way of Notification. This Notification exempts the goods falling within the first schedule to the Customs Tariff Act, 1975 when imported into India for subsequent sale, from the whole of the additional duty of Customs leviable thereupon in accordance of the above mentioned Section 3(5) of Customs Tariff Act. However, subject to such conditions as mentioned in the Notification itself in para 2 thereof, the first condition reads as follows:

(a) The importer of the said goods shall pay all duties including the additional duty of Customs leviable thereon, as applicable at the time of importation of goods.

The other relevant condition is:

(c) The importer shall file a claim for refund of said additional duty of Customs paid on the imported goods with the jurisdictional Customs officer.

This Notification stands amended vide Notification No. 93/2008 dated 01.08.2008 vide which a time period of one year from the date of payment for filing of refund claims by an importer under the aforesaid Notification was introduced. Commissioner (Appeals) has held that the amendment since introduced for the first time by a Notification but without a statutory amendment, the same cannot prevail.

6. In view of the above discussion, we are of the opinion that the moot question to be adjudicated in the present case is as to whether there is any time limit prescribed by law for filing the refund claim of additional duty of Customs as stands exempted vide the Notification No. 102/2007.

No doubt, the said Notification is silent about any time period for filing the said claim. But the Notification exempts the goods in first schedule of Customs Tariff Act from being leviable to the additional duty of Customs. However, the Notification itself mandates the deposit of the said additional duty at the time of importation of the goods and thereafter to get the refund. From this perusal, one thing becomes abundantly clear that the importer has the knowledge of his entitlement to file the refund of additional duty of Customs at the time of the payment of said duty itself i.e. at the time, the product being in first schedule (under the exempted category) is imported. Resultantly, we are of the opinion that for claiming the refund of additional duty nothing else has to happen or to be done by the assessee after the payment of said additional duty of Customs. To our opinion, this particular fact distinguishes the present case from the case of M/s Sony India Pvt. Ltd. (supra).

(i) Any person claiming refund of any duty or interest, paid by him or borne by him may make an application in such form and manner as may be prescribed for such refund to the Assistant Commissioner of Customs or Deputy Commissioner of Customs before the expiry of one year from the date of payment of such duty or interest.

8. The words used in the provision makes it clear that statute has not distinguished the nature of duty or interest, the refund whereof is claimed. Hence, even if we do not look into the amended Notification No. 93/2008, the period of limitation as applicable for filing the refund claim under Notification 102/2008 will otherwise be a period of one year in accordance of the aforesaid Section 27 of Customs Act. Thus, we cannot rule out that the Notification No. 93/2008 came into existence to align the statutory provision with the Notification which was silent as far as the period of limitation for the purpose as mentioned therein is concerned. Otherwise also, on examination of relevant provision it appears that the provisions of limitation are excluded, it would nonetheless be still open to the court to examine whether and to what extent the nature of those provisions or the nature of the subject matter and scheme of the special law exclude their operation. This Tribunal in the case of Uttam Sucrotech International Pvt. Ltd. Vs. Union of India 2011 (264) E.L.T. 502 (Delhi) has held that the applicability of the provisions of limitation Act therefore is to be judged not from the terms of limitation Act but by the provisions of the concerned act. The Tribunal has gone to the extent of appreciating that it is the duty of the court to respect the legislative intent and by giving liberal interpretation, limitation cannot be extended by invoking the provisions even of Section 5 of the Limitation Act. The Hon'ble Apex Court in the case Naseeruddin Vs. Sitaram Aggarwal A.I.R. 2003 (S.C.)1543 has held that in the absence of statutory provisions, no inherent powers of the court exists to condone the delay. It was also held that a statutory right has to be exercised in the mode, manner and limitation specified in the special statute itself. The Hon'ble Apex Court in an earlier decision in the case of Titaghur Papermills Company Ltd. Vs. State of Orissa SCC PP 440-41 para 11 has held:

"11. ...... it is now well recognised that where a right or liability is created by a statute which gives a special remedy for enforcing it, the remedy provided by that statute only must be availed of. This rule was stated with great clarity by Willes, J. in Wolverhampton New Waterworks Co. Vs. Hawkesford in the following passage: (ER p. 495)

...... There are three classes of cases in which a liability may be established founded upon a statute. ...... But there is a third class viz. where a liability not existing at common law is created by a statute which at the same time gives a special and particular remedy for enforcing it. ...... The remedy provided by the statute must be followed, and it is not competent to the party to pursue the course applicable to cases of the second class. The form given by the statute must be adopted and adhered to."

In still another case titled as Munshiram Vs. Municipal Committee Chheharta SSC page 88 para 23, the Hon'ble Apex Court held that when a Revenue statute provides for a person aggrieved by an assessment thereunder, a particular remedy to be sought in a particular forum, in a particular way, it must be sought in that forum and in that manner and all other forums and modes of seeking said remedy are excluded. Except in the case where the statutory authority has not acted in accordance with the provisions of the enactment in question or in defiance of the fundamental principles of judicial procedure or has resorted to invoke the provisions which are repealed. Apparently and admittedly none is the fact of the present Appeal. It is also not the case that Notification 93/2008 has been repealed. In absence thereof also, as already discussed above, Section 27 of Customs Act prescribes a period during which refund of any type can be claimed. The Hon’ble Apex Court in a recent decision Commissioner of Customs (Import Mumbai) Vs. M/s Dilip Kumar & Co. has held that an exemption Notification has to be strictly construed, i.e. if the person claiming exemption does not fall strictly within the letter of Notification, he cannot claim the exemption. The Hon’ble Apex Court while relying upon its previous decision in the case District Mining Officer Vs. Tata Iron & Steel Company 2001 (7) SCC 358 had noticed as follows:-

"... A statute is an edict of the Legislature and in construing a statute, it is necessary, to seek the intention of its maker. A statute has to be construed according to the intent of them that make it and the duty of the Court is to act upon the true intention of the Legislature. If a statutory provision is open to more than one interpretation the Court has to choose that interpretation which represents the true intention of the Legislature. This task very often raises the difficulties because of various reasons, inasmuch as the words used may not be scientific symbols having any precise or definite meaning and the language may be an imperfect medium to convey one's thought or that the assembly of Legislatures consisting of persons of various shades of opinion purport to convey a meaning which may be obscure. It is impossible even for the most imaginative Legislature to forestall exhaustively situations and circumstances that may emerge after enacting a statute where its application may be called for.

Nonetheless, the function of the Courts is only to expound and not to legislate. Legislation in a modern State is actuated with some policy to curb some public evil or to effectuate some public benefit. The legislation is primarily directed to the problems before the Legislature based on information derived from past and present experience. It may also be designed by use of general words to cover similar problems arising in future. But, from the very nature of things, it is impossible to anticipate fully the varied situations arising in future in which the application of the legislation in hand may be called for, and, words chosen to communicate such indefinite referents are bound to be in many cases lacking in clarity and precision and thus giving rise to controversial questions of construction. The process of construction combines both literal and purposive approaches. In other words the legislative intention i.e., the true or legal meaning of an enactment is derived by considering the meaning of the words used in the enactment in the light of any discernible purpose or object which comprehends the mischief and its remedy to which the enactment is directed... " It was also held that the well settled principle is that when the words in a statute are clear, plain and unambiguous and only one meaning can be inferred, the Courts are bound to give effect to the said meaning irrespective of consequences. If the words in the statute are plain and unambiguous, it becomes necessary to expound those words in their natural and ordinary sense. The words used declare the intention of the Legislature. In Kanai Lal Sur v. Paramnidhi Sadhukhan, AIR 1957 SC 907, it was held that if the words used are capable of one construction only then it would not be open to the Courts to adopt any other hypothetical construction on the ground that such construction is more consistent with the alleged object and policy of the Act.

In view of entire above discussion, we are of the opinion that the refund claim of additional duty due to the exemption flowing out of Notification No. 102/2007 has to be filed within one year in view of the subsequent Notification No. 93/2008-Cus which still holds good and also in view of Section 27 of the Customs Act, 1962. We therefore hold that the Commissioner(Appellate) has committed an error while giving an expanded interpretation qua limitation to favour assessee. We therefore set aside the said Order and allow the present Appeal rejecting the impugned refund claimed.

Per: Ramesh Nair:

The brief facts of the case are that the appellant had imported total 49874.000 MTs of ‘Steam (Non-Coking) Coal’ collectively against 7 bills of entry out of which 46933.950 MTs were cleared availing duty exemption under Duty Free Import Authorization (DFIA) Scheme. The bills of entry were finally assessed to duty. Upon subsequent verification from the jurisdictional Central Excise Authorities, it came to light that the export obligation was fulfilled by exporting the resultant goods manufactured availing cenvat credit facilities thereby, violating condition 5 of Notification 40/2006-Cus rendering so much quantity of goods ineligible for exemption in terms of that Notification. Out of the said quantity, the appellant – importer could not produce the Certificate regarding use of quantity of 997.340 MTs for manufacture of dutiable goods since so much quantity was not at all received in the factory of the appellant. Since it appeared that the appellant had availed double benefit of DFIA Scheme rendered the quantity of 997.340 MTs of imported goods ineligible for exemption from import duty under Notification No. 40/2006-Cus, two SCNs both dated 08.09.2009 were issued to the appellant which culminated into order in original wherein the adjudicating authority has confirmed the total duty liability of Rs. 2,63,834/- along with interest under Section 28(2) and 28AB respectively of Customs Act, 1962. A penalty of equal amount of duty under Section 114A of the Customs Act was also imposed. Being aggrieved by the order in original, appellant filed appeals before the Commissioner (Appeals) who considering the facts that a quantity of 997.340 MTs was not at all received, upheld the demand of customs duty. However, the penalty imposed under Section 114A of the Act was set aside. Accordingly, the order in original was modified. Being aggrieved by the impugned order, the present appeals were filed by the appellant.

2. Sh. S.R. Dixit, Ld. Counsel appearing on behalf of the appellant submits that the very meagre quantity of 997.340 MTs against the total import quantity of 46933.950 MTs was found short. This shortage is not due to diversion of goods, the goods being a coal, there is some transit loss, therefore, it cannot be said that there is short receipt of the imported goods. This minor quantity of shortage is permissible. He submits that in the present case, the goods were imported claiming Notification 40/2006-Cus. In the identical Notification No. 13/1997-Cus dated 1.3.1997, the Hon’ble Supreme Court dealing with the identical issue in the case of BPL Display Devices Ltd. 2004 (174) ELT 5 (SC) held that the exemption cannot be denied on the ground that the goods imported is notified ‘for use’ and there is no dispute that in the present case also the goods imported were notified ‘for use’ in the manufacture, therefore, the judgment of Hon’ble Supreme Court directly applies. He further submits that the issue has been considered in various judgment which are cited below:

- Jhoonjhunwala Vanaaspati Ltd. 2004 (166) ELT 369 (Tri.Del)
- Jhoonjhunwala Vanaaspati Ltd. 2015 (323) ELT 681 (All.)
- Suraj Industries Ltd. 2006 (198) ELT 199 (Tri. Del.)
- Suraj Industries Ltd. 2010 (254) ELT 72 (H.P.)
3. Sh. S.N. Gohil, Ld. Superintendent (AR) appearing on behalf of the Revenue reiterates the findings of the impugned order.

4. We have carefully considered the submissions made by both the sides and perused the records.

5. We find that there is no dispute that there is a shortage of 997.340 MT of coal. The appellant claimed the exemption Notification with the condition that the entire goods imported shall be used in the manufacture of final product in terms of Notification No. 40/2006-Cus. The only defense of the appellant is that though there is shortage of being a small quantity which is due to transit loss the exemption in respect of such shortage could not be denied. The Ld. Counsel has heavily relied upon the Hon'ble Supreme Court judgment in the case of BPL Display Devices Ltd. (supra) and Hon'ble Allahabad High Court judgment in the case of Jhoonjhnunwala Vanaspati Ltd. (supra). On perusal of all the judgments and relevant Notification, we find that in the present case, the Notification 40/2006-Cus stipulates the following condition:

General Exemption No. 132

Exemption to imports against Duty Free Import Authorization - In exercise of the powers conferred by sub-section (1) of section 25 of the Customs Act, 1962 (52 of 1962), the Central Government, being satisfied that it is necessary in the public interest so to do, hereby exempts materials imported into India against a Duty Free Import Authorization issued in terms of paragraph 4.2.1 and 4.2.2 of the Foreign Trade Policy (hereinafter referred to as the said authorisation) from the whole of the duty of Customs leviable thereon which is specified in the First Schedule to the Customs Tariff Act, 1975 (51 of 1975) and from the whole of the additional duty, safeguard duty and anti-dumping duty leviable thereon, respectively, under sections 3, 8B and 9A of the said Customs Tariff Act, subject to the following conditions namely :-

Provided that the Commissioner of Customs may, by special order, or by a Public Notice, and subject to such conditions as may be specified by him, permits import and export from any other seaport or airport or inland container depot or through any land customs station;

(v) that the export obligation as specified in the said authorization (both in value and quantity terms) is discharged within the period specified in the said authorization or within such extended period as may be granted by the Regional Authority by exporting resultant products, manufactured in India which are specified in the said authorization:

Provided that an Advance Intermediate authorization holder shall discharge export obligation by supplying the resultant products to the exporter in terms of paragraph 4.1.3 (ii) of the Foreign Trade Policy;
(vi) that the importer produces evidence of discharge of export obligation to the satisfaction of the Deputy Commissioner of Customs or Assistant Commissioner of Customs, as the case may be, within a period of sixty days of the expiry of period allowed for fulfilment of export obligation, or within such extended period as the said Deputy Commissioner of Customs or Assistant Commissioner of Customs, as the case may be, may allow;

(viii) that where the Bond filed under condition (iii) against the said authorisation has not been redeemed by the Deputy Commissioner of Customs or Assistant Commissioner of Customs, as the case may be, the unutilised material may be transferred to any other manufacturer for processing under actual user condition after complying the central excise procedure relating to Job work;

(ix) that in relation to the said authorisation issued to a merchant exporter,-

(a) the name and address of the supporting manufacturer is specified in the said authorisation and the bond required to be executed by the importer in terms of condition numbers (iii) or (iv) as the case may be shall be executed jointly by the merchant exporter and the supporting manufacturer binding themselves jointly and severally to comply with the conditions specified in this notification; and

(b) exempt materials are utilised in the factory of such supporting manufacturer for discharge of export obligation and the same shall not be transferred or sold or used for any other purpose by the said merchant exporter until the export obligation specified in condition (vii) has been discharged in full.

6. In the judgment relied upon by the Ld. Counsel, the relevant Notification is 13/1997-Cus, the Hon’ble Supreme Court interpreting the terms of the Notification 13/1997 held that the terms mentioned in the Notification 13/1997-Cus is ‘for use’ which was clarified that ‘for use’ means intended for use, therefore, even if certain quantity was not put to use, the exemption cannot be denied. However in the present case, the Notification prescribes various condition unlike in the Notification 13/1997-Cus. As per the conditions, the importer is duty bound to execute a bond binding himself to use the imported materials in his factory and not only that, he has to submit a Certificate of the jurisdictional Excise Officer regarding enduse of the goods. Since the appellant could not use quantity of 997.340 MTs, the Jurisdictional Officer also did not issue enduse Certificate. All these conditions are mandatory in case of Notification 40/2006-Cus. In failure to comply with this substantive condition, the appellant is not eligible for exemption Notification. This ruling has been given by the Hon’ble Supreme Court in the case of Mangalore Chemicals & Fertilizers Ltd. vs Deputy Commissioner 1991 (55) ELT 437 (SC). According to which the Hon’ble Supreme Court held that when substantive conditions prescribed for extending the benefit of exemption notification, should be scrupulously followed and in failure to follow the condition, the benefit of exemption cannot be allowed. Therefore, it is clear that all the conditions prescribed in the Notification 40/2006-Cus are not identical in the case of Notification No. 13/1997-Cus. Therefore, the case of Hon’ble Supreme Court in the case of BPL Display Devices (supra) stands distinguished. As regards, the judgment of Hon’ble Allahabad High Court in Jhoonjhunwala Vanaspati Ltd. (supra), the different notification No. 16/2007-Cus was involved and the quantity of shortage was .07% whereas in the present case the short quantity is substantial which is more than 1.5%, for these reasons the ratio of Jhoonjhunwala case does not apply. Moreover, all these judgments are based on the Hon’ble Supreme Court’s case in BPL Display Devices (supra) which has already been distinguished by us in the above discussion.

7. We, therefore, find that there is a clear violation of the condition of the Notification 40/2006-Cus, therefore, the appellant is not entitled for the benefit of said Notification. Accordingly, the demand confirmed in respect of the short receipt quantity is sustainable. Accordingly, we uphold the impugned order and dismiss the appeals.

per: V Padmanabhan:

The present appeal is filed against Order-in-Original No.14/2017 dated 14.06.2017. The appellant imported certain goods described as Reflective Sheeting and Luminescent Film and filed bill of entry No.9962802 dated 20.07.2015. After examining the consignment, the Customs Authorities were of the opinion that there was mis-declaration in the quantity of goods since 578 rolls of the material were found as against 577 rolls, declared the Bill of Entry. It further appeared that the goods were mis-declared in terms of value also. To probe the matter further, searches were conducted on 20.08.2015 at the business premises of the importer, residence of the proprietor as well as other connected premises. During the search, one laptop as well as mobile phone found was recovered and the data contained therein was retrieved and printed through panchnanma proceedings on 24.082015 and 27.08.2015 in the presence of witnesses as well as S/Shri Sumit Chawla and Rajiv Chawla, the concerned persons of the importer. The data retrieved included proforma invoices, price list, commercial invoices, etc. of various goods imported by the appellant in the past. Shri Sumit Chawla, authorized representative and son of the proprietor of M/s Lakshmi Enterprises, was interrogated and his statements were recorded in relation to the documents recovered from the laptop and mobile phone. In his statement dated 17.09.2015, he confirmed that the documents like invoices, proforma invoices related to consignments imported by him for which the real value of the goods was hidden from the Customs Authorities. In his further statement dated 19.01.2017, towards conclusion of the investigation, he confirmed that the grade and specification of goods imported by them in the past were not cleared in the Bill of Entry; the invoices/commercial invoices recovered could be taken for re-assessment for past import; he further accepted the duty liability for the past consignments on the basis of invoice/commercial invoice found in the electronic devices, as per the following table:

2. Shri Sumit Chawla further admitted in his statement dated 19.01.2016 that the differential amount, over and above declared in the bills of entry, was remitted in Indian currency to the representative of supplier through un-official channels.

3. The goods covered by the current bill of entry were provisionally released to the appellant and on conclusion of investigation, SCN dated 11.08.2016 was issued to the appellant demanding the differential customs duty for past consignments. This SCN was finalized by issue of impugned order as follows :-

i) Declared Customs value in respect of past clearances made under 32 bills of entry was rejected and re-determined on the basis of the documents recovered during investigation.

ii) Differential customs duty amounting to Rs.1,10,86,061/- was demanded along with interest.

iii) Goods seized in various places were ordered for confiscation and redemption fine imposed.

iv) Penalty equal to the customs department demanded was imposed on the appellant.

4. Aggrieved by the impugned order, the present appeal has been filed mainly on the following grounds:

i) The case has been made based upon the relied upon documents in the form of prints-out from laptop and mobile phone. These documents are not permissible evidence under Section 138C of the Customs Act, 1963, since there is nothing on record to show that the conditions specified in relation to the data have been satisfied.

ii) The adjudicating authority has not followed the Customs Valuation Rules sequentially in arriving at the valuation for demand of duty.

iii) He has failed to cite the value of contemporaneous import of the same kind and quality of goods and hence the transaction value cannot be rejected.

iv) The adjudicating authority has ignored the evidence produced by the appellant regarding contemporaneous import of identical/similar goods.

v) The alleged invoices/commercial invoices cannot be applied to past imports. In particular, the 32 import consignments are spread-over a period of two years and four months which have been re-valued on the basis of evidence of December, 2013. This is improper since these invoices cannot be used to recover a period of more than 90 days.

vi) They also relied on various case laws, to the effect that transaction value is required to be accepted.

5. With the above background, we heard Shri Prabhat Kumar, ld Advocate, representing the appellant. He explained the facts of the case as well as various grounds of appeal, in detail.

6. We also heard Shri R.K. Manjhi, ld DR on behalf of the Revenue. He submitted that the original invoices/commercial invoices pertain to the past imports were found in the laptop and mobile phone recovered during the search proceedings of 20.08.2015. Shri Sumit Chawla, in his statements, has admitted the under-valuation of the past consignments and has given his consent for re-determining the value of past consignments on the basis of the above invoices. He specifically pointed-out that none of the statements has ever been retracted. He submitted that the impugned order is fully justified and may be sustained.

7. We have heard both sides and perused the record. The appellant has imported certain goods described as "Self Adhesive Reflective Sheeting" and filed bill of entry dated 20.07.2015 at ICD Tughlakabad, New Delhi. While examining the goods imported under the above bill of entry, the department was of the view that the value declared by the appellant was incorrect and the goods were under valued. There was also mis-declaration in the total quantity of goods imported. As part of the investigation against under-valuation, the department searched the business premises of the importer and other connected premises on 20.08.2015. During the search, along with various documents, electronic media, in the form of laptop and mobile phone, was recovered and the data contained therein was printed-out under panchnama proceedings. These devices were found to contain invoices/commercial invoices, price list, etc. in respect of the same goods imported in the past. In the statements recorded from Shri Sumit Chawla son of proprietor, he admitted that many of the past consignments were under valued and that the documents recovered from the electronic devices pertain to the consignments imported earlier by the appellant. Accordingly, the department proceeded to demand differential duty in respect of goods imported earlier by the appellant and covered by 32 bills of entry. The present appeal challenges the demand for differential duty and imposition of penalties, levied by the impugned order.

8. In the main grounds of the present appeal, it has been argued that transaction value was required to be accepted in the absence of evidence produced by Revenue of contemporaneous import of identical/similar goods. The appellant has argued that the documents printed-out from the electronic media are not admissible for non-compliance of specified conditions specified in the Section 138C of the Customs Act.

9. The valuation of imported goods is required to be done in terms of Section 14 of the Customs Act, 1962, read with the Customs Valuation Rules, 2007. The transaction value of imported goods can be rejected only as per the provisions of Rule 12 of the Customs Valuation Rules. In the present case, in respect of 32 Bills of Entry pertaining to imports, certain documents were recovered during the course of search from the laptop and mobile phones. From among the documents recovered from the laptop and mobile phone, the department has recovered the invoices/commercial invoices pertaining to the goods imported under these Bills of Entry. Such invoices indicate that the goods were procured by the appellant from the foreign supplier at significantly higher prices than what has been declared to the department at the time of filing Bills of Entry. It further has been admitted by Shri Sumit Chawla, son of the proprietor, that these invoices, printed-out from laptop/mobile phone, reflect the correct value of imports. He has even admitted that the differential amount, over and above the invoice originally declared, have been paid to the foreign supplier through means other than the banking channels.

10. In the light of the evidence, as above, we are of the view that the adjudicating authority has rightly rejected the transaction value of goods imported under the 32 Bills of Entry, in terms of Rule 12 of the Customs Valuation Rules, 2007. In fact, Explanation (f) to Rule 12 ibid specifically provides for rejection of the transaction value in the case of fraud or manipulated documents as in the present case.

11. The appellant has raised objections to the admissibility of the documents recovered from the laptop. They have cited the provisions of Section 138C of the Customs Act. We find such objections without basis in as much as the truth of the documents printed-out from the laptop has been admitted by Shri Sumit Chawla son of the proprietor in clear terms. Further, their clear admission by him that these invoices recovered, reflect the correct valuation at which the transaction was concluded with the valuation supplier. Further the appellant was given an opportunity to prove the correct transaction value of the goods imported under 32 bills of entry by providing bank attested genuine invoices but Shri Sumit Chawla did not make same available. On the other hand, in his statement dated 19.01.2016, that the prices indicated in the invoices/commercial invoices could be taken for assessment of all past imports as the rate of product did not change much during period of imports. We are of the view that there is no infirmity on the part of the adjudicating authority in re-determining the value of the past imported goods on the basis of such invoices. In the peculiar facts and circumstances of the present case, there is no need for the Revenue to collect evidence in the form of contemporaneous imports.

12. In view of above discussions, we find no infirmity in the impugned order, which is upheld and the appeal dismissed.

FINAL ORDER NOS. A/61280-61288 AND 61312/2016

Per: Ashok Jindal:

The appellants have filed these appeals as well as stay applications against the impugned order. As the issue involved is in a narrow compass, therefore, the appeals are taken up alongwith stay applications and are being decided by a common order.

2. All the appeals are being disposed of by a common order as the issue involved is identical and penalty has been imposed in each case in terms of the provisions of Section 112 of Customs Act.

3. Without going into the details of the matters involved in the imports, I reproduce the relevant Para of the impugned order of the original adjudicating authority wherein while dealing with the issue of imposition of penalty upon the present appeal, he has observed as under:-

Role of Notice No. 2 i.e. M/s. Unison Clearing Agency-“58.

The issue also concerned the role of the M/s. Unison Clearing Pvt Ltd. and Shri Pall Singh Lohia. I find that Shri Pall Singh Lohia was stationed in the Mumbai office and had employed two persons namely Shri Pushpinder Singh and Shri Karnail Singh who were looking after his work at Ludhiana. I find that Shri Pall Singh Lohia has clearly stated in respect of Bills of Entries referred in Table 11, supra that the signatures on these Bills of Entries appeared to have been forged by Shri Pushpinder Singh; that they had no association with Shri Ankush Khullar or Shri Kapil Oberoi or of the companies/firms floated by the above named two persons and that it appeared that Shri Pushpinder Singh had committed the fraud by forging Sh. Pall Singh Lohia’s signature and that their said employee might have liaison with the above named Sh. Ankush Khullar and Shri Kapil Oberoi in the fraud. He has denied allegations of connivance by stating that their company had not connived with Shri Ankush Khullar and Shri Kapil Oberoi merely in view of the fact that Bill of Entry No. 1959, dated 23-9-03 involved in the fraud find mentioned in the Books of Accounts of the M/s. Unison Clearing Pvt. Ltd. He stated that some had apparently been signed by his employee Shri Pushpinder Singh and the payment had been entered in their records on the basis of the Invoices issued by their Ludhiana Office, It was also stated that as a routine matter the bills were raised by the Ludhiana Office and the payments so received was credited to their account. He further stated that their employee Sh. Pushpinder Singh committed all the fraud. The aforesaid fact is very well corroborative with statement of Shri Pall Singh who in his statement has categorically stated that he had never met any person of the noticee company and had not appointed Sh. Ankush Khullar and Kapil Oberoi as his agents and the payments were made to M/s. Jai Bhole Overseas on the advice of Sh. Ankush Khullar and Sh. Kapil Oberoi.
Thus, it is clear from the statements of Sh. Pall Singh Lohia that in cases of Bills of Entry at S. No. 8 to 13 of Table-III supra and Bills of Entry mentioned in Table -II supra (refer para 18) though the signatures of Shri Pall Singh Lohia were forged, still the Bills of Entry were with the Noticee No. 2. Though no fraud with revenue was committed in respect of these Bills of Entry, but the fact remains that the signatures on these Bills of Entry were forged by his employee Sh. Pushpinder Singh. The aforesaid fact has not been contradicted by the Noticee Sh. Pushpinder Singh during the time of the investigation till the adjudication against him and the allegations of forgery had been levies.

The aforesaid fact is corroborative to the fact that none of 59. the other Noticees had named the Noticee's involvement in the commission or omission of the offence. Moreover Shri Pall Singh Lohia has categorically stated that Sh. Anjush Khullar and Sh. Kapil Oberoi were not the agents of the Noticee and they were not in any manner dealt with C.H.A. Company or its employees. Further, I find that when the fact of misutilisation of the License was brought to his knowledge in July, 2004 the Noticee had immediately terminated the services of his employee i.e. Sh. Pushpinder Singh.

I find that the Noticee has stated in his statement recorded u/s 108 of the Customs Act, 1962 that he has not signed any of the Bill of Entries moreover none of the Bills of Entries had been signed or handed over to any other person who are party to the fraud. Moreover the signatures of the Director of the company have been forged by other person, which has not been controverted by the Co-Noticee Shri Pushpinder Singh. I find that the Importer in his statement has stated that he had not known and have not dealt with M/s Unison Clearing Pvt. Ltd. or any of the employees of the C.H.A. Company. Also the Noticee Sh. Ankush Khullar and Kapil Oberoi in their statements have stated that they never knew the Director of the C.H.A. Company and have not dealt with Sh. Pall Singh Lohia.

61 As regards the agency commission shown to have been reflected in the Books of Accounts the Noticee has stated that the same has been deposited by the employees of the company in the routine manner and the suspicion of the fraud came to the knowledge of the Director of the company only after it was reported by another employee i.e. Sh. Karnail Singh. Further the statements of Sh. Ankush Khullar and Sh. Kapil Oberoi reveal that they were not the employees of the Noticee C.H.A. and were not in any way known to the Directors of the C.H.A. Company. However the employee of the company i.e. Sh. Pushpinder Singh appears to have helped the aforesaid Noticees i.e. Sh. Ankush Khullar and Sh. Kapil Oberoi by handing over the Blank Bills of Entries after forging the signatures on the same. Since the Noticee Sh. Pushpinder Singh never appeared before the Customs during investigation the aforesaid facts remain uncontroverted. I find that since the Noticee Sh. Pall Singh Lohia was based in Mumbai and all the acts had been done by his employees behind his back. There is no evidence on record in support of the fact that the Noticee had directly or indirectly benefited from the illegal proceeds obtained in the commission of fraud. Since Sh. Pushpinder Singh was the real beneficiary to the transactions and the Noticee had failed to exercise proper control over his employee and hence his negligence is noticeable.

Having regard to the facts and circumstances of the case and also keeping in mind the role played by the employees of the Noticee, and also keeping in mind the negligence. I am of the view that the Noticees have failed to exercise greater vigilance on its employees, the conduct of both the Noticees ipso facto in my view would attract levy of penalty commensurate to the role as per facts and circumstances of the case.”

4. As is clear from the above there is no direct evidence on record showing that Unisons Clearing Pvt. Ltd. which is a CHA firm, was directly involved in the fraudulently activity of importers. The adjudicating authority has observed that neither importer knew the appellant nor the appellant has signed any document and it was only their employees who were creating the problem and the mischief. In the absence of any direct involvement of the appellant, showing that they were aiding and abetting and associated with the importer, the imposition of penalty upon by them cannot be sustained. For the above proposition, I refer to the Tribunal’s decision in the case of M/s. Saini Consultants, Final order Nos. C/54-55/2008, dated 28-2-2008. Accordingly, I set aside the imposition of penalties upon the appellant in each case and allow all the appeals with consequential relief to the appellant.

5. In the result, the appeals as well as stay applications are allowed.
